As a contact lens wearer I am opposed to all regulation making it harder for me to buy my lens where I please. I live 60 miles from the Metroplex of [redacted] I visit the eye doctor and of course he wants me to buy them there. My car has a 110,000 miles on it and my husband is deceased. I am trying to make do without increased debt. I can not run every other month to [redacted] for contacts and when I did twice I got there and they had ordered the wrong lens. Why punish me with unnecessary wait times and restrictions when ordering over the Internet is easier and they come right to my door in less than a week. I feel it is another case where the big monied doctors are putting pressure on and I am going to pay.
