

style, price or price range of the watches purchased by Target, nor is there any evidence of the exact dates of those purchases.

259. The tabulations in the record, summarizing sales by Waltham to Gibson stores and other customers in New Mexico and Texas during 1973 and 1974, reveal contemporaneous transactions involving sales of watches by Waltham to various Gibson stores and other Waltham customers located in the same town or city (CX 216A-D).

However, there is virtually no record evidence regarding the functional level of any of the alleged nonfavored customers who are shown in the tabulations.⁵⁵ They may be wholesalers, retailers, warehousemen or even perform some other function. Thus, the record evidence does not show that these alleged nonfavored customers were in competition with Gibson retail stores.

Moreover, the tabulations do not specify what products were purchased in a specific transaction. The only description given for the type of products purchased in all of the transactions shown is "watches." There is also no way to determine the prices of the products involved.⁵⁶ Given the great assortment of Waltham watches,⁵⁷ the information contained in the tabulations is insufficient to make the determination of whether the goods sold to Gibson retail stores and the goods sold to alleged competitors of Gibson stores were of like grade and quality. [103]

G. Wagner Products

260. E. R. Wagner Manufacturing Company, Wagner Products Division ("Wagner"), of Hurlisford, Wisconsin, manufactured and sold carpet sweepers, rug shampooers, rug shampoo, an electric clothes dryer and home food craft kits during the period 1969 through 1973 (Hornick 3156-57).

Wagner sells and ships its products throughout the United States and Canada (Hornick 3156-57), including shipments to Gibson Stores located outside of Wisconsin (CX 640A-N). Wagner is engaged in interstate commerce and its transactions with the respondents, including show fee payments based on such sales, are in the course of such commerce.

261. In 1973, Wagner had approximately 300-400 customers for its carpet sweeper product line, including Gibson, OTASCO, TG & Y, White stores, Nash Hardware, hardware retailers and hardware distributors and wholesalers (Hornick 3164-65, 3211-12, 3214, 3259-61).

⁵⁶ Waltham watches fall into several price categories, with many watches within each category (Findings 255, 256).

⁵⁷ Finding 255.

In 1973, Wagner's volume of sales on carpet sweepers to all of its customers was approximately $600,000 to $700,000 (Hornick 3194). In the same year, Wagner's sales of carpet sweepers to all the Gibson stores amounted to $69,531.73, or approximately 10% of its total sales volume on this product (Hornick 3191-93; CX 634D, 637D).

262. Wagner received orders from different Gibson franchisees in their individual capacity. The products were shipped to the franchisees' stores (Hornick 3239).

263. Wagner's sales force was comprised of independent manufacturer's representatives located throughout the country. Its manufacturer's representative in the Texas and Oklahoma area during the 1969 to 1973 period was the Weldon Jacobs Company ("Jacobs").⁵⁸ Jacobs was paid on a commission basis (Hornick 3157). The duties of Wagner's manufacturer's representatives were to solicit business and service Wagner's accounts (Hornick 3158).

Neither H. R. Gibson, Sr., Tommy Perkins nor any of Gibson, Sr.'s employees was ever a manufacturer's representative for Wagner (Hornick 3196).

264. Wagner participated in the Gibson Trade Show in the years 1969 through 1973 (Hornick 3167). Wagner's purpose in [104]attending the Gibson Trade Show was to be able to display and sell its products to the Gibson retail store buyers who were at the show (Hornick 3169-70, 3217-18, 3227, 3250). Wagner utilized show sheets in connection with the Gibson Trade Show (Hornick 3170; CX 632A-B, 635A-B).

265. The requirements imposed upon Wagner by the Gibson Trade Show for Wagner to participate in the show were: payment for rental of booth space; and, in 1973, payment of a percentage fee based on total sales to all Gibson stores (Hornick 3167, 3190-91, 3195). [105]

266. Wagner made the following booth fee payments to the Gibson Trade Show:*

⁵⁸ Jacobs was Wagner's manufacturer's representative at the Gibson Trade Show (Hornick 3196).

Show	Number of Booths	Rate Per Booth	Amount of Payment	Form of Payment	Payee

*/ Where certain factual points are not indicated with respect to a particular payment, the record evidence did not establish such information.

