Subject: clarification

Hello. My name is Rachael Hubbard. I am very pleased to have this consumer protecting lens law. My new Dr. here in Michigan was very insulting and unprofessional when I asked for my contact lens prescription in late November 2003. He told me he would only allow me to buy contacts from him and refused to write the script. I would like to know if he will now be required to give me my script. I know the law became effective early Feb, but my exam is current and I will not be required for a new one until November 2004. The law states they have to give the script at the conclusion of the exam, but since I am current on my exam, I think I should be able to have it. Since you are the expert on this, I need to know. I don't care to go in and be insulted by him yet again in front of his entire office.

Thanks so much!

Rachael Hubbard
