

Manuel A. Montoya

[REDACTED]

Email : [REDACTED]

June 21, 2006

Dear Sir :

I am writing this letter because I am concerned about the proposed Business Opportunity Rule R511993. I feel that if this proposed Rule R511993 goes into effect as I read and understand it, this will definitely make a negative impact in my MLM business, in which I am a distributor for Fuel Freedom International.

Just like in any business, there will always be dishonest people, from Law Enforcement to Wall Street. But then again, we cannot be held responsible for the way a few individuals conduct themselves in business practices. I believe that it would be unfair for everyone to suffer for a few bad apples. The seven-day waiting period mention in Rule R511993, would be acceptable if one were buying a hand gun. And regarding the references part that we would need to provide 10 prior purchases nearest to the prospective purchaser, would mean that I would have to provide personal information, that I consider confidential. The litigation information would be very damaging if one would need to provide lawsuits that were faults and if the company was found innocent.

The MLM business is the wave of the future, as more and more Americans start their own small business out of their homes to make ends meet. The people that I have met over the 15 years since I have be involved with this industry, are positive, industrious and honest people. Many of them had been laid off; others are just trying to provide a better life for their families. We are not asking for any hand out or food stamps. All we ask is that you consider the proposed Rule R511993 and do not make it any harder for us to earn an honest living. Please consider and put yourself in our place. Would you like for one of your customer to have to wait seven days to enroll. Most of these companies have a 30-day money back guarantee any way. To disclose of lawsuits even if the company was found innocent and to disclose of personal customer information, would make it very difficult for us to do business. I believe companies need to be ethical and accountable for their actions and when wrongly and intentionally cheat people out of their hard earned money then the FTC need to step in and take actions. But if the company is complying with the FTC guidelines and regulations, then why penalize them. In fact they should be rewarded for helping families earn an honest living and make this a better world.

Thank you for your time in considering my comments.

Respectful,

Manuel A. Montoya