I have been impacted in the past by silly rules on contact prescriptions that seemed designed to limit competition. I've had to pay for an unscheduled doctors visit just so I could validate a prescription that I've had for 15 years.

While it seems like the FTC has made progress in this area, I am opposed to any new rules that requires a waiting period that would limit where consumers get new prescriptions filled. It's hard to see the reasoning and again, looks like an attempt to limit competition.
