

United States of America FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION Washington, DC 20580

Division of Advertising Practices

November , 2012

[Company Name] [Attn: President or CEO] [Address]

WARNING LETTER

Dear
Dear					•

The Federal Trade Commission ("FTC") has investigated whether certain hotel operators are violating Section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act ("FTC Act"), 15 U.S.C.§ 45(a), by misrepresenting the hotel room reservation price quoted to consumers.

On May 21, 2012, the FTC held a conference on "drip pricing," defined broadly as a pricing technique in which firms advertise only part of a product's price and reveal other charges later as the customer goes through the buying process. At the conference, FTC Chairman Jon Leibowitz asked consumers to share their drip pricing stories with the FTC. One common complaint consumers raised involved mandatory fees hotels charge for amenities such as newspapers, use of onsite exercise or pool facilities, or internet access, sometimes referred to as "resort fees." These mandatory fees can be as high as $30 per night, a sum that could certainly affect consumer purchasing decisions.

Specifically, consumers complained that they did not know that they would be required to pay resort fees in addition to the quoted hotel room rate. Several stated that they only learned of the fees after they arrived at the hotel, long after making a reservation at what they believed to be the total room price. Others paid for the reservation in advance, and only found out after they arrived at the hotel that they would have to pay additional mandatory fees.

FTC staff has reviewed a number of online hotel reservation sites, and has confirmed that some hotels exclude resort fees from the quoted reservation price. Instead, the "total price" or "estimated price" quoted to consumers includes only the room rate and applicable taxes. At some of these sites, the applicable resort fee is listed nearby, but separate from, the quoted price. In others, the quoted price is accompanied by an asterisk that leads consumers to another location at the site – sometimes on the same page, sometimes not – where the applicable resort fee is disclosed, typically in fine print. A few sites fail to identify applicable resort fees anywhere, and instead inform consumers that other undefined fees may apply.

These practices may violate the law by misrepresenting the price consumers can expect to pay for their hotel rooms. We believe that online hotel reservation sites should include in the quoted total price any unavoidable and mandatory fees, su be charged to stay at the hotel. While a hotel reservation s the reservation estimate (e.g., room rate, estimated taxes, a the most prominent figure for consumers should be the total	ite may breakdown the components of and any mandatory, unavoidable fees),

Attn: Page 2
We reviewed your website at and four mandatory resort fees are not included in the reservation rate encourage you to review your company's website to ensur price consumers can expect to pay when making a reservat advised that the FTC may take action to enforce and seek a Act as the public interest may require.	nte quoted to consumers. We strongly e you are not misrepresenting the total tion to stay in your hotel. Please be
Thank you for your attention to this matter. Please direct any inquiries concerning this letter to Annette Soberats at asoberats@ftc.gov or at 202-326-2921.
Very	truly yours,
	K. Engle ciate Director for Advertising Practices				