/ Wagner's manufacturer's representative, Jacobs, would pay the bills for rental of booth space at the Gibson Trade Show and, subsequently, was reimbursed by Wagner (Hornick 3167-68, 3251).

[106]267. In 1973, and again in 1974, Wagner agreed to pay to the Gibson Products Co. three percent of total sales to all Gibson retail stores for promotional services rendered (Hornick 3190-91, 3195, 3198-99; SR 17B, C). Wagner agreed to make such show fee payments because "[i]t was our understanding that if we didn't do that, we might not be able to get into the trade show" and, if that were to result, "[w]e felt that our sales would suffer" (Hornick 3195, 3202, 3215, 3237). [107]

268. Wagner made the following show fee payments to the Gibson Trade Show:

[108]269. Wagner did not receive any services from the Gibson Trade Show for the payment of the three percent show fee in 1973, above and beyond the services it had received in prior years when it had not made any show fee payments (Hornick 3195). The show fee was paid in connection with the original sale of Wagner's products to Gibson retail stores; the show fee was not a promotional allowance made in connection with the resale of Wagner's products to consumers (Findings 68, 73, 97, 264, 265, 267).

270. Similarly, the booth fee was paid in order to enable Wagner to attend the Gibson Trade Show and, thereby, to facilitate the original sale of Wagner's goods to Gibson retail stores. The booth fee was not a promotional allowance made in connection with the resale of Wagner's products to consumers (Findings 64, 68, 73, 95, 264, 265).

271. Wagner did not have a volume rebate program in 1973 (Hornick 3196). In that year, Wagner neither made nor offered to make payments based upon a percentage of total sales or alternate payments to any of its customers, other than Gibson Products Company, for services rendered (Hornick 3200-02).

During the 1969 to 1973 period, Wagner neither made nor offered to make payments based upon a percentage of total sales to any of the other trade shows that it attended (Hornick 3202-03).

272. In the years 1969 to 1973, Wagner neither made nor offered to make booth payments or alternate payments, other than newspaper or tabloid advertising, to any of its customers that did not hold trade shows (Hornick 3203-04).

273. Wagner had an advertising and promotional program which was made available to all of its customers, including all Gibson stores. The program encompassed the use of tabloids, newspaper advertising and sales floor demonstrations (Hornick 3196-97, 3201, 3229-32). The payments made by Wagner would vary, depending on the type of service utilized by the customer (Hornick 3231).

274. Wagner participated with the Gibson stores, in 1972 and 1973, in advertising in Gibson tabloids which were directed at the ultimate consumers⁵⁹ (Hornick 3171, 3174, 3176, 3254). Wagner paid $500.00, by check dated May 3, 1973, [109]to the Gibson Products Corp. for advertising in the April 1972 Gibson tabloid⁶⁰ (CX 633A-F. See also Hornick 3179-80, 3186, 3187, 3190). The tabloid payment to Gibson Products Company was not based upon a percentage of total sales (Hornick 3198). Moreover, it was in addition to the show fee payments made in 1973 (Hornick 3200, 3232).

There is no showing that Wagner's tabloid payments were not within the scope of its cooperative advertising and promotional program made available to all of its customers (Finding 274). A discrimination cognizable under Count I of the complaint with respect to tabloid payments has not been proven.

⁵⁹ Wagner believed that participation in the Gibson tabloid advertisements would facilitate sales to Gibson retail stores (Hornick 3255, 3265).

⁶⁰ The products advertised were the following model carpet sweepers: Tidy-Up, Handy, Un-Litter Bug and Sweep-A-Smile (CX 633F).

275. Wagner participated in Gibson store directory advertising in which Wagner's name and products, along with other vendors, were listed for purposes of distribution to the Gibson retail stores (Hornick 3171-72, 3228-29). Wagner paid $50.00, by check dated September 21, 1972, to the Gibson Products Company for advertising in the January-June 1973 Gibson store directory (CX 631A-E). Wagner viewed the store directory advertisement as an aid in making sales to the Gibson retail stores (Hornick 3228).

276. Wagner considered its carpet sweepers as one product line. However, there were four basic types of chassis for the carpet sweepers (Hornick 3159). There were three basic sizes. Other variations included still larger units, a unit with a dial and a larger unit with a dial and a bigger bumper (Hornick 3163-64, 3225). Even where the only variations were that of color and name, such a carpet sweeper would have its own part number (Hornick 3223).

