Complaint

Acting in the public interest, pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission charges that Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company, Inc., Brickner & Bernfeld, Inc., and Henry Kutik, Isador Kutik, Morris Kutik, and George Kutik, trading under the firm name and style of Kutik Brothers, hereinafter called respondents, have been and are using unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of said Act, and states its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company, Inc., is now, and since March 1928, has been, a corporation organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York with its principal place of business at Pierini Park, Springfield Gardens, Long Island, in the State of New York. It has been, since its organization, and now is, engaged in the business of dressing and dyeing rabbit skins for their owners, including respondent Brickner & Bernfeld, Inc., by special processes which cause them to resemble dyed sealskins. It has rendered and renders such service at the instance and request of respondent Brickner & Bernfeld, Inc., and other owners of rabbit skins in accordance with, or in pursuance of, agreements with them, with the knowledge, expectation, purpose, and intent that the rabbit skins, or a substantial proportion thereof, dressed and dyed by it for respondent Brickner & Bernfeld, Inc., and other owners will be offered for sale and sold in interstate commerce by them to dealers in furs, or to manufacturers of fur garments, engaged in interstate commerce, or will be used by the owners of the skins themselves for the manufacture of fur garments sold in such commerce.

Respondent Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company, Inc., in the course and conduct of such business has been, since its organization in 1928, and now is, engaged in competition with individuals, partnerships, and corporations engaged in dressing or dyeing rabbit skins, or the skins of other fur-bearing animals for individuals, partnerships, and corporations selling rabbit skins or the skins of other fur-bearing animals, including seals, or garments manufactured therefrom, in interstate commerce.

Respondent Brickner & Bernfeld, Inc., has been since 1926, and now is, a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its principal place of business in the city and State of New York. It has been since its organization and now is, engaged in the importation into the United States of Australian and New Zealand rabbit skins which it has caused and now causes to be dressed and dyed by respondent Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company, Inc., to resemble dyed seal skins, and in their sale thereupon or thereafter, in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, to dealers in skins or furs, or manufacturers of fur garments.

Respondent Brickner & Bernfeld, Inc., in the course and conduct of such business has been, and now is, in competition with individuals, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the sale of skins of fur-bearing animals in interstate commerce.

Respondents Henry Kutik, Isador Kutik, Morris Kutik, and George Kutik have been for several years last past and now are, engaged in the business, under the firm name and style of Kutik Brothers, of manufacturing fur garments, and their sale in and among the various States of the United States. Their office and principal place of business is in the city and State of New York. It has been and is the practice of said respondents Henry Kutik, Isador Kutik, Morris Kutik, and George Kutik, as Kutik Brothers, in the course of their said business, to cause their products, when sold to be transported from their said place of business in the city and State of New York to purchasers of their products, in the various other States of the United States than the State of New York, and in such commerce among and between the various States of the United States, respondents Kutik Brothers have been, and are, in competition with individuals, partnerships, and corporations offering for sale or selling fur garments in interstate commerce.

Par. 2. A. Pierini in 1926 established at Pierini Park, Long Island, in the State of New York, a business of dressing and dyeing rabbit skins by a process which causes them to resemble dyed seal skins.
He adopted and used in such business the trade name Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company. The business consisted in the importation of Australian and New Zealand rabbit skins, and in dyeing and dressing them, and thereafter in selling them in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, and also in dressing and dyeing rabbit skins for the owners thereof, in accordance with special contracts for such services. Sometime in 1925, A. Pierini caused a company to be incorporated under the laws of the State of New York under the name of Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Corporation to take over the business of the unincorporated concern which he had conducted theretofore under the name of Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company. He continued to advertise his business under and by the name Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company, and furs dyed by him under such name were widely advertised in trade journals and by means of large and striking display cards, which were distributed under the name of Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company among purchasers and prospective purchasers of furs and fur garments in the various States of the United States. There was also published and circulated or distributed, among purchasers and prospective purchasers in the various States of the United States, a house organ called the Northern Seal Bulletin, in which impressive displays were made of fur garments described as “Northern Seal.”

Trade journals, circulated throughout the fur trade including fur merchants or dealers in the various States of the United States, carried large and extensive advertisements of the Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company, wherein were shown pictorial representations or illustrations of women arrayed in fur coats described and designated “Northern Seal.” Large placards or display cards were caused by A. Pierini, under his name Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company, to be conspicuously exhibited in places of business of dealers engaged in selling fur garments in other States of the United States than the State of New York, as well as in the State of New York, containing pictorial illustrations of women wearing fur garments described as “Northern Seal.” It was the practice of A. Pierini and of the Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company or Corporation to stamp, or caused to be stamped on the back of rabbit skins dressed or dyed by it, the brand name “Northern Seal”, and in addition to featuring such trade name in all his advertisements, to describe and designate as “Sealines”, garments made from rabbit skins dyed by him.

In 1927, A. Pierini, under the name Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company, or his incorporated concern the Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Corporation, discontinued the practice of buying, dyeing, and selling rabbit skins on his or its own account, but continued in the business of dressing and dyeing rabbit skins for the owners thereof or manufacturers of fur garments.

As Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Corporation or Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Corporation which he controlled, he dyed or caused to be dyed rabbit skins to resemble seal skins to the extent of 7,000,000 in each of the years 1924, 1925, and 1926, about 5,000,000 in 1927, and 3,000,000 in 1928. It requires from 40 to 50 rabbit skins to construct a fur garment for women, and there were manufactured and sold, in interstate commerce from rabbit skins so dyed and stamped “Northern Seal”, from 100,000 to 150,000 coats each year until 1928. It was the practice of A. Pierini and of the Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company, after dressing and dyeing or after dyeing skins for their owners or for manufacturers of fur garments, to return or deliver them in boxes containing 50 skins, accompanied by a label bearing the words “Genuine Northern Seal”, to be attached by manufacturers to the completed garment made from such skins on the outside of the lining, and in the conspicuous place where labels usually appear.

The stamps, brands, and labels so used or furnished by A. Pierini as the Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company or Corporation did not carry or contain the name Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company, or that of such corporation, or any other words than the name “Northern Seal”, and it was the general practice of manufacturers of fur garments from or out of rabbit skins dyed by respondent A. Pierini, the Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company, or by the Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Corporation controlled by him, to attach to such garments the labels furnished bearing the words “Genuine Northern Seal”.

Sometime in 1926 the Federal Trade Commission caused a trade conference to be held of those engaged in the fur industry and trade. It was the consensus of opinion among those attending such conference that the use of such brands or names as “Northern Seal”, “Golden Seal”, “Belgian Seal”, or “Baltic Seal”, or any names containing the word “Seal” to describe dyed rabbit skins, when unaccompanied or unqualified by words showing clearly the true name of the fur, had a tendency to deceive the public. There were formulated, by such trade conference, certain rules which thereafter were approved and published by the Federal Trade Commission, relating to the manner or method to be followed in branding, stamping, describing, or designating furs or fur garments. The rules so adopted, which are pertinent, were as follows:
Rule 1. In order to describe a fur, in every case the correct name of the fur must be the last word of the description, and if any dye or blend is used in simulating another fur, the word "dyed" or "blended" must be inserted between the name signifying the fur that is simulated and the true name of the fur: as, "Seal Dyed Muskrat" or "Mink Dyed Marmot".

Rule 4. Where goods are sold under a registered trade mark that trade mark should not, by intent or otherwise, be capable of misinterpretation by the public. In case of trade marks heretofore established in common use, the advertisers should invariably indicate by suitable descriptive matter in addition to the trade mark just what the fur is, or better, the trade mark should be modified so as to include the descriptive matter.

After publication of such rules, A. Pierini, as the Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company, or the Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Corporation which he controlled, adopted and followed the practice of placing beneath the words "Northern Seal" stamped on rabbit skins dyed by him or it, at a distance of an inch therefrom, the words "Seal Dyed Coney", and on labels furnished owners of such skins the words "Seal Dyed Coney" were also placed beneath the words "Genuine Northern Seal" in small and inconspicuous letters.

In 1928 the respondent Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company, Inc., was incorporated and organized, as set forth in paragraph 1 hereof, as a new and independent company to take over the property and business theretofore conducted by A. Pierini under the name "Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company" and the property and business of the Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Corporation, which he controlled as aforesaid. Respondent adopted as its corporate name and its trade name precisely that formerly used by A. Pierini for more than ten years theretofore. It assumed the property and business of A. Pierini or the Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company, or Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Corporation, and ever since has had, enjoyed, and maintained, and now has, enjoys and maintains the good will its said predecessor or predecessors have developed among the trade or purchasing public, including the fruits of the extensive advertising by its said predecessor or predecessors, and the widespread use of the trade mark "Northern Seal", and of such good will as may have accrued or has accrued from the sale and distribution each year for many years in interstate commerce of from 100,000 to 150,000 fur garments bearing the trade mark "Northern Seal", and the label "Genuine Northern Seal".

In April 1928 there was a consolidation or merger between the respondent Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company, the Golden Fur Dyeing Company, and the Ideal-Belgian Fur Dyeing
Complaint

Company, which companies had been and were engaged in dressing and dyeing rabbit skins to resemble dyed sealskins for owners of such skins or manufacturers of fur garments. Prior to such consolidation or merger the Golden Fur Dyeing Company had operated and controlled two factories in the city of Brooklyn and State of New York. At the time of the merger or consolidation it was the practice, and had been for many years theretofore, of the Golden Fur Dyeing Company to stamp rabbit pelts dyed by it with the words “Golden Seal” in large and conspicuous letters, enclosing them within a circle. Sometime in 1926, after the aforesaid trade conference, this company altered its trade mark by adding the words “Seal Dyed Coney” in small and inconspicuous letters at a distance of an inch or an inch and a half beneath the lower border of the circle inclosing the said trade mark “Golden Seal”.

Since such consolidation or merger respondent Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company, Inc., has used on rabbit skins dyed by it trade marks theretofore used, to wit, “Northern Seal”, “Bonded Northern Seal”, and registered trade marks formerly owned by, and acquired from, Golden Fur Dyeing Company and Ideal Belgian Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company respectively, “Golden Seal” and “Ideal-Belgian”. It has been and is the practice of said respondent to stamp the best grade of rabbit skins dyed by it with the trade mark “Bonded Northern Seal”, and to stamp the second grade of rabbit skins dyed by it with the trade mark “Northern Seal”. The third grade of rabbit skins dyed by it have been and are stamped by said respondent either “Golden Seal” or “Ideal Belgian”.

Respondent Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company, Inc., has adopted and continued, and now follows, the practice of A. Pierini doing business under the name Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company and the Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Corporation controlled by him, of furnishing with the number of rabbit skins required for fur garments, labels bearing the words “Northern Seal” or “Bonded Northern Seal” in large and conspicuous letters and the words “Seal Dyed Coney” in small and inconspicuous letters to be attached by manufacturers of garments from such skins to the completed garment at the usual place for labels on the outside of the lining. It also requests and encourages the use of such labels for such purpose.

It has been and also is the practice of respondent Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company, Inc., to furnish owners of skins dyed by it and manufacturers of fur garments from such skins, tags to be attached to containers of the completed garment which have contained the name of respondent and its address, and have featured the trade mark "Northern Seal" in red, with the trade mark "Golden Seal" on one side and the trade mark "Ideal-Belgian" on the other side. Above the trade mark "Northern Seal" has appeared the word "Bonded" and beneath such trade mark in small and inconspicuous letters the words "Seal Dyed Coney." Such words have also appeared beneath the trade mark "Golden Seal" and beneath the trade mark "Ideal-Belgian" have appeared the words "Seal" and "Dyed Coney". The word "Seal" appears in larger and more conspicuous letters than the words "Ideal-Belgian", and the words "Dyed Coney" are expressed in letters so small as not to be legible or noticeable.

Said respondent Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company, Inc., also features and exploits its corporate name and the aforesaid trade names or trade marks upon its stationery, including invoices, order forms, credit memoranda and letterheads on all of which the words "Ideal-Belgian Seal", "Bonded Northern Seal" or "Northern Seal" and "Golden Seal" appear in large and conspicuous letters, and the words "Dyed Coney" or "Seal Dyed Coney" appear in small and inconspicuous letters which are sometimes entirely illegible or unnoticeable. It follows the same practice with respect to display calendars and packing containers, and it advertises in the various trade papers which circulate in the different States of the United States among fur dealers, and in its advertisements features its said trade marks and describes garments made from rabbit skins dyed by it as "Sealines." It encourages and urges its customers to advertise garments made from rabbit skins dyed by it, and to feature or display its trade names, and contributes a portion of the expense of such advertisements.

Par. 3. It has been and is the practice of respondent Brickner & Bernfeld, Inc., in the course and conduct of its business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, to cause its Australian and New Zealand rabbit skins imported into the United States by it, or a substantial proportion thereof, to be dressed and dyed to resemble dyed seal skins by respondent Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company, Inc., as stated in said paragraph, and such rabbit skins dyed by said respondent Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company, Inc., in pursuance of agreements with respondent Brickner & Bernfeld, have been and are returned to respondent Brickner & Bernfeld, Inc., after performance of such dyeing service, branded and stamped with the words "Bonded Northern Seal" or "Northern Seal" or "Golden Seal" and with the words "Seal Dyed Coney" in small letters inconspicuously placed some distance from or below the words "Bonded Northern Seal" or "Northern Seal" or "Golden Seal." Respondent Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company, Inc., has also furnished and furnishes respondent Brickner & Bernfeld, Inc., labels bearing the words "Northern Seal" or "Bonded Northern Seal" in large and conspicuous letters, with the words "Seal Dyed Coney" appearing below them in small and inconspicuous letters.

Such rabbit skins so dyed and stamped by respondent Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company, Inc., have been offered for sale and sold by respondent Brickner & Bernfeld, Inc., in course of its business described in paragraph 1 hereof to dealers in rabbit skins and the skins of other fur-bearing animals and to manufacturers of fur garments in the State of New York and in the various other States of the United States than the State of New York, including respondents Henry Kutik, Isador Kutik, Morris Kutik, and George Kutik trading under the firm name and style of Kutik Brothers. Respondent Brickner & Bernfeld, Inc., has furnished and furnishes, along with rabbit skins so dyed and stamped by respondent Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company, Inc., to its customers including the individual respondents trading as Kutik Brothers, the labels hereinbefore described and furnished respondent Brickner & Bernfeld, Inc., by respondent Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company, Inc. Such labels have been and are furnished its customers, including said respondents Kutik Brothers, by respondent Brickner & Bernfeld, Inc., to be attached to garments made out of the dyed rabbit skins sold them, with the full knowledge that garments manufactured from such dyed rabbit skins by its customers, including respondents Kutik Brothers, would be sold in interstate commerce, and for the purpose and with the effect of promoting and facilitating the business of its customers, including said Kutik Brothers, in selling in such commerce garments made from dyed rabbit skins to the consuming public, as and for garments made from dyed sealskins.

Respondent Brickner & Bernfeld, Inc., in order to induce the purchase of its dyed rabbit skins and the sale of garments manufactured therefrom by its customers including respondents trading as Kutik Brothers, advertises in the various trade papers circulated in the various States of the United States, and among its various methods of advertisement has adopted and uses large display cards, posters, and circulars wherein and whereby it represents that Brickner & Bernfeld, Inc., is the world's largest "Sealine" house, and in said advertisements it particularly features the trade mark "Bonded Northern Seal" or "Golden Seal" in large and conspicuous letters with the words "Seal Dyed Coney" below them in small and inconspicuous letters.
Par. 4. Respondents Henry Kutik, Isador Kutik, Morris Kutik, and George Kutik, trading under the firm name and style of Kutik Brothers, in the course and conduct of their business as described in paragraph 1, have offered for sale and sold garments manufactured from dyed rabbit skins bearing the stamp or brand "Northern Seal" or "Bonded Northern Seal" or "Golden Seal" with the words "Seal Dyed Coney" in small and inconspicuous letters. Such garments so manufactured and sold by respondents Kutik Brothers have been and are so constructed that at or near the place on each fur garment where the labels of garments usually appear, the words "Northern Seal" or "Bonded Northern Seal" or "Golden Seal" may or can be exposed by ripping or opening the lining of the garment without exposure of the words "Seal Dyed Coney." Respondents Kutik Brothers have also placed or caused to be placed on the completed garments, manufactured from said dyed rabbit skins at the usual or appropriate place, labels furnished them as stated in paragraph 3 hereof by respondent Brickner & Bernfeld, Inc., and have sold and sell such garments advertised, described and designated as "Sealines".

Par. 5. It requires from 40 to 50 rabbit skins for the construction of a coat for women, and from 7 to 8 sealskins. Garments made from rabbit skins dyed to resemble sealskins resemble garments made from dyed sealskins, but they resemble them in appearance only. Dyed rabbit skins are greatly inferior to the skins of seals in pliability and durability of the leather and in wearing quality and luster, and garments made from sealskins command prices far in excess of or substantially greater than the prices commanded by garments made from rabbit skins.

Par. 6. There are now and have been for many years competitors of respondents offering for sale and selling in interstate commerce genuine dyed sealskins, and competitors offering for sale and selling in such commerce garments manufactured from genuine dyed sealskins.

There are now and for many years last past have been competitors of respondents offering for sale and selling, in interstate commerce, dyed rabbit skins clearly described and advertised as such, and there have been and are competitors of respondents offering for sale and selling, in such commerce, garments manufactured from dyed rabbit skins without any brand, stamp, advertisements, or description containing the word "seal", or thereby or otherwise suggesting or implying, by brand, stamp, trade mark, label, or other descriptive matter, that such garments have been or are made from or out of sealskins, or any other skins than rabbit skins.
PAR. 7. The practices of respondents Henry Kutik, Isador Kutik, Morris Kutik, and George Kutik trading under the firm name and style of Kutik Brothers, of offering for sale and selling, in course of the commerce described in paragraph 1 hereof, garments manufactured from rabbit skins dyed so as to resemble sealskins, branded or stamped “Northern Seal” or “Bonded Northern Seal” and labeled “Northern Seal” or “Bonded Northern Seal” with the words “Seal Dyed Coney” in small and inconspicuous letters, or garments made from dyed rabbit skins stamped “Golden Seal”, with the words “Seal Dyed Coney” in small and inconspicuous letters, and of advertising such garments as “Sealines” have had and have, and each of them has had and has the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive the public into the belief that the garments so dyed, branded, labeled, and described have been and are garments manufactured from genuine sealskins, and into the purchase of such garments in reliance on such erroneous belief. Such practices have also furnished and furnish dealers with the means to mislead and deceive the purchasing public into the belief that said garments have been and are manufactured from genuine sealskins by exposing the brand “Northern Seal” or “Bonded Northern Seal” or “Golden Seal” stamped on the pelts composing such garments without disclosing the words “Seal Dyed Coney”, and thereby to support their false representations or pretences to the effect that the garments offered for sale are in fact made from genuine sealskins.

The practices of respondent Brickner & Bernfeld, Inc., of offering for sale and selling to dealers in skins and to manufacturers of fur garments, rabbit skins dyed and stamped as aforesaid by respondent Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company, Inc., of furnishing purchasers of its skins so dyed and stamped the false and misleading labels hereinbefore described, and of advertising them as “Sealines”, have had and have, and each of them has had and has the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive, and has furnished and furnishes dealers and manufacturers with the means to mislead and deceive their respective purchasers into the belief that the dyed rabbit skins sold by respondent Brickner & Bernfeld, Inc., have been and are genuine sealskins, and have furnished and furnish such dealers, and manufacturers, with the means by which they have been and are enabled to supply dealers in fur garments with facilities for selling the completed garments made from such dyed rabbit skins and for garments made from genuine sealskins.

The practices of respondent Great Northern Fur Dyeing and Dressing Company, Inc., in dyeing rabbit skins for respondent Brickner muskrat furs, rabbit furs, seal furs and those of other fur-bearing on the backs of skins so dyed by it the words "Northern Seal" or "Bonded Northern Seal" or "Golden Seal" in large and conspicuous letters with the words "Seal Dyed Coney" in small and inconspicuous letters so placed with reference to the words "Northern Seal" or "Bonded Northern Seal" or "Golden Seal" that such words may be displayed without exposing the words "Seal Dyed Coney", in furnishing labels to be attached to garments manufactured from such skins bearing the words "Northern Seal" or "Bonded Northern Seal" in large and conspicuous letters with the words "Seal Dyed Coney" in small and inconspicuous letters, have, and each of them has aided, abetted, assisted, promoted, and facilitated the sale, in interstate commerce by respondent Brickner & Bernfeld, Inc., of dyed rabbit skins as and for genuine sealskins, and the sale in such commerce of garments made from dyed rabbit skins as and for garments made from genuine sealskins by respondents Kutik Brothers.

The aforesaid practices of respondent, Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company, Inc., have had and have and each of them has had and has the capacity and tendency to divert trade to it and has diverted and does divert trade to it from competitors' dressing and dyeing, or dyeing the skins of rabbits, seals, or other fur-bearing animals, for their owners, either for sale in interstate commerce truthfully described, or for manufacture of fur garments sold or to be sold in interstate commerce truthfully described, or for sale by their owners to manufacturers of fur garments selling them in interstate commerce truthfully described; and by aiding, assisting, and abetting the sale in interstate commerce by respondent Brickner & Bernfeld and respondents Henry Kutik, Isador Kutik, Morris Kutik, and George Kutik trading under the firm name and style of Kutik Brothers, respectively, of rabbit skins and garments made from rabbit skins, the aforesaid practices of respondent Great Northern Fur Dyeing & Dressing Company, Inc., have had and have and each of them has had and has the capacity and tendency to divert trade and has diverted trade and does divert trade to respondent Brickner & Bernfeld, Inc., and to respondents Henry Kutik, Isador Kutik, Morris Kutik, and George Kutik trading under the firm name and style of Kutik Brothers, from their respective competitors offering for sale or selling in interstate commerce sealskins or rabbit skins truthfully described and garments made from sealskins or rabbit skins or the skins of other fur-bearing animals truthfully described.

The aforesaid practices of respondent Brickner & Bernfeld, Inc., have had and have and each of them has had and has the capacity and tendency to divert and does divert trade from competitors offering for sale or selling in interstate commerce skins of fur-bearing animals including those of seals and rabbits truthfully described; and the aforesaid practices of respondents Henry Kutik, Isador Kutik, Morris Kutik, and George Kutik trading under the firm name and style of Kutik Brothers have had and have the capacity and tendency to divert and do divert trade to said respondents from competitors offering for sale or selling in interstate commerce garments made from or out of sealskins, rabbit skins or the skins of other fur-bearing animals truthfully described.

Par. 8. The above and foregoing practices of respondents have been and are, and each of them has been and is to the prejudice of the public and of respondents' competitors, and the competitors of all of them, and have been and are unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of the Act entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

Complaint charged respondent corporation, engaged in dressing, dyeing, marking, and designating skins of fur-bearing animals, at the instance and request of and in accordance with special agreements with, the owner-furriers or dealers, who sell the same thus dressed, dyed, marked, and designated to garment manufacturers, with misbranding or mislabeling, in stamping upon the backs of rabbit skins so dressed and dyed by it as to resemble sealskin fur, the letters "B" and "N", superimposed, together with word "Seal" in large and conspicuous letters, and, below, words "Dyed Cony" in much smaller and less conspicuous letters, with full knowledge and in aid of sale in interstate commerce by said owners of said rabbit skins thus dressed, dyed, and marked by it, and by said owners' manufacturer vendees of garments made therefrom, by reason of its aforesaid treatment and marking and their resemblance to the dyed fur of genuine seal, under the name or description "Sealines";

as the last word in the designation thereof, and from the use of the word "Seal" as designation thereof, subject to permitted use thereof in an adjective sense, together with such words as "Dyed" or "Blended", as in said order in detail set forth.

Mr. James M. Brinson for the Commission.
Hershenstein, O'Brien & Tartalsky, of Jersey City, N. J., for respondent.

Complaint

Acting in the public interest, pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission charges that Bayonne-Newland Fur Dressers & Dyers, Inc., hereinafter called respondent, has been and is using unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of said Act, and states its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent Bayonne-Newland Fur Dressers & Dyers, Inc. is now and for more than a year last past has been a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under the laws of the State of New Jersey with its principal office and place of business in Jersey City in said State and engaged in the business of dressing, dyeing, and trade-marking or otherwise marking and designating rabbit skins and other skins of fur-bearing animals for the owners thereof.

Respondent has rendered and renders such service for owners of rabbit skins and the skins of other fur-bearing animals for the owners thereof, at their instance and request and in pursuance of and in accordance with special agreements therefor. Such owners have been and are furriers or dealers engaged in the business of selling the skins of fur-bearing animals in commerce among and between the various States of the United States. It has been and is the practice of said owners of skins, dressed, dyed, and trade-marked or otherwise marked or designated for them by respondent to sell them with the full knowledge of respondent to manufacturers of fur garments having their places of business in the city and State of New York or elsewhere in said State, and in the various other States of the United States, and such manufacturers have offered for sale and sold garments made from rabbit skins so dressed, dyed, and trade-marked or otherwise marked or designated in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, causing them when sold to be transported from their several places of business to purchasers located in various other States of the United States than the State or States wherein are situated such places of business.

It has been and is the practice of respondent to render such services in dressing, dyeing, and trade-marking or otherwise marking or designating rabbit skins and skins of other fur-bearing animals for their owners with the full knowledge, expectation, purpose and intent that such skins or garments made therefrom will be offered for sale and sold in interstate commerce, and the acts and practices of respondent hereinafter described in paragraph 2 hereof have been and are directly related to and in furtherance of such business by the owners of such skins and the manufacturers of garments therefrom.

In the course and conduct of its business respondent has been and is engaged in competition with other individuals, partnerships, and corporations, dressing and dyeing rabbit skins or the skins of other fur-bearing animals for their owners for sale in interstate commerce or to manufacturers of fur garments made therefrom to be sold in such commerce. The owners of rabbit skins, dressed, dyed, and trade-marked or otherwise marked or designated by respondent, and the manufacturers of garments therefrom have been and are in competition with individuals, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the sale of similar or competitive products in like commerce.

Par. 2. Respondent uses and has used a process for dressing and dyeing rabbit skins which causes the fur of such skins to resemble in appearance the fur of genuine dyed sealskins, and thereupon respondent stamps or causes to be stamped on the back of each of the skins so treated by it a mark, brand, or designation consisting of the letters "B" and "N", the one superimposed on the other, and below this the word "seal" in large and conspicuous letters with the words "dyed cony" below the border of the mark, brand, or designation in much smaller and less conspicuous letters.

Garments made from rabbit skins so dressed and dyed by respondent resemble garments made from dyed sealskins in appearance only, and are inferior to the skins of the seal in pliability and durability of the leather and wearing quality and luster of the fur, and garments made from sealskins command prices substantially greater than the prices of garments made from rabbit skins.

Par. 3. Large quantities of rabbit skins are dressed, dyed, marked, branded, or designated by respondent, as described in paragraph 2 hereof, for manufacture into coats or other fur garments for women. Such garments bearing the aforesaid mark, brand, or designation of respondent on the back of the skins from which they have been and are made have been and are sold by manufacturers thereof in the course of their business among and between the various States of the United States, under the name of or described as "Sealines" on account or by means of their resemblance to the dyed furs of genuine seals, resulting from the agency or service of respondent and mark, brand or designation conspicuously displaying the words "B & N Seal" as described in paragraph 2 hereof.

Par. 4. There are now and have been for many years last past competitors of respondent dressing and dyeing rabbit skins or skins of other fur-bearing animals and stamping or marking them truthfully, or omitting any stamp or mark, for their owners for sale in interstate commerce, or for manufacture into fur garments for sale in such commerce, in competition therein with rabbit skins or garments made therefrom, dyed and trade-marked or otherwise marked or designated by respondent as described in paragraph 2.

There are now and for many years last past have been competitors of the owners of rabbit skins dyed and trade-marked or otherwise marked or designated by respondent, and of manufacturers selling garments made therefrom, offering for sale and selling in interstate commerce dyed rabbit skins clearly described and advertised as such and garments made therefrom without any trade mark, brand, stamp, or other description containing the word "seal" or thereby or otherwise suggesting or implying by trade mark, brand, stamp, or other descriptive matter that such garments have been or are made from or out of sealskins, and there have been or are other competitors of the owners of rabbit skins dyed and trade-marked or otherwise marked or designated by respondent and of manufacturers selling in interstate commerce garments made therefrom, offering for sale and selling in interstate commerce garments made from genuine dyed sealskin truthfully trade-marked, branded, and described.

Par. 5. The acts and practices of the owners of the rabbit skins so dressed, dyed and branded for them by respondent at their instance and request, in offering for sale and selling such skins in interstate commerce, and the acts and practices of manufacturers of fur garments in offering for sale and selling in interstate commerce garments made from rabbit skins dyed to resemble sealskins and bearing the aforesaid brand, have had and have and each of them has had and has the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive the public into the purchase of such skins as and for sealskins, and into the purchase of garments made from such skins as and for garments made from sealskins. Such acts and practices have furnished manufacturers and dealers, wholesale and retail,
with the means by which they have been and are enabled to perpetrate a fraud upon the purchasing public by representing that garments made from such skins are made of genuine seal fur, and by exhibiting to customers and prospective customers, stamped on such skins the word "seal" to support their false representations that such garments are made from genuine seal fur.

Such acts and practices by the owners of rabbit skins dressed, dyed, and stamped by respondent and by their vendees, the manufacturers of fur garments have had and have and each of them has had and has the capacity and tendency to divert trade to the owners of rabbit skins dyed, dressed, and stamped by respondent, who have offered for sale and sold them in interstate commerce, and to manufacturers of garments made from such skins, and wholesale dealers offering for sale and selling them in interstate commerce, and to their customers, the retail dealers in the various States of the United States, from dealers or furriers selling the skins of rabbit and of other fur-bearing animals in interstate commerce, truthfully described and marked, and from manufacturers and wholesale dealers selling in interstate commerce garments made from sealskins, rabbit skins and the skins of other fur-bearing animals truthfully branded and described, and from their customers, the retail dealers in the various States of the United States.

The acts and practices of respondent described in paragraph 2 hereof have aided, assisted, and abetted the owners of rabbit skins and the skins of other fur-bearing animals, dressed, dyed and stamped for them by respondent, in selling such skins in and among the various States of the United States as and for sealskins, and have aided, assisted, and abetted the manufacturers of garments from such skins and wholesale dealers therein in selling them in such commerce as and for garments made from sealskins, and their customers, retail dealers in the various States of the United States in so selling them to the consuming public.

Par. 6. The above and foregoing practices of the owners of rabbit skins, dressed, dyed and stamped by respondent, and of their vendees, including the manufacturers of garments from such skins, have been and are to the prejudice of the public and of their competitors and the above and foregoing practices of respondent have been and are to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors, and the competitor's of respondent's principals, and those it has aided, assisted, and abetted in such practices in interstate commerce, which practices have been and are unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of an Act entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

On May 18, 1934, respondent filed an answer to said complaint in which it consented that the Commission may make, enter, and serve upon it an order to cease and desist from the violations of law alleged in the complaint, in accordance with the provisions of Section (b) of Rule V of the Rules of Practice of the Commission; and the Commission having accepted said answer, issued an order to cease and desist on May 16, 1935, and thereafter, on, to wit, the 17th day of June 1935 the Commission, being now fully advised in the premises, modifies the said order to cease and desist, and

It is now ordered That respondent, Bayonne-Newland Fur Dressers & Dyers, Inc., its officers, agents, representatives, and employees, in connection with the dyeing or dressing, sale, offering for sale, or advertising of dyed muskrat fur or dyed cony (rabbit) fur, cease and desist from:

1. Describing furs in any other way than by the use of the correct name of the fur as the last word of the description, and when any dye or blend is used simulating another fur the true name of the fur appearing as the last word of the description must be immediately preceded by the word "dyed", or "blended", compounded with the name of the simulated fur.

2. Using the word "seal" alone or in connection, combination, or conjunction with any other word or words to describe or designate dyed cony, unless and until the word "seal" is compounded with the word "dyed" and such compounded word is immediately followed by the word "cony", as "seal-dyed cony."

*Published as modified.
3. Using the word "seal" or the words "Hudson Seal" standing alone or in connection, combination or conjunction with any other word or words to describe or designate dyed muskrat unless and until the word "seal" or the words "Hudson Seal" are compounded with the word "dyed" and such word or words so compounded are immediately followed by the word or words signifying or designating the true name of the fur, as "seal-dyed muskrat" or "Hudson Seal-dyed muskrat."

4. Using the word "seal" or the words "Hudson Seal" standing alone or in connection, combination or conjunction with any other word or words (regardless of corporate name, trade name, or trade mark), except that the word "seal" may be used as an adjective to denote or describe the color or character of the dye of muskrat or cony fur, as "seal-dyed muskrat" or "seal-dyed cony", and except that the words "Hudson Seal" may be used as an adjective to denote or describe the color or character of the dye of muskrat fur, as "Hudson Seal-dyed muskrat."

5. Using the word "Hudson" standing alone or in connection, combination or conjunction with any other word or words to describe or designate dyed cony (rabbit) fur.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 90 days from the date of the service upon it of the order herein, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form of its compliance with this order.

Complaint charged respondent Hollander & Son, dressers and dyers of muskrat and rabbit skins by processes which caused same to resemble appearance of dyed sealskin, respondents Jacobson Brothers, Corn & Fenning, and Fenrab Company, engaged in purchasing such furs for dressing and dyeing by it and in selling same thereafter to garment manufacturers and fur dealers, and respondents Geller & Son, Oldman Brothers, and Abrams & Linden, engaged in purchasing such furs for dressing and dyeing by it, as aforesaid, or in purchasing such furs already thus dressed and dyed by it, from dealers therein, and in manufacturing fur garments thereof and selling same to dealers therein for resale to ultimate user purchasers, with misbranding or mislabeling and advertising falsely or misleadingly, in the respective dressing and dyeing, and selling muskrat and rabbit skins and garments made thereof, under said first-named respondent's widely advertised and featured brands, marks, and designations, which, in case of said muskrat, displayed conspicuously, words "Seal", "Hollander Seal", or "Hudson Seal", and, in case of said rabbit, words "Nubian Seal", together with words "Dyed Muskrat" or "Dyed Cony", respectively, in such small and inconspicuous letters in relation to the others as to be unnoticeable except on close inspection, and which are repeated on garment labels and tags supplied by said first-named respondent, which, through extensive advertisements in periodicals, window displays, pamphlets, and otherwise promotes and encourages sale under its trade name, letters, marks, designations, and plan, of said muskrat and rabbit furs, thus dressed, dyed, stamped, marked, and described by it for the owners in accordance with its agreements therewith, and of garments made thereof, thus labeled and tagged, and for the superior and more costly seal, and which in its aforesaid practices knowingly and intentionally aided, assisted, abetted, and caused such sales by its co-respondents;

AMENDED AND SUPPLEMENTAL COMPLAINT

Paragraph 1. Respondent, A. Hollander & Son, Inc., is now and for many years last past has been a corporation organized, existing and doing business under the laws of the State of Delaware, with its principal office and place of business in the city of Newark, State of New Jersey, and engaged in the business of dressing and dyeing furs, particularly muskrat fur and rabbit fur (cony).

Par. 2. Respondents, Jacobson Brothers, Inc., Corn & Fenning, Inc., B. Geller & Son, Inc., Fenrab & Company, Inc., Oldman Brothers, Inc., and Abrams & Linden, Inc., are corporations organized, existing, and doing business under the laws of the State of New York with principal offices and places of business located in New York City. Respondents, Jacobson Brothers, Inc., and Corn & Fenning, Inc., have been for several years last past and now are engaged in the business of buying muskrat furs, and causing said furs to be dressed and dyed for each of said respondents, respectively, by A.
Complaint

Hollander & Son, Inc., and in the sale of said dressed and dyed furs to manufacturers of fur garments and dealers in furs. Said respondents, in connection with the sale of said dressed and dyed furs, cause same when sold to be transported to the purchasers thereof located in the city of New York, State of New York, and States of the United States other than the State of New York. Respondent, B. Geller & Son, Inc., has been and is engaged in the business of buying furs, particularly muskrat furs, and causing such muskrat furs to be dressed and dyed for it by respondent, A. Hollander & Son, Inc., and also of buying muskrat furs which have been dressed and dyed by respondent, A. Hollander & Son, Inc., from furriers or dealers in such furs, and in the manufacture of garments made from said dressed and dyed muskrat furs and in the sale of said garments to dealers for resale to ultimate user purchasers and of causing said garments, when so sold, to be transported to the purchasers thereof located in the city of New York, State of New York, and in States of the United States other than the State of New York.

Respondent, Fenrab Company, Inc., has been and is engaged in the business of buying rabbit furs (cony) and of causing said furs to be dressed and dyed for it by respondent, A. Hollander & Son, Inc., and in the sale of said dressed and dyed furs to dealers in furs and to manufacturers of fur garments. It causes said furs, when sold, to be transported to purchasers thereof in the city of New York, State of New York, and into the various other States of the United States than the State of New York. Respondents, Oldman Brothers, Inc., and Abrams & Linden, Inc., have been and are, and each of them has been and is engaged in the business of buying rabbit furs (cony) and of causing said furs to be dressed and dyed for them and each of them by respondent, A. Hollander & Son, Inc., and of buying rabbit furs (cony) which have been dressed and dyed by said respondent, A. Hollander & Son, Inc., from furriers dealing in such furs, and of manufacturing garments from said dressed and dyed rabbit furs (cony) and the sale of said garments to dealers for resale to the ultimate user purchasers, and of causing said garments, when so sold, to be transported to the purchasers thereof in the city of New York, State of New York, and in the various other States of the United States than the State of New York.

Par. 3. Respondent, A. Hollander & Son, Inc., in the course and conduct of its said business has been and is in competition with other individuals, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the business of dressing and dyeing furs for the owners of said furs for sale in interstate commerce or for sale to manufacturers to be made into garments for sale in such commerce.

Respondents, Jacobson Brothers, Inc., Corn & Fenning, Inc., and Fenrab Company, Inc., have been and are in the course and conduct of their business in competition with other individuals, partnerships, and corporations offering for sale and selling furs in interstate commerce.

Respondents, B. Geller & Son, Inc., Oldman Brothers, Inc., and Abrams & Linden, Inc., in the course and conduct of their business have been and are in competition with individuals, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the sale in interstate commerce of fur garments.

Par. 4. Respondent, A. Hollander & Son, Inc., uses and has used a process for dressing and dyeing muskrat fur and rabbit fur (cony) which causes said furs to resemble in appearance the fur of seal. Garments made from said dressed and dyed muskrat fur and said dressed and dyed rabbit fur (cony) resemble and simulate in appearance only, garments made from dyed seal. Dressed and dyed muskrat fur and dressed and dyed rabbit fur (cony) are inferior to the fur of the seal in pliability and durability and in the wearing quality of the fur. Garments made from seal fur sell at prices greater than the sale prices of garments made from muskrat fur and rabbit fur (cony).

Respondent, A. Hollander & Son, Inc., stamps or causes to be stamped on the back of each of the muskrat furs dressed and dyed by it the word "Seal" in large and conspicuous letters. The words "Hollander" and "Seal" are stamped on said furs, at the top and bottom of the marking, respectively. Between these words appear the letters, "A. H. & S." Below the said word "Seal" in smaller and much less conspicuous letters appear the words "Dyed Muskrat" and between them and the word "Seal" appears the lower border of the design in which the word "Seal" is featured as aforesaid.

Respondent, A. Hollander & Son, Inc., stamps or causes to be stamped on the back of each of the rabbit furs (cony) dressed and dyed by it the words "Nubian Seal" in large and conspicuous letters. Below the words "Nubian Seal" appear in letters so small and inconspicuous as to be noticeable only after close inspection the words "Dyed Cony".

Par. 5. It has been and is the practice of respondent, A. Hollander & Son, Inc., after dressing, dyeing, and stamping muskrat fur and rabbit fur (cony) for the owners of said furs, including the other respondents herein, in pursuance of agreements with them, to furnish labels and tags to be attached to garments made from such furs. The said labels and tags supplied by respondent, A. Hollander & Son, Inc., for use on rabbit fur (cony) dressed, dyed, and stamped by it bear the name of said respondent, A. Hollander & Son, Inc., accompanied by the words “Nubian Seal” in large and conspicuous letters and below the words “Nubian Seal” the words “Dyed Cony” in letters so relatively small as to be unnoticeable except on close inspection. The said labels supplied by respondent, A. Hollander & Son, Inc., for use on muskrat fur dressed, dyed, and stamped by it bear in conspicuous type the words “Hudson Seal”. Below these words in type so small as to be unnoticeable, except on close inspection, appear the words “Dressed and Dyed By”, and below said words appear in large type the words “A. Hollander & Son”. Under the words “A. Hollander & Son” appear in type unnoticeable, except on close inspection, the following: “Est. 1889 Dyed Muskrat”. The words “Dyed Muskrat” are practically hidden from the view of or unnoticeable by an ultimate user of garments made from said fur.

Tags furnished by A. Hollander & Son, Inc., as aforesaid, to be attached to garments made from muskrat fur dressed, dyed, and stamped by it bear the same legend as stamped on the back of muskrat fur.

Par. 6. It has been and is the policy and practice of respondent, A. Hollander & Son, Inc., in order to encourage, promote, and extend the sale in commerce among and between the various States of the United States of muskrat and rabbit furs dressed, dyed, and stamped by it, and of garments made therefrom bearing the aforesaid labels and tags supplied by said respondent to owners of such furs or to manufacturers of garments therefrom, to engage in wide and extensive advertisements in magazines, newspapers, and other publications of general circulation in and through the various States of the United States.

In accordance with such policy and practice it has circulated and distributed among the trade in and through the various States of the United States, a house organ entitled “Hollander”. In such organ issued in June 1934 said respondent, A. Hollander & Son, Inc., displays its aforesaid label and the words stamped on the muskrat fur it designates as aforesaid, but omits from such display the words “Dyed Muskrat”. Across one of its pages appear the words “Endorsed From Coast to Coast” in large conspicuous black letters. It also contains the following:

Labels and tags (in large letters) are allotted on the basis of one each for every fifty skins. See that you get them with every shipment.

Below these words appear the words “Hollander, A H & S, Seal” in the regular design said respondent uses on muskrat fur dressed, dyed and stamped by it.
There also appears the following:

Reports from good stores throughout the country enthusiastically endorse the A. Hollander & Son plan for national advertising. Leading fur buyers everywhere are wiring in for labels and tags. "The most forward step ever taken in behalf of the fur industry", they say. Are you taking steps to reap your full share of benefit from this campaign. If not, do so at once. Make up your mind right now that tags and labels are to go into everyone of your coats. Make it a standing requirement on all your orders. Write us also for as many as you need to cover your present stock.

Again, in such house organ respondent displays its label for "Nubian Seal". It represents in connection therewith as follows:

The A. Hollander & Son national advertising will naturally increase the demand for all A. Hollander & Son products. Here are the two big "money furs" that will now become more profitable for you than ever. Each is the best in its class * * * concentrate on them * * * Feature them as "A. Hollander & Son products". You will thus gain extra advantage from our advertising. Your sales will quicken. Your profit will increase.

It has been and is the practice of respondent also to furnish dealers in and through the various States of the United States with posters, pamphlets, counter and window display cards wherein are featured fur garments of various kinds bearing the labels of respondent, A. Hollander & Son, Inc. One large piece of advertising literature in the form of a magazine it has circulated among the trade containing, among other things, in large and conspicuous letters, "A. Hollander & Son advertisements in national magazines will sell women from coast to coast." It also represents as follows:

Throughout the length and breadth of the country the name of A. Hollander & Son will spread as meaning the best in Hudson Seal.

It represents in such advertising literature that A. Hollander & Son Hudson Seal will be broadcast on the radio programs of leading magazines of general circulation in and through the United States.

In November 1934 appeared an advertisement of respondent, A. Hollander & Son, Inc., in a magazine of such character, in which the name of said respondent and the words "Hudson Seal" are printed in large, black outstanding letters. The words which it stamps on the back of muskrat pelts, to wit, "Hollander A H & S Seal" appear in such advertisement in connection with the representation of a woman wearing a fur garment. At one place in such advertisement the words "Hudson Seal" are followed by a mark so small as to be almost indistinguishable, and in the lower part of the advertisement without any apparent relationship to the language in connection with which it appears, there are the words "Dyed Muskrat" in the smallest letters appearing throughout the advertisement. The words are preceded by the same almost indistinguishable mark which appears after the words "Hudson Seal" in that part of the advertising hereinbefore indicated. There is in such advertisement no other indication or suggestion that the garment featured is not made from seal.

Par. 7. It has been and is the practice of respondents, Jacobson Brothers, Inc., Corn & Fenning, Inc., and Fenrab Company, Inc., to cause and each of them now causes muskrat or rabbit furs, or both, to be dressed, dyed, marked and designated as described in paragraph 4 hereof by respondent, A. Hollander & Son, Inc., in accordance with agreements for such services and at the instance or suggestion of said respondent, A. Hollander & Son, Inc., or because of its practices described in paragraphs 4, 5 and 6 hereof, and thereupon to offer for sale and sell in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, such furs so dressed, dyed, stamped, and designated to manufacturers of fur garments or to other dealers in furs, together with the labels and stamps described in paragraphs 4, 5 and 6.

It has been and is the practice of respondent, B. Geller & Son, Inc., to cause, and it still causes respondent, A. Hollander & Son, Inc., to dress, dye, stamp, and designate its muskrat furs as described in paragraph 4 hereof, in accordance with agreements for such services and at the instance or suggestion of said respondent, A. Hollander & Son, Inc., or because of its practices described in paragraphs 4, 5 and 6 hereof, and also to buy from furriers or other dealers, muskrat furs so dressed, dyed, stamped, and designated by said respondent, A. Hollander & Son, Inc., and thereupon it has manufactured garments from such furs and has offered for sale and sold them in commerce among and between the various States of the United States with the labels and tags attached to each garment which have been furnished it by said respondent, A. Hollander & Son, Inc., as described in paragraph 5 hereof.

It has been and is the practice of respondent, Oldman Brothers, Inc., and of respondent, Abrams & Linden, Inc., to offer for sale and sell in interstate commerce, garments made from rabbit skins which, at the instance or request of respondent, A. Hollander & Son, Inc., or because of the practices of said respondent described in paragraphs 4, 5, and 6, they have caused respondent, A. Hollander & Son, Inc., to dress, dye, stamp, and designate as "Nubian Seal". It has also been its practice to attach to each and all of said garments the same labels and tags hereinbefore described for "Nubian Seal", which have been furnished them by respondent, A. Hollander & Son, Inc., as stated in paragraph 5 hereof.
PAR. 8. There have been for many years last past, and are individuals, partnerships and corporations offering for sale and selling in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, rabbit fur, muskrat fur and seal fur, and there have been and are individuals, partnerships and corporations offering for sale and selling in such commerce garments manufactured from rabbit fur, muskrat fur and seal fur, which have been and are truthfully described and designated.

PAR. 9. The word "seal", used in connection with furs, has signified and meant, and signifies and means to the purchasing or consuming public that the furs so designated have been and are the furs of the aquatic carnivorous mammal usually found in high latitudes known as seal or fur seal, and the word "seal" used in connection with fur garments has signified and meant, and now signifies and means to the purchasing or consuming public, garments made from the furs of such seal. Use of such word "seal" by respondents as a noun, whether preceded by the word "Hudson", "Hollander", or "Nubian", to describe or designate the furs hereinbefore mentioned, namely seal dyed muskrat and seal dyed rabbit (cony), is false, misleading and deceptive to the trade and the public.

The acts and practices of respondent, A. Hollander & Son, Inc., as described in paragraphs 4, 5, and 6 hereof, have suggested or instigated, aided, assisted,abetted and caused its corespondents herein to offer for sale and sell in interstate commerce muskrat furs and rabbit furs dressed, dyed, and stamped as described in the aforesaid paragraphs, in and among the various States of the United States and for seal furs and garments made therefrom as and for garments made from seal furs, and such acts and practices of respondent, A. Hollander & Son, Inc., have been and are with the full knowledge, expectation, purpose, and intent that such furs or garments made therefrom would be offered for sale and sold in such interstate commerce by its corespondents herein, and such acts and practices have been and are directly related to, and in furtherance of their business.

The acts and practices of respondents, A. Hollander & Son, Inc., Jacobson Brothers, Inc., Corn & Fenning, Inc., B. Geller & Son, Inc., Fenrab Company, Inc., Oldman Brothers, Inc., and Abrams & Linden, Inc., have furnish manufacturers and dealers, wholesale and retail, with the means by which they have been and are able to perpetrate a fraud upon the purchasing public by representing that such furs so dressed, dyed, and stamped by respondent, A. Hollander & Son, have been or are seal furs, and that garments made from such furs have been and are made of seal furs, and by exhibiting to customers and prospective customers the aforesaid mark or designation stamped on such furs, or the labels and tags attached to such garments and supplied by respondent, A Hollander & Son, Inc., or by both acts, to support their false representations that such garments are made from seal fur; and such acts and practices of respondents have had and have the tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive the consuming public into the purchase of such furs as and for seal furs and into the purchase of garments made from such furs as and for garments made from seal furs.

Such acts and practices of the aforesaid respondents have had and have, and each of them has had and has the capacity and tendency to divert trade to them and to dealers offering for sale or selling such furs, or garments made therefrom, to their customers in interstate commerce, to wit, the retail dealers, from dealers selling in such commerce muskrat furs, rabbit furs, seal furs and those of other fur-bearing animals truthfully marked and described, and from manufacturers and dealers selling, in such commerce, garments made from muskrat furs, rabbit furs, seal furs and those of other fur-bearing animals truthfully branded or described, and from their customers or vendees, the retail dealers.

Par. 10. The above and foregoing practices of respondents have been and are, and the practice of each of them has been and is to the prejudice of the public and of the competitors of each and all of them, and have been and are unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of an Act entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

*Published as modified.
On January 25, 1935, respondents filed an answer to said complaint in which they consented that the Commission may make, enter and serve upon them an order to cease and desist from the violations of law alleged in the complaint, in accordance with the provisions of Section (b) of Rule V of the Rules of Practice of the Commission; and the Commission having accepted said answer, issued an order to cease and desist on May 16, 1935, and thereafter, on to wit the 17th day of June 1935 the Commission, being now fully advised in the premises, modifies the said order to cease and desist, and

It is now ordered, That respondents, A. Hollander & Son, Inc., Jacobson Brothers, Inc., Corn & Fenning, Inc., B. Geller & Son, Inc., Fennab Company, Inc., Oldman Brothers, Inc., Abrams & Linden, Inc., their officers, agents, representatives, and employees, in connection with the dyeing or dressing, sale, offering for sale, or advertising of dyed muskrat fur or dyed cony (rabbit) fur, cease and desist from:

1. Describing furs in any other way than by the use of the correct name of the fur as the last word of the description, and when any dye or blend is used simulating another fur the true name of the fur appearing as the last word of the description must be immediately preceded by the word "dyed", or "blended", compounded with the name of the simulated fur.

2. Using the word "seal" alone or in connection, combination or conjunction with any other word or words to describe or designate dyed cony, unless and until the word "seal" is compounded with the word "dyed" and such compounded word is immediately followed by the word "cony", as "seal-dyed cony".

3. Using the word "seal" or the words "Hudson Seal" standing alone or in connection, combination or conjunction with any other word or words to describe or designate dyed muskrat unless and until the word "seal" or the words "Hudson Seal" are compounded with the word "dyed" and such word or words so compounded are immediately followed by the word or words signifying or designating the true name of the fur, as "seal-dyed muskrat" or "Hudson Seal-dyed muskrat".

4. Using the word "seal" or the words "Hudson Seal" standing alone or in connection, combination or conjunction with any other word or words (regardless of corporate name, trade name, or trade mark), except that the word "seal" may be used as an adjective to denote or describe the color or character of the dye of muskrat or cony fur, as "seal-dyed muskrat" or "seal-dyed cony", and except that the words "Hudson Seal" may be used as an adjective to denote or describe the color or character of the dye of muskrat fur, as “Hudson Seal-dyed muskrat”.

5. Using the word “Hudson” standing alone or in connection, combination or conjunction with any other word or words to describe or designate dyed cony (rabbit) fur.

It is further ordered, That the respondents shall, within 90 days from the date of the service upon them of the order herein, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form of their compliance with this order.
In the Matter of

JOSEPH HOLLANDER, INC.

OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 2124. Complaint, Nov. 9, 1933—Order, June 25, 1935

Complaint charged respondent, engaged in dressing, dyeing, and trade-marking or otherwise marking and designating, among others, muskrat skins at the instance and request of and in accordance with special agreements with the owner-furriers or dealers who sell the same, thus dressed, dyed, marked, and designated, to garment manufacturers and other dealers, with misbranding or mislabeling, in stamping on the backs of said muskrat skins, so dressed and dyed by it as to resemble the appearance of genuine dyed seal-skin, its registered trade-mark containing in large and conspicuous letters the words “Hollander” and “Seal”, together with the words “Dyed Muskrat” in small letters, with intent and effect of furthering sale in interstate commerce of said muskrat skins, thus dressed, dyed and marked by it, by the owners thereof, and sale by said owners’ manufacturer vendees of garments made therefrom, which resemble in appearance only the substantially more costly products made of the more pliable, durable, and better-wearing seal fur;

COMPLAINT

Acting in the public interest pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its power and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission charges that Joseph Hollander, Inc., hereinafter designated respondent, has been and is using unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of said Act, and states its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Joseph Hollander, Inc., is now, and for more than a year last past has been a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under the laws of the State of New Jersey with its principal office and place of business in the city of Newark, in said State, and engaged in the business of dressing, dyeing, and trade-marking or otherwise marking and designating muskrat skins and the skins of other fur-bearing animals for the owners thereof.

Respondent uses and has used a process for dressing and dyeing muskrat skins which causes the fur of such skin to resemble in appearance the fur of genuine dyed sealskins, and thereupon respondent stamps or causes to be stamped on the back of each of the skins so treated by it a trade mark which it has caused to be registered in the United States Patent Office, containing in large and conspicuous letters the words "Joseph Hollander," with "J. H. Inc." below the word "Hollander" enclosed within borders, and below them the word "Seal." The words "Hollander" and "Seal" are in large conspicuous display letters. Below this trade mark in small letters are the words "dyed muskrat."

Garments made from muskrat skins so dressed and dyed by respondent resemble garments made from dyed sealskins but in appearance only, and are inferior to the skins of seals in pliability and durability of the leather and wearing quality of the fur, and garments made from sealskins command prices substantially greater than the prices of garments made from muskrat skins.

Respondent has rendered and renders such service for owners of muskrat skins, at their instance and request and in pursuance of and in accordance with special agreements therefor. Such owners have been and are furriers or dealers engaged in the business of sells the skins of fur-bearing animals in commerce among and between the various States of the United States. It has been and is the practice of said owners of skins dressed, dyed and trade-marked for them by respondent, to sell them in such commerce to other furriers or dealers and to manufacturers of fur garments, having their places of business in the various States of the United States, and such manufacturers have offered for sale and sold garments made from muskrat skins so dressed, dyed, and trade-marked for them by respondent, in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, causing them when sold to be transported from their several places of business to purchasers located in various other States of the United States than the State or States wherein are situated such places of business.

It has been and is the practice of respondent to render such services in dressing, dyeing and trade-marking muskrat skins for their owners with the full knowledge, expectation, purpose and intent that such skins or garments made therefrom will be offered for sale and sold in interstate commerce bearing the aforesaid brand or trade mark, and the aforesaid acts and practices of respondent have been and are directly related to and in furtherance of such business by the owners of such skins and the manufacturers of garments therefrom.

In the course and conduct of its business respondent has been and is engaged in competition with other individuals, partnerships, and corporations, dressing and dying the skins of fur-bearing animals for their owners for sale in interstate commerce or to manufacturers of fur garments made therefrom to be sold in such commerce. The owners of muskrat skins, dressed, dyed, and trade-marked by respondent, and the manufacturers of garments therefrom have been and are in competition with individuals, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the sale of similar or competitive products in like commerce.

Par. 2. There are now and have been for many years last past competitors of respondent dressing and dyeing muskrat skins or skins of other fur-bearing animals for their owners, truthfully marked or described, for sale in interstate commerce, or for manufacture into garments for sale in such commerce in competition with muskrat skins or garments made therefrom, dyed and trade-marked by respondent as described in paragraph 1.

There are now and for many years last past have been competitors of the owners of muskrat skins dyed and trade-marked by respondent, and of manufacturers selling garments made therefrom, offering for sale and selling in interstate commerce dyed muskrat skins clearly described and advertised as such and garments made therefrom without any trade mark, brand, stamp, or other description containing the word “Seal” or thereby or otherwise suggesting or implying that such garments have been or are made from or out of sealskins, and there have been or are other competitors of the owners of muskrat skins dyed and trade-marked by respondent and of manufacturers selling in interstate commerce garments made therefrom, offering for sale and selling in interstate commerce garments made from genuine dyed sealskin truthfully trade-marked, branded, and described.

Par. 3. The acts and practices of the owners of the muskrat skins so dressed, dyed, and branded for them by respondent at their instance and request, in offering for sale and selling such skins in interstate commerce, and the acts and practices of manufacturers of fur garments in offering for sale and selling in interstate commerce garments made from muskrat skins dyed to resemble sealskins and bearing the aforesaid brand or designation, have had and have the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive the public into the purchase of such skins as and for sealskins, and into the purchase of garments made from such skins as and for garments made from sealskins. Such acts and practices have furnished manufacturers and dealers, wholesale and retail, with the means by which they have been and are enabled to perpetrate a fraud upon the purchasing public by representing to their respective customers that garments made from such skins are made of genuine seal fur, and by exhibiting to customers and prospective customers the trade mark stamped on such skins containing the word “seal”, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, to support their false representations that such garments are made from genuine seal fur.

Such acts and practices by the owners of muskrat skins dressed, dyed, and stamped by respondent and by their vendees, the manufacturers of fur garments have had and have the capacity and tendency to divert trade to them and their respective customers from dealers or furriers selling the skins of muskrats and of other fur-bearing animals in interstate commerce, truthfully described and marked, and from manufacturers selling in interstate commerce garments made from muskrat skins, sealskins and the skins of other fur-bearing animals truthfully branded and described, and from their customers, wholesale and retail dealers.

The acts and practices of respondent described in paragraph 1 hereof have aided, assisted, and abetted the owners of muskrat skins dressed, dyed, and stamped for them by respondent, in selling such skins in and among the various States of the United States as and for sealskins, and have aided, assisted, and abetted the manufacturers of garments from such skins in selling them in such commerce as and for garments made from sealskins.

PAR. 4. The above and foregoing practices of the owners of muskrat skins, dressed, dyed, and stamped by respondent and of their vendees, including the manufacturers of garments from such skins, have been and are to the prejudice of the public and of their competitors, and the above and foregoing practices of respondent have been and are to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors, and the competitors of respondent's principals, and those it has aided, assisted, and abetted in such practices in interstate commerce, which practices have been and are unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of an Act entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

Complaint

Acting in the public interest pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission charges that Hudson Fur Dyeing, Inc., hereinafter designated respondent, has been and is using unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of said Act, and states its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Hudson Fur Dyeing, Inc., is now, and for more than a year last past has been a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under the laws of the State of New Jersey with its principal office and place of business in the city of Newark in said State, and engaged in the business of dressing, dyeing, and trade-marking or otherwise marking and designating rabbit skins and the skins of other fur-bearing animals for the owners thereof.

Respondent has rendered and renders such service for owners of rabbit skins, at their instance and request and in pursuance of and in accordance with special agreements therefor. Such owners have been and are furriers or dealers engaged in the business of selling rabbit skins or the skins of other fur-bearing animals in commerce, among and between the various States of the United States. It has been and is the practice of said owners of rabbit skins dressed, dyed, and trade-marked, or otherwise marked or designated, for them by respondent, to sell them with the full knowledge of respondent to manufacturers of fur garments, having their places of business in the city of Newark or elsewhere in the State of New Jersey, and in the various other States of the United States, and such manufacturers have offered for sale and sold garments made from rabbit skins so dressed, dyed, and trade-marked, or otherwise marked or designated, in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, causing them when sold to be transported from their several places of business to purchasers located in various other States of the United States than the State or States wherein are situated such places of business.

It has been and is the practice of respondent to render such services in dressing, dyeing, and trade-marking, or otherwise marking or designating, rabbit skins for their owners with the full knowledge, expectation, purpose, and intent that such skins or garments made therefrom will be offered for sale and sold in interstate commerce, and the acts and practices of respondent hereinafter described in paragraph 2 hereof have been and are directly related to and in furtherance of such business by the owners of such skins and the manufacturers of garments therefrom.

In the course and conduct of its business respondent has been and is engaged in competition with other individuals, partnerships, and corporations, dressing and dyeing rabbit skins, or the skins of other fur-bearing animals, for their owners in pursuance of agreements therefor, for sale in interstate commerce, or for manufacture into garments to be sold in such commerce. The owners of rabbit skins, dressed, dyed, and trade-marked, or otherwise marked or designated, by respondent, and the manufacturers of garments therefrom, have been and are in competition with individuals, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the sale of similar or competitive products in like commerce.

Par. 2. The respondent uses and has used, a process for dressing and dyeing rabbit skins which causes the fur of such skins to resemble in appearance dyed sealskins, and causes such skins to be stamped, marked or designated on the backs thereof with the words “Hudson Seal.” Dyed rabbit skins resemble dyed sealskins in appearance only and such skins are greatly inferior to the skins of seals, and garments made from sealskins command prices substantially greater than the prices commanded by garments made from rabbit skins.

Par. 3. Large quantities of rabbit skins have been and are dressed and dyed by respondent so as to resemble and imitate sealskins, and stamped as aforesaid, for their owners, for manufacture into coats or other fur garments for women. Such garments have been and are sold by such manufacturers, among and between the various States of the United States, as and for garments made from sealskins on account of or by means of their resemblance to the dyed furs of genuine seals, resulting from the agency or service of respondent in marking; describing, and designating such skins as Hudson Seal.

Par. 4. There are now and have been for many years last past competitors of respondent dressing and dyeing rabbit skins or skins of other fur-bearing animals for their owners for sale in interstate commerce or to manufacturers of fur garments selling in such commerce, and either stamping or marking them so as clearly to indicate the kind or character of such skins, or omitting any mark or designation, and such skins and garments made from them have been and are sold in interstate commerce in competition with rabbit skins or garments made therefrom, dyed and stamped by respondent as described in paragraph 2.
There are now and for many years last past have been competitors of the owners of rabbit skins so dyed and stamped by respondent, and of manufacturers selling garments made therefrom, offering for sale and selling in interstate commerce dyed rabbit skins clearly described and advertised as such, and garments manufactured from dyed rabbit skins without any trade mark, brand, stamp, or other description containing the word “seal” or thereby or otherwise suggesting or implying that such garments have been or are made from or out of sealskins, or any other skins than rabbit skins, and there have been and are other competitors of the owners of rabbit skins dyed and stamped by respondent and of manufacturers selling in interstate commerce garments made therefrom, offering for sale and selling in interstate commerce genuine dyed sealskins, or garments made therefrom, truthfully trade-marked, branded, or described.

Par. 5. The acts and practices of the owners of the rabbit skins so dressed, dyed and stamped or branded for them by respondent at their instance and request, in offering for sale and selling such skins in interstate commerce, and the acts and practices of manufacturers of fur garments in offering for sale and selling in interstate commerce garments made from rabbit skins dyed to resemble sealskins bearing the brand, mark, or designation “Hudson Seal”, have had and have the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive the public into the purchase of such skins as and for sealskins, and into the purchase of garments made from such skins as and for garments made from sealskins. Such acts and practices have furnished manufacturers and dealers, wholesale and retail, with the means by which they have been and are enabled to perpetrate a fraud upon the purchasing public by representing to their respective customers in the various localities of the various States in which their business is conducted, that garments made from skins so dressed, dyed, and marked or stamped by respondent are sealskins, and by offering for sale and selling the same to the public as and for genuine sealskins and by exhibiting said trade mark to support such representation.

Such acts and practices by the owners of rabbit skins dressed, dyed and marked or stamped by respondent, and by the vendees of such owners, including manufacturers of fur garments, have had and have the capacity and tendency to divert trade to the owners of rabbit skins dyed, dressed, and so marked or stamped by respondent, who have offered for sale and sold them in interstate commerce and to manufacturers of garments made from such skins, offering for sale and selling the same in interstate commerce, from dealers or furriers selling the skins of rabbits and of other fur-bearing animals in interstate commerce, truthfully described and marked, and from manufacturers selling in interstate commerce garments made from seal-

The acts and practices of respondent described in paragraph 2 have aided, assisted, and abetted the owners of rabbit skins dressed, dyed, and stamped or designated for them by respondent in selling such skins in and among the various States of the United States as and for sealskins, and have aided, assisted, and abetted the manufacturers of garments from such skins in selling them in such commerce as and for garments made from sealskins.

Par. 6. The above and foregoing practices of the owners of rabbit skins dressed, dyed, and marked or stamped by respondent and of the vendees of such owners, including the manufacturers of garments from such skins, have been and are to the prejudice of the public and of their competitors, and the above and foregoing practices of respondent have been and are to the prejudice of the public and respondent's competitors and the competitors of respondent's principals, and those it has aided, assisted, and abetted in such practices in interstate commerce, which practices have been and are unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of an Act entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

On May 17, 1934, respondent filed an answer to said complaint in which it consented that the Commission may make, enter, and serve upon it an order to cease and desist from the violations of law alleged in the complaint, in accordance with the provisions of Section (b) of Rule V of the Rules of Practice of the Commission; and the Commission having accepted said answer, issued an order to cease and desist on May 16, 1935, and thereafter, on to wit the 17th day of June 1935 the Commission being now fully advised in the premises, modifies the said order to cease and desist, and

It is now ordered, That respondent, Hudson Fur Dyeing, Inc., its officers, agents, representatives, and employees, in connection with the dyeing or dressing, sale, offering for sale, or advertising of dyed muskrat fur, or dyed cony (rabbit) fur, cease and desist from:

1. Describing furs in any other way than by the use of the correct name of the fur as the last word of the description, and when any dye or blend is used simulating another fur the true name of the fur appearing as the last word of the description must be immediately preceded by the word “dyed”, or “blended”, compounded with the name of the simulated fur.

2. Using the word “seal” alone or in connection, combination, or conjunction with any other word or words to describe or designate dyed cony, unless and until the word “seal” is compounded with the word “dyed” and such compounded word is immediately followed by the word “cony”, as “seal-dyed cony”.

3. Using the word “seal” or the words “Hudson Seal” standing alone or in connection, combination, or conjunction with any other word or words to describe or designate dyed muskrat unless and until the word “seal” or the words “Hudson Seal” are compounded with the word “dyed” and such word or words so compounded are immediately followed by the word or words signifying or designating the true name of the fur, as “seal-dyed muskrat” or “Hudson Seal-dyed muskrat”.

4. Using the word “seal” or the words “Hudson Seal” standing alone or in connection, combination, or conjunction with any other word or words (regardless of corporate name, trade name or trade mark), except that the word “seal” may be used as an adjective to denote or describe the color or character of the dye of muskrat or cony fur, as “seal-dyed muskrat” or “seal-dyed cony”, and except that the words “Hudson Seal” may be used as an adjective to denote or describe the color or character of the dye of muskrat fur, as “Hudson Seal-dyed muskrat”.

5. Using the word “Hudson” standing alone or in connection, combination, or conjunction with any other word or words to describe or designate dyed cony (rabbit) fur.

Complaint

Acting in the public interest pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”, the Federal Trade Commission charges that Mendoza Fur Dyeing Works, Inc., hereinafter designated respondent, has been and is using unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of said Act, and states its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Mendoza Fur Dyeing Works, Inc., is now, and for more than a year last past has been a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under the laws of the State of New York with its principal office and place of business in the city of New York, in said State, and engaged in the business of dressing, dyeing, and trade-marking or otherwise marking and designating rabbit skins and the skins of other fur-bearing animals for the owners thereof.
It uses, and has used a process for dyeing rabbit skins which causes the fur of such skins to resemble the fur of dyed beaver skins, and it describes and designates rabbit skins so dyed by it as “Mendoza Beaver”.

Respondent has rendered and renders such service for owners of rabbit skins, at their instance and request and in pursuance of and in accordance with special agreements therefor. Such owners have been and are furriers or dealers engaged in the business of selling rabbit skins or the skins of other fur-bearing animals in commerce among and between the various States of the United States. It has been and is the practice of said owners of rabbit skins dressed, dyed, and trade-marked or otherwise marked or designated for them by respondent, to sell them to manufacturers of fur garments, and others described and designated as Mendoza Beaver, at the instance of, and in cooperation with, respondent. Such manufacturers have offered for sale and sold garments made from rabbit skins so dressed, dyed, and designated by respondent, in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, as "Mendoza Beaver", causing them when sold to be transported from their several places of business to purchasers located in various other States of the United States than the State or States wherein are situated such places of business.

It has been and is the practice of respondent to render such service in dressing, dyeing, and designating rabbit skins for their owners, with the full knowledge, expectation, purpose, and intent that such skins, or garments made therefrom, will be offered for sale and sold in interstate commerce. In furtherance of such sales in interstate commerce it has been and is the practice of respondent to advertise in magazines, journals, and other trade literature of general circulation in and through the various States of the United States, in the course of which, it has used and uses the following language to describe rabbit skins dyed by it and garments made therefrom, to wit, "Mendoza Beaver". In such advertisements, or some of them, appear representations or stamps, below one of which is the following: "This stamp signifies genuine Mendoza Beaver and Mendoza Seal".

Further to encourage, assist, and promote the sale of such garments in such commerce as and for garments made from beaver skins, it has been and is the practice of respondent to furnish the owners of rabbit skins, dyed by it to resemble beaver skins, with labels to be attached to garments made from such skins containing the words "Mendoza Beaver”.

In the course and conduct of its business respondent has been and is engaged in competition with other individuals, partnerships and corporations dressing and dyeing rabbit skins, or the skins of other fur-bearing animals, for their owners for sale in interstate commerce or for manufacture into garments to be sold in such commerce. The owners of rabbit skins dressed, dyed, described, or designated by respondent and the manufacturers of garments therefrom have been and are in competition with individuals, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the sale of similar or competitive products in interstate commerce.

Par. 2. Large quantities of rabbit skins have been and are so dressed and dyed by respondent as to resemble and imitate beaver skins, for their owners, including M. D. Spigel, Inc., a manufacturing furrier, doing business in the city of New York and State of New York, for manufacture into coats or other fur garments for women. Such garments, usually bearing labels described in paragraph 2 hereof in a conspicuous place thereon, have been sold and are sold by such manufacturers, including said M. D. Spigel, Inc., among and between the various States of the United States, as and for Mendoza Beaver on account of or by means of their resemblance to the dyed furs of genuine beavers, resulting from the agency or service of respondent and its advertisements and labels describing and designating such skins and garments made therefrom as “Mendoza Beaver”.

Par. 3. There are now and have been for many years past competitors of respondent dressing and dyeing rabbit skins or skins of other fur-bearing animals, for their owners, either for sale in interstate commerce, or for sale for manufacture into garments for such commerce, who either stamp or mark them so as clearly to indicate the kind or character of such skins, or omit any mark or designation.

There are now and for many years last past have been competitors of the owners of rabbit skins dyed by respondent and of manufacturers selling garments made therefrom, offering for sale and selling in interstate commerce dyed rabbit skins clearly described and advertised as such, and garments manufactured from dyed rabbit skins without any trade mark, brand, stamp, label, or other description containing the word “beaver” or thereby or otherwise suggesting or implying that such garments have been or are made from or out of beaver skins, or any other skins than rabbit skins, and there have been and are other competitors of the owners of rabbit skins dyed by respondent and of manufacturers selling in interstate commerce garments made therefrom, offering for sale and selling in such commerce garments made from genuine dyed beaver skin truthfully trade-marked, branded, or described.

Par. 4. The acts and practices of the owners of the rabbit skins so dressed and dyed for them by respondent at their instance and request, in offering for sale and selling such skins in interstate commerce, and the acts and practices of manufacturers of fur garments in offering for sale and selling in interstate commerce garments made from rabbit skins dyed to resemble beaver skins, described and designated as Mendoza Beaver, have had and have and each of them has had and has the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive the public into the purchase of such skins as and for beaver skins, and into the purchase of garments made from such skins as and for garments made from beaver skins. Such acts and practices have furnished manufacturers and dealers, wholesale and retail, with the means by which they have been and are enabled to perpetrate a fraud upon the purchasing public by advertising in the various localities of the various States in which their business is conducted, garments made from skins so dressed and dyed by respondent as Mendoza Beaver, and by offering for sale and selling the same to the public as and for genuine beaver.

Such acts and practices by the owners of rabbit skins dressed and dyed by respondent, and by the vendees of such owners, including manufacturers of fur garments, have had and have the capacity and tendency to divert trade to the owners of rabbit skins dyed and dressed by respondent, who have offered for sale and sold them in interstate commerce and to manufacturers of garments made from such skins, and wholesalers offering for sale and selling the same in interstate commerce, and to their customers, the retail dealers, from dealers or furriers selling the skins of rabbits and of other fur-bearing animals in interstate commerce, truthfully described and marked, and from manufacturers and dealers selling in interstate commerce garments made from beaver skins, rabbit skins and the skins of other fur-bearing animals, truthfully branded and described, and from their customers, the retail dealers.

The acts and practices of respondent described in paragraph 2 have aided, assisted, and abetted the owners of rabbit skins dressed and dyed for them by respondent in selling such skins in and among the various States of the United States as and for beaver skins, and have aided, assisted, and abetted the manufacturers of garments from such skins in selling them in such commerce as and for garments made from beaver skins.

Par. 5. The above and foregoing practices of the owners of rabbit skins dressed and dyed by respondent and of the vendees of such owners, including the manufacturers of garments from such skins, have been and are to the prejudice of the public and of their competitors, and the above and foregoing practices of respondent have been and are to the prejudice of the public and respondent’s competitors and the competitors of respondent’s principals, and those it has aided, assisted, and abetted in such practices in interstate commerce, which practices have been and are unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of an Act entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”.

It is now ordered, that respondent, Mendoza Fur Dyeing Works, Inc., its officers, agents, representatives, and employees, in connection with the dyeing or dressing, sale, offering for sale, or advertising of dyed cony (rabbit) fur, cease and desist from:

1. Describing furs in any other way than by the use of the correct name of the fur as the last word of the description, and when any dye or blend is used simulating another fur the true name of the fur appearing as the last word of the description must be immediately preceded by the word “dyed”, or “blended”, compounded with the name of the simulated fur.

2. Using the word “seal” or the word “beaver” alone or in connection, combination, or conjunction with any other word or words to describe or designate dyed cony or dyed beaver, unless and until the word “seal” and the word “beaver” are compounded with the word “dyed” and such compounded word or words are immediately followed by the word “cony”, as “seal-dyed cony” or “beaver-dyed cony”.

3. Using the word “seal” or the words “Hudson Seal” standing alone or in connection, combination or conjunction with any other word or words to describe or designate dyed muskrat unless and until the word “seal” or the words “Hudson Seal” are compounded with the word “dyed” and such word or words so compounded are immediately followed by the word or words signifying or designating the true name of the fur, as “seal-dyed muskrat” or “Hudson Seal-dyed muskrat”.

4. Using the word “seal” or the word “beaver” or the words “Hudson Seal” standing alone or in connection, combination, or conjunction with any other word or words (regardless of corporate name, trade name or trade-mark), except that the word “seal” or the word “beaver” may be used as an adjective to denote or describe the color or character of the dye of muskrat or cony fur, as “seal-dyed muskrat” or “beaver-dyed cony” or “seal-dyed cony”, and except that the words “Hudson Seal” may be used as an adjective to denote or describe the color or character of the dye of muskrat fur, as “Hudson Seal-dyed muskrat”.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 90 days from the date of the service upon it of the order herein, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form of its compliance with this order.
Complaint charged respondent corporation, engaged in dressing, dyeing, and trade-marking or otherwise marking and designating, among others, rabbit skins, at the instance and request of and in accordance with special agreements with the owner furriers or dealers who sell the same, thus dressed, dyed, marked, branded, or designated by it for them, to garment manufacturers, with misbranding or mislabeling in stamping on the backs of rabbit skins, so dressed and dyed by it as to cause the fur thereof to resemble the appearance of the much superior sealskin in pliability, durability, and wearing quality of the fur, the words "Oakland Seal" in large and conspicuous letters, together with the words "Dyed Cony" in small and inconspicuous letters, with full knowledge and in aid of sale in interstate commerce by said owners of such skins, thus dressed, dyed, and marked by it for them, and by the manufacturers of garments made therefrom under the designation "Sealines", on account of or by means of their resemblance to the dyed fur of genuine seal, resulting from its said agency or service and its aforesaid mark or brand, conspicuously displaying the words "Oakland Seal";

With capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive the public into the purchase of said skins and of garments made therefrom, from said owner and manufacturer vendors thereof, as and for seal, and the substantially more costly sealskin garments, respectively, and with effect of furnishing manufacturers and wholesale and retail dealers with the means enabling them to perpetrate a fraud upon the purchasing public by representing that said garments are made of genuine seal and by exhibiting to customers and prospective customers the words "Oakland Seal" stamped on the skins thereof in support of such false representation, and of aiding, assisting, and abetting sale in interstate commerce of rabbit skins thus dressed, etc., by it, and of garments therefrom, as and for seal, by the respective owners and manufacturers, and dealers therein in their various localities, and with capacity and tendency to divert trade to owners offering and selling in interstate commerce said skins, thus dyed, dressed and stamped by it for them, and to manufacturers of garments made thereof similarly offering the same, and to wholesale dealers therein and latter's retail dealer customers, from dealers or furriers selling skins of rabbit and other fur-bearing animals in such commerce, truthfully described and marked, and from manufacturers and wholesalers thus selling garments made of seal, rabbit, or skin of other fur-bearing animals, truthfully described and branded, and from their retail dealer customers; to the prejudice of the public and of competitors of the aforesaid owners and of said owners' vendees, the garment manufacturers, and to the prejudice of the competitors.

Complaint

Acting in the public interest pursuant to the provisions of an act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission charges that Oakland Fur Dyeing, Inc., hereinafter designated respondent, has been and is using unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of said Act, and states its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Oakland Fur Dyeing, Inc., is now, and for more than a year last past has been a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under the laws of the State of New York with its principal office and place of business in the city of Brooklyn, in said State, and engaged in the business of dressing, dyeing, and trade-marking or otherwise marking and designating rabbit skins and the skins of other fur-bearing animals for the owners thereof.

Respondent has rendered and renders such service for owners of rabbit skins, at their instance and request and in pursuance of and in accordance with special agreements therefor. Such owners have been and are furriers or dealers engaged in the business of selling rabbit skins or the skins of other fur-bearing animals in commerce among and between the various States of the United States. It has been and is the practice of said owners of rabbit skins dressed, dyed, marked, branded, or designated for them by respondent, to sell them with the full knowledge of respondent to manufacturers of fur garments, having their places of business in the city and State of New York or elsewhere in said State, and in the various other States of the United States, and such manufacturers have offered for sale and sold garments made from rabbit skins so dressed, dyed, marked, branded, or designated in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, causing them when sold to be trans-
Complaint 21 F. T. C.

It has been and is the practice of respondent to render such services in dressing, dyeing, marking, branding, or designating rabbit skins for their owners with the full knowledge, expectation, purpose, and intent that such skins or garments made therefrom will be offered for sale and sold in interstate commerce, and the acts and practices of respondent hereinafter described in paragraph 2 hereof have been and are directly related to and in furtherance of such business by the owners of such skins and the manufacturers of garments therefrom.

In the course and conduct of its business respondent has been and is engaged in competition with other individuals, partnerships, and corporations, dressing, dyeing, marking, branding, or designating rabbit skins or the skins of other fur-bearing animals for the owners thereof for sale in interstate commerce or for sale to manufacturers to be made into fur garments to be sold in such commerce. The owners of rabbit skins, dressed, dyed, marked, branded, or designated by respondent, and the manufacturers of garments therefrom have been and are in competition with individuals, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the sale of similar or competitive products in like commerce.

Par. 2. The respondent uses and has used, a process for dressing and dyeing rabbit skins which causes the fur of such skins to resemble in appearance the fur of genuine sealskins, and thereupon respondent stamps or causes to be stamped on the back of each of the skins so treated by it in large and conspicuous letters the words "Oakland Seal". Below the words "Oakland Seal" respondent causes to be stamped the words "Dyed Cony" in small and inconspicuous letters.

Garments made from rabbit skins so dyed, marked, branded, or designated by respondent resemble garments made from dyed sealskins but in appearance only. Dyed rabbit skins are greatly inferior to the skins of seals in pliability and durability of the leather and in wearing quality and luster of the fur, and garments made from sealskins command prices far in excess of or substantially greater than the prices commanded by garments made from rabbit skins.

Par. 3. It requires approximately fifty rabbit skins for the construction of coats for women, while it requires only seven sealskins for such purpose, and large quantities of rabbit skins are dressed, dyed, stamped, marked, branded, or designated by respondent, as described in paragraph 2 hereof, for manufacture into coats or other fur garments for women. Such garments bearing the aforesaid mark, brand, or designation of respondent on the back of the skins from which they have been and are made, have been and are sold by manufacturers thereof in the course of their business among and between the various States of the United States, under the name of or described as “Sealines” on account or by means of their resemblance to the dyed furs of genuine seals resulting from the agency or service of respondent and its mark, brand or designation conspicuously displaying the words “Oakland Seal” as described in paragraph 2 hereof.

Par. 4. There are now and have been for many years last past competitors of respondent dressing and dyeing rabbit skins or skins of other fur-bearing animals, including the skins of muskrats and seals for their owners, to be sold in interstate commerce, to furriers or dealers or to manufacturers to be made into fur garments for sale in interstate commerce, whose practice has been and is either to stamp or mark such skins so as clearly to indicate their kind or character, or to omit any such stamp, mark, or designation. Skins so dressed and dyed by such competitors of respondent with or without stamp or other designation thereon, respecting the kind or character of the skins, and garments made from them have been and are offered for sale and sold in interstate commerce by furriers or dealers or manufacturers who have been and are competitors of the individuals, partnerships, and corporations for whom respondent performs and has performed the aforesaid service of dressing, dyeing, stamping, and branding such rabbit skins.

Par. 5. The acts and practices of the owners of rabbit skins so dressed, dyed, and branded for them by respondent at their instance and request, in offering for sale and selling such skins in interstate commerce, and the acts and practices of manufacturers of fur garments in offering for sale and selling in interstate commerce garments made from rabbit skins dyed to resemble seal skins and bearing the aforesaid brand of “Oakland Seal”, have had and have and each of them has had and has the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive the public into the purchase of such skins as and for seal skins, and into the purchase of garments made from such skins as and for garments made from seal skins. Such acts and practices have furnished manufacturers and dealers, wholesale and retail, with the means by which they have been and are enabled to perpetrate a fraud upon the purchasing public by representing that garments made from such skins are made from genuine seal fur, and by exhibiting to customers and prospective customers stamped on such skins the words “Oakland Seal” to support their false representations that such garments are made from genuine seal fur.
Such acts and practices by owners of rabbit skins so dressed, dyed, and stamped by respondent and by their vendees, the manufacturers of fur garments from such skins, have had and have and each of them has had and has the capacity and tendency to divert trade to the owners of rabbit skins so dyed, dressed, and stamped by respondent, who have offered for sale and sold them in interstate commerce, and to manufacturers of garments made from such skins and wholesale dealers offering for sale and selling the same in interstate commerce, and to their customers, the retail dealers, from dealers or furriers selling the skins of rabbits, and of other fur-bearing animals in interstate commerce, truthfully described and marked, and from manufacturers and wholesalers selling in interstate commerce garments made from sealskins, rabbit skins, and the skins of other fur-bearing animals truthfully branded and described, and from their customers, the retail dealers.

Such acts and practices by respondent, Oakland Fur Dyeing, Inc., described in paragraph 2 hereof, have aided, assisted, and abetted, and aid, assist, and abet the sale in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, by the owners of rabbit skins dressed, dyed, marked, branded, or designated for them by respondent, of such skins, as and for sealskins, and the sale in such commerce by manufacturers and wholesale dealers and the sale by dealers in the various States of the United States in their various localities, of garments made from such skins as and for garments made from sealskins.

mission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission, on the 9th day of November 1933, issued its complaint against Oakland Fur Dyeing, Inc., a corporation, respondent herein, and caused the same to be served upon said respondent as required by law, in which complaint it is alleged that respondent has been and is using unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of said Act.

On May 16, 1934, respondent filed an answer to said complaint, in which it consented that the Commission may make, enter, and serve upon it an order to cease and desist from the violations of law alleged in the complaint, in accordance with the provisions of Section (b) of Rule V of the Rules of Practice of the Commission; and the Commission having accepted said answer, issued an order to cease and desist on May 16, 1935, and thereafter, on to wit, the 17th day of June 1935, the Commission, being now fully advised in the premises, modifies the said order to cease and desist, and

It is now ordered, That respondent, Oakland Fur Dyeing, Inc., its officers, agents, representatives and employees, in connection with the dyeing or dressing, sale, offering for sale, or advertising of dyed muskrat fur or dyed cony (rabbit) fur, cease and desist from:

1. Describing furs in any other way than by the use of the correct name of the fur as the last word of the description, and when any dye or blend is used simulating another fur the true name of the fur appearing as the last word of the description must be immediately preceded by the word “dyed”, or “blended”, compounded with the name of the simulated fur.

Using the word “seal” alone or in connection, combination, or conjunction with any other word or words to describe or designate dyed cony, unless and until the word “seal” is compounded with the word “dyed” and such compounded word is immediately followed by the word “cony”, as “seal-dyed cony”.

3. Using the word “seal” or the words “Hudson Seal” standing alone or in connection, combination, or conjunction with any other word or words to describe or designate dyed muskrat unless and until the word “seal” or the words “Hudson Seal” are compounded with the word “dyed” and such word or words so compounded are immediately followed by the word or words signifying or designating the true name of the fur, as “seal-dyed muskrat” or “Hudson Seal-dyed muskrat”.

4. Using the word “seal” or the words “Hudson Seal” standing alone or in connection, combination, or conjunction with any other word or words (regardless of corporate name, trade name, or trade mark), except that the word “seal” may be used as an adjective to denote or describe the color or character of the dye of muskrat or cony fur, as “seal-dyed muskrat” or “seal-dyed cony”, and except that the words “Hudson Seal” may be used as an adjective to denote or describe the color or character of the dye of muskrat fur, as “Hudson Seal-dyed muskrat”.

5. Using the word “Hudson” standing alone or in connection, combination, or conjunction with any other word or words to describe or designate dyed cony (rabbit) fur.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 90 days from the date of the service upon it of the order herein, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form of its compliance with this order.

COMPLAINT

Acting in the public interest pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission charges that Philip A. Singer & Bro., Inc., hereinafter designated respondent, has been and is using unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of said Act, and states its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Philip A. Singer & Bro., Inc., is now, and for more than a year last past has been a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under the laws of the State of New Jersey with its principal office and place of business in the city of Newark, in said State, and engaged in the business of dressing, dyeing, and trade-marking or otherwise marking and designating rabbit skins and the skins of other fur-bearing animals for the owners thereof. Respondent obtains skins to be dyed by it at the places of business of the owners of such skins in the city of New York, State of New York, and transports such skins in its own trucks from the State of New York to its own place of business at Newark in the State of New Jersey, where it dresses, dyes, trade-marks and then transports them in its own trucks from its said place of business to the respective places of business of the respective owners of such skins in the city of New York and State of New York. It also has transported to it by railroad quantities of such skins from customers in Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, and other States which respondent dresses, dyes, trade-marks and then causes to be transported by railroad or otherwise from the State of New Jersey into and through other States of the United States to the respective owners.

Respondent has rendered and renders such service for owners of rabbit skins, at their instance and request and in pursuance of and in accordance with special agreements therefor. Such owners have been and are furriers or dealers engaged in the business of selling rabbit skins or the skins of other fur-bearing animals in commerce.
among and between the various States of the United States. It has been and is the practice of said owners of rabbit skins dressed, dyed, and trade-marked for them by respondent, to sell them to manufacturers of fur garments, having their places of business in the city of New York or elsewhere in said State, and in the various other States of the United States, and such manufacturers have offered for sale and sold and offer for sale and sell garments made from rabbit skins dressed, dyed, and trade-marked or stamped by respondent as described in paragraph 2 hereof, in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, causing them when sold to be transported from their several places of business to purchasers located in various other States of the United States than the State or States wherein are situated such places of business.

It has been and is the practice of respondent to render such services in dressing, dyeing and trade-marking rabbit skins for their owners with the full knowledge, expectation, purpose, and intent that such skins will be offered for sale and sold in interstate commerce by such owners or garments made therefrom by their vendees, and the acts and practices of respondent hereinafter described in paragraph 2 hereof have been and are directly related to and in furtherance of such business by the owners of such skins and the manufacturers of garments therefrom.

In the course and conduct of its said business respondent has been and is engaged in competition with other individuals, partnerships, and corporations, dressing and dyeing rabbit skins or the skins of other fur-bearing animals for the owners thereof for sale in interstate commerce or for sale to manufacturers to be made into fur garments to be sold in such commerce. The owners of rabbit skins, dressed, dyed, and trade-marked by respondent, and the manufacturers of garments therefrom have been and are in competition with individuals, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the sale of similar or competitive products in like commerce.

Par. 2. The respondent uses and has used a process for dressing and dyeing rabbit skins which causes the fur of such skins to resemble in appearance the fur of genuine sealskins, and thereupon respondent stamps or causes to be stamped on the back of each of the skins so treated by it a trade mark, which it has caused to be registered in the United States Patent Office, containing in large and conspicuous letters the words "Baltic Seal." Below the words "Baltic Seal" respondent causes to be stamped the words "Dyed Coney" in small and inconspicuous letters.

It has been and is the practice of respondent to furnish owners of rabbit skins dyed and so stamped or marked by it, labels to be attached to garments made therefrom containing the words "Baltic Seal" in large and conspicuous letters and below them the words "Dyed Coney" in small and inconspicuous letters.

Garments made from rabbit skins so dyed and trade-marked by respondent resemble garments made from dyed sealskins but in appearance only. Dyed rabbit skins are greatly inferior to the skins of seals in pliability and durability of the leather and in wearing quality and luster of the fur, and garments made from sealskins command prices far in excess of or substantially greater than the prices commanded by garments made from rabbit skins.

Par. 3. It requires approximately fifty rabbit skins for the construction of each coat for women, while it requires only seven sealskins for such purposes, and large quantities of rabbit skins are dressed, dyed, and trade-marked by respondent, as described in paragraph 2 hereof, for manufacture into coats or other fur garments for women. Such garments bearing the aforesaid trade-mark of respondent on the back of the skins from which they have been and are made, have been and are sold by manufacturers thereof in the course of their business among and between the various States of the United States, under the name of or described as "Sealines" on account or by means of their resemblance to the dyed furs of genuine seals, resulting from the agency or service of respondent and its trade mark conspicuously displaying the words "Baltic Seal" as described in paragraph 2 hereof.

Par. 4. There are now and have been for many years last past competitors of respondent dressing and dyeing rabbit skins or skins of other fur-bearing animals including the skins of muskrats and seals for their owners, to be sold in interstate commerce, to furriers or dealers or to manufacturers to be made into fur garments for sale in interstate commerce, whose practice has been and is either to stamp or mark such skins so as clearly to indicate their kind or character, or to omit any mark or designation of their kind or character. Skins so dressed and dyed by such competitors of respondent with or without stamp or other designation thereof, respecting the kind or character of the skins, and garments made from them have been and are offered for sale and sold in interstate commerce by furriers or dealers or manufacturers who have been and are competitors of the individuals, partnerships, and corporations for whom respondent performs and has performed the aforesaid service of dressing, dyeing, stamping, and branding such rabbit skins.

Par. 5. The acts and practices of respondent described in paragraph 2 hereof have aided, assisted, and abetted the sale in interstate commerce of rabbit skins as and for sealskins and the sale of garments made from such skins, as and for garments made from sealskins. More particularly, such acts and practices have furnished retail dealers, to whom manufacturers or others have sold garments made from rabbit skins, dyed by respondent to resemble and imitate sealskins and trade-marked by respondent as described in paragraph 2, the means by which such retail dealers can perpetrate fraud upon the purchasing public by representing that such garments are made of "Baltic Seal" fur, the designation respondent has attached to the skins from which such garments are made, and by exhibiting to customers and prospective customers the trade-mark stamped on such skins containing the said words "Baltic Seal" to support their false representations that such garments are made from genuine seal fur.

Such acts and practices by respondent have had and have the capacity and tendency to divert trade to the owners of rabbit skins, dressed, dyed, and trade-marked by respondent, who have offered for sale and sold the same in interstate commerce and to manufacturers of garments made from such skins or wholesale dealers offering for sale and selling the same in interstate commerce and to their customers, the retail dealers, from dealers or furriers selling the skins of rabbits, seals and of other fur-bearing animals in interstate commerce, truthfully described and marked, and from manufacturers or wholesale dealers selling in interstate commerce garments made from sealskins, rabbit skins and the skins of other fur-bearing animals, truthfully branded and described, and from their customers, the retail dealers.

Par. 6. The above and foregoing practices of respondent have been and are and each of them has been and is to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and the competitors of respondent's principals or those it has aided, assisted, and abetted in such practices in interstate commerce, which practices have been and are unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of the Act entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

fur or dyed cony (rabbit) fur, in interstate commerce, cease and desist from describing fur other than by the use of the correct name of the fur as the last word in the designation thereof, and from the use of the word "seal" as designation thereof, subject to permitted use thereof in an adjective sense, together with such words as "dyed" or "blended", as in said order in detail set forth.

Mr. James M. Brinson for the Commission.
Mr. Emanuel J. Freiberg, of New York City, for respondent.

Complaint

Acting in the public interest pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission charges that Van Dye Way Corporation, hereinafter designated respondent, has been and is using unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of said Act, and states its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Van Dye Way Corporation, is now, and for more than a year last past has been a corporation, organized, existing, and doing business under the laws of the State of New Jersey with its principal office and place of business in the city of Patterson, in said State, and engaged in the business of dressing, dyeing, and trade-marking or otherwise marking and designating rabbit skins and the skins of other fur-bearing animals for the owners thereof.

Respondent has rendered and renders such service for owners of rabbit skins, at their instance and request and in pursuance of and in accordance with special agreements therefor. Such owners have been and are furriers or dealers engaged in the business of selling rabbit skins or the skins of other fur-bearing animals in commerce among and between the various States of the United States. It has been and is the practice of said owners of rabbit skins dressed, dyed, marked, stamped, or branded, for them by respondent, to sell them to manufacturers of fur garments, having their places of business in the city and State of New York or elsewhere in said State, and in the various other States of the United States, and such manufacturers have offered for sale and sold and offer for sale and sell garments made from rabbit skins dressed, dyed, marked, stamped, or branded by respondent in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, causing them when sold to be transported from their several places of business to purchasers located in various other States of the United States than the State or States wherein are situated such places of business.
Complaint

It has been and is the practice of respondent to render such services in dressing, dyeing, marking, stamping, or branding rabbit skins for their owners with the full knowledge, expectation, purpose, and intent that such skins or garments made therefrom will be offered for sale and sold in interstate commerce, and the acts and practices of respondent hereinafter described in paragraph 2 hereof have been and are directly related to and in furtherance of such business by the owners of such skins and the manufacturers of garments therefrom.

In the course and conduct of its business respondent has been and is engaged in competition with other individuals, partnerships, and corporations, dressing and dyeing rabbit skins or the skins of other fur-bearing animals for their owners, for sale in interstate commerce or to manufacturers of garments therefrom to be sold in such commerce.

The owners of rabbit skins, dressed, dyed, branded, marked, or designated by respondent, and the manufacturers of garments therefrom have been and are in competition with individuals, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the sale of similar or competitive products in like commerce.

Par. 2. The respondent uses and has used a process for dressing and dyeing rabbit skins which causes the fur of such skins to resemble in appearance the fur of genuine sealskins, and thereupon respondent stamps or causes to be stamped on the back of each of the skins so treated by it the following mark, brand, or designation: Enclosed within a border rectangular in shape, the capital letters "V. D. W." are conspicuously displayed, while superimposed across the middle portion of the letters "V. D. W.", almost extending from one end to the other end of the rectangular border, and enclosed within a similar but smaller border, conspicuously appear the words "Lapin Seal" in large capital letters. Immediately under the lower part of the larger border within which both letters and the designation "Lapin Seal" appear, respondent has caused and causes to be stamped in small and inconspicuous letters the words "Dyed Cony" which are noticeable only after close inspection.

Garments made from rabbit skins so dyed, marked, branded, or designated by respondent resemble garments made from dyed sealskins but in appearance only. Dyed rabbit skins are greatly inferior to the skins of seals in pliability and durability of the leather and in wearing quality and luster of the fur, and garments made from sealskins command prices far in excess of or substantially greater than the prices commanded by garments made from rabbit skins.

Par. 3. It requires approximately fifty rabbit skins for the construction of coats for women, while it requires only seven sealskins for such purpose, and large quantities of rabbit skins are dressed, dyed, stamped, or marked by respondent, as described in paragraph 2 hereof, for manufacture into coats or other fur garments for women. Such garments bearing the aforesaid mark, brand, or designation of respondent on the back of the skins from which they have been and are made, have been and are sold by manufacturers thereof in the course of their business among and between the various States of the United States, under the name of or described as "Sealines" on account or by means of their resemblance to the dyed furs of genuine seals, resulting from the agency or service of respondent and its mark, brand, or designation conspicuously displaying the words "Lapin Seal" as described in paragraph 2 hereof.

Par. 4. There are now and have been for many years last past competitors of respondent dressing and dyeing rabbit skins or skins of other fur-bearing animals including the skins of muskrats and seals for their owners, to be sold in interstate commerce, to furriers or dealers or to manufacturers to be made into fur garments for sale in interstate commerce, whose practice has been and is either to stamp or mark such skins so as clearly to indicate their kind or character, or to omit any mark or designation of their kind or character. Skins so dressed and dyed by such competitors of respondent with or without stamp or other designation thereon, respecting the kind or character of the skins, and garments made from them have been and are offered for sale and sold in interstate commerce by furriers or dealers or manufacturers who have been and are competitors of the individuals, partnerships and corporations for whom respondent performs and has performed the aforesaid service of dressing, dyeing, stamping, and branding such rabbit skins.

Par. 5. The acts and practices of respondent described in paragraph 2 hereof have aided, assisted, and abetted the sale in interstate commerce of rabbit skins as and for seal skins and the sale of garments made from such skins as and for garments made from seal skins. More particularly, such acts and practices have furnished wholesale or retail dealers, to whom manufacturers have sold garments made from rabbit skins, dyed by respondent to resemble and imitate seal skins and marked, stamped, branded, or designated by respondent as described in paragraph 2, the means by which such dealers can perpetrate fraud upon the purchasing public by representing that such garments are made of seal fur, and by exhibiting to customers and prospective customers the brand or designation stamped on such skins containing the said words "Lapin Seal" to support their false representations that such garments are made from genuine seal fur.
Such acts and practices by respondent have had and have the capacity and tendency to divert trade to the owners of rabbit skins, dressed, dyed and marked, branded or designated by respondent, who have offered for sale and sold the same in interstate commerce and to manufacturers of garments made from such skins offering for sale and selling the same in interstate commerce, and to their vendees, the dealers, wholesale and retail, from dealers or furriers selling the skins of rabbits, and of other fur-bearing animals in interstate commerce, truthfully described and marked and from manufacturers selling in interstate commerce garments made from sealskins, rabbit skins and the skins of other fur-bearing animals, truthfully branded and described, and from their vendees, the wholesale and retail dealers.

PAR. 6. The above and foregoing practices of respondent have been and are and each of them has been and is to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and the competitors of respondent's principals and those it has aided, assisted, and abetted in such practices in interstate commerce, which practices have been and are unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of the Act entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

Federal Trade Commission, on the 9th day of November 1933 issued its complaint against Van Dye Way Corporation, a corporation, re-respondent herein, and caused the same to be served upon respondent as required by law, in which complaint it is alleged that respondent has been and is using unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of said Act.

On May 17, 1934, respondent filed an answer to said complaint in which it consented that the Commission may make, enter, and serve upon it an order to cease and desist from the violations of law alleged in the complaint, in accordance with the provisions of Section (b) of Rule V of the Rules of Practice of the Commission; and the Commission having accepted said answer, issued an order to cease and desist on May 16, 1935, and thereafter, on to wit the 17th day of June 1935 the Commission, being now fully advised in the premises, modifies the said order to cease and desist, and

Mr. James M. Brinson for the Commission.
Mr. George J. Beldock, of New York City, for respondent.

Complaint

Acting in the public interest pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes,” the Federal Trade Commission charges that Iceland Fur Dyeing Company, hereinafter designated respondent, has been and is using unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of said Act, and states its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Iceland Fur Dyeing Company is now and for more than a year last past has been a corporation organized, existing and doing business under the laws of the State of New York with its principal office and place of business in the city of Brooklyn in said State, and engaged in the business of dressing, dyeing and trade-marking or otherwise marking and designating rabbit skins and the skins of other fur-bearing animals for the owners thereof.

The respondent uses and has used, a process for dressing and dyeing rabbit skins which causes the fur of such skins to resemble in appearance the fur of genuine sealskins, and thereupon respondent stamps or causes to be stamped on the back of each of the skins so treated by it the mark, brand or designation “Iceland Seal,” in large and conspicuous letters. Under the lower part of the border within which the words “Iceland Seal” are enclosed appear the words “Trade Mark,” and below them appear the words “Dyed Coney” in smaller and less conspicuous letters than those in which the words “Iceland Seal” appear.

Garments made from rabbit skins so dyed, marked, branded, or designated by respondent resemble garments made from dyed sealskins but in appearance only. Dyed rabbit skins are greatly inferior to the skins of seals in pliability and durability of the leather and in wearing quality and luster of the fur, and garments made from sealskins command prices far in excess of or substantially greater than the prices commanded by garments made from rabbit skins.
Respondent has rendered and renders such service for owners of rabbit skins, at their instance and request and in pursuance of and in accordance with special agreements therefor. Such owners are and have been furriers or dealers engaged in the business of selling rabbit skins or skins of other fur-bearing animals in commerce among and between the various States of the United States. It has been and is the practice of said owners of rabbit skins dressed, dyed, marked, branded, or designated for them by respondent, to sell them in interstate commerce to other furriers or dealers and to manufacturers of fur garments, having their places of business in the various States of the United States, and such manufacturers have offered for sale and sold garments made from rabbit skins so dressed, dyed, and marked or stamped by respondent, bearing the said brand "Iceland Seal," in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, causing them when sold to be transported from their several places of business to purchasers located in various other States of the United States than the State or States wherein are situated such places of business.

It has been and is the practice of respondent to render such services in dressing, dyeing, and marking rabbit skins for their owners with the full knowledge, expectation, purpose, and intent that such skins or garments made therefrom will be offered for sale and sold in interstate commerce, and the said acts and practices of respondent have been and are directly related to and in furtherance of such business by the owners of such skins and the manufacturers of garments therefrom. Further to facilitate the sale as and for garments made from sealskins of garments made from rabbit skins so dyed and stamped or marked by it, respondent has furnished and furnishes owners of such skins for delivery to their vendees, manufacturing garments therefrom, labels to be attached to the completed garment, which bear the words "Iceland Seal" in large and conspicuous letters.

In the course and conduct of its business respondent has been and is engaged in competition with other individuals, partnerships and corporations, dressing and dyeing rabbit skins or the skins of other fur-bearing animals for the owners thereof for sale in interstate commerce or for sale to manufacturers to be made into fur garments, to be sold in such commerce. The owners of rabbit skins so dressed, dyed, marked, branded, or designated by respondent, and the manufacturers of garments therefrom have been and are in competition with individuals, partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale of similar or competitive products in like commerce.
Par. 2. There are now and have been for many years past competitors of respondent dressing and dyeing rabbit skins or skins of other fur-bearing animals, including the skins of seals, for their owners, to be sold in interstate commerce, to furriers or dealers or manufacturers to be made into fur garments for sale in interstate commerce, whose practice has been and is either to stamp or mark such skins so clearly as to indicate their kind or character, or to omit any mark or designation of their kind or character. Skins so dressed and dyed by such competitors of respondent with or without stamp or other designation thereon respecting the kind or character of the skins, and garments made from them have been and are offered for sale and sold in interstate commerce by furriers or dealers or manufacturers who have been and are competitors of the individuals, partnerships, and corporations for whom respondent performs and has performed the aforesaid service of dressing, dyeing, stamping, and branding such skins.

Par. 3. The acts and practices of the owners of the rabbit skins dressed, dyed, and branded for them by respondent at their instance and request, in offering for sale and selling such skins in interstate commerce, and the acts and practices of manufacturers of fur garments in offering for sale and selling in interstate commerce garments made from rabbit skins dyed to resemble sealskins and bearing the aforesaid brand of "Iceland Seal" have had and have and each of them has had and has the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive the public into the purchase of such skins as and for sealskins, and into the purchase of garments made from such skins as and for garments made from sealskins. Such acts and practices have furnished manufacturers and dealers, wholesale and retail, with the means by which they have been and are able to perpetrate a fraud upon the purchasing public by representing that garments made from such skins are made of genuine seal fur, and by exhibiting to customers and prospective customers stamped on such skins the words "Iceland Seal" or the aforesaid label on such garments, or by both acts, to support their false representations that such garments are made from genuine seal fur.

Such acts and practices by the owners of rabbit skins, dressed, dyed, and stamped by respondent and by their vendees, the manufacturers of fur garments have had and have and each has had and has the capacity and tendency to divert trade to the owners of rabbit skins dyed, dressed and stamped by respondent, who have offered for sale and sold them in interstate commerce, and to manufacturers of garments made from such skins, and wholesale dealers offering for sale and selling the same in interstate commerce, and to their customers, the retail dealers, from dealers or furriers selling the skins of rabbits and of other fur-bearing animals in interstate commerce, truthfully described and marked, and from manufacturers and wholesale dealers selling in interstate commerce garments made from sealskins, rabbit skins and the skins of other fur-bearing animals truthfully branded and described, and from their vendees the retail dealers in the various States of the United States.

The acts and practices of respondent, described in paragraph 1 hereof have aided, assisted, and abetted the owners of rabbit skins and the skins of other fur-bearing animals, dressed, dyed, and stamped for them by respondent, in selling such skins in and among the various States of the United States as and for sealskins, and have aided, assisted and abetted the manufacturers of garments from such skins in selling them in such commerce as and for garments made from sealskins, and their vendees, wholesale and retail dealers, in their various communities in such practice.

Par. 4. The above and foregoing practices of the owners of rabbit skins dressed and dyed by respondent and of the vendees of such owners, including the manufacturers of garments from such skins, have been and are to the prejudice of the public and of their competitors, and the above and foregoing practices of respondent have been and are to the prejudice of the public and respondent’s competitors and the competitors of respondent’s principals, and those it has aided, assisted and abetted in such practices in interstate commerce, which practices have been and are unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of the Act entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes.”

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

1. Describing furs in any other way than by the use of the correct name of the fur as the last word of the description, and when any dye or blend is used simulating another fur the true name of the fur appearing as the last word of the description must be immediately preceded by the word "dyed", or "blended", compounded with the name of the simulated fur.

2. Using the word "seal" alone or in connection, combination or conjunction with any other word or words to describe or designate dyed cony, unless and until the word "seal" is compounded with the word "dyed" and such compounded word is immediately followed by the word "cony", as "seal-dyed cony".

3. Using the word "seal" or the words "Hudson Seal" standing alone or in connection, combination or conjunction with any other word or words to describe or designate dyed muskrat unless and until the word "seal" or the words "Hudson Seal" are compounded with the word "dyed" and such word or words so compounded are immediately followed by the word or words signifying or designating the true name of the fur, as "seal-dyed muskrat" or "Hudson Seal-dyed muskrat".

4. Using the word "seal" or the words "Hudson Seal" standing alone or in connection, combination or conjunction with any other word or words (regardless of corporate name, trade name, or trade mark), except that the word "seal" may be used as an adjective to denote or describe the color or character of the dye of muskrat or cony fur, as "seal-dyed muskrat" or "seal-dyed cony", and except that the words "Hudson Seal" may be used as an adjective to denote or describe the color or character of the dye of muskrat fur, as "Hudson Seal-dyed muskrat".
5. Using the word "Hudson" standing alone or in connection, combination or conjunction with any other word or words to describe or designate dyed cony (rabbit) fur.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 90 days from the date of the service upon it of the order herein, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form of its compliance with this order.
IN THE MATTER OF

M. J. HOLLOWAY & COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914, AND OF SEC. 3 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED JUNE 16, 1933.

Where a corporation engaged in the manufacture and sale of candy, including such break-and-take assortments as (1) individually wrapped, penny caramels, together with a number of larger pieces or packages of candy to be given as prizes to chance purchasers of a few of said caramels, the concealed color of which, unlike the others, was not uniform throughout, (2) assortments composed of small caramels and larger bars, together with push cards or punch boards, through use of which it was determined, in accordance with explanatory legends thereon set forth and the chance number pushed or punched thereon, at a cost of a penny a punch, whether a caramel or bar should be received by the person making such chance selection, and the last remaining number on which also entitled person punching the same to an additional piece or prize, (3) its "Mystery Chest" assortment composed of large and small pieces of candy and small toys or prizes arranged in individual compartments within which they were concealed by a paper covering, so marked as to show the separate compartments, but not the contents thereof, so that the purchaser's chance selection decided the particular piece, and toy or prize, if any, secured for the money paid, (4) its so-called "Game of Skill" assortment composed of 150 individually wrapped caramels and 65 candy bars, to be given to the chance purchasers of as many caramels, with different colored centers, described by it on assortment's cover, not ordinarily seen, as larger in size than the others, facts being difference, if any, too small to be discernible, and selection was made wholly by lot or chance, and (5) two-box assortments, separately billed at times, but sold together, and respectively containing assorted caramels, a few of which had concealed centers of a different color than the others, and larger pieces or bars, the number of which corresponded to that of the different colored center caramels, and so arranged that the two boxes might be displayed by the retailer as a single assortment, and the larger pieces distributed as prizes to purchasers of the smaller caramels as hereinbefore set forth;

Sold said assortments and push cards or punch boards to wholesalers and jobbers, so packed and assembled that they could be displayed for sale and distribution to the purchasing public, as hereinbefore set forth, without alteration or rearrangement, and could not, except in the case of said two-box assortments, be resold to the public except as a lottery or gaming device, without unwrapping, unpacking, disassembling, or rearranging the same, with knowledge and intent that said candy would and should thus be resold.
by the retailer; in competition with concerns who regard such a method of sale and distribution as morally bad and one which encourages gambling, and especially among children, and as injurious to the industry in merchandising a chance or lottery rather than candy, and providing retailers with the means of violating the laws of the several States, and who refuse to sell candy so packed and assembled that it can be resold to the public by lot or chance;

With the result of putting at a disadvantage, by reason of their said refusal to adopt such practices, said competitors, who can compete on even terms only through following the same to meet the demand and preference for such candy from certain dealers and small retailers, chiefly, and that of the children from the frequently nearby schools, who purchase said candy by reason of the gambling feature connected therewith, in preference to the so-called "straight goods", and who constitute by far the largest class of purchasers and consumers thereof, and who supply the principal demand therefor, some competitors began the sale and distribution of candy for resale to the public by lot or chance, to meet the constant demand and preference for candy thus sold, trade was diverted to said individual from competitors declining to follow such a practice, freedom of fair and legitimate competition in the industry concerned was restrained and harmed, sales of those dealing in the "straight goods" products exclusively were markedly decreased whenever and wherever the competition of the break-and-take assortments, with their necessarily smaller pieces or inferior quality, was encountered, by reason, principally, of the gambling or lottery feature connected with the latter, gambling among children was taught and encouraged, and the public policy of many of the States, some of which have laws making the operation of lotteries and gambling devices penal offenses, was violated:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the conditions and circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that M. J. Holloway & Company, a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has been and is using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said Act of Congress, and in violation of the Act of Congress approved June 16, 1933, known as the "National Industrial Recovery Act", and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Count 1

Paragraph 1. Respondent is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Illinois, with its principal office and place of business in the city of Chicago, State of Illinois. Respondent, for more than five years last past, has been engaged in the manufacture of candy and in the sale and distribution thereof to wholesale dealers and jobbers located at points in the various States of the United States, and causes said products when so sold to be transported from its principal place of business in the city of Chicago, Ill., to purchasers thereof in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, at their respective places of business, and there is now and has been for more than a year last past a course of trade and commerce by the said respondent in such candy between and among the States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of the said business, respondent is in competition with other corporations, individuals, and partnerships engaged in the manufacture of candy and in the sale and distribution thereof in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and within the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of its business as described in paragraph 1 herein respondent sells and has sold to wholesale dealers and jobbers various packages or assortments of candy so packed and assembled as to involve the use of a lottery scheme when sold and distributed to the consumers thereof.

Certain of said packages are hereafter described for the purpose of showing the methods used by respondent but this list is not all-inclusive of the various sales plans which respondent has been or is using to distribute candy by lot or chance.

(a) Several of said assortments of candy are composed of a number of pieces of caramel candies of uniform size, shape, and quality, contained within a wrapper, together with a number of larger pieces of candy or packages of candy, which larger pieces of candy or packages of candy are to be given as prizes to purchasers of said caramels of uniform size, shape, and quality in the following manner:

The majority of said caramels are of the same color throughout but a few of said caramels have centers of a different color. The color of the center of these caramels is effectively concealed from the prospective purchasers by the wrapper in which they are contained until a selection or a purchase has been made and the wrapper removed. The said caramels of uniform size, shape, and quality in said assortment retail at the price of one cent each, but the purchasers who procure one of the said caramels having a center of a different color than the majority are entitled to receive and are to be given free of charge one of the said larger pieces of candy or packages of candy heretofore referred to. The aforesaid purchasers of said candies who procure a caramel having a center colored differently from the majority are thus to procure one of the said larger pieces of candy or packages of candy wholly by lot or chance.

(b) Several of said assortments of candy are composed of a number of small pieces of caramel candy and a number of larger pieces of candy together with a device commonly referred to as a push card. The candy contained in said assortment is distributed to purchasers of pushes from said card in the following manner:

The pushes from said card are one cent each and when a push is made a number is disclosed. There are as many separate numbers on the card as there are pushes and the numbers begin with one. The card bears a legend or legends informing the prospective customer as to which numbers receive the small pieces of caramel candy and which numbers receive the larger pieces of candy, for example:

The "Holloway’s Advertiser Package" contains 110 caramels and 41 caramel bars and the push card bears the following legends: Numbers 1 to 40 receive Holloway bar, numbers 41 to 150 receive Holloway caramel. The numbers on the card are effectively concealed from the purchasers or prospective purchasers until a push or selection has been made and the particular push separated from the card. The candy contained in said assortment is thus distributed to purchasers of pushes from said card wholly by lot or chance.

(c) Another assortment of candy distributed by respondent is composed of a number of small pieces of caramel candy together with a number of larger pieces of candy and is distributed to purchasers thereof in the following manner:

The assortment is contained within a large box, which is divided into a number of small compartments. Each compartment contains one of the small pieces of caramel candy or one of the larger pieces of candy. Over all of the separate compartments is fastened a sheet of paper so marked as to show each of the compartments but not the contents thereof. The purchaser selects the compartment desired and pushes or tears the paper covering therefrom and is entitled to receive the candy contained therein. The contents of each compartment retail at the price of one cent each and the purchaser procures either one of the small pieces of caramel candy or one of the larger bars of candy, the same being determined wholly by lot or chance.

(d) Another assortment distributed by the respondent is similar in all of its detail to the assortments described in subparagraph (a) above, but the package is known and described by respondent as "Game of Skill" and the lid of the box in which said assortment is contained bears a legend as follows: "The yellow core caramels in this box are larger in size than the other caramels. Therefore, a skillful person can detect these larger caramels". The pieces of caramel are each contained within a wrapper and are of the same size or so nearly the same size as to make it impossible when contained within such wrapper for the purchaser to distinguish the difference in the size thereof. The purchaser of the caramels having a yellow core is entitled to receive and is to be given free of charge a larger piece of candy and these larger pieces of candy are thus distributed to the purchasers of the small caramels wholly by lot or chance and the statement on the box above quoted is a mere subterfuge, in an effort to avoid the effect of distributing candy by a lottery scheme.

(e) The respondent also distributes an assortment of caramels, the majority of which have centers of the same color, but a small number of which have centers of a different color and with this assortment of caramels the respondent sells and distributes an assortment of larger bars of candy, containing approximately the same number of bars of candy as there are caramels with centers colored differently from the majority in the first assortment just above described, and while these two assortments are sometimes billed separately the respondent sells the same number of each to his customers, who in turn resell in the same manner to the retail dealers. The larger bars of candy are distributed as prizes to purchasers of the smaller caramels in the same manner as where they are packed in the same assortment as described in subparagraph (a) above. The purpose of respondent in so packing these separate assortments is a subterfuge in an effort to avoid the effect of selling candy to be distributed by a lottery scheme, and the respondent is placing in commerce merchandise to be sold by means of a lottery scheme. The respondent packs these separate assortments so that they may be sold at retail by a lottery scheme and the respondent knows that in many cases they will be and are sold by means of a lottery scheme and purchasers of the smaller caramels which retail at the price of one cent each, thus procure larger bars of candy wholly by lot or chance.

PAR. 3. The wholesale dealers and jobbers to whom respondent sells his assortments resell said assortments of candy to retail dealers and said retail dealers expose said assortments for sale and sell said candy to the purchasing public in accordance with the aforesaid sales plans. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of its products in accordance with the sales plans herein above set forth, as a means of inducing purchasers thereof to purchase respondent's said products in preference to candy offered for sale and sold by its competitors.

PAR. 4. The sale of said candy to the purchasing public, above alleged involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure such larger pieces of candy or packages of candy in the manner alleged. Such games of chance, and the sale along with the sale of such candy of such chance to procure such larger pieces of candy or packages of candy in the manner alleged are contrary to the established public policy of the several States of the United States and the District of Columbia and of the Government of the United States, and in many of the States of the United States are contrary to local criminal statutes.

By reason of the said facts, many persons, firms and corporations who make and sell candy in competition with respondent as above alleged are unwilling to offer for sale or sell candies so packed and assembled as above alleged, or otherwise arranged and packed for sale to the purchasing public so as to involve a game of chance, or the sale with such candy of a chance to procure larger pieces of candy by chance; and such competitors refrain therefrom.

PAR. 5. Many dealers in and ultimate purchasers of candy are attracted by respondent's said methods and manner of packing said candy and by the element of chance involved in the sale thereof, in the manner above described, and are thereby induced to purchase said candy so packed and sold by respondent in preference to candies offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or equivalent methods. Many dealers in candies are induced to purchase said candies so offered for sale and sold by respondent in preference to all others, because said ultimate purchasers thereof give preference to respondent's said candies on account of said game of chance so involved in the sale thereof.

PAR. 6. The use of said methods by respondent has the tendency and capacity unfairly, and because of said game of chance alone, to divert to respondent trade and custom from its said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent methods; to exclude from said candy trade all competitors who are unwilling to and who do not use the same or equivalent methods; to lessen competition in said candy trade, and to tend to create a monopoly of said candy trade in respondent and such other distributors of candy as use the same or equivalent methods, and to deprive the purchasing public of the benefit of free competition in said candy trade. The use of said methods by respondent has the tendency and capacity unfairly to eliminate from said candy trade all actual competitors, and to exclude therefrom all potential competitors, who do not adopt and use said method or equivalent methods that are contrary to public policy and to criminal statutes as above alleged. Many of said competitors of respondent are unwilling to adopt and use said methods, or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance, because such method is contrary to public policy or to the criminal statutes of certain of the States of the United States, or because they are of the opinion that such a method is detrimental to public morals and to the morals of the purchasers of said candy, or because of any or all of such reasons.

Par. 7. The aforementioned methods, acts and practices of the respondent are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors as hereinabove alleged. Said methods, acts and practices constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

Paragraph 1. Respondent is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Illinois, with its principal office and place of business in the city of Chicago, State of Illinois. Respondent, for more than three years last past has been engaged in the manufacture of candy and in the sale and distribution thereof to wholesale dealers and jobbers located at points in the State of Illinois and at points in various other States of the United States, and causes said products, when so sold, to be transported from its principal place of business in the city of Chicago, Ill., to the purchasers thereof in the State of Illinois, and to other purchasers thereof in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, at their respective places of business, and there is now and has been for more than three years last past a course of trade and commerce by the said respondent in such candy in the State of Illinois and among the States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of the said business, respondent is in competition with other corporations, individuals, and partnerships engaged in the manufacture of candy and in the sale and distribution thereof in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and within the District of Columbia.

PAR. 7. Under and pursuant to the provisions of Section 2 of said National Industrial Recovery Act, the President of the United States on the 16th day of June 1933 by his executive order in writing appointed Hugh S. Johnson to be the Administrator for Industrial Recovery under Title I of said Act.

Said application was duly referred to said Hugh S. Johnson, as such administrator, by and before whom such further action was taken and proceedings were had that on the 9th day of June 1934 said Johnson, as such administrator, submitted a certain Code of Fair Competition for the Candy Manufacturing Industry to the President of the United States, together with his written report containing an analysis of said code of fair competition, and with his recommendations and findings with respect thereto, wherein said administrator found that the said code of fair competition complies in all respects with the pertinent provisions of Title I of the National Industrial Recovery Act, and that the requirements of classes (1) and (2) of subsection (a) of Section 3 of said Act had been met. The concluding paragraphs of said report are in the following words, to wit:

(a) Said Code is well designed to promote the policies and purposes of Title I of the National Industrial Recovery Act, including removal of obstructions to the free flow of interstate and foreign commerce which tend to diminish the amount thereof and will provide for the general welfare by promoting the organization of industry for the purpose of cooperative action among the trade groups, by inducing and maintaining united action of labor and management under adequate governmental sanctions and supervision, by eliminating unfair competitive practices, by promoting the fullest possible utilization of the present productive capacity of industries, by avoiding undue restriction of production (except as may be temporarily required), by increasing the consumption of industrial and agricultural products through increasing purchasing power, by reducing and relieving unemployment, by improving standards of labor, and by otherwise rehabilitating industry.

(b) The Code as approved complies in all respects with the pertinent provisions of said Title of said Act, including without limitation Subsection (a) of Section 3, Subsection (a) of Section 7, and Subsection (b) of Section 10 thereof; and that the applicant association is a trade association truly representative of the aforesaid Industry; and that said association imposes no inequitable restrictions on admission to membership therein.

(c) The Code is not designed to and will not permit monopolies or monopolistic practices.

(d) The Code is not designed to and will not eliminate or oppress small enterprises and will not operate to discriminate against them.
(e) Those engaged in other steps of the economic process have not been deprived of the right to be heard prior to approval of said Code.

It is recommended, therefore, that this Code be approved.

Respectfully,

Hugh S. Johnson, Administrator.

June 9, 1934.

Thereafter, and on the 11th day of June 1934 the President of the United States made and issued his certain written executive order wherein and whereby he adopted and approved the report, recommendations and findings of said administrator, and ordered that the said code of fair competition be, and the same thereby was, approved, and by virtue of said National Industrial Recovery Act the provisions of said code became, and still are, the standard of fair competition for the Candy Manufacturing Industry, and became and still are binding upon every member thereof, except that said code of fair competition when so approved was approved with a proviso that Rule 19, Article VIII thereof was stayed for a period of 10 days. Successive subsequent administrative orders were severally duly made and entered by which the provisions of said Rule 19, Article VIII, were stayed for fixed periods designated in said several orders, the latest date to which said Rule 19 was stayed being July 30, 1934. On July 30, 1934, said Rule 19, Article VIII, became in full force and effect. On and since said July 30, 1934, the said code of fair competition, including said Rule 19, Article VIII, has been and is in full force and effect and became, and still is, binding upon every member of said industry.

Rule 19, Article VIII, of said code provides as follows:

No member of the industry shall sell or distribute the type of merchandise commonly referred to as 'break and take', 'picks', or 'draws', or merchandise of a like character, serving the same purpose.

Among persons engaged in said trade and among the purchasing public the language of said Rule 19 is understood to refer to and include candies offered for sale and sold by the methods used by respondent as above alleged. The language of said Rule 19 does refer to and include candies so offered for sale and sold. Candies offered for sale and sold by the methods so used by respondent are of the type of merchandise commonly referred to as "break and take", "picks", or "draws", and are merchandise of a like character, serving the same purpose, within the intent and meaning of said Rule 19, Article VIII.

Notwithstanding said provisions of said Rule 19, Article VIII, of said code of fair competition, respondent has continued to, and does, use said methods of competition hereinabove alleged and described, and has been and is offering for sale and selling to wholesale dealers, jobbers, and retail dealers certain packages or assortments of candy so packed and assembled as to involve the use of a lottery scheme when sold and distributed to the consumers thereof, as hereinabove alleged and set forth.

PAR. 8. The above alleged methods, acts and practices of the respondent are and have been in violation of the standard of fair competition for the Candy Manufacturing Industry of the United States. Such violation of such standard in the aforesaid transactions in interstate commerce and in other transactions which affect interstate commerce in the manner set forth in paragraph 6 of count 1 hereof, are in violation of Section 3 of the National Industrial Recovery Act and they are unfair methods of competition in commerce within the meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act as amended.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to Create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission issued and served a complaint in two counts upon the respondent, M. J. Holloway & Company, charging in count 1 of the aforesaid complaint that the said respondent had been and was using unfair methods of competition in commerce as "commerce" is defined in said Act of Congress and charging in count 2 of the aforesaid complaint that the said respondent had been and was using unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the Act of Congress approved June 16, 1933, known as the National Industrial Recovery Act, and thereafter respondent duly filed answer thereto. Testimony and evidence were received, duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission and subsequently the proceeding came regularly on for a final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, answer, testimony and evidence, briefs of counsel for the Commission and counsel for the respondent. Oral argument was waived and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this, its findings as to the facts as to count 1 of the aforesaid complaint and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, M. J. Holloway & Company, is a corporation organized and doing business under the laws of the State of Illinois, with its principal office and place of business in the city of Chicago, Ill. Respondent is now and for several years last past has been engaged in the manufacture of candy in Chicago, Ill., and in the sale and distribution of said candy to wholesale dealers and jobbers in the State of Illinois and other States of the United States. It causes said candy when sold to be shipped or transported from its principal place of business in the State of Illinois to purchasers thereof in Illinois and in the States of the United States other than the State of Illinois. In so carrying on said business, respondent is and has been engaged in interstate commerce and is and has been in active competition with other corporations and with partnerships and individuals engaged in the manufacture of candy and in the sale and distribution of the same in interstate commerce.

Par. 2. Among the candies manufactured and sold by respondent were several assortments of candy each composed of a number of pieces of caramel candies of uniform size, shape and quality, contained within a wrapper, together with a number of larger pieces of candy or packages of candy to be given as prizes to purchasers of said caramels of uniform size, shape and quality in the following manner:

The majority of the said caramel candies are of the same color throughout but a few of said caramels have centers of a different color. The color of the centers of these caramels is effectively concealed from the prospective purchasers by the wrapper in which they are contained until a selection or a purchase has been made and the wrapper removed. The said caramels of uniform size, shape and quality in said assortment retail at the price of one cent each but the purchasers who procure one of the said caramels having a center of a different color than the majority, are entitled to receive and are to be given free of charge one of the said larger pieces of candy or packages of candy. The aforesaid purchasers of said candies who procure a caramel having a center colored differently from the majority, are thus to procure one of the said larger pieces of candy or packages of candy wholly by lot or chance.

The respondent manufactures, sells and distributes several assortments involving the above lottery or chance feature. The pieces of candy of uniform size, shape and quality are generally 150 in number but, occasionally, vary a few pieces more or a few pieces less and the larger pieces of candy or packages of candy also vary in number in the several assortments, but the principle or sales plan is the same as to each of the said assortments.

Par. 3. Respondent also manufactures, sells and distributes several assortments of candy each of which is composed of a number of small pieces of candy together with a number of larger pieces of candy and a device commonly referred to as a push card or punch board, containing a definite number of pushes or punches. The candy contained in said assortment is sold or distributed in the following manner:

The push card or punch board is a piece of paper board having a definite number of partially perforated discs and concealed within each disc is a number. These numbers correspond to the number of discs there are on the board but they are not arranged consecutively. Such numbers are so concealed that they can not be ascertained until a push or selection has been made and the disc separated from the board. The push cards or punch boards bear legends giving prospective customers information as to which numbers concealed on the board receive one of the smaller pieces of candy and which numbers receive one of the larger pieces of candy. It is usual for the last push on a card to receive a prize in addition to the merchandise called for by the number obtained and the said push card, ordinarily, has a label informing the prospective purchaser as to what additional candy will be received for such last push. Sales are one cent each and purchasers procuring a number calling for one of the small pieces of candy receive the same and purchasers receiving a number calling for one of the larger pieces of candy for the purchase price of one cent is thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

Respondent distributes numerous assortments which involve the same principle or sales plan in the sale and distribution to the consuming public of said assortments. These assortments are described by respondent by various trade names and one of such assortments is “Holloway’s Big Sam”. The push card for the said assortment bears the following legend:

1¢ per sale HOLLOWAY’S BIG SAM 1¢ per sale

Notice—State, county, and city Officials—This is not a gambling device. It is used in this instance in advertising Holloway’s Candy Bars.

Nos. 1 to 25 receive Holloway bar.
Nos. 26 to 150 receive Holloway caramel.
Last push on this card will receive the large candy bar.

The fact as to whether a purchaser obtains a small caramel or a bar of candy (which bars are much larger than the caramels) for the purchase price of one cent, is thus determined wholly by lot or chance in the same manner as described above.

Par. 4. Another assortment which respondent manufactures, sells and distributes, is described by respondent as “Holloway’s Mystery Chest”. This assortment is composed of a number of small pieces of caramel candy together with a number of larger pieces of candy and a number of small toys or prizes and is distributed to purchasers thereof in the following manner:

The assortment is contained within a large box which is divided into a number of small compartments. Each compartment contains one of the small pieces of caramel candy or one of the larger pieces of candy and some of the compartments contain one of the toys or prizes. Over all of the separate compartments is fastened a sheet of paper so marked as to show each of the compartments but not the contents thereof. The purchaser selects the compartment desired and pushes or tears the paper covering therefrom and is entitled to receive the candy and toy or prize, if any, contained therein. The contents of each compartment retail at the price of one cent each and until a purchaser makes his selection and removes the paper cover from the compartment he does not know whether he will receive one of the small pieces of candy, one of the large pieces of candy or a small piece of candy and a toy for the price paid. The candy in said assortment is thus distributed to the consuming public wholly by lot or chance.

Para. 5. Another assortment which respondent manufactures, sells and distributes is known and described by respondent as "Game Of Skill" and is similar in all of its details to the assortments described in paragraph 2 hereof. The name "Game of Skill" appears on one end of the lid of the box in which said assortment is contained and on the top of the lid are the following legends.

The yellow core caramels in this box are larger in size than the other caramels. Therefore, a skillful person can detect these larger caramels.

When the lid is taken off the box and the assortment displayed to the consuming public, these legends are not seen ordinarily. The said assortment is composed of 150 pieces of wrapped caramel candies and 65 candy bars. Of the 150 wrapped caramels 85 are of the same color throughout and 65 have a yellow core or center. The pieces of caramel are each contained within a wrapper and are of the same size or so nearly the same size as to make it impossible, when contained within such wrapper, for the purchaser to distinguish the difference in the size thereof. In this connection the evidence discloses that the caramels with the yellow core and those with the plain centers are of the same material and from the same mix or batch of candy as those without the yellow core and that 31 of the caramels with the core weigh the same as 34 of the caramels without the core. The candy which was before the examiner at the time the evidence was being taken, could not, because of its very nature, be retained for permanent comparison as to the size but the weight, as above referred to, clearly discloses that there is only a very small difference, if any, in the size, both kinds of caramels being of the same shape. The purchaser who procures one of the caramels having a yellow core, receives as a prize one of the larger pieces of candy contained in said assortment and the wrapper around the pieces of caramel effectually conceals the color of the center from the prospective purchaser until a selection has been made and the wrapper removed. The said larger pieces of candy are thus distributed to the consuming public wholly by lot or chance.

Par. 6. Another assortment which respondent manufactures, sells, and distributes, is contained within two boxes, one box having assorted caramels, the majority of which have centers of the same color, but a small number of which have centers of a different color; the other box contains larger pieces or bars of candy and the number of bars therein is approximately the same as there are caramels with centers colored differently from the majority in the first box above mentioned, and while these two boxes are sometimes billed separately the respondent sells the same number of each to his customers, wholesale dealers, who in turn resell in the same manner to the retail dealers. The two boxes are so packed that they may be displayed by the retail dealers as a single assortment and the larger pieces or bars of candy are distributed as prizes to purchasers of the smaller caramels in the same manner as where they are packed in the same assortment and as described in paragraph 2 herein. The larger pieces or bars of candy are thus distributed to the purchasing public wholly by lot or chance and the respondent in so packing said assortment knows that the same may and will be used as a lottery or chance assortment when sold to the consuming public by the retail dealer.

Par. 7. The lottery, prize or draw packages described in paragraphs 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6 above, are generally referred to in the candy trade or industry as “break and take”, or “draw” packages. The packages or assortments of candy without the lottery, prize or draw features in connection with their resale to the public are generally referred to in the candy trade or industry as “straight goods”. These terms will be used hereafter in these findings to describe these respective types of candy.

Par. 8. Numerous retail dealers purchase the assortments described in paragraphs 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6 above, from wholesale dealers or jobbers who in turn have purchased said packages from respondent and such retail dealers display said assortments for sale to the public as packed by the respondent and the candy contained in said assortment is sold and distributed to the consuming public by lot or chance.
Par. 9. All sales made by respondent are absolute sales and respondent retains no control over the goods after they are delivered to the wholesale dealer or jobber. The assortments are assembled and packed in such manner that they can be displayed by the retail dealer for sale and distribution to the purchasing public, as above described, without alteration or rearrangement. An examination of the assortments of candy described in paragraphs 2, 3, 4, and 5 herein, as packed, assembled and sold by respondent shows that said assortments cannot be resold to the public by the retail dealers except as a lottery or gaming device, unless said retail dealers unwrap, unpack, disassemble or rearrange the said assortments.

In the sale and distribution to jobbers and wholesale dealers for resale to retail dealers, of assortments of candy, assembled and packed as described in paragraphs 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 herein, respondent has knowledge that said candy will be resold to the purchasing public by retail dealers, by lot or chance and it packs and assembles such candy in the way and manner described so that it may and shall be resold to the public by lot or chance by said retail dealers.

Par. 10. The sale and distribution of candy by the retail dealers by the methods described in these findings, is the sale and distribution of candy by lot or chance and constitutes a lottery or gaming device.

Competitors of respondent appeared as witnesses in this proceeding and testified, and the Commission finds as a fact that many competitors regard such method of sale and distribution as morally bad and encouraging gambling, especially among children; as injurious to the candy industry, because it results in the merchandising of a chance or lottery instead of candy; and as providing retail merchants with the means of violating the laws of the several States. Because of these reasons some competitors of respondent refuse to sell candy so packed and assembled that it can be resold to the public by lot or chance. These competitors are thereby put to a disadvantage in competing. Certain retailers who find that they can dispose of more candy by the "Break and Take" method, buy respondent's products and the products of others employing the same methods of sale, and thereby trade is diverted to respondent, and others using similar methods, from said competitors. Said competitors can compete on even terms only by giving the same or similar devices to retailers. This they are unwilling to do, and their sales of "Straight Goods" candy show a continued decrease.

sell and distribute candy which is sold by such methods, some competitors of respondent have begun the sale and distribution of candy for resale to the public by lot or chance. The use of such methods by respondent in the sale and distribution of its candy is prejudicial and injurious to the public and its competitors, and has resulted in the diversion of trade to respondent from its said competitors, and is a restraint upon and a detriment to the freedom of fair and legitimate competition in the candy industry.

Par. 11. The principal demand in the trade for the "Break and Take" candy comes from the small retailers. The stores of these small retailers are in many instances located near schools and attract the trade of the school children. The consumers or purchasers of the lottery or prize package candy are principally children, and because of the lottery or gambling feature connected with the "break and take" or "draw" package, and the possibility of becoming a winner, it has been observed that the children purchase them in preference to the "straight goods" candy when the two types of packages are displayed side by side.

Witnesses from several branches of the candy industry testified in this proceeding to the effect that children prefer to purchase the lottery or prize package candy because of the gambling feature connected with its sale. The sale and distribution of "break and take" or "draw" packages or assortments of candy or of candy which has connected with its sale to the public the means or opportunity of obtaining a prize or becoming a winner by lot or chance, teaches and encourages gambling among children, who comprise by far the largest class of purchasers and consumers of this type of candy.

Par. 12. The pieces of candy in the "break and take" packages of all manufacturers of that type of candy are either smaller in size than the corresponding pieces of "Straight Goods" candy or the quality of the candy in the "break and take" or "draw" packages is poorer than that in the "straight goods" assortments. It is necessary to make this difference between either the size of the individual pieces of candy or the quality of the candy in order to compensate for the value of the prizes or premiums which are distributed with the "break and take" or "draw" goods.

Par. 13. There are in the United States many manufacturers of candy who do not manufacture and sell lottery or prize assortments of candy and who sell their "straight goods" candy in interstate commerce in competition with the "break and take" or "draw" candy, and manufacturers of the "Straight Goods" type of candy have noted a marked decrease in the sales of their products whenever and wherever the lottery or prize candy has appeared in their markets. This decrease in the sales of “straight goods” candy is principally due to the gambling or lottery feature indicated with the “break and take” or “draw” candy.

Par. 14. In addition to the assortments described in paragraphs 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6, herein, the respondent manufactures candy which it sells to wholesalers and jobbers without any lottery or chance features.

Par. 15. The sale and distribution of candy by lot or chance is against the public policy of many of the States of the United States and some of said States have laws making the operating of lotteries and gambling devices penal offenses.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, M. J. Holloway and Company, under the conditions and circumstances set forth in the foregoing findings of fact are all to the prejudice of the public and respondent’s competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and constitute violations of Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST, ETC.

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission (in two counts, count 1 thereof charging a violation of Section 5 of An Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”, and count 2 thereof charging a violation of the National Industrial Recovery Act), the answer of the respondent, the testimony taken and the briefs filed and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusions that as to count 1, the respondent has violated the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”—

It is hereby ordered, As to count 1 of the aforesaid complaint, that the respondent, M. J. Holloway & Company, its officers, directors, agents, representatives and employees, in the manufacture, sale and distribution in interstate commerce, of candy and candy products, do cease and desist from:

(1) Selling and distributing to jobbers and wholesale dealers for resale to retail dealers, candy so packed and assembled that sales of such candy to the general public are to be made or may be made by means of a lottery, gaming device or gift enterprise.

(2) Supplying to or placing in the hands of wholesale dealers and jobbers, packages or assortments of candy which are used or may be used without alteration or rearrangement of the contents of such packages or assortments, to conduct a lottery, gaming device or gift enterprise in the sale or distribution of the candy or candy products contained in said assortment to the public.

(3) Packing or assembling in the same package or assortment of candy for sale to the public at retail, pieces of candy of uniform size, shape, and quality, having centers of a different color, together with larger pieces of candy, which said larger pieces of candy are to be given as prizes to the purchaser procuring a piece of candy with a center of a particular color.

(4) Supplying to or placing in the hands of wholesale dealers and jobbers assortments of candy together with a device commonly called a push card or punch board, for use or which may be used in distributing or selling said candy to the public at retail.

(5) Furnishing to wholesale dealers and jobbers a device commonly called a push card or punch board either with packages or assortments of candy or candy products or separately, bearing a legend or legends or statements informing the purchaser that the candy or candy products are being sold to the public by lot or chance or in accordance with a sales plan which constitutes a lottery, gaming device or gift enterprise.

It is further ordered, That respondent, M. J. Holloway & Company, within 30 days after the service upon it of this order, shall file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with the order to cease and desist hereinabove set forth.

And it is hereby further ordered, That, by reason of the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in A. L. A. Shechter Poultry Corporation v. United States of America, decided May 27, 1935, count 2 of the complaint in this proceeding be and the same hereby is dismissed.

MEMORANDA

The Commission, as of the same date, promulgated findings and orders in four other candy lottery cases. Except for the varying allegations describing the different respondents, and the nature of the various lottery assortments used, the findings appear to be similar to those in the principal case above, as do the orders, except in so far as they necessarily reflect the varying nature of the particular assortments used. As in the principal case, the complaints are in two counts, one challenging the use of said acts and practices as violating Section 5, and the other challenging said acts and practices as also in violation of Section 3 of the National Industrial Recovery Act in that they violate the code of fair competition for the candy manufacturing industry. Orders to cease and desist in the respective cases include a paragraph dismissing the second count, on account of the decision of the Supreme Court in the Schechter case on May 27, 1935, 295 U. S. 495. The four cases referred to follow, there being set forth only those varying paragraphs, as here-inbefore explained, which deal with the particular respondent and the particular form of the chance or lottery assortment or assort­ments employed:

Southern Premium Manufacturing Co., in its own name and right and trading as Ryan Candy Co. Docket 2270. Complaint, December 20, 1934. Decision, June 25, 1935.1

Paragraph 1. The respondent, Southern Premium Manufacturing Company, is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Texas with its principal office and place of business in the city of Dallas, Tex. Respondent is now and for several years last past has been engaged in the manufacture of candy in Dallas, Tex., and in the sale and distribution of said candy to retail and wholesale dealers and jobbers in the State of Texas and other States of the United States. It causes said candy when sold to be shipped or transported from its principal place of business in the State of Texas to purchasers thereof in Texas and in the States of the United States other than the State of Texas. In carrying on its said business respondent has on numerous occasions made use of the trade name, Ryan Candy Company, and its merchandise is sometimes sold and advertised in its own name, Southern Premium Manufacturing Company, and sometimes sold and advertised in the trade name, Ryan Candy Company. In so carrying on said business, respondent is and has been engaged in interstate commerce and is and has been in active competition with other corporations and with partnerships and individuals

1 In addition to the paragraphs 1 to 4, set forth describing the respondent and the nature of the assortments employed by it, the findings in this particular case contain a paragraph which sets forth that—

At or about the time the complaint was issued in this case, but subsequent to the begin­ning of the investigation as to the acts and practices of respondent, the respondent endeavored to continue the sales of the assortments as described in paragraph 2 to the State of Texas, but occasionally sales of such assortments are made in States other than the State of Texas. The assortments described in paragraph 3 above are distributed generally to respondent's customers located throughout the United States. The assort­ments described in paragraph 4 above are principally to customers within the State of Texas but respondent occasionally sells the same to customers in other States than the State of Texas.
engaged in the manufacture of candy and in the sale and distribution of the same in interstate commerce.

Par. 2. Among the candies manufactured and sold by respondent were several assortments of candy each composed of a number of pieces of candy of uniform size, shape and quality together with a number of larger pieces of candy or smaller boxes of candy to be given as prizes to purchasers of said candies of uniform size, shape and quality, in the following manner:

The majority of said pieces of candies of uniform size, shape and quality have centers of the same color, but a small number of said candies have centers of a different color. The color of the centers of these candies is effectively concealed from the prospective purchasers until a purchase or selection has been made and the candy broken open. The said candies of uniform size, shape and quality in said assortments retail at one cent each, but the purchasers who procure one of said candies having a center of a different color than the majority of said candies, are entitled to receive, and are to be given free of charge one of the said larger pieces or small boxes of candy heretofore referred to. The purchaser of the last piece of candy in said assortment is entitled to receive and is to be given free of charge a larger piece of candy or a small box of candy. The aforesaid purchasers of said candy who procure a candy having a center colored differently from the majority of said pieces of candy thus procure one of the said larger pieces or small boxes of candy wholly by lot or chance.

Respondent manufactures, sells and distributes several assortments involving the above lottery or chance feature. The pieces of candy of uniform size, shape and quality are generally 150 in number, but occasionally vary a few pieces more or a few pieces less, and the prizes are generally larger pieces of candy or small boxes of candy, but occasionally other articles of merchandise are included as prizes, however, the principle or sales plan is the same as to each of the said assortments.

Par. 3. Respondent also manufactures, sells and distributes several assortments of candy, each of which is composed of a number of small pieces of candy together with a number of larger pieces of candy and a device commonly referred to as a push card or punch board containing a definite number of pushes or punches. The candy contained in said assortments is sold or distributed in the following manner:

The push card or punch board is a piece of paper board having a definite number of partially perforated discs and concealed within each disc is a number. These numbers correspond to the number of discs there are on the board but they are not arranged consecutively.
Such numbers are so concealed that they cannot be ascertained until a push or selection has been made and the disc separated from the board. The push cards or punch boards bear legends giving prospective customers information as to which numbers concealed on the board receive one of the small pieces of candy and which numbers receive one of the larger pieces of candy. It is usual for the last push on a card to receive a prize in addition to the merchandise called for by the number obtained and the said push card, ordinarily, has a label informing the prospective purchaser as to what additional candy will be received for such last push. Sales are one cent each and purchasers procuring a number calling for one of the small pieces of candy receive the same and purchasers receiving a number calling for one of the larger pieces of candy receive the same without payment of additional money. The fact as to whether a purchaser obtains one of the small pieces of candy or one of the larger pieces of candy for the purchase price of one cent is thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

Respondent distributes numerous assortments which are slightly different in detail but which involve the same principle or sales plan in the sale and distribution to the consuming public of said assortments. One of such assortments is described by respondent as “Pop Deal” and the push card or punch board in said assortment bears the following legends:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>1¢ Piece candy with each sale</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1¢ Sale</td>

<tr>
<td>Nos. 10, 20, 30, 40, 50, 60, 70, 80, 90, 100, 110, 120, 130, 140, 150, 5, 15, 25, 35, 45, 55, 65, 75, 85, 95, receive bar candy. All other numbers receive 1¢ piece candy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Last sale receives large prize</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>All numbers that end in 5 and 0 win.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

The fact as to whether a purchaser receives a small piece of candy or a bar of candy or the large prize is thus determined wholly by lot or chance in the same manner as described above.

Par. 4. The respondent also sells and distributes to concessionaires operating with road shows, medicine shows, tent shows, circuses and carnivals, an assortment of candy composed of a number of small boxes of candy each containing five pieces of candy and a prize. The small boxes of candy retail at the price of ten cents each and the prizes in said boxes consist of various articles of merchandise of varying value. The particular prize or the value thereof cannot be ascertained by the ultimate purchaser until a selection or purchase has been made and the box broken open. The said candy is thus sold by means of a lottery or gift enterprise.

Paragraph 1. Respondent, H. I. Sifers is an individual doing business under the trade name Sifers Confection Company and has his principal office and place of business in the city of Kansas City, State of Missouri. Respondent is now and for several years last past has been engaged in the manufacture of candy in Kansas City, Missouri, and in the sale and distribution of said candy to wholesale dealers and jobbers in the State of Missouri and in other States of the United States. He causes said candy when sold to be shipped and transported from his principal place of business in the State of Missouri to purchasers thereof in Missouri and in the states of the United States other than the State of Missouri. In so carrying on said business, respondent is and has been engaged in interstate commerce and is and has been in active competition with other individuals and with corporations and partnerships engaged in the manufacture of candy and in the sale and distribution of same in interstate commerce.

Paragraph 2. Among the candies which respondent manufactures, sells and distributes are several assortments of candy, each of which is composed of a number of bars of candy together with a box of candy and device commonly referred to as a push card or punch board containing a definite number of pushes or punches. The candy contained in said assortments is sold or distributed in the following manner:

The push card or punch board is a piece of paper board having a definite number of partially perforated discs and concealed within each disc is a number. These numbers correspond to the number of discs there are on the board but they are not arranged consecutively. Such numbers are so concealed that they cannot be ascertained until a push or selection has been made and the disc separated from the board. The push cards or punch boards bear legends giving prospective customers information as to which numbers concealed on the board entitled the customer to one bar of candy and which numbers entitle the customer to more than one bar of candy and the number of such bars. The last push or punch on a board entitles the customer to receive the box of candy contained in said assortments. The sales are five cents each and purchasers procuring a number calling for one of the bars of candy received the same and purchasers receiving a number calling for more than one bar of candy are entitled to receive such bars without payment of additional money. The fact as to whether a purchaser obtains one or several of the bars of candy for the purchase price of five cents is thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

Respondent distributes numerous assortments which involve the same principle or sales plan in the sale and distribution to the consuming public of said assortments. These assortments are described by respondent by various trade names and one of such assortments is Sifers Valomilk Dips. The push card or punch board for said assortment bears the following legend:

Number 13 Receives FOUR 5¢ VALOMILK DIPS
Number 23 Receives THREE 5¢ VALOMILK DIPS Numbers 5-10-20-25-30-40-50-60 each receive TWO 5¢ VALOMILK DIPS

All other numbers receive a 5¢ VALOMILK DIP except the last number pushed which receives LARGE BOX HARRY SIFERS HAND ROLLED CHOCOLATES.

Notice to State, County, and City Officials: THIS IS NOT A GAMBLING DEVICE but an Advertising Medium. The Punches in this advertisement are sold for 5¢ each and will be accepted by the merchant for a Sifers 5¢ Valomilk Dip. Some numbers will receive extra Valomilk Dips. The last number punched will receive a Box of Harry Sifers Hand Rolled Chocolates.

