Hello

Recently I heard that there is a proposed law trying to be passed about having to wait for days, not hours, when ordering contact lenses through the mail service. I strongly am against this proposal being that the way it is now it is convenient. What if an emergency arises and a pair is needed pronto to be able to see and do a job? This law would only hinder the arrival of them and even cause a person to not be able to drive or work without them. I know that would be the situation I myself would be in.

Please reconsider how this would affect people in a very bad way.

Thankyou for reading this.

Sincerely, Sue Smith
