

October 28, 2013

FTC Office of the Secretary
Room H-113 (Annex U)
600 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC. 20580

FTC Docket: 9297

Dear FTC,

So according to our employee meetings a guy named Jean Luc Kock is being hired as the company CEO. Why would this buyer want to bring in an x-Daramic employee to run our company? Can you guys not see that this group is merely creating a Daramic, jr? How is a Ceo from France going to relate to employees from East Tennessee? Why not just let Polypore keep the company? The buyer is also hiring another Daramic guy William Brown? I thought the idea was to create competition, not create a Daramic step-child.

The FTC should do the right thing and make Polypore sell to a buyer that will not bring all of these Daramic people with them. Polypore has broken the law and now will get a very weak competitor out of this deal. Not to mention they will make millions$$$$$$

It is not right!!!!

John Q. Employee