The fact as to whether a purchaser obtains one, two, three or four bars of candy for the purchase price of five cents is thus determined wholly by lot or chance in the same manner as above described.

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Queen Anne Candy Company, is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Indiana with its principal office and place of business in the city of Hammond, Ind. Respondent is now and for several years last past has been engaged in the manufacture of candy in Hammond, Ind., and in the sale and distribution of said candy to wholesale dealers and jobbers in the State of Indiana and other States of the United States. It causes said candy when sold to be shipped and transported from its principal place of business in the State of Indiana to purchasers thereof in Indiana and in the States of the United States other than the State of Indiana. In so carrying on said business, respondent is and has been engaged in interstate commerce and is and has been in active competition with other corporations and with partnerships and individuals engaged in the manufacture of candy and in the sale and distribution of the same in interstate commerce.
Par. 2. Among the candies manufactured and sold by respondent are several assortments of candy, each composed of a number of pieces of candy of uniform size, shape and quality, together with a number of larger pieces of candy to be given as prizes to purchasers of said candies of uniform size, shape and quality:

The majority of said pieces of candy of uniform size, shape, and quality in said assortments have centers of the same color but a small number of said candies have centers of a different color. The color of the centers of these candies is effectively concealed from the prospective purchasers until a purchase or selection has been made and the candy broken open. The said candies of uniform size, shape, and quality in said assortments retail at one cent each but the purchasers who procure one of the said candies having a center of a different color than the majority of said candies, are entitled to receive and are to be given free of charge one of the said larger pieces of candy heretofore referred to. The aforesaid purchasers of said candy who procure a candy having a center colored differently from the majority of said pieces of candy thus procure one of the said larger pieces of candy wholly by lot or chance.

The respondent manufactures, sells, and distributes several assortments involving the above lottery or chance feature. The pieces of candy of uniform size, shape, and quality are generally 150 in number but occasionally vary a few pieces more or a few pieces less, and the larger pieces of candy also vary in number in the several assortments, but the principle or sales plan is the same as to each of the said assortments.

Par. 3. Respondent also manufactures, sells, and distributes several assortments of candy, each of which is composed of a number of bars of candy together with a number of packages of candy and a device commonly referred to as a "push card" or "punch board", containing a definite number of "pushes" or "punches". The candy contained in said assortments is sold or distributed in the following manner:

The push card or punch board is a piece of paper board having a definite number of partially perforated disks, and concealed in each disk is a legend. Such legends are so concealed that they cannot be ascertained until a push or selection has been made and the disk separated from the board. The push cards or punch boards bear legends on the front thereof, giving prospective customers information as to which legends on the disks concealed on the board receive bars of candy and how many, and which receive the small packages of candy. It is usual for the last punch on a board to receive a prize in addition to the merchandise called for by the legend on the disk.
Sales are five cents each and purchasers procuring a legend calling for one bar of candy receive the same, and purchasers receiving a legend calling for more than one bar of candy or for one of the small packages of candy receive the same without payment of additional money. The fact as to whether a purchaser obtains one bar of candy or several bars or one of the small packages of candy for the purchase price of five cents, is thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

Respondent distributes numerous assortments which involve the same principle or sales plan in the sale and distribution to the consuming public of said assortments, and these assortments are composed of different types of candy and some of them have numbers on the push cards or punch boards instead of legends, and on some of the boards the purchasers who procure numbers or legends which do not call for a prize receive nothing but the privilege of pushing or punching the number from the board for his money, while other purchasers receive bars or packages of candy of varying value for their purchase. These assortments are described by respondent by various trade names. One of such assortments is “Assortment No. 126” which respondent describes as “Football”. The push card or punch board in said assortment bears the following legends:

Notice: This is not a Gambling device. Every punch receives full value. Extra awards for advertising.

The fact as to whether a purchaser receives a fancy package, 3 bars of candy, 2 bars of candy, or 1 bar of candy for the purchase price of 5 cents is thus determined wholly by lot or chance in the same manner as described above.

PAR. 4. Another assortment which respondent manufactures, sells and distributes is contained within two boxes, one box having pieces of candy of uniform size, shape and quality, the majority of which have centers of the same color but a small number of which have centers of a different color. The other box contains larger pieces or bars of candy and the number of bars is approximately the same as there are pieces of candy with centers colored differently from the majority in the first box above mentioned and the two boxes are so packed that they may be displayed by the retail dealers as a single assortment and the larger pieces or bars of candy are distributed as prizes to purchasers of the smaller pieces of candy in the same manner as where they are packed in the same assortment and as described in paragraph 2 herein. Larger pieces or bars of candy are thus distributed to the purchasing public wholly by lot or chance and the respondent in so packing said assortment knows that the same may and will be used as a lottery or chance assortment when sold by the retail dealer.

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Magic City Candy Company, is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Alabama with its principal office and place of business located in the city of Birmingham, Ala. Respondent is now and for several years last past has been engaged in the manufacture of candy in Birmingham, Ala., and in the sale and distribution of said candy to wholesale dealers and jobbers in the State of Alabama and other States of the United States. It causes said candy when sold to be shipped or transported from its principal place of business in the State of Alabama to purchasers thereof in Alabama and in the States of the United States other than the State of Alabama. In carrying on said business, respondent is and has been engaged in interstate commerce and is and has been in active competition with other corporations and with partnerships and individuals engaged in the manufacture of candy and in the sale and distribution of the same in interstate commerce.

Par. 2. Among the candies manufactured and sold by the respondent was an assortment of candy consisting of 48 candy bars of uniform quality, size and shape. Each of said candy bars was contained within a wrapper and within each of said wrappers was a slip of paper which had printed thereon certain legends. These legends were that the bar was free or that the retail price of the bar was 1 cent or 2 cents or 3 cents, and these were the prices or the conditions on which said bar of candy was sold to the consumer. The said printed slips were effectively concealed from the prospective purchaser until a selection had been made and the wrapper removed. The ultimate consumers thus procured bars of candy of uniform quality, size and shape free of charge or at a price of 1 cent, 2 cents or 3 cents, the same being determined wholly by lot or chance.

The respondent enclosed with each of said assortments a display card for use by the retail dealer, which display card bore legends or statements informing the purchasing public that the said assortment was being sold in accordance with the sales plan above described.

Par. 3. Another assortment manufactured, sold and distributed by respondent was composed of a number of small pieces of candy together with a number of larger pieces of candy and a small package of candy, and also a device commonly referred to as a push card or punch board containing a definite number of pushes or punches. The candy contained in said assortment was sold or distributed in the following manner:

The push card or punch board is a piece of paper board having a definite number of partially perforated discs (in this instance, 150) and concealed within each disc is a number. These numbers correspond to the number of discs there are on the board but they are not arranged consecutively. Such numbers are so concealed that they cannot be ascertained until a selection has been made and the disc separated from the board. The push card or punch board bears legends giving prospective customers information as to which numbers concealed on the board receive one of the small pieces of candy and which numbers receive one of the larger pieces of candy. The last push or punch receives the small package of candy. Sales are 1 cent each and purchasers procuring a number calling for one of the small pieces of candy receive the same and purchasers receiving a number calling for one of the larger pieces of candy receive the same without payment of additional money. The fact as to whether a purchaser obtains one of the small pieces of candy or one of the larger pieces of candy for the purchase price of 1 cent is thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

The legends on the push card or punch board furnished with the above described assortment are as follows:

No blanks!
Nos. 1 to 120, Inclusive, receive one chocolate bite.
Nos. 121 to 150, Inclusive, receive an advertising bar.

THE ASSORTED BOX

Par. 4. Another assortment distributed by respondent was composed of a number of candy bars together with a device commonly referred to as a pull card. The candy contained in said assortment was sold or distributed in the following manner:
The pull card is a piece of paper board having a number of gummed discs partially pasted thereon, and under each of these partially pasted discs is a printed slip bearing a legend. The legends on said printed slips vary. The said pull card has printed at the top thereof information as to the number of candy bars to which the customer is entitled for the particular legend procured. Sales are 5 cents each and all purchasers receive one bar of candy, but the purchaser obtaining certain legends receives two candy bars, some four candy bars and some ten candy bars, depending upon the legend on the printed slip. The pull card with this assortment has the following information printed at the top thereof (Commission's Exhibit No. 5):

Ordered, respondent waiving testimony or hearing, and submitting proceeding to Commission, on complaint, answer, and amended answer, that said respondent, in connection with the sale and distribution in interstate commerce of automobile replacement parts and accessories, do cease and desist from directly or indirectly using or causing to be used the word "Manufacturing" or the abbreviation "Mfg." in connection or in conjunction with any word or words or in any way as a trade name or designation for its products or for the products of others or in advertising said products or in any way which may have the capacity and tendency to confuse, mislead or deceive purchasers into the belief that said products are made or manufactured by said respondent, when such is not the fact.

Mr. John W. Hi1ldrop for the Commission.
Butler, Pope, Ballard & Elting, of Chicago, Ill., for respondent.

Complaint

Paragraph 1. Universal Parts Mfg. Corporation is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Illinois, with its principal place of business located at Chicago in the State of Illinois, and is now and for more than one year last past has been engaged in the sale of automobile replacement parts and accessories, and in the distribution of said products in commerce between and among various States of the United States; causing said products, when sold, to be shipped from its place of business in the State of Illinois to purchasers thereof located in various of the States of the United States of America other than the State of Illinois. In the course and conduct of its business aforesaid, respondent, Universal Parts Mfg. Corporation has been at all times herein mentioned in substantial competition with other corporations and with individuals, firms, partnerships, and associations engaged in the sale and distribution of similar products between and among the various States of the United States.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of its business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent Universal Parts Mfg. Corporation has adopted and still uses as and for a corporate and trade name under which to carry on its said business the words “Universal Parts Mfg. Corporation”, and has regularly used, displayed, and featured corporate and trade name, including the abbreviation “mfg.” for the word “manufacturing”, in advertisements and advertising matter widely distributed in soliciting the sale of and selling its products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States; when in truth and in fact the said products have not been and are not manufactured by the said Universal Parts Mfg. Corporation, and when in truth and in fact the said Universal Parts Mfg. Corporation has not owned, operated, or controlled and does not own, operate, or control any foundry, shop, or factory wherein said products have been or are manufactured or fabricated; and when in truth and in fact the products in which respondent has dealt and still deals have been and are manufactured in foundries, shops, and factories, none of which has been or is owned, operated, or controlled by respondent.

Par. 3. There is and has been a preference on the part of a large portion of the buying public, for automobile replacement parts and accessories bought directly from the manufacturers thereof, which preference is based upon the understanding and belief that by dealing directly with a manufacturer, a middleman’s profit is saved to the purchaser, and that by dealing directly with a manufacturer a better grade of goods is obtained in addition to a saving in price.

Par. 4. The false and misleading statements and representations made by respondent as set out in paragraph 2 hereof have had and still have the capacity and tendency to and do mislead and deceive the buying public into the belief that such statements and representations are true and that by purchasing the aforesaid products from respondent the said purchasing public is dealing directly with the manufacturer thereof and to purchase from respondent in such beliefs; and said statements and representations of respondent have had and still have the capacity and tendency to, and do, unfairly divert trade to respondent from the competitors of respondent who actually manufacture and sell in interstate commerce like and similar products to those sold and distributed by respondent, and also those competitors of respondent who do not manufacture similar and like products to those of respondent but who do not use the words “manu­facturing” or “mfg.” as a part of their corporate name or in advertising and describing such products and who truthfully advertise and describe the same. Thereby substantial injury is done by respondent to substantial competition in interstate commerce.

Par. 5. The acts and practices heretofore set forth in paragraph 2 hereof are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent’s competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes.”

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding coming on for final hearing by the Federal Trade Commission upon the record including the complaint and respondent’s answer and amended answer thereto, in which amended answer, filed June 14, 1935, respondent waived the taking of testimony or any hearing in the cause and submits the proceeding to the Commission on the complaint and on the amended and original answer filed therein; the Commission having duly considered the matter and being fully advised in the premises—

It is now ordered, That the respondent, Universal Parts Mfg. Corporation, in connection with the sale and distribution in interstate commerce of automobile replacement parts and accessories, do cease and desist from directly or indirectly using or causing to be used the word “Manufacturing” or the abbreviation “Mfg.” in connection or in conjunction with any word or words or in any way as a trade name or designation for its products or for the products of others or in advertising said products or in any way which may have the capacity and tendency to confuse, mislead, or deceive purchasers into the belief that said products are made or manufactured by said respondent, when such is not the fact.¹

It is further ordered, That the respondent, Universal Parts Mfg. Corporation, shall within 30 days after the service upon it of a copy of this order, file with the Federal Trade Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with the order to cease and desist hereinabove set forth.

Where a corporation engaged in the manufacture and sale of candy, including break-and-take assortments composed of candy bars of uniform quality, size and shape, and a number of larger pieces, together with push cards or punch boards through use of which it was determined, in accordance with explanatory legends thereon set forth and the chance number pushed or punched thereon, at a cost of five cents a punch, whether one or two bars of candy or one of the larger pieces should be received by the person making such chance selection, with the last remaining number also entitling the person punching the same to a large piece—

Sold said assortments and push cards or punch boards to retail and wholesale dealers and jobbers, so assembled and packed that they could be displayed for sale and distribution to the purchasing public by lot or chance, with knowledge and intent that they would and should thus be resold; in competition with concerns who regard such a method of sale and distribution as morally bad and one which encourages gambling, and especially among children, and as injurious to the industry in merchandising a chance or lottery rather than candy, and providing retailers with the means of violating the laws of the several States, and who refuse to sell candy so packed and assembled that it can be resold to the public by lot or chance;

With the result of putting at a disadvantage, by reason of their said refusal to adopt such practices, said competitors, who can compete on even terms only through following the same to meet the demand and preference for such candy from certain dealers and small retailers, chiefly, and that of the children from the frequently nearby schools, who purchase said candy by reason of the gambling feature connected therewith, in preference to the so-called "straight goods", and who constitute by far the largest class of purchasers and consumers thereof, and who supply the principal demand thereof, some competitors began the sale and distribution of candy for resale to the public by lot or chance, to meet the constant demand and preference for candy thus sold, trade was diverted to said individual from competitors declining to follow such a practice, freedom of fair and legitimate competition in the industry concerned was restrained and harmed, sales of those dealing in the "straight goods" products exclusively were markedly decreased whenever and wherever the competition of the break-and-take assortments, with their necessarily smaller pieces or inferior quality, was encountered, by reason, principally, of the gambling or lottery feature connected with the latter, gambling among children was taught and encouraged, and the public policy of many of the States, some of which have laws making the operation of lotteries and gambling devices penal offenses, was violated:
Held, That such acts and practices, under the conditions and circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

COMPLAINT

Paragraph 1. Respondent is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Illinois, with its principal office and place of business in the city of Moline, State of Illinois. Respondent, for more than three years last past, has been engaged in the manufacture of candy and in the sale and distribution thereof to wholesale dealers and jobbers and to retail dealers located at points in the various States of the United States, and causes said products when so sold to be transported from its principal place of business in the city of Moline, Ill., to purchasers thereof in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, at their respective places of business, and there is now and has been for more than three years last past a course of trade and commerce by the said respond-
In the course and conduct of the said business, respondent is in competition with other corporations, individuals, and partnerships engaged in the manufacture of candy and in the sale and distribution thereof in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and within the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its business as described in paragraph 1 herein, respondent has sold to wholesale dealers and jobbers and to retail dealers certain packages and assortments of candy so packed and assembled as to involve the use of a lottery scheme when sold and distributed to the consumers thereof.

One of said assortments is composed of a number of bars of candy together with a device commonly referred to as a push card. The bars of candy contained in said assortment are to be given to purchasers of pushes from said card in the following manner:

Pushes from said card are five cents each and when a push is made a number is disclosed. The card bears a statement or statements informing the prospective customer as to which numbers receive bars of candy and the number of such bars. All purchasers of pushes from said card receive one bar of candy but certain pushes, depending upon the number printed thereon, entitle the purchaser to additional bars of candy. The purchaser of the last punch on said card is entitled to receive a larger bar of candy. The numbers on said card are effectively concealed from the purchaser or prospective purchaser until a push or selection has been made and the particular push separated from the card. The candy contained in said assortment is thus distributed to purchasers of pushes from said card wholly by lot or chance.

PAR. 3. The wholesale dealers and jobbers to whom respondent sells its assortments, resell said assortments of candy to retail dealers and said retail dealers and the retail dealers to whom respondent sells direct, expose said assortments for sale in connection with the aforesaid push cards and sell said candies to the purchasing public in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of its products in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth, as a means of inducing purchasers thereof to purchase respondent's said product in preference to candies offered for sale and sold by its competitors.
Complaint 21 F.T.C.

Par. 4. The sale of said candy to the purchasing public as above alleged involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure such additional bars of candy in the manner alleged. Such game of chance and the sale along with the sale of such candy of such chance to procure such additional bars of candy in the manner alleged are contrary to the established public policy of the several States of the United States and the District of Columbia and of the Government of the United States, and in many of the States of the United States are contrary to local criminal statutes.

By reason of the said facts, many persons, firms and corporations who make and sell candy in competition with respondent as above alleged are unwilling to offer for sale or sell candies so packed and assembled as above alleged, or otherwise arranged and packed for sale to the purchasing public so as to involve a game of chance, or the sale with such candy of a chance to procure larger or additional pieces of candy by chance; and such competitors refrain therefrom.

Par. 5. Many dealers in and ultimate purchasers of candies are attracted by respondent's said method and manner of packing said candy and by the element of chance involved in the sale thereof in the manner above described, and are thereby induced to purchase said candy so packed and sold by respondent in preference to candies offered for sale and sold by competitors of the respondent who do not use the same or an equivalent method. Many dealers in candies are induced to purchase said candies so offered for sale and sold by respondent in preference to all others because said ultimate purchasers thereof give preference to respondent's said candies on account of said game of chance so involved in the sale thereof.

Par. 6. The use of said method by respondent has the tendency and capacity unfairly, and because of said game of chance alone, to divert to respondent trade and custom from its competitors who do not use the same or an equivalent method; to exclude from said candy trade all competitors who are unwilling to and do not use the same or an equivalent method; to lessen competition in said candy trade, and to tend to create a monopoly of said candy trade in respondent and such other distributors of candy as use the same or an equivalent method, and to deprive the purchasing public of the benefit of free competition in said candy trade. The use of said method by respondent has the tendency and capacity unfairly to eliminate from said candy trade all actual competitors, and to exclude therefrom all potential competitors, who do not adopt and use said method or an equivalent method that is contrary to public policy and to criminal statutes as above alleged. Many of said competitors of respondent are unwilling to adopt and use said method, or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance, because such methods are contrary to public policy or to the criminal statutes of certain of the States of the United States, or because they are of the opinion that such methods are detrimental to public morals and to the morals of the purchasers of said candy, or because of any or all of such reasons.

Par. 7. The aforementioned method, acts and practices of the respondent are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors as hereinabove alleged. Said method, acts and practices constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission issued and served a complaint in two counts upon the respondent, Meadow Brook Candy Company, charging in count 1 of the aforesaid complaint that the said respondent had been and was using unfair methods of competition in commerce as "commerce" is defined in said act of Congress and charging in count 2 of the aforesaid complaint that the said respondent had been and was using unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the Act of Congress approved June 16, 1933, known as the National Industrial Recovery Act, and thereafter respondent duly filed answer thereto. Testimony and evidence were received, duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission and subsequently the proceeding came regularly on for a final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, answer, testimony and evidence and brief of counsel for the Commission. No brief was filed on behalf of respondent and oral argument was not requested. The Commission having duly considered the matter and being fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this, its findings as to the facts as to count 1 of the aforesaid complaint and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. The respondent, Meadow Brook Candy Company, is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Illinois with its principal office and place of business located in the city of Moline, Ill. Respondent is now and for several years last past has been engaged in the manufacture of candy in Moline, Ill., and in the sale and distribution of said candy to retail and wholesale dealers and jobbers in the State of Illinois and other States of the United States. It causes said candy when sold to be shipped or transported from its principal place of business in the State of Illinois to purchasers thereof in Illinois and in the States of the United States other than the State of Illinois. In carrying on said business, respondent is and has been in active competition with other corporations and with partnerships and individuals engaged in the manufacture of candy and in the sale and distribution of the same in interstate commerce.

Par. 2. Among the candies manufactured and sold by respondent was an assortment of candy consisting of a number of candy bars of uniform quality, size and shape, together with a number of larger pieces of candy and a device commonly referred to as a push card or punch board containing a definite number of pushes or punches. The candy contained in said assortment was sold or distributed in the following manner:

The push card or punch board is a piece of paper board having a definite number of partially perforated discs (in this instance, 30) and concealed within each disc is a number. These numbers correspond to the number of discs there are on the board, but they are not arranged consecutively. Said numbers are so concealed that they cannot be ascertained until a selection has been made and the disc separated from the board. The push card or punch board bears legends giving prospective customers information as to which numbers concealed on the board receive only one bar of candy and which numbers receive two bars of candy, and which numbers receive one of the larger pieces of candy. Sales are 5 cents each, but the fact as to whether the purchaser obtains one or two bars of candy or one of the larger pieces of candy for the purchase price of 5 cents is thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

<thead>
<tr>
<th>5¢</th>
<th>ALL WINNERS</th>
<th>5¢</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>#30-37 Deal</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>All numbers ending in 0 or 5 receive two bars.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Numbers 18-28-33 receive LARGE LOAF.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>LAST PUNCH ON CARD RECEIVES LARGE LOAF</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ALL OTHER NUMBERS RECEIVE A BAR</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr> </tbody>

Par. 3. The respondent discontinued the manufacture, distribution and sale of the assortment described in paragraph 2 above, on or before July 1, 1934.
The respondent, during the years 1932, 1933, and the early part of 1934, manufactured, sold and distributed various assortments involving the sale of candy by lot or chance, but the manufacture, sale and distribution of all such assortments, including the one described in paragraph 2 above, were discontinued shortly prior to July 1, 1934.

Par. 4. Lottery, prize, or draw packages similar to the one described in paragraph 2 above are generally referred to in the candy trade or industry as “break and take” or “draw” packages. The packages or assortments of candy without the lottery, prize or draw features in connection with their resale to the public are generally referred to in the candy trade or industry as “straight goods.” These terms will be used hereafter in these findings to describe these respective types of candy.

Par. 5. Numerous retail dealers purchased the assortment described in paragraph 2 above, either from respondent or from wholesale dealers or jobbers who in turn had purchased said assortment from respondent, and such retail dealers displayed said assortment for sale to the public as packed by the respondent and the candy contained in said assortment was sold and distributed to the consuming public by lot or chance.

Par. 6. All sales made by respondent are absolute sales and respondent retains no control over the goods after they are delivered to the dealer. The assortment was assembled and packed in such manner that it could be displayed by the retail dealer for sale and distribution to the purchasing public, as above described, without alteration or rearrangement.

In the sale and distribution to retail dealers and jobbers and wholesale dealers for resale to retail dealers of an assortment of candy assembled and packed as described in paragraph 2 herein, respondent had knowledge that said candy would be resold to the purchasing public by retail dealers by lot or chance, and it packed and assembled such candy in the way and manner described so that it might be and should be resold to the public by lot or chance, by said retail dealers.

Par. 7. The sale and distribution of candy, by the retail dealers by the method described in these findings, is the sale and distribution of candy by lot or chance and constitutes a lottery or gaming device.

Competitors of respondent appeared as witnesses in this proceeding and testified, and the Commission finds as a fact that many competitors regard such method of sale and distribution as morally bad and encouraging gambling, especially among children; as injurious to the candy industry, because it results in the merchandising of a chance or lottery instead of candy; and as providing retail merchants with the means of violating the laws of the several States. Because of these reasons some competitors of respondent refuse to sell candy so packed and assembled that it can be resold to the public by lot or chance. These competitors are thereby put to a disadvantage in competing. Certain retailers who find that they can dispose of more candy by the "break and take" method, buy respondent's products and the products of others, employing the same methods of sale, and thereby trade is diverted to respondent, and others using similar methods, from said competitors. Said competitors can compete on even terms only by giving the same or similar devices to retailers. This they are unwilling to do; and their sales of "straight goods" candy show a continued decrease.

There is a constant demand for candy which is sold by lot or chance and in order to meet the competition of manufacturers who sell and distribute candy which is sold by such methods, some competitors of respondent have begun the sale and distribution of candy for resale to the public by lot or chance. The use of such method by respondent in the sale and distribution of its candy is prejudicial and injurious to the public and its competitors, and has resulted in the diversion of trade to respondent from its said competitors, and is a restraint upon and a detriment to the freedom of fair and legitimate competition in the candy industry.

Par. 8. The principal demand in the trade for the "break and take" or "draw" candy comes from the small retailers. The stores of these small retailers are in many instances located near schools and attract the trade of the school children. The consumers or purchasers of the lottery or prize package candy are principally children, and because of the lottery or gambling feature connected with the "break and take" or "draw" package, and the possibility of becoming a winner, it has been observed that the children purchase them in preference to the "straight goods" candy when the two types of packages are displayed side by side.

Witnesses from several branches of the candy industry testified in this proceeding to the effect that children prefer to purchase the lottery or prize package candy because of the gambling feature connected with its sale. The sale and distribution of "break and take" or "draw" packages or assortments of candy or of candy which has connected with its sale to the public the means or opportunity of obtaining a prize or becoming a winner by lot or chance, teaches and encourages gambling among children, who comprise by far the largest class of purchasers and consumers of this type of candy.

Par. 9. The pieces of candy in the "break and take" or "draw" packages of all manufacturers of that type of candy are either smaller in size than the corresponding pieces of "straight goods" candy or the quality of the candy in the "break and take" or "draw" packages is poorer than that in the "straight goods" assortments. It is necessary to make this difference between either the size of the individual pieces of candy or the quality of the candy in order to compensate for the value of the prizes or premiums which are distributed with the "break and take" or "draw" goods.

Par. 10. There are in the United States many manufacturers of candy who do not manufacture and sell lottery or prize assortments of candy and who sell their "straight goods" candy in interstate commerce in competition with the "break and take" or "draw" candy, and manufacturers of the "straight goods" type of candy have noted a marked decrease in the sales of their products whenever and wherever the lottery or prize candy has appeared in their markets. This decrease in the sales of "straight goods" candy is principally due to the gambling or lottery feature indicated with the "break and take" or "draw" candy.

Par. 11. The sale and distribution of candy by lot or chance is against the public policy of many of the States of the United States and some of said States have laws making the operating of lotteries and gambling devices penal offenses.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, Meadow Brook Candy Company, under the conditions and circumstances set forth in the foregoing findings of fact are all to the prejudice of the public and respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and constitute violations of Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to Create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes".

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST, ETC.

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission (in two counts, count 1 thereof charging a violation of Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", and count 2 thereof charging a violation of the National Industrial Recovery Act) the answer of the respondent, the testimony taken and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that as to count 1, the respondent has violated the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled, "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes"—

It is hereby ordered, That the respondent, Meadow Brook Candy Company, its officers, directors, agents, representatives, and employees, in the manufacture, sale and distribution in interstate commerce, of candy and candy products, do cease and desist from:

(1) Selling and distributing to jobbers and wholesale dealers for resale to retail dealers and to retail dealers direct, candy so packed and assembled that sales of such candy to the general public are to be made or may be made by means of a lottery, gaming device or gift enterprise.

(2) Supplying to or placing in the hands of retail and wholesale dealers and jobbers, packages or assortments of candy which are used or may be used without alteration or rearrangement of the contents of such packages or assortments, to conduct a lottery, gaming device or gift enterprise in the sale or distribution of the candy or candy products contained in said assortment to the public.

(3) Supplying to or placing in the hands of retail and wholesale dealers and jobbers assortments of candy together with a device commonly called a push card or punch board, for use or which may be used in distributing or selling said candy to the public at retail.

(4) Furnishing to retail and wholesale dealers and jobbers a device commonly called a push card or a punch board either with packages or assortments of candy or candy products or separately, bearing a legend or legends or statements informing the purchaser that the candy or candy products are being sold to the public by lot or chance or in accordance with a sales plan which constitutes a lottery, gaming device or gift enterprise.

It is further ordered, That respondent, Meadow Brook Candy Company, within 30 days after the service upon it of this order, shall file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with the order to cease and desist hereinabove set forth.

And it is hereby further ordered, That by reason of the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in A. L. A. Schechter Poultry Corporation v. United States of America, decided May 27, 1935,2 count 2 of the complaint in this proceeding be and the same hereby is dismissed.

Memorandum

Findings and order in this matter were similar to those in the Meadow Brook case above, except for the variance dealing with the respondent and the particular scheme employed as set forth in paragraphs 1 and 2 of the findings, below, and as reflected in the order. As in the principal case, the complaint was in two counts, the first charging a violation of Section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act by reason of the practices employed, and the second charging also violation of Section 3 of the National Industrial Recovery Act through the violation of the code of fair competition for the candy manufacturing industry in the use of such break-and-take assortments. Second count was dismissed by a paragraph included in the cease and desist order, on account of the Supreme Court decision in the Schechter case, 295 U. S. 495. Said paragraphs 1 and 2 follow:

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, Dante Candy Company, is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Illinois with its principal office and place of business located in the city of Chicago, Ill. Respondent is now and for several years last past has been engaged in the manufacture of candy in Chicago, Ill., and in the sale and distribution of said candy to retail and wholesale dealers and jobbers in the State of Illinois and other States of the United States. It causes said candy when sold to be shipped or transported from its principal place of business in the State of Illinois to purchasers thereof in Illinois and in the States of the United States other than the State of Illinois. In carrying on said business, respondent is and has been in active competition with other corporations and with partnerships and individuals engaged in the manufacture of candy and in the sale and distribution of the same in interstate commerce.

PAR. 2. Among the candies manufactured and sold by respondent was an assortment of candy composed of a number of pieces of candy of uniform size, shape and quality together with a number of larger pieces of candy and a toy to be given as prizes to purchasers of said candies of uniform size, shape and quality, in the following manner:

The majority of said pieces of candies of uniform size, shape and quality have centers of the same color, but a small number of said candies have centers of a different color. The color of the centers of these candies is effectively concealed from the prospective purchasers until a purchase or selection has been made and the candy broken open. The said candies of uniform size, shape and quality in said assortment retail at one cent each, but the purchasers who procure one of the said candies having a center of a different color than the majority of said candies, are entitled to receive, and are to be given free of charge one of the said larger pieces of candy above mentioned. The purchaser of the last piece of candy in said assortment is entitled to receive and is to be given free of charge the toy above mentioned. The aforesaid purchasers of said candy who procure a candy having a center colored differently from the majority of said pieces of candy thus procure one of the said larger pieces of candy wholly by lot or chance.

IN THE MATTER OF

HARRY SCHLIFTMAN, TRADING AS EAGLE SUPPLY COMPANY

COMPLAINT AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SBPT. 26, 1914

Consent order requiring respondent Harry Schliftman, individually, or trading as Eagle Supply Company, or trading under any other name, his agents, etc., in connection with the sale or offer for sale or distribution of paint in interstate commerce, to cease and desist from—

(1) Using the words "Manufactured by Masterkraft Color Company, Brooklyn, New York", in advertisements, or on brands or labels affixed to containers or to packages of any such paint, or otherwise, and from using any other word, or words, or representations of similar tenor, import or substance, unless and until such company becomes in reality an existing and operating concern and such paint has been in fact manufactured by such concern; or

(2) Using any statement, representation or assertion to the effect that any such paint is the product of, or is manufactured, packed, distributed or marketed by, any company or concern, when such company or concern is fictitious, or when in fact such paint is not the product of, or has not been so manufactured, packed, distributed, or marketed by, such company or concern.

Mr. Astor Hogg for the Commission.

Kayman & Schwartz, of Brooklyn, N. Y., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Harry Schliftman, an individual, trading as Eagle Supply Company, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has been and now is using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, states its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent Harry Schliftman is an individual trading under the name and style of Eagle Supply Company, with his principal place of business located in the city of New York in the State of New York. He is now engaged and for more than two years last past has been engaged in the business of selling and distributing paint between and among the various States of the United States. He now causes and for more than two years last past has caused such paint, when sold by him, to be transported from his place of business in the city of New York aforesaid to the purchasers thereof, some located in the State of New York and others in the various other States of the United States; and there is now and has been for more than two years last past a constant current of trade in commerce by said respondent in such paint between and among the various States of the United States. In the course and conduct of his said business respondent is now and for more than two years last past has been in substantial competition with other persons and with corporations, firms and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of paint between and among the various States of the United States.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his business described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent caused and causes labels to be affixed to the containers of his paint which he has sold and does sell and distributes to the purchasers thereof located in the various States of the United States on which labels appeared and appear the words “Manu-

In truth and in fact said paint so labeled, sold and distributed as aforesaid is not and was not manufactured by a company of that name. The name “Masterkraft Color Company, Brooklyn, N. Y.” is fictitious. No such company by the name of “Masterkraft Color Company” exists or has ever existed in Brooklyn, N. Y., or engaged in any business as represented by respondent.

PAR. 3. The foregoing false and misleading statement used by respondent is and was made for the purpose of deceiving and has had the tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive a large part of the purchasing public and the trade, and to cause them to purchase the paint of the respondent under the mistaken belief that it was manufactured by Masterkraft Color Company, Brooklyn, N. Y., when such paint was not manufactured by Masterkraft Color Company of Brooklyn, N. Y. Said false and misleading statement and representation used by respondent as aforesaid has and had the capacity and tendency to unfairly divert trade to respondent from those of his competitors engaged in a like and similar business but who do not falsely represent the origin or manufacture of their paint. Thereby substantial injury is done and has been done by respondent to substantial competition in interstate commerce.

PAR. 4. The foregoing alleged acts and practices of respondent Harry Schlifftman, trading as Eagle Supply Company, are each and all to the prejudice of the purchasing public and competitors of respondent, and constitute unfair methods of competition within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”, approved September 26, 1914.

It is ordered, That the respondent Harry Schlifftman, individually, or trading as Eagle Supply Company, or trading under any other name, his agents, representatives, servants, and employees, in connection with the sale or offering for sale or distribution of paint in interstate commerce, do cease and desist from:

(1) Using the words "Manufactured by Masterkraft Color Company, Brooklyn, New York", in advertisements, or on brands or labels affixed to containers or to packages of any such paint, or otherwise, and from using any other word, or words, or representations of similar tenor, import or substance, unless and until such company becomes in reality an existing and operating concern and such paint has been in fact manufactured by such concern.

(2) Using any statement, representation or assertion to the effect that any such paint is the product of, or is manufactured, packed, distributed or marketed by, any company or concern, when such company or concern is fictitious, or when in fact such paint is not the product of, or has not been so manufactured, packed, distributed or marketed by, such company or concern.

It is further ordered, That the respondent within 60 days after service upon him of this order file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with the order to cease and desist hereinbefore set out.

IN THE MATTER OF

JAMES D. BOULGER, TRADING AS EASTERN TEXTILE COMPANY

Where an individual engaged in the sale of cotton remnants by mail order to individual purchasers in the various States; in advertising said remnants in newspapers and magazines of general and wide circulation among the States,—

(a) Offered and described the same as "dress goods" and as "new and clean", and used the words "4 yds. of each or more" to describe the yardage of the remnants sent purchasers, in such a manner as to mislead and deceive the purchasing public into the belief that all of said remnants were suitable for making dresses, and were new and clean goods, and that each pattern or selection sent purchasers would contain four yards or more in one piece, the facts being that most of them were not of sufficient size or quality to be suitable for making dresses and were not new and clean, but contained tears and misprints in the case of many and were damaged and stained, and none of the selections or patterns sent contained four yards or more of the particular pattern or selection;

(b) Used the statement "5 yds. extra" in offering said remnants, in such a manner as to cause purchasers thereof to believe that five yards were given with each order without additional charge, and held out special offers or bargains or prices as available only to buyers making their purchases at once or within a limited period, through using the words "this month" in conjunction with or in close proximity to the words "special offer" or "special bargain", the facts being he did not give such extra yardage without additional charge, and said special offers, bargains or prices were not thus limited, but were available to any and all purchasers at any time; and

(c) Described said remnants as sold "direct to you" and "direct from the mills", notwithstanding the fact he neither owned nor operated any mill or factory of any kind whatsoever; with the result that the purchasing public was misled into the belief that he owned and operated a mill or factory in which said remnants were produced;

With the effect of diverting business to said individual from competitors, including those who in nowise misrepresent their goods, and with tendency so to divert, to their injury and prejudice:

Held, That such practices, under the conditions and circumstances set forth, were all to the injury and prejudice of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. Edward M. Averill, trial examiner.

Mr. S. Brogdyne Tev, II for the Commission.

Mr. T. M. Hayes, of Greenfield, Mass., for respondent.

Paragraph 1. Said respondent, James D. Boulger, doing business as Eastern Textile Company, is an individual and has his principal office and place of business in the city of Greenfield and in the State of Massachusetts. Said respondent has been for some time past engaged in the advertisement, sale and distribution of dress goods between and among the different States of the United States. Said respondent has advertised, sold, and distributed, and has caused and still causes the said articles in which he deals to be transported from his place of business into and through other States of the United States to various purchasers located at points in the various States of the United States.

In the course and conduct of his said business, the respondent is in competition with other individuals, partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale, distribution and transportation of like and similar goods, wares and merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

Paragraph 2. The respondent advertises his business in newspapers and magazines having general circulation in the various States of the United States. The following statements and representations appear in such advertisements:

15 yds. DRESS GOODS

EASTERN TEXTILE COMPANY

Dept. F-69

Greenfield, Mass.
Paragraph 3. Statements and representations made by respondent in his advertising, as set out above, are all and each false and misleading in that, to wit:
1. The respondent does not give 5 yards extra with each order.
2. Respondent does not own or operate a factory or mill, and "direct to you" is false and untrue.
3. The wares, goods and merchandise are wholly unsuited for dress purposes.
4. Respondent does not refund money to dissatisfied customers.
5. The statement, "15 yards dress goods—97¢" is not true in that the said respondent does not give 15 yards for 97¢.
6. The 15 yards of goods are not a special bargain any month, as advertised by the respondent.
7. The goods, wares and merchandise of said respondent are not "clean" as advertised by him, but are soiled, stained and damaged.
8. The statement "4 yards of each (pattern) or more" is misleading in that purchasers believe they will receive 4 yards of each pattern in one piece. In truth and in fact, no piece of goods contains 4 yards of the same pattern.
9. The statement "the very newest, latest patterns for dresses" is false in that such patterns as delivered are not the latest.

Paragraph 4. The above representations made by the respondent are each and all to the injury and prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

Respondent having entered his appearance and filed his answer to said complaint hearings were had and evidence introduced in support of the allegations of the complaint and on behalf of the respondent. Subsequent to said hearings counsel for the Commission and for the respondent entered into a stipulation of the facts of the case and it was further stipulated by and between counsel for the Commission and counsel for the respondent that the Commission might make and serve upon the respondent an order to cease and desist from the unfair methods of competition alleged in the complaint.

Thereupon this proceeding came on for final hearing and the Commission having duly considered the record and being fully advised in the premises makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusions drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent James D. Boulger, trading as the Eastern Textile Company, has his principal office and place of business in the city of Greenfield, State of Massachusetts.

PAR. 2. Respondent is now and has been for more than one year last past engaged in the business of merchandising cotton remnants, selling said remnants by mail order to individual purchasers located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Said respondent in the course and conduct of his business causes said cotton remnants to be transported in interstate commerce from his said place of business in the State of Massachusetts, to, into, and through States of the United States other than Massachusetts to purchasers thereof located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. Since the time said respondent has been engaged in the sale and distribution of cotton remnants the public advertising of said respondent has been done by means of newspapers and magazines having general and wide circulation between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. In the advertisements in which the respondent offers for sale the remnants sold as described herein the said respondent uses the words "dress goods" to describe said remnants in such a manner as to mislead and deceive the purchasing public into the belief that all of the said remnants are suitable for making dresses when in fact most of them are not of sufficient size or quality to be suitable for such purposes.

The respondent also uses the statement "5 yds. extra" in advertising the remnants offered for sale and sold by him in a manner so as to cause the purchasers of such remnants to believe that five yards of such remnants or dress goods were given with each order without additional charge. The respondent does not give five yards extra with each order without additional charge and his use of the said words is misleading and deceptive to purchasers and prospective purchasers.
Respondent advertises the remnants sold by him as aforesaid as being sold "direct to you" and "direct from the mills" with the result that the purchasing public is misled into the belief that respondent owns and operates a mill or factory in which said remnants are produced. He does not in fact own or operate any mill or factory of any kind whatsoever.

The respondent represents in his advertising of the remnants offered for sale and sold by him as aforesaid that special offers or special bargains or prices are available only to purchasers who make their purchases at once or within a limited period, whereas the said special offers, bargains or prices are not so limited but are available to any and all purchasers at any time.

In the advertisements in which the respondent offers for sale the remnants sold as described herein the said respondent uses the words "new and clean" to describe said remnants in such a manner as to mislead and deceive the purchasing public into the belief that all of the remnants are new and clean goods, whereas in fact most of the remnants sold by respondent to purchasers are not new and clean but many of them contain tears, misprints, and are damaged and stained.

In his advertising in which the respondent offers for sale the remnants sold as described herein the said respondent uses the words "4 yds. of each or more" to describe the yardage of each remnant sent purchasers in such a manner as to mislead and deceive the purchasing public into the belief that of each pattern or selection sent purchasers there will be four yards or more of it in one piece, whereas in fact none of the selections or patterns sent purchasers by said respondent contain four yards or more of that particular pattern or selection.

PAR. 5. During the time above referred to other individuals, firms and corporations in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia are and have been engaged in the sale and distribution of cotton remnants in interstate commerce and such other individuals, firms, and corporations have caused and still cause their cotton remnants when sold by them to be transported to, and into, the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia. Said respondent has been during the aforesaid time in the sale of his remnants in direct competition in interstate commerce with such other individuals, firms and corporations hereinbefore mentioned.

PAR. 6. There are among the competitors of the respondent in the sale of cotton remnants those who in nowise misrepresent their goods and respondent's acts and practices as hereinbefore set out tend to and do divert business to respondent from his competitors to the injury and prejudice of such competitors.
CONCLUSION

The practices of said respondent under conditions and circumstances described in the foregoing findings are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and to respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and are violations of the Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes".

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding coming on for final hearing before the Federal Trade Commission upon the record, including the complaint of the Commission issued under Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", and respondent's answer to the Commission's complaint, the stipulation as to the facts of the case entered into by counsel for the Commission and counsel for the respondent and further agreement by the respondent herein, agreeing and consenting that the Commission may make, issue and serve upon him an order to cease and desist from the unfair methods of competition alleged in the complaint; and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being fully advised in the premises—

It is now ordered, That James D. Boulger, trading as Eastern Textile Company, his officers, directors, representatives, agents, servants, and employees in connection with the sale or offering for sale of the so-called dress remnants in interstate commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia do cease and desist from:

(1) Using the words "dress goods" to describe or designate remnants sold or offered for sale by respondent unless and until in conjunction therewith in equally conspicuous letters the word "remnants" appears.

(2) Representing that five yards of each of the remnants are given with each order unless and until five yards are given with each order without additional charge.

(3) From using the words "direct to you" in conjunction with or in close proximity with the word "mill" and from using the words "direct to you" or "direct from mill" unless and until said respondent owns or operates a mill or factory from which the said remnants are shipped direct to the purchasers of said remnants.
(4) From using the words “this month” in conjunction with or in close proximity with the words “special offer” or “special bargain” unless and until such offers or special bargains are limited to a given month.

(5) From representing that the said remnants are “new and clean” unless and until such goods are new and clean and do not contain misprints, stains, and spots.

(6) From using the statement “4 yds. of each or more” unless and until respondent furnishes four yards of each pattern or selection sent to purchasers.

It is ordered, That the respondent James D. Boulger, trading as Eastern Textile Company shall within 60 days after service upon him of this order file with the Commission in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form of his compliance with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF

EXCELSIOR SILVERWARE CORPORATION

Consent order requiring respondent corporation, its officers, etc., in connection with the advertisement, offer and sale in interstate commerce of silver-plated products, to cease and desist from—

(a) Use of the words "Sheffield Reproductions" or like or similar words or expressions implying or intending to imply that the said product is made or reproduced in accordance with process employed by the silversmiths of Sheffield, England, in the manufacture of "Sheffield Silverware" or "Sheffield Plate", when such is not the fact; and

(b) Use of the word "Sheffield" either independently or in connection or conjunction with any other word or words or in any other way to designate or describe silver-plated ware which has not been made in Sheffield, England, in accordance with the process used by the silversmiths of Sheffield, England, in the manufacture of "Sheffield Silverware" and "Sheffield Plate".

Mr. Marshall Morgan for the Commission.
Naphtali & Raisman, of New York City, for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Excelsior Silverware Corporation, is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its principal office and place of business at 103-105 Mott Street in the city of New York. It is now and for more than two years last past has been engaged in the manufacture of silver-plated hollow-ware and in the sale thereof between and among the various States of the United States. It causes such silver-plated hollow-ware when sold by it to be transported to the purchasers thereof in the State of New York and to other purchasers located in various other States of the United States and there is now and has been for more than two years last past a constant current of trade and commerce by respondent in such silver-plated hollow-ware between and among the various States of the United States. In the course and conduct of its said business respondent is now and for more than two years last past has been in substantial competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, with various other corporations, and with partnerships, firms and individuals engaged in the sale of silver-plated hollow-ware.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of its said business described in paragraph 1 hereof the respondent manufactures and sells two principal lines of merchandise, each being a silver-plated hollow-ware product on which the silver has been deposited by electrolytic process. One of these lines consists of silver-plated nickel ware, the other of silver-plated ware with a base of copper. Respondent company employs a salesman on a commission basis, who calls on retailers, chiefly department stores, in various States with a sample book containing photographs of Excelsior silver-plated products, such products being marked with a style number on said photographs and so billed to the customer on the invoices used by respondent.

Par. 3. Respondent uses in the manufacture of its products what is known as the electro-plating process which consists of the deposition of an adherent coat of silver on a less noble base metal by passing an electric current through a bath or electrolyte of silver salts containing ions or atoms of silver in solution.

The plated silverware thus produced varies in quality and value according to the composition of the base metal, the workmanship upon its form, including the decoration, and the amount and fineness of the silver deposited upon the base metal. While Federal specifications for silver-plated tableware, including hollow-ware, have been adopted by the Government, no standards have been fixed by the trade for the composition of the base metal nor for the fineness or quantity of silver in the case of silver-plated hollow-ware. The quality of such ware cannot be determined except by laboratory tests and the purchasing public is obliged to depend upon the reputation of the maker or seller thereof or the reputation of the trade.

Par. 4. About the year 1742 there was originated in Sheffield, England, a process for the production of silver-plated ware, which process involved the welding of the silver-plate to one or both sides of a sheet or bar of copper to form one thoroughly coherent mass which was rolled to the desired thickness and subsequently worked into the desired form. The ware produced by this process was properly known as copper-rolled plate, though this name was not used as a trade name or designation. The copper-rolled plate of Sheffield, England, acquired a very considerable reputation for excellence in quality, workmanship and design, and though the name “Sheffield” was not generally impressed upon or affixed to the ware itself, which was identified by the maker’s registered hallmark, the copper-rolled plate came to be generally known and is still known as Sheffield. About a century after the discovery of the copper-rolled silver-plating process above described, the cheaper electro-plating process was discovered, displacing copper-rolled plate, which practically went out of production.

Silverware and silver-plated ware made by silversmiths of Sheffield, England, have been and still are highly regarded by the trade and the public of the United States, England, and other countries, as of uniform, reliable, and dependable quality and the words “Sheffield Silver”, “Sheffield Plate”, and “Sheffield Silver-plate Ware”, when used in connection with silverware or silver-plated ware have signified and denoted and now signify and denote to a substantial portion of the public that such silverware or plated silverware was manufactured in Sheffield, England, and is of the quality which has become associated with that name and industry. While the cheaper electro-plating process, as stated, displaced copper-rolled plate, which practically went out of production, there have been and still are from time to time importers of copper-rolled plate in the United States and there is a considerable trade in copper-rolled plate in this country at prices which reflect not only its value as plated ware but its artistic and historic value as well. The name Sheffield as applied to silver at the present time implies the quality and value peculiar to the copper-rolled process, as well as the process itself and its use is a representation thereof.

Par. 5. In the course and conduct of its business as aforesaid respondent company has advertised, does now advertise, and has offered for sale, and sells its silver-plated copper base trays and other articles as Sheffield reproductions, said advertisements being sent to retailers in the several States of the United States, and reading in part as follows:

These four Excelsior Sheffield reproductions brought extra profits to New York Stores.

Beneath the above, printed in heavy black type, across a four-page folder, appear and have appeared photographic representations, respectively, of a vegetable dish, relish dish, and two serving trays, each made so as to imitate the engraving of Sheffield plate and stated to be in each instance “heavily silver-plated copper.”
On bills or invoices printed by respondent company and distributed by it throughout various States of the United States to firms and individuals purchasing goods from respondent appears and has appeared the following printed in conspicuous type across the top of said invoices:

Excelsior Silverware Corporation
Manufacturers of Silver-plated Sheffield Reproductions.

When in truth and in fact the said silver-plated hollow-ware advertised and sold in interstate commerce by respondent company as "Sheffield Reproduction" and "Sheffield Reproductions" is not and never has been a reproduction in any essential aspect or particular of the famous copper-rolled silver plate of Sheffield, England, variously known by the words or terms "Sheffield", "Sheffield Silver", "Sheffield Plate", and "Sheffield Silver-Plated Ware". Said alleged reproductions are not "copper-rolled plate" made by fusing silver plate so as to form one thoroughly united mass and do not contain other fundamental characteristics of "Sheffield" plate in connection with their fabrication, but in truth and in fact are relatively modern imitation plate made by the much cheaper process of electro-plating hereinbefore described, intended to resemble as much as possible in design and appearance the famous and highly valuable Sheffield plated ware, and are neither Sheffield plate nor reproductions thereof.

PAR. 6. The use by the respondent of the term or words "Sheffield Reproductions", as herein set out is a misrepresentation of the character and quality of respondent's products and has and has had the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive the public into the erroneous belief that the silver-plated hollow-ware thus designated and advertised by respondent was and is of the quality and workmanship which have been and still are associated with Sheffield silver, and to purchase respondent's products in such belief; tends to create and does create an undue preference for the silver-plated ware advertised and sold by respondent, and tends to induce and does induce the purchase of such silver-plated ware by a substantial portion of the trade and the public in preference to silver-plated ware manufactured and sold by respondent's competitors some of whom deal in wares manufactured in Sheffield, England, and others of whom refrain from the use of such terms in connection with wares not manufactured by the cooper-rolled plate process, of the silversmiths of Sheffield, England.
As a result of such false and misleading representations on the part of respondent trade is diverted to respondent from such competitors in interstate commerce and thereby substantial injury is done and has been done by the respondent to substantial competition in interstate commerce and there is being and has been placed in the hands of respondent's representatives, dealers and distributors an instrument by means of which they mislead and deceive and have misled and deceived the purchasing public.

Par. 7. Said representations of respondent contained in its respective advertising and mailing matter used by and distributed through respondent's representatives, dealers and distributors, have resulted in injury to respondent's competitors and to retail dealers and to the prejudice of the buying public, and constitute unfair methods of competition within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes".

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding coming on for final hearing by the Federal Trade Commission on the record, including the complaint of the Commission issued under Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", and respondent's amended answer thereto in which respondent waives hearing on the charges set forth in the complaint, refrains from contesting the proceeding and, pursuant to the provisions of the Commission's Rules of Practice with respect to answers, consents that the Commission may make, enter, and serve upon respondent without a trial, without evidence and without findings as to the facts or other intervening procedure, an order to cease and desist from the method or methods of competition alleged in the complaint; and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being fully advised in the premises—

It is now ordered, That the respondent, Excelsior Silverware Corporation, its officers, agents, servants, and employees, in connection with the advertising, offering for sale, and sale in interstate commerce and in the District of Columbia of silver-plated products do cease and desist from:

(1) The use in its advertising or printed matter distributed in interstate commerce of the words "Sheffield Reproductions" or like or similar words or expressions implying or intending to imply that the said product is made, manufactured or reproduced in accordance with the process of manufacture employed by the silversmiths of Sheffield, England, in the manufacture of “Sheffield Silverware” or “Sheffield Plate” when such is not the fact.

(2) The use of the word “Sheffield” either independently or in connection or conjunction with any other word or words or in any other way to designate, describe, or advertise silver-plated ware which has not been made or manufactured in Sheffield, England, in accordance with the process used by the silversmiths of Sheffield, England, in the manufacture of “Sheffield Silverware” and “Sheffield Plate”.

It is further ordered, That the respondent within 60 days from and after the date of service upon it of this order shall file with the Commission a report or reports in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it is complying with the order to cease and desist hereinabove set out.

Where an Individual engaged in the manufacture and sale of electro-magnetic belts or so-called "Vita-Noids" for the prevention, treatment, cure or relief of various ailments and pathological conditions by self-treatment in the home of the ultimate purchaser and user or wearer through the operation of the magnetic field created by said belt when attached to the electric circuit—

(a) Made such statements in booklets supplied by him to dealer purchasers for distribution to members of the public who bought Vita-Noids as "stimulation of the life forces into normal activity is the object", "Vita-Noid is designed to rid the body of waste toxic matter and when properly used should begin to produce results after only a few treatments"; and

Where two individuals engaged separately and in association with one another, and as partners, in the sale of said devices or Vita-Noids purchased from the aforesaid individual, in soliciting sale thereof through advertisements in magazines, newspapers, printed circulars, letters, radio broadcasts, and in personal interviews, and with the knowledge of said first named individual—

(b) Made such statements as that science had made wonderful progress in the treatment of disease by electro-magnetism which had brought health and happiness to thousands, and that the Vita-Noid created a remarkable curative agent, had helped thousands of persons including those who, with rare exceptions, were extremely discouraged with the results of other treatments for their afflictions, in which it had produced results that were nothing short of miraculous, and that the device by reason of the electro-magnetism produced by it tended thoroughly to eliminate toxic products from the system, and that diseases which arose directly or indirectly from such poisoning, among which it included many well-known diseases and ailments of a serious nature, including arthritis, high blood pressure, heart trouble, neuritis, rheumatism, sciatica, and tumors and ulcers, had responded very successfully to treatment with said device;

The facts being that the strength of the magnetic field created thereby covered about 17 gauss near the center of the circular space formed by the belt, electro-magnetic fields covering many thousands of gauss produce no demonstrable physical or physiological effect in the body, and, while eddying electric currents, changes or stresses termed "hysteresis" are continually present in the tissues of the body both in health and disease and, when produced by the heart, are strong enough to be recorded, measured and read by a physical apparatus, there is no instrument capable of measuring any hysteresis produced in the body by the use of said belt, magnetism has no effect upon bacteria, the cause of many ailments, and application or use of said device in physio-therapy does not and has not produced or caused and cannot produce or cause any demonstrable physiological change or effect in the body of any person subjected to its application or use, either for the prevention, cure or relief of any physical ailment or pathological condition or for any other purpose, and the statements and representations made to the public in respect of the results to be obtained by the public through the use thereof in self-treatment for the prevention, cure or relief of physical ailments and conditions afflicting the user were each and all palpably fraudulent, and false statements and representations, as said various individuals knew or with the use of ordinary and reasonable care should have known;

With capacity and tendency to deceive and mislead members of the public into the belief that such representations and statements were true and into purchasing said Vita-Noid in reliance upon such fraudulent statements and representations and with intent and effect of deceiving, misleading and inveigling members of the public who were the unfortunate victims of ailments and diseases, of which they in general knew little or nothing as to their causes and effects, and which in many instances were incurable, into purchasing said device for $50 or $75, as the case might be, and of also causing them thereby to neglect or delay obtaining competent medical advice or assistance for the treatment of their ailments, with the probability of their progressing in many cases from a condition in which competent medical skill or timely use of proper appliances in physio-therapy might have availed to relieve or cure the ailments or conditions, until the victim was beyond aid, and with the result of diverting trade in electric appliances used in physio-therapy to said individuals from their competitors:

Held, That such practices, under the conditions and circumstances set forth, were to the prejudice of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. Charles F. Diggs, trial examiner.
Mr. Edward E. Reardon for the Commission.

COMPLAINT

Acting in the public interest pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”, the Federal Trade Commission charges that J. Dorsey Markwood, trading as Electro-Magnetic Belt Co., and A. A. Baird and V. A. Molitor, copartners trading as Vita-Noid of Kansas City, hereinafter referred to as respondents, have been and are using unfair methods of competition in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of said Act, and states its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent J. Dorsey Markwood is an individual who trades at Minneapolis, Minn., under the name of Electro-Mag-ELECTRO-MAGNETIC BELT CO. ET AL.

Complaint

netic Belt Company. There is no such company, and respondent Markwood is the sole owner and proprietor of the business herein-after described in this paragraph. Since about the year 1931 the respondent J. Dorsey Markwood has been and is now engaged at the said city of Minneapolis in the business of manufacturing and selling an electric belt which, from the date of November 11, 1931, he has so sold under the name of Dorsey's Vita-Noid. Dorsey's Vita-Noid is an apparatus resembling a horse collar and consists of a coil of insulated wire, having an imitation leather covering, with a connection to be fastened in an ordinary lamp socket carrying an alternating current of electricity. Said apparatus is sold with the claims and representations of respondent that when it is applied to the human body and used according to the instructions accompanying it, it has therapeutic value and effect in the treatment of many of the ailments and diseases of mankind. This apparatus is so sold to distributors who in turn resell the same to the ultimate purchasers or users thereof. Among the said distributors are respondents C. A. Baird and V. A. Molitor.

When orders are received for such apparatuses they are packed at said city of Minneapolis, Minn., and shipped by respondent Markwood into and through other States of the United States to the places of business of such distributors, many of which are outside of the State of Minnesota. The terms of sale imposed by respondent are usually cash on delivery. Accompanying each apparatus are written instructions for its use and a so-called guaranty bond signed by respondent Markwood. The bond guarantees against defects in the materials and workmanship. The written instructions recommend the use of Vita-Noid for insomnia, anemia, low blood pressure, nervousness, functional heart trouble, rheumatism, arthritis, constipation, high blood pressure, ulcers, tumors, stomach trouble, skin diseases, neuritis, lumbago, sciatica, varicose veins, and local pains.

In the course and conduct of said business, respondent Markwood is in competition with other individuals and corporations engaged in the sale of sundry medicinal remedies and surgical and electrical instruments and appliances used in the treatment of the sick and injured in commerce between and among various States of the United States.

PAR. 2. Respondents A. A. Baird and V. A. Molitor are copartners, who for about the year last have traded and are now trading under the name Vita-Noid of Kansas City, and as such copartners and under such trade name they purchase said apparatuses from respondent Markwood and sell the same at and from Kansas City, Mo., to purchasers thereof for use by them in treating their ailments, sicknesses and diseases. Many of these said purchasers reside outside of the State of Missouri, and when orders for said apparatuses are received or taken by respondents Baird or Molitor, said apparatuses with the instructions and bond mentioned in paragraph 1 hereof, are packed at said Kansas City, Mo. and shipped into and through other States of the United States to the places of residence of such purchasers.

In the course and conduct of said business, respondents Baird and Molitor are in competition with other individuals and corporations, engaged in the sale of medicinal remedies and surgical and electrical apparatus and instruments and other appliances used in the treatment of the sick and injured, in commerce between and among various States of the United States.

Respondents Baird and Molitor seek and solicit and have sought and solicited the sale of said device to the public located throughout the States of the United States, reaching said public through and by means of radio talks, advertisements in magazines having general circulation in the States of the United States, in newspapers, in letters, through and by means of circulars, booklets and printed matter containing reported testimonials and other literature and through and by means of employees, solicitors, and agents.

The said last-named respondents, in order to induce the public to purchase said device, make and have made and caused to be made many false, misleading, and deceptive statements concerning said Vita-Noid in such radio talks and such magazines, newspapers, letters, circulars, booklets and other literature and printed matter and through such employees, solicitors, and agents. Among such statements so made are the following:

Vita-Noid is not presented as a cure-all, but because electrical magnetism as produced by the Vita-Noid tends to thoroughly eliminate toxic products from the entire system, the following diseases which arise directly and indirectly from toxic poisoning have very successfully responded to the Vita-Noid:

During the past few years, the same knowledge and skill that has been applied to the perfection of almost everything else, has been applied, quite naturally, to the making of more efficient and useful therapeutic solenoids.

Today we have a solenoid that is a splendid example of the modern, scientific age in which we live. This appliance is called Vita-Noid. • • •

Science has made wonderful progress for the treatment of diseases with electro-magnetism.

Electro-magnetism has brought health and happiness to thousands. • • •

An amazing discovery proves new way to health.

New Vita-Noid proves merit.

Many remarkable recoveries reported. Powerful curative agent is produced by Vita-Noid. Thousands already helped.

Sufferers everywhere are turning to the Vita-Noid, the new appliance that has proved effective in many cases formerly thought to be hopeless.

Because Vita-Noid is no respector of persons, isn't it reasonable to suppose that what it has done for others, who once suffered exactly as you are today, it will do for you?

Dorsey's Vita-Noid is designed to rid the body of waste toxic matter and when properly used should begin to produce results after only a few treatments. In certain stubborn, chronic cases of long standing, the patient should not expect marked relief short of two or three months use.

Respondents Baird and Molitor provide each purchaser of Vita-Noid with the book of instructions containing the statements as set forth in paragraph 1 hereof.

Respondents Baird and Molitor have been and are using two broadcasting stations in Kansas City, Mo., for the purpose of advertising the Vita-Noid apparatus. Such broadcasts, so made by said respondents, reach the people of many States. Some of the statements in these broadcasts are as follows:

Vita-Noid, that modern therapeutic appliance made for use right in your home is getting results, which in many cases seem nothing short of the miraculous. • • •

Following this several instances where people were supposed to have been cured by the use of Vita-Noid are recited.

• • • Vita-Noid has for a long time and is daily proving a decided blessing to mankind. With few exceptions the people who get Vita-Noid are the people whom nothing else has been able to help. We shall go farther than that and say that with rare exceptions the people who get Vita-Noid are a discouraged and extremely discouraged group of people; yet, among that class of individuals, the Vita-Noid is producing results that in many cases are nothing short of miraculous.

Many statements are made in these radio talks, all of which are laudatory of the therapeutic value and effect of Vita-Noid and in which in addition to the ailments mentioned in the printed advertising, claims are made that gall bladder and kidney trouble may be cured by the use of Vita-Noid.
Complaint

PAR. 3. The statements made in the book of instructions described in paragraph 1 hereof and the advertising of respondents Baird and Molitor described in paragraph 2 are false and misleading in that:

(a) Said device Vita-Noid is not a scientific invention, nor a scientific apparatus.

(b) That said apparatus will not cure, aid in the cure, nor is its use proper treatment for any of the diseases or afflictions mentioned in paragraph 1 or paragraph 2 hereof nor will it cure or relieve diseases, sicknesses or the ailments of mankind of any kind or nature.

(c) That the said apparatus, when used as directed, or otherwise, is incapable of transmitting energy or remedial force to the human body in such an amount as to have therapeutic value or effect.

PAR. 4. At the time of entering business relations for the purchase and sale of said Vita-Noid, to wit, in the summer of 1933, respondent Baird, representing himself and his copartner respondent Molitor, met with respondent Markwood at the latter's place of business in the said city of Minneapolis, Minn., and it was then and there agreed between respondents that respondent Markwood would furnish with each Vita-Noid apparatus, for use in advertising the same, the book of instructions described in paragraph 1 hereof and that respondents Baird and Molitor would use the same together with the advertising described in paragraph 2 hereof and through the media named and described therein in the sale and promotion of the sale of said apparatus.

That respondent Markwood did so furnish to the other respondents said book of instructions and that the same together with the advertising described in paragraph 2 hereof was and is now used by them in the sale and promotion of the sale of the said apparatus in the manner and form as set forth in paragraphs 1 and 2 of this complaint.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid false, misleading, and deceptive statements and representations, used by respondents, as in this complaint here- tofore set forth have and have had the capacity and tendency to, and do induce the public to purchase and use the device Vita-Noid in the belief that said statements and representations are true, and to divert trade to this respondent from its said competitors.

PAR. 6. The above alleged acts and practices of respondent Markwood and the above alleged acts of respondents Baird and Molitor are each and all to the prejudice of the public and to the competitors of respondent Markwood and respondents Baird and Molitor, and the acts of respondent Markwood and the acts of respondents Baird and Molitor as above set forth consist of unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914 (38 Stat. 717), the Federal Trade Commission issued and served its complaint upon the above-named respondents charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said Act.

The respondents having filed their answers herein to the complaint, hearings were had and evidence was thereupon introduced on behalf of the Commission and the respondents before an examiner of the Federal Trade Commission duly appointed.

Thereupon this proceeding came on for final hearing on the brief filed on behalf of the Commission, and the Commission having duly considered the record and being fully advised in the premises finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and the conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent J. Dorsey Markwood is an individual residing in Minneapolis, Minn. He is and has been, at all times, since sometime in or about November 1931, engaged, under the trade name Electro-Magnetic Belt Co. and with a usual place of business at Minneapolis, in the business of the manufacture and sale of electromagnetic belts, called Dorsey's Vita-Noid, an appliance hereinafter more particularly described, which is made and sold to be used or operated by connecting it with an alternating electric current, such as is usually supplied by public service corporations to residences for ordinary household purposes. The electro-magnetic belts of the respondent are hereinafter referred to as Dorsey's Vita-Noids.

Par. 2. During all the times above mentioned, the respondent Markwood made and sold Dorsey's Vita-Noids for use by members of the public in self-therapeutic treatment for the purpose of the prevention, the cure, or the relief of the user from any one or more physical ailments, diseases, or pathological conditions of the human body, among those mentioned and referred to hereinafter, to which the user was subject, or to which the user thought or believed he was subject or suffering from.
In the course of his business the respondent, Markwood, sold Dorsey’s Vita-Noids, at the average price of $22.50 each, among others, to dealers, including respondents Baird and Molitor, purchasers thereof, located in various States of the United States, other than Minnesota and including Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri, and Wisconsin, for resale by respondents Baird and Molitor and the other dealers to members of the public for their use in self-therapeutic treatment as above stated.

The respondent Markwood caused Dorsey’s Vita-Noids, when so sold by him, to be transported from Minnesota to the purchasers, including respondents Baird and Molitor, located in other States.

Par. 3. Respondent A. A. Baird is an individual residing in Sioux City, Iowa. He was engaged at all times, from sometime in November 1931 to February 1934 in the business of the sale of Dorsey’s Vita-Noids to members of the public for their use in self-therapeutic treatment as stated in paragraph 2 hereof, at first, with a place of business at Waterloo, Iowa, and later with places of business at Lincoln, Nebr. and Kansas City, Mo.

In 1933 and 1934 he and respondent Molitor, as copartners, doing business under the trade name, Vita-Noid of Kansas City, were engaged in the sale of Dorsey’s Vita-Noids to members of the public, for the use mentioned and referred to above, with a place of business at Kansas City, Mo.

Par. 4. Respondent V. A. Molitor is an individual residing in Minneapolis, Minn. He became associated in 1931 with respondent Baird, as manager of the business of respondent Baird at Waterloo, Iowa, in the sale of Dorsey’s Vita-Noids to members of the public for use in self-therapeutic treatment as set forth in paragraph 2 hereof. He was also associated with respondent Baird at Kansas City, Mo. in the sale of Dorsey’s Vita-Noids to members of the public for the use above mentioned and referred to, and in 1933 and 1934 he and Baird conducted business, as copartners, in the sale of Dorsey’s Vita-Noids to members of the public for the said use under the trade name, Vita-Noid of Kansas City, with a place of business at Kansas City, Mo.

Par. 5. During the times mentioned in paragraphs 3 and 4 hereof, respondents, Baird and Molitor, sold Dorsey’s Vita-Noids, some at $50 and others at $75 each, as set forth in said paragraphs, to members of the public, purchasers thereof, located in Kansas, Oklahoma, and various other States of the United States, other than Missouri or the State of origin of the shipment, and they caused Dorsey’s Vita-Noids, when so sold by them, to be transported from Missouri, or from the State of origin of the shipment, to the purchasers.
Par. 6. During all the times mentioned and referred to above, other individuals, firms, and corporations, located in various States of the United States and hereinafter referred to as sellers, are and have been engaged, respectively, some of them in the business of the manufacture and sale, and others in the business of the sale of various appliances, that are and have been made and sold to be used or operated for use in therapeutic treatment for the prevention, cure or relief from physical ailments, diseases, or pathological conditions of the human body by connecting them with an alternating electric current, such as is supplied by public service corporations to residences for ordinary household purposes.

Some of the appliances are and have been sold by the sellers to members of the public and to dealers for resale to the public for use in self-therapeutic treatment in the case of certain physical ailments, diseases or pathological conditions of the human body including some of the ailments, diseases, or conditions, referred to in paragraph 2 hereof. Others of the appliances are and have been sold by the sellers to members of the public, physicians and others skilled in their use for the therapeutic treatment of certain other physical ailments, diseases or pathological conditions of the human body.

The sellers during said times, have sold the respective appliances above referred to and described to dealers for resale and to members of the public, purchasers thereof, located in States other than the State of the seller or the State of origin of the shipment and the sellers, respectively, have caused the appliances, when so sold by them, to be transported from the State of the seller, or the State of origin of the shipment, to the purchasers.

Par. 7. The respondent Markwood, and the respondents Baird and Molitor, during all the times mentioned and referred to in paragraphs 2 and 5 hereof, are and have been, respectively, in substantial competition in interstate commerce in the sale of the appliances, Dorsey's Vita-Noids, with the individuals, firms, and corporations referred to as sellers in paragraph 6 hereof.

Par. 8. During the times above mentioned and referred to, the appliance, called Dorsey's Vita-Noid, consisted of a coil containing about 470 turns of No. 20 American wire gauge wire which appeared to be aluminum. The separate layers of wire were insulated from each other by brown paper. The inside of the coil was stiffened with a piece of impregnated burlap. The whole was wrapped in padding and sewed up in a covering of artificial leather. When assembled and ready for use, it somewhat resembled a horse collar in size and general appearance. Permanently attached to the covering was a metal housing provided with two toggle switches, marked "off-on" and "high-low".

When in use by a member of the public for the treatment of ailments, diseases, or pathological conditions of the human body, it was connected with the electric current in the residence of the user.

The frequency of the alternating electric current supplied to residences by public service corporations varies in different cities. It lies between 50 and 65 cycles per second.

When the appliance, Dorsey’s Vita-Noid, is connected to an 115-volt, 60 cycle alternating current with the toggle switch in the “high” position and with a current of 1.27 amperes flowing, a magnetic field is created. The strength of the magnetic field so created measures about 17 gauss near the center of the circular space formed by the apparatus.

When the appliance, Dorsey’s Vita-Noid, is connected to an 115-volt, 60-cycle alternating current, the values of the current and power with the toggle switch in each of the positions “high” and “low” are stated in the table below. From these data the effective resistance and reactance of the appliance can be computed and is as given in the table. In the table there are also included the values of resistance obtained from measurements with direct current. The table of measurements referred to is as follows:

PAR. 9. Immediately prior to the time when the respondents Baird and Molitor began the sale of Dorsey’s Vita-Noids in 1931, they had each been engaged from 1929 to 1931, in the sale of electro-magnetic belts called the Theronoid \(^1\) to members of the public, for use in self-therapeutic treatment for the same purpose of use mentioned and referred to in paragraph 2 hereof for which Dorsey’s Vita-Noids were sold.

PAR. 10. The Theronoid Belt, above mentioned and referred to, consisted of a coil containing about 612 turns of No. 20 American wire gauge wire which appeared to be aluminum. The separate layers of wire were insulated from each other by brown paper. The inside of the coil was stiffened with a piece of impregnated burlap. The whole was wrapped in padding and sewed up in a covering of artificial leather. When assembled and ready for use, it resembled a horse collar in size and general appearance. The appliance was provided with two toggle switches, marked "off-on" and "high-low."

When in use by a member of the public for the treatment of ailments, diseases or pathological conditions of the human body, it was connected with the electric current in the residence of the user.

When the Theronoid Belt was connected to an 120-volt, 60-cycle alternating current, with the toggle switch on and in the "high" position and a current of 1.34 amperes flowing, a magnetic field was created. The strength of the magnetic field so created measured about 22 gauss near the center of the circular space formed by the belt.

When the Theronoid Belt was connected to an 120-volt, 60-cycle alternating current, the values of the current and power with the toggle switch on and in each of the positions "low" and "high" are stated in the table below. From these data the effective resistance and reactance of the Theronoid Belt can be computed and is as given in the table, as follows:

The construction of Dorsey’s Vita-Noid Belt and its use and the effect of its use is and has been similar in all essential respects to the construction and use and the effect of the use of the Theronoid Belt.

There is iron in the blood plasms and in the red corpuscles, and in the muscles. There are traces of iron in nearly all human or animal tissues. Such iron is nonmagnetic. It is not permanently or spontaneously magnetic. Electro-magnetic fields measuring many thousands of gauss can produce no demonstrable physical or physiological effect in the human body. The electro-magnetic fields produced by Dorsey’s Vita-Noids or the Theronoid measure only from 17 to 22 gauss.
Findings 21 F. T. C.

PAR. 11. Electrical changes, or stresses, or eddying electric currents or differences in electrical stress or potential are continually present in all tissues of the human body both in health and in disease. They vary with the intensity of the activity at the time and vary in different parts of the body. The body normally is continually under the influence, or in the fields of those electrical stresses. They are by-products of the chemical changes of life, and under their influence, or despite them, health or growth proceeds, and while under their influence the various ailments, diseases, or pathological conditions of the human body, including those for the prevention, the cure or the relief of which Dorsey's Vita-Noids and the Theronoid were sold to members of the public, develop, progress, and sometimes kill the person afflicted with them.

Such stresses or eddying electric currents are termed hysterisis, and are produced in the human body, among other activities, by the beating heart. When produced by the beating heart they are strong enough to be recorded, measured and read by a physical apparatus. But, there is no instrument known to exist that is capable of recording or measuring any hysterisis that may be produced in the human body by the use of Dorsey's Vita-Noid Belt.

PAR. 12. The respondent Markwood, in the course of his business in the sale of Dorsey's Vita Noids, as set forth in paragraph 2 hereof, delivered a booklet of information concerning the operation and use of Dorsey's Vita-Noids with each Vita-Noid that he sold to his dealer-purchasers, including respondents Baird and Molitor, which he intended the dealers to deliver to each member of the public who purchased a Vita-Noid for self-treatment as above set forth. The dealers, in turn, delivered one of the booklets to each member of the public to whom they sold a Vita-Noid.

Among other statements, the booklet so delivered to the public contained the following:

Stimulation of the life forces into normal activity is the object.
When the maximum benefits have been obtained, it is not necessary to use the appliance daily.
Dorsey's Vita-Noid is designed to rid the body of waste toxic matter, and when properly used, should begin to produce results after only a few treatments. In certain stubborn, chronic cases of long standing, the patient should not expect marked relief short of two or three months' use.
Remember, it is not advisable to continue using the appliance after the desired results have been obtained by the patient.
Since Dorsey's Vita-Noid is designed to stimulate vital processes of oxidation by which processes toxic waste matter is prepared for normal elimination from the body, it is recommended that the patient drink one or two glasses of water before each treatment, and a total of eight or ten glasses daily.
PAR. 13. Respondents Baird and Molitor, in the course of their business in the sale of Dorsey's Vita-Noids as above set forth, and at all times to the knowledge of respondent Markwood, solicited members of the public throughout various States of the United States by means of advertisements in magazines, newspapers, printed circulars, and letters, and through numerous radio broadcasts and in personal interviews to purchase Dorsey's Vita-Noids for self-therapeutic treatment for the purpose above described and referred to.

In the course of such solicitation and by the said means the respondents Baird and Molitor made and caused statements and representations to be made to the public, concerning the use and the effect of the use of Dorsey's Vita-Noids, among others, statements, and representations to the effect, as follows:

That science has made wonderful progress in the treatment of disease by electro-magnetism; that electro-magnetism has brought health and happiness to thousands, and that thousands were already helped by it; that Dorsey's Vita-Noids create a remarkable curative agent which has helped thousands of persons; that people who get the Vita-Noids and are helped by its use are those who, with rare exceptions, are extremely discouraged with the results of other means of treating their ailments or diseases, yet, that the Vita-Noid has produced results in such instances that are nothing short of miraculous; that the Vita-Noid because of the electrical magnetism produced by it tends thoroughly to eliminate toxic products from the entire system and that diseases which arise directly and indirectly from toxic poisoning have very successfully responded to treatment with the Vita-Noid; and that amongst such diseases were the following, and many others:

- Asthma
- Arthritis
- Bronchitis
- Constipation
- Dropsy
- Eczema
- Gall bladder
- Gout
- Hemorrhoids
- High blood pressure
- Heart trouble
- Insomnia
- Lumbago
- Nervous disorder
- Neuritis
- Paralysis
- Poor circulation
- Prostatic gland
- Rheumatism
- Sciatica
- Sinus trouble
- Stomach trouble
- Tumors
- Ulcers
- Varicose veins

PAR. 14. Magnetism has no effect upon bacteria, the cause of many ailments or diseases, either upon their growth, their reproduction or their virulence. The application or use of Dorsey's Vita-Noids in Physio-therapy (that is, treatment by mechanical appliances or apparatus, as distinguished from medical therapy), does not and has not produced or caused, and it cannot produce or cause any demonstrable physiological change or effect in the body of any person subjected to its application or use either in treatment for the prevention, the cure, or the relief of any physical ailment, disease or pathological condition, or for any other purpose.

Par. 15. The respondents knew, or with the use of ordinary and reasonable care should have known, that the statements and representations, above mentioned and referred to, made and caused to be made by them to the public, of the results of the use of Dorsey's Vita-Noids, obtained or to be obtained by members of the public in self-treatment for the prevention, cure or relief from the physical ailments, diseases or pathological conditions, which afflicted the user, as the case might be, were each and all false statements and representations. The statements or representations to the effect that the application or use of Dorsey's Vita-Noid would help, or has helped any purchaser of it whom nothing else was able to help, in the case of those suffering from the diseases above mentioned, were absurd and palpably fraudulent.

The respondents' said statements had the capacity and tendency to deceive and mislead members of the public into the belief that they were true and in reliance upon that belief into purchasing Dorsey's Vita-Noids. The statements and representations were fraudulent when made and were made and caused to be made by them with the intent and purpose of seducing, deceiving, misleading and inveigling members of the public, unfortunate victims, suffering from ailments and diseases, the causes and effects of which in general they knew little or nothing, and which were in many instances incurable or beyond assistance from medical science or skill, into purchasing Dorsey's Vita-Noids for the substantial sums of $50 and $75 for use in self-treatment as above described and referred to. And members of the public were seduced, deceived, misled and inveigled thereby into purchasing the same to their great loss in money, and in further consequence thereof were thereby caused to neglect, or delay obtaining competent medical advise or assistance with the still further consequence that the physical ailments or diseases, to which they were subject, were likely in many instances to progress from a condition, where competent medical science or skill or proper appliances used in physio-therapy, if timely applied, might avail to relieve or cure, to a condition where the afflicted persons were beyond human aid.

The respondents by means of the said statements and representations in the sale of Dorsey's Vita-Noids caused trade in appliances used in physio-therapy to be diverted to them from competitors.
CONCLUSION

The practices of the respondents under the conditions and circumstances described in the foregoing findings are and have been to the prejudice of the public and of respondents' competitors and are unfair methods of competition in commerce and constitute a violation of Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes".

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

It is now ordered, That respondent J. Dorsey Markwood, trading as Electro-Magnetic Belt Company, or under his own or any other trade name; the respondents A. A. Baird and V. A. Molitor, individually, and as copartners trading as Vita-Noid of Kansas City; the agents, representatives, and employees of the respondents, in the sale of or in offering the appliance called Dorsey's Vita-Noid for sale in interstate commerce to dealers for resale or to the public for use; or in the sale similarly of any other appliance sold or offered for sale by them in interstate commerce under any other name or designation which is designed and constructed to create an electro-magnetic field by means of electric current caused to flow through the appliance and which is intended, represented, and sold to be used in therapeutic treatment for the prevention, the cure, or the relief of the user from any one or more physical ailments, diseases or pathological conditions, to which the user is or may be subject, by having the subject of the treatment within the electro-magnetic field created by the appliance and without being in physical contact with the electric current creating the electro-magnetic field during the treatment, do

Cease and desist from making or causing others to make statements or representations to the public throughout the various States of the United States by means of advertisements in magazines or newspapers, in printed circulars or in correspondence by letters, or through radio broadcasts, or verbally in personal interviews, as follows, or substantially to the same effect, namely:

That science has made progress in the treatment of disease by electro-magnetism; that electro-magnetism has brought health and happiness to thousands and that thousands were already helped by it; that Dorsey's Vita-Noids, or any appliance similarly designed and constructed for similar purpose of use, has created or will create a curative agent which has helped thousands of persons who have become discouraged with the results of other treatments for ailments or diseases; that Dorsey's Vita-Noids or any other similar appliance because of the electrical magnetism produced by it tends, or will tend to eliminate toxic products from the human system and that diseases which arise directly or indirectly from toxic poisoning have responded or will respond to treatment with Dorsey's Vita-Noid or any other appliance similarly designed and constructed for the same purpose or use; that among the diseases which have successfully responded or will respond to treatment with Dorsey's Vita-Noid or any other appliance similarly designed and constructed for similar purpose or use are the following and many others:

It is further ordered, That the respondents, J. Dorsey Markwood and A. A. Baird and V. A. Molitor, shall within 30 days after the issuance of this order file with the Federal Trade Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with the order to cease and desist.

WHOLESALE RADIO SERVICE CO., INC.

Consent order requiring respondent corporation, in connection with the sale in Interstate commerce of hacksaw blades, to cease and desist from using the word "Tungsteel", or words of similar import, to describe such blades until and unless the steel from which they are manufactured contains tungsten metal in such quantity and proportion as to be steel commonly known and described as tungsten steel.

Mr. Edw. W. Thomerson for the Commission.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that the Wholesale Radio Service Co., Inc., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has been and is using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York with its principal office and place of business in the city of New York, State of New York, and with branch offices and places of business in the city of Newark, State of New Jersey, and in the city of Atlanta, State of Georgia.

Paragraph 2. Respondent is now and has been for the several years last past engaged in the mail-order wholesale business, offering for sale and selling, among other things, hacksaw blades to customers located at various points in the several States of the United States, and in causing said hacksaw blades, when so sold, to be transported from its said place of business located in the States of New York, New Jersey, and Georgia, as above alleged, into and across the several States of the United States to the said purchasers thereof located at various points in said several States of the United States.
other than New York, New Jersey, and Georgia. Other corporations and partnerships, associations and persons, who do not use the methods used by the respondent as hereinafter alleged, have been and are likewise engaged in offering for sale and selling hacksaw blades in said commerce among the several States of the United States. Respondent, in the course and conduct of its business as aforesaid, is in substantial competition with such other corporations and partnerships, associations and persons so engaged in offering for sale and selling said products in said commerce.

PAR. 3. Hacksaw blades are used throughout the several States of the United States to cut steel and such users of such blades believe that hacksaw blades which contain tungsten metal in a proper content are more durable and more desirable for that purpose than are hacksaw blades which do not contain tungsten metal in a proper content. Such users prefer a hacksaw blade containing tungsten metal to a hacksaw blade which does not contain such metal. It is more expensive to manufacture hacksaw blades containing tungsten metal in the proper content than it is to manufacture hacksaw blades not containing tungsten metal in proper content, and blades containing tungsten metal sell for a higher price than do blades which do not contain tungsten metal. The term “tungsten steel” and “tungsteel” are used in the trade and among users of hacksaw blades as meaning that blades so designated contain tungsten metal in proper content. Hacksaw blades which contain tungsten metal in proper content and hacksaw blades which do not contain said metal in proper content are similar in appearance and cannot be distinguished by the users thereof from a casual examination of such blades. Hacksaw blades which do not contain tungsten metal are not as salable as and are inferior to blades which do contain tungsten metal. Hacksaw blades containing tungsten metal in proper content are considered by users to be of first quality, flexible, fast cutting, and long lived.

PAR. 4. Respondent, within the two years last past; in the course and conduct of its business in said commerce as aforesaid, has advertised, sold, and distributed certain hacksaw blades under the name “Tungsteel” and has distributed to users and purchasers of hacksaw blades in said commerce, a certain catalog which contains the following representations concerning said blades:

and in truth and in fact, said hacksaw blades did not and do not contain any tungsten metal at all, were and are not first quality and were and are not flexible, fast cutting and long lived.

Par. 5. The acts and practices of the respondent in designating, advertising, and representing its hacksaw blades as hereinabove set forth are misleading and deceptive and have the tendency and capacity to and do confuse, mislead and deceive a substantial part of the users and purchasers of such blades into the erroneous belief that such hacksaw blades contain tungsten metal in proper content. The acts and practices of the respondent have the tendency and capacity to induce users and purchasers of hacksaw blades who desire blades containing tungsten metal to buy and use respondent's said hacksaw blades instead of blades which do contain tungsten metal in proper content, thereby substantially diverting trade to respondent from competitors of respondent who manufacture and sell hacksaw blades containing tungsten, and from competitors who manufacture and sell hacksaw blades which do not contain tungsten and who do not so misrepresent their products.

Par. 6. The above acts and practices of the respondent are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and of the competitors of respondent, and constitute unfair methods of competition within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes".

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding coming on for hearing by the Federal Trade Commission upon the record, including the complaint and the answer of the respondent, in which answer it waives hearing of the charges set forth in the complaint, refrains from contesting the proceedings, and, pursuant to Rule V of the Rules of Practice and Procedure,

consents that the Commission may make, enter, issue, and serve upon it, without trial, evidence, findings as to the facts, or other intervening procedure, an order to cease and desist from the violations of law charged in the complaint, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter, and being fully advised in the premises, finds that the respondent has violated the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”.

It is now ordered, That the respondent, Wholesale Radio Service Co., Inc., a corporation, cease and desist from using, directly or indirectly, the word, “Tungsteel”, or a word or words of similar import or meaning, alone or in connection with any other word or words to brand, designate, or describe hacksaw blades sold or offered for sale by it in commerce among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, until and unless the steel from which such hacksaw blades are manufactured contains tungsten metal in such quantity and proportion as to be steel that is commonly known and described as tungsten steel.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of a copy of this order, file with the Federal Trade Commission a report, in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with the order to cease and desist hereinabove set forth.

IN THE MATTER OF

Where a firm sold toothpicks, purchased in and imported from Japan, and packaged in small quantities in cartons, which were of substantially the same size as those theretofore used for a number of years by a competitor engaged in the sale of a similar domestic product, and which in the arrangement of labels, and depictions, colors, and arrangement of printed words and statements thereon contained, and construction, and instructions to user, so closely imitated the labels and cartons of said competitor as to simulate the same; with the effect of confusing, deceiving and misleading the trade and public into the belief that said foreign made and imported toothpicks thus sold by it were the domestic product of said competitor, and Into purchasing the same in reliance upon such erroneous belief, and with capacity and tendency so to do, and with the result that it was thereby enabled to and did pass off said toothpicks as and for those of competitors and trade was diverted to it from them:

Held, That such practices, under the conditions and circumstances set forth, were to the prejudice and injury of competitors and the public, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. William C. Reeves, trial examiner.
Mr. Edward E. Reardon for the Commission.

SYNOPSIS OF COMPLAINT

Reciting its action in the public interest, pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Commission charged respondent partners engaged in importing household articles and novelties and with place of business in New York City, with simulating cartons and labels of competitors in violation of Section 5 of such Act, prohibiting the use of unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce; in that as charged, they sold toothpicks imported from Japan, in cartons which in size, construction, labels, printed matter thereon contained, color, arrangement, instructions to open and general appearance were identical or substantially identical with those used for 12 years by a competitor for the sale of its domestic products and come to be known by the public for many years as identifying said domestic product with said competitor, and as superior to similar products made in other countries; with capacity and tendency thereby to confuse, deceive and mislead the trade and public and with effect of so doing, under ordinary conditions prevailing in the usual course of business in the sale of such products, and of inducing purchase of their said Japanese toothpicks as and for the domestic product of said competitor and of diverting thereby trade to themselves and to dealers in their said products from competitors and those dealing in the products of competitors, all to the prejudice of the public and their competitors.¹

Upon the foregoing complaint, the Commission made the following

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914 (38 Stat. 717), the Federal Trade Commission issued and served its complaint upon the above-named respondents charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act.

The respondents having filed their answer herein to the complaint, a hearing was had and evidence was thereupon introduced on behalf of the Commission and the respondents before an examiner of the Federal Trade Commission duly appointed.

Thereupon this proceeding came on for final hearing on the briefs filed on behalf of the Commission and the respondents, and upon oral argument by counsel for the Commission and for the respondents, and the Commission having duly considered the record and being fully advised in the premises finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and the conclusion drawn therefrom:

6. All the labels mentioned and referred to are labels that are printed on and have been printed on the white paper of which the cartons or packages were made and they cover the respective top, sides and ends of the cartons with the exception of the narrow edges formed by the sides and ends. PAR. 5. During all the times above mentioned and referred to, besides the respondents and the respondents' competitor above referred to, other individuals, firms, and corporations hereinafter referred to as sellers, located in the various States of the United States, are and have been engaged in the business of the manufacture and of the sale of toothpicks to dealers located in the District of Columbia and in the various States of the United States for resale to members of the public, users of toothpicks.

The sellers have caused the toothpicks, when sold by them, respectively, to be transported from the State of the seller or from the State of origin of the shipment to, into, and through other States and the District of Columbia, to the purchasers.

Par. 6. During all the times above mentioned and referred to, the respondents are and have been in substantial competition in interstate commerce with the other individuals, firms, and corporations referred to as sellers in paragraph 5 hereof, including the competitor of respondents referred to in paragraph 3 hereof, in the sale of toothpicks, including the toothpicks mentioned and referred to in paragraph 4 hereof.

Par. 7. The pictorial design on the labels on the cartons of the respondents mentioned and described in paragraph 4 hereof, in which respondents sold toothpicks that were made in and imported from a foreign country, closely imitated in color and other respects the pictorial design on the label on the flat top side of the cartons in which toothpicks were sold by the competitor of the respondents referred to in paragraph 3 hereof. The printed matter on the labels on respondents' cartons was in the same size type and printed in the same or approximately the same colors and in substantially the same arrangement as in the case of the labels on the cartons of the respondents' competitor, as set forth respectively in paragraphs 3 and 4 hereof, and in those respects imitated the printed matter on the labels on the cartons of their competitor.

Par. 8. The effect of the design and arrangement of the printed matter above described on respondents' labels or cartons was the simulation by respondents of the cartons or packages of their said competitor. Such simulation by the respondents of the cartons and labels of their competitor had at all the times above mentioned and referred to the capacity and tendency to confuse, deceive, and mislead the trade and public and was calculated to, and it did, confuse, deceive, and mislead the trade and public into the belief that the toothpicks which were made in a foreign country and sold by respondents were toothpicks made in the United States and sold by respondents' competitor; and in reliance upon such erroneous belief, into purchasing the respondents' toothpicks instead of the toothpicks made in the United States and sold by respondents' competitors. By such means the respondents were enabled to pass off and they did pass off their said toothpicks as and for the toothpicks of their competitors.

PAR. 9. In consequence of the practices of the respondents above set forth, trade in toothpicks was diverted to the respondents from competitors to the substantial injury and prejudice of such competitors and to the substantial injury and prejudice of the public.

CONCLUSION

The practices of the respondents, Harry Greenberg and Leo Josefsberg, doing business under the above mentioned trade names, under the conditions and circumstances described in the foregoing findings, were to the prejudice and injury of competitors of the respondents and were to the prejudice and injury of the public, and were unfair methods of competition in commerce and constitute a violation of the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes.”

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

It is now ordered, That the respondents, Harry Greenberg & Leo Josefsberg, copartners, doing business under the trade names Greenberg & Josefsberg, G. & J. Manufacturing Co., G. & J. Products, and American Merchandise Co., or under any other trade name, their agents, representatives, and employees, in the sale and offering for sale of toothpicks or other merchandise in interstate commerce, do—

Cease and desist from selling or offering for sale, or causing others to sell or offer toothpicks or other merchandise for sale in boxes, cartons or other packages, whose dress or appearance, when sold to dealers for resale or to the public for use or consumption, is contrived or otherwise formed with or without the use of attached labels, by means of pictorial or other designs or printed words or statements in type of the same or approximately the same size, form and arrangement, in white or black or in colors, so that the dress or appearance simulates the dress or appearance of boxes, cartons, or other packages, in which similar merchandise is sold or offered for sale by a competitor, with the effect that the dress or appearance of the boxes, cartons or packages has the capacity and tendency to confuse, deceive and mislead dealers and members of the public into the belief that respondents' toothpicks or merchandise are toothpicks or merchandise of the competitor.

It is further ordered, That the respondents, Harry Greenberg and Leo Josefsberg, shall within 30 days after the service of this order file with the Federal Trade Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with the order to cease and desist.
IN THE MATTER OF

DOUGLAS P. BORDEN, TRADING AS MORMILES

Consent order requiring respondent, his agents, etc., in connection with the sale or offer of automobile tires in interstate commerce, to cease and desist from—

(a) Representing in any manner that any automobile tires, the reconditioning of which has been limited to the repair of worn or damaged portions and to vulcanizing and painting the tires so that they will present a new appearance, and to regrooving treads which have worn smooth by cutting through the smooth face a tread design, are reconstructed tires; or

(b) Representing in any manner that said tires so sold and distributed by him have their original treads when such is not the fact.

Mr. Astor Hogg for the Commission.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Douglas P. Borden, an individual, trading as Mormiles, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has been and is using unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, states its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent is, and at all times hereinafter mentioned was an individual trading as Mormiles, with his principal place of business located in the city of Chicago, in the State of Illinois. He is, and for more than one year last past has been engaged in the business of repairing partially used or discarded automobile tires and in the sale and distribution thereof. His sales are to wholesalers and retailers located throughout the United States and the District of Columbia, and pursuant to such sales, shipments are made from respondent's place of business in Chicago, Ill., into and through various States of the United States other than the State of the point of origin of such shipments and in the District of Columbia. There are in the United States other persons, firms, and corporations engaged in the business of repairing partially used or discarded automobile tires and the sale and distribution thereof, who, pursuant to such sales, ship their products into and through the various States of the United States other than the States of the point of origin of such shipments, and with such other persons, firms, and corporations respondent is, and at all times hereinafter mentioned has been in active and substantial competition.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent purchases and has purchased used and discarded automobile tires from various sources, which tires he causes to be repaired by one or more or all of the following operations thereon, viz, (1) replacing torn or rotten fabric in the body of the tires, (2) adding new rubber where necessary in the side walls and vulcanizing, (3) regrooving treads which had or have worn smooth by cutting through the smooth face a design simulating the design of the manufacturer of the tire, and (4) upon completion of the said repair work, painting the tire to give it a fresh appearance. After repairing the tires, as alleged herein, respondent engaged and still engages in the sale and distribution thereof in the manner set out in paragraph 1 hereof.

PAR. 3. Respondent, in aid of the sale of said tires, advertises in magazines and newspapers published in many of the States of the United States, and also in letters on stationery and in circulars sent to his customers and prospective customers residing in the several States in the United States. In and through such media, respondent has made and still makes the following representations concerning such tires:

(a) Mormiles Reconstructed Tires Guaranteed Five Thousand Miles. Mormiles Reconstructed Tires can be had in all leading makes — Firestone — Goodyear — General — U. S.—Goodrich. They are shipped to you with original tread and each one carries a Five Thousand Mile guarantee.

(b) Guaranteed for Five Thousand Miles. There are more miles of transportation in Mormiles Reconstructed Quality Tires than in new low-priced tires, and the price is less than half.  Original treads on all Mormiles Reconstructed Tires.

(c) Mormiles tire regroovers and vulcanizers. Full line of reconstructed tires. Car dealers are making a nice profit on their used cars when they equip them with Mormiles Reconstructed Tires—Guaranteed for Five Thousand Miles.

(d) Send us a trial order today and you will always use Mormiles Reconstructed Tires on your resale cars.
PAR. 4. The statements and representations made by respondent in his advertising as set forth in paragraph 3 hereof are false and misleading in this, to wit:

(1) The automobile tires advertised, sold and distributed by respondent, as alleged in paragraphs 1, 2, and 3 hereof, are not reconstructed tires, and the repairing of said tires in the manner herein referred to, is not such as to be properly represented, designated, or referred to as "reconstructed".

(2) The repaired tires do not in all instances contain their original treads as alleged, but are provided or equipped with a tread so cut or vulcanized as to simulate the original tread.

PAR. 5. The false and misleading statements and representations used by respondent in aid of the sale of said tires, as set forth in paragraph 3 hereof, had and have the capacity and tendency to induce the purchasing public to purchase and use respondent's said automobile tires in the belief that said statements and representations made as to them are true, and had and have the capacity and tendency to unfairly divert trade from competitors of respondent engaged in the sale in interstate commerce of like automobile tires to the respondent, which said competitors truthfully and honestly advertise and represent their products.

PAR. 6. The acts and things done by respondent are to the injury and prejudice of the public and the competitors of respondent in interstate commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

with the provisions of paragraph (b) of Rule V of the Rules of Practice of the Commission, an order to cease and desist from the practices alleged in the complaint in connection with the sale of automobile tires in interstate commerce and the Commission now being fully advised in the premises—

Borden, individually or trading as Mormiles, or trading under any other name, his agents, representatives, servants, and employees, in connection with the sale or offering for sale or distribution of automobile tires in interstate commerce, do cease and desist from:

(a) Representing in any manner that any automobile tires, the reconditioning of which has been limited to the repair of worn or damaged portions and to vulcanizing and painting the tires so that they will present a new appearance, and to regrooving treads which have worn smooth by cutting through the smooth face a tread design, are reconstructed tires; or

(b) Representing in any manner that said tires so sold and distributed by him have their original treads when such is not the fact.

It is further ordered, That the respondent within 60 days after the service upon him of this order shall file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with the order to cease and desist hereinabove set out.

IN THE MATTER OF

LOUISE NORRIS, TRADING AS LOUISE NORRIS CO.

COMPLAINT AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Consent order requiring respondent, her agents, etc., in connection with the sale or offer in interstate commerce of the product “Louise Norris Permanent Lash and Brow Coloring”, to cease and desist from representing by radio or other advertising, labels, photographs, printed testimonials, booklets or in any other way that said product when used in coloring the eyelashes or eyebrows is harmless, scientifically or scientifically compounded, has been perfected by medical authorities so as not to be dangerous when used as directed, or that its use has been approved by the Government or boards of health.

Mr. E. J. Hornibrook for the Commission.

Mr. Richard B. Kirwan, of Kansas City, Mo., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Louise Norris, trading as Louise Norris Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has been or is using unfair methods of competition in commerce as “commerce” is defined in said act, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereto would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Louise Norris, is an individual trading as Louise Norris Co. with her office and principal place of business in Kansas City, State of Missouri.

At and from said city and under said trade name, she is now and for several years last past, has been engaged in the sale of beauty shop preparations, among which is a product sold by her for use by women in the coloring of their eyelashes and eyebrows, under the name of “Louise Norris Permanent Lash and Brow Coloring”.

Par. 2. This said product, described in paragraph 1 hereof, is sold by respondent principally to wholesalers and jobbers of beautifying products in the several States of the United States, who sell the same to beauty parlors and shops, also located in the several States of the United States and the latter sell the same to the consuming public. A small proportion of said product is sold by respondent direct to members of the consuming public residing in the several States of the United States.

Respondent, when said product is so sold by her, causes the same to be shipped from said Kansas City, State of Missouri, into and through other States of the United States, to her said purchasers at their respective places of business or residence.

Par. 3. In the sale of the said "Louise Norris Permanent Lash and Brow Coloring" respondent is in substantial competition with corporations, copartnerships, and individuals engaged in selling and offering for sale in interstate commerce of compounds, chemicals, or materials for use and used in the coloring of eyelashes and eyebrows of women.

Par. 4. Respondent, in aid of the sale of said "Louise Norris Permanent Lash and Brow Coloring", has advertised and is advertising the same in newspapers, magazines and periodicals of general circulation in the United States and in pamphlets, booklets, letters, bulletins, printed testimonials, and other printed matter and by and through the use of photographs and other pictures and on labels attached to the containers thereof and inclosed in such containers caused by respondent to be circulated among consumers and prospective consumers of said product who reside in the several States of the United States. In and through said advertising media respondent makes the following among other false and misleading representations:

(1) That said product is safe and harmless.
(2) That it is scientific.
(3) That it is approved by the United States Government and health boards.
(4) That medical authorities of high repute helped to perfect it.

Par. 5. The representations set forth in the paragraph last above are false and misleading in that:

1. Said product is not safe and harmless; it contains dangerous drugs or chemicals and its use as directed may and at times does result in inflammation or poisoning of the skin, ulceration, and sloughing thereof, toxic effects and other illnesses, and may cause blindness or death.

2. Said product is not a scientific product, nor is it scientifically compounded.
3. Said product is not and never has been approved by the United States Government or boards of health and the boards of health of three of the great cities of the United States have excluded it from sale therein.

4. Medical authorities of high repute or other medical authorities have not helped to perfect such product and such product is not now and never has been perfected so as not to be potentially harmful and dangerous when used as directed by respondent.

PAR. 6. Each and all of the said representations described in paragraph 4 hereof have and have had the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that they are true, and each and all of the said representations have and have had the tendency and capacity to induce the purchase of said respondent's product and have and have had the tendency and capacity to divert trade from and otherwise injure respondent's said competitors.

PAR. 7. The above alleged acts and practices are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

The respondent having been granted by the Commission permission to withdraw its original answer filed herein on the 12th day of June 1935, and having so withdrawn such answer and having filed in lieu thereof a consent answer in which respondent consents, agrees and states that she desires to waive hearing on the charges set forth in the complaint herein and not to contest this proceeding, and refrains from contesting the same and consents, agrees and states that the Federal Trade Commission without trial, without evidence, and without findings as to the facts may make, enter, issue, and serve upon her an order to cease and desist from the violations of the law alleged in the complaint,

Now, therefore, This proceeding having come on to be heard by the Federal Trade Commission on the complaint of the Commission, and the said consent answer of respondent, and the Commission being fully advised in the premises—

It is ordered, That respondent, Louise Norris, trading as Louise Norris Co., or trading under any other name or style, her agents, employees, or representatives, in connection with the sale or offering for sale in interstate commerce of the product "Louise Norris Permanent Lash and Brow Coloring", cease and desist from representing in newspapers, magazines, or periodicals, or in or through any other advertising media, including radio broadcasts, or by or through the use of pamphlets, booklets, letters, bulletins, printed testimonials, or by or through the use of photographs, pictures, or printed matter of any kind, or by or through the use of labels or in any other manner or way, that said product when used in the coloring or dyeing of the eyelashes or eyebrows of human beings:

(1) Is safe or harmless.
(2) May be used without danger to the skin, the eyes, the eyesight and the health of users thereof.
(3) Is a scientific product.
(4) Is scientifically compounded.
(5) Its use as an eyelash or eyebrow coloring has been approved by the United States Government or boards of health.
(6) That medical authorities of high repute or other medical authorities have helped to perfect said product, or that the same is now or ever has been perfected so as not to be dangerous when used as directed.

It is further ordered, That respondent shall, within 60 days after the service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which she has complied with this order.

These respondents manufacture the total supply of fire hose and chemical hose in the United States.

PAR. 6. In or about the month of May, 1933, the corporate respondents, and other members of the association respondent, acting with and through the association respondent, entered into and thereafter carried out an agreement, combination and conspiracy, as hereinafter more particularly set forth, for the purpose of restraining trade in mechanical rubber goods, including fire hose and chemical hose, fixing prices at which such commodities should be and would be sold, suppressing competition among corporate respondents in their sales to wholesalers, dealers and consumers, suppressing competition among dealers in said commodities, and suppressing competition between said corporate respondents and dealers in sales to consumers of such commodities. Par. 7. In forming said agreement, combination, and conspiracy, and to carry out and accomplish its purposes, the respondents have done and performed, and still do and perform, the following acts and things:

(1) Corporate respondents, with other members of the association respondent, acting through and with the association respondent—

(a) Agreed to fix from time to time, and did fix from time to time, uniform prices at which all would and did sell rubber goods, including fire hose and chemical hose.

(b) Agreed to fix from time to time, and did fix from time to time, uniform prices at which their wholesaler and retailer customers should resell such rubber goods.

(c) From time to time agreed upon uniform prices to be quoted by them in response to invitations by cities and other governmental and public agencies.

(d) Agreed to file, and from time to time filed, with the association respondent the prices at which they would sell such rubber goods, agreed that such prices would be, and such prices were, uniform as among said respondents, and agreed that none would sell below the prices so filed.

(e) Agreed upon the terms and conditions that were to be a part of all sales made, including, but without limitation, discounts for cash and allowance for freight.

(f) Investigated all reported departures by any manufacturer of such rubber goods from the prices and terms of sale so agreed upon and fixed, and by mass action and mass persuasion forced the manufacturer so departing from such agreements to rectify such departure.

(g) Agreed to refuse to supply, and did refuse to supply, any wholesaler or retailer with their said products who failed or refused to quote or to sell at prices fixed by these respondents as alleged in subdivision (b) above, and agreed to and did close to such offending wholesaler or retailer all sources of supply.
(2) Respondent members and administrative officers of the Master Code Authority and of the Divisional Code Authority, acting under color of office and employing power and authority pretended by them to be theirs as members and administrative officers of such Code Authorities, which pretended powers and authority were not given them by any provisions of the said Code, but which were expressly withheld from them by Article VIII thereof, have cooperated with and aided the association respondent and the corporate respondents in carrying out and accomplishing the purposes of said agreement, combination and conspiracy, alleged in paragraph 6 hereof, by—

(a) Investigating, checking, exhorting, advising, and requiring the several members of the industry under their jurisdiction to adhere to certain prices on mechanical rubber goods and particularly fire hose, which prices they knew were fixed by agreement as alleged in paragraph 7 hereof.

(b) Interpreting, construing and enforcing rules with respect to uniform terms of sale, to the end that no discount or price advantage accrue to any customer of the members of the industry.

(c) Arbitrarily and without authority classifying buyers without giving them a chance to be heard, and enforcing such classification on the industry in the face of direction of the National Recovery Administrator to the contrary.

(d) Advising, encouraging and assisting members of the industry not to grant to the Federal Government, State governments, and municipalities the benefits of price competition contemplated by Executive Order 6767 of the President of the United States.

(e) Encouraging, assisting and cooperating with members of the industry in requiring wholesalers and retailers to maintain resale prices fixed by agreement of the corporate respondents.

(f) Actively assisting and cooperating with the members of the industry in the conduct of boycotts directed against those who did not maintain resale prices dictated by the corporate respondents.

Par. 8. The said agreement, combination and conspiracy and the things done thereunder and pursuant thereto, as hereinabove alleged, have had and have the effect of unduly restraining trade among the States of the Union in rubber goods, particularly fire hose and chemical hose; of substantially suppressing competition among the respondents in sales to wholesalers, retailers and consumers, and among wholesalers in their sales to retailers, and among retailers in their sales to consumers, and between respondents and retailers in their sales to consumers; of substantially enhancing prices to the consuming public and maintaining prices at artificial levels; and otherwise depriving the public of the benefits that would flow from normal competition among and between the respondents, wholesalers and retailers. And such agreement, combination and conspiracy and the things done thereunder and pursuant thereto, as above alleged, constitute unfair methods of competition within the meaning of the Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, above entitled, and are to the prejudice of the public interest.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

The Commission having the above matter under consideration, and it appearing that the respondents, with the exception of J. D. Lippman and A. B. Newhall, have made application to withdraw the answers heretofore filed by them, and tender in lieu thereof consent answers under the Rules of Practice of the Commission, wherein said respondents, although insisting that all things done by them were warranted by the Code for this industry formulated and approved under the National Industrial Recovery Act, and therefore done in good faith, nevertheless waive hearing on the charges set forth in the complaint and consent that the Commission may make, enter, issue, and serve upon them, without hearing, without evidence, and without findings as to the facts, an order to cease and desist from the methods of competition alleged in the complaint.

And the Commission having duly considered the complaint and such answers and being fully advised in the premises—

It is therefore ordered, That the respondents, The Rubber Manufacturers Association, Inc., a corporation; A. L. Viles, O. C. Pahline, F. D. Hendrickson, R. E. Drake, Wm. Lichtenstein, B. B. Felix, F. Order; Thermoid Rubber Company, a corporation; United States Rubber Products, Inc., a corporation; and Whitehead Brothers Rubber Company, a corporation; be and hereby are permitted to withdraw the answers heretofore filed by them, and to file consent answers in lieu thereof, and the substituted answers tendered are received and filed.

It is further ordered, That said corporate respondents, except the respondent association, their officers, agents, representatives, and employees, forthwith cease and desist, in connection with the business of selling and offering for sale mechanical rubber goods, including fire hose and chemical hose, in interstate commerce, from doing and performing, by understanding, agreement or combination among themselves or between or among any two or more of them, or with others, acting directly or by or through the respondent association, the following acts and things:

(1) Fixing prices, at which said commodities would be sold.
(2) Fixing prices at which their wholesaler and retailer customers would be required to sell such commodities.
(3) Fixing prices at which they would sell, or offer to sell, such commodities to cities, States and other governmental and public agencies.
(4) In any manner communicating to one another, or other manufacturers or competitors, the price at which they proposed or intended to sell commodities in the future, for the purpose and with the effect of hindering or preventing competition between and among themselves, or any two or more of them, or with others; provided that nothing herein shall prevent the disclosure of future prices in the ordinary course of business.
(5) Fixing uniform terms and conditions of sale under which they propose to sell such commodities, for the purpose or with the effect of hindering or preventing competition.
(6) Seeking to influence or persuade competing manufacturers or dealers with regard to the price at which such competitor or competitors would or should sell such commodities, for the purpose or with the effect of suppressing or hindering or preventing competition.
(7) Refusing to supply such commodities to any wholesaler or retailer, or other customer because he failed or refused to quote, or agree to quote, or sell at prices fixed by them.
(8) Classifying buyers or prospective buyers of such commodities for the purpose and with the effect of suppressing or preventing competition among themselves, or any two or more of them, or with others.
It is further ordered, That said individual respondents, A. L. Viles, O. C. Pahline, F. D. Hendrickson, R. E. Drake, Wm. Lichtenstein, B. B. Felix, F. Thatcher Lane, W. L. Finger, J. H. Connors, H. N. Young, C. D. Garretson, A. D. Kunze and Hamilton Abert, their agents and representatives, acting as individuals or in a representative capacity as members or officers of a code authority or other organization, forthwith cease and desist from doing or performing, or aiding, assisting or cooperating with the other respondents or any of them in doing or performing, any of the acts or things restrained by the above terms of this order.

The Commission finding that respondents, J. D. Lippman and A. B. Newhall, have only recently become members of the Code Authority for the Rubber Industry and did not participate in any of the activities of the Code Authority during the time the acts and things alleged in the complaint were done, it is ordered that the complaint as to these two respondents be dismissed.

It is further ordered, That within 60 days from the date of the service of this order upon said respondents, they shall file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which this order has been complied with.

IN THE MATTER OF

BAKER PAINT & VARNISH COMPANY

Consent order requiring respondent company, its officers, etc., in connection with the sale, offer or distribution of paints in interstate commerce, to cease and desist from using the words "Baker's Z & L Combination WHITE Ground in strictly pure Refined Linseed Oil", or the words "zinc and lead" or "zinc lead", or words or initials of like tenor or substance to describe, advertise, brand or label paint or paint pigment, unless and until the pigment in such paint is composed wholly of lead carbonate and zinc oxide, or lead sulphate and zinc oxide in sufficient quantity and proportion to be substantial and effective.

Mr. Astor Hogg for the Commission.

Complaint

Paragraph 1. Respondent is and at all times hereinafter mentioned was a corporation organized, created and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New Jersey, having its main office and principal place of business in the city of Jersey City in said State. It is and for more than two years last past has been engaged in the business of selling and distributing paint and paint materials to dealers and consumers located throughout the United States and in the District of Columbia, and pursuant to such sales shipments are made to the respective purchasers thereof from respondent's place of business in Jersey City, N. J., into and through various States of the United States other than the State or point of origin of such shipments and in the District of Columbia. There are in the United States other corporations, persons, and firms engaged in the business of selling and distributing paint and paint materials who, pursuant to such sales, ship their products into and through the various States of the United States other than the States or points of origin of such shipments, and with such other corporations, persons, and firms respondent is and at all times hereinafter mentioned has been in active and substantial competition.

Par. 2. Among the products sold and distributed by respondent as set forth in paragraph 1 hereof, is a white paint material which material respondent brands, designates, and describes as "Baker's Z & L Combination WHITE Ground in strictly pure Refined Linseed Oil." For more than two years last past respondent has offered for sale and sold and continues to offer for sale and sells said product packed in pails or containers of the capacity of 50 pounds, 25 pounds, and 12½ pounds, all conspicuously branded with the words "Baker's Z & L Combination WHITE Ground in strictly pure Refined Linseed Oil"; and it has further caused and still causes said product to be advertised, represented, offered for sale and sold as and for, and under the brand, designation, and description of "Baker's Z & L Combination WHITE Ground in strictly pure Refined Linseed Oil", and as and for a product whose pigment is composed wholly or in greater part of lead carbonate or lead sulphate and oxide of zinc, or a mixture thereof, whereas in truth and in fact said product is not zinc oxide nor white lead, nor is it a product whose pigment is composed in whole or in greater proportion of lead carbonate or lead sulphate and zinc oxide or a mixture thereof, but the pigment of said product consists principally, predominantly and in greater proportion of other inert materials. The word "Baker's Z & L Combination WHITE Ground in strictly pure Refined Linseed Oil" in the paint trade and to the purchasing and consuming public mean a paint pigment consisting of zinc and lead in approximately equal proportions. Respondent's so-called "Baker's Z & L Combination WHITE Ground in strictly pure Refined Linseed Oil" product is inferior in quality to said zinc oxide and lead as understood by the trade and purchasing public.

Par. 3. Respondent's branding and representing and describing its product referred to in paragraph 2 hereof, as "Baker's Z & L Combination WHITE Ground in strictly pure Refined Linseed Oil" and as and for a product whose pigment consists solely or in greater part of lead carbonate or lead sulphate and zinc oxide, or a mixture thereof, is false, misleading, and deceptive, and had and has the capacity and tendency to and does mislead and deceive a substantial part of the trade and purchasing and consuming public into the erroneous belief that said product is zinc oxide and lead as understood in paint trade and by the purchasing and consuming public, or that the pigment of said product is composed of lead carbonate or lead sulphate and zinc oxide or a mixture thereof.

Par. 4. The acts and practices of respondent of branding, selling and representing its said product as hereinabove set forth has the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive the purchasing public and places in the hands of dealers in said product a means and instrument for committing fraud and deception upon the public, and a means and instrument by which said product may be and is sold and delivered to and purchased by the purchasing and consuming public under and because of the erroneous belief set forth in paragraph 3 hereof.

Par. 5. There are, among the competitors of respondent mentioned in paragraph 1 hereof, many individuals, partnerships and corporations which sell and distribute in competition with respondent, and in interstate commerce, paint materials similar in general appearance to respondent's so-called "Baker's Z & L Combination WHITE Ground in strictly pure Refined Linseed Oil", and which are in fact zinc oxide and lead whose pigment is composed for the greater part of lead carbonate or lead sulphate and zinc oxide or a mixture thereof, which competitors in nowise misrepresent the character of said material or its ingredients. Respondent's acts and practices hereinabove set forth have the capacity and tendency to, and do, unfairly divert trade from said competitors.

Par. 6. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, in the sale and distribution of its said product, under the circumstances and conditions set forth herein, are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission, on June 6, 1935, issued its complaint against the above named respondent, in which it is alleged that respondent is and has been using unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce in violation of Section 5 of said Act. On June 21, 1935, the respondent filed its answer to the said complaint, wherein it states that it refrains from contesting the proceedings herein.

Pursuant to the provisions of paragraph (b) of Rule V of the Commission's Rules of Practice (a copy of which provisions were set forth in the notice attached to the complaint which was served upon respondent) respondent admits the allegations of the complaint, waives hearing thereon and authorizes the Commission, without a trial, without evidence and without findings as to the facts or other intervening procedure to make, enter, issue and serve upon it an order to cease and desist from the practices alleged in the complaint, in connection with the sale in interstate commerce of paint; and the Commission being now fully advised in the premises:

It is ordered, That respondent, Baker Paint and Varnish Company, its officers, agents, servants, representatives and employees, in connection with the sale or offering for sale, or distribution of paints in interstate commerce, do cease and desist from:

Using the words “Baker's Z & L Combination WHITE Ground in strictly pure Refined Linseed Oil”; or the words “zinc and lead” or “zinc lead”, or words or initials of like tenor, import or substance to describe, advertise, brand or label paint or paint pigment, unless and until the pigment in such paint is composed of a combination consisting wholly of lead carbonate and zinc oxide, or a combination of lead sulphate and zinc oxide, each in sufficient quantity and proportion to be substantial and effective.

It is further ordered, That respondent, within 60 days after the service upon it of this order, shall file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order to cease and desist hereinabove set out.
IN THE MATTER OF

WILLIAM LITTMAN AND MAX LITTMAN, COWPARTNERS, DOING BUSINESS UNDER THE TRADE NAME AND STYLE OF IMPERIAL LABORATORIES

Where an individual engaged in the manufacture of permanent hair waving appliances and products, including a permanent hair waving lotion and permanent wave sachets sent to customers through the United States in response to orders secured by advertisements in leaflets and booklets, describing said products,—

(a) Included the word "Laboratories" in his trade name and prominently featured the same in his aforesaid advertising and represented that said lotion had been perfected by leading chemists, the facts being said preparation was compounded by him at his place of business in which the only equipment consisted of three chemical vats, electrical burning equipment, stoves and weighing scales, and he did not have in his employ any chemist, though employing a consulting chemist who checked the product at the laboratory of the university in which said chemist was an instructor, after its preparation by said individual, nor did he have a laboratory for the making and compounding of such lotion and other similar products, to wit, at the least, a microscope and soapstone sink, soapstone furnace and canopy, glass retort stills, proper density machines, measuring glasses, hydrometers and temperature glasses; and

(b) Represented that said lotion would wave hair of any character without drying or altering its texture, and the felt used in his sachets was treated so that it would absorb the lotion evenly, assuring a uniform steaming of every curl applied, facts being process of putting permanent waves into the hair necessarily changes texture thereof, and the felt in said sachets had not been treated so that it absorbed the lotion evenly and assured uniform steaming of every curl to which applied;

With capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive the purchasing public into the belief that he maintained a laboratory in which his products were analyzed, compounded and tested, and cause public to purchase his said lotion because of the erroneous belief so engendered, and divert business to himself, to the substantial injury and prejudice of competitors, among whom there are those who truthfully and correctly advertise their said products, and do not in any way misrepresent their trade status, or falsely represent that they maintain and operate a laboratory or laboratories in which their products are compounded:

Held, That such practices, under the conditions and circumstances set forth, were all to the injury and prejudice of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Complaint

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission charges that William Littman and Max Littman, copartners doing business under the trade name and style of Imperial Laboratories, hereinafter referred to as the respondents, have been and are using unfair methods of competition in commerce as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondents are copartners doing business under the trade name and style of Imperial Laboratories, with their place of business in the city of New York, N. Y. Said copartners, trading under the name of Imperial Laboratories, are now and have been for more than two years last past engaged in the business of manufacturing permanent wave appliances and products and in the sale and distribution of said products in interstate commerce to the purchasing and consuming public throughout the several States of the United States. Respondents cause their said products when so sold to be transported from their said place of business in the State of New York into and through other States of the United States to the purchasers thereof located in States of the United States other than the State of origin of such shipment, and in the District of Columbia, and in so carrying on their business respondents maintain a constant current of trade and commerce in said products between the State of New York and other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of their said business, respondents are in competition with other corporations, partnerships and individuals engaged in the sale and distribution of like products in commerce between and among various States of the United States, and in the District of Columbia, which products so sold and distributed by such competitors are to be used for purposes similar to those purposes for which respondents' products are to be used.

Paragraph 2. In the course and conduct of their business respondents have adopted as and for a trade name under which to carry on their said business the words "Imperial Laboratories" and have used said trade name and featured the same in advertisements and advertising matter, letterheads, circulars and other media widely circulated in interstate commerce. In truth and in fact, said William Littman and Max Littman do not own, control or operate any place devoted to experimental study in any branch of natural science or to the application of scientific principles in testing and analyzing or in the preparation of drugs or chemicals, and have never owned, controlled or operated any such place so devoted to such uses. The use by respondents, William Littman and Max Littman, of the word "Laboratories" in their corporate name and in their advertising is false and misleading.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of their business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondents, William Littman and Max Littman, trading under the name of Imperial Laboratories, in order to aid the sale of their said products, have caused to be published certain leaflets, booklets, and circulars, and other similar publications, and have distributed the said booklets, leaflets, circulars, and other publications throughout various States of the United States, in which said booklets, leaflets, circulars and other publications respondents have made numerous false and misleading statements and representations, among which are the following:

Our lotion, which has been perfected by leading chemists, is made of the finest ingredients. It will wave hair of any character without drying or altering its texture • • •

The felt used in our sachets is treated so that it will absorb the lotion evenly, assuring the uniform steaming of every curl applied.

In truth and in fact:

(a) Said product has not been "perfected by leading chemists" nor has the formula thereof been invented or improved by such chemists.

(b) Said process of permanent waving would not and does not wave hair of any character without drying it or altering its texture.

(c) The felt used in the sachets has not been treated in any way which has rendered it "superior" nor is it "superior" to ordinary felt.

PAR. 4. There are among the competitors of respondents described in paragraph 1 hereof manufacturers, sellers and distributors of like hair wave products and who, in truth, own, operate and use laboratories for making up and compounding such products; there are also among such competitors persons, firms and corporations which do not own or operate laboratories and who do not make such representations as those made by respondents as set out in paragraph 3.

PAR. 5. The said representations made by respondents about their products, as set forth in paragraphs 3 and 4 hereof, and the use of the trade name "Imperial Laboratories" as set out in paragraph 2 hereof, have the capacity and tendency to deceive the purchasing public and induce purchasers to buy the products of respondents in and on account of the belief that said representations are true. Said representations have had and do have the tendency and capacity to induce purchases of respondents' products because of the erroneous belief that they are true, and thus divert trade to respondents from competitors of respondents engaged in the sale in interstate commerce of such products as sold and distributed by respondents which said competitors truthfully and honestly advertise and represent their products.

Paragraph 6. The acts and things done by respondents are to the injury and prejudice of the public and the competitors of respondents in interstate commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission issued and served a complaint upon the respondents, William Littman and Max Littman, copartners trading under the name and style of Imperial Laboratories, charging them with unfair methods of competition in violation of Section 5 of said Act, and respondents duly filed their answer thereto. Thereafter, respondents having entered their appearance, testimony was taken and evidence received in support of the complaint and on behalf of respondents, and duly reduced to writing and recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Subsequently, this proceeding came on for final hearing on the record and the Commission having duly considered the record and the briefs and oral arguments of counsel for the Commission and the respondents, and being fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and the conclusion drawn therefrom:

Findings as to the Facts

Paragraph 1. The place of business of respondent William Littman is located in the city of New York, State of New York. Respondent William Littman is engaged in the business of manufacturing permanent wave appliances and products and in the sale and distribution of said products in interstate commerce to the purchasing and consuming public throughout the several States of the United States causes said products when so sold to be transported from his place of business in New York, through, and into other States of the United States to his said vendees at their respective points of location and residence. In the course and conduct of his said business respondent William Littman is in competition with other individuals and with firms, partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of like products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, which products so sold and distributed by such competitors are used for purposes similar to those purposes for which respondent's products are used.

William Littman is the sole owner and operator of the business of Imperial Laboratories. Max Littman neither owns or controls or has any interest in the business of Imperial Laboratories.

PAR. 2. Respondent William Littman does business under the name and style of Imperial Laboratories and in the course and conduct of his business causes advertisements, leaflets, booklets, and circulars, describing his permanent hair waving lotion and permanent wave sachets to be sent by mail to customers and prospective customers throughout the United States. Through said means respondent obtains many orders for the hair wave lotion and permanent wave sachets and upon receiving said orders respondent fills the same and completes the sales thus made by causing said products so ordered and sold to be transported from his said place of business in the city of New York, State of New York, to such vendees at their respective points of location in States other than the State of New York.

PAR. 3. In all of his said advertisements, leaflets, booklets, circulars, and other trade literature which he sends to customers and prospective customers, respondent William Littman causes his aforesaid trade name, Imperial Laboratories, to be prominently featured and set forth.

The lotion sold and distributed by respondent is compounded by him at his place of business at 303 Fourth Avenue, New York, N. Y. The lotion is made up of ingredients purchased by him on the open market in New York, N. Y. The only equipment which respondent, William Littman, has at the place where the lotion is compounded consists of three chemical vats or crocks, electrical burning equipment used in burning the ingredients, stoves, and scales for weighing the chemicals. He does not have in his employ any chemist for the compounding or mixing his lotion. He employs two of his brothers, neither of whom are chemists, who mix or compound the ingredients that make up the lotion. He does employ a consulting chemist who is an instructor at Columbia University. After the lotion has been compounded by respondent at his place of business, this consulting chemist tests the product at the laboratory of Columbia University. But no test of the product is made at the place of business of respondent, William Littman, and at no time or at any place are the ingredients that make up the lotion tested.

A laboratory, for the making and compounding of lotions and other products of the nature of those made and compounded by respondent, William Littman, has in attendance for the purpose of compounding and testing such products, a chemist or chemists. Such laboratory must at least have the following equipment: A microscope and soapstone sink, together with soapstone furnace with a canopy covering thereon to take off the fumes when the fumes burn the different ingredients; glass retort stills to distill different items; proper machines to determine the density of the product; and measuring glasses and different kinds of hydrometers and temperature glasses. Respondent William Littman did not and does not have in his establishment in which his products are prepared, mixed and compounded any of the equipment specified in this paragraph as is necessary for the purpose of analyzing, testing and compounding the product prepared and sold by him nor does he have nor did he have at any time at such establishment a chemist or chemists in attendance for the purpose of analyzing, testing, and compounding his products. Said respondent does not and did not own, operate or maintain a laboratory for testing, analyzing, or compounding the products sold by him as above stated.

PAR. 4. Respondent in his leaflets, booklets, circulars and other advertising literature, makes the following false and misleading statements and representations regarding his products:

Our lotion, which has been perfected by leading chemists, is made of the finest ingredients. It will wave hair of any character without drying or altering its texture • • •.

The felt used in our sachets is treated so that it will absorb the lotion evenly, assuring a uniform steaming of every curl applied.

The permanent hair wave lotion sold and distributed by respondent, William Littman, under the representations hereinabove set out, has not been and is not perfected by leading chemists. The process of putting permanent waves into hair necessarily changes the texture thereof. Respondent’s lotion will not serve to wave the hair without altering the texture of the hair. The sachets sold and distributed by the respondent consist of felt attached to pieces of aluminum foil. The felt so sold and distributed has not been treated so that it will absorb the lotion evenly, assuring a uniform steaming of every curl to which it is applied.

Par. 5. There are in the United States many individuals, firms, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution in interstate commerce of permanent hair waving lotions and permanent wave sachets who truthfully and correctly advertise their products and who do not in any way misrepresent their trade status or falsely represent that they maintain and operate a laboratory or laboratories where their products are compounded.

The use of the term "laboratories" or "laboratory" by respondent has the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive the purchasing public into the belief that respondent maintains and operates a laboratory where his products are analyzed, compounded and tested and has the capacity and tendency to cause said public to purchase his lotions because of the erroneous belief so engendered.

The acts and practices all as hereinabove set forth have the capacity and tendency to divert business to respondent, to the substantial injury and prejudice of competitors.

CONCLUSION

The practices of said respondent, William Littman, under the conditions and circumstances hereinbefore set forth are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and are in violation of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard and considered by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondents thereto, the testimony, evidence, briefs and argument, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts with its conclusion that William Littman, trading as "Imperial Laboratories" has violated the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

It is now ordered, That respondent William Littman, individually and trading as Imperial Laboratories or trading under any other name or names, his agents, representatives, servants and employees, in connection with the sale or offering for sale or distribution of permanent hair waving lotions and permanent wave sachets in interstate commerce, do cease and desist from:

(1) Using as a part of his trade name the word "Laboratories" or the word "Laboratory" or any other word or words of similar tenor or effect, unless and until he actually maintains a place where scientific investigations are conducted.

(2) Representing in any manner that respondent's products are manufactured or compounded in a laboratory or laboratories when such is not the fact.

(3) Representing in any manner, directly or indirectly that the permanent hair wave lotion which he sells and distributes, has been perfected by leading chemists or that it will wave hair without altering the texture of the hair.

(4) Representing in any manner, directly or indirectly, that the felt used in the sachets which he sells and distributes, is treated so that it will absorb the lotion evenly, when such is not the fact.

It is hereby further ordered, That the complaint against Max Littman, be and the same hereby is dismissed.

It is further ordered, That respondent William Littman shall within 60 days after the service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.
Where a corporation engaged in the sale of a product for the treatment of epilepsy, consisting of phenobarbital and bicarbonate of soda, and called Renesol; and two individuals, its executive officers, who controlled and owned all its stock and formed, controlled and directed its policies, practices and management; in offering and describing said preparation in advertisements, in newspapers and periodicals of general circulation, in letters in reply to inquiries, and in circulars and other printed matter—

Represented directly or by implication that said preparation constituted a cure for said ailments through such statements, among numerous others, in their extensive trade literature as "has helped thousands of epilepsy sufferers regain a new life of joyous health", "Medical science triumphs", "Complete relief from all fits and embarrassments", "This marvelous discovery", etc., "Gain health and happiness", and, while professing therein to disavow any claims to a permanent cure for said ailment, nevertheless through testimonial statements of physicians highly praising said preparation and their results therewith, and in other ways through such statements as "It is admitted by all honest doctors, and by healers of every school that there is no single medicine, no special method of treatment which will cure epilepsy", and in numerous other statements emphasizing the importance of diet and other matters, adroitly suggested cure or permanent relief through use of said preparation; facts being said preparation, though a useful agent for relieving said ailment, ameliorating its discomforts and prolonging the interval between attacks, is not a cure therefor and there is no known cure therefor;

With capacity and tendency to mislead purchasing public into belief that through use thereof, cure or permanent relief may be effected if accompanied by correct hygienic habits and proper course of diet, and to divert trade to it from competitors offering like or other competitive products for the treatment of said affliction and other nervous conditions generally:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the conditions and circumstances set forth, were to the prejudice of competitors and of the public, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. Charles F. Diggs, trial examiner.
Mr. James M. Brinson for the Commission.
Nathan D. Shapiro & Brothers, of Brooklyn, N. Y., for respondent.
Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that the Renesol Corporation and Charles Goldblatt and Maurice Goldberg, individually, have been and are using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, issues its complaint stating its charges thereof as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondents Charles Goldblatt and Maurice Goldberg are now, and since September 1928, have been engaged in the business of offering for sale and selling a preparation or compound for the treatment of epilepsy.

In 1928 the said individual respondents caused to be incorporated under the laws of the State of New York, Nurosol Laboratories, Inc., and in 1929 they caused such corporation to change its name to the Renesol Laboratories, Inc. In 1933 they caused the name of the Renesol Laboratories Incorporated to be changed to the Renesol Corporation. It has been and is owned, dominated, controlled and directed by individual respondents Charles Goldblatt and Maurice Goldberg, who have controlled, managed and directed and now control, manage and direct its affairs and any and all activities of said company since its incorporation, and have been and are responsible for its policies, methods and practices.

Nurosol Laboratories Incorporated, under its original name of Renesol Laboratories Incorporated and its present name of Renesol Corporation, has been and is a corporate instrumentality through and by means of which individual respondents have conducted their business of selling their preparation or compound for the treatment of epilepsy.

In the course and conduct of the aforesaid business respondent, the Renesol Corporation, under the direction and control of the individual respondents Charles Goldblatt and Maurice Goldberg, has offered for sale and sold the said preparation or compound under the name Renesol in commerce among and between the State of New York and the various States of the United States, and the District of Columbia, and when sold it has caused the same to be transported from its place of business in the city and State of New York to purchasers of such product located in various other States of the United States than the State of New York, and in the District of Columbia.

In the course and conduct of such business respondents, Renesol Corporation and Charles Goldblatt and Maurice Goldberg, have been and are, and each of them has been and is, in competition with individuals, partnerships, and corporations, offering for sale or selling in interstate commerce, bromides, luminal, phenobarbital, similar products or other products or substances for use in the treatment of epilepsy.

Par. 2. It has been and is the practice of respondent, the Renesol Corporation, and at the instance and under the direction of Charles Goldblatt and Maurice Goldberg individually and as officers thereof, to solicit purchasers for the preparation or compound as described in paragraph 1 hereof, and to offer it for sale and sell it by means of advertisements in newspapers and magazines of general circulation in and through the various States of the United States, by means of letters in reply to inquiries from prospective customers, circulars, and other written and printed matter containing false and misleading representations and statements to the effect that medical science has at last discovered a cure in Renesol, the new remedy that has been officially approved by the leading epilepsy specialists of the day and that it is the most positive and complete relief known to the medical profession today and is used and recommended by the greatest physicians the world over. It has been and is the practice of respondent to transmit to individuals suffering from epilepsy and to purchasers and prospective purchasers of its product, circular letters containing such representations and statements as the following, to wit:

BEWARE OF BROMIDES

About fifty years ago, the first scientific attempt at obtaining a relief for epileptic attacks was made. This was known as the Bromide Treatment. Immediately this treatment became known the world over and epileptics everywhere were at once given the benefit of it. Soon, however, it became apparent that the Bromide Treatment was a "false alarm", to use a colloquial expression. With the widespread use of the bromides by the medical profession, it was ascertained that not only was it untrue and preposterous to call them a positive relief, but also that they produced results which in themselves were more dangerous and harmful than epileptic fits. Anyone who had any experience at all either in taking or administering bromides is well aware of the hideous skin eruptions which they produce, as well as the manner in which they depress and stupefy the individual.

IT IS A GENERALLY ACCEPTED FACT THAT IN A VAST NUMBER OF EPILEPTIC CASES THE BROMIDE TREATMENT HAS ACCOMPLISHED MORE HARM THAN GOOD

In truth and in fact the product offered for sale and sold as Renesol has not been and is not a remedy or cure for epilepsy. The product at first was called Nurosol and consisted of phenobarbital, but when the name "Renesol" was substituted for that of "Nurosol" in selling such product, sodium bicarbonate was added by respondent to the product. The active ingredient of the compound, however, has been and still is phenobarbital, which is a coal tar derivative possessing a strong sedative action and is also a powerful and dangerous hypnotic. It was sold, until the expiration of covering patents, under the trade name of luminal.

There is no cure of, or remedy for, epilepsy known to medical science except in some instances by operation when it occurs in the form known as Jacksonian Epilepsy, and the most that can be accomplished in the treatment of epilepsy is the mitigation or the alleviation of the disease by reducing the force or effects of seizures or convulsions, by ameliorating the pain and suffering, or by extension or prolongation of the intervals between seizures or convulsions. There are various types and degrees of epilepsy and a great multiple of variations of the disease. There are rarely two cases of epilepsy which are alike. Each case of such disease should receive and must receive individual attention in order to accomplish satisfactory results. The most common methods of relieving sufferers from epilepsy have been and are the use of so-called bromides and luminal, the former of which is the older method, having been administered for more than fifty years, while the latter has been used also since its discovery in Germany in 1911. Neither, however, is known as, nor is expected to be, a cure, and they can only afford relief.

There are many symptomatic conditions appearing in connection with epilepsy which are also characteristic of other diseases or conditions, such as brain lesions, meningitis, diseases that affect the spine or nervous system, poisoning from strychnine, which may all produce fits, spasms, and convulsions similar to epileptic seizures. It is unsafe and dangerous for individuals suffering from such diseases to use the product of respondent in such conditions which, if treated with Renesol, might produce death because of the fact that the disease from which the individual is suffering would be masked by the sedative use of the product Renesol, and by the time proper diagnosis could be made the actual disease would be too far advanced to cure. The product offered for sale and sold as Renesol cannot be safely used, except under medical supervision. Its indiscriminate use may lead to extremely dangerous results. There are convulsions in childhood also, whose outward manifestations are akin to those of epilepsy, but which are due to other causes or conditions, in connection with which the use of phenobarbital or luminal, the active principal of the product of respondent, would probably be fatal.

Renesol is not a recent discovery of medical science nor has it been or is it approved officially or otherwise by leading specialists of epilepsy as a remedy therefore. It does not furnish the most positive and complete relief from epilepsy known to the medical profession and it is not used and recommended by the greatest physicians throughout the world or any part of the world.

It has been and is the policy and practice of respondent by means of false and misleading representations made to purchasers and prospective purchasers to educate or influence the public or the portion thereof among whom it has been able to distribute its literature into the belief that they either have or are about to suffer from epilepsy and to present its product Renesol as the only effective method by which epilepsy may be relieved or cured or averted. To such end and for such purpose it has caused to be circulated and distributed a booklet entitled "Can Epilepsy be Cured?". It purports to be issued by the educational division of respondent corporation. Its outer page bears the legend "A frank statement to sufferers of epileptic fits who are constantly seeking a cure". The booklet contains eleven pages. It consists of a discussion of the character of epilepsy, the means of identifying it, its causes, the appropriate treatment which it declares is Renesol, and alleged testimonials purporting to be from physicians and from sufferers from epilepsy who have used Renesol. The implication therefrom is clear and definite that Renesol will effect permanent relief from epilepsy and restore the sufferer to normal health and strength provided in connection with the use of Renesol the sufferer acquires correct hygienic habits and follows a proper course of diet.

The booklet entitled "Can Epilepsy be Cured?", circulated by respondent to induce the purchase of Renesol, contains false and misleading representations to the following effect:

That one or more of the following causes produces epilepsy, to wit: mental conflict such as when high-strung persons are continually forced to work or live under distasteful conditions; food sensitivity; that just as use of particular foods produces hives, so the same "protein sensitization" that produces hives may also cause epilepsy; autointoxication, that is, poisoning of the blood stream due to acids, waste, toxins of the body resulting from constipation, hardening of the arteries, excessive use of alcohol, lead poisoning, disturbances of the thyroid, pituitary and para thyroid glands, intestinal worms, decaying teeth, eye strain or obstruction of the nasal passages, disease of the ears, tumors, tuberculosis, meningitis or abscess. The booklet also contains in large and conspicuous letters the words "How to Recognize Epilepsy". Under such title appear the following false and misleading representations "how epilepsy may be recognized by a number of minor symptoms", that is, pallor of the face, nervous irritability and dizziness, inability to remember things, thirst, or a ravenous appetite, an inclination to scream, hot spells or other symptoms of a short duration.

In truth and in fact the causes which respondent assigns for epilepsy, or one or more of them, are daily occurrences in the lives of a substantial proportion and probably of the major proportion of the purchasing public.

The minor symptoms by which respondents represent epilepsy may be recognized are conditions, one or more of which are daily reflected in the experiences of a substantial proportion of the purchasing public.

The false representations and statements with their implications employed by respondents in the aforesaid booklet have the capacity and tendency to mislead those among whom such booklet is distributed into the belief or apprehension that they have or are about to suffer from epilepsy and into the purchase of Renesol as a positive relief therefrom.

Par. 3. There are individuals, partnerships and corporations offering for sale and selling in interstate commerce preparations for the treatment of epilepsy and nervous conditions of every kind truthfully advertised or described.

Par. 4. The acts and practices of respondent as described in paragraph 2 hereof have had and have the capacity and tendency to mislead the purchasing public into the belief that the representations of respondent, Renesol Corporation, are true and into the purchase of Renesol in reliance on such erroneous belief.

The aforesaid practices of respondent Renesol Corporation have had and have the capacity and tendency to divert trade to it from individuals, partnerships and corporations offering for sale and selling like, or other competitive products for the treatment of epilepsy and nervous conditions generally.

Par. 5. The acts and practices of respondent as described in paragraph 2 hereof have been and are all to the prejudice of the public and respondents' competitors and have been and are unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of the Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

the Federal Trade Commission issued and served a complaint upon respondents, the Renesol Corporation and Charles Goldblatt and Maurice Goldberg, individually, charging them with unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of said Act.

The respondents having entered their appearance and filed their answer, the Federal Trade Commission thereupon duly designated June 4, 1935 at 10 a.m. daylight saving time, in the city of New York and State of New York, as the time and place for taking testimony and receiving evidence in support of the complaint and on behalf of respondents and an examiner for the Commission, before whom such testimony should be taken and evidence received.

At the time and place so designated by the Commission, and before its examiner so appointed, there appeared as attorney for the Commission, James M. Brinson; and as attorney for respondents, Leon J. Shapiro, who thereupon entered into a stipulation as to the facts subject to the approval of the Federal Trade Commission, which stipulation the Commission has approved and does now and hereby expressly approve.

It is provided in such stipulation that submission of testimony and evidence in support of the complaint, and on behalf of the respondents, and any other, further or intervening procedure be waived and that the Federal Trade Commission may forthwith proceed to file its report stating its findings as to the facts, with its conclusion drawn therefrom and thereupon issue and serve an order to cease and desist, predicated thereon and in accordance therewith.

Thereupon this matter regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the record and the Commission having duly considered such record and being fully advised in the premises files this, its report, stating its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. The respondent, Renesol Corporation, is now and for several years last past has been a corporation, organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its principal office and place of business at New York City in said State. It is the same corporation with changed name, as the Renesol Laboratories, Inc., which executed a stipulation with the Federal Trade Commission on November 20, 1933. Individual respondents, Charles Goldblatt and Maurice Goldberg, caused Renesol Laboratories, Inc., originally to be incorporated and caused its name subsequently to be changed to Renesol Corporation, the change of such name from that of Renesol Laboratories, Inc., to Renesol Corporation being in pursuance of the stipulation with the Commission. Since the organization of Respondent Corporation the individual respondents have been and now are its executive officers. They have owned and controlled and now own and control all of the stock of Renesol Corporation; have formulated, controlled, and directed and now formulate, control, and direct, all of its policies, practices, and methods and have the sole and exclusive charge and management of all of its activities and affairs in connection with offering for sale or the sale of Renesol in the course of the commerce hereinafter described.

In the course and conduct of its business, corporate respondent, the Renesol Corporation, has offered for sale and sold and now offers for sale and sells in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, a product which it described and still describes as Renesol, consisting of phenobarbital plus bicarbonate of soda in certain proportions, for the treatment of the state or condition, in the course of or in connection with which the individual is subject to convulsions or so-called epileptic seizures or fits, that is to say, the state or condition generally known as epilepsy.

It has been and is the practice of the corporate respondent to transport, or cause such product when sold, to be transported from its place of business in the city and State of New York to purchasers located in the various other States of the United States.

In the course and conduct of its business, the corporate respondent has been and is in competition with individuals, partnerships and corporations, offering for sale and selling in interstate commerce, bromides, luminal, phenobarbital and similar products or other products or substances for use in the treatment of epilepsy.

Par. 2. It has been and is the practice of the corporate respondent to solicit purchasers for the preparation or compound as described in paragraph 1 hereof, and to offer it for sale and sell it by means of advertisements in newspapers and magazines of general circulation in and through the various States of the United States, by means of letters in reply to inquiries from prospective customers, circulars, and other written and printed matter, containing among their representations and statements the following, to wit:

BEWARE OF BROMIDES. About fifty years ago, the first scientific attempt at obtaining a relief for epileptic attacks was made. This was known as the Bromide Treatment. Immediately this treatment became known the world over and epileptics everywhere were at once given the benefits of it. Soon, however, it became apparent that the Bromide Treatment was a "false alarm", to use a colloquial expression. With the widespread use of the bromides by the medical profession, it was ascertained that not only was it untrue and preposterous to call them a positive relief, but also that they produced results which in themselves were more dangerous and harmful than epileptic fits. Anyone who had any experience at all either in taking or administering bromides is well aware of the hideous skin eruptions which they produce, as well as the manner in which they depress and stupefy the individual. IT IS A GENERALLY ACCEPTED FACT THAT IN A VAST NUMBER OF EPILEPTIC CASES THE BROMIDE TREATMENT HAS ACCOMPLISHED MORE HARM THAN GOOD.

After execution of the stipulation between the corporate respondent and the Federal Trade Commission, to which reference has hereinbefore been made, the corporate respondent discontinued the representations and statements just above given with the exception that it has continued to represent and still represents that the product "Renesol" is used and recommended by physicians the world over and that "Renesol" is guaranteed, contains no bromides—no opium—no morphine—no habit-forming drugs of any kind, in the sense in which the words "habit-forming" are generally known and understood—as an uncontrolled craving; and the advertising matter of corporate respondent is distributed among those suffering from epilepsy, who can sustain no injury from the continued use of the product.

Respondent has also continued to use or is using a pamphlet which it distributes among purchasers and prospective purchasers, which among other things contains the following statements:

GAIN HEALTH AND HAPPINESS. Take your Rightful Place in Your Community. Make the Renesol Test at our Expense.

Respondent Renesol Corporation has continued to circulate and now circulates among purchasers and prospective purchasers a booklet in the various States of the United States entitled "Can Epilepsy Be Cured?" This booklet contains the following statements:

DOES "RENESOL" CURE? "RENESOL" lays no claims to a cure for Epilepsy—but rather to a satisfactory and effective relief for epileptic attacks which is the most that can be expected from any treatment for Epilepsy. Many patients, after taking "RENESOL" over a period of six months to a year, write that they have been "cured"—that they have no more attacks. While these reports are very encouraging, the RENESOL CORPORATION insists on telling these people that the absence of attacks does not necessarily mean they are cured. There is no permanent cure. Sufferers should continue with the treatment, even though they have no more attacks, because epileptic attacks may return if the medicine is completely discontinued, or the rules of health broken for even a short period of time. Also, it may be worth emphasizing that the "RENESOL" Treatment becomes less and less expensive as it is continued, because the dosage is gradually reduced, so that very little of the medicine is required to keep the attacks under control.

The following excerpts from various parts of the booklet, some of them by respondent Renesol Corporation and others by physicians whose opinions are, by this booklet, conveyed to sufferers from epilepsy clearly suggest cure or permanent relief and it is to be noted from one of the passages that respondent recommends services of physicians only when the sufferer has a physician.

The next question naturally is: What is considered to be the most effective medicine to take, and what are the proper rules of health to follow while taking this treatment. By taking this well-recommended medicine regularly and following the rules of health faithfully, the sufferer from epilepsy can obtain as near a complete cure as medical science, with all its research, investigation, and study has been able to accomplish, to date.

RENESOL has proven highly satisfactory in the treatment of Epilepsy in even the most stubborn cases. RENESOL is non-habit forming and can be taken with complete safety by man, woman or child when adhering to the prescribed dosage. You can have no better proof of the excellence of RENESOL in the treatment of Epilepsy than the four letters on pages six and seven. They have been selected from letters received from different parts of the world and are typical of their high praise. It will pay you to read carefully what authorities say about RENESOL.

Dr. Liznal Imre, M. D., graduate of the Hungarian University of Science, Municipal Specialist, connected with the St. Stephen Hospital in Hungary—

"I cannot refrain from sending you my sincere congratulations for the remarkable Renesol Treatment. In my experience in treating the disease, Epilepsy, Renesol is the one remedy that I can unhesitatingly recommend.

"In Renesol I found neither bromides nor any other harmful or habit-forming drugs. It is safe to use for adults or children. In practically every case treated, the attacks stopped immediately and the general condition of the patient was greatly improved. In some instances before Renesol was used I thought there was no help possible. Renesol, however, brought quick and sure relief.

"Wishing you well-deserved success and hoping that every sufferer from epilepsy has the good fortune of learning about your remarkable Renesol Treatment."

Dr. Jose Valcarcel, of the Medical Faculty at the Central University of Madrid, formerly on the General Hospital of Madrid, Professor at the Medical School at Madrid, etc.—"Renesol must come as blessed news to thousands of epilepsy victims all over the world. These poor people may now find quick relief from all seizures and other symptoms through your wonderful medicine. And—if inestimable advantage, they may use the Renesol Treatment right at home, and get the same fine results as though they were taking it under a local doctor's directions."
"In my experience with Renesol, I found it thoroughly effective in almost every instance. In fact, some cases that I had previously considered as hopeless, were quickly relieved. It contains no bromides (most of the medicines previously on the market contained harmful bromides) and no harmful or habit-forming drugs. Children can use with the same safety and effectiveness as grownups.

"Renesol should be brought to the attention of every epileptic sufferer."

Dr. Clarence J. Miner, formerly Major on the Medical Staff of the British Army and later Staff Surgeon of the National Military Home of Marion, Indiana, U. S. A.—"I have carefully studied the effect of the Renesol Treatment on many hundreds of Epilepsy sufferers. Familiar as I am with the medicines used for this purpose, I was gratified and surprised at the wonderful results shown on sufferers using your remedy. People whose cases were so far gone that I hardly dared hope could be helped, showed immediate and marvelous relief after using Renesol for a short time. In almost every case, the terrible attacks stopped, the mind was keener, the appetite better, and general health restored to normal. This same result was obtained in children as well as in elderly people.

