

5/25/05

us fed trade comm - info collection pilot study accuracy pilot study.

ftc file p 044804 - consumer credit agencies are being allowed to charge highly exorbitant rates. they are walking away from their responsibilities to make sure the payment demanded is for fair and honest treatment by the supplier of goods or services, which far too often in this day and age is negligent goods and negligent services.

i think credit suppliers need some enforcement and penalties and fines. i do not think this survey will help this very omnipresent situation which is hurting american citizens. i think enforcement against the credit agencies is the best course of conduct, not this silly survey.

b. sachau
nj