Aladdin was the smallest carpet sweeper in size, with the least number of features; it would come in different colors and have different names, such as Aladdin Sunset Red or Aladdin Avocado Handy (Hornick 3159-60. See e.g., CX 640A, B). Floormaster was another chassis type; it also came in different colors with different names, such as Floormaster Bittersweet, Floormaster Lettuce Green, Floormaster Bright Yellow, or Floormaster Brown (Hornick 3161. See, e.g., CX 640A, D). The Lite N Easy Blue Mist, Aladdin, Dial A Sweep, Calico Daisies, Tidy Up and Whisk Up models were all the same type carpet sweeper, differing only in terms of color and name (Hornick 3161-62. See, e.g., CX 640A, E).

Wagner also offered and sold a promotional carpet sweeper, which was specially priced at a lower price to move well. This promotional product, described only as "Carpet Sweeper A" on some of Wagner's invoices (CX 640J, L), is the [110]same type carpet sweeper as the Lite N Easy Blue Mist, Aladdin, et al. (Hornick 3162-63); for instance, the Light N Easy Blue Mist and the promotional "Carpet Sweeper A" have the same part numbers (CX 640E-N). This promotional carpet sweeper is the product sold in the case of the invoices numbered CX 640E-N.

277. The invoices in the record disclose the following contemporaneous transactions involving sales of goods of like grade and quality (CX 640A-N).

San Antonio, Texas: Aladdin/Lite N Easy Blue Mist/Carpet Sweeper A (Gibson - 3/30/73, 8/29/73; White Stores⁶¹ - 2/6/73, 3/14/73, 5/18/73, 6/13/73, 8/20/73, 4/25/73, 12/5/73, 3/8/74).

H. Farber Brothers

278. Farber Brothers ("Farber"), of Memphis, Tennessee, sells interior automotive products, including seat covers, slip covers and air cooled cushions (Farber, 1104-05).

Farber normally sends all of its shipments out of Memphis (Farber 1105-06), including sales to Gibson stores located outside of Tennessee (CX 1204A-J). Farber is engaged in interstate commerce and its transactions with the respondents, including show fee payments based on such sales, are in the course of such commerce.

279. Farber has had employees who worked on a commission basis as well as direct sales representatives (Farber 1143-44). Sales representatives normally received a five percent commission (Farber 1145).

280. Farber's major accounts are Montgomery Ward, Western Auto, TG & Y, Gibson stores and White's (Farber 1105, 1107).

281. Farber has participated in the Gibson Trade Show from its inception (Farber 1112-13, 1118-19). Its purpose in participating in the Gibson Trade Show was to obtain more sales from retailers attending the show (Farber 1142).

282. Farber usually has two to three of its employees attending the Gibson Trade Show. These employees are responsible for displaying merchandise to Gibson store buyers, presenting them with show sheets and taking their orders (Farber 1118). [111]

Farber has paid for the expenses incurred by its employees while attending the show (CX 1180, 1181A-D, 1182A-B, 1183A-D, 1174A-D, 1175A-C, 1176A-B, 1178, 1179, 1170A-B, 1171A-B, 1172, 1173, 1163, 1164, 1165; Farber 1117, 1122-23, 1126, 1129, 1132, 1139).

283. Farber listed the merchandise that it would exhibit at the Gibson Trade Show on show sheets (Farber 1164). This supplier suggested the items to be listed, and H.R. Gibson, Sr. and Bobby Regeon selected those products that they believed would sell to the buyers at the trade show (Farber 1164-65, 1183-84). Farber considered the trade show buyer to be a "merchandise selector" (Farber 1165). Regeon did not actually purchase any merchandise but "would select the products that he considered worthwhile to go to the shows, to the Gibson stores" (Farber 1182, 1184).

