12/21/2021	FOIA-2022-00394	Frumes, Max	Other	I submitted the following report today and would like a copy: Hi, I saw Zach Witman pitch his company GrowSquares in 2018. In his presentation, it was very appealing because he showed that he was already generating revenue from a working product, with testimonials of how satisfied the customers were and how there was so much demand. The product was supposed to be boxes with seeds and soil designed for mainly urban customers' locations with the best plants / herbs/ veggies that would grow in their location. I met up with him in private two more times and got convinced to invest in this company as it grew. I also tried to purchase some of these products online - the company has a nifty app and easily accepts payments for all these different plants and vegetables - excited to try the product out and show it off to friends. However, the products never arrived. I kept checking in and every time there was some excuse (delayed until next season, changing the material of the boxes, supply chain, etc.). Three years later I've never received a single working product even after repeated promises that I would. I inquired in April 2021 as to whether the company had folded - startups do fail after all. To my surprise, Zach had just raised MORE money and was STILL selling the products online to retail customers via his app. Only problem is, HE'S NEVER HAD A WORKING PRODUCT. I reached out to current and former employees and other investors and have gotten in touch with a couple who all told me the same thing. They'd never seen a working product. One was actually a product manager that said - just last month in November 2021 - the company ran the first production line that she knew of - and there were so many problems that they would be have to redesign the whole thing aiming for roll out in 2023. Meanwhile the website STILL has the products up for sale. There are numerous lies that I've been told in this whole debacle and as upsetting as it is to lose money on a scam, it's even more frustrating to see that it continues to be perpetrated on other investors and customers who just want to grow some plants in their small city apartments.
