My optometrist insisted that I buy a box of lenses for $34.95 or pay a $24 replacement fee. Without such payment, he would not check my lenses or give me my prescription. After my check-up I noticed that I still did not have my prescription for contacts. So I had to return to get it. He would frequently ask for the box...he refused to give my prescription out as I couldn't get new lenses. On one occasion, I lost my lens so I was unable to see at all.

I am opposed to any changes regulating the sale of contacts directly to the public. As long as we order the prescription we need for better vision, it is no one's business where we choose to purchase them but ours. Government needs to not interfere on this one — the eye doctors make enough on the eye exams alone.