284. The requirements placed upon Farber to participate in the Gibson Trade Show were: payment for the rental of booth space; and, beginning in 1973, payment of a two percent rebate to H.R. Gibson, Sr., doing business as the Gibson Trade Show, based on total annual sales to Gibson stores (Farber 1119, 1132-36, 1147-48; CX 1084, 1085, 1157A-B). [112]

285. Farber made the following booth fee payments to the Gibson Trade Show:*

[113]286. On November 1, 1973, after discussions with H. R. Gibson, Sr., Farber signed an agreement to pay to the Gibson Trade Show "2% of all sales made at this show and on all sales made as a result of Supplier being represented by THE GIBSON TRADE SHOW" (CX 1084, 1157A-B; Farber 1132-35). This agreement covered 1974 (Farber 1141). Farber signed an agreement on January 2, 1975, containing the same provisions as the above agreement (CX 1085). This agreement covered 1975 (Farber 1140).

The two percent fee arrangement based on sales to Gibson stores was intended to be for H.R. Gibson, Sr.'s services in bringing customers to Farber's booth at the trade show (Farber 1133-34, 1193; CX 1157A). The services that Farber received from H.R. Gibson, Sr. included preselecting merchandise to put in the show, distributing show sheets to retailers, bringing Gibson store buyers to the trade show, encouraging them to buy merchandise and calling delinquent accounts on behalf of Farber (Farber 1142, 1193-96, 1207-08).

287. Farber regarded H.R. Gibson, Sr. as its manufacturer's representative, albeit not as an exclusive manufacturer's representative, since 1973, the time at which Farber began making two percent volume rebates to the Gibson Trade Show (Farber 1176-78). However, Farber paid its direct sales force their percentage commission and paid H.R. Gibson, Sr. his two percent volume rebate, all on the same sales (Farber 1211).

288. The two percent payments to the Gibson Trade Show are carried on Farber's books as a sales expense (Farber 1167). [114]

289. Farber made the following show fee payments to the Gibson Trade Show:

[115]290. The show fee was paid in connection with the original sale of Farber's products to Gibson retail stores; the show fee was not a promotional allowance made in connection with the resale of Farber's products to consumers (Findings 68, 73, 97, 281, 284, 286).

291. Similarly, the booth fee was paid in order to enable Farber to attend the Gibson Trade Show and, thereby, to facilitate the original sale of Farber's goods to Gibson retail stores. The booth fee was not a promotional allowance made in connection with the resale of Farber's products to consumers (Findings 64, 68, 73, 95, 281, 284).

292. Farber did not make any percentage payments to any other customer during the time period, beginning in 1973, in which it made two percent payments to the Gibson Trade Show (Farber 1167).

293. The Gibson Buyers Guide is a show directory that lists the trade show exhibitors and indicates their location at the show (Farber 1167-68). There were no requirements for any payments in order to be listed; however, if an exhibitor wished to place an advertisement in the directory, a payment was required (Farber 1168). Advertisements in the Buyers Guide were directed at buyers for the retail stores and did not constitute advertising to consumers (Farber 1194-95). [116]

294. Farber made the following payments to the Gibson Trade Show for advertisements in the show directory:

Amount	Date of Payment	Payee	Description of Payment
$30.00	1/18/72	Ideal Travel Agency 519 Gibson St. Seagoville, Texas	Ad in January 1972 store directory	CX 1161
17.00	2/29/72	Ideal Travel Agency 519 Gibson St. Seagoville, Texas	Page ad in February Gibson Trade Show Buyers Guide	CX 1162A-B
17.00	5/7/73	The Gibson Trade Show 517 Gibson St. Seagoville, Texas	Page ad in May Gibson Trade Show Buyers Guide	CX 1160A-B

[117]295. Farber has continued its participation in the Gibson Trade Show in 1976 and 1977. In those years, it paid booth rental fees and a two percent volume rebate (Farber 1170-71).

296. Farber has never offered nor operated a standard advertising program (Farber 1168). However, during the period 1969 through 1975, Farber did offer to make advertising allowances available on the same basis to its customers, such as Gibson stores, TG & Y, Wal-Mart and Woolco (Farber 1203-05, 1212-13; CX 1203A-B; Pettit 4195-96, 4199). According to Farber, it offers advertising payments "the same to all customers" (Farber 1204).

Farber participated in placing advertisements in the Gibson tabloid, including an advertisement authorized on February 6, 1970, for which Farber agreed to pay Gibson Products Company $500.00 (CX 1158D; Farber 1213-14).