"In my many years of practice, yours is the only remedy for the treatment of Epilepsy which meets with my complete approval. I unhesitatingly recommend it for every person suffering from Epilepsy, and hope that many millions of sufferers throughout the world will learn of its blessings."

Dr. Sarat G. Mukerji, graduate of the National Medical College, Calcutta; formerly on the Staff of Surgeons, British-India Navigation Co.; Pathologist at the Rhode Island State Hospital for Mental Diseases—"Many cases of Epilepsy have come under my observation in India and America. In treating these unfortunate sufferers I have had occasion to study the various remedies on the market.

"Until I investigated your splendid Renesol Remedy, I did not believe that an effective, non-habit forming treatment for Epilepsy existed. Most of the remedies that I had seen previously contained bromides. Some even had harmful drugs which were exceedingly dangerous to use.

"In Renesol, I am very glad to state, I found not only a remedy that was exceptionally effective in the majority of cases, but a remedy that was absolutely free from bromides or other habit-forming drugs. Renesol may be used by anyone, young or old, without any bad after-effects whatsoever. And your remedy has the further advantage of being perfectly safe and effective for use even without the personal attention of a physician.

"My experience with your product leads me to unhesitatingly recommend it for anyone suffering from Epilepsy. And my hope is that many unfortunate victims of this disease will discover for themselves the quick and sure relief Renesol brings."

After all the above quoted glowing tributes to Renesol there appears on page 11 of the booklet, the following:

At this point we want to emphasize that any physician or company who promises a positive cure for Epilepsy, should be classed as a charlatan. Such a statement is absolutely untrue and unjustified. Indeed, it is far better to take no treatment at all than to take a treatment that is sold under a promise that it is a definite cure. These medicines consist chiefly of Bromides or other harmful habit-forming drugs. Any sufferer who tries any of these so-called
"cures" which are highly advertised, of course, finally gives up completely dis­couraged and in a worse physical condition than he was before. Furthermore, these sufferers usually become pessimistic, and believe that there can be no possible help for them, a belief that is absolutely unwarranted by the real facts. And also on same page the following statements appear:

In closing we want to state that if you are a sufferer from Epilepsy, and are taking the proper treatment, you need not be discouraged. You are every bit as good or your neighbor and fellowmen. Remember that many of the world's greatest figures were afflicted with Epilepsy, yet attained to supreme heights of genius and accomplishment: Napoleon, Julius Caesar, Dostoyevsky, and scores of others were outstanding examples. Let us add also, that if you are under the treatment of a physician at the present time, or under the care of a hospital, by all means follow out their advice as regards medicine, diet, etc. After all, your physician knows what is best for you, and is undoubtedly giving you the benefit of the latest and most scientific treatment for your trouble.

Let no one mislead you and sway you from the correct path. The "RENE­SOL" Treatment and Health Lessons are the true road to relief from attacks and a marvelous improvement in your health.

Indicative of the adroit method by which the corporate respondent, while disclaiming such efficacy in ambiguous phraseology, seeks, even now, to promise a cure of or remedy for Epilepsy or from epileptic attacks, the following excerpts from the said booklet are conclusively significant of the purpose, intent, and probable effect of the booklet, especially when considered with the pamphlet entitled "Gain Health and Happiness."

CAN EPILEPSY BE CURED? It is admitted, by all honest doctors, and by healers of every school, that there is no single medicine, no special method of treatment which will cure epilepsy.

Also, most physicians are candid enough to tell you that, to bring about normal physiological functioning in any epileptic is of infinitely greater im­portance than to fill him full of all the sedatives in the pharmacopoea.

A sound mind and a normal nervous system can be found only in a healthy body. He will, therefore, do his utmost to put the body in this healthy condi­tion.

In other words, all schools of medicine agree that in addition to the proper medicine, the patient must acquire correct hygienic habits and follow a proper course of diet. This combination is of primary importance in relieving the distressing symptoms of epilepsy.

THE "RENE­SOL" TREATMENT. RENESOL is a preparation for the relief of epilepsy, used and recommended throughout the civilized world. It contains NO bromides or other dangerous habit-forming drugs.

Countless suffering epileptics may well give heartfelt thanks that the day of old remedies is past. For over fifty years the old remedies, consisting mostly of bromides, were all that unfortunate epileptics found available. These bromide medicines, and all liquid medicines for epilepsy contained bromides, were often WORSE than useless, causing symptoms in themselves more terrible than epilepsy.
"RENESOL" has often proven effective in cases where other remedies have failed. Epileptics who had previously given up all hope were, after using this marvelous remedy, restored to a life of usefulness and happiness.

When "RENESOL" is used and directions carefully followed, attacks often stop in a short time; mental sluggishness disappears; the appetite is improved and the patient lives a normal, active life, free from the terrible embarrassments and terrifying spells which have made life a continuous misery.

"RENESOL" has been endorsed by physicians in Europe, Asia, and America. "RENESOL" has proved successful on patients all over the world.

PAR. 3. The product Renesol is not a cure for the disease known as Epilepsy, nor for the state or conditions during which the individual patient is subject to so-called convulsive seizures or epileptic fits and there is known to medical science no cure for such disease or condition, but it may be relieved, its discomforts ameliorated and the intervals between its attack may be more or less prolonged.

The substance variously known as phenobarbital or luminal or Renesol which is heretofore stated to be phenobarbital plus bicarbonate of soda, may be and frequently has been and is a useful agent for the accomplishment of the above purpose.

PAR. 4. There have been, for several years last past, and now are individuals, partnerships, and corporations offering for sale and selling in interstate commerce, in competition with respondent, Renesol Corporation preparations or compounds of various kinds including luminal, phenobarbital bromides, or other substances for the treatment of Epilepsy.

PAR. 5. The acts and practices of respondent Renesol Corporation and of respondents Charles Goldblatt and Maurice Goldberg, individually, who have controlled and directed and are controlling and directing respondent Renesol Corporation, as described in paragraphs 1 and 2 hereof, have had and have the capacity and tendency to mislead the purchasing public into the belief that by the use of Renesol Epilepsy can be cured or permanent relief effected if accompanied by correct hygienic habits and a proper course of diet.

The aforesaid practices of respondents have had and have the capacity and tendency to divert trade to respondent Renesol Corporation from individuals, partnerships and corporations offering for sale and selling like or other competitive products for the treatment of Epilepsy and other nervous conditions generally.

CONCLUSION

The acts and practices of respondents as described in paragraphs 1 and 2 hereof have been and are all to the prejudice of the public and competitors of respondent Renesol Corporation and have been and are unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of the Act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard upon the complaint, the answer and a stipulation of the facts by and between the attorney for the Commission and the attorney for respondents, which stipulation has been and is approved by the Commission, and all others and further intervening procedure having been duly waived in such stipulation and respondents having consented therein that the Commission may forthwith file its report stating its findings as to the facts and conclusion drawn therefrom and thereupon issue and serve its order to cease and desist predicated thereon and in accordance therewith, and the Federal Trade Commission having made and filed its report in writing stating its findings as to the facts with its conclusion drawn therefrom that respondents have been and are violating the provision of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes"—

It is now ordered, That respondents Renesol Corporation, its officers, agents, employees and representatives and Charles Goldblatt and Maurice Goldberg, individually, and their agents, employees, and representatives, in connection with the sale or offering for sale of Renesol or any product of the same or substantially the same composition or ingredients in interstate commerce, by respondent Renesol Corporation, or by any other means or agency, corporate or otherwise, cease and desist in magazines, journals, newspapers, periodicals, pamphlets, booklets, leaflets, or in any form of printed or written matter or by means of so-called radio broadcasting, directly or indirectly from:

(1) Representing Renesol or any product of the same or substantially the same composition or ingredients as a cure for Epilepsy or as a remedy by which permanent relief from Epilepsy or from Epileptic fits, attacks, seizures, or convulsions can be effected.

(2) From using words or phrases, or statements not directly accompanied by apt and adequate explanation or qualification, which signify or imply or which may be construed to signify or imply that Renesol in conjunction with correct hygienic habits and a proper course of diet, can cure Epilepsy, or can afford permanent relief from fits, seizures, attacks, or convulsions, usually incidental to Epilepsy or characteristic thereof.

(3) From representing Renesol as other than an agent for the treatment of Epilepsy whose effectiveness or worth depends on its continued or permanent use.

(4) From representing that by use of Renesol, whether in conjunction with correct hygienic habits and a proper course of diet, or not, sufferers from Epilepsy can regain health and happiness or can be restored to a life of usefulness and happiness.

It is further ordered that respondents shall within 60 days from service on them of this order file a report in writing with the Federal Trade Commission setting forth in detail the manner and form of their compliance with such order.

ARMSTRONG RUBBER COMPANY, INCORPORATED

COMPLAINT AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

COMPLAINT

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent Armstrong Rubber Company is a corporation organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New Jersey with its principal office and place of business in the city of West Haven, Conn. It is now and for more than two years last past has been engaged in the manufacture of automobile tires and tubes and in the sale thereof between and among the various States of the United States. It causes such automobile tires and tubes when sold by it to be transported to the purchasers thereof in the State of Connecticut and to other purchasers located in the various States of the United States and there is now and has been for more than two years last past a constant current of trade and commerce by respondent in such automobile tires and tubes between and among the various States of the United States. In the course and conduct of its said business the respondent is now and for more than two years last past has been in substantial competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States with various other corporations and with partnerships, firms and individuals engaged in the sale of automobile tires and tubes.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of its said business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, the respondent Armstrong Rubber Company has entered into and still enters into arrangements with wholesale and retail tire dealers and distributors engaged in the sale of automobile tires, tubes and accessories in various States of the United States, under and by virtue of which said arrangements such dealers and distributors carry and sell the tires and tubes of re­ spendent on consignment. Automobile tires and tubes were and are consigned to such dealers and distributors under and in pursuance of a so-called "Consignment Agreement". Under the terms of such agreement it is provided that the merchandise shall be consigned at prices indicated by respondent in a "Manufacturer's Net Price List" attached to the consignment agreement. Title to the consigned merchandise and to the proceeds thereof, it is provided, is to remain vested in the respondent. It is further provided in said consignment agreement that the consignee is to use his best efforts to sell said consigned merchandise at the best price that can be obtained therefor over and above said consigned price. Sales of consigned merchandise are to be made by the consignee only for cash on deliver and in no instance for less than the consigned price. It is further provided in said agreement that the consignee is not an agent of the respondent and that all monies received from the sale of merchandise shall be held in trust for the respondent until turned over or accounted for by the said consignee. While the said agreement is in force and effect, said consignee is entitled under said agreement to use, does now and has used, the name, signs, advertising matter, etc., of the respondent.

Par. 3. Prices which the consignee or distributor pays and has paid under the above described consignment arrangement for tires and tubes are set forth in a list furnished by respondent to its con­ signees entitled "Confidential Distributors' Net Cost".
Complaint

On two of the four pages of this list there has been and is conspicuously printed the following:

"WARNING!" This is the Distributors' Net Cost and must be kept confidential!

Across two other pages of this "Net Cost", there has been and is the following, also conspicuously printed:

"WARNING!" This is a Wholesale Price list and must be kept confidential!

Prices which the dealer or distributor in turn charges and is to charge the purchasing public are printed in a list supplied said dealer or distributor by the respondent herein, said list being entitled: "Armstrong Direct from Factory Prices." Said "Direct from Factory Prices" are not, in fact, and were not intended to be, "Direct from Factory Prices," but on the contrary are and have been higher in each instance than factory-to-dealer prices, and were and are intended so to be, the dealer being instructed, as hereinbefore stated, to sell consigned merchandise, "for the most money that he can obtain for the same over and above the manufacturer's price to the consignee".

In truth and in fact price quotations set forth in the aforesaid confidential "Distributor's Net Cost" list of prices to dealers are and have been substantially lower throughout than the prices published in the "Direct Factory Price List" covering resale prices quoted to users and purchasers.

On Armstrong DeLuxe Heavy Duty Tires, the following among other differences in prices, have existed:

Par. 4. In truth and in fact substantial differences exist and have existed between respondent company's prices to dealers and to purchasers in the sale of tire tubes. Extra heavy, red, high-pressure tubes, size 30x3 1/2, have been priced to dealers at 75 cents each, to purchasers at $1.15; size 32x4, to dealers at $1, to purchasers at $1.65; size 33x7.00-19, to dealers at $1.75, to purchasers at $3.50. In truth and in fact substantial differences between the prices to dealers and those to purchasers appear and have appeared throughout the entire list of tubes as advertised and offered for sale by respondent company.

Par. 5. In further connection with the sale of its tires respondent represents and has represented to the user or purchaser in advertising circulars that respondent's automobile tires contain and have contained two more plies or layers of rubber-dipped or impregnated fabric than said tires actually contain or have contained. In the confidential price list circulars issued to dealers, appear and have appeared the following statement or explanation:

Number of plies indicated are Full Plies from bead to bead. Each tire in addition has two breakers.

In said advertising matter or circulars intended to be read by the purchaser tires which are now and were described to the dealer as "four-ply" tires are and were described as "six-ply" to the user or purchaser, a footnote explanation reading: "Two plies are breakers." Tires actually containing six-plies are and were described as "eight-ply" to the user or purchaser with the same footnote explanation, and advertising matter intended for the purchaser carries and has carried this same two-ply increase on all tires up to and including eighteen-ply-tires, the latter being represented to the consumer as "twenty-ply" with the same footnote explanation "two plies are breakers".

In truth and in fact said tires advertised and represented by respondent as "six-ply" were and are in fact "four-ply"; the tires advertised and represented as "eight-ply" were and are in fact "six-ply"; tires advertised and represented as "ten-ply" were and are in fact "eight-ply" and all other grades and sizes of tires advertised and represented by the respondent as containing a certain number of plies actually contain and have contained two plies less than the number so represented and advertised.

Paragraph 6. In respondent's said advertising matter containing user or purchaser prices, among other statements, are and have appeared the following:

These prices subject to change without notice, but remember that you can always buy Armstrong tires at Direct-from-Factory prices that are substantially lower than tires of comparable quality.

Free advice. We will gladly give you the benefit of our experience in solving your truck and bus problems. Let us help you reduce your tires expenses.

Note that we replace damaged tires with a new tire. We do not ask you to accept a repair job.

Armstrong Direct-from-factory, effective August 1, 1933. Armstrong Insured Tires at Direct Factory Prices.

When in truth and in fact purchasers cannot and were not permitted to buy Armstrong tires at "direct from factory prices," substantially lower than tires of comparable quality. The tire expenses of purchasers were not reduced and respondent's price to purchasers were not "direct from factory prices", effective August 1, 1933, or of any other date.

Said "confidential distributors' net cost" list of prices and the said Armstrong "direct-from-factory prices", were effective on identical dates.

In further connection with the conduct of the business of respondent catalogs and sales folders were issued in large numbers and mailed to numerous persons throughout the respective States of the United States. Said catalogs in various instances and places emphasized alleged "at factory prices" and "the Armstrong one-way profit," and "direct-from-factory prices".

Emphasis was placed upon the claim that "everywhere we sell the car owner direct for cash." In these same catalogs also appeared the following statements:

In the larger towns without any increase in price, our local factory representative has these tires in stock, ready for mounting, free of charge.

In the larger towns, without any increase in price, we offer you these same fine tires through our local factory representatives who also give you the benefit of local service.

The stock of tires you see in our representative's store is owned entirely by us. He simply puts them on your car for us and we pay him a small fee for doing so. No charge for mounting.

When in truth and in fact local representatives in larger towns do not mount and have not mounted tires free of charge to the purchaser; said purchaser does not obtain and has not obtained said respondent’s tires in the larger towns without increasing the price and the fee alleged to be paid and to have been paid to respondent’s representatives by respondent for mounting tires is not and has not been paid by said respondent but by the user or purchaser of the tire instead.

Par. 7. The hereinbefore described consignment plan, in connection with which the respondent herein issued advertising matter in the shape of catalogs, advertising circulars, etc., was adopted in 1931. In the year 1933, the said respondent company modified its selling plan to the extent of furnishing advertising matter and material to agents or consignees located in various cities of the United States. Said advertising matter consisted of circulars and folders and newspaper cuts and matrices to be used by respondent’s dealers and distributors in advertising respondent’s products, respondent continuing as theretofore to defray the expenses of such advertising.

In the said advertising thus furnished to and used by respondent’s agents or consignees appear and have appeared such statements addressed to the consumer as the following:

Your money is protected when you buy Armstrong insured tires at direct factory prices.
Drive in! Pay factory prices for tires and tubes. Do not pay more.
A direct factory price through your neighborhood dealer.

Space has been left at the bottom of all advertising copy for the insertion of the name and address of the particular dealer using the advertisement.

In a group dealer advertisement inserted in a daily paper appeared the following:

• • • We are your neighborhood Armstrong dealers as direct representatives of the Armstrong factory in West Haven, Connecticut. You save all the in-between-profits by buying from us. • • •

and Direct from the factory • • • and further

Pay factory prices and then get the world’s strongest guarantee in writing.

In circulars resembling newspapers, designated as the “Armstrong Traveler”, these likewise issued by respondent to respondent’s agents and consignees to be used with purchasers and prospective purchasers of tires and tubes have appeared among other statements, the following:

Your money is protected when you buy Armstrong insured tires at Direct-factory prices. • • •
Complaint

21 F. T. C.

Direct-factory prices through your neighborhood dealer.

When in truth and in fact the so-called “in-between profits” are not and have not been saved by users and purchasers of respondent's tires buying from respondent's so-called “direct representatives.” Said tires and tubes do not represent and have not represented “Factory”, “direct factory,” or “direct from factory prices”.

Respondent's said consignment arrangement for the sale of its products has been continued as a business plan and policy. During and since the year 1934, the respondent company has continued to arrange advertising material for its dealers and consignees, leaving blank spaces as heretofore for the addition of the name and address of the dealer. Dealers write and have written in to the advertising department of respondent, furnishing their ideas respecting advertising matter and respondent's advertising department thereupon writes and has written appropriate copy therefor and has ordered the printing of circulars with blank space as stated, left at bottom, for the addition of the distributor's name and address. Under this described arrangement the dealer now pays half and respondent pays the other half of the cost of said advertising.

PAR. 8. The use by respondent of the above and foregoing false representations as described in paragraphs 3 to 7, inclusive, herein, have and have had the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive the public into the erroneous belief that respondent's prices to the user and consumer are and were in fact direct factory one-profit prices with no in-between or middleman's profit and that respondent's tires contain and have contained the number of plies they are and were represented to contain, and have thereby induced and do induce the consuming public to purchase respondent's tires and tubes in preference to tires and tubes of similar kinds and quality offered by manufacturers, retail dealers, and distributors who in connection with their sales do not misrepresent the fact or existence of a middleman's profit or commission comparable with the profit of a retail tire dealer and do not misrepresent the number of plies in tires advertised and sold by them in interstate commerce. As a result of such false and misleading representations on the part of respondent trade is diverted to respondent from such competitors in interstate commerce and thereby substantial injury is done and has been done by the respondent to substantial competition in interstate commerce and there is and has been placed in the hands of respondent's dealers and distributors an instrument by means of which they mislead and deceive and have misled and deceived the purchasing public.
Par. 9. Said representations of respondent contained in its respective catalogs and advertising matter used by and distributed through respondent's dealers and consignees have resulted in injury to respondent's competitors and to retail dealers, and to the prejudice of the buying public, and constitute unfair methods of competition within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes".

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding coming on for final hearing by the Federal Trade Commission on the record, including the complaint of the Commission issued under Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", and respondent's amended answer thereto in which respondent waives hearing on the charges set forth in the complaint, refrains from contesting the proceeding and, pursuant to the Commission's Rules of Practice with respect to answers, consents that the Commission may make, enter and serve upon respondent without a trial, without evidence, and without findings as to the facts or other intervening procedure, an order to cease and desist from the method or methods of competition alleged in the complaint; and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being fully advised in the premises—

It is now ordered, That respondent, Armstrong Rubber Company, Inc., a corporation, its officers, agents, servants, employees, in connection with the advertising, offering for sale, and selling in interstate commerce, and in the District of Columbia, of automobile tires and tubes, do cease and desist from:

(a) Representing by means of advertisements, circulars, catalogs, stationery, or by any other manner, or assisting or participating in the circulation in interstate commerce of any advertisements, circulars, catalogs, stationery or other media representing that prices at which respondent sells its products to the consumer are manufacturer's wholesale prices or that respondent sells its products to the consumer under a plan or method of distribution by means of which all costs, profits or other charges of middlemen are eliminated; or that the proceeds of such savings by reason of the elimination of such middlemen, accrue to purchasers from respondent, unless and until such representations are true in fact.
(b) Representing in any advertisements, circulars, catalogs, stationery, or otherwise, or assisting or participating in the circulation in interstate commerce of any advertisements, circulars, catalogs, stationery or other media representing or indicating, or having the capacity or tendency to indicate from the text in which such representation appears that the tires sold by respondent contain more plies of fabric in their composition than they actually contain.

It is further ordered, That the respondent within 60 days from and after the date of service upon it of this order shall file with the Commission a report or reports, in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it is complying with the order to cease and desist hereinbefore set out by the Commission.
Consent order requiring respondent corporation, its officers, etc., in connection with soliciting the sale of, selling and distributing a set of history books in interstate commerce, to cease and desist from falsely,—

(a) Representing that said books are new and up to date or that it is staging a special introductory campaign limited as to time or to a few selected and outstanding individuals, and that the set is shortly to go on regular sale at a price several times that involved in the introductory offer; or

(b) Representing that the subscriber or prospective purchaser is receiving absolutely free an unbound set, and that the only cost is the payment of a purported wholesale contract price for binding the same, and that it has made an arrangement with independent book binding companies to bind said work at a saving to the prospective purchaser; and

Ordered further that respondent in connection with soliciting the sale of, selling and distributing any set of books in interstate commerce cease and desist from,—

(c) Labeling, designating, naming or describing the same set of books under more than one title.

Mr. Morton Nesmith for the Commission.

Waite, Schindel & Bayless, of Cincinnati, Ohio, for respondent.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that the Jones Brothers Publishing Company, a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has been and is using unfair methods of competition in commerce as “commerce” is defined in said act, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereto would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges as follows:

Paragraph 1. The respondent, Jones Brothers Publishing Company, is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Ohio, with its principal place of business at Arbor Place, Norwood, a suburb of Cincinnati, in the State of Ohio.

Respondent corporation for more than three years last past has been and is now engaged in the business of selling and distributing a set of nine volumes of history books, and owns the dies for the first eight volumes of said set. Said respondent causes these volumes, together with an additional volume, to be printed and causes said set to be labeled under two different and separate names. This identical set is published under the names of “History of our Country” and “Library of American History”, the set under the former name being sold at wholesale only and the set under the latter name being sold at retail, exclusively by salesmen. Said respondent has offered for sale, and sold, said set of books in commerce between and among the several States of the United States. Respondent has caused, and still causes, said books when sold and distributed by it to be transported from its said place of business in Ohio into and through various other States of the United States to purchasers thereof located in various places in such other States.

Other persons, firms, associations, and corporations have been, and are, engaged in the business of printing and distributing sets of history books, offering for sale and selling same in commerce between and among the several States of the United States in substantial competition with said respondent. In the course and conduct of its business, as aforesaid, respondent corporation has been and is in competition with all such other persons, firms, associations, and corporations so engaged in the selling and offering for sale of like and competitive sets of books in commerce between and among the several States of the United States.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of its business of selling and distributing “Library of American History” respondent, through and by its sales agents, by way of inducement to prospective purchasers to purchase such set of books, has represented as follows:

First, that the set is new and up to date.

Second, that respondent is staging a special introductory campaign, limited as to time, and that the set is shortly to go on regular sale at a price several times that involved in the introductory offer.

Third, that the subscriber, or prospective purchaser, is receiving absolutely free an unbound set of such books, and that the only cost to the person or persons is the payment of a purported wholesale contract price for the binding thereof.

Fourth, that the so-called introductory offer is not general, but is limited to a few selected and outstanding individuals.

Fifth, that respondent has made an arrangement with independent book binding companies to bind said work at a saving to the prospective purchaser.

Par. 3. In truth and in fact the sets of books so sold and distributed by the respondent, as aforesaid, are not new and up to date; nor is respondent staging any special introductory campaign limited as to time, nor will the work shortly go on regular sale at a price much higher than that given in said alleged introductory offer, but, on the contrary, said respondent has employed this introductory sales offer continuously for the past ten years; nor is the subscriber, or prospective purchaser, receiving this work free and only paying for the binding therefor, but, on the contrary, respondent, out of this alleged binding cost, receives a net profit for the set, plus binding; nor is the so-called introductory offer limited to a few selected and outstanding individuals, but, on the contrary, is made to a great many and divers people; nor has respondent made any arrangements with any independent book binding companies to bind said work at a saving to the prospective purchaser, but, on the contrary, said alleged independent book binding companies are merely fictitious corporate entities, and all correspondence between these alleged fictitious corporations and purchasers and prospective purchasers is answered by respondent company, which performs said binding work and replies to such correspondence in the names of such fictitious companies.

The use by respondent of said false and misleading statements, as described in paragraph 2 hereof, has the capacity and tendency to, and has and does, mislead and deceive many among the purchasing public into the belief that such representations are true and to purchase the aforesaid designated set from respondent in such belief; thereby trade is diverted by respondent from its competitors who do not make false and misleading representations in connection with the sale by them of similar sets of books in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, and thereby substantial injury is done by respondent to substantial competition in interstate commerce.

Par. 4. The above alleged acts and practices of respondent are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

This proceeding coming on for final hearing by the Federal Trade Commission upon the record, including the complaint of the Commission and the answer of the respondent thereto that it waives hearing on the charges set forth in the complaint, refrains from contesting the proceeding, and pursuant to paragraph 2 of Rule V of the Rules of Practice of the Commission as amended and revised, consents that the Commission may make, enter, and serve upon respondent, without evidence and without findings as to the facts or other intervening procedure, an order to cease and desist from the method or methods of competition alleged in the complaint; and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being fully advised in the premises—

It is now ordered, That respondent, Jones Brothers Publishing Company, a corporation, its officers, servants, agents, and employees, in connection with soliciting the sale of, selling and distributing a set of history books in interstate commerce, cease and desist from—

Directly or indirectly representing that said books are new and up to date; that respondent is staging a special introductory campaign limited as to time, and that said set of books is shortly to go on regular sale at a price several times that involved in the introductory offer; that the subscriber or prospective purchaser is receiving absolutely free an unbound set of such books, and that the only cost to the person or persons is the payment of a purported wholesale contract price for the binding thereof; that the so-called introductory offer is not general but is limited to a few selected and outstanding individuals; and that respondent has made an arrangement with independent book binding companies to bind said work at a saving to the prospective purchaser, when such are not the facts.

It is further ordered, That respondent, in connection with soliciting the sale of, selling and distributing any set of books in interstate commerce, cease and desist from:

Labeling, designating, naming or describing the same set of books under more than one title.

It is further ordered, That the said respondent within 30 days from and after the date of the service upon it of this order, shall file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it is complying and has complied with the order to cease and desist hereinabove set forth.

COMPLAINT

mission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that the Birmingham Automotive Jobbers Association, an unincorporated association, its officers as follows: G. E. Woodward, president; M. H. Johnson, vice president; A. J. Seigal, second vice president; and Oliver Henderson, secretary-treasurer; and its members as follows: Alabama Auto Parts Company, a corporation, Birmingham Electric Battery Company, a corporation, Cruse-Crawford Wheel & Rim Company, a corporation, Lawson Auto Parts Company, a corporation, Southern Bearing & Parts Company, a corporation, A. J. Brown, doing business under the trade name and style of Simplex Piston Ring Company, and A. D. Slye, doing business under the trade name and style of Slye’s Auto Supply Company, have been and are using unfair methods of competition in commerce as “commerce” is defined in said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. The respondent, Birmingham Automotive Jobbers Association, is a voluntary unincorporated trade association organized in 1933 of the corporations and individuals hereinafter named, with their principal places of business in or around the city of Birmingham, State of Alabama, and who are engaged in the business of jobbing automobile parts and accessories to garages, automobile dealers, fleet owners, and the like, located both within the State of Alabama and in neighboring States, and said members are banded together in respondent association for the purpose of protecting their common interests, and said respondent members now constitute and since the organization of respondent association have constituted a majority of the jobbers of automobile parts and accessories in and around the city of Birmingham, State of Alabama, and occupy a dominant position in and about the surrounding territory in such trade. Said respondent, Birmingham Automotive Jobbers Association, will hereinafter be designated as respondent association. The principal office and place of business of said respondent association is Room 200, Clark Building, in the city of Birmingham, State of Alabama. Its officers are and continuously since its organization have been the following, who are hereinafter referred to as respondent officers:

A. J. Seigal, second vice president, whose principal place of business is located at 514 South Eighteenth Street, in the city of Birmingham, State of Alabama; and Oliver Henderson, secretary-treasurer, whose principal place of business is located at Room 200 Clark Building, in the city of Birmingham, State of Alabama.

The members of said respondent association are now and have been since its organization the following, who are hereinafter referred to as respondent members:

Alabama Auto Parts Company, a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Alabama, with its principal office and place of business at 514 South Eighteenth Street, in the city of Birmingham, State of Alabama.

Auto Electric & Carbureter Company, a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Alabama, with its principal office and place of business at 517 South Twenty-second Street, city of Birmingham, State of Alabama.

Cruse-Crawford Wheel & Rim Company, a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Alabama, with its principal office and place of business at 2015 Third Avenue South, in the city of Birmingham, State of Alabama.

Lawson Auto Parts Company, a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Alabama, with its principal office and place of business at Avenue "E" and Twenty-first Street, in the city of Birmingham, State of Alabama.

Southern Bearing & Parts Company, a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Alabama, with its principal office and place of business at 305 South Twenty-first Street, in the city of Birmingham, State of Alabama.

A. J. Brown, doing business under the trade name and style of Simplex Piston Ring Company, with its principal office and place of business at 209 South Eighteenth Street, in the city of Birmingham, State of Alabama; and

A. D. Slye, doing business under the trade name and style of Slye's Auto Supply Company, with its principal office and place of business at 2105 Avenue "E", Ensley, Ala.
PAR. 2. All of the respondent members described in paragraph 1 hereof are now and have been for several years last past engaged in the business of jobbing and wholesaling automobile parts and accessories. All of said respondent members, except A. J. Brown, doing business under the trade name and style of Simplex Piston Ring Company, and A. D. Slye, doing business under the trade name and style of Slye's Auto Supply Company, operate machine shops in conjunction with their jobbing businesses.

All of said respondent members, except A. J. Brown, doing business under the trade name and style of Simplex Piston Ring Company, and A. D. Slye, doing business under the trade name and style of Slye's Auto Supply Company, in the course and conduct of their businesses as aforesaid, have caused and still cause such automobile parts and accessories, when sold by them to be transported from their respective places of business into and through various States of the United States other than the State of Alabama to the purchasers thereof in such other States, and there is now and there has been for more than two years last past a constant current of trade and commerce in such parts and accessories by the said respondent members.

Said respondent members, A. J. Brown, doing business under the trade name and style of Simplex Piston Ring Company, and A. D. Slye, doing business under the trade name and style of Slye's Auto Supply Company, are members of the respondent association, Birmingham Automotive Jobbers Association, and have abided by the rules, regulations, and agreements of said association more particularly hereinafter set out.

Said respondent members now constitute, and since the organization of respondent association in July 1933 have constituted a majority of the automobile parts and accessories jobbers in the city of Birmingham, State of Alabama, and occupy a dominant position in and about the territory in which they sell such automobile parts and accessories.

PAR. 3. In September 1933, or thereabouts, the said respondent members named in paragraph 1 hereof, for the purpose of eliminating price competition among themselves, entered into and they have since carried out and are still carrying out an agreement, combination, understanding, and conspiracy among themselves, hereinafter more particularly described, through and by means of said respondent, Birmingham Automotive Jobbers Association, and its aforesaid officers, by which agreement, combination, understanding, and conspiracy they have fixed and maintained and still fix and maintain uniform prices to be exacted by them from their purchasers of automobile parts and accessories.
Pursuant to and for the purpose of carrying out the said agreement, combination, understanding, and conspiracy entered into by the said respondent members among themselves and through the said respondent association and respondent officers, the respondent members, among other things, have done the following:

(a) Agreed that they would use and abide by and pursuant to such agreement have used and have abided by the manufacturers' resale schedules in the selling of all automobile parts and accessories.

(b) Agreed to fix from time to time, and pursuant to such agreement have fixed from time to time uniform prices at which automotive parts and equipment should be sold.

(c) Agreed to fix from time to time, and pursuant to such agreement have fixed from time to time uniform prices for various repair jobs involving only labor.

(d) Agreed to fix from time to time, and pursuant to such agreement have fixed from time to time uniform prices for various repair jobs involving both automobile parts and labor.

(e) Agreed to fix from time to time, and pursuant to such agreement have fixed from time to time schedules of discounts to be allowed by them to certain classes of purchasers of automobile parts and accessories.

(f) Agreed to require and pursuant to such agreement have required certain classes of their purchasers to resell the automobile parts and accessories purchased from respondent members at the list prices of the manufacturers thereof or at prices fixed by the respondent association.

(g) Agreed that wherever and whenever a member should deem it fit to make a change in any price or prices on any automobile part, accessory, or labor, except closeout items, that said member would either notify the secretary of said respondent association in writing, or each member before such change should be put into effect.

Par. 4. The aforesaid alleged acts and practices of the respondents had and still have the tendency and capacity to constrain all jobbers of automobile parts and accessories doing business in the territory above mentioned to uniformly sell the aforesaid products to their dealer-customers, garage owners, fleet owners, and the like, at the prices fixed by said respondent association, and its members as here- inbefore set out, and hence to hinder and suppress all price competition in the jobbing of said products in said territory, particularly among the members of the association, and further to hinder and restrain price competition between all their dealer-customers in said territory.

Respondents' said practices thus tended and still tend to unduly hinder and obstruct the free and natural flow of commerce in the channels of interstate commerce, enhance prices to the purchasing public, and have otherwise deprived the public of the benefits that would flow from normal competition among and between the respondents and their dealer-customers. Such agreement, understanding, combination, and conspiracy and the things done thereunder and pursuant thereto as above alleged, constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

The respondents, Birmingham Automotive Jobbers Association, an unincorporated trade association, its officers, G. E. Woodward, M. H. Johnson, A. J. Seigal, and Oliver Henderson, and its members, Alabama Auto Parts Company, a corporation; Birmingham Electric Battery Company, a corporation; Cruse-Crawford Wheel & Rim Company, a corporation; Lawson Auto Parts Company, a corporation; Southern Bearing & Parts Company, a corporation; A. J. Brown, doing business under the trade name and style of Simplex Piston Ring Company; and A. D. Slye, doing business under the trade name and style of Slye's Auto Supply Company, having heretofore filed their respective answers to the complaint in this proceeding, and having subsequently filed with this Commission their motion that they respectively be permitted to withdraw their said answers and be permitted to file in lieu thereof a substitute answer in which they respectively be permitted to withdraw their said answers and be permitted to file in lieu thereof a substitute answer in which they and each of them consent that the Commission without trial, without evidence, and without findings as to the facts or other intervening procedure, might make, enter, issue, and serve upon said respondents, an order to cease and desist from the methods of competition alleged in the complaint; and the Commission having duly considered the motion and said answer, and being fully advised in the premises—

It is therefore ordered, That the said motion be and the same is hereby granted; that the said answers heretofore filed be and the same are hereby withdrawn; and that the said proposed substituted answer be and the same is hereby filed in lieu of the said answers so withdrawn.

IN THE MATTER OF

AMERICAN SHELL PRODUCTS COMPANY

Where a corporation engaged in buying and crushing mussel and oyster shells, and in the sale of such crushed shell to wholesale and retail dealers in the various States for ultimate resale to the purchasing public for use in feeding chickens—

(a) Featured word "oyster" upon the labels of the sacks in which it sold various brands of its said product, containing proportions of oyster shell ranging from 50 percent to 5 percent, depending upon the particular brand involved, and displayed word "mussel" in an obscure place, and in relatively inconspicuous fashion, and in such small plain letters as compared with the large shaded letters in which word "oyster" was printed, that each letter in latter word was approximately two thirds of the size of the entire word "mussel"; and

(b) Set forth upon the labels of the bags of three of the four brands sold by it, the words "Biloxi, Miss.", in addition to its own inland address, notwithstanding fact it maintained no office or place of business in Biloxi, known to trade and poultry raisers as one of the principal shipping points for crushed oyster shell;

With result of leading purchasers and prospective purchasers to believe that said bags of its product contained the more costly and preferred crushed oyster shell exclusively, and of confusing, misleading, and deceiving a substantial portion of the trade and purchasers in said respect, and with capacity and tendency so to do, and to induce purchase and use of its said products by the purchasing public because of such erroneous belief, and divert trade to it from competitors who sell crushed oyster shell and from those who sell mussel shell, truthfully branded, to their injury:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the conditions and circumstances set forth, were to the prejudice of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. John W. Addison, trial examiner.

Mr. Edw. W. Thomerson for the Commission

SYNOPSIS OF COMPLAINT

Reciting its action in the public interest, pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Commission charged respondent Iowa corporation, engaged in buying and crushing mussel and oyster shell, and in selling such crushed shell for use in supplying calcium carbonate in feeding chickens, and with principal place of business in Muscatine, Iowa, with misbranding or mislabeling as to composition of product, in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of such Act, prohibiting the use of unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce.

Respondent, as charged, engaged as aforesaid, sells its said product as oyster shell through conspicuously featuring the word "oyster" upon the labels of the containers thereof, with inadequate and inconspicuous display of word "mussel", and through display of words "Biloxi, Miss.", as one of its addresses, notwithstanding fact proportion of oyster shell in its four brands ranges from 50 per cent to 5 per cent only, and it has no office or place of business in Biloxi, well known to trade and crushed oyster shell purchasers as one of the principal shipping points for said product. 1

The acts and practices of respondent, as charged, in thus branding and representing its product "are false, misleading, and deceptive and have the tendency and capacity to and do confuse, mislead, and deceive a substantial part of the trade and purchasing public into the erroneous belief that its said crushed mussel shell, to which has been added crushed oyster shell in the proportions set out, is crushed oyster shell, and such acts and practices of respondent in branding, advertising and representing its products are false, misleading and deceptive and have the tendency and capacity to induce the purchasing public to buy and use respondent's said products because of the erroneous belief that such products are crushed oyster shell and to divert trade to respondent from competitors, similarly engaged in the sale of products used for the same general purpose", and "who do not so brand, advertise, and represent their products", to the injury and prejudice of the public and competitors.

Upon the foregoing complaint, the Commission made the following

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

The respondent having filed its answer herein, hearings were had and evidence was thereupon introduced at the instance of the Commission and respondent before an examiner of the Federal Trade Commission, theretofore duly appointed.

1 The labels used in the four brands and description thereof, as alleged in the complaint, are set forth in the findings, infra.
AMERICAN SHELL PRODUCTS CO. 239

Findings

Thereupon, this proceeding came on for final hearing on a brief filed by counsel on behalf of the Commission, no appearance being made or brief filed on behalf of the respondent, and the Commission having duly considered the record and being fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. The respondent, American Shell Products Company, is a corporation, organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Iowa, with its principal office and place of business in the city of Muscatine, in said State.

Par. 2. The respondent is now engaged, and has been for the several years last past, in the business of buying and crushing mussel and oyster shell and in the selling of such crushed shell to wholesale and retail dealers located in the various States of the United States, for ultimate resale to members of the purchasing public for use in feeding chickens. Respondent produces and sells approximately 2,000 tons of crushed shell per year. Respondent causes such crushed shell, when sold, to be transported from its principal place of business at Muscatine, Iowa, or from the State where said shipment originated, to, into and across the several States of the United States other than the State of Iowa, or the States wherein such shipment originated, to the several purchasers thereof. Other corporations and persons, firms and associations have been and are engaged in producing and offering for sale and selling in said commerce among the several States of the United States crushed mussel shell and crushed oyster shell and other competitive products and respondent, in the course and conduct of its business, is in substantial competition with such other corporations and persons, firms and associations.

Par. 3. Crushed mussel shell, crushed oyster shell, and crushed limestone are used throughout the several States of the United States as a food for laying hens to increase the calcium carbonate content of the diet, because of the fact that such increase of calcium carbonate results in the formation of more and better egg shells. Crushed oyster shell is well known in the trade and among poultry raisers as a desirable addition to the diet of laying hens and many dealers in and purchasers of such products prefer crushed oyster shell to crushed mussel shell or crushed limestone and believe that it is superior to either crushed mussel shell or crushed limestone, for the purpose for which it is used. Crushed mussel shell has been used for this purpose for a number of years, but is not as well and favorably known in the trade and among poultry raisers as is crushed oyster shell. Crushed oyster shell is made by grinding and crushing either shell taken from edible oysters or shell taken from reefs in the Gulf of Mexico. Crushed mussel shell is made by grinding and crushing shell of fresh water mussel taken from the Mississippi, its tributaries, and other fresh waters in the United States. Crushed oyster shell sells at a higher price than does crushed mussel shell. Ultimate purchasers of crushed shell are unable to determine from an examination of the shell whether it is mussel or oyster shell or whether it is mixed shell, and are dependent upon the printed matter found on the containers in which such shell is sold as to the contents thereof. Crushed shell, whether it be oyster, mussel, or a mixture of oyster and mussel shell, finds a better sale when branded "oyster" than it does when branded "mussel", or branded "mixed oyster and mussel".

The city of Biloxi, Miss., is known in the trade and to poultry raisers as one of the principal shipping points in the United States for crushed oyster shell.

PAR. 4. Respondent's product is sold to wholesalers, retailers and the ultimate purchasers in burlap bags, which contain approximately 100 pounds of crushed shell and upon which appears the printed matter hereinafter set out.

Respondent produces and sells a mixed crushed shell, which is approximately 50 percent mussel and 50 percent oyster shell, under the trade name "Premium", and the respondent causes to be printed on the bags in which this brand of crushed shell is sold the following words, letters, and figures:

On the bags in which brands "Premium", "Standard", "Egg Producer", and "Very Best" are sold, the word "oyster" is printed in large shaded letters in a conspicuous place and the word "mussel" is printed in small plain letters in an obscure place. Each letter used in the word "oyster" is approximately two-thirds the size of the entire word "mussel". Respondent does not maintain an office or place of business in the city of Biloxi, Miss. The effect as a whole of the printed matter on said bags and the use of the address Biloxi, Miss., on the three brands on which it is used, is to lead purchasers and prospective purchasers to believe that said bags contain crushed oyster shell and not a mixture of crushed mussel and oyster shell.

Par. 5. Respondent's acts and practices in branding and representing its product in the manner as hereinabove set forth are misleading and deceptive and have the tendency and capacity to and do confuse, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the trade and purchasers of such products into the erroneous belief that its crushed mussel shell, to which has been added crushed oyster shell in the proportions as above stated, is crushed oyster shell and has the tendency and capacity to induce the purchasing public to buy and use respondent's products because of said erroneous belief that such products are crushed oyster shell and to divert trade to the respondent from competitors who sell crushed oyster shell and from competitors who sell crushed mussel shell and brand it truthfully, to their injury.
CONCLUSION

The acts and practices of the respondent, American Shell Products Company, under the conditions and circumstances described in the foregoing findings, are to the prejudice of the public and respondent’s competitors and are unfair methods of competition in commerce and constitute a violation of the Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the record and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that the respondent American Shell Products Company, a corporation, has violated the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”—

It is now ordered, That the respondent American Shell Products Company, a corporation, its officers, agents, representatives, servants, and employees, when offering for sale and selling crushed shell in commerce among the several States of the United States, cease and desist from directly or indirectly:

(1) Using the word “oyster” on bags or containers in which it sells crushed shell or otherwise to represent, describe, or designate crushed shell (a) unless and until such crushed shell is composed entirely of the crushed shell of the bivalve commonly known as the oyster, or (b) unless and until, where such crushed shell is composed partly of oyster shell, the word “oyster” is accompanied by a word or words, in equally conspicuous form and color, aptly and truthfully describing the other material or materials of which such product is composed.

(2) Using an address on bags or containers in which it sells crushed shell or otherwise in connection with the sale or offers of sale of crushed shell, unless and until the respondent maintains an office or place of business at such address.

It is further ordered, That the respondent American Shell Products Company, a corporation, shall, within 60 days after service upon it of a copy of this order, file with the Federal Trade Commission a report, in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with the order to cease and desist hereinabove set forth.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that each and all the parties named in the caption hereof, hereinafter referred to as respondents, have been and now are using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint and states its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Wyoming Valley Jobbers Association, Inc., is a nonprofit corporation incorporated under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, whose membership is composed of individuals, partnerships, and corporations with their respective places of business in the cities of Wilkes-Barre, Nanticoke, Forty Fort, Kingston, Swoyersville, Plymouth, and Pittston, State of Pennsylvania, engaged as brokers, distributors, and wholesalers in selling tobacco and confectionery to retail dealers located in said State and in neighboring States. Said Wyoming Valley Jobbers Association, Inc., will hereinafter be referred to as the “association”.

Respondents Haskell Ginsburgh, John Yeager, J. H. Arenson, and E. A. Stroud are respectively president, vice president, secretary, and treasurer of said association, in charge of conducting and administering its activities and affairs.

The members of the association are as follows: Respondent Jacob H. Arenson, an individual, trading under the firm name and style of J. H. Arenson Tobacco Company, with his principal place of business located at Nanticoke, Pa.; respondent Herbert L. Austin, an individual, trading under the firm name and style of Acme Candy Company, with his place of business located at Forty Fort, Pa.; respondent W. L. Keeley, an individual, whose place of business is located at Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; respondent Summers Puckey, an individual, trading under the firm name and style of Keystone Specialty Company, with his principal place of business located at Nanticoke, Pa.; respondent Key Stores Company, Inc., a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Delaware, with its office and principal place of business located in the city of Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; respondent Frank Klein, an individual, trading under the firm name and style of Klein Candy Company, with his principal place of business located at Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; respondent Morris Weltman, an individual, trading under the firm name and style of Majestic Candy Company, with his principal place of business located at Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; respondents A. E. Mihalick and Mary Mihalick, co-partners, trading under the firm name and style of A. E. Mihalick Tobacco Company, with their place of business located at Plymouth, Pa.; respondent Novelty Candy Company, with its place of business located at Nanticoke, Pa.; respondent Pittston Tobacco Company, a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, with its office and principal place of business located in the city of Pittston, Pa.

Respondent Paul P. Podkul, an individual, whose place of business is located at Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; respondent J. S. Rothstein, an individual, trading under the firm name and style of J. S. Rothstein Company, with his principal place of business located at Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; respondent Morris Siegel, an individual, whose place of business is located at Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; respondent Shaffer Tobacco Company, Inc., a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, with its office and principal place of business located at Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; respondent Sperling Tobacco Company, a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, with its office and principal place of business located at Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; respondent Star Tobacco Company, a corporation organized under the laws of the State of New Jersey, with its office and principal place of business located at Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; respondent Vincent Stawinski, an individual, whose place of business is located at Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; respondents Fred D. Abelson, an individual, trading under the firm name and style of Wilkes-Barre Cigar & Tobacco Company, with his principal place of business located at Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; respondent Russell Williams, an individual, whose place of business is located at Pittston, Pa.; and respondent J. W. Yeager, an individual, whose place of business is located at Kingston, Pa.

Par. 2. The said tobacco and confectionery products industry includes among its products certain widely known nationally advertised articles for which the consuming public maintains a consistent demand. These nationally advertised tobacco and confectionery products are manufactured in many different States of the United States and the conduct of the aforesaid business requires the dealing in all or most of such products.

Respondent members of the association purchase the aforesaid tobacco and confectionery products, in which they deal, directly and immediately from manufacturers thereof located for the most part in States other than the State of Pennsylvania, and manufacturers ship said products, when so purchased, from their respective places of business in such other States to said members in the State of Pennsylvania.

In the course and conduct of their aforesaid respective businesses, respondent members, but for the matters and things hereinafter set out, would be naturally and normally in competition with each other, and otherwise are in such competition with other individuals, partnerships, and corporations also engaged in the purchase of tobacco and confectionery products from aforesaid manufacturers located in States other than the State of Pennsylvania, and the resale thereof in the State of Pennsylvania and neighboring States. Respondent members, by virtue of their membership in said association designate themselves as "recognized" members as distinguished from such brokers, distributors, and wholesalers of tobacco and confectionery products in said trade area, who are not members of said association.

The respective members of the respondent association constitute a large and important part of the brokers, distributors, and wholesalers in tobacco and confectionery products in the Wilkes-Barre trade area; and in such members constitute a group so large and influential in the trade as to be able to control and influence the flow of trade and commerce in such products within, to, and from said trade area. Said members, as allied and banded together in said association, are enabled thereby more effectively to exercise, control, and influence such trade and profits. The volume of consumption of tobacco and confectionery products in said Wilkes-Barre trade area, and the volume of trade and commerce dealt in by respondents in such products in, to, and from said area constitute a substantial part of the trade and commerce of the United States in the tobacco and confectionery products industry. Said trade area is a large and important outlet and market for the sale of tobacco and confectionery products by manufacturers, producers and distributors within said trade area and also by those in various other States, particularly those of the eastern half of the United States.

Par. 3. In October 1933, or thereabouts, respondents named in paragraph 1 hereof, entered into, have since carried out, and are still carrying out an agreement, combination, understanding and conspiracy among themselves, to prevent said competing dealers in tobacco and confectionery products, mentioned in paragraph 2 hereof, from obtaining tobacco and confectionery products directly from aforesaid manufacturers thereof; to establish respondent members as a class of "recognized" brokers, distributors, and wholesalers of said products in the said Wilkes-Barre trade area; to fix and establish uniform prices at which said members of respondent association should sell said products and to prevent others from selling at less prices and by and through the aforesaid means to suppress, hinder, and lessen competition in substantial interstate commerce in the selling and distribution of said products in the aforesaid territory served by respondents. To carry out the aforesaid purposes the respondents have done, among others, the following acts and things:

(a) Exacted and procured pledges and other promises of agreements from each such “recognized” dealer and each member of respondent association and from manufacturers and producers of tobacco and confectionery products to the effect that such dealers, members, manufacturers and producers would support, adhere to and enforce the foregoing program of respondents set forth in paragraph 3 hereof.

(b) Printed and published lists (so-called “white lists”) containing the names of “recognized” dealer members of said association, so as to include in said lists only so-called legitimate, regular or “recognized” dealers, brokers, distributors, and wholesalers of said products, and to exclude therefrom, and thereby to identify as such, so-called nonrecognized dealers, brokers, distributors and wholesalers of said products, and supplied said lists to aforesaid manufacturers, and by the means and methods hereinafter set forth persuaded, induced and compelled said manufacturers to cease dealing with and to refuse to open accounts with the dealers, brokers, distributors, and wholesalers so reported.

(c) Used in concert and agreement among themselves and with others, coercive and concerted action, boycott, threats of boycott, and other united action against manufacturers, dealers and others to induce and require them, and to attempt so to induce and require them, to agree and conform to and to support and enforce the said program of respondents, and to refrain from selling said products to other dealers, brokers, distributors and wholesalers who were not members of said association.

(d) By concerted action, persuaded, coerced, and compelled its members to boycott and refuse to buy tobacco products from a tobacco manufacturer located outside of the State of Pennsylvania, with the result that for the period of one month or thereabouts, interstate commerce between said tobacco manufacturer and the Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania district, as normally accomplished in said trade, was totally suspended and blocked.

(e) Held meetings of respondent association, its members, and officers, to devise means of exerting influence, pressure, coercion, or other means of inducing, coercing and requiring manufacturers, producers, brokers, dealers and wholesalers and others engaged in said tobacco and confectionery trade and industry to abide by and adhere to said program.

\((f)\) For the purpose and with the effect of inducing or compelling manufacturers and producers to conform to said program, informed and advised such manufacturers and producers of the names of said “recognized” dealers in said Wilkes-Barre trade area, and of respondents’ purpose and determination to insist upon and require such manufacturers and producers to distribute their products through the medium of said “recognized” dealers exclusively, and in conformity with the aforesaid program of respondents; and also advised such manufacturers and producers that their sale and distribution of tobacco and confectionery products direct to certain nonrecognized dealers and purchasers, or their failure to conform to aforesaid program in the distribution of their products would be considered by respondents and such “recognized” dealers as “unfriendly” acts against respondents and such “recognized” dealers.

\((g)\) Denied membership in respondent association and such “recognition” of dealers who failed to support, abide by or carry out said program of respondents, and otherwise disciplined such members and dealers.

\((h)\) Used and engaged in other acts, cooperative and concerted action, and coercive methods and practices in promoting, establishing and carrying out the foregoing program and agreement, combination, conspiracy, confederation and undertaking set forth in paragraph 3 hereof.

Par. 4. That Codes of Fair Competition for the Wholesale Tobacco Trade and Wholesale Confectioners Industry, were approved June 9, 1934, and June 6, 1934, respectively, by the President pursuant to the provisions of Title I of an Act of Congress approved June 16, 1933, entitled “An Act to encourage national industrial recovery, to foster fair competition, and to provide for the construction of certain useful public works, and for other purposes”. Said codes specifically prohibit monopolistic practices and the transactions known as boycotting and black-listing; that the acts and practices of respondents herein were and are in direct violation of the express provisions of said Codes of Fair Competition and contrary to the meaning and intent thereof.

Par. 5. The capacity, tendency, and effect of said agreement, combination, conspiracy, confederation and undertaking, and the said acts and practices of respondents set forth in paragraph 3 hereof are and have been in aforesaid Wilkes-Barre trade area and other related or connected territory: to close and curtail sundry outlets within the State of Pennsylvania for the direct and immediate sale by manufacturers located in other States of goods shipped by such manufacturers into the State of Pennsylvania; to monopolize, in said respondent members and recognized dealers, the business of dealing in and distributing tobacco and confectionery products; to unreasonably lessen, eliminate, restrain, stifle, hamper, and suppress competition in said tobacco and confectionery industry in the State of Pennsylvania, and to deprive the purchasing and consuming public of advantages in price, service and other considerations which they would receive and enjoy under conditions of normal and unobstructed, or free and fair, competition in said trade and industry; to otherwise operate as a restraint upon and a detriment to the freedom of fair and legitimate competition in such trade and industry; to obstruct the natural flow of commerce in the channels of interstate trade; to oppress, eliminate and discriminate against small business enterprises which were or had been engaged in selling and distributing tobacco and confectionery products; to prejudice and injure the public and manufacturers, producers, dealers, brokers, distributors and wholesalers and others who did not conform to respondents' program, or who did not desire, but were compelled, to conform to said program, and to spread into States other than Pennsylvania the same methods of boycott and "white-listing" employed by respondents.

Par. 6. The above alleged acts and things done by respondent as set forth in paragraphs 3 and 5 hereof are monopolistic practices and are methods of competition which are unfair, and they constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning, and in violation of Section 5 of said Act approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes".

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been considered by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answers of the respondents filed herein, wherein respondents state that they do not desire to contest the proceeding, waive hearing, and consent that the Commission make, enter, and serve upon them an order to cease and desist from the violations of law charged in the complaint—

It is now ordered, That the respondents Wyoming Valley Jobbers Association, Inc., a corporation, its officers and active members: Haskell Ginsburgh, John Yeager, J. H. Arenson, and E. A. Stroud, individually and as president, vice president, secretary, and treasurer respectively of said association; Jacob H. Arenson, an individual, trading under the firm name and style of J. H. Arenson Tobacco Company, Herbert L. Austin, an individual, trading under the firm name and style of Acme Candy Company; W. L. Andress; Abe Unterburger, an individual, trading under the firm name and style of Diamond City Candy & Beverage Company; George S. Dymond; Ezra Stern, an individual, trading under the firm name and style of Ezra Stern Company; J. G. Evans, S. Fanti; M. Gross, Jr.; W. T. IN THE MATTER OF

Consent order requiring respondent corporation, its officers, etc., in connection with the sale in interstate commerce of its preparation known as “Japanese Oil” or “En-Ar-Co Japanese (style) Oil” or substantially the same preparation under any other name, to cease and desist from representing that such preparation is a cure or adequate treatment for sore throat, colds, or congestion connected therewith, or for congestion, aches and pains, rheumatism, neuralgia, neuritis, or stiff joints, or for baldness or dandruff, or that it will cause new hair to grow, subject to the proviso, however, that nothing contained in such order shall be construed to prevent respondent from representing that said preparation is beneficial in the treatment of minor throat and bronchial irritations, or that it is beneficial in the treatment of sprains, stiffness and muscular aches and soreness due to fatigue and exposure, or that it is beneficial in the treatment of simple neuralgia, or that it is beneficial for removing loose dandruff by its cleansing effect upon the scalp, or that it is beneficial to the scalp and hair by aiding the superficial circulation.

Mr. Harry D. Michael for the Commission.
Brashears, Townsend, O'Brien & Beasley, of Washington, D. C., and Mr. Frederic Damrau, of New York City, for respondent.

Complaint

Acting in the public interest, pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”, the Federal Trade Commission charges that National Remedy Company has been and is using unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of said Act, and states its charges as follows:

Paragraph 1. That said respondent, National Remedy Company, is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York and has its office and principal place of business in the city of New York in said State.

Par. 2. That said respondent is now and has been engaged for more than ten years last past in the sale and distribution in interstate commerce of a preparation known and described as “Japanese Oil” or “En-Ar-Co Japanese (style) Oil”, which said preparation respondent causes to be transported in interstate commerce from its said place of business in New York to, into, and through States of the United States other than New York to persons, firms, and corporations to whom or to which it is or has been sold. That respondent generally sells its said preparation to wholesale and retail druggists and to other dealers for ultimate resale to members of the public in the various States where said product is ultimately sold.

Par. 3. That during the time above mentioned other individuals, firms, and corporations in the various States of the United States are and have been engaged in the sale and distribution in interstate commerce of preparations similar in kind to that of respondent and also of other preparations adapted to and used for the purposes for which respondent's preparation is recommended to be used in the advertising matter hereinafter referred to, and such other individuals, firms, and corporations have caused and do now cause their said preparations, when sold by them, to be transported from various States of the United States to, into, and through States other than the State of the origin of the shipment thereof. Said respondent has been, during the aforesaid time, in competition in interstate commerce in the sale of its said preparation with such other individuals, firms, and corporations.

Par. 4. Respondent, in advertising its said preparation, causes advertisements to be inserted in newspapers and other publications circulated to the purchasing public in the various States of the United States which represent or imply that "Japanese Oil" is a cure or a competent and adequate treatment for sore throat, chest colds, and congestion, baldness, dandruff, aches and pains, rheumatism, neuralgia, neuritis, and stiff joints, and that said preparation will cause new hair to grow. Among such representations made by respondent and contained in such advertisements referring to said preparation are the following:

Quick relief, sore throat ... Japanese Oil rubbed on sore throat gives quick relief. For chest colds, congestion, rub in vigorously.

Getting bald? You can grow new hair.

Getting bald? Troubled with dandruff?

Ask your druggist for free booklet, "The Truth About Hair" which tells how Japanese Oil ... can overcome these conditions.

Prevent baldness the way others do.

Aches and pains—Quick relief with Japanese Oil.

... For rheumatism, neuralgia, neuritis, ... stiff joints ...

Par. 5. That in truth and in fact, said preparation is not a competent and adequate treatment for sore throat, colds, or congestion connected therewith generally, but is adapted to the treatment of minor throat and bronchial irritations only; that it is not a competent and adequate treatment for congestion, aches and pains, rheumatism, neuralgia, neuritis, or stiff joints, but is adapted to the treatment of simple neuralgia only; that said preparation is not a competent and adequate treatment for baldness or dandruff and the use of the same will not cause new hair to grow. That all of said statements, representations and implications are either not true and wholly beyond the therapeutic effects of said preparation or are greatly exaggerated and grossly inaccurate.

Par. 6. That the representations of respondent, as aforesaid, have had and do have the tendency and capacity to confuse, mislead, and deceive members of the public into the belief that respondent's said preparation is a cure or a competent and adequate treatment for sore throat, chest colds and congestion, baldness, dandruff, aches and pains, rheumatism, neuralgia, neuritis, and stiff joints, and that it will cause new hair to grow when in truth and in fact such are not the facts, or only to a limited extent. That said representations of respondent have had and do have tendency and capacity to induce members of the public to buy and use said preparation because of the erroneous beliefs engendered as above set forth, and to divert trade to respondent from competitors engaged in the sale in interstate commerce of preparations adapted to the treatment of the ailments above mentioned.

Par. 7. The above acts and things done by respondent are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and the competitors of respondent in interstate commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission, on the 13th day of December 1933, issued its complaint against National Remedy Company, a corporation, respondent herein, and caused the same to be served upon respondent as required by law, in which complaint it is charged that respondent has been and is using unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of said Act.

On January 18, 1934, said respondent filed herein an answer in writing to said complaint. Subsequently, said respondent filed herein a petition to withdraw its said answer and asking that a new answer therewith submitted be filed in lieu thereof, which said petition was granted by the Commission and said new answer was accordingly filed. By said new answer respondent elected to refrain from contesting this proceeding and consented to the issuance of an order to cease and desist from the practices set forth in the complaint herein.

Thereafter this proceeding came on regularly for disposition and decision by the Commission under subdivision (b) of Rule V of the Rules of Practice and Procedure adopted by the Commission, and the Commission being fully advised in the premises—

It is ordered, That respondent, National Remedy Company, its officers, directors, agents, representatives, servants, and employees, in connection with the sale, offering for sale, or distribution in interstate commerce and the District of Columbia of its preparation known and described as “Japanese Oil” or “En-Ar-Co Japanese (style) Oil”, or of a preparation of the same or substantially the same composition under any other name or names, cease and desist from representing by any statement or statements or other methods which represent or imply that such preparation is a cure, remedy, or competent and adequate treatment for sore throat, colds, or congestion connected therewith, or for congestion, aches and pains, rheumatism, neuralgia, neuritis, or stiff joints, or for baldness or dandruff, or that it will cause new hair to grow.

Provided, however, That nothing contained in this order shall be construed to prevent respondent from representing that said preparation is beneficial in the treatment of minor throat and bronchial irritations, or that it is beneficial in the treatment of sprains, stiffness, and muscular aches and soreness due to fatigue and exposure, or that it is beneficial in the treatment of simple neuralgia, or that it is beneficial for removing loose dandruff by its cleansing effect upon the scalp, or that it is beneficial to the scalp and hair by aiding the superficial circulation.

It is further ordered, That respondent, within 60 days from and after the date of the service upon it of this order, shall file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it is complying with the order to cease and desist hereinabove set forth.

IN THE MATTER OF

FYR-FYTER COMPANY ET AL.

Consent order requiring respondent corporations, their officers, etc., in connection with the sale and offer of fire extinguishing equipment and supplies in interstate commerce, and subject to the exception from such order of any lawful action taken in regard to patented articles or under license agreements relating thereto, to cease and desist from doing and performing, by understanding, agreement, or combination among themselves or between or among any two or more of them, or with others, acting directly by or through the respondents, the following acts and things, namely—

(a) Fixing prices at which said commodities are to be sold;
(b) Agreeing that none of them singly will solicit the customers of another respondent or quote them prices lower than those at the time being quoted such customers by the respondent supplying them;
(c) Refusing to continue to sell fire extinguishing equipment and supplies to distributors, jobbers, and dealers who will not agree with them not to sell such fire extinguishing equipment and supplies at prices less than those fixed by said respondents;
(d) Refusing to sell such equipment and supplies to all distributors, jobbers, and dealers who sell same, purchased from respondents, at prices lower than the prices so fixed by them;
(e) Agreeing upon prices to be bid where competitive bids are called for by industrial and governmental users of respondents' fire extinguishing equipment and supplies; or
(f) Procuring withdrawal and cancellation of bids called for by industrial and governmental users of respondents' fire extinguishing equipment and supplies in cases where such bids so withdrawn are at prices for such fire extinguishing equipment and supplies less than those fixed by respondents;
and

Dismissing complaint against the individual respondents for the reason that the order against the corporate respondents, their officers, employees and agents adequately and effectively restores free and open competition between and among all of the respondents engaged in selling fire extinguisher equipment and supplies in interstate commerce.

Complaint 21 F. T. C.

Par. 2. The corporation respondents named in paragraph 1 hereof are now and since their organization have been engaged in the manufacture at their respective manufacturing plants of fire extinguishing equipment and supplies, and in the sale thereof throughout the various States of the United States, the territories thereof and the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of their businesses said corporation respondents named in paragraph 1 hereof, for more than three years last past, have caused, and still cause such fire extinguishing equipment and supplies when sold by them, to be transported in interstate commerce from their respective places of business to, into, and through various States of the United States other than the States in which they respectively have their factories and places of business, to the purchasers in such other States to whom such fire extinguishing equipment and supplies are and have been sold.

In the course and conduct of their aforesaid respective businesses, corporation respondents named, but for the matters and things hereinafter set out, would be naturally and normally in competition with each other in price, and otherwise are in such competition with other individuals, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the manufacture and sale, or purchase, sale, and distribution of fire extinguishing equipment and supplies in interstate commerce.

The corporation respondents named, constitute a large and important part of the manufacturers, distributors, and dealers in fire extinguishing equipment and supplies manufactured and sold in the United States. The amount of fire extinguishing equipment and supplies manufactured and sold by said corporation respondents, constitutes, and at all times since February 1932 has constituted, approximately 85 per cent of all fire extinguishing equipment and supplies manufactured and sold in the United States.

Par. 3. In February 1932, or thereabouts, the respondents named in paragraph 1 hereof, for the purpose of eliminating price competition among themselves entered into, have since carried out, and are still carrying out an agreement, combination, understanding, and conspiracy among themselves to fix and maintain, and by which they have fixed and maintained uniform prices to be exacted by them from their purchasers of fire extinguishing equipment and supplies and thus to fix the price of fire extinguishing equipment and supplies entering into interstate commerce. Pursuant to and for the purpose of carrying out the aforesaid agreement, combination, understanding and conspiracy, the respondents have, among other things, done the following:
Complaint

(a) By agreement among themselves have fixed and maintained, and still fix and maintain uniform prices for fire extinguishing equipment and supplies sold by them and by each of them.

(b) Agreed that none of said respondents singly would solicit the customers of another respondent nor quote them prices lower than those at the time being quoted such customers by the respondent supplying them.

(c) Refused to continue to sell fire extinguishing equipment and supplies to distributors, jobbers, and dealers who would not agree with them not to sell such fire extinguishing equipment and supplies at prices less than those fixed by said respondents.

(d) Refused to sell fire extinguishing equipment and supplies to all distributors, jobbers, and dealers who sold such fire extinguishing equipment and supplies purchased from said respondents at prices for such fire extinguishing equipment and supplies less than those so fixed by the said respondents.

(e) Agreed upon prices to be bid where competitive bids were called for by industrial and governmental users of respondents' fire extinguishing equipment and supplies.

(f) Procured withdrawal and cancellation of bids called for by industrial and governmental users of respondents' fire extinguishing equipment and supplies in cases where such bids so withdrawn were at prices for such fire extinguishing equipment and supplies less than those fixed by respondents.

(g) Used other and similar methods and means designed to suppress and prevent price competition among those engaged in the fire extinguishing equipment and supply business in the United States.

Par. 4. On and shortly prior to December 5, 1933, respondents, under color of authority of the Code of Fair Competition for the Fire Extinguishing Appliance Manufacturing Industry, approved November 4, 1933, by the President pursuant to the provisions of Title I of an Act of Congress approved June 16, 1933, entitled "An Act to encourage national industrial recovery, to foster fair competition, and to provide for the construction of certain useful public works, and for other purposes", agreed among themselves in an assumed and pretended compliance with said Code, to fix and maintain uniform prices for fire extinguishing equipment sold by them, and have since that date continued to sell, at fixed uniform prices such fire extinguishing equipment; that by virtue of such agreement under the guise and pretense of compliance with aforesaid Code, competition in price in the sale of fire extinguishing equipment has been suppressed, eliminated and destroyed; that said Code of Fair Competition for the Fire Extinguishing Appliance Manufacturing Industry as approved by the President on November 4, 1933, does not authorize price fixing, and was not designed to authorize or permit price fixing by mutual agreement, understanding, or any method whatsoever; and said Code of Fair Competition specifically prohibits monopolies or monopolistic practices, and the elimination, or oppression of, and discrimination against small enterprises.

Par. 5. The combination and conspiracy so entered into and carried on by said respondents and the acts and things done thereunder and pursuant thereto, as hereinabove alleged, resulted and results in the suppression and prevention of competition between and among them and in the enhancement of prices to the using public; in depriving the purchasing and consuming public of advantages in price, service and other considerations which they would receive and enjoy under conditions of normal and unobstructed, or free and fair, competition in said trade and industry; in oppression and discrimination against small business enterprises which were or are engaged in manufacturing, selling and distributing fire extinguishing equipment and supplies; and are monopolistic practices and methods of competition which are unfair, and they constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning, and in violation of Section 5 of said Act approved September 26, 1914, entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”.

The Commission, having the above matter under consideration and the respondents having filed consent answers under the Rules of Practice of the Commission, wherein said respondents, although insisting that all things done by them were warranted by the code for this industry formulated and approved under the National Industrial Recovery Act, and therefore done in good faith, nevertheless waive hearing on the charges set forth in the complaint and consent that the Commission may make, enter, issue and serve upon them, without hearing, without evidence, and without findings as to the facts, an order to cease and desist from the methods of competition alleged in the complaint.

And the Commission having duly considered the complaint and such answers, and being fully advised in the premises—
It is now ordered, That said corporate respondents, Fyr-Fyter Company, Buffalo Fire Appliance Corporation, Miller-Peers Manufacturing Company, Badger Fire Extinguisher Company, Knight & Thomas, Inc., American LaFrance & Foamite Industries Corporation, Pyrene Manufacturing Company, Walter Kidde & Company, Inc., Fyrout Corporation, Fyr-Freeze, Inc., C-O-Two Fire Equipment Company, Wil-X-Mfg. Corporation, W. D. Allen Manufacturing Company, Phister Manufacturing Company, Harker Manufacturing Company, The General Fire Truck Corporation, Elkhart Brass Mfg. Company, George W. Diener Manufacturing Company, their officers, agents, representatives and employees, forthwith cease and desist, in connection with the business of selling and offering for sale fire extinguishing equipment and supplies, in interstate commerce, from doing and performing, by understanding, agreement, or combination among themselves or between or among any two or more of them, or with others, acting directly or by or through the respondent, the following acts and things:

(1) Fixing prices, at which said commodities would be sold.

(2) Agreeing that none of said respondents singly will solicit the customers of another respondent nor quote them prices lower than those at the time being quoted such customers by the respondent supplying them.

(3) Refusing to continue to sell fire extinguishing equipment and supplies to distributors, jobbers, and dealers who will not agree with them not to sell such fire extinguishing equipment and supplies at prices less than those fixed by said respondents.

(4) Refusing to sell fire extinguishing equipment and supplies to all distributors, jobbers, and dealers who sell such fire extinguishing equipment and supplies purchased from said respondents at prices for such fire extinguishing equipment and supplies less than those so fixed by the said respondents.

(5) Agreeing upon prices to be bid where competitive bids are called for by industrial and governmental users of respondents' fire extinguishing equipment and supplies.

(6) Procuring withdrawal and cancellation of bids called for by industrial and governmental users of respondents' fire extinguishing equipment and supplies in cases where such bids so withdrawn are at prices for such fire extinguishing equipment and supplies less than those fixed by respondents.

And provided that the prohibition of this order shall not apply to any lawful action taken in regard to patented articles or under license agreements relating thereto.
It is further ordered, That the complaint herein be and the same hereby is dismissed against the individual respondents for the reason that the order against the corporate respondents, their officers, employees, and agents adequately and effectively restores free and open competition between and among all of the respondents engaged in selling fire extinguisher equipment and supplies in interstate commerce.

It is further ordered, That within 60 days from the date of the service of this order upon said respondents, they shall file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which this order has been complied with.

WHITE CROSS LABORATORIES, INC.

Consent order requiring respondent corporation, its officers, etc., in connection with the manufacture, sale and distribution of so-called "Turtle Oil Cream" in interstate commerce, the District of Columbia, or any territory of the United States, to cease and desist from—

(a) Using words "turtle oil" either independently or in connection or conjunction with any word or words as part of the trade or brand name for its product unless and until the oil, fatty substance and any derivative thereof used in the production of the said turtle oil cream is, in fact, wholly derived from turtles; or

(b) Using said words either independently or in connection or conjunction with any word, words, or phrases, in advertisements, advertising literature, radio broadcasts, or by any of these agencies in any manner whatsoever to describe turtle oil cream unless and until the oil, fatty substance and any derivative thereof used in the production of the said turtle oil cream is, in fact, wholly derived from turtles.

Mr. S. Brogdyne Teu, II for the Commission.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that White Cross Laboratories, Inc., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has been and is using unfair methods of competition in commerce as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. White Cross Laboratories, Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Illinois with its principal place of business in the city of Chicago, in the State of Illinois. It is now and for more than one year last past has been engaged in the manufacture, sale and distribution in interstate commerce of a cosmetic designated as La Paz Turtle Oil Cream. Said respondent has caused and still causes said product when sold to be shipped from its place of business in the State of Illinois to purchasers thereof located in a State or States of the United States other than the State of Illinois. In the course and conduct of its business White Cross Laboratories, Inc., was and is at all times herein referred to in competition with other individuals, partnerships, firms, and corporations likewise engaged in the manufacture, sale and distribution to purchasers of like and similar products between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its business as described in paragraph 1 above, White Cross Laboratories, Inc., caused and still causes its said facial cream product to be packed in containers with labels reading as follows, to wit:

La Paz
Turtle Oil Cream
White Cross Laboratories, Inc.
Chicago

The said product so marked, labeled and represented was and is still sold and distributed by said respondent in interstate commerce as hereinabove set forth. In truth and in fact the amount of turtle oil forming part of the oil content of the product of said respondent was and is not substantial, was and is not sufficient to warrant a marking, branding or representation that said product was or is a "Turtle Oil" cream.

PAR. 3. There are among competitors of said respondent individuals, partnerships and corporations engaged in the manufacture, sale and distribution of like and similar products as hereinbefore set out among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia who truthfully and honestly represent their products. The false and misleading representations made by respondent, as hereinabove set forth, have a tendency and capacity to and do divert trade to respondent from those individuals, firms, and corporations who honestly advertise, sell and distribute to purchasers like and similar products between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. The above alleged acts and things done by the respondent are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and the competitors of the respondent in interstate commerce and constitute unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.
ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding coming on for final hearing by the Federal Trade Commission upon the record, including the complaint of the Commission issued under Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", and respondent's answer thereto that respondent waives hearing on the charges set forth in the complaint, refrains from contesting the proceeding and pursuant to the provisions of the Commission's Rules of Practice with respect to answers, consents that the Commission may make, enter, and serve upon respondent without a trial, without evidence, and without findings as to the facts or other intervening procedure, an order to cease and desist from the method or methods of competition alleged in the complaint and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being fully advised in the premises—

It is now ordered, That White Cross Laboratories, Inc., its officers, directors, agents, representatives, servants, and employees in connection with the manufacture, sale, and distribution of so-called "turtle oil cream" in interstate commerce or in the District of Columbia or in any territory of the United States, cease and desist from:

(1) The use of the words "turtle oil" either independently or in connection or conjunction with any word or words as part of the trade or brand name for its product unless and until the oil, fatty substance and any derivative thereof used in the production of the said turtle oil cream is, in fact, wholly derived from turtles.

Complaint

IN THE MATTER OF SCIENTIFIC SHAMEY COMPANY, INC.

Docket 2247. Complaint, Nov. 9, 1934—Decision, Sept. 24, 1935

Where a corporation engaged in the sale and distribution of a cloth fabric to various retail and chain stores—

(a) Advertised and sold same under trade name and designation "Scientific Washable Shamey", with pronunciation, and in simulation of, name of genuine "chamois" or "shammy", and set forth upon the labels thereof "Directions how to use Scientific Shamey", notwithstanding fact said fabric was not genuine "chamol" or "shammy", frequent phonetic synonym therefor, to wit, a soft leather originally made of the skin of the chamois antelope, for use for manufacture of leather gloves and the polishing of silverware and other metals, or, as more recently used, the inner part of oil-dressed sheepskin; and

(b) Advertised said product as "manufactured by Scientific Shamey Co., Inc.", notwithstanding fact it had never owned, operated, or controlled a factory or factorie in which said product was made;

With result of furnishing its retail and chain store customers an instrumentality having tendency and capacity to deceive and mislead their customers into believing that in purchase of said product, thus named, labelled and advertised, they were purchasing the much more valuable, genuine chamois or shammy, and to divert trade to it from competitors dealing therein, and from those who do not so deal, or so misleadingly advertise their product as a result thereof, and through inducing purchase from it as and for a direct purchase from the manufacturer, as a distinct trade advantage:

Held, That such acts and practices were to the prejudice of the public, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. Edward M. Averill, trial examiner.
Mr. John W. Hilldrop for the Commission.
Mr. Arthur M. Becker, of New York City, for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Scientific Shamey Company, Inc., has been and is using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be to the public interest, the Federal Trade Commission hereby issues this, its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Respondent has been engaged for sometime prior to the filing of this complaint in the sale and distribution of a certain fabric which it advertises and sells under the name of “Scientific Washable Shamey” which is a trade name and designation for said fabric, and in the sale of said fabric respondent ships and causes same to be shipped to various retail and chain stores, from its said place of business in the city of New York, State of New York, to such retail and chain stores located in divers of the other States of the United States of America, and therefore and thereby, respondent in the sale of said fabric is engaged in interstate commerce. In the conduct of its said business, respondent has at all times been and is now in competition with divers other associations, corporations, firms, and individuals engaged in a similar and like business to that of respondent, and who like respondent are engaged in interstate business.

Par. 2. Chamois is the name of an antelope, the skin of which is made into a soft leather and is used for the manufacture of gloves and to polish silver and other metals, and now and for some time past the word “chamois” also describes and applies to the inner part of the sheepskin, which, when oil dressed is a very soft and pliable product sold commercially under the name of “chamois” and which is likewise valuable for polishing and cleaning purposes. The only trade name and designation given to the genuine skin of the chamois antelope and to the oiled dressed sheepskin is the word “chamois”, which word is often phonetically spelled “shammy”; the two words “chamois” and “shammy” having the same meaning to the retail trade and the purchasing public.

Par. 3. In the conduct of its said business, the respondent caused labels to be printed and fixed upon its said fabric and which as afore-said it ships in interstate commerce, which said labels bear the words “Scientific Washable Shamey” in large red letters and these words were also stamped on the said product itself.

The labels also contained “Directions How to Use Scientific Shamey”, as follows:

1. Wash shamey with soap and water.
2. Stretch shamey to original shape.
3. Dry shamey, then ready for use.
The letters of the word "shamey" were fancifully arranged on said labels and stamped on the said product in the form of an equilateral triangle, surrounded by the words "Scientific Durable Washable", and which product so stamped and labeled the respondent sold in interstate commerce. Respondent made use of the word "shamey" as simulating the words "chamois" and "shammy" and pronounced the same as said words "chamois" and "shammy", but, its said product was not the skin of the genuine chamois antelope or the inner part of the sheepskin, oil dressed, nor was it a skin at all, but a cloth fabric.

Par. 4. In the sale of the said product by respondent, it labeled and advertised said product as "Manufactured by Scientific Shamey Company, Inc.", when in truth and in fact the said respondent did not nor has it ever manufactured said product, does not own, operate or control the factory of factories in which said product is made, but filled orders for said product which was manufactured in factories which respondent as aforesaid, does not or did not own, operate nor control.

Par. 5. In the labeling and selling in interstate commerce of its said cloth fabric under the name of "shamey" having the same sound and pronunciation as "chamois" and "shammy" the respondent furnishes its customers, to wit retail and chain stores, with an instrumentality which has the capacity and tendency to deceive and mislead the customers of said retail and chain stores, by causing them to believe that in the purchase of respondent's product labeled and advertised as "shamey" it is purchasing real and genuine "chamois" and "shammy" hereinbefore described, a much more valuable product than the said product of respondent, and also the actions of respondent in the labeling and advertising of its said product as herein set out has the tendency and capacity to divert trade from competitors of respondent, who sell in commerce genuine chamois or shammy and those competitors who sell in interstate commerce a product similar to the product of respondent but who do not advertise same as "shamey" or any other names having the same pronunciation and sound of "chamois" or "shammy", to respondent.

Par. 6. The advertisement and labeling by respondent of its said product as "Manufactured by Scientific Shamey Company, Inc." likewise has a capacity and tendency to divert trade from the competitors of respondent to respondent, as said labeling and advertising carries with it the statement and implication that a purchaser when ordering said product is buying and dealing directly with the manufacturer, which has a distinct trade advantage.
PAR. 7. The foregoing acts and practices of respondent are all to the prejudice of the public and respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission issued and served a complaint upon respondent Scientific Shamey Company, Inc., charging it with unfair methods of competition in violation of Section 5 of said Act, and respondent duly filed its answer thereto. Thereafter testimony was taken and received in support of the complaint and duly reduced in writing and recorded and filed in the office of the Commission, the respondent having waived the introduction of the testimony in defense of the allegations of the complaint. Thereafter the proceeding came on for final hearing on the record and on the brief in support of the complaint, respondent having waived the filing of brief and oral argument. And the Commission having duly considered the record and being fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Respondent had been engaged in the sale and distribution of a certain fabric which it has advertised and sold under the name of "Scientific Washable Shamey" which is a trade name and designation for said fabric, and in the sale of said fabric respondent has shipped and caused the same to be shipped to various retail and chain stores, from its said place of business in the city of New York, State of New York, to such retail and chain stores located in divers of the other States of the United States of America, and therefore and thereby respondent in the sale of said fabric has been engaged in interstate commerce. In the conduct of its said business, respondent has been in substantial competition with other corporations and with firms, partnerships and persons engaged in commerce between and among the various States of the United States in articles used for the purposes for which, as hereinafter described, respondent has represented its said fabric to be adapted.

Par. 2. Chamois is the name of an antelope, the skin of which is made into a soft leather and is used for the manufacture of gloves and to polish silver and other metals, and now and for some time past the word "chamois" also has described and applied to the inner part of the sheepskin, which when oil dressed, is a very soft and pliable product sold commercially under the name of "chamois" and which is likewise valuable for polishing and cleaning purposes. The only trade name and designation given to the genuine skin of the chamois antelope and to the oiled dressed sheepskin is the word "chamois", which word is often phonetically spelled "shammy"; the two words "chamois" and "shammy" having the same meaning to the retail trade and the purchasing public.

Par. 3. In the course and conduct of its said business, the respondent has caused labels to be printed and affixed upon its said fabric sold in interstate commerce, which said labels have included the words "Scientific Washable Shamey" in large red letters and these words have also been stamped on the said product itself. Such labels have also contained "Directions How to Use Scientific Shamey", as follows:

1. Wash Shamey with soap and water.
2. Stretch Shamey to original shape.
3. Dry Shamey, then ready to use.

The letters of the word "shamey" were fancifully arranged on said labels and stamped on the said product in the form of an equilateral triangle, surrounded by the words "Scientific Durable Washable". Respondent has made use of the word "shamey" as simulating the words "chamois" and "shammy" and has pronounced the same as said words "chamois" and "shammy", but its said product has not been the skin of the genuine chamois antelope or the inner part of the sheepskin oil dressed nor has it been a skin at all, but a cloth fabric.

Par. 4. In the sale of the said product by respondent, it has labeled and advertised said product as "Manufactured by Scientific Shamey Company, Inc." when in truth and in fact respondent has never owned, operated, or controlled the factory or factories in which said product has been made.

Par. 5. In the labeling and selling in interstate commerce of its said cloth fabric under the name "shamey" having the same sound and pronunciation as "chamois" and "shammy" the respondent has furnished its customers, to wit, retail and chain stores, with an instrumentality which has the tendency and capacity to deceive and mislead the customers of said retail and chain stores, by causing them to believe that in the purchase of respondent's product labeled and advertised as "shamey" they were purchasing real and genuine "chamois" and "shammy" as hereinbefore described, a much more valuable product than the said product of respondent, and also the actions of respondent in the labeling and advertising of its said product as herein described has had the tendency and capacity to divert trade to respondent from competitors of respondent, who sell in interstate commerce genuine chamois or shammy and those competitors who sell in interstate commerce but who do not advertise their products as "shamey" or by any other name having the pronunciation and sound of "chamois" or "shammy."

PAR. 6. The advertisement and labeling by respondent of its said product as "Manufactured by Scientific Shamey Company, Inc.", likewise has had the tendency and capacity to divert trade from the competitors of respondent to respondent, as said labeling and advertising carried with it the statement and implication that a purchaser when ordering said product was buying and dealing directly with the manufacturer, which has a distinct trade advantage.

CONCLUSION

The practices of said respondent under the conditions and circumstances described in the foregoing findings are to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute a violation of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes".

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission on the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondent, the testimony and evidence, the brief in support of the complaint (respondent having waived filing of the brief and oral argument) and the Commission having made its report in which it stated its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that the respondent has violated the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes"—
Now, therefore, it is hereby ordered, That the respondent, Scientific Shamey Company, Inc., its officers, agents, and employees in connection with the sale or offering for sale in interstate commerce of a product heretofore designated by it as “Scientific Washable Shamey” forthwith cease and desist from:

(a) Labeling, advertising, describing, designating, or representing its said product as “Scientific Washable Shamey”, “shamey” or by any word or words, phrases, terms or names, having a pronunciation or spelling simulating the words “chamois” or “shammy.”

(b) Using the phrase “Manufactured by Scientific Shamey Company, Inc.” or any other phrase or words of similar tenor, import or substance, until and unless respondent owns, operates or controls a factory or factories in which its said product is manufactured.

And it is hereby further ordered, That the respondent shall within 30 days after the service upon it of this order file with this Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with the order to cease and desist hereinabove set forth.

OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Where an individual engaged in the sale and distribution of men's clothes among the various States—

(a) Represented in advertising that suits sold and offered by him were 100 percent virgin wool, 100 percent pure wool, and 100 percent pure worsted, notwithstanding fact that such suits were not thus composed, but were made of a large admixture of shoddy or reworked wool; and

(b) Represented that such suits were made to the measure of the particular person or persons to whom they were sold or offered, and that orders therefor would be filled by his furnishing to the customer or prospective customer the particular style and material selected, facts being such suits were not made to the measure of the particular person to whom sold or offered, but were ready-made garments purchased by him from a manufacturer of ready-made clothing, and he did not send to customers style or material selected, but suits which differed in such respects from the customer's selection;

With capacity and tendency to deceive and mislead purchasing public into erroneous belief that such suits were composed as represented, made to measure of particular purchaser, and supplied in style and of material selected, and induce purchase thereof in such erroneous beliefs, and thereby divert trade to himself from competitors selling men's suits by fair and truthful representations, to the substantial injury of substantial competition in interstate commerce:

and competitors within intent and meaning of Section 5.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Mortimer Kauffman, trading as Wilshire Woollen Company, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has been and is using unfair methods of competition in commerce as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be to the public interest, the Commission hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Mortimer Kaufman, is an individual trading under the name and style, Wilshire Woolen Company, residing and having his principal place of business in the city of New York in the State of New York. He is now and for several years last past has been engaged in the sale and distribution of suits of men's clothes in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, and now causes and for several years last past has caused such suits of men's clothes sold by him, to be transported when sold, from his place of business in the city of New York, State of New York, to purchasers thereof located in the State of New York and in various other States of the United States. In the course and conduct of his business the respondent has been at all times hereinafter mentioned and still is engaged in competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, with other individuals and with partnerships and corporations offering for sale and selling suits of men's clothes.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of his business described in in paragraph 1 hereof, the respondent, for more than two years last past, has represented and still represents in his advertising that the suits of men's clothes sold by him and offered for sale by him, are "100 percent virgin wool", "100 percent pure wool", and "100 percent pure worsted"; that such suits of clothes are made to the measure of the particular person or persons to whom they are sold or offered for sale; that orders for suits of men's clothes are and will be filled by him by his furnishing to the customer or prospective customer, particular styles of suits of men's clothes and made of materials selected by the customer or prospective customer. In truth and in fact the suits of men's clothes sold and offered for sale by the respondent are not and have not been 100 percent virgin wool, 100 percent pure wool, or 100 percent pure worsted but are and have been made of a large admixture of shoddy or reworked wool. And in truth and in fact the suits of men's clothes sold and offered for sale by respondent are not made to the measure of the particular person to whom such suits are sold or offered for sale but are ready-made suits purchased by the respondent from a manufacturer of ready-made clothing. And in truth and in fact the respondent does not send to his customers the styles of suits nor suits made of materials selected by the customer, but sends to his customers suits of a style different from the styles ordered by the customers and made of materials other than those selected by his customers.

Par. 3. The acts and practices of the respondent described in paragraph 2 hereof, have had and still have the capacity and tendency to deceive and mislead the purchasing public into the erroneous beliefs that the suits of men's clothes sold and offered for sale by the respondent are 100 percent virgin wool, 100 percent pure wool, and 100 percent pure worsted; that such suits are made to the measure of the particular person to whom they are sold or to whom they are offered for sale; that the purchaser or prospective purchaser in purchasing from the respondent will receive from him suits of the style ordered by said customer and made of materials selected by the customer; and to induce customers of the respondent to purchase suits from the respondent in such erroneous beliefs. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent have had and still have the capacity and tendency to divert trade to respondent from competitors selling men's suits in interstate commerce by fair and truthful representations; thereby substantial injury is done by respondent to substantial competition in interstate commerce.

Par. 4. The above acts and things done by respondent are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and competitors of respondent in interstate commerce, within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

Acting in pursuance of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission, on the 25th day of March 1935 issued and thereupon served its complaint, as required by law, upon Mortimer Kaufman, trading under the name and style of Wilshire Woolen Company, hereinafter designated as respondent, in which said complaint it is charged that respondent has been and is using unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of said Act.

The respondent, Mortimer Kaufman, trading under the name and style, Wilshire Woolen Company, having filed his answer herein, this proceeding was set for hearing before Edward M. Averill, an examiner for the Commission, theretofore duly appointed for such purpose, and the respondent, Mortimer Kaufman, trading under the name and style, Wilshire Woolen Company, appeared in his own proper person and by counsel on the 5th day of August 1935 whereupon the said respondent stipulated on the face of the record, wherein he admitted the allegations in the complaint contained and stipulated and signified his consent that the Federal Trade Commission may draw its conclusion and make its findings as to the facts in this proceeding on the allegations contained in this said complaint and from said stipulation, and that said Commission may enter and serve upon him an order to cease and desist from the acts of unfair competition in the complaint alleged, without the taking of further testimony.

Thereupon, this proceeding having come on for final hearing on the record, and the Commission having considered same and being fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and now files this, its report, in writing, stating its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom as follows:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Mortimer Kaufman, is an individual trading under the name and style, Wilshire Woolen Company, residing and having his principal place of business in the city of New York in the State of New York. He is now and for several years last past has been engaged in the sale and distribution of suits of men's clothes in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, and now causes and for several years last past has caused such suits of men's clothes sold by him to be transported, when sold, from his place of business in the city of New York, State of New York, to purchasers thereof located in the State of New York and in various other States of the United States. In the course and conduct of his business the respondent has been at all times hereinafter mentioned and still is engaged in competition, in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, with other individuals and with partnerships and corporations offering for sale and selling suits of men's clothes.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, the respondent for more than two years last past, and prior to the filing of the complaint, has represented in his advertising that the suits of men's clothes sold by him and offered for sale by him are "100 percent virgin wool", "100 percent pure wool", and "100 percent pure worsted"; that such suits of clothes are made to the measure of the particular person or persons to whom they are sold or offered for sale; that orders for suits of men's clothes are and will be filled by him by his furnishing to the customer or prospective customer, particular styles of suits of men's clothes and made of materials selected by the customer or prospective customer. In truth and in fact the suits of men's clothes sold and offered for sale by the respondent are not and have not been 100 percent virgin wool, 100 percent pure wool, or 100 percent pure worsted but are and have been made of a large admixture of shoddy or reworked wool.
And in truth and in fact the suits of men's clothes sold and offered for sale by respondent are not made to the measure of the particular person to whom such suits are sold or offered for sale but are ready-made suits purchased by the respondent from a manufacturer of ready-made clothing. And in truth and in fact the respondent does not send to his customers the styles of suits nor suits made of materials selected by the customer, but sends to his customers suits of a style different from the styles ordered by the customers and made of materials other than those selected by his customers.

Par. 3. The acts and practices of the respondent described in paragraph 2 hereof, have had and still have the capacity and tendency to deceive and mislead the purchasing public into the erroneous beliefs that the suits of men's clothes sold and offered for sale by the respondent are 100 percent virgin wool, 100 percent pure wool, and 100 percent pure worsted; that such suits are made to the measure of the particular person to whom they are sold or to whom they are offered for sale; that the purchaser or prospective purchaser in purchasing from the respondent will receive from him suits of the style ordered by said customer and made of materials selected by the customer; and to induce customers of the respondent to purchase suits from the respondent in such erroneous beliefs. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent have had and still have the capacity and tendency to divert trade to respondent from competitors selling men's suits in interstate commerce by fair and truthful representations; thereby substantial injury is done by respondent to substantial competition in interstate commerce.

CONCLUSION

The above acts and things done by respondent are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and competitors of respondent in interstate commerce, within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Carlsbad Products Company, Inc., has been or is using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, Carlsbad Products Company, Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York with its principal place of business in New York City, N. Y. For several years last past the respondent has been and is now engaged at the said city of New York in the business of selling a product called Carlsbad Sprudel Salt. of the famous Carlsbad Sprudel, or spring located in Czechoslovakia. It is put up in powdered form in containers and, according to the directions thereon, is to be taken with and mixed with water, and when so taken the claim is made by respondent that it will reduce weight of the human body and that it has therapeutic value in the treatment of many of the ailments and diseases of mankind. Carlsbad Sprudel Salt is packed in said containers in New York by respondent and shipped by them to their customers, which and who are department stores, drug stores, jobbers, and individuals—into and through various States of the United States to the places of business of said stores, jobbers, and the residences of said individual customers, many of which are and were located in States other than the State of New York. In the course and conduct of said business respondent is in substantial competition with individuals, copartnerships, and corporations engaged in the manufacture and sale, or the sale, and transportation between and among the various States of the United States, of books and treatises dealing with the subject of obesity and cures therefor and of sundry medical remedies and surgical instruments and appliances used in the treatment of the sick and injured and obese in commerce between and among various States of the United States.

Par. 3. In aid of the sale of the said Carlsbad Sprudel Salt the respondent represents upon the labels of the containers thereof and in literature accompanying the same and in magazines having general circulation in the States of the United States, in newspapers, in letters, through and by means of circulars, booklets, and other printed matter containing purported testimonials, and other literature, and through and by means of employees, solicitors and agents, and in and through such media said respondent in order to induce the public to purchase said Carlsbad Sprudel Salt, makes and has made and caused to be made many false and misleading and deceptive statements concerning said Carlsbad Sprudel Salt. Among such representations so made are the following:

That the use of Carlsbad Sprudel Salt will reduce weight 16 pounds in 8 days;
That it will cause a person to lose excess fat;
That it is the sanest and safest remedy for surplus fat;

That it is an excellent remedy for the relief of stomach troubles, intestinal disorders, rheumatism, kidney disorders, gallstones, neuritis;
That self-medication with the respondent's said product is just as efficacious as a complete treatment at Carlsbad Spring;
That physicians all over the world recommend the use of respondent's said product;
That it has therapeutic value and effect and is proper and efficacious treatment in the following diseases of the human body: Adiposis, hypochondria, chronic constipation, enlargement of the liver, jaundice, catarrhal inflammation of the stomach, dyspepsia, chronic pelvic cellulitis, marasmus, chronic rheumatism where joints are enlarged, gravel, ague cake, cancer of the stomach, dropsy from valvular heart disease, gouty nodules or fat, dilation of stomach, enlarged spleen.

PAR. 4. The advertising of the respondent described in the preceding paragraph is false and misleading in that:

(a) The use of Carlsbad Sprudel Salt will not cause a person to lose 16 pounds of flesh or fat in 8 days;
   It will not cause a person to get rid of excess fat;
   It is not the safest, sanest and most beneficial anti-fat remedy;
   It does not quickly or at all clean off pimples, blackheads, blotches, and blemishes, and get rid of excess fat.
(b) That the use of said Carlsbad Sprudel Salt will not cure, aid in the cure, nor is its use proper or efficacious treatment for any of the diseases or afflictions mentioned in the preceding paragraph hereof;
   Nor will it cure or relieve diseases, sicknesses, or ailments of mankind of any kind or nature;
   Nor does it possess therapeutic value in the treatment of such diseases, sicknesses or ailments.
(c) Self-medication with said Sprudel Salt is not as efficacious as a complete treatment at Carlsbad Spring.
(d) Physicians all over the world do not recommend the use of respondent's product, and physicians of repute do not recommend its use in the diseases and afflictions mentioned in paragraph 3 hereof.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid false, misleading, and deceptive statements and representations used by respondent, as in this complaint heretofore set forth, have and have had the capacity and tendency to and do induce the public to purchase and use the said Carlsbad Sprudel Salt in the belief that said statements and representations are true, and to divert trade to this respondent from its said competitors.

PAR. 6. The above alleged acts and practices of the respondent, Carlsbad Products Company, Inc., are each and all to the prejudice of the public and to the competitors of the respondent, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

Mr. James M. Brinson for the Commission.
COMPLAINT

Paragraph 1. Respondents, Marcus A. Weinberg and Belle Weinberg, trading as Cronin China Company, Publicity Department, or Leigh China Company, Publicity Department, have been for several years last past and now are engaged in the business of offering for sale and selling earthenware or chinaware in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia. Their principal office and place of business while trading under the name of Cronin China Company, Publicity Department, was Chicago, Ill. When they commenced to trade as Leigh China Company, Publicity Department, they established and since then have maintained an office and place of business at Sebring, Ohio, in addition to their office at Chicago, Ill. Respondents have not been and are not manufacturers of the earthenware or chinaware offered for sale or sold by them, but have purchased and now purchase it from the manufacturers thereof.

It has been and is the practice of respondents, as described in paragraphs 2 and 3 hereof, to offer for sale and sell such earthenware or chinaware by means of the sale of premium certificates redeemable in earthenware or chinaware to merchants and dealers of various kinds, or others engaged in the class or type of business in which such premium certificates could or can be used. It has been and is their practice in the course and conduct of such business, whether trading as Cronin China Company, Publicity Department, or Leigh China Company, Publicity Department, to cause such premium certificates when sold to be transported from their place or places of business in the State of Illinois or the State of Ohio to purchasers located in the various States of the United States other than the States of Illinois and Ohio. It has also been and is the practice of respondents to transport or cause to be transported earthenware or chinaware for redemption of such premium certificates, from their said places of business into and through the various States of the United States other than the States of Illinois and Ohio.

In the course and conduct of their business respondents have been and each of them has been in substantial competition with individuals, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution in interstate commerce of china, chinaware, earthenware, glassware, and similar products for table service.

Par. 2. Sometime in 1933 respondents began to trade by or under the firm name and style of Cronin China Company, Publicity Department. Cronin China Company is a well and favorably known manufacturer of earthenware and chinaware. Respondents have not had and do not have any connection with or relationship to such Cronin China Company, except as a purchaser of its products.

It was the practice of respondents trading as Cronin China Company, Publicity Department, to use the premium certificate plan of selling earthenware or chinaware through the agency of salesmen. They have supplied or equipped such salesmen with forms of a contract described by respondents as an “Agreement of Cooperation”, which the salesmen have been instructed to submit to local merchants or proprietors of the various classes or types of business in connection with which the premium certificate plan could or can be used. As inducements for the purchase of such premium certificates respondents have falsely represented through their salesmen to such local merchants and others that they were the publicity department and sales agency of the Cronin China Company and were, on behalf of such company, presenting a premium certificate plan for the sale of its earthenware or chinaware, which if employed by such local merchants and others would greatly advertise and stimulate their business; that each certificate would cost 15 cents; that it would be redeemed by respondents with a thirteen piece set of chinaware which would be sent to customers of the local merchants or others purchasing from respondents such premium certificates on receipt from such customers of the premium certificate duly signed and accompanied by a small amount to cover the cost of packing and postage or transportation. The amount of this expense respondents have failed to disclose in the form of contract submitted to local merchants and others by their salesmen. It was the general practice of such salesmen to represent this cost at various amounts, always small, usually the amount necessary for parcel postage from the place or places of business of respondents to the particular locality of the solicited merchant or other business concern.
It was provided in such proposed agreements submitted by respondents through their salesmen to the local merchants or others that when customers of such local merchants and other purchasers of the certificates forwarded such certificates to respondents for redemption, the original purchase price of the certificates, to wit, fifteen cents, would be returned to such local merchants and other original purchasers of the redeemed certificates. It was the practice of respondents through their salesmen to represent that this provision of the agreement would furnish such local merchants or other purchasers of the premium certificates valuable advertisement for their business at no expense whatever. It was the practice of respondents to furnish the local merchants and other purchasers of their premium certificates a sample set of the chinaware or earthenware for display, together with printed matter for advertising uses, and also to promise a commission for all chinaware or earthenware sold by respondents through the cooperation of such local merchants and other purchasers of the premium certificates.

It was the practice of respondents while so trading as Cronin China Company to require the local merchants or other business concerns purchasing their premium certificates to pay one-third in advance and two-thirds on delivery of the premium certificates, together with the sample set and printed matter.

The premium certificate plan of respondents contemplated or provided for the distribution of the premium certificates by local merchants and other purchasers of them among customers in order to advertise and stimulate the business of the local merchants or other business concerns purchasing and distributing such premium certificates. Under the plan of respondent, local merchants and others purchasing the premium certificates and distributing them among their customers were allowed to determine for themselves the amount of merchandise it was necessary for the customer to purchase in order to obtain a premium certificate.

It has been the practice of respondents after their salesmen have induced local merchants or others to sign such contracts to forward to them with the premium certificates and the sample set of chinaware a printed card requesting the local merchants or other business concerns to notify customers to send to respondent with the certificates, when seeking to redeem them, the amount stated on such card. This amount has varied from $1.20 to $1.80, depending on the parcel post zone and usually it has been approximately five times the amount represented by the salesmen to the local merchants or others when soliciting their signatures to the said agreement of cooperation. The amount so required on the card has usually been substantially more than the price at which the customer could purchase chinaware or earthenware of the same grade or quality at stores in their own communities. The local merchants or others who have been so induced by respondents through their salesmen to enter into such agreements of cooperation have had no knowledge of this amount so substantially in excess of the amount stated to them by respondents through their agents, until receipt of such card, after their payment of the purchase price of the certificates to respondents. As a result they have been compelled either to lose the amount so paid to respondents or to offer their customers as a premium, chinaware or earthenware which could be purchased by them at less cost in local stores.

PAR. 3. On or about June 27, 1934, respondents began to trade by or under the name of Leigh China Company, Publicity Department, and they are now trading under such firm name and style. The Leigh China Company is a manufacturer of earthenware or chinaware at Sebring, Ohio. Its products are well and favorably known by the purchasing public. Respondents have been permitted to use such trade name by the Leigh China Company so long as they sell its products, although they do not have any relationship to the Leigh China Company except that of purchasers of its chinaware or earthenware. It has been and is the policy and practice of respondents to withhold this fact from purchasers and prospective purchasers of their premium certificates and their salesmen or agents in soliciting business from local merchants and others have followed the same practices pursued by respondents when soliciting business under the name Cronin China Company, Publicity Department, except as hereinafter stated. They have represented themselves as salesmen of the Leigh China Company and have supported or attempted to support such false representations by reference to the location of respondents' place of business at Sebring, Ohio, which is also the place of business of the Leigh China Company.

It has been and is the practice of respondents, trading as the Leigh China Company, Publicity Department, to require the payment of 20 cents for each of the certificates calling for Leigh Chinaware or earthenware, with 25 cents of the total purchase price payable in cash and the remainder on delivery, instead of fifteen cents for each certificate and one-third of the total amount payable in cash and two-thirds on delivery as was their practice when operating under the name of Cronin China Company.

Respondents have also represented and continue to represent that the chinaware or earthenware with which the Leigh certificates are to be redeemed was and is of the first or highest grade, when in truth and in fact it has been their practice to redeem and they are redeeming such certificates with the ware known as "run of the kiln" or "seconds", which is substantially inferior to the first or high grade product promised by them.

It has been and is the practice of respondents by or through their salesmen to represent to local merchants or others to whom their premium certificates have been or are sold, just as they have represented when soliciting purchasers under the trade name Cronin China Company, Publicity Department, that the amount of money to be transmitted to them by customers for redemption of the certificates was so small as to be merely nominal and in all instances substantially less than the amount found by the local merchants and others to be necessary after completion of the payments to respondents for such certificates.

Para. 4. There have been and are individuals, partnerships and corporations offering for sale and selling in interstate commerce in competition with respondents china, chinaware, earthenware, glassware, and similar products for table service.

Para. 5. The acts and practices of respondents described in paragraphs 2 and 3 hereof have had and have the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive the purchasing public into the belief that respondents have been and are connected with and related to the Cronin China Company and the Leigh China Company and that in entering into agreements or contracts with respondents they have been entering into agreements or contracts with the Cronin China Company or the Leigh China Company, and that the representations of respondents through their salesmen relative to the redemption of the premium certificates have been and are true, and into the purchase of such certificates redeemable in earthenware or chinaware in reliance upon such erroneous belief.

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents have had and have the capacity and tendency to divert trade to respondents from and otherwise injure competitors offering for sale and selling china, chinaware, earthenware, glassware, or similar products for table service, truthfully described or represented.

Para. 6. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents have been and are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors and have been and are unfair methods of competition in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.
ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondents Marcus A. Weinberg and Belle Weinberg, trading as Cronin China Company, Publicity Department, and Leigh China Company, Publicity Department, in which answer respondents, in pursuance of paragraph (b) of Rule V of the Commission's Rules of Practice, announce their desire not to contest the proceeding and consent as therein provided that the Commission may make, enter and serve upon said respondents an order to cease and desist from the violations of law charged in the complaint, and the Commission having considered the record and being fully advised in the premises—

It is ordered, That respondents Marcus A. Weinberg and Belle Weinberg, trading as Cronin China Company, Publicity Department, and Leigh China Company, Publicity Department, and their agents, employees and representatives, in connection with offering for sale or selling in interstate commerce certificates, coupons, tickets, cards, or any written or printed matter, redeemable or purporting to be redeemable in china, chinaware or earthenware, by means of advertisements in magazines, newspapers, or through any written or printed matter, radio broadcasting or representations of their agents or salesmen, do cease and desist directly and indirectly from:

1. Representing that they are connected as agents or otherwise with the Cronin China Company, the Leigh China Company, or any individual, partnership, or corporation, except as a purchaser of their merchandise, unless or until such is the fact.

2. Using the words “publicity department” immediately after the words “Cronin China Company” or in any connection therewith, or the words “publicity department” immediately after the words “Leigh China Company” or in any connection therewith in their advertisements of any kind or on letterheads or stationery, unless or until they become or are the publicity department or departments of such companies.

3. Representing in connection with the sale of certificates, coupons, cards, tickets or any form of printed or written matter to merchants, dealers or others that such certificates, coupons, cards or tickets redeemable in china, chinaware or earthenware will be sold to them at a cost of 15 cents each, without further payment therefor either by merchant or dealer or their customers among whom such certificates, coupons, cards, or tickets are distributed, unless or until such is the fact and respondents have adopted and are following such practice.

4. Representing that such certificates, coupons, cards or tickets will be redeemed with a 13-piece set of chinaware which would be sent to customers of local merchants or dealers on receipt from such customers of the certificate, coupon, card, or ticket duly signed and accompanied by a small charge to cover the cost of packing, postage or transportation, unless or until the precise amount to be paid for packing, postage, or transportation is disclosed to the retail dealer at the time of his purchase of such certificates, coupons, cards or tickets.

5. Representing to the retail dealers to whom they sell such certificates, tickets, coupons or cards that the 15 cents paid for each one of them will be returned to such retail dealers or other purchasers of the certificates, cards, coupons or tickets as and when customers forward them to respondents accompanied by amount necessary for postage, and packing, unless or until such is the fact, and respondents have adopted and are following such practice.

It is further ordered, That the respondents shall within 60 days after the service upon them of this order file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with the order to cease and desist hereinabove set forth.
Complaint

IN THE MATTER OF

PIONEER MAPLE PRODUCTS COMPANY

Consent order requiring respondent corporation, its officers, etc., in connection with the sale or offer for sale in interstate commerce by it of its "Bucket Syrup", forthwith to cease and desist from using in circulars, labels, or in any other way any such descriptions or designations regarding such product as "maple goodness", "the mellow richness of pure New England maple", "this tangy maple syrup", "subtle maple flavor", "gorgeous maple syrup", "here's maple at its delicious best", "old time maple syrup • • •", "New England maple", and "rich, mellow maple", until and unless such "Bucket Syrup" is made entirely of maple syrup or is substantially made of maple syrup, in which latter event the presence and percentage of the other ingredient or ingredients shall be stated, named and specified.

Mr. Joseph C. Fehr for the Commission.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Pioneer Maple Products Company, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has been and is using unfair methods of competition in commerce as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Pioneer Maple Products Company, is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Delaware, with its principal place of business located in the city of St. Paul, in the State of Minnesota. It is now and for more than one year last past has been engaged in the business of manufacturing syrups, one brand of which it designates "Bucket Syrup", and in the sale and distribution thereof in commerce between and among various States of the United States. It causes and has caused said products, when sold, to be shipped from its place of business in the State of Minnesota to purchasers thereof located in a State or States other than Minnesota. In the course and conduct of its business, Pioneer Maple PIONEER MAPLE PRODUCTS CO.

Complaint

Products Company has been at all times herein referred to in substantial competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships also engaged in the sale and distribution in interstate commerce of maple syrup and other kinds of syrup.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of its business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, Pioneer Maple Products Company, in soliciting the sale of and selling its product designated "Bucket Syrup" in interstate commerce, caused the same to be advertised in newspapers having interstate circulation. These advertisements contained various statements among which are the following:

Now you can enjoy that tangy maple goodness in Bucket Syrup. For Bucket Syrup captures and treasures the unmatched flavor of genuine, selected maple by blending it with pure cane sugar.

Under the caption "Selected Maple Used" appeared and still appear the words:

The mellow richness of pure New England maple and the exquisite flavor of maple from Quebec province are captured and treasured in Bucket Syrup.

This was and is followed by the statement "blended with pure cane sugar".

Other statements set forth in said advertising matter referred and still refer to said product as "this tangy maple syrup", "subtle maple flavor", "gorgeous maple syrup", and

Here's maple at its delicious best! Why? Because it's a secret blend of the best maples obtainable—New England maple for its mellow richness, Canadian maple for delicious flavor, and just the right amount of pure cane sugar.

Par. 3. Said respondent also makes and publishes to the public and to purchasers and prospective purchasers sales talks by radio transmission at and out of radio broadcasting stations located in Seattle, Wash., and in San Francisco, Calif., and having hook-ups with radio stations located in other States of the United States, by means of which the said product was, and is, variously represented and referred to, among other things, as follows:

It has a mellow richness that will remind you of old time maple syrup—for it is made with genuine selected maples from New England and Canada.

Two kinds of choice maples contribute to the distinctive flavor of Bucket Syrup but it's the genius of Towle blending that makes it deliciously different, and
New England maple, known for its mellow richness, is combined with Canadian maple famed for its delicate flavor. Blended in Bucket Syrup, they give a richness and tang that cannot be found in any other syrup.

Par. 4. The said respondent also distributes other advertising matter in interstate commerce by way of catalogs and other publications, and in divers other ways and by divers other means, represents its product to be “rich, mellow maple * * *.”

Par. 5. All of said statements and representations set forth in paragraphs 2, 3, and 4, in so far as they relate to “maple goodness”, “the mellow richness of pure New England maple”, “this tangy maple syrup”, “subtle maple flavor”; “gorgeous maple syrup”, “here’s maple at its delicious best”, “old time maple syrup * * *”, “New England maple” and “rich, mellow maple” are, and each of them is, incorrect, untrue, false, and misleading.

Par. 6. In truth and in fact the said product is admittedly not composed wholly of maple syrup, but consists of approximately 70 percent of cane sugar syrup, nor is the product composed of such a substantial quantity of maple as to justify any of the aforesaid statements which represent said product to be a blend in which maple is the predominant and principal ingredient.

Par. 7. There are among the competitors of the respondent in interstate commerce and have been for more than one year last past manufacturers of pure maple syrups who so advertise and represent their products. There are also among the competitors of the respondent in interstate commerce and have been for more than one year last past manufacturers of syrups whose products are blends made from pure maple syrup and other ingredients but who truthfully advertise and represent their products to be maple syrup blended with other ingredients and who do not mislead purchasers or prospective purchasers into the belief that their syrups are pure maple syrups or that maple syrup is the chief ingredient contrary to the fact. The use by respondent of said methods, acts and practices as above set forth had, and has, the tendency and capacity unfairly to divert trade and custom to respondent from its said competitors to the substantial injury of said competitors, and also has the tendency and capacity to injure the public by inducing purchasers and prospective purchasers into purchasing respondent’s said “Bucket Syrup” in, and because of, the erroneous belief that said incorrect, untrue, false and misleading statements and representations so made by respondent are true.

Said acts and practices of respondent are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent’s competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in or affecting commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914, as amended.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

The respondent herein, Pioneer Maple Products Company, having filed its answer to the complaint herein and having in and by such answer waived hearing on the charges set forth in the complaint herein, and having stated in its said answer that it does not contest the said proceeding, and having consented in and by its said answer that the Commission, without trial, without evidence, without findings as to the facts or other intervening procedure, might make, enter, issue, and serve upon the said respondent an order to cease and desist from the methods of competition alleged in the complaint; and the Commission having duly considered the same and being fully advised in the premises—

Now, therefore, it is hereby ordered, That the respondent, Pioneer Maple Products Company, its officers, agents, servants, and employees in connection with the sale, or the offering for sale, in interstate commerce, by said Pioneer Maple Products Company of a brand of syrup called by it "Bucket Syrup" forthwith cease and desist from using in circulars, advertising on labels, or in any other way any of the following descriptions, designations, or statements regarding such Bucket Syrup, or any other word or words of similar tenor, import or substance:

(a) Maple goodness.
(b) The mellow richness of pure New England maple.
(c) This tangy maple syrup.
(d) Subtle maple flavor.
(e) Gorgeous maple syrup.
(f) Here's maple at its delicious best.
(g) Old time maple syrup • • •.
(h) New England maple, and
(i) Rich, mellow maple.

until and unless such Bucket Syrup is made entirely of maple syrup or is substantially made of maple syrup in which latter event the presence and percentage of the other ingredient or ingredients shall be stated, named, and specified.

And it is hereby further ordered, That the said respondent shall within 60 days from the day of the date of the service upon it of this order file with this Commission its report in writing stating the manner and form in which it shall have complied with this order.
Consent order requiring respondent, doing business as aforesaid, his agents, etc., in connection with the sale or offer for sale in commerce among the several States and in the District of Columbia, of general merchandise and peddlers' supplies, including soaps, flavoring compounds, toilet articles, and household novelties, to cease and desist from—

(a) Advertising or marking any of the products specified as aforesaid with fictitious, and exaggerated prices, and making any false, fictitious, or misleading statements concerning the value or the prices at which said products, or any of them, are sold or intended to be sold in the usual course of trade, or representing such soaps, food flavorings, or other products, sold in combination deals or otherwise, to have regular retail prices which were and are fictitious and greatly in excess of the prices at which such or similar products are usually sold, or were intended to be sold, and representing to buyers values greatly in excess of the values of such or similar products;

(b) Using the words "vanilla", "lemon", "walnut", "almond", "maple", "banana", "orange", "strawberry", or similar words descriptive of certain fruits, nuts, berries, or beans, in combination or in connection with the word "extract", until and unless the product is composed of genuine ingredients as distinguished from synthetic chemical substitutes, and such ingredients are suspended in ethyl alcohol; or

(c) Stating or representing in advertisements and advertising matter, by the use of printed words or pictorial representations, that he owns and occupies a large office and warehouse building, until he does own and operate such a building.

Mr. J. T. Welch for the Commission.

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Harry Gabovitch, doing business under the trade name and style of Banner Novelty Company, hereinafter designated as respondent, is now, and has been, using unfair methods of competition in commerce as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating the charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Harry Gabovitch, is an individual who is now, and has been at all times mentioned herein, doing business... under the trade name and style of Banner Novelty Company at 727 West Madison Street, Chicago, Ill. Respondent is now, and has been, engaged in the business of selling peddlers' supplies, including soaps, flavoring compounds, toilet articles, and household novelties, to peddlers and small retailers for resale, and to others, for personal use and consumption, in commerce as herein set out.

Par. 2. Said respondent, being engaged in business as aforesaid, causes said peddlers' supplies, including soaps, flavoring compounds, toilet articles, and household novelties, when sold, to be transported from his principal office and place of business in the State of Illinois to the purchasers thereof located in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and there is now, and has been at all times mentioned herein, a constant current of trade and commerce in said above described products sold by respondent, between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 3. In the course and conduct of his said business, respondent is now, and has been, in substantial competition with other individuals, firms, and corporations likewise engaged in the business of selling peddlers' supplies, including soaps, flavoring compounds, toilet articles, and household novelties as herein set out, in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 4. Respondent, in the course and conduct of his business, as detailed in paragraphs 1 and 2 hereof, has had printed and circulated, through the United States mails, to his customers and prospective customers in the various States of the United States, a combination catalog and price list. The catalog and price list so circulated purports to be descriptive of the merchandise offered for sale and sold by the respondent.

Many articles and items of merchandise listed in said catalog and offered for sale by the respondent are described as possessing retail values many times in excess of the actual selling price by the respondent to the peddler, retailer, or other purchaser, and many times in excess of the actual value thereof. A number of the said items and articles of merchandise, described in said catalog, have retail prices stamped or printed thereon, on the labels attached thereto, or on the containers in which they are offered for sale and sold to the public. The retail prices, so stamped or printed as aforesaid, are many times in excess of the actual selling price of the said items or articles of merchandise by the peddler or retailer to the consuming public, and are many times in excess of their true and actual value. The retail prices so stamped or printed as aforesaid, are false and fictitious and in no sense represent either the true value or the true selling price of the articles so price marked.
Among the items advertised in the aforesaid catalog in connection with which false and fictitious retail prices have been affixed, either to the article itself or to the container thereof, are the following:

1) Castile Soap, Satin Skin Soap, Mona Mentholated Skin Soap, Medicated Skin Soap, Dr. Clark’s Health Soap. An outstanding assortment of soaps that will bring you repeat business. Packed three bars to a beautiful lithographed box. All boxes have price mark of 75 cents. Do not confuse these soaps with smaller guest sizes. Box (three bars) 7½ cents.

2) Seven Cake Assortment. An attractive printed box of seven soaps comprised of Castile Soap, Lemon Soap, Vegetable Oil Soap, Rose Toilet Soap, Violet Soap, Germicide Soap and Shaving Soap. Each, $1 price marked. Box complete, 12½ cents.

6) Honor Brushless Shaving Cream. 60-cent size. A cream of merit, dozen 84 cents.

7) Elgin Shaving Cream. 60-cent size. Lather type. Only one brand, but the best. Contains bay rum which prevents irritation and leaves a soothing and cool feeling to the most tender skin. Dozen $1.20.

9) Goodrich Razor Blade Sharpener. Best Sharpener made, known from coast to coast for its extraordinary ability. Price mark on one box $1. Dozen 72 cents.

10) Five piece set. Set consists of 8-ounce bottle vanilla extract, priced $1; one 8-ounce bottle lemon extract, priced $1; a jar of cold cream and a box of face powder in fancy box, fastest selling deal on the market today. Complete 27 cents.

The retail prices, as indicated above, appearing on the items of merchandise or on the containers thereof, were not intended by either the respondent or the purchaser purchasing for resale, to be the true retail price or the true retail value of the merchandise so price marked. The retail prices, as indicated, appearing on the items of merchandise or on the containers thereof, were intended by the respondent and by the purchaser purchasing for resale, to be far in excess of the price intended to be charged and actually charged on a sale of merchandise to the ultimate consumer purchasing in the usual course of trade, and far in excess of the true value of the various items of merchandise so price marked.

Par. 5. Further, said respondent, in his catalog and price list, distributed as aforesaid, has used the term "flavoring extracts" to describe imitation flavoring compounds which lack the necessary alcohol content required as a vehicle for carrying genuine flavoring extracts. The said flavoring compounds, misleadingly and falsely described by the respondent in his catalog as "flavoring extracts", are truthfully and correctly labeled by the manufacturer thereof as follows:

The flavoring compounds above described are correctly and truthfully labeled by the manufacturer thereof as imitation flavorings composed of chemical substitutes suspended in oils or gum emulsions and do not contain either alcohol or extractions of juices from berries, beans, or nuts. Over a period of many years the trade and the public generally have been led to, and they now do, believe and consider a "flavoring extract" to be a flavoring compound wherein the flavoring is secured by extraction of juices from beans, berries, nuts, or fruits. These juices are then suspended in alcohol which is recognized as the most valuable and desirable vehicle that can be used for dissolving and preserving extractions of juice from beans, berries, nuts, or fruits.

PAR. 6. Respondent, in circulating his said catalog and price list, as aforesaid, has caused to be depicted on the front cover thereof a picturization of a large building several stories in height and having a large street frontage. Under the picturization above referred to there appears the following words: "General Offices and Warehouse." The picturization of the said building, used as aforesaid in connection with respondent's catalog, serves as a representation that respondent either owns, operates, or occupies the building thus picturized and is, in truth and in fact, operating his business on a large scale.

In truth and in fact, respondent does not own the building thus depicted on the front cover of his catalog and occupies only a very small portion of the building above referred to, if he occupies any part of it at all, and the picturization of said building, purported to represent the size and character of respondent's business operations, is a gross exaggeration and is false and misleading.

PAR. 7. Over a period of many years manufacturers have, in many trades, formed the custom of marking or stamping on the article or item of manufacture, or on the container thereof, the retail price at which said manufacturers suggest the retailer should sell the item or articles to the ultimate consumer purchaser. This suggested retail price, so stamped or marked, is intended to represent the cost of the manufacture of the article plus a reasonable profit for the manufacturer and retailer and, consequently, to represent the approximate retail sale value of the item. The range of the suggested retail price is intended by the manufacturer to be indicative of the quality and character of the ingredients used and the process by which the item is manufactured. The public generally understands the custom herein detailed and has been led to, and does, place its confidence in the price markings so stamped and the representations thereby made as to the quality of the product to the extent that it purchases a substantial volume of merchandise in reliance on this aforesaid custom.

For many years a substantial portion of the consuming public has expressed, and has had, a marked preference for soaps, dental creams, shaving creams, toilet articles, flavoring extracts and similar household novelties that are composed of superior ingredients and are produced by the manufacturer thereof with the intent and design of selling said products for prices in excess of the general and usual range of prices for similar products manufactured with the usual and customary ingredients or with inferior ingredients. Said manufacturers, following the custom herein detailed, have marked or stamped the suggested retail prices on said products as in indication of the superior quality and character of the product and its resulting higher value. Whenever a genuinely superior product, so stamped or marked with the retail price thereof, is offered for sale at a substantially reduced price, the general purchasing public has been led to believe, and does believe, that in purchasing said product it is securing a bargain not ordinarily obtainable in the usual course of trade. The purchasing public has a preference for purchasing genuinely superior products sold at less than the customary retail value thereof, over ordinary products sold for the regular price which is lower than the normal retail price of the superior product in the customary course of trade.

Also, a substantial portion of the purchasing public has expressed and has had, a marked preference for genuine "flavoring extracts", as that term is known and used by the trade and public generally, over any imitation flavoring compounds composed of synthetic substitutes and chemicals suspended in inferior oils or emulsions. The cost of producing genuine flavoring extracts is greatly in excess of the cost of producing imitation flavoring compounds.

Also, a substantial portion of the purchasing public has a marked preference for dealing with and purchasing items of merchandise from manufacturers or distributors who operate on a large scale and do a large volume of business, believing that superior quality and closer prices can be secured by dealing with such distributor.

PAR. 8. The false and misleading advertising and representations hereinabove set out, together with the false and fictitious price markings herein set out, on the part of the respondent, places in the hands of the aforesaid peddlers and retailers, buying for resale, an instrument and a means whereby said peddlers and retailers may commit a fraud upon a substantial portion of the consuming public by enabling such dealers to represent and offer for sale, and sell, the said peddlers' supplies, including soap, shaving cream, dental cream, flavoring extract, and household novelties, hereinabove described in detail in paragraph 4, as genuinely superior products produced by the manufacturer thereof with the intent and purpose of selling the said products in the usual course of trade to the general consuming public at and for a retail price stamped on the products or on their containers.

In truth and in fact the same merchandise described in paragraph 4 is not a superior product normally sold in the usual channels of trade for the retail price stamped on the product itself or on the container thereof, or for any price closely approaching the said stamped retail price.

There are among the competitors of respondent many who do not advertise or represent through their catalogs that the merchandise offered for sale by them is stamped or marked with price marks greatly exceeding the actual intended retail sale value or retail sale price of the merchandise offered for sale, and who do not advertise or represent through their catalogs that various flavoring compounds are "flavoring extracts", as that term is known and understood by the trade and public generally. There are many among respondent's competitors who manufacture, distribute and sell flavoring compounds composed of synthetic materials and suspended in oils or gum emulsions, and who do not advertise said products as "flavoring extracts"; and many of respondent's competitors manufacture, distribute and sell food flavorings that are properly and lawfully designated as "extracts" and are composed of superior ingredients and suspended in the proper alcoholic vehicles.

Par. 9. The effect of the foregoing false and misleading representations and acts of the respondent in selling and offering for sale items of merchandise as described in paragraph 4, with false and fictitious price marks stamped thereon, in representing himself to be a large scale distributor by the picturization of a large warehouse on his catalog, and in representing certain products to be "flavoring extracts" when said products were merely flavoring compounds, is to mislead a substantial portion of the consuming public in the several States of the United States by inducing them to believe:

(1) That the various items of merchandise described in respondent's catalog, as shown herein in paragraph 4, were and are superior products manufactured with the intent and purpose on the part of the manufacturer that said products would be sold at retail at a price closely approximating the price stamped thereon.

(2) That said products above described and referred to, because of the price marks affixed or stamped thereon, are products composed of superior ingredients and are products that ordinarily retail, in the usual course of trade, for prices closely approximating the prices stamped on said merchandise.

The effect of the foregoing false and misleading representations of the respondent with respect to describing certain of its products as "flavoring extracts" is to mislead a substantial number of peddlers and retailers, as well as a substantial portion of the consuming public, to believe that the products so advertised are composed of genuine flavoring extracts and suspended in alcohol, and that said products fall within the class of products commonly known to the trade and public generally as "extracts".

The foregoing false and misleading statements and representations on the part of respondent are added inducements for a substantial number of peddlers and retail merchants, as well as consumer purchasers, to buy the products distributed and offered for sale by respondent, and have a tendency and capacity to, and do, divert a substantial volume of trade from competitors of respondent engaged in similar businesses, with the result that substantial quantities of said products, as described in paragraph 4, are sold to said peddlers and retailers and to the consuming public on account of said beliefs induced by said false and misleading representations, and as a consequence thereof, a substantial injury has been done to substantial competition in commerce among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, as hereinabove detailed.

Par. 10. The above and foregoing acts, practices, and representations of respondent have been, and are, all to the prejudice of the public and respondent's competitors, and have been, and are, unfair methods of competition within the meaning and intent of Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

Harry Gabovitch, trading and doing business as "Banner Novelty Company", the respondent herein, having filed his answer to the complaint in this proceeding, in which answer he states that he desires to waive hearing on the charges set forth in the complaint herein and not to contest the proceeding, consenting in and by his said answer that as provided in paragraph (b) of Rule V of the Commission's Rules of Practice, the Commission may, without trial, without evidence and without findings as to the facts or other intervening procedure, make, enter, and serve upon said respondent an order to cease and desist from the methods of competition alleged in the complaint; and the Commission having considered the said answer and being fully advised in the premises—

It is now ordered, That the respondent, Harry Gabovitch, trading and doing business as “Banner Novelty Company”, and his agents, servants, representatives, and employees, in connection with the sale and offering for sale, in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, of general merchandise and peddlers’ supplies, including soaps, flavoring compounds, toilet articles, and household novelties, cease and desist from:

(1) Advertising or marking any of the products, such as soaps, flavoring compounds, toilet articles and household novelties, sold by him with fictitious and exaggerated prices, and from making any false, fictitious or misleading statements concerning the value or the prices at which said products, or any of them, are sold or intended to be sold in the usual course of trade.

(2) Representing soaps, food flavorings or other products, sold in combination deals or otherwise, to have regular retail prices which were and are fictitious and greatly in excess of the prices at which such or similar products are usually sold, or were intended to be sold, and representing to buyers values greatly in excess of the values of such or similar products.

(3) Using the words “vanilla”, “lemon”, “walnut”, “almond”, “maple”, “banana”, “orange”, “strawberry”, or similar words descriptive of certain fruits, nuts, berries or beans, in combination or in connection with the word “extract”, until and unless the product is composed of genuine ingredients, as distinguished from synthetic chemical substitutes, and such ingredients are suspended in ethyl alcohol;

(4) Stating or representing in advertisements and advertising matter, by the use of printed words, or pictorial representations, that he owns and occupies a large office and warehouse building, until he does own and operate such a building.

It is further ordered, That respondent shall, within 60 days from the date of the service upon him of a copy of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth the manner and form in which he has complied with the order herein set forth.

IN THE MATTER OF

S. BENSON STUDIOS, INC., DOING BUSINESS AS BENSON STUDIO AND BENSON'S

Where a corporation engaged in the sale and distribution of women's coats and furs; in advertising and soliciting the sale thereof through circulars and circular letters sent to various persons in the different States and through newspaper advertisements of wide interstate circulation and through the radio—

(a) Represented that it sold at its place of business genuine fur coats and scarfs and beautiful cloth coats which had been slightly used for posing and fashion work only at an extraordinarily low price and for a fraction of what purchasers and potential purchasers intended spending, facts being commodities thus advertised and represented did not consist wholly or substantially of "sample" or "model" coats and furs, but mainly of garments which had never been worn, and prices charged therefor were no lower than those at which other dealers sold comparable garments never worn or used as samples or models;

(b) Represented that magnificent genuine fur coats of exceptionally beautiful, selected skins, guaranteed never to have been worn on the street, could be bought from it for as little as $30.50 and that lovely fur scarfs in silvers, reds, pointed, brons, and all the new shades could be bought from it for $10, and that such garments would be guaranteed in writing by it for five years and free repairs and free storage given with every purchase, facts being genuine fur coats of the newest advance models and made of selected skins could not be purchased for as little as $39.50, nor "lovely fur scarfs" in all the new shades and in the variety of furs named for $10;

With tendency to mislead and deceive the buying public by causing said public to believe that it could purchase from such corporation fur garments slightly used for sample or model purposes at a price greatly less than the market price thereof, and that genuine fur coats of exceptionally beautiful selected skins could be bought from it for as little as $30.50, and with tendency and capacity unfairly to divert trade to it from other individuals and concerns engaged in similar business, but honestly and truthfully advertising and representing their goods:

Held, That such acts and practices were each and all to the prejudice of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Mr. John W. Hilldrop for the Commission.
Kaye, Scholer, Fierman & Hays, of New York City, for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that S. Benson Studios, Inc., a corporation, trading and doing business also as Benson Studio and as Benson's, has been, or is, using unfair methods of competition in commerce as "commerce" is defined in said act, by false and misleading advertisements of certain goods, wares, and merchandise sold by it, said S. Benson Studios, Inc., a corporation, trading and doing business also as Benson Studio and as Benson's, in manner and form as hereafter set out, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be to the public interest, the Commission hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. The respondent, S. Benson Studios, Inc., is a corporation chartered, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its principal place of business located in the city of New York, in the State of New York. It is now, and for more than one year last past has been engaged, under its corporate name of S. Benson Studios, Inc., and also under the trade names and styles of "Benson Studio" and "Benson's", in the sale and distribution of women's coats and furs in commerce between and among various States of the United States of America; causing its said products, when sold, to be shipped from its place of business located in the State of New York to purchasers thereof located in the different States of the United States of America, other than the State of New York; and in the course and conduct of its business, said respondent was at all times, herein referred to, and is now, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution in interstate commerce of similar products.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of its business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, the said respondent, S. Benson Studios, Inc., in advertising and soliciting the sale of its products, by means of circulars and circular letters sent through the mails to various persons in the different States of the United States other than New York, by advertisements in newspapers having a wide interstate circulation, and by radio, represented and held out to the buying public as an inducement to buy its products that it, the said respondent, could and did sell at its place of business genuine fur coats and scarfs and beautiful cloth coats at an extraordinarily low price and for a fraction of what purchasers and potential purchasers had intended spending; that these garments had been slightly used, just for posing and fashion work; that magnificent genuine fur coats of exceptionally beautiful, selected skins could be bought from respondent for as low as $39.50, and were guaranteed never to have been worn on the street; that lovely fur scarfs in silvers, reds, pointed, browns, and all the new shades, could be bought from respondent for $10; that said garments would be guaranteed in writing by respondent for five years, and that free repairs and free storage would be given with every purchase.

In truth and in fact, the commodities so advertised and represented by respondent did not wholly consist of, nor did a substantial part thereof consist of, “sample” or “model” coats and furs, but the greater part thereof consisted of garments which had never been worn; and likewise, in truth and in fact, the prices charged therefor were no lower than the prices at which other dealers sold and offered for sale similar garments which had never been worn nor used as “samples” or “models”; it was and is not true that genuine fur coats of the newest advance models and made of selected skins could, or can be, purchased for as little as $39.50, nor that “lovely fur scarfs” in all the new shades and in the variety of furs named in said advertisements can, or could be, purchased for $10.

PAR. 3. The false and misleading advertisements and representations of respondent, as hereinbefore set out, had and have a tendency to mislead and deceive the buying public by causing it to believe that it could and can purchase from respondent fur garments, which had been slightly used for sample or model purposes, at a price greatly less than the market price thereof, and that genuine fur coats of exceptionally beautiful, selected skins could and can be bought from respondent at a price as low as $39.50, when such were not the facts; and said advertisements and representations also had and have a tendency and capacity to unfairly divert trade to respondent from other individuals, firms, corporations, and associations engaged in a similar business to that of respondent, but who honestly and truthfully advertise and represent their goods.

PAR. 4. The above acts and things done by respondent are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and competitors of respondent in interstate commerce, within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”, approved September 26, 1914.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

business also as Benson Studio and as Benson's, charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act.

The said respondent, after the filing of its answer in this proceeding, filed an amended and supplemental answer in which it admitted as true the allegations of paragraphs 1, 2, and 3 of the complaint, and in said amended and supplemental answer the respondent waived the taking of any further testimony or the receiving of any further evidence in this proceeding other than the allegations in the complaint and the admissions contained in said amended and supplemental answer, and also consented that the Federal Trade Commission might make its findings as to the facts and draw its conclusion therefrom and proceed to enter and serve on respondent an order to cease and desist from the acts of unfair competition alleged in the complaint, and the Commission having duly considered the same, and being fully advised in the premises, makes this its findings as to the facts and conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. The respondent, S. Benson Studios, Inc., is a corporation chartered, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its principal place of business located in the city of New York, in the State of New York. It is now, and for more than one year last past has been engaged, under its corporate name of S. Benson Studios, Inc., and also under the trade names and styles of "Benson Studio" and "Benson's", in the sale and distribution of women's coats and furs in commerce between and among various States of the United States of America; causing its said products, when sold, to be shipped from its place of business located in the State of New York to purchasers thereof located in the different States of the United States of America, other than the State of New York; and in the course and conduct of its business, said respondent was at all times herein referred to, and is now, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution in interstate commerce of similar products.

Paragraph 2. In the course and conduct of its business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, the said respondent, S. Benson Studios, Inc., in advertising and soliciting the sale of its products, by means of circulars and circular letters sent through the mails to various persons in the different States of the United States other than New York, by advertisements in newspapers having a wide interstate circulation, and by radio, represented and held out to the buying public as an inducement to buy its products that it, the said respondent, could and did sell at its place of business genuine fur coats and scarfs and beautiful cloth coats at an extraordinarily low price and for a fraction of what purchasers and potential purchasers had intended spending; that these garments had been slightly used, just for posing and fashion work; that magnificent genuine fur coats of exceptionally beautiful, selected skins could be bought from respondent for as low as $39.50, and were guaranteed never to have been worn on the street; that lovely fur scarfs in silvers, reds, pointed, browns, and all the new shades, could be bought from respondent for $10; that said garments would be guaranteed in writing by respondent for five years, and that free repairs and free storage would be given with every purchase.

In truth and in fact, the commodities so advertised and represented by respondent did not wholly consist of, nor did a substantial part thereof consist of, "sample" or "model" coats and furs, but the greater part thereof consisted of garments which had never been worn; and likewise, in truth and in fact, the prices charged therefor were no lower than the prices at which other dealers sold and offered for sale similar garments which had never been worn nor used as "samples" or "models"; it was and is not true that genuine fur coats of the newest advance models and made of selected skins could, or can be, purchased for as little as $39.50, nor that "lovely fur scarfs" in all the new shades and in the variety of furs named in said advertisements can, or could be, purchased for $10.

Par. 3. The false and misleading advertisements and representations of respondent, as hereinbefore set out, had and have a tendency to mislead and deceive the buying public by causing it to believe that it could and can purchase from respondent fur garments, which had been slightly used for sample or model purposes, at a price greatly less than the market price thereof, and that genuine fur coats of exceptionally beautiful, selected skins could and can be bought from respondent at a price as low as $39.50, when such were not the facts; and said advertisements and representations also had and have a tendency and capacity to unfairly divert trade to respondent from other individuals, firms, corporations, and associations engaged in a similar business to that of respondent, but who honestly and truthfully advertise and represent their goods.

The foregoing alleged acts and practices of respondent, S. Benson Studios, Inc., a corporation, trading and doing business also as "Benson Studio" and as "Benson's", are each and all to the prejudice of the public, and to the competitors of the respondent, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the original and amended and supplemental answers of the respondent, and the respondent having, in its amended and supplemental answer, admitted as true the allegations contained in paragraphs 1, 2, and 3 of the complaint and consented therein that the Federal Trade Commission may, without introducing further testimony or receiving further evidence, make its findings as to the facts and draw its conclusion from the allegations in the complaint contained and the admissions contained in said amended and supplemental answer and proceed to enter and serve on respondent an order to cease and desist from the acts of unfair competition alleged in the complaint, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes"—

Now, therefore, it is hereby ordered, That respondent, S. Benson Studios, Inc., a corporation, trading and doing business also as "Benson Studio" and as "Benson's", in connection with the sale and the offering for sale of women's coats and furs in interstate commerce, forthwith cease and desist from:

(a) By advertisements in newspapers, magazines, journals, and over the radio, and by any other form of advertising, representing, and holding out to the buying public as an inducement to buy its products that it, the said respondent, could and does sell at its place of business genuine fur coats and scarfs and beautiful cloth coats at an extraordinarily low price and at a fraction of what purchasers and potential purchasers had intended spending.

(b) Representing and advertising that the garments sold and offered for sale by respondent are or have been slightly used, just for posing and fashion work, unless in truth and in fact such garments so advertised and represented have been slightly used and used just for posing and fashion work.

(c) Representing and advertising that magnificent genuine fur coats of exceptionally beautiful, selected skins, could or can be bought from respondent for as low as $39.50, and that said garments were and are guaranteed never to have been worn on the street.

(d) Advertising and representing that lovely fur scarfs in silvers, reds, pointed, browns, and all the new shades, could or can be bought from respondent for $10, or for any other sum less than the true and actual market price of such commodities.

(e) Advertising and representing that said garments sold and advertised for sale by respondent would be or are guaranteed in writing by respondent for five years, and that free repairs and free storage would be or are given with every purchase, unless in truth and in fact respondent does guarantee said garments in writing for a period of five years and does in truth and in fact give free storage and free repairs with every purchase.

And it is hereby further ordered, That the said respondent, S. Benson Studios, Inc., a corporation, trading and doing business also as “Benson Studio” and “Benson’s”, shall within 60 days after the service upon it of this order to cease and desist, file with this Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it shall have complied with the order to cease and desist hereinbefore set forth.

Mr. J. T. Welch for the Commission.

COMPLAINT

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Frank A. Scervini, is an individual who is now, and has been at all times mentioned herein, doing business under the trade name and style of F. & S. Manufacturing Company, at 100 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Respondent is now, and has been, engaged in the business of selling and distributing pharmaceutical and druggists' supplies, including gelatin capsules containing various preparations and compounds of a medicinal character, to wholesale and retail druggists for resale, and to others, in commerce, as herein set out.

Par. 2. Said respondent, being engaged in business as aforesaid, causes said pharmaceutical and druggists' supplies, including said gelatin capsules above described, when sold, to be transported from his principal office and place of business in the State of New York to the purchasers thereof located in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and there is now and has been at all times mentioned herein, a constant current of trade and commerce in the above described products sold by the respondent between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 3. In the course and conduct of his said business, respondent is now, and has been, in substantial competition with other individuals, firms and corporations likewise engaged in the business of selling pharmaceutical and druggists' supplies, including gelatin capsules, described as aforesaid, in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 4. Respondent, in the course and conduct of his business, as detailed in paragraphs 1 to 3 hereof, and for the purpose of inducing individuals, firms and corporations to purchase said pharmaceutical and druggists' supplies, including the gelatin capsules hereinabove described, has, from time to time, caused advertisements, wherein he claims to be the manufacturer of the products sold by him, to be inserted in newspapers, trade journals and magazines of general circulation throughout the United States, and has had printed and circulated to customers and prospective customers throughout the various States of the United States, through the United States mails, price lists, letterheads, invoices, and other advertising literature wherein similar claims are made. In all of the advertisements, letterheads, invoices, and other advertising literature herein referred to, the respondent has caused his trade name, F. & S. Manufacturing Company, to appear, together with the statement:

You save money when you buy F. & S. capsules. Concentrating as we do on the manufacture of capsules, we are enabled to produce a quality product at prices unattainable by those with whom capsules are merely a side line.

as an inducement to wholesale and retail druggists to purchase the products sold by him.

The letterheads used by the respondent contain the following language:
F. & S. MANUFACTURING CO.

Complaint

F. & S. Manufacturing Company Makers of Soft Elastic Capsules
100 Fifth Avenue
New York City

together with other words.

The invoices used by the respondent contain the same statements appearing on the letterheads hereinabove referred to.

Par. 5. The use of the word "manufacturing" in respondent's trade name, as indicated on the advertisements, letterheads, and invoices herein referred to, together with the statements appearing in said advertisements, letterheads and invoices as hereinabove detailed, particularly with reference to respondent's operation of a plant for the manufacture of gelatin capsules, purport to be descriptive of the respondent's business and the products sold by him.

Respondent does not own or operate or control any plant or machinery for the manufacture of pharmaceutical or druggists supplies, including gelatin capsules hereinabove described. The only place of business of respondent is located at 100 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y., and this place of business is not equipped for the manufacture of the products hereinabove referred to.

Respondent is not engaged in the business of manufacturing and is not a manufacturer, as those terms are understood by the trade and the public generally. Respondent is engaged solely in the business of distributing and selling pharmaceutical and druggists' supplies, including gelatin capsules, that have been manufactured by others.

Par. 6. A substantial portion of the wholesale and retail druggist trade, as well as a substantial portion of the medical profession and of the public, prefer to deal direct with the manufacturer of products being purchased. Such purchasers believe that they secure closer prices and superior quality in dealing direct with the manufacturer rather than a selling agency or middleman.

Par. 7. The use by respondent of the word "manufacturing" in his trade name, as set out in paragraph 4, in describing the products sold by him or in designating his business or in advertisements in newspapers, trade journals and magazines, letterheads, invoices and other advertising literature, as well as in his general business correspondence; and the use by respondent of the several statements hereinabove detailed in describing and designating his business in offering for sale and selling the products so advertised, was and is calculated to, and had, and now has the tendency and capacity to, and did and now does mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the wholesale and retail druggists’ trade and the purchasing public into the erroneous belief:

(1) That respondent is conducting a business much larger in size and scope than it is;

(2) That respondent owns, operates and controls a manufacturing plant for the manufacture of pharmaceutical and druggists’ supplies, including gelatin capsules;

(3) That when they purchase products sold by the respondent they are dealing directly with the factory and are securing for themselves and their customers the advantage of close prices and superior quality; and

(4) That in purchasing products from the respondent they are saving a middleman’s profit for themselves and their customers by purchasing direct from a manufacturer.

As a direct consequence of the mistaken or erroneous belief induced by the acts, practices and representations of the respondent hereinabove outlined, a substantial number of wholesale and retail druggists, and others, have purchased a substantial volume of the products sold by the respondent, including gelatin capsules, with the result that substantial injury has been done to substantial competition in commerce among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Para. 8. There are among respondent’s competitors many who manufacture pharmaceutical and druggists’ supplies, including gelatin capsules, and who sell such products when so produced, and transport them or cause them to be transported to, into and through other States of the United States, to the purchasers thereof at their respective points of location, and who truthfully advertise and represent themselves to be the manufacturers of said products; there are others among respondent’s competitors who do not manufacture pharmaceutical and druggists’ supplies, including gelatin capsules, but who do sell and distribute the said products, when so produced, and transport them, or cause them to be transported to, into and through other States of the United States to the purchasers thereof at their respective points of location and who do not, by any means or in any manner, hold themselves out or represent themselves to be the manufacturers of the products above referred to; and the alleged acts, practices and representations of the respondent divert a substantial volume of trade from and otherwise prejudice and injure a substantial number of such competitors.

Para. 9. The above and foregoing acts, practices, and representations of respondent have been and are, all to the prejudice of the public and respondent’s competitors, and have been, and are, unfair

(1) Advertising or in any way otherwise representing, directly or by implication, himself or his company by advertisements, advertising literature, stationery, radio broadcasts, or in any manner or means whatsoever as a manufacturer of pharmaceutical and druggists' supplies, including gelatin capsules containing various preparations and compounds of a medicinal character, until he owns, operates and controls a factory or factories in which said products are manufactured.

(2) The use of the word "Manufacturing" as a part of or in connection with any trade name under which he carries on his said business of selling pharmaceutical and druggists' supplies, including said gelatin capsules, until he owns, operates and controls a factory or factories in which the said products are manufactured.

(3) The use of the words "makers of", either independently or in connection with any other word or words, or in any way which may have the tendency or capacity to confuse, mislead, or deceive purchasers into the belief that he owns, operates or controls a factory or laboratory wherein the pharmaceutical and druggists' supplies which he sells and distributes are manufactured or compounded, until he owns, operates, and controls the factory or factories in which the said products are manufactured.

It is further ordered, That respondent shall, within 60 days from the date of the service upon him of a copy of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth the manner and form in which he has complied with the order herein set forth.

IN THE MATTER OF

SECURITY SILVERWARE DISTRIBUTORS, INC., ET AL.

Consent order requiring respondent corporation and respondent individuals, officers thereof, their agents, etc., in connection with the offer and sale in interstate commerce of certificates, coupons, cards, tickets or written or printed matter for redemption in china or chinaware, silver or silverware, through advertisements in periodicals and newspapers, prospectuses, or any form of written or printed matter, or by broadcasting, to cease and desist, directly and indirectly, from—

(a) Using the words “Advertising Department” after or in connection with the names of two certain corporations, in their advertisements, or in connection with the name or names of any other individual or concern, or representing that they are connected with or are agents of said two corporations or of any other individuals or concerns, or that said two corporations, because of the expense of periodical and newspaper advertising, have developed the plan presented of advertising through the cooperation of retail dealers in such a way that such cooperation will increase the business of such dealers without any cost to them, or to their customers, for the redemption of such certificates, etc., unless and until they are in fact connected with or representatives of said two corporations or of such other individuals or concerns and unless and until such a plan has in fact been developed by such two corporations and been adopted and followed by them;

(c) Representing that the silverware in which such certificates, etc., are redeemable is Rogers “1847” silverware, or that they will supply retailers purchasing such certificates, etc., with samples or display sets of silverware, earthenware or chinaware, unless and until they do in fact thus redeem such certificates in such Rogers “1847” silverware and adopt and follow said last-claimed practice.

Before Mr. Charles F. Diggs, trial examiner.

Mr. James M. Brinson for the Commission.

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Security Silverware Distributors, Inc., has been for several years last past and now is a corporation organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Illinois, with its principal office and place of business in the city of Chicago in the said state. It is engaged in the sale of certificates, coupons or cards redeemable in silverware among and between the various States of the United States.

Respondents, William C. Steffy and Lorena Steffy, are individuals who caused respondent corporation to be organized, and who have been since its organization and now are the owners of substantially all of its capital stock, and have been and are its executive officers. They have dominated, controlled, directed, and managed, and now dominate, control, direct, and manage its affairs and all of its activities. Their place of business has been and is the same as that of respondent corporation, and they have employed and continue to employ said respondent, Security Silverware Distributors, Inc., as a corporate instrumentality through or by means of which they have been and are enabled to practice the policies and methods described in paragraph 2 hereof.

