

From: stu-r
Sent: Thursday, May 13, 2004 3:27 PM
To: spywareworkshop2004
Subject: Spyware Workshop - Comment, P044509

This spyware stuff is just garbage. I can surf the web for four hours and my computer picks up about 16 spyware cookies.

It's simply trespass.

I would load one of the aggressive counter-transmit programs but they only clutter the web with denial of service messages.

Why should I have to pay for a program to prevent trespass?

Why can't you enforce the FCC regulations about malicious use of the airwaves? Why don't you white-collar bureaucratic jackasses simply do your job?

Thank you,

Dr. Stuart Rosenkrantz
retired electronic warfare officer, senior member Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers, twice-retired management professor