Farber, which did not conduct a standard advertising program, nevertheless claimed that advertising allowances were offered on the same basis to all customers. Such ambiguous evidence affords no basis for a finding that the tabloid payments constituted a cognizable discrimination under Count I of the complaint. In any event, complaint counsel have not sustained their burden of proof regarding a showing that the tabloid payments discriminated between Gibson stores and other customers competing in the products featured in such advertisements. The tabloid payment in question was made by Farber in 1970. The tabulations and other evidence in the record with respect to goods purchased by Farber's customers covers the period 1972 to 1975 (CX 1204A-B). There is no record evidence as to any sales transactions in 1970.

297. Farber manufactures approximately 14 to 15 different grades of vinyl slip covers in order to meet consumer preferences (Farber 1202). It also manufactures about 14 to 15 different grades of cushions and ventilated or cooled cushions (Farber 1203).

298. The tabulations of purchases from Farber by Gibson stores and other customers generally give only descriptions such as "cushions" or "slip covers" (CX 1204A-B). This is insufficient to sustain a finding that such transactions involved sales of goods of like grade and quality. The following contemporaneous sales were recorded with more precision and meet the like grade and quality requirements (CX 1204A-B): [118]

Fayetteville, Ark. - carpet roll (Gibson 3/11/74; Wal-Mart^{61a} - 1/4/74).

Shreveport, La. - nylon cushion (Gibson - 3/14/75 and 6/24/75; TG & Y^{61a} - 1/14/75).

Abilene, Tex. - truck vinyl (Gibson - 3/14/75; TG & Y - 3/11/75).

I. Armstrong Environmental Industries

299. Armstrong Environmental Industries ("Armstrong"), of Los Angeles, California, manufactures both aboveground and underground home sprinklers (Fox 3046-47).

Armstrong sells its products throughout the United States, including sales to Gibson stores located outside of California (Fox 3046, 3050-51). Armstrong's products are shipped from California and Florida (Fox 3080). Armstrong is engaged in interstate commerce and its transactions with respondents, including show fee payments based on such sales, are in the course of such commerce.

300. Armstrong sells to distributors, chain retail establishments, retail stores and catalog houses (Fox 3048). Armstrong's retail customers in 1969 included J. C. Penney, Montgomery Ward, Oklahoma Tire, White Stores, Leonards, Angels, Builders Emporium, Gamble-Skogmo, H.B. Meyers, K-Mart, Handy Dan and Gibson stores (Fox 3048-50).

The Gibson stores, collectively, were Armstrong's eighth or ninth largest customer (Fox 3055, 3093). Armstrong did a total volume of net sales with all Gibson stores of $28,000.00 for the business year ending June 24, 1970 (CX 781B; Fox 3068-69).

301. Individual franchisees using the Gibson name placed orders with Armstrong. The franchisees were billed on an individual basis (Fox 3094).

302. Armstrong's sales force consists solely of manufacturer's representatives located throughout the country (Fox 3046-47). The manufacturer's representatives are compensated on the basis of the gross sales they make on behalf of Armstrong (Fox 3059-60). They call on customers, solicit business and take orders (Fox 3061). The F.F. Tranchina Company ("Tranchina") is Armstrong's manufacturer's representative in Texas; it helped Armstrong begin selling to Gibson stores (Fox 3051-52). H.R. Gibson, Sr. was never Armstrong's manufacturer's representative (Fox 3061). [119]

303. Armstrong participated in the Gibson Trade Show in 1969, 1970 and 1971 (Fox 3052-55). In the course of such participation, it listed the merchandise, along with the prices, that it presented for sale at the 1969, 1970 and 1971 Gibson Trade Shows on the show sheets provided by the Gibson Trade Show. The show sheets served as purchase order forms (Fox 3065-66; CX 778A-F, 779, 780A-F, 784A-G). Armstrong participated in the Gibson Trade Show because it facilitated its sales to retailers (Fox 3091). And, the services provided by the introduction of customers to Armstrong representatives by trade show personnel also facilitated such sales to retailers (Fox 3091-92).

304. The only requirement imposed upon Armstrong by the Gibson Trade Show for Armstrong to be in the 1969 show was payment for rental of booth space (Fox 3053). In 1970 and 1971, Armstrong was required to pay rental for booth space and a five percent fee on total annual gross sales to all Gibson stores in 1969 and 1970, respectively, in order to participate in the Gibson Trade Show (Fox 3053-55, 3077-78, 3100).