Respondent, Security Silverware Distributors, Inc., and respondents, William C. Steffy and Lorena Steffy, have been for more than a year last past and now are engaged in the sale by or under the trade name, Atlas Globe China Company, Advertising Department, of certificates, coupons or cards redeemable in earthenware or chinaware among and between the various States of the United States. They have also engaged in such business, and now are engaged in it, under and by the trade name, Bordeaux China Company.
In the course and conduct of such business, respondents have caused the certificates, coupons, or cards redeemable in silverware, earthenware or chinaware, so offered for sale and sold, and silverware, earthenware or chinaware for redemption of such certificates, coupons or cards, to be transported from the aforesaid place of business in the city of Chicago, State of Illinois, to purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States, and they have been, and each of them has been, in substantial competition with individuals, partnerships and corporations offering for sale and selling in interstate commerce, certificates, coupons, cards, or other written or printed matter redeemable in silverware, earthenware or chinaware, and individuals, partnerships and corporations offering for sale, or selling silverware, earthenware or chinaware in such commerce.

Par. 2. It has been and is the practice of respondents to offer for sale and sell certificates, coupons or cards, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, through the personal solicitation of local retail dealers in and through the various States of the United States, by agents thereunto duly authorized by respondents. They are offered for sale and sold by respondents to such local retail dealers to be distributed as a stimulation of their business, among their customers, according to the amount of merchandise sold them by such retail dealers. The agents of respondents are equipped with forms of contracts, circulars, advertising matter and specimen coupon cards for use in the solicitation of such retail dealers. It has been and is the practice of respondents, by and through such agents acting under their supervision and direction, and within the scope of their employment, to induce retail dealers to sign contracts for the purchase of such certificates, coupons or cards, so redeemable, by means of false and misleading statements and representations to the following effect:

That respondent, Security Silverware Distributors, Inc., has been or is the agent of or connected with the International Silverware Company, or some other manufacturer of silverware, and that such company or companies have adopted and are using for the purpose of introducing and advertising their products, the plan of selling certificates, coupons or cards redeemable in silverware, to retail dealers for distribution by them to or among their customers, and the redemption of such certificates, coupons or cards by said respondent when returned to it by the customers of such retail dealers; that such manufacturers of silverware and the said respondent have found sale of such certificates, coupons and cards, redeemable in silverware, a less expensive and more effective form of advertising than advertisement in magazines, newspapers and other periodicals; that said respondent and its principals have developed this plan of advertising through the cooperation of retail dealers in such way that such cooperation would increase the business of retail dealers without any cost to them except for the certificates, coupons or cards, and without any cost to their customers for the redemption of such certificates, coupons or cards; that a temporary payment of $4.50 for each 1,000 cards would be required, but that for each payment of $1.50 there would be returned to the retail dealer by said respondent, $5, upon or after their redemption of such certificates, coupons or cards; that said respondent would promptly redeem the certificates, coupons or cards, when returned to them, with "genuine Rogers '1847' Silverware, or 'Rogers Silverware', or 'Genuine Rogers Silverware'.

Respondents, Security Silverware Distributors, Inc., and William C. Steffy and Lorena Steffy, acting through their agents, who at all times herein mentioned, were operating within the scope of their employment, have induced retail dealers to sign contracts for the purchase of certificates, coupons or cards redeemable in chinaware or earthenware by using the trade name of Atlas Globe China Company, Advertising Department, and by representing to local retail dealers that they have been or are connected with, or have been or are agents for the Atlas Globe China Company, and they have also induced retail dealers to sign contracts for the purchase of certificates, coupons or cards redeemable in earthenware or chinaware by using the name Bordeaux China Company, and by representing such company to be the manufacturer of earthenware or chinaware, for which they were acting as agents.

Respondents, in offering for sale and selling such certificates, coupons or cards redeemable in earthenware or chinaware, have, when using the name Bordeaux China Company, represented the earthenware or chinaware in which the certificates, coupons or cards would be redeemable, as having a value and a regular and customary price far in excess, sometimes several hundred per cent, of the true value and the regular and customary price of the earthenware or chinaware with which certificates, coupons or cards of the so-called Bordeaux China Company have been and are redeemed.

It has been and is the practice of respondents, whether trading as Security Silverware Distributors, Inc., or as Atlas Globe China Company, Advertising Department, or as Bordeaux China Company, to represent to retail dealers in the various States of the United States, as inducements for the purchase of certificates, coupons or cards, redeemable by respondents in silverware or earthenware or chinaware, that by distribution of such certificates, coupons or cards among their customers, their business would be increased, particularly because respondents, to such end or for such purpose, would circularize the purchasing public on their behalf within a specified area tributary to the location of such retail dealers.

It has also been and is the practice of respondents, through their agents, as inducement for the purchase of their said redemption certificates, coupons or cards, to represent that such certificates, coupons or cards would be sold to one retail dealer only in the particular community of the solicited retail dealer, and that respondents would furnish each dealer purchasing from them such certificates, coupons or cards, a set of silverware or earthenware or chinaware, as the case might be, for display among their customers in order to encourage or stimulate the increased purchase of merchandise from such local retail dealer. The number of pieces of silverware or chinaware to be so furnished local dealers purchasing or using such redemption certificates, coupons or cards, has not been uniform, but has depended on the amount of certificates, coupons or cards furnished and the surrounding circumstances of each particular case. Respondents have entrusted their agents with wide discretion in such respect.

In truth and in fact, neither respondent, Security Silverware Distributors, Inc., nor respondent William C. Steffy or respondent Lorena Steffy has or has had any connection, as agent or otherwise, with the International Silver Company, and neither they nor any or either of them have or have had, or has or has had, any connection, as agent or otherwise, with the Atlas Globe China Company except as a purchaser of its products.

Neither respondent, Security Silverware Distributors, Inc., nor any or, either of the individual respondents, engages or has engaged, either as Atlas Globe China Company, Advertising Department or as Bordeaux China Company, or otherwise, in the manufacture of silverware, earthenware or chinaware, nor are they nor is any or either of them connected, nor have they nor has any or either of them been connected with any manufacturer or manufacturers of such products or commodities or any of them except as purchasers thereof.

It has been and is the practice of respondents, after retail dealers have completed payments to them of the purchase price of the certificates, coupons or cards redeemable in silverware or earthenware or chinaware, to direct such retail dealers to notify customers among whom such certificates, coupons or cards had or have been distributed, or among whom they might thereafter be distributed, that in order to procure redemption of the certificates, coupons or cards held by them, it would be necessary to transmit to respondents with them one cent for each and every certificate, coupon or card. The amount of money so required has in many instances been more than the price at which the customers could procure from local stores, silverware or chinaware or earthenware of the same quality or kind. As a result, retail dealers, after completion as aforesaid of their payments to respondents, have been compelled either to bear the loss of such money, or to distribute the certificates, coupons or cards among their customers with the information that redemption of the certificates, coupons or cards would require payment to respondents of one cent with each of them transmitted to respondents for redemption in silverware, earthenware or chinaware.

Respondents have also failed and neglected to refund to retail dealers, who have signed contracts with them, the sum of $5 for each 1,000 certificates, coupons or cards upon or after their redemption, or any part thereof. The silverware with which respondents have pretended to redeem certificates, coupons or cards, purporting to be redeemable in silverware, has not been and is not genuine Rogers "1847" silverware or Rogers Silverware or genuine Rogers Silverware, as such designations or descriptions are understood by the purchasing public. Respondents have followed the practice of failing and neglecting to redeem or to attempt or pretend to redeem certificates, coupons or cards purporting to be redeemable in silverware, earthenware or chinaware, although customers among whom they were distributed by retail dealers purchasing the same from respondents have transmitted them to respondents accompanied by the requisite amount of money. Respondents have failed and neglected to furnish or supply retail dealers, who have purchased certificates, coupons, or cards from them, with sample or display sets of silverware, earthenware or chinaware, consisting of or containing the number of pieces promised as inducement to such purchase, but have usually furnished or supplied sets substantially less in number and different in quality or kind than promised by respondents or their agents. They have sold their certificates, coupons or cards to more than one retail dealer in various communities and localities in the United States in which it had been understood and agreed, when selling retail dealers, that only one in each community or locality would be sold such certificates, coupons, or cards for distribution among customers.

They have failed and neglected to comply with their agreement to circularize the purchasing public, on behalf of retail dealers to whom they have sold their certificates, coupons or cards, or otherwise to cooperate with such retail dealers in the advertisement and extension of their business.

...ing in interstate commerce, silverware, china, earthenware, chinaware and glassware, directly, and other individuals, partnerships, and corporations offering for sale and selling such products indirectly through the sale of certificates, coupons or cards redeemable in silverware, china, earthenware, chinaware and glassware.

The acts and practices of respondents and of each and all of them, as described in paragraph 2 hereof, have had and have a capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive, and they have misled and deceived, and do mislead and deceive the public into the belief that Security Silverware Distributors, Inc., has been and is connected with or an agent of International Silver Company, or other manufacturer or manufacturers of silverware, or that the Security Silverware Distributors, Inc., and William C. Steffy and Lorena Steffy have been and are connected with the Atlas Globe China Company; or that the Bordeaux China Company has been and is a manufacturer of chinaware or earthenware, and that respondents have been and are its agents, and into the belief that each and all of the foregoing statements and representations made by agents of respondents relative to the aforesaid certificates, coupons or cards and their use or redemption have been and are true, and into the purchase of such certificates, coupons or cards, from the respondents, in reliance upon such erroneous belief.

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents have had the capacity and tendency to divert, and they have diverted and do divert, to respondents trade from competitors offering for sale or selling in interstate commerce, silverware, china, earthenware, chinaware and glassware, directly, or offering for sale or selling in such commerce, certificates, coupons or cards redeemable or purporting to be redeemable in silverware, china, earthenware, chinaware or glassware, truthfully described and represented.

Par. 4. The above and foregoing acts of respondents, and each and all of them, have been and are to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors, and have been and are unfair methods of competition in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint, and upon the answer of respondents wherein they admit the allegations and facts set forth in the complaint and express the wish to waive hearing on the charges of the complaint and to refrain from contesting the proceeding, and in such answer consent that the Commission may make, enter and serve upon each respondent an order to cease and desist from violations of the law as alleged in the complaint, and the Commission having considered the record and being fully advised in the premises—

It is now ordered, That respondents and each of them, including their officers, agents, employees, and representatives, in connection with offering for sale or selling in interstate commerce certificates, coupons, cards, tickets, or any written or printed matter in which it is agreed that such certificates, coupons, cards, tickets, or other written or printed matter, are redeemable or purport to be redeemable in china or chinaware, silver or silverware, by means of advertisements in magazines, newspapers, prospectuses, pamphlets, or any form of written or printed matter, or by broadcasting, cease and desist directly and indirectly from:

1. Using the words "Advertising Department" following the words "Atlas Globe China Company", or in any connection therewith; or the words "Advertising Department" following the words "Bordeaux China Company", or in any connection therewith, in their advertisements or in the advertisements of any of them, or in connection with the name or names of any other individuals, partnerships or corporations, unless and until they are connected with or related to the aforesaid company or companies, or other individuals, partnerships, or corporations in connection with which appear the words "Advertising Department".

2. Representing that they or any or either of them are connected with or are agents of the Atlas Globe China Company or Bordeaux China Company, or any other individual, partnership or corporation, unless and until they are, in fact, connected with or representatives of such individuals, partnerships, or corporations for which they purport to act as agents.

3. Representing that the Atlas Globe China Company and the Bordeaux China Company, because of the expense of advertising in magazines, newspapers and periodicals, have developed the plan presented by respondents of advertising through the cooperation of retail dealers in such a way that the cooperation would increase the business of retail dealers without any cost to them and without any cost to their customers for the redemption of such certificates, coupons, cards or tickets, unless and until such is the fact and respondents have adopted and follow such practice.

4. Representing that for each payment of $4.50 for one thousand certificates, coupons, cards or tickets, there will be returned to the retail dealer who purchased them from respondents, or any of them, the sum of $5 as and when such certificates, coupons, cards or tickets are redeemed by customers among whom such retail dealers have distributed them, unless and until such is the fact and respondents adopt and follow such practice.

5. Representing that the silverware in which certificates, coupons, cards or tickets sold by respondents, or any or either of them are redeemable is Rogers “1847” silverware, unless or until such certificates, coupons, cards or tickets are, in fact, redeemed by respondents in Rogers “1847” silverware.

6. Representing to retail dealers and others that certificates, coupons, cards, or tickets redeemable or purporting to be redeemable in silverware, earthenware or chinaware, would involve no cost either to the retail dealers or the customers, and after effecting sales of such certificates, coupons, cards or tickets, notifying such retail dealers that payment of one cent for each and every certificate, coupon, card, or ticket would be necessary for their redemption.

7. Representing that they will supply retail dealers who have purchased their certificates, coupons, cards, or tickets, with samples or display sets of silverware, earthenware or chinaware, unless or until such practice is actually adopted and followed by respondent.

8. Representing that the certificates, coupons, cards, or tickets are sold only to one retail dealer in the various communities and localities in the United States, unless and until such is the fact and respondents have adopted and are following such practice.

It is further ordered, That the respondents shall within 60 days after the service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with the order to cease and desist hereinabove set forth.
IN THE MATTER OF

QUALITY SHINGLE COMPANY, INC., AND C. V. GRAY, AN INDIVIDUAL, TRADING AS GRAY LUMBER & SHINGLE COMPANY

Where a corporation engaged in the manufacture of red cedar shingles and in the sale thereof to wholesale and retail dealers and other persons and concerns in the several States; and wholesale lumber dealer who purchased large quantities thereof from said corporation—

Sold certain shingles made by said corporation and dealt in by said wholesaler as above set forth, under the brand or trade term “extra clear”, notwithstanding fact that said product did not warrant such a designation according to accepted trade usage or understanding and was not 100 percent clear or a first-class or superlative grade of clear shingle, as understood by consuming public, but was so graded as to permit presence of sapwood in any part thereof, and was not their best grade of shingle and corresponded in quality to a “No. 2” product, and was substantially inferior in quality to, and far less durable under exposure than the more expensive “No. 1” shingle, which must be clear of defects for entire length and without sapwood;

With the result that the public and a substantial portion of retailers were misled and deceived, and others, not misled or deceived, were aided in the sale of an inferior and cheaper product as and for the genuine clear article, or in sale thereof without notifying their customers of the true quality of the product and in thus taking advantage of their more scrupulous dealer competitors, some dealers and many consumers purchased said “extra clear” shingle as and for a genuine “clear” product bought, often, at a lower price, to the prejudice and injury of competitors dealing in the genuine clear “No. 1” article, and of those dealing in the supposedly greatly inferior, but actually comparable, “No. 2” product at the same approximate price, from whom trade was diverted to their respective injury, and with the effect of contributing substantially, through such deceptive descriptions of partially clear and comparatively short-lived shingles, to the demoralization of the industry, and bringing about a loss in public good will to and esteem of the red cedar shingle and a loss of a greater volume of business by the producers and marketers thereof to the makers of and dealers in composite roofing than they would otherwise have sustained:

Held, That such acts and practices were all to the prejudice of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. Henry M. White, trial examiner.
Mr. Eugene W. Burr for the Commission.
Wettrick, Wettrick & Flood, of Seattle, Wash., for respondents.

Paragraph 1. Respondent Quality Shingle Company, Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Washington, having and maintaining its headquarters, office, and principal place of business at Edmonds in the said State. Said respondent has been and is engaged in the manufacture of red cedar shingles at its mill or mills located at a place or at places within said State of Washington. Said respondent has been and is also engaged in offering for sale and selling said red cedar shingles in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and the District of Columbia, and in causing said shingles when so sold to be transported from said respondent's principal place of business in the State of Washington or from the place or places of the manufacture of said shingles in the State of Washington into and across the several States of the United States and the District of Columbia to the several purchasers thereof located at various places in said several States other than the State of Washington, or in the District of Columbia.

Said respondent has been and is offering for sale and selling said shingles to and through wholesale and retail dealers in shingles, and to other persons, firms, associations, or corporations located at various places in the several States of the United States and the District of Columbia. Said respondent offers for sale and sells large quantities of said shingles to and through respondent, Gray Lumber & Shingle Company, the latter being a wholesale dealer in lumber products, including red cedar shingles.

Para. 2. Respondent C. V. Gray is an individual trading under the name and style of Gray Lumber & Shingle Company, having and maintaining his office and principal place of business in the city of Seattle, in the State of Washington. Said respondent has been and is engaged in the purchase for resale of lumber and lumber products, including red cedar shingles, and of offering for sale and selling the same, as a wholesaler thereof, in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and the District of Columbia, and in causing said shingles when so sold to be transported from respondent’s principal place of business, or from the place or places where the same are produced, or from the principal place of business of respondent, Quality Shingle Company, Inc., all in the State of Washington, to the several purchasers thereof located at various places in said several States of the United States other than the State of Washington or in the District of Columbia. Respondent C. V. Gray purchases of respondent Quality Shingle Company, Inc., and offers for resale and resells large quantities of red cedar shingles manufactured by respondent Quality Shingle Company, Inc., as alleged in paragraph 1 hereof.

Par. 3. Other persons, firms, associations and corporations have been and are engaged in offering for sale and selling in said commerce between and among the several States of the United States and the District of Columbia red cedar shingles and like or competitive products. In the course and conduct of their said respective businesses each of the respondents herein has been and is in competition with such other persons, firms, associations, and corporations so engaged in offering for sale and selling in said commerce red cedar shingles or like and competitive products, and with all others who may be engaged in offering for sale and selling red cedar shingles or like or competitive products to dealers therein or to the purchasing public.

Par. 4. In order to aid it in so offering for sale and selling said shingles, and in order to induce respondent C. V. Gray trading as Gray Lumber & Shingle Company, and other dealers in or purchasers of shingles or like or competitive products to purchase said respondent Quality Shingle Company’s said shingles in preference to the same or like or competitive products being offered for sale and sold by respondent’s competitors and in order to create a public demand for respondent’s said shingles, respondent Quality Shingle Company, Inc., brands its said shingles as “Extra Clear” shingles, and in its stationery, letterheads, invoices and otherwise names, designates and refers to its said shingles as “Extra Clear” shingles, and introduces said shingles into said commerce by and under said brand, name and designation.

Respondent C. V. Gray, trading as Gray Lumber & Shingle Company, in order to use said name and designation of said shingles as “extra clear” shingles in aid of the resale thereof, and in order to induce other dealers in or purchasers of shingles or like or competitive products to purchase of respondent C. V. Gray, trading as Gray Lumber & Shingle Company, the shingles so manufactured by re-Respondent Quality Shingle Company, Inc., in preference to the same or like or competitive products being offered for sale and sold by competitors of the respondents herein, and in order to create a public demand for the shingles so manufactured by respondent Quality Shingle Company, Inc., invited and invites respondent Quality Shingle Company to brand, name, designate, and refer to its said shingles as "extra clear" shingles. For said reasons and purposes, respondent C. V. Gray, trading as Gray Lumber & Shingle Company, purchases of respondent Quality Shingle Company, Inc., large quantities of its said shingles under said brand, name, and designation of "extra clear" and resells the same in said commerce above described under said brand, name and designation to dealers in shingles and to other persons, firms, associations, and corporations for resale or for use and consumption.

The said use of said word "clear" in said brand, name, and designation of said shingles conveys to the mind of dealers therein and purchasers thereof and of the public the meaning, representation, and implied assurance that said shingles are in fact clear and free from any and all defects or imperfections. The said use of said word "extra" in said brand, name, and designation of said shingles likewise conveys to the mind of dealers therein and purchasers thereof and of the public the meaning, representation, and implied assurance that said shingles are of a still more exceptional quality and are not only shingles of a first quality, but are of the best and highest degree of said quality; whereas, in truth and in fact said shingles so branded and sold by respondents as "extra clear" are neither "extra clear" nor "clear", but in fact contain many defects and imperfections not tolerated in shingles of the first or highest grade or class.

Par. 5. Certain dealers in shingles are informed of the actual qualities, grade, defects, and imperfections of the shingles produced by respondent Quality Shingle Company, Inc., and offered for sale and sold by the respondents herein under the brand, name, and designation of "extra clear", and are induced to purchase said shingles for resale to other dealers or to the purchasing public and consumers, in preference to the same, like or competitive products being offered for sale and sold by competitors of respondents herein, in order to make use of said false and misleading brand, name and designation thereof, and because they are able to use said false brand, name and designation to mislead and deceive other dealers or the purchasing public and consumers of shingles into the purchase thereof in the false and erroneous belief that said shingles are of the highest and best grade of shingles.
In the manner above alleged, respondents place in the hands of all dealers in said shingles so branded, named and designated as "extra clear", the means of misleading and deceiving all subsequent purchasers thereof, including the purchasing public and the consumers of said shingles, into the erroneous belief that said shingles are of the best and highest grade and class of shingles, and have the qualities and meet the requirements thereof.

Par. 6. The use by respondents of said false and misleading brand, name and designation of said shingles has the tendency and capacity to mislead all purchasers thereof, except those designated in paragraph 5 hereof, including the purchasing public and consumers of said shingles, into the false and erroneous belief that said shingles are of the first and highest quality, grade and class of shingles; and to induce them to purchase said shingles in, and because of, said false and erroneous belief.

Respondents' said use of said false and misleading brand, name and designation of said shingles has the tendency and capacity to divert trade to respondents from their said competitors, to the unfair advantage of respondents, to the substantial and unjust injury of respondents' said competitors, and to the deception and injury of the purchasing public.

Par. 7. The above alleged acts and practices of respondents are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondents' said competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Acting in the public interest pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914 (38 Stat. 717), the Federal Trade Commission on October 26, 1934, issued and served a complaint upon the respondents above named charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of said Act.

The respondents appeared and filed an answer and thereafter the case came on for trial. It was then by mutual consent and in avoidance of duplication of proceedings, consolidated with the case, In re Oakland Shingle Company, Docket 2262, which involves the same method of competition as herein in controversy. The consolidated proceeding was tried at Seattle, Wash., January 18 to 21, 1935.
Oral argument was waived and the Commission, having duly considered the pleadings and all the evidence taken and the record herein and being fully advised in the premises, makes this its report, stating its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent Quality Shingle Company, Inc., is a corporation organized and doing business under the laws of the State of Washington, maintaining its principal place of business at Edmonds in said State. It has been and is engaged in the manufacture of red cedar shingles at its mills located within the State of Washington. Said respondent has been and is also engaged in offering for sale and selling said red cedar shingles in commerce between and among the several States of the United States, and in causing said shingles when so sold to be transported from its places of business in the State of Washington into and across the several States of the United States and the District of Columbia to purchasers thereof located at various places in said several States other than the State of Washington. Said respondent has been and is offering for sale and selling its shingles to and through wholesale and retail dealers in shingles, and to other persons, firms, associations or corporations located at various places in the several States of the United States. It offers for sale and sells large quantities of its shingle to and through respondent, C. V. Gray.

Par. 2. Respondent C. V. Gray is an individual trading under the name and style of Gray Lumber & Shingle Company, maintaining his office and principal place of business in the city of Seattle, in the State of Washington. He has been and is engaged in the purchase for resale of lumber and lumber products, including red cedar shingles, offering for sale and selling the same as a wholesaler thereof, in commerce between and among the several States of the United States. He causes his shingles when so sold to be transported from his principal place of business, or from the place or places where the same are produced, or from the principal places of business of respondent, Quality Shingle Company, Inc., in the State of Washington, to purchasers thereof located at various places in States of the United States other than the State of Washington, as well as within that State. Respondent C. V. Gray purchases from respondent Quality Shingle Company, Inc., and offers for resale and resells large quantities of red cedar shingles manufactured by respondent Quality Shingle Company, Inc.
Par. 3. Other persons, firms, associations, and corporations have been and are engaged in offering for sale and selling in commerce between and among the several States of the United States red cedar shingles and like or competitive products. In the course and conduct of their respective businesses each respondent has been and is in competition with such other persons, firms, associations, and corporations so engaged in offering for sale and selling in said commerce red cedar shingles or like and competitive products, and with all others who may be engaged in offering for sale and selling red cedar shingles or like or competitive products to dealers therein or to the purchasing public.

Par. 4. Respondent Quality Shingle Company, Inc., in order to induce respondent C. V. Gray and other dealers in or purchasers of shingles, or like or competitive products, to purchase its shingles in preference to red cedar shingles or competitive products being offered for sale and sold by its competitors and, in order to create a public demand for said respondent's shingles, brands a certain grade of its shingles as "extra clear" and introduces them into said commerce by and under said brand or trade term.

Par. 5. In part because the brand or trade term, "extra clear", aids the saleability of shingles so branded or trade termed respondent C. V. Gray purchases large quantities of the so-called "extra clear" shingles from respondent Quality Shingle Company, Inc., and from the Oakland Shingle Company, hereinabove mentioned, and resells the same in the commerce above described, under said brand and trade term, to dealers in shingles and to other persons, firms, associations, and corporations for resale or direct to ultimate buyers.

Par. 6. Prior to 1931 there was a great diversity of trade terms in the red cedar shingle industry. Some of these were intrinsically misleading and their diversity added to the confusion in the minds of the retail dealers and public. Several attempts were made to correct, simplify and clarify the nomenclature as well as to reduce the multiplicity of grades. After efforts wholly within the industry had failed, renewed endeavor was made, beginning in 1931, with the cooperation of the Bureau of Standards of the Department of Commerce. Among the reforms then partially carried out was the elimination of the term "extra clear". The reform measures as to nomenclature were continued under the National Industrial Recovery Act and it was provided by an amendment of the Code of Fair Competition for the Lumber and Timber Industry as follows:

Red cedar shingles shall not be branded or labeled "extra clear" or "premium clear" or "all clear", unless they are in fact 100 percent clear, or with any other misleading grade or trade name. (Administrative Order 9203; amendment 87, paragraph D, sec. 11 of Sched. B of the Code.)
Findings

This reform in nomenclature has been supported and adhered to by the great majority of those trading in red cedar shingles in interstate commerce and by the two associations into which the industry has been organized. The term "extra clear" was commonly used prior to 1931 by many producers over a period of about 35 years and by a diminishing number since the latter year. At first said term designated a shingle entirely clear of defects for its entire length; soon, however, it was degraded, and came to be used under the then existing grading rules of producers' organizations, for shingles not more than 10 percent of which numerically might have various defects, including knots or knot holes up to $1\frac{1}{2}$ inches in diameter, and rot pockets or worm holes not more than one-third the width of the shingle. Not more than one such defect, however, was allowed by the rules in any one shingle, and that only in the uppermost four inches thereof. But sapwood was expressly permitted in any number or part of the shingles. The term "extra clear" is not included in the existing grading rules for red cedar shingles.

Par. 7. To the specifications for the former grade of "extra clears", mentioned above in paragraph 6, respondents assert their adherence in the grading of their "extra clear" shingles. Respondents' "extra clear" shingle is not a first class product, nor is it respondents' best grade of shingle. It sells for less at wholesale than the "No. 1" shingle and averages substantially inferior in quality to, and is far less durable under weather exposure than the shingles designated under the present grading rules as "No. 1" shingles, which must be clear of defects for the entire length and without sapwood content. Sapwood in lumber products, including red cedar shingles, has notably less durability for exterior uses than the heartwood content of the same variety of wood. Respondents do not reject sapwood from any part of their "extra clears". Said "extra clears" are about equivalent in quality to the "No. 2" shingles of the present grading rules.

Par. 8. The consuming public attaches, and has long attached a definite meaning to the term "clear" as applied to shingles, to wit, that the product is without defect or blemish. The term "extra clear" as applied to shingles means to the consuming public not only shingles free from defects and blemishes, but an especially high or a superlative grade of "clear" shingles. There is not sufficient evidence for a finding that the consuming public understands the damaging effect of sapwood in shingles. But the understanding the public has of the meaning of respondents' term "extra clear" is that of a quality of product wholly incompatible with sapwood content and with the resultant loss of durability. The public has been since the term was degraded, as in paragraph 6 hereinabove stated, and still is, misled and deceived by the use of said term into the belief that the so-called "extra clear" shingle is an especially high or superlative grade of "clear" shingle. Respondents' so-called "extra clear" shingles are neither "clear" nor "extra clear" as the consuming public understands those terms; and respondents' continued use of said term is deceptive. The average ultimate buyer is the more helpless prey to this term since he buys shingles but seldom in his lifetime.

Par. 9. A majority of the retail dealers in shingles are not misled and deceived by respondents' use of the said term "extra clear", but on the contrary are informed of the defects and blemishes of the shingles so trade-termed. A minor, but substantial, portion of the retailers, however, are not informed thereof and are misled and deceived by respondents' use of said trade term. Respondents not only so quote and invoice their "extra clear" shingles by that term but they prominently label each bundle thereof with the words, "extra clear". This label is retained and appears on respondents' products in the yards of retailers and is thus visible and conspicuous to the consumers who trade with the retailer customers of respondents. The result is that retailers who know of the inferiority of respondents' so-called "extra clear" shingles as compared with genuinely clear shingles, but who may desire to sell an inferior and cheaper grade of shingles, either as and for genuine clear shingles or without giving express notice to their customers of the true quality of the product, are by respondents afforded aid in so doing. Some retailers, not in themselves misled, take advantage of the aid afforded thus in their competition with more scrupulous retailers.

Par. 10. There are on the market red cedar shingles which conform to the public's understanding of what constitutes a "clear" shingle which are competitive with respondents' so-called "extra clear" shingles. Through the misleading and deceptive character of respondents' said trade term, as described in paragraph 7 hereinabove, some retailers and many consumers purchase respondents' said "extra clear" shingles in the belief that they are buying, often at a lower price, a "clear", a first-class, shingle. This results in diversion of business to respondents from respondents' competitors and consequently inflicts injury and loss of trade upon respondents' competitors in the sale of the genuinely clear "No. 1" shingles. Respondents' competitors also sell "No. 2" shingles which are of a quality similar and are sold at prices approximate to the quality and prices of respondents' so-called "extra clear" shingles. The public is misled and deceived by respondents' trade term into the belief that said "extra clear" shingles are greatly superior to "No. 2", and thus respondents, by the use of said term, divert business to themselves and consequently inflict further injury and loss of trade upon their competitors in the sale of competitors' "No. 2" shingles.

PAR. 11. The red cedar shingle industry has an average of $10,000,000 in annual sales and in 1932 comprised about 95 percent of the lumber shingles produced in the United States. From 1908 to 1912 the average annual sales were 16,000,000 squares, a "square" having 100 square feet of coverage. From 1915 to 1918 the annual average of sales had declined to 10,000,000 squares and in the decade following to 5,000,000 squares and thence to 2,600,000 squares in 1932. There was an increase in 1933. To the demoralization of the industry the use of terms deceptive to the public and particularly the use of the term "extra clear", for shingles which were only partially "clear" and have a comparatively short life, substantially contributed. As a result of the use of the said term red cedar shingles have suffered in public goodwill and esteem and the producers and marketers thereof have lost a greater volume of business to producers and marketers of composite roofing than they would otherwise have lost.

CONCLUSION

The acts and practices of the respondents are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondents' said competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been considered by the Commission upon the pleadings, the evidence received, and the oral and written argument, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that respondents, Quality Shingle Company, Inc., and C. V. Gray, have violated the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes"—

It is now ordered, That respondents, their agents, representatives, and employees, shall cease and desist from using the term "extra clear" in connection with the sale or the offering for sale in interstate commerce, or the advertisement in interstate commerce of any shingles, unless and until the product so sold or so offered for sale under said term shall be free from defects and blemishes, including sapwood content; and

It is further ordered, That respondents shall within 60 days after service upon them of copies of this order, file with the Commission a report or reports in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with and conformed to the order to cease and desist as hereinabove set forth.

IN THE MATTER OF

THE NATURAL BODY BRACE COMPANY, AND THE POTTS-TURNBULL COMPANY

OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 20, 1914

Where a corporation engaged in the sale of an appliance which it described and designated as a natural body brace, and which was similar to appliances sold and offered by others, without misrepresentation, for maintenance of corcrect body posture, and was held out for cure or relief of ailments for which others, without misrepresentation, offered medicinal preparations; in advertising the said “body brace” in various ways and particularly through radio broadcasting—

Represented that the use thereof would overcome, correct, remove, or relieve female weakness, backache, curvatures, nervousness, constipation, after­ effects of flu, organic ailments of men and women, and numerous other ailments and conditions specified by it, and would cause the individual using the same to become 100 percent efficient, successful, useful and happy and confer upon such persons numerous benefits such as physical strength and and the blessings of comfort, health and a perfect figure, and that it cost nothing to try said device, which was made to the measurements of the individual purchaser after receipt of the order, and that health service was furnished free;

The facts being that while device might appreciably relieve distress and discomfort or be a useful agent in correcting faulty posture caused by fatigue, disease or other conditions, and in thus avoiding serious pathological situtions to which such posture sometimes leads, including conditions in growing girls, at times chargeable to incorrect posture, and in relieving strain and possible constipation and other conditions due to weak abdominal muscles, and correction of such condition through use of a brace, the diseases, conditions and physical troubles for which it claimed relief, correction and cure were generally due to causes which could be neither directly nor indirectly, at all overcome, corrected, removed or relieved by the use of said device or any other physical appliance, and it was necessary for the purchaser to pay the required price for said brace, which was made after receipt of order, but promised health service was not furnished free;

With capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive purchasing public into belief that aforesaid representations were true, and into purchase of said product in reliance on such erroneous belief, and divert trade to it from competitors offering and selling body braces or appliances intended for or adapted to the maintenance of correct body posture, and from individuals and concerns selling medicinal preparations of various kinds for the cure or relief of the diseases which it represented could be cured or relieved by its said product:

Held, That such acts and practices were all to the prejudice of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition.
Complaint

Before Mr. Charles F. Diggs, trial examiner.
Mr. James M. Brinson for the Commission.
Nash & Donnelly, of Washington, D. C., for The Natural Body Brace Co. and Mr. Franklin D. Glore, of Kansas City, Mo., for The Potts-Turnbull Co.

Complaint

Paragraph 1. Respondent, The Natural Body Brace Company, has been for several years last past and now is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Kansas, with its principal office and place of business at Salina, in said State. It engages in the sale in commerce among and between the State of Kansas and the various other States of the United States, of an appliance which it describes and designates as a "Natural Body Brace". Such product it transports, or causes to be transported, from its said place of business at Salina, Kansas, to purchasers thereof, located in the various other States of the United States than the State of Kansas.

Respondent, The Potts-Turnbull Company, has been for several years last past and now is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Missouri, with its principal office and place of business at Kansas City in said State. It engages in the business of an advertising agency, in the course of which it prepares advertisements of various kinds for its patrons and procures their publication in magazines, newspapers, and other periodicals, and also through the agency of radio broadcasting. Advertisements so prepared and published through the instrumentality of respondent, The Potts-Turnbull Company, embrace the offering for sale of various commodities in commerce among and between the various States of the United States.

In the course and conduct of its said business, respondent, The Natural Body Brace Company, has been and now is engaged in competition with individuals, partnerships, and corporations selling in interstate commerce body braces of various kinds, or who sell in such commerce any other physical appliance or medicine or medical compound or drugs or preparations of any kind for use in connection with the diseases, or physical disorders, or troubles hereinafter mentioned in paragraph 2 hereof.

Respondent, The Potts-Turnbull Company, in the course of its said business has been and is engaged in competition with other advertising agencies which prepare advertisements in connection with the offering for sale commodities of various kinds in commerce among and between the various States of the United States.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its business, it has been and is the practice of respondent, The Natural Body Brace Company, to offer for sale and sell its Natural Body Brace by means of advertisements of various kinds, particularly by radio broadcasting. Such advertisements have been prepared for respondent, The Natural Body Brace Company, at its instance and request by respondent, The Potts-Turnbull Company, with the full knowledge and expectation that such advertisements would be used and are used by respondent, The Natural Body Brace Company, in connection with the offering for sale and selling its Natural Body Brace in commerce among and between the State of Kansas and the various other States of the United States, and for the purpose of aiding, assisting, and promoting the sale of the product, Natural Body Brace, in such commerce. Respondent, The Potts-Turnbull Company, has rendered such service to respondent, The Natural Body Brace Company, in pursuance of contracts, the precise terms and provisions of which are unknown to the Commission.

In its aforesaid advertisements, it has been and is the practice of respondent, The Natural Body Brace Company, to make certain false and misleading representations to the effect that the use of its Natural Body Brace will overcome, correct, remove, or relieve female weakness, backache, curvatures, nervousness, constipation, the after effects of flu, organic ailments of men and women, indigestion, pains in the abdomen, bloating, unnatural thinness, inflammation of the bladder, colitis, floating kidney, or the usual kidney, bladder, or liver trouble, neuritis, or any nervous trouble, weak heart, palpitation from slight exercise or excitement, headache, pains between the shoulders, coldness, numbness, varicose veins, poor circulation, weakness of the lower limbs, lung trouble, navel or groin rupture, ovarian troubles, whites, menstrual troubles, or any female weakness, painful or frequent passing of urine; to the effect that it will cause you to become 100 percent efficient, 100 percent successful, 100 percent useful and happy, 100 percent in physical strength and good appearance; to the effect that it will enable you in later life, as well as now, to enjoy the blessings of comfort, good health, and a perfect figure; and to the effect that it will cost nothing to try said Natural Body Brace, that said Natural Body Braces are made to the individual measurement of the purchaser, that they are made after the receipt of orders, and that any health service is furnished free.

In truth and in fact, the above described or mentioned diseases, conditions, or physical troubles have been and are generally due to causes which can be neither directly, indirectly, nor at all overcome, corrected, removed, or relieved by use of product of respondent, The Natural Body Brace Company, or any other similar physical appliance. Some of the diseases, conditions, or troubles mentioned may be aggravated by use of product of respondent, The Natural Body Brace Company, and in many of such diseases, conditions, or troubles it would be and is dangerous to rely on the representations of respondent, The Natural Body Brace Company, because diseases, conditions, or troubles which can in no way be overcome, corrected, removed, or relieved by use of a brace may develop or progress to such an extent as to become incurable or impossible of relief or correction. It is necessary for the purchaser to pay the required price for the Natural Body Brace of respondent, The Natural Body Brace Company, and such brace is neither made to the individual measurement of the purchaser nor after the receipt of orders, nor is the promised health service furnished free.

Par. 3. There have been for several years past and now are individuals, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the sale in interstate commerce of natural body braces, the purpose, use, and effect of which have been and are truthfully advertised and described, and there have been and are other individuals, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the sale in interstate commerce of drugs, compounds, medicaments, and preparations of various kinds, offered for sale and sold for use in connection with each and all of the diseases, ailments, and physical troubles described in paragraph 2 hereof, which have been and are truthfully advertised and described.

Par. 4. The representations of respondent, The Natural Body Brace Company, described in paragraph 2 hereof, have had and have the capacity and tendency to mislead the consuming public into the belief that use of product of respondent, The Natural Body Brace Company, will cure or relieve or correct the diseases, physical troubles, or ailments described in paragraph 2 hereof, and into the purchase of the said Natural Body Brace in reliance on such erroneous belief.

The aforesaid representations of respondent, The Natural Body Brace Company, have had, and each of them has had and has the capacity and tendency to divert trade to itself from individuals, partnerships, or corporations engaged in the sale of body braces or similar physical appliances, or of drugs, compounds, medicaments, or preparations of any kind truthfully advertised and sold for use in connection with said diseases, conditions, or troubles, or any of them.

Par. 5. The acts and practices of respondents described in paragraph 2 hereof have been and are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondents' competitors, and have been and are unfair methods of competition in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of an Act entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission issued and served a complaint upon the Natural Body Brace Company, a corporation, and The Potts-Turnbull Company, the correct name of which is "Potts-Turnbull Advertising Company", a corporation, charging them with unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce in violation of the provisions of said act.

The respondents having entered their appearance and filed answers, hearings were held at Chicago, Ill., and Kansas City, Mo., before an examiner for the Commission, theretofore duly designated for such purpose, and in the course of such hearings counsel for the Commission and counsel for the respondent Natural Body Brace Company, a corporation, entered into a stipulation as to the facts subject to the approval of the Commission. Submission of further testimony and evidence, report of the trial examiner, briefs and oral argument were duly waived in such stipulation. A stipulation of the facts in relation to its connection with respondent Natural Body Brace Company was also duly made by respondent Potts-Turnbull Advertising Company, erroneously named in complaint "Potts-Turnbull Company", with counsel for Commission subject to its approval. And the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the complaint, answers and stipulations. The Commission having duly considered the same now makes this its report in writing, and states its findings as to the facts and conclusion drawn therefrom as follows, to wit:
FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent Natural Body Brace Company has been for several years last past and now is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Kansas, with its principal office and place of business at Salina, in said State. It engages in the sale in commerce among and between the State of Kansas and the various other States of the United States, of an appliance which it describes and designates as a "Natural Body Brace." Such product it transports, or causes to be transported, from its said place of business at Salina, Kans., to purchasers thereof, located in the various other States of the United States than the State of Kansas.

In the course and conduct of its said business, respondent The Natural Body Brace Company has been and now is engaged in competition with individuals, partnerships, and corporations selling in interstate commerce body braces of various kinds, or who sell in such commerce any other physical appliance or medicine or medical compound or drugs or preparations of any kind for use in connection with the diseases, or physical disorders, or troubles hereinafter mentioned in paragraph 2 hereof.

Paragraph 2. In the course and conduct of its business, it has been and is the practice of respondent the Natural Body Brace Company to offer for sale and sell its Natural Body Brace by means of advertisements of various kinds, particularly by radio broadcasting.

In its aforesaid advertisements, it has been the practice of respondent The Natural Body Brace Company to make certain representations to the effect that the use of its Natural Body Brace will overcome, correct, remove, or relieve female weakness, backache, curvatures, nervousness, constipation, the after effects of flu, organic ailments of men and women, indigestion, pains in the abdomen, bloating, unnatural thinness, inflammation of the bladder, colitis, floating kidney or the usual kidney, bladder, or liver trouble, neuritis, or any nervous trouble, weak heart, palpitation from slight exercise or excitement, headache, pains between the shoulders, coldness, numbness, varicose veins, poor circulation, weakness of the lower limbs, lung trouble, navel or groin rupture, ovarian troubles, whites, menstrual troubles, or any female weakness, painful or frequent passing of urine; and representation also to the effect that it will cause the individual using it to become 100 percent efficient, 100 percent successful, 100 percent useful and happy, 100 percent in physical strength and good appearance; also to the effect that it will enable the individual in later life, as well as now, to enjoy the blessings of comfort, good health, and a perfect figure; and also to the effect that it costs nothing to try said Natural Body Brace, that said Natural Body Braces are made to the individual measurement of the purchaser, that they are made after the receipt of orders, and that any health service is furnished free.

In truth and in fact, the above described or mentioned diseases, conditions or physical troubles have been and are generally due to causes which can be neither directly, indirectly, nor at all overcome, corrected, removed, or relieved by use of the Natural Body Brace of the respondent The Natural Body Brace Company or any other similar physical appliance. It is necessary for the purchaser to pay the required price for the Natural Body Brace of respondent the Natural Body Brace Company and such brace is made after the receipt of orders, but the promised health service is not furnished free.

Faulty posture may be caused by fatigue, disease, abnormal physique, improper balance of the muscles, or laziness, or indifference, or many other factors. Such faulty or incorrect posture may produce in some instances and contribute to in other instances, various physical conditions which may or may not develop into serious pathological situations.

For example, if the normal development of the chest is prevented by stooping shoulders, the space provided by nature for the lungs and their expansion is narrowed. Undue pressure may, in extreme cases, be exerted on the heart and the large blood vessels.

In growing girls, poor posture with sagging abdomen may lead to deficient circulation in the abdominal and pelvic organs, and possibly to chronic diseases. If a properly fitted brace is worn before the incorrect posture has developed a pathological situation, the use of such brace until the posture is corrected, may serve to avert any of the serious consequences of incorrect posture. Respondent's product may be a useful agent in this respect.

In cases of weak abdominal muscles, resulting in sagging abdomen, and a consequent strain on other organs, a brace which restores the abdomen to its normal place and maintains it there, may relieve such strain, and may relieve constipation when such disease is caused by such abdominal and pelvic condition. It may also appreciably relieve distress and discomforts, in such conditions as have resulted from incorrect posture, or to which incorrect posture has contributed.

Par. 3. There have been for several years last past and now are individuals, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the sale in interstate commerce of natural body braces, the purpose, use and effect of which have been and are truthfully advertised and described, and there have been and are other individuals, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the sale in interstate commerce of drugs, compounds, medicaments, and preparations of various kinds, offered for sale and sold for use in connection with each and all of the diseases, ailments, and physical troubles described in paragraph 2 hereof, which have been and are truthfully advertised and described.

PAR. 4. The connection or relations of the respondent The Potts-Turnbull Advertising Company, erroneously called Potts-Turnbull Company, with respondent The Natural Body Brace Company ceased on or about September 30, 1934. Prior to September 30, 1934, the advertisements prepared by respondent The Potts-Turnbull Advertising Company contained none of the representations, express or implied, or statements as charged in the complaint against The Natural Body Brace Company and respondent The Potts-Turnbull Advertising Company; and, as a matter of fact, all of the advertising matter placed by respondent The Potts-Turnbull Advertising Company with publications at the instance and direction of the respondent The Natural Body Brace Company during the year 1934 was no more than a continuation or repetition of advertising matter prepared by such company for respondent The Natural Body Brace Company during the year 1933 in pursuance of its specific instruction thereunder.

There were perhaps a few advertisements prepared in 1933 which in some respects resembled the phraseology of some of the charges in the complaint, but in each and every instance thereof it is the fact that the respondent The Potts-Turnbull Advertising Company qualified and explained the representations or statements of such advertising matter as provided and directed in a stipulation entered into by the Federal Trade Commission with the respondent The Natural Body Brace Company on September 21, 1932. And if there should appear in any of the advertising matter used by respondent The Natural Body Brace Company any statements such as those charged in the complaint which omitted the qualifying or explanatory clause required by such stipulation, it was without the knowledge, approval, or consent of respondent The Potts-Turnbull Advertising Company.

Any and all radio continuities prepared by respondent The Potts-Turnbull Advertising Company for use by respondent The Natural Body Brace Company in radio broadcasting always included a qualification or explanation such as suggested in the stipulation with the Commission to the effect that, in order to relieve or correct the troubles mentioned, they must have been the result of incorrect posture, misplaced organs, improperly supported abdomen, strained muscles or ligaments, or weak back or spine.
Par. 5. The representations made by respondent The Natural Body Brace Company as described in paragraph 2, have had and have the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive the purchasing public into the belief that they have been and are true, and into the purchase of respondent's product in reliance on such erroneous belief.

The aforesaid representations of respondent The Natural Body Brace Company have also had and have the capacity and tendency to divert trade to respondent from competitors offering for sale and selling in interstate commerce body braces or appliances intended for, or adapted to, the maintenance of correct bodily posture, and from other individuals, partnerships or corporations, selling in interstate commerce medicinal preparations of various kinds for the cure or relief of the diseases which respondent The Natural Body Brace Company represents, as described in paragraph 2, can be cured or relieved by its product.

CONCLUSION

The acts and practices of respondent The Natural Body Brace Company as described in the foregoing findings of fact have been and are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors, and have been and are unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

There is no evidence to support the complaint against respondent The Potts-Turnbull Company or respondent The Potts-Turnbull Advertising Company.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding, having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission, upon the complaint of the Commission, the answers of respondents thereto and stipulations of the facts by and between counsel for the Commission and respondents which are hereby approved, and submission of evidence having been waived in such stipulations and the report of the trial examiner, briefs and oral arguments also having been waived by respondent Natural Body Brace Company, which further agreed that the Commission may forthwith file its report stating its findings as to the facts, and its conclusion drawn therefrom, and may thereupon enter and serve upon respondent Natural Body Brace Company its order to cease and desist based or predicated upon its aforesaid stipulation of facts, and in accordance therewith and the Commission having considered the record and being fully advised in the premises—

It is ordered, That respondent Natural Body Brace Company in connection with offering for sale or selling in interstate commerce its product called the "Natural Body Brace", or any other similar product, in advertisements in newspapers, magazines, trade journals, periodicals, pamphlets, leaflets, prospectuses, or by means of radio broadcasting directly and indirectly cease and desist from:

1. Representing that the use of its natural body brace or any similar product can overcome, correct, remove, or relieve female weakness, backache, curvatures, nervousness, the after effects of flu, organic ailments of men and women, indigestion, pains in the abdomen, bloating, unnatural thinness, inflammation of the bladder, colitis, floating kidney, or the usual kidney, bladder, or liver trouble, neuritis, or any nervous trouble, weak heart, palpitation from slight exercise or excitement, headache, pains between the shoulders, coldness, numbness, varicose veins, poor circulation, weakness of the lower limbs, lung trouble, navel or groin rupture, ovarian troubles, whites, menstrual troubles, or any female weakness, painful or frequent passing of urine, that it will cause the individual using it to become 100 percent efficient, 100 percent successful, 100 percent useful and happy, 100 percent in physical strength and good appearance, or that it will enable the individual in later life, as well as now, to enjoy the blessings of comfort, good health, and a perfect figure, or that it costs nothing to try said Natural Body Brace and that they are made after the receipt of the order.

2. Representing that its Natural Body Brace can accomplish any useful result, except that in cases of weak abdominal muscles resulting in sagging abdomen and a consequent strain on other organs, the brace may restore the abdomen to its normal place, maintain it there and relieve such strain, and may relieve constipation when such disease is caused by abdominal and pelvic conditions resulting from sagging abdomen, and that it may also appreciably relieve distress and discomforts in such conditions generally as have resulted from incorrect posture or to which incorrect posture has contributed.

It is further ordered, That the complaint against respondent Potts-Turnbull Company, more correctly called "Potts-Turnbull Advertising Company", be and hereby is dismissed.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall within 60 days after the service upon it of this order file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with the order to cease and desist hereinabove set forth.

IN THE MATTER OF

VINCENT MAGGIORE, TRADING AS THE AMO-LINE COMPANY AND AMO-LINE COMPANY

Where a corporation engaged for years in the manufacture, distribution, and sale of a cleanser and water-softener under its registered trade name "Climalene" and in its light blue registered cartons with dark blue overprintings, and through sale of said water-softener under said name and in such cartons and the wide advertisement thereof throughout the United States, acquired a wide and favorable reputation for said product which was in great demand by the trade and purchasing public; and thereafter an individual sold a similar product under the name "Amo-Line" and employed therefor cartons or packages which were of the same size, and colored light greenish blue with dark blue overprintings, and which imitated the former in many particulars; with capacity and tendency to confuse, deceive, and mislead trade and public under conditions usually prevailing in the sale of such products, and with result of inducing members of such trade and public to buy the product of said individual as and for that of such corporation, and of thus unfairly diverting trade from latter and its dealers to said individual and his dealers, and of placing in the hands of retailers an instrumentality permitting them more easily to substitute such goods of said individual for those of another, and with capacity and tendency so to do:

Held, That such practices, under the conditions and circumstances set forth, were each and all to the substantial prejudice of the public and of said competitor, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Mr. J. T. Welch for the Commission.

Mr. Gerard Manack, of Navarre, Ohio, for respondent.

Complaint

thereto would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Vincent Maggiore, trading as The Amo-Line Company and Amo-Line Company, is an individual engaged in business in the city of Canton, State of Ohio. He is now and for more than one year last past has been engaged in the business of manufacturing and selling a cleanser and water-softener which he distributes to purchasers, many of whom reside in States other than the State of Ohio, and when orders are received therefor, they are filled by respondent by shipping the same from the said city of Canton, Ohio, into and through other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, to the respective places of business or residence of such purchasers.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of his business the said respondent was and is in substantial competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships, likewise engaged in the sale and distribution of cleansers and water softeners between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 3. During all the time since or about the year 1918, the Climalene Company, a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Ohio, and having its principal office and place of business in the city of Canton in said State, and one of the sellers mentioned in paragraph 2 hereof has been engaged in the manufacture, distribution, and sale of a cleanser and water-softener known to the trade as "Climalene", which name together with the general style of the package in which said cleanser and water-softener is sold has been registered by the said corporation in the United States Patent Office and bears trade mark No. 37330. Said package is light blue in color with overprintings of dark blue and is of the style and character as follows:

Par. 5. The Climalene Company, by its sale of its cleanser and water-softener in the carton depicted in paragraph 3 hereof, and by widely advertising the same throughout the United States has acquired a wide and favorable reputation for its product which is in great demand by the trade and purchasing public.
Findings

PAR. 6. The carton or package above referred to in which respondent sells his cleanser and water-softener imitated and still imitates in many particulars the cartons or packages in which Climalene has been and is being packed and sold, and such similarity had and still has the capacity and tendency to confuse, deceive and mislead the trade and public, and was and is calculated to and continues to confuse, mislead and deceive the trade and public. Under the ordinary conditions which prevailed and still prevail in the usual course of business in the sale of such cleanser and water-softener, and in consequence thereof, members of the trade and public were and are induced by the similarity of the packages or cartons to buy, and they did buy and continue to buy respondent's product, in the belief that they were and are purchasing the product sold by the Climalene Company. Trade has been and continues to be unfairly diverted from respondent's competitor and from dealers in the product of respondent's competitor to the respondent and dealers who sell respondent's product and the use by respondent of the name and package described in paragraph 4 hereof has the tendency to and does place in the hands of retail dealers an instrumentality which permits them more easily to substitute the goods of respondent for those of another.

PAR. 7. The above acts and things caused to be done are and were each and all to the substantial prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitor and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the meaning and intent of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

ally and by attorney, before the taking of any testimony, stipulated on the record as to each and every one of the allegations in the complaint. Thereafter the Commission having duly considered the record and being now fully advised in the premises, makes this its report, stating its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

Par. 5. The Climalene Company, by its sale of its cleanser and water-softener in the carton depicted in paragraph 3 hereof, and by widely advertising the same throughout the United States has acqured a wide and favorable reputation for its product which is in great demand by the trade and purchasing public.

PAR. 6. The carton or package above referred to in which respondent sells his cleanser and water-softener imitated and still imitates in many particulars the cartons or packages in which Climalene has been and is being packed and sold, and such similarity had and still has the capacity and tendency to confuse, deceive, and mislead the trade and public, and was and is calculated to and continues to confuse, mislead; and deceive the trade and public. Under the ordinary conditions which prevailed and still prevail in the usual course of business in the sale of such cleanser and water-softener, and in consequence thereof, members of the trade and public were and are induced by the similarity of the packages or cartons to buy, and they did buy and continue to buy respondent's product, in the belief that they were and are purchasing the product sold by the Climalene Company. Trade has been and continues to be unfairly diverted from respondent's competitor and from dealers in the product of respondent's competitor to the respondent and dealers who sell respondent's product and the use by respondent of the name and package described in paragraph 4 hereof has the tendency to and does place in the hands of retail dealers an instrumentality which permits them more easily to substitute the goods of respondent for those of another.

CONCLUSION

The practices of the respondent and the acts and things he caused to be done under the conditions and circumstances described in the foregoing findings are and were each and all to the substantial prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitor and constitute unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce within the meaning and intent of Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes".

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been ordered to be heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, and the respondent, upon the opening of the hearing, having stipulated on the record as to all the allegations of the complaint and, the Commission having made its report in writing in which it stated its findings as to the facts with its conclusion that the respondent had violated the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", and the Commission being fully advised in the premises—

It is now ordered, That the respondent, Vincent Maggiore, trading as The Amo-Line Company or trading under any other name, his agents, representatives and employees, in the manufacture, packaging, advertising and sale of cleansers and water-softeners, or other merchandise in interstate commerce, do cease and desist from:

(1) Using, in connection with the sale, offering for sale or advertising of any cleanser and water-softener or similar commodity, the name Amo-Line.

(2) Marketing, displaying, advertising, or offering for sale any cleanser and water-softener or other merchandise in packages, cartons or containers deceptively similar in color, combinations of color, lettering, or design to packages, cartons, or containers of any competitor of respondent engaged in the sale of such commodities.

(3) Specifically, simulating the packages, labels, brand names, or advertising of the Climalene Company, an Ohio corporation.

(4) Selling or offering for sale any cleanser and water-softener or other merchandise in packages, cartons, or containers so contrived and designed that the appearance thereof in conjunction with any brand name, howsoever contrived, printed, or depicted on said packages, cartons, or containers, has the capacity and tendency to confuse, deceive, and mislead dealers and members of the public into the belief that respondent's cleanser and water-softener or other merchandise is the cleanser and water-softener or other merchandise of a competitor.

It is further ordered, That the respondent, Vincent Maggiore, shall within 30 days after the service of this order file with the Federal Trade Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with the order to cease and desist.

IN THE MATTER OF

GOTTLIEB BROTHERS, MANUFACTURERS OF SILK UNDERWEAR, INC.

OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Consent order requiring respondent corporation, its officers, etc., in connection with the sale in interstate commerce of women's underwear and undergarments, to cease and desist from—

(a) Representing women's underwear by labels or otherwise as "100 percent pure silk" until such undergarments are composed entirely of silk, the product of the cocoon of the silkworm; and

(b) Representing women's underwear as "pure silk" until they are composed entirely of silk and contain not more than 10 percent of any substance (weighting) except black, which shall not exceed 15 percent.

Mr. George Foulkes for the Commission.
Mr. Max Levy, of New York City, for respondent.

Complaint

Paragraph 1. The respondent is and has been since the year 1930, or thereabouts a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its principal place of business and office in the city of New York, in said State. It is now and has been since the year 1930, or thereabouts, engaged in the manufacture and sale of women's silk underwear and undergarments. In the course and conduct of its business the respondent sells through salesmen or representatives appointed by it as agents in its behalf to retail dealers, some located in the State of New York and others in other States of the United States, and pursuant to such sales, shipments are made from respondent's place of business in New York to such retailers. In the course and conduct of its business respondent is in substantial competition with other corporations, partnerships, firms and persons engaged in the sale of women's silk underwear and undergarments between and among the various States of the United States.

PAR. 2. The term "100% pure silk" and "pure silk" are well established and standard terms when used in connection with the labeling, marking, advertising, sale, and distribution of silk garments. The term "100% pure silk" is understood by members of the silk industry, retailers, and the purchasing public to signify and designate silk goods, which in the finished state are manufactured entirely from silk and not mixed with any other adulterant fiber and/or substance. Silk is a fibrous substance produced by the larvae of silk worms.

The term "pure silk" is also a standardized and established term among members of the silk industry, retailers and the purchasing public. It signifies and designates a silk cloth not containing more than 10 percent of weighting material or more than 15 percent of weighting material for black silk fabrics.

PAR. 3. The respondent in the course and conduct of its business, as aforesaid, in the manufacturing, soliciting the sale of, and selling of women's silk underwear and undergarments, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, has represented since the year 1930, or thereabouts, and still represents to retail dealers and to prospective retail dealers, by the use of certain labels and other marks which it attaches and has attached, that such women's silk underwear and undergarments do not contain any weighting substance; and the respondent has represented and still represents to retail dealers and to prospective retail dealers by the use of certain other labels and marks which it attaches and has attached, that such women's silk underwear and undergarments do not contain more than 10 percent of weighting substance. The labels used by respondent are, among others, as follows:

Radcliffe
100 PERCENT PURE SILK
Made of Alternating Bias Gores
Will Not Sag In Washing
Nor Rip In Seams

and/or the words:

Radcliffe
PURE SILK
Made of Four Bias Gores
Will Not Sag In Washing
Nor Rip In Seams
and/or the words:

PURE SILK
TRUE BIAS
Will Not Sag in Laundering
Nor Rip in Seams

and/or the words:

Youth Mode
PURE SILK
Two Panels
Two Seams
True Bias
Will Not Sag
Nor Rip in Seams

Par. 4. In truth and in fact the women's silk underwear and undergarments so labeled and marked as “100% pure silk” and sold as described in paragraphs 1 and 3 hereof, are not, and have not been manufactured from pure silk cloth but such underwear and undergarments contain and have contained up to 52 percent of weighting substances, nor have they been nor are they 100 percent pure silk; and in truth and in fact such women's underwear and undergarments labeled and marked as “pure silk” and sold, as described in paragraphs 1 and 3 hereof, are not and have not been “pure silk” but such underwear and undergarments have contained and do contain from 11 percent to 52 percent of weighting substances.

Par. 5. There are among the competitors of the respondent described in paragraph 1 hereof, corporations, partnerships, firms, and persons who are engaged in the manufacture and/or sale of garments manufactured from silk cloth containing no weighting substances, who truthfully represent and denominate their products as being manufactured entirely from silk cloth; and there are also among the competitors of the respondent, corporations, partnerships, firms, and persons who are engaged in the manufacture and/or sale of garments manufactured from cloth containing weighting substances who truthfully represent and denominate their products as containing weighting substances.

Par. 6. The use by the respondent of the said labels and marks has had and still has the tendency and capacity to deceive, has deceived and still deceives retail dealers and prospective dealers into the belief that said product of respondent is made entirely of silk and/or contains 10 percent or less of weighting substances, and to purchase said product from said respondent in such erroneous belief. The use by respondent of such labels and marks has placed, and still places, in the hands of its retail dealers the means of deceiving the purchasing public. By the use of such labels and marks, trade is diverted by respondent from its competitors, and thereby substantial injury has been done, and is being done, by respondent to substantial competition in interstate commerce.

Par. 7. The acts and practices set forth in paragraphs 3, 4, 5, and 6 hereof are all to the prejudice of the public and the respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes".

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having come on for hearing by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint and the respondent's answer waiving all further proceeding and consenting that the Commission may make, enter, and serve upon it an order to cease and desist from the method or methods of competition charged in the complaint, and the Commission being fully advised in the premises—

It is now ordered, That the respondent, Gottlieb Brothers, Manufacturers of Silk Underwear, Inc., a corporation, its agents, representatives, servants, and employees, in connection with the sale or offering for sale in interstate commerce of women's underwear and undergarments, cease and desist directly or indirectly from:

(1) Representing women's underwear and undergarments by labels or otherwise as "100 percent pure silk" unless and until such underwear and undergarments are composed entirely of silk the product of the cocoon of the silkworm.

(2) Representing women's underwear and undergarments by labels or otherwise as "pure silk" unless and until content of such underwear and undergarments is composed entirely of silk the product of the cocoon of the silkworm, and unless and until such underwear and undergarments contain not more than 10 percent of any substance (weighting) except black, which shall not exceed 15 percent.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after the service upon it of a copy of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with the order to cease and desist hereinabove set forth.

IN THE MATTER OF

RAY RENNISON AND MARTHA A. RENNISON, TRADING AS RAYSON SERVICE BUREAU, RAYSON BUREAU AND RAYSON SERVICE

Where two individuals engaged in the sale of courses of instruction to help purchasers qualify themselves to pass certain examinations for Federal and State civil service places; in advertising their courses in various periodicals, including thirty of national circulation in which their advertisements related chiefly to forestry jobs—

(a) Stated in the "follow-up" circulars sent to those answering, that they were issuing a course of instruction that would thoroughly qualify the customer "on the required subjects of forestry (forest ranger), postal service, border patrol, game protector, and others", and that "no particular amount of education" was required, and that with their course customer "should have no difficulty in any examination", and their instructions could be browsed over and learned by the customer's "own fireside" in less than two months, the facts being that the position of ranger in the United States Forest Service in recent years, due to constantly increasing demand in the way of qualifications, has been filled from eligibles for superior positions, for which said courses would be of no assistance, since 1931 only one Federal appointment has been made to such position, and since 1930 no examination therefor has been announced or held by the United States Civil Service Commission, and none is contemplated, the forest ranger positions could not be characterized fairly even in those cases in which appointments were made from the lists of such Commission as "easily available", in addressing the general public, untrained in forestry, and the requirements therefor, which included a mental test, representing the "full equipment of a four-year high school education", "at least three years of field experience in forestry, including such activities as lumbering, grazing", etc., as specified in the announcements, and health, medical and ocular tests, and age range between 25 and 35 years, were not such as to warrant use of such statements as "easily available" or "no particular amount of education is required", or general reader, "should have no difficulty in any examination therefor"; with capacity and tendency to induce customers to buy said course in the hope that they might thereby be able to become forest rangers in the Federal service, notwithstanding absence of a present possibility of such an outcome or any reasonable likelihood thereof for an indefinite period as hereinabove set forth;

(b) Represented in such follow-up literature that their courses would aid customers to secure other positions in the Federal service, such as rural mail carrier, rural postal clerk, immigration patrol inspector, immigration inspector, and park ranger, without disclosing adequately, if at all, that applicants for position of rural mail carrier must meet requirements as to domicile, actual residence, age limits and physical requirements, and those for other places, requirements, as the case may be, as to weight, physical condition, height, residence, age, personal characteristics, habits, history, experience, moral, personal and physical qualifications, family status, capacity to endure hardships, care for self and horse in remote regions, etc., and pass oral examination; with capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive a substantial proportion into purchasing said individual's courses in the hope of obtaining the Federal positions referred to in said follow-up literature, irrespective of whether they could meet the various requirements thus actually imposed, and without understanding that they might not be eligible to take the examinations after they had purchased and pursued said courses purporting to prepare them therefor, and with the result of thus leading them to purchase such courses, which in numerous cases they would not have done but for the omission to disclose such information;

(c) Used the word "Bureau" as part of their trade name, notwithstanding the absence of any connection with any branch of the Federal Government or of any State Government, with possible tendency to mislead a substantial minority of persons in mountain and remote sections reached by their advertising and follow-up literature into the belief that they were in some fashion connected with a branch of the Federal service;

(d) Set forth in their follow-up literature that "with our course we guarantee to an appointment if you take an examination or refund your fee. • • • You may be assured of our very best efforts and a position or your fee will be refunded", and undertook in their "enrollment blank", enclosed therewith, to refund the customer's fee in the course specified, if he failed to pass the examination therein, or to receive appointment before end of his eligibility therefor, the facts being that about one-half of their customers took advantage of their offer of any three courses at a much reduced combination rate, and, contrary to the implication of their aforesaid statements, that each customer was entitled to a refund if he failed in but one examination, it was not their practice to refund combination rate purchase price unless purchaser of the three courses had taken and failed to pass all three examinations, at times there was intermission of several years between examinations for any given Federal position, and there was no promise of refund if the customer found himself debarred therefrom because of educational, physical, personal, residence, experience and other above indicated restrictions as to which they had not informed him; with result that said "guarantee" had a greatly diminished value compared with its aforesaid implications, and with tendency and capacity thereby to mislead and deceive prospective customers who contemplated purchase at said combination rate, into a greater reliance upon said "guarantee" than the facts warranted;

(e) Made such statements in referring to courses as "the examination is held in every State in the Union and Hawaii, and in dozens of cities in every State", etc., and "enroll at once for this examination and be sure of a passing grade", "better enroll for one of these courses and be sure of a good job", "why not enroll now and be sure of an early appointment", and "there are positions for old and young in almost any type of endeavor", facts being that for years no general examination had been held for position involved and only one intervening, purely local, examination, and years frequently pass between examinations for various civil service positions, which are also frequently of local character; with capacity and tendency to mislead prospective customers into the belief that positions in the Federal service were more generally available and examinations therefor more frequent than was actually the case;

(f) Used such statements in their advertising in periodicals in national circulation as "Field clerical government jobs easily available—$105 to $200 a month, steady—Get details immediately. Rayson Service, D-45, Denver, Colorado", calculated, by reason of the character thereof, to promote insertion in the "help wanted" and similarly entitled columns of the periodicals in which placed, and in which columns said advertising frequently appeared notwithstanding their instructions to the contrary; with capacity and tendency to induce prospective customers to believe that said individuals had information of positions available in the Government service, and were engaged in filling them, and particularly so in view of the fact that a substantial portion of their advertising circulated among people who were ill informed with regard to governmental matters;

With capacity and tendency to attract customers who would not have purchased said courses of instruction but for such advertising and follow-up literature as above described, and to induce customers to purchase their said courses in preference to those offered by competing correspondence schools which frequently use the same periodical mediums, and to induce such schools to indulge competitively in similar methods of advertising, and to divert trade from and injure their competitors:

Held, That such methods of competition were to the prejudice of the public and competitors and constituted a violation of Section 5.

Before Mr. Robert S. Hall, trial examiner.

Mr. Eugene W. Burr for the Commission.

Brandenburg & Brandenburg, of Denver, Colo., and Mr. Louis M. Denit, of Washington, D. C., for respondents.

COMPLAINT

PARAGRAPH 1. That said respondents, Ray Rennison and Martha A. Rennison, are now and have been for more than two years last past engaged in the sale and distribution of courses of study and instruction designed and intended to prepare students thereof for examinations for various civil service positions under the United States Government, which said courses of study and instruction are given by respondents and pursued by students thereof by means of correspondence. That respondents conduct said business under the name and style of Rayson Service Bureau or simply as Rayson Bureau or Rayson Service. That at one time they conducted the same as Rayson Institute. That respondents, in the conduct of said business, have their office and principal place of business in the city of Denver in the State of Colorado. That respondents in the course and conduct of their said business, cause their said courses of study and instruction consisting of study and instruction sheets and other printed or mimeographed matter and literature to be transported in interstate commerce from their said place of business in Colorado to, into, and through States of the United States other than Colorado to various and numerous persons in such other States to whom said courses of study and instruction are or have been sold.

PAR. 2. That, during the time above mentioned, other individuals, firms, and corporations in various States of the United States are and have been engaged in the sale and distribution in interstate commerce of courses of study and instruction designed and intended for the purpose of preparing students thereof for examinations for various civil service positions under the United States Government and also engaged in the sale and distribution as aforesaid of other courses of study and instruction in other lines, and which said courses are given and pursued by means of correspondence, and such other individuals, firms, and corporations have caused and do now cause their said courses of study and instruction, when sold by them, to be transported from various States of the United States to, into, and through States other than the State of origin of the shipment thereof. Said respondents have been, during the aforesaid time, in competition in interstate commerce in the sale of their said courses of study and instruction with such other individuals, firms, and corporations.

PAR. 3. That respondents, in advertising their said courses of study and instruction, make use of and have made use of advertisements inserted in the classified sections of newspapers circulated in and among various States of the United States to members of the public. Some of such advertisements are inserted in the “help wanted” columns of such newspapers and represent or imply by the wording thereof, together with the place of their insertion, that men are wanted to fill Government positions; that such positions are open and available and that the advertiser, “Rayson Bureau,” is the agency through which they are filled and that such “bureau” is acting in behalf of the Government of the United States. An example of such advertisements, so used by respondents, is the following:

Employment

Help Wanted—Male

That similar advertisements are inserted in newspapers as afore-said in classified columns under the head of "Instruction" which likewise create the impressions as stated above. An example of such advertising is the following:

Instruction

That the use of the word "bureau" by respondents in said trade name is misleading in its use in connection with the sale of instruction courses for civil service examinations and especially in advertisements such as the first one quoted above, in that it suggests a Government agency or Government connection on account of the fact that the word "bureau" is often used officially to designate a Government agency and is generally used by members of the public in describing or designating Government agencies or bodies.

That, in truth and in fact, respondents do not represent the Government and they have no positions to offer those who reply to their advertisements. Neither are Government forestry positions available nor were they available, generally speaking, at the time such advertisements were used by respondents. That the opportunities to take an examination or to be appointed to position in the United States Forestry Service are few and such appointments as are or have been made are so restricted on the ground of residence, experience, particular training or otherwise, that there is little, if any, assurance that persons taking the training offered by respondents could qualify for the positions desired even if they were available. That respondents do not inform their prospective students or those who contract for their course of instruction as to the necessity of having the additional prior education, training and experience required or that appointments made are limited by reason of residence or otherwise.

Par. 4. That, after securing contact with the prospective student, respondents present to him an enrollment blank containing misleading provisions that imply that the opportunity to take an examination is assured, that an appointment is assured if the examination is passed and that the student is protected by the contingencies named in a refund agreement. Such provisions read as follows:

If I fail to pass or am not offered an appointment, after taking your complete course and the examination, my fee is to be refunded to me.

That, in truth and in fact, very few examinations have been held or are in prospect in the forestry service, and such examinations are so restricted, as hereinbefore stated, that the likelihood of respondents' students being able to qualify for or to take such examinations is very remote. Moreover, appointments to such service are few and are limited to persons of restricted qualifications, as previously stated, so that, even though a student of respondents' course should pass the examination, there would only be slight prospect of his receiving an appointment. Consequently, said provisions of said contract are virtually meaningless and a refund is improbable.

PAR. 5. That one of the positions in the United States Civil Service is that of forest ranger. That examinations for such position are held only at long intervals and it has been several years since such an examination has been held. Moreover, appointments are made, where practical, only from eligibles residing in the State where the work involved is to be performed. That, under such conditions as detailed above, it is grossly misleading to advertise generally for men to fill such positions, or at a time when no such positions are being filled, or to represent that examinations are in prospect by the solicitation of persons to take instruction for the same. That advertisements such as those of respondents, as quoted above, referring to "forestry positions" or "forestry work," imply that positions as forest ranger are available. That this impression is increased by representations made by respondents in circulars and literature mailed to prospective students in various States of the United States in which work in "forestry" is described in glowing terms without specifying what particular positions are referred to. It is further represented in respondents' said literature that examinations are held generally and that such examinations are in immediate prospect when such were not the facts. Examples of such representations are the following:

Examinations are held in many places in the United States. Prepare now for the examination.

... are you going to enroll and make a high rating in the exam and be among the first appointed?

That the position of "forest ranger" is intended to be included in such representations is evidenced by the following quotation from respondents' enrollment blank:

The combined course will prepare you for Forestry (Ranger), Park Ranger, Mail Service, and Border Patrol examinations.
That respondents, in the said literature, distributed as above stated, similarly represent in regard to other of its courses that examinations are in immediate prospect and that positions are available when in fact, at the time such representations were made, examinations for such positions had not been held for a long period of time and none were in immediate prospect. Moreover, as to some classifications for which respondents offered instruction, long lists of eligibles were available from which to make appointments to such vacancies as might occur.

PAR. 6. That the representations of respondents as aforesaid have had and do have the tendency and capacity to confuse, mislead, and deceive members of the public into the belief that respondents represent the Government of the United States, that they have positions to offer to applicants or to those who qualify, that civil service examinations are in immediate prospect in the lines for which respondents offer instruction, and that positions are available to those who pass the examinations, that positions for which respondents offer instruction are open to the public generally without regard to residence or special qualifications not mentioned by respondents, that examinations and positions are assured, and that those who contract for instruction are protected by a bona fide refund agreement, when, in truth and in fact, such are not the facts. That said representations of respondents have had and do have the tendency and capacity to induce members of the public to answer respondents' advertisements, to sign contracts to pursue their courses of instruction, to pay money down, to promise to pay additional sums, and to pursue said courses of instruction because of the erroneous beliefs engendered, as above set forth, and to divert trade to respondents from competitors engaged in the sale of correspondence courses in interstate commerce in similar lines to those offered by respondents as well as those so engaged in such sale in other lines of study.

PAR. 7. The above acts and things done by respondents are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and the competitors of respondents in interstate commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”, approved September 26, 1914.

Acting in the public interest pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914 (38 Stat. 717), the Federal Trade Commission, on September 18, 1934, issued and caused to be served upon the respondents above named, a complaint charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce, in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of said Act. The respondents appeared and filed an answer on October 9, 1934, and on January 8, 1935, the Commission amended its complaint. Thereafter the proceeding was tried, beginning on January 8 at Washington, District of Columbia, and closing on January 26, 1935, at Denver, Colo. Oral argument was waived and the Commission, having duly considered the pleadings and the oral and documentary evidence taken, and other matters of record and being advised by briefs filed by counsel in support of the complaint and by counsel for respondents, makes this its report, stating its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. The respondents, husband and wife, are engaged, under the trade names "Rayson Service Bureau", "Rayson Bureau", and "Rayson Service", without incorporation, in the sale of courses of instruction designed to aid, and represented as aiding, purchasers thereof to qualify themselves to pass examinations, primarily for the civil service of the United States and also for certain examinations in civil services of certain State Governments. They no longer use the trade name "Rayson Institute" named in the complaint. Respondents have their principal place of business at Denver, in the State of Colorado. Respondent Ray Rennison has been engaged in this line of business since 1927. The aggregate number of customers to whom one or more courses of instruction have been sold since the origin of the business is over 3,500. Among numerous positions in the Federal service, which respondents represent that their courses of study will aid customers to secure, are forest ranger, rural mail carrier, rural postal clerk, immigration patrol inspector, immigration inspector, park ranger.

Paragraph 2. Respondents, in the regular course of their business, use as media for advertising, various periodicals which circulate from the States of their respective publication to and into other States in all sections of the country where the subscribers to said publications are located. Among some approximately thirty periodicals of national circulation thus used by respondents are, Arkansas Farmer, True Fiction, Farm and Ranch, Hunter Trader and Trapper, and Clover Leaf Weekly. As the result of this advertising respondents secure the names of certain persons who answer the advertising, to whom they send a series of "follow-up" circulars designed to induce said persons to purchase from respondents one or more of their courses of instruction. This circular matter is sent from the headquarters of respondents in Colorado through and into other States where prospective or potential customers of respondents are located. Thereafter, respondents, in the regular course of their business, send their courses of instruction from the State of Colorado through and into other States of the United States to those who purchase respondents' courses and interchange with them papers of examination and instruction.

Par. 3. During the time above mentioned, other individuals, firms, and corporations in various States of the United States have been and they now are engaged in the sale and distribution in interstate commerce of courses of study and instruction designed and intended for the purpose of preparing students thereof for examinations for various civil service positions under the United States Government and engaged also in the sale and distribution as aforesaid of other courses of study and instruction in other lines. The said courses are given and pursued by means of correspondence, and such other individuals, firms, and corporations have caused and do now cause their said courses of study and instruction, when sold by them, to be transported from various States of the United States to, into and through States other than the State of origin of the shipment thereof. Said respondents have been, during the aforesaid time, in competition in interstate commerce in the sale of their said courses of study and instruction with such other individuals, firms and corporations.

Par. 4. Respondents' advertisements chiefly relate to "forestry jobs". When answers are received the "follow-up" literature of respondents frequently refers to both National and State forests and positions said to be available therein and declares, among other statements as follows:

We are issuing a course of instructions that will thoroughly coach you on the required subjects of Forestry (Forest Ranger), Postal Service, Border Patrol, Game Protector, and others. No particular amount of education is required and with our course you should have no difficulty in any examination. Our instructions can be browsed over and learned right by your own fireside in less than two months.

Also respondents say:

Our Forestry Course is a great aid to persons interested in taking the Forest Ranger and Junior Ranger examinations either for Federal or State work as well as being invaluable to anyone desiring forest work as their life vocation. Anyone interested in such work should take our course by all means.

About one-half of respondents' customers purchase the course in forestry. While the respondents' courses purport to prepare customers for positions in State forestry services and for positions in private employ respondents' literature is so drawn as to hold out also the hope to prospective customers that by studying respondents' course they may obtain positions in the United States Forest Service, as rangers.

Par. 5. Respondents' course in forestry would not be beneficial to persons desiring to qualify themselves for the technical positions in the United States Forest Service including technologist, senior forester, and junior forester. The position as ranger in said service is of lower grade. In recent years, however, employees in the forest service have been required to meet a constantly increasing knowledge of insect enemies of trees, tree diseases, forest development including scientific thinning and selling, grazing of livestock, game management and engineering and landscaping for recreational purposes. The result has been that vacancies in recent years in the position of forest ranger have been filled not with eligibles on the forest ranger list, but from eligibles for positions superior to forest rangers, for obtaining which respondents' course would be of no assistance. Even when appointments were made from lists of the United States Civil Service Commission to the position of ranger, these positions could not be fairly characterized, in addressing the general public untrained in forestry, as "easily available" or the requirements for it such that "no particular amount of education is required" or that the general reader "should have no difficulty in any examination" therefor. The following restrictions were contained in the announcement of the United States Civil Service Commission for the last examination given by the Commission for the position of forest ranger, dated October 13, 1930:

Education and Experience.—The mental test will represent the full equipment of a four-year high-school education. Applicants must show that they have had at least three years of field experience in forestry, including such activities as lumbering, grazing, surveying and forest-fire control, at least six months of which must have been as foreman or in a similar position involving the direction and control of three or more men; provided, that school work in a forest school of recognized standing will be accepted in lieu of experience other than foremanship up to twenty-seven months.

Moreover, the general availability of the position was further restricted by health, medical, and ocular tests and the requirement that applicants be between 25 and 35 years of age unless entitled to military or naval preference. Respondents do not inform prospective purchasers of these restrictions. Respondents still represent to prospective customers that Federal as well as State and private positions as forest ranger are obtainable and that their course would aid in securing them. Since 1931 only one Federal appointment has been made to the position of forest ranger, which was in 1932. No examination for the position has been announced or held by the United States Civil Service Commission since that of October 13, 1930, and responsible Government officials testified that none is contemplated. From mid-summer of 1931 to the time of trial, respondents sold their forestry course to about 900 customers. As the outcome of an investigation by this Commission, respondent Ray Rennison agreed, on October 26, 1931, in part as follows:

Respondent further stipulates and agrees to discontinue and not resume the advertisement and/or sale of course of instruction for the position of forest ranger.

PAR. 6. The references to National forests, the Federal forest service, and positions in said service in respondents' "follow-up" literature have the capacity and tendency to induce customers to buy respondents' course in forestry in the hope that they may thereby be aided in becoming forest rangers in the Federal service whereas there is no present possibility of such an outcome and no reasonable likelihood thereof for an indefinite period.

PAR. 7. The United States Civil Service Commission imposes restrictions upon applicants for numerous positions, other than that of forest ranger, for obtaining which respondents offer courses of instruction. Among restrictions so imposed for such positions are the following:

(a) Applicants for the position of rural mail carrier must have been domiciled within the territory supplied by the office for which the examination is held and must have been actual residents within the delivery radius of the office for six months next preceding the closing date for the reception of applications. There are numerous physical defects which bar persons from examination. These, however, can be waived, under certain conditions, in favor of disabled soldiers, sailors and marines, and in their favor only. The applicants must be between 18 and 50 years of age, unless entitled to military preference.

(b) Applicants for rural postal clerk must meet certain requirements as to their weight and physical condition and there is a requirement that each applicant shall reside in the State in which he is to serve.

(c) Applicants for immigration patrol inspector must meet certain weight, height and physical condition requirements, as shown by a medical certificate required to be filed. They must be between 23 and 36 years of age, unless entitled to military preference.

(d) Applicants for immigration inspector must be between 21 and 45 years of age, unless entitled to military preference. They must submit a physical certificate and be prepared to take an examination from a Federal physician. Evidence must be given as to personal characteristics and habits, and applicants must give their history so as to show whether they have been guilty of disrespect of law or of unethical dealings.

(e) Applicants for park ranger must show, as a prerequisite to taking the examination, at least one year's experience in out-door vocations in which they have shown adaptability to the duties required. They must have certain moral, personal and physical qualifications described in the announcement of the Civil Service Commission for examinations for these positions. They must also be between 21 and 45 years of age, unless entitled to military preference. Moreover, such applicants may fail of appointment under certain circumstances if they are married. They must also be capable of enduring hardships and of working under trying conditions, and must show themselves capable of taking care of themselves and their horses in regions remote from settlements and supplies. Provision is made for an oral examination as to fitness.

Par. 8. Respondents either do not, in their "follow-up" literature, state the restrictions upon eligibility in paragraph 7 above mentioned, or state them inadequately. The omission adequately to disclose such restrictions has the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive a substantial proportion of those who purchase respondents' courses into the hope that purchasers may obtain the United States Civil Service positions referred to by respondents in their "follow-up" literature, irrespective of whether they can meet the various requirements so actually imposed. Purchasers do not understand that they may not be eligible to take the examination after they have purchased and pursued respondents' courses purporting to prepare them for examination. They are thus led to purchase respondents' courses, whereas in numerous cases they would not do so but for respondents' omission to disclose pertinent information as outlined in said paragraph 7.

Par. 9. The pleaded issue of respondents' use, as part of their trade name and style, of the word "bureau", as tending to mislead prospective customers into the belief that respondents were in some manner connected with the Federal Government was not tried, since respondents entered into the following stipulation:

• • • while the word "bureau" as part of respondents' trade name is not generally misleading, the respondents' advertising and follow-up literature go to many mountain and other remote sections, the inhabitants of which are not as well informed of governmental affairs as the average persons throughout the country, and to a substantial minority of such persons the word "bureau" as part of respondents' trade name, may have a tendency to mislead into the belief that respondents are in some fashion connected with a branch of the Federal service.
Now, therefore, it is further stipulated and agreed that respondents consent to a clause in the order on the Commission's part requiring them to desist from the use of the word "bureau", unless they shall prominently in each piece of follow-up literature state that they are entirely unconnected with any branch of the Federal Government or with the Government of any State.

Par. 10. Respondents say in their follow-up literature:

With our course we guarantee you an appointment if you take an examination or refund your fee. * * *. You may be assured of our very best efforts and a position or your fee will be refunded * * *.

The "enrollment blank" of respondents, included with said literature, which customers are asked to sign, contains this:

I agree to take your (first choice) —— (second choice) —— course of Instructions and the respective examination. If I fail to pass or am not offered an appointment before the termination of my eligibility, my fee is to be returned to me.

Respondents have made frequent refunds to customers. They offer any three courses at a much reduced combination rate. About one-half of respondents' customers purchase at such combination rate. The implication from respondents' references to their guaranty is that each customer is entitled to a refund if he fails in but one examination and thereby respondents' inducement to prospective customers is substantially enhanced. Respondents do not, however, make a practice of refunding the combination rate purchase price unless the purchaser of three courses has taken all three examinations and has failed to pass them all. Sometimes there is an intermission of several years between examinations for any given Federal position and in practice respondents' "guaranty" so offered has a greatly diminished value as contrasted with the implications from respondents' references to it. Moreover, there is no promise of refund if the customer finds that he is debarred from taking the examination because of the educational, physical, personal, residence, experience and other restrictions, mentioned above, in paragraph 7, as to which respondents have not informed him. The result thereof is a tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive prospective customers who contemplate buying at the said combination rate into a greater reliance upon said "guaranty" than the facts warrant.

Par. 11. With respect to the availability of positions in the Federal service and to the opportunities to take examinations therefor, respondents in their "follow-up" literature, among other things, say:

The examination is held in every State in the Union and Hawaii, and in dozens of cities in every State. Applicants are appointed in the State in which they take the examination.
Also

Enroll at once for this examination and be sure of a passing grade and appointment.

Both the foregoing relate to respondents' courses for railway mail clerks. The proof shows, however, that after a general examination held on April 9, 1927, no general examination had again been given for this position when the testimony was taken on January 8, 1935. One intervening examination was held in May, 1932, which was local, however, to the States of Connecticut, Nevada, and New Hampshire. Moreover respondents say:

Better enroll for one of these courses and be sure of a good job.
Why not enroll now and be sure of an early appointment?
There are positions for old and young in almost any type of endeavor.

The foregoing and similar representations on respondents' part have the capacity and tendency to mislead prospective customers into the belief that positions in the Federal service are more generally available and examinations earlier and more frequent than is actually the case. The evidence shows that it is frequently several years between examinations for various civil service positions and that these examinations are frequently of a local character.

Par. 12. Respondents use advertising, in the above described periodicals of national circulation, of the following type:

Although respondents give contrary instructions, advertising of the above character appears frequently under the heading, in the periodical media used, "help wanted". The wording of the advertising and the use of columns thus entitled have the capacity and tendency to induce prospective customers of respondents to believe that the respondents have information of positions available, and are engaged in filling positions, in the Government service. This tendency is increased through the fact that a substantial portion of respondents' advertising goes among people who are exceptionally ill-informed with regard to governmental matters. Moreover this type of advertising tends to promote the insertion thereof in the "help wanted", and similarly entitled, columns of the said periodicals.

Par. 13. The advertising and "follow-up" literature of respondents in the respects hereinabove set forth, having the capacity and tendency above described, attract to respondents customers who otherwise would not purchase respondents' courses of instruction. Respondents' competitors hereinabove described frequently use the same periodical media which respondents use and their advertising often appears in the same or nearby advertising columns. The above-described misleading statements of respondents, and their aforesaid failure to disclose pertinent facts, have a direct tendency to induce customers to purchase respondents' courses in preference to the courses offered by competing correspondence schools; moreover they have the tendency to induce other such schools to indulge competitively in similar methods of advertising. Respondents' methods of competition above in these findings described have a tendency to divert trade from and to injure competitors of respondents.

CONCLUSION

The Commission has reached the following conclusion:

(a) Respondents are engaged in interstate commerce and are in competition with others so engaged.

(b) Respondents have used unfair methods of competition by the employment of misleading and deceptive representations as to their courses of instruction. Respondents have also used unfair methods of competition in that they have failed to disclose to prospective customers pertinent and necessary information which was known, or should have been known, to respondents in the ordinary course of their business and which they were under a legal obligation to disclose to prospective customers so that the latter might know, before buying respondents' courses, whether they were eligible to take the examinations to prepare for which respondents' courses were offered for sale.

(c) Periodical media are the agents of respondents with respect to the publication of respondents' advertising and respondents are responsible for the columns in which their advertising appears.

(d) The use by respondents' competitors of advertising of a character similar to the advertising of respondents does not constitute legal justification to respondents.

(e) The methods of competition of respondents, set forth in the findings, are to the prejudice of the public and of respondents' said competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.
ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been considered by the Commission upon the pleadings, the evidence received, the matter having been presented to the Commission through briefs of counsel in support of the complaint and on behalf of respondents, and the Commission being fully advised in the premises and having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion, among others, that respondents have violated the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes"—

It is ordered, That respondents, Ray Rennison and Martha Rennison, their agents, representatives, and employees, in connection with the advertising, offering for sale and sale, in interstate commerce, of their courses of instruction by correspondence do cease and desist, as follows:

1. From including in their "follow-up" or other advertising matter or correspondence as to their forestry course, any reference to, or statement regarding national forests, the Federal forest service or positions in said service, unless and until either (a) the United States Civil Service Commission shall resume the announcement of examinations for the position of ranger in the United States Forest Service; or (b) respondents shall declare in each such piece of "follow-up" literature, advertising matter or item of correspondence, and in lettering as large and conspicuous as said reference or statement, that respondents' said course is neither adapted nor designed to aid students to obtain positions as ranger in the United States Forest Service.

2. From offering any course of instruction without stating in their "follow-up" literature the educational, physical, personal, residence, experience and other requirements or restrictions imposed upon applicants for respective positions, for which respondents' courses are offered as preparation, either in the announcement made for a pending examination by the United States Civil Service Commission for the position in question, if there be such an announcement, or, if not, in the last previous announcement made.

3. From using the word "bureau", unless respondents shall prominently in each piece of their "follow-up" literature state that they are entirely unconnected with any branch of the Federal or any State government.
4. From continuing their "guaranty" offer without making it clear that the purchaser at respondents' combination rate is not entitled to a refund unless he has failed in each examination in preparation for which he purchased a course from respondents.

5. From implying, in advertising, "follow-up" literature or correspondence with prospective customers, that Government positions are available generally or that examinations therefor are frequent, or soon to be held, unless such is actually the case.

6. From implying in their advertisements that they are seeking employees to fill Government positions or that they can offer Government positions to those who answer said advertisements; and from using advertising space entitled "Help Wanted" or entitled with a word or words having the same or similar meaning.

It is further ordered, That respondents shall, within 60 days after the service upon them of a copy of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with and conformed to the order to cease and desist hereinabove set forth.
Consent order requiring respondent individual, his officers, etc., in connection with the advertisement, offer for sale and sale in interstate commerce and in the District of Columbia, of shoes, to cease and desist from—

(a) Representing through advertisements, circulars, etc., or in any other manner or assisting or participating in advertisements, etc., representing that he owns or operates a shoe factory, and that prices at which he sells his products to the consumer are manufacturers' wholesale prices; or that he sells his products to the consumer under any plan or method of distribution by means of which all costs, profits or other charges of middlemen are eliminated; or that the proceeds of such savings by reason of the elimination of such middlemen, accrue to the purchasers from him, unless and until such representations are true in fact; or

(b) Representing as aforesaid or assisting or participating in advertisements, circulars, etc., representing or indicating or having a capacity or tendency to indicate from the text in which such representations appear that he owns or controls patents or "new patents" covering so-called "Air Cushion" shoes or other manufacturing processes unless and until the same are owned or controlled by him.

Mr. Marshall Morgan for the Commission.
Webber, George & Owen, of Winona, Minn., for respondent.

Complaint

Acting in the public interest pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission charges that Charles Bronson, trading as Bronson Shoe Company, has been and is using unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act, in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of said act, and states its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Charles Bronson, trading as Bronson Shoe Company, 710 West Lake Street, Minneapolis, Minn., is, and for more than two years last past has been engaged, as hereinafter described, in the business of selling shoes direct to consumers located in various States of the United States. In consummating such sales and in distributing such merchandise respondent causes the said shoes so sold to be transported and delivered from the city of Minneapolis, State of Minnesota, through and into various other States of the United States to the respective purchasers thereof at their several points of location. In the course and conduct of his business Charles Bronson, trading as Bronson Shoe Company, has been and now is engaged in direct and substantial competition with various corporations, firms, partnerships, and individuals engaged in selling shoes and in offering such products for sale in interstate commerce.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of his said business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent Charles Bronson, trading as Bronson Shoe Company, has offered his products for sale and has sold and transported and caused the same to be transported in commerce, among the several States of the United States, direct to consumers, through the medium of traveling salesmen, canvassers, and solicitors, and the use of mail. Said goods are and were shipped in response to orders taken by such traveling salesmen, canvassers, and solicitors, or received through the mail, and transported or caused to be transported in commerce among the several States of the United States. As a means of obtaining the services of such salesmen, canvassers, and solicitors, who canvass for business all over the United States, said respondent causes and has caused advertisements to appear in periodicals having general circulation, and in addition distributes and has distributed circulars containing sales talks and instructions and catalogs.

Par. 3. Respondent Charles Bronson, on or about July 14, 1934, acquired by purchase from Chester F. Rohn, vice president, and Franklyn A. Rohn, secretary and treasurer, respectively, of the Rohn Shoe Manufacturing Company, of Milwaukee, Wis., hereinafter referred to as the Rohn Company, 260 shares of the common stock of said company, out of a total of 500 shares, acquiring 130 shares from each of these two brothers, respondent giving in payment therefor, to each, his demand note of even date, for $13,000. The authorized capital stock of the Rohn Company is $150,000, made up of $50,000 of common stock all of which has been issued, and $100,000 of preferred stock, of which $88,000 has been issued. Only the common stock of this company has voting rights.

The Rohn Company sells to jobbers and retail stores, including the Bronson Shoe Company, the latter taking about 50 percent of the output of the former. Respondent's procedure in buying from the Rohn Company is the same as that which obtained prior to his purchase of the aforementioned common stock. Respondent orders shoes from the Rohn Company, the latter ships and invoices him and he sends checks in payment of the invoices. Respondent has continued to sell his shoes, as he has always done, by means of house-to-house canvassers and by mail. No shipments of shoes are made direct from the Rohn Company to any of respondent's customers, nor to any other point than respondent's sales store or office in Minneapolis.

As a rule, the shoes sold by respondent are sent direct to the buyer and not to the salesman for delivery. The salesman collects a small deposit from the purchaser and the balance is paid on a C. O. D. basis. Respondent disclaims responsibility for shoes turned over to a salesman. No change in the price of shoes sold by the Rohn Company to respondent resulted from the purchase by respondent of the common stock hereinbefore mentioned. The Rohn Company has continued to take a manufacturer's profit in connection with its sales to respondent and respondent has continued to make his profit on shoes sold by him through his salesman or canvassers, or the mail, to customers in various States.

Par. 4. In the course and conduct of his said business, as herein-after related, respondent has caused various false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations to be inserted in advertisements, circulars, and catalogs distributed in interstate commerce. Advertisements have been run in trade magazines and periodicals having general circulation, and circulars and catalogs were mailed and are being mailed direct to prospective customers, or were addressed to, and are and have been distributed among salesmen and canvassers or prospective salesmen and canvassers, and are intended to be and constitute instructions to them in connection with sales talks to be made to consumers throughout the various States of the United States. In this manner the various false and misleading statements and representations made by respondent Charles Bronson, trading under the name of Bronson Shoe Company, are and have been passed on to the consuming public, and said consuming public has been and is being induced to purchase the goods thus offered for sale and sold by respondent Charles Bronson, trading as Bronson Shoe Company, under the erroneous belief that said false and misleading statements and representations were and are true.

Par. 5. Respondent Charles Bronson, trading as Bronson Shoe Company, in further connection with the sale and distribution of shoes in interstate commerce printed and broadcast a circular advertising and explaining the features and qualities of the "Bronson 100 percent nail-less air cushion” shoes, in which among others, appear the following statements and representations:

Made in our Dress Shoe Factory.
• • • Sold only through Bronson Direct Salesmen.
• • • The new Bronson Work Shoes, under our new patents, are sewed completely around the entire shoe • • •.

In an advertisement addressed to prospective salesmen and canvassers and canvassers, printed in a trade paper or magazine, appeared the following:

Bronson’s cannot be successfully imitated because the construction of the shoe is amply covered by U. S. Patents which cover the highly individual, nail-less, sewed-in heel seat and other superior features.

thereby further creating the impression that said patent was and is the exclusive property right of the respondent Charles Bronson and applied only and solely to shoes sold by him.

In a catalog issued by respondent herein for use by salesmen and canvassers, there appears on the title page thereof the following:

Bronson Air Cushion—The Most Comfortable and Most Practical Shoe Ever Developed.

(Design)

Respondent, by the use of such statements, again and further creating, and seeking to create, the impression that the said patent referred to was and is the exclusive property right of respondent herein and applied only and solely to shoes sold by him.

In a printed order blank and instruction sheet for use by purchasers, accompanying the catalog above referred to, and distributed likewise throughout various States of the United States, appears the following, among other statements:

We can fit you better than a retail business.

the said language being intended to convey, and conveying to the purchaser the impression that the business conducted by respondent was and is other than and different from that of a retail store.

In another advertisement, addressed to prospective salesmen and canvassers, inserted by respondent in a trade magazine having a general interstate circulation, there appeared, among others, the following statements and representations:

- Bronson's Nail-Less Air Cushion Shoes Direct from Factory.

Bronson's Patented Nail-Less Air Cushion Shoes are sold only through agents, direct from factory.

By eliminating brokers, jobbers, traveling salesmen and storekeepers' profits, we are able to sell Bronson's Nail-Less Air Cushion Shoes at prices astonishingly low.

intending to create and thereby creating by means of such statements and representations the impression upon the consumer that in purchasing shoes from respondent and his factory he was enabled to save the customary profit of the jobber, middleman or storekeeper.

In this same advertisement, above the wording:

Bronson Shoe Company, 706-T West Lake Street, Minneapolis, Minnesota.

said pictorial representation being intended to convey, and conveying, the impression that the said building shown therein was and is the factory owned and operated by the respondent herein, and from which shoes allegedly manufactured by the respondent were and are shipped direct to the consumer, thus saving to the consumer the profits of broker, jobber, and storekeeper and the cost of traveling salesmen.

When in truth and in fact the above set forth statements and representations made by the respondent Charles Bronson, trading as Bronson Shoe Company, were and are false, deceptive, and misleading in the following, among other particulars:

1. The respondent does not own or operate any factory wherein the products which he sells and distributes, or has sold and distributed in interstate commerce are and were manufactured;

2. The so-called "direct salesmen" do not represent any factory or manufacturer;

3. The "new patents" to which reference is made, covering so-called "Air Cushion" shoes or other manufacturing businesses, are not owned or controlled by the respondent herein;
4. The respondent does conduct a retail business;
5. Respondent's shoes are not sold through or by agents "direct from factory", or "from factory to wearer";
6. Respondent's methods of buying and selling the shoes he handles do not save to the consumer the profits of a jobber, broker, or storekeeper, or other middleman, or the expenses incident to the services of salesman;
7. The pictorial representation appearing in a magazine of a large factory building is not that of a building or factory occupied by the respondent Charles Bronson, doing business as Bronson Shoe Company, and the building shown in the picture with the large sign at the top purporting to read "Home of Bronson Shoes" actually contains no such sign.

Par. 6. By the use of such false and misleading statements and representations appearing in respondent's circulars, catalogs and other advertising matter, reaching the public through the medium of agents, canvassers and the mail, members of the consuming public are and have been thereby deceived concerning the character, origin and cost to them of shoes that are being sold and have been sold to them by respondent and are thereby induced to purchase such shoes under the erroneous belief that said false and misleading statements and representations are true in that the Bronson Shoe Company is a business concern operating a factory in which are manufactured the shoes sold by respondent; that the respondent is therefore able to sell said shoes to the consumer at factory prices, substantially less than those usually demanded by the retailer or storekeeper in the ordinary course of trade for like products of similar character, and that said consumer is also given the exclusive benefit of valuable patent rights owned and controlled by respondent.

The aforesaid practices are further to the detriment and injury of competitors of respondent in that they divert to respondent the trade of competitors engaged in selling in interstate commerce like products of similar character to those sold by respondent.

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent further are detrimental to and tend to demoralize the market developed and existing in connection with the sale of shoes by a retailer or middleman to the consumer, are destructive of and create confusion as to the public's conception of the retail shoe business, result in great injury to the business of competitors and place in the hands of the salesmen and canvassers representing respondent the means of deceiving the purchaser of the said shoes, sold under and by virtue of the herein set forth false, deceptive and misleading representations.
PAR. 7. The above false, misleading, and deceptive acts, practices, and methods of respondent, under the circumstances and conditions hereinabove alleged are unlawful and constitute unfair methods of competition within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes".

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding coming on for final hearing by the Federal Trade Commission on the record, including the complaint of the Commission issued under Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", and respondent's amended answer thereto in which respondent waives hearing on the charges set forth in the complaint, refrains from contesting the proceeding and, pursuant to the Commission's Rules of Practice with respect to answers, consents that the Commission may make, enter and serve upon respondent an order to cease and desist from the unfair methods of competition set forth in the complaint herein, and the Commission being advised in the premises—

It is now ordered, That respondent, Charles Bronson, trading as Bronson Shoe Company, his officers, agents, servants and employees, in connection with the advertising, offering for sale, and selling in interstate commerce and in the District of Columbia, of shoes, do cease and desist from:

(a) Representing by means of advertisements, circulars, catalogs, stationery or by any other manner, or assisting or participating in the circulation of any advertisements, circulars, catalogs, stationery or any other media representing, that respondent owns or operates a shoe factory, and that prices at which respondent sells his products to the consumer are manufacturers' wholesale prices; or that the respondent sells his products to the consumer under any plan or method of distribution by means of which all costs, profits or other charges of middlemen are eliminated; or that the proceeds of such savings by reason of the elimination of such middlemen, accrue to purchasers from respondent, unless and until such representations are true in fact; and

(b) Representing in any advertisements, circulars, catalogs, stationery or otherwise, or assisting or participating in the circulation of any advertisements, circulars, catalogs, stationery or other media representing or indicating, or having the capacity or tendency to indicate from the text in which such representations appear, that the respondent owns or controls patents or "new patents" covering so-called "Air Cushion" shoes or other manufacturing processes unless and until the same are owned or controlled by the respondent.

It is further ordered, That the respondent within 60 days from and after the date of service upon him of this order shall file with the Commission a report or reports in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he is complying with the order to cease and desist hereinbefore set out by the Commission.

IN THE MATTER OF

DAVIS KNITTING MILLS, INC., TRADING UNDER ITS OWN NAME AND AS YORKE KNITTING MILLS

Consent order requiring respondent corporation, its officers, etc., in connection with the advertisement, offer for sale and sale in interstate commerce and in the District of Columbia of men’s and boys’ knitted outerwear, to cease and desist from using the word “Mills” or the words “Knitting Mills” in its corporate or trade name and in any trade name under which it may do business; and from the use of the word “Mills” or the words “Knitting Mills” in any way which may have the capacity or tendency to confuse, mislead or deceive purchasers into the belief that it owns, controls and operates a mill or factory wherein its products are made or fabricated, unless and until such representations are true in fact.

Mr. Wilbur N. Baughman for the Commission,
Mr. Harry W. Pitt, of New York City, for respondent.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Davis Knitting Mills, Inc., trading under its own name, and as Yorke Knitting Mills, have been and are using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as “commerce” is defined in said act of Congress, in violation of said act, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. That the respondent is a corporation incorporated and existing under the laws of the State of New York, having its principal place of business at 1199 Broadway, New York City; in its own name and also under the style and name of Yorke Knitting Mills, and is engaged in the business of selling men’s and boys’ knitted outerwear, in the course of which it has solicited orders for its products from dealers and prospective customers in various States other than the State of New York, and has contracted to sell and deliver and has sold and caused to be transported to purchasers outside of the State of New York, its products as above described; that the respondent is in competition with persons, partnerships, and corporations who manufacture and sell in interstate commerce a similar line of knitted outer-wear, advertising themselves truly as manufacturers; and also in competition with other persons, partnerships, and corporations who sell in interstate commerce a similar line of knitted outerwear who do not manufacture the same and do not advertise themselves as manufacturers of the same.

Par. 2. That the respondent does not own or operate a knitting mill, although in its corporate name and trade name it uses the words "Knitting Mills"; and although the letterheads and billheads of both the Davis Knitting Mills, Inc., and the Yorke Knitting Mills, represents them, and each of them, to be "Manufacturers of Knitted Novelties".

Par. 3. That the use by respondent of the words "Knitting Mills", or the word "Mills", in its corporate or trade name and in any trade name under which it may do business, and the use of letterheads and billheads which represents it to be "manufacturers of knitted novelties", have the capacity and tendency to confuse, mislead, and deceive purchasers into the belief that it owns, controls, and operates a knitting mill or factory wherein its products are made and fabricated, and to believe that in purchasing its product they are buying direct from a manufacturer and without the intervention of, or profit to, any middleman, when such is not the fact; and said representations constitute unfair methods of competition with persons, partnerships, and corporations who do manufacture and sell a similar line of knitted outerwear, and said representations further constitute an unfair method of competition with persons, partnerships, and corporations who sell a similar line of knitted outerwear but who do not manufacture the same and who do not advertise themselves as manufacturers of the same.

Wherefore, said acts and practices of respondents are all to the prejudice of the public and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding coming on for final hearing by the Federal Trade Commission on the record, including the complaint of the Commission issued under Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its power and duties, and for other purposes", and respondent's amended answer thereto in which respondent waives hearing on the charges set forth in the complaint, refrains from contesting the proceeding and, pursuant to the Commission's Rules of Practice with respect to answers, consents that the Commission may make, enter and serve upon respondent without a trial, without evidence, and without findings as to the facts or other intervening procedure, an order to cease and desist from the method or methods of competition alleged in the complaint; and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being fully advised in the premises—

It is now ordered, That respondent, Davis Knitting Mills, Inc., trading under its own name and as Yorke Knitting Mills, a corporation, its officers, agents, servants, and employees, in connection with the advertising, offering for sale, and selling in interstate commerce, and in the District of Columbia, of men's and boys' knitted outerwear, do cease and desist from:

The use of the word "Mills" or the words "Knitting Mills" in its corporate or trade name and in any trade name under which it may do business; and from the use of the word "Mills" or the words "Knitting Mills" in any way which may have the capacity or tendency to confuse, mislead, or deceive purchasers into the belief that it owns, controls and operates a mill or factory wherein its products are made or fabricated, unless and until such representations are true in fact.

It is further ordered, That the respondent within 60 days from and after the date of service upon it of this order shall file with the Commission a report or reports, in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it is complying with the order to cease and desist hereinbefore set out by the Commission.
Complaint

IN THE MATTER OF

PETERS SERUM COMPANY

Consent order requiring respondent corporation, its agents, etc., in connection with the sale or offer for sale in interstate commerce of its serums, biologics, bacterins, and veterinary products, to cease and desist from advertising or in any other wise representing directly or by implication that it manufactures all of its said products, unless such is the case, or that purchasers can save the middleman's profit by buying said products from it, unless such is the case.

Mr. DeWitt T. Puckett for the Commission.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Peters Serum Company, a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has been and now is using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Peters Serum Company, is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Missouri, with its principal place of business located in the Lobby Livestock Exchange Building in Kansas City, Mo. It is now and for several years last past has been engaged in the manufacture of serums and bacterins for the inoculation of livestock and poultry against disease. It also deals in a line of veterinary remedies and preparations which it purchases from other dealers. Respondent has been engaged in the sale of its manufactured products and the products purchased from other dealers between and among the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia, and now causes and for several years last past has caused such products when sold by it to be shipped from its place of business in Kansas City, Mo., to the purchasers thereof, some located in the State of Missouri and others located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and there is now and for several years last past has been a constant current of trade in commerce by the respondent in said veterinary remedies between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondent is now and for several years last past has been in substantial competition with other corporations, and with persons, firms, and partnerships engaged in the sale of serums, bacterins and other veterinary remedies between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, Peters Serum Company, in soliciting the sale of and selling its products in interstate commerce, caused catalogs or books entitled "Peters Veterinary Guide" to be distributed in interstate commerce and in various editions of which the following statement appeared at the bottom of many pages thereof: "Buy your animal serums, biologics and veterinary preparations direct from the manufacturer and save money". Elsewhere in the book appeared the following language: "Peters Serum Company, a corporation, are manufacturers. The corporation sells direct to farmers, with the object of saving the farmers money by doing away with the middleman's profit. Most of the other serum companies market their product either through veterinarians or other jobbers or speculators, all of whom are middlemen." Other statements appearing in said advertising matter were:

Buy from the manufacturer. Special Notice—Buy direct from the manufacturer and be safe. Peters is the only hog serum manufacturer located in Kansas City, Mo., selling direct to farmers, operating under a Government license and making its own hog serum.

In truth and in fact, the said Peters Serum Company does not make, manufacture, or compound all of the products sold by it under the aforesaid representations; it does not own and operate or directly or absolutely control the plant or factory in which all of its said products are made, manufactured, or compounded, but fills certain of the orders received by it from customers and prospective customers with products made, manufactured, or compounded in plants or factories which it does not own or operate, or directly or absolutely control; and the statements contained in its advertising matter to the effect that in dealing directly with the said Peters Serum Company, customers and prospective customers will save money through the elimination of dealers' or middlemen's profits are untrue, in that customers do not save middlemen's profits by purchasing respondent's products.
PAR. 3. The use by respondent of the representations set out in paragraph 2 hereof has, and has had, the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive, and does and has misled and deceived, the purchasing public into the belief that such representations are true, and causes and has caused said public to purchase such serums, bacterins, and other veterinary remedies from respondent in such erroneous beliefs. There are, among the competitors of respondents, as mentioned in paragraph 1 hereof, manufacturers of and dealers in serums, bacterins, veterinary remedies, and preparations, who do not misrepresent the origin of their products and who do not falsely represent that the middlemen’s profits are eliminated in the purchase of their products, sold by them between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. By the representations aforesaid, trade is unfairly diverted by respondent from such competitors; thereby substantial injury is being done and has been done by respondent to substantial competition in interstate commerce.

PAR. 4. The above alleged acts and practices of respondent are all to the prejudice of the public and respondent’s competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”, approved September 26, 1914.

COMPLAINT

Paragraph 1. Morris Shoe Company, Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its principal place of business at 143 Duane Street, city of New York in said State. Said respondent, Morris Shoe Company, Inc., is now and since its incorporation in, to wit, 1933, has been engaged in the sale of shoes, being a wholesaler thereof between and among the different States of the United States. It has sold, and has caused and still causes, the said articles in which it deals, to be transported from its said place of business into and through other States of the United States to various jobbers and retailers located at points in different States of the United States. In the course and conduct of its said business respondent is in competition with other individuals, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the sale and transportation of shoes in commerce between and among the different States of the United States.

Par. 2. The respondent, Morris Shoe Company, Inc., in the course of the conduct of its business as aforesaid, in soliciting the sale of and selling its products in interstate commerce, caused and still causes the words “Dr. Morris High Grade Shoes” to be stamped on or across the sole of a certain brand of the shoes sold by it in interstate commerce. Said respondent also caused and still causes a label to be affixed to said shoes on which appears “Dr. Morris High Grade Shoes”. Said respondent also caused and still causes said shoes to be packed and shipped in cartons on which the said words “Dr. Morris High Grade Shoes” were conspicuously displayed. Said respondent caused and still causes certain order blanks to be distributed to various jobbers and retailers in the different States of the United States on which appeared said words “Dr. Morris High Grade Shoes.” Said respondent further caused certain advertisements to be placed in a certain trade journal having interstate circulation in which the said words “Dr. Morris High Grade Shoes” and the further words “Dr. Hafer Grade” appeared over the trade name “Dr. Morris Shoe Co., Inc.”, the address under which corresponds with that of the respondent corporation, viz, 143 Duane Street, New York City.

That said respondent, Morris Shoe Company, Inc., in the course and conduct of its business as aforesaid, has caused and still causes certain other of its shoes to be sold to various jobbers and retailers, which said shoes respondent plainly labels or designates as:

1. Dr. Chester’s Foot Form Shoes.
2. Dr. Britt’s Foot Mold Shoes.
3. Dr. Best’s Health Shoes.
4. Dr. Best’s Scientifically Constructed Health Shoes.
5. Dr. Hafer—Approved by Dr. Hafer.

Par. 3. In truth and in fact the shoes so marked, stamped, branded, labeled, advertised, and sold, as described in paragraph 2, were not made in accordance with the design and/or under the supervision of a doctor and did not contain special scientific, or orthopedic features which were the result of medical advice or services, nor is such footwear intended to be designed or constructed for the purpose of correcting or alleviating any form of foot trouble or weakness of the feet; all of which has the capacity and tendency to mislead many among the aforesaid trade and among the consuming public into the belief that said shoes had been fashioned or designed by doctors or others with a knowledge of orthopedics or at least had some feature or features not common to the ordinary run of footwear, which feature or features were designated or intended to correct some foot ailment or weakness, or at least afford some relief therefrom.

Par. 4. The respondent, Morris Shoe Company, Inc., in the sale of its said products as aforesaid, ships and delivers to its jobber and retail customers its products so labeled and branded and said jobbers and retailers resell said products so labeled and branded to the consuming public.

Par. 5. There are among the competitors of the respondent, referred to in paragraph 1 hereof, many persons, firms, and corporations who sell at wholesale shoes which contain special features designed and intended to correct and alleviate certain foot ailments and weaknesses. There are also among the competitors of the respondent persons, firms, and corporations who sell at wholesale shoes and footwear manufactured along standard lines and according to standard methods but for which no special feature claims or representations are made, and the use by the respondent of the word "Doctor" or the abbreviation "Dr." in connection or in conjunction with a name or with any other word or words or in any way as a trade name, brand, or designation for its products or in its advertisements of said products, together with other special feature representations, has unfairly diverted trade from and otherwise injured and prejudiced respondent's competitors in interstate commerce.

Par. 6. The above alleged acts and things done by the respondent are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and of the competitors of respondent in interstate commerce, and constitute unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce within the intent and the meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, the Federal Trade Commission issued a complaint on August 15, 1934, upon the respondent, Morris Shoe Company, Inc., a corporation, organized and doing business under the laws of the State of New York, charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act. The respondent, Morris Shoe Company, Inc., through counsel, filed its answer to said complaint, which answer was received by the Commission October 2, 1934. Thereafter testimony and evidence were received, duly recorded, and filed in the office of the Commission, after which the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the complaint, the answer filed by the respondent, testimony and evidence, briefs of counsel for the Commission and respondent, and on oral argument, and the Commission having duly considered the same, and being fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. The respondent, Morris Shoe Company, Inc., is a corporation organized, existing and doing business by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its principal place of business at 143 Duane Street, New York City. Said respondent is now, and has been for several years last past, engaged in the business of selling shoes at wholesale and has sold the same during said time between and among the several States of the United States. Respondent has sold, and still causes the articles in which it deals to be sold and transported from its place of business into and through other States of the United States to various retail dealers located at points in the different States of the United States, other than the State of New York. In the course and conduct of its business, as aforesaid, respondent has been and is in competition with other corporations, partnerships, and individuals engaged in the sale and transportation of shoes at wholesale in interstate commerce.

Morris Augenblick, president of respondent corporation, began a wholesale shoe business in New York City in 1920, and did business under the name of Morris Shoe Company. Subsequently, to wit, in 1932, he incorporated said business. Chester Augenblick, son of the said Morris Augenblick, is secretary and vice president of the said corporation, and Lena Augenblick, wife of the said Morris Augenblick, is a director.

Paragraph 2. Respondent, in the course and conduct of its business as aforesaid, in soliciting the sale of and selling its shoes in interstate commerce, has caused the words "Dr. Morris High Grade Shoes" to be stamped on and across the sole of a certain brand of its shoes.
Findings

Respondent in the course and conduct of its business as aforesaid has also caused a label to be affixed to said shoes on which appears “Dr. Morris High Grade Shoes.” Said shoes are packed and shipped in cartons on which the words “Dr. Morris High Grade Shoes” are conspicuously displayed. Respondent also uses printed order blanks in the course and conduct of its business as aforesaid upon which appear the words “Dr. Morris High Grade Shoes.”

Said respondent also caused other of its shoes to be sold to various dealers as aforesaid, which shoes were plainly labeled and designated as (1) “Dr. Chester’s Foot Form Shoes”, (2) “Dr. Britt’s Foot Mold Shoes”, (3) “Dr. Best’s Health Shoes”, (4) “Dr. Best’s Scientifically Constructed Health Shoes”, and (5) “Dr. Hafer—Approved by Dr. Hafer.”

In the course and conduct of its business as aforesaid respondent caused certain advertisements to be placed in the “Boot and Shoe Recorder”, a trade journal having interstate circulation, in which advertisements the words “Dr. Morris High Grade Shoes”, and the words “Dr. Hafer” appear over the trade name, “Dr. Morris Shoe Co., Inc.”

Respondent in the course and conduct of its business as aforesaid does not furnish the manufacturers of its shoes with any particular design or last, but makes selections of the lasts for the shoes it purchases from the display presented by the manufacturer, or its salesman. Respondent does, however, furnish the manufacturers of its shoes with its labels carrying the word “Dr.”, and instructs said manufacturers to sew said labels on the inside lining of the shoes made for it.

Respondent’s president, Morris Augenblick, conceived the idea of the “Dr.” label after many requests had been made from his customers to furnish them with a “Dr.” brand of shoe, whereupon he named a brand of his shoes “Dr. Morris”, taking the Morris from his Christian name, “Dr. Chester”, after his son Chester Augenblick, “Dr. Britt”, for a salesman employed by respondent named Britton, and “Dr. Hafer” from the name of one of the manufacturers of respondent’s shoes.

The record shows, however, that neither Morris Augenblick, nor his son, Chester, nor the salesman, Britton, nor the manufacturer, Hafer, are doctors, and there is no Dr. Morris, Dr. Chester, Dr. Britt, or Dr. Hafer connected with respondent’s shoe business in any capacity, nor did any doctor by any of these names, or any other name, advise with the respondent as to the manufacture of its shoes.

According to an orthopedic specialist, truly orthopedic shoes have four cardinal principles built into them: (1) the natural shape last; (2) a shank that is sufficiently yielding or flexible to permit free activity on the part of the foot muscles (by shank is meant the middle part of the sole); (3) the inside of the heel should be wedged a little to throw the weight naturally to the outside of the foot, which is the strong weight-bearing part; (4) they should have a straight inside line.

An examination of respondent's shoes (children's shoes) introduced in evidence shows no orthopedic principle, corrective or curative, built into the shoes, although some of them do have reasonably natural shaped lasts and straight inside lines, but these qualities are found in all children's shoes, and may be in any shoe that does not claim to have orthopedic features.

Par. 3. The members of the public are and were of the opinion and belief that a shoe which is labeled or marked "Dr." is one which has been designed or constructed on the advice of a doctor, or one having a special scientific knowledge about the formation of the foot, bones, etc.; that a doctor would know more about the functions of the foot, bones of the foot, and have a better idea of how to build shoes than an ordinary shoemaker, and that when a shoe is marked or labeled with a "Dr." brand their belief would be that it is an orthopedic shoe expected to correct imperfections in feet which were causing trouble.

Par. 4. In truth and in fact the shoes so marked, stamped, branded, or labeled and sold as "Dr." or "Doctor" shoes, as described in paragraph 2 hereof, were not made in accordance with the design or under the supervision of a doctor, and did not contain special, scientific or orthopedic features which were the result of medical advice or services, nor was such footwear designed or constructed for the purpose of correcting or alleviating any foot troubles or weakness of the feet, all of which has a capacity and tendency to mislead many among the aforesaid trade and among the consuming public into the belief that said shoes have been made or were manufactured or designed by doctors or others with special orthopedic knowledge, or at least contain some feature or features not common to the ordinary line of footwear which feature or features were designed or intended to correct some foot ailment or weakness, or at least afford some relief therefrom and caused said public to purchase respondent's shoes under this belief, all of which unfairly diverts trade from and otherwise injures respondent's competitors in interstate commerce.

Par. 5. The aforesaid advertisements, representations, and statements as set forth in paragraphs 2, 3, and 4 hereof made by the respondent, have had the capacity and tendency to divert trade to said respondent from competitors and by such representations and statements substantial competition throughout the various States of the United States has been injured by said respondent to a substantial extent.

CONCLUSION

The acts and practices of respondent under the conditions and circumstances described in the foregoing findings are to the prejudice of the public and respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes".

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

The proceeding coming on for final hearing before the Federal Trade Commission upon the record, including the complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondent, testimony and evidence, briefs of counsel for the Commission and for the respondent, oral argument and findings as to the facts, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being fully advised in the premises—

It is now ordered, That the respondent, Morris Shoe Company, Inc., a corporation, in connection with soliciting the sale of and selling its shoes in interstate commerce, cease and desist from:

Directly or indirectly using, or causing to be used, the word "Doctor", or the abbreviation "Dr.", in connection with the name, or with any word or words, or in any wise as a trade name, brand or designation for its shoes or for the shoes of others, manufactured for it; or in advertising said shoes, or in any way which may have the capacity and tendency to confuse, mislead, and deceive purchasers into the belief that said products are made in accordance with the design or under the supervision of a doctor; or that said shoes contain special scientific or orthopedic features which are the result of medical advice or services; or that said shoes were designed or constructed for the purpose of correcting or alleviating any foot troubles or weakness of the feet, when such is not the fact.

It is further ordered, That respondent, Morris Shoe Company, Inc., shall, within 30 days after the service upon it of a copy of this order, file with the Federal Trade Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with the order to cease and desist hereinabove set forth.

Par. 3. In the course and conduct of the business, advertising and promotion of the business of respondents, as aforesaid, said respondents, individually or jointly, have advertised and made and now advertise and make the following statements and representations, among others, to wit:

methods of competition within the meaning and intent of Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes".

Consent order requiring respondent corporation in connection with soliciting the sale of and selling shoes in interstate commerce, to cease and desist from—

(a) Using or causing to be used the word "Doctor" or the abbreviation "Dr.", in connection with the name, or with any word or words, or in any way as a trade name, brand, or designation for its shoes or for the shoes of others manufactured for it; or in advertising said shoes, or in any way which may have the capacity and tendency to confuse, mislead, and deceive purchasers into the belief that said shoes are made in accordance with the design or under the supervision of a doctor or that said shoes contain special, scientific, or orthopedic features which are the result of medical advice or services or that said shoes were designed or constructed for the purpose of correcting or alleviating any foot trouble or weakness of the feet, when such is not the fact; or

(b) Using or causing to be used the word "manufacturers" or words or abbreviations of similar import in connection or in conjunction with any word or words or in any way as a trade name or designation on its shoes, or for the shoes of others, or in advertising said shoes, or any way which may have the capacity and tendency to confuse, mislead and deceive purchasers into the belief that said shoes are made or manufactured by said respondent, when such is not the fact, and until said respondent actually owns or operates or directly and absolutely controls the factory or other producing, making, or manufacturing equipment and facilities used in the manufacture or production of all such shoes sold and distributed by respondent under said representations.

Mr. Morton Nesmith for the Commission.
Mr. Henry L. Burkitt, of New York City, for respondent.

Complaint

Paragraph 1. The respondent, Crescent Shoe Company, Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its principal place of business at 133 Duane Street, city of New York in said State. Said respondent, the Crescent Shoe Company, Inc., has for the past three years been and still is engaged in the business of selling shoes, being a wholesaler thereof between and among the different States of the United States. Said respondent has caused and still causes its shoes when sold to be shipped from its place of business in the State of New York, to purchasers thereof located in States other than the State of New York.

In the course and conduct of its business as aforesaid, the respondent is and has been in competition with other individuals, partnerships, corporations, and associations likewise engaged in the business of wholesaling shoes and distributing said shoes in commerce between and among the different States of the United States.

PAR. 2. The respondent, Crescent Shoe Company, Inc., in the course and conduct of its business as aforesaid, in soliciting the sale of and selling its shoes in interstate commerce, for the past three years caused the words:

DR. COPLAND'S ARCH-OF-AIR
Trade Mark Reg. A Scientific Shoe

to be stamped on or across the sole of a certain brand of shoes sold by it.

Said respondent for several years during said period also furnished or aided its retail customers in the procurement of a neon sign upon which were the following words:

DR. COPLAND'S ARCH-OF-AIR SHOES
together with a small depiction of a shoe, which was used by said dealers in advertising respondent's shoes.

Said respondent in the course and conduct of its business as aforesaid, and for several years last past, has caused a brand of shoes to be manufactured for it and by it sold in interstate commerce, across or upon the sole of which appeared the following words:

DR. COPLAND'S LIGHT-WEIGHT SHOES

Said respondent during said last named period of time has caused certain cartons to be printed for it in which these last named shoes were packed and shipped, upon which the words "Dr. Copland's Light-Weight Shoes" were conspicuously displayed.

Said respondent during said last named period of time has caused certain cartons to be printed for it in which these last named shoes were packed and shipped, upon which the words "Dr. Copland's Light-Weight 'De Luxe'" were conspicuously displayed.
Said respondent in the course and conduct of its business as aforesaid, further furnished to its retail customers display cards upon which the words “Dr. Copland’s Arch-Of-Air, Trade Mark Reg. A Scientific Shoe” were conspicuously displayed.

Said respondent in the course and conduct of its business as aforesaid, also caused an inside silk label to be placed in certain of its shoes upon which appeared the following words:

Par. 3. The respondent, in the course and conduct of its business as aforesaid, caused and still causes certain invoices, stationery, and billheads to be printed for it upon which appear the words “Manufacturers—Distributors” and upon its billheads appear the words “Manufacturers—Distributors—Women’s Novelty Shoes—Dr. Copland’s and Dr. Gibb’s Arch Shoes”.

Par. 4. In truth and in fact the shoes so marked, stamped, labelled, branded, advertised, and sold as described in paragraph 2 thereof were not made in accordance with the design of or under the supervision of a doctor and did not contain special scientific or orthopedic features which were the result of medical advice or services, or the result of the advice or services of anyone skilled with a special orthopedic knowledge, nor was or is such footwear designed or constructed for the purpose of correcting or alleviating any particular kind of foot trouble, all of which has the tendency and capacity to mislead many among the aforesaid trade and many among the consuming public into the belief that said shoes were fashioned and designed by a doctor or others with special orthopedic knowledge.

Par. 5. In truth and in fact the respondent, Crescent Shoe Company, Inc., is not a manufacturer of shoes, nor does it own, operate, or control any factory wherein its products are made, manufactured, or constructed. Said representation made by respondent on its billheads and invoices that it is a manufacturer is false and misleading and has the tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive purchasers of respondent’s products into the belief that when purchasing from respondent they are dealing with a manufacturer, thereby gaining an advantage and saving the middleman’s profit.

Par. 6. The respondent, the Crescent Shoe Company, Inc., in the sale of its shoes as aforesaid, ships and distributes to its retail dealers, and said retail dealers resell the shoes so labelled and branded to the consuming public.

Par. 7. There are among the competitors of the respondent many persons, firms, corporations, and associations who manufacture and sell at wholesale shoes which contain special features designed to correct and alleviate certain foot ailments and weaknesses. There are also among the competitors of the respondent many persons, firms, associations, and corporations who manufacture and sell at wholesale shoes manufactured along standard lines, over standard lasts and for which no special feature representation or claims are made, and the use by the respondent of the abbreviation “Dr.” in connection or conjunction with the name, brand or designation of its shoes or in the advertisement of same, together with other special feature representations, and the further representation by respondent that it is a manufacturer when it is not, has the capacity and tendency to unfairly divert trade from or otherwise injure and prejudice respondent’s competitors in interstate commerce.

PAR. 8. The above alleged acts and things done by the respondent are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and of the competitors of the respondent in interstate commerce, and constitute unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”, approved September 26, 1914.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding coming on for final hearing by the Federal Trade Commission upon the record, including the complaint of the Commission and respondent’s answer thereto that it waives hearing on the charges set forth in the complaint, refrains from contesting the proceeding, and pursuant to paragraph 2 of Rule V of the Rules of Practice of the Commission, as amended and revised, consents that the Commission may make, enter, and serve upon the respondent without evidence and without findings as to the facts or other intervening procedure, an order to cease and desist from the method or methods of competition alleged in the complaint; and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being fully advised in the premises—

It is now ordered, That the respondent, Crescent Shoe Company, Inc., a corporation, in connection with soliciting the sale of and selling shoes in interstate commerce, cease and desist from:

(1) Directly or indirectly using or causing to be used the word “Doctor” or the abbreviation “Dr.” in connection with the name, or with any word or words, or in any way as a trade name, brand, or designation for its shoes or for the shoes of others manufactured for it; or in advertising said shoes, or in any way which may have the capacity and tendency to confuse, mislead and deceive purchangers into the belief that said shoes are made in accordance with the design or under the supervision of a doctor or that said shoes contain special, scientific or orthopedic features which are the result of medical advice or services or that said shoes were designed or constructed for the purpose of correcting or alleviating any foot trouble or weakness of the feet, when such is not the fact.

(2) Directly or indirectly using or causing to be used the word "manufacturers" or words or abbreviations of similar import in connection or in conjunction with any word or words or in any way as a trade name or designation on its shoes, or for the shoes of others, or in advertising said shoes, or any way which may have the capacity and tendency to confuse, mislead, and deceive purchasers into the belief that said shoes are made or manufactured by said respondent, when such is not the fact, and until said respondent actually owns or operates or directly and absolutely controls the factory or other producing, making, or manufacturing equipment and facilities used in the manufacture or production of all such shoes sold and distributed by respondent under said representations.

It is further ordered, That the respondent, Crescent Shoe Company, Inc., a corporation, shall within 60 days after service upon it of a copy of this order file with the Federal Trade Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with the order to cease and desist insofar as its advertising matter is concerned and insofar as the use of the word "manufacturer" is concerned.

It is further ordered, That the respondent, Crescent Shoe Company, Inc., shall within 90 days after service upon it of a copy of this order file with the Commission a partial report in writing set-ing forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with the order to cease and desist insofar as the stamp or label for its shoes are concerned.

It is further ordered, That the respondent, Crescent Shoe Company, Inc., shall within 180 days after service upon it of a copy of this order, file with the Federal Trade Commission a final and complete report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with the order to cease and desist here-inabove set forth.
In the Matter of

UNITED ARTISTS AND ENGRAVERS GUILD, INC.

Where a corporation engaged in designing, selling, and distributing stationery for social and business purposes, including invitations, announcements, calling cards, letterheads, envelopes, and similar products—

(a) Included the word “Engravers” in its corporate name and featured and made use of the same and such words as “Process Engraved” and “Engraving” in newspaper and magazine advertisements, on price lists, sample books, catalogs, pamphlets, and trade literature distributed to its representatives and agents for display to, and use in soliciting the general public and in general business correspondence, through such statements on sample books, catalogs, and samples as “United Artists and Engravers Guild”, “De Luxe Process Engraved Stationery”, or “Genuine Steel Dye Engraved Stationery”, “Our Process Engraving Plant”, notwithstanding fact raised letter effect on its said stationery, which so closely resembled genuine engraving that inexpert persons could not distinguish between the two, did not constitute genuine engraving, i. e., stationery with words or designs raised from the general plane of the surface through application thereto under pressure of inked metal plates, upon which had been engraved or incised said words, etc., but was produced through a process involving application of chemical and heat to flat, wet printing, and it was not engaged in the business of engraving and was not an engraver as understood by trade and public generally;

(b) Used word “Manufacturers” in referring to itself through such statements in its said advertising and trade literature as “Designers and Manufacturers”, “Our • • • Plant”, “World’s Largest Producers”, and set forth upon such trade literature depiction of a large factory or manufacturing plant with its said corporate name across the entire front thereof, notwithstanding fact that it did not own or operate any plant or machinery for manufacture of stationery products produced by its aforesaid method, or own or occupy the building depicted to such an extent or in such a manner as to justify use of said depiction, but caused its said products to be produced for it, on a cost plus basis, by two plants under oral contracts and arrangements under which, among other things, it sometimes paid certain of the expenses of the producing plant, designed the copy, supervised actual production, and exercised control over process of manufacture by such plants, which, however, supplied and controlled employees, and owned all or most of equipment used, and more than half of the output of which was for others;

With tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive trade and substantial portion of the purchasing public, many of whom decidedly prefer the much more costly genuine engraved stationery to that produced by the above described process, or prefer to deal directly with the manufacturer rather than with selling agency or middleman and especially in case of such special order products as herein concerned, in the belief that in so dealing they secure closer prices and superior quality, and to induce purchase by them of a sub-
Complaint

Substantial quantity of its said products in the belief that said representations and statements were true, and with effect of unfairly diverting a substantial volume of trade to it from competitors, many of whom make and sell engraved or other stationery and properly represent themselves as manufacturers thereof, others of whom deal in such stationery without in any way misrepresenting themselves as the makers thereof, and many of whom make or sell products produced by a process similar to that used by it without in any way representing their said product as the more costly engraving, and with capacity and tendency so to divert, to the substantial injury of substantial competition in commerce:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the conditions and circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. John W. Addison, trial examiner.

Mr. J. T. Welch for the Commission.

Bussian & Debolt, of Chicago, Ill., for respondent.

Complaint

Pursuant to an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that United Artists and Engravers Guild, Inc., a corporation, hereafter designated as respondent, is now, and has been, using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent is now, and has been at all times mentioned herein, a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Illinois with its office and principal place of business at 8 South Dearborn Street, city of Chicago, in said State, and is now, and has been at all times mentioned herein, engaged in the business of selling and distributing stationery for social and business purposes, including invitations, announcements, calling cards, letterheads, envelopes, greeting cards, Christmas cards and similar products, in commerce as hereinafter set out.

Par. 2. Said respondent, being engaged in business as aforesaid, causes said stationery products as hereinabove described, when sold, to be transported from its principal office and place of business in the State of Illinois to the purchasers thereof located in various cities in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and there is now, and has been at all times mentioned herein, a constant current of trade and commerce in said stationery so sold and distributed by respondent, between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of its said business, respondent is now, and has been, in substantial competition with individuals, firms and corporations engaged in the business of printing, selling, and distributing stationery, as herein described, for social and business purposes, in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and particularly with individuals, firms, and corporations engaged in the business of engraving and selling engraved stationery for social and business purposes in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. In the course of the operation of said business, and for the purpose of inducing individuals, firms, and corporations to purchase said stationery products hereinabove described, respondent has, from time to time, caused advertisements to be inserted in newspapers and magazines of general circulation throughout the United States, and has had printed and has circulated to its agents and representatives throughout the various States of the United States, through the United States mails, price lists, sample books, pamphlets, and other advertising literature. All of said price lists, sample books, and advertising literature were intended and designed by respondent to be used by its agents and representatives for display to the general purchasing public and were and are now used by said agents and representatives in securing orders for said stationery and in selling said stationery products to the consuming public. In all of the price lists, sample books, pamphlets, and advertising literature herein referred to respondent has caused its corporate name, United Artists and Engravers Guild, together with other statements hereinafter detailed, to be prominently and conspicuously displayed.

De Luxe Process Engraved Stationery Designers and Manufacturers Greeting Cards Advertising Specialties United Artists and Engravers Guild

The sample book above referred to is forwarded, as aforesaid, by respondent to its various agents and representatives throughout the various States in response to their inquiries submitted in answer to the advertisements inserted in newspapers and magazines of general circulation throughout the United States.

On the inside of the cover and on the samples themselves there is printed, in connection with the price quotations indicated on said samples, the following: "process engraved" and "processed engraved." In the various catalogs, circulars, sample books, and pamphlets distributed as aforesaid by respondent, there appear numerous statements wherein the respondent refers to the process by which the letters, words, or designs are printed on said stationery as "process engraved" or "processed engraved."

On the front cover of another sample book appears the following:

Genuine Designers and United Steel Die Manufacturers Artists and Engraved Greeting Cards Engravers Stationery Advertising Guild Specialties

This sample book is not distributed by respondent to all of its agents and representatives but is distributed only to certain selected agents and representatives. For this reason it is not exhibited by all of the agents and representatives of respondent when attempting to secure orders for, or make sales of the aforementioned stationery products sold and distributed by respondent.

Further, respondent has prepared and circulated among certain of its leading agents and representatives, for the purpose of inducing individuals, firms and corporations to purchase said stationery products hereinabove described, a certain portfolio of samples designated by it as a "de luxe portfolio."

The front page of this so-called "de luxe portfolio" reads as follows:

UNITED ARTISTS AND ENGRAVERS GUILD

The Chicago sales offices of the Guild are located at 8 South Dearborn Street in the heart of Chicago's famous loop business district. Our process engraving plant, occupying a city block in length, is located on the south side, close to transportation facilities and sources of supplies.

UNITED ARTISTS AND ENGRAVERS GUILD

Par. 5. The use of the word "Engravers" in respondent's corporate name, as indicated on the cover of both sample books herein referred to, and on the facade of the building illustrated in the so-called "de luxe portfolio" the use of the words "process engraving", "processed engraving" and "manufacturers" in all of said sample books, price lists, pamphlets, and other advertising literature as herein set out, together with similar words, as well as references to said respondent’s manufacturing plant as indicated in said “de luxe portfoilio” and elsewhere, purport to be descriptive of respondent’s business and the products sold by it.

Respondent does not own or operate any plant or machinery for the manufacture of stationery products produced either by the method designated by respondent as “process engraving” or by the method of genuine engraving; and does not own, operate or occupy the building picturized in the above mentioned “de luxe portfolio.”
The only office and place of business of respondent is located at 8 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, and this office is not equipped for the manufacture or production of engraved or printed stationery products.

Respondent is not engaged in the business of “engraving” and is not an “engraver” as those terms are understood by the trade and the public generally and is not engaged in the business of printing the product called by it “process” or “processed” engraving.

Respondent is engaged solely in the business of selling and distributing stationery products such as letterheads, envelopes, calling cards, invitations, announcements and greeting cards that have been manufactured by others.

The products designated by respondent as “process engraved” stationery, as illustrated in the said catalog or sample books herein-above first referred to, have not been engraved or produced as a result of an engraving process according to the trade and public understanding of the terms “engraved” and “engraving.” The products displayed in said sample book, herein first referred to, are produced by a process which includes the placing of letters, words or designs upon stationery by means of inked type or cuts, commonly designated as flat printing, and the application to such stationery, while the ink is wet, of a chemical in powder form. The said stationery is subsequently heated or baked and the chemical fuses with the ink so as to present a raised letter effect that closely resembles genuine engraving in some of its characteristics. Persons who are not experts cannot distinguish between products produced by this process and products produced by genuine engraving.

PAR. 6. The word “engraving”, as it is used in the graphic arts, may be applied either to an engraved intaglio plate upon which letters, words or designs have been incised or cut, or to impressions made from such a plate. Such plates are cut or incised by hand, by machine, by etching with acid, by a transfer from other engravings and by other means, but in all cases the letters, words or designs so to be produced upon stationery are cut below the surface of the plate. To make impressions from such a plate the ink is applied, then the plate is wiped so that the ink remains only in the lines cut below the surface. The inked plate is then put upon a piece of stationery or article to be engraved and pressure is applied sufficient to force the surface of the stationery into the lines cut in the plate, causing the ink in such lines to adhere to the paper on which the impression is to be made.

Par. 7. The words "engraving" and "engraved", when used in connection with, or descriptive of, business or social stationery, mean, and the trade and consuming public understand, and for many years have understood, them to mean that the stationery products, so being referred to or described, contain letters, words or designs which are raised from the general plane of the stationery surface, and are in relief, and are the result of the application, under pressure, of metal plates which have been specially engraved, cut or carved for, and are used in, the production of such stationery by the process more particularly detailed herein in paragraph 6.

Par. 8. The cost of producing genuine engraved stationery greatly exceeds the cost of producing stationery of like stock, grade or character produced by the process employed by the manufacturer of the product sold by respondent, and a substantial portion of the purchasing public has indicated, and has, a decided preference for engraved stationery over stationery produced by the process described in paragraph 5 or any similar process.

A substantial portion of the consuming public prefer to deal direct with the manufacturer of products being purchased, especially when the product being purchased is manufactured only on special order; as is the case with stationery products. Such purchasers believe that they secure closer prices and superior quality in dealing direct with the manufacturer rather than a selling agency or middleman.

Par. 9. The use by respondent of the word "engravers" in its corporate name, and the words "process engraved", "processed engraved", "engraved" and "manufacturers" as set out in paragraph 4 hereof, either in describing the product sold by it or designating its business in its advertisements in newspapers and magazines, circular letters of solicitation, catalogs, price lists, sample books, pamphlets, folders and other advertising literature, and in its general business correspondence; and the use by respondent of the picturization of a manufacturing plant bearing the words "United Artists and Engravers Guild" across its facade in describing and designating the nature, size and location of respondent's business in offering for sale or selling its stationery products, was and is calculated to, and had and now has the tendency and capacity to, and did and now does mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief:
(1) That respondent owns or operates an "engraving" company and is engaged in the business of producing "engraved" stationery;

(2) That the letters, words or designs contained upon the said stationery designated by respondent as "process engraved" or "processed engraved" and offered for sale and sold by the respondent were and are "engraved" and are the result of the engraving process described in paragraph 6;

(3) That respondent owns and operates a factory located in the city of Chicago, State of Illinois, in which factory is produced by respondent the stationery products sold by it;

(4) That they are securing for themselves the advantage of close prices and superior quality resulting from purchasing direct from a manufacturer.

Further, the use of the words "engraved", "process engraved" or "processed engraved", "manufacturers" and "engravers", as well as the use of the word "engravers" in respondent's corporate name, in said advertising literature hereinabove referred to, especially in the sample books, price lists and general public correspondence, and the placing of said advertising literature, containing said words, in the hands of agents, representatives and dealers enables unscrupulous agents, representatives and dealers to mislead and deceive customers into the erroneous belief that respondent owns and operates an engraving company, that it is engaged in the business of producing engraved stationery products, that the stationery products offered for sale and sold by the respondent, designated as "process engraved" or "processed engraved", are genuine engraved products, and that the respondent is a manufacturer of all of said products sold and distributed by it. As a direct consequence of the mistaken and erroneous belief induced by the acts, advertisements and representations of respondent, hereinabove detailed, a substantial number of the consuming public has purchased a substantial volume of respondent's stationery products, with the result that substantial injury has been done to substantial competition in commerce among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 10. There are among respondent's competitors, many who produce "engraved" stationery products which are designed and intended for business and social purposes, and who sell such "engraved" stationery products, when so produced, and transport them or cause them to be transported, to, into and through other States of the United States, to the purchasers thereof at their respective points of location; there are others among respondent's competitors who manufacture and sell in commerce as aforesaid, stationery products designed and intended for business and social purposes, but who do not manufacture or sell "engraved" stationery products and who do not, by any means or in any manner, hold themselves out, or represent themselves to be manufacturers of, or dealers in, "engraved" stationery products; and the alleged acts, practices and representations of the respondent divert a substantial volume of trade from, and otherwise prejudice and injure a substantial number of said competitors.

Par. 11. The above and foregoing acts, practices and representations of the respondent have been, and are, all to the prejudice of the public and respondent's competitors as aforesaid, and have been, and are, unfair methods of competition within the meaning and intent of Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission issued and served its complaint upon the respondent herein, United Artists and Engravers Guild, Inc., a corporation organized and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Illinois, charging said respondent with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act.

The respondent, having entered its appearance and having filed its answer herein, testimony and documentary evidence were received in the course of a hearing at Chicago, Ill., August 27, 1935, before John W. Addison, examiner of the Federal Trade Commission, theretofore duly appointed for such purpose, and the respondent having, in the course of said hearing, entered into a stipulation whereby it was stipulated and agreed that a statement of facts signed and executed by respondent, and its counsel, and J. T. Welch, attorney for the Federal Trade Commission, subject to the approval of the Commission, are the facts in this proceeding and shall be taken by the Federal Trade Commission as such and in lieu of testimony before the Commission in support of the charges stated in the complaint, or in opposition thereto, and that said Commission may proceed further upon said statement of facts, stating its findings as to the facts and conclusion thereon and entering its order disposing of the proceeding;

And, thereupon, this proceeding came on for final hearing and the respondent having waived the filing of briefs and the hearing of oral argument herein before the Commission, and said Commission having approved and accepted said stipulation as to the facts and having duly considered the record and being now fully advised in the premises, makes this its findings as to the facts and conclusion:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. The respondent, United Artists and Engravers Guild, Inc., is a corporation organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Illinois. The respondent maintains its office and principal place of business in the city of Chicago in said State. The respondent corporation is now, and has been since the date of incorporation in 1933, engaged in the business of designing, selling and distributing stationery for social and business purposes, including invitations, announcements, calling cards, letterheads, envelopes and similar products. Since prior to January 1, 1935, all of the stock of the corporation has been held equally by Harry Cohn and Elwood W. Ankrum.

Par. 2. From the date of its incorporation until the present time the respondent has caused its said stationery products herein described, when sold, to be transported from its principal office and place of business in the State of Illinois to the purchasers thereof located in various cities in other States of the United States. There has been at all times since the incorporation a constant and substantial current of trade and commerce in said stationery products sold by the respondent between and among the various States of the United States, and the respondent is now, and has been, in substantial competition with individuals, firms and corporations engaged in the business of printing or engraving, selling and distributing stationery of like kind and character in commerce among and between the various States of the United States.

Par. 3. In the course of the operation of said business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of the products sold by it, respondent has caused advertisements to be inserted in newspapers and magazines of general circulation throughout the United States, and has printed and circulated to its agents and representatives throughout the various States of the United States, price lists, sample books, pamphlets, and other advertising literature. All of said advertisements inserted in newspapers and said advertising literature distributed to respondent's representatives were designed by the respondent to be used by said agents and representatives for display to the general purchasing public and were so used by said representatives in securing orders for a substantial quantity of said stationery and in selling said stationery products to the consuming public.

In all of the advertisements, price lists, sample books, catalogs and other pamphlets the respondent has caused its corporate name, United Artists and Engravers Guild, Inc., together with other statements hereinafter detailed, to be prominently and conspicuously displayed.

On the front cover of one sample book appears the following:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>DeLuxe</th>
<th>Designers and Manufacturers</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Process Engraved Stationery</td>
<td>Greeting Cards</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Advertising Specialties</td>
<td>United Artists and Engravers Guild</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

On the inside of the cover and on the samples themselves there are printed, in connection with the price quotations indicated on said samples, the words "process engraved" and "processed engraved." In various catalogs, circulars, sample books and pamphlets distributed as aforesaid by the respondent there appear numerous statements wherein the respondent refers to the process by which the letters, words or designs are printed on said stationery as "process engraved" or "processed engraved."

In connection with the distribution and sale of engraved stationery respondent has caused catalogs and other advertising literature containing the same language as hereinbefore set out, except that the words "genuine steel die engraved stationery" are substituted for the words "deluxe process engraved stationery", to be distributed to certain of its agents and displayed to the consuming public generally.

Respondent has also prepared and circulated to certain of its leading agents and representatives, for the purpose of inducing the consuming public to purchase products similar to the samples therein displayed, a certain portfolio of samples designated by it as "deluxe portfolio." The front page of this so-called "deluxe portfolio" reads as follows:

UNITED ARTISTS AND ENGRAVERS GUILD

The Chicago sales offices of the Guild are located at 8 South Dearborn Street in the heart of Chicago's famous loop business district. Our process engraving plant, occupying a city block in length, is located on the south side, close to transportation facilities and sources of supplies.

On the bottom of the front page there appears a picturization of a large factory or manufacturing plant. There appear, in large letters, across the entire front facade of the building picturized, the following words:

On or about January 15, 1935, the reading matter on the front cover of the sample book formerly describing the product sold by the respondent as “process engraved stationery” was changed so as to designate the product as “embossed stationery.” The reading matter was also changed so as to eliminate the word “Manufacturers.” Since that date the words “process engraved” and “processed engraved” do not appear at any place in said sample book. On the same date the reading matter on the front cover of the sample book used in the sale of “genuine steel die engraved stationery” was changed so as to eliminate therefrom the word “manufacturers.” Subsequent to January 15, 1935, but prior to the commencement of the hearings held in Chicago, Ill., on August 27th, respondent changed the reading matter appearing on the front page of the so-called “deluxe portfolio” so that the words “genuine process engraved” were eliminated and the word “embossed” substituted therefor. Certain additional reading matter referring to respondent’s process engraving plant and a picturization of a large plant bearing respondent’s corporate name across the entire front facade of the building picturized has been obliterated by pasting over said reading matter and picturization a paper upon which appear the corporate name and address of the respondent.

Par. 4. The words “engraving” and “engraved”, when used either alone or in conjunction with other words, in connection with or descriptive of business or social stationery, mean, and the trade and consuming public have for many years understood them to mean, that the stationery products, so being referred to or described, contain letters, words, or designs which are raised from the general plane of stationery surface and are in relief and are printed on to said stationery as a result of the application under pressure of inked metal plates which have been especially engraved or incised with said words, letters or designs.

