I am opposed to the contact lens "monopoly" that the eye Dr's have over contact lens wearers. It is not fair. I go to the eye Dr. once a year for my check up where he is able to inspect my eyes for any problems. When I used to get the contacts from the Dr's, they did not check my eyes for anything, so why should I have to order from him? When I go to the doctor for a prescription I do not have to purchase the medicine from him. It seems that there is no problem for people that wear glasses. They are allowed to fill their prescriptions wherever they want. Being able to order contact over the internet, at Costco, etc. is a convenience that we all deserve. I am hoping that I can continue with the convenience and right of ordering contact lenses on line.
