

gary addis
Tue 5/18/2004

Gentlemen:

The very name of these products -- spyware and adware-- makes it plain that the afflicted are not inviting the malware attack. If these programmers were legitimate, they would ask the consumer up front if they wanted to permit their computers to spy on their internet usage. Instead, these people use various types of nefarious schemes to get their malware installed on a user's computer.

Do your job: issue strict rules against the propagation of both spyware and adware!

Gary Addis