Par. 5. The products designated by respondent as “processed engraved stationery” have not been engraved or produced as a result of an engraving process according to the trade and public understanding of the terms “engraved” and “engraving.” The products displayed in said sample book labeled “Deluxe process engraved stationery” are produced by a process which includes the placing of letters, words, or designs upon stationery by means of inked type, electrotypes or cuts, commonly designated as flat printed, and the application to such stationery, while the ink is wet, of a chemical in powder form. The said stationery is subsequently heated or baked and the chemical fuses with the ink so as to present a raised letter effect that closely resembles genuine engraving in some of its characteristics. Persons who are not experts cannot distinguish between products produced by this process and products produced by genuine engraving.
PAR. 6. During the major portion of the year 1934 the so-called "process engraving" sold by the respondent was actually produced at the plant of the Skill Craft Company located at 1508 West Van Buren Street, Chicago, Ill., and the "steel plate engraving" was produced at the plant of the Atlas Engraving Company, Chicago, Ill.

The method of production followed by the respondent was one whereby it entered into oral working agreements or contracts with the producers named who owned equipment and other facilities for the actual production of the stationery products sold by the respondent. Under these several oral contracts respondent sometimes paid certain portions of the operating expenses, including rentals incurred by said producer when the producer could not meet said expenses, designed all of the copy used by the producer in supplying orders for the respondent, supervised the actual production of the products and exercised control over the process of manufacture. All of the oral agreements or contracts provided for the work to be done by the producer on a cost plus basis. The employees actually producing the finished product were employed by the producer and were responsible to him. The majority of the equipment used in the production was owned by the various producers but some equipment was actually owned by the respondent. The sale and distribution of the manufactured product was entirely and absolutely controlled by it. During the last four months of the year 1934 a considerable portion of respondent's work, approximately 40 percent, was produced at the plant of the Murray Engraving Company under similar oral contracts providing for the actual production of the stationery by the Murray Engraving Company on a cost plus basis. All the stationery products sold and distributed by the respondent were manufactured under similar oral agreements or contracts and were produced by the actual manufacturer thereof on a cost plus basis.

In January 1935 Harry Cohn, owner of 50 percent of the stock of respondent corporation, became employed by the Murray Engraving Company and has since that date been continuously so employed. Upon the employment of the said Harry Cohn by the Murray Engraving Company, the respondent brought to an end all of its contracts with other producers of stationery products and entered into an oral agreement or contract with the Murray Engraving Company. Under the terms of this contract the Murray Engraving Company, under the supervision of the said Harry Cohn, became the sole producer of the products sold by the respondent. As a result of this contract the respondent moved what equipment it had to the plant of the Murray Engraving Company and moved its offices, with the exception of its sales office, to the plant of the Murray Engraving Company and there became a tenant of the Murray Engraving Company. Respondent thereupon agreed to pay 25 percent of the overhead expense of operating the combined office of the two corporations. The respondent designed all of its samples, selected its own paper and material and had all of its printing and engraving done in said plant with the equipment owned by the Murray Engraving Company under the direct supervision of the said Harry Cohn.

The printing and engraving was done by the Murray Engraving Company and its own employees on a basis of cost plus 10 percent. This oral agreement or contract was, on or about the 20th day of February 1935 incorporated into a written contract. The written contract discloses that the respondent, at the time of the execution thereof, owned no facilities for producing stationery and was operating solely as a sales organization. The written contract provided that the Murray Engraving Company would produce all printing ordered by the respondent on a basis of cost plus 10 percent, would give the orders of respondent preference over orders received from other parties and would use the material directed by respondent. Harry Cohn is paid a regular weekly salary for his part-time services to the Murray Engraving Company and is also paid a weekly salary by the respondent for his part-time services. All of the stationery products now sold by the respondent are produced by the Murray Engraving Company on a cost plus 10 percent basis.

The Murray Engraving Company has always continued to carry on its own business in addition to producing work for the respondent, the work produced for said respondent being only about 40 percent of the total output of said plant.

On the 29th day of March 1935 the two stockholders of respondent corporation entered into a written agreement with the Murray Engraving Company, its stockholders and the creditors of said Murray Engraving Company. Under the terms of this agreement a reorganization of the Murray Engraving Company was to be effected. The majority of the common stock of the said Murray Engraving Company after the reorganization, was to become vested in the two owners of all of the stock of respondent corporation. The agreement also provided for the payment of the debts of the Murray Engraving Company to the amount of in excess of $100,000 by the issuance of preferred stock to said creditors, said preferred stock to be redeemable under certain conditions fully set forth. This agreement has not been declared operative insofar as the division of stock is concerned and the transfer of said common stock to the owners of the stock of respondent corporation. The two owners of the stock of respondent corporation now own no stock whatever in the Murray Engraving Company.

Par. 7. Respondent does not own or operate any plant or machinery for the manufacture of stationery products produced by the method designated by respondent as "process engraving", which is described in paragraph 5 hereof, or by the method of genuine engraving, which is described in paragraph 4 hereof, and does not own or occupy the building picturized in the above-mentioned "deluxe portfolio" to such an extent or in such a manner as to justify its use of the picturization of said building, either alone or with the corporate name of respondent prominently displayed on facade thereof, in advertisements, catalogs, or advertising literature, or in any manner whatever.

Respondent is not engaged in the business of engraving and is not an engraver as those terms are understood by the trade and the public generally, and is not engaged in the business of printing the product formerly called by it "process" or "processed" engraving and now called by it "embossed" stationery.

Par. 8. There are among the competitors of respondent many who manufacture and sell engraved stationery, or stationery produced by some other process of printing, in commerce as herein set out, and who rightfully and lawfully represent that they do manufacture said product. There are others among the competitors of respondent who do not manufacture the engraved stationery, or stationery produced by some other process of printing, that is sold by them in interstate commerce and who do not advertise or in any way represent that they are the manufacturer thereof. There are also among the competitors of respondent many who manufacture or sell stationery products produced by a process similar to that used in the production of the stationery formerly designated by respondent as "process engraved stationery" and who in no way represent that said product is produced by an engraving process.

Par. 9. The cost of producing genuine engraved stationery greatly exceeds the cost of producing stationery produced by the process described in paragraph 5 hereof, and a substantial portion of the purchasing public has indicated, and has, a decided preference for engraved stationery over stationery produced by the process described in paragraph 5 or any similar process.

A substantial portion of the consuming public prefers to deal direct with the manufacturer of products being purchased, especially when the product being purchased is manufactured only on special order as is the case with stationery products. Such purchasers believe that they secure closer prices and superior quality in dealing direct with the manufacturer rather than with a selling agency or middleman.

Par. 10. The false and misleading statements on the part of the respondent, in the marketing of the product sold by it, to the effect (1) that it is the manufacturer of the product sold and distributed by it; (2) that it is engaged in the business of producing genuine steel die engraving; (3) that it owns, operates, or controls a plant for the manufacture of stationery products produced either by an engraving process or any other process; and (4) that the products sold by it under the designation "process engraved" or "processed engraved" are actually produced by an engraving process, are, and were, made for the purpose, and have, and have had, a tendency and a capacity to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public and the trade and to cause them to purchase a substantial quantity of the products sold by the respondent under the belief that the said representations and statements were true.

Par. 11. The false and misleading statements and representations used by the respondent have had, and now have, a tendency and capacity to, and do, unfairly divert a substantial volume of trade from all classes of competitors of the respondent as herein set out.

Substantial quantities of the stationery products distributed and sold by the respondent are sold to purchasers on account of the erroneous beliefs induced by the false and misleading representations on the part of the respondent, and, as a result, substantial injury has been done by the respondent to substantial competition in commerce among and between the several States of the United States.

CONCLUSION

The acts and practices of the respondent as herein set out, under the conditions and circumstances described in the foregoing findings of facts, are all to the prejudice of the public and respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been duly heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon a complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondent, testimony in support of the charges of said complaint and a stipulation entered into between the respondent herein, United Artists and Engravers Guild, Inc., a corporation, and its counsel, Baussian and DeDolt, and counsel for this Commission, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."
UNITED ARTISTS AND ENGRAVERS GUILD, INC.

Order

Now, therefore, it is hereby ordered, That the respondent, United Artists and Engravers Guild, Inc., a corporation, its officers, agents, representatives, and employees, in connection with the distribution, offering for sale and sale of stationery products, in interstate commerce, forthwith cease and desist from:

(1) Using the word "engravers" in its corporate name, business signs, advertising matter, catalogs and trade literature, until and unless it actually owns, operates or controls the plant in which all the stationery products produced by a process of printing said stationery from inked metal plates into which the words, letters and designs have been incised, and sold by it, are actually produced;

(2) Using the words "process engraved" or the words "engraved" and "engraving", either alone or in conjunction with any other word, or words, in its advertisements and advertising literature, catalogs and general business correspondence distributed or displayed to the public in the several States of the United States, to designate or describe stationery sold by it, the lettering, inscriptions or designs on which have been printed from inked type faces, electrotypes or similar devices, and which stationery does not have printed thereon inked impressions from engraved plates or dies, and which lettering, inscriptions or designs have been given a raised letter effect by the application of a chemical in powder form to the ink while it was still wet, then subjecting same to heat, thereby causing the chemical so applied to fuse with the wet ink;

(3) Using the word "manufacturers", or words of similar import, in its advertisements and advertising literature, catalogs and general business correspondence distributed or displayed to the public in the several States of the United States, until and unless it actually owns, operates and controls a plant wherein all of the stationery products sold by it are actually manufactured or produced;

(4) Representing its ownership, occupation and control of a plant for the manufacture of the products sold by it, by use of picturizations of manufacturing plants with respondent's corporate name appearing thereon, until and unless it actually owns, operates and controls such plant thus pictured.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall within 90 days after the service upon him of this order file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with the order to cease and desist hereinabove set forth.
In the Matter of
L. & C. Mayers Co., Inc.

Complaint, Findings, and Order in Regard to the Alleged Violation of Sec. 5 of an Act of Congress Approved Sept. 26, 1914

Where a corporation engaged as diamond importer and dealer in jewelry, silverware, diamonds, leather goods, and kindred items, described itself on and in its catalogs as wholesale jeweler, and set forth therein, in accordance with jobbers' and wholesalers' practice, purported list prices and dealer discounts, with intent of inducing purchasing public to buy such articles from it as and from a wholesaler selling retail trade at dealer prices;

The facts being that said supposed list prices did not, discounted as set forth, represent wholesale prices of articles involved, but were higher than those usually charged by wholesale jewelers; well over half its total sales were (1) to industrial concerns, public utilities, banks and other similar organizations, purchasing either for their own use and not in quantity lots, or for resale, for the benefit of their employees, and (2) to mutual buying clubs of fraternities, colleges or universities, and to employees of industrial organizations, purchasing in such way to obtain price and other benefits of such buying, not for resale but for the use of organizations or their members; and it did not in any substantial way solicit the retail jewelry trade by catalogs or salesmen, manufactured less than 10 percent of all the jewelry handled by it, and did not constitute a wholesale jeweler, i. e., seller to the trade for resale, and, excepting only sales to industrial concerns and similar organizations purchasing in quantity lots and not for resale but for their own use, seldom, if ever, seller to the purchasing public;

With effect of misleading and deceiving purchasing public into the belief that the products offered and sold by it were sold at wholesale prices, and that those who bought such articles from it purchased at such prices and saved retailer's profit, and inducing such purchases in reliance upon such erroneous belief, and with capacity and tendency so to do and unfairly divert trade to it from competitors who truthfully describe their status and their prices, to the substantial injury of substantial competition in interstate commerce:

Heid, That such acts and practices, under the conditions and circumstances set forth, were to the prejudice of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. Edward M. Averill, trial examiner.

Mr. Robert H. Winn and Mr. Edward L. Smith for the Commission.

Mr. John C. Gall, of Washington, D. C., and Mr. Sidney Newborg and White & Case, of New York City, for respondent.
Acting in the public interest, pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled, "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission charges that L. & C. Mayers Co., Inc., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent has been and now is using unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of said Act and states its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its principal office and place of business in the city of New York in said State. Respondent is now and for more than two years last past has been engaged in the business of importing for resale diamonds and in purchasing for resale from manufacturers or jobbers located in this country, jewelry, silverware, diamonds, clocks, leather goods, and kindred items. The respondent operates one factory in New York in which it manufactures for sale certain jewelry. The jewelry manufactured by respondent amounts to less than 10 percent of the jewelry handled by it. The respondent is engaged in a mail order business by means of which it sells the products so imported, purchased in this country or manufactured by respondent, direct to the consuming public. Respondent causes the said products when sold to be transported from its place of business in the State of New York into and through other States of the United States to the purchasers thereof located in the State or States other than the State of New York. In the course and conduct of its business respondent is in competition with other corporations and with partnerships, firms and individuals engaged in the sale and distribution of similar articles of merchandise in commerce between and among various States of the United States.

Paragraph 2. In the course and conduct of its business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, the respondent in and about soliciting the sale of and selling its products as aforesaid has published or caused to be published and has distributed or caused to be distributed to purchasers or prospective purchasers of respondent's products, located in various States of the United States, catalogs in which the products offered for sale and sold by respondent are pictorially and descriptively represented. On the covers of these catalogs and at various places in the said catalogs, the respondent refers to itself as "wholesale jewelers."

A wholesaler is one who sells to the trade but never to the ultimate consumer of an individual unit as such. It is the character of sales to the trade that marks and distinguishes a wholesaler. In truth and in fact the respondent is not a wholesaler but is a mail order house engaged in selling to the consuming public.

Par. 3. In the course and conduct of its business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, the respondent, in connection with the offering for sale and sale of its products in interstate commerce under a trade status designated by it "wholesaler", has quoted in connection with each of the items listed in its catalogs heretofore referred to certain figures termed by the respondent "list prices." An insert in the said catalogs advises prospective customers, members of the consuming public, that the said "list prices" of all items in respondent’s catalogs are "subject to a dealer’s discount of 50 percent and an additional cash discount of 6 percent" on the remaining 50 percent making a total discount from the "list price" of 53 percent. The term "list price" is a trade term used by manufacturers, jobbers or wholesalers in connection with sales to the retail trade. The term "list price" as used by respondent and the discounts therefrom are used by the respondent for the purpose of inducing the consuming public to buy its merchandise under the belief that it is a wholesaler engaged in selling to the retail dealer trade and that the consuming public is buying from respondent at retail dealer prices. In truth and in fact the so-called "list prices" are not "list prices" but are figures that will, when reduced by the discount of 53 percent, be prices which will show the price of respondent’s merchandise offered for sale to the members of the consuming public. The said prices at which the respondent’s goods are sold to the consuming public are not wholesale prices of such articles but are the usual and customary prices charged by retail dealers to members of the consuming public.

Par. 4. The aforesaid practices of respondent have had and have the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive the purchasing public into the belief that the products offered for sale and sold by it are sold at wholesale prices and that such persons as purchase such articles from the respondent may buy at the wholesale prices and save the retail dealer’s profit and to induce the purchase of the respondent’s products by members of the purchasing public in reliance upon such erroneous belief.

The aforesaid practices of respondent have had and have each of them has had and has the capacity and tendency unfairly to divert trade to the respondent from competitors who truthfully describe their status and prices at which their products are regularly sold.

Par. 5. The above named acts and practices of respondent are to the prejudice of the public and of respondent’s competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission, on May 18, 1932, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding against respondent L. & C. Mayers Co., Inc. After the filing by respondent of its answer to said complaint, testimony and evidence were received, duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceeding came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the said answer, testimony and evidence, and a stipulation entered into May 10, 1933 between the chief counsel of the Commission and counsel for the respondent, and briefs of counsel for the Commission and counsel for the respondent, but without oral argument (counsel for respondent having waived oral argument). Subsequent thereto, upon the application of the chief counsel of the Commission, the proceeding was ordered reopened for the purpose of affording counsel for the Commission opportunity to introduce further testimony and evidence, and for the purpose of giving respondent an opportunity to introduce such testimony and evidence as it might desire by way of defense to such additional testimony and evidence.

Such testimony and evidence were received, duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission, and thereafter the proceeding came regularly on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the said answer, said stipulation, testimony and evidence received, recorded and filed in the office of the Commission prior to the said order reopening the case, the briefs which had theretofore been filed, the additional testimony and evidence received, recorded and filed after the order of the Commission reopening the case for the taking of such additional testimony and evidence, and brief of counsel for the Commission and brief of counsel for the respondent, but without oral argument (counsel for the respondent having waived oral argument); and the Commission having duly considered the same and being fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:
FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent, L. & C. Mayers Co., Inc., is a corporation, organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its principal office and place of business in the city of New York in said State. Respondent is now, and for more than two years last past has been engaged in the business of importing diamonds for resale, and in purchasing for resale, jewelry, silverware, diamonds, clocks, leather goods, and kindred items. Respondent operates, and for more than two years last past has operated, a factory in New York, where it manufactures certain lines of jewelry which it sells. Such jewelry manufactured by respondent amounts to less than 10 percent of all of the jewelry handled by it. Respondent causes, and for more than two years last past has caused, the articles dealt in by it, when sold, to be shipped to the purchasers thereof, some of whom are located in the State of New York and others located in various other States of the United States; and there is now, and has been for more than two years last past, a constant current of trade and commerce by respondent in the aforesaid articles in which it deals, between and among the various States of the United States. Respondent sells in practically all of the States of the United States. In the course and conduct of its business, respondent is, and has been for more than two years last past, in substantial competition with other corporations and with partnerships, firms and individuals engaged in the sale and distribution of similar articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

Paragraph 2. In the course and conduct of its business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent, in soliciting the sale of and in selling the articles dealt in by it, has published and caused to be published, and has distributed and caused to be distributed to purchasers or prospective purchasers of the articles dealt in by respondent (which said purchasers and prospective purchasers, as hereinbefore mentioned, are located in the various States of the United States), catalogs in which many of the articles offered for sale and sold by it are pictorially and descriptively represented. Such catalogs are sent chiefly to industrial concerns, cooperative buying bureaus, State governments, municipal governments and purchasing clubs. On the covers of such catalogs and at various places therein, respondent refers to itself as, and calls itself, "wholesale jewelers".

Paragraph 3. In the course and conduct of its business as described in paragraphs 1 and 2 hereof, the respondent, in connection with the offering for sale and sale of the articles dealt in by it in interstate commerce, under the trade status designated by itself as "wholesaler", has quoted and still quotes, in connection with each of the items listed by it in its said catalogs hereinbefore referred to, certain figures termed by respondent "list prices." Inserts in the said catalogs suggest to proposed purchasers, members of the purchasing public, that the said "list prices" of all items in respondent's catalogs are subject to a dealer's discount of 50 percent and an additional cash discount of 6 percent on the remaining 50 percent, making a total discount from the "list price" of 53 percent. The term "list price" is a trade term used by manufacturers, jobbers and wholesalers in connection with sales to the retail trade. The term "list price" as used by respondent, and the discounts therefrom are used by the respondent, for the purpose of inducing the purchasing public to buy the articles dealt in by the respondent, under the beliefs that respondent is a wholesaler engaged in selling to the retail dealer trade, and that the purchaser is buying from respondent at retail dealer prices. In truth and in fact, the so-called "list prices" are not "list prices", but are figures which will, when reduced by the discount of 53 percent, be figures which will show the prices of respondent's articles as offered for sale to members of the purchasing public. The said prices at which respondent's articles are sold to the purchasers thereof are not, and have not been wholesale prices of such articles but are higher than the usual and customary prices charged by wholesalers of jewelry to purchasers thereof.

Par. 4. A wholesaler of jewelry is one who sells to the trade for resale and seldom, if ever, to the purchasing public, with the exception that sales to industrial concerns, public utilities, banks and other similar organizations, which purchase in quantity lots (i.e., simultaneous sales of more than one of a given item), not for resale, but for use by such organizations, are considered as wholesale transactions. It is the character of sales to the trade that makes and distinguishes a wholesaler. The jewelry industry has defined a wholesaler to be a distributor whose principal business is selling to the retail dealer. It is the practice and custom of wholesalers of jewelry through and by means of their salesmen calling upon retailers and by means of catalogs sent to retailers to solicit purchases by retailers. Only a small proportion of respondent's catalogs are sent to retailers and few retailers are called upon by respondent's salesmen, who are few in number. Many retail jewelers in business for a substantial number of years had never heard or known of respondent until they testified in this proceeding. They had never received respondent's catalogs nor had they ever been solicited by respondent. Such retailers are from the States of New Jersey, Vermont, Florida, New Hampshire, New York, Wisconsin, Nebraska, North Carolina, and

Ohio. Many manufacturers of jewelry selling to the wholesale trade do not sell to respondent because such manufacturers do not consider respondent to be a wholesaler. In truth and in fact, respondent is not a wholesaler but is a mail order house engaged chiefly in selling to the purchasing public.

Par. 5. During the year from October 1, 1930, to September 30, 1931, respondent sold merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States of the approximate value of $1,035,000. The character of the business done in that year by the respondent is typical of its business from year to year and is divisible into seven groups hereinafter described, which groups are herein numbered 1 to 7 respectively. These groups are respectively, the following:

Group 1

Vendees in this group include industrial concerns, public utilities, banks and other similar organizations to which merchandise was sold and shipped by the respondent, not for resale, but for use by such organizations. The sales to this group include various articles, but do not include purchases in quantity lots.

Group 2

Vendees in this group include industrial concerns, public utilities, banks and other similar organizations which buy merchandise from the respondent in quantity lots (i.e., simultaneous sales of more than one of a given item), not for resale, but for use by such organizations.

Vendees in this group include industrial concerns, public utilities, banks and other similar organizations, which buy merchandise from the respondent, not for resale but for the benefit of their employees. Such merchandise is sometimes shipped by the respondent directly to the employee for whom the merchandise is ultimately intended, and in other instances is shipped by the respondent to the organization purchasing same. In the majority of cases the organization purchasing the merchandise pays the respondent therefor with its check and the organization obtains reimbursement from the employees. In some instances the employee's money order or personal check is forwarded to the respondent by the organization making the purchase. In some instances the organizations keep the cash discount and in other instances they give the benefit of such cash discount to the employee.
Vendees in this group include industrial concerns, mines and other similar organizations maintaining commissary stores. Merchandise purchased from the respondent by vendees in this group is resold by said vendees.

Group 5

Vendees in this group are all wholesale or retail distributors of merchandise which purchase such merchandise from respondent for resale. This group includes building supply dealers, college book stores, clothiers, drug stores, export associations, general stores, glove vendors, garage and filling stations, gift shops, grocery and food stores, hotel news stands, hardware stores, jewelers, lumber companies, radio stores, sporting goods stores and seed stores.

Group 6

Vendees in this group include army canteens, army post exchanges and ships’ service stores, which are maintained by army posts, forts, camps and naval ships and stations, and which resell the merchandise which they purchase from the respondent.

Group 7

The vendees in this group include mutual buying clubs maintained by fraternities, colleges and universities and the employees of some large industrial, public utility or similar organizations, for the purpose of obtaining the benefits in price and otherwise, of such buying. Merchandise bought from the respondent by vendees in this group is not resold by the vendees, but is applied to their own use or the use of the members of such organizations. The sales of $1,035,000 above stated, for the year October 1, 1930, to September 30, 1931, were allocated as follows:

- To vendees in group 1, approximately $39,000
- To vendees in group 2, approximately $82,000
- To vendees in group 3, approximately $569,000
- To vendees in group 4, approximately $92,000
- To vendees in group 5, approximately $175,000
- To vendees in group 6, approximately $38,000
- To vendees in group 7, approximately $40,000

Of the aforesaid groups, those designated as group 1, group 3 and group 7 aggregating $648,000 out of a total of $1,035,000 business done by respondent, are retail business.
Par. 6. The aforesaid practices of respondent have had and have the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive the purchasing public into the belief that the products offered for sale and sold by it are sold at wholesale prices and that such persons as purchase such articles from the respondent may buy at the wholesale prices and save the retail dealer's profit and to induce the purchase of the respondent's products by members of the purchasing public in reliance upon such erroneous belief, and the aforesaid practices of respondent have misled and deceived the purchasing public into the belief that the products offered for sale and sold by respondent are sold at wholesale prices and that such persons as purchase such articles from the respondent may buy at wholesale prices and save the retail dealer's profit and have induced the purchase from respondent by members of the purchasing public in reliance upon such erroneous belief.

Par. 7. The aforesaid practices of the respondent have had, and still have the capacity and tendency to unfairly divert trade to the respondent from competitors who truthfully describe their status and the prices at which the articles dealt in by them are regularly sold. Thereby substantial injury has been done and is being done by respondent to substantial competition in interstate commerce.

CONCLUSION

The acts and practices of respondent under the conditions and circumstances described in the foregoing findings are to the prejudice of the public and respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission on the complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondent, the testimony and briefs of counsel for the Commission and counsel for the respondent, respectively (but without oral argument, counsel for the respondent having waived the oral argument), and the Commission having made its report in which it stated its findings as to the facts, with its conclusion that the respondent has violated the provisions of Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", and the Commission being fully advised in the premises—
Now, therefore, it is hereby ordered, That the respondent, L. & C. Mayers Co., Inc., its officers, agents, servants, and employees, in connection with the sale and the offering for sale by said L. & C. Mayers Co., Inc., of jewelry and similar articles in interstate commerce in the following described kinds and classes of its business, forthwith cease and desist from representing itself in and by its catalogs, and in every other way, to be a wholesale jeweler or wholesaler, the said kinds and classes of its business being as follows:

(1) Sales to industrial concerns, public utilities, banks and other similar organizations of articles not for resale but for use by such organizations where the sales are not in quantity lots.

(2) Sales to industrial concerns, public utilities, banks and other similar organizations buying merchandise not for resale but for the benefit of their employees, the merchandise being shipped by respondent directly to the employee for whom the merchandise is ultimately intended or to the organization purchasing the same, the organization paying the respondent therefor with its check and obtaining reimbursement from the employees, or the employees’ money orders or personal checks being forwarded to the respondent by the organization making the purchase.

(3) Sales to mutual buying clubs maintained by fraternities, colleges or universities and to the employees of industrial, public utility or similar organizations of articles purchased for the purpose of obtaining benefits in price and otherwise of such buying, where the merchandise purchased by such purchasers is not resold, but is applied to their own use or to the use of members of such organizations.

(4) Sales in any other manner to an individual or individuals purchasing for their own use and not for resale, and sales to an individual or individuals for the use of such individual or individuals as owner or owners of industrial organizations carried on by them, when such sales are not in quantity lots.

It is hereby further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days from the day of the date of service upon it of this order, file with this Commission its report in writing setting forth the manner and form in which it shall have complied with this order by the Commission.

Mr. Harold Baer, of New York City, for respondent.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Henry Ross, trading and doing business under the names and styles of Tivoli Clothes, Brewster Clothes, Good Will Clothes, Windsor Woolen Company, and United Woolen Company, and as an individual has been or is using unfair methods of competition in commerce as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be to the public interest, the Commission hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. The said respondent; Henry Ross, is an individual residing and doing business in the city of New York, State of New York, and respondent is now and since the year 1927 has been doing business under the names and styles of Tivoli Clothes, Brewster Clothes, Good Will Clothes, Windsor Woolen Company, and United Woolen Company, and has been maintaining his office and principal place of business in said city of New York.

Par. 2. The said respondent is now, and has been engaged, since the year 1927, in the business of selling suits of clothing for men, in interstate commerce; shipping his said clothing from his place of business in New York, N. Y., to various other States of the United States of America, and is in competition with other firms, individuals, and corporations doing an interstate business similar to the business of respondent.

Par. 3. The respondent conducts his said business and sells and distributes clothes as hereinbefore stated, advertising for salesmen in the different trade journals and other papers and publications to sell his clothing by personal solicitation and to the wearer. The respondent compensates his salesmen as follows:

When the purchaser of a suit of clothes from respondent's salesmen gives an order therefor, he makes a deposit or down payment to the salesman taking the order, the size of such deposit or down payment varying according to the price of the suit ordered. This deposit or down payment constitutes and is the commission of the salesman taking the order. For the remainder of the purchase price of the suit of clothes, the purchaser signs a form of written order promulgated by respondent and by him furnished his salesmen, wherein the purchaser agrees that the suit of clothes may be sent him C. O. D. for the balance of the purchase price due and unpaid. Almost all of these C. O. D. shipments are sent through the United States mails.

Par. 4. In order to obtain salesmen in the various States of the United States to sell the clothing of respondent, he, the said respondent, advertises in “Specialty Salesman”, “How to Sell”, “Opportunity”, and other like publications having an interstate circulation, and also by personal letters directed to various agents whose names respondent obtains from lists which he buys from Guild Company of New York, which company specializes in the business of selling lists of prospective salesmen for the different types of selling activities. To these agents and salesmen who answer the advertisements of respondent in said publications, and to those agents and salesmen whose names respondent obtains as aforesaid from Guild Company, and as an inducement for them to enter the employ of respondent and sell his clothing, respondent makes the following false, exaggerated, and misleading statements: That the garments are “all wool”; that they are “fashion tailored to fit”, that they are “trimmed with silk serge lining”, and that “satisfaction is guaranteed”. In truth and in fact, the garments sold by respondent through his agents and salesmen are not “all wool”; they are not “fashion tailored to fit”; they are not “trimmed with silk serge lining”; and satisfaction is not guaranteed to the customers of respondent, but to the contrary a large number of respondent’s customers who buy his clothing become and remain dissatisfied with the clothing shipped them by respondent, as being made of different material and inferior to the material ordered and as not fitting the customer, and seldom if ever does respondent make any effort to satisfy his customers in this respect.

Respondent supplies his agents and salesmen with order blanks, directions for measurements, tape lines, and cards, on which cards there appear the following statements: “The lowest priced quality line on the market”; “fashion tailored to fit”; “Windsor’s tremendous buying and manufacturing facilities make these prices possible.” In truth and in fact, the clothes sold by respondent are of an inferior quality and are not priced to the customer lower than goods of similar material sold in interstate commerce by various competitors of respondent; they are not “fashion tailored to fit”, but to the contrary are not tailored at all, and are not made to the measure of the individual customer, but are taken from a small stock of ready-to-wear clothes which respondent keeps at all times in his place of business, and which are sent to his customers in interstate commerce when orders are received, without reference to the measurements of the particular customer; respondent, trading as Windsor Woolen Company, or under any other trade name, or as an individual, has no "tremendous buying facilities", but to the contrary operates a small business in a very small storeroom, and does not manufacture any of the clothing he sells, and has no interest or control, financial or otherwise, in any factory or factories making clothes; respondent's said cards, which he furnishes to his agents and salesmen, have prominently displayed thereon the following:

"United Woolen Company", "Satisfaction guaranteed", and "Dealers in the following large cities", following which there appear the names of twenty or more large cities, when in truth and in fact "United Woolen Company" is not a company, but is one of the trade names adopted by respondent, Henry Ross, and by which he conceals the fact that he is trading as an individual, and he has no dealers in the large cities named on said cards, but only has itinerant agents soliciting therein.

Par. 5. Respondent likewise furnishes to his agents and salesmen a book which contains samples of cloth, different models of suits, and the price of garments, and in such book so furnished respondent's said agents and salesmen for the spring and summer of 1935, the trade name of respondent, to wit, "Windsor Woolen Company", prominently appears in many places, along with such phrases as, "lined with silk serge", "the best woolens", "fashion tailored to fit", "satisfaction guaranteed", "dealers in principal cities", and "tailored on Fifth Avenue."

The respondent, under another of his trade names, to wit, "United Woolen Company", has supplied his agents and salesmen with a certain sample book for the spring and summer of 1935, in which the following statements appear: "Every garment fashion tailored to fit", "lined with silk serge", "guaranteed to fit and satisfy", "we guarantee all United merchandise to be exactly as represented in the sample book", "the best woolens", "every garment tailored by experts", "every garment guaranteed by our many years' experience in the manufacture of cloth", "satisfaction guaranteed", "dealers in principal cities", and "tailored on Fifth Avenue."

In truth and in fact, the statements, representations, advertisements and inducements set out in this paragraph are false and misleading, in that in addition to the false and misleading statements set out in prior paragraphs herein, the garments of respondent are not "lined with silk serge"; they are not "tailored on Fifth Avenue",

but are bought from a wholesaler in a part of the city of New York remote from Fifth Avenue; they are not composed of "the best woolens"; every garment is not "tailored by experts", but to the contrary the garments are factory made and carried in stock as ready made suits; and respondent has not had "many years' experience in the manufacture of clothing", but to the contrary has for many years been a dealer in ready made suits for men.

Par. 6. Respondent, when sending his said agents and salesmen the said order book and other supplies, also sends a circular along therewith, in which the following statement is made:

We have purchased a large quantity of woolens and linings of each number in the sample outfit. This has enabled us to price our line considerably lower than the present market price. These low prices will also enable you to out-value any competition, and help you get the orders.

In truth and in fact, respondent had not purchased large quantities of woolens and linings, but to the contrary, as hereinbefore set out, he buys the suits of clothing, which he ships to his customers in the various States of the United States, already manufactured, and carries them in stock in his said place of business in the city of New York.

Par. 7. The false and misleading statements and inducements held out to actual and prospective agents and salesmen of respondent have a tendency and capacity to and do mislead and deceive such agents and salesmen and induce them to enter the employ of respondent; and the false and misleading statements and representations contained in the sample books of respondent, as set out in paragraphs 5 and 6 hereof, are, by the salesmen and agents of respondent, exhibited and shown to customers and prospective customers of respondent, and have a tendency and capacity to deceive the buying public and to cause it to buy the goods of respondent, and such advertisements and representations contained in the said sample books of respondent constitute an instrumentality whereby the agents and salesmen of respondent may and do mislead and deceive the buying public.

Par. 8. Respondent furnishes to his agents and salesmen certain order blanks which contain blank spaces to be filled out by the agent or salesman, with the measurements of every part of the anatomy of the customer, and this order blank is displayed to the customer, and the agent or salesman takes certain measurements of the customer and likewise fills in the said blank spaces, all of which has a tendency and capacity to and does create in the mind of the customer the impression that the suit of clothes ordered will be made and tailored from the selected fabric, to the measurements of such customer when in truth and in fact, as aforesaid, respondent makes or tailors none of the clothes he sells, but sends such customer a suit of clothes ready made and taken out of the stock carried by respondent in his place of business in New York, N. Y.

In like manner, when a dissatisfied customer will, as frequently happens, return the clothing to respondent, respondent will send such customer a printed postal card on which the following statement prominently appears: “This garment has been made especially for you, and is an exceptional value”, when in truth and in fact the said garment was not made especially for such customer, and is not an exceptional value.

Par. 9. The foregoing false and misleading statements, advertisements, inducements, and representations of the respondent, as hereinbefore set out, all have the tendency and capacity to, and do, mislead and deceive the buying public, and likewise have the tendency and capacity to, and do, unfairly divert trade to respondent from those individuals, corporations, associations and firms doing a like and similar business in interstate commerce and who truthfully and correctly advertise, represent, and label the clothing sold by them.

Par. 10. The above acts and things done by respondent are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and competitors of respondent in interstate commerce, within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”, approved September 26, 1914.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

Henry Ross, trading and doing business under the names and styles of Tivoli Clothes, Brewster Clothes, Good Will Clothes, Windsor Woolen Company, and United Woolen Company, and as an individual, the respondent herein, having filed his answer to the complaint in this proceeding, in which answer he states that he desires to waive hearing on the charges set forth in the complaint herein and not to contest the proceeding, consenting in and by his said answer that, as provided in paragraph (b) of Rule V of the Commission’s Rules of Practice, the Commission may, without trial, without evidence and without findings as to the facts, or other intervening procedure, make, enter and serve upon said respondent an order to cease and desist from the methods of competition alleged in the complaint.

And the Commission having considered the said answer and being fully advised in the premises—

It is now ordered, That the respondent, Henry Ross, doing business under the names and styles of Tivoli Clothes, Brewster Clothes, Good Will Clothes, Windsor Woolen Company, and United Woolen Company, and as an individual, and his agents, servants, representatives and employees, in connection with the sale, and offering for sale, in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, of suits of clothing for men, cease and desist from:

(1) Advertising or representing in any way to the purchasing public or to prospective agents the character and quality of the garments sold by respondent by use of the following phrases, or words or phrases of similar import: (a) "All Wool"; (b) "The Best Woolens"; (c) "Distinctive Woolens"; (d) "Fashion Tailored to Fit"; (e) "Tailored on Fifth Avenue"; and (f) "Trimmed with Silk Serge Lining", until and unless such garments are actually manufactured from the quality of woolen and other materials represented and in the manner or at the place represented.

(2) Advertising or representing in any way to the purchasing public and prospective agents, by use of the language "Windsor's tremendous buying and manufacturing facilities make these prices possible", "We have purchased a large quantity of woolens and linings of every number in the sample outfit; this has enabled us to price our line considerably lower than the present market price" or "The lowest priced quality line on the market", or language of similar import, that the respondent buys woolens and other materials in large quantities and at close prices and owns or operates a manufacturing plant, or plants, with resulting prices lower than those of competitive merchandise of similar quality, until and unless the respondent actually owns, operates or controls manufacturing facilities of sufficient size and purchases woolens and other materials in sufficient quantities to enable him to actually secure closer prices on all of said merchandise than are secured by others selling merchandise of a competitive quality.

(3) Advertising or representing in any way that he has dealers in principal cities until and unless respondent actually has such dealers, other than itinerant vendors, located in the principal cities of the several States of the United States.

(4) Advertising, promising, or in any way representing to the purchasing public that: (a) Satisfaction is guaranteed with respect to the garments sold by him; (b) said garments are guaranteed to fit and satisfy; (c) said garments when made, are exactly as represented by the swatches in the various sample books; and (d) he has the ability, resources and willingness to make adjustments as represented, until and unless such representations are, in fact, true.
(5) Placing in the hands of salesmen and other representatives sample books containing swatches of cloth that do not truthfully illustrate or depict the design or quality of the cloth from which the garments sold by respondent are made.

(6) Using, or placing in the hands of agents and representatives for use in taking orders from customers, order books containing the statement, "We cut from first choice, if possible", or words of similar import indicating that the garment delivered is actually tailored for the purchaser in conformity with the measurements set out on said order blank, until and unless said garment is actually so tailored to the individual measurements of the customer.

(7) Advertising or in any way representing or advising prospective purchasers that the garment is either an exceptional value or has been tailored to the customer's own measurements, until and unless said statements are true in fact.

It is further ordered, That respondent shall, within 60 days from the date of the service upon him of a copy of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth the manner and form in which he has complied with the order herein set forth.

B. F. HUNTYLEY FURNITURE COMPANY

Consent order requiring respondent corporation, its agents, etc., in connection with the sale and offer in commerce among the several States and in the District of Columbia of certain household furniture, to cease and desist from—

(a) Advertising or in any way otherwise representing, directly or by implication, by advertisements, advertising literature, stickers attached to the articles of furniture, or in any manner or by any means whatsoever that articles of furniture manufactured or sold by the respondent and not made from wood derived from the genus Juglans, of the tree family known as Walnut or Juglandaceae, are "walnut" or "oriental walnut"; or

(b) Using the word "walnut" either independently or in connection with the word "oriental", or with any other word or words, in its advertising matter of whatever character, so as to represent, import, imply, or have the capacity or tendency to confuse, mislead or deceive purchasers into the belief that said articles of furniture are manufactured, either in whole or in part, from wood derived from trees of the Walnut or Juglandaceae family, when such is not the fact.

Mr. J. T. Welch for the Commission.

Manly, Hendren & Womble, of Winston-Salem, N. C., for respondent.

Complaint

Paragraph 1. Respondent, B. F. Huntley Furniture Company, is now, and has been at all times mentioned herein, a corporation organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of North Carolina, with its office and principal place of business in the city of Winston-Salem in said State, and is now, and has been at all times mentioned herein, engaged in the business of manufacturing, distributing and selling household furniture to wholesale and retail dealers in such furniture.

Par. 2. Said respondent, being engaged in the business of manufacturing, distributing, and selling household furniture as aforesaid, causes said furniture, when sold to wholesale and retail dealers located in various cities in the several States of the United States, to be transported from its principal place of business in the State of North Carolina, to the purchasers thereof located in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and there is now, and has been at all times mentioned herein, a constant current of trade and commerce in said household furniture, manufactured, distributed and sold by respondent, between and among the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia.

Par. 3. Said respondent is, and has been at all times mentioned herein, engaged in substantial competition with other corporations, partnerships, and individuals engaged in commerce among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, in the manufacture, distribution, and sale of household furniture.

Par. 4. Respondent, in the course and conduct of its business as detailed in paragraphs 1 to 3, inclusive, is now and has been, manufacturing, offering for sale, and selling, as and for "walnut" or "oriental walnut", certain household furniture made from woods other than walnut wood, but which resemble walnut wood in some characteristics and in general appearance. In advertisements, paper stickers attached to the various articles, circular letters, correspondence with purchasers and prospective purchasers, invoices, price lists, catalogs, and trade literature said respondent has represented, and still represents to said wholesale and retail dealers and the public generally that said household furniture is manufactured or constructed of "walnut" or "oriental walnut" wood, when in truth and in fact, said household furniture is not manufactured or constructed from walnut wood as that term is known, used and understood by the trade and the public generally.

Par. 5. The word "walnut", when used either independently or in connection or conjunction with the word "oriental" or with any other word or words of similar import, in connection with or descriptive of household furniture means, and the trade and consuming public understand, and for many years have understood, it to mean that the said furniture, so referred to or described, is manufactured or constructed from wood obtained from the genus Juglans of the tree family known as "Juglandaceae".

Par. 6. A substantial portion of the purchasing public has indicated, and has, a decided preference for household furniture manufactured or constructed from genuine walnut wood obtained from the Juglans genus of the tree family known as "Juglandaceae" over household furniture manufactured or constructed from other woods resembling walnut wood in certain of its characteristics and general appearance but that cannot properly be designated as "walnut".

PAR. 7. The aforesaid representations made by the respondent, as set out in paragraph 4 hereof, were and are calculated to, and had and now have the tendency and capacity to, and did and now do mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the belief that the respondent manufactures, distributes, and sells household furniture manufactured or constructed from genuine walnut wood and that all of the furniture manufactured and sold by the respondent under the description and representations above set out is constructed of walnut wood and to purchase said household furniture in such belief.

The aforesaid representations made by the respondent, as set out in paragraph 4 hereof, were and are calculated to, and had and now have the tendency and capacity to, and did and now do mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the wholesale and retail dealers in household furniture into the belief that the respondent manufactures, distributes and sells household furniture manufactured or constructed from genuine walnut wood and to purchase said household furniture manufactured or constructed by the respondent in the belief that the said furniture consists of walnut wood and to resell the said articles of household furniture to the general consuming public as and for furniture manufactured or constructed of walnut wood.

Further, the aforesaid representations, in said advertising literature hereinabove referred to, especially in catalogs, paper stickers attached to the various articles, invoices, price lists and trade literature, and the placing of all of said literature, containing said representations, in the hands of wholesale and retail furniture dealers, enables unscrupulous dealers to mislead and deceive customers into the belief that the furniture products manufactured and sold by the respondent are composed of and constructed from genuine walnut wood.

As a direct consequence of the mistaken and erroneous beliefs, induced by the acts, advertisements and representations of the respondent, as hereinabove detailed, a substantial number of wholesale and retail dealers in furniture and a substantial number of the purchasing public have purchased a substantial volume of respondent's household furniture products, with the result that substantial injury has been done to substantial competition in commerce among the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia.
Order

PAR. 8. There are among the competitors of respondent many who have manufactured, constructed and sold, and who now manufacture, construct and sell, household furniture made of walnut wood and who rightfully and truthfully represent their said household furniture to be made or constructed of walnut wood; and there are among the competitors of respondent many who have manufactured, constructed and sold, and now manufacture, construct and sell household furniture not made of walnut wood, and who rightfully and truthfully represent said household furniture not to be made of walnut wood and rightfully and truthfully represent and designate the wood or woods used in the construction of said household furniture, and the alleged acts, practices and representations of the respondent divert a substantial volume of trade from, and otherwise prejudice and injure a substantial number of said competitors.

PAR. 9. The above and foregoing acts, practices, and representation of the respondent have been, and are, all to the prejudice of the public and respondent's competitors as aforesaid, and have been, and are, unfair methods of competition within the meaning and intent of Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes".

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

B. F. Huntley Furniture Company, the respondent herein, having filed its answer to the complaint in this proceeding and having subsequently made application to withdraw the answer heretofore filed and tendering in lieu thereof a consent answer, in which answer respondent states that it desires to waive hearing and not to contest the proceeding, consenting in and by its said answer that, as provided in paragraph (b) of Rule V of the Commission's Rules of Practice, the Commission may, without trial, without evidence and without findings as to the facts or other intervening procedure, make, enter, and serve upon said respondent an order to cease and desist from the methods of competition alleged in the complaint.

And the Commission having considered the complaint and said answers, and being fully advised in the premises—

It is now ordered, That the respondent, B. F. Huntley Furniture Company, be, and it is hereby permitted to withdraw the answer heretofore filed by it and to file consent answer in lieu thereof, and the substituted answer tendered is received and filed. It is also ordered that the respondent, B. F. Huntley Furniture Company, its agents, servants, representatives and employees, in connection with the sale and offering for sale, in commerce among and between the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, of certain household furniture, cease and desist from:

(1) Advertising or in any way otherwise representing, directly or by implication, by advertisements, advertising literature, stickers attached to the articles of furniture, or in any manner or by any means whatsoever that articles of furniture manufactured or sold by the respondent and not made from wood derived from the genus Juglans, of the tree family known as Walnut or Juglandaceae, are "walnut" or "oriental walnut".

(2) Using the word "walnut" either independently or in conjunction with the word "oriental", or with any other word or words, in its advertising matter of whatever character, so as to represent, import, imply, or have the capacity or tendency to confuse, mislead or deceive purchasers into the belief that said articles of furniture are manufactured, either in whole or in part, from wood derived from trees of the Walnut or Juglandaceae family, when such is not the fact.

It is further ordered, That respondent shall, within 60 days from the date of service upon it of a copy of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth the manner and form in which it has complied with the order herein set forth by the Commission.

IN THE MATTER OF

HARRY GOTTSAGEN, MAX GOTTSAGEN, MARTIN GOTTSAGEN, ALEXANDER GOTTSAGEN, TRADING AS GOTHAM SALES COMPANY AND AS UNIVERSAL MERCHANDISE COMPANY

Where a corporation engaged in the sale and distribution of assorted notions and novelties to the purchasing and consuming public throughout the several States, offered and sold large quantities of shoe laces upon the wrapper of each pair of which appeared in bold type "Mercerized Broadway Brand", notwithstanding fact that said laces, thus labeled, were not mercerized, to wit, laces treated with a caustic solution whereby the tensil strength and microscopic appearance thereof were changed, but were cheap cotton laces imported from Japan;

With capacity and tendency to confuse, mislead and deceive members of the public into the belief that said product was in fact mercerized, and induce purchase thereof in such erroneous belief, and with effect of diverting trade to it from competitors, including those who in nowise misrepresent the quality and kind of their products, and with tendency so to divert, to their substantial injury and prejudice:

Held, That such practices, under the conditions and circumstances set forth, were all to the injury of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Mr. Jerome L. Greenberg, of New York City, for respondents.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Harry Gottsagen, Max Gottsagen, Martin Gottsagen, Alexander Gottsagen, and Alfred Gottsagen, co-partners, trading as Gotham Sales Company and Universal Merchandise Company, hereinafter referred to as respondents, have been and now are using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, states its charges in that respect as follows:

chandise Company, and having their principal office and place of business at 14 E. 17th Street, New York City, are now and have been engaged in business as wholesalers of novelties, toilet articles, drug sundries, and other merchandise. Said respondents have advertised and sold and are advertising and selling, or causing to be sold, throughout the country, shoe laces which are advertised as "mercerized" laces. Also said shoe laces have affixed thereto brands or labels upon which the word "mercerized" is featured. Respondents sell or cause to be sold said shoe laces through the jobbing and other trade to the public residing in various States of the United States. Respondents cause said commodities, when so sold, to be transported from their said place of business in New York City, into and through other States of the United States to said purchasers at their respective locations.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of their said business, respondents are in competition with other individuals, partnerships and corporations engaged in advertising, selling, and distributing in interstate commerce shoe laces intended and used for the same purposes as those for which respondents represent their laces, as hereinafter set out, and respondents have been and are now in competition in interstate commerce in the sale of said shoe laces with such other individuals, partnerships, and corporations.

Par. 3. Respondents, in the course of their business have offered for sale and sold shoe laces represented and labeled as "mercerized" shoe laces. Mercerized shoe laces are those laces which have been subjected to a chemical process which gives to the laces a silky, polished appearance, and which lends added strength, thereby producing a more valuable and desirable shoe lace. In truth and in fact, the laces so represented, labeled and sold by respondents have not been subjected to a process of mercerization, and are not "mercerized" but instead are a cheap cotton lace imported from Japan.

Par. 4. The representations of respondents have the tendency and capacity to confuse, mislead and deceive members of the public into the belief that the said shoe laces of respondents are mercerized, as advertised on the label, and to induce them to buy and use the same because of such erroneous belief so engendered. Such representations unfairly divert trade to respondents from legitimate competitors who truthfully advertise similar products, and who are engaged in the sale in interstate commerce of products intended for and used for the same purposes as those for which respondents represent their products.

Par. 5. The above alleged acts and practices of respondent are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission issued and served complaint upon the respondents, Harry Gottsagen, Max Gottsagen, Martin Gottsagen, Alexander Gottsagen, and Alfred Gottsagen, copartners, trading as Gotham Sales Company and as Universal Merchandise Company, charging them with unfair methods of competition in violation of Section 5 of said Act, and respondents duly filed their answer thereto. Thereafter, respondents having entered their appearance, testimony was taken and evidence received in support of the complaint and on behalf of respondents, and duly reduced to writing and recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Subsequently, this proceeding came on for final hearing on the record, and the Commission having duly considered the record and the brief of counsel for the Commission, and being fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. The respondents, Harry Gottsagen, Max Gottsagen, Martin Gottsagen, Alexander Gottsagen, and Alfred Gottsagen, are co-partners, trading as Gotham Sales Company and as Universal Merchandise Company. Their principal office and place of business is at 14 East Seventeenth Street, New York, N. Y. They also have branch stores in Chicago, Ill., New Orleans, La., and San Francisco, Calif. Respondents now are, and have been for the past nine years, engaged in the sale and distribution in interstate commerce of assorted notions and novelties to the purchasing and consuming public throughout the several States of the United States, and cause said products, when so sold, to be transported from their place of business in New York City through and into other States of the United States to their said vendees at their respective points of location and residences. In the course and conduct of their said business respondents are in competition with other individuals, and with firms, partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of like products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, which products so sold and distributed by such competitors are used for purposes similar to those purposes for which respondents’ products are used.

Par. 2. Respondents, in the course and conduct of their business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, offered for sale and sold large quantities of “Broadway Brand” shoe laces labeled “mercerized”. On the wrapper of each pair of said laces appeared the following in bold type:

MERCERIZED BROADWAY BRAND

A mercerized shoe lace is one which has been treated with a caustic solution, which process increases the tensil strength of the lace and also increases its sensitiveness to dyeing. The microscopic appearance of the fibre is also changed. The public is willing to pay more for mercerized laces than for laces which are not mercerized. In truth and in fact, the said “Broadway Brand” shoe laces labeled “mercerized” by respondents were not mercerized laces, and had not been treated with a caustic solution which increases the tensil strength and changes the microscopic appearance of the laces, but were cheap cotton laces imported from Japan.

Par. 3. The representations of respondents, as aforesaid, have had and do have the tendency and capacity to confuse, mislead, and deceive members of the public into the belief that respondents’ “Broadway Brand” shoe laces labeled “mercerized” are mercerized shoe laces. Said representations of respondents have had and do have the tendency and capacity to induce members of the public to buy and use respondents’ laces because of the erroneous beliefs engendered, as above set forth, and to divert trade to respondents from competitors engaged in the sale in interstate commerce of shoe laces.

Par. 4. There are among the competitors of respondents in the sale of their products, those who in nowise misrepresent the quality and kind of their competing products, and respondents’ acts and practices, as hereinbefore set forth, tend to and do divert the business to respondents from their competitors, to the substantial injury and prejudice of such competitors.

CONCLUSION

The practices of said respondents, under the conditions and circumstances described in the foregoing findings, are all to the injury of the public and of respondents’ competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce, and are in violation of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been duly heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondents, the testimony in support of the charges of said complaint and in opposition thereto, and brief filed by counsel of the Commission, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes"

It is ordered, That respondents, Harry Gottsagen, Max Gottsagen, Martin Gottsagen, Alexander Gottsagen, and Alfred Gottsagen, co-partners, trading as Gotham Sales Company and as Universal Merchandise Company, their officers, directors, agents, representatives, servants and employees, in connection with the sale, offering for sale, or distribution in interstate commerce and in the District of Columbia of shoe laces, cease and desist from representing by express statements or by implication, or otherwise, that any of the said laces are mercerized, when such is not the fact.

It is further ordered, That respondents, within 60 days from and after the date of service upon them of this order, shall file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they are complying with the order to cease and desist hereinbefore set forth.

IN THE MATTER OF

MAXWELL STEEL VAULT COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION

Represented in periodical and newspaper advertisements thereof and in circulars, letters, and other trade literature and in purported certificates of warranty, that one or both of said vaults, as the case might be, were made of rust-resisting metal and would withstand any earth pressure incident to interment and that they were absolutely or positively airtight, waterproof, and vermin-proof, and included in their said purported certificates of warranty an offer to replace without cost to the purchaser any vault failing to meet such "warranties";
The facts being that said supposed warranties were mere sales inducements and false and misleading, in that said products would not withstand any or all earth pressure, were not made of rust-resisting material, but were subject to the pitting or corroding action and resulting rust from the corrosive qualities inherent in varying degrees in all soils and quite common in those in the United States, were not at all times free from defective materials or workmanship, were not positively or at all times waterproof or airtight or watertight or vermin-proof, as understood by the consuming public from a reading of the supposed warranties, and that only under ideal burial conditions, presupposing coincidence of various favorable factors and including, among others, uniformity in temperature and atmospheric pressure, which coincidence in many instances does not prevail, would said vaults endure as waterproof for a great number of years, and said certificates were worthless to a vast majority of the ultimate purchasers of said products, due to infrequency of disinterment and consequent absence of opportunity in which to ascertain whether or not they were fulfilling their terms;
With capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive the public into the belief that said vaults had the qualities claimed for them under all burial conditions, and that they would endure as airtight, etc., as heretofore set forth, and to divert trade to it from competitors engaged in manufacturing and selling steel and other vaults for similar purposes and otherwise to injure the same:

Held, That such practices, under the conditions and circumstances set forth, were to the prejudice of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. John W. Norwood, trial examiner.
Mr. E. J. Hornibrook for the Commission.
Coville & Santry, of Oneida, N. Y., and Waite, Schindel & Bayless, of Cincinnati, Ohio, for respondent.
Pursuant to the provisions of an act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Maxwell Steel Vault Company has been or is using unfair methods of competition in commerce as "commerce" is defined in said act and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be to the public interest hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent Maxwell Steel Vault Company is a corporation organized and existing and doing business as such under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its principal office and factory in the city of Oneida in said State, at and from said city of Oneida, respondent, among other things, manufactures and sells steel vaults for use in the burial of the dead. These steel vaults are called by respondent the Maxwell Burial Vault and Oneida Air-Seal Vault. Respondent sells these vaults exclusively to jobbers. Practically all of its contacts with said jobber customers and sales of the said vaults are made through the United States mails. Its jobber customers number approximately 8,000. These vaults are so sold in every State of the United States and in the Dominion of Canada and when orders are received therefor, they are shipped by respondent from the said city of Oneida into and through other States of the United States to the respective places of business of such jobbers. These jobbers resell said vaults to undertakers, morticians, cemetery associations and the like, who, and which in turn, sell the same to the ultimate purchasers thereof with a written certificate of warranty of respondent to the effect that they are waterproof. In the course of the conduct of said business respondent is in substantial competition with individuals, copartnerships, and corporations likewise engaged in the manufacture and sale and transportation between and among various States of the United States of steel, stone, cement, and other vaults used in the burial of the dead.

Paragraph 2. In aid of the sale of said vaults, respondent advertises in magazines and newspapers having general circulation throughout the United States and by and through the use of circulars, letters, booklets, pamphlets, purported certificates of warranty and other printed and illustrated materials caused by respondent to be furnished to the consuming public, and in and through such media respondent makes the following false and misleading representations:

(a) Maxwell Burial Vault is absolutely waterproof;
(b) Oneida Air-Seal Vault is positively waterproof.
The term "waterproof" as used by respondent as aforesaid, means to the consuming public a watertight vault, a vault which will not permit water to enter the same. Neither of said vaults is waterproof as the term is understood by the consuming public; in either water may seep into it through the joints thereof.

Par. 3. The certificate of warranty mentioned above contains a clause in which respondent offers to replace without cost to the purchaser any such vault failing to meet the warranty as to being waterproof. The exhumation of bodies after burial is so rare as to make this certificate of warranty worthless to a vast majority of the ultimate purchasers of either of these vaults for the reason that no opportunity is afforded them in which to ascertain whether a vault is waterproof or not.

Par. 4. The said use of the said certificates of warranty has the tendency and capacity to deceive ultimate purchasers of said vaults into the mistaken belief that they are waterproof and to induce them to purchase the same in that belief and to unfairly divert trade from said competitors to the said respondent and otherwise injure them, and the representations of respondent described in paragraph 2 hereof, have and have had the tendency and capacity to deceive the purchasing public into the belief that they are true and to induce purchasers to buy said vaults in such belief and to unfairly divert trade from the said competitors to the said respondent and otherwise injure them.

Par. 5. The acts and practices of respondent above set forth are all to the prejudice of the public and to respondent's said competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

thereto, were introduced before John W. Norwood, an examiner of said Commission theretofore duly designated by the Commission, by E. J. Hornibrook, attorney for the Commission, and by William F. Santry and Herbert Shaffer, attorneys for the respondent; and said testimony and evidence was duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and evidence, briefs in support of the complaint and in defense thereto, and the oral argument of counsel aforesaid; and the Commission having duly considered the same, and being fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Maxwell Steel Vault Company, is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business as such under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its principal office and factory in the city of Oneida in said State. At and from said city of Oneida, respondent, among other things, manufactures and sells steel vaults for use in encasing coffins and caskets in the burial of the dead. These steel vaults are called by respondent the "Maxwell Burial Vault" and the "Oneida Air-Seal Vault".

Respondent sells these vaults exclusively to jobbers. Practically all of its contacts with said jobber customers and sales of the said vaults are made through the United States mails. Its jobber customers number approximately two hundred and fifty. Since the year 1911 respondent has sold metal vaults of the gross value of $5,000,000. The estimated total sales of the entire metal vault industry are 1,800,000 units. Respondent's said vaults are so sold in every State of the United States and in the Dominion of Canada, and when orders are received therefor, they are shipped by respondent from the city of Oneida, into and through other States of the United States, to the respective places of business of such jobber customers. These jobbers resell said vaults to undertakers and morticians who, and in turn, sell the same to the ultimate purchasers thereof with written certificates of purported warranty of respondent to the effect that they are waterproof and will endure as such.

Maxwell Burial Vault

Par. 2. The Maxwell Burial Vault is a top closing vault constructed of Keystone copper bearing steel, 15 gauge on top and 17 gauge on the sides. It is made of five pieces of pressed metal which are assembled, welded, and soldered. The top is fastened by twenty clamps, the lever action of which exerts pressure on a ropelike fiber gasket confined in the rim of the lower section and presses the gasket between the top and bottom of the vault. The gasket is made of hemp or flax with a cotton covering and is treated with grease, tallow, or paraffin. The ends of the gasket are spliced for the purpose of forming a continuous sealing cushion around the rim and this splicing must be directly under one of the eccentric clamps in order to prevent leakage. No instructions accompany the vault as to how the same should be sealed. There are other metal vaults on the market similar in construction, materials, and designs to that of the Maxwell Burial Vault.

Oneida Air-Seal Vault

Respondent began the manufacture and sale of the Oneida Air-Seal Vault in the year 1925, and has continued the manufacture and sale of the same since that year. The Oneida Air-Seal Vault is a steel receptacle consisting of two parts, (1) a pan (or base), and (2) a hood (dome or top) which operates on the principle of the diving bell, by which the confined air in the inverted airtight dome is supposed to resist the entrance of water from rising from below. It is constructed of Keystone copper bearing steel of 12 gauge of 0.1072 of an inch in thickness. The top and sides of the hood are made of one piece of steel. The pan is made of one piece of steel. The pan (or base) consists of a flat edge or flange 1\(\frac{1}{2}\) inches wide extending entirely around the bottom of the vault and a raised portion 2\(\frac{3}{4}\) inches above the plane of the lower surface of the flange as it rests on the ground or support. The entire base resembles an inverted pan. Small raised portions, or bosses, hold the bottom of the casket \(\frac{1}{16}\) inch above the top of the pan and 3\(\frac{1}{16}\) inches above the grave floor. The bottom rim or flange of the hood (or top dome) rests on this outside flange of the pan the width of the metal from the grave floor.

Respondent's air-sealed vault is similar to the air-sealed vaults made by the trade generally, including the Clark, Galion, Springfield, Champion, Perfection, U. "5", and National. These are made on the same principle and their dimensions are practically the same. Similar results can be expected from all of these under identical conditions. This vault is not airtight until sealed by resisting water at the level at the highest point in the rim of the inverted dome which rests on the flange of the pan. Water rising from the bottom of the grave forces the air from the cavity, under the base through holes at each corner of the pan, into the hood, and as the pressure of the outside water head increases the resistance of the compressed air increases.

Par. 3. In the course and the conduct of said business, respondent is in substantial competition with individuals, co-partnerships, and corporations likewise engaged in the manufacture and sale and transportation between and among various States of the United States of steel, stone, cement and other vaults used in the burial of the dead. The following, among others, manufacture steel burial vaults and sell and ship the same in and into States other than the State where they are manufactured: G. F. Mitchell & Sons Co. of Cleveland, Ohio; Commercial Shearing Co. of Youngstown, Ohio. The first named company does not issue warranties for its vaults and has lost business because of respondent's methods in issuing the purported warranties hereinafter described. The following among others manufacture concrete, cement or stone vaults and sell and ship the same in and into States other than the State where they are manufactured: Permanent Concrete Co. and Kurtz Rock & Stone Co. of Columbus, Ohio; Taylor Stone Co. and Walter Bros. of McDermitt, Ohio; Belmont Burial Vault Co. and Hernwood Vault Co. of Philadelphia, Pa.; Mead-Suydon Co. of Reading, Pa.; and Nazareth Vault Co. of Nazareth Pa.

The practices of respondent as heretofore and hereinafter set forth have and have had, and each of them has and has had the capacity and tendency to divert trade to respondent from its said competitors, and to otherwise injure them.

Par. 4. In aid of the sale of said vaults, respondent advertises in magazines and newspapers having general circulation throughout the United States, and by and through the use of circulars, letters, booklets, pamphlets, purported certificates of warranty, and other printed and illustrated material caused by respondent to be furnished to the consuming public and in and through such media, respondent makes the following among other false and misleading representations:

(a) Maxwell Burial Vault is absolutely water-proof;
(b) Oneida Air-Seal Vault is positively water-proof.

The certificates of purported warranty mentioned above contain a clause in which respondent offers to replace, without cost to the purchaser, any vault failing to meet the terms of such purported warranty.

Par. 5. These purported certificates of warranty are furnished by respondent through the jobber of said vaults and are intended to be and are delivered to ultimate purchasers thereof by undertakers or morticians or other persons in charge of funerals in which said vaults are used. They read as follows:

We hereby certify that this is made of strong, durable, rust-resisting metal, so constructed and reinforced as to withstand any earth pressure incident to burial.

That this vault has been fully tested and carefully inspected before shipment and is free from defective materials, construction or workmanship.

That the especial feature known as the Maxwell-Eccentric-Sealing-Clamp provides a positive method of sealing and when properly fastened will make this burial vault absolutely air tight, waterproof and vermin-proof.

We offer to replace without cost to the purchaser any such vault failing to meet these warranties.

MAXWELL CERTIFICATE OF WARRANTY

We hereby certify that this

is made of strong, durable, rust-resisting metal, so constructed as to withstand any earth pressure incident to burial.

That this vault has been thoroughly tested and carefully inspected before shipment and is positively waterproof, and free from defective materials, construction or workmanship.

We offer to replace without cost to the purchaser any such vault failing to meet these warranties.

MAXWELL STEEL VAULT COMPANY, ONEIDA, NEW YORK.
J. D. Candey, President.

PAR. 6. The above described purported warranties are not warranties. They are mere sales inducements and are false and misleading in that: the Maxwell Burial Vault will not withstand any or all earth pressure incident to burial, and is not made of rust-resisting metal, and is not at all times free from defective materials and workmanship; the method of sealing the same is not a positive method and will and frequently does fail and permits water to enter said vaults; it is not absolutely airtight, watertight or vermin-proof, in fact, or as these terms are understood by the consuming public from a reading of said purported warranties, as will be hereinafter explained.

The Oneida Air-Seal Vault will not withstand any and all earth pressure incident to burial, it is not rust-resisting and is not at all times free from defective materials or workmanship, and is not positively waterproof in fact, or as the term is understood by the consuming public from a reading of the said purported warranty, as will be hereinafter explained.

Par. 7. The word "waterproof" as applied to a burial vault is understood by scientific men to indicate that the vault will not let water pass, that it will exclude water and that it will not permit water to touch the casket contained in the vault. The ordinary meaning of the word, as defined by Funk & Wagnalls Standard Dictionary is: "To render impervious to water, allowing no water to enter or pass through."

The term "Waterproof" as used by respondent, as aforesaid, means to the consuming public, a watertight vault, a vault which will not permit water to enter the same. Neither of said vaults is waterproof in fact, or as the term is understood by the consuming public; in either water may and often does seep into it through the joints and holes thereof and cause the coffin and remains therein to disintegrate.

These said purported warranties are silent as to the length of time during which said vaults will remain waterproof. Respondent contends in its answer and in some of its testimony that these warranties only guarantee that the vaults in question are waterproof at the time of interment. Eight lay witnesses were called to testify as to their reaction as to the length of time these vaults were guaranteed to endure as "waterproof" and as protecting the remains of a deceased person. They read the purported warranties and understood their terms to imply the continuation of water exclusion under burial conditions for varying lengths of time such as:

A reasonable length of time after burial;
For a long period of time;
For at least one hundred years;
During the life time of the purchaser;
For a life time;
Forever;
For an indefinite time;
No limit to time;
At least during my lifetime;
At least my lifetime or an average lifetime;
From twenty-five to fifty years.

These witnesses included a barber, grocery-store keeper, a housewife, a drug-store clerk, an engineer draftsman, instructor in economics, the manager of the Haskin Information Bureau of Washington, D. C., and the head of a division of the Hall of Science of Washington, D. C.
The representations of said warranties are understood by the purchasing public to mean, import and imply, and they do so mean, import and imply, that said vaults are not only waterproof at the time of interment thereof, but that they will endure as such under any and all burial conditions for a period from twenty-five to one hundred years; while in truth and in fact many of each type of said vaults are not waterproof at the time of interment thereof and many will cease to be waterproof under burial conditions in a period of from one to fifteen years.

Par. 8. Under ideal burial conditions these said vaults will endure as waterproof for a great number of years, but these conditions presuppose a perfectly dry grave at all times, and that the vault is buried in soil which is only very slightly corrosive. In many instances such ideal burial conditions do not prevail and these said respondent's vaults fail of being waterproof and protecting the coffin and remains encased therein, as will be hereinafter shown.

Wet graves are common. Water frequently appears in graves located at the tops of hills. In the Arlington Cemetery, which has the highest elevation of any cemetery in or adjoining the District of Columbia, water very frequently is found coming out of the tops of graves which are six feet or more in depth and such graves are often located on the high ground of this cemetery. Many graves in various sections of the country have been opened and found to be full of water.

It is generally true that cemeteries are located on high ground, yet the topography of much of the territory of the United States is flat and high ground cannot be found convenient thereto for the purpose of burial and the cemeteries in such localities are perforce located on flat or low ground. Where cemeteries are located on flat or low ground, water will be found in graves thereof, particularly during the rainy seasons. In the State of Indiana there is much flat country with no hills in sight and many cemeteries are located there on flat ground. The same is true in parts of Ohio, northern Iowa, southern Minnesota, parts of South Dakota, much of North Dakota, the great plains of Kansas and the irrigated valleys of Idaho, Nevada, Utah, California, and elsewhere in the States of the United States. In these irrigated belts water has been seen coming out of the sides of the hills ten feet above the surface of the surrounding country—due to seepage.

Water in graves will touch these said vaults and such water will in time produce rust thereon. Rust is the beginning of corrosion. Corrosion once started on these vaults is progressive and will continue until the metal of the same is eaten through and they are then no longer waterproof or vermin-proof. This has happened to respondent's said vaults and similar vaults many times.

All soils are corrosive and will cause all ferrous metals to pit or corrode. The fact that you have rust indicates that corrosion has started. Rust is the source of corrosion.

Corrosive soils are quite common in the United States and ferrous metals which have been buried in corrosive soils for from two to eleven years have corroded and pitted and several have pitted to a depth greater than the 12 gauge (the thickest) metal used by the respondent in the construction of its said vaults. All ferrous metals will pit and corrode in a given soil to an equal depth. The copper bearing steel used in the construction of respondent's said vaults is a ferrous metal.

In the case of the Maxwell Burial Vault, corrosion or pitting is the principal factor in the deterioration of these vaults and its effects in many instances weaken the structure and perforate the metal thereof so that air and water may pass through. The seventeen gauge metal, of which the sides of the Maxwell Burial Vault are made, is only 0.0552 of an inch thick and would weaken and become pitted from corrosion much quicker than twelve gauge metal if buried in corrosive soils. The said fiber gasket with which this vault is sealed, as aforesaid, is another hazard against its efficiency, as such sealing if properly adjusted could not be maintained longer than the fiber gasket would retain its elasticity.

One condition precedent to the exclusion of water by this vault, even when first buried, is that the fiber gasket must be placed so that the splicing comes directly under one of the eccentric clamps. No instructions are furnished with these vaults showing how the gasket is to be placed, although respondent furnishes a tag instructing the user to "be sure the gasket or packing is in proper position when placing the cover on the vault at the time of burial." The vault is shipped with the gasket properly placed, but any disarrangement in handling, or otherwise, might in this way result in the vault failing to be water resistant, or impervious to water at the time of burial.

In a number of cases Maxwell Burial Vaults and similar makes were disinterred and found after burial of from six to fifteen years to be in a damaged condition. One of these, buried six years, was indented, had rust spots, looked scaly and had water running out of it to the extent of twenty-five to thirty buckets. Another buried fourteen years was rusted, full of holes and had water running out of it. Another was shown to have collapsed. Other vaults made of the same or similar metals have failed or were found to be in various stages of corrosion. A scientist, Walter F. Stutz of the Bureau of Standards, conducted experiments with this Maxwell Burial Vault for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not it was waterproof. A new Maxwell Burial Vault was immersed in water and tested for air and water tightness. The vault permitted a small amount of water to enter and allowed air pumped into the vault to escape through the water. The manner in which these experiments were conducted and the results obtained will be set forth later in these findings.

The Oneida Air-Seal Vault

Par. 9. Respondent's Oneida Air-Seal Vault is similar to the air-seal vaults made by the trade generally. They are made of the same metals, 12 gauge in thickness, they operate on the same principle, and their dimensions are practically the same. Similar results could be expected from all of these under identical conditions.

This vault is subject to the effects of corrosion as set forth above, and corrosion is often the cause of its failure to remain waterproof. In addition, in order for it to remain waterproof for any considerable length of time, it must be buried and remain buried under ideal conditions, which are:

1. An airtight hood, 2. A level base, 3. The air space underneath the pan must not be occupied by dirt or other materials that will reduce the amount of air to be forced into the dome, 4. There must be no appreciable change of temperature in the grave from that obtaining when the vault is first buried, 5. There must be no appreciable changes in atmospheric pressure.

These said "ideal" conditions do not obtain in a large number of cases of burial.

Condition 1. An airtight hood is essential to the waterproofness of these vaults. When it is removed the air escapes, removing all compression and consequent resistance to the water which then rises on the inside to the level of the outside head. A puncture the size of a pin hole would destroy the diving bell action and permit free entry of water. This essential condition is destroyed by fracture and puncture resulting from excessive or uneven pressure, weakness, corrosion, freezing and other causes.

Condition 2. With the removal of a level base to the extent of 1 inch and with all other favorable conditions present a 5-foot outside water head would permit water to rise above the top of the rests or bosses and cause a wooden or cloth covered casket to take up the water by capillary attraction. With such a head, an elevation of any side or corner one inch above the level of any other side or corner would produce an equivalent rise of water and would submerge some part of the casket bottom to an approximate depth of nine-sixteenths of an inch. With smaller water heads, 3 and 6 inch deviations would permit water to reach the casket. The bottoms of graves are not always level. No spirit level is used for the purpose of determining whether graves are level at the bottom or not. In many cemeteries it is the custom to dig graves from one to three inches lower at one end than the other for the purpose of drainage.

The Oneida Air-Seal Vault rests entirely on the flange of the pan which is 1\( \frac{1}{2} \) inches in width extending entirely around the edge of the vault and which approximates a total area of 2 square feet. This supports the weight of the vault, casket, body, and the overlying dirt. This weight varies in a 6-foot grave under burial conditions from 2,500 pounds to 3,900 pounds per square foot of flange. This would sink the flange of the vault in ordinary soils and would do so more readily because of the narrowness of the supporting flange. In clay soil commonly distributed throughout the East, parts of the South and through the West, this vault in a 6-foot grave would sink more than 2 inches. In case of a soil variation such as volcanic ash at one end and this clay at the other, the vault would sink more 0.4 of an inch at one end and more than 2 inches at the other. Soil variations which permit of uneven settling under such pressure are quite common in some parts of the country. Thus soils expand and contract on taking up moisture, freezing and drying in different proportions, and such conditions affect adversely the level of the loaded areas of the earth. Soils become much less stable when saturated with water and in case of water standing in a grave for a considerable length of time the base support would be lessened in varying degrees depending upon the character and variety of the underlying strata.

The estimate of 3,900 pounds of earth pressure per square foot of flange is well within that which must be sustained by a large number of vaults as it does not include greater weights of earth which may run as high as 150 pounds per cubic foot, nor does it include the weight of water with which the soil is often saturated.

Condition 3. The air space underneath the pan must not be occupied by dirt or other materials that would reduce the amount of air which would be forced by rising water up into the dome to augment the air already there and add to the resultant resistance. When water is in the grave and ten per cent of this space is filled with solid material, the water rises 0.2 of an inch higher within the vault. With this cavity 40 percent filled the water level is increased 0.8 of an inch or more than enough to enable a 5-foot waterhead to reach and saturate an ordinary casket. Filling the pan 75 percent increases the water level approximately 1.5 inches.

Percolating and rising water, as well as base settling from other causes, has the effect of reducing and filling up this underneath air space. Water rising subsequent to this filling encounters a reduced air volume and less resistance. As a result of such action, the water level inside the vault is raised.

Condition 4. There must be no appreciable change of temperature from that obtaining when the vault is first buried. A drop of 10 degrees Fahrenheit inside this vault contracts the air 2 percent of its volume which is equivalent in its effect on the inside water level to adding 7 inches to the waterhead outside. With the mouth of the vault closed by water pressure, this 2 percent contraction admits a proportionate amount of water to fill the space. Repeated changes of temperature, together with continuous water pressure, tends to a gradual reduction of air resistance within the vault and constant encroachment of the water level. Changes of temperature between summer and winter are sufficient to affect the water level. Monthly averages of underground changes of temperature at a depth of 36 inches vary in Fahrenheit degrees from 41 to 66 in Indiana, 45 to 77.2 in Missouri, from 35.3 to 69.4 in Nebraska, and from 32.6 to 66.6 in Colorado. There is a frost penetration of over 5 feet in large sections of the country comprising portions of Maine, New Hampshire, New York, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, the Dakotas, Wyoming, Idaho and Montana.

The top of this air-sealed vault in a 6-foot grave is 43 inches from the surface and in a 5-foot grave 31 inches. As the confined air in the vault would circulate until the entire vault is uniformly affected by the temperature of the top, these depths are well within a temperature range that would affect the air volume of water-sealed vaults from 2 to 6 percent and affect a proportionate rise of the water surface. The depth of graves is usually from 5½ to 6 feet.

Condition 5. There must be no appreciable change in atmospheric pressure. Atmospheric pressure affects conditions inside an air-sealed vault to the extent of raising the outside water level 1 foot for every 1 inch of increase of barometric pressure. Such changes are common.

The removal of one or more of these said five ideal conditions would result in the increased entry of water into an Oneida Air-Seal Vault in the presence of waterheads of from 4 inches to 6.1 feet, results varying with the nature of the causes and complications obtaining.

Par. 10. Substantial numbers of respondent’s said vaults and other vaults of similar construction failed through corrosion and the natural agencies mentioned. In actual experience, as testified to by witnesses to disinterments of these vaults, they have been found to contain water, rust holes, surface rust, and weaknesses from corrosion.

Due to corrosion and collapsing, a steel vault or any other vault made of ferrous metal is not a permanent fixture and their use has been excluded from one cemetery unless they are vaulted (i.e., encased in a vault of stone, brick, concrete, or cement) for the reason that they do collapse. One metal vault which was exhumed from the Charles Evans Cemetery of Reading, Pa., was full of water. A vault built on the principle of a diving bell will not exclude water therefrom if water remains there long enough to absorb the air pressure within. All metal vaults which have been exhumed from said cemetery contained wet caskets and were wet on the inside and rusted. One such vault buried in said cemetery collapsed after being buried for a period of about 10 years.

In the National Cemetery, Washington, D.C., a metal vault was exhumed and at one corner of the vault one of the locks or fasteners had become corroded on the side and out of that corner water came out. It ran for possibly an hour, just a trickle, trickle, trickle, like a spigot turned on, possibly one-fourth or one-fifth of its full force. The stream or trickle was about the size of a lead pencil.

At the Riverdale Cemetery at Niagara Falls a Maxwell Burial Vault which had been buried for 14 years was exhumed. At the time of the disinterment it was in poor condition, very well rusted and full of holes. There was water in it. The water had gotten around the glass top of and into the casket so that the water had been above the casket. There were many holes in the vault, both at the bottom and sides thereof. A vault similar in type to Oneida Air-Seal Vault was exhumed in this cemetery. It had been in the ground one year and on disinterment it was found that water had gotten into the vault and had risen about six inches on the casket.

In a cemetery at Pittsburgh, Pa., a Clark metal air-sealed vault which had been interred about three months was exhumed. Water had entered the vault to a depth of about 4 inches above the bottom of the pan or base. This means that water had reached the casket to a depth of about 4 inches. There were indications of rust on the outside of this vault.

In a cemetery at Westerville, Ohio, a Clark air-sealed vault was disinterred which had been buried about 12 years. This vault was rusted until the metal thereof was very thin. There were pits in this vault. This vault had rings of rust around it up to about 6 inches, inside the vault, indicating that water had been up to that point.
Another Clark air-sealed vault which had been buried about 6 months in the cemetery named last above was slightly rusted on the outside.

A Maxwell Burial Vault which was buried at Utica, N. Y., on March 13, 1931, and was disinterred in June 1931, upon examination showed that the finish on the coffin was gone. At the time of disinterment the finish was gone and it was back to its natural wood birch condition. The inside of the vault was mouldy and there was mould on the casket plate. The coffin itself was wet. The varnish of the coffin was off completely. A Maxwell Burial Vault which had been in the ground 15 years upon disinterment was found to be covered with rust with some small holes in it, and it was possible to stick one's finger through the metal because it had become so thin.

At the burial of two Maxwell vaults at a cemetery at Erie, Pa., when dirt was thrown upon them they were seen to bend and heard to make a muffled noise, and the vault settled under the weight of the dirt. Metal vaults disinterred at this cemetery have shown rust spots and the entire side of metal vaults completely rusted, the handles at times almost undistinguishable as such because of the heavy coating of rust. Men digging alongside metal vaults buried in this cemetery have thrust their shovels through the sides of such vaults.

At a cemetery at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., a Maxwell Burial Vault which had been buried and disinterred had the top indented from 5 to 6 inches, had spots of about 3 1/2 inches of rust upon it. There was water coming out of this vault in a stream as big as a lead pencil. It probably ran for three hours. Between 25 and 30 buckets of water came out of the vault.

Metal vaults at Arlington Cemetery in Virginia have been found upon disinterment to be full of water and in some the metal was decayed and looked like it was falling apart. In one instance there were two or three holes found in one of these metal vaults.

A metal vault buried in a cemetery at Spartansburg, S. C., which had been buried eight years was disinterred and water was seen to be coming from it. It had pits in it from the size of a dime to the size of a dollar. Some of these pits were deep enough to permit water to seep into the vault. These pits went clear through the vault. Water dripped out of the pits and holes in the vault.

At the Lake View Cemetery of Jamestown, N. Y., metal vaults which have been in the ground for any length of time show evidence of corrosion. Vaults disinterred at this cemetery show a rusted condition both inside and out. A casket inside of a metal vault which had been disinterred at this cemetery was in a damp, mouldy condition.

Thirty-one tests as to the waterproofness of the Maxwell Burial Vault were conducted at the instance of respondent, and one came out with a small amount of water therein.

Par. 11. Both the Maxwell Burial Vault and the Oneida Air-Seal Vault were tested for waterproofness by the Bureau of Standards. In the case of the Maxwell Burial Vault, it was found by experts who made such tests, and the Commission so finds, that this vault leaked water to the extent of about one-half a glassful, and that the same was and is not airtight, or waterproof.

In the case of the Oneida Air-Seal Vaults, four tests were made by said Bureau of Standards to determine whether or not this vault was waterproof.

These said four tests show, and the Commission finds, that:

In Test No. 1, with water 3 feet above the top of the vault and the vault empty, that water entered the vault to a height such that the top of the base was submerged to the depth of 2½ inches.

In Test No. 2, with water standing around the vault to a depth of 1 foot, water entered the vault to a height so that the floor of the base was just covered with water.

In Test No. 3, wherein material was used to simulate a coffin and water was turned on to a depth of 3 feet above the top of the cover, water entered the vault to a depth such that the top surface of the base was covered with water to a depth of 3½ inches. In other words, under actual burial conditions, the coffin would have been resting in more than 3 inches of water.

In Test No. 4, the test was made under conditions which would prevail if the shallow space below the base were not filled with earth but with a vault resting upon the solid floor. Under these conditions with the vault submerged to a depth of 3 feet above the top of the vault, water entered the vault to a depth such that the top surface of the base was covered with water to a depth of 1 inch.

These vaults are buried in graves which do not have a solid base as was the case in this last test. Under actual burial conditions the earth seeps into or is pressed under the pan until the air or most of it is pressed out, thereby lessening the resistance of the air and consequently permitting a greater amount of water to enter the vault.

The results obtained by the Bureau of Standards show that both of these vaults will permit water to enter the same at the time of interment, and the Commission so finds.
Findings

Par. 12. The number of disinterments of metal vaults is negligible. The testimony of 17 dealer witnesses, whose aggregate sales experience covered many years, indicated no complaints by customers on account of the failure of metal vaults. Respondent received 30 complaints of rust, water, seams, etc., as to the Maxwell Burial Vaults, during and since the year 1929. During this period respondent sold 34,000 of this type of vault. From the sale of 3,000, one dealer received one complaint. Another made complaint that two Maxwell Burial Vaults had collapsed. The number of disinterments reported, or known, out of 37,781 metal vaults sold by various jobbers and dealers was 91, or one disinterment for 404 vaults, or about one-fourth of 1 percent of the total number of interments. The exhumation of bodies is so rare as to make this certificate of warranty worthless to a vast majority of the ultimate purchasers of either of these said vaults, for the reason that no opportunity is afforded them in which to ascertain whether said vaults fulfill the terms of said purported warranties.

Par. 13. The practices of respondent in using said purported warranties in aid of the sale of its said Maxwell Burial Vaults, as aforesaid, and in so using or otherwise using the words "Certificate of Warrant", or the word "Warranty", or the phrases "Rust-resisting metal, so constructed as to withstand any earth pressure incident to burial"; "Maxwell-Eccentric-Sealing-Clamp provides a positive method of sealing and when properly fastened will make this burial vault absolutely airtight, waterproof, and vermin-proof"; "we offer to replace without cost to the purchaser any such vault failing to meet these warranties", have and have had, and each of them has and has had, the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive the public into the belief that said vaults are airtight, waterproof, and vermin-proof under all burial conditions, and that they will endure as such.

The practices of respondent when using said purported warranties in aid of the sale of its said Oneida Air-Seal Vault, as aforesaid, and in so using or otherwise using the words "Certificate of Warranty", or the word "Warranty", or the phrases "Rust-resisting metal, so constructed as to withstand any earth pressure incident to burial", "positively waterproof", "we offer to replace without cost to the purchaser any such vault failing to meet these warranties", have and have had, and each of them has and has had, the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive the public into the belief that said vaults are waterproof and that they will endure as such.
The practices of the said respondent, under the conditions and circumstances described in the foregoing findings, are to the prejudice of the public and respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce and a violation of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondent, the testimony and evidence, and briefs and arguments of counsel for the Commission and of counsel for respondent, and the Commission having filed its report, stating its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that the respondent has violated the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes"—

It is now ordered, That respondent, Maxwell Steel Vault Company, its agents, employees, and representatives cease and desist:

From representing, in connection with offering for sale or selling in interstate commerce burial vaults, in purported certificates of warranty, in advertising or in any other manner, that: (a) Maxwell Burial Vaults are made of rust-resisting metal and will withstand any earth pressure incident to burial, or that they are waterproof, airtight, or vermin-proof at the time of interment thereof, or that they will endure as waterproof, airtight, or vermin-proof under burial conditions for any fixed or stated period of time; (b) Oneida Air-Seal Vaults are made of rust-resisting metal, so constructed as to withstand any earth pressure incident to burial, or that they are waterproof at the time of interment thereof, or that they will endure as waterproof under burial conditions for any fixed or stated period of time.

It is further ordered, That respondent shall, within 60 days after the service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.
Where a domestic corporation engaged in compounding perfumes and other toilet preparations and in the sale and distribution thereof to retail dealers and jobbers, doing no business of any kind in France and having no connection with any business organization therein—

(a) Labeled the bottles in which it sold a perfume compounded by it of essential oils and alcohol bought in the United States, with its trade name "Fleur de Matin-Cartel", and displayed the same upon the large shipping cartons in which it customarily delivered its said products in dozen unit quantities, and set forth upon the individual containers thereof a French legend followed by the words "Fleur de Matin by Cartel", together with the notice on one side in small and inconspicuous letters, "1/4 oz. Net, Bottled in the U. S. A.", and statement thereon that "the intention behind the packing of this product is to deliver a fine perfume in a sensible container at the minimum cost"; and

(b) Set forth on the front of the circulars enclosing said bottles within their said individual containers the words "Parfum de Cartel", and on the center panel thereof, "Les Parfums Fleur De Matin-Cartel", "• • • An empress could have no lovelier perfume than this creation of one of the leading perfumers of Paris. • • • To import this perfume from Paris would make the cost prohibitive. Our chemists have succeeded in making it so perfect that it will please the discriminating person as well as the expert";

With capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive many vendees and the consuming public into the belief that said perfume was an imported product made or compounded in France by a perfumer or leading perfumer of Paris or France, and with effect of causing purchase thereof in such belief by said public, many of whom consider the French product superior to the domestic and purchase it in preference thereto, and of placing in the hands of retailers and jobbers a means of representing, offering and selling to the consuming public said domestic perfume as and for one made or compounded in France, with the high reputation attached thereto, and with tendency to divert to itself business from competitors to their substantial injury and prejudice:

Held, That such practices, under the conditions and circumstances set forth, were all to the injury and prejudice of the public and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. William C. Reeves, trial examiner.

Mr. Astor Hogg for the Commission.

Mr. Emanuel L. Turberg and Newman & Bisco, of New York City, for respondent.
Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Leading Perfumers and Chemists, Inc., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has been and is using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it would be in the public interest, states its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its principal office and place of business in the city and State of New York. It is engaged in the business of manufacturing and compounding perfumes and other toilet preparations, and the sale and distribution of said products to retail dealers located at points in the various States of the United States. Respondent causes said products, when sold, to be transported from its place of business in the city and State of New York into and through other States of the United States and the District of Columbia to said vendees at their respective points of location, and in so carrying on its business respondent maintains a constant current of trade and commerce in said products between the State of New York and other States of the United States and the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of its said business respondent is in active and substantial competition with other corporations, partnerships, and individuals engaged in the sale and distribution of perfumes and other toilet preparations in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of its business, respondent, in soliciting the sale of and selling its products in interstate commerce, used and uses the following methods and practices:

(a) Caused and causes the trade name or brand of "Fleur de Matin-Cartel" to appear on the label attached to its perfume, and also on the cartons in which said perfume was and is packed. On the back of said cartons the following appeared and appears:

L'embellage de ce produit est fait de telle sorte qu'on est a meme d'offrir un parfum de premiere qualite, contenu dans un fiacon pratique, avec l'avantage d'un prix des plus moderes.

Fleur de Matin by Cartel

The intention behind the packing of this product is to deliver a fine perfume in a sensible container at the minimum cost.
On the side of said cartons, and in small inconspicuous letters appeared and appears the following:

¾ oz. net

Bottled in U. S. A.

Respondent caused and causes to be wrapped around each bottle of said product, and enclosed in the carton, a circular containing printed matter in both the French and English language. On the front of such circular appeared and appears the words:

Parfume de Cartel and on the center panel thereof appeared and appears the following:

Les Parfume Fleur de Matin, Cartel

Fine Enough for an Empress

An empress could have no lovelier perfume than this creation of one of the leading perfumers of Paris. He has succeeded in imprisoning the rare, exotic fragrance of the flowers of the morning, blending them into a variety of single, delicate, alluring odors. To import this perfume from Paris would make the cost prohibitive. Our chemists have succeeded in making it so perfect that it will please the discriminating person as well as the expert.

Said labels, descriptions, and representations made by respondent, as in this paragraph set out, are for the purpose and effect of creating and they do create the impression with the purchasing public that said product is of French origin and manufacture. In truth and in fact the perfume so labeled, described, represented, and referred to was not and is not the creation of a perfumer of Paris, and was not and is not manufactured in Paris or imported from any foreign country, but was and is a domestic product of the United States of America.

(b) The respondent, further, in soliciting the sale of and selling its products as set out in paragraph 2 hereof, caused and causes the container of a talcum powder which it sells and distributes, and has sold and distributed as aforesaid under the trade name or brand of

to be branded with the words "HENRIET PARIS", followed by the words in small and inconspicuous type, "Made in U. S. A.", which brand is used by respondent for the purpose and effect of creating the impression with the purchasing public that said talcum powder is of French origin and manufacture, when, in truth and in fact, this talcum, so branded, labeled, described and represented was not and is not manufactured in Paris or imported from any foreign country, but was and is a domestic product of the United States of America. Respondent has delivered and delivers said perfume and talcum powder, so labeled, designated, and packed, as aforesaid, to its aforesaid vendees, and said products, still so labeled, designated, and packed, are by said vendees displayed, offered for sale, and sold to the consuming public.

Par. 3. Perfumes and talcum powders manufactured in France have for many years enjoyed widespread popularity, good will, and demand among the trade and consuming public throughout the United States, many of whom believe and consider that perfumes and talcum powders manufactured in France are superior in quality and other desirous characteristics to perfumes and powders manufactured in the United States, and many of the consuming public throughout the United States purchase perfumes and talcums manufactured in France and imported into the United States in preference to perfumes and talcums manufactured in the United States.

Par. 4. Respondent's aforesaid labeling, advertising, and designating of its perfumes and talcums, as set out herein, have the capacity and tendency to and do mislead, confuse, and deceive its vendees and many of the consuming public into the belief that its said perfumes and talcums are manufactured and produced in France and imported into the United States, and they purchase said perfume and talcum in that belief. As a matter of fact respondent's said products are manufactured in the United States.

Par. 5. Further, respondent's said labeling, advertising, and designating of its said products, as set out herein, places in the hands of the aforesaid dealers the instrument and means whereby said dealers may and they do commit fraud upon a substantial portion of the consuming public by enabling said dealers to represent, pass off, offer for sale, and sell respondent's said products as products manufactured in France.

Par. 6. There are among the competitors of respondent referred to in paragraph 1 herein, many who deal in and sell perfumes and talcums manufactured in France and import same into the United States, and who rightfully and lawfully represent said perfumes and talcums to be such. There are others of said competitors who deal in and sell perfumes manufactured in the United States, and who in no manner represent their said perfumes and talcums to be manufactured in Paris. Respondent's acts and practices, as in this complaint before set out, all tend to and do unfairly divert business from and otherwise injure and prejudice said competitors, and do substantially injure such competitors so engaged in the sale and distribution of like products in interstate commerce.

PAR. 7. The above alleged acts and practices of respondent are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission, on April 11, 1935, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, Leading Perfumers & Chemists, Inc., charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint, and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, testimony and evidence, in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, were introduced before William C. Reeves, an examiner of said Commission theretofore duly designated by the Commission, by Astor Hogg, attorney for the Commission, and by Nathan Waxman, attorney for the respondent; and said testimony and evidence was duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and evidence, and briefs in support of the complaint and in defense thereto; and the Commission having duly considered the same, and being fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom;

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its principal office and place of business in the city of New York in said State. Since the year 1920 respondent has been engaged in the business of compounding perfume and other toilet preparations and in the sale and distribution of said products to retail dealers and jobbers located in various States of the United States. Respondent causes said products, when so sold, to be transported from its place of business in the State of New York into and through other States of the United States to said vendees at their respective points of location. In the course and conduct of its said business, respondent is in substantial competition with other corporations and with partnerships and individuals engaged in the sale of perfume and other toilet preparations in commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

Par. 2. The perfume sold by respondent, as set out in paragraph 1 hereof, and labeled, marked, branded, and designated as set out in paragraph 3 hereof, is manufactured and compounded in the United States of America. The body of this perfume is alcohol, to which is added essential oils. The essential oils and the alcohol are purchased by the respondent in the United States.

Par. 3. Perfume sold by the respondent in interstate commerce, as set out in paragraph 1 hereof, is put up and sold in quarter-ounce bottles. The bottles containing such perfume are labeled——

Fleur de Matin-Cartel

The phrase "Fleur de Matin-Cartel" is a trade name of respondent. Wrapped around each bottle of said perfume is a circular containing printed matter in both the French and English languages. On the front of such circular appeared and appears the words "Parfum de Cartel" and on the center panel of said circular appeared and appears the following:

Les Parfums Fleur de Matin-Cartel

* Fine Enough for an Empress

An empress could have no lovelier perfume than this creation of one of the leading perfumers of Paris. He has succeeded in imprisoning the rare, exotic fragrance of the flowers of the morning, blending them into a variety of single, delicate, alluring odors. To import this perfume from Paris would make the cost prohibitive. Our chemists have succeeded in making it so perfect that it will please the discriminating person as well as the expert.

Respondent packs and places the said bottles of perfume, wrapped with the circular as aforesaid, in individual cartons. The aforesaid trade name also appears and appeared on the individual cartons in which said perfume is packed. On the back of said cartons the following French and English phraseology has appeared and appears:

L'embellage de ce produit est fait de telle sorte qu'on est à même d'offrir un parfum de première qualité, contenu dans un flacon pratique, avec l'avantage d'un prix des plus modérés.
Fleur de Matin by Cartel

The intention behind the packing of this product is to deliver a fine perfume in a sensible container at a minimum cost.

On the side of said individual cartons containing the bottles of perfume and in small and inconspicuous letters appeared and appears the following:

It is the respondent's usual practice to place a dozen bottles of its perfume, encased in the individual cartons as aforesaid, into a large carton for shipping purposes, on the back of which large carton appeared and appears the trade name "Fleur de Matin-Cartel". Respondent delivers said perfume so bottled, wrapped, designated, branded, and packed as aforesaid, to its aforesaid vendees, and said perfume, so bottled, wrapped, designated, branded, and packed in the individual cartons is by said vendees displayed, offered for sale, and sold to the consuming public. The individual cartons are not sealed, but purchasers and prospective purchasers of the individual cartons of perfume do not see the circular wrapped around each bottle unless and until the individual cartons are opened and the circulars are removed from around the bottles encased in the individual cartons.

PAR. 4. Perfumes manufactured in France have for many years enjoyed widespread popularity, good will, and demand among the trade and consuming public throughout the United States, many of whom believe and consider that perfumes manufactured in France are superior in quality to perfumes manufactured in the United States and that such perfumes manufactured in France have other characteristics more desirable than have perfumes manufactured in the United States, and many of the consuming public throughout the United States purchase perfumes manufactured in France and imported into the United States in preference to purchasing perfumes manufactured in the United States.

French perfumes have always had a high reputation. To label a domestic perfume as one of French origin causes such perfume to have added sales value and enables dealers in perfume so labeled to sell same more readily than would otherwise be the case.

Respondent does no business of any kind whatsoever in France and has no connection with any business organization in France.

PAR. 5. Respondent also sells and distributes in interstate commerce a talcum powder put up in a tin container on which appears the words:
This talcum powder is not manufactured in the United States but on the contrary is imported.

Par. 6. Respondent's aforesaid labeling, designating, and branding of its perfume, as hereinabove set out, with the French word or words indicating that the said perfume was manufactured in or imported from France without clearly stating in equally conspicuous and legible type that the perfume was manufactured in the United States, has the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive many of its vendees and the consuming public into the belief that said perfume is manufactured or compounded in France and imported into the United States and causes the purchasing public to purchase said perfume in that belief, when in truth and in fact respondent's perfume is manufactured and compounded in the United States.

Respondent's said labeling, designating, and branding of its perfume as set out herein places in the hands of retailers and jobbers the means whereby they may represent, offer for sale, and sell to the consuming public said perfume as perfume manufactured or compounded in France.

The acts and practices, all as hereinbefore set forth, tend to divert business to respondent from its competitors, to the substantial injury and prejudice of said competitors.

CONCLUSION

The practices of said respondent, Leading Perfumers & Chemists, Inc., under the conditions and circumstances hereinbefore set forth, are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and in violation of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondent, testimony and evidence submitted, briefs of counsel, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and entered its conclusion that respondent has violated Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes"—
It is now ordered, That respondent, Leading Perfumers & Chemists, Inc., its representatives, agents, servants, and employees, in connection with the sale, offer for sale, or distribution of perfume in interstate commerce, do cease and desist:

(1) From directly or indirectly advertising, branding, labeling, designating, or otherwise representing perfume compounded or manufactured in the United States, with the term, "Fleur de Matin-Cartel", or with any other French word or words indicating or importing that said perfume has been compounded or manufactured in France and imported into the United States.

(2) From directly or indirectly advertising, branding, labeling, designating, or otherwise representing perfume with any word or words or foreign phraseology or illustration which imports or implies that perfume had been manufactured or produced in France and imported into the United States, when such is not the fact.

(3) From representing in any manner, directly or indirectly, that perfume is the creation of one of the leading perfumers of Paris, or that any perfumer or other person of Paris or France has any direct or indirect connection with perfume when such is not the fact.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after the date of the service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report, in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with the order to cease and desist hereinabove set forth.

And it is hereby further ordered, That subparagraph (b) of paragraph 2 of the complaint, wherein it is charged that respondent misbranded certain of its talcum powder so as to represent that same was of French origin and manufacture, be and the same hereby is dismissed.

IN THE MATTER OF

MORRIS R. SHAPIRO, CHARLES SHAPIRO, MARY SHAPIRO, AND MRS. ROBERT SHAPIRO, TRADING AS THE ROBERT MORE COMPANY

Where a firm engaged in the sale of Christmas seals and merchandise through agents on the “return or remit” plan—

(a) Misleadingly represented in their advertisements for agents in various newspapers and other periodicals that they would furnish certain premiums for the sale of a given number of articles, and “dozens of other wonderful premiums”, and that they were also giving away various other specified articles for the sale of their Christmas seals, the facts being that only a few of such articles could be earned through the sale of the number of packages of seals and tags specified in said advertisement, and remittance of additional money was necessary to secure other so-called “gifts” or premiums, and it did not offer “dozens of other wonderful premiums” as therein represented;

(b) Included among the premiums offered in the circular matter sent those replying, a “big six-tube radio receiver”, without giving advice of fact that such article was not a complete set ready for immediate use, but required a battery which it did not supply, and that tubes, speaker or parts necessary for use were not included, or notice, until receipt of money from agent, that it would also be necessary to pay $2.00, more or less, for express charges; and

(c) Set forth in their advertisements directed to securing agents as aforesaid, “We pay postage on goods”, facts being such postage was paid on only a comparatively few of the premiums offered to agents, and, in the case of the majority of such articles, prepayment of postage and money to cover cost of packing was demanded in addition;

With effect of causing many of the public to become agents for the sale of said products and to purchase its premiums and rewards in reliance upon the truth of such false, misleading, and deceptive representations, and with capacity and tendency so to do and to prejudice and injure public and competitors, divert trade unfairly from and otherwise prejudice and injure competitors’ business, and operate as a restraint upon and a detriment to the freedom of fair and legitimate competition in the business concerned:

Held, That such practices, under the conditions set forth, were to the injury and prejudice of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. W. W. Sheppard, trial examiner.

Mr. George Foulkes for the Commission.

Paragraph 1. Respondents, Morris R. Shapiro, Charles Shapiro, Mary Shapiro, and Mrs. Robert Shapiro are copartners trading as the Robert More Company, and are engaged in business in the city of Chicago, State of Illinois. They are now and for more than two years last past have been engaged in the business of distributing and selling salves, Christmas seals, and miscellaneous merchandise, which they distribute to purchasers, many of whom reside in States other than the State of Illinois, and when orders are received thereof, they are filled by respondents by shipping the same from the said city of Chicago, Ill., into and through other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, to the respective places of business or residence of such purchasers.

Paragraph 2. In the course and conduct of their business said respondents were and are in substantial competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged in the sale and distribution of salves, Christmas seals, and miscellaneous merchandise between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 3. Respondents' method of conducting their business is what is commonly known as the "return or remit" plan. In the course and conduct of such business respondents have advertised and do advertise in various newspapers, magazines, and periodicals for agents to sell their merchandise on the said "return or remit" plan, under which such agents are furnished with the merchandise to be sold and are allowed thirty days to sell the same and remit to respondents the agreed portion of its selling price or to return the unsold portion of the merchandise. No deposit is required and the goods remain the property of the respondents until paid for. The selling agent may remit the stated sum of the amount collected and keep the rest as commission, may remit the entire sum collected and receive what is advertised by respondent as a "gift" for the performance of the selling services, or may remit other stated amounts together with the sum collected upon the sale of the merchandise and receive a "gift" as set out in respondents' premium list which is sent to its selling agents.

Par. 4. The advertising placed by respondents in various newspapers, magazines, and periodicals is variously devised to show representations of express wagons, air rifles, radios, motion picture projectors, dishes, wrist watches, and various other sundry articles, and contains statements and representations such as the following:

YOUR CHOICE!

For a Little of Your Spare Time

For selling only 20 packages of Christmas Seals and Tags at 10¢ a package, we will send you choice of a dandy banjo ukulele, big telescope, a guaranteed pocket watch, a genuine Eastman camera, a genuine leather football, dandy pen and pencil set and dozens of other wonder premiums!

Big Cash Commissions Paid

Thousands of our agents are earning money in spare and full time selling our famous Christmas Seals at 10¢ a package. We also give away ukuleles, 22-caliber Hamilton rifles, radios, 32, 38 and 42-pc. dinner sets, ladies and men's wrist watches, Flying Eagle coaster wagons, movie projectors, and many other wonderful gifts for selling our Christmas Seals and remitting according to offers in premium lists.

We pay postage on goods

Par. 5. In truth and in fact the majority if not all of the various so-called "gifts" or premiums so advertised by respondents to be obtainable by their selling agents on completing sales of a specified number of packages of Christmas seals and tags, are only obtainable by such selling agents upon the payment of various sums in cash, in addition to cash remittances realized upon the sale of such seals and tags, and in truth and in fact the only goods upon which respondents pay postage are the items of merchandise forwarded to selling agents for sale by them. While it is true that upon receiving an application from an individual who desires to become a selling agent, respondents send with the merchandise forwarded to such selling agent various communications which indicate that the receipt of many of the gifts or premiums aforesaid is conditional upon payment of an amount in cash in excess of the proceeds anticipated from the sale of such merchandise, nevertheless such conditions are so present to prospective selling agents as to fail to negative the representations contained in respondents' advertising.

PAR. 6. The representations of respondents as aforesaid have had and do have the tendency and capacity to confuse, mislead, and deceive members of the public into the belief that upon making sales of specified amounts of respondents' merchandise, the various gifts or premiums advertised as a reward therefor, will be received unconditionally, when in truth and in fact such is not the case. Said representations of respondents have had and do have the tendency and capacity to induce members of the public to answer respondents' advertisements and to sell respondents' merchandise, as above set forth, and unfairly to divert trade to respondents from competitors engaged in the sale of similar merchandise upon "return or remit" plan which plans do not misrepresent the conditions or terms upon which said sales are made.

PAR. 7. The above acts and things done by respondents are all to the substantial injury and prejudice of the public and to substantial competitors of respondents in interstate commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission issued and served a complaint upon the respondents, Morris R. Shapiro, Charles Shapiro, Mary Shapiro, and Mrs. Robert Shapiro, copartners trading as the Robert More Company, charging said respondents with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of said Act. The respondents thereafter having filed answer to said complaint and having made, executed, and filed a stipulation as to the facts which was entered upon the record in which it is stipulated and agreed by and between the respondents and the Federal Trade Commission that the said Commission may take said stipulation as to the facts in this proceeding and in lieu of testimony in support of the charges stated in said complaint or in opposition thereto, and that said Commission may proceed upon said agreed stipulation as to the facts to make its report, stating its findings as to the facts (including inferences which it may draw from the said stipulated facts) and its conclusion based thereon, and enter its order disposing of the proceeding—the right of both the Commission and respondent to file briefs and the presentation of argument being expressly waived. Thereupon this proceeding came on for decision, and the Commission having duly considered the record and being fully advised in the premises, makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondents, Morris R. Shapiro, Charles Shapiro, Mary Shapiro, and Mrs. Robert Shapiro are copartners trading as the Robert More Company, and are engaged in business in the city of Chicago, State of Illinois. They are now and for more than two years last past have been engaged in the business of distributing and selling salves, Christmas seals, and miscellaneous merchandise, which they distribute to purchasers, many of whom reside in States other than the State of Illinois, and when orders are received thereof, they are filled by respondents by shipping the same from the said city of Chicago, Ill., into and through other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, to the respective places of business or residence of such purchasers.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of their business said respondents were and are in substantial competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged in the sale and distribution of salves, Christmas seals, and miscellaneous merchandise between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Among these competitors are the American Seed Company of Lancaster, Pa., the Wilson Chemical Company of Tyrone, Pa., and the Lancaster County Seed Company of Paradise, Pa., who advertise their products in the same newspapers located in the same competitive area as the respondent and who sell to agents and purchasers in the same competitive area as the respondents.

Par. 3. Respondents' method of conducting their business is what is commonly known as the "return or remit" plan. In the course and conduct of such business, respondents have advertised and do advertise in various newspapers, magazines, and periodicals for agents to sell their merchandise on the said "return or remit" plan, under which such agents are furnished with the merchandise to be sold and are allowed thirty days to sell the same and remit to respondents the agreed portion of its selling price or to return the unsold portion of the merchandise. No deposit is required and the goods remain the property of the respondents until paid for. The selling agent may remit the stated sum of the amount collected and keep the rest as commission, may remit the entire sum collected and receive what is advertised by respondents as a "gift" for the performance of the selling services, or may remit other stated amounts together with the sum collected upon the sale of the merchandise and receive a "gift" as set out in respondents' premium list which is sent to its selling agents.

PAR. 4. The advertising placed by respondents in various newspapers, magazines, and periodicals is variously devised to show representations of express wagons, air rifles, radios, motion picture projectors, dishes, wrist watches, and various other sundry articles, and contains statements and representations such as the following:

ROBERT MORE COMPANY, Chicago, Illinois

The radio referred to in the above communication and listed as Gift #92 Big 6 Tube Radio Receiver, and also referred to in paragraph 4 hereof as a “radio” and set forth in Exhibit 2 of File No. 2493-4-3 (herein set forth) in manner and form as follows:

Gift #92 Big 6 Tube Radio Receiver—sell $2.00 worth of Seals and add only $3.75 in cash making a total of $5.75 to be sent us. Just think! a big radio set on the easiest offer ever made. Don't miss this bargain whatever you do.

is not a radio complete in construction and ready for immediate use, but is in fact a receiving set, operating only with electricity supplied by a battery, and respondents do not furnish such battery, nor does the radio set sent to selling agents for the sale of seals include tubes, speaker, or parts necessary for the use thereof by the agent. When a selling agent remits $8.00 derived from the sale of 80 packages of Christmas seals, or the sum of $5.75 derived from the sale of 20 packages of Christmas seals and an additional $3.75 supplied by the selling agent from his own pocket, and selects the radio as the gift of his choice, the respondent informs the selling agent by mail that the “radio” advertised is a battery set without battery, without tubes and without speaker. The respondents also inform such agent that it will be necessary to pay $2.20 more or less for express charges.

Par. 7. In addition to the communications set forth in paragraphs 5 and 6 hereof, another communication is sent to the selling agent, which communication appears in the Commission's files as Exhibit 5 of File No. 2493-4-3 and made a part hereof as if the same were set out in full herein, and which purports to set forth by the use of pictures the gifts obtainable by the selling of 20 packages of Christmas seals at 10 cents a package and additional stated amounts to be supplied by the selling agent. The communication contains pictures of:

1. Big Mama Doll—Gift No. 14
2. 12 Piece Bath Towel Outfit—Gift No. 16
3. Single-shot 30’’ Model Rifle—Gift No. 22
4. 22-Cal. Bolt Action Rifle—Gift No. 47
5. 22 Hamilton Repeater—Gift No. 66
6. Steel Wagon with Bumper and Brake—Gift No. 145
7. A pair Plaid Fleece Twill Blankets—Gift No. 90
8. Junior Size Gift No. 85 is a wagon, and in connection with the sale of said wagon the respondents use the following phrase: “Shipped Express, Receiver to Pay charges.”

These “gifts” can be obtained by the selling agent by remitting to the respondents the proceeds from the sale of 20 packages of Christmas seals at 10 cents a package and additional stated amounts. No wording is used in connection with the advertisement of these “gifts” to inform the agents that the “gifts” can be obtained by selling Christmas Seals without adding an additional amount of money to make up the difference between the amount of money obtained from the sale of the Christmas seals and the pretended value of the “gifts”, but in each case it is necessary for the agent to remit an additional amount of money to procure said premium.

The only “gift” or premium upon which the respondents pay postage are the following:

Gift No. 50, Gift No. 500, Gift No. 501.
Gift No. 502, Gift No. 506, Gift No. 507.
Gift No. 518, Gift No. 579.

The respondents require that the agent or prospective agent pay the postage or freight on all other gifts or premiums. The use of the phrase “We pay postage on goods” by the respondents in their advertisement as set forth in paragraph 4 hereof is incorrect and misleading in that the reader is led to believe from such advertisement that the respondents do in fact pay all charges necessary to ship or transmit the gifts or premiums chosen by the selling agent to such agent. In truth and fact, the respondents only pay postage on the “gifts” above enumerated and also upon the Christmas seals sent by the respondents to the prospective selling agents.

Par. 8. All of the aforesaid statements and representations made by respondents in connection with and relating to their aforesaid “gifts” and premiums and also their representations concerning the amount of articles it is necessary for their agents to sell to entitle them to gifts or premiums and also their representations as to the quality of certain of said premiums and also their representations as to the payment of postage on goods, as in this complaint hereinbefore set forth, have the capacity and tendency to and do cause many of the public to become agents for the sale of respondents' products and to purchase respondents' premiums and rewards in the belief that said statements and representations are true, when in truth and in fact, said statements and representations are false, deceptive, and misleading as hereinbefore set forth.

Par. 9. The above alleged misleading and deceptive representations and practices of respondents under the circumstances and conditions hereinbefore set forth, constitute practices or methods of competition which have and had the capacity and tendency: to prejudice and injure the public; unfairly to divert trade from and otherwise prejudice and injure the business of respondents' competitors; and to operate as a restraint upon and a detriment to the freedom of fair and legitimate competition in the business of selling in interstate commerce, Christmas seals, salves, and miscellaneous articles through agents who sell said articles for a premium or reward.

CONCLUSION

The practices of said respondents under the conditions described in the foregoing findings are to the injury and prejudice of the public and respondents' competitors and are unfair methods of competition in commerce and constitute a violation of the Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

and employees, in connection with the sale and the offering for sale of any article in interstate commerce, forthwith cease and desist from representing in and by advertisements or in any other manner directly or indirectly:

(a) That they will furnish a given and stated premium or reward for the sale of a given number of articles in which they deal, until and unless they actually furnish such premium or reward for the making of such number of sales.

(b) That they will prepay the postage on premiums and rewards represented to be furnished by them, until and unless they actually prepay the postage on such premiums or rewards.

(c) That as a premium or reward they will furnish a radio receiving set, until and unless they actually furnish as a premium or a reward a radio receiving set complete in construction, equipped with tubes and all other necessary parts to make such receiving set ready for immediate use.

(e) That they will prepay the postage on premiums offered until and unless they actually prepay such postage and the expense of packing such premiums in the containers thereof.

(f) That they will prepay the postage on goods until and unless they actually prepay postage on the articles which they sell and until and unless they actually pack without cost to the purchaser the goods which they sell and the premiums they offer without charging the purchaser thereof for such packing and postage.

(g) That any premium or reward is a "gift" where the giving of any such premium or reward is based upon the furnishing by the purchaser or prospective purchaser of services, money, or other valuable consideration.

It is hereby further ordered, That the aforesaid respondents shall within 60 days from the day of the date of the service upon them of this order, file with this Commission a report or reports in writing, setting forth the manner and form in which they and each of them shall have complied with this order.

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Certified Products Company, Inc., a corporation, and Jerome C. Ard, a natural person, hereinafter referred to as respondents, have been and now are using unfair methods of competition in commerce as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Certified Products Company, Inc., is, and at all times hereinafter mentioned was, a corporation organized in the year 1932, and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Alabama, having its principal office and place of business located in the city of Birmingham, Ala. Respondent Jerome C. Ard, is a natural person, a resident of the city of Birmingham, State of Alabama. Respondent Jerome C. Ard is also the president and general manager of respondent, Certified Products Company, Inc.
Complaint

Respondent, Certified Products Company, Inc., has been, since its organization in 1932, and now is, under the direction, supervision, and management of respondent, Jerome C. Ard, in his official capacity as related above, engaged in the sale of brushes, dusters, brooms, mops and other furnishings and equipment of like nature, kind and design.

In the course and conduct of its business respondent, Certified Products Company, Inc., now is and has been, since the year 1932, in substantial competition with other corporations, firms, persons, and copartner­ships engaged in the sale of like articles between and among the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. There are in the various States of the United States other corporations, persons, firms, and copartner­ships engaged in the business of selling brushes, dusters, brooms, mops, and other furnishings and equipment of like nature, kind and design to users and purchasers thereof located throughout the various States of the United States, and pursuant to such sales said persons, firms, corporations, and copartner­ships make shipments from their various respective places of business to such users and purchasers located in the various States of the United States other than the State of the location of such persons, firms, corporations, and copartner­ships so selling.

Par. 3. Among such competitor corporations, persons, firms, and copartner­ships is a certain corporation styled The Fuller Brush Company, a corporation existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Connecticut and having its principal offices and place of business in Hartford, in the State of Connecticut.

Since the organization of the respondent, Certified Products Company, Inc., acting by and through its duly authorized officials, agents, and employees and particularly through the person of Jerome C. Ard, its president and general manager, and respondent Jerome C. Ard, in his personal and individual capacity, have continuously enticed and attempted to entice, for the purpose of employing the same, employees of The Fuller Brush Company, a corporation, as aforesaid, and have endeavored to appropriate and have appropriated values created by the competitor, The Fuller Brush Company, a corporation by enticing and attempting to entice employees of The Fuller Brush Company, a corporation, to violate the contractual relations of such employees with the competitor, The Fuller Brush Company, a corporation, by enticing and endeavoring to entice such employees from the employ of the said The Fuller Brush Company, a corporation, to enter into the employ of the respondent, Certified Products Company, Inc.; the value so appropriated and attempted to be appropriated being the training, experience, and ability of such employees as salesmen in their particular field of competition.

PAR. 5. The enticing and the attempts to entice, as related in the paragraph last above, have been made throughout the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia by the named respondents and each of them.

PAR. 6. The acts and practices of the respondents, Certified Products Company, Inc., and Jerome C. Ard, are prejudicial and injurious to respondents’ competitor, The Fuller Brush Company, which said competitor is engaged in identically the same business as the respondents, and such acts and practices occasion substantial injury to substantial competition in interstate commerce.

The above acts and practices done and caused to be done by the respondents, are and were, each and all, to the prejudice of the public and of respondents’ competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the meaning and intent of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”, approved September 26, 1914.

Count 2

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Certified Products Company, Inc., a corpora-
Complaint 21 F.T.C.

Respondent, and Jerome C. Ard, a natural person, hereinafter referred to as respondents, have been, and now are, using unfair methods of competition in commerce as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Certified Products Company, Inc., is, and at all times hereinafter mentioned was, a corporation organized in the year 1932, and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Alabama, having its principal office and place of business located in the city of Birmingham, Ala. Respondent, Jerome C. Ard, is a natural person, a resident of the city of Birmingham, State of Alabama. Respondent Jerome C. Ard is also the president and general manager of respondent, Certified Products Company, Inc. Respondent, Certified Products Company, Inc., has been, since its organization in 1932, and now is, under the direction, supervision, and management of respondent, Jerome C. Ard, in his official capacity as related above, engaged in the sale of brushes, dusters, brooms, mops, and other furnishings and equipment of like nature, kind, and design.

Such sales are and have been made to purchasers and users thereof located in the various States of the United States of America and in the District of Columbia through the medium of personal or individual solicitation of prospective users and purchasers in interviews had for that purpose, whereupon orders for various items of said merchandise are procured, and pursuant to such orders shipment is made by respondent, Certified Products Company, Inc., from its place of business in the city of Birmingham, State of Alabama, and various warehouses maintained by it for the purpose of storing its merchandise, to users and purchasers located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and there now is and has been, since the year 1932, a constant current of trade and commerce by the respondent, Certified Products Company, Inc., in the merchandise above listed and designated between and among the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of its business respondent, Certified Products Company, Inc., now is and has been, since the year 1932, in substantial competition with other corporations, firms, persons, and copartnerships engaged in the sale of like articles between and among the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. There are in the various States of the United States other corporations, persons, firms, and copartnerships engaged in the business of selling brushes, dusters, brooms, mops, and other furnishings and equipment of like nature, kind, and design to users and purchasers thereof located throughout the various States of the United States, and pursuant to such sales said persons, firms, corporations, and copartnerships make shipments from their various respective places of business to such users and purchasers located in the various States of the United States other than the State of the location of such persons, firms, corporations, and copartnerships so selling.

Par. 3. Among such competitor corporations, persons, firms, and copartnerships is a certain corporation styled The Fuller Brush Company, a corporation existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Connecticut and having its principal office and place of business in Hartford, in the State of Connecticut.

Par. 4. Respondent, Certified Products Company, Inc., acting by and through its duly authorized officials, agents, and employees, and particularly through the person of Jerome C. Ard, its president and general manager, and respondent, Jerome C. Ard, in his personal and individual capacity, have since the organization of the respondent corporation in 1932 continuously and persistently, among the personnel of the respondent corporation, disparaged the financial status, management, and business policies of the competitor, The Fuller Brush Company, by uttering, issuing, and making to the personnel of the respondent corporation statements of a nature derogatory to the financial status, management, and business policies of the said competitor, The Fuller Brush Company, to the hurt and injury of the same, the effect and result of such statements being to entice and in enticing employees of the competitor, The Fuller Brush Company, to sever the contractual relationship between such employees and the competitor, The Fuller Brush Company, such statements being persuasive of the personnel of the respondent corporation to transmit the same to the employees of the competitor, The Fuller Brush Company, thereby appropriating and endeavoring to appropriate to respondent corporation's own separate use and benefit values created by the competitor, The Fuller Brush Company, to wit, the experience, training, and knowledge of such employees.

Par. 5. The enticing and the attempts to entice, as related in the paragraph last above, have been made throughout the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia by the named respondents and each of them.

Par. 6. The acts and practices of the respondents, Certified Products Company, Inc., and Jerome C. Ard, are prejudicial and injurious to respondents' competitor, The Fuller Brush Company, which said competitor is engaged in identically the same business as the respondents, and such acts and practices occasion substantial injury to substantial competition in interstate commerce.

The above acts and practices done and caused to be done by the respondents are and were, each and all, to the prejudice of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the meaning and intent of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," approved September 26, 1914.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

And the said respondents in and by their said substitute answer having waived hearing on the charges set forth in the complaint in this proceeding and having stated in said substitute answer that they do not desire to contest the said proceeding, and having consented in their said substitute answer that the Commission, without a hearing, without evidence, and without findings as to the facts or other intervening procedure might make, enter, issue, and serve upon the said respondents, and each of them, an order to cease and desist from the methods of competition charged in the complaint, and the Commission being fully advised in the premises—

It is hereby ordered, That the respondents, Certified Products Company, Inc., a corporation, and Jerome C. COMPLAINT

Whereas, The Federal Trade Commission did heretofore, to wit, on October 25, 1932, issue its complaint herein, charging and alleging that respondent herein is and has been guilty of unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914; and
Complaint

Whereas, This Commission having reason to believe that respondent herein has been and is using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act, other than and in addition to those in relation to which the Commission issued its complaint as aforesaid, and it appearing to said Commission that a further proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest:

Now, therefore, Acting in the public interest, pursuant to the provisions of the Act of September 26, 1914, aforesaid, the Federal Trade Commission charges that Morris Heller, individually, and trading as "Venice Importing Company", has been and now is using unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce in violation of Section 5 of said Act, and states its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Morris Heller, an individual trading as "Venice Importing Company", at 66 North Sixth Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., and hereinafter referred to as respondent, is, and for more than two years last past has been engaged, as hereinafter described, in the business of selling and distributing olive oil and vegetable compound or salad oil to retail grocery dealers in various States of the United States, more particularly the States of New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Connecticut. In consummating such sales and in distributing such products, respondent causes the olive oil and vegetable compound oil so sold to be transported and delivered from his place of business in New York City, State of New York, through and into various other States of the United States, to the respective purchasers thereof at their respective points of location. In the course and conduct of his business, the respondent has been and is now engaged in direct and substantial competition with various corporations, partnerships, and individuals likewise engaged in the sale and distribution of olive oil and vegetable compound oil and offering such products for sale in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and within the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 2. Olive oil imported from Italy has come to be known among a substantial number of the users and consumers of olive oil and among merchants and dealers in olive oil as being of a quality and flavor superior to all others. Lucca, in the territorial division of Tuscany, Italy, is one of the great olive oil centers of the world, and the olive oil produced there and imported therefrom has become noted among users and consumers of olive oil and among merchants and dealers in olive oil for its superior quality and delicate flavor. Lucca olive oil is considered the best and finest of all olive oil and is preferred by the trade and consumers alike, especially consumers of Italian blood or origin. Practically all olive oil coming from Lucca, Italy, is packed in cans there, the amount exported in bulk from Lucca being inconsequential. The amount of olive oil produced in the Lucca district from olives grown there is not sufficient for Italian consumption. It is much cheaper to import olive oil in bulk. Large quantities of olive oil are imported in bulk from Spain into the United States. Spanish olive oil is substantially cheaper than genuine Italian olive oil, and the oil obtained by blending Spanish oil in substantial proportions with Italian oil is neither as expensive nor as desirable as pure Italian olive oil produced from olives grown in Italy, consumers preferring Italian olive oil. The Italian word “Olio” indicates and is accepted as meaning, particularly to persons of Italian blood and origin, the juice or liquid which is extracted from the olive. The Italian words “Da” and “Dall”, as used by respondent in labeling his cans, mean, and are intended to mean, “from”, and the Italian word “Marca” means “brand”.

PAR. 3. In the sale and distribution of olive oil and vegetable compound oil to retail grocery dealers, as hereinabove described, respondent has caused and still causes large and substantial quantities of his said products to be labeled, branded, offered for sale, sold, and distributed under designations, descriptions, and representations indicating and intended to indicate Italian origin.

On the front of one of respondent’s cans used by him in the sale of olive oil in interstate commerce as aforesaid, appears the following label, employed in connection with a design of olive branches surrounding a likeness of Princess Jolanda, daughter of King Victor Emmanuel III of Italy:

Pure Olive Oil Virgin Registered Trade Mark Reginella Brand Imported From Lucca Italy

On the reverse side of the can this same label is printed in Italian. This label, with its design containing the representation of Princess Jolanda, appears in both English and Italian on an olive oil container issued and used by respondent at a later date, except that the bottom line of the earlier label, which read “Imported From Lucca, Italy” has been changed to read “Imported Pure Olive Oil.”
On another can appears a registered trade mark containing a pictorial representation of a girl standing between olive branches, and the following label printed in both English and Italian:

Giovinezza Brand Virgin Extra Pure Olive Oil Imported from Lucca Italy

On the side of the can is printed in English and Italian the following:

Giovinezza Brand Olive Oil Is An Italian Product

On the face of another can, above and below a picture of two maidens, appears the following label in both English and Italian:

Abbondanza Brand Pure Virgin Olive Oil Imported from Lucca Italy

Another can on its face, and above and below a picture of a maiden and an olive tree, carries the following label in both English and Italian:

Imported Virgin Olive Oil Venus Brand Imported from Lucca Italy

On another can, in connection with the picture of the smiling face of a girl, appears the following label, printed in both English and Italian:

Italian Product Olive Oil Muriel Brand Imported from Lucca Italy

On another can, showing a picture of a small boy perched on a wall, appears the following label:

Idalo Brand Pure Virgin Olive Oil Imported from Lucca Italy

Another can showing a picture of a maiden holding a basket and gathering olives, bears the following label in English and Italian:

Pure Olive Oil Imported from Lucca Italy

Another can carrying a pictorial design of a sprig of olives and the face of a woman wearing a mantilla bears the following label in English and Italian:

La Palina Brand Pure Olive Oil Imported from Lucca Italy

Another can bears the following label, in both English and Italian, used in connection with the design of an olive branch:

Italian Product Lucca Extra Virgin Extra I Olive Oil Tuscany Brand Imported from Italy

The words "Lucca" and "Tuscany" appear on this label in large black type. The word "Brand" is printed under the word "Tuscany" in letters so small as to be almost illegible except on close inspection.
A can using a similar design of an olive branch is labeled in both English and Italian:
Italian Product Lucca Extra Virgin Extra I Olive Oil Kanares Brand Imported from Italy

Another can has a picture of the face of a little girl encircled by a wreath of olives and bears the following label in both English and Italian:
Italian Product Extra Virgin Olive Oil Estelle Brand Imported from Lucca Italy

Another can employing the design of a little girl’s face encircled by a wreath of olives, is labeled in English with Italian equivalent as follows:
Italian Product Extra Virgin Olive Oil Lorraine Brand Imported from Lucca Italy

On another can, using as a design a picture of the head and shoulders of a woman together with a wreath of olives, appears the following label, printed in both English and Italian:
Italian Product Extra Virgin Olive Oil Stella Mia Brand Imported from Lucca Italy

Near the bottom of the design of the woman’s head on this can appears a representation in red, white, and green of the coat-of-arms of Italy.

Still another can used by respondent as a container for olive oil sold by him in interstate commerce contains a design or pictorial representation of an olive branch and of two small children on a bed of olive branches and roses, and the following label printed in both English and Italian:
Italian Pure Olive Oil La Salute Brand Pure Olive Oil Imported from Genoa Italy

In addition to selling olive oil, respondent also sells and has sold in interstate commerce vegetable and salad oils composed of cotton seed, corn or sesame oil, blended with a small amount of olive oil. In connection with the sale by him in interstate commerce of such blended vegetable and salad oils, respondent employs various designs and labels.

On one container for salad oil appears the following printed in Italian only, in heavy, conspicuous type.
Ollo Da Lucca

On one side of the face of this can, under the words “Da Lucca”, in small inconspicuous type, in English, appears the word “Brand”.

Below this in English, in type much smaller and less conspicuous than that used in connection with the words "Da Lucca", appears the following:

Pure Olive Oil Twenty Per Cent and High Grade Vegetable Oil Eighty Per Cent
With Vegetable Flavor and Color

On the reverse side of this can, above the words "Da Lucca", appears the Italian word "Marca" in small type. Below the words "Da Lucca" appears the following in small Italian script:
Olio puro d' oliva venti per conto con la migliore qualita d' olia vegetable ottanta per conto con aroma e colore

On the two narrow sides of this can, in large heavy type easily read at a distance, appear the words:

Olio Da Lucca

meaning in Italian:

Olive oil from Lucca

On another container used by respondent in the sale of vegetable oil appears a design employing the outspread wings of a bird in full flight, the coat-of-arms of Italy representing the head of the bird, and below this a floral design consisting largely of olive blossoms. In connection with these designs appears the following label:

Olio Soprapino Balbo Brand

the first three words being printed in heavy type.

Below this language appears the following:

Consisting eighty per cent vegetable oil twenty per cent virgin Olive Oil the words "Olive Oil" being printed in larger, heavier type than the rest of the quotation.

On another container used for the sale of blended salad oil appears the following label, printed in large, heavy type:

OLIO ROMANINI

and immediately below this in small inconspicuous type the words "Brand". Near the bottom of the can appears the following, printed in relatively small inconspicuous type with the exception that the words "Olive oil" are in heavier, larger type:

This can contains a delicious blended salad oil comprised of eighty per cent choice vegetable oil and twenty per cent pure imported virgin Olive Oil

The above language in similar type and arrangement appears on the other side of the can in Italian.

On two sides of another can used in the sale of salad oil appears the following label:

Olio Soprapino Da Sorrento Brand
the words “Olio” and “Da Sorrento” being printed in large heavy type. Beneath this label appears the following in much smaller type, in both English and Italian:

This can contains a delicious blended salad oil, comprised of eighty per cent choice vegetable oil and twenty per cent pure imported virgin Olive Oil the words “olive oil” again being printed in larger type.

Labeling identical with that employed in the “Da Sorrento” brand is used by respondent on still another container for salad oil with the exception that the words “Da Luccia” appear in heavy type under the words “Olio Sopraffino” in place of the words “Da Sorrento”.

The words, designations, descriptions, and representations “Lucca”, “Tuscan”, “Imported From Lucca Italy”, “Italian Product”, “Imported From Italy”, “Imported From Genoa Italy”, “Olio”, “Reginella”, “Giovinezza”, “Abbondanza”, “Idalo”, “La Palina”, “Lorraine”, “Stella Mia”, “La Salute”, “Da Luccia”, “Marca”, “Sopraffino”, “Balbo”, “Romanini”, and “Da Sorrento”, and pictorial representations of Italian scenes and of the flag or coat-of-arms of Italy as used and employed by respondent in labeling products sold by him in interstate commerce are of Italian meaning, implication, and suggestion and indicate to retail grocery dealers and to the consuming public, especially to persons of Italian blood or origin, and are and were intended to indicate and mean, that the olive oil and vegetable compound or salad oil products thus variously designated, described, and represented, were imported respectively from Lucca, Genoa, or from Italy.

Par. 4. The truth and the facts are that the said olive oil designated, described, marked, and represented by respondent with the words “Lucca”, “Genoa”, “Tuscan”, “Da Lucca”, and “Imported From Lucca Italy”, was not imported from the regions, districts, or places stated, nor wholly from Italy, and that sold under labels showing representations of the flag or coat-of-arms of Italy and of Italian scenes and containing words of Italian suggestion such as “Olio”, “Reginella”, “Giovinezza”, “Abbondanza”, “Idalo”, “La Palina”, “Lorraine”, “Stella Mia” and “La Salute” were not imported wholly from Italy, the so-called Italian olive oil handled and sold by respondent herein consisting of Italian oil blended by him with at least twenty-five percent of a cheaper oil imported from Spain in bulk, the resulting product being thereafter sold by respondent as Italian oil; and the vegetable compound or salad oils bearing labels employing in large type the Italian word “Olio”, meaning olive oil, and other words of Italian meaning or suggestion, such as “Da Luccia”, “Balbo”, “Romanini” and “Da Sorrento”, do not contain any Italian olive oil, nor even Spanish oil, except in small quantity, but are and have been composed largely of vegetable oils, mainly cottonseed or corn, produced in the United States, and of sesame oil.

PAR. 5. Respondent in further connection with his business of selling and distributing olive oil in interstate commerce, has resorted to and adopted, and still resorts to and adopts, the practice of mixing Spanish and Italian oil in one large tank from which said tank numerous cans or small containers are thereafter filled, variously labeled, marked or branded so as to convey the impression upon the purchaser of the same that they contain different types, grades, and qualities of olive oil. Likewise respondent resorts to and has resorted to the practice of employing various labels or brands on compound or salad oils, indicating different brands or types, all drawn from the same tank. Respondent's labels, brands, marks, and representations, embracing some 30 or 40 brand names, including those on his vegetable compound or salad oil products, are not used in a manner to indicate origin of the product in the respondent herein, nor to identify or distinguish commercial source, nor do they indicate type, grade, or quality in connection or association with origin or commercial source.

PAR. 6. Said respondent in the further conduct of his said business of selling and distributing olive oil and vegetable or salad oil in interstate commerce has failed or refused to advertise or otherwise to identify and associate many of the above-referred to products with his business, thereby placing in the hands of the retail grocer or other dealers in various States an instrument enabling and permitting the retailer more easily to substitute respondent's goods for those of another.

PAR. 7. Respondent's use of the words, designations, descriptions, and representations, "Lucca", "Genoa", "Tuscany", "Da Lucca", "Imported From Lucca Italy", and "Imported From Italy", pictorial representations of Italian scenes and of the flag or coat-of-arms of Italy, and of further words of Italian suggestion such as "Reginella", "Giovinezza", "Abbondanza", "Idalo", "La Palina", "Lorraine", "Stella Mia", and "La Salute" in designating, describing, and representing, offering for sale and selling his said olive oil as described in paragraphs 3 and 4 hereof, is false, misleading, and deceptive and has the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive a substantial number of retail grocery dealers and of the consuming public into purchasing said olive oil in the erroneous belief that it was imported entirely from Lucca, Genoa, or from Italy when such is not the fact; and respondent's use of the Italian words "Olio", "Da Sorrento", "Balbo", "Romanini", and "Da Luccia" in designating, describing, and representing, offering for sale and selling a vegetable compound or salad oil containing a small percentage of Spanish olive oil, as described in paragraphs 3 and 4 hereof is likewise false, misleading, and deceptive and has the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive substantial numbers of retail grocery dealers and of the consuming public into purchasing said vegetable compound or salad oil in the belief that it was and is composed wholly or largely of Italian olive oil or olive oil when such is not the fact.

PAR. 8. The use by respondent of the false, misleading, and deceptive representations, statements, and assertions hereinabove set forth, including those in paragraphs 5 and 6 herein, constitute practices and methods of competition which tend to and do, (a) confuse, prejudice, and injure the public, (b) unfairly divert trade from and otherwise prejudice and injure respondent's competitors, (c) operate as a restraint upon and a detriment to free and legitimate competition in the business of marketing olive oil, and (d) place in the hands of retail grocers and dealers an instrument which permits them more easily to substitute the goods of respondent for those of another.

PAR. 9. Said false, misleading, and deceptive acts, practices, and methods of respondent, under the circumstances and conditions herinabove alleged are unlawful, and constitute unfair methods of competition within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding coming on for final hearing by the Federal Trade Commission on the record, including the supplemental and amended complaint of the Commission issued under Section 5 of the Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", and respondent's answer thereto in which respondent waives hearing on the charges set forth in said complaint, refrains from contesting the proceeding and, pursuant to the provisions of the Commission's Rules of Practice with respect to answers, consents that the Commission may make, enter, and serve upon respondent an order to cease and desist from unfair methods of competition set forth in the said supplemental and amended complaint herein, and the Com­ mision being advised in the premises—

It is now ordered, That the respondent, Morris Heller, individually, and trading as Venice Importing Company, his officers, agents, servants, and employees, in connection with the offering for sale and sale in interstate commerce, and in the District of Columbia, of olive oil, compound vegetable oil and related products, do cease and desist from:
(1) The use of the word “Lucca” alone or in connection or conjunction with any other word or words, and from the use of the name of any other city, or of any district or province of Italy, as a brand or label, or in any other way, so as to import or imply or to have the capacity or tendency to confuse, mislead, or deceive purchasers into believing that said product was produced in and imported either from the Lucca district of the Province of Tuscany, or from any other city or any district or province of Italy, unless and until said statements are true in fact and said olive oil was produced in and imported respectively from the city, district, or province of Italy stated or indicated.

(2) The use of the word “Italy” or the words “Italian Product”, “Italian Oil”, or “Imported From Italy”, alone or in connection or conjunction with any other word or words, and from the use of any pictorial representation of the Italian flag or of the coat-of-arms of Italy, or of any ruler or member of the ruling house of Italy, alone or in conjunction with the words “Imported Product”, or any other word or words describing the said product, and from the use of the said word or words or pictorial representation or representations as a brand or label for olive oil so as to import or imply, or having the tendency or capacity to confuse, mislead, or deceive purchasers into believing that said product is composed wholly of oils produced in and imported from Italy, unless and until such statements and representations are true in fact and said olive oil was produced in and imported from Italy.

(3) The use of the word “olio” to designate or describe an oil product composed in part of olive oil and in part of other oils unless and until there appears in immediate connection and conjunction with the word “olio” and in clear and legible type or lettering in size equal to that of the word “olio”, other word or words which accurately and truthfully describe and designate the true content of the product; and from the use, in connection with an oil composed in part of olive oil and in part of other oils, of pictorial representations of olive branches, or the word “Romanini” or other word or words indicating or suggesting Italian origin, unless and until there appears in connection and conjunction therewith and in clearly legible and conspicuous type a word or words accurately and truthfully describing and designating the true content of the product.

It is further ordered, That the respondent within 60 days from and after the date of service upon him of this order, shall file with the Commission a report, or reports, in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he is complying with the order to cease and desist hereinabove set forth.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Samuel Kronovet, as an individual and trading as Westbury Knitting Mills, has been, or is, using unfair methods of competition in commerce as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be to the public interest, the Commission hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. The said respondent, Samuel Kronovet, is an individual trading under the name and style of Westbury Knitting Mills, with his principal place of business located in the city of New York, State of New York. Respondent is now, and for more than one year last past has been engaged in the sale of knitted garments to the trade between and among various States of the United States; causing said products, when sold, to be shipped from his place of business in the State of New York to purchasers thereof located in the various States of the United States, other than the State of New York; and in the course and conduct of his business the respondent, Samuel Kronovet, was at all times herein referred to in competition with other individuals, firms, partnerships, and corporations likewise engaged in the sale and distribution, in interstate commerce, of like and similar products.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of his business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent, Samuel Kronovet, adopted as and for a trade name under which to carry on his said business the words “Westbury Knitting Mills”, and caused such trade name so containing the words “Knitting Mills” to appear on invoices, letterheads, and other advertisements and advertising matter in soliciting the sale of and selling his products in interstate commerce when in truth and in fact Samuel Kronovet did not own, control, or operate any mill or mills wherein the products he sold and distributed in interstate commerce were manufactured, but on the contrary, respondent purchased such products from others or from the manufacturers thereof. When respondent purchases said products from the manufacturers thereof, he sells same to retail merchants in the various States of the United States, who in turn sell same to the public at retail.

Par. 3. There is, on the part of a large portion of the retail trade selling knitted garments to the consumer, a tendency to deal with and to buy such goods directly from the manufacturer, as it is generally considered among the trade that by buying direct from the manufacturer a middleman's profit is eliminated, and that thereby better prices can be obtained by the retailer, which is a decided trade advantage. The use of the term and words “knitting” and/or “mills”, either separately or in conjunction each with the other, by respondent in the manner and form as hereinbefore set out, has a tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive the retail merchants dealing in such commodities by causing them to believe that in buying from respondent they are buying direct from the mill or factory in which the goods so bought were made, and also has a tendency and capacity to unfairly divert to respondent trade from those individuals, corporations, associations, and firms selling to the retail trade in interstate commerce goods, wares and merchandise similar to those sold by respondent, but who truthfully represent and advertise same, and also from those individuals, corporations, associations, and firms who really manufacture the goods they sell and ship in interstate commerce similar to the goods sold by respondent as aforesaid.

Par. 4. The above acts and things done by respondent are to the injury and prejudice of the public and competitors of respondent in interstate commerce, within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”, approved September 26, 1914.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

Samuel Kronovet, trading and doing business as Westbury Knitting Mills, respondent herein, having filed his answer to the complaint in this proceeding, in which answer he states that he desires to waive hearing on the charges set forth in the complaint herein, and not to contest the proceeding, consents in and by his said answer that as provided in paragraph (b) of Rule V of the Commission’s Rules of Practice, the Commission, without trial, without evidence and without findings as to the facts or other intervening procedure, may make, enter, and serve upon said respondent an order to cease and desist from the methods of competition alleged in the complaint.

And the Commission having considered the said answer and being fully advised in the premises—

It is now ordered, That the respondent, Samuel Kronovet, trading and doing business as Westbury Knitting Mills, and his agents, servants, representatives, and employees, in connection with the sale, or offer for sale in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, of knitted garments, cease and desist from:

(1) Using the words “knitting” and “mills”, either independently or in conjunction with other words, as a part of his trade name, or in advertisements or advertising literature or in any way, until and unless he actually owns, operates, and controls the factory or factories wherein said knitted garments, sold and distributed by him, are actually knitted and manufactured.

(2) Representing, by advertisements, by general business stationery or in any manner or means whatever, that he is the knitter or manufacturer of the knitted garments sold by him, until and unless he actually owns, operates, and controls the factory or factories wherein said knitted garments, sold and distributed by him, are actually knitted and manufactured.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after the service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth the manner and form in which he has complied with the order herein set forth.
Consent order requiring respondent corporation, its officers, etc., in connection with the sale or offer in interstate commerce of silk or raw cloth to cease and desist from using corporate name containing word "Mills" and from representing by any other means that it is a knitter, weaver or manufacturer of cloth, unless and until it actually knits, weaves, or manufactures the cloth sold or offered by it or owns or controls a mill or mills in which such cloth is knit, woven or manufactured.

Mr. T. H. Kennedy for the Commission.

Mr. Abraham Karp, of Brooklyn, N. Y., for respondent.

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Cameo Silk Mills, Inc., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has been and now is using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, states its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. The respondent, Cameo Silk Mills, Inc., is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of New York in 1925, then, ever since and now exists by virtue of the laws of said State and now has its principal place of business in the city of New York, State of New York. Respondent is and for more than one year last past has been engaged as a selling agent for manufacturers or converters of silk or raw cloth, the major part of which consists of silk and a small percentage of other fabrics, in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, causing the same when sold to be shipped from its place of business in the State of New York or other State of origin to purchasers thereof located in various States of the United States other than the State of New...
York or other States of origin. In the course and conduct of its business, respondent was at all times hereinafter referred to in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged in the sale and distribution in interstate commerce of similar products.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of its business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, said respondent adopted as and for its name the words Cameo Silk Mills, Inc., under which to carry on its business, and which name containing the word "Mills" it has used continuously since in or about 1925 and is now using in soliciting the sale of and selling its said products in interstate commerce. Respondent has caused said name "Cameo Silk Mills, Inc."

Par. 3. There is a preference on the part of certain of the retail merchants in the different States of the United States for goods, wares, and merchandise, to be resold at retail to the public, bought directly from the mill owner or manufacturer thereof, and there is an impression and belief existing among certain of said retail merchants that by dealing directly with a mill owner or manufacturer they can buy goods at a cheaper price and on more favorable terms than they can from jobbers or corporations, associations, individuals, firms, and partnerships not manufacturing goods, wares, and merchandise they sell to such retail dealers by eliminating the profit of the middleman and that a more uniform line of goods can be purchased from a mill operator than from one who does not operate a mill.

The use by the respondent of the word "mills" in its name in respondent's letterheads, billheads, invoices, stationery, or otherwise, has a tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive purchasers who are customers and prospective customers of respondent by causing them to believe that respondent actually owns and operates or directly and absolutely controls the mill or mills in which said products are made or manufactured, or that respondent himself makes or manufactures his products and that thereby such customers or prospective customers have or will save the middleman's profit; and the use by the respondent of the word "mills" has a tendency and capacity unfairly to divert trade to respondent from other corporations, associations, individuals, firms, and partnerships, who are actually manufacturing products similar to the products of respondent for sale and distribution in interstate commerce, and those competitors of respondent who do not manufacture similar or like products to those of respondent for sale and distribution in interstate commerce, but who truthfully advertise and label same and who do not claim or represent themselves to be manufacturers.

Par. 4. The practices of respondent described in paragraph 2 hereof are all to the prejudice of the public and the respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having come on for final hearing by the Federal Trade Commission upon respondent's answer, waiving all further procedure and consenting that the Commission may make, enter, and serve upon it an order to cease and desist from the unfair methods of competition charged in the complaint and the Commission being fully advised in the premises—

It is ordered, That the respondent, Cameo Silk Mills, Inc., a corporation, its officers, agents, representatives, or employees, in connection with the sale or offering for sale by it in interstate commerce of silk or raw cloth;

Cease and desist from using a corporate name containing the word "mills", and from representing by any other means that the respondent is a knitter, weaver, or manufacturer of cloth, unless and until it actually knits, weaves, or manufactures the cloth it sells or offers for sale, or owns or controls a mill or mills in which such cloth is knit, woven, or manufactured.

It is further ordered, That the said respondent, within 60 days from the date of the service upon it of this order, shall file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it is complying and has complied with the order to cease and desist hereinabove set forth.

IN THE MATTER OF

PYRENE MANUFACTURING COMPANY

COMPLAINT AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5
OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 2563. Complaint, Sept. 27, 1935—Order, Nov. 18, 1935

Consent order requiring respondent corporation, its officers, etc., in connection with the sale and offer in interstate commerce of the cleaning fluid made and sold by it under the name Pyrene Safety Cleaner, forthwith to cease and desist from the use of any statement or representation to the effect that said product will remove grease spots from all materials to which it is applied without injury to color or fabric or of any statement such as "no injury to fabric or color" or of any other statement of equivalent meaning so as to import or imply that, or which may have the tendency or capacity to lead purchasers into the belief that said product may be used on materials or fabrics dyed with non-fast or fugitive colors, without impairing, harming, or injuring said colors, and from the use of words or expressions which may naturally import or imply or tend to convey the belief to purchasers that said product will remove spots of whatever kind or character from materials or fabrics to which the product is applied.

Mr. R. L. Kennedy for the Commission.

Chadbourne, Hunt, Jaeckel & Brown, of New York City, for respondent.

Complaint

Paragraph 1. The respondent is a corporation, organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Delaware, with its principal office and place of business at 560 Belmont Avenue, Newark, N. J., and branch offices in Chicago, Ill.; Atlanta, Ga.; Kansas City, Mo., and San Francisco, Calif. Respondent is now and for more than two years last past has been engaged in the sale of a cleaning fluid, designated as Pyrene Safety Cleaner and, in the distribution thereof, in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia, causes and has caused said product, when sold, to be transported in interstate commerce from its places of business in the States of New Jersey, Illinois, Georgia, Missouri, and California, to purchasers thereof, some located in said States, and others located in various other States in the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of its said business, respondent is now and has been, for more than two years last past, in substantial competition with other corporations and with individuals, partnerships, and firms, engaged in the manufacture, sale, and distribution of cleaning fluids and similar products, in interstate commerce between and among the various States in the United States and the District of Columbia, used for purposes similar to the purposes for which respondent's products are used.

Par. 3. In the course and conduct of its said business as hereinabove described, the respondent in soliciting the sale of and selling, in interstate commerce, a cleaner manufactured and sold by it under the name of the Pyrene Safety Cleaner, composed, substantially, of 70 percent carbon tetrachloride, 30 percent benzol, and a small quantity of oil of lemon and citronella, caused and still causes its said product to be placed in bottle containers of 4- and 8-ounce capacity, which bottles are packed in cartons, and printed statements appearing on the cartons, or cardboard containers, housing said bottles of cleaner and on said bottles describe it as:

PYRENE Safety Cleaner
Spots "take wings"
Removes Grease Spots from all materials without injury to fabric or color
No injury to fabric or color

Par. 4. In truth and in fact the product hereinabove described, labeled and sold by the respondent will not cause "spots" to "take wings" or disappear, and the aforesaid statements that said product "removes grease spots from all materials without injury to fabric or color"; and that it will cause "no injury to fabric or color" are, and each of them is, false, extravagant, misleading, and deceptive. The use of said product on fabrics, dyed with certain kinds of dyes, such as non-fast dyes, does impair, harm, and affect the colors of such fabrics, by causing the same to bleed or run. The use of said product on certain fabrics, and under certain conditions or circumstances, does result in the appearance of a spot or ring on such fabrics, and in either or both of these ways such fabrics are in fact injured by the use of said product thereon.

Par. 5. Said advertisements and labels have had and still have the tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive; do mislead and deceive, and have misled and deceived the purchasing public, by causing it to believe that respondent's cleaner removes grease spots and other spots without injury to fabric or color; and to induce the purchasing public to buy respondent's cleaner, hereinabove described, in such erroneous belief; afford retail merchants an opportunity to perpetrate a fraud on the purchasing public; have the capacity and tendency to divert, have unfairly diverted, and do now unfairly divert trade to respondent from competing individuals, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the sale of like or similar cleaners in interstate commerce, who truthfully and honestly advertise and label their cleaners.

Par. 6. The acts, practices, and representations of the respondent hereinabove set forth are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and the competitors of the respondent, in interstate commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes".

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding coming on for hearing by the Federal Trade Commission upon the record, including the complaint and the answer of the respondent, in which answer the respondent states that it waives hearing on the charges set forth in the complaint, refrains from contesting the proceeding, and consents that the Commission may make, enter, issue, and serve upon it, without trial, without evidence, and without findings as to the facts or other intervening procedure, an order to cease and desist from the methods of competition charged in the complaint, and the Commission having duly considered the record, and being now fully advised in the premises—

It is ordered, That the respondent, Pyrene Manufacturing Company, a corporation, its officers, agents, servants, and employees, in connection with the sale and offering for sale in interstate commerce of the cleaning fluid manufactured and sold by it under the name of Pyrene Safety Cleaner, forthwith cease and desist:

From the use of any statement or representation to the effect that said product will remove grease spots from all materials to which it is applied without injury to color or fabric or of any statement such as "no injury to fabric or color" or of any other statement of equivalent meaning so as to import or imply that, or which may have the capacity or tendency to lead purchasers into the belief that said product may be used on materials or fabrics dyed with non-fast or fugitive colors, without impairing, harming, or injuring said colors, and from the use of words or expressions which may naturally import or imply or tend to convey the belief to purchasers that said product will remove spots of whatever kind or character from materials or fabrics to which the product is applied.

It is hereby further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of a copy of this order, file with the Federal Trade Commission a report, in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with the order to cease and desist hereinabove set forth.

IN THE MATTER OF

ALFRED MENDELL

COMPLAINT AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5
OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Consent order requiring respondent, his agents, etc., in connection with the sale or offer of candy in interstate commerce, forthwith to cease and desist from—

(a) Representing in and on cartons, labels, or in any other way that a brand of candy designated by him as "Fruit Pops" is 100 percent pure, until and unless the candies so designated are made entirely of ingredients all of which are 100 percent pure; and

(b) Designating on cartons, labels, or in any other way candies not 100 percent pure, but synthetically colored and flavored, as "Fruit Pops" until and unless such designation "Fruit Pops" is followed conspicuously, wherever used, with the statement that such candies are artificially colored and artificially flavored.

Mr. Edward L. Smith for the Commission.

Complaint

Paragraph 1. Respondent Alfred Mendell is an individual having his place of business in Ozone Park, State of New York, and is now, and for more than one year last last, has been engaged in the manufacture of confectionery and in the sale thereof to wholesalers and retailers, between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, causing such confectionery when sold by him to be shipped from his place of business in Ozone Park, in the State of New York, to the purchasers thereof, some located in the State of New York and others located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of his business, respondent has been for more than one year last past, and still is, in substantial competition with other individuals and with firms, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of confectionery to wholesalers and retail dealers in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of his business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent has manufactured, assembled, sold and distributed, and still manufactures, assembles, sells, and distributes to wholesalers and retailers between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, an assortment of confectionery under the name "Fruit Pops". Upon the ends of both the inside and outside sections of the cartons containing such assortments designated as "Fruit Pops", respondent has caused and still causes the words "Delicious Flavored Fruit Pops" to be printed, and on both sides of the lower inside section of such cartons has caused and still causes to be printed the following:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Pineapple</th>
<th>Raspberry</th>
<th>Lime</th>
<th>Orange</th>
<th>Lemon</th>
<th>Chocolate</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Delicious Flavored</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>FRUIT</td>
<td>POPS</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5 for 5 cents</td>
<td>100 percent Pure</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr> </tbody>
</table>

Such confectionery is sold to the trade and to the purchasing public in and from the cartons so labelled.

In truth and in fact, the products in such assortment and so described have not been and are not flavored with the fruits mentioned, or with the juices thereof, but have been and are flavored and colored with synthetic flavors and with ingredients other than the fruits and juices of the fruits mentioned and are not 100 percent pure.

Par. 3. The aforesaid representations made by respondent as set out in paragraph 2 hereof, and the use by respondent of the name "Fruit Pops" for said confectionery, have the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive wholesalers and retailers and the purchasing public into the beliefs that such confectionery so described is flavored and colored with the fruits mentioned, or with the juices thereof, and is 100 percent pure, and to purchase said products of respondent in such erroneous beliefs.

There are among the competitors of respondent mentioned in paragraph 1 hereof, manufacturers and dealers who flavor and color the products in which they deal with the fruits or the juices thereof, and who truthfully represent their said products to be so flavored and colored and 100 percent pure. There are also among such competitors others who flavor and color their products with synthetic flavors and with ingredients other than fruits or juices, but who do not represent that their products are flavored or colored with fruits or juices thereof, or that they are 100 percent pure. By the aforesaid representations of the respondent, trade is diverted by respondent from his aforesaid competitors and thereby substantial injury has been done and is being done by respondent to substantial competition in interstate commerce.

Par. 4. The above alleged acts and practices of respondent are to the prejudice of the public and to the competitors of respondent and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

The respondent herein having filed his answer to the complaint in this proceeding, and having subsequently filed with this Commission his motion that he be permitted to withdraw his said answer and that he be permitted to file in lieu thereof as a substituted answer, the draft of a proposed substituted answer annexed to the said motion; and the Commission having duly considered the said motion—

It is hereby ordered, That the said motion be and the same is hereby granted; that the said answer be and the same is hereby withdrawn; and that the said proposed substituted answer be, and the same is hereby filed in lieu of the said answer so withdrawn.

And the said respondent in and by his said substituted answer having waived hearings on the charges set forth in the complaint in this proceeding, and having stated in his said substituted answer that he does not contest the said proceeding, and having consented in his said substituted answer that the Commission, without a trial, without evidence, and without findings as to the facts or other intervening procedure, might make, enter, issue, and serve upon the said respondent, an order to cease and desist from the methods of competition charged in the complaint; and the Commission being fully advised in the premises—

It is hereby further ordered, That the respondent, Alfred Mendell, his agents, servants, and employees, in connection with the sale or offering for sale of candy in interstate commerce, forthwith cease and desist (1) from representing in and on cartons, labels, or in any other way that a brand of candy designated by him as “Fruit Pops” is 100 percent pure, until and unless the candies so designated are made entirely of ingredients all of which are 100 percent pure; and (2) from designating on cartons, labels, or in any other way candies not 100 percent pure, but synthetically colored and flavored, as “Fruit Pops” until and unless such designation “Fruit Pops” is followed conspicuously, wherever used, with the statement that such candies are artificially colored and artificially flavored.

And it is hereby further ordered, That the said respondent, Alfred Mendell, shall within 60 days from the day of the date of the service upon him of this order, file with this Commission his report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he shall have complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF

WESTPHALIA MANUFACTURING COMPANY, INC., AND POLY CHEMICAL LABORATORIES, INC.

OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Consent order requiring respondent corporations, and each of them, their agents, etc., to cease and desist, directly or indirectly, in connection with offering for sale or selling in interstate commerce their cleaning fluid, known and described as Rid-O-Spot, from representing on labels affixed to the container or containers of such product, or in advertisements, oral, printed, or written, that Rid-O-Spot, when used for cleaning purposes leaves no rings or that it removes all grease spots without injury to the most delicate fabric or color.

Mr. James M. Brinson for the Commission.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of an act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that the Westphalia Manufacturing Company, Inc., a corporation, and the Poly Chemical Laboratories, Inc., a corporation, hereinafter designated as respondents, have been and are using unfair methods of competition in commerce as “commerce” is defined in said act, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent Westphalia Manufacturing Company, Inc., has been for several years last past and now is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New Jersey.

Respondent Poly Chemical Laboratories, Inc., is also a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New Jersey.

The main offices and principal places of business of said respondent corporations are located at Jersey City in the State of New Jersey.

Respondents are now and have for several years last past been engaged in the sale and distribution of a cleaning fluid which they have described and designated as “Rid-O-Spot”, in commerce among and between the State of New Jersey and the various other States of the United States and the District of Columbia. It has been and is the practice of said respondent corporations to transport or cause said product to be transported when sold from their said place of business in the State of New Jersey to purchasers of such product located in the various other States of the United States.

In the course and conduct of their business, said respondent corporations have been and were, and each of them has been and was, at all times mentioned herein, in competition with other individuals, partnerships, and corporations similarly engaged in the sale and distribution in interstate commerce of cleaning fluids.

PAR. 2. Respondents in the course and conduct of their said business, described in paragraph 1 hereof, have offered for sale and sold said cleaning fluid by means of false and misleading statements and representations to the effect that Rid-O-Spot is a cleaning fluid which leaves no rings and removes all grease spots instantly without injury to the most delicate fabric or color and other representations and statements to the same, equivalent, or similar effect. The following statements on the labels affixed to containers of their product are typical of the representations by which respondents sell their product:

RID-O-SPOT CLEANING FLUID

Leaves No Rings. Removes all Grease Spots Instantly without injury to the most delicate Fabric or color

In truth and in fact, the use of respondents’ said product on fabrics dyed with certain kinds of dyes, such as non-fast or fugitive dyes, does affect the colors of fabrics upon which said product has been used by causing them to bleed or run, as such effect is generally described in the trade. The use of said product on certain fabrics produces and leaves a ring, spot or mark, and such fabrics are in fact injured by the use thereon of such product.

PAR. 3. There are now and for several years past have been individuals, partnerships and corporations offering for sale and selling in interstate commerce cleaning fluids for fabrics of all kinds.

PAR. 4. The aforesaid representations of respondents are false, and each of them has had and has, and all of them have had and have, the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive the public into the belief that they are true, and into the purchase of such product of respondents in reliance upon such erroneous belief.

Such representations have had and have, and each of them has had and has, the capacity and tendency to divert trade to respondents from competitors offering for sale and selling cleaning fluids in interstate commerce.

PAR. 5. The above and foregoing practices of respondents have been and are, and each of them has been and is, to the prejudice of the public and of respondents' competitors, and have been and are unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of an Act entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

Respondents herein, having filed their answer to the complaint in this proceeding, and having subsequently filed with this Commission their motion that they be permitted to withdraw said answer and that they be permitted to file in lieu thereof as a substitute answer the draft of proposed substitute answer submitted in connection with said motion, and the Commission having duly considered the said motion—

It is hereby ordered, That the said motion be and the same hereby is granted; that the said answer be and the same hereby is withdrawn and that the said proposed substituted answer be and the same hereby is filed in lieu of the said answer so withdrawn.

And the said respondents, in and by their said substituted answer, state that they refrain from contesting the proceeding and consent that the Commission may make, enter and serve upon them and upon each of them, an order to cease and desist from the violations of the law alleged in the complaint, without hearing, without evidence, and without findings as to the facts or other intervening procedure, and the Commission being fully advised in the premises—

It is hereby further ordered, That respondents, Westphalia Manufacturing Company, Inc., a corporation, and Poly Chemical Laboratories, Inc., a corporation, and each of them, their agents, employees, and representatives, and the agents, employees and representatives of each of them, cease and desist, directly or indirectly, in connection with offering for sale or selling in interstate commerce their cleaning fluid, known and described as Rid-0-Spot, from representing on labels affixed to the container or containers of such product, or in advertisements, oral, printed, or written, that Rid-0-Spot, when used for cleaning purposes leaves no rings or that it removes all grease spots without injury to the most delicate fabric or color.

It is further ordered, That the respondents shall within 30 days after the service upon them of this order file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with the order to cease and desist herein-above set forth.
AMERICAN ARMY AND NAVY STORES, INC.

Complaint

IN THE MATTER OF

AMERICAN ARMY AND NAVY STORES, INC.

Where a corporation, engaged in the conduct of a mercantile establishment, the inventory of which never showed more than ten or fifteen percent of goods procured from the Army or Navy Departments through purchase of products offered by said departments in sales of surplus, reject and refuse goods—

Caused its corporate name, in which were included words "Army and Navy", to be displayed in large signs about its mercantile establishment and in trade journals, circulars and advertisements in newspapers and other periodicals, and featured the words "Army and Navy" therein as prominently as other portions;

The facts being that, while aforesaid corporation was organized chiefly to engage in purchase and resale of such surplus, reject and refuse goods, said departments began to curtail sharply the quantity thereof offered annually in the open market a number of years after the war, until, for some years since, no such goods had been thus offered, and such products had been ultimately absorbed for the conduct of retail trade by said corporation and other individuals and concerns similarly engaged;

With the result that various members of the purchasing public came to the belief that goods purchased in its establishment were substantially all, if not all, procured from the Army and Navy and were of the quality and nature used by said departments, and that a substantial bargain with reference to price and quality would be therein obtained, and were induced by reason thereof to make purchases from it, and with capacity and tendency thereby to mislead the purchasing public, and with effect of diverting trade to it from competitors, who offer to sell merchandise identical with the bulk of its inventory, similarly purchased from the ordinary marts of trade, without the use of such misleading and deceptive practice, and of causing substantial injury to substantial competition in the District of Columbia:

Held, That such practices, under the conditions and circumstances set forth, were to the prejudice and injury of competitors and the public and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. John W. Addison, trial examiner.
Mr. S. Brogdyne Teu, II, and Mr. Alden S. Bradley for the Commission.
Mr. H. Mitchell Pfeffer, of Washington, D. C., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

sion, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that American Army and Navy Store, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has been and is using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as “commerce” is defined in said act, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereto would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Said respondent, American Army and Navy Store, is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the District of Columbia, having its principal office and place of business in the city of Washington, in said District. The said respondent was incorporated August 11, 1929, and since said date has been and is now engaged in the general merchandise business.

Said respondent has sold and has caused and still causes merchandise in which he deals to be transported from his place of business into and through the various parts of the District of Columbia to purchasers located therein.

In the course and conduct of his said business, respondent is in competition with other individuals, partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and transportation of like merchandise in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. Since August 11, 1929, said respondent has operated under the corporate name of American Army and Navy Store. By the implied representations of said corporate name, purchasers are led to believe that the stock of merchandise held out to the purchasing public by said respondent was made for or purchased from the United States Army and Navy. In truth and in fact none of the stock of merchandise of said respondent is purchased from the Army and Navy. None of the merchandise is purchased at any Army and Navy surplus or refuse goods sales. The small amount of such Army and Navy goods carried by said respondent, if any, is bought from jobbers, wholesalers, and others who buy at such Army and Navy refuse goods sales. The remainder of the said respondent's stock of merchandise consists of the usual stock found generally in general merchandise establishments. It is purchased in the marts of commerce in which the general merchant buys his stock of goods, and is not purchased from the Army and Navy or from those who purchase merchandise at any Army and Navy surplus or refuse sales. The said respondent is in no way connected with the Army and Navy, does not have affiliation, association, or working agreement with the Army and Navy.
American Army and Navy Stores, Inc.

Findings

Par. 3. There are, among the competitors of said respondent referred to in paragraph 1, supra, individuals, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of like and similar merchandise within the District of Columbia, Maryland, and Virginia, which said individuals, partnerships, and corporations do not misrepresent their merchandise by the use of a false and misleading corporate, or trade name.

Par. 4. The above alleged acts and things done by the respondent are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and the competitors of respondent in interstate commerce, and constitute unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

Subsequently thereto, a brief in behalf of the Commission was filed in support of the allegations of the complaint, and the respondent failed to file a brief.

Thereupon, the cause came on for final hearing before the Commission on said testimony and evidence and the said brief and oral argument of Alden S. Bradley, attorney for the Commission. The respondent failed to make oral argument.

The Commission having duly considered the testimony and evidence, the aforesaid brief and the aforesaid argument, and being fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

Findings as to the Facts

Paragraph 1. Respondent, American Army and Navy Stores, Inc., is and has been doing business within the District of Columbia and the city of Washington continuously since the date of its incorporation on August 11, A. D. 1929.

Par. 2. Respondent was organized chiefly for the purpose of engaging in, and has partially engaged in, the purchase and resale of surplus, reject, and refuse goods to be procured from the Army and Navy Departments of the United States Government, but from the date of its incorporation the respondent has been unable to procure and has never possessed any quantity of such goods in excess of fifteen per cent of its total inventory.

Par. 3. During the year 1927, or thereabout, the Army and Navy Departments of the United States Government began sharply to curtail the quantity of goods theretofore offered by them annually in the open market, until, since the year 1932, virtually no goods of any description have been so offered.

The goods formerly offered by the Army and Navy Departments of the United States Government were ultimately absorbed for the purpose of the conduct of a retail trade by the respondent and various other persons, copartnerships, and corporations engaged in the conduct of mercantile establishments approximately identical with the one herein described as having been conducted by the respondent.

The inventory of the respondent reflects the fact of the withdrawal from the market of surplus, refuse, and reject goods of the Army and Navy Departments of the United States Government in that its inventory has never revealed more than ten or fifteen per cent of the total thereof to consist of such goods procured from the Army or Navy Departments of the United States Government as above related.

Par. 4. There are no goods now being offered, nor, since the year 1932, has there been any substantial amount of goods offered by the Army or Navy Department of the United States Government.

Par. 5. The respondent causes its corporate name to be displayed in large signs about its mercantile establishment, in trade journals, in circulars and in advertisements appearing in the daily newspapers and other periodicals, with the words "Army and Navy" featured therein as prominently as other portions of its corporate name.

Par. 6. Various members of the purchasing public, upon observing the use of the words "Army and Navy" in connection with the corporate name of the respondent and in its circulars and advertisements, as hereinabove stated, have formed the conclusion or received the impression and belief, from the use of such words, that the goods to be purchased in said store were substantially all, if not all, procured from the Army and Navy Departments of the United States Government; that the goods were of the quality and nature used by

said Departments; that a substantial bargain with reference to price and quality would be obtained in such store; and a substantial number of such members of the purchasing public have been induced, by virtue of such belief or impression, to make purchases of and from the respondent.

Par. 7. The use by the respondent of the words "Army and Navy" in connection with its corporate name, in its advertisements and circulars, as above described, had and has the tendency and capacity to, and did and does, in fact, mislead and deceive members of the purchasing public into the false impressions and beliefs as set forth in paragraph 6 hereof.

Par. 8. The use of the words "Army and Navy" in connection with the corporate name, circulars, and advertisements of the respondent, has caused and causes a diversion of trade from competitors of the respondent who offer to sell merchandise identical with the bulk of the inventory of the respondent and procured from the same source, i. e., the ordinary marts of trade, but who do not make use of such misleading and deceptive practice, and has caused and now causes substantial injury to substantial competition within the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The practice of the respondent, doing business under the above-mentioned corporate name and using such corporate name in circulars, trade journals, and other advertising matter, under the conditions and circumstances described in the foregoing findings, were and are to the prejudice and injury of competitors of the respondent and were and are to the prejudice and injury of the public, and were and are unfair methods of competition in commerce and constitute a violation of the provisions of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission on the complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondent, the testimony taken, and the brief filed in behalf of the Federal Trade Commission herein, and oral argument of counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that the respondent American Army and Navy Stores, Inc., has violated the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes—

It is now ordered, That the respondent American Army and Navy Stores, Inc., in connection with the conduct of its mercantile establishment within the District of Columbia, cease and desist from:

(1) Using in connection with its corporate name the words “Army and Navy” or either of them.

(2) Advertising or causing to be advertised in any circulars, trade journals, daily newspapers or other periodicals the words “Army and Navy” or either of them, descriptive of or in connection with any merchandise to be sold or offered for sale to the public, unless in fact the words “Army and Navy” be used specifically in connection and conjunction with particular merchandise actually procured from the Army or Navy Department of the United States Government.

It is further ordered, That respondent shall, within 90 days after the service upon him of a copy of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which this order has been complied with and conformed to.

Syllabus

IN THE MATTER OF

ARMY AND NAVY TRADING COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Where a corporation, engaged in the conduct of a mercantile establishment in the city of Washington and which was organized chiefly to engage in the purchase and resale of surplus, reject and refuse goods procured from the Army and Navy Departments, and did so engage from its organization in 1922 until the year 1927, approximately—Caused its corporate name, including the words "Army & Navy", to be displayed in large signs about its mercantile establishment and in trade journals, circulars, and advertisements in papers and other periodicals, and in said use featured such words as prominently as other portions of its name;

Facts being that while during period 1922 to 1927, 85 to 90 percent of respondent's merchandise had been procured either directly or indirectly from such Army and Navy sales, its inventory currently reflected, as did competitors', the curtailment of such offers by said departments in said latter year, and virtual cessation thereof in 1932, and ultimate absorption of such products for conduct of retail trade by said corporation and its competitors, so that by 1932, such products had decreased to approximately 15 to 18 percent of their inventory, as contrasted with aforesaid higher proportions in said earlier period;

With the result that various members of the purchasing public came to the conclusion or received the impression that goods there purchased were substantially all, if not all, procured from the Army and Navy and were of the quality and nature used by said departments and that a substantial bargain with reference to price and quality would be therein obtained, and were induced by reason thereof to make purchases from it, and with capacity and tendency thus to mislead the purchasing public, and with effect of diverting trade to it from competitors who offer to sell merchandise identical with the bulk of its inventory, similarly purchased from the ordinary marts of trade, without the use of such misleading and deceptive practice, and of causing substantial injury to substantial competition in the District of Columbia:

Held, That such practices, under the conditions and circumstances set forth, were to the prejudice and injury of competitors and the public and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. John W. Addison, trial examiner.
Mr. S. Brogdyne Teu, II, and Mr. Alden S. Bradley for the Commission.
Mr. Joseph B. Stein, of Washington, D. C., for respondent.
Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes"; the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Army and Navy Trading Company, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has been and is using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereto would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Said respondent, Army and Navy Trading Company, is a corporation organized and existing by virtue of the laws of the State of Maryland, having its principal office and place of business located in the city of Washington, in the District of Columbia, and has been, for more than one year past, engaged in the sale and distribution of general merchandise within the said District of Columbia. Said respondent sold, and has caused and still causes the said articles of merchandise in which he deals to be sold and transported from his place of business to various purchasers located at various points in the said District of Columbia.

In the course and conduct of his said business, respondent is in competition with other individuals, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the sale and transportation of like merchandise in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. For more than one year past, said respondent has operated under the corporate name of Army and Navy Trading Company. By the representations of said corporate name purchasers are led to believe that the stock of merchandise held out to the purchasing public by said respondent was made for or purchased from the United States Army and Navy. In truth and in fact none of the stock of merchandise of said respondent is purchased from the Army and Navy. None of the merchandise is purchased at any Army and Navy surplus or refuse goods sales. The small amount of such Army and Navy goods carried by said respondent, if any, is bought from jobbers, wholesalers, and others who buy at such Army and Navy refuse goods sales. The remainder of the said respondent's stock of merchandise consists of the usual stock found generally in general merchandise establishments. It is purchased in the marts of commerce in which the general merchant buys his stock of goods, and is not purchased from the Army and Navy or from those who purchase merchandise at any Army and Navy surplus or refuse goods sales. The said respondent is in no way connected with the Army and Navy, does not have affiliation, association, or working agreement with the Army and Navy.

Par. 3. Said respondent, in the conduct of his business has for some time past offered to the purchasing public a man's garment, commonly known as a "windbreaker" or jacket, as "nationallly advertised—genuine buckskin jacket." Such description is false and misleading in that the reader thereof believes the jacket is made of genuine buckskin. In connection with the above advertisement appears the head of a deer. In truth and in fact, the said garment has no buckskin whatsoever in it, but is made entirely of textile fabrics.

Par. 4. There are among the competitors of said respondent referred to in paragraph 1, supra, individuals, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of like and similar merchandise within the District of Columbia, Maryland, and Virginia, which said individuals, partnerships and corporations do not misrepresent their merchandise by the use of a false and misleading corporate, or trade name, or the material of which said merchandise is made.

Par. 5. The above alleged acts and things done by respondent are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and of the competitors of respondent in interstate commerce, and constitute unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

in support of the allegations of the complaint, and the respondent filed its brief in support of the material allegations of its answer.

Thereupon the cause came on for final hearing before the Commission upon the testimony and evidence as adduced by counsel for the Commission and for the respondent, and brief on behalf of the Commission and oral argument of Alden S. Bradley, trial attorney for the Commission, and the brief on behalf of the respondent and oral argument of Joseph B. Stein, attorney for the respondent.

The Commission, having duly considered the testimony and evidence, the aforesaid briefs and the aforesaid arguments, and being fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusions drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Army and Navy Trading Company, is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Maryland, by charter issue under such authority in the year 1922, and has, since the beginning of its corporate existence maintained and now does maintain, its principal place of business in the city of Washington, in the District of Columbia, and, since the beginning of its corporate existence, has done and now does business in the District of Columbia, in the city of Washington.

Paragraph 2. Respondent was organized chiefly for the purpose of engaging in, and has engaged in, the purchase and resale of surplus, reject, and refuse goods to be procured from the Army and Navy Departments of the United States Government, and from the date of the organization of respondent until the year 1927, or thereabout, between 85 and 90 percent of the merchandise offered for sale by the respondent had been procured from the Army or Navy Department of the United States, either directly or indirectly, by the respondent.

Paragraph 3. Respondent engaged in the business related in the paragraph last above at a time when the condition of the market afforded opportunity to secure large lots of various kinds of merchandise actually sold by the Army and Navy Departments of the Government of the United States and the respondent did make substantial purchases of such lots and maintained, as long as the market permitted, a large majority of his total inventory in such goods. The later proportionate decrease in his inventory was in consonance with the decrease in the availability of such goods. Respondent continuously advertised its corporate name in connection with advertisements of sales of its merchandise and established a substantial trade value in connection with such corporate name.
Findings

PAR. 4. During the year 1927, or thereabout, the Army and Navy Departments of the United States Government began sharply to curtail the quantity of goods theretofore offered by them annually in the open market, until, since the year 1932, virtually no goods of any description have been so offered.

The goods formerly offered by the Army and Navy Departments of the United States Government were ultimately absorbed for the purpose of the conduct of a retail trade by the respondent and various other persons, copartnerships, and corporations engaged in the conduct of mercantile establishments approximately identical with the one herein described as having been conducted by the respondent.

The inventory of the respondent as well as the inventories of its competitors last above referred to, reflect the condition of the withdrawal from the market of surplus, refuse and reject goods of the Army and Navy Departments of the United States Government by decrease of the quantity of such goods in their inventories from approximately 85 to 90 percent in the year 1927 to approximately 15 to 18 percent in the year 1932.

There are no goods now being offered, nor, since the year 1932, has there been any substantial amount of goods offered by the Army or Navy Department of the United States Government.

PAR. 5. The respondent causes its corporate name to be displayed in large signs about its mercantile establishment, in trade journals, in circulars, and in advertisements appearing in the daily newspapers and other periodicals, with the words “Army & Navy”, or “Army and Navy” featured therein as prominently as other portions of its corporate name.

PAR. 6. Various members of the purchasing public, upon observing the use of the words “Army & Navy”, or “Army and Navy”, in connection with the corporate name of the respondent and in its circulars and advertisements as hereinabove stated, have formed the conclusion or received the impression or belief, from the use of such words, that the goods to be purchased in said store were substantially all, if not all, procured from the Army and Navy Departments of the United States Government; that the goods were of the quality and nature used by said Departments; that a substantial bargain with reference to price and quality would be obtained in such store; and a substantial number of such members of the purchasing public have been induced, by virtue of such belief or impression, to make purchases of and from the respondent.

PAR. 7. The use by respondent of the words “Army & Navy”, or “Army and Navy”, in connection with its corporate name and in its advertisements and circulars, as above described, had and has the tendency and capacity to, and did and does, in fact, mislead and deceive members of the purchasing public into the false impressions and beliefs as set forth in paragraph 6 hereof.

PAR. 8. The use of the words “Army & Navy”, or “Army and Navy”, in connection with the corporate name, circulars and advertisements of the respondent, has caused and causes a diversion of trade from competitors of the respondent who offer to sell merchandise identical with the bulk of the inventory of the respondent and procured from the same source, i.e., the ordinary marts of trade, but who do not make use of such misleading and deceptive practice, and has caused and now causes substantial injury to substantial competition within the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The practice of the respondent, doing business under the abovementioned corporate name and using such corporate name in circulars, trade journals, and other advertising matter, under the conditions and circumstances described in the foregoing findings, were and are to the prejudice and injury of competitors of the respondent and were and are to the prejudice and injury of the public, and were and are unfair methods of competition in commerce and constitute a violation of the provisions of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”, approved September 26, 1914.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission on the complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondent, the testimony taken, and the brief filed in behalf of the Federal Trade Commission herein, and oral argument of counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that the respondent Army and Navy Trading Company has violated the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”–

It is now ordered, That the respondent Army and Navy Trading Company in connection with the conduct of its mercantile establishment within the District of Columbia, cease and desist from:

(1) Using in connection with its corporate name the words “Army and Navy” or either of them.
Order

(2) Advertising or causing to be advertised in any circulars, trade journals, daily newspapers, or other periodicals the words "Army and Navy" or either of them, descriptive of or in connection with any merchandise to be sold or offered for sale to the public, unless in fact the words "Army and Navy" be used specifically in connection and conjunction with particular merchandise actually procured from the Army or Navy Department of the United States Government.

Provided, however, That for a period of two years from the date of the service of this order upon respondent, the respondent shall be permitted to use in connection with such corporate or trade name as it might assume the words:

Formerly Army and Navy Trading Company

It is further ordered, That respondent shall, within 90 days after the service upon him of a copy of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which this order has been complied with and conformed to.

And it is further ordered, That respondent shall, within 24 months after the service upon him of a copy of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which this order has been complied with and conformed to.
IN THE MATTER OF THE BILLINGS-CHAPIN COMPANY

Where a corporation, engaged in the manufacture of paints, with an annual business normally amounting to about $1,000,000 a year, and selling its product principally in cans or containers of 1-gallon capacity or less for display as shelf goods in stores, and distributing its output, between 90 and 95 percent of which was disposed of at retail and consumed by the purchasing public in painting inside and outside of dwellings, etc., and on yachts, steamships, and fishing boats, through various large wholesalers and some nine hundred retail stores scattered throughout the United States, but primarily east of the Mississippi—

(a) Conspicuously displayed the letters "U. S. N." or, later, "U. S.", on the labels of its deck paint and various other brands, representing normally between 60 and 70 percent of its total business, printed in white letters larger than any other wording on the container and on a navy blue background, and which resembled, in the striking color combination involved, official colors of the Navy, and depicted thereon the battleship Maine, first with, and later without, name "Maine";

(b) Distributed large advertising display placards for paint store counters and windows which frequently depicted enlarged cans of its said paint in color, bearing the designation "U. S. N. Deck Paint" or "U. S. Deck Paint" in letters 2 inches or more high, above a battleship at sea, together with sea scenes and pictures of ship's officers in uniform, about two-thirds life size, on duty on the bridge of a vessel, in uniform very similar to that used by naval officers and in close proximity to a legend, in letters over 2 inches high, reading "U. S. Deck Paint for Sea-Swept Decks and Well Kept Homes", and in another sea scene set forth under caption "Sea Tried" and over words "The Commodore", the statement "For more than thirty years I've seen U. S. N. Deck Paint give unfailing service on ships. I recommend it for your home"; and

The facts being that while its said paint had been used on seagoing vessels for many years, it had never been used or tried upon ships of the United States Navy or Government, and it was not made for or in accordance with or in conformity with requirements, formulae, directions, or Instructions of said Navy or Government, and had not been regularly used, adopted, approved, or tested thereby; said product differed in composition from that used or made in accordance with the formulae, specifications, or standards of the Navy or Government, in that, among other things, it contained a greater proportion of added "inert" pigment than was required or permitted in the Navy or Government specifications, and which was cheaper and bulkier than such standard pigments as white lead, zinc or titanox, and substantially decreased the raw material cost for its product as compared with that made in accordance with official Navy specifications;

With effect of misleading and deceiving substantial numbers of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that said paints and varnishes had been made for or in accordance with specifications, formulae, directions, or requirements of the Navy or Government or had been approved, adopted, used or tested thereby on ships or on Government property and were of equal quality with paints and varnishes so approved, adopted, or used, and with capacity and tendency so to mislead and deceive, and effect of causing certain of the purchasing public to buy its said products by reason of such erroneous beliefs, and of unfairly diverting trade from and otherwise injuring the business of its competitors, and with capacity and tendency so to do:

Held, That such false, misleading and deceptive acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. John W. Bennett, trial examiner.

Mr. Henry Miller and Mr. James M. Hammond for the Commission.

Baker, Hostetler, Sidlo & Patterson and Garfield, Cross, Daoust, Baldwin & Vrooman, of Cleveland, Ohio, for respondent.

COMPLAINT

The Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe from a preliminary investigation made by it that The Billings-Chapin Company, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has been and is using unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", and it appearing to the Commission that proceeding by it in respect thereof would be to the interest of the public, issues this its complaint and states its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, The Billings-Chapin Company, is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Ohio having, at all times herein mentioned, its principal office and place of business in the city of Cleveland, in said State, and branch offices and warehouses in the cities of Boston, Mass., and New York, N. Y. It is engaged in carrying on the business of manufacturing, selling, and distributing in large and substantial quantities to dealers, users, and consumers of the purchasing Respondent packs said products in commercial paint and varnish containers of graduated sizes and affixes to each container its own labels, in which containers and under which labels said products are marketed by said respondent and by dealers to the purchasing public in the several States. Respondent offers for sale and sells said paints and varnish to dealers, users, and consumers throughout the United States (a) through and by means of its officers, salesmen, and agents whom it employs to solicit purchase orders for said products from its customers and prospective customers, (b) also through and by means of advertisements of said paints and varnish published by it from time to time in newspapers, magazines, trade journals, and other publications circulating among the trade and consuming public throughout the United States and in various sections thereof; and (c) through and by means of certain trade promotional literature such as catalogs, color cards, pamphlets, letters, and other written communications which it sends from time to time from its place of business in Cleveland, Ohio, Boston, Mass., and New York, N. Y., to its customers and prospective customers located respectively in the several States of the United States. As a result of and in response to said offering for sale and solicitation many sales of said products are regularly and continuously made by respondent to a large and substantial number of dealers, users, and consumers throughout the United States, who in purchasing from respondent said paints and varnishes send and transmit by mail and otherwise among the States their several purchase orders therefor to respondent at its aforesaid places of business.

Pursuant to said purchase orders and to consummate the sale and distribution of its products respondent causes the several lots or parcels of said paints and varnish so ordered and sold to be shipped and transported between different States from its places of business in Cleveland, Ohio, Boston, Mass., and New York, N. Y., into States other than the States in which such shipments originated respectively, and to be delivered to the respective purchasers thereof in such other States. In the sale and distribution of its paints and varnish respondent is and for more than three years last past has been engaged in interstate commerce and in direct active competition with many individuals, partnerships, and other corporations also engaged in the sale and distribution of paints and varnish in commerce among the several States of the United States.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of its business and in promoting, and furthering the sale and distribution of its paints and varnish, as set forth in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent has for more than one year last past:

(2) Caused and continues to cause aforesaid phrases containing the letters "U. S. N." and "U. S." to be used as the respective brand names and designations of said paints and varnish, and to be set forth severally as such, in its aforesaid advertising matter and trade promotional literature and on said labels affixed to the containers in which said paints and varnish are marketed by respondent and by dealers to the purchasing public.

(3) Caused and continues to cause said letters "U. S. N." and "U. S." of said names, wherever appearing in said labels, advertising matter, and trade promotional literature, to be set forth predominantly and to be printed in letters larger and more conspicuous than the words in said names and in the text used in conjunction therewith.

(4) Caused and continues to cause a depiction of a United States battleship to be prominently and conspicuously displayed in conjunction with said letters, "U. S. N." and "U. S." in said advertising matter, trade promotional literature, and upon said labels under which said paints and varnish are marketed as above set forth.

(5) Caused and continues to cause the letters and words and the depiction of said battleship which appear on said labels to be printed in white on a navy blue field, which colors of white and blue are symbolic and emblematic of the United States Navy.

(6) Caused and continues to cause facsimiles of said labels in the colors of navy blue and white to be set forth in said advertising matter and trade promotional literature.
(7) Caused and continues to cause said paints and varnish to be further represented, described, and advertised, by its officers, salesmen, agents, and in its aforesaid advertising matter and trade promotional literature, as “Sea tried” and as “The sea-roving paint that came home”, and as having been manufactured for, successfully tested and used on the decks and other parts of ships which encounter and are subjected to salt water atmosphere and the severe and varying weather conditions of the arctic and tropical regions of the oceans.

(8) Caused and continues to cause to be set forth in its aforesaid advertising matter and trade promotional literature, and as pertaining to said paints and varnish, certain depictions of marine scenes such as (a) pictures of a ship’s officer in uniform on the deck of a sea-going vessel, and (b) pictures of ships at sea and in or approaching harbor.

Par. 3. Said letters “U. S. N.” and “U. S.” are abbreviations and insignia of the United States Navy and of the United States; and they are and at all times herein mentioned have been understood and recognized by the purchasing public of the United States as signifying and indicating respectively the United States Navy and the United States Government.

Par. 4. Said paints and varnish manufactured and sold by respondent under the representations, descriptions and names set forth in paragraphs 1 and 2 hereof were not and are not manufactured for nor in accordance with or conformity to requirements, formulae, specifications, directions, or instructions of the United States Navy or of the United States Government; nor have said paints and varnish been used, adopted, approved, or tested by the United States Navy or by the United States Government as deck paint or varnish or for any marine or other uses.

Par. 5. Said paints and varnishes of respondent differ in constituent ingredients from, and are inferior in quality to, paints and varnish manufactured in accordance with the specification or requirements of the United States Navy or the United States Government for use on ships or for other uses.

Par. 6. Respondent’s use of said letters “U. S. N.” and “U. S.” in advertising, representing, describing, and branding its paints and varnish, as hereinbefore set forth, is false, misleading, and deceptive, and is calculated to have and has the capacity and tendency to and does mislead and deceive substantial numbers of the purchasing public into, and to cause them to purchase said products in and because of, the erroneous beliefs that said paints and varnish have been manufactured for or in accordance with, or in conformity to, specifications, formulae, directions, instructions, or requirements of the United States Navy or of the United States Government, or that said paints and varnish have been approved, adopted, used, or tested by the United States Navy or by the United States Government on ships or on other Government property, and is of equal quality with paints and varnish which has been so approved, adopted, or used.

Par. 7. The above-alleged false, misleading, and deceptive acts and practices of respondent under the circumstances and conditions hereinabove set forth have the capacity, tendency, and effect of unfairly diverting trade from and otherwise injuring the business of respondent's competitors, are to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission on December 14, 1929, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon the Billings-Chapin Company, a corporation, respondent herein, charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce, in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, testimony and evidence, in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, were introduced before John W. Bennett, an examiner of said Commission, theretofore duly designated by the Commission, by Henry Miller, and James M. Hammond, attorneys for the Commission, and by Baker, Hostetler, Sidlo, and Patterson, and by Garfield, Cross, Daoust, Baldwin, and Vrooman, attorneys for the respondent; and said testimony and evidence was duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and evidence, briefs in support of the complaint and in defense thereto, and the oral argument of counsel aforesaid; and the Commission having duly considered the same, and being fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:
FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Billings-Chapin Company, is a corporation, organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Ohio, having at all times herein maintained its office, factory and principal place of business in the city of Cleveland, in that State, with branch offices and warehouses in the cities of Boston, Mass., and New York, N. Y. The business of respondent was initiated by a predecessor in interest in 1879. After several changes of name, it was finally organized in 1899 as the Billings-Chapin Company, the respondent herein.

Respondent is now, and for many years prior thereto; has been engaged in the manufacture, sale, and distribution in commerce among the various States of the United States, of paints, varnishes, and paint products. Respondent Billings-Chapin Company causes merchandise sold by it to be transported from points of origin at its factory and warehouse at Cleveland, Ohio, and from its branch warehouses at Boston, Mass., and New York, N. Y., through and to various other States of the United States to the respective purchasers thereof and, in the course and conduct of its business, respondent has been and is now in active competition with our corporations, partnerships, and individuals engaged in the similar sale and distribution of paints, varnishes, and paint products in commerce in, between, and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

The business of respondent results from sales negotiated through the medium of salesmen and agents and through and as a result of advertisements of its said paints, varnishes, and paint products inserted from time to time in newspapers, magazines, trade journals, and other publications having general circulation among the trade and the consuming public throughout the United States. In furtherance of its sales respondent company also distributes through its main and branch offices to customers and prospective customers located in the several States of the United States, trade promotional literature including catalogs, color cards, pamphlets, letters, and other written communications. Dealers to whom the respondent sells its products, in turn offer them for sale and sell the same to the general purchasing public.

Respondent packs its paint and varnish products in containers of graduated sizes, running from half-pints to barrels, but principally in cans of 1 gallon or less capacity for display as shelf goods in stores. Respondent affixes its labels to such containers, sometimes by lithographing of the same direct on the cans, and at other times by the use of paper labels affixed thereto.
THE BILLINGS-CHAPIN CO.

Respondent manufactures and sells large quantities of the paints and varnishes in question and its business normally amounts to approximately $1,000,000 per year. The brands in question, described in paragraph 3 hereof, normally amount to between 60 and 70 percent of its total business. In addition to its two branches at New York and Boston, its paint output is handled by various large wholesalers and some 900 retail stores scattered throughout the United States but primarily east of the Mississippi River. Between 90 and 95 percent of respondent's product is disposed of at retail and is consumed by the purchasing public in this manner. It is used in painting the outside and inside of dwellings, porches, floors, porch furniture, woodwork, etc.; in fact, for almost any type of painting, both inside or outside, which the average member of the public might desire. It is also used extensively on yachts, steamships, and fishing boats but, as hereinafter shown, not on United States Navy vessels.

Par. 2. For many years prior to 1912 a corporation known as Billings, King & Company, engaged in the paint and varnish business, operating out of New York City and Boston. In the year 1892 Billings, King & Company requested respondent to make for it the highest grade porch and deck paint respondent could produce. Respondent submitted samples of such paint which were acceptable and Billings, King & Company proceeded to market the paint. At that time Billings, King & Company was selling material to the Brooklyn Navy Yard where the battleship "Maine" was being built. The vice president of Billings, King & Company conceived the idea of calling this paint "U. S. N. Deck Paint". The Brooklyn Navy Yard, thereupon furnished the vice president of Billings, King & Company with an architect's drawing of the "Maine" to go on the label. This was the manner in which the label for this paint originated. There is no evidence that this paint was ever used on the battleship "Maine".

On October 10, 1906, Billings, King & Company of New York and Boston, Mass., made application to the United States Patent Office for the registration of a trade mark for paints and varnishes. The trade mark in question consisted of a drawing of a two-funneled, three-masted ship of the general design of a battleship, having masts built to resemble fighting tops, a right forward gun turret being visible, but with its rigging lines shaded so as to resemble or give the aspect of sails. The design, as registered, did not show any name on the side of the vessel, either on bow or stern. The application for registration was approved and the trade mark was registered at the United States Patent Office on February 12, 1907. Billings, King & Company, it appears, thereafter added the name "Maine" to the picture of this vessel as used on its labels. Some twenty years later Billings, King & Company encountered financial difficulties and offered respondent a controlling interest in its business, which respondent decided to buy. Respondent thereupon invested a considerable sum of money in this venture, at first apprehensively, eventually managing to put the purchased property on its feet. Subsequent to purchasing this property, respondent had renewed at the Patent Office, as successor in interest to the Billings, King & Company, the paint and varnish design of the ship or war vessel which had originally been registered in the name of Billings, King & Company. The latter company went out of business following its purchase by respondent. The trade mark rights and property of Billings, King & Company passed to respondent company as a result of the latter acquiring and taking over the former company.

Respondent, having bought out the company which had been selling respondent's goods in the east, decided to introduce such goods in the west. Respondent thereupon adopted Billings, King & Company's "U. S. N. Deck Paint" label in connection with this plan and purpose.

Under date of May 12, 1919, respondent, The Billings-Chapin Company filed a petition with the United States Patent Office, requesting registration for a trade mark for paints and painters materials, said mark consisting of the letters or legend:

"U. S. N."

It was recited in respondent's petition that this trade mark has been used continuously in the business of the corporation since 1912, having been applied or affixed to respondent's goods by stamping or painting it directly on packages containing such goods.

Under date of June 6, 1919, an examiner of the Patent Office refused registration of the "U. S. N." mark for the following stated reason:

Registration is refused the letters "U. S. N." on the ground that they are a simulation of public insignia, being used by the Government to indicate the United States Navy.

Under date of September 16, 1919, The Billings-Chapin Company was again advised by an examiner of the Patent Office:

Registration is again refused for the reason of record. The marks cited by the applicant cannot be considered as including insignia of the United States.

The above ruling was reaffirmed by the Patent Office under date of November 1, 1919, in reply to a letter of October 22, 1919, from The Billings-Chapin Company, the Patent Office again calling attention to the fact that to use the mark "U. S. N." on deck paint, which at once connects it with ships, would be deceptive, saying:

It is commonly recognized that paint looms large in the construction and upkeep of the Navy. That the public recognizes even its color to be a matter of interest and importance, is shown by the general use in various lines of merchandise of the term "Battleship Grey" to designate colors approaching that of the paint used by the Navy. To use the mark "U. S. N." on deck paint, which at once connects it with ships, would be to deceive the purchaser with the idea that this particular paint has the approval of the naval authorities or is used by them upon the ships of the Navy. It is accordingly held to be against public policy to sanction the use of this insignia for such purpose or with such effect.

Under date of December 28, 1919, The Billings-Chapin Company appealed this decision to the Commissioner of Patents.

Under date of June 16, 1920, the Patent Office acted on the appeal, holding that the prior refusal of registration was proper.

The above comprises, briefly, the history of the two marks, the one as to the vessel granted registration, and the other as to the mark "U. S. N." refused registration, which form the basis of the trade marks and labels involved in this proceeding. It is considered advisable to remark, in passing, however, that the mere fact the Commissioner of Patents allowed the registration of a trade mark would not be available as the basis for a defense to a charge of improper or deceptive use of such a mark in interstate commerce.

Par. 3. Respondent company, in connection with the sale of its products in various States, sells, manufactures, and distributes and has manufactured and sold and distributed, several lines and brands of paints known, described, and designated as follows:

"U. S. N. Deck Paint" or "U. S. Deck Paint";
"U. S. N. Marine Green" or "U. S. Marine Green";
"U. S. N. Marine White and Tints" or "U. S. Marine White and Tints";
"U. S. N. Armor Paint" or "U. S. Armor Paint";
"U. S. N. Deck Varnish" or "U. S. Deck Varnish";
"U. S. Marine Varnish";
"U. S. Deck Enamel".

Each of these lines or brands of paint has comprised and included many different shades and colors, thereby offering a wide range of selection to the public. The respondent manufactures and sells other lines or brands of paints, varnishes or paint products which are not marked, branded or labeled as next above stated and are not covered by or involved in this proceeding.
Findings

PAR. 4. The so-called "U. S. N. Deck Paint" line of respondent, first made in 1892, was later expanded, from time to time, to include all the other lines of paints and varnishes referred to in paragraph 3 hereof.

For many years all of respondent's labels on the lines of paint and varnish referred to herein featured the letters "U. S. N.", as more particularly described hereinafter, printed in white letters larger than any other wording on the container, on a Navy blue background over a picture of the battleship "Maine", and after 1930, over the picture of the same ship, unnamed and as registered at the United States Patent Office. No name appeared on this picture as originally trade-marked, as hereinbefore shown, but as used by respondent on its labels prior to the gradual change of its "U. S. N." brand to "U. S." in 1929 and 1930, it carried the name "Maine" on its bow.

The paints now in use are not the same as those used when the "Maine" was built, as titanox, one of respondent's most commonly used pigments, was not invented until about 1910, and was not available in commercial quantities for seven or eight years later.

PAR. 5. The Navy Department, through its Bureau of Construction and Repair, notified the respondent that it was possibly misleading the public by the use of the letters "U. S. N." on its paint by letter dated June 19, 1922, as follows:

The Bureau has received your letter of May 13, 1922, in answer to its letter of May 11, 1922, regarding the use of the letters "U. S. N." as applied to deck paint and deck varnish as manufactured by you, and notes that you have advertised your goods under this brand for more than 30 years.

In connection with the inquiry contained in the last paragraph of your letter as to whether there is any objection on the part of the Navy to the use of these letters as descriptive of your materials, the Bureau suggests they are possibly misleading to the public, creating the impression that the goods are identical with materials of this nature used by the Navy.

PAR. 6. Respondent never made any attempt to inform the public that its "U. S." or "U. S. N." deck paint and its other "U. S." and "U. S. N." lines described in paragraph 3 hereof, were not the same as paint manufactured for or used by the United States Navy until 1933, at which time the following legend was placed on its paint and varnish containers:

U. S. Deck Paint should not be confused with any paint made by any department of the United States Government for it is and always has been made under our own formulae.

This legend, in some cases, was printed vertically and inconspicuously on the side of the container in letters approximately one-eighth the size of the letters "U. S. Deck Paint" featured on the front of the can. It was not visible from a front view of the can, or as shown in the pictures of cans set out in the large cardboard displays distributed by respondent to retailers and dealers for use in windows or on counters. In other instances, it was printed in inconspicuous type at the foot of the face of the labels. Several of the witnesses called by the Commission testified they would not have observed or read this small inconspicuous legend in any event.

Par. 7. Respondent sold its "U. S. N." lines of paint and varnish to the public for many years but in 1929, after the propriety of using that designation was brought into question by the Commission's investigation, it decided to change the designation "U. S. N." as used on its containers and in its literature, to read simply "U. S." It accordingly made an announcement to that effect in the American Paint & Oil Dealer in October 1929, stating, in part, that "as fast as our labels, sample cards and other advertising matter are set up, the new brand will appear."

Respondent did make this gradual change as announced but both types of lettering were continued in use long after the complaint in this case was served.

Concurrently with the accomplishment of this change the name "Maine" which had theretofore appeared on the bow of the battleship pictured on respondent's labels was also eliminated.

Par. 8. Respondent's method of labeling its product was through the medium of the letters "U. S. N." in white on a blue background. These letters "U. S. N." were printed in very large type and were placed at the top of the label and immediately below them the picture of the battleship "Maine" appeared. For example, the label for its deck paint read as follows:

U. S. N.
DECK PAINT

and immediately below this a picture of the battleship "Maine." After dropping the letter "N" in 1929 and 1930 the deck paint label read as follows:

```

together with a picture of the same ship with the word "Maine" deleted.

All of respondent's paints and varnishes involved herein were similarly labeled. The only difference in the wording or color design was in the name of the paint, such as "U. S. N. Marine Green", "U. S. N. Marine White and Tints", "U. S. N. Deck Varnish", etc., except "U. S. Deck Enamel", on which the name of the paint was printed in an orange color.

The color combination of blue and white used on all of these labels was striking to the eye and its similarity to the official colors of the Navy is shown by Commission's Exhibits 49 to 52, inclusive, being the Union Jack and the official flags or colors for an admiral, vice admiral, rear admiral, and commodore, the Secretary of War, and the President, who is commander in chief of the Navy. All of these flags represent a color combination of white on a blue background. These colors are used by high command in the Navy and have been so used throughout its history and are familiar to the public as the official colors of the Navy. The use by respondent of a similar shade of Navy blue as a background on which are printed in large letters "U. S." or "U. S. N." in white over the picture of a battleship is sufficient to impress substantial numbers of the public with the idea that respondent's products have some official naval significance. This striking color combination is carried out through respondent's promotional literature depicting the paint containers, sometimes in greatly enlarged size in actual colors.

PAR. 9. The respondent also distributes large advertising scenes on placards for display on counters and in windows of paint stores. These frequently consist of pictures of enlarged cans of paint, in color, bearing the designation "U. S. N. Deck Paint" or "U. S. Deck Paint" in letters 2 inches or more high above a battleship at sea, thus bringing them into greater prominence, and which, when flanked by sea scenes and pictures of ship's officers in uniform strikingly convey the impression of some official Naval connection with the product involved. One of these scenes depicts a ship's officer about two-thirds life size on duty on the bridge of a vessel in a uniform very similar to that used by naval officers, in close proximity with a legend in letters over 2 inches high reading: "U. S. Deck Paint for sea swept decks and well kept homes."

SEA TRIED

For more than 30 years I've seen U. S. N. Deck Paint give unfailing service on ships. I recommend it for your home.

The Commodore.

The rank of "Commodore" was for many years an official designation for an officer of high rank of the United States Navy.
Advertising is also done through the medium of magazines, newspapers, circulars as well as color cards, leaflets, etc. These contain reproductions of respondent's labels, both plain and with the color combination of white and Navy blue, all stressing the letters "U. S." or "U. S. N." over the picture of a battleship. In addition there are frequently shown pictures of the ocean, of ships and of ships' officers in uniform. Coupled with these pictures statements are generally made as follows:

U. S. N. Deck Paint.
Sea Tried for Fine Homes.
U. S. Deck Paint,
Paint Good for Ships
Is Better for Homes.
U. S. Deck Paint
Sea Tried for Fine Homes.
U. S. Deck Paint
For Sea Swept Decks
And Well Kept Homes.
U. S. N. Deck Paint Is Sea Tried For Fine Homes.
Paint good for ships is better for homes.
That's the U. S. Deck Paint story in a sentence.
You can rely on U. S. N. Deck Paint.

On the decks of ships U. S. N. Deck Paint first proved its claim to longer life and lasting beauty. But now its faithful service in the home exceeds by far its use on ships. * * *

Respondent's paint has been used and tested on seagoing vessels for many years. The statement of that fact, however, accompanied by the letters "U. S." or "U. S. N." in blue and white over the picture of a battleship or in the other ways hereinbefore described, has and has had, a tendency to and does create and has created the impression in the public mind that the ships on which respondent's paint has been tried, or is being used, are in fact United States Navy ships, when, as a matter of fact, respondent's paints have not been used or tried upon ships of the United States Navy or of the United States Government.

PAR. 10. The aforesaid paints and varnishes, in connection with which respondent has used said letters "U. S." and "U. S. N.", as hereinbefore described, have not been manufactured for or in accordance with, or in conformity to requirements, formulae, speci-

Such "inert" material is cheaper and bulkier than such standard pigments as white lead, zinc, or titanox and for that reason the cost of raw materials per gallon of paint made in accordance with Navy or Government specifications is greater than in the case of respondent's paint. Outside white paint manufactured in accordance with official Navy specifications entails a cost for raw materials at open market prices, of $1.11 per gallon, whereas the cost of raw materials for respondent's outside white paint, computed on the same basis, and sold under the name "U. S. Deck Paint" and "U. S. N.
Deck Paint” is $0.95. Upon the same cost basis the official Navy outside green paint costs $1.39 per gallon and the respondent's “Shamrock” U. S. N. deck paint costs $1.14 per gallon.

Par. 11. In January of 1934 the respondent company decided to abandon use of the letters “U. S.” on all of its lines, it previously having dropped the letter “N”, and orders were placed immediately for the necessary printing of new labels and the lithographing of new cans so that thereafter, or as soon as the current supply of cans and labels were exhausted, the respondent's labels would all read:

BILLINGS-CHAPIN DECK PAINT

Simultaneously the legend set out in paragraph 5 hereof was likewise dropped. Respondent's factory superintendent estimated that it would take from a year to 18 months to exhaust the old supply of “U. S.” paint in the factory and warehouse on April 3, 1934. The respondent notified the Commission of this change but failed to stipulate or otherwise bind itself not to resume the relabeling of its products with the letters “U. S.” or “U. S. N.” in the manner herein described.

Par. 12. Respondent's use of said letters “U. S.” and “U. S. N.” in advertising, representing, describing, and branding its paints and varnishes, as hereinbefore set forth, either in association with a picture of the battleship "Maine" or not so associated, and in association with the pictures and statements referred to in paragraph 9 hereof or not so associated, is false, misleading, and deceptive, and is calculated to, had and has the capacity and tendency to and does mislead and deceive substantial numbers of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that said paints and varnishes have been manufactured for or in accordance with, or conformity to, specifications, formulae, directions, instructions, or requirements of the United States Navy or of the United States Government, or that said paints and varnishes have been approved, adopted, used, or tested by the United States Navy or by the United States Government on ships or on other Government property, and are of equal quality with paints and varnishes which have been so approved, adopted or used, and have caused certain of the purchasing public to purchase respondent's products by reason of such erroneous beliefs.

Par. 13. The above-alleged false, misleading, and deceptive acts and practices of respondent under the circumstances and conditions hereinabove set forth have the capacity, tendency, and effect of unfairly diverting trade from and otherwise injuring the business of respondent's competitors, are to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

CONCLUSION

The practices of said respondent under the circumstances described in the foregoing findings are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and are in violation of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the record, including the complaint of the Commission, the answers of respondent thereto, the testimony and evidence adduced in support of the allegations of the complaint and in opposition thereto, upon the exceptions taken by counsel for respondent to the trial examiner's report upon the facts, and upon the briefs and oral arguments submitted by counsel for the Commission and for the respondent; and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts, with its conclusion that respondent has violated the provisions of Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes"—

It is now ordered, That the respondent, The Billings-Chapin Company, a corporation, its officers, agents, directors, representatives, and employees, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, or distribution in interstate commerce of any paint, enamel, or varnish products, do cease and desist:

1. From the use of the words "United States", "United States Navy", "U. S. Navy", or the abbreviations or letters "U. S." or "U. S. N.", and from the use of any other word or words, phrases, abbreviations, letters, statements, representations, pictorial or otherwise, alone or in conjunction with any other word, words, abbreviations, or letters, to describe the aforesaid products, which import or imply that any such products of respondent are manufactured for or in conformity with the formulae, specifications, or requirements of the United States Navy or the United States Government, or that any such products have been used, approved, tested, or adopted by the United States Navy or the United States Government when such is not the fact.

(2) From, directly or indirectly, using or causing to be used in advertisements, placards or in any other trade promotional literature of its aforesaid paint, enamel, or varnish products, any depiction of an officer or man, or of officers or men, in the uniform of the United States Navy or in the uniform of the United States Government or any depiction of any ship or ships of the United States Navy in such manner as to import or imply that the said products of respondent or any of them are manufactured for or in conformity with the formulae, specifications, or requirements of the United States Navy or the United States Government or that any such products have been used, approved, tested, or adopted by the United States Navy or the United States Government unless and until such is the fact.

It is further ordered, That respondent within 60 days from and after the date of the service upon it of this order shall file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it is complying with the order to cease and desist as hereinbefore set forth.
Where an individual, engaged in the sale and distribution of two proprietary preparations, consisting of a product to be rubbed into the scalp and over the hair, and an auxiliary soap, which it sold under the names "Kotalko" and "Kotalko Soap", respectively, to the consuming public throughout the several States—

Represented that said preparations would eliminate dandruff, stop falling hair, and grow hair on bald heads, through advertisements in newspapers and magazines, and that, as a result of use thereof, beautiful hair had replaced baldness and dandruff had entirely disappeared, through form letters, circulars, and pamphlets setting forth purported testimonials, accompanied by alleged photographs exhibiting users' fine hair, and emphasized such purported letters or testimonials as supplying proof of the results and merits of said product;

Facts being that preparations in question, as disclosed by expert testimony bearing on therapeutic uses and efficacy thereof, were not an effective remedy or cure for the various forms of alopecia, and that aforesaid representations as to the merits, functioning, or efficacy thereof were exaggerated, misleading, and unwarranted, and did not truthfully and accurately state their therapeutic value;

With tendency and capacity to confuse, mislead, and deceive members of the public into the belief that said products would eliminate dandruff, grow hair on bald heads and beautify the hair, and to induce them to buy and use the same because of such erroneous beliefs, and to divert trade to said individual from competitors engaged in the sale of treatments for hair and scalp, among whom there are those who in no wise misrepresent the efficacy or therapeutic value of their competing products, and with effect of so diverting, to the substantial injury and prejudice of such competitors:

Held, That such acts and practices were to the prejudice of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair method of competition.

Before Mr. John W. Addison, trial examiner.
Mr. DeWitt T. Puckett for the Commission.
Mr. J. Bond Smith and Mr. Benjamin G. Wilkinson, of Washington, D.C., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress entitled, "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Rose R. Scott, trading as Kotalko Sales Company, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has been and now is using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as “commerce” is defined in said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, states its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. The respondent, Rose R. Scott, trading under the name of Kotalko Sales Company, whose principal office and place of business is at 130 West 17th Street, New York City, has been since 1933, and is now engaged in the business of advertising and selling, or causing to be sold, throughout the country, Kotalko and Kotalko Soap, a preparation advertised to produce a luxurious growth of hair on bald heads, eliminate dandruff, and stop falling hair; respondent sells, or causes to be sold, said products, through jobbers and drug stores throughout the country, to the public, and also sells said products through the United States mail, direct to the purchasing public, residing in various States of the United States. Respondent causes said commodities when so sold to be transported from its said place of business in New York City, into and through other States of the United States, to said purchasers at their respective points of location.

Paragraph 2. In the course and conduct of its said business, respondent is in competition with other individuals, partnerships, and corporations engaged in compounding, selling, and distributing in interstate commerce medicinal preparations intended and used for the same general purposes for which respondent represents her said medicine to be a treatment and remedy, as hereinafter set out; such individuals and corporations have caused and do now cause their said preparations when so sold by them, to be transported through various States of the United States, into and through States other than the State of origin of the shipment thereof. Respondent has been since 1933 and is now in competition in interstate commerce in the sale of her said medical preparation with such other individuals, firms, and corporations.

Paragraph 3. Respondent, in the course of her business, has offered for sale and sold a preparation represented and advertised to eliminate dandruff, stop falling hair, grow new hair on bald heads, and beautify hair. In advertisements, form letters, testimonials, and other advertising matter, respondent has represented said products to be a panacea for the aforementioned ailments of the scalp and hair.
PAR. 4. In truth and in fact, said preparation will not cure dandruff, nor prevent the loss of hair; neither will it stimulate the roots of the hair nor produce a luxuriant growth of hair. Most of the claims in the advertising and testimonials are extravagant, unwar­ranted, and misleading.

PAR. 5. The representations of respondent have the tendency and capacity to confuse, mislead, and deceive members of the public into the belief that her said preparation is a remedy and competent and adequate for the ailments which it is advertised and recommended by respondent to cure; to induce them to buy and use the same, because of such erroneous belief, so engendered; such rep­resentations divert trade to respondent from legitimate competitors who truthfully advertise similar preparations and who are engaged in the sale in interstate commerce of preparations intended for and used for the ailments of the human body for which respondent represents her said preparation to be a remedy and competent and adequate treatment, as aforesaid.

PAR. 6. The above alleged acts and practices of respondent are all to the prejudice of the public and respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress, entitled, "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provision of an Act of Congress approved Sep­tember 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Com­mission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission, on January 22, 1935, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent Rose R. Scott, trading as Kotalko Sales Company, charging her with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the pro­visions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint, and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, testimony and evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by DeWitt T. Puckett, attorney for the Commission, before John W. Addison, an examiner of the Commission, theretofore duly design­nated by it, and in defense of the allegations of the complaint by J. Bond Smith, attorney for the respondent; and said testimony and evidence was duly recorded and filed in the office of the Com­mission. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hear­ing before the Commission on the said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and evidence, briefs in support of the complaint and in defense thereto, and the oral arguments of counsel aforesaid; and the Commission having duly considered the same, and being fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, Rose R. Scott, is an individual trading as Kotalko Sales Company. Her principal office and place of business is at 130 West 17th Street, New York City. Respondent now is and has been, since 1933, engaged in the sale and distribution in interstate commerce of Kotalko and Kotalko Soap, proprietary preparations for the hair and scalp, to the purchasing and consuming public throughout the several States of the United States, and causes the said products, when so sold, to be transported from her place of business in New York City through and into other States of the United States to her said vendees at their respective points of location. In the course and conduct of her said business, respondent is in competition with other individuals and with firms, partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of similar products in commerce between and among the various States in the United States.

PAR. 2. Kotalko is prepared and sold by respondent in liquid and solid form. The product includes the following ingredients:

- Pilocarpine Hydrochloride
- Resorcinol
- Oleoresin Capsicum Solution
- Bear Oil
- Castor Oil
- Oil Camphor—Sassy
- Sulphur (resublimed)
- Petrolatum—dark green
- Petrolatum—light amber
- Paraffine

Kotalko Soap is advertised and sold by respondent as an auxiliary to Kotalko. The instructions are to rub Kotalko into the scalp and over the hair and at intervals to shampoo the hair with Kotalko Soap.

PAR. 3. Respondent, in the course and conduct of her said business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, caused advertisements to be inserted in newspapers and magazines circulated to the purchasing public in which it was represented and implied that Kotalko and Kotalko Soap will eliminate dandruff, stop falling hair, and grow hair on bald heads.

Respondent also advertised her products through form letters, circulars and pamphlets in which appeared purported testimonials by users of Kotalko and Kotalko Soap. Accompanying said tes-imonials and as a part thereof appeared the alleged photographs of the said users of Kotalko exhibiting a fine suit of hair.
Some of the testimonials were to the effect that through the use of Kotalko and Kotalko Soap beautiful suits of hair had been produced on heads which formerly were bald. Others were to the effect that dandruff had entirely disappeared since the person began using Kotalko.

Some of the headlines above the testimonials were:

(a) MILLIONS OF NEW HAIRS GROW ON SMOOTH HEADS
Marble is beautiful when smooth and polished. And some bald heads appear to be just as smooth as marble. But who wants to have a "marble dome?" Many former smooth heads are now growing new hair. Why? Because starving hair roots are being vitalized with Kotalko and Kotalko Soap.

(b) CONVINCE YOURSELF
How delightful it is to possess a full growth of hair! No one knows this better than one who has new hair, after having faced the spectre of partial or complete hair loss. Therefore, what can be more convincing than letters from those who, through personal use, found a way to encourage such results through the use of Kotalko, and Kotalko Soap? Let these testimonials be your inspiration. Determine that you also will become entitled to join the enthusiastic group who recommend Kotalko, and Kotalko Soap.

(c) WHAT MADE THEIR HAIR GROW? HERE IS THE ANSWER

Par. 4. Expert testimony has been taken with regard to the therapeutic uses and efficacy of respondent's products. That testimony is to the effect, and the Commission finds as a fact, that Kotalko and Kotalko Soap are not an effective remedy or cure for the various forms of alopecia. In conformity with such testimony the Commission finds that said representations of respondent in regard to the efficacy of Kotalko and Kotalko Soap are exaggerated, misleading, unwarranted in fact and that they do not truthfully and accurately state the therapeutic value thereof.

Par. 5. Representations of respondent as aforesaid have had and do have the tendency and capacity to confuse, mislead and deceive members of the public into the erroneous belief that respondent's products, Kotalko and Kotalko Soap will eliminate dandruff, grow hair on bald heads and beautify the hair. Said representations of respondent have had and do have a tendency and capacity to induce members of the public to buy and use respondent's products because of the erroneous beliefs engendered as above set forth and to divert trade to respondent from competitors engaged in the sale in interstate commerce of treatments for the hair and scalp.

Par. 6. There are, among the competitors of respondent, those who, in the sale of their products, in nowise misrepresent the efficacy or therapeutic value of their competing products, and respondent's acts and practices as hereinbefore set forth tend to and do divert trade to respondent from her competitors to the substantial injury and prejudice of such competitors.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent are to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors, and under the conditions and circumstances stated in the foregoing findings, constitute unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce, and constitute a violation of the Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

It is ordered, That the respondent, Rose R. Scott, her agents and employees, in connection with the advertising, offering for sale and sale in interstate commerce, or in the District of Columbia, of the preparations now designated by her as Kotalko and Kotalko Soap:

Cease and desist from representing in any manner, including by or through the use of testimonials or endorsements, that said preparations, or either of them, by whatever name or description known, will eliminate dandruff or grow hair on bald heads or that they are efficacious as treatments for the various forms of alopecia.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon her of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which she has complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF

LOUIS DUBINOFF, TRADING AS FAMOUS PURE SILK HOSIERY COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Where an individual, engaged in the sale of hosiery through salesmen who solicited and transmitted orders therefor—

(a) Falsely represented that he owned, operated or controlled a mill or factory in which products dealt in by him were made;

(b) Represented that he was a direct mill distributor, facts being he purchased products dealt in by him from manufacturers thereof or through their agents and from jobbers and wholesalers for resale on his own account, and was not such a distributor, but a retailer of hosiery;

(c) Falsely represented that the hosiery offered and sold by him was "run-proof", facts being it was not run-proof as known to trade and public, meaning that a run would not occur when a thread breaks and releases a second thread with a resulting so-called "run"; and

(d) Guaranteed his said product as "run-proof", facts being customers had at times neither received hosiery purchased nor any refund of the money paid therefor, and had returned hosiery as unsatisfactory and received no return or refund of the money paid or other hosiery in place thereof;

With capacity and tendency to mislead the purchasing public into the belief that said representations were true and into the purchase of its said product in reliance on such erroneous beliefs, and to divert trade to said individual from competitors offering and selling hosiery truthfully advertised and described, through salesmen or solicitors, mail orders and otherwise:

Held, That such practices were all to the prejudice of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. Charles F. Diggs, trial examiner.
Mr. James M. Brinson for the Commission.
Mr. Jacob Lipman, of Newark, N. J., for respondent.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Louis Dubinoff trading as Famous Pure Silk Hosiery Co., hereinafter called respondent, has been or is using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof

would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent Louis Dubinoff is an individual who is now trading and for more than a year last past has been trading under the firm name and style of Famous Pure Silk Hosiery Co., with his offices and principal place of business at Newark in the State of New Jersey. He is now and for more than a year last past has been engaged in the sale of hosiery from his said place of business in, among and through the various States of the United States, by means of or through duly authorized salesmen who solicit orders for such hosiery and thereupon transmit the same to respondent at his said place of business. Thereafter respondent fills or pretends to fill such orders by transporting or causing to be transported from his said place of business into or through the several States of the United States hosiery of various kinds or sorts to the persons from whom the orders were obtained by his salesmen.

In the course and conduct of his business, respondent Louis Dubinoff has been or was at all times herein mentioned in competition with other individuals, firms, partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of hosiery in interstate commerce.

Paragraph 2. Respondent Louis Dubinoff, in the course and conduct of the business described in paragraph 1 hereof, has offered for sale and sold his hosiery through his duly authorized salesmen and solicitors, as aforesaid, by means of the following false representations and statements, to wit:

(a) That he was a direct mill distributor;
(b) That he owned, operated or controlled a mill or factory in which the products were made or fabricated which he sold and distributed;
(c) That extra length stockings would be furnished without extra charge;
(d) That the hosiery sold and distributed by him was guaranteed for a period of from three to five months;
(e) That such hosiery was run-proof;
(f) That such hosiery was full-fashioned;
(g) That hosiery furnished by respondent would conform in size, color, length, and quality to orders.

In truth and in fact respondent Louis Dubinoff has not owned, controlled or operated, and does not own, control or operate any mill or factory wherein the products sold and distributed by him have been or were made or fabricated. On the contrary he purchased such products from manufacturers thereof, and from jobbers and wholesalers. He has not been and was not a direct mill distributor, but has been and is a retailer of hosiery. He has not furnished and does not furnish extra length stockings to customers without extra charge. His products were not and have not been guaranteed; were not and have not been run-proof; and were not and have not been manufactured in whole or in part in accordance with the process used in the manufacture of “fashioned” or “full-fashioned” hosiery. His products have not been and were not such products as have been or are known to the trade and the purchasing public as “run-proof”, or as “fashioned”, or “full-fashioned” hosiery.

Respondent Louis Dubinoff, in addition to use of the above and foregoing false representations and statements, in offering for sale and selling his products, has used the following methods and practices, to wit:

He has filled certain orders received by him with hosiery which was of different size, color, length, or quality, or different in all such respects than hosiery ordered, and in certain instances he has failed and neglected to supply or furnish hosiery after receiving orders with deposits. He has also failed and neglected promptly in any instances, or at all in many instances, to adjust or correct orders improperly filled, or to refund money received in connection therewith.

Par. 3. There are now and for more than a year last past have been individuals, partnerships and corporations, offering for sale and selling in commerce among and between the various States of the United States by means of salesmen, solicitors, mail orders, and otherwise, hosiery of all kinds.

Par. 4. The aforesaid representations of respondent, described in paragraph 2 hereof, have had and have the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive the public into the purchase of respondent’s hosiery in reliance on their truthfulness, or the truthfulness of one or more of them.

Said representations of respondent have had and each of them has had the capacity and tendency to divert trade to respondent from competitors offering for sale and selling hosiery in interstate commerce.

Par. 5. The practices of respondent, described in paragraph 2 hereof, are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent’s competitors, and have been and are unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes.”
Famous Pure Silk Hosiery Co.

Findings

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

Respondent Louis Dubinoff, trading as Famous Pure Silk Hosiery Company, filed his answer herein. Testimony and evidence were duly received before an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly appointed for such purpose, in support of the complaint and on behalf of respondent. Thereupon this proceeding having come on for final hearing on the record and on brief in support of complaint, respondent, having failed to submit either brief or oral argument, and the Commission having considered the record and being fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and now files this its report in writing, setting forth its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom, as follows, to wit:

Findings as to the Facts

Paragraph 1. Respondent Louis Dubinoff is an individual who is now trading and for more than a year last past has been trading under the firm name and style of Famous Pure Silk Hosiery Company, with his office and principal place of business at Newark in the State of New Jersey. He is now engaged and for more than a year last past has been engaged in the sale of hosiery from his said place of business among and between the State of New Jersey and the various other States of the United States and the District of Columbia. It has been and is the practice of respondent to transport or cause to be transported hosiery from his said place of business among and between the State of New Jersey and the various other States of the United States and the District of Columbia.

In the course and conduct of his business respondent has been and now is in competition with individuals, partnerships and corporations offering for sale or selling hosiery in interstate commerce.

Paragraph 2. It has been and is the practice of respondent to offer for sale and sell his hosiery by means of or through duly authorized salesmen who solicit orders for the hosiery and thereupon transmit the same to respondent at his said place of business. Thereafter respondent fills such orders by transporting or causing to be transported from his said place of business the hosiery of various kinds or sorts to the persons from whom the orders were obtained by his salesmen. Respondent Louis Dubinoff, in the course and conduct of the business described in paragraph 1 hereof has offered for sale and sold his hosiery through his duly authorized salesmen and solicitors, as aforesaid, by means of the following false representations and statements, to wit:

(a) That he was and is a direct mill distributor;
(b) That he owned, operated or controlled a mill or factory in which the products were made or fabricated which he sold and distributed;
(c) That the hosiery offered for sale and sold by him was and is guaranteed to be and is "run-proof."

In truth and in fact respondent Louis Dubinoff has not been, was not and is not a direct mill distributor. He has neither owned, controlled, nor operated and does not own, control or operate any mill or factory wherein the products sold and distributed by him have been or are made or fabricated. On the contrary he has purchased and continues to purchase the products sold by him from manufacturers thereof or through their agents and from jobbers and wholesalers for resale on his own account. Instead of being a direct mill distributor he has been and is a retailer of hosiery.

He has not supported or fulfilled his guaranty of the products that they are or will be "run-proof" and they have not been and are not "run-proof", as such phrase or expression is known to the trade and the purchasing public. Such understanding of the purchasing public is that a run in the stocking occurs when a thread breaks, causing the release of another thread resulting in the so-called "run", and this has been the experience of many customers who have purchased respondent's hosiery in reliance on such guaranty. The customers of respondent have at times neither received the hosiery purchased by them nor any refund of the money paid by them. Customers have returned hosiery to respondent as unsatisfactory and received no return nor refund of the money paid nor any other hosiery in its place.

Par. 3. There are now and for more than a year last past have been individuals, partnerships and corporations offering for sale and selling in commerce among and between the various States of the United States hosiery of all kinds truthfully described by means of salesmen, solicitors, mail orders, and otherwise.

Par. 4. The false representations of respondent described in paragraph 2 have had and have and each of them has had and has the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive the purchasing public into the belief that such representations are true and into the purchase of respondent’s product in reliance on such erroneous belief.

The aforesaid false representations have also had and have and each of them has had and has the capacity and tendency to divert trade to respondent from competitors mentioned in paragraph 3 hereof offering for sale or selling hosiery in interstate commerce truthfully advertised or described.

CONCLUSION

The above and foregoing practices of respondent have been and are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent’s competitors and have been and are unfair methods of competition in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of an Act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes.”

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondent, the testimony and evidence, and the brief in support of the complaint, counsel for respondent having failed to submit brief or oral argument, and the Commission having filed its report stating its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that the respondent has violated the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, ettitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”.

It is now ordered, That respondent, Louis Dubinoff, trading as Famous Pure Silk Hosiery Company, or by or under any other trade name, his agents, employees and representatives, cease and desist, directly or indirectly, in connection with offering for sale or selling hosiery in interstate commerce, from representing either orally, or by means of advertisements in magazines, newspapers, or in any other written or printed matter, or by means of radio broadcasting:

(1) That he owns, controls, or operates the mill or factory in which is manufactured the hosiery offered for sale or sold by him, unless and until he does in fact own, control, or operate such mill or factory;

(2) That he is a direct mill distributor, unless he has and maintains a distributing or agency connection with or relationship to the mill or factory in which the products sold by him are manufactured other than as a purchaser of such products from the mill or factory for resale on his own account to the consuming public;
(3) That the hosiery offered for sale or sold by him is run-proof, or, in other words, will not “run” as the term is popularly understood;

(4) That he guarantees the hosiery offered for sale or sold by him unless or until he establishes and maintains the fixed and uniform practice of promptly refunding to purchasers of stockings from him that have run the several purchase prices paid therefor by such respective purchasers.

It is further ordered, That respondent file a report in writing within 60 days from the service of this order setting forth in detail the manner and form of its compliance therewith.
Complaint

IN THE MATTER OF

X LABORATORIES, INC.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Where a corporation, engaged in the manufacture, compounding and sale of a cleaning fluid designated as "X Odorless Dry Cleaner", set forth upon the labels on the containers thereof that such cleaner was "Non-injurious to any fabric or color", and represented in advertisements, pamphlets and circulars that it would remove certain types of spots from fabrics, no matter how delicate, and leave no ring on materials upon which used, facts being that use thereof on fabrics dyed with fugitive or non-fast dyes impaired and affected the colors by causing same to bleed or run, and use thereof on certain fabrics and under certain conditions resulted in appearance of a spot or ring; with capacity to mislead purchasing public by causing it to believe that said cleaner removed grease and other spots without injury to fabrics or color and induce it to buy said product in such erroneous belief, and to divert trade to it from competitors engaged in the sale of similar cleaners:

Held, That such acts and practices were each and all to the prejudice of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Mr. R. L. Kennedy for the Commission.

Underwood & Kilpatrick, of Washington, D. C., for respondent.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that the X Laboratories, Inc., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as the respondent, has been and is using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, and states its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. The respondent is a corporation, organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its principal office and place of business in the city of New York, N. Y., and a factory in Cambridge, Mass. Respondent is now and for more than two years last past has been engaged in the manufacture, compounding and sale of a cleaning fluid, designated as "X Odorless Dry Cleaner", and, in the distribution thereof, in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia, causes and has caused said product, when sold, to be transported in interstate commerce from its places of business in the States of New York and Massachusetts to purchasers thereof, some located in said States, and others located in various other States in the United States and the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of its said business, respondent is now and has been, for more than two years last past, in substantial competition with other corporations and with individuals, partnerships, and firms, engaged in the manufacture, sale, and distribution of cleaning fluids and similar products, in interstate commerce between and among the various States in the United States and the District of Columbia, used for purposes similar to the purposes for which respondent's products are used.

Par. 3. In the course and conduct of its said business as hereinabove described, the respondent in soliciting the sale of and selling, in interstate commerce, a cleaner manufactured and sold by it under the name of "X Odorless Dry Cleaner", caused and still causes its said product to be placed in cans or containers, of half pint, pint or gallon capacity, upon each of which appears the statement that "X Odorless Dry Cleaner is absolutely non-inflammable, non-explosive and non-injurious to any fabric or color", and in advertisements, pamphlets, and circulars has stated that said cleaner will remove certain types of spots from fabrics, no matter how delicate, and that it leaves no ring on materials upon which it is used.

Par. 4. In truth and in fact the respondent's product hereinabove described, labeled and sold by respondent is not absolutely non-injurious to any fabric or color, and said misrepresentation is false, extravagant, misleading, and deceptive. The use of said product on fabrics, dyed with certain kinds of dyes, such as non-fast dyes, does impair, harm, and affect the colors of such fabrics, by causing the same to bleed or run. The use of said product on certain fabrics, and under certain conditions or circumstances, does result in the appearance of a spot or ring on such fabrics, and in either or both of these ways such fabrics are in fact injured by the use of said product thereon.

Par. 5. Said advertisements and labels have had and still have the tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive; do mislead and deceive, and have misled and deceived the purchasing public, by causing it to believe that respondent's cleaner removes grease spots and other spots without injury to fabric or color; and to induce the purchasing public to buy respondent's cleaner, hereinabove described, in such erroneous belief; afford retail merchants an opportunity to perpetrate a fraud on the purchasing public, have the capacity and tendency to divert, have unfairly diverted, and do unfairly divert trade to respondent from competing individuals, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the sale of like or similar cleaners in interstate commerce, who truthfully and honestly advertise and label their cleaners.

Par. 6. The acts, practices, and representations of the respondent hereinabove set forth are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and the competitors of the respondent, in interstate commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission issued and served its complaint upon the respondent herein, X Laboratories, Incorporated, a corporation organized and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, and charging said respondent with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act.

Respondent, having entered its appearance and having filed its answer herein, entered into a stipulation whereby it was stipulated and agreed that a statement of facts signed and executed by respondent, by its counsel, and W. T. Kelley, chief counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, subject to the approval of the Commission, are the facts in this proceeding and shall be taken by the Federal Trade Commission as such and in lieu of testimony before the Commission in support of the charges stated in the complaint, or in opposition thereto, and that said Commission may proceed further upon said statement of facts, stating its findings as to the facts and conclusion thereon and entering its order disposing of the proceeding:

And thereupon, this proceeding came on for final hearing and the respondent, having waived the filing of briefs and the hearing of oral argument herein before the Commission, and said Commission having approved and accepted said stipulation as to the facts and having duly considered the record and being now fully advised in the premises, makes this its findings as to the facts and conclusion:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent is a corporation, organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its principal office and place of business in the city of New York, N. Y., and a factory in Cambridge, Mass.; and respondent is now and since September 28, 1934, has been engaged in the manufacture, compounding and sale of a cleaning fluid designated as "X Odorless Dry Cleaner", and, in the distribution thereof, in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia, causes and has caused said product, when sold, to be transported in interstate commerce from the places of business in the States of New York and Massachusetts to purchasers thereof, some located in said States, and others located in various other States in the United States and the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of its said business, respondent is now and has been, for more than two years last past, in substantial competition with other corporations and with individuals, partnerships, and firms engaged in the manufacture, sale and distribution of cleaning fluids and similar products, in interstate commerce between and among the various States in the United States and the District of Columbia, used for purposes similar to the purposes for which respondent's products are used.

Par. 3. In the course and conduct of its said business as hereinabove described, the respondent in soliciting the sale of and selling, in interstate commerce, a cleaner manufactured and sold by it under the name of "X Odorless Dry Cleaner", caused and still causes its said product to be placed in cans or containers, of half pint, pint or gallon capacity, upon each of which appears the statement that "X Odorless Dry Cleaner" is "Non-inflammable, non-explosive, non-injurious to any fabric or color", and in advertisements, pamphlets, and circulars has stated that said cleaner will remove certain types of spots from fabrics, no matter how delicate, and that it leaves no ring on materials upon which it is used.

Par. 4. In truth and in fact the respondent's product hereinabove described, labeled, and sold by respondent is not absolutely non-injurious to any fabric or color; the use of said product on fabrics dyed with certain kinds of dyes, such as fugitive or non-fast dyes, does impair, harm, and affect the colors of such fabrics, by causing the same to bleed or run; the use of said product on certain fabrics, and under certain conditions or circumstances, does result in the appearance of a spot or ring on such fabrics; and in either or both of these ways such fabrics may in fact be injured by the use of said product thereon.

Par. 5. Said advertisements and labels have had and still have the capacity to mislead the purchasing public, by causing it to believe that respondent's cleaner removes grease spots and other spots without injury to any fabric or color, and to induce the purchasing public to buy respondent's cleaner, hereinabove described, in such erroneous belief; and said advertisements have the capacity to divert trade to respondent from competing individuals, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the sale of like or similar cleaners in interstate commerce.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, X Laboratories, Incorporated, are each and all to the prejudice of the public, and to the competitors of respondent, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes.”

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been duly heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon a complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondent, and a stipulation entered into between the respondent herein, X Laboratories, Inc., a corporation, by its counsel, H. C. Kilpatrick, and counsel for this Commission, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”,

Now, therefore, it is hereby ordered, That the respondent, X Laboratories, Inc., a corporation, its officers, agents, representatives, and employees, in connection with the distribution, offering for sale, and sale of X Odorless Dry Cleaner, in interstate commerce, forthwith cease and desist from:

Advertising or labeling its X Odorless Dry Cleaner as non-injurious to any fabric or color, as leaving no ring on materials upon which it is used, or as a cleaner of spots from fabrics no matter how delicate, or other statements having the same or similar meaning, or which may have the capacity or tendency to lead purchasers to the belief that the colors or fabrics of materials dyed with fugitive dyes, will not be injured by the use of said product, or that it will under no circumstances leave a ring on material on which it is used.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall within 60 days after the service upon him of this order, file with the Commission, a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with the order to cease and desist hereinabove set forth.
IN THE MATTER OF

G. H. SOEFFING AND E. H. EISLER, TRADING AS JOHN ALDEN COMPANY AND L. M. STONE, MGR.; AND VICKERY & HILL PUBLISHING CO.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Where a firm, engaged in the business of operating a magazine subscription agency to solicit subscriptions, and conducting, pursuant to said purpose, and under the name of an office employee as “Mgr.”, a so-called “Auto Boosters Club” or plan or scheme, which had for its purpose the procuring of subscription solicitors for the periodical in question, and which involved the giving of prizes to such solicitors on the basis of specified voting credits for subscriptions secured, in addition to the payment thereto of commissions based on subscriptions received, and acting under a contract with an individual, with whom periodical publisher concerned had theretofore separately contracted for subscription promotion, and in which later contract said publisher had had no part—

Represented, in puzzle prize advertisements directed to securing persons to solicit subscriptions for offer and sale in interstate commerce of said publisher’s periodical, that mere solution of problem or puzzle entitled one solving it to a prize consisting of $1500 in cash or choice of a Ford, Plymouth or Chevrolet automobile, that plan cost “nothing to try”—“send no money”—“$750 cash” would be paid to the winner of first prize for being prompt, and that one must “act at once” and “rush answers” in order to qualify for the “promptness prize”;

The facts being that said statements were false and fictitious, and purpose to secure solicitors for sale of magazine in question became known to contestants only after they had submitted solutions which did not entitle anyone to any prize, and no prize or other thing of value was paid by reason of any solution, or $750 in cash for being prompt or for any other reason in connection with the solution of the puzzle:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the conditions and circumstances set forth, were to the prejudice of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. W. W. Sheppard, trial examiner.
Mr. P. C. Kolinski for the Commission.
Mr. John E. Nelson, of Augusta, Me., for Vickery & Hill Publishing Co.

COMPLAINT

the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that G. H. Soeffing and E. H. Eisler, trading as John Alden Company and also as L. M. Stone, Mgr., and Vickery & Hill Publishing Company, a corporation, hereinafter called respondents, have been and are now using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, it hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondents G. H. Soeffing and E. H. Eisler, are now, and for several years last past have been copartners trading under the name and style of John Alden Company and also as L. M. Stone, Mgr., with their principal office and place of business in the city of Chicago, State of Illinois, engaged in the business of operating a magazine subscription agency for the purpose of soliciting subscriptions for magazines circulated in interstate commerce, including the magazine "Good Stories", published by respondent, Vickery & Hill Publishing Company. In the course and conduct of said business, respondents procure the services of agents, salesmen and representatives to be employed in the business of soliciting subscriptions for magazines including the magazine "Good Stories", and are in substantial competition with other individuals, partnerships and corporations engaged in commerce in the similar business of operating magazine subscription agencies.

Respondent Vickery & Hill Publishing Company is now and for several years last past has been, a corporation, organized and existing under the laws of the State of Maine, with its principal office and place of business in the city of Augusta in said State, engaged in the business of publishing and circulating in interstate commerce a magazine known as "Good Stories". Respondent causes said publication to be transported from its place of business in the city of Augusta, State of Maine, to subscribers and purchasers located in various other States and territories of the United States. In the course and conduct of its said business, respondent is in substantial competition with other individuals, corporations and partnerships likewise engaged in the publication, sale and transportation of magazines and periodicals in interstate commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

Par. 2. It has been and is the practice of the respondents, in the course and conduct of their respective businesses described in paragraph 1 hereof, to conduct a so-called "Auto Boosters Club" for the purpose of procuring subscription solicitors and promoting the sale and circulation of "Good Stories" magazine in interstate commerce.
The particular feature of such Auto Boosters Club has been and is a puzzle-prize form of advertising, the advertisements of which have been caused to appear in various magazines and newspapers of general circulation in the United States under the name of "L. M. Stone, Mgr.", whom respondents describe or designate as manager of the Auto Boosters Club. L. M. Stone is a fictitious person.

Said Auto Boosters Club designates an advertising and promotion campaign operated for the purpose of procuring subscriptions to the magazine "Good Stories". Prospective subscription solicitors are recruited from the readers of aforesaid puzzle-prize advertisements. A system of voting credits is devised as follows:

- Each 1-year subscription at 25¢ — 250 credits
- Each 2-year subscription at 50¢ — 500 credits
- Each 3-year subscription at 75¢ — 750 credits
- Each 4-year subscription at $1.00 — 1,000 credits

In addition the subscription solicitors are paid a 10% commission on all subscription payments received by them. A definite contest period is fixed, and at the conclusion thereof, the votes or "credits" received by the contestants in said subscription-gathering contest are tallied and certain prizes awarded to the announced winners.

In such advertisements, respondents have made and continue to make statements and representations in reference to their prize contests, to the following effect, to wit:

That the mere solution of the problem or puzzle in the advertisement of respondents qualifies or entitles the one solving it to receive a prize consisting of $1,500.00 in cash or choice of a Ford V8, Plymouth, or Chevrolet automobile;

That the contest does not require the sending of money—that "It costs nothing to try—you may win—who knows?"—"Send no money—answer right away—no money required"—"$750.00 cash will be paid to the winner of first prize for being prompt"—"Not one nickel of your money is needed to win";

That one must "act at once" and "rush answers" in order to qualify for the "promptness prize".

In truth and in fact:

(a) The mere solution of the problem or puzzle in the advertisement of respondents does not qualify or entitle the one solving it to receive a prize consisting of $1,500.00 in cash or choice of a Ford V8, Plymouth or a Chevrolet automobile, and respondents do not and have not, for the mere solution of the problem or puzzle in the advertisement, awarded a prize consisting of $1,500.00 in cash or the choice of a Ford V8, Plymouth or Chevrolet automobile, or any other thing of value;

(b) The contest does require the sending of money by persons entering such contest;
Findings

(c) $750.00 cash is not paid and has not been paid to any person entering such contest for being prompt or for any other reason in conjunction with the solution of the puzzle;

(d) The only means by which a person entering such contest receives any amount of money or any reward is by way of commissions made by such contestant in securing subscriptions for the respondents to the aforesaid magazine called “Good Stories.”

In truth and in fact the use of the representations aforesaid is done by respondents for the purpose of securing solicitors for the sale of the aforesaid magazine “Good Stories”, which fact is not disclosed by the respondents in and by the aforesaid advertisements and which fact becomes known to contestants only after they have submitted to the respondents their solutions of the problems or puzzles contained in such advertisements,

Par. 3. The practices of respondents described in paragraph 2 hereof have had, and now have the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive the public interested in bona fide puzzle contests, into participation in the contest conducted by respondents, in the belief that if the reader correctly solved the puzzle, he would receive the prizes offered in said advertisements; and also induce some members of the reading public to become subscription solicitors and subscribers in furtherance of respondents purposes.

Such practices of respondents have also had, and now have, the capacity and tendency to divert trade to them from competitors who have been and are now publishing, circulating and procuring subscriptions to magazines in interstate commerce by fair and truthful representations and methods. Thereby substantial injury is done to substantial competition in interstate commerce.

Par. 4. The above acts and things done by respondents are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and competitors of respondents in interstate commerce, within the meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”, approved September 26, 1914.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”, the Federal Trade Commission, on April 13, 1935, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondents G. H. Soeffing and E. H. Eisler, trading as John Alden Company and also as L. M. Stone, Mgr., and Vickery & Hill Publishing Company, a corporation, charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint, and the filing of respondents' answer thereto (respondent Vickery & Hill Publishing Co., a corporation, filing no answer but appearing by John E. Nelson its attorney), testimony and evidence, in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by P. C. Kolinski, attorney for the Commission, before W. W. Sheppard, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and in defense of the allegations of the complaint by John E. Nelson, attorney for respondent Vickery & Hill Publishing Co., and by respondents G. H. Soeffing and E. H. Eisler in their own behalf; and said testimony and evidence was duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and evidence, and brief in support of the complaint; and the Commission having duly considered the same, and being fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondents G. H. Soeffing and E. H. Eisler, are now, and for several years last past have been copartners trading under the name and style of John Alden Company and also as L. M. Stone, Mgr., with their principal office and place of business in the city of Chicago, State of Illinois, engaged in the business of operating a magazine subscription agency for the purpose of soliciting subscriptions for magazines circulated in interstate commerce, including the magazine "Good Stories", published by respondent, Vickery & Hill Publishing Company. In the course and conduct of said business, respondents procure the services of agents, salesmen and representatives to be employed in the business of soliciting subscriptions for magazines including the magazine "Good Stories", and are in substantial competition with other individuals, partnerships and corporations engaged in commerce in the similar business of operating magazine subscription agencies.

Respondent Vickery & Hill Publishing Company is now and for several years last past has been a corporation, organized and existing under the laws of the State of Maine, with its principal office and place of business in the city of Augusta in said State, engaged in the business of publishing and circulating in interstate commerce a magazine known as "Good Stories". Respondent causes said publication to be transported from its place of business in the city of Augusta, State of Maine, to subscribers and purchasers located in various other States and territories of the United States. In the course and conduct of its said business, respondent is in substantial competition with other individuals, corporations and partnerships likewise engaged in the publication, sale and transportation of magazines and periodicals in interstate commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

Par. 2. It has been and is the practice of the respondents, in the course and conduct of their respective businesses described in paragraph 1 hereof, to conduct a so-called “Auto Boosters Club” for the purpose of procuring subscription solicitors and promoting the sale and circulation of “Good Stories” magazine in interstate commerce.

The particular feature of such Auto Boosters Club has been and is a puzzle-prize form of advertising, the advertisements of which have been caused to appear in various magazines and newspapers of general circulation in the United States under the name of “L. M. Stone, Mgr.”, whom respondents describe or designate as Manager of the Auto Boosters Club. L. M. Stone is an office employee of respondents G. H. Soeffing and E. H. Eisler.

Said Auto Boosters Club designates an advertising and promotion campaign operated for the purpose of procuring subscriptions to the magazine “Good Stories”. Prospective subscription solicitors are recruited from the readers of aforesaid puzzle-prize advertisements. A system of voting credits is devised as follows:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Subscription Length</th>
<th>Credits</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1-year subscription</td>
<td>25¢</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2-year subscription</td>
<td>50¢</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3-year subscription</td>
<td>75¢</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4-year subscription</td>
<td>$1.00</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

In addition the subscription solicitors are paid 25%, 20%, and 10% commissions on all subscription payments received by them. A definite contest period is fixed, and at the conclusion thereof, the votes or “credits” received by the contestants in said subscription-gathering contest are tallied and certain prizes awarded to the announced winners.

In such advertisements, respondents have made and continue to make statements and representations in reference to their prize contests, to the following effect, to wit:

That the mere solution of the problem or puzzle in the advertisement of respondents qualifies or entitles the one solving it to receive a prize consisting of $1,500.00 in cash or choice of a Ford V8, Plymouth, or Chevrolet automobile;

That the contest does not require the sending of money—that “It costs nothing to try—you may win—who knows?”—“Send no money—answer right away—no money required”—“$750.00 cash will be paid to the winner of first prize for being prompt”—“Not one nickel of your money is needed to win”;
That one must "act at once" and "rush answers" in order to qualify for the "promptness prize."

Par. 3. The representations set out in the advertising matter described in the preceding paragraph as to prizes and rewards for solving puzzles advertised by respondents are false and fictitious. Such representations are made for the purpose of securing solicitors for the sale of the aforesaid magazine “Good Stories”, which fact becomes known to contestants only after they have submitted to respondents their solutions of the puzzles contained in such advertisements.

In truth and in fact, the mere solution of the problem or puzzle in the advertisement of respondents does not qualify or entitle the one solving it to receive a prize consisting of $1,500 in cash or choice of a Ford V8, Plymouth, or a Chevrolet automobile, and respondents do not and have not, for the mere solution of the problem or puzzle in the advertisement, awarded a prize consisting of $1,500 in cash or the choice of a Ford V8, Plymouth, or Chevrolet automobile, or any other thing of value. The contest does require the sending of money by persons entering such contest. $750 cash is not paid and has not been paid to any person entering such contest for being prompt or for any other reason in conjunction with the solution of the puzzle.

Par. 4. The only means by which a person entering such contest receives any amount of money or any reward is by way of commissions made by such contestant in securing subscriptions for the respondents to the aforesaid magazine called “Good Stories.” Respondents G. H. Soeffing and E. H. Eisler, during the said contest, through the efforts of their subscription gatherers, procured 67,172 subscriptions for “Good Stories” magazine. 3,366 contestants entered the puzzle contest and engaged as subscription gatherers. The sum of $19,649.73 was paid to respondent Vickery & Hill Publishing Co. in payment for said subscription contracts. The sum of $7,000 was paid as commissions to compensate the services of the subscription gatherers. One Anna Warzala was determined to be the winner of the contest and entitled to receive the first prize aggregating $3,110.00.

Par. 5. Respondent Vickery & Hill Publishing Co. entered into a contract on August 2, 1934, with C. G. Simpson, doing business as Whitlock and Company (not incorporated) of Chicago, Ill., engaging said Simpson for the purpose of procuring subscriptions to the magazine “Good Stories”, said contract authorizing C. G. Simpson to perform such services by his own activities or by the activities of such special representatives as he may select. Thereafter on September 6, 1934, said C. G. Simpson entered into a contract with respondents
Order

G. H. Soeffing and E. H. Eisler as his agents in the procurement of subscriptions to the magazine "Good Stories", which contract contained these provisions:

You are to produce all subscriptions in accordance with all Postal and ABC regulations, which are in effect at this time, or may be put into effect during the term of this agreement.

This agreement may be terminated by Whitlock and Company upon notice in writing if the Post Office Department, or the Federal Trade Commission or any other duly constituted Federal authority having jurisdiction, refuses Vickery and Hill Publishing Company the right to serve the subscriptions produced under this agreement in accordance with their second class mailing privilege.

Respondent Vickery & Hill Publishing Co. had no part in the contract existing between C. G. Simpson and respondents G. H. Soeffing and E. H. Eisler, and had nothing to do with advertising inserted in newspapers and magazines by them. Respondents Vickery & Hill Publishing Co. exercised ordinary care and entered into its contract with C. G. Simpson in the customary course of such business dealing.

CONCLUSION

The acts and practices of respondents G. H. Soeffing and E. H. Eisler, under the conditions and circumstances described in the foregoing findings, are to the prejudice of the public and respondents' competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes"; and the acts and practices of respondent Vickery & Hill Publishing Co., under the conditions and circumstances described in the foregoing findings, do not constitute unfair methods of competition within the intent and meaning of said act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

113653m—38—vol. 21—40
It is ordered, That respondents G. H. Soeffing and E. H. Eisler, trading as John Alden Company, and L. M. Stone, manager, or trading under any other designation, their officers, agents representatives and employees, in connection with the sale of or offering for sale or distribution in interstate commerce of subscriptions for magazines, cease and desist directly or indirectly, from:

(1) Advertising puzzle contests representing in such advertisements that the mere solution of the puzzle will enable a contestant to win a prize.

(2) Advertising puzzle-prize contests with the representation that the contest does not require the sending of money by contestants.

(3) Advertising puzzle-prize contests accompanied by any representation that the advertised prizes are offered free, without the rendition of sales, solicitation, or subscription gathering services on the part of contestants.

It is further ordered, That respondents shall within 60 days after service of a copy of this order file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with and conformed to the order to cease and desist as above set forth by the Commission.

It is further ordered, That the complaint against Vickery & Hill Publishing Co. be and the same is hereby dismissed.

C. S. ALLEN CORPORATION AND CLAUDE S. ALLEN, DOING BUSINESS UNDER THE TRADE NAME AND STYLE OF LONDON TOFFEE COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Where a corporation, engaged in the manufacture and sale of confectionery products, including one known as "Toffee"—

(a) Set forth on the cellophane or paper containers thereof, and on shipping boxes, and upon its letterheads and billheads sent to dealers, purchasers, customers and prospective customers in the several States, along with other matter, its corporate name, together with words "London, England; Montreal, Canada; Brooklyn, New York", notwithstanding fact it did not own, control or operate manufacturing plants, branches or selling agencies, directly or indirectly, either in London or Montreal; and

(b) Included in the legends displayed respectively upon the containers and shipping boxes, as above set forth, and upon its letterheads and billheads, the words "Famous in London since 1860", or "Famous in England since 1860", and also depicted upon said containers and shipping boxes an English "Beef Eater" uniformed guard and English castle, notwithstanding fact that said confectionery was of domestic manufacture entirely, and was not the English or other foreign-made confectionery product which had for many years enjoyed undisputed popularity, good-will and demand among the consuming public in the United States, by many of whom it was considered superior in quality and other desirable characteristics to the domestic product, and purchased in preference thereto; and

With intent, tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public and trade and induce their purchase of said product in the belief that said representations and statements as to foreign factories, branches or selling agencies and foreign source of product were true; and said product words "London Toffee", notwithstanding fact product in question was entirely of domestic manufacture, and not, as aforesaid, imported; With intent, capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public and trade and induce their purchase of product sold by said individual in reliance upon the truth of said representations and statements as to manufacture and distribution of said "London Toffee" as an imported English confection made by a concern engaged under aforesaid trade name, in London, Montreal, or Brooklyn, with factories, branches, or selling agencies in said foreign cities; and

With further capacity and tendency unfairly to divert a substantial volume of trade from competitors of said corporation and of said individual, among whom there are those who sell such confectionery products made in England and imported to the United States, and who rightfully and lawfully represent their merchandise as an imported product, and those who manufacture and sell the domestic product without in any manner representing same as made in or imported from England or other foreign country, and with effect of so diverting, and of inducing sale of substantial quantities of said products to dealers and purchasers on account of the beliefs induced by such false and misleading representations, with resulting substantial injury to substantial competition in commerce:

Held, That such practices, under the conditions and circumstances set forth, were to the prejudice of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Complaint

The aforesaid cellophane bags or containers also have lithographed or printed on the outside a picturization of the tower of the Houses of Parliament of London, England. The individual wrappers on the product itself bear the words “London Toffee.” Since the commencement of the investigation in connection with this complaint, the respondent, Claude S. Allen, doing business and trading as aforesaid, has changed the advertising matter appearing on the cellophane bags or containers used in transporting respondent’s products in interstate commerce as aforesaid, so as to read:

London Style Toffee
Manufactured By London Toffee Company
Brooklyn, New York

The cellophane bags or containers also have lithographed or printed thereon on the outside, a picturization of the tower of the Houses of Parliament of London, England.

Par. 7. Respondent, Claude S. Allen, doing business under the trade name of London Toffee Company, does not manufacture any of the products, including “toffee”, designated by him as “London Toffee”, distributed or sold by him and does not own, control or operate manufacturing plants, branches or selling agencies either in London, England, Montreal, Canada or Brooklyn, New York, except the distributing and selling business conducted in New York City, New York, as hereinabove set out.

Par. 8. The product commonly known to the confectionery trade as “toffee”, manufactured by the corporation respondent and sold and distributed by the corporation respondent and the individual respondent, under the respective names of “Allen’s Toffee”, and “London Toffee”, is of domestic manufacture and is not imported from a foreign country and is not manufactured under foreign processes or formulas.

Par. 9. Confectionery products, including “toffee”, manufactured in England or other foreign countries, have for many years enjoyed widespread popularity, good will and demand among the consuming public throughout the United States, many of whom believe and consider that confectionery products, especially those designated as “toffee”, manufactured in England or manufactured under English methods, formulas and processes, are superior in quality and other desirable characteristics to similar confectionery products manufactured in the United States. Many of the consuming public throughout the United States purchase “toffee” manufactured in England and imported to the United States in preference to “toffee” manufactured in the United States.
Par. 10. The false and misleading advertising and representations hereinabove set out, on the part of both of respondents places in the hands of aforesaid wholesale and retail dealers and jobbers, an instrument and a means whereby said dealers and jobbers may commit a fraud upon a substantial portion of the consuming public by enabling such dealers to represent and offer for sale and sell the said products known as "Allen's Toffee" and "London Toffee", either as an imported product or as a product manufactured in the United States in conjunction with or under license from English manufacturers of "toffee" or as a product manufactured in the United States by use of foreign methods, processes and formulas. There are among the competitors of both respondents, many who deal in confectionery products and sell "toffee", as well as other confectionery products, manufactured in England and imported to the United States and who rightfully and lawfully represent such merchandise to be imported. There are others among the competitors of both respondents who deal in confectionery products, including "toffee", that are manufactured in the United States and who in no manner represent their products as manufactured in or imported from England or any other foreign country.

Par. 11. The effect of the foregoing false and misleading advertisements and representations of both the respondent corporation and respondent individual is to mislead a substantial number of wholesale and retail merchants and jobbers, as well as a substantial portion of the consuming public, in the several States by inducing them to believe:

(1) That respondent corporation owns and operates factories in London, England, and Montreal, Canada, as well as in Brooklyn, New York, in which factories is manufactured a product known as "Allen's Toffee", offered for sale and sold to said wholesale and retail merchants and jobbers;

(2) That individual respondent owns and operates manufacturing plants in London, England, Montreal, Canada, and Brooklyn, New York, where said individual respondent manufactures the product known as "London Toffee", offered for sale and sold to said wholesale and retail merchants and jobbers;

(3) That they are securing for themselves and their consumer customers the advantage of close prices resulting from purchasing from a larger manufacturer with several factories, thus assuring themselves of both close prices and quality by dealing direct with the manufacturers and saving the profit of the customary middleman;

(4) That the products known as "Allen's Toffee" and "London Toffee" are importations of a foreign manufactured product that can be sold by them on the open market to the consumer public at a higher price than like products of a domestic manufacture, and at a less cost to the dealer than a like product genuinely imported, so as to allow the dealer a wider margin of profit;

(5) That the products known as “Allen’s Toffee” and “London Toffee” are manufactured in conjunction with or under license from foreign manufacturers who have been engaged in the confectionery business for many years, or are manufactured by the use of methods, formulas, or processes used by foreign manufacturers of the same or similar products.

The foregoing false and misleading statements and representations, on the part of both respondents, are added inducements for a substantial number of wholesale and retail merchants and jobbers, as well as consumer purchasers, to buy the product known as “Allen’s Toffee”, manufactured and offered for sale by respondent corporation, and the product known as “London Toffee”, sold and distributed by respondent individual, and have a tendency and a capacity to, and do divert a substantial volume of trade from competitors of both respondents engaged in similar businesses to both respondents, with the result that substantial quantities of said products known as “Allen’s Toffee” and “London Toffee” are sold to said dealers and purchasers and to the consuming public on account of said beliefs induced by said false and misleading representations, and, as a consequence thereof, a substantial injury has been done by both respondents to substantial competition in commerce among the several States of the United States, and in the District of Columbia, as hereinabove detailed.

PAR. 12. The above and foregoing acts, practices and representations of both respondents, have been, and are, all to the prejudice of the public and respondents' competitors, and have been, and are, unfair methods of competition within the meaning and intent of Section 5 of an Act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes.”

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled an “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”, the Federal Trade Commission issued and served its complaint upon the respondents herein C. S. Allen Corporation, a corporation organized and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, and Claude S. Allen, doing business under the trade name and style of London Toffee Company, charging said respondents with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act.

Both respondents, having entered their respective appearances and having filed their answers herein, entered into a stipulation whereby it was stipulated and agreed that a statement of facts signed and executed by both respondents, and their counsel, and J. T. Welch, attorney for the Federal Trade Commission, subject to the approval of the Commission, are the facts in this proceeding and shall be taken by the Federal Trade Commission as such and in lieu of testimony before the Commission in support of the charges stated in the complaint, or in opposition thereto, and that said Commission may proceed further upon said statement of facts, stating its findings as to the facts and conclusion thereon and entering its order disposing of the proceeding:

And, thereupon, this proceeding came on for final hearing and the respondents having waived the filing of briefs and the hearing of oral argument herein before the Commission, and said Commission having approved and accepted said stipulation as to the facts and having duly considered the record and being now fully advised in the premises, makes this its findings as to the facts and conclusion:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. The corporation respondent, C. S. Allen Corporation, is a corporation organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York. The individual respondent, Claude S. Allen, is the president of the respondent corporation and the present owner of a sufficient number of shares of the various classes of stock to enable him to elect three of the five directors of the corporation and control its operation. Both respondents maintain their offices and principal places of business at 100 Water Street, in the city of New York and in the State of New York. The respondent corporation is now, and has been since the date of incorporation in 1926, engaged in the business of manufacturing and selling confectionery products, including a product known as "Toffee." The individual respondent, Claude S. Allen, is now, and has been for a number of years, engaged in the business of selling and distributing confectionery products, including a product known to the trade as "Toffee", under the trade name and style of London Toffee Company.

including the product known as "Toffee", when sold by either of them, to be transported from their principal office and place of business in the State of New York to the purchasers thereof located at various cities in other States of the United States. Since the inception of their respective businesses there has been at all times a constant and substantial current of trade and commerce in said confectionery products, known to the trade as "Toffee", manufactured or sold by the respondents, between and among the various States of the United States.

Both respondents are now, and have been at all times since the incorporation of respondent corporation, operating their respective businesses in substantial competition with individuals, firms and corporations engaged in the business of manufacturing, distributing and selling confectionery products of like kind and character in commerce among and between the various States of the United States.

Par. 3. In the course of the operation of his said business the individual respondent, Claude S. Allen, has sold, in commerce as hereinabove set out, said confectionery products, to wit: "Toffee" designated as "London Toffee" in cellophane or paper containers. On the outside of said containers, by way of advertisement and inducement to purchase, there is printed or lithographed, together with other words, the following:

London Toffee
Manufactured by
London Toffee Company
London, England, Montreal, Canada
Brooklyn, New York

The aforesaid containers also have lithographed or printed on the outside a picturization of the tower of the House of Parliament in London, England. The individual wrappers on the product itself bear the words "London Toffee."

The individual respondent, Claude S. Allen, doing business under the trade name of London Toffee Company, does not manufacture the product designated by him as "London Toffee", which is distributed and sold by him under his trade name, and does not own, control or operate manufacturing plants, branches or selling agencies either in London, England; Montreal, Canada or Brooklyn, N. Y., except the distributing and selling business conducted by him in New York City.

Par. 4. Respondent, C. S. Allen Corporation, in the course and conduct of its business has sold, in commerce as hereinabove set out, certain of its products, to wit: "Allen's Toffee"—in cellophane or paper containers. On the outside of said containers, by way of ad-

C. S. Allen Corporation
London, England, Montreal, Canada
Brooklyn, New York

The aforesaid containers also have lithographed or printed on the outside a picturization of an English "Beef Eater" guard in uniform and an English castle. The shipping boxes in which the containers are shipped from respondent's place of business to dealers and purchasers located in the several States contain the same printed advertising legend above set out in detail.

Respondent, C. S. Allen Corporation, also uses letterheads and billheads having printed thereon the following:

London, England, Montreal, Canada
C. S. Allen Corporation
Manufacturers of English Toffee Specialties
Famous in England Since 1860
100 Water Street
Brooklyn, New York

Cable Address Altofee, New York.

The shipping boxes, letterheads and billheads used by the respondent in the course of its business, containing the said advertisements above detailed in full, are sent to dealers, purchasers, customers and prospective customers located in the several States of the United States through the United States mail and otherwise.

Respondent, C. S. Allen Corporation, does not own, control or operate manufacturing plants, branches or selling agencies, directly or indirectly, either in London, England, or in Montreal, Canada. Respondent, C. S. Allen Corporation, does own, control and operate a manufacturing plant for the production of the confectionery products known as "Allen's Toffee" and "London Toffee" in Brooklyn, N. Y. and there produces and manufactures the above-named confectionery products.

The confectionery product manufactured by the corporation respondent and sold and distributed by the corporation respondent and the individual respondent under the respective names of "Allen's Toffee" and "London Toffee" is of domestic manufacture entirely and is not imported from a foreign country.

PAR. 5. Confectionery products, including "Toffee", manufactured in England or other foreign countries, have for many years enjoyed widespread popularity, good-will and demand among the consuming public throughout the United States, and many of them believe and consider that such products are superior in quality and other desirable characteristics to similar confectionery products manufactured in the United States. Many of the consuming public throughout the United States purchase such “Toffee” imported from England or other foreign countries to the United States in preference to “Toffee” manufactured in the United States.

Par. 6. There are among the competitors of both respondents many who sell confectionery products, such as “Toffee”, in interstate commerce as herein set out, manufactured in England and imported to the United States and who rightfully and lawfully represent such merchandise to be imported. There are others among the competitors of both respondents who manufacture and sell, in interstate commerce as herein set out, confectionery products, such as “Toffee”, that are manufactured in the United States and who in no manner represent their products as manufactured in or imported from England or any other foreign country.

Par. 7. The false and misleading statements on the part of the individual respondent operating under the trade name and style of London Toffee Company, in the marketing of the product designated as “London Toffee”, to the effect (1) that the product is actually manufactured by the London Toffee Company either in London, England; Montreal, Canada, or Brooklyn, N. Y.; (2) that the London Toffee Company maintains factories, branches or selling agencies in Montreal, Canada, or London, England and (3) that the London Toffee Company manufactures and distributes “London Toffee” as a product imported from England are, and were, made for the purpose, and have, and have had, a tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public and the trade and to cause them to purchase the product sold by the individual respondent under the belief that the said representations and statements were true.

The false and misleading statements on the part of the corporation respondent, C. S. Allen Corporation, in the marketing of the product designated as “Allen’s Toffee”, to the effect (1) that C. S. Allen Corporation owns, operates or controls factories, branches or selling agencies in Montreal, Canada, or London, England, and (2) that the product manufactured and distributed by the respondent corporation is a product manufactured in and imported from England or any other foreign country are, and were, made for the purpose, and have, and have had, a tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public and the trade and to cause them to purchase the product sold by the corporate respondent under the belief that the said representations and statements were true.
Findings 21 F. T. C.

PAR. 8. The false and misleading statements and representations, used by both respondents as hereinabove set out, have had, and now have, a capacity and tendency to, and do, unfairly divert a substantial volume of trade from both classes of competitors of the respondents, as hereinabove set out.

The false and misleading statements and representations, on the part of both respondents, are added inducements for a substantial number of wholesale and retail merchants and jobbers, as well as consumer purchasers, to buy the product known as “Allen’s Toffee”, manufactured and sold by the respondent corporation, and the product known as “London Toffee”, sold and distributed by the respondent individual.

Substantial quantities of said products, known as “Allen’s Toffee” and “London Toffee” respectively, are sold to said dealers and purchasers on account of said beliefs induced by the false and misleading representations on the part of both respondents and, as a result, substantial injury has been done by both respondents to substantial competition in commerce among and between the several States of the United States.

PAR. 9. Since the filing and service of the complaint, the respondent, Claude S. Allen, doing business and trading as aforesaid, has altered the advertising matter appearing on the cellophane bags or containers used in transporting the product known as “London Toffee”, in interstate commerce as aforesaid, so as to read:

London Style Toffee
Manufactured for London Toffee Company
In Brooklyn, New York

The cellophane bags or containers continue to have lithographed or printed thereon on the outside a picturization of the tower of the House of Parliament in London, England. The letters of the word “Style” are plainly and clearly printed in close connection with the words “London” and “Toffee” and are readily discernible. The remaining portion of the legend, indicating that the product is actually manufactured in Brooklyn, N. Y., appears conspicuously placed in letters of sufficient size to be easily readable.

PAR. 10. Since the filing and service of the complaint, the respondent, C. S. Allen Corporation, has changed the advertising matter appearing on the cellophane bags or containers used in transporting respondent’s products in interstate commerce as aforesaid, so as to read:

Allen’s Toffee
Famous In England Since 1800
Manufactured by
C. S. Allen Corporation
In Brooklyn, New York
The aforesaid cellophane bags or containers continue to have lithographed or printed on the outside thereof a picturization of an English "Beef Eater" guard in uniform and an English castle. The remaining portion of the legend, indicating that the product is actually manufactured in Brooklyn, N. Y., appears conspicuously placed in letters of sufficient size to be easily readable.

The shipping boxes in which the cellophane or paper bags or containers are shipped from respondent's place of business to dealers and purchasers located in several States have been altered so that the printed or advertising matter now appearing thereon corresponds with that now appearing on the cellophane bags or containers.

The letterheads and billheads now used by the respondent have printed thereon the following:

C. S. Allen Corporation
Manufacurers of Toffee Specialties
Famous in London, England Since 1860
100 Water Street
Brooklyn, New York
Cable address Altofee, New York.

Par. 11. The change in the reading matter on the various containers now used by both respondents, as set out in paragraphs 9 and 10, includes the addition of words clearly indicating that the product contained therein was actually manufactured in the United States. The size of the lettering in the words indicating the place of manufacture is sufficient to be clearly readable and to remove any doubt or confusion in the mind of the purchaser as to the place of origin of the product that might arise out of the use of the phrase "Famous in England Since 1860"; the use of the words "London Style Toffee" in designating the product manufactured by the corporation respondent and sold by the individual respondent and the various picturizations herein detailed appearing on the containers used in marketing both products.

CONCLUSION

The acts and practices of both respondents, C. S. Allen Corporation and Claude S. Allen, trading as London Toffee Company, except those corrected or modified as herein set out in paragraphs 9 and 10, are each and all to the prejudice of the public, and to the competitors of both respondents, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Gotham Aseptic Laboratory Co., Inc., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has been and is using unfair methods of competition in commerce as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:
PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Gotham Aseptic Laboratory, Co., Inc., is and at all times hereinafter mentioned has been a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York with its principal office and place of business located at Long Island City in said State. It is now and for more than one year last past has been engaged in the manufacture, sale and distribution of surgical supplies including absorbent cotton. Its sales are made chiefly to retail drug stores, jobbers and members of the medical profession located throughout the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and, pursuant to such sales, shipment is made from its place of business in the State of New York into and through various States of the United States other than the State of point of origin of such shipment, and in the District of Columbia.

There are in the United States other corporations, persons and firms engaged in the manufacture and the sale and distribution of similar competing products who, pursuant to such manufacture and sale, ship their products into and through the various States of the United States other than the States of point of origin of such shipments, and with such other corporations, persons and firms respondent is and at all times hereinafter mentioned has been in active and substantial competition.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its business respondent, in soliciting the sale of and selling its products in interstate commerce, used and uses the following methods and practices: caused and causes certain of its absorbent cotton to be packaged in cardboard containers on the labels of which respondent attaches and causes to appear the words "sterilized? and "Manufactured under the strictest sanitary conditions and from the finest quality obtainable."

The word "sterilized" appearing on the said containers of absorbent cotton means to the trade and to the purchasing public that the cotton contained therein is, at the time of purchase, bacteria-free.

PAR. 3. The aforesaid labeling and branding of respondent's absorbent cotton as "sterilized" is false and misleading, because said cotton was not and is not in fact free of bacteria at the time of purchase by the public so as to be properly and correctly represented, designated, and described or referred to as "sterilized". The aforesaid labeling of said cotton as "manufactured under the strictest sanitary conditions and from the finest quality obtainable" is false and misleading because in truth and in fact said product was not and is not manufactured under the strictest sanitary conditions nor was or is the said product manufactured from the finest quality cotton obtainable. Said descriptions of respondent's absorbent cotton reach the consuming public through the retail drug stores and are used by said drug stores in advertising and selling such cotton to the public.

Par. 4. The use of the aforesaid descriptions, markings, representations and labeling by respondent has the capacity and tendency to deceive the purchasing public into the belief that its said absorbent cotton represented as sterilized, is free from bacteria, and into the belief that the said product was and is manufactured under strictest sanitary conditions and from the finest quality cotton obtainable, and the public purchases said absorbent cotton in those beliefs when, as a matter of fact, said absorbent cotton is not free of bacteria and is not manufactured under strictest sanitary conditions and is not made from the finest quality cotton obtainable.

Par. 5. There are among the competitors of respondent, referred to in paragraph 1 herein, many who deal in and sell absorbent cotton that is in fact sterilized at the time of the sale to the purchasing public and who rightfully and truthfully represent such to be the case. There are among competitors of respondent, referred to in paragraph 1 herein, many who deal in and sell absorbent cotton manufactured under strictest sanitary conditions and who rightfully and truthfully represent said absorbent cotton to be such. There are others of said competitors of said respondent who sell absorbent cotton that is not bacteria-free, and who do not in any manner represent such cotton to be sterilized or bacteria-free. Respondent's acts and practices, as in this complaint set out, tend to and do unfairly divert business from and otherwise injure and prejudice said competitors and do substantially injure such competitors so engaged in the sale and distribution of like products in interstate commerce.

Par. 6. The above alleged unfair practices of respondent are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

Respondent herein having filed its answer to the complaint and waived hearings on the charges set forth in the complaint in this proceeding, and having stated in its said answer that it does not contest the said proceeding, and having consented in its said answer that the Commission, without trial, without evidence, and without findings as to the facts or other intervening procedure, may make, enter, issue and serve upon said respondent an order to cease and desist from the methods of competition charged in the complaint; and the Commission being fully advised in the premises;

It is hereby ordered, That the respondent, Gotham Aseptic Laboratory Co., Inc., its officers, directors, representatives, agents, servants and employees, in the course of or in connection with the sale or offer for sale or distribution of absorbent cotton in interstate commerce, do cease and desist from—

(1) Directly or indirectly advertising, branding, labeling, designating, describing or otherwise representing cotton as sterilized, unless said cotton is sterile and free of bacteria after it has been packaged and while contained in such original unbroken package;

(2) Using any other word or words to the effect that such cotton is sterilized, when in fact such cotton is not and has not been sterilized and rendered free from bacteria after it has been packaged and while contained in such original unbroken packages;

(3) Directly or indirectly advertising, branding, labeling, designating, describing, or otherwise representing cotton as manufactured under the strictest sanitary conditions, when in fact such cotton has not been manufactured or packed under strictest sanitary conditions, or when such cotton has been manufactured or packed under conditions in which full and strictest sanitary precautions have not been provided for or followed for the removal and exclusion from such cotton of all bacteria;

(4) Directly or indirectly advertising, branding, labeling, designating, describing or otherwise representing absorbent cotton as being manufactured from the finest quality cotton obtainable, unless such cotton had been manufactured from the finest, selected quality of cotton.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall within 60 days after the date of the service upon it of this order file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with the order to cease and desist hereinabove set forth.
In the Matter of Arte Products Company, Inc.

Complaint and Order in Regard to the Alleged Violation of Sec. 5 of an Act of Congress Approved Sept. 26, 1914

Consent order requiring respondent, its officers, etc., in connection with the sale in interstate commerce of olive oil, compound vegetable oil, and related products, to cease and desist from—

(a) Using words "Lucca" and "San Remo", alone or with any other word or words, and name of any other city, district or province of Italy, as a brand or label for olive oil, or in any other way so as to import or imply or to have capacity or tendency to confuse or mislead purchasers into believing that said product was produced in and imported from either Lucca, San Remo, or any other city or district or province of Italy, unless and until said statements are true;

(b) Using word or words "Italy", "Italian Product", "Italian Oil", or "Imported from Italy", alone or with any other word or words, and using any pictorial representation of Italian flag or the coat-of-arms, or of any ruler or member of ruling house of Italy, alone or with words "Imported Product", or "Prodotto Importato", or other words describing said product, and using said words or pictorial representations as a brand or label for olive oil so as to import or imply or to have tendency or capacity to confuse or mislead purchasers into believing that said product is composed wholly of oils produced in and imported from Italy, unless and until such representations are true;

(c) Using word "olio" to designate an oil product composed in part of olive oil and in part of other oils unless and until there appears in immediate conjunction therewith, and in clear and legible type in size equal to that of word "olio", other words which accurately describe the true content of the product; or

(d) Using, in connection with oil composed in part of olive oil and in part of other oils, pictorial representations of olive branches, or words "Rima", "Latosca", or other words suggesting Italian origin, unless and until there appears, in conjunction therewith and in clearly legible and conspicuous type, words accurately describing the true content of the product.

Mr. Marshall Morgan for the Commission.

Mr. Morris Shapiro, of New York City, for respondent.

Complaint

Whereas the Federal Trade Commission did heretofore, to wit, on January 29, 1935, issue its complaint herein, charging and alleging that respondent herein is and has been guilty of unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce within the intent and meaning of 1 Supplemental and amended.

Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914; and

Whereas this Commission, having reason to believe that respondent herein has been and is using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act, other than and in addition to those in relation to which the Commission issued its complaint as aforesaid, and it appearing to said Commission that a further proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest:

Now therefore, acting in the public interest, pursuant to the provisions of the act of September 26, 1914, aforesaid, the Federal Trade Commission charges that Arte Products Company, Inc., a corporation, has been and now is using unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce in violation of Section 5 of said act, and states its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Arte Products Company, Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of New York, its principal place of business being at 18 Leonard Street, New York City. Respondent is, and for more than two years last past has been, engaged, as hereinafter described, in the business of selling and distributing olive oil and vegetable compound oil to retail grocery dealers located in various States of the United States, and more particularly in the States of New Jersey and Connecticut. In consummating such sales and in distributing such products, respondent causes the olive oil and vegetable compound oil so sold to be transported and delivered from its place of business in New York City, State of New York, through and into various other States of the United States to the respective purchasers thereof at their respective points of location. In the course and conduct of its business, Arte Products Company, Inc., the respondent herein, has been and is now engaged in direct and substantial competition with various corporations, partnerships and individuals likewise engaged in the sale and distribution of olive oil and vegetable compound oil and in offering such products for sale in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and within the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. Olive oil imported from Italy has come to be known among a substantial number of the users and consumers of olive oil and among merchants and dealers in olive oil as being of a quality and flavor superior to all others. Lucca, in the territorial division of Tuscany, Italy, is one of the great olive oil centers of the world, and the olive oil produced there and imported therefrom has become noted among users and consumers of olive oil and among merchants and dealers in olive oil for its superior quality and delicate flavor. Lucca olive oil is considered the best and finest of all olive oil and is preferred by the trade and consumers alike, especially consumers of Italian blood or origin. Practically all olive oil coming from Lucca, Italy, is packed in cans there, the amount exported in bulk from Lucca being inconsequential. The amount of olive oil produced in the Lucca district from olives grown there is not sufficient for Italian consumption. It is much cheaper to import olive oil in bulk. Large quantities of olive oil are imported in bulk from Spain into the United States. Spanish olive oil is substantially cheaper than genuine Italian olive oil, and the oil obtained by blending Spanish oil in substantial proportions with Italian oil is neither as expensive nor as desirable as pure Italian olive oil produced from olives grown in Italy, consumers preferring Italian oil. The Italian word "Olio" indicates and is accepted as meaning, particularly to persons of Italian blood and origin, the juice or liquid which is extracted from the olive.

PAR. 3. In the sale and distribution of olive oil and vegetable compound oil to retail grocery dealers, as hereinabove described, respondent has caused and still causes large and substantial quantities of its said products to be labeled, branded, offered for sale, sold and distributed under designations, descriptions and representations indicating and intended to indicate Italian origin.

On one of respondent’s cans appears the following label:

ARTE BRAND
SUPERFINE LUCCA
OLIVE OIL
IMPORTED FROM ITALY
TRADE MARK REGISTERED

On the other side of the can, beneath a design in gold, red and white, typifying the coat-of-arms of Italy, appear the words:

ITALIAN PRODUCT

On another container, beneath a design embodying in colors of red, white and green, the flag and coat-of-arms of Italy, appears the following label:

SPLENDOR BRAND
PURE OLIVE OIL, SUPERFINE
IMPORTED FROM SAN REMO (ITALY)

On the label on the reverse side of this container appears the word “Italy”, in a design of olive branches.
A third can bears a label reading:

O SOLE MIO
VIRGIN EXTRA SUBLIME
OLIVE OIL IMPORTED FROM LUCCA—ITALY

The last above wording is set forth in conjunction with an olive wreath design. On the reverse side of the container appears a label giving a representation of a medal of award, and under this an inscription reading as follows:

O Sole Mio Italian Olive Oil is produced with selected ripe olives from the finest regions available. That is why the quality is uniformly of the best at all times.

Another container bears a label reading:

O SOLE MIO
PURE
IMPORTED PRODUCT

On the top of this container is stamped in raised letters the following:

IMPORTED
ITALY

Another container has a label reading on its face:

SPLENDOR
SUPERFINE
IMPORTED PRODUCTS

Above the wording on this can is a conspicuous design of the flag of Italy in its colors of green, white and red, together with a further and smaller design in red, white and blue, representing the Italian coat-of-arms. Near the bottom of the container is a large pictorial representation in colors, circular in shape, of an Italian scene.

Still another container has a label on its face reading:

ARTE
SUPERFINE PURE
OLIVE OIL
IMPORTED PRODUCT

Beneath such wording appears a pictorial representation of a maiden holding an olive branch aloft in one hand and in the other a platter of olives. On one side of the container appear the words, "IMPORTED PRODUCT"; and above these, a reproduction in colors of the Italian coat-of-arms; on the other side, the words in Italian, "PRODOTTO IMPORTATO", with a pictorial representation in colors of the flag of Italy.

A can of vegetable compound oil, labeled near the bottom of the can, in English, as containing 20 per cent of olive oil with 80 per cent of other vegetable oils, bears the following brand in Italian, printed in large letters:

"OLIO RIMA"

These Italian words are worked into a design representing sprigs of the olive in bloom, with bees sucking honey from the blossoms.

The container for a product labeled as consisting of 15 per cent olive oil and 85 per cent cottonseed and peanut oil, bears on its face in large letters, as a brand, the Italian words, "La Tosca", together with a large, conspicuous design representing olive branches in bloom.

The designations, descriptions and representations, "SUPERFINE LUCCA OLIVE OIL", "IMPORTED FROM ITALY", "ITALIAN PRODUCT", "IMPORTED FROM SAN REMO, ITALY", "O SOLE MIO", "VIRGIN EXTRA SUBLIME OLIVE OIL IMPORTED FROM LUCCA—ITALY", "O SOLE MIO ITALIAN OIL", "OLIO RIMA" and "La Tosca", and the pictorial representations of Italian scenes, of the flag and coat-of-arms of Italy, and the word "Italy" in a design of olive branches, as used and employed by respondent in labelling products sold by it in interstate commerce, are of Italian meaning, implication and suggestion and indicate to retail grocery dealers and to the consuming public, especially to persons of Italian blood or origin, and are and were intended to indicate and mean, that the olive oil and vegetable compound oil products thus variously designated, described and represented, were imported, respectively, from Lucca or San Remo, Italy, or from Italy.

PAR. 4. The truth and the facts are that the said olive oil, designated, described, marked and represented by respondent as being imported from Lucca, Italy, from San Remo, Italy, or from Italy, as being a product of Italy, and that sold under labels showing representations of the Italian flag, the coat-of-arms of Italy and of Italian scenes, were not imported from the regions, districts or places stated, nor wholly from Italy, and the so-called Italian oil handled and sold by respondent herein consists of Italian oil blended with and containing at least 30 per cent of a cheaper oil imported in bulk from Spain, the resulting product being thereafter labeled and sold as Italian oil; and the vegetable compound oils bearing labels employing Italian words in large type with pictures of olives in bloom, do not contain Italian olive oil, but are and have been composed largely of domestic vegetable oils produced in the United States, with a small quantity of Spanish olive oil added.

Par. 5. Respondent, in further connection with its business of selling and distributing olive oil in interstate commerce, has resorted to and adopted, and still resorts to and adopts, the practice of mixing Spanish and Italian oils in one large tank, from which said tank numerous cans or small containers are thereafter filled, variously labeled, marked or branded so as to convey the impression to the purchaser that the same contain different types, grades and qualities of olive oil. Respondent's labels, brands, marks and representations including those on its vegetable compound products, are not used in a manner to indicate origin of the products in the respondent, nor to identify or distinguish commercial source, nor do they indicate type, grade or quality in connection or association with origin or commercial source.

Par. 6. Said respondent, in the further conduct of its business of selling and distributing olive oil and vegetable compound oil in interstate commerce, has failed and refused to advertise or otherwise to identify and associate such products with respondent's business; thereby placing in the hands of the retail grocer or other dealer, in various States, an instrument enabling and permitting the retailer more easily to substitute respondent's goods for those of another.

Par. 7. Respondent's use of the words and phrases, "SUPERFINE LuccA OLIVE OIL", "IMPORTED FROM ITALY", "ITALIAN PRODUCT", "IMPORTED FROM SAN REMO ITALY", "O Sole Mio", "Virgin Extra Sublime Olive Oil Imported From Lucca, Italy", and of the Italian flag or coat-of-arms of Italy, of the word "Italy" with a design of olive branches and of Italian scenes, in designating, describing and representing, offering for sale and selling its said olive oil, as described in paragraphs 3 and 4 hereof, is false, misleading and deceptive, and has the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive substantial numbers of retail grocery dealers and of the consuming public into purchasing olive oil in the erroneous belief that said olive oil was imported entirely from Lucca and San Remo, Italy, or from Italy; and respondent's use of the Italian words "Olio", "Rima", and "La Tosca", in pictorial designs showing the olive in bloom, in designating, describing and representing, offering for sale and selling of vegetable compound oil containing a small percentage of Spanish olive oil, as described in paragraphs 3 and 4 hereof, is likewise false, misleading and deceptive, and has the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive substantial numbers of retail grocery dealers. and of the consuming public into purchasing said vegetable compound oil, in the belief that it was and is composed wholly or largely of Italian olive oil or of olive oil.

Par. 8. The use by respondent of the false, misleading and deceptive representations, statements and assertions hereinabove set forth, including those in paragraphs 5 and 6 herein, constitute practices and methods of competition which tend to and do, (a) confuse, prejudice and injure the public, (b) unfairly divert trade from and otherwise prejudice and injure respondent's competitors, (c) operate as a restraint upon and a detriment to free and legitimate competition in the business of marketing olive oil, and (d) place in the hands of retail grocers and dealers an instrument which permits them more easily to substitute the goods of respondent for those of another.

Par. 9. Said false, misleading and deceptive acts, practices and methods of respondent, under the circumstances and conditions hereinabove alleged, are unlawful, and constitute unfair methods of competition within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

The respondent herein having filed its answers respectively to the original complaint and to the supplemental and amended complaint in this proceeding, and having subsequently filed with this Commission its motion that it be permitted to withdraw its said answers and that it be permitted to file in lieu thereof, as a substituted answer, the draft of a proposed substituted answer annexed to the said motion; and the Commission having duly considered the said motion—

It is hereby ordered, That the said motion be and the same is hereby granted; that the said answers be and the same are hereby withdrawn; and that the said proposed substituted answer be, and the same is hereby filed in lieu of the said answers so withdrawn.

And the said respondent in and by its said substituted answer having waived hearings on the charges set forth in the complaints in this proceeding, and having stated in its said substituted answer that it does not contest the said proceeding, and having consented in its said substituted answer that the Commission, without a trial, without evidence, and without findings as to the facts or other intervening procedure, might make, enter, issue and serve upon the said respondent, an order to cease and desist from the methods of competition charged in the complaints; and the Commission being fully advised in the premises:
It is hereby further ordered, That the respondent, Arte Products Company, Inc., its officers, agents, servants and employees, in connection with the offering for sale and sale in interstate commerce and in the District of Columbia, of olive oil, compound vegetable oil and related products, do cease and desist from:

(1) The use of the words “Lucca” and “San Remo”, alone or in connection or conjunction with any other word or words, and from the use of the name of any other city, or of any district or province of Italy, as a brand or label for olive oil, or in any other way so as to import or imply, or to have the capacity or tendency to confuse, mislead or deceive purchasers into believing that said product was produced in and imported from either the Lucca district of the province of Tuscany, or the San Remo district of the province of Liguria, Italy, or from any other city or district or province of Italy, unless and until said statements are true in fact and said olive oil was produced in and imported respectively from the city, district or province of Italy stated or indicated.

(2) The use of the word “Italy” or the words “Italian Product”, “Italian Oil”, or “Imported from Italy”, alone or in connection or conjunction with any other word or words, and from the use of any pictorial representation of the Italian flag or of the coat-of-arms of Italy, or of any ruler or member of the ruling house of Italy, alone or in conjunction with the words “Imported Product”, or “Prodotto Importato”, or any other word or words describing said product, and from the use of the said word or words or pictorial representation or representations as a brand or label for olive oil so as to import or imply, or having the tendency or capacity to confuse, mislead or deceive purchasers into believing that said product is composed wholly of oils produced in and imported from Italy, unless and until such statements and representations are true in fact and said olive oil was produced in and imported from Italy.

(3) The use of the word “olio” to designate or describe an oil product composed in part of olive oil and in part of other oils unless and until there appears in immediate connection and conjunction with the word “olio” and in clear and legible type or lettering in size equal to that of the word “olio”, other word or words which accurately and truthfully describe and designate the true content of the product; and from the use in connection with an oil composed in part of olive oil and in part of other oils, of pictorial representations of olive branches, or the words “Rima”, “Latosca”, or other word or words indicating or suggesting Italian origin, unless and until there appears in connection and conjunction therewith and in clearly legible and conspicuous type a word or words accurately and truthfully describing and designating the true content of the product.
It is further ordered, That the respondent within 90 days from and after the date of service upon it of this order, shall file with the Commission a report, or reports, in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it is complying with the order to cease and desist hereinabove set forth.
WHEREAS a corporation engaged in the sale of a proprietary hair preparation, and two individuals, partners, owners of the secret formula thereof; in advertising and describing said preparation and its nature and results in newspapers, periodicals, circulars and pamphlets, and through purported testimonials from users—

(a) Designated and described the same as a tonic, and represented that, through its application and use on the scalp or hair, bodily functions were stimulated so that pigmentation was produced and color imparted to the hair, facts being that there is nothing known to medical science which, taken internally or applied externally, will stimulate the chromatophores or melanoblasts that cause hair pigmentation in the human system, or cause them to function so that pigment will be supplied to the hair and give it color, and said preparation, the ingredients of which had long been well known to physicians and dermatologists, was not a tonic and had no tonic effect upon any part of the system, and its functioning in imparting color to the hair was that of a dye or dying agent; and

(b) Represented that use of said preparation would cure dandruff and make the hair grow abundantly and stop its falling out, facts being there was no internal or external treatment known to medical science which would achieve those results;

With effect of misleading and deceiving dealers in and users of proprietary articles or preparations for the hair and scalp into believing such representations to be true, and into purchasing said hair preparation instead of products of competitors, and with capacity and tendency so to mislead and deceive, and with result of thereby diverting trade from competitors to themselves:

Held, That such practices, under the conditions and circumstances set forth, were to the prejudice of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce.

Before Mr. John W. Norwood, trial examiner.
Mr. Edward E. Reardon for the Commission.
Mr. George E. Edelin, of Washington, D. C. and Mr. Edwin R. Dickenson, of Tampa, Fla., for respondents.

COMPLAINT

Acting in the public interest pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled “An Act to create a
Complaint

Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes?, the Federal Trade Commission charges that Vasco Products, Inc., and William M. Lea and Kittie M. Lea, copartners, doing business under the trade name Lea's Tonic Company, and hereinafter referred to as respondents, have been and are now using unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce in violation of the provisions of Section 5 of said act and states its charge as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent Vasco Products, Inc., is a corporation organized prior to the year 1930 under the laws of the State of Delaware and having at all times since its organization a principal place of business at Brentwood, Md.

Paragraph 2. Respondents William M. Lea and Kittie M. Lea are individuals residing in the city of Tampa, Florida, and they are and have been since prior to the year 1930 engaged in business under the trade name Lea's Tonic Company with a principal place of business at Brentwood, Md.

Paragraph 3. During all of the times since on or before the year 1930 the respondents have been engaged in the sale of a proprietary article sold in bottles under the name "Lea's Hair Tonic" and purporting to be for the treatment of the hair and scalp.

Paragraph 4. During the times above mentioned the respondents have sold and still sell Lea's Hair Tonic to individuals, firms and corporations, dealers in and users thereof, located in the various States of the United States other than Maryland or the State of origin of the shipment, and the respondents, respectively, have caused and still cause Lea's Hair Tonic when so sold by them to be transported from Maryland, or the State of origin of the shipment, to, into and through other States to the purchasers.

Paragraph 5. During the times above mentioned other individuals, firms and corporations are and have been engaged, respectively, in the sale of various proprietary articles for the treatment of the scalp and hair, including proprietary or other articles for the same purposes of treatment of the scalp and hair as Lea's Hair Tonic, to purchasers, dealers and users thereof, located in the various States of the United States and they have caused their said proprietary articles when so sold by them, respectively, to be transported from the State of the seller, or the State of origin of the shipment, to, into and through other States to the purchasers.

Paragraph 6. During the times mentioned and referred to above the respondents have been and they still are in competition in interstate commerce in the sale of Lea's Hair Tonic with the said other individuals, firms and corporations referred to in paragraph 5 hereof.
Complaint

PAR. 7. During the times above mentioned the respondents have caused advertisements of Lea's Hair Tonic to be published in newspapers and periodicals circulating among the public in the various States of the United States and have caused advertisements to be printed in circulars and pamphlets and distributed in the packages in which Lea's Hair Tonic have been sold by them to the trade and public, in which among many other similar statements are statements quoted in part as follows:

Lea's works gradually in the most natural-like manner, depending on how long and how gray you are and the condition of the scalp and hair. Gradually the hair from scalp upwards begins turning, shade by shade back to a youthful deep shade, of blonde, auburn, red, black or whatever basic color your hair was originally. There are some three thousand shades of color in human hair. No dye expert can paint the hair as exquisitely as nature the exact shade most becoming to your eyes, complexion and beauty. Several of different complexion may use out of the same bottle—each goes back to their own color or shade of hair, users declare in amazement.

PAR. 8. The respondents in some of the advertisements above referred to caused statements to be published to the effect that one C. J. Mains is a nationally known expert on gray hairs and purporting to quote him in part as follows:

I can show men and women in two minutes how to get rid of their gray hairs and never have another

and

In the old days you had to dye your hair—like we still must get false teeth, but not now. You get a bottle of Lea's Hair Tonic. Rub into scalp and stimulate nature to renewed vigor, same as you take a tonic, a laxative to stimulate a sluggish system. You can't rub a tonic on your gums and grow new teeth, but you sure can keep your hair young looking, free of gray. Just a few drops at night on the scalp does the work. Away goes gray hair, dandruff and itchy scalp. Hairs become heavier and good looking. Takes ten years off your age. Goes right back to youthful color no matter what shade of hair you originally had. Doesn't change the other hairs.

PAR. 9. Lea's Hair Tonic in its effect upon the color of the hair of the user is a stain or dye and in causing gray hair of the user to appear for a time of a different color, Lea's Hair Tonic acts upon the hair as a stain or a dye.

The changed color produced in applying Lea's Hair Tonic to gray hair of the user is not a color produced by nature or by natural causes. Lea's Hair Tonic has no effect in changing the color of the hair growth which appears subsequent to the application of the said tonic.

C. J. Mains mentioned in the above advertisements of the respondents referred to in paragraph 8 hereof is not an expert on human hair in any respect and is not a nationally or locally known expert on the human hair.

Lea's Hair Tonic does not cure the condition of the scalp known as dandruff and does not cause human hair to grow or prevent baldness.

Par. 10. The respondents, by means of the statements in their advertisements above mentioned and referred to, falsely represented to the public, purchasers of proprietary or other articles and users of the same, that Lea's Hair Tonic is not a dye or a stain; that its use by purchasers would cause the hair of the user previously grown gray thereafter to grow naturally in its original natural color; that its use would cure and prevent the return of the condition of the scalp known as dandruff; that its use would cause hair to grow and prevent baldness of the user's head.

The respondents further falsely represented in their said advertisements that C. J. Mains, above mentioned, was an expert on the subject of the human scalp and hair and falsely represented that he was nationally known as such an expert, and the respondents, by such statements in their said advertisements, exaggerated and increased the power and influence of the statements in the advertisements, attributed to said Mains personally, and purporting to have been made by him, to deceive and mislead the public into the belief that the above false statements and representations regarding Lea's Hair Tonic and its use were true.

Par. 11. The publication and use of the statements mentioned and referred to in the said advertisements have the tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive and they have mislead and deceived members of the public into believing that the said statements were and are true; and in reliance upon that belief into purchasing and using Lea's Hair Tonic in preference to preparations or proprietary articles sold by respondents' competitors; and have the further tendency and capacity to divert trade and they have caused trade to be diverted from competitors of respondents, mentioned and referred to in paragraph 5 hereof, to the respondents.

Par. 12. The above acts and things done and caused to be done by the respondents are each and all to the prejudice of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce within the meaning and intent of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”, approved September 26, 1914.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

After the issuance of the complaint, and the filing of respondents’ answers thereto, testimony and evidence were introduced by Edward E. Reardon, Esq., attorney for the Commission, in support of the allegations of the complaint and by George E. Edelin, Esq., attorney for the respondents, in opposition thereto, before John W. Norwood, Esq., an examiner of the Commission duly designated therefor by the Commission; and the testimony and evidence introduced were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission.

Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the complaint, the answer to the complaint, the testimony and evidence, and upon the briefs and oral argument of counsel for the Commission and for the respondents; and the Commission having duly considered the same, and being fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. The respondent Vasco Products, Inc., is a corporation organized prior to the year 1930 under the laws of the State of Delaware and having a principal place of business at Brentwood, Maryland, now and at all times since its organization as a corporation, except that for a certain period of about two years its place of business was in Washington, D. C.

Paragraph 2. The respondents William M. Lea and Kittie M. Lea are individuals residing in the city of Tampa, Florida, and the said respondents Lea are the owners of the formula under which a preparation called “Lea's Hair Tonic” was compounded and sold by them under the trade name Lea's Tonic Company for a period of about twelve years immediately prior to on or about April 20, 1926.
Findings

PAR. 3. On or about April 20, 1926, respondents William M. and Kittie M. Lea leased to respondent Vasco Products, Inc., for a period of 99 years the exclusive right to advertise, sell and distribute in consideration of a royalty payment to them, the proprietary article called Lea's Hair Tonic in accordance with the formula under which the respondents Lea had been manufacturing and selling the article and among other things it was agreed between the respondents Lea and respondent Vasco Products, Inc., that from time to time the respondent Vasco Products would give to the respondents Lea orders for the manufacture of the said proprietary article and furnish them with said orders suitable containers in which to place the product when manufactured and in which to ship the same according to the directions of Vasco Products, Inc. to the purchasers from whom Vasco Products, Inc., had received the orders which were transmitted to respondents Lea, and the respondents Lea agreed among other things to fill promptly all orders received by them for the said proprietary article from Vasco Products, Inc., and to manufacture and to ship the products so ordered in accordance with shipping instructions received by them from Vasco Products, Inc., until such time as the parties to the agreement should arrange for the manufacture of the said proprietary article by Vasco Products, Inc.

For a considerable period of time after the respondents Lea leased the exclusive right to the Vasco Products, Inc., to manufacture and to sell the said proprietary article, the respondents Lea under the agreement above mentioned manufactured and shipped the proprietary article called Lea's Hair Tonic on the orders of respondent Vasco Products, Inc., as it was sold during said time by the respondent Vasco Products, Inc. Later the respondents Lea, to comply with the contract with Vasco Products, Inc., caused the said proprietary article to be manufactured for them and put up for shipping on orders of Vasco Products, Inc., according to the formula for the product, by Mr. H. O. Mains, vice president and general manager of the respondent Vasco Products, Inc. to whom, personally, the respondents Lea made known the formula for compounding the product under an agreement with him that he would not divulge the formula to anyone else and on the understanding that in compounding or manufacturing the proprietary article to fill the orders of Vasco Products, Inc., for its sale, that the said Mains was in the employ of and acting as the agent of the respondents Lea and not as an employee or agent of the respondent Vasco Products, Inc.

PAR. 4. During all of the times since on or about April 20, 1926, the respondent Vasco Products, Inc. has been engaged in the sale of the proprietary article, Lea's Hair Tonic, and during said times it has sold and still sells the said proprietary article to individuals, firms and corporations, dealers in and users of the proprietary article, purchasers thereof, located in the various States of the United States other than Maryland or the State of origin of the shipment, and Vasco Products, Inc., has caused and still causes the said proprietary article when sold by it to be transported from Maryland, or the State of origin of the shipment, to the purchasers located in said other States.

Par. 5. During all the times mentioned and referred to in paragraph 4 hereof, other individuals, firms and corporations are and have been engaged, respectively, in the sale of various proprietary articles for the treatment of the scalp and hair, including proprietary articles for the same purposes of treatment of the scalp and hair as the respondents' proprietary article, Lea's Hair Tonic, to purchasers, dealers in and users thereof, located in the various States of the United States other than the State of the seller, or the State of origin of the shipment, and they have caused their said proprietary articles when so sold by them, respectively, to be transported from the State of the seller, or the State of origin of the shipment, to the purchasers located in said other States.

Par. 6. During the times mentioned and referred to in paragraphs 4 and 5 hereof, the respondent Vasco Products, Inc., is and has been in competition in interstate commerce in the sale of the proprietary article Lea's Hair Tonic, with the other individuals, firms and corporations referred to in paragraph 5 hereof.

Par. 7. The respondents' proprietary article, called Lea's Hair Tonic, is a colorless liquid having the odor of bay and it is essentially a saturated solution of lead chloride and composed substantially of alcohol, water, glycerin, sulphur and lead chloride, with traces of alkaloid and perfume. The alcohol is present to the amount of 14.6% by volume, glycerin to the amount of 10.1 grams per 100 cubic centimeters and lead chloride to the amount of 0.87 grams per 100 cubic centimeters. Chemical tests made for cantharides in the chemical analysis of the proprietary article showed none present.

Par. 8. All of the ingredients in the composition of Lea's Hair Tonic and effects produced by them in their application to the hair and scalp are and have been well known even in ancient times to physicians and dermatologists. Lead and sulphur are two ingredients that were used by the Egyptians in the distant past to dye hair.

Par. 9. Hair grows from within hair follicles, which are invaginations of the epidermis or outer epithelial portion of the skin into the deeper layers of the skin, or dermis, and underlying tissue. The hair grows from certain cells or papillae at the base of the follicle. Surrounding the papillae are certain cells called either chromatophores, or melanoblasts. The hair shaft, roughly speaking, is divided into a cortex and medulla, with the cortex outside and a hair sheet or cuticle outside of the cortex.

The hair shaft is not a living thing. It is a mass of closely packed horny cells, without life, without blood, without lymph and without nerves. It is a dead structure, as dead as a piece of finger-nail or cow’s horn.

The composition of human hair resembles in general the composition of hair of other animals. Eighty-five percent of the composition of human hair is what is known as keratin and that is composed of a number of elements. The various constituent elements of hair keratin, one of which is cystine sulphur, are in general found in the same relative proportions in other animal hair that they are found in human hair. Cystine sulphur is an elemental form of sulphur and in elemental form sulphur is said to be insoluble in water or in alcohol, although there is no substance known that is absolutely insoluble.

The function of the chromatophores or melanoblasts above mentioned is to extract melanin, the pigment-forming matter, from the blood which is then distributed as pigment in the hair matrix cells of the hair bulb, commonly called the root of the hair. The pigment when formed or distributed in the hair matrix cells of the hair bulb is carried upward with the growth of the hair. There is no pigment formed in the hair shaft although it is seen in the hair shaft, more towards the medulla and not on the outside.

Par. 10. Normal pigment formation is a living process and cannot take place in a dead thing, the shaft of the hair, so that any method which causes coloration in hair which has changed from its natural original color, for instance, to gray or white, would have to be a life process, the result of a process of rejuvenation or bringing back to life, if it really restored the normal pigment-forming function. The base of the hair follicle is about $\frac{1}{4}$ inch below the scalp. Only the upper one-third part of the hair in the follicle can be reached by any kind of dye or other liquid preparation, even by such as are rubbed in by the most intensive rubbing. The lower two-thirds of the hair in the lower part of the follicle, or the hair bulb at the base of the follicle, cannot be touched by any liquid sought to be introduced into the hair follicle. There is no medical treatment that can be applied externally on a person’s head, which will reach the base of the hair follicle and there is no medical treatment known to medical science that has caused or can cause pigment formation in hair.
PAR. 11. Rabbit hair or fur, while it may not be said to be exactly the same as human hair, is of the same general composition. Its composition is chiefly keratin and the keratin is of the same general composition as the keratin of human hair and includes among its constituent elements, sulphur in fixed form. The albino rabbit, especially the albino rabbit with pink eyes, is absolutely incapable of hair pigment formation. Hair pigment formation is due to the presence of chromatophores or melanoblasts. Only melanoblast cells are capable of forming hair pigmentation and an albino rabbit has no melanoblast or pigment forming cells and there is no pigment in its hair or fur and coloration of the fur of an albino rabbit could not be formed by the application of the respondents' proprietary article, called Lea's Hair Tonic, by reason of any action which the application of it could have upon melanoblasts or pigment forming cells of an albino rabbit or upon pigment present by reason of such chromatophores or melanoblasts.

There is no difference in the characteristic composition of the fur of albino rabbits and normal pigmented fur except that the pigment is not present in the fur of the albino rabbit. Normal pigment when present might have some added chemical substance in its composition. Human gray hair is due to the fact that the melanoblasts have ceased functioning or no longer exist. Sometimes melanoblasts are present in human beings and dormant, and so not functioning, as in a case where disease has brought temporary baldness. In such case the first hair to reappear may be colorless and later may resume its normal color because the dormant melanoblasts resume their natural function of supplying pigment.

PAR. 12. Sulphur in human or other animal hair, known as cystine sulphur, is sulphur in elemental form and like the sulphur in the composition of respondents' Lea's Hair Tonic is said to be practically insoluble in water or alcohol. Young hair carries its sulphur entirely as cystine sulphur. But, cystine sulphur can to some extent readily be changed in form so that it will become more reactive to and combine with lead salts. The application of water to the hair causes a slow disintegration of the original protein, or keratin substance, with the result that the original cystine to some extent no longer gives cystine reactions and has become to some extent more reactive to lead salts. When the hair is washed a change takes place in two ways as shown by analysis of the hair. The total sulphur in the washed hair will have decreased, depending on the amount of exposure to water and the temperature of the water, and the sulphur remaining in the hair can then no longer be accounted for completely as cystine sulphur. The water used to wash the hair will contain some of the sulphur and that sulphur, depending on the washing conditions, may also contain minute traces of cystine, but most of the sulphur in the wash water will be in simpler form than cystine sulphur and reactive to lead salts. Some of the sulphur on the washed hair itself will also be more reactive to lead salts than the sulphur was when in its original cystine form. The change in the sulphur content of the hair results from a slow decomposition in which the sulphur content is changed while in or on the hair and slowly removed from the hair.

When the hair of adult animals is examined, the total sulphur may be the same as in the hair of a young animal or in recently produced hair, but in the adult animal the cystine sulphur does not account for all the sulphur in the hair. This difference between the hair of young animals and adult animals results from such things as combing of the hair, exposure to the elements, the weather, etc., which produce a change similar to or identical with that caused by the application of water in making the sulphur more reactive toward lead salts. In the change of sulphur from the cystine form, hydrogen sulphide is produced and that form of sulphur is also reactive to lead salts.

Par. 13. The reaction of lead salts to sulphur of human or other animal hair depends to a considerable extent on the conditions under which the reaction is produced. In combining with the sulphur it may result under some conditions in a light yellow color and under other conditions will vary from light yellow to a very dark brown, depending upon the amount of lead sulphide produced by the reaction or combination of the lead salts and sulphur, and upon the size of the particles produced. And, also depending upon the number of times lead salts are applied to hair containing sulphur in reactive form and the thickness of the film of lead sulphide caused thereby, a deeper shade of color will result following each application up to a dark brown shade, approaching black, and, which may be said by some persons to be black, when not closely examined.

Par. 14. The composition of cotton is cellulose. It contains no sulphur. Lead salts applied to untreated cotton fabric does not cause the color to be changed. When sodium thiosulphate, itself a colorless solution in water, is first applied to cotton, the cotton still remains white. When, however, Lea's Hair Tonic is applied to cottton which has been treated with a colorless solution of sodium thio-sulphate, the lead chloride in the preparation combines with the sodium thiosulphate and causes the cotton to become dark colored.
Repeated applications of Lea's Hair Tonic to such treated cotton causes the cotton to assume a still darker shade with each subsequent application until it finally is of such dark brown color that it appears black.
PAR. 15. Lea's Hair Tonic applied to the hair or fur of an albino rabbit causes the hair or fur to assume a yellowish tinge. As the application to the hair or fur of the albino rabbit is continued it causes a progressive coloration of the treated area towards a brownish or brownish black color.

PAR. 16. When Lea's Hair Tonic is applied to human gray hair which has been severed from a person's head, the hair assumes a yellowish tinge. Human gray hair so treated for ten days was caused to become colored a yellowish tinge on the ends and gradually a dark brown away from the ends.

By the use of the respondents' proprietary article the hair of the user gradually begins turning progressively, shade by shade from a light yellow or brown to a color approaching black, depending upon the length of time the preparation is used on the hair, and results in the change from gray hair are obtained by repeated applications of the preparation in from 10 days to 4 or 5 weeks in some cases according to the individual and the color desired, or which may approximate the shade or color that, in the opinion of the user, is similar to the color of the user's hair before it became gray. After the hair of the user has been brought back through various shades to the color desired, it is necessary that the use of the preparation should be continued once every week or ten days in order to keep the hair the color which it was caused to assume by the use of the product. When the use of the preparation is finally discontinued, the user's hair returns to its former gray or the color it had prior to the use of the preparation.

PAR. 17. There is a normal amount of fine scalings shed from normal scalps, just as hair and nails grow and are shed. A small number of these scales are normal on normal scalps. Dandruff, clinically speaking, consists of an abnormal quantity of fine scalings from the scalp and it is definitely indicated by the term "pityriasis capitas", rather than by the term "seborrhea", a term that is also used to indicate a different condition, namely, an oily flow of sebaceous matter from the sebaceous glands. There are several theories as to the cause of excessive exfoliation of fine scales from the scalp called "dandruff." The condition is said to be a symptom of a disease that causes dandruff, one theory being that it is of parasitic origin and caused by different parasites but the consensus of opinion of medical authorities, specialists in dermatology, is that the cause of dandruff is unknown and that nothing is known that will permanently cure dandruff.

There are innumerable things which by their application to the scalp of a person afflicted with dandruff will remove the dandruff scales present on the scalp at the time of their application. The respondents' proprietary article, called Lea's Hair Tonic, is one of such agencies, and soap and water is another that will equally effect the removal of dandruff scales. Beyond such use in removing the loose scales present at the time of its application and known as dandruff, the respondents' proprietary article has no remedial effect on the cause of the dandruff, no effect in preventing the formation of dandruff scales after its use, although if the scalp of the user is in an itchy condition it may perhaps relieve that itchy condition.

Par. 18. The word "tonic" is defined adjectively in the Oxford English Dictionary, in physiology and in pathology, as "pertaining to, consisting in, or producing tensions; especially in relation to the muscles"; and, "pertaining to, or maintaining, the tone or normal healthy condition of the tissues or organs"; and is defined, in medicine, as "having the property of increasing or restoring the tone or healthy condition and activity of the system or organs; strengthening, invigorating, bracing."

Par. 19. The word "dye" as a verb is defined in the Oxford English Dictionary, transitively, as follows: "to tinge with a color or hue; to fix a color in the substance of; to color, stain."

The verb "stain" in the Oxford English Dictionary, it is said, is derived from Old French and in that dictionary is defined as a synonym of the verb "to dye", as "of something dyed or colored; to impart its color to (something in contact). Also, in wider use (e. g., said of a chemical reagent), to alter the color of (something to which it is applied)."

The word "teindre" in the French language is defined in Cassell's New French Dictionary, as a verb, meaning "to dye, to tinge, to stain, to color."

Par. 20. The respondent Vasco Products, Inc., has caused statements and representations to be published in newspapers and periodicals circulating among the public in the various States and in circulars and pamphlets distributed in the packages in which the preparation, Lea's Hair Tonic, was caused to be sold by it to the public, among other similar statements, as follows:

"Lea's works gradually in the most natural-like manner, depending on how long and how gray you are and the condition of the scalp and hair. Gradually the hair from scalp upwards begins turning, shade by shade back to a youthful deep shade, of blonde, auburn, red, black or whatever basic color your hair was originally. There are some three thousand shades of color in human hair. No dye expert can paint the hair as exquisitely as nature the exact shade most becoming to your eyes, complexion and beauty. Several of different complexion may use out of the same bottle—each goes back to their own color or shade of hair, users declare in amazement.

I can show men and women in two minutes how to get rid of their gray hairs and never have another."
Findings

In the old days you had to dye your hair—like we still must get false teeth, but not now. You get a bottle of Lea's Hair Tonic. Rub into scalp and stimulate nature to renewed vigor, same as you take a tonic, a laxative to stimulate a sluggish system. You can't rub a tonic on your gums and grow new teeth, but you sure can keep your hair young looking, free of gray • • • Just a few drops at night on the scalp does the work • • • Away goes gray hair, dandruff and itchy scalp. Hairs become heavier and good looking. Takes ten years off your age. Goes right back to youthful color no matter what shade of hair you originally had. Doesn't change the other hairs.

• • • Users say it has made their hair grow abundantly and absolutely stopped it falling out. You will be delighted we feel sure.

The respondent Vasco Products, Inc., receives inquiries through the United States Mail from members of the public concerning the preparation, Lea's Hair Tonic, and its use and in answering such inquiries frequently sends copies of testimonials purporting to have been received from prior users of Lea's Hair Tonic and containing statements of such users to the effect that the use of Lea's Hair Tonic has stopped the hair of the used from falling out and caused the hair to grow, that it cured the condition known as dandruff with which the user was afflicted, and also in some instances that the use of the preparation caused the natural color of the user's hair, which had changed to gray, to be restored to its former youthful color.

PAR. 21. The vice president and general manager of the respondent Vasco Products, Inc., was at all times familiar with the advertisements of Vasco Products, Inc., above mentioned and referred to, which were caused by the said respondent to be published in newspapers and periodicals and with the testimonials above mentioned and referred to, purporting to have been received from members of the public following the use of Lea's Hair Tonic, and had knowledge of the statements caused to be made in the advertisements of the respondent, Vasco Products, Inc., and in the testimonials said to have been received from the users of Lea's Hair Tonic; and during all of said times, while acting as the vice president and general manager of the respondent Vasco Products, Inc., he was also acting as the agent of the respondents William M. Lea and Kittie M. Lea, in compounding Lea's Hair Tonic from the ingredients composing it and in causing it to be put up in the containers and cartons in which it was sold; and during such times he had charge of placing the circulars above mentioned in the cartons in which Lea's Hair Tonic was sold and in answering replies to inquiries received from members of the public. In answering such inquiries he caused printed circulars to be inclosed to such members of the public, containing parts of four or five testimonials purporting to have been received from other members of the public containing statements concerning the use and effect of Lea's Hair Tonic by them, such as the testimonial statements above referred to.

The respondents William M. Lea and Kittie M. Lea had knowledge of the statements and representations made by Vasco Products, Inc., above mentioned and referred to, to members of the public concerning Lea's Hair Tonic, its use and effect, and the respondents Lea made similar representations and to the same effect to members of the public concerning Lea's Hair Tonic prior to the time when they leased the right to the respondent Vasco Products, Inc., to manufacture and distribute Lea's Hair Tonic in interstate commerce.

Par. 22. As above stated, there is no medical or other treatment known to medical science that will remove the cause of dandruff or cure that condition. There is nothing known, which, taken internally or applied externally, will stimulate the chromatophores or melanoblasts that cause hair pigmentation in the human system, or cause them to function so that pigment will be supplied to the hair and give it color. There is nothing known to medical science which taken internally or applied externally as a treatment for the hair and scalp will cause the hair of the user to grow or prevent its falling out, or which will cure the condition of baldness of the scalp.

Par. 23. Lea's Hair Tonic, by its application to the scalp and hair of any person does not cause and it has not caused stimulation of the hair pigment forming cells of the user of the preparation so as to cause natural pigmentation or color to be distributed to the user's hair. The color produced by the application of Lea's Hair Tonic, to white cotton or cotton gauze, which had been treated with thiosulphate, a soluble colorless sulphur compound, as above set forth, was a change produced by the action of a dyeing agent or a dye. The color caused to gray hair severed from a person's head by the application of the respondents' preparation, and the color caused to the hair or fur of albino rabbits, as above stated, in one instance, from white to a yellowish tinge and, in the other instance, progressively from white to a dark brown color, were changes from white to a color that was produced by the action of Lea's Hair Tonic as a dyeing agent or a dye. It was not a change effected by any stimulation of natural body pigment forming functions connected with the human hair, or with the fur growth of the albino rabbits.

Par. 24. Lea's Hair Tonic is a hair dye. It is not a tonic. It has no tonic effect upon any part of the human system. It will not cause hair to grow or prevent its falling out, and the statements and representations caused to be made by the respondents to members of the public, users of proprietary preparations or other treatments for the relief of the condition known as dandruff of the scalp or for the purpose of changing the color of the hair of the user, that re-
Order

Respondents' said preparation is a tonic; that it causes hair to grow and prevents hair from falling out; that it will cure dandruff; and, that it stimulates natural functions, and causes hair to have restored to it, natural color that it has lost, were each and all false representations of material facts which the respondents knew or with the use of ordinary prudence and care should have known to be false when made.

Each and all of such representations had the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive dealers and members of the public, dealers in and users of proprietary articles or other things for the treatment of the hair and scalp, and they have misled and deceived such dealers and users of such proprietary articles into believing that those representations were true, and in reliance upon such belief, into purchasing, and they have accordingly purchased respondents' Lea's Hair Tonic, instead of the products of respondents' competitors and trade has thereby been diverted from respondents' competitors to the respondents.

CONCLUSION

The practices of the respondents under the conditions and circumstances described in the foregoing findings are and have been to the prejudice of the public and of respondents' competitors and are unfair methods of competition in commerce and constitute a violation of Section 5 of an Act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes".

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answers of the respondents, testimony and evidence taken before John W. Norwood, Esq., an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the charges of the complaint and in opposition thereto, briefs filed herein, and oral arguments by Edward E. Reardon, Esq., counsel for the Commission, and by George E. Edelin, Esq., counsel for the respondents, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of an Act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes",

It is ordered, That the respondent, Vasco Products, Inc., and the respondents William M. Lea and Kittie M. Lea, as copartners under the trade name Lea's Tonic Company or under any other trade name, in the sale of or in offering for sale in interstate commerce any preparation for use in the treatment of the hair and scalp of members of the public which is essentially a saturated solution of lead chloride and which is composed substantially of alcohol, water, glycerin, sulphur and lead chloride, or which is composed substantially of the same ingredients as the preparation sold by the respondents heretofore under the name Lea's Hair Tonic, or which may hereafter be sold by them or either of them under any other name, do cease and desist from:

(1) The use of the word "tonic" either in the name or designation of the preparation or in describing or representing the manner of its action or the effect of its use in the application to or treatment of the scalp and hair of users of the preparation;

(2) Representing in advertisements in newspapers and periodicals, in circulars enclosed in the package in which the preparation is offered for sale to users, or in testimonial recommendations received from or purporting to have been received from members of the public, users of the preparation, or by means of radio broadcasting, that any preparation, composed either of the same or substantially the same ingredients as the preparation heretofore sold by the respondents under the name Lea's Hair Tonic, by its application and use on the scalp or hair stimulates bodily functions so that pigmentation is produced which is distributed in the hair and imparts color to the hair, or that it causes color to be imparted to the hair of the user in any other manner than as a dye or dyeing agent;

(3) Representing that the use and application of any preparation composed as described in this order will cure the condition of the scalp of the user known as dandruff, or that it will relieve such condition other than by its use in loosening the dandruff so that the dandruff scales present are readily washed off; or, representing that any preparation of the same or substantially the same composition will cause the hair of the user to grow, or that it will prevent or cure the condition known as baldness of the scalp of the user.

It is further ordered, That the respondent, Vasco Products, Inc., and the respondents William M. Lea and Kittie M. Lea, shall within 30 days after the service of this order file with the Federal Trade Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with the above order to cease and desist.

Before Mr. John W. Addison, trial examiner.

Mr. Alden S. Bradley for the Commission.

Tibbetts, Lewis, Lazo & Rand, of New York City, for respondent.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Prince Matchabelli Perfumery, Inc., a corporation hereinafter referred to as respondent, has been and now is using unfair methods of competition in commerce as “commerce” is defined in said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent is, and at all times hereinafter mentioned was, a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its principal office and place of business in New York City in said State. It is and has been engaged in the manufacture, compounding and sale of perfumes and cosmetics. Its sales were and are made to customers and dealers located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and pursuant to such sales shipments were and are made by respondent from its place of business in New York to purchasers and dealers located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and there is now and has been, since the year 1927, a constant current of trade and commerce by the respondent in perfumes and cosmetics between and among the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of its business respondent now is and has been since the year 1927 in substantial competition with other corporations, firms, persons and co-partnerships engaged in the manufacturing, compounding and sale of perfumes and cosmetics between and among the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. There are in the State of New York and in the various other States of the United States other corporations, persons, firms and co-partnerships engaged in the business of manufacturing, compounding and selling perfumes and cosmetics to dealers and customers located throughout the various States of the United States, and pursuant to such sales said persons, firms, corporations and co-partnerships make shipments from their various respective places of business to such dealers and customers located in the various States of the United States other than the State of the location of such manufacturers, compounders and sellers.

Par. 3. Since the organization of respondent, Prince Matchabelli Perfumery, Inc., in 1927, respondent has manufactured, compounded and sold and still manufactures, compounds and sells, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, certain perfumes variously designated by the legends, "Princess Norina", "Duchess of York", "Grace Moore", "Ave Maria" and other designations, and certain face powders variously designated as "Princess Marie" and other designations.

All, or virtually all, of the perfumes above listed and other perfumes manufactured by the respondent are placed in "Gold Crown" perfume bottles whereupon are stamped the various terms "Germany", "France" and "Made in France". Some of the above enumerated and described perfumes of the respondent, which are manufactured, compounded and sold by it, are placed in a carton or box and sold under the trade name "Princess Norina" and on the inside cover of such carton or box appears the statement "Les Perfumes du Prince Matchabelli, Paris, New York", and upon the base of the perfume bottle placed in such carton or container is printed or stamped "Germany—Princess Norina—Prince Matchabelli". Other perfumes of the respondent are placed in a box or carton bearing the legend “Les Perfumes du Prince Matchabelli, Paris, New York” printed on the inside box cover and the words “Made in France—Prince Matchabelli” stamped or imprinted on the base of the bottle containing the perfume and placed in such carton or box. Respondent also manufactures, compounds and sells, and offers for sale, certain face powder placed in a carton or box whereupon is labeled “Prince Matchabelli Face Powder, Princess Marie, Paris, New York”. Various other bath essences, lotions, oils, cosmetics and similar merchandise are placed in packages, boxes, cartons and bottles bearing the terms “Paris—New York”. Certain advertisements of the respondent appear in various newspapers, magazines, trade journals; and other publications, whereupon, as an integral part of such advertisements, appear the words “26 Rue Cambon, Paris” and “724 Fifth Avenue, New York”.

PAR. 4. The perfumes and cosmetics and various merchandise of similar nature, as hereinabove described, manufactured, compounded and sold and offered for sale by the respondent are in truth and in fact manufactured and compounded wholly within the United States and generally within the State of New York. The use of the terms as related in paragraph 3 hereof, indicative of foreign manufacture and composition of the merchandise above described, when unaccompanied by any declaration asserting the fact of the domestic manufacture and composition of such merchandise, is false and misleading. Respondent corporation maintains no foreign businesses or offices.

PAR. 5. The merchandise so manufactured, compounded and sold, and offered for sale, advertised, bottled and packed is displayed and has been displayed for sale by dealers and is sold and has been sold to purchasers and users thereof throughout the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 6. Perfumes manufactured and compounded in Germany, France, and particularly Paris, have for many years enjoyed widespread popularity and demand among the trade and consuming public throughout the United States, many of whom believe and consider that perfumes and cosmetics of such foreign manufacture and composition are superior in quality to perfumes and cosmetics manufactured and compounded within the United States, and the use of words, symbols or legends indicative of the manufacture or composition in Germany, France, and in Paris, of perfumes and cosmetics has a tendency and capacity to and does mislead and deceive dealers, purchasers and users of such perfumes and cosmetics into the belief that perfumes and cosmetics so labeled, stamped or designated are in fact and in truth of French manufacture and composition.
Order

Par. 7. There are among the competitors of the respondent various corporations, persons, firms and co-partnerships who manufacture and compound perfumes and cosmetics in Germany, France and in Paris. There are also among such competitor corporations, firms, persons and co-partnerships those who manufacture and compound perfumes and cosmetics wholly within the United States.

Par. 8. The acts and practices of the respondent are prejudicial and injurious to respondent's competitors, both those who manufacture and compound perfumes and cosmetics in France or in Paris and those who manufacture and compound perfumes and cosmetics within the United States and who do not misrepresent the origin or place of manufacture of their products, and such acts and practices occasion substantial injury to substantial competition in interstate commerce.

The above acts and practices done and caused to be done by the respondent are and were, each and all, to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the meaning and intent of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled, "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This matter coming on to be heard by the Commission upon the complaint filed herein on July 18, 1935 and the answer to said complaint filed August 8, 1935, by Prince Matchabelli Perfumery, Inc., respondent herein, in which answer the said respondent states that it waives hearing on the charges set forth in the complaint herein; that it refrains from contesting the proceeding and that it consents that the Commission without a trial, without evidence, and without findings as to the facts or other intervening procedure, may make, enter, issue and serve upon the said respondent, an order to cease and desist from the methods of competition charged in the complaint; and the Commission being now fully advised in the premises;

It is hereby ordered, That the respondent, Prince Matchabelli Perfumery, Inc., a corporation, its officers, agents, servants and employees, in connection with the sale or offering for sale in interstate commerce of perfumes, powders, cosmetics and other merchandise of like and similar nature, do forthwith cease and desist from:

(1) Using any sign, symbol or legend upon the containers or cartons of said merchandise indicating a particular country as the country of the origin of such merchandise, unless, in fact, the merchandise contained therein shall have originated in such country so indicated.

(2) Using upon the containers or cartons containing such mer­chandise, the words "Les Perfumes du Prince Matchabelli Company, Inc. Paris", or any other word or words indicating that the commodity so vended was made in or imported from a foreign country or any country other than the country wherein such commodity actually originated.

(3) Advertising, in writing, by broadcasts or in any other manner in connection with the selling or offering for sale of its merchan­dise, the words "26 Rue Cambon, Paris", or any other word or words indicating that the merchandise so offered for sale was made in or imported from a foreign country or any country other than the country wherein such commodity actually originated.

It is hereby further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days from the date of the service upon it of a copy of this order, file with this Commission a report in writing stating the manner and form in which it shall have complied with this order.
Where a corporation engaged in the manufacture of men's shirts, pajamas, etc., and in the sale thereof under its brand or trade name throughout the several States and particularly in the New England and adjacent States, in competition with others similarly engaged, and customarily marketing its said products, the output of which was substantial and formed an important item of interstate commerce, through selected retail dealers in men's wear, including a substantial portion of such dealers in said New England States; in pursuance of a "resale price maintenance policy", (a) in which, dealing separately with each customer, it requested the cooperation of all in (1) maintaining its said resale prices and pushing its price-maintained products, and, (2) preventing and eliminating sales at cut prices; and, (b) incident to the carrying out of which policy it (1) issued circulars and price lists to the trade and cooperated with customers in newspaper advertising, showing suggested uniform resale prices for its said products, (2) requested and insisted that its said selected dealers resell only at suggested resale prices, and (3) made known to them through broadcast, whether sold direct or not, that it would absolutely refuse sale of further supplies of its products to price cutters—

(a) Required its said distributors to enter into understandings and agreements with it that the distributor would maintain resale prices of its said branded shirts as suggested and specified by it, and refused to sell its said product to practically all such retailers as would not agree not to resell the same except at its said suggested prices; and

(b) Requested and secured the cooperation of dealer-customers in reporting to it names of competitors and other dealer-customers selling its said shirts at resale prices below those fixed by it, and acted on such reports by expressing its appreciation thereof and investigating the same and refusing further supplies to dealers thereby established as price cutters; and

(c) Refused to sell its said shirts further to dealer-customers who had failed to resell the same at its said prices and sought to prevent such customers from securing its said product from any other source, and reinstated as distributors thereof those previously cut off from its list of selected dealers for underselling its resale prices, upon the basis of satisfactory assurances that they would thereafter resell its said shirts at its suggested prices; With the result of protecting the relatively higher cost and less efficient retailers against the competition of the relatively lower cost and more efficient retailers and of eliminating competition in price among dealers handling its said products, and of thereby preventing retail concerns, and especially the lower cost and more efficient establishment, from selling its products at prices which they might deem adequate and warranted by their costs and selling efficiency, and compelling such portions of the public as required or preferred its said products to pay enhanced prices therefor:

 Held, That such practices, under the circumstances set forth, constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. Robert S. Hall, trial examiner.

Mr. John L. Hornor for the Commission.

Mr. James P. McGuire of Hurley & Torphy, of Fall River, Mass., for respondent.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that the Cape Cod Shirt Company, a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has been and is using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it would be in the public interest, states its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent is, and at all times hereinafter mentioned has been, a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Massachusetts, with its principal place of business at Fall River, in said State. It is, and has been, engaged in the business of manufacturing and selling, among other things, men's shirts, which are trade-marked and known as "Cape Cod Shirts." Respondent's sales of Cape Cod Shirts are made to retail dealers in men's wear located in various States of the Union, particularly in the New England States. Pursuant to such sales, and as a part thereof, shirts are shipped by respondent from its factory at Fall River, Mass., to its customers at their places of business in the other States as aforesaid.

Par. 2. For more than five years last past, in connection with its sale of Cape Cod Shirts in interstate commerce, as aforesaid, and directly affecting said commerce, respondent has used and is now using a resale price-maintenance policy and system for the purpose of controlling the prices at which retail dealers resold and resell Cape Cod Shirts to the public, and of causing them to sell at prices uniform among said dealers. In carrying out said resale price-maintenance policy and system respondent did and performed, and still does and performs, the following things, and used and still uses the following methods and practices:

(a) Enters into agreements and understandings with its dealer customers that they will sell Cape Cod Shirts to the public at prices fixed by said agreements and understandings and as fixed from time to time by respondent. The prices so fixed are to be, and are, uniform as among respondent's dealer customers.

(b) Upon the failure of a dealer customer to maintain the prices so fixed, respondent threatens to refuse, and refuses, further to sell to said customer and seeks to prevent him and prevents him from securing Cape Cod Shirts from any other source.

(c) Seeks and secures the cooperation of its dealer customers in enforcing the observance of the prices so fixed, by requesting them to report to it instances of such price cutting; such dealers do report such instances; and when such reports are received respondent takes action with the purpose and effect of causing the offending dealer thereafter to maintain the price uniformly observed by other dealer customers.

Par. 3. The result and effect of the use by respondent of the system, methods and practices hereinabove set forth have been and are that retailers of respondent's said products are constrained to sell at prices uniform among them, so that price competition among them is destroyed and prevented; prices to the public are held at an arbitrary and artificially high level; and the public is denied the benefits of competition among said retailers.

Par. 4. Respondent's said policy and system of resale price maintenance, and the said methods and practices used to make the same effective, have been and are to the prejudice of the public, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the act of Congress above entitled.

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

on the said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and evidence, brief in support of the complaint, filing of brief and oral argument having been waived by James P. McGuire, counsel for the defense; and the Commission having duly considered the same, and being fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. The respondent, Cape Cod Shirt Company, Inc., is a corporation, organized and doing business under the laws of the State of Massachusetts and having its principal office and place of business in the city of Fall River, Mass., and is now, and for more than five years last past has been engaged in the business of manufacturing and selling men's shirts, pajamas, etc., throughout the States of the United States, particularly that portion known as New England, and the States adjacent thereto, in direct competition with other individuals, partnerships, and corporations similarly engaged.

Paragraph 2. In the conduct of its business the said respondent manufactures and packs its products in the city of Fall River, Mass., and from there sells and ships to the purchasers thereof in the different States and territories of the United States, and in the District of Columbia, the said men's shirts, pajamas and other products, and there is continuously and has been at all times herein mentioned, a constant current of trade and commerce in said men's shirts, pajamas and other products, between and among the several States, territories, and in the District of Columbia, of the United States.

Paragraph 3. The quantity of such products so manufactured, sold and distributed by respondent has been and is substantial, and forms an important item of commerce among the several States, territories, and the District of Columbia, of the United States.

Paragraph 4. Respondent customarily markets its products principally through retail dealers in men's wear lines, who in turn resell to the consuming public, all of which retail dealers are selected as desirable customers.

The total number of such retail dealers handling the products of respondent includes a substantial portion of the retail dealers in the men's wear goods throughout that part of the United States commonly known as the New England States.

Paragraph 5. Respondent, in the sale and distribution of its products, has adopted and maintained, and still maintains, a policy known as "Resale price maintenance policy", and requests the cooperation therein of all dealers selling the products manufactured by it, dealing with each customer separately.

Par. 6. The purpose and intent of the respondent company in this merchandise policy is, among other things to obtain the active support and cooperation of all its retail distributors—

(1) Maintaining its said resale prices and pushing its price-maintained products; and

(2) Preventing and eliminating all sales at lower prices than its fixed uniform resale prices.

Par. 7. In order to carry out said resale price maintenance policy and to secure such cooperation, respondent—

(a) Issues circulars, price lists, and list to the trade generally, and cooperates with its customers in newspaper advertising, showing suggested uniform resale prices to be charged for Cape Cod products;

(b) Requests and insists that the aforesaid selected retail dealers resell only at the suggested resale prices; and

(c) Makes it known through broadcast to such selected retail dealers, whether sold direct or not, that if they, or any of them, fail to sell at the resale prices suggested by the respondent as aforesaid, respondent will absolutely refuse to sell further supplies of its products to them, or any of them.

Par. 8. Respondent, in carrying out said policy—

(a) Has required its distributors to enter into an understanding and agreement with respondent that the distributor would maintain the resale price of “Cape Cod Shirts” at the resale prices suggested and specified by the respondent.

(b) Has, within the time aforesaid, refused and does refuse to sell its products to practically all such retailers as would not agree to resell said products at the prices so suggested by the respondent;

(c) Has, within the time aforesaid, refused and does refuse to sell its products to practically all so-called price cutters;

(d) Has, within the time aforesaid, refused and does refuse to further sell to dealer-customers who have failed to resell at the prices so suggested by respondent, and sought and does seek to prevent the dealer-customers from securing “Cape Cod Shirts” from any other source;

(e) Has, within the time aforesaid, utilized a system whereby customer-dealers were, and are, requested to, and do, cooperate with the respondent in reporting to the respondent the names of competitors and other dealer-customers who were, and are, selling (or were suspected of selling) “Cape Cod Shirts” at resale prices below the prices fixed by the respondent for the sale of its products; and

(f) Has, within the time aforesaid, reinstated, and does reinstate, as distributors of its products, dealer-customers previously
Conclusion

That the methods of competition set forth in the foregoing findings are, under the circumstances therein set forth, unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce, in violation of the provisions of an Act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondent, testimony and evidence taken before Robert S. Hall, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the charges of said complaint and in opposition thereto, brief filed herein by John L. Hornor, counsel for the Commission, filing of brief and oral argument having been waived by James P. McGuire, counsel for the respondent, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

It is ordered, That respondent, Cape Cod Shirt Company, Inc., its officers, directors, agents, servants and employees, cease and desist from carrying into effect a policy of fixing and maintaining uniform prices at which the articles manufactured, sold and shipped by it in interstate commerce, shall be sold by its customers or dealers, by—

1. Entering into contracts, agreements and understandings with customers or dealers, requiring or providing for the maintenance of specified resale prices on products manufactured by respondent;
2. Requesting dealers to report competitors who do not observe the resale prices suggested by respondent, or acting on the reports so obtained by refusing, or threatening to refuse, sales to dealers so reported;
3. Requesting or compelling salesmen or agents to assist in such policy by reporting dealers who do not observe the suggested resale price, or acting on reports so obtained by refusing, or threatening to refuse sales to dealers so reported;
4. Refusing to sell its products to dealers previously cut off, unless and until they have given satisfactory assurance of their purpose to maintain respondent's resale prices, as a condition of reinstatement; and
5. Utilizing any other cooperative means of accomplishing the maintenance of uniform resale prices fixed by the respondent.

It is further ordered, That the respondent, Cape Cod Shirt Company, Inc., shall file with the Commission within 60 days after the service upon it of a copy of this order, its report in writing, stating in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with the order to cease and desist hereinbefore set forth.
Complaint

IN THE MATTER OF

HARRY SACHNOFF, DOING BUSINESS UNDER THE TRADE NAME OF PARK ROW PEN COMPANY, AND ARGO PEN-PENCIL COMPANY, INC.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Where an individual engaged in the business of assembling fountain pens, the parts of which it purchased from various jobbers, and in the sale of such pens, and pencils, at wholesale, in competition with the products of other dealers, assemblers and manufacturers; and a corporation similarly engaged, the stock of which was owned by said individual, his wife and son, who constituted, respectively, its president, treasurer, and secretary; in the course and conduct of their aforesaid businesses—

(a) Held themselves out as manufacturers of such pens and pencils, and made use of corporate stationery, advertising matter, and invoices upon which were printed the words "Manufacturers of Pens and Pencils", and "Factory, Passaic, N. J.", notwithstanding the fact they neither owned controlled nor operated a plant or factory in which their said products were made, and said corporation did not own, operate or control a factory in said city; and

(b) Caused pen points placed in certain of the fountain pens assembled and sold by them to be stamped or imprinted "DURIGOLD 14", notwithstanding the fact that said pen points were not made of gold or gold alloy and were not of 14-carat fineness, but, thinly gold-plated, were manufactured from stainless steel and chrome, and their cost was only a small proportion of what the price of the solid 14-carat points would have been;

With capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive many among the purchasing public and trade as to the composition of said fountain pen points, and into believing that in dealing with said individual and corporation they were patronizing a manufacturer and thereby benefiting through elimination of the middleman's profit:

Held, That such practices, under the conditions and circumstances set forth, were all to the injury and prejudice of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. Charles F. Diggs, trial examiner.

Mr. Morton Nesmith for the Commission.

Complaint

Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Harry Sachnoff, doing business under the trade name and style of Park Row Pen Company, and Argo Pen-Pencil Company, Inc., a corporation has been and is using unfair methods of competition in commerce as "commerce" is defined in said act and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Harry Sachnoff, doing business under the trade name of Park Row Pen Company, one of the respondents herein, with his principal place of business at 206-208 Broadway, New York City, N. Y., is now and has been engaged in the business of assembling and selling fountain pens at wholesale and transporting said pens between and among the different States of the United States. The respondent, Argo Pen-Pencil Company, Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its principal place of business at 206-208 Broadway, New York City, N. Y., and is likewise engaged in the business of assembling and selling fountain pens at wholesale between and among different States of the United States. The respondent, Harry Sachnoff is the sole owner of the Park Row Pencil Company and also is president and owner of virtually all of the capital stock of respondent, Argo Pen-Pencil Company, Inc. Said respondents, Harry Sachnoff, doing business under the trade name of Park Row Pen Company, and Argo Pen-Pencil Company, Inc., in the course and conduct of their said businesses, have caused and still cause the articles in which they deal to be transported from their said place of business into and through other States of the United States to various retailers located at points in different States of the United States. Said respondents are in competition with other individuals, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the manufacture, sale and transportation of fountain pens at wholesale in commerce between and among the different States of the United States.

PAR. 2. Harry Sachnoff, doing business under the trade name of Park Row Pen Company, one of the respondents herein, and Argo Pen-Pencil Company, Inc., a corporation, the other respondent, in the course and conduct of their businesses, as aforesaid, in soliciting the sale of and selling their products in interstate commerce have represented and held themselves out to be manufacturers of fountain pens and pencils. The respondent, Argo Pen-Pencil Company, Inc., caused and still causes to be printed upon its letterheads, advertising matter and invoices, the following:
ARGO PEN-PENCIL COMPANY, INC.,
Manufacturers of Fountain Pens and Pencils
Office and Sales Room 206-208 Broadway
New York, N. Y.

Said respondent, on its invoices, further caused and still causes to be printed, the following:

Factory:
Passaic, N. J.

Par. 3. The respondents, in the course and conduct of their businesses as aforesaid, have caused and still cause to be stamped or imprinted upon certain of the pen points, which they use in their fountain pens as assembled, the following:

DURIGOLD 14

Said fountain pens, so assembled with the above-described or imprinted pen points, have been and are sold by the respondents in inter-state commerce. Said "Durigold 14" was so stamped or imprinted upon said pen points as to resemble and simulate the marking on solid gold pen points and carries the impression that respondents' products are of some kind of gold and are 14 carats in fineness.

Par. 4. In truth and in fact, neither of the respondents is a manufacturer of fountain pens nor do they manufacture any parts of fountain pens, but purchase said parts from different companies and then assemble the pens. Neither of the respondents own or control any factory or plant which manufactures or produces fountain pens. The respondent, Argo Pen-Pencil Company, does not own, operate or control a factory at Passaic, N. J. In truth and in fact, the pen points which respondents caused to be imprinted or stamped "Durigold 14" are manufactured from steel and said points are thinly gold-plated and are not composed of gold or a gold alloy and are not of 14-carat fineness; all of which has the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive the purchasers of respondents' products into the belief that when purchasing from respondents they are dealing with the manufacturer of the products purchased and are thereby gaining an advantage by eliminating the middlemen's profits, and that said pen points contain gold or some gold alloy of the equivalent of 14 carats in fineness.

Par. 5. The respondents, Harry Sachnoff, doing business under the trade name of Park Row Pen Company, one of the respondents herein, and Argo Pen-Pencil Company, Inc., ship and deliver to their retail customers their products so branded and labeled, and said retailers resell said products to the consuming public.
PAR. 6. There are among the competitors of respondents many persons, firms, and corporations who manufacture fountain pens and pencils and sell same in interstate commerce, and who truthfully hold themselves out as manufacturers; there are also among competitors of respondents many persons, firms, and corporations who assemble fountain pens and pencils and who do not represent themselves as manufacturers. Both of said classes of competitors sell their products in interstate commerce, and the fact that respondents hold themselves out to be manufacturers, and the further fact that respondents have caused their pen points to be marked, branded or labeled “Durigold 14”, when said points are not composed of gold or a gold alloy, has unfairly diverted trade from and otherwise injured respondents’ competitors in interstate commerce.

PAR. 7. The above alleged acts and things done by the respondents are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and of the competitors of respondents in interstate commerce and constitute unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”, approved September 26, 1914.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”, the Federal Trade Commission, on the 15th day of March 1935, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondents, Harry Sachnoff doing business under the trade name of Park Row Pen Company and the Argo Pen-Pencil Company, Inc., charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act.

After the issuance of said complaint, and the failure of respondents to file answer thereto, testimony and evidence, in support of the allegations of said complaint, were introduced by Morton Nesmith, attorney for the Commission, before Charles F. Diggs, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it; and said testimony and evidence was duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission.

Thereafter this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, testimony and evidence and brief in support of the complaint (respondents having waived filing of brief); and the commission having duly considered the same and being fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. The respondent Harry Sachnoff is an individual doing business under the trade name and style of Park Row Pen Company. The respondent Argo Pen-Pencil Co., Inc., is a corporation organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York. The principal place of business of both respondents is located at 206 Broadway, city of New York, State of New York. The respondent Harry Sachnoff, until, to wit, the year of 1931 did business under the trade name of Park Row Pen Company, but since said last named date, has discontinued said trade name with the exception of the use by him of certain guarantees bearing the name of Park Row Pen Company.

The respondent, Argo Pen-Pencil Company, Inc., was incorporated under the laws of the State of New York in 1927 or 1928 and said Harry Sachnoff is the president of said corporation, his wife and son are treasurer and secretary respectively, and all the stock is owned by them. Both of said respondents were and are engaged in the business of assembling and selling fountain pens and pencils at wholesale; the fountain pen parts are and were purchased from various dealers and assembled by respondents and sold and shipped to jobbers in various States of the United States other than the State of New York and are sold in competition with fountain pens and pencils of other dealers, assemblers, and manufacturers.

Paragraph 2. The respondents in the course and conduct of their businesses as aforesaid represented and held themselves out to be manufacturers of fountain pens and pencils, and, on the stationery, advertising matter and invoices of the respondent, Argo Pen-Pencil Company, Inc., the words "manufacturers of pens and pencils" and "factory, Passaic, N. J." were and are printed.

Paragraph 3. The respondents in the course and conduct of their businesses as aforesaid, caused certain pen points to be stamped or imprinted "DURGOLD 14" and said pen points were placed in certain of the fountain pens assembled and sold by respondents in interstate commerce.

Paragraph 4. In truth and in fact neither of said respondents own, control or operate a plant or factory in which their fountain pens or pencils are manufactured or produced, and the respondent Argo Pen-Pencil Co., Inc., does not own, operate or control a factory at Passaic, N. J.
Par. 5. In truth and in fact the pen points which respondents caused to be imprinted or stamped "DuraGold 14" are not composed of gold or gold alloy and are not 14-carat fineness but are manufactured from stainless steel and chrome and are thinly gold plated. Said pen points so imprinted cost respondents $2.10 per gross and if solid 14-carat gold were used therein, said points would cost $30.00 per gross.

Par. 6. The acts, practices and methods of competition of respondents as described in paragraphs 2, 3, 4, and 5 hereof have had and have the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive many among the purchasing public and the trade, that said fountain pen points contain gold or some gold alloy of the equivalent of 14-carat fineness and that when dealing with respondents they are dealing with a manufacturer and thereby gain the advantage by eliminating the middleman's profit.

CONCLUSION

The practices of the said respondents under the conditions and circumstances described in the foregoing findings as to the facts are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and competitors of the respondents and unfair methods of competition in commerce and constitute a violation of Section 5 of the Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, testimony and evidence taken before Charles F. Diggs, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the charges of said complaint, brief by counsel for the Commission filed herein (respondents having waived filing of brief), and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes":

It is now therefore ordered, That the respondent Harry Sachnoff, doing business under the trade name of Park Row Pen Company, his agents, servants and employees, and the respondent Argo Pen-Pencil Company, Inc., its officers, agents or employees in connection with the sale or offering for sale in interstate commerce of fountain pens and pencils, forthwith cease and desist from:
(1) Directly or indirectly representing that they are manufacturers of fountain pens and pencils until and unless the said Harry Sachnoff, doing business under the trade name of Park Row Pen Company, and Argo Pen-Pencil Company, Inc., a corporation, engage in the manufacturing of pens or pencils, or absolutely own and control a factory wherein said articles are made or manufactured;

(2) Directly or indirectly representing that they or either of them own or control a factory at Passaic, N. J., unless and until they do own or control such a factory;

(3) Directly or indirectly representing, stamping or causing to be stamped fountain pen points or nibs "Durigold 14" unless and until said fountain pen points or nibs are 14 carat gold.

It is further ordered, That the respondents shall within 60 days after the service upon them of this order file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with the order to cease and desist hereinabove set forth.
Where a corporation engaged in the sale of various brands of dog food, represented through labels and periodical and other advertising and in other ways, that its "Old Trusty Bovex" brand was "62\frac{1}{2}\% Government inspected beef and beef products", facts being that, while its ingredients included, among others, meat and meat food products inspected and passed under the provisions of the Meat Inspection Act, and while it was made at an establishment where Federal Meat Inspection is maintained, it contained less than said percentage of Government inspected beef and beef products; with capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive purchasers and prospective purchasers in aforesaid respect:

Hold, That such practices, under the conditions described above, were to the prejudice of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Mr. Joseph G. Fehr for the Commission.

Mr. James M. Cushing, of Boston, Mass., for respondent.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Old Trusty Dog Food Company, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has been and is using unfair methods of competition in commerce as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent is a corporation organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Massachusetts, with its principal place of business located at Needham Heights, in the State of Massachusetts. It is now and for more than one year last past has been engaged in the manufacture of various brands of dog foods, including a brand designated by it as "Old Trusty Bovex", and in the sale and distribution thereof in commerce between and among various States of the United States. It has caused and still causes said products, when sold, to be shipped from its place of business in Needham Heights aforesaid to the purchasers thereof, some located in the State of Massachusetts and others located in various other States of the United States, and there is now and has been at all times hereinafter mentioned a constant current of trade and commerce by respondent in such products between and among the various States of the United States. In the course and conduct of its business the respondent is now and has been at all times hereinafter mentioned in substantial competition with other corporations, and with persons, firms, and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of similar products between and among the various States of the United States.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of its business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent, in selling and in soliciting the sale of the aforesaid product “Old Trusty Bovex”, has represented and still represents in and by the use of labels affixed to the containers of such product, by advertisements in magazines having an interstate circulation, by hand bills and by folders distributed in interstate circulation, and by various other means, that such “Old Trusty Bovex” has been and is “62½% Government inspected beef and beef products” and that such “Old Trusty Bovex” has been “U. S. inspected and passed by Department of Agriculture”, when, in truth and in fact, the aforesaid “Old Trusty Bovex” is not made of government inspected beef or beef products and when, in truth and in fact, the aforesaid “Old Trusty Bovex” has never been U. S. inspected or passed by the Department of Agriculture, and when, in truth and in fact, the aforesaid “Old Trusty Bovex” has never contained 62½% of beef or beef products, but a percentage of beef or beef products substantially less than 62½%.

Par. 3. The representations made by the respondent as set out in paragraph 2 hereof have had and still have the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive and have misled and deceived and still mislead and deceive the purchasing public into the beliefs that the aforesaid representations made by the respondent are true and to purchase the aforesaid product, “Old Trusty Bovex”, in such erroneous beliefs.

Par. 4. There are among the competitors of the respondent mentioned in paragraph 1 hereof, and have been for more than one year last past, manufacturers of government inspected beef and beef products for dogs who truthfully advertise and represent their products as being government inspected and passed, and as containing certain percentages of beef and beef products. There are also among such competitors of the respondent, and have been for more than one year last past, manufacturers of beef and beef food products for dogs not inspected or passed by the Department of Agriculture, and who do not represent that such products have been or are inspected and passed by the Department of Agriculture, or that they contain more than their correct percentage of beef or beef products.

The use by the respondent of the aforesaid labels, advertisements and circulars has had and still has the capacity and tendency to and has diverted and still diverts trade to respondent from its aforesaid competitors who truthfully represent their products, and thereby substantial injury is being done and has been done by respondent to substantial competition in interstate commerce.

PAR. 5. Said acts and practices of respondent are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in or affecting commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914, as amended.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission, on the 20th day of August, 1935, issued and thereafter served its complaint against the respondent named in the caption hereof, charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of said act. Respondent, after entering its appearance and filing its answer to said complaint, thereafter, to wit, on the 6th day of December, 1935, entered into a stipulation as to the facts with W. T. Kelley, Chief Counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, in which it was stipulated and agreed that the statement of facts in said agreement between respondent and the chief counsel may be taken as the facts in the proceeding and in lieu of testimony in support of the charges stated in the complaint, or in opposition thereto; and that the Commission may proceed upon said statement of facts to make its report, stating its findings as to the facts and its conclusion based thereon and enter its order disposing of the proceeding without the presentation of argument or the filing of briefs.

The Commission being fully advised in the premises, now approves, ratifies and confirms the said stipulation and agreement entered into, as aforesaid, by and between respondent and W. T. Kelley, Chief Counsel of the Federal Trade Commission, and having duly considered the same, makes this its report in writing and states its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom, as follows, to wit:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent is a corporation organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Massachusetts, with its principal place of business located at Needham Heights, in the State of Massachusetts. It is now and for more than one year last past has been engaged in the sale of various brands of dog foods, including a brand designated by it as “Old Trusty Bovex”, in commerce between and among the various States of the United States. It has caused and still causes said products, when sold, to be shipped from its place of business in Needham Heights aforesaid, to the purchasers thereof, some located in the State of Massachusetts and others located in various other States of the United States; and there is now and has been at all times hereafter mentioned, a constant current of trade and commerce by respondent in such products between and among the various States of the United States. In the course and conduct of its business the respondent is now and has been at all times herein mentioned, in substantial competition with other corporations and with persons, firms and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of similar products between and among the various States of the United States.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of its business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent, in selling and soliciting the sale of the aforesaid product “Old Trusty Bovex”, has represented, but in July, 1935, discontinued to represent, in and by the use of labels affixed to the containers of such product, by advertisements in magazines having interstate circulation, by handbills and by folders distributed in interstate circulation, and by various other means, that “Old Trusty Bovex” has been “62½ percent Government inspected beef and beef products”, and that such “Old Trusty Bovex” has been “U. S. inspected and passed by the Department of Agriculture.” In truth and in fact, the aforesaid “Old Trusty Bovex” has contained and still contains less than 62½ percent Government inspected beef and beef products. The aforesaid “Old Trusty Bovex” has contained and still contains, among other ingredients, meat and meat food products which are inspected and passed under the provisions of the Meat Inspection Act, and such “Old Trusty Bovex” is made at an establishment where Federal Meat Inspection is maintained.

Par. 3. The foregoing statements and representations made by the respondent in aid of the sale of its product “Old Trusty Bovex”, are incorrect, exaggerated and misleading, and have the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive purchasers and prospective purchasers of respondent's said product into the erroneous belief that said product is "62½ percent Government inspected beef and beef products."

CONCLUSION

The practices of the said respondent, under the conditions and circumstances described in the foregoing findings of fact are to the prejudice of the public and of competitors of respondent, and are unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

It is now ordered, That the respondent, Old Trusty Dog Food Company, its officers, agents, servants, and employees, in connection with the sale or offering for sale in interstate commerce, of a brand of dog food designated by it as "Old Trusty Bovex", forthwith cease and desist from using in circulars advertisements or labels, or in any other way, any statement that such "Old Trusty Bovex" is "62½ percent Government inspected beef and beef products," or any statement of like purport and effect, unless and until such "Old Trusty Bovex" contains 62½ percent Government inspected beef and beef products.

It is further ordered, That the respondent, Old Trusty Dog Food Company shall, within 60 days after the date of service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied and is complying with the order to cease and desist hereinabove set forth.

IN THE MATTER OF

BRENNER PAPER MANUFACTURING, INC.

COMPLAINT AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Consent order requiring respondent corporation, its agents, etc., in connection with the printing or converting of paper or the imprinting thereon of forms and panels in preparation for use in printing announcements, or in the sale and distribution of such products in interstate commerce, to cease and desist from using a corporate name containing the word "manufacturing", or representing by any other means that it is a paper manufacturer, or using phrase "paper manufacturing", or publishing in any manner statements conveying impression that it or any of its officers, agents or employees on its behalf is engaged in paper manufacturing business or that its products are manufactured on its premises, unless and until it actually manufactures the paper it sells or offers for sale or owns or absolutely controls a mill, mills, factory or factories in which such paper is manufactured.

Mr. T. H. Kennedy for the Commission.
Mr. Jacob Brenner, of New York City, for respondent.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Brenner Paper Manufacturing, Inc., a corporation, hereafter referred to as respondent, has been and now is using unfair methods of competition in commerce as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, states its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. The Brenner Paper Manufacturing, Inc., respondent herein, is a corporation organized in October 1933, then, ever since and now, existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York and now has its principal place of business in the city of New York, State of New York.

Par. 2. The respondent, Brenner Paper Manufacturing, Inc., is and has been since on and after March 1, 1935, engaged in the business of printing or in the converting of paper or the imprinting thereon on forms and panels in the preparation for use in printing announcements and in the sale and distribution of such products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States.
Par. 3. The respondent is and has been since on and after March 1, 1935, engaged in the sale or distribution of the above mentioned products in commerce to members of the public residing in States other than New York and the respondent has caused the products when so sold or distributed by it to be transported from the respondent's place of business in New York or from the State of origin of the shipment to, into and through States other than New York, or the State of origin of the shipment to members of the public, the purchasers or consignees of the said products.

Par. 4. The respondent, since its incorporation, has been and now is in competition with other individuals, firms, partnerships, and corporations located in the United States who have been and are engaged in the sale or distribution in interstate commerce of products like or similar to those sold or distributed by respondent as hereinbefore described.

Par. 5. In the course and conduct of its business the respondent, in soliciting the sale and distribution of its products, has carried on its business under its corporate name, Brenner Paper Manufacturing, Inc., and has used and featured said name so containing the words and phrase "Paper Manufacturing" and the statements:

Louis Brenner is a producer having 20 years experience in the printing business and 10 years in the manufacturing and converting of announcements,

and

Everything we sell is made on our own premises, and has caused the same to appear on its stationery, bill heads, trade directories, price lists, announcements and other business stationery circulated among its customers and prospective customers. Said solicitation and sale has been and now is in interstate commerce.

Respondent, throughout all its business transactions since March 1, 1935, has represented itself to be a paper manufacturer, when in truth and in fact it has not been a paper manufacturer but a converter and printer.

Par. 6. The representations made by respondent as alleged in paragraph 5 hereof, are false and misleading and have the tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive the purchasers of respondent's products into the belief that when purchasing from respondent they are dealing with a manufacturer of paper and thereby are gaining an advantage by saving the middleman's profits. The said false representations also have the capacity and tendency unfairly to divert and do divert trade from its competitors.
Par. 7. The above alleged acts and practices of respondent are all to the prejudice of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes".

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

The respondent herein having filed its answer to the complaint in this proceeding, and having subsequently filed with this Commission its motion that it be permitted to withdraw its said answer and that it be permitted to file in lieu thereof as a substituted answer, the draft of a proposed substituted answer annexed to the said motion; and the Commission having duly considered the said motion:

It is hereby ordered, That the said motion be and the same is hereby granted; that the said answer be and the same is hereby withdrawn; and that the said proposed substituted answer be, and the same is hereby filed in lieu of the said answer so withdrawn.

And the said respondent in and by its said substituted answer having waived hearings on the charges set forth in the complaint in this proceeding, and having stated in its said substituted answer that it does not contest the said proceeding, and having consented in its said substituted answer that the Commission, without a trial, without evidence, and without findings as to the facts or other intervening procedure, might make, enter, issue, and serve upon the said respondent, an order to cease and desist from the methods of competition charged in the complaint; and the Commission being fully advised in the premises;

It is hereby further ordered, That the respondent, Brenner Paper Manufacturing, Inc., a corporation, its officers, agents, representatives or employees, in connection with the printing or the converting of paper or the imprinting thereon, forms and panels in preparation for use in printing announcements or in the sale or offering for sale or distribution of such products in interstate commerce, do cease and desist from:

Using a corporate name containing the word "manufacturing" or from representing by any other means that the respondent is a paper manufacturer, or using the phrase "paper manufacturing", or publishing in any manner statements conveying the impression that respondent or any of its officers, agents or employees on behalf of respondent is engaged in the paper manufacturing business or that products of said respondent are manufactured on the premises of respondent, unless and until said respondent actually manufactures the paper it sells or offers for sale or owns or absolutely controls a mill, mills, factory or factories in which such paper is manufactured.

It is further ordered, That the said respondent within 60 days from the date of the service upon it of this order shall file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it is complying and has complied with the order to cease and desist hereinabove set forth.

Paragraph 1. Respondent The Linen Supply Association of the District of Columbia is a voluntary trade association with its place of business within the District of Columbia. Its officers are, and for some time past have been, William Stanley Taylor, President, Edward O. Craig, Judge Advocate and Treasurer, and George N. Walker, Secretary. Eilbeck under the trade name Keep Clean Coat & Apron Supply; respondent Robert L. Cosgriff under the trade name Penn Coat & Apron Supply; and respondent Angelo Papachrist under the trade name Quick Service Laundry Company.

Par. 5. At all times hereinafter mentioned all of the respondents named in paragraphs 2, 3, and 4 hereof had their respective places of business in the District of Columbia, except Standard Linen Supply & Laundry Company, whose place of business has been at Rosslyn, Va., and all were engaged in the business of supplying, for a consideration, to individuals, firms, and corporations, with places of business within the District of Columbia and in nearby Virginia and Maryland, linen coats, trousers, aprons, frocks, towels, and table and other linens, and at intervals taking up the soiled clothing, towels and linens and substituting fresh, clean ones. Thereby said respondents created and maintained a constant stream of commerce within the District of Columbia and between the District of Columbia and the States of Maryland and Virginia. Respondents did and do about ninety-eight percent of the linen supply business in the area above outlined.

Par. 6. At three certain meetings held, respectively, on April 12th, May 13th, and May 18th, of 1933, the respondents named in paragraphs 2 and 3 hereof entered into a combination and conspiracy with the aim and for the purpose of suppressing and preventing all competition among themselves and with and among all persons, firms, and corporations engaged in the linen supply business, described in paragraph 5 hereof, in the District of Columbia and nearby Maryland and Virginia. Thereafter, and, respectively, in June, July, and August, of 1933, the respondents named in paragraph 4 hereof entered into and joined said combination and conspiracy and thereafter cooperated among themselves and with the other respondents to carry on and accomplish the aims and purposes of said combination and conspiracy.

Par. 7. (1) Organized respondent trade association and sought to bring into membership all persons, firms, and corporations engaged in the linen supply business in the District of Columbia and nearby Maryland and Virginia.

(2) Provided for, and elected or otherwise designated, among other officers a president, a judge advocate-treasurer, an arbitration committee and a cost finding committee. It was and is the duty of the president to preside at meetings of the Association and of the directors and to appoint all committees; of the board of directors to act on such matters as may be referred to it by the Association and make recommendations to further the objects of the Association; of the arbitration committee to hear and adjust disputes among the members; and of the judge advocate to entertain and decide appeals from decisions of the arbitration committee. It was and is the duty of the cost finding committee to arrange price schedules and recommend them to the Association for adoption.

(3) Adopted schedules of prices to be charged for their said linen supplies, and disseminated the price list among the members. The members regularly adhered to and used such price lists in the conduct of their business.

(4) Agreed that no member of the Association would solicit the customers of another member nor quote them prices lower than those at the time being quoted them by the member supplying them. When there was a dispute as to which of two or more contending members was entitled to claim a certain customer, the matter was referred to the arbitration committee and after final decision the unsuccessful contender must refrain from competing for that customer's business.

(5) Agreed upon prices to be bid where competitive bids were called for by a user or prospective user of respondents' linen supplies.

(6) Where a member successfully solicited a customer of another member or otherwise interfered between them, or violated the rules or agreements above set forth, complaint was made to the secretary, who in turn referred the matter to the arbitration committee. The decision of the committee, or of the judge advocate, if on appeal, was enforced by a fine or by judgment of restitution or compensation to the aggrieved member.

(7) Used other and similar methods and means designed to suppress and prevent competition among those engaged in the linen supply business in the area hereinabove outlined.

Par. 8. The combination and conspiracy so entered into and carried on by said respondents and the acts and things done thereunder and pursuant thereto, as hereinabove alleged, resulted and results in the suppression and prevention of competition between and among them and in the enhancement of prices to the using public; and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Act of Congress above entitled, and is to the prejudice and injury of the public, in that the public is and has been deprived of the benefits of competition that otherwise would have existed and would exist in such industry and trade.

(f) The secretary compiled lists of such uniform prices, discounts, terms, and conditions, and supplied a copy thereof to each member of the association;

(g) Respondent members agreed upon, and did allocate customers to the members, and otherwise controlled the business of individual respondents;

(h) Respondent members agreed not to, and in pursuance of such an agreement obligated themselves not to solicit the business or acquire a customer of another member except by and with the consent of the member then serving the customer;

rules and regulations of the respondent association which has been agreed upon by the respondent members of the respondent Linen Supply Association of the District of Columbia.

Par. 8. The effect and result of said combination, and the acts and things done by respondents to carry out and effectuate the same, as hereinbefore set out, has been and now is to suppress competition in the supplying, furnishing, and distribution of linen coats, trousers, aprons, frocks, towels, and table and other linens in the District of Columbia and in the nearby States of Virginia and Maryland; to hinder and obstruct the free flow of said products in the channels of commerce, and to deny to dealers in and consumers of said products in the District of Columbia and the aforesaid States, those advantages in price and otherwise which they would obtain under conditions of normal and unobstructed competition, in the absence of the above alleged acts and practices of respondents.

Conclusion

The practices of said respondents, under the conditions and circumstances stated in the foregoing findings, are to the prejudice of the public and of respondents' competitors, and are unfair methods of competition, and constitute a violation of the Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

COMPLAINT AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Consent order requiring respondent, its officers, etc., in connection with the advertisement, offer for sale, and sale in interstate commerce of household or other furniture, to cease and desist from—

(a) Advertising or in any other way representing, directly or by implication, that articles of furniture made or sold by it and not made from wood derived from trees of the genus Swietenia of the Meliaceae family, otherwise known as Mahogany, are "Mahogany" or "Mah";

(c) Using word "walnut", either independently or in connection or conjunction with word "oriental", or with any other word or words, in its advertising matter of whatever character, so as to represent, import, imply, or have capacity or tendency to confuse, mislead or deceive purchasers into belief that said articles of furniture are made, either in whole or in part, from wood derived from trees of the Walnut or Juglandaceae family, when such is not the fact.

Mr. T. H. Kennedy for the Commission.

Complaint

Paragraph 1. Respondent is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of North Carolina, with its principal place of business at Thomasville in the State of North Carolina. Respondent is now and for a number of years last past has been engaged in the manufacture of a general line of bedroom and dining room furniture and to some extent of other miscellaneous furniture lines and in the sale and distribution of said products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States. In the course of its said business, respondent has at all times herein referred to, used and does now use the name of Finch Furniture Company along with its own corporate name in consummating its business transactions. Said Finch Furniture Company is a fictitious name applied by respondent to one of the divisions or departments of respondent's business. Respondent causes its said products when so sold to be transported from its said place of business in Thomasville, N. C., or other State of origin into and through other States of the United States to purchasers of said products. Respondent's customers are wholesale furniture dealers, furniture jobbers, and retail furniture dealers. In the course and conduct of its said business, respondent is in competition with other individuals, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of similar products in commerce between and among various States of the United States.

Par. 2. In connection with and in the conduct of its said business, respondent caused advertising matter, statements, invoices and other writings to be distributed in interstate commerce among its customers and prospective customers situated in States other than the State of origin of such distribution, in which said writings certain of its products were represented, designated and referred to as "Solid Mahogany" and as "Mahogany" while other products were represented and designated as "Oriental Walnut" and "Walnut." Invoices listed said products as "Mah." or as "Wal." and which products so advertised and invoiced were sold and shipped in interstate commerce; when in truth and in fact (a) said products designated "Mahogany" or "Mah." were made of woods other than Mahogany wood and (b) said products designated "Walnut" or "Wal." were made of woods other than walnut wood.

Par. 3. By means of said designations and descriptions of its said products as set forth in paragraph 2 hereof, respondent places in the hands of respondent's customers the means whereby said respondent's customers may commit a deception and fraud upon the purchasing public by enabling said respondent's customers to represent that said products are made of mahogany wood or of walnut wood respectively and display respondent's said designations and descriptions as evidence and confirmation of the truth of said representations. The aforesaid representations made by respondent have had the capacity and tendency to cause said respondent's customers to resell said products as and for furniture made of mahogany wood or walnut wood and thus eventually cause the purchasing public to purchase said products made of woods other than mahogany or of woods other than walnut in the belief that the articles so purchased are made of mahogany wood or walnut wood respectively.

Par. 4. There were and are among the competitors of said respondent, Thomasville Chair Company, many who have dealt in and sold and who deal in and sell similar products to those herein referred to made of mahogany or of walnut who have rightfully and truthfully represented and who rightfully and truthfully represent their said products to be made of mahogany or walnut wood respectively and the above alleged acts and practices of the said respondent have tended to and do tend to divert and have diverted and do divert business from and have tended to and do tend otherwise to prejudice and injure said competitors; and there were and are among the competitors of said respondent many who have dealt in and sold and who deal in and sell similar products to those herein referred to not made of mahogany wood or walnut wood respectively and who have rightfully and truthfully represented and who rightfully and truthfully represent said products not to be made of mahogany wood or walnut wood respectively; and the above alleged acts and practices of said respondent have tended to and do tend to divert and have diverted and do divert business from and have tended to and do tend to otherwise prejudice and injure said competitors.

Par. 5. The above alleged acts and practices of respondent have been and are all to the prejudice of the public and competitors of said respondent and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5, of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having come on for final hearing by the Federal Trade Commission upon respondent's answer waiving all further procedure and consenting that the Commission may make, enter and serve upon it an order to cease and desist from the unfair methods of competition charged in the complaint, and the Commission being fully advised in the premises,

It is now ordered, That the respondent, Thomasville Chair Company, a corporation, its officers, agents, representatives, and employees, in connection with the advertising, offering for sale, and sale in interstate commerce of household or other furniture, cease and desist from:
Order

(1) Advertising or in any way otherwise representing, directly or by implication, by advertisements, advertising literature, invoices, stickers attached to the articles of furniture, or in any manner or by any means whatsoever, that articles of furniture manufactured or sold by the respondent and not made from wood derived from trees of the genus Swietenia of the Meliaceae family, otherwise known as mahogany, are "Mahogany" or "Mah."

(2) Advertising or in any way otherwise representing, directly or by implication, by advertisements, advertising literature, invoices, stickers attached to the articles of furniture, or in any manner or by any means whatsoever that articles of furniture manufactured or sold by the respondent and not made from wood derived from the genus Juglans, of the tree family known as walnut or Juglandaceae, are "walnut" or "oriental walnut."

(3) Using the word "walnut" either independently or in connection or conjunction with the word "oriental", or with any other word or words, in its advertising matter of whatever character, so as to represent, import, imply, or have the capacity or tendency to confuse, mislead or deceive purchasers into the belief that said articles of furniture are manufactured, either in whole or in part, from wood derived from trees of the walnut or Juglandaceae family, when such is not the fact.

It is further ordered, That respondent, Thomasville Chair Company, shall, within 60 days from the date of service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth the manner and form in which it has complied with the order herein set forth.
IN THE MATTER OF

JOSEPH M. GUERRA, TRADING AS BENTON NOVOGRAPH COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Where an individual, engaged in printing invitations, announcements, calling cards, and other social and business stationery by a process in which the letters or designs were type printed thereon and thereafter "raised" by embossing—

Used words "engraving" and "engravers" in describing his products in newspaper and periodical advertisements circulated throughout the several States, and in circulars, sample books, etc., through such statements as "plate engraved", "Benton engraving is produced by an exclusive method", etc., "Plate engraved on fine velum", "There is no substitute for plate engraving", "Of course, you will not be content with anything less than genuine plate engraving", etc., and "exclusive engravers", in referring to his business or trade name;

The facts being he neither owned, nor operated an "engraving" company, and was not engaged in the business of engraving, or producing engraved stationery, and letters, etc., upon products in question had not been produced by application of the paper to inked plates upon which the words or designs had been cut or incised by hand, machine, etching, or other means below the surface thereof, as understood by trade and public as involved in the much more costly engraving preferred by many;

With effect of misleading and deceiving a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that he owned or operated an "engraving" company and was engaged in the business of producing and selling engraved stationery, and that the letters or designs upon his said stationery were genuine engraving as known to trade and public generally, and with capacity and tendency so to do, and with result that a substantial volume of his said products was purchased by the consuming public, and trade, to a substantial extent, was diverted from competitors, including those who truthfully represent themselves as producers of and dealers in genuine engraved stationery, and those who manufacture business and social stationery without in any manner representing themselves as manufacturers of or dealers in "engraved" products, to the substantial injury of competition in commerce, and use of words "engraving", "engraved", or "engravers" in his advertising literature, as above set forth, placed in the hands of unscrupulous agents and representatives the means of misleading and deceiving customers in the aforesaid respects and causing purchase of substantial quantities of such products as a result of said erroneous beliefs:

Held, That such acts and practices were all to the prejudice of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition,
Before Mr. John W. Addison, trial examiner.

Mr. J. T. Welch for the Commission.

Mr. Carlton A. Fisher, of Buffalo, N. Y., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Joseph M. Guerra, is an individual who is now, and has been at all times mentioned herein, doing business under the trade name and style of Benton Novograph Company, at 16 East Tupper Street, Buffalo, State of New York. Respondent is now, and has been, engaged in the business of printing, by a special process, stationery for social and business purposes, including invitations, announcements, calling cards, letterheads, envelopes, and similar products, and in selling said products in commerce, as herein set out.

Par. 2. Said respondent, being engaged in business as aforesaid, causes said stationery so printed, when sold, to be transported from his principal office and place of business in the State of New York to the purchasers thereof located in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and there is now, and has been at all times mentioned herein, a constant current of trade and commerce in said stationery so printed or produced and sold by respondent, between and among the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia.

Par. 3. In the course and conduct of his said business, respondent is now, and has been, in substantial competition with other individuals, firms and corporations likewise engaged in the business of printing and selling stationery for social and business purposes as herein set out, in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and particularly with individuals, firms and corporations engaged in the business of engraving and selling engraved stationery for social and business purposes in commerce between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 4. In the course of the operation of said business, and for the purpose of inducing individuals, firms and corporations to purchase said stationery products, respondent has, from time to time, caused advertisements to be inserted in newspapers and magazines of general circulation throughout the United States, and has printed and circulated throughout the several States to customers and prospective customers, through the United States mails, numbers of letters of solicitation, price lists, sample books, pamphlets, folders and other advertising literature, in which respondent has caused his trade name, Benton Novograph Company, to be prominently and conspicuously displayed, together with the statements:

2. Benton engraving is produced by an exclusive method which, combined with the volume of business enjoyed, brings the cost of genuine plate engraving down to a price comparable with that of "process", "relief", "thermograph", "raised lettering" or other imitation engraving.
3. Benton invitations and announcements are plate engraved on fine vellum.
4. There is no substitute for plate engraving.
5. The Benton Novograph Company unconditionally guarantees the invitations and announcements produced by them to be plate engraved on first quality vellum paper, exactly as shown. It guarantees that the engraving will be produced without error, strictly according to copy furnished.
7. The Benton Novograph Company, established 1824, makers of fine engraved stationery.
8. Of course you will not be content with anything less than genuine plate engraving.

All of said statements, together with similar statements purport to be descriptive of respondent's business and the products manufactured and sold by him. In the various catalogs, circulars and pamphlets distributed as aforesaid by the respondent, there appear nuumerous statements wherein the respondent refers to the process by which he prints letters, words and designs on stationery as a process of "engraving." In said catalogs, pamphlets and other circulars, as well as all other advertising literature used by him, respondent refers to the product manufactured by him as being "genuine plate engraving."

Par. 5. Respondent, in the course of his business, as described in paragraphs 1–4, inclusive, prints invitations, announcements, calling cards, letterheads, envelopes and social and business stationery by a process which is designated by him as "plate engraving", although such process is not the process used in producing genuinely engraved stationery. Respondent does not own or operate an "engraving" company, and respondent is not engaged in the business of "engraving". The letters, words or designs upon stationery products manufactured, offered for sale and sold by respondent, in the manner aforesaid, are not the result of "engraving" according to the trade and public understanding of the term. The process used by respondent is one whereby the letters, words or designs are type printed onto the stationery, and said letters, words or designs are then "bumped up" or "raised" by application, under pressure, of a specially prepared plate to the surface of the stationery. The letters, words or designs are photographed onto a specially prepared sensitized zinc plate and the plate is then treated with a chemical process. The plate, after said chemical treatment, with the letters, words or designs appearing thereon, is applied, under pressure, to the stationery product upon which the letters, words and designs have been previously type printed in such a way as to "bump up" or "raise" the letters on the stationery above the plane of the paper so as to closely resemble genuine engraved stationery in some of its characteristics.

Par. 6. The word "engraving", as it is used in the graphic arts, may be applied either to an engraved intaglio plate upon which letters, words, or designs have been incised or cut, or to impressions made from such a plate. Such plates are cut or incised by hand, by machine, by etching with acid, by a transfer from other engravings and by other means, but in all cases the letters, words, or designs so to be produced upon stationery are cut below the surface of the plate. To make impressions from such a plate the ink is applied, then the plate is wiped so that the ink remains only in the lines cut below the surface. The inked plate is then put upon a piece of stationery or article to be engraved and pressure is applied sufficient to force the surface of the stationery into the lines cut in the plate, causing the ink in such lines to adhere to the paper on which the impression is to be made.

Par. 7. The words "engraving" and "engraved", when used in connection with, or descriptive of, business or social stationery, mean, and the trade and consuming public understand, and for many years have understood, them to mean that the stationery products, so being referred to or described, contain letters, words or designs which are raised from the general plane of the stationery surface, and are in relief, and are the result of the application, under pressure, of metal plates which have been specially engraved, cut or carved for, and are used in, the production of such stationery by the process more particularly detailed herein in paragraph 6.
PAR. 8. The cost of producing genuine engraved stationery greatly exceeds the cost of producing stationery of like stock, grade or character produced by the process employed by the respondent, as set out herein, and a substantial portion of the purchasing public has indicated, and has, a decided preference for engraved stationery over stationery produced by respondent's process or any similar process.

PAR. 9. The use by respondent of the words "engraving", "plate engraved", "plate engraving", "engraved", or "engravers", as set out in paragraph 4 hereof, either in describing his product or designating his business, in his advertisements in newspapers and magazines, circular letters of solicitation, catalogs, price lists, sample books, pamphlets, folders and other advertising literature, and in his general business correspondence, in offering for sale or selling his stationery products, was and is calculated to, and had and now has the tendency and capacity to, and did and now does mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that respondent owns or operates an "engraving" company, and that respondent is in the business of producing and selling "engraved" or "plate engraved" stationery, and that the letters, words or designs contained upon the said stationery offered for sale and sold by the respondent were and are "engraved" or "plate engraved", and are the result of the engraving process described in paragraph 6. Further, the use of the words "engraved", "engraving", "plate engraving", "plate engraved" or "engravers" in said advertising literature hereinabove referred to, especially in the catalogs, sample books, pamphlets, folders and price lists, and the placing of said advertising literature, containing said words, in the hands of agents, representatives and dealers, enables unscrupulous agents, representatives and dealers to mislead and deceive customers into the erroneous belief that respondent owns and operates an "engraving" company; and is engaged in the business of producing and selling "engraved" stationery products and that the stationery products offered for sale and sold by respondent are "engraved" products. As a direct consequence of the mistaken and erroneous beliefs, induced by the acts, advertisements and representations of respondent, as hereinabove detailed, a substantial number of the consuming public has purchased a substantial volume of respondent's stationery products, with the result that substantial injury has been done to substantial competition in commerce among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 10. There are among respondent's competitors, many who produce "engraved" stationery products which are designed and intended for business and social purposes, and who sell such "engraved" stationery products, when so produced, and transport them or cause them to be transported, to, into and through other States of the United States, to the purchasers thereof at their respective points of location; there are others among respondent's competitors who manufacture and sell in commerce as aforesaid, stationery products designed and intended for business and social purposes, but who do not manufacture or sell "engraved" stationery products and who do not, by any means or in any manner, hold themselves out, or represent themselves to be manufacturers of, or dealers in, "engraved" stationery products; and the alleged acts, practices and representations of the respondent divert a substantial volume of trade from, and otherwise prejudice and injure a substantial number of said competitors.

Par. 11. The above and foregoing acts, practices and representations of the respondent have been, and are, all to the prejudice of the public and respondent's competitors as aforesaid, and have been, and are, unfair methods of competition within the meaning and intent of Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes".

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission, on June 27, 1935, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent Joseph M. Guerra, trading as Benton Novograph Company, charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint, and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, testimony and evidence, in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by J. T. Welch, attorney for the Commission, before John W. Addison, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and in defense of the allegations of the complaint by Carlton A. Fisher, attorney for the respondent; and said testimony and evidence was duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and evidence, briefs in support of the complaint and in defense thereto; and the Commission having duly considered the same, and being fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Joseph M. Guerra, is an individual who is now, and has been for a number of years past, doing business at 16 E. Tupper Street in the city of Buffalo, State of New York, under the trade name and style of Benton Novograph Company. Respondent is now, and has been, engaged in the business of printing stationery for social and business purposes, including invitations, announcements, calling cards, letterheads, envelopes, and similar products.

Par. 2. Since the date of his commencement in business, the respondent has caused the stationery products printed by him, when sold, to be transported from his principal office and place of business in the State of New York to the purchasers thereof located in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. There is now, and has been, a constant current of trade and commerce in said stationery so printed or produced and sold by the respondent between and among the various States of the United States.

Par. 3. In the course and conduct of his business, respondent is now, and has been, in substantial competition with other individuals, firms, and corporations likewise engaged in the business of printing and selling stationery for social and business purposes in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and is particularly in substantial competition with individuals, firms, and corporations engaged in the business of engraving and selling engraved stationery for social and business purposes in commerce among and between the various States of the United States.

Par. 4. In the course of the operation of his business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of his stationery products, the respondent has caused advertisements to be inserted in newspapers and magazines of general circulation throughout the United States and has printed and circulated throughout the several States, through the United States mails, to customers and prospective customers, numbers of letters of solicitation, price lists, sample books, pamphlets, folders, and other advertising literature. In all of the literature above referred to the respondent has used the following expressions:

2. Benton engraving is produced by an exclusive method which, combined with the volume of business enjoyed, brings the cost of genuine plate engraving down to a price comparable with that of "process", "relief", "thermograph", "raised lettering" or other imitation engraving.
Findings

3. Benton invitations and announcements are plate engraved on fine vellum.

4. There is no substitute for plate engraving.

5. The Benton Novograph Company unconditionally guarantees the invitations and announcements produced by them to be plate engraved on fine quality vellum paper, exactly as shown. It guarantees that the engraving will be produced without error, strictly according to copy furnished.

7. The Benton Novograph Company, established 1924, makers of fine engraved stationery.

8. Of course you will not be content with anything less than genuine plate engraving.

All of said statements, together with other similar statements purport to be descriptive of respondent's business and products manufactured and sold by him. In the various catalogs and other literature distributed by the respondent, there appear numerous statements wherein the respondent refers to the process by which he prints letters, words, and designs on stationery as a process of engraving and refers to the product manufactured by him as being genuine plate engraving.

Par 5. The respondent prints invitations, announcements, calling cards, letterheads, envelopes, and other social and business stationery by a process in which the letters, words, or designs are type printed onto the stationery, and said letters, words, or designs are then "bumped up" or "raised" by an embossing process. The respondent does not own or operate an "engraving" company and is not engaged in the business of engraving or producing engraved stationery. The letters, words, or designs appearing upon stationery products manufactured and sold by the respondent are not the result of an engraving process according to the trade and public understanding of the term.

Par 6. The word "engraving", as it is used in the graphic arts, may be applied either to an engraved intaglio plate upon which letters, words, or designs have been incised or cut, or to impressions made from such a plate. Such plates are cut or incised by hand, by machine, by etching with acid, by a transfer from other engravings and by other means, but in all cases the letters, words or designs so to be produced upon stationery are cut below the surface of the plate. To make impressions from such a plate the ink is applied, then the plate is wiped so that the ink remains only in the lines cut below the surface. The inked plate is then put upon a piece of stationery or article to be engraved and pressure is applied sufficient to force the surface of the stationery into the lines cut in the plate, causing the ink in such lines to adhere to the paper on which the impression is to be made.

Par. 7. The words "engraving" and "engraved", when used in connection with, or descriptive of, business or social stationery, mean, and the trade and consuming public understand, and for many years have understood, them to mean that the stationery products, so being referred to or described, contain letters, words or designs which are raised from the general plane of the stationery surface, and are in relief, and are the result of the application, under pressure, of metal plates which have been specially engraved, cut or carved for, and are used in, the production of such stationery by the process more particularly detailed herein in paragraph 6.

Par. 8. The cost of producing genuine engraved stationery greatly exceeds the cost of producing stationery of like stock, grade or character produced by the process employed by the respondent, as set out herein, and a substantial portion of the purchasing public has indicated, and has, a decided preference for engraved stationery over stationery produced by respondent's process or any similar process.

Par. 9. There are among respondent's competitors, many who produce "engraved" stationery products which are designed and intended for business and social purposes, and who sell such "engraved" stationery products when so produced, and transport them or cause them to be transported to, into, and through other States of the United States, to the purchasers thereof at their respective points of location and who truthfully represent such products to be produced by the engraving process as known to the trade and public generally; there are others among respondent's competitors who manufacture and sell in commerce as aforesaid, stationery products designed and intended for business and social purposes, but who do not manufacture or sell "engraved" stationery products and who do not, by any means or in any manner, hold themselves out, or represent themselves to be manufacturers of, or dealers in, "engraved" stationery products; and the alleged acts, practices and representations of the respondent divert a substantial volume of trade from, and otherwise prejudice and injure a substantial number of said competitors.

Par. 10. The use by the respondent of the words "engraving", "engraved", and "engravers", or any combination of words containing the aforementioned words, either in describing his product or in designating his business in the various advertisements, catalogs, and other advertising literature, or in his general business correspondence, was calculated to and has the tendency and capacity to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchas-
Order

The acts and practices of the respondent are each and all to the prejudice of the public, and to the competitors of respondent, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes".

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondent, testimony and evidence taken before John W. Addison, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the charges of said complaint and in opposition thereto, briefs filed herein, and the Commission, having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes",

Now, therefore, it is hereby ordered, That the respondent Joseph M. Guerra, trading and doing business as Benton Novograph Company, his agents, representatives, and employees, in connection with the distribution, offering for sale, and sale of stationery products, in commerce among and between the several States of the United States and the District of Columbia, forthwith cease and desist from:

Using the words "engraved", "engraving", and "engravers", either alone or in conjunction with any other word, or words, in his advertisements and advertising literature, catalogs and general business correspondence distributed or displayed to the public in the several States of the United States, to designate or describe the business conducted by him, or the stationery products manufactured and sold by him, on which the lettering, inscriptions, or designs have been printed from inked typed faces, electrotypes, or similar devices, and which lettering, inscriptions, or designs have been given a raised letter effect by an embossing process wherein the plates used have not been previously inked so as to make an inked impression on the paper stock at the same time the embossing impression is made, or to designate or describe stationery manufactured and sold by him which does not have printed thereon inked impressions from engraved plates or dies.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall within 60 days after the service of this order file with the Federal Trade Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with the order to cease and desist.
IN THE MATTER OF

THE GENERAL IMPLEMENT COMPANY OF AMERICA, INC., AND THE GENERAL IMPLEMENT MANUFACTURING COMPANY, INC.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Where a corporation organized in February, 1932, and its subsequently incorporated subsidiary, together engaged in the assembling, repairing and repainting of a limited number of farm implements and tools at a plant acquired by it, and in the sale as new of said articles, bought in said year in liquidation proceedings of a concern, the products of which, made thereby for some fifty years, had become well and favorably known under their brand or trade name prior to its bankruptcy, and prior to new company's subsequent continuance of said concern's business under same corporate name, at same location, and under same aforesaid brand or trade name, after purchase, in said year, of its plant, equipment, patents, trade marks, and good will—

(a) Depicted a factory on the first page of its early 1932 catalog, with the statement that its line of farm implements was made therein, and represented in its catalogs that its "Combined Soil Fitter" line had been made for the past twenty years, that its engineers had been experimenting on depth regulators for rotary hoes, and that it maintained an engineering staff engaged in constantly trying out and testing improvements on fitting tools, facts being no implements, excepting manure spreaders, were made at said plant prior to early 1934, said "Soil Fitter" line, excepting a combined Soil Fitter tool, had not been made for the past twenty years, or at all prior to the aforesaid year, and its representations respecting its engineering staff and their activities were grossly exaggerated and misleading;

(b) Represented in catalogs, pamphlets, price lists, and other advertising literature that the purchaser would find its "Soil Fitter" line the most complete line of such tools made, and that because of such fact and their rigid inspection in manufacturing, dealers in such tools would be given the finest line thereof obtainable, and that it would further furnish from its Indiana factory all repair parts for use with tools listed on its special price sheet, facts being that its said line was not the most complete line of such products made, it did not give them the most rigid inspection in manufacturing, and it was only in a position to furnish repair parts, prior to early 1934, from its aforesaid factory or plant by taking apart the finished tools;

(c) Set forth in their advertising literature purported testimonial letters expressing writers' experience and satisfaction with their said products through such statements as "I purchased one of your general spreaders and I am certainly pleased in every respect," etc., and "Spreader is doing fine. I could not ask for any better service," etc., facts being said testimonials were not given in endorsement of tools and implements made by said corporation or its subsidiary, but of the implements and tools of the old concern, hereinbefore referred to, which had been purchased in the aforesaid liquidation proceedings, and said testimonial letters, referring to the products of the aforesaid old concern, had been altered and changed without the consent or authorization of the writers, so as to make them appear to be endorsements of the said "Soil Fitter" line; and

(d) Represented through salesmen and agents employed to interview and solicit the trade and prospective customers in various States, that they had acquired some of the assets of the aforesaid old concern and would continue to manufacture repair parts and replacements for said concern's farm tools and implements, and that said concern had become bankrupt and could not continue in business, facts being they had not acquired its assets, did not own the patents under which its said line of implements and tools were made, and could not continue to manufacture said old concern's full line of such products, together with repair parts and replacements;

With capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive the purchasing public into the belief that such representations were true and to induce purchase from them of their products in such erroneous belief, and with result that trade was thereby unfairly diverted by them from competitors, who truthfully advertise and represent their products, to the substantial injury of substantial competition in interstate commerce:

Held, That such practices, under the conditions and circumstances set forth, were to the prejudice of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. John W. Bennett, trial examiner.

Mr. Joseph O. Fehr for the Commission.

Bloomfield, Orr & Vickery, of Cleveland, Ohio, for respondents.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that The General Implement Company of America, Inc., a corporation, and The General Implement Manufacturing Company, Inc., a subsidiary corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondents, have been and are using unfair methods of competition in commerce as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. The General Implement Company of America, Inc., is a corporation organized in February, 1932, under the laws of the State of Ohio, and has its principal place of business located in the city of Cleveland in the State of Ohio. It has been engaged in the sale and distribution of farm implements and tools in interstate commodity from its place of business in Ohio, or from the plant located at Liberty, Ind., over which it acquired control in March, 1934. In July, 1933, said The General Implement Company of America, Inc., incorporated, under the laws of the State of Indiana, a subsidiary company, to wit, The General Implement Manufacturing Company, Inc., which said subsidiary company acquired title to a manufacturing plant at Liberty, Ind., and, subject to the ownership and control of the aforementioned The General Implement Company of America, Inc., has been engaged in the manufacture of manure spreaders but more particularly, engaged in the business of assembling, repairing and repainting a limited number of farm implements and tools purchased by The General Implement Company of America, Inc., at the bankrupt sale of the "old" Dunham Company which for a long time past had been engaged in the manufacture, sale and distribution of farm implements and tools, and which products so assembled, repaired and repainted, said corporation sold in interstate commerce. In the course and conduct of said business, the said respondents were and are in competition with other individuals, partnerships, firms and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution in interstate commerce of like and similar products to those sold and distributed in interstate commerce by the respondents.

Par. 2. The Dunham Company (hereinafter referred to as the "new" Dunham Company) is a corporation with its principal place of business and factory located at Berea, a suburb of the city of Cleveland, State of Ohio. It was organized in January, 1932, to acquire, and it did then acquire, the plant, factory, equipment, goodwill and all of the patents and trade marks theretofore owned by a corporation of the same name (hereinafter referred to as the "old" Dunham Company), but which was declared bankrupt in July, 1931. The "old" Dunham Company had been engaged in the manufacture of farm implements for a period of approximately 50 years, and for the whole of that period had been located in the city of Berea, in the State of Ohio. The farm tools manufactured by the "old" Dunham Company were sold and shipped in interstate commerce into the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia, under the registered trade mark of "Culti." "Culti" was a prefix used in conjunction with the hyphenated name of the particular farm implements or tools to which it was applied, as for instance, "Culti-Hoe", "Culti-Packer", and "Culti-Spreader." Under this name the products of the "old" Dunham Company became well and favorably known throughout the United States as the products of one of the foremost manufacturers of farm implements and tools. The "new" Dunham Company, since its purchase of the plant, equipment, patents, trade marks and good will of the "old" Dunham Company, has continued the said business as a manufacturer of farm tools and implements in the city of Berea, in the State of Ohio, selling the farm implements and tools in interstate commerce under the trade name "Culti."

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of its business, The General Implement Company of America, Inc., purchased at a bankruptcy sale, in August, 1932, the bankrupt stock of farm implements and tools which had been manufactured by the "old" Dunham Company. On or about the date of its incorporation, to wit, February, 1932, and in anticipation of the said purchase of said bankrupt stock of farm implements and tools manufactured by the "old" Dunham Company, said The General Implement Company of America, Inc., caused advertisements to be inserted in newspapers and magazines of general and wide circulation, and advertising matter in the form of literature, pamphlets, price lists, and other printed literature, to be distributed in interstate commerce. Said The General Implement Company of America, Inc., held itself out in said advertisements, catalogues, pamphlets, price lists, and other literature as the manufacturer of a complete line of farm implements and tools under the trade name "SOIL FITTER", and at the same time, said The General Implement Company of America, Inc., informed the trade that it could service and repair the "old" Dunham implements at its factory located at the city of Liberty, in the State of Indiana. In truth and in fact, the representations made by The General Implement Company of America, Inc., through advertisements, catalogues, price lists, pamphlets, and other literature were false and untrue, in that they were not manufacturers of a complete line of farm implements and tools under the trade name "SOIL FITTER", and further, in that they did not have facilities for servicing and repairing completely the line of farm implements and tools purchased at the bankrupt sale of the "old" Dunham Company.

PAR. 4. Further, in catalogues, pamphlets, price lists and other advertising literature, said The General Implement Company of America, Inc., made the following representations:

(1) We will furnish all repair parts for use with the tools listed on this special price sheet from our Indiana factory.
(2) You will find the "SOIL FITTER" line the most complete line of these tools manufactured.
(3) It will be our policy to manufacture the "SOIL FITTER" line of farm tools under the most favorable conditions.
(4) We shall employ competent labor, thereby insuring the highest quality of products.
(5) These principles, together with the most rigid inspection in the manufacture, will give our dealers the finest line of Soil Fitting tools obtainable.

(6) We are in a position to take care immediately of any of our dealers' requirements.

In truth and in fact, none of the above representations made by said The General Implement Company of America, Inc., are true, but, to the contrary, they are untrue, false and misleading, in that:

1. They do not furnish all repair parts for use with the tools and implements listed on the special price sheet from their alleged Indiana factory;

2. The so-called "SOIL FITTER" line is not the most complete line of farm implements and tools manufactured;

3. It is not their policy to manufacture the "SOIL FITTER" line of farm tools under the most favorable conditions;

4. They do not employ competent labor, thereby insuring the highest quality of products;

5. They do not follow the above enumerated principles nor the most rigid inspection in order to give their so-called dealers the finest line of Soil Fitting tools obtainable;

6. They would not be, nor were they, in a position to take care immediately of any of their so-called dealers' requirements.

Par. 5. (1) The General Implement Company of America, Inc., on the first page of its catalogue, pictures its factory with the statement:

"General 'SOIL FITTER' farm implements are manufactured in the above factory located at Liberty, Indiana."

In truth and in fact, with the exception of the manure spreaders, no farm implements were or are manufactured in the factory located at Liberty, Ind.

(2) Said The General Implement Company of America, Inc., also represented in its catalogues that the "Combined SOIL FITTER had been made for the past 20 years". In truth and in fact, the SOIL FITTER line of farm implements and tools had not been manufactured for 20 years, but had been manufactured for less than three years.

(3) A further representation by The General Implement Company of America, Inc., is, that, "For some time past, our engineers have been experimenting on depth regulators on rotary hoes. Our engineering staff is constantly trying out and testing improvements on farm tools." In truth and in fact, no experimental work had been conducted with depth regulators on rotary hoes, and further, in truth and in fact, the said respondents do not maintain an engineering staff.

Par. 6. In the advertising literature of the respondents, The General Implement Company of America, Inc., and The General Implement Manufacturing Company, Inc., appeared what are purported to be various and sundry testimonial letters, of which the following are representative, with respect to the products of the respondents:

"Nappanee, Ind., November 1, 1932.

The General Implement Co.,
Cleveland, Ohio.

Gentlemen: I purchased one of your General Spreaders and am certainly pleased in every respect. I have used several different kinds of spreaders, none of which suited me like the one I now own. Your extra wide wheels and large rollers bearings make the lightest draft Spreader I ever put team to. I now can unload the heaviest manure with two horses. Think that, by having roller bearings on both ends of deflector as well as main beter has a lot to do with the draft. All in all, I find it a mighty well built Spreader and would recommend it to anyone.

Sincerely yours,

Franklin Hoover."

"Carlton, Pa.

Gentlemen: Spreader is doing fine. I could not ask for any better service. In snow, ice and mud, under all conditions, it works perfectly with a very light draft under full load. I am well pleased.

Yours truly,

Wm. Saxon."

In truth and in fact, the above-quoted testimonials were not given in indorsement of the products of The General Implement Company of America, Inc., and its subsidiary, The General Implement Manufacturing Company, Inc., but were given in indorsement of the farm implements and tools manufactured by the "old" Dunham Company. Further, in truth and in fact, the said purported testimonials were taken from documents prepared by the writers thereof in connection with the farm implements and tools manufactured by the "old" Dunham Company, which said statements had been so altered and changed without the knowledge, consent or authorization of the writers of the said testimonial letters, as to make them appear to be indorsements of the "SOIL FITTER" line of farm implements and tools sold and distributed by the respondents.

Par. 7. In furtherance of its solicitation for sale and selling of its products in interstate commerce, said The General Implement Company of America, Inc., employs and employed salesmen and agents to interview and solicit the trade and prospective customers in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and to which trade and prospective customers the said salesmen and agents make and made statements and representations as follows:

(1) That The General Implement Company, Inc., and its subsidiary, The General Implement Manufacturing Company, Inc., had acquired all of the assets of the "old" Dunham Company, and owned all of the patents under which the "old" Dunham Company line of farm implements and tools were manufactured.
(2) That the said American Implement Company of America, Inc., and its subsidiary, the General Implement Manufacturing Company, Inc., would continue to manufacture the full line of "old" Dunham Company implements and tools, together with repair parts and replacements.

(3) That the "old" Dunham Company and the "new" Dunham Company had failed and could not continue in business.

In truth and in fact, none of the above representations made by the salesmen and agents of The General Implement Company of America, Inc., and its subsidiary, The General Implement Manufacturing Company, Inc., were true, but, to the contrary, they were untrue, false and misleading, in that:

(1) They had not acquired all of the assets of the "old" Dunham Company and did not own all the patents under which the "old" Dunham Company line of farm implements and tools were manufactured;

(2) Would not and could not continue to manufacture the full line of the "old" Dunham Company implements and tools, together with repair parts and replacements;

(3) The "new" Dunham Company had not failed and it could, did and does continue in business.

PAR. 8. There are, among the competitors of respondents, individuals, partnerships, firms, and corporations engaged in the manufacture, sale and distribution of like and similar products to those of the respondents in and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia which said individuals, partnerships, firms, and corporations truthfully and honestly represent their said products. The false and misleading representations made by respondents, as hereinbefore set forth, have the tendency and capacity to and do divert trade to respondents from those individuals, partnerships, firms, and corporations who truthfully and honestly advertise, sell, and distribute like and similar products to those of the respondents, in and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

The above alleged acts and things done by respondents are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and the competitors of the respondents in interstate commerce and constitute unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled, "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION DECISIONS

Findings

the Federal Trade Commission, on the 15th day of August, A. D., 1935, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondents, The General Implement Company of America, Inc., a corporation, and The General Implement Manufacturing Company, Inc., its subsidiary, charging them and each of them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of said respondents’ respective answers a stipulation as to the facts was entered into between the respondents and this Commission, subject to its approval, through its trial attorney in charge of this proceeding, Joseph C. Fehr, which was received into the record at the hearing held in Cleveland, Ohio, on November 5, 1935, presided over by Trial Examiner John W. Bennett (which said stipulation is hereby approved by this Commission), in and by which stipulation it was agreed that the statement of facts contained therein might be taken as the facts in this proceeding and in lieu of testimony in support of the charges stated in the complaint or in opposition thereto; and in which stipulation it was provided that the Commission might proceed upon said statement of facts to make its report stating its findings as to the facts (including inferences which it might draw from the said stipulated facts) and its conclusion based thereon and enter its order disposing of the proceedings without the presentations of arguments or the filing of briefs. Thereafter, by order of the trial examiner, the case was closed and the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, the answers thereto, and the said stipulation as to the facts; and the Commission having duly considered the same, and being fully advised in the premises, finds this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. The General Implement Company of America, Inc., is a corporation organized in February, 1932, under the laws of the State of Ohio, and has its principal place of business located in the city of Cleveland in the State of Ohio. It has been engaged in the sale and distribution of farm implements and tools in interstate commerce from its place of business in Ohio, and from the plant located at Liberty, Ind., over which it first acquired control in January, 1933. In July, 1933, said The General Implement Manufacturing Company of America, Inc., incorporated under the laws of the State of Indiana, a subsidiary company of the aforesaid The General Implement Company of America, Inc., which said subsidiary company, The General Implement Manufacturing Company, Inc., acquired control of a manufacturing plant at Liberty, Ind., and, subject to the ownership and control of the aforementioned The General Implement Company of America, Inc., has been engaged in assembling, repairing, and repainting a limited number of farm implements and tools purchased by The General Implement Company of America, Inc., in the liquidation proceedings of the Standard Trust Bank of Cleveland, Ohio. These tools or implements were manufactured by the old Dunham Company, which for a long time past had been engaged in the manufacture, sale, and distribution of farm implements and tools, and which products respondents so assembled, repaired, and repainted were resold as new in interstate commerce. In the course and conduct of said business the said respondents were, and are, in competition with other individuals, partnerships, firms, and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution in interstate commerce of like and similar products to those sold and distributed in interstate commerce by respondents, to wit:

The International Harvester Company of Chicago, Ill.
John Deere Company of Cleveland, Ohio; Lansing, Mich., and Columbus, Ohio.
The Oliver Plow Company, Chicago, Ill.
The Ohio Cultivator Company, Bellevue, Ohio.
The New Idea Spreader Company, Cold Water, Ohio.
The Dunham Company, Berea, Ohio.

PAR. 2. The Dunham Company (hereinafter referred to as the “new” Dunham Company) is a corporation with its principal place of business and factory located at Berea, a suburb of the city of Cleveland, State of Ohio. The new Dunham Company was organized in January, 1932, to acquire, and it did then acquire, the plant, factory, equipment, good-will and all of the patents and trade marks theretofore owned by a corporation of the same name (hereinafter referred to as the “old” Dunham Company), but which was declared bankrupt in July, 1931. The “old” Dunham Company had been engaged in the manufacture of farm implements for a period of approximately 50 years, and for the whole of that period had been located in the city of Berea, in the State of Ohio. The farm tools manufactured by the “old” Dunham Company were sold and shipped in interstate commerce into the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia, under the registered trade name of “Culti.” “Culti” was a prefix used in conjunction with the hyphenated name of the particular farm implements or tools to which it was applied, as for instance, “Culti-Hoe”, “Culti-Packer” and “Culti-
Under this name the products of the "old" Dunham Company became well and favorably known throughout the United States as the products of one of the foremost manufacturers of farm implements and tools. The "new" Dunham Company, since its purchase of the plant, equipment, patents, trade marks and good-will of the "old" Dunham Company, has continued the said business as manufacturer of farm tools and implements in the city of Berea, in the State of Ohio, selling the farm implements and tools in interstate commerce under the trade name "Culti."

Par. 3. Respondent, The General Implement Company of America, Inc., purchased in August, 1932, by court order from the Standard Trust Bank of Cleveland, Ohio, the bankrupt stock of farm implements and tools which had been manufactured by the "old" Dunham Company in the liquidation proceedings of said company. On or about the date of its incorporation, to wit, February 1932, and in anticipation of the said purchase of said stock of farm implements and tools manufactured by the "old" Dunham Company, said The General Implement Company of America, Inc., caused advertisements to be inserted in newspapers and magazines of general and wide circulation, and other printed literature, to be distributed in interstate commerce. Said The General Implement Company of America, Inc., held itself out in said advertisements, catalogues, pamphlets, price lists, and other literature as the manufacturer of a complete line of farm implements and tools under the trade name "SOIL FITTER", and at the same time, said The General Implement Company of America, Inc., informed the trade that it could service and repair the "SOIL FITTER" implements at its factory located at the city of Liberty, in the State of Indiana. In fact, The General Implement Company of America, Inc., was only in a position to furnish repair parts up to January 1934, from the factory of its subsidiary at Liberty, Ind., by taking apart finished farm tools and furnishing such repair parts, and, in truth and in fact did not until January, 1934, begin manufacturing its line of farm implements and tools under the trade name "SOIL FITTER."

Par. 4. In its catalogues, pamphlets, price lists and other advertising literature, respondent, The General Implement Company of America, Inc., represented that it would furnish from its Indiana factory all repair parts for use with tools listed on a special price sheet; that the purchaser would find the "SOIL FITTER" line the most complete line of such tools manufactured, and that, because of said facts and because of their rigid inspection in manufacturing, dealers in "SOIL FITTER" tools would be given the finest line of such tools obtainable.
Respondent, The General Implement Company of America, Inc., does not furnish from its Indiana factory repair parts for use with the tools and implements listed on its special price sheet. The "SOIL FITTER" line of respondent is not the most complete line of farm implements and tools manufactured, and said respondent does not make the most rigid inspection in manufacturing its implements in order to give its dealers the finest line of such tools obtainable.

Par. 5. The General Implement Company of America, Inc., on the first page of its catalogue issued on March 1, 1932, pictures a factory with the following accompanying statement:

No farm implements were manufactured in said factory at Liberty, Ind., prior to January 1934, with the exception of manure spreaders. The General Implement Company of America, Inc., also has represented in its catalogues that the "combined 'SOIL FITTER'" line has been made for the past twenty years; whereas the "SOIL FITTER" line of farm implements and tools had not been manufactured either for twenty years or for any other period of time prior to January, 1934, although a combined soil fitter tool had been manufactured for some twenty years. Respondent, The General Implement Company of America, Inc., further represents that its engineers had been experimenting on depth regulators on rotary hoes and that it is maintaining an engineering staff in constantly trying out and testing improvements on farm tools, which said representations are grossly exaggerated and misleading.

Par. 6. In the advertising literature of the respondents, The General Implement Company of America, Inc., and The General Implement Manufacturing Company, Inc., appeared what are purported to be various and sundry testimonial letters, of which the following are representative:

"NAPPANEE, IND., November 1, 1932.

THE GENERAL IMPLEMENT CO.,

Cleveland, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN: I purchased one of your GENERAL SPREADERS and am certainly pleased in every respect. I have used several different kinds of spreaders, none of which suited me like the one I now own. Your extra wide wheels and large roller bearings make the lightest draft Spreader I ever put team to. I now can unload the heaviest manure with two horses. Think that, by having roller bearings on both ends of deflector as well as main beter has a lot to do with the draft. All in all, I find it a mighty well built Spreader and would recommend it to anyone.

Sincerely yours,

FRANKLIN HOOVER."
“CARLTON, PA.

GENTLEMEN: Spreader is doing fine. I could not ask for any better service. In snow, ice and mud, under all conditions it works perfectly with a very light draft under full load. I am well pleased.

Yours truly,

WM. SAXON.”

These testimonials were not given in indorsement of tools and implements manufactured by The General Implement Company of America, Inc., and or its subsidiary, The General Implement Manufacturing Company, Inc., but were given in indorsement of farm implements and tools manufactured by the “old” Dunham Company, and the Dunham Spreader Company, Liberty, Ind., which implements and tools had been purchased from the Standard Trust Bank in the liquidation proceedings of said bank by The General Implement Company of America, Inc., as set forth in paragraph 1 hereof.

The above-quoted letters purporting to be testimonials were, along with others, taken from documents prepared by the writers thereof in connection with the farm implements and tools manufactured by the “old” Dunham Company, which said statements had been so altered and changed without the knowledge, consent or authorization of the writers of the said testimonial letters, as to make them appear to be indorsements of the “SOIL FITTER” line of farm implements and tools sold and distributed by the respondents.

PAR 7. In furtherance of its solicitation for sale and selling of its products in interstate commerce, said The General Implement Company of America, Inc., and The General Implement Manufacturing Company, Inc., employ and employed, salesmen and agents to interview and solicit the trade and prospective customers in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and to which trade and prospective customers the said salesmen and agents have made statements and representations to the effect that The General Implement Company of America, Inc., and its subsidiary, The General Implement Manufacturing Company, Inc., had acquired some of the assets of the “old” Dunham Company; that the General Implement Company of America, Inc., and its said subsidiary would continue to manufacture repair parts and replacements for “old” Dunham Company farm tools and implements, and that the “old” Dunham Company became bankrupt and could not continue in business. As a matter of fact, respondent, The General Implement Company of America, Inc., and its subsidiary have not acquired the assets of the “old” Dunham Company, did not own the patents under which the “old” Dunham Company line of farm implements and tools were manufactured, and it did not and could not continue to manufacture the full line of the "old" Dunham Company implements and tools, together with repair parts and replacements.

Par. 8. There are among the competitors of respondents certain other corporations, individuals, firms and partnerships likewise engaged in the sale and distribution of farm implements and tools between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia and who advertise and sell their products in the same competitive areas as do the respondents herein, and who sell to agents and purchasers in the same competitive areas as do respondents. The foregoing untrue deceptive and misleading statements made by respondents as herein stated have had and have the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive the purchasing public into the belief that such representations were and are true and to induce the purchase from respondents of their products in such erroneous beliefs. Thereby trade has been unfairly diverted by respondents from their competitors who truthfully advertise and represent their products and substantial injury has been done by respondents to substantial competition in interstate commerce.

CONCLUSION

The practices of the said respondents under the conditions and circumstances described in the foregoing findings of fact are to the prejudice of the public and of competitors of respondents, and are unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the respective answers of the respondent and a stipulation as to the facts entered into between the respondents and the trial attorney for the Commission, subject to its approval, which stipulation was received into the record at a hearing held in Cleveland, Ohio, on to wit, November 5, 1935, before an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, which said stipulation as to the facts is hereby approved by the Commission, in and by which stipulation it was agreed that the statement of facts contained therein might be taken as the facts in this proceeding and in lieu of testimony in support of the charges stated in the complaint or in opposition thereto; and which said stipulation
Order 21 F. T. C.

Further provided that the Commission might proceed upon said statement of facts to make its report stating its findings as to the facts (including inferences which it might draw from the said stipulated facts) and its conclusion based thereon and enter its order disposing of the proceeding without the presentation of arguments or the filing of briefs. Thereafter, by order of the trial examiner the case was closed and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”:

Now therefore, it is hereby ordered, That the respondents, The General Implement Company of America, Inc., a corporation, and The General Implement Manufacturing Company, Inc., its subsidiary, their respective officers, agents, servants and employees, in connection with the sale or offering for sale in interstate commerce of a brand of farm implements and farm tools under the trade name “SOIL FITTER”, forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Using in their advertisements, catalogues, price lists, pamphlets and other literature, or in any other way, any statement that the “SOIL FITTER” line of farm implements and tools sold and distributed by the respondents is the most complete line of farm implements and farm tools manufactured;

2. Advertising and otherwise representing that respondents manufactured farm implements and farm tools at their plant in Indiana prior to January, 1934;

3. Advertising and otherwise representing that respondents furnish all repair parts for use with the tools and implements listed on the special price sheet from their Indiana factory until they do actually furnish all such repair parts.

4. Advertising and otherwise representing that respondent follow the most rigid inspection in order to give their so-called dealers the finest line of “SOIL FITTER” tools obtainable until such rigid inspection is actually made;

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Frank Livingston, doing business as Berkshire Textile Company, hereafter referred to as respondent, has been and is using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:
Paragraph 1. Said respondent, Frank Livingston, doing business as Berkshire Textile Company, is an individual and has his principal office and place of business in the city of Brattleboro, in the State of Vermont. Said respondent has been for some time past engaged in the advertising, sale, and distribution of dress goods between and among different States of the United States. Said respondent has advertised, sold and distributed and has caused and still causes the said articles in which he deals to be transported to his place of business into and through other States of the United States other than the State of Vermont to various purchasers located at points in the various States of the United States.

In the course and conduct of his said business, the respondent is in competition with other individuals, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the sale, distribution, and transportation of like and similar goods, wares, and merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

Paragraph 2. The respondent advertises his business in newspapers and magazines having general circulation in the various States of the United States. The following statements and representations appear in such advertisements:

- 15 yrs. DRESS GOODS Also Bargain! This Month Special Offer 5 Yards EXTRA
  Gingham, Percales, Prints, Voiles, Chambrays, Shirtsings, Crepes, etc. New clean goods direct to you at a big saving. Latest assortment colors, 4 yards or more of each. The very newest patterns for dresses. Our finest quality. SEND NO MONEY. Pay Postman when delivered. 15 yards 97¢, plus delivery charges. 20 yards only $1.29, postage prepaid if money accompanies order. Satisfaction guaranteed or money back. 97¢ Pstg. BERKSHIRE TEXTILE CO. Dept. 45 Brattleboro, Vt.

On the margin of the foregoing advertisement there is a pictorial representation of five bolts of alleged dress goods of various patterns between which there appear the following words: "Two bundles $1.89—five yards given."

Paragraph 3. The statements and representations made by respondent in his advertising, as set out above in paragraph 2 hereof, are each and all false and misleading to wit:

1. The respondent does not give five yards extra with each order.
2. Respondent does not own or operate a factory or mill, and the words "direct to you" which by implication states that respondent ships his goods, wares, and merchandise to the customer direct from the factory or mill, is false and untrue.
3. The goods, wares, and merchandise of respondent are wholly unsuited for dress purpose.
4. Respondent does not guarantee satisfaction to the customers.
5. Respondent does not refund money to dissatisfied customers.
6. The statement "15 yards dress goods—97¢" is not true in that the said respondent does not give 15 yards for 97¢.
7. The 15 yards of goods referred to in the said advertisement set out in paragraph 2 hereof is not a special bargain for "this month" or any other month as advertised by the respondent.
8. The goods, wares, and merchandise of said respondent are not "new and clean" as advertised by him, but are soiled, stained, and damaged. Likewise, the statement "4 yards of each (pattern) or more" is misleading in that purchasers believe they will receive four yards in one piece. In truth and in fact no piece of goods contains four yards of the same pattern.
9. The statement "the very newest, very latest patterns for dresses" is false in that such patterns as delivered are not the latest.

Par. 4. The above representations made by the respondent are each and all to the prejudice and injury of the public and the respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

The respondent herein, having filed his answer to the complaint in this proceeding in October 16, 1935, in the form of a letter from the respondent directed to the Federal Trade Commission, which answer is not sufficient to constitute a joinder of issue on the allegations contained in the complaint, and respondent having thereafter, on the 6th day of December, 1935, filed his amended and supplemental answer to the complaint wherein he waived hearings on the charges set forth in the complaint in this proceeding, and he having stated in his said amended and supplemental answer that he does not contest this said proceeding, and having consented in his said amended and supplemental answer that the Commission, without trial, without evidence, and without findings as to the facts or other intervening procedure, might make, enter, issue and serve upon him, the said respondent, an order to cease and desist from the methods of competition charged in the complaint; and the Commission being fully advised in the premises,

It is hereby ordered, That the respondent, Frank Livingston, doing business as Berkshire Textile Company, in the advertising, sale and distribution of dress goods between and among the different States of the United States, cease and desist from:

(a) Advertising or representing in any manner that respondent gives five yards of dress goods free to the customer with every 15 yards ordered from him, unless in truth and in fact respondent does give the purchaser five yards extra with each 15 yards bought by such purchaser.

(b) Representing or advertising in any manner by use of the words, "Direct to you", or any other words or phrases which by implication tend to create the impression in the minds of customers or prospective customers that respondent ships his goods, wares, and merchandise to such customers direct from a factory or mill, or that respondent is the owner or operator of, or has control of any factory or factories in which the goods, wares and merchandise sold by him are made.

(c) Advertising or representing in any manner that the goods, wares and merchandise of respondent are suitable for the purpose of making dresses.

(d) Advertising or representing that the respondent guarantees satisfaction to his customers purchasing his goods, wares, and merchandise.

(e) Advertising or representing that respondent refunds money to his customers purchasing his goods, wares, and merchandise, who are dissatisfied therewith.

(f) Advertising or representing that respondent sells 15 yards of dress goods for 97¢.

(g) Advertising or representing that respondent, in the sale of his goods, wares and merchandise, when quoting the price thereof is offering the customer a special bargain for any particular month or period of time.

(h) Advertising or representing that the goods, wares, and merchandise of said respondent, which are soiled, stained, and damaged, as “new and clean.”

(i) Advertising or representing that the customer will receive four yards of goods in each pattern or in one piece, unless in truth and in fact respondent does sell and deliver to such customer or customers four yards or more of goods in one and the same piece or pattern.

(j) Advertising or representing that his goods, wares and merchandise consist of the very newest and very latest patterns for dresses.

And it is hereby further ordered, That the said respondent, Frank Livingston, doing business at Berkshire Textile Company, shall within 60 days after the service upon him of this order to cease and desist, file with this Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he shall have complied with the order to cease and desist hereinbefore set forth.

Complaint, Findings, and Order in Regard to the Alleged Violation of Sec. 5 of an Act of Congress Approved Sept. 26, 1914

Where a corporation engaged in the manufacture of automotive and metal specialties, including spark plug cable sets, spark plugs, and porcelains therefor, and in the sale of said products among the various States and territories and in the District of Columbia, had long applied designation "Champion" to its aforesaid products, and through use thereof in its corporate name and on its stationery and cartons, and in its advertising matter, had caused said word to signify and mean to trade and purchasing public that automotive and metal specialties thus designated were its products; and thereafter two companies, engaged under common control in manufacture of similar specialties, including spark plug cable sets, without consent of said corporation, used and continued to use trade designation and name "Champion" for their aforesaid products on their cartons and in their price lists and advertising matter;

PAR. 2. Respondents are now and for some time past have been engaged in the manufacture of automotive and metal specialties including spark plug cable sets, and the sale and distribution of said products between and among the various States of the United States, the territories thereof and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of their said business the said respondents are now and for some time past have been in substantial competition in commerce between and among the various States and territories of the United States and the District of Columbia with other corporations and with persons, firms, and partnerships engaged in the manufacture and in the sale of automotive and metal specialties including spark plug cable sets.
Complaint

PAR. 3. The Champion Spark Plug Company is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Delaware, with its principal office and place of business in the city of Toledo in the State of Ohio. It is now and for more than 15 years last past has been engaged in the manufacture of automotive and metal specialties, including spark plug cable sets, spark plugs and porcelains therefor, and in the sale thereof between and among the various States and territories of the United States and in the District of Columbia, causing such automotive and metal specialties, including spark plug cable sets, spark plugs and porcelains therefor, when sold to be shipped to the purchasers thereof located in the various States of the United States and territories thereof and the District of Columbia, and there is now and for more than 15 years last past has been a constant current of trade and commerce by said Champion Spark Plug Company in said automotive and metal specialties, including spark plug cable sets, spark plugs and porcelains therefor, between and among the various States and territories of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. For approximately 15 years last past the aforesaid Champion Spark Plug Company has applied the word and trade designation "Champion" to automotive and metal specialties, including spark plug cable sets, spark plugs and porcelains therefor made and sold by it and by the use by it of the word "Champion" for such products, on its stationery, as a part of its corporate name, on its cartons and on printed and advertising matter distributed by it in interstate commerce, has caused the word "Champion" when used as a name for automotive and metal specialties including spark plug cable sets, spark plugs and porcelains therefor, to signify and mean to the trade and to the purchasing public that such automotive and metal specialties including spark plug cable sets, spark plugs and porcelains therefore, are the products of said Champion Spark Plug Company.

PAR. 5. In the course and conduct of their business described in paragraphs 1 and 2 hereof, respondents Real Products Corporation and Realflex Products Corporation, without the permission or consent of said Champion Spark Plug Company have used and continue to use the trade designation and name "Champion" for the automotive and metal specialties, including spark plug cable sets made and sold by them; and without the consent or permission of said Champion Spark Plug Company have used such name and designation "Champion" on their price lists, cartons and advertising matter of such automotive and metal specialties, including spark plug cable sets. The aforesaid use by the respondents of the word "Champion" in the manner set forth herein is false, deceptive and misleading to the trade and purchasing public and tends to and does divert trade to respondents from their competitors who do not use such deceptive and misleading names for the products manufactured by them and sold by them in interstate commerce; thereby substantial injury is done by respondents to substantial competition in interstate commerce.

Par. 6. The above acts and practices of respondents are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's said competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Real Products Corporation, is a corporation organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its principal office and place of business located in the city of Brooklyn in said State. Respondent, Realflex Products Corporation, is likewise a corporation organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its principal office and place of business located in the city of Brooklyn, in the State of New York. The above named corporate respondents are engaged in the same business, and manufacture, sell and distribute in interstate commerce the same and identical commodity, and the treasurer of respondent, Real Products Corporation, is Martin J. Goldstein, who has complete charge of and controls the business and affairs of respondent Realflex Products Corporation, and the two respondent corporations herein are engaged in joint enterprises in the conduct of the business hereinafter described and set out.

Paragraph 2. Respondents are now and for some time past have been engaged in the manufacture of automotive and metal specialties including spark plug cable sets, and in the sale and distribution of said products between and among the various States of the United States, the territories thereof and in the District of Columbia. They now cause and for some time past have caused such automotive and metal specialties, including spark plug cable sets, when sold by them, to be transported from their places of business in the city of Brooklyn aforesaid to the purchasers thereof located in the various States of the United States, the territories thereof, and the District of Columbia; and there is now and for some time past has been a constant current of trade and commerce by said respondents in said automotive and metal specialties including spark plug cable sets between and among the various States and territories of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of their said business the said respondents are now and for some time past have been in substantial competition in commerce between and among the various States and territories of the United States and in the District of Columbia with other corporations and with persons, firms, and partnerships engaged in the manufacture and in the sale of automotive and metal specialties including spark plug cable sets.
PAR. 3. The Champion Spark Plug Company is a corporation organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Delaware, with its principal office and place of business in the city of Toledo in the State of Ohio. It is now and for more than 15 years last past has been engaged in the manufacture of automotive and metal specialties, including spark plug cable sets, spark plugs and porcelains therefor, and in the sale thereof between and among the various States and territories of the United States and in the District of Columbia, causing such automotive and metal specialties, including spark plug cable sets, spark plugs and porcelains therefor, when sold, to be shipped to the purchasers thereof located in the various States of the United States and territories thereof and the District of Columbia, and there is now and for more than 15 years last past has been a constant current of trade and commerce by said Champion Spark Plug Company in said automotive and metal specialties, including spark plug cable sets, spark plugs and porcelains therefor, between and among the various States and territories of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. For approximately 15 years last past the aforesaid Champion Spark Plug Company has applied the word and trade designation "Champion" to automotive and metal specialties, including spark plug cable sets, spark plugs and porcelains therefor made and sold by it and by the use by it of the word "Champion" for such products, on its stationery, as a part of its corporate name, on its cartons and on printed and advertising matter distributed by it in interstate commerce, has caused the word "Champion" when used as a name for automotive and metal specialties including spark plug cable sets, spark plugs and porcelains therefor, to signify and mean to the trade and to the purchasing public that such automotive and metal specialties including spark plug cable sets, spark plugs and porcelains therefor, are the products of said Champion Spark Plug Company.

PAR. 5. In the course and conduct of their business described in paragraphs 1 and 2 hereof, respondents Real Products Corporation and Realflex Products Corporation, without the permission or consent of said Champion Spark Plug Company, have used and continue to use the trade designation and name "Champion" for the automotive and metal specialties, including spark plug cable sets made and sold by them; and without the consent or permission of said Champion Spark Plug Company have used such name and designation "Champion" on their price lists, cartons, and advertising matter of such automotive and metal specialties, including spark plug cable sets. The aforesaid use by the respondents of the word “Champion” in the manner set forth herein is false, deceptive, and misleading to the retail trade and purchasing public, and has a tendency to and does deceive such retail dealers and the purchasing public by creating the impression that the automotive and metal specialties manufactured and sold in interstate commerce by respondents, including spark plug cable sets, are the products of and are made by the Champion Spark Plug Company of Toledo, Ohio, and has a like tendency and capacity to unfairly divert trade to respondents from their competitors who do not use such deceptive and misleading names for the products manufactured by them and sold in interstate commerce.

CONCLUSION

The practices of said respondents under the conditions and circumstances described in the foregoing findings are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and respondents’ competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress, entitled, “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”, approved September 26, 1914.

Par. 5. In truth and in fact respondent’s said preparation and product, known as “Soft Corn Valuable”, when taken or used as directed, will not cure any of the diseases, ailments or maladies hereinabove mentioned; said preparation and product does not constitute an efficacious, safe, or proper treatment for any of said diseases or maladies, nor does it have any therapeutic value in the treatment thereof nor is it a remedy or specific for the same; said preparation and product is not harmless, but on the contrary it is poisonous and dangerous to be used for any purpose. All of the statements, representations, and implications set forth in paragraph 4 above are wholly unfounded in fact, or are greatly exaggerated or wholly inaccurate.

Par. 6. The representations of respondent, as aforesaid, have had and do have the tendency and capacity to confuse, mislead, and deceive members of the public into the belief that respondent’s said preparation and product is a cure, remedy or efficacious, safe and proper treatment for the various disease and ailments hereinabove set forth, when in truth and in fact such are not the facts. Said representations of respondent have had and do have the tendency and capacity to induce members of the public to buy and use said preparation and product because of the erroneous belief engendered as above set forth and to divert trade to respondent from competitors engaged in the sale, in interstate commerce of preparations and products designed, adapted, and used for the treatment or cure of the various diseases, ailments, and maladies hereinabove referred to.

Par. 7. The above acts and things done by the respondent are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and the competitors of respondent, in interstate commerce, within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes”, approved September 26, 1914.

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

and thereafter served its complaint against the respondent named in the caption hereof, charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of said act. Respondent, after entering his appearance and filing his answer to said complaint thereafter on to wit, the 18th day of October 1935, entered into a stipulation as to the facts with Allen C. Phelps, special counsel, for the Federal Trade Commission, in which it was stipulated and agreed that the statement of facts in said agreement between respondent and said counsel for the Commission may be taken as the facts in this proceeding and in lieu of the testimony in support of the charges stated in the complaint, or in opposition thereto; and that the Commission may proceed upon said statement of facts to make its report stating its findings as to the facts and its conclusion based thereon, and enter herein its order disposing of the proceeding without the presentation of arguments or the filing of briefs.

The Commission being fully advised in the premises, now approves, ratifies and confirms the said stipulation and agreement entered into as aforesaid by and between respondent and Allen C. Phelps, special counsel, of the Federal Trade Commission, and having duly considered the same makes this its report in writing and states its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom, as follows, to wit:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent Philip Wong, is an individual trading in his own name with his principal office and place of business at 126 Prospect Street, Cambridge, Mass. He is the sole owner and manager of a business which consists in the offering for sale, sale and distribution in interstate commerce of a certain preparation or product known as "Soft Corn Valuable". Said preparation and product is and has been advertised and represented by the respondent as being a cure and remedy for corns, callouses, all kinds of skin diseases, goiter, appendicitis, cancer, tumors, consumption, mouth and throat cancer, rheumatism, backache, snake and dog bite poisoning, piles, venereal disease, rupture, stomach and bowel ailments, eye diseases, and generally all kinds of diseases.

Paragraph 2. In the course and conduct of his said business respondent causes and has caused the said preparation or product to be transported in interstate commerce from his said place of business in Massachusetts to, into and through States of the United States other than Massachusetts, and the District of Columbia, to various members of the consuming public to whom it is or has been sold.

722  Findings

Par. 3. Since December 1934, when respondent first offered his said preparation for sale there are and have been other individuals, firms, and corporations in various States of the United States engaged in the sale and distribution in interstate commerce of preparations, medicines and products designed, adapted, intended and used for the same general purposes as respondent’s preparation and product and designed, adapted, intended and used as a remedy, cure or treatment for corns and for the various ailments and diseases for which respondent’s said preparation is advertised as a remedy. Such other individuals, firms and corporations have caused and do cause their said treatments, medicines and preparations, when sold by them to be transported from various States of the United States in which the same are manufactured or sold to, into and through States other than the State of the origin thereof. Respondent has during the aforesaid time been in competition in interstate commerce in the offering for sale, sale and distribution of his said preparation and product with such other individuals, firms, and corporations.

Par. 4. Respondent has advertised his said preparation and product by advertisements inserted in magazines and other publications circulated to and among the purchasing public in various States of the United States, and also has distributed advertising circulars and letters by mail and otherwise to prospective customers in various States of the United States. Said advertisements, circulars and letters represent and imply that said preparation “Soft Corn Valuable”, when taken or used as directed, will cure the following diseases and ailments: Corns, callouses, all kinds of skin diseases, goiter, cancer, appendicitis, tumors, consumption, mouth and throat cancer, rheumatism, backache, snake and dog bite poisoning, piles, venereal disease, rupture, stomach and bowel ailments, eye diseases, and generally all kinds of diseases. Respondent, by such means, represents and has represented that said preparation constitutes an efficacious, safe and proper treatment for all of the above diseases, ailments and maladies, is a remedy and specific therefor, and has a therapeutic value in the treatment thereof. Some of the said advertisements have been published in the following publications:

St. Paul Daily News, St. Paul, Minn.
Vancouver Sun, Vancouver, B. C.
Woman’s Home Life, Winona, Minn.
Home Circle, Winona, Minn.

Par. 5. The label used by respondent on the bottles of his said preparation “Soft Corn Valuable”, is as follows:
"Directions.—For corn use do not add water. For disease use, take one teaspoonful of this medicine, add five teaspoonsful of water. For throat cancer, take one teaspoonful and add ten teaspoonsful of water. Valuable soft corn medicine is worth a thousand dollars in gold; good for soft corns, hard corns, callouses and all kinds of diseases. It will cure them wonderful. No danger. But you must not eat or drink this medicine. Little poison, manufactured by Philip Wong, 126 Prospect Street, Cambridge, U. S. A."

Respondent has caused to be printed a certain circular which he distributes to prospective purchasers, advertising said preparation "Soft Corn Valuable", which contains many of the statements and representations hereinabove set forth, and in addition states as follows:

"In 1935, May 2, Federal Trade Commission, Special Board of Investigation, been called sample a bottle of my soft corn valuable medicine and this record, June 5, permitted by Government. Mr. E. J. Adams, Chairman, Washington, D. C."

Par. 6. In truth and in fact respondent's preparation and product known as "Soft Corn Valuable", when taken and used as directed, will not cure any of the diseases, ailments or maladies hereinabove enumerated. Said preparation and product does not constitute an efficacious, safe, or proper treatment for, nor does it have therapeutic value in the treatment of, nor is it a remedy or a specific for all kinds of skin diseases, goiter, cancer, appendicitis, tumors, consumption, mouth and throat cancer, rheumatism, backache, snake and dog bite poisoning, piles, venereal diseases, rupture, stomach and bowel ailments, eye diseases, and generally all kinds of diseases. Said preparation "Soft Corn Valuable" is not harmless, but on the contrary it is poisonous and dangerous to be taken internally. The advertisement, offering for sale, sale or the distribution of said preparation has never been authorized, sanctioned or permitted by the Federal Trade Commission nor any administrative agency thereof.

Par. 7. The representations which have been so made by respondent, the same being false and untrue as above stated, have had and do have the tendency and capacity to confuse, mislead and deceive members of the public into the belief that respondent's said preparation is a cure, a remedy or an efficacious, safe and proper treatment for the various diseases, ailments and maladies as above mentioned, when in truth and in fact such are not the facts.

Par. 8. Said false representations so made by respondent have had and do have the tendency and capacity to induce members of the public to buy and use said preparation and product because of the erroneous beliefs engendered as above set forth, and to divert trade to respondent from competitors engaged in the sale in interstate commerce of preparations and products designed, adapted and used for the treatment or cure of the various diseases, ailments and maladies above enumerated.

Par. 9. All of the said acts and things which have been so done by respondent are to the injury and prejudice of the public and his competitors in interstate commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", approved September 26, 1914.

CONCLUSION

The practices of said respondent under the conditions and circumstances described in the foregoing findings of facts are to the prejudice of the public and of competitors of respondent and are unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having come on to be heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondent, and the stipulation as to the facts entered into and made a part of the record between respondent and counsel for the Commission, which stipulation was made in lieu of the testimony in support of the charges stated in the complaint and in opposition thereto and the Commission having made its report in writing in which it stated its findings as to the facts with its conclusion that the respondent, Philip Wong, had violated the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," and the Commission having been fully advised in the premises,

It is now ordered, That the respondent Philip Wong, in advertising, offering for sale, selling or distributing his preparation and product known as "Soft Corn Valuable" in interstate commerce and in the District of Columbia, cease and desist from representing in any manner, through the circulation or use of printed advertisements, circulars, letters, labels or literature of any description or otherwise;

(1) That said preparation and product, known as "Soft Corn Valuable", when taken or used as directed, will cure any of the following diseases, ailments or maladies, to wit: corns, callouses, all kinds of skin diseases, goitre, cancer, appendicitis, tumors, consumption, mouth and throat cancer, rheumatism, backache, snake and dog bite poisoning, piles, venereal diseases, rupture, stomach and bowel ailments, and generally all kinds of diseases.

(2) That said preparation and product, known as “Soft Corn Valuable” constitutes an efficacious, safe or proper treatment for all kinds of skin diseases, goitre, cancer, appendicitis, tumors, consumption, mouth and throat cancer, rheumatism, backache, snake and dog bite poisoning, piles, venereal disease, rupture, stomach and bowel ailments and generally all kinds of diseases.

(3) That said preparation and product known as “Soft Corn Valuable” is a remedy or specific which will relieve any of the diseases or ailments enumerated in the preceding paragraph or that it has any therapeutic value in the treatment thereof.

(4) That said preparation and product known as “Soft Corn Valuable” is harmless or non-poisonous, or that it may be safely taken internally by any person.

(5) That said preparation and product known as “Soft Corn Valuable” has been analyzed or examined by the Federal Trade Commission or any administrative agency thereof, or that the advertising, offering for sale, selling or distribution of the preparation has ever been authorized, sanctioned or permitted by said Commission or any administrative agency thereof.

(6) That said preparation and product known as “Soft Corn Valuable” is worth a thousand dollars in gold or any other sum of money.

It is further ordered, That respondent shall within 60 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.

SPEIDEL CORPORATION

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 6 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Where a corporation, engaged in the manufacture and sale and distribution at wholesale of watch chains made by a special electrolytic method similar to heavy gold electroplating, with gold deposit thereon by weight approximately ten times greater than that produced by light electroplating processes known to the trade as "gold wash" or "gold flashing", but not with the maximum amount obtainable through the electroplating process, or with a substantial deposit as compared with "gold-filled" articles, or of the grade or quality of "rolled gold plate" as understood by the trade—Represented to the purchasing public that a substantial quantity of gold, both in weight and thickness, had been deposited upon the metal core of said links, through use of words "gold shell" together with its trade name "Oresto", in legend on cardboard mountings on which said chains were sold by it and displayed by jobbers and retailers in windows and showcases, and which legend was made use of by jobber-purchasers in describing and selling to consuming public, products in question, sold by it in competition with those who do not in any way misrepresent the composition, nature, character, or quality of articles produced through electroplating process, but truthfully represent the same;

With result of placing in the hands of such jobbers and retailers an instrument and means whereby a portion of the consuming public might be led to the mistaken and erroneous belief that the products thus marked or designated were encased in a layer or shell of gold of such substantial thickness that in purchasing said chains, it was buying a product of a quality comparable to that generally known and designated as "gold-filled", and to that produced by electroplating, in which heavier gold deposits are obtained than in the articles herein involved, and to purchase substantial quantities thereof in such mistaken belief, and with tendency to enable such jobbers and retailers to confuse aforesaid articles in the minds of a substantial portion of the public with products designated "rolled gold plate", which exceed in value those herein concerned irrespective of whether or not the gold deposit by weight and thickness is greater, and with result of unfairly diverting trade from and otherwise substantially injuring competitors engaged in the sale of gold-covered articles, properly described and designated as "gold-filled", and as "rolled gold plate":

Held, That such acts and practices were each and all to the prejudice of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Huddy & Moulton, of Providence, R. I., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that the Speidel Corporation, a corporation, hereinafter designated as respondent, is now, and has been, using unfair methods of competition in commerce as "commerce" is defined in said act and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereto would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent is now, and has been since its incorporation in 1932, a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Rhode Island, with its office and principal place of business located at 70 Ship Street in the city of Providence in said State, and is now and has been at all times mentioned herein, engaged in the business of manufacturing, selling, and distributing at wholesale to jewelry jobbers and retailers certain novelty jewelry, including watch chains, in commerce as hereinafter set out.

Paragraph 2. Said respondent, being engaged in business as aforesaid, causes said novelty jewelry, including said watch chains, as hereinafore described, when sold, to be transported from its principal office and place of business in the State of Rhode Island to the purchasers thereof located in various cities in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and there is now and has been at all times mentioned herein, a constant current of trade and commerce in said jewelry and watch chains so sold and distributed by respondent, between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 3. In the course and conduct of its said business, respondent is now, and has been, in substantial competition with individuals, firms and corporations engaged in the business of manufacturing, selling and distributing novelty jewelry and watch chains, as herein described, to jobbers and retailers in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 4. In the course of the operation of said business, and for the purpose of inducing individuals, firms, and corporations to purchase said novelty jewelry and watch chains hereinafter described, to wit: watch chains sold under the name “Oresto”, respondent has mounted said watch chains on cardboard mountings attached to each chain, each mounting bearing a legend which states, among other things, that the chain is “gold shell guaranteed.”

The entire legend appearing on said cardboard mounting to which the watch chain sold by the respondent under the name of Oresto, is attached, reads as follows:

ORESTO GOLD SHELL GUARANTEED SOLDERED LINKS
Made by
SPEIDEL CORPORATION

The said cardboard mountings above referred to are attached to the watch chains before being sold to or distributed to the jewelry jobbers and retailers buying same, and are displayed to the consuming public by said jobbers and retail jewelers through window or show-case displays.

The legend appearing on said cardboard mountings serves as a representation, both to the jobbers and retailers purchasing said watch chains for resale, and to the purchasing public, that the said watch chains are manufactured by a process of such a character that gold, of substantial weight and thickness, is deposited on the base metal core of each link of said watch chain in such a way as to form a complete shell around said core.

In truth and in fact said watch chains, manufactured, marketed and distributed as aforesaid, are not manufactured by a process whereby a substantial quantity of gold, either in weight or in thickness is deposited as a covering on the base metal core of the links of said watch chain so as to form a complete gold shell surrounding said core.

PAR. 5. The jewelry manufacturing trade has generally adopted the use of certain terms in describing gold covered articles. The names or designations so used are descriptive of the process used in applying gold to the manufactured articles, and also designate the quantity, quality and character of the gold so applied to the article, and serve as representations to the general purchasing public that the articles were manufactured, and the gold applied, in conformity with certain set standards. The designations generally adopted by the trade, with respect to articles that are not of solid gold, are: “gold filled”, “rolled gold plate”, “gold plate”, and “gold electro plate”. In the process of manufacturing articles designated as “gold filled”, or “rolled gold plate”, a substantial quantity of gold, in weight and thickness, is applied to the base metal core and articles truthfully designated as “gold filled”, and “rolled gold plate” are generally accepted by the trade and by the purchasing public as being of a character and quality superior to articles manufactured by the process designated as "gold plate" and "gold electro plate".

The watch chains heretofore described in paragraph four are manufactured by a process whereby the base metal core is first gold plated by the use of a gold wash, and subsequently gold electro plated.

Par. 6. Respondent's said customers, being jobbers and retailers, offer for sale and sell the articles of merchandise referred to in paragraph 4 hereof to the consuming public pursuant to the description and representation of said article as appearing on the cardboard mounting attached thereto by the respondent, as set out in paragraph 4.

The false and misleading statements and representations on the part of the respondent, as hereinabove set out, place in the hands of the aforesaid jewelry jobbers and retailers an instrument and a means whereby said jewelry jobbers and retailers may commit a fraud upon a substantial portion of the consuming public by enabling such jewelry jobbers and retailers to falsely represent, offer for sale, and sell the product known as Oresto watch chains as being a product produced by a process superior to the process of producing gold plate and gold electro plate articles, and possessing on its exterior a gold shell of substantial weight and thickness, and as being a product superior in quality to similar products on which the gold on the exterior thereof is placed thereon either by a gold wash process or a gold electro plating process.

Par. 7. The effect of the foregoing false and misleading representations and acts of the respondent in selling and offering for sale the item of merchandise described in paragraph 4, attached to cardboard mountings, containing the representations hereinabove detailed, is to mislead a substantial portion of the consuming public, as well as jewelry jobbers and retail dealers, in the several States of the United States, by inducing them to believe:

(1) That the item of merchandise attached to said cardboard mounting is a product manufactured by a process of such a character that gold, of substantial weight and thickness, is deposited on the core of each link of said watch chain in such a way as to form a complete shell around said core;

(2) That said item of merchandise, to wit: watch chains sold under the name Oresto, are of a superior quality to similar items of merchandise manufactured under a gold washing or gold electro plating process com-only designated by the trade as "gold plate" or "gold electro plate" process;

and to purchase a substantial quantity of said products in said belief.

Par. 8. There are among the competitors of respondent many who in no wise misrepresent the composition, nature, character and quality of the merchandise which they manufacture and sell by attaching said merchandise to cardboard mountings bearing legends containing the same or similar false and misleading representations, or in any manner whatever, and who truthfully represent the composition, character and quality of the products manufactured and sold by them.
Findings

The alleged acts, practices, and representations of the respondent are added inducements for a substantial number of jobbers and retail dealers, as well as the consuming purchasers, to buy the products known as "Oresto" watch chains, manufactured and distributed by the respondent, and have a tendency and capacity to, and do, divert a substantial volume of trade from respondent's competitors, with the result that substantial quantities of said Oresto watch chains are sold to said dealers and to the consuming public on account of said beliefs induced as aforesaid. As a consequence thereof, substantial competition in commerce among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia has been substantially injured and otherwise prejudiced.

par. 9. The above and foregoing acts, practices, and representations of the respondent have been, and are, all to the prejudice of the public and respondent's competitors, as aforesaid, and have been, and are, unfair methods of competition within the meaning and intent of Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes".

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes", the Federal Trade Commission issued and served its complaint upon the respondent herein, Speidel Corporation, a corporation, organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Rhode Island, charging said respondent with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act.

The respondent, having entered its appearance and having filed its answer herein, entered into a stipulation whereby it was stipulated and agreed that a statement of facts signed and executed by the respondent, and its counsel, and J. T. Welch, attorney for the Federal Trade Commission, subject to the approval of the Commission, are the facts in this proceeding and shall be taken by the Federal Trade Commission as such and in lieu of testimony before the Commission.
in support of the charges stated in the complaint, or in opposition thereto, and that said Commission may proceed further upon said statement of facts, stating its findings as to the facts and conclusions thereon and enter its order disposing of the proceeding:

And, thereupon, this proceeding came on for final hearing and the respondent having waived the filing of briefs and the hearing of oral argument herein before the Commission, and said Commission having approved and accepted said stipulation as to the facts and having duly considered the record and being now fully advised in the premises, makes this its findings as to the facts and conclusion:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. The respondent corporation was organized in the year 1932 under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Rhode Island. Its principal place of business is located at 70 Ship Street in the city of Providence, in the State of Rhode Island. Since the date of its organization, the respondent has been engaged in the business of manufacturing, selling, and distributing at wholesale to jewelry jobbers, jewelry, novelty jewelry, watch chains, and watch bracelets. The products of the respondent have been, and are now, sold and transported by it, in substantial quantities, in commerce among and between the several States of the United States. The respondent sells substantial quantities of its products in competition with other corporations, firms, and individuals selling like products, to wit: jewelry, novelty jewelry, watch chains, and watch bracelets, in commerce among and between the several States of the United States.

Paragraph 2. The respondent, in its said business, has used the trade mark "Oresto" and has, in the prosecution of said business, for the purpose of inducing the purchase of its products, mounted watch chains on cardboard mountings bearing the following legend:

ORESTO
GUARANTEED
SOLDERED LINKS
MADE BY
SPEIDEL CORPORATION

The expression "Guaranteed" applies to the soldering of the links to distinguish these chains from others in the trade having unsoldered links and does not apply to the "gold shell." The legend "guaranteed soldered links" is a usual and well understood legend in the trade.
The cardboard mountings are attached by the respondent to said watch chains before being sold to jobbers and said mountings, with the chains attached, are displayed by the jobbers and retail jewelers to the consuming public through window and show-case displays. Jobbers who purchase the products of respondent sell said products to the consuming public accompanied by the description of said products as appearing on the cardboard mounting attached thereto by the respondent.

PAR. 3. The jewelry manufacturing trade has generally adopted the use of certain terms in describing gold covered articles. The names or designations so used are descriptive of the process used in applying gold to the manufactured article and also designate the quantity, quality, and character of the gold so applied to the article and serve as representations to the general purchasing public that the articles were manufactured and the gold applied in conformity with certain set standards. The designations generally adopted by the trade with respect to articles that are not of solid gold, are "gold colored" or "gold plate", "gold electroplate", "rolled gold plate", and "gold filled."

The term "gold colored" or "gold plate" is used to describe those articles dipped in a gold wash. Some manufacturers obtain the gold effect by a chemical process. If gold is used by the manufacturer, the deposit thereof left on the article after the gold wash, is of the thinnest obtainable.

The term "gold electroplate" is used to describe an electrolytic process whereby gold deposits up to 25 milliemes "Fine Gold" can be obtained. The usual and most common form of electroplating is known as "gold flashing." This process produces a lustre finish or light gold film within 5 to 15 seconds and the gold deposit will vary between $\frac{1}{4}$ and $\frac{3}{4}$ millieme "Fine Gold." "Fine Gold" is 24 kt. gold. The watch chains manufactured by the respondent and marketed under the trade name "Oresto" and described as "gold shell" are manufactured by a process in which 12 kt. gold is deposited upon base metal in the proportion of 5 dwt. 12 kt. gold per 1,000 dwt. of base metal by a special electrolytic method similar to that used in electroplating for heavy gold deposits. The fineness of "Oresto gold shell" watch chains varies from 5 to 6 milliemes 12 kt. gold. By weight, the thickness of the gold deposited on said watch chains is approximately 10 times greater than that produced by "gold wash", "gold flashing", or light electroplating in which from $\frac{1}{4}$ to $\frac{3}{4}$ millieme "Fine Gold" is deposited as a result of the electroplating process. Some electroplated articles, containing more than 5 to 6 milliemes and up to 25 milliemes 12 kt. gold are manufactured and sold.
in commerce among the several States both by the respondent and its competitors. "Oresto gold shell" products, therefore, do not contain the maximum amount of gold deposit that can be obtained by the electroplating process. In order to secure gold deposits of 5 to 6 milliemes 12 kt. gold such as are obtained on "Oresto gold shell" products and the gold deposits up to 25 milliemes "Fine Gold" used in producing gold electroplated articles of qualities equal to or superior to "Oresto gold shell" products, it is necessary to give said products an immersion of from 5 to 20 minutes as compared to the short immersion necessary in producing products containing \( \frac{1}{4} \) to \( \frac{3}{4} \) milliemes 12 kt. gold.

A substantial quantity of gold in weight and thickness is in fact deposited on the base metal core in "Oresto gold shell" products as compared with the quantity of gold deposit obtained by the "gold wash", "gold flashing" or light gold electroplating processes.

In the process of manufacturing articles designated as "gold filled" or "rolled gold plate", a substantial quantity of gold, in weight and in thickness is applied to the base metal core, either by an air-tight hydraulic process or by soldering the gold layer onto the base metal by means of suitable solder. The term "gold filled" is properly used to designate articles which are superior to, contain a higher gold content both by weight and thickness and are more expensive than either "rolled gold plate" or "Oresto gold shell" and articles of similar quality. The term "rolled gold plate" is properly used to designate articles which may have a gold content either greater or less than "Oresto gold shell" but which are also, in either case, of a quality superior to and more expensive than "Oresto gold shell." The actual cost of "gold filled" and "rolled gold plate" as compared with "Oresto gold shell" varies from 100 percent to 200 percent more.

A substantial quantity of gold, in weight or in thickness, is not deposited on the base metal core of respondent’s "Oresto gold shell" product as compared with the quantity and quality of gold deposit obtained in producing "gold filled" articles or the qualities or grades of "rolled gold plate" articles having a greater gold content than the "Oresto gold shell."

Par. 4. The legend, "Oresto gold shell" does not serve as a representation of any specific degree of weight of thickness of gold deposited on the base metal core, but does serve as a representation to the purchasing public that a substantial quantity of gold, both in weight and in thickness, is deposited thereon.

The effect of the use of the term "gold shell", and the acts of the respondent in selling and offering for sale the watch chains sold under the trade name "Oresto", attached to cardboard mountings containing the said legend has been to place in the hands of jewelry jobbers and retailers an instrument and a means whereby a portion of the consuming public might be led to mistakenly and erroneously believe that the products so marked, described or designated were encased in a layer or shell of gold of such substantial thickness that said consuming public would believe they were purchasing a product of a quality comparable to that generally known and designated as "gold filled" and other products produced by that gold electroplating process whereby a heavier gold deposit than that in "Oresto" quality is obtained, and to purchase substantial quantities of said "Oresto" quality gold covered articles in said belief. The marketing of said product so marked and designated also has a tendency to enable said jobbers and retailers to confuse in the minds of a substantial portion of the consuming public the respondent's product with articles designated as "rolled gold plate" which may, or may not, contain more gold deposit by weight and thickness but which are, in either case, of a value greater than "Oresto gold shell" products.

The respondent is not now using the term "gold shell" in marketing or selling its products designated as "Oresto" quality and discontinued the use of the said term prior to the execution of the stipulation as to the facts.

Par. 5. There are, among the competitors of respondent, many who in no wise misrepresent the composition, nature, character, and quality of the articles produced by an electroplating process which they manufacture and sell by attaching said articles to cardboard mountings bearing legends containing the same or similar false and misleading representations, or in any manner whatever, and who truthfully represent the composition, character, and quality of the products manufactured and sold by them.

Par. 6. The use of the term "gold shell" by the respondent in marketing and selling its watch chains produced by an electroplating process has served to cause an unfair diversion of trade from, and otherwise substantially injure, competitors of respondent in the sale of gold covered articles properly described and designated as "gold filled" and as "rolled gold plate."

Par. 7. Any representations that might have been made by said jobbers and retailers in inducement of the purchase of respondent's "Oresto" quality products in preference to products manufactured by the gold washing process or the light gold electroplating process, said representations claiming that the respondent's "Oresto" quality watch chains possess on the exterior thereof a gold deposit of substantial weight and thickness as compared to the gold deposit on said products manufactured by the gold washing or light gold electroplating process, are not false and misleading and do not constitute

The acts and practices of the respondent are each and all to the prejudice of the public, and to the competitors of the respondent and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce, within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes".

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondent, and a stipulation entered into between the respondent herein, Speidel Corporation, a corporation, and its counsel, Messrs. Huddy & Moulton, and counsel for this Commission, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes":

Now, therefore, it is hereby ordered, That respondent, Speidel Corporation, a corporation, its officers, agents, representatives, and employees, in connection with the distribution, offering for sale and sale of jewelry, novelty jewelry, watch chains, and watch bracelets, in interstate commerce, forthwith cease and desist from:

(1) Using the term "gold shell", or words of similar import, in any way to describe or designate any of its gold covered products manufactured by any electroplating or electrolytic process.

(2) Representing by words, terms, figures or designations of any kind or character that said jewelry, novelty jewelry, watch chains, and watch bracelets produced by any process other than that by which gold covered articles commonly designated as "gold filled" and "rolled gold plate" articles are produced, possess a "gold shell" or contain a deposit of a substantial quantity of gold on the exterior thereof, unless and until the said gold deposit contained on the exterior of said articles is comparable, by weight and by thickness, with the amount and quality of gold deposit contained on the exterior of articles correctly designated as "gold filled" and "rolled gold plate" articles.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall within 60 days after the service upon it of this order file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with the order to cease and desist hereinabove set out.
Complaint

IN THE MATTER OF

SHAPIRO FELT RUG COMPANY, AND WM. SHAPIRO, MORRIS SHAPIRO, AND SARAH SHAPIRO, TRADING AS ESTA HAT COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Consent order requiring respondent, Shapiro Felt Rug Co., and respondent individuals doing business as Esta Hat Co., their agents, etc., in connection with the sale or offer for sale of baseball caps in interstate commerce, to cease and desist from selling or offering for sale, baseball caps, manufactured from felts obtained from second hand, old, used, and discarded men's and women's felt hats, unless and until there is stamped upon, affixed, or attached to said baseball caps in a conspicuous place so as to be easily and readily seen, word or words clearly indicating that said baseball caps are not manufactured from new and unused felts, but are manufactured from felts obtained from second hand, old, and discarded men's and women's felt hats.

Mr. George Foulkes for the Commission.

COMPLAINT

Paragraph 1. Respondent Shapiro Felt Rug Company is a corporation organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New Jersey, with its principal office and place of business in the city of Newark in said State. The officers of said corporation are respondents Wm. Shapiro, President; Morris Shapiro, Vice President and Treasurer, and Sarah Shapiro, Secretary. Respondents Shapiro Felt Rug Company, Wm. Shapiro, Morris Shapiro, and Sarah Shapiro, are now and for more than one year last past have been engaged in the business of manufacturing baseball caps from felts obtained from old, used, discarded and secondhand hats, and of selling the same under the trade name "Esta Hat Company", to retailers, jobbers and wholesale dealers located in the various States of the United States. Respondents cause, and for more than one year last past have caused such caps to be transported from their place of business in Newark to the aforesaid purchasers thereof located in the State of New Jersey and to other of the aforesaid purchasers located in various other States of the United States. In the course and conduct of their business, respondents are now and for more than one year last past have been engaged in substantial competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, with other corporations, individuals, firms and partnerships engaged in the sale of baseball caps manufactured from new felt bodies, and in the transportation of said products from their respective places of business to the purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of their business described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondents for more than one year last past have bought and still buy secondhand, old, used and discarded men's and women's felt hats, which are and have been renovated by respondents and made into baseball caps and which are sold by respondents to retailers, jobbers, and wholesalers, as set forth in paragraph 1 hereof. The said secondhand, old, used, and discarded men's and women's felt hats are cleaned, steamed, ironed, and shaped by respondents, and then fitted with new trimmings, sweat bands, size labels, and with a peak or visor by the respondents, and are then sold by respondents to retailers, who resell same to the purchasing public, and to jobbers and wholesale dealers who resell them to retail dealers, who in turn resell said products to the purchasing public.

PAR. 3. The aforesaid old, used, discarded and secondhand hats, after being made over by respondents into baseball caps and fitted with new trimmings as described in paragraph 2 herein, have the appearance of new baseball caps manufactured from felts which have never been worn, and said caps are sold by respondents to retailers and to jobbers and wholesale dealers without any label, marking or designation on or about said caps to indicate that said caps are in fact manufactured from secondhand hats which have been renovated and made over into baseball caps by respondents. Said caps, sold to jobbers and wholesale dealers, are resold by said jobbers and wholesale dealers to retail dealers who resell them to the public without disclosing the fact that said caps are manufactured from felts pre-
Complaint

Previously worn and then renovated and made over, and under such circumstances as to indicate falsely that they are new baseball caps. Said caps sold by respondents to retailers are resold by such retailers to the public without disclosing the fact that such caps have been manufactured from hats previously worn, and then renovated and made over, and under such circumstances as to indicate falsely that they are new baseball caps.

The cost to respondents of obtaining, renovating, and making over said old hats into baseball caps as aforesaid, is much less than the cost to manufacturers of manufacturing new baseball caps of similar quality, and respondents are thereby able to sell said baseball caps to retailers, jobbers, and wholesalers, and through them to the using public, at substantially lower prices than manufacturers of new baseball caps can sell caps of same or similar goods to retailers, jobbers, and wholesale dealers, and through said dealers to the using public.

Par. 4. The acts and practices of respondents as hereinbefore set forth, are calculated to and do have the capacity and tendency to induce many wholesale and retail dealers, and many of the purchasing public, to purchase the said baseball caps manufactured from old, used, and discarded hats which have been renovated and made over by respondents into baseball caps, in the mistaken belief that they are purchasing new and unused baseball caps manufactured from new and unused materials, and tend to and do unfairly divert trade to respondents from concerns engaged in the manufacture and sale of new baseball caps in interstate commerce throughout the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia.

There are also among the competitors of respondents corporations, individuals, firms and partnerships engaged in the manufacture of baseball caps from felt material obtained from used, old, discarded, and secondhand hats, which said corporations, individuals, firms and partnerships label, tag, and otherwise indicate on the said baseball caps sold by them that such caps are not manufactured from new and unused material but are manufactured from felt material obtained from used, old, discarded and secondhand hats. There are also among the competitors of respondents, corporations, individuals, firms and partnerships who are engaged in the manufacture and sale of baseball caps manufactured from new and unused felt material. The acts and practices of respondents as hereinbefore set forth are calculated to and tend to and do unfairly divert trade to respondents from said competitors, and by the acts and practices of the respondents hereinbefore described, substantial injury is done by respondents to substantial competition in interstate commerce.

Par. 5. The above alleged acts and practices of respondents are each and all of them to the prejudice of the public and respondents’ competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce within the meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes".

For domestic radio transmission, the so-called "long-wave" or "broadcast" band is used, while foreign transmission is based almost entirely on the use of the so-called "short-wave" band. The object to be achieved in an "all-wave" receiving set is to make it possible for the operator to receive through a single instrument either the domestic or broadcast bands, or the foreign short-wave bands, at his pleasure. In the present state of the art, the reception of foreign short-wave bands is difficult and uncertain. Operators in certain localities obtain foreign stations at certain times of the year and during certain parts of the day, without difficulty and in satisfactory volume while in other localities, such stations are sometimes obtained and sometimes not, for no apparent reason. The "tuning in" or "logging" of a short-wave foreign station is usually slow and difficult. The loud-speaker volume varies from nothing to occasional satisfactory reception, and much attempted short-wave reception is rendered more difficult by noise interferences or "static." These conditions are known to experts, but not to the purchasing public who are not aware that there are no receiving instruments which will give easily tuned, continuous, and satisfactory reception of short-waves from foreign countries under all conditions.

Hugo Gernsback, in soliciting the sale of and selling his products in interstate commerce, agreed to cease and desist from the use of the words "All-Wave" to describe products which are not capable of reception over the entire meter range covering all broadcast and commercial transmissions; stating and representing in substance and effect that by the use of his radio receiving sets, the owners thereof can have world-wide, continuous reception of short-wave transmisimply or which may have the capacity or tendency to confuse, mislead, or deceive purchasers into the belief that said product is a cream, the oil content of which is composed of turtle oil; unless when the oil content of said product is substantial and includes turtle oil in substantial quantity, and the words “Turtle Oil” are used to describe or represent the turtle oil content of the same, then in that case the said words “Turtle Oil” shall be accompanied by some other word or words printed in type equally as conspicuous as that in which the words “Turtle Oil” are printed so as to indicate clearly the fact that the oil content of said product is not composed wholly of turtle oil and that will otherwise indicate clearly that the oil

The National Bureau of Standards in the Department of Commerce of the United States has as one of its chief functions the discovery and evaluation of material standards and the solution of basic technical problems by the use of its unique research and testing facilities. Its establishment of more precise values for the standard constantly furnishes an exact basis for scientific experiment and design and makes possible the efficient technical control of industrial processes. Its work on standards of quality sets up attainable standards to assure high utility in the products of industry and furnishes a scientific basis for fair dealing by promoting truthful branding and advertising. In the course of its work in the fields involving the standards above described, it makes researches and tests for the determination of the properties of stone, clays, cement, and other structural materials. The Bureau's functions are exercised for the National Government, State governments, and the general public. In the latter case, researches are made by persons designated as "Research Associates", assigned to the Bureau by an Association representing an industry, or by a group of associations. Researches made by Research Associates have for their object the solution of problems considered important to the entire industry concerned. In such cases, the facts found are made public in order that the industry as a whole and the public dealing with it may benefit. But in order to assure that one manufacturer may not profit at the expense of others, it is customary to omit from the report the names of the manufacturers whose products are utilized, as well as the names or other identification of their brands. Each such manufacturer is given a key which will enable him to identify in such report his own product, but not the products of other participants. In transmitting this key number, it is the practice of the Bureau to inform each manufacturer receiving the same that he may not utilize the information so disclosed for advertising or sales promotion purposes.

0878. Vendor-Advertiser—Medicinal Preparation.—PX Products Co., Detroit, Mich., vendor-advertiser, is engaged in selling a medicinal preparation, designated “PX Solution” and in advertising represented:

Smart women who use PX, never get caught with embarrassing body odors. Also kills germs, promotes healing. • • •

THE PERFECT SOLUTION WOMEN’S HYGIENE PROBLEMS

PX • • • heals delicate feminine membranes and protects. PX is guaranteed to completely relieve Leucorrhea (whites) or money refunded. Non-Poisonous and has no odor.

Of Vital Importance to a Happy Marriage.

AFTER BABY’S BIRTH

Since the birth of my baby, in 1929, I’ve been tormented by leucorrhea (whites). Had to wear a sanitary pad all the time. I used literally everything—without success. In November, my doctor gave me PX, to use as a douche twice daily. At once the foul odor disappeared. The discharge rapidly lessened and has now ceased. Where I had formerly an unpleasant sense of laxness, openness, I now feel close, firm tightness, and support. • • • We want to tell you of a discovery that makes these things possible. A new, yet old, discovery, that effectively safeguards health and charm—on every point.

Most of the diseases common to women come from bacterial infections. Statistics show that seven women out of ten, past age 25, suffer from the distressing discharges and odors of “Whites”—or leucorrhea—which is a catarrhal condition of the uterine tract. The odor and discharge drive women to distraction!
At first the discharge is somewhat increased, as PX begins clearing up the cause, bringing membrane back to clean, normal health. Then suddenly, this ceases, and the distress is ended. It is often completed in two or three days—cases which have dragged for years.

Many, many women, have already discovered the benefits brought by PX. This is what they say about it: First of all, praises for the relief that poisons need no longer be kept about the house; bichloride of mercury, carbolic acid preparations, iodine preparations. Because with these there was always the possibility of a hideous mistake.

When you think that in the past most preparations used in connection with the douche were deadly poisons and would, over a period of time, deaden and sear the tissues of the vaginal tracts, you will begin to appreciate the new possibilities of PX which is a combination of an astringent, an instant deodorant, and a protection against bacterial infections.

And so, in using PX as a cleansing douche, you are at the time guarding against any bacterial infections with the added feature of stimulating the natural and healthy secretions of the body. PX will also relieve immediately—by virtue of its wonderful healing qualities—any lacerated or inflamed tissue. PX is advertised and purchased for scores of uses in general antisepsic—the home treatment of wounds, cuts, burns, eczema, rashes, athlete's foot, and other skin troubles. In these uses its combined antiseptic and healing powers are priceless. But at any rate, do go and get your first bottle of PX right away.

Feminine hygiene, infections, cuts, sores, wounds, abrasions, athlete's foot, eczema, pimples, acne, other skin affections • • • Plant poisoning:
Waste poisons are excreted.
For boils and sores:
Truly a household necessity for boils; sunburn; surgical dressing; athlete's foot; hot, tired feet; cuts and sores; insect bites, etc.
* * * It will positively control and overcome the odor of cancer, gangrene, foul wounds, and of decomposition.
PX is preferable to bichloride of mercury for the reason PX is non-poisonous; • • • Efficient in the presence of organic matter.
Stimulates local circulation and relieves blood stasis.
Bactericidal in aqueous dilution, inhibiting germ growth without cell destruction.
As a cleansing deodorizing spray or douche on any diseased or offensive surface.
As an irrigation, dressing, or compress-treatment in wounds, burns, ulcers, or skin diseases.
As a true deodorant and healing agent, generally applicable to the needs of the physician or patient.
PX Solution has been given exacting clinical tests by discriminating physicians with uniformly good results.
Besides its use in personal hygiene, PX has rendered excellent results in the treatment of athlete's foot, stubborn eczema cases, burns, cuts, scratches, ringworm, insect bites, and kindred disorders.
In the practical routine treatment of infected and foul wounds, PX is superior and dependable.
In the restoration to normal, where circulation is impeded and no progress toward healing is apparent, PX will be found unequalled.
In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

Inflamed Membrane (Endometritis). An inflammation of the lining (mucous membrane) of the womb. Use douche as prescribed by physician.

Vaginal Inflammation (Vaginitis). Use hot distending douches containing mild antiseptics. Keep body warm. Local applications as prescribed by the physician.

Pelvic Inflammation. Usually a very hot douche will relieve the pain and congestion caused by pelvic inflammation.

Nervous conditions. (Neurosis.) Often due to, or aggravated by, irritating vaginal conditions which may be remedied by the practice of Feminine Hygiene.

An especially important function of the Bureau of Feminine Hygiene is to select and test apparatus and medicaments suitable for the correct practice of Feminine Hygiene. If the best available is not considered good enough, the product becomes the subject of further research and improvement.

The Bureau's Seal of Approval on any product for Feminine Hygiene is your assurance and guarantee of its purity, its quality, and its reliability.

Gyn-O-Sol
Its consistency is such that it spreads evenly over all internal parts and deposits a film that remains effective throughout the night, making douching unnecessary until morning.

One Gynette is used upon retiring, or when desired. Since the antiseptic qualities of Gynettes remain effective throughout the night—douching may be postponed until morning. Gynettes are also beneficial in soothing minor irritation and are excellent deodorants. Gynettes may be used with utmost confidence—are noninjurious—dependable, and are compounded from a formula that has the professional endorsements of Gynecologists as well as the Bureau of Feminine Hygiene.

You can lose two or three pounds of fat a week with absolute safety and still not deny yourself one pleasure of eating. • • •

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated and misleading, to the injury of the public and of competitors, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers, in that Bulgarian Herb Tea is merely a mild laxative and diuretic; is not an old family remedy for assisting nature to reduce weight or flesh; is not nature's own remedy; will not reduce flesh or weight surely, safely, or at all; will not keep the "system" clean; will not maintain germ resistance; will not keep the system toned up and able to resist the onslaughts of common cold germ diseases; will not improve the blood and purge dangerous germs out of the system; has not been used by millions for over a quarter of a century in fighting colds; is not a competent prevention, remedy or treatment for colds, influenza or grippe; the formula for it does not date back many centuries and it is not recommended by all druggists.

Diabetes is not associated with overweight after middle age; underweight in younger years does not lead to various illnesses, one of which is tuberculosis; science has not found colds are due to germs; common colds are not highly infectious nor do they lead to more serious diseases except as they may, if prolonged, reduce bodily resistance.
In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

1. That Bulgarian Herb Tea—
   (a) Is anything but a mild laxative and diuretic;
   (b) Is competent to reduce or assist in reducing flesh or weight safely, surely or otherwise;

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated, and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that according to the advice received by the Commission, reliable medical opinion does not consider a preparation of this type as a competent remedy in all forms of rheumatism. The article contains several analgesics and would tend to relieve milder types of pain. Such a product, however, should not be used indiscriminately or for any extended period as the ingredients, acetphenetidin and cincopehen, are dangerous drugs and capable of great harm.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and

END EXCRUCIATING PAINS OF RHEUMATISM AND NEURITIS

Sufferers of long standing may require more than one box while milder cases will be relieved by only one box. The treatment varies only in the quantity required to bring about complete relief from the dreadful pains of rheumatism. It is recommended that the treatment be continued for a reasonable length of time until all indications of rheumatism are gone.

Free. No matter how crippled and helpless you are with Rheumatism; no matter how great your suffering, you can ease that pain in a day, and rheumatism's terrible grip on your system in less than a week.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that according to the medical opinion received by the Commission this product is of no value as a corrective agent for rheumatism and neuritis; it would not lessen the severity of the infection, nor would it alter the course of the disease; the preparation contains several powerful sedatives which will relieve surface pains, but in view of its amidopyrin content, is a most dangerous product if used indiscriminately, the continued use of this drug in many cases giving rise to agranulocytosis; furthermore, the respondent does not operate laboratories for the manufacture of this product.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That Aralgia Capsules are either a competent treatment or an effective remedy for rheumatic pains, or

Neuritis, or

Gout, or

Lumbago, or

Neuralgia;

(b) That respondent has “perfected” a rheumatic remedy;

(c) That Aralgia Capsules will “end” the excruciating pains of rheumatism and neuritis;

(d) That these capsules will bring about “complete relief” from the dreadful pains of rheumatism;
(e) That said capsules can ease your pain in a day "no matter how crippled and helpless you are with rheumatism", or "no matter how great your suffering";

(f) That Aralgia Capsules will break "rheumatism's terrible grip on your system in less than a week" or in any other period of time;

(g) That these capsules are produced by "laboratories" until such be the fact;

and from making any other claims or assertions of like import.

The respondent assumes all responsibility for any and all representations appearing in testimonials published by him and stipulates and agrees that he will not publish or cause to be published any testimonial containing any representation contrary to the foregoing agreement. (July 17, 1935.)

0885. Vendor-Advertiser—Stove Device.—Breckenridge Manufacturing Co., vendor-advertiser, is engaged in selling a device for gas stoves designated "Scientific Gas Saver", and in advertising represented:

MONEY BACK GUARANTEE

To save 25% or More on Your Cooking Gas Bills Cut $$$ Off Your Gas Bills. The Scientific Gas Savers Will do the Trick and You can Bank the Difference.

Burn More Air and Less Gas. Air Is Free.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated, and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that according to the technical report received by the Commission all such purported gas saving devices produce carbon monoxide; that in this case the alleged hotter flame is not real, but is a delusion produced by shortening of the flames without changing the gas rate; that the demonstration burner is hotter because consuming gas at a higher rate; that air does not burn, but oxygen in air supports combustion, whereas this ring excludes some of the required air and the gas is not completely burned, so that carbon monoxide results; that many burners used on domestic appliances are not properly adjusted, burning more gas than can be economically used, but that free adjustments are made by the gas company if requested; that the tests show no increased efficiency by the use of such gas savers, but the generation of dangerous carbon monoxide; that there is no justification for any claim of 30% reduction in gas bill, some of the devices tested actually increasing the amount of gas required; moreover, that a saving of one-third of all gas burned would effect a saving of no more than one cent a day for the average family.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That by the use of said device—
1. Cooking gas bills are cut 59%, or 25%, or any other percentage not established by scientifically conducted tests; or
2. Gas bills are cut from $10.32 to $4.62, or by any other amount not actually demonstrated under accurate test conditions; or
3. Savings are effected of $2.00 per month, or $1 per month, or $25.00 per year, or $5.00 per year, or in any other amount not scientifically demonstrated.

(b) That this device is a "scientific" gas saver, or in fact a gas "saver" at all, until competent scientific proof thereof be duly furnished;

(c) That said device either burns more air or less gas, or that it burns any air whatsoever;

(d) That said device is "guaranteed" to reduce gas bills, or that it will "put money in your pockets" or "keep money in your pockets";

(e) That users are "wild" about this device;

(f) That testimonial statements constitute "proof" of the advertising claim made;

and from making any other claims or assertions of like import.

The respondents assume all responsibility for any and all representations appearing in testimonials published by them and stipulate and agree that they will not publish or cause to be published any testimonial containing any representation contrary to the foregoing agreement. (July 17, 1935.)

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated, and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive perspective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that according to medical opinion furnished the Commission, Broncotong, while it has some merit as an expectorant and antispasmodic, is not a competent treatment for diseases of the chest, lungs, bronchial tubes, or for catarrh, sore throat, whooping cough, colds, or coughs, except that it may give some relief in coughs due to colds; and Gastritone, with laxative, slightly stomachic, and some sedative properties, nevertheless is not a competent remedy for indigestion, gases, constipation, or all stomach ailments; nor will it stimulate the blood, nerves, or the entire system. Moreover, respondent does not own or operate a laboratory.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Com-mision this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise—

and from making any other claims or assertions of like import.

The respondent further stipulates and agrees in all future advertising in interstate commerce to cease and desist from the use of the word “Laboratories” in and as a part of its corporate name, until such time as it shall actually operate a laboratory as said word is commonly understood and accepted.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated, and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that according to medical opinion furnished the Commission, the said preparation would have no value in the treatment of bunions or tired, aching feet resulting from ill-fitting shoes or flat feet; nor will it bring about a normal, healthy condition of the feet regardless of the cause of their discomfiture. Furthermore, the representations of possible earnings to be made in the sale of this product are exaggerated and without foundation of fact.

0890. Vendor-Advertiser—Rheumatism Treatment.—Kuhn Remedy Co., Chicago, Ill., vendor-advertiser, is engaged in selling treatment for rheumatic conditions designated “Kuhn’s Rheumatic Fever Remedy”, and in advertising represented:

Kuhn’s Rheumatic Remedy * * * which is well qualified for the relief of various forms of Rheumatism.

Of course you want results, and realize that if they are to be had, medicine must be persisted in long enough to give it a chance to work the necessary change in the blood—that all POISON MUST BE DRIVEN OUT.

This is just what I believe Kuhn’s Remedy will do, and that is why it should relieve RHEUMATIC FEVER * * * The Rheumatism has to go if you want to be free from pain and suffering. My remedy is to relieve the sharp, shooting pains; dull, aching muscles; and hot, throbbing swollen limbs.

I don’t care how long you have been suffering from these Rheumatic conditions.
I don’t care what other remedies you have used, if you have not used mine, you don’t know what my Remedy will do.

Kuhn’s Remedy usually acts quickly, as the large number of letters we receive from men and women all over the country who have been benefited by our trial bottle proves. There are thousands of cases in which this remedy goes right to the spot in the first week.

The power of Kuhn’s Remedy for Rheumatic Fever * * * is amply proven by the great mass of testimony in this book, but we want sufferers to know what such kind of rheumatism really is, so that they may fully understand how this remedy does its work in the system and just what change in the system it must accomplish to relieve the suffering.

I did not think it possible that any medicine could do what one bottle of your Remedy has done for me. I have had to use a cane for years on account of stiffness in my left knee joint and today, after only using the trial bottle which you sent me, I walked without any cane, almost normal.

I am sixty-two years old and I suffered for 20 years with Rheumatism. I saw Kuhn’s Remedy advertised so I decided to give it a trial, and to my surprise, after using seven bottles, I was relieved and haven’t been bothered with Rheumatism for two years.

MUST BE ELIMINATED—ALTHOUGH RHEUMATISM may be known by various names or types according to the manner or locality of its manifestation, it DEVELOPS in different ways in different persons, but no matter what the form of development, relief must lie in the eradication of the present condition.

Liniments and plasters, electric belts, and various other cunning devices heavily advertised in the newspapers, fail in the great majority of cases from the simple fact that they are created on the principle of RELIEVING THE PAIN instead of upon the only rational plan of REACHING THE DISEASE.

But what every sufferer wants is a substantial relief, one that drives the irritants from the system. This is what has been said of the effects of Kuhn’s Rheumatic Remedy. It goes after the irritants in the system. It, too, gives relief, but relief on the right principle—easing the pain as the disease is driven out.

Since taking six bottles of your Kuhn’s Remedy I am well and working again.
I used the 7 bottles and I am free from Rheumatism.
It is now more than fifteen years since I used Kuhn’s Remedy and I am still free from Rheumatism and never have felt a sign of it since I used your Medicine.

I was in bed for eight weeks and tried everything that I heard of for Rheumatism. Nothing helped me. When I received your Remedy, that was the eighth week of my sickness. I had to use crutches. Then Tuesday I started to take your Remedy and Saturday that same week I was to a dance. I am now working hard every day and have never been bothered with it since.

It is now 16 years that I have heard of your Remedy for Rheumatism * * * seeing your trial offer I sent for it and received it * * * and sent for five more bottles. I have never had a touch of Rheumatism since.

This was more than a year ago and I have never felt any Rheumatism since.

Kuhn’s Remedy has relieved me of a bad case of Rheumatism. I have been suffering for six years, and I am now well and don’t feel a pain at any time.

My Rheumatism is gone so I thank God. Over 4 years since I sent the above testimonial and still have no Rheumatism; this is a splendid remedy.

I believe I have been completely relieved from Rheumatism as I have not had any Rheumatic pains since I took your remedy.

RHEUMATICS WANTED! If you suffer from rheumatism and have unsuccessfully sought relief * * * send us your name. Get amazing story of our proven 40 year old remedy and details of gift offer. Or send 25¢ for regular $1 bottle.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that according to the medical opinion received by the Commission a prescription of this composition is not a rational treatment for rheumatic fever, and although it might exert some beneficial influence in gout and may temporarily relieve surface pains, nevertheless it could not be considered a competent remedy for chronic rheumatism, for which condition the curative effort is directed to the cause which is usually some focus of infection frequently requiring a surgical procedure.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That said preparation is either a competent remedy or an effective treatment for:
1. Various forms of rheumatism, or
2. Rheumatic conditions, or
3. Rheumatic fever;
(b) That such preparation either
1. Works “the necessary changes in the blood,” or
2. Drives out all poison, or
3. Causes the rheumatism to “go”, or
4. Goes “right to the spot” in the first week, or at all, or
5. Does its work "in the system", or
6. Accomplishes changes in the system, or
7. Eliminates rheumatism, or
8. Eradicates rheumatic conditions, or
9. Reaches the disease, or
10. Is the only rational plan for treating such conditions, or 11. Drives the irritants from the system, or 12. Drives out the disease, or
13. Goes after the irritants in the system, or 14. Will "free" one from rheumatism, or 15. Makes one "well" of rheumatism, or
16. "Completely relieves" rheumatism:
   (c) That such preparation enables one within four days to attend a dance after eight weeks in bed with rheumatism;
   (d) That thousands of cases of rheumatism have been relieved in the first week's treatment with this medicine, or any other number not substantiated by definite proof;
   (e) That one trial bottle will make a person normal who has been suffering from stiffness of knee joint;
   (f) That a twenty year case of rheumatism can be cleared up by seven bottles of this medicine;
   (g) That other treatments for rheumatism "fail in the great majority of cases;"
and from making any other claims or assertions of like import.

The respondent assumes all responsibility for any and all representations appearing in testimonials published by it and stipulates and agrees that it will not publish or cause to be published any testimonial containing any representation contrary to the foregoing agreement. (Aug. 2, 1935.)

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated, and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that:

The amounts stated as possible or probable profits exceed those which can be earned by respondent's customers under normal conditions;

This product has not attained any sudden or universal popularity as represented;

The assertions that there are no supplies to buy and that no money is invested or risked, are not correct, inasmuch as one-fourth cash must be advanced with the order before shipment C. O. D. for balance of price;

Many customers are obliged to canvass from house to house in order to market their products;

The territories are not going fast, as asserted, as no "territories" are reserved for a customer;

No equipment or supplies are to be had "free", as represented; and "an hour or two" a day is not sufficient time to prepare all chips needed to yield the profits indicated.

The respondent stipulates that it has heretofore discontinued both the advertising and the selling of such article without intent to resume the same. (Aug. 7, 1935.)

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that according to medical opinion furnished the Commission, said preparations are not competent or effective remedies for rashes, pimples, or the various forms of eczema, and their value is limited to external treatment for the relief of itching, burning, and superficial irritations not due to internal causes.

0895. Vendor-Advertiser—Medicinal Preparation.—The Vita-Minn Co., Minneapolis, Minn., vendor-advertiser, is engaged in selling a medicinal preparation designated “Vita-Minn-Rel”, and in advertising represented:

If you feel sluggish and run-down, you are no doubt a victim of sluggish elimination.

But beware of harsh laxatives. Establish normal elimination habits with Vita-Minn-Rel.

A new compound of mineral salts.

Vita-Minn-Rel corrects faulty elimination and cleanses the system of poisonous wastes getting rid of puffiness and fat safely and easily.

VITA-MINN-REL, the pleasant-tasting, flesh-reducing treatment that you find today in so many home medicine cabinets all over the Northwest.

An American physician, while traveling in Europe, fairly stumbled upon the formula of the great Austrian physician, who had died, leaving to a younger man what remained of his laboratory and his scientific investigations.

This American doctor, realizing the unusual value of the great Austrian’s mineral compound, finally returned to the United States with the formula safely tucked in his pocket.

VITA-MINN-REL method is being used every day by scores of persons afflicted with overweight and all the ills that go with such a condition.

Mrs. Rohde’s overweight condition was such that she just about despaired of ever being helped by anything. She weighed 315 pounds, think of it! And she couldn’t sleep.

Ugly, distressing flesh you don’t need, and wish you could lose. Well, you will find VITA-MINN-REL a wonderful, positive help in getting rid of this burden; and don’t forget that, while excess fat may be merely annoying in winter, it is positively dangerous during the hot months.

* * * this remarkable flesh-reducing treatment.

VITA-MINN-REL, * * * is just as far ahead of ordinary flesh-reducing methods as the electric light is superior to the kerosene lamp.

VITA-MINN-REL is such a simple, easy, delightful way to take off the ugly fat which you should get rid of! And you run no risk.

Already thousands of flesh-burdened people have tried and accepted VITA-MINN-REL, and are amazed at the way it reduces their ugly, unpleasant fat, without the slightest inconvenience.

Another welcome fact is that you are not limited to a rigid diet of just a few things, and have to leave out many things you enjoy eating.

* * * you eat almost anything you enjoy which agrees with your digestion.

It is a specific prescription for reducing excess fat and, at the same time, giving the system a gentle yet thorough cleansing.
not one-half of one percent of those who bought a bottle of VITA-MINN-REL have ever brought it back; instead they come back for more.

Mrs. Rohde found immediate and permanent relief in VITA-MINN-REL and so extremely grateful was she that we received this letter from her (quote) "Before I started taking Vita-Minn-Rel, I never went to bed; couldn't sleep lying down—had to get what sleep I could sitting up in a chair. Now, after using your treatment five weeks, I sleep soundly, in bed, every night. It not only is a wonderful relief to feel so fine, but I have lost 31 pounds since taking VITA-MINN-REL;"

Our instruction is entirely individual, geared to the student’s individual ability and time.

Our aim is to train men thoroughly and yet in such a way that they can apply their knowledge as they acquire it. It is not necessary to have completed the entire course before the student can start to utilize his knowledge for gain.

Television bids fair to be so profitable and interesting to its workers that it is difficult to compare it with other fields of endeavor.

Men must be trained to fill the thousands of occupational openings in this gigantic new industry.

Our biggest anticipated need is man power which is the primary reason why Dr. Young founded this institute, as there are no trained television technicians available in this country.

I am particularly interested in young men of your type at this time due to the unusual activity in our placement bureau in securing positions for our finished students.

I am especially interested at this time in enrolling a class of young men not exceeding ten whom I can train for a special group of jobs now listed with our placement bureau.

We need you just about as much as you need us, our idea in operating this school is primarily to build up our own staff of trained men.

Will Television offer employment for you when you are properly trained? • • • Television answers yes • • • Dr. Young’s training, properly followed, will prepare you to gain early recognition.

This most rapidly growing industry of all time • • • Television • • • we stress our firm belief that the large fortunes that will be made in the next five years will be made in Television.

There is a pile of letters on my desk from fellows who want our training with all their hearts but the money matter stops them cold • • • I finally thrashed this matter out with Dr. Young * * * I suggested we * * * make a lot of real fellows happy by getting them started on our course for the low fee of $5.00 * * * I told him we would lose a lot of money unless we limited this offer to just thirty days * * * this offer will be recalled in thirty days. Applications postmarked later than midnight, J—, will be returned.

Our training fits you to make extra money in this particular field while learning.

When your laboratory training is finished your qualifications and grades are given to our Placement Bureau * * * and will render every assistance to our graduate students in securing satisfactory employment * * * Television is a practical fact * * * Preparations are daily being made * * * for * * * the subsequent demand for trained men that will result * * * Six months hence men who are properly trained will be in demand * * * no offer could be more fair as we eliminate all element of chance.

Dr. Young’s Television broadcasting station is completed and on the air. Dr. Young’s Northwestern Television Institute will train three young men in Faribault and vicinity for positions as Television technicians in this great new industry. A representative will * * * interview applicants who wish to be considered for this attractive opportunity.

SILLS HAS NEVER FAILED IN A SINGLE CASE.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated, and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that whereas according to medical opinion received by the Commission a preparation of this composition would have some therapeutic value in the treatment of the ordinary cases of athlete's foot to the extent that it would tend to relieve the symptoms of such conditions, it nevertheless cannot be considered a corrective foot treatment for the various conditions affecting the foot, nor a competent treatment in all cases of athlete's foot or trench foot, and it would not correct athlete's foot in three days; neither can it be considered a competent treatment for eczema of the foot or all diseases of the epidermis of the feet.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That said product could “put the whole world on its feet in just three days”, or in any other period of time, or
That its use will “positively cure” foot conditions; or
That it will “completely rejuvenate” the feet, or that by its use “brand new feet are now possible”, or
That it will eliminate, without qualification, the handicap of painful diseased feet, or That its results are unfailing, or
That it is the one remedy that never fails, or That half the contents of one package can “cure” one’s feet; or
That it has never failed in a single case;
(b) That the use of said product will eliminate all necessity for suffering with athlete’s foot, or will positively eliminate athlete’s foot, or will bring lasting relief from athlete’s foot, or Will completely or thoroughly rejuvenate athlete’s foot, or Is guaranteed to free one of the germs of athlete’s foot, or Knocks athlete’s foot in three days or in any other specified length of time, or Corrects the most severe cases of athlete’s foot, or
Is competent to make feet healthy, comfortable, and normal when afflicted with athlete’s foot, or
Is positive in the correction of athlete’s foot no matter how severe or long standing the case might be, or
That $500 is offered for any case of athlete’s foot which this treatment cannot correct;
(c) That said product, inferentially or otherwise is a competent treatment for “all forms of eczema” or for eczema in any form, or that by its use eczema discomforts are stopped, or that the most severe cases of chronic weeping eczema commence to disappear with the first few applications, or “should soon be under complete control”, or can be absolutely controlled;
(d) That said product is a “new 1934 treatment” for eczema;
(e) That said product is either a competent treatment or an effective remedy, or a positive correction for “all stubborn skin infections”; or
For "diseased, germ infected feet", or
For all ailments of the epidermis of the feet, or
For stubborn infections and disorders of the skin on any part of the body;

(j) That said treatment will "free" a person of either infections, or trench foot, or offensive odor, or all corns and callouses; or cracking, aching, itching, or rotten feet, or that it brings "lasting relief" to any such conditions;

(g) That by the use of said product either infected, growth covered, or offensive epidermis is comfortably replaced with a healthy new one in "just three days" or in any other length of time;

and from making any other claims or assertions of like import.

The respondent assumes all responsibility for any and all representations appearing in testimonials published by it and stipulates and agrees that it will not publish or cause to be published any testimonial containing any representation contrary to the foregoing agreement. (Aug. 12, 1935.)

0898. Vendor-Advertiser—Correspondence Courses.—The National School of Exterminating, Springfield, Mass., vendor-advertiser, is engaged in selling a correspondence course in exterminating bugs and vermin, and in advertising represented:

Become a professional exterminator. Five complete lessons on control and extermination of roaches, rats, bed bugs, moths, etc. in homes, apartments, stores, factories, public buildings. Uncrowded field. Earn up to $50 per week and more. Send $1.00 today for first lesson and details. National School of Exterminating, 145 State Street, Springfield, Massachusetts.

Here is a sample list of a few jobs done by members of the faculty of the National School of Exterminating:

- Apartment-First Treatment $50.00, Monthly Contract $15.00 per mo.
- Apartment-First Treatment $33.00, Monthly Contract $12.00 per mo.
- Factory-First Treatment $50.00, Monthly Contract $28.00 per mo.
- Dairy-First Treatment $20.00, Monthly Contract $10.00 per mo.
- 20 restaurants at $3.00 per month, total $60.00 per month.
- 253 chain stores at $2.00 per month, total $506.00 per month.

One mortgage company pays us $61.00 per month, another $50.00 per month. These and many others are typical of the ordinary run of work you'll be handling every month in the year, and remember every home is a prospect for service or powder or liquids which you'll be able to make and sell upon completion of the course.

If you worked on nothing but restaurants, small stores, and single jobs, exterminating rats, mice, and roaches, you could earn from $6.00 to $10.00 a day. If you simply de-mothed pianos you could earn $10.00 a day. (One man averaged $16.00 a day for 6 months just de-mothing pianos.)

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive interested parties to the injury of respondent's competitors, in that the respondents have been unable to furnish the Commission with the names and addresses of any of their student graduates who have earned the amounts indicated.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) Not to make unmodified representations or claims of earnings in excess of the average earnings of respondents' students or graduates achieved under normal conditions in the due course of business;

(b) Not to represent or hold out as a chance or an opportunity any amount in excess of what has actually been accomplished by one or more of respondent's students or graduates under normal conditions in the due course of business;

(c) Not to represent or hold out as maximum earnings by the use of such expressions as "up to," "as high as" or any equivalent expression, any amount in excess of what has actually been accomplished by one or more of respondents' students or graduates under normal conditions in the due course of business. 0899. Vendor-Advertiser—Motor Lubricant.—The Coffield Protector Co., Dayton, Ohio, vendor-advertiser, is engaged in selling a graphited motor lubricant, designated "Graf-Ex" and in advertising represented:

Make Old Motors Run Like New.

SMALL AS GERMS

Under action of motor heat, these germ-small particles of "Graf-Ex" actually "build themselves in" to the cylinder and piston wall. With every turn of the motor they act to "plate" worn surfaces with a power-sealing substance that will not break down under heat—solid as metal, yet actually a better lubricant than most oils.

No WONDER dozens of enterprising agents are reporting steady repeat business and fast-growing customer lists. Imagine a simple fluid, which you pour into gasoline and oil, that brings results in engines like these:

"Increased gasoline mileage 15% in a short time", (from J. W. Jenkins of Cincinnati, Ohio); "Cut oil consumption down to one-quarter what it used to be on a Fordson tractor," (says D. E. Forsyth, Lake Geneva, Fla.); "Getting 18 to 20 miles on a gallon in a car that has run 41,000 miles—23,000 since the valves were ground!" (C. N. Lindberg of Kansas).

Just think! There are 17 million cars that are over 3 years old today. 17 million motorists, dreading the day when they'll take an expensive trip to the repair man! Think what a gold-mine you can make out of this market with new Graf-Ex.

It's one of the great engineering discoveries of the century—a method that makes it possible to lubricate even valves and top cylinders with Graf-Ex—the most perfect lubricant that not only will not "break down", but actually seems to "plate" worn motor surfaces with a marvelous self-lubricating substance. Old motors seem to "rebuild" themselves—power leaks seal up—gas and oil cost go down and repair costs often are put off for months by the small amount of money spent for Graf-Ex.

Be the first in your territory to introduce this Motor Protector. Send today for complete facts about Graf-Ex. Full engineering data, reports of users, and wonderful successful-selling plan will be mailed at once. Do not delay—others will also jump for this opportunity.

Opportunities to make $90.00 to $150.00 per week are not so plentiful right now. That is why Distributors, salesmen, and crew managers are quick to see the wonderful possibilities of Graf-Ex. To eager wide awake men we are assigning territory every day in every section of the country, but your territory is still open. So let us tell you more about Graf-Ex.

HEAT sufficient to melt iron does not destroy the lubricating value of Graf-Ex. Engineers claim that a temperature of from 1,500 to 2,000 degrees Fahrenheit is developed by the explosion of gasoline in the upper part of your motor. Valves, upper pistons, and rings must operate in this temperature. Ordinary oil burns at 500 degrees F. or less. That is why automobile engineers have never been able to get these parts properly lubricated with oil. These parts run with little or no lubrication. Valves get warped—compression is impossible. Pistons wear sloppy. Gasoline leaks past the rings into the crank case. Oil is diluted. Wear on the bearings is increased. The motor becomes noisy. Repair bills are frequent and ineffectual. A whole new motor would be necessary to effect a complete cure. Graf-Ex cures the trouble by preventing it. Upper valves get lubrication. Wear and noise are stopped. Oil dilution is prevented. Greater mileage from gasoline results. Oil consumption is lessened. Repair bills are avoided. Your car gets new life and pep * * * New Motor performance

SAVE! SAVE!! SAVE!!!

Graf-Ex saves gasoline or gives greater mileage because it eliminates carbon and carbon overheats your motor. The rings work freely and the gasoline is not pumped into the crank case. Valves seat perfectly, preventing escape of vaporized gasoline into the exhaust unexploded.
SAVES OIL

Graf-Ex contains a penetrant which loosens sluggish rings and less oil is pumped into the firing chamber from the crank case, thus reducing the oil consumption and removing the cause of carbon.

SAVES REPAIR BILLS

Any machine runs smoother at less cost when perfectly lubricated. New valves, rings, pistons, guides, pushrods, springs—all cost money. Why are new ones necessary? Excessive wear from poor lubrication. Use Graf-Ex and smile at the miles.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated, and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that according to the scientific advice received by the Commission, the use of this product will not increase engine horsepower or car speed beyond the normal variations through use of mineral oils; and the claims made for gasoline mileage increase and for the saving of oil are excessive and not supported by the tests; also the opportunity for earnings held out to prospective sales-persons is exaggerated.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That the use of Graph-Ex increases gasoline mileage by 15% or to 18 or 20 miles per gallon in an old car, or in any other proportion or amount not supported by competent scientific tests;

(b) That oil consumption will be cut down by the use of Graf-Ex to one-quarter of what it used to be or to any other extent or degree not proven by accurate tests;

(c) That old motors "seem to rebuild themselves" when Graf-Ex is applied;

(d) That Graf-Ex will either
1. Make old motors run like new, or
2. Plate worn surfaces with a power-sealing substance, or
3. Utterly smooth self-lubricating surfaces of cylinder walls, or
4. Cause power leaks to seal up, or
5. Stop wear and noise, or
6. Avoid repair bills, or
7. Prevent oil dilution, or
8. Provide new motor performance or cause new motors to stay new, or 9. Eliminate carbon, or make rings work freely, or prevent gasoline from being pumped into the crank case, or cause valves to seat perfectly, or prevent escape into the exhaust of unexploded vaporized gasoline, or

10. Fill in and smooth over scratches, scorings or any indentures in cylinder walls that are not mere microscopic scratches; and from making any other claims or assertions of like import.

Respondent furthermore stipulates and agrees not to represent to prospective distributors, salesmen, and crew managers, or hold out as a chance or an opportunity, any prospective earnings in an amount in excess of what has actually been accomplished by one or more of respondent's salespersons or dealers under normal conditions in the due course of business.

The respondent assumes all responsibility for any and all representations appearing in testimonials published by it and stipulates and agrees that it will not publish or cause to be published any testimonial containing any representation contrary to the foregoing agreement (Aug. 22, 1935).

It is as though they had gone down into the springs of life and come, regenerate, up into the world again.

• • • a 16-day treatment.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that according to medical opinion received by the Commission the active ingredients of these reducing capsules are laxative and cathartic, with little if any tonic value; they cannot be considered safe and harmless for the reason that constant use over a period of time produces deleterious effects through gastro-intestinal irritation, whereas without constant use the individual would quickly regain any weight lost.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission these vendor-advertisers admit making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That said preparation is either safe or absolutely safe, or Absolutely Harmless;
(b) That it produces no harmful or undesirable or depressing after-effects;
(c) That it contains no harmful ingredients;
(d) That said preparation is a tonic, or produces wonderful or marked tonic effects;

(f) That said preparation positively does not affect the heart, or is nature’s own way of successfully reducing weight;

(g) That the pulchritude of users of this preparation causes amazement in Paris, Hollywood, or any other place where the women are notable for their beauty of face and figure;

and from making any other claims or assertions of like import. (Aug. 22, 1935.)

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that according to medical opinion furnished the Commission, said product is composed almost entirely of sodium sulphate and constitutes what is known as Glauber's Salt. The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exagand deceive interested parties, to the injury of respondent’s competisalespersons or dealers of respondent under normal conditions.

specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

normal conditions in the due course of business; and

(c) That it will not represent in advertising, directly or otherwise:

dealers, when computed on a basis of a definite number of sales per unless the retail price of such article is 100% greater than the net cost to salesperson or dealer when purchased in minimum quantities;

4. That any amount can be earned by prospective salespersons or dealers without selling or by merely demonstrating;
and from making any other claims or assertions of like import.

The respondent assumes all responsibility for any and all representations appearing in testimonials published by it and stipulates and agrees that it will not publish or cause to be published any testimonial containing any representation contrary to the foregoing

STERLING'S ROYAL REMEDY FOR
SYPHILITIC CATARRH
SYPHILITIC RHEUMATISM

STERLING REMEDY IS THE crowning achievement of a great chemist and the result of experiments covering a period of many years. JOHN STERLING finally succeeded in perfecting a formula for the treatment of that loathsome disease—

SYPHILIS

WE CAN CLEANSE YOU

We feel that you are bound by your duty to yourself and to those with whom you associate to read the rest of our message and investigate our proposition to treat and cleanse you, and leave a clean, wholesome body, free from the loathsomeness of a foul disease, not to mention the relief from the suffering involved, as one who has been so unfortunate as to have become infected with the dreadful poison of Syphilis.

You must then, if in need of treatment, consider a proposal with easy conditions which will give you the right and confidence to mingle with your fellow man, and above all, safely to enter the marriage relation, if you so desire.
This combination of medicine is not the result of guess work, but has been thoroughly tested in cases of every degree of severity.

STERLING'S REMEDY is not for any disease other than Syphilis, Syphilitic Rheumatism, and Catarrh; for these it is a true specific. Some wonder that this remedy can have the results with such a malignant and deep-rooted disease in a short length of time * * * the Remedy within a few hours after being taken is thoroughly absorbed and disseminated through the system, making its miraculous trip, healing at every point, eliminating poisonous matter, building the broken down tissues, and giving to the patient a feeling of glowing, tingling returning health in a remarkably short period of time.

* * * We desire to impress upon our readers that our remedy is harmless, and that when a patient is through taking it, which is in a short time, there is no evil results to be treated or no poisons to be eradicated from his system * * * STERLING'S REMEDY will not only cleanse him from the primary disease, but relieve him from the poison he has assimilated through the use of drugs, the names of which are only too well known to the sufferer.

STERLING'S REMEDY HAS STOOD THE TEST.

For many years this remedy was administered to sufferers from Syphilis and its resultant diseases before it was advertised or put generally upon the market; but finally its success was so great that this Company at last felt justified in placing it before the public through advertising. That was many years ago and never have we been forced to retract any of our statements regarding this wonderful specific.

"For over eight years I suffered from Syphilis, * * * I got so bad that my arms, legs, and face were covered with awful ulcers and open sores. * * * I was not able to wear a shoe on my right foot for five years. In fact, I was in a most terrible plight * * * the best doctors in town simply shook their heads and said that I was a doomed man." I started about this time on STERLING'S REMEDY and in a month's time could wear a shoe on the right foot—something I had not done for five years * * * I recommended your treatment to numerous persons, and it never failed in a single case.

I was cured of the worst case of Syphilis by STERLING'S REMEDY in 1900 and have never had any return of the slightest symptoms since then.

Mr. Frank Howard became afflicted with blood poison in its worst form * * * By the time he had taken a three months' treatment he was entirely well and has been ever since * * *.

From the beginning of the treatment the patient is benefited thereby, so it may be readily seen that no disability will result from the administration of the medicine * * * in any case soon be sound and well * * * you need lose no time or suffer no disability as a result of taking STERLING'S REMEDY.

* * * some doctors and scientists made a difference between chancroid and chancre, and there is a difference of opinion as to whether both sores indicate Syphilitic infection. The safe way to act in case you have either one of these sores is to take no chances, but secure a treatment which will be sure to relieve you whether the difference between chancroid and chancre is ever discovered or not * * *.

Regardless of all these differences of opinion let us again assert that in either case you should treat yourself for blood poison and that STERLING'S REMEDY will cleanse you * * * start at once with a remedy that will give you immediate help and speedy relief.

"I had the bad sores on legs, arms, and face. I had the patches in my throat and my glands were swollen. I was all run down and I worried night and day. In this plight I came to you * * *. It was not a question of money with me then; it was a question of cure. I took your word for it and sent for the Remedy. It did for me what it has done in thousands of other cases * * * I have never had a return of the disease * * *.

"I am satisfied I am cured, and many thanks to you for the Remedy."

When you realize that you are benefited at once and that the results are sure, you should not hesitate to begin taking this treatment at once.

"For four years I had as bad a case of Syphilis as any man could have. During that time I had doctor after doctor to treat me, and did not get any relief * * * I gave up all hope of getting cured when I met a friend who told me about the REMEDY. I got it from a druggist and started using it according to directions. In six weeks I was firing a locomotive. STERLING'S REMEDY saved my life * * *".

If you follow these instructions, and if your ailment is either Syphilis, Rheumatism or Catarrh you need have no fear as to results.

* * * it takes time for the medicine to reach the seat of the disease, destroy the germ and carry same from the system. And in order that every vestige of the disease may be eradicated only a little time and patience is required of the sufferer.

One large package should be taken after all symptoms and indications of the disease have disappeared, to insure that no germs are left in the blood.

I have seen and know of about 50 cases of blood poison that have been permanently relieved by the Remedy; in fact, I never heard of a case where the medicine failed.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated, and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that according to the medical opinion furnished the Commission, the respondent's preparations are neither a specific nor a competent treatment for syphilis in any of its stages; the mixture of ingredients is therapeutically incorrect; and the advertising claims are "grossly false."

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise;

(a) That either of the respondent's preparations is a competent treatment or an effective remedy or a "genuine remedy" for syphilis, syphilitic catarrh, or syphilitic rheumatism;

(j) That when one is through taking this medicine there are no evil results to be treated or poisons to be eradicated from the system;

(k) That whether or not the sores chancroid or chancre indicate syphilitic infection, if one has either, Sterling's remedy will cleanse him;

(l) That this treatment is efficacious for rheumatism or catarrh regardless of cause;

(m) That by said treatment only a little time and patience is required of the sufferer for the medicine to reach the seat of the disease or destroy the germ; or carry same from the system; or until every vestige of the disease is eradicated;

(n) That one large package taken after all symptoms or indications of the disease have disappeared will insure that no germs are left in the blood;

(o) That by its use 50, or any other definite number of cases, have been permanently relieved;

(p) That said treatment has never failed in a single case;

(q) That by the use of said treatment any one was "cured" of the worst case of syphilis, or of a year case of syphilis in 6 weeks, or of any other case of syphilis;

and from making any other claims or assertions of like import.

Because of our methods of production we are able to offer you these attractive counter cards at prices which are far below any competitive line and at the same time give you the very best of quality.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that the statements and representations that said merchandise will sell at every store, that they are new or of proven quality or that there is no competition in selling them are not justified by anything in the record; the respondent's reputation is not a guarantee of quick sales; the quality of the aspirin or asperline is no better than other brands; and the representations of earnings by sales persons or dealers are not sustained by the evidence submitted.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That a salesperson or dealer can sell respondent's merchandise to every store, or make quick sales, or get steady repeat orders;
(b) That respondent's products are new, or of proven quality, or that they have no competition;
(c) That Laymon's reputation is one's guarantee of quick sales;
(d) That Laymon's Counter Sales Cards have come to be known as "Self-Selling Merchandise";

(f) That Asperline is actually better in many ways than aspirin one can see in the market;
(g) That a salesperson can make as much as 112% profit selling these goods unless it clearly appears that gross profit and not net profit is meant;
(h) That respondent is able to offer these attractive counter cards at prices which are far below any competitive line;
(i) That Celery Vesce has been for years "nationally known" as an efficient effervescent headache remedy;
(j) That a bill fold is "free" to customers so long as the price of the goods is "boosted" to cover the cost of such present; and from making any other claims or assertions of like import.

Respondent in soliciting salespersons or dealers further stipulates and agrees:

(k) Not to make unmodified representations or claims of earnings in excess of the average earnings of respondent's active full-time salespersons or dealers achieved under normal conditions in the due course of business;

(l) Not to represent or hold out as a chance or an opportunity any amount in excess of what has actually been accomplished by one or more of respondent's salespersons or dealers under normal conditions in the due course of business; and

(m) Not to represent or hold out as maximum earnings by the use of such expressions as "up to", "as high as" or any equivalent expressions, any amount in excess of what has actually been accomplished by one or more of respondent's salespersons or dealers under normal conditions in the due course of business.

The respondent assumes all responsibility for any and all representations appearing in testimonials published by it and stipulates and agrees that he will not publish or cause to be published any testimonial containing any representation contrary to the foregoing agreement.

0905. Vendor-Advertiser—Medicinal Preparations.—Glandular Laboratories of America, Inc., New York, N. Y., vendor-advertiser, is engaged in selling medical products called "Diutacid" and "Sesocrin."

G. L. A. Male Tablets (Sesocrin) this preparation represents the adrenal system. The pituitarydiffuses directly into the fluid bathing the nervous system supplying the stimulants and aiding in the removal of harmful waste. The thyroid increases energy evolution and so makes available a greater supply of energy increasing cellular processes. The pituitary assists in energy transformation, energy expenditure and conversion, especially of the brain and sexual system. Thyroid aids energy production, pituitary increases energy consumption. The pituitary is a gland of incessant exertion and wherever there is an inefficiency to exert an exhaustion, the G. L. A. MALE TABLETS should be used as such. It contrasts with the adrenals, which are glands of immediate action.

Prostate—Kidney—Bladder * * * Diutacid * * * brings quick relief and comfort.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect; exaggerated and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that according to the medical advices received by the Commission, Diutacid, is not a competent remedy for diseases of the kidneys, bladder, or urethra, or for other pathological conditions due to such ailments; G. L. A. Male Tablets (Sesocrin) do not constitute effective treatment, as indicated, for increase of masculine brain and sexual energy, or the overcoming of sexual impotence, senility, hypoadrenia, etc.; moreover, neither of said products is free from drugs and both may cause much harm; furthermore, respondent does not own or operate a laboratory.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That either of respondent's preparations is free from drugs;
(b) That Diutacid is a competent treatment or an effective remedy for either.
1. Weak, or run down or worn out condition, or
2. Nervousness, or
3. Premature old age, or
4. Backache, or
5. Disorders of the kidneys, bladder, urethra, or prostate gland, unless qualified to indicate that such preparation would be beneficial only as a diuretic;
(c) That said preparation has been used by thousands with great results;
(d) That in prostate, kidney, or bladder troubles, diutacid brings quick relief or comfort;
(e) That G. L. A. Male Tablets (Sesocrin) are either a competent treatment or an effective remedy for disorders of the pituitary or thyroid glands;
(f) That any beneficial results may be expected from its use as an aid to the treatment for functional inefficiencies of the said glands;
(g) Directly or by reasonable implication that said product is either a sexual rejuvenator or an aphrodisiac;
(h) Inferentially or otherwise, that G. L. A. Tablets are effective for conditions of senility or neurasthenia; and from making any other claims or assertions of like import.

The respondent further stipulates and agrees, in its future advertising in interstate commerce and on the labels of its Sesocrin Tablets, to cease and desist:
(i) From the use of the word “male” as a part of the name of said product;

(j) From the use of the term “Laboratories” in or as a part of its corporate name, until such time as respondent shall maintain and operate a bona fide laboratory as such term is commonly known;

(k) From the use of the phrase or expression, “Gland vitalizing”;

The respondent assumes all responsibility for any and all representations appearing in testimonials published by it and stipulates and agrees that it will not publish or cause to be published any testimonial containing any representation contrary to the foregoing agreement. (Aug. 22, 1935.)

0906. Vendor-Advertiser—Medicinal Ointment.—The Thomas Chemical Co., Inc., Lynchburg, Va., vendor-advertiser, is engaged in selling an ointment for athlete’s foot and various skin diseases, called “Curen”, and in advertising represented:

Curen is a new, highly efficacious guaranteed skin treatment.

Relieves eczema, athlete’s foot, impetigo, itch, mosquito bites, and other skin troubles.

Curen the five-way skin treatment for athlete’s foot. Curen heals and soothes.

Do your feet itch, burn, crack or peel? Use Curen with Sanisox for instant relief of athlete’s foot.

Curen—the new treatment guaranteed to relieve pimples, eczema, athlete’s foot, insect bites, prickly heat, ringworm, poison ivy, itch, tetter, dew sores.

Curen is guaranteed. Relieves cause and effect. Curen’s five-soothing and penetrating ingredients kill the tiny germs and parasites beneath the surface of the skin and heal the irritations they cause, relieving you of both cause and effect at the same time. Curen is absolutely harmless.

Curen is safe and dependable.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that according to medical opinion furnished the Commission, said preparation is not a competent remedy for eczema, pimples, ringworm, tetter, dew sores, or other skin diseases; nor is it of any value in the treatment of athlete’s foot except that it may soften the crusts or relieve itching incident thereto; it is not a guaranteed product, and is not new; nor is it absolutely harmless, highly efficacious, safe or dependable, its frequent applications sometimes causing irritations of the skin and a rash.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:
(a) That Curen is a competent or effective treatment for athlete's foot, impetigo, pimples, ringworm, tetter, dew sores or other skin troubles unless limited to minor irritations of the skin;

(b) That said preparation is a competent treatment for Eczema unless limited to the relief of itching and softening the crusts;

(c) That the ingredients of Curen either kill the tiny germs or parasites beneath the surface of the skin; or heal the irritations they cause; or relieve the cause or effect, or both at the same time;

(d) That Curen is either penetrating, highly efficacious, absolutely harmless, dependable, or a guaranteed skin treatment;

(e) That the use of Curen with Sanisox will give instant relief from athlete's foot; and making any other claims or assertions of like import.

The respondent assumes all responsibility for any and all representations appearing in testimonials published by it and stipulates and agrees that it will not publish or cause to be published any testimonial containing any representation contrary to the foregoing agreement. (Aug. 22, 1935.)

0907. Vendor-advertiser—Cosmetic.—Ethel J. Cayco, trading as Rejuvene Manufacturing Co., Berkeley, Calif., vendor-advertiser, is engaged in selling a cosmetic designated "Rejuvene", and in advertising represented:

Rejuvene will not harm the most delicate skin * * * composed of healthful beautifying herbs.

Its stimulating and cleansing qualities clear the skin and pores of foreign substances and impurities * * * correcting blemishes such as lines, wrinkles, open pores, acne, blackheads, and double chin, and if used for * * * six months will eliminate practically all of these conditions.

Will normalize the skin and keep it in a healthy condition.

Rejuvene * * * removes wrinkles, reduces double chins, restores enlarged pores to normal, diminishes swollen veins, bleaches discolorations, dissolves moles—is harmless.

Sagging muscles, yellow thickened cuticle * * * blackheads * * * frowns * * * may be erased and prevented.

The permanent removal of old wrinkles * * * the preventing of new ones leaving the skin clear and young.

Lifts and holds up the skin until the proper nourishment can be brought by the blood to rebuild the broken down tissue.

Wrinkle remover.

Rejuvene's specialty is to erase wrinkles.

Rejuvene * * * Flaccid tissues * * * revitalizing them.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that according to medical opinion furnished the Commission said product contains tragacanth, a gum which, when applied in solution temporarily fills crevices or lines, but has no permanent value in restoring sagging muscles, removing wrinkles, reducing double chin, dissolving moles or restoring enlarged pores to normal; nor would it have any material action on thickened cuticle, blackheads or acne.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commiss­ on this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That Rejuvene is composed of healthful or beautifying herbs, until such be the fact;

(b) That said product will “normalize” the skin, or keep it in a “healthy condition” so long as the pores are filled with gum;

(c) That by the use of said product sagging muscles, yellow thickened cuticle, blackheads or frowns, may be erased or prevented;

(d) That the use of said product results in the permanent removal of old wrinkles or the prevention of new ones, or leaves the skin clear or young;

(e) That to erase wrinkles is Rejuvene’s specialty;

(f) That said product by six months, use or otherwise, eliminates or clears the skin or pores of foreign substances or impurities, or corrects blemishes, lines, wrinkles, open pores, acne, blackheads or double chin;

(g) That said product
1. Corrects circulation,
2. Nourishes the tissues,
3. Leaves the skin glowing with new life,
4. Reduces double chins,
5. Restores enlarged pores to normal,
6. Diminishes swollen veins,
7. Bleaches discolorations,
8. Dissolves moles, or
9. Revitalizes flaccid tissues;

and from making any other claims or assertions of like import.

The respondent further stipulates and agrees that in all future advertising in interstate commerce she will cease and desist from the use of the word “Manufacturing” in and as a part of her trade name until such time as she may in fact own, operate or control the plant used to manufacture the product sold.

The respondent assumes all responsibility for any and all representations appearing in testimonials published by her and stipulates and agrees that she will not publish or cause to be published any testimonial containing any representation contrary to the foregoing
agreement. (Aug. 22, 1935.)
0908. Vendor-Advertiser—Medicinal Device.—Samuel Janowsky, trading as Randall Spinal Institute, Chicago, Ill., vendor-advertiser, is engaged in selling a medicinal device called "Spinal Exerciser", and in advertising represented:

RANDALL SPINAL INSTITUTE.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that, according to medical opinion furnished the Commission, said device will not correct abnormal conditions of the spine, nor relieve backache, nervousness or the various other ailments specified, and as a result of its use a person will not enjoy the full glow of health or the supreme joy of youth. If used by one suffering with spinal tuberculosis, it would be definitely harmful.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That the use of said device will
1. Correct abnormal spinal conditions; or
2. Reduce large abdomen; or
3. Lift stooping shoulders; or
4. Correct faulty posture; or
5. Straighten the spine; or
6. Permit full play of the nerve energy through the body; or
7. Insure proper functioning of the entire organism; or
8. Relieve curvatures, backache or nervousness; or
9. Enable everyone to become a builder of self, or to enjoy full health; or
10. Increase vitality;

(b) That by the use of said device bent, weak, stiff, flabby-muscled, knobby-jointed, bony-framed or sick persons can be "made over" or made straight, strong, supple, hard muscled or physically sound;

(c) That said device is used throughout the country, by either
1. Physicians; or
2. Training instructors; or
3. Institutions;

(d) That said device has been accorded spontaneous acclaim; and from making any other claims or assertions of like import.

The respondent further stipulates and agrees in the advertising and sale of said product in interstate commerce, to cease and desist from using the term "Institute" as a part of his trade name.

The respondent assumes all responsibility for any and all representations appearing in testimonials published by him and stipulates and agrees that he will not publish or cause to be published any testimonial containing any representation contrary to the foregoing agreement. (Aug. 22, 1935.)

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that respondent has not furnished the proofs requested by the Commission that his agents or salespersons have made the amounts represented in said advertising, in the ordinary course of business or under normal conditions; samples are not furnished to agents or salespersons for less than they cost to manufacture; a pair of stockings included with each $12.00 purchase is not “free” as asserted; and respondent does not “guarantee” the earnings of his salespersons.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That samples are furnished by respondent to agents or salespersons for less than they cost to manufacture;

(b) That a salesperson or an agent can collect 75 cents from every home;

(c) That any articles is “free” so long as a purchase of other merchandise is required and the price thereof is included in the purchase; and from making any other claims or assertions of like import.

Respondent in soliciting salespersons and agents in aid of sales of such merchandise, further stipulates and agrees:

(d) Not to make any unmodified representations or claims of earnings in excess of the average net earnings of respondent’s active salespersons or agents achieved under normal conditions in the due course of business;

(e) Not to represent or hold out as a chance or an opportunity any amount in excess of what has actually been accomplished by one or more of respondent’s salespersons or agents under normal conditions in the due course of business;

(f) Not to represent or hold out as maximum earnings by the use of such expressions as “up to”, “as high as”, or any equivalent expression, any amount in excess of what has been actually accomplished by one or more of respondent’s salespersons or agents under normal conditions in the due course of business; and

(g) Not to represent that the earnings of any of respondent’s salespersons are guaranteed until such time as all deficits in the earnings specified are actually paid by the respondent. (Aug. 26, 1935.)
RHEUMATISM AND GOUT

the majority of these disturbances is caused by an excess of uric acid in our system and it is this excess of uric acid that has proven to be an offensive trouble maker in our body. Rev. Heumann's remedies should be used where the condition is largely due to an excess of uric acid.

To remove the cause of rheumatism and gout, therefore, means to expel the excess of uric acid from our body. This, however, is not so simple. We know that uric acid can only with great difficulty be dissolved in our body. This great task of expelling the uric acid under this condition would be difficult, if not entirely impossible, and many sufferers would be without help and hope if there had not been a recent HIGHLY DEVELOPED SCIENTIFIC ACHIEVEMENT.

The student of chemistry whose work also comprises investigations in the medical-pharmaceutical lines, has succeeded in finding substances which when combined with uric acid forms a chemical compound which is from 100 to 120 times easier to dissolve in water than uric acid by itself. The scientific name of this compound is "diformaldehyde uric-acid."

What would be more natural than to compound an IMPROVED REMEDY with the purpose of entirely eliminating excessive formation of uric acid from our body. And it was Rev. Heumann, with his usual high purpose to relieve suffering who after extensive scientific research and unremitting labor made use of this scientific achievement and perfected his RIMAGOT TABLETS. * * * you can judge for yourself of the superiority and striking medicinal qualities of Rev. Heumann's Rimagot Tablets we want you to know that this remedy consists of not less than 8 different ingredients, each of which has to fulfill a different task, and that for almost a quarter of a century it has been used most successfully in combatting the causes of rheumatism and gout. * * * Rimagot Tablets not only dissolve the accumulation of uric acid in our body, which is in many instances the cause of rheumatism and gout, but also revive and promote the action of liver and kidneys, tending thereby to prevent any new accumulations of uric acid * * * the purpose of Rev. Heumann's Rimagot Tablets is to remove the cause of rheumatism and gout by expelling the accumulated uric acid from our body as well as the painful effects of these conditions.

Now that we have acquainted you with the cause of rheumatism and gout it will be obvious to you that baths, salves and massages will never be able to produce permanent results because such methods do not reach the seat and the cause of these troubles. It is evident that through these methods the deposits of uric acid accumulated in our body cannot be dissolved and expelled. But it is just the main purpose of Rev. Heumann's Rimagot Tablets to dissolve and expel from our body those harmful deposits of uric acid that are in most cases the underlying cause of rheumatic and gouty disorders. Therefore, if you want not only to relieve the pains connected with these conditions, but to remove the cause, Rev. Heumann's Rimagot Tablets are the remedy for you.

A very popular remedy for immediate relief from the pains and by the majority used together with Rimagot Tablets is Rimagot Fluid.

Rimagot Fluid is a pain-soothing rubbing liniment and a splendid remedy, consisting of 8 different ingredients. This fluid * * * is to be applied generously upon the affected places and rubbed in thoroughly until the aching parts become red and burning sensation is felt. Repeat the rubbing at intervals until the pains are completely gone. * * *. An insufficient elimination of uric acid, as well as an excessive accumulation of uric acid, may be ascertained by an analysis of your urine.

SUFFERERS FROM RHEUMATISM AND GOUT from all over the world write about the wonderful benefit they have received by using Rev. Heumann's "Rimagot Tablets" and "Rimagot Fluid" * * *.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that agents do not receive anything for "demonstrating" this device; the demonstrating equipment is not worth $14.10, and is not sent "free" to agents; savings in wax in a month's time will not pay for the device; and furthermore it is not as efficient as any $50 machine, is not protected by Government Patent, and is not free from competition, as asserted.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(g) That it is absolutely free from competition;
(h) That there is nothing like it on the market;

Are you simply miserable because of asthma—gasping for breath and unable to sleep at night? Asthma is, as you know, a dangerous and treacherous disease. We read from Handbook of Medical Science, 1913, with William H. Thompson as our authority, that, "It (asthma) attacks men, women and children alike and may begin at any age—many cases showing an asthma condition from the first day of birth"—proper and reliable treatment for asthma is necessary if the afflicted person is to receive relief. And, we know that all asthma sufferers will agree that a powerful enemy such as asthma should be fought with weapons even more powerful. Such a weapon is Nacor according to the thousands of testimonial letters received from satisfied users of this product. Many of these letters are from people who suffered from asthma many years before they tried Nacor. Yet they obtained relief and years later, had no return of their trouble. Such testimonials speak for themselves. If you are miserable because of this condition, why not learn more about Nacor. The story of Nacor and what it has done for folks who were at one time suffering as perhaps you are now, is published in the form of a booklet entitled "The Health Question Answered by Nacor."

If you lay awake night after night because of a bronchial cough, you will welcome this news regarding Nacor, the simple home treatment that has brought lasting relief to thousands of folks who have suffered for years with bronchitis or a bronchial cough. Many of these folks tried Nacor only as a last resort and found it successful in relieving them of this affliction. We know that many of you folks listening in have tried all the ordinary things supposed to be remedies for these baffling ills. But why experiment? Nacor has given blessed relief—lasting relief—in thousands of severe, stubborn cases. This relief has come to folks of all ages—in all parts of the country. The reason that Nacor has been so successful in the relief of these ailments is the fact that it is not a common, ordinary remedy—but a carefully compounded product that thousands of folks praise highly. We do not have Nacor for sale. The object of our broadcast is to tell all of you who are suffering from bronchitis or a bronchial cough, that the story of Nacor is published in booklet form for your benefit. A great many of the people who have worn Cluthe Trusses have reported complete cures.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that according to medical opinion furnished the Commission only a very small percentage of ruptures (hernia) in adults can be cured by means other than surgical repair of the structures at the point where the rupture has taken place, and the respondent's appliance cannot be depended upon to produce permanent benefits.

It contains life-giving vegetable oils and wax which penetrate the pores of the wood and nourish it with new life. X-2

The action of Vernax on the patina of the wood is very much like the action of a fine facial cream on the human skin. Vernax brings out the rich color and beautiful natural grain of the wood, feeds and nourishes the patina, makes it smooth and slightly elastic. This helps to offset the effect of modern heating that tends to dry out the wood and cause warping and cracking. X-3

The ingredients of the specially prepared cream put life back into the wood. X-4
The life-giving ingredients of Vernax, however, protect and preserve the wood.

This beauty cream for furniture feeds the skin of the wood with life-giving vegetable oils and wax.

Vernax preserves the furniture because it actually feeds the pores of the wood.

Vernax gives the wood a dry, silky sheen that makes your furniture look like new.

Vernax is really a wood food. It has a base of life-giving vegetable ingredients and wax instead of the mineral oil base found in most polishes.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated, and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that according to scientific opinion received by the Commission the products advertised do not differ substantially from many other products offered for similar purposes, and do not “nourish or feed the wood” or “endow it with new life.”

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission, this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That Vernax No Rub Floor Wax nourishes wood with new life;
(b) That there are such things as
1. “Life giving oils for a wooden surface”; or
2. “Putting life back into wood”; or
3. “Wood food” (except for growing timber); or
4. “Feeding the skin of the wood with life-giving oils and wax”;
(c) That “the action of Vernax products on the patina of the wood is similar to or like the action of a fine facial cream on the human skin”;
(d) That Vernax products “have a base of life-giving vegetable ingredients”;
(e) That the application of Vernax products “makes your furniture look like new” under all circumstances and regardless of the conditions of the furniture before the application;
(f) That Vernax “preserves the furniture because it actually feeds the pores of the wood”;
and from making any other claims or assertions of like import.

0922. Vendor-Advertiser—Beverage.—Marion Products, Inc., Marion, Ohio, vendor-advertiser, is engaged in selling “Grains of Wealth”, a beverage-substitute for coffee, and in advertising represented:

GRAINS OF WEALTH is a mixture of roots, vegetables, and high grade coffees. These ingredients are put through a special compounding process which imparts the genuine coffee flavor to the entire mixture and does it so thoroughly that when made up as a drink or beverage it cannot be distinguished from the finest and best coffee obtainable.

Especially recommended * * * for persons troubled with indigestion and constipation.

GRAINS OF WEALTH, that health-building beverage.

GRAINS OF WEALTH—will prove beneficial to your health.

Grains of Wealth acts as a regulator of the digestive system—it tones up the system, feeds nutrition, vitamins and essential minerals, and soothes the nerves.
Taken over a period of time, Grains of Wealth will eliminate the most stubborn cases of upset digestion which have resulted from an overindulgence of harmful beverage.

The drinking of the beverage is beneficial to health generally.

Grains of Wealth takes the place of coffee as no other substitute can.

Grains of Wealth is the beverage that you need to soothe your nerves, provide natural food for your system, and to help you build strength.

The roots tend to tone up the entire system and make it tingle with vitality and vigor by giving it the element that nature requires. The vegetables impart the food value in an amount that is seldom found in a beverage.

Grains of Wealth is more economical than coffee, and 16 times as healthful.
You'll find that Grains of Wealth soothes your nerves, makes you sleep better at night, and acts as a general regulator of your system.

Actually aids convalescent patients to recover from their ailments.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated, and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that the Commission is advised by its medical authorities that the claims made for the product are entirely unwarranted; that it will not eliminate any of the possibly harmful effects of coffee; that the therapeutic claims are without foundation; that said product is merely weaker than ordinary coffee, and the addition of roots and vegetables would not make it effective in maintaining or building health or as a remedy for the ailments specified in said advertising.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commis­ ion, this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That said product “Grains of Wealth”, is better than coffee; or that it cannot be distinguished from the finest and best coffee obtainable;

(b) That any special benefits may be derived from the use of said product by persons troubled with indigestion or constipation;

(c) That said product is a health building beverage;

(d) That taken over a period of time said product will eliminate the most stubborn cases of upset digestion resulting from over­ indulgence of harmful beverages;
(e) That said product takes the place of coffee as no other substitute can;

(f) That said product is the beverage one needs to soothe the nerves, provide natural food for the system, or help to build strength;

(g) That the roots in said product tend to tone up the entire system, make it tingle with vitality or vigor, or give it the elements that nature requires;

(h) That the vegetables in said product impart the food value that is seldom found in a beverage;

(i) That said product is more economical than coffee or 16 times as healthful;

(j) That said product

1. Acts as a regulator of the digestive organs or a general regulator of the system,
2. Tones up the system,
3. Feeds nutrition, vitamins or essential minerals,
4. Soothes nerves,
5. Makes one sleep better at night, or
6. Aids convalescent patients to recover from their ailments;

and from making any other claims or assertions of like import.

The respondent assumes all responsibility for any and all representations appearing in testimonials published by it and stipulates and agrees that it will not publish or cause to be published any testimonial containing any representation contrary to the foregoing agreement.

New patented ingredients blast away carbon deposits, eliminate "sludge" double oil film strength—indispensable for new rebuilt motors. Burkson's.

Treat your car to the lubricating sensation of the age. Added to oil and gas gives more power and speed . . . Faster pick-up . . . Frees sticky valves. Eliminates carbon and ends sludge giving cars new life . . . only one grade required for both oil and gas. Requires only half the quantity.

Durol added to gas gives continuous self-lubrication under high speeds, heavy pressure and extreme temperature. Eliminating friction, wear, heat and noise—saving oil and gas—increasing power, speed and smoothness.

Durol added to oil and gasoline furnishes a lubricant that lives through any motor heat. It leaves an element of colloidal graphite sublimated at a temperature of 7,000 degrees to inconceivable purity and fineness lubricating the flame-seared walls of the upper cylinders, valve stems and guides. Eliminates carbon.

Saving 90% in repairs Durol added to regular oil increases its load carrying capacity—preventing oil film rupture. Durol also plates all the wearing parts with a durable over-lubricating film—thus 100% lubrication is always obtained under extreme pressure or heat . . . With Durol added there can be no metal to metal rubbing. No wear, no friction, no sticking, scoring or seizing. This protection means freedom from costly repairs 90% of which are traceable to faulty lubrication.

When Durol is added to good oil it withstands 3 times the normal wear. When added to both oil and gas it effects 10% to 20% increased mileage on every gallon of gasoline you use.

Durol, used as directed, is guaranteed to establish and maintain on all frictional parts, self-lubricating graphoid surfaces that will withstand excessive heat.
and pressure, prevent wear, increase compression and power and will reduce consumption of oil and gasoline.

I have been more than satisfied with the results I obtained from your Durol . . . The car has pepped up 50% and I can see a marked improvement in gas consumption.

By using Durol I now get up to 70 miles per hour without piston slap—Before piston slaps developed at 40 miles per hour.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that according to the scientific advice received by the Commission, said product will not materially increase the speed of a car, and will do little if any more than other standard lubricants to promote the efficiency, prevent the wear, or increase the power or smoothness of a motor car; and it is not indispensable to new rebuilt motors; neither will it reduce the cost of repairs noticeably or pep up anyone's car 50%.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That Double Duty Durol is the only improvement in graphoid lubrication in 3 years;

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that according to medical opinion received by the Commission this preparation is "without therapeutic value in the conditions mentioned in the advertising."
In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

0927. Vendor-Advertiser—Package Opener.—Modern Appliances, Inc., Chicago, Ill., vendor-advertiser, is engaged in selling and in... advertising a device for opening cigarette packages designated "Pakopner" represented:

FREE TO STORES * * * $$ TO AGENTS. UP TO $100.00 a week. District representatives for "PAKOPNER" the new advertising sensation. Unusual opportunity for high-grade men. PAKOPNER is NOT sold. Simply placed in retail stores without cost to dealers. One agent just closed a deal for 100 PAKOPNERS. Greatest money maker in the field. Once your income is established it is permanent. Write immediately for territory reservation and exclusive franchise. MODERN APPLIANCES, 168 N. Michigan Avenue, Dept. 27, Chicago, Ill.

Sales plan is positively non-competitive. You would not believe that you could make money by giving things away, but just show PAKOPNER to any dealer that sells cigarettes and he signs up in a hurry. This is a very unusual money making proposition and offers you a chance for building a permanent business that will produce an income of $3,000 to $6,000 a year.

When we tell you that you can build a business that will net you a cash return up to $6,000 a year we are stating it very conservatively. One thousand PAKOPNERS in constant operation throughout your territory will give you an advertising revenue of $500 per month. It should not be a difficult matter for you to work up to 1,000 PAKOPNERS.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated and misleading having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive interested parties, to the injury of respondent's competitors, in that the amounts stated exceed those which can be earned by salespersons or dealers of respondent under normal conditions.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and represents that it has definitely discontinued the advertising of said commodity and does not at the present time intend to resume such advertising in the future. Should advertising be resumed, the vendor-advertiser specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing, directly or otherwise:

(a) Not to represent or hold out as a chance or an opportunity any amount in excess of what has actually been accomplished by one or more of respondent's salespersons or dealers under normal conditions in the due course of business;

(b) Not to represent or hold out as maximum earnings by the use of such expressions as "up to", "as high as" or any equivalent expression, any amount in excess of what has actually been accomplished by one or more of respondent's salespersons or dealers under normal conditions in the due course of business; and

(c) That in future advertising where a modifying word or phrase is used in direct connection with a specific claim or representation of earnings, such word or phrase shall be printed in type equally conspicuous with, as to form, and at least one-fourth the size of the type used in printing such statement or representation of earnings. (Sept. 24, 1935.)

0928. Vendor-Advertiser—Medicinal Treatment.—G. H. Hyland and L. B. Hyland, co-partners doing business as Standard Homeopathic Co., Los Angeles, Calif., vendor-advertiser, is engaged in selling a treatment for constipation called "Tindini", and in advertising represented:

Tindini, the doctors found, had a number of unusual properties.
In the first place, Tindini had an amazing laxative action.
But unlike any laxative hitherto known, there was no griping, no matter how large an amount was taken.
A careful analysis showed that Tindini contained no drugs.
The delicate oil, swept through the system, gently removing all the waste from the body, at the same time, cleansing, soothing and healing it.
Tindini as it passed through the body, absorbed poisons and impurities.
It prevented poisons from spreading through the body.
It made healthy existence easy even in the tropics.
In the English Military hospitals, physicians, found that soldiers who were given a handful of Tindini each night were rid of all need of purgatives, within a few weeks time.
Because of its remarkable absorbing qualities, the impurities in the system could no longer do the damage to the organs.
The blood began its natural healing processes.
Many of these boys became entirely well.
Similar results were observed in civilian hospitals on older men and women.
Hospitals throughout the country, physicians in private practice and in research, duplicated the results obtained in England.
Auto-intoxication was overcome very quickly.
Tindini was one of the most effective agents known to science for regulating the system and ridding it of accumulated poisons.
Accomplished without any drug action.
Tindini is the only product that is recommended by leading insurance companies and other health organizations, as a safe and reliable cure for constipation.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated, and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that according to the medical report to the Commission; this preparation contains psyllium seed to absorb moisture, but is not possessed of unusual properties; is not a cure or competent treatment for constipation; would not influence the blood, relieve contamination, promote healing, or overcome auto-intoxication. Said product has not been adopted by hospitals throughout the country or used by physicians in private practice. Its use is not recommended by leading insurance companies or other health organizations.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That Tindini is a competent treatment or an effective remedy for constipation or auto-intoxication or other pathological conditions due to constipation, or that it will do anything more for the relief of such conditions, than a laxative will do.

(b) That the doctors have found that Tindini
1. Had an amazing laxative action; or
2. Had a number of unusual properties; or
3. Swept through the system gently removing all waste from the body, cleansing, healing, or soothing it; or
4. Absorbs poisons or impurities; or
5. Prevented poisons from spreading through the body; or
6. Made a healthy existence easy.

(c) That analysis showed that said preparation contained no drugs.

(d) That it causes no griping no matter how large an amount is taken.

(e) That in the English military hospital physicians found that the soldiers who were given a handful of Tindini each night were rid of all need of purgatives in a few weeks time.

(f) That because of its remarkable absorbing qualities the impurities in the system could no longer do damage to the organs.

(g) That by its use the blood begins its natural healing process.

(h) That many of those boys became entirely well; or

(i) That similar results were observed in civilian hospitals on older men or women; or

(j) That the hospitals throughout the country or physicians in private practice or in research duplicated the results obtained in England; or

(k) That it was found to be one of the most effective agents known to science for regulating the system, or ridding it of accumulated poisons; or

(l) That nothing like it had ever been known before; or

(m) That by its use auto-intoxication was overcome quickly; or

(n) That Tindini is the only product recommended by leading insurance companies, or other health organizations as a safe or reliable cure for constipation; or

(o) That the use of Tindini either “rids” or “cures” anyone of the conditions named;

and from making any other claims or assertions of like import.

0930. Vendor-Advertiser — Correspondence Course.—Harry L. Keepers, trading as Hollywood Motion Picture Self Training Course, La Crescenta, Calif., vendor-advertiser, is engaged in selling a self-training home study course in motion pictures, and in advertising represented:

Mr. Keepers, who is recognized as an authority on all matters pertaining to motion picture photography and projection, is the originator of self-training home study for the art and science of cinematography and sound projection. His experience in these lines of endeavor dates back to 1900, when he started with Thomas A. Edison, at Orange, N. J.; at the very birth of the motion picture in America.

Since this system has been organized it has grown steadily. Today the Hollywood Motion Picture Self-Training Course is being studied all over the world.

It is not necessary for the student to answer the questions and mail them in—my system and method does away with this delay, annoyance, inconvenience, and expense. All the student needs to do is to have someone or some member of the family hold the question sheet and to ask the student the questions. There are from ten to twenty questions asked at the end of each lesson. No questions are asked that do not pertain to the lesson. It is very simple indeed. If the student has learned his lesson, he can surely answer the questions without trouble. In an instance where the student cannot answer a certain question, then he can, of course, go back over the lesson and freshen up by studying that particular part.

Many theatre owners and managers are interested in the course and its training and they are recommending their employees to study the course. When we are requested to do so, we keep the employee informed of the student’s progress. This invariably results in advancement in position.

Each student is properly credited for all work he has done in the course. After the student has satisfactorily completed the course he is awarded a diploma certifying that he has completed the subjects taught by the course. These diplomas * * * are given only for mastering the subjects of the course. The course’s diploma is silent evidence of merit and ambition; it carries with it a particular significance and value, and will stamp you as a modern trained motion picture theatre projectionist, and will be the foundation for success in the motion picture industry.

The course has won the respect and endorsement of the motion picture business of the world by the thorough and practical training given to its students * * * It is the only course of its kind in existence in the world * * * it is most economical course to be found anywhere. Remember, that other courses cost you four and five times as much, and give you less for your money.

I feel that I have the right to assume that I have been successful because a number of my graduates are now employed at major studios and prominent theatres.

My self-training course is original * * * is not used by any other school * * * is the only really enjoyable study course yet devised. The old methods are entirely discarded and are so simple that any grammar school boy can master it.

We are daily receiving letters from students telling of the important promotions and salary increases, and expressing satisfaction with the progress made because of their studies. Often projectionists report promotions at the completion of only half of the course.

For every single dollar a student invests in the course of training he receives it back many fold in the form of increased salaries. For such reasons as these, the courses students are so enthusiastic and grateful for the training they receive.

All of these home study courses are just correspondence courses. That is to say—you study a lesson or two and then answer the question sheet and mail it to the school, sometimes at a great distance, then if you get sufficient percentage, you get more lessons. This means that you are held up continually through the mails, distance, etc. This method is now old and inadequate * * * when a student is anxious to get somewhere quickly—my method and system does away with all this red tape that is slow and disastrous—and the expense of mailing is saved.

Since the organizing of my method of training at home there have been received scores of success letters gratefully acknowledging the benefits of the course and its instruction. These letters are from all classes of men in every walk of life, from men who report successful undertakings, from men who report doing better work and earning larger salaries, and also from men who were at one time in minor positions of the theatre who give due credit to the course for having been promoted to higher and more responsible positions.

The Hollywood Motion Picture Self-Training course of instruction is individual. The student is in very close contact with the instructor. If any point is not clear or cannot be readily absorbed special individual attention is given to the student in that examples are given in the lesson so as to master the situation. Thus the student gets over the hard places comfortably without doubt or question. The course is made clear and plain as not to puzzle the student as to its meaning, and every point is made perfectly clear

The Hollywood Motion Picture Self-Training Home Study Sound Projection course is composed of 50 lessons and ten trouble shooting charts * * * they cover every phase and detail of the sound projection profession.

These practical lessons will show you how to not only operate any Western Electric or Radio Corporation of America-Phototone equipment and installation for any size theater, but will also show you how to locate trouble and remedy same in a most efficient manner. The trouble shooting charts give the trouble, cause, remedy, and with their aid all troubles which might happen are located quickly and soon put right.

Many students have been placed in positions and many theatres have found it to their advantage to rely upon the course for competent man-power.

This certifies * * * has been a student in sound projection, and that he has satisfactorily completed the subjects of the course as taught in the Hollywood Motion Picture Self-Training course and has been examined and found duly qualified in them, and hereby awarded this certificate of graduation as an acknowledgment of his proficiency and in recommendation of his acquirements.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated, and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that according to a scientific opinion furnished the Commission, said product will not remove all species of roundworms, nor will it expel pinworms or tapeworms from infested poultry.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That said compound is a competent treatment for poultry infested with tapeworms or pinworms;
(b) That said compound is a competent treatment for poultry infested with worms unless such representations are limited to large roundworms;

0932. Vendor-Advertiser—Foot Treatment.—Ella Jewell, Inc., Akron, Ohio, vendor-advertiser, is engaged in selling a mechanical device for the treatment of foot troubles designated “Toe Tie”, and in advertising represented:

Toe Ties, miracle invention * * * makes walking and work a pleasure.
TOE-TIES. Most foot troubles yield to the simple action of TOE-TIES. Men and women everywhere will welcome TOE-TIES simply because of the fact that they will find greater joy in their work and will be able to do more walking with this effective product that affords quick inexpensive relief for most foot ailments.

TOE-TIES—Marvelous new discovery men and women everywhere are welcoming because of their quick relief to most all foot troubles. TOE-TIES bring men and women greater foot comforts, which means joy in their work, in their walking, and in their health. TOE-TIES bring inexpensive quick relief.

* * * you can find quick, effective, inexpensive relief in TOE-TIES. One TOE-TIE on the correct toe of each foot relieves the tension on the nerves and muscles that make feet ache.

Most cases of aching feet are caused by one of the middle metatarsal bones sinking slightly out of line, throwing an unnatural strain on the nerves and muscles of the whole foot. TOE-TIES keep the weaker bone in position—the foot in correct balance—relieve the pain.

The vast majority of women suffer from tired and painful feet caused by high-heeled, narrow shoes. Their fourth metatarsal bone is usually forced downward or the toes of the external part of the foot are turned under. TOE-TIES relieve the pinching of the nerves caused by both conditions.

Wrong walking habits acquired in an effort to escape the pain of ordinary foot trouble frequently cause bunions * * * TOE-TIES by eliminating the discomfort, often cause the bunion to disappear.

* * * many of the pains and cramps of the lower legs, are * * * the results of metatarsalgia. These cases are relieved by TOE-TIES.

When the poor circulation causing the toes or feet to go to sleep is not due to some organic condition, it is often caused by pressure on the nerves of the toe. TOE-TIES have a gentle massaging action at every step. They relieve the trouble almost instantly.

Ella Jewell TOE-TIES by keeping the bones of the foot in proper balance prevent feet getting tired and so prevent corns, callouses, bunions, and run-over heels.

* * * They do all that is claimed for them.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated, and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that according to the medical advice received by the Commission, this device would be of doubtful value where there is a deformity of the toes, and would afford no support to the arch of the foot, the point at which most mechanical devices are aimed for relief of aching feet.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That the product Toe Ties is a "miracle" invention;
(b) That most foot troubles yield to Toe Ties;
(c) That said product is effective or affords quick relief for most foot ailments;
(d) That Toe Ties will enable one to do more walking, unless limited to the types of cases in which such product may be beneficial;
(e) That Toe Ties will "end" the misery of tired, aching feet;
(f) That Toe Ties enable one to "get rid" of the world's greatest killjoy;
(g) That said product
1. Stops the pain in feet and legs, unless limited to metatarsal disorders;
2. Prevents bunions or prevents either corns or callouses or run over heels, unless due to metatarsal disorders;
3. Causes bunions to disappear;
(h) That Toe Ties relieve the suffering caused by high heeled shoes or narrow shoes;
(i) That Toe Ties have a gentle massaging action at every step, or at all;
and from making any other claims or assertions of like import.

The respondent assumes all responsibility for any and all representations appearing in testimonials published by it and stipulates and agrees that it will not publish or cause to be published any testimonial containing any representation contrary to the foregoing agreement.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that respondent has not furnished proof that its customers have made the amounts stated, under normal conditions; and furthermore is not a manufacturer as implied by its corporate name.
In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) Not to make unmodified representations or claims of earnings or profits of customers in excess of the average full time earnings of respondent's customers achieved under normal conditions in due course of business;

(b) Not to represent or hold out as a chance or an opportunity any amount a minimum earnings in excess of what has been accomplished by one or more of respondent's customers under normal conditions in due course of business;

(c) Not to represent or hold out as maximum earnings by the use of such expressions as "up to", "as much as", or any equivalent expression, any amount in excess of what has been accomplished by one or more of respondent's customers under normal conditions in due course of business, and

0934. Vendor-Advertiser—Medicinal Ointment.—Dr. A. W. Daggett, S. M. Sweeney, and E. C. Groves, co-partners, operating as The Smad Co., Pasadena, Calif., vendor-advertiser, is engaged in selling an ointment called "Smad" for athlete's foot and other foot afflictions, and in advertising represented:

When you use SMAD, spelled S M A D, for Athlete's Foot you permanently destroy the fungus growth which causes all the annoyance and discomfort. Equally important, you kill the germs which may be present in your shoes, thus insuring yourself against a recurrence of the trouble.

This treatment of the shoes prevents re-infection once relief is effected.

Physicians recommending the use of Smad in treating Athlete's Foot have found that a single container of the remedy is usually sufficient for a complete relief.

A convenient powder that will positively eliminate it on the feet and in the shoes.

Superior to messy ointments and liquids.

Even stubborn cases which resist most treatments yield quickly to SMAD.

The one product that kills the germ in the shoes and prevents re-infection.

The Safe Remedy for ATHLETE'S FOOT, Itching Feet and Toes. For Athlete's Foot, Dhobie Itch, Golfer's Itch, Ringworm, Etc., it has proved a safe remedy where other methods have failed.
A convenient powder rubbed into the affected parts, penetrates deeply into the tissues, kills the germ, stops the intense itching and effects complete relief.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that according to medical opinion furnished the Commission, no remedy is known that is a “sure cure” for fungus infections of the feet; this preparation has been tested and given a ten days’ trial without effect upon the disease mentioned.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That the use of SMAD for Athlete’s foot permanently destroys the fungus growth, or insures against a recurrence of the trouble;
(b) That physicians recommending SMAD have found that a single container is usually sufficient for a complete relief;
(c) That even stubborn cases which resist most treatments yield quickly to SMAD;
(d) That to one struggling with the annoyance of Athlete’s foot, SMAD is the answer to all his difficulties;
(e) That said preparation rubbed into the affected parts penetrates into the tissues, “deeply.”
(f) That SMAD prevents re-infection;

and from making any other claims or assertions of like import.

The respondents assume all responsibility for any and all representations appearing in testimonials published by them and stipulate and agree that they will not publish or cause to be published any testimonial containing any representation contrary to the foregoing agreement. (Sept. 27, 1935.)

1935. Vendor-Advertiser—Correspondence Course.—John C. Coles, trading as Business Ownership Institute, Chicago, Ill., vendor-advertiser, is engaged in selling a correspondence course and outfit for cleaning and pressing, and in advertising represented:

1. I DO know that this training will never be offered at a lower price.
2. I’ve got a problem on my hands and I need your help to settle it. HERE IS WHAT I’M UP AGAINST! Since you wrote me, several other fellows have written me and are anxious to get started with their Cleaning and Pressing Business. BUT—THEY ARE LOCATED IN YOUR TERRITORY and as YOU wrote me FIRST I want to give you FIRST CHANCE at the EXCLUSIVE RIGHT to open up a business through the B. O. I. in your territory. Now I know it would be mighty easy to sell these other fellows my course. But that would mean that there would be SEVERAL fellows going after the business that RIGHT NOW you can still get for YOURSELF! Undoubtedly I could get many more students in that way. BUT THAT'S NOT MY WAY OF DOING BUSINESS.

3. Now, my friend, I told these other fellows that I would let them know about your territory in 15 days. So if you do NOT intend to take advantage of this opportunity, then won't you PLEASE let me know promptly, so I won't have to keep these other fellows waiting. HOWEVER—IF YOU WANT THE TERRITORY YOURSELF, then just let me know and I will hold it for you and then you and I will work together to help you get started in a REAL BUSINESS where you can enjoy all of the advantages of being in BUSINESS FOR YOURSELF!

4. For a limited time after our new Catalog is ready, I will show you how you can get a Cleaning and Pressing Outfit, consisting of over 30 valuable and useful items, ABSOLUTELY FREE.

5. You will notice in reading this Catalog that this course of training is designed to FIT EVERY SITUATION and FILL EVERY NEED. Regardless of what your situation is this training will help you.

6. If your enrollment is received at once, THE BIG VALUABLE OUTFIT OF EQUIPMENT AND SUPPLIES WILL BE INCLUDED RIGHT IN YOUR COURSE as a regular part of your training without one cent of extra cost.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated, and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that respondent’s business is an individual proprietorship selling printed instructions and is not an “institute”; exclusive territory is not reserved, but the course is sold to any person who will pay the price; and the time for acceptance of respondent’s offer is not limited.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That said “training” “will never be offered at a lower price”;

(b) That respondent grants any exclusive territorial rights to subscribe for his home-study course;

(c) That respondent has a “problem” on his hands in that “several other fellows” are “anxious to get” the “exclusive right” to “operate” in the prospect’s territory; or that respondent “told these other fellows” that he “would let them know about your territory in 15 days”; or that he would “hold it for you”—so long as such statements are sent out in form letters, and until such time as these and equivalent expressions may be true in each specific case;

(d) That respondent will show how to get a cleaning and pressing outfit “for a limited time” after his new catalog is ready, unless and until the time limit is actually set after which requests for such information are refused under the terms offered;
(e) That the outfit of equipment and supplies will be included without extra cost on condition that the "enrollment is received at once", so long as such equipment is included to all who enroll;

(f) That the cleaning and pressing outfit may be procured "absolutely free" so long as the price thereof is included in the price of the course;

(g) That said course of training will "fit every situation" or "fill every need";

and from making any other claims or assertions of like import.

In future advertising respondent further stipulates and agrees to discontinue the use of the word "Institute" as a part of his trade name until such time as an institute, as the term is commonly defined and accepted, may be actually organized and maintained. (Sept. 27, 1935.)

Laboratories.

WHY YOU SHOULD USE MIRACLE GAS

Two gallons of gasoline treated with Miracle Gas give the mileage of three gallons.

More mileage from each gallon of gasoline—25% to 50% increased mileage and freedom from carbon.

Power of motor is increased, faster acceleration.

Helps prolong life of motor, saves many repair bills as well as saves cost of having carbon removed.

Quick easy starting due to highly volatile, quick firing, vaporized gasoline, and freedom from carbon.

Oil lasts longer when Miracle Gas is used. You have a highly volatile, vaporized gasoline which fires more readily, quickly burning up—creating power in the motor instead of draining down into crankcase, diluting the oil.

Reduces cost of operating cars, trucks, or buses. Fleet owners can very materially reduce operating costs.
With your orders we send you a supply of circulars which show a reprint of our Certificate from the well known Automobile Club of Illinois. This shows everyone you offer Miracle Gas to, that it has successfully proved under tests that it will increase mileage, makes easier starting (this is big feature in the Winter time) and cleans out and prevents carbon. Also it proves to your customer that by laboratory tests Miracle Gas has been shown to contain nothing harmful to the motor and makes no sediment.

* * * Right now everyone is talking about “pepped up gasoline”, “more power”, “more miles per gallon, less carbon, better lubrication.” The whole sum and substance of it all is “more economy and greater speed with better running cars.”

That must be why Miracle Gas Compound found a quick, responsible market. It came right when everybody wanted it. It fitted right in with the great demand of the Motoring Public. They could use the cheapest gasoline they could buy—add Miracle Gas to it and have a high powered, quick pick-up, anti-knock, non-carbon forming fuel with increased mileage of 25% to 50%.

This new product offers you a new opportunity for making real money. Our prices to you allow you the largest possible margin of profit. You can make over 500% profit. Only 10 sales make you $8.00. We give you extra cans of Miracle Gas FREE with your stock orders.

MIRACLE GAS COMPOUND is a harmless compound that completely mixes with the gasoline, developed by one of this country's well known chemists and research engineers to convert the energy that is now wasted into Power, at the same time removing old carbon deposits and keeping the motor and spark plugs clean. PROOF

For those who Doubt

I have used with considerable success your Miracle Gas Compound. The mileage on my car was increased about 50% and as I am now using the cheapest gas I can buy I am making a good saving. The cheap gas does not knock in my car when I use your compound in it.

C. G. H., Indiana.

I was getting an average of only twelve miles per gallon. After using fifteen gallons of gasoline properly treated, I am now getting over sixteen miles per gallon. In addition the motor starts easier, has more pep and quicker pick-up, and performs better in every detail. My friend has a late model Ford V-8 and has increased his mileage in about the ratio and is highly pleased.

The two cans of Miracle Gas Compound received and I have made some tests averaging 43% increased mileage, with a Ford V-8.

Our car is a Canadian Durant 6 with previous summer’s record of twenty miles to the gallon. This gives us an increase of three miles to the Imp. Gallon or fractionally near to this. The consumption of oil is less than customary.

Made a test Sunday afternoon and on an old 1929 Chevrolet that has been making around sixteen miles. I got fully nineteen. At the same time, I feel sure that I would have gotten twenty miles but the battery was run down and had to keep the hand feed open a good bit of the time, which naturally consumed more gas.

After making a check of the mileage increase after using your Miracle Gas, I find the mileage to be increased about 30%. I practically note the increased speed in pick-up of the car.

E. H., Ill.
I was not so much interested in the increased mileage by using Miracle Gas, although I notice a substantial increase in mileage, as I was to use the cheap gas without having a knock. When I add Miracle Gas to the cheap gas I do not have the knock in the car that was there when using the cheap gas without your compound. The saving I make using the cheap gas is enough.

W. C. D., Ill.

It is indeed a pleasure to have this opportunity to tell you about science's newest development, developed in one of the country's large scientific research laboratories by a well known Chemical Authority in the field of Chemical Research—Miracle Gas Compound.

This new product offers you a wonderful opportunity to make big money because of its instant appeal to the car owners. With it they can buy the cheapest, lowest grade of gasoline but have a high powered, peppy fuel for their car. This saves about 4¢ a gallon cost of gasoline. In addition it cleans out old carbon deposits and prevents new carbon formation, increases mileage from 25% to 50% from each gallon of gasoline—Yet costs only 1¢ per gallon to use. (Miracle Gas retails at $1.00 per can containing enough to treat 100 gallons of gasoline.)

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated, and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that according to scientific opinion furnished the Commission by the National Bureau of Standards, oils and gases treated with said product as directed in the advertising are identical in performance with similar fuels not treated with it; the summarized conclusion is that Miracle Gas Compound will not affect power, economy, starting, acceleration, crankcase dilution, knock or carbon deposit in a gasoline engine; furthermore, the certificate from the Automobile Club of Illinois has been cancelled, and the representations as to prospective earnings by sales persons, dealers, and distributors are exaggerated and misleading.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(h) That said product was developed by one of this country’s well known chemists and research engineers, converting wasted energy into power, or that it was developed in one of the country’s largest scientific research laboratories;

and from making any other claims or assertions of like import.
The respondent further agrees and stipulates in future advertising in interstate commerce to cease and desist;

(w) From the use of a paper designated "Certificate of merit", dated August 31, 1934, and numbered 441, issued by the Test Laboratories of the Automobile Club of Illinois;

(x) From making unmodified representations or claims of earnings in excess of the average earnings of respondent's full time sales persons, dealers, or distributors achieved under normal conditions in the due course of business;

(y) From representing or holding out as a chance or an opportunity any amount in excess of what has actually been accomplished by one or more of respondent's sales persons, dealers, or distributors under normal conditions in the due course of business;

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that the toothpick offered is not antiseptic; the difference in alleged "values" of products offered and their prices is unreasonable; and respondent has not furnished proof that his dealers have or can make the amount of money stated, within the time specified.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

Enjoy summertime health the year round. Don't wait for an emergency when your health is concerned. Ward off disease and pain by taking a little Solcano daily in your wake-up glass of water.
It will regulate the system. Counteract toxic poisons and correct ailments caused by digestive inertia.

Rheumatism and arthritis pains can be quickly and permanently relieved by taking Solcano. Solcano neutralizes the acids that deposit on joints and muscles to cause rheumatic stiffness and pain.

Solcano soothes, heals and strengthens digestive organs by assuring natural functions without strain.

Solcano is Nature's own remedy, eliminating from your system the poisons which nullify the effects of even the best external beauty treatments. Start taking this pleasant mineralized sunshine daily then watch the glow of good health restore your vitality and beauty as well.

If your mirror tells you that you have a sallow, blemished complexion, or if you have that run-down, slow-motion feeling pep up your system and clear up your complexion by taking an internal sunbath daily, a little Solcano in your wake-up glass of water.

Health and beauty you can't look your best when you "don't feel very well", nor can you enjoy yourself. Headaches and attacks of indigestion and "nerves" and that worn-out feeling can make everything seem wrong Solcano gives you prompt relief from the most serious of all handicaps to good health and beauty. Solcano is an internal sunbath, a mineralized sunshine, a natural mineral corrective that is palatable, safe, gentle, and effective.

Take Solcano for heartburn, acid stomach, poor complexion, toxic poisons, stomach disorders, auto-intoxication.

It conquers even most obstinate cases of rheumatism, arthritis, high blood pressure and acidity.

Scientists say the Solcano treatment is the natural way to correct digestive inertia because Solcano has absorbed the solar rays as it lay exposed to the sun in its natural bed.

I suffered from stomach troubles and neuritis for 15 years when I started taking Solcano. I got almost immediate relief from Solcano, and before taking half a package was able to resume work. My arms are practically free and stomach trouble is hardly noticeable.

For many years I suffered from ulcers of the stomach which caused a combination of other ailments to arise; first, a nervous condition, followed by neuritis, sour stomach, constipation, and rheumatism. I started taking Solcano. It helped me in a number of ways. I began to enjoy my food with less sour stomach, the condition caused by neuritis disappeared. My rheumatism pains are less frequent.

Scientists say that Solcano contains the ultra-violet rays of the sun, the result of the solar action on this volcanic deposit.

Solcano comes to you in its natural state. It contains no ingredients harmful to the body. It is not just a laxative, but a neutralizer that cleanses the entire system.

I am very much pleased with Solcano and think it a wonderful remedy for stomach troubles and neuritis. I had been suffering with both of these diseases for 15 years when I started using Solcano. My arms are practically free from neuritis, and the stomach trouble is hardly noticeable.

I had been troubled with liver-trouble for over five years and I had taken doctor's prescriptions and several other different kinds of medicines and remedies and had received only temporary relief. I have taken less than one-half of a package of Solcano and feel better than I have for years. I feel sure that I will be perfectly cured. Before starting to take Solcano I had a ridge on my side over my liver, also I had a swarthy complexion; but now the ridge has disappeared and my complexion has cleared up.

Liver Trouble, Bladder Trouble. Ailments of the liver and bladder are common conditions that accompany digestive inertia. Solcano will absorb toxic poisons that gather in the bladder and liver.

In all cases in which you are suffering from an ailment that can be traced to digestive inertia Solcano will give relief, and it has cured many, many cases, but no two conditions are alike.

Reducing. Unless over-weight is caused by abnormal thyroid conditions its most probable cause is from digestive inertia. The digestive system is unable to remove all waste fat; it is absorbed by the blood and forms fatty tissues. To remove excess fat take Sol.

Gout there are two treatments necessary to give permanent relief: (1) mineral baths, using a half pound of Naso to an ordinary bath; (2) Solcano taken in hot water once a day.

Nervousness, Exhaustion, Headaches, Fatigue. Frequent spells of fatigue and exhaustion, followed by nervousness and headaches take Solcano you will again have normal vitality.

Skin Eruptions, Skin Diseases, Poor Complexions. These conditions are caused by toxic poisons and other waste matter of the body trying to find an outlet through the pores, and the digestive system becomes clogged. To start the digestive system functioning normally and to absorb these toxic poisons take Solcano.

Athlete's Foot. For Athlete's Foot, or when you have tired, tender, burning feet, the soothing properties of SOL NA-100 are felt immediately NA-100 will check the disease and, in many cases, has effected cures when used diligently for two or three months.

Cuts, Abrasions, Open Sores. When there is a danger of bloodpoisoning from scratches, cuts, or open sores, bathe the infected area in a solution of NA-100; it will soothe the sore and draw the poisons, leaving the tissues clean and ready to heal.

Scientists can not equal Nature in producing the sun's rays in a form beneficial to the human body. That is why Solcano, the result of solar action on a volcanic mineral, is so beneficial in treating disorders caused from digestive inertia.

Solcano is recommended, yes, double-guaranteed, for use in treating rheumatism, stomach disorders, liver trouble, skin disease, and many other ailments caused by digestive inertia.

Solcano neutralizes the excess acids that deposit on joints and muscles to cause rheumatic stiffness and pains. It absorbs the toxic poisons in the blood and corrects functional disorders caused by digestive inertia. Get quick, permanent relief from these ailments; start taking Solcano today.

Don't depend on drugs and stimulants for relief from neuritis, headaches, backache, and rheumatism. Get at the cause of the trouble, digestive inertia. Put an end to the functional disorder that is causing your headaches, backache, and nervousness. Take just a quarter teaspoonful of Solcano each morning in a wake-up glass of hot water.

Solcano acts as an internal cosmetic in fact, Solcano tones the whole system.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that—

The Willard treatment is not an adequate or competent treatment for ulcers of the stomach or duodenum; nor for many diseases such as pulmonary tuberculosis, gall bladder troubles, heart lesions, gastric cancer, chronic appendicitis, which produce symptoms that appear to be directly related to the stomach; nor for many gastric disturbances.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That the Willard Treatment is a treatment for ulcers of the stomach or duodenum; unless such representations are limited to conditions caused by hyperacidity and so specified in equally conspicuous terms in direct connection with the representations;

(b) That the Willard Treatment is intended to or has the capacity to “correct the cause of your trouble” or “improve your health” unless limited to specified conditions for which an antacid would be a competent treatment;

(c) That the Willard Treatment is a competent treatment for “stomach distress”, “torments of stomach distress”, “stomach trouble”, “constipation”, or any other disease, condition, or symptom for which an antacid is not a recognized and adequate treatment;

(d) That “Talzoid” is capable of liquifying 300 times its own weight of starch until it has been definitely determined by competent scientists that it will do this in the human system;

(e) “That Willard Tablets or the Willard treatment will do more than provide temporary relief for antacid conditions, or produce a soothing effect on the irritations in the stomach”; and from making any other claims or assertions of like import.

The respondent assumes all responsibility for any and all representations appearing in testimonials published by it and stipulates and agrees that it will not publish or cause to be published any testimonial containing any representation contrary to the foregoing agreement. (Oct. 2, 1935.)

0940. Vendor-Advertiser—Correspondence Lessons.—The U. S. School of Music, New York, N. Y., vendor-advertiser, is engaged in selling a course of home study in music lessons and in advertising represented:

1. We have taught 700,000 people to play—more than any other school on earth.
2. At the end of the course our average pupil is ready to pass a teacher's examination.

3. Your sheet music is furnished free. If at the completion of the course you are not entirely satisfied, we will refund every dollar you paid.

4. Be your own music teacher. Learn at home by wonderful new method that teaches in half the usual time. Simple as "ABC"—a child can learn it. Automatic finger control our own invention—limbers, trains, and guides your fingers so that they fall in the proper place almost automatically.

5. Quickly learn to play any "Jazz" or classical selection.

6. From the very start you are playing real tunes perfectly by note. Almost before you know it you are playing your favorite pieces—Jazz, ballads, classics.

7. No talent needed. Forget the old-fashioned idea that you need "talent." Just read the list of instruments and decide which one you want to play and the U. S. School of Music will do the rest.

8. Beginners play real music from the start.

9. When you enroll for a U. S. School of Music course you are assured of success.

10. If you bought individually the sheet music we include with our 2-year course, it would probably cost $25. We make no additional charge for the music. In fact the music alone is almost worth the price we ask for the complete course of instruction.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that there is no proof to sustain any claim that respondent has taught 700,000 people to play music or that he has taught more than any other school on earth, mere sales of music sheets not furnishing such proof; said course does not make pupils eligible for teacher's examinations; students cannot learn by this method to play classical selections quickly, or to play real tunes perfectly by note from the start.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That respondent taught 700,000 or more than any other school on earth, to play;

(b) That at the end of the course the average pupil is ready to pass a teacher's examination;

(c) That one may learn at home by a wonderful new method that teaches in half the usual time;

REPUBLIC PAINT & VARNISH WORKS Paints, Varnishes & Enamels
Chicago
The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated, and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that according to tests made and opinion furnished the Commission by the National Bureau of Standards, the said product is not impervious to damage from alcohol or acids, and its life is not 3 to 5 times as long as other spar varnishes; said product does not attain the perfection that consumers everywhere are demanding, and its finish is not the most durable, indestructible, or inexpensive that can be applied; nor will it hold its gloss after ordinary varnishes have ceased to be of service; furthermore, the respondent does not manufacture the said product and the word “Works” in its corporate name is misleading.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That Uni-Spar Phenolite Varnish
   1. Possesses elasticity or resiliency so amazing that dried film can be crumpled in the hand without a wrinkle, or smoothed out again without a crack;
   2. Guarantees the perfection that consumers everywhere are demanding; or
   3. Wears or holds its gloss years after ordinary varnishes have ceased to be of service;

(b) That said product is
   1. Impervious to spilled perfume, alcohol, liquor, or highballs;
   2. The most durable indestructible finish that can be applied;
   3. A product that sets a remarkably higher standard of quality than ever before achieved; or
   4. The most inexpensive finish that can be applied;

(c) That said product defies all the age-old enemies of applied finishes, the sun, sea-salt, alcohol, hot oils, ammonia, Lye, caustic sodas, alkalis, bleaches, fruit juices, gases, dyes, fumes, inks, corrosives, hammering, bending, or ordinary abrasive wear;

(d) That the life of said product is 3 to 5 times as long as old-time spars;

(e) That hundreds of almost unbelievable tests prove it powerful enough to etch glass;

(f) That neither hydrofluoric, hydrochloric, acetic, nor lactic acids in concentrated form affect said product;

(g) That neither 25% ammonia or 5% caustic soda solutions will affect it;
(h) That citric fruit juices will not injure it even if permitted to dry on the surfaces;
(i) That it does not soften or whiten in water kept boiling for several hours;
and from making any other claims or assertions of like import.

The respondent further stipulates and agrees in all future advertising in interstate commerce to cease and desist from the use of the word "Works" in or as a part of its corporate name, until such time as respondent shall actually maintain and operate a paint and varnish works as the term is commonly understood. (Oct. 2, 1935.)

Earn $25 to $50 a week. With the aid of Fashion Creators of Motion Pictures Studios and Screen Stars themselves this 50 year old college will teach you Costume Designing.

The real marvel of our course is the low tuition fee. We are celebrating our Fiftieth Anniversary and our president has insisted that we make a specially low anniversary offer. You quickly advance from $25 to $100 or more a week. The average young girl starts at about $25 a week, and if she possesses the necessary training and initiative she can advance rapidly to a maximum of approximately $200 or $250 a week.

But advancement is rapid and soon her earnings will amount to $50 or $75 a week. Her income will speedily mount to ten, twenty, even thirty thousand a year. Win financial independence as a Free Lance. You will find that if you can produce distinctive work the demand for your services will be great and in a studio at home you can earn from $50 to $200 a week.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated, and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that this school of Costume Designing was established in April 1934, and admittedly has no graduates, and respondent has furnished no proof of earnings of costume designers as represented.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That "only one price" is charged for this course so long as "our President has insisted" (or insists) "that we make a specially low anniversary offer", or a special offer of any kind;

(b) That in connection with the advertising of this department the college is celebrating, or has celebrated, its "Fiftieth Anniversary", or any anniversary exceeding the age of said costume designing department;

Dear Sir:

While in Faribault, Minn., I purchased two of your burners for cook stove, of your agent, Mr. J. Lyons. 0944. Vendor-Advertiser—Medicinal Preparation.—Wain's Laboratory, Inc., Los Angeles, Calif., vendor-advertiser, is engaged in selling a medicinal compound offered for the treatment of asthma and hay fever, formerly designated as Ama-Gon and Wain's Compound, and in advertising represented:

To those who suffer with painful paroxysms of Asthma, Hay Fever, or bronchial irritations, I bring good news about a successful California home treatment called Ama-Gon which has overcome paroxysms of Asthma, Hay Fever and bronchial irritations for thousands of sufferers during the past 11 years. Ama-Gon overcomes the tortures of these awful wheezing, choking, painful attacks, and enables you to breathe freely, sleep soundly, and live comfortably in any climate. Ama-Gon is guaranteed to be free from all dangerous, habit-forming drugs. No matter how long you have suffered with paroxysms of Asthma, Hay Fever, or how many remedies you have tried, the discoverer of Ama-Gon wants you to use his successful home Ama-Gon treatment a full eight days and prove its value to yourself immediately without risking one cent.
Just listen to this enthusiastic letter praising Ama-Gon, from Mrs. Chevoz, of Centura, California: "Suffered 15 years with terrible Bronchial Asthma Paroxysms and tried everything without relief. After using 1½ bottles of Ama-Gon, I feel like a new person. Got rid of my awful wheezing, choking sensations and suffering, and now sleep soundly all night long."

Ama-Gon positively * * * enables you to breathe freely, sleep soundly, live comfortably in any climate without dieting.

Ama-Gon will overcome your suffering safely * * * Ama-Gon is absolutely guaranteed to contain no habit forming drugs, narcotics, opiates, or heart depressants and is perfectly safe for little children or elderly people to use * * * Ama-Gon overcomes suffering in any climate * * * seashore, foggy districts, desert, mountains, citrus or wood infested rural communities.

The successful Ama-Gon treatment, compounded by a registered chemist, a famous pharmacist and professor of chemistry at a leading California university is absolutely guaranteed to contain no habit forming or injurious drugs whatsoever. Ama-Gon contains only those superior, pure ingredients which leading doctors recognize as finest for quickly overcoming suffering caused by attacks of Asthma, hay-fever and bronchial paroxysms.

The properties and methods of preparing Ama-Gon have been painstaking and scientifically worked out by me after untold hours of study in my laboratories.

The safest way is to use a proven preparation like Ama-Gon to relieve your suffering caused by paroxysms of Asthma, Hay Fever and bronchial irritations.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that according to the medical opinion rendered the Commission, the potassium iodide in Ama-Gon while it may exert some influence in tending to relieve the paroxysms of asthma, and may be more or less competent in the treatment of minor bronchial irritations, it would not be an accepted or effective remedy for hay-fever; would be harmful to those having tuberculosis lesions or tendencies, and to any one when taken over a long period of time; is a very old mixture of common drugs, and has not been scientifically worked out by a famous chemist; nor is it recognized by doctors as the finest for overcoming the ailments specified in the advertising.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That said product designated Ama-Gon and Wain's Compound, respectively, enables a person in any climate or without dieting to breathe freely, sleep soundly, or live comfortably;

(b) That said preparation is free from all dangerous drugs;

(c) That said preparation has overcome asthma, or hay-fever for thousands of sufferers for the last ten years;
(d) That said preparation is a competent treatment or an effective remedy for asthma or hay-fever;

(e) That Ama-Gon will overcome one's suffering safely, or is perfectly safe for little children or elderly people to use, regardless of pathological tendencies;

(f) That Ama-Gon "overcomes" suffering in any climate, or in foggy districts, deserts, mountains, citrus or wood infested rural communities, or at the seashore;

(g) That said preparation is compounded by a famous pharmacist;

(h) That said preparation contains only those ingredients which leading doctors recognize as finest for quickly overcoming suffering caused by attacks of asthma, hay-fever, or bronchial paroxysms;

(i) That the properties or methods of preparing Ama-Gon have been painstaking or scientifically worked out;

(j) That a person can prove the value of said preparation to himself "without risking one cent", so long as the price must first be paid, though subject to a money-back guarantee; and from making any other claims or assertions of like import.

The respondent further stipulates and agrees, in its future advertising, to publish in direct connection therewith, a caution that Ama-Gon should not be taken by those having tuberculosis lesions or tendencies and should not be used by any one over a long period of time.

The respondent assumes all responsibility for any and all representations appearing in testimonials published by it and stipulates and agrees that it will not publish or cause to be published any testimonial containing any representation contrary to the foregoing agreement. (Oct 3, 1935.)

0945. Vendor-Advertiser—Reducing Compound.—Forest Hill Pharmaceutical Co., Inc., Cleveland, Ohio, vendor-advertiser, is engaged in selling a weight reducing product called "Slim" and in advertising represented:

For years medical science has tried to find some way to reduce fat other than by employing thyroid, cathartic, or rigorous system of exercise or diet, which are so dangerous and distasteful.

The use of thyroid without competent medical supervision is extremely dangerous because of its effect upon the heart and nervous system.

At last, science has succeeded in giving to the public, in capsule form—a SAFE, CERTAIN, and EASY WAY TO REDUCE FAT without employing any of the dangerous and distasteful methods mentioned above. This medicine, discovery of medical science, is called Slim.

The drugs used in Slim are designed to increase that metabolism without injury to the human system.

Over five years were required to study and analyze, check and recheck, and to perfect this prescription. This physician's records satisfied him that it was positively safe and surely effective.

This reduction was accomplished and continued as desired with safety and comfort, and usually with an actual general improvement of health due to relief from the burden of excess fat.
In no case did repeated physical examinations show any trace of harm to the patient.

Slim, the safe and sane way to reduce.

Reduce safely, without dieting or exercise, with slim. It is safe—contains no thyroid or cathartic.

I have lost twenty-one pounds. It has not harmed me in any way whatsoever. It has given me lots of pep.

Slim is safe and healthful.

Slim will reduce you too, safely. For Slim contains no thyroid or salts.

If you want to reduce there is a reducing remedy on the market that absolutely eliminates thyroid, cathartic, rigorous exercises and diet, which always proves so harmful to the system. That remedy is Slim.

You don't endanger your health when you use Slim, the safe reducer.

Slim is a safe way to ridding yourselves of excess weight, because Slim contains no thyroid or cathartic. The drugs it does contain are calculated to reduce you naturally, and without any harm to the human system, by stimulating your metabolism.

You will find your general health improving at the same time that you are reducing with the Slim treatment.

Slim is calculated to reduce you without harming your health in any way.

While you are taking Slim and regaining your youthful figure you are not undermining your health in any way. Reducing by either thyroid or cathartics should not be undertaken unless you are under a physician's care. So just remember that Slim contains neither of these drugs.

Medical authorities tell us that obesity produces many harmful results, a few of which are stiff and tender joints, broken arches, sugar diabetes, anemia, indigestion, and gall bladder disease. Slim, medical science's latest discovery, eliminates excess fat in a safe, certain, and easy manner.

You can't keep well if you allow yourself to become excessively overweight. But you can regain your normal weight and get well by using Slim.

Medical science has at last given to the public a safe, certain, and easy way to reduce, without employing any of the old-time dangerous and distasteful methods.

Excess weight hinders freedom of movement and threatens your health in many ways. Many overweight people suffer from neuritis, arthritis, rheumatism, high blood pressure, and palpitation of the heart. The safe thing to do is to remove this fat and the safe way to do this is by the use of Slim.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated, and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that the Commission is advised by medical authorities that dinitrophenol, the active ingredient of this product, is a dangerous drug, and that medical literature in the past two or three years has reported many cases of poisoning and several deaths resulting from its use; that it is far from being a safe treatment for obesity; and that proper dosage and indications for use, as well as prompt discovery of the toxic effects, can be determined only by a skilled physician.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That respondent's product "Slim"
   1. Is safe to take, or
   2. May be taken without injury, or
   3. Does not endanger the health, or
   4. Does no harm to the user;

(b) That the use of thyroid and cathartics is dangerous unless in direct connection therewith a statement is made that dinitrophenol, the active ingredient of "Slim", is also dangerous;

(c) That "Slim" contains no thyroid, salts or cathartics, unless at the same time a statement is also made that Slim does contain dinitrophenol;

(d) That "reducing by either thyroid or cathartics should not be undertaken unless you are under a physician's care", without also stating that reducing by dinitrophenol should not be undertaken except under a physician's care;

(e) That the use of "Slim" is the way to reduce either naturally or sanely or safely;

(f) That "Slim" is healthful, or gives one pep, or brings about a general improvement in health;

(g) That by the use of "Slim" one may "get well";

(h) That exercise and diet are dangerous or harmful to the system;

(i) That beneficial results either directly or indirectly may be expected from the use of "Slim" by one suffering from any of the following ailments: stiff or tender joints, broken arches, sugar diabetes, anemia, indigestion, gall bladder trouble, neuritis, arthritis, rheumatism, high blood pressure, palpitation of the heart;

(j) Inferentially or by direct statement, that stimulation of metabolism by the use of such drugs as dinitrophenol is a normal way to reduce excess weight;

and from making any other claims or assertions of like import.

Respondent furthermore stipulates and agrees that in all future advertising of this product, so long as its active ingredient is dinitrophenol, a suitable warning will be given that the same should be taken only on the advice and under the direction of a physician.

The respondent assumes all responsibility for any and all representations appearing in testimonials published by it and stipulates and agrees that it will not publish or cause to be published any testimonial containing any representation contrary to the foregoing agreement. (Oct. 3, 1935.)

0946. Vendor-Advertiser—Aspirin Tablets.—Master Drugs, Inc., Omaha, Nebr., vendor-advertiser, is engaged in selling Lord's Aspirin Tablets, and in advertising represented:
Get a box of Lord's Aspirin * * * you will be able to remove unnecessary pain as easily as a dust cloth wipes dust from the window sill.

Lord's Aspirin—safer, surest, quickest, and purest aspirin you have ever used.

Back in 1920 the purity requirement for aspirin was set as one having a melting point of one hundred and thirty-two degrees. Science has since taught us that such an aspirin produces the same substance in our stomach that is used to remove corns and is, therefore, dangerous to our health.

Lord's aspirin has the highest melting point of any aspirin on the market today.

You can erase pain quickly and effectively with Lord's aspirin with perfect safety to your health.

Omaha physician writes: "With the advent of this new and effective aspirin, coughs, colds, influenza, and other respiratory affections are promptly relieved."

Lord's aspirin * * * lowest price in America for the highest quality.

The next time unbearable pain pounds across your forehead and you reach for an aspirin, remember that you are running a gambler's chance with health unless that little tablet contains purity. If the word Lord's is on it you KNOW that you are taking the quickest, surest, and purest aspirin that money can buy.

Lord's aspirin is the most positive aspirin money can buy.

There is no need for you to suffer while Nature is setting things aright in your system; get immediate relief, take one of the Lord's aspirin tablets—in a half hour repeat. Presto, the pain is gone.

Lord's aspirin—a greater medicinal value.

Many of us are buying aspirin today that is a product of yesterday's laboratories. Yes, we do that very thing when it is possible to have the very purest, the very latest aspirin, the very best that money can buy and for less money.

Lord's aspirin—you can erase pain as easily as the rubber on your pencil removes that mark from your scratch pad.

And purity means safety when it comes to aspirin. The higher the melting point the greater the purity * * * the lower the melting point the more opportunity for aspirin to form that same substance in your stomach which is sold over drug counters to remove corns.

For aspirin that melts at too low a temperature very often proves dangerous to your health.

Purity in aspirin is determined by its melting point.

So after years of work in his own laboratory, this chemist produced an aspirin with the highest melting point known.

The word Lord's is your assurance of the purest aspirin known to mankind.

It is the leader in sales due to the fact that the public appreciates the importance of using a safe aspirin.

Lord's aspirin with its purity test of 138 to 140 degrees centigrade is the highest test for purity of any aspirin on the market today.

It certainly does not require the scientific judgment of a chemist to find that Lord's aspirin brings more efficient relief in ten minutes, as compared with the half hour to an hour's time that is required by ordinary aspirin.

Before bringing Lord's aspirin to your attention, we had several hundred people who were constant users of aspirin try this product. Everyone told us that Lord's genuine aspirin gave them quicker relief at less cost. Many of these men and women reported that Lord's aspirin brought relief within ten minutes and most of them reported that it required less of Lord's aspirin to bring relief than any other aspirin.

Every day, word is coming to us from hundreds of users telling us that they have never found a more effective relief.
It doesn't take the experience of a chemist to find that you are getting quicker, safer, more efficient relief at less cost. From your own experience, it will tell you just how much better Lord's aspirin is for you. The quickest and best way in which you can assist nature in keeping your beauty natural and healthy looking is to relieve pain and discomfort quickly by the use of Lord's pure aspirin. Scientifically proven that ordinary aspirin breaks down almost immediately upon reaching the stomach, and releases free salicylic acid, and for that reason is often injurious to the delicate membranes of the stomach. Lord's aspirin with its higher stability does not break down, and for that reason when it enters the intestine, there it becomes absorbed into the blood stream and takes hold upon the nervous system and brings immediate and safe relief. The full medicinal strength to be found only in Lord's aspirin emphasizes the importance of buying this purer product the next time you buy aspirin.

Ordinary aspirin has a U. S. P. government standard test of 132 degrees centigrade. Lord's aspirin has a melting point of 138 to 140 degrees centigrade—6 degrees higher than the recommended standard. Such purity speaks for itself in getting results where ordinary aspirins fail. Yesterday's brands of aspirin are forsaken for a new and quicker acting aspirin—Lord's aspirin.

Free salicylic acid * * * a product very dangerous to health and present in many brands of aspirin. Ever-increasing sales of Lord's aspirin * * * record breaker. * * * Lord's aspirin sets a new record in stopping pain. Most stable product of its kind on the market today. Never before has such an aspirin value been offered. Among all aspirin, one stands out above all the rest * * * Lord's Aspirin. Fastest known aspirin. Lord's aspirin has also won the patronage of millions * * * Lord's aspirin contains this hidden virtue * * * But it has remained for Lord's aspirin to bring you a speed hitherto unknown in the relief of pain. Will not damage your health. One sure way that never fails and that is to look for the name Lord's. Such aspirin (containing free salicylic acid) is responsible for much of our trouble from stomach ulcers. Lord's aspirin is fast becoming the most widely used of all aspirin. It is now no longer necessary to gamble with your health when you use aspirin: Do as many thousands of others are doing daily. Change to Lord's aspirin and you will get the purest aspirin ever made. But aspirin varies so greatly in purity. It is not the price that you pay for aspirin that is important, because you might save a penny on a box and ruin your health for all time. Wipe out needless pain as easily as your electric fan cools the atmosphere * * * with Lord's aspirin. * * * one sure way to beat the heat. Just reach for an aspirin and bring your overheated nerves back to normal. And you can do this with perfect safety to your health with Lord's aspirin. Absolutely nothing in Lord's aspirin that can harm you in any way. Lord's aspirin gives you the power to live * * * as nature originally intended that you should * * * without pain. You risk absolutely nothing when you get a box of Lord's aspirin. Lord's aspirin is leading all other brands.
The outstanding leader.

One brand of aspirin at your drug store that has out-distanced all others.

It is the marvel of modern science in that it leads the world * * * and the name of this aspirin with the greatest purity yet produced is Lord's aspirin.

Many salesmen are selling 600 a day, averaging from $15.00 to $25.00 clear profit daily.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive interested parties, to the injury of respondent's competitors, in that the amount stated exceeds that which can be earned by salespersons or dealers of respondent under normal conditions.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce:

PRESS CARD—This card identifies the holder as a Journalistic Photographer, and an accredited Member of Universal Photographers, and bespeaks the usual courtesies accorded to the press photographer. It is issued only to Student-Members who have sold work for publication or after completion of the training.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that respondent has not furnished the Commission with proof that its students or graduates make $55.00 a week making and selling photographs; that there is no evidence that 34,487 publishers in this country or any number approximating such total buy photographs regularly; that seven million pictures are bought every year by publishers; that seven out of every ten are sold to them by amateur photographers; or that the average magazine contains 100 to 200 pictures; moreover, the card issued to a student or graduate is not a "Press Card" and does not entitle him to the "usual courtesies."

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That there are 34,487 publishers in this country who buy photographs regularly;

(d) That "membership" in the Universal Photographers, Inc., includes a "Press Card" which entitled one to the "usual courtesies"; and from making any other claims or assertions of like import.
And the respondent further stipulates and agrees in all future advertising in interstate commerce:

(e) Not to represent or hold out as a chance or an opportunity any amount in excess of what has actually been accomplished by one or more of respondent's students or graduates under normal conditions in due course of business; and

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive interested parties, to the injury of respondent's competitors, in that the amount stated exceeds that which can be earned by salespersons or dealers of respondent under normal conditions; and furthermore, the plan of selling used by respondent is deemed by the Commission to be an unfair method of competition in that it is a form of lottery.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said project in interstate commerce:

(a) Not to make unmodified representations or claims of earnings in excess of the average earnings of respondent's active full-time salespersons or dealers achieved under normal conditions in the due course of business;

Learn Photography at Home. Earn while you learn. You can make as high as $50 to $75 a week in your spare time while getting your training. No experience necessary.

Your course in Photography beats the resident photography schools. You can't help but become a Photographic Expert quickly by our method.

Only halfway through the course yet is making $285 a month. Made $285 in December.

The fashion photographer gets the big price his skill can command. A new season's line of coats may contain two or three dozen styles. Three or four models of different types are sent for. A full day will be needed to pose all the subjects. But the bill for $500 or $600 makes it a mighty profitable day's work.

From time to time I finished the third assignment of lessons (and you know I have not yet nearly completed the course) I have made $600 in my spare time. Mr. Cole whose letter is given above has made as much as $500 to $800 a month.

Do you want to make some money in a few weeks? This letter will tell you an easy way to do it. Extra money on the side, during your spare time—possibly in the evenings—$15—$20—$25 and up to $75 each week. Many of our students are doing it right along.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated, and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that the idea is held out that anyone regardless of age, intellectual, or educational qualifications, can master this course, when in truth and in fact such is not the case; no correspondence course can "beat" or excel a course studied at a resident school; and respondent has not furnished proof that its students and graduates have made the profits indicated.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That anyone, regardless of age, intellectual or educational qualifications, can master this course;

Falling Out, or Combing Out of Hair.
Dandruff, otherwise known as seborrhea or scurf. A diseased condition of the scalp which must be remedied or all hair will be lost.

Hair Brushing Out. It sticks to the brush instead of remaining fast to the scalp, thereby proving the absolute need of prompt attention to save it.

Hair Turning Gray—or already gray, or white. Should be darkened gradually to natural shade of youth.

Dandruff on Upper Lip, or no hair at all where a good mustache is desired.

Save it with Koskott * * *

NATURE PROVIDES HAIR
DO NOT RESIGN YOURSELF TO ITS LOSS.

* * * * *

FALLING HAIR AND BALDNESS

Let Koskott Prove its Real Efficacy.
* * * dandruff which is itself a germ disease. * * * The scalp must be chemically healed and the hair growth stimulated. Use the scientific remedy which has stood the test of years—KOSKOTT.

USE KOSKOTT TO GROW HAIR Overcome Baldness. Eliminate dandruff.
Stop the Falling Out of Hair; Make the Hair Grow Long, Thick, and Lustrous;

KOSKOTT IS A SCIENTIFIC SUCCESSFUL REMEDY.

We recommend Koskott for the hair, because it contains the right ingredients to stimulate the direct blood nutrition of the hair roots in their follicles.

* * * It is exactly suited, according to the best authorities and latest scientific trials, to eradicate dandruff, overcome the germs of baldness, and promote all possible growth of new hair where such a result is therapeutically possible. * * *

* * * Research has revealed the cause of dandruff, etc., and the same light of knowledge has made possible the preparation of the proper remedy. Koskott is guaranteed to remove the spores just described. * * * Koskott is sure to have the right effect, because ** * * *

* * * Your dandruff, your loss of hair, your threatening baldness, your failure to gain as long and as plentiful hair as your scalp is capable of producing—these conditions probably mean that you are more or less the victim of germ disease.

* * * Koskott has succeeded in banishing seborrhea (dandruff), stopping the falling out of hair and auxiliating satisfactory growth of hair. Koskott is scientific.

* * * Koskott will succeed in the future, as in the past, for you as for others. All you need do is to follow the directions and give Koskott a chance.

* * * It is interesting to note that study of dandruff and examination of the scalps of bald persons demonstrate the existence of two sorts of germs. * * *

* * * The Pharmacopeia has been literally ransacked in Koskott Laboratory's successful search for a group of ingredients with the power to react through the scalp upon the blood circulation which feeds the hair follicles. Such is the formula for Koskott. That is why it "makes good" in so large a percentage of cases. * * * Koskott tends to make the hair grow longer and more plentiful, or to promote hair growth where there has been baldness.

* * * Koskott is aimed, * * * to remedy the subnormal state inside by waking up the cells and tissues to renewed life. The arousing takes place because the therapeutical properties of Koskott consist of stirring up the circulation of the blood as the application is rubbed in. The circulation being thus restored, the hair roots in the scalp should be so revivified as to push forth new hair growth. The follicles also gain strength to throw off any parasites that may nestle into the glands around the hair roots.

* * * Dandruff, Thin or Splitting Hairs, Falling Hairs, Ordinary Baldness, need Koskott Nos. 1, 2, and 3.

Baldness in Patches, Ringworm, Barbers' Itch, Eczema on Scalp, require Koskott Nos. 2, 3, and 5 * * *.
DO YOU WANT NEW HAIR?

* * * you will come to the conclusion that your hair and scalp need scientific care. That the Koskott Method is UNQUESTIONABLY meritorious, is quite obvious.

* * * What it contains are active ingredients which are essential in a scientific preparation for general use on scalp and hair.

* * * We have testimonials from users of Koskott preparations who report new, luxuriant hair growth, removal of dandruff, and other benefits—who are able to make comparisons of a favorable nature from the photographs taken before and after adopting the Koskott Method. We shall be glad to have you join this legion of satisfied patrons.

* * * Those who desire to lessen dandruff, discourage thin or splitting hairs, stop hairs from falling out excessively, or aid new hair growth, order Koskott Nos. 1, 2, and 3. * * *

* * * YOUR HAIR WILL GROW AGAIN!

* * * A supply generally last one month, and in many cases has been reported as amply sufficient to produce new hair growth, banish dandruff. * * *

* * * Surely you want to enjoy a head of luxuriant, soft, handsome hair. * * *

* * * Waste no thoughts over past failures, but rejoice in having found the Koskott Method. * * *

WHY Others Fail and Koskott Succeeds.

* * * Koskott No. 1 is the hair stimulator or feeder which gives timely aid to the hair shaft when it is visible above the scalp. * * * Koskott Method is efficacious in many cases where all else has failed.

0960. Vendor-Advertiser—Medicinal Preparations.—Dr. Louis L. Sherman, operating as "Clinic of the Air", Oakland, Calif., vendor-advertiser, is engaged in selling medicinal products designated as follows:

Liquid Ferrolax, Calwhey,
Red Label Enterol,
Ah-Goo,
I. N. F. No. 38, Organic Iron,
Clinic of the Air Special Tea Tonic, Regular Detoxicating Packages,
Junior Detoxicating Packages, Sodium Bi Citro Phosphate, and in advertising represented:

The symptoms of the poisoning of these cells are slow thinking; loss of memory; inattention; poor judgment; dullness, gloominess; and pessimism.
It is a constant matter of observation that, as detoxication proceeds, and the less toxic the body becomes, the clearer the mental processes become, saner judgments are present; ability to concentrate, keenness of perception, and optimism taking the place of pessimism.

These conditions are marked because of choked up eliminating channels, and extra poisons circulating in the brain cells *. Are all of these results possible through the eliminating of body poisons? We answer in the affirmative.

Many persons complain of brain or mind symptoms—One patient was so toxic and had suffered so long with asthma, that she was threatening to destroy herself. Fortunately a thorough "housecleaning" with the Clinic of the Air Detoxicating Package has changed the mental attitude and the bodily distress that a tragedy was averted and comfort has taken the place of agonizing symptoms.

If you are sick in mind or body there is absolutely one way out, i.e., get rid of the body poisons.

The Clinic of the Air—Detoxicating package does this.

Poison Oak Anti-toxin (Ah-Goo) *. Indians suffered greatly until they, in their primitive way discovered a sovereign remedy, which they passed on to the Clinic of the Air. In every case this ancient Indian remedy gives immediate relief. It is made from the roots and leaves of trees known only to them, bruised and ground fine in a granite mortar, and mixed with water.

Ah-Goo is not a sticky ointment or paste. It is a liquid Indian medicine of great potency probably owing its medicinal value to an alkaloid known as ilicin * * *. Relief comes promptly after its use.

Many friends of the Clinic of the Air are taking several of these packages in their grips on their summer trips. This is a wise precaution. Taken early this infection need not spread all over non-infected parts, but just as surely as fire is best controlled at the beginning so also this infection. (Poison Oak.)

Since 1929 physicians all over the country have been using dry whey not only for tuberculosic and malnutrition, but in selected cases of arthritis due to toxins in the intestinal tract.

It is one of the finest anti-putrefactive substances yet discovered.

Dry whey * * * trade name of "Calwhey" is doing all the remarkable things just mentioned.

Intestinal toxemia means "Poisons which form in the intestinal tract."
The following conditions follow in the wake of intestinal toxemia. Fatigue, Insomnia, Anemia, intestinal sluggishness, frequent colds, inflammations of the large intestines.

Intestinal toxemia is also the cause of abdominal adhesions, gall-bladder and liver disorders, appendicitis, gastritis, fallen intestines.

Hundreds of people have learned to overcome intestinal toxemia, and the chief factor is to destroy the poisons on the inside of the intestines, and the next step is to get rid of the poisons, which have lodged in the joints, nerves, muscles, skin and the brain.

Calwhey combats intestinal toxemia, and changes the intestinal flora in from five to ten days.

Calwhey calms the nerves of children and adults, it causes the gall-bladder to empty bile, and the liver to excrete bile.

Calwhey promotes digestion, overcomes intestinal putrefaction, changes the intestinal flora, to the friendly germs, and causes the kidney to remove poisons from the blood.

When you or your children are nervous, restless, irritable, taking frequent colds, or are generally below par physically, remember to remineralize your body with nature's best supply, the whey salts of milk now known as Calwhey.
The results from this use of Ah Goo in Poison Oak infection has been so gratifying that there are no recorded cases that it does not relieve in from twelve to twenty-four hours.

If those who are susceptible to poison oak will apply Ah Goo to the hands, arms, face and neck before exposure it is unlikely that poison oak infection will occur.

Ah Goo seems to be the only antidote for poison oak, acting on it as water acts on fire.

Do not continue palliating remedies. Palliation is not a cure. Causes must be attacked.

The Clinic of the Air advises you to rid your body of acid waste as quickly as possible.

If you are nervous, irritable, and suffer with nervous indigestion, insomnia, colitis, high blood pressure, auto-intoxication—use Calwhey * * * notice how different you will feel. In a week or so you will usually discover that you are less nervous, sleep better, and life seems altogether different.

MASTOID DISEASE IN INFANTS—CALWHEY

* * * One way to raise the resistance of children to avoid sinus and mastoid disease is to use Cod Liver Oil and Calwhey * * * Build resistance if you want healthy children.

If you know of someone who has Athlete's Foot, let him have a week's supply, or tell him to get a 65¢ bottle from his druggist. Wash feet each night and apply Ah Goo on skin affected around the toes. During the past months numerous reports have been received, stating that Ah Goo is fine for Athlete's Foot. I should be glad to hear from anyone for whom Ah Goo has cleared up this miserable foot condition.

Liquid Ferrolax contains no phenolphthalein, nor caustic drugs. Best all around laxative one could possibly use * * * least habit forming.

Calwhey should be used in order to destroy poisons which line the bowels.

Helps to establish the perfect Health condition by neutralizing the acidosis, poisons in the body, by building up a pure, clean, powerful blood, rating at 95 to 100% blood iron and by cleaning out the waste with Red Label Enterol.

It is said that the average policemen can combat about three burglars a night when Calwhey is not used. After taking Calwhey for three weeks one prominent officer says: "I arrested over twenty burglars one night before twelve o'clock and by three thirty I had nearly the whole city in jail." This is real testimony for Calwhey.

Perfect Drug Company * * * We are feeding it to the clerks. Clerks are selling nearly six times more goods since supplying them with Calwhey.

Some simple ointment may cure some of the worst looking kinds of skin disease.

You might as well try to stop up a leak in the ceiling with putty as to try to get rid of an eczema due to acidosis or auto-intoxication poisons in the blood by external treatment only. It is hard to heal the skin's surface if the blood beneath it is filled with poisons.

This lesson is for those who suffer from rheumatism, arthritis, neuritis, sciatica and backache * * * Relief from pain is desirable, but relief remedies alone are perilous for continued use. Swollen joints or painful joints are caused by some kind of poison.

But no matter what the cause is, the poisons must be eradicated from the system at all costs.

One day I had a patient for whom all recognized methods of treatment had failed. I told her about the doctor's antiquated herb concoction, admitting I thought it an old fogey idea. I fretted around, got the ingredients, and made enough for a six week's trial. The patient's recovery was remarkable. My name for this prescription is Chi-Illum.

The use of this herb medicine is strongly advised because of its beneficial effect on the liver, gall bladder, small intestine, and other organs, and because of the great number of people who have been very definitely helped by using it. It is wonderful to realize that God has made plants to grow for our healing.

motor—(1) Lekotoria stimulates the affected organs, then it removes the cause in the natural way. Lekotoria is more than a cure. It is a preventative of future ailments.

One of the primary herbs used in Lekotoria is one that is defined by the United States Dispensatory as used as an alternative in chronic rheumatism and scrofula or swelling of joints. Lekotoria nourishes the bony tissues and glands preventing excess sweating. It purifies the blood that gets in and around those tiny muscles that ache so in cold weather.

Lekotoria contains herbs that reach into dormant tissues of the body reviving and giving them new life. Lekotoria is a tonic that tones the system. It does more than stimulate activity. It cures by removing the cause.

I had been constantly suffering from colds, stomach trouble and bronchitis and I wasn't able to sleep or do any kind of work. From the first bottle of Lekotoria which I used according to your special directions, I commenced to feel better; and after using a few more bottles, my health improved wonderfully; and thanks to your Lekotoria, I am now well.

In CROWDS ORASOL is the one antiseptic which can be quickly used, at the time you need it most. In crowds, street cars, theatres, you are in contact with millions of germs.”

“HOW AND WHY ORASOL” (Trochisci Dihalal) WAS DISCOVERED.
The public has long wanted a mouth and throat antiseptic which can be carried in the pocket, or hand bag and used any place, in public or private.
After two years research Pine Bros. perfected a tablet which, dissolved on the tongue, has the value of a prolonged antiseptic mouth wash and gargle. Before ORASOL to the public, many well known antiseptics were tested, but discarded. They were too harsh on the delicate membranes of the mouth and throat. They were unpleasant to the taste.

DIHALAL IS DISCOVERED

Eventually our search for a better antiseptic reached across the Atlantic.
Finally, Dihalal, the antiseptic in ORASOL tablets, was discovered in one of the famous European laboratories. A new contribution to medical science—safe to use yet in test tube experiments 18 times more powerful as a germ destroyer than carbolic acid against the Staphylococcus aureus:

We were granted the exclusive rights to manufacture this newly discovered substance in tablet form. We brought it to America. We also tested the tablets in every way and found them pure, entirely harmless and efficient.

Thousands of tablets were tried by men, women, and children in our effort to obtain a pleasant taste.
EFFECTIVENESS OF ORASOL

Leading bacteriologists have proved the effectiveness of ORASOL tablets. If one ORASOL tablet containing one-tenth grain of Dihalal is dissolved in two cubic centimeters of saliva to which one four-millimeter loopful of a suspension of Staphylococcus aureus or Streptococcus pyogenes has been added, the bacteria are destroyed in less than two and one-half minutes. These are the troublesome germs that may cause colds. Although it is impossible in laboratory experiments to reproduce conditions in the mouth, these tests prove conclusively that these germs, so frequently found in the mouth, are destroyed when they come in contact with an ORASOL tablet dissolved in saliva.

Throat specialists to whom tablets were submitted containing this new antiseptic, unanimously reported relief or irritation of the throