To the esteemed Federal Trade Commision,

As a contact lens weare for over 15 years, and the husband of a contact lens wearer of 10 years, I am a bit concerned over recent news that I have heard.

I am writing to let you know the feelings I have regarding legislation that will impede my receiving lenses in a short amount of time. There are times when time is of essence in getting my lenses. Whetrher it be a ripped lens before our anniversary vacation, or a lost lens the morning of my sons graduation. I need this freedom to obtain lenses quickly and easily. Having to wait days for your lenses could be a tremendous burden and at times a costly problem especially if circumstances require next day service. I need not burden you with the minute details of several instances where waiting days for lenses would have caused much grief in our family.

I hope to hear that any legislation that was being thought of to impede this right of convenience is abolished .

Thank you.
