The new guidelines for advertizing & limiting unhealthy fats, sodium and added sugar to food aimed at children under 18 are a great start in the right direction.

As I said, "a great start!"

Now, if you will only follow through.

Our children are our future! If all this greed that fuels the food industry isn't curbed, then voluntary guidelines are meaningless. England & Europe have had similar guidelines in place for years & they haven't seen the drastic rise in diabetes and other fat related deseases as we have. Only, their guidelines are mandatory.

I have a feeling that if our government & you do not make these guidelines an enforceable law, we will only get fatter & sicker.

Yours in Christ,
