I fully support the law which gives me the right to my contact lens prescription, Fairness to Contact Lens Consumers Act of 2003.

I do agree that there is a need for yearly prescription's, however, not allowing me the opportunity to 'shop' around for the best price for my contact lenses would amount to me being held prisoner. I would be restricted to free trade and thus would end up paying higher prices than I should be.

If you, the Federal Trade Commission, allow yourselves to be successfully 'lobbied' by some eye doctors then as an American I would be seriously disheartened. In addition, I do actively vote.
