

Enrolling with FDR definitely took the stress off and allowed me to get my life going in a better direction. I'm very appreciative to be out from all that debt...the program helped me get through a very difficult & stressful time in my life.

I had gone through a bad divorce and was left with all this debt from a life that didn't even exist anymore. It was a huge weight on me mentally and there seemed to be no way out – especially once the credit card companies started to raise my interest rates. I was paying them everything I could, and yet my balances weren't going down.

I tried to negotiating the credit card companies, but I kept hitting a brick wall with them. As much as tried explaining to them my situation, they wouldn't help me. Instead, my interest rates would go up!

I went online to see what other people in my situation were saying and where they were going for help. That's how I found out about Freedom Debt Relief. After reading about the experiences of others, I felt that this was a company I could trust.

I'm so happy to have joined! Where as I got nowhere with the credit card companies, Freedom Debt Relief took over and got results. They were great, always giving me updates and explaining how things were going, it really took the stress off.

I still remember how happy I was when they called to tell me about my first settlement. It was on the card with the largest balance! I was so thrilled; I was telling everybody about it. It was such a huge relief.

As I progressed through the program, I was impressed by the fact that every company representative that I dealt with was friendly, professional, knowledgeable and eager to help me.

Today, I'm now in a much better financial situation. I would definitely recommend FDR to family & friends. Thanks to Freedom Debt Relief I'm out of debt, back in school, and building towards a better future – it never would have been possible with their program.

Jessica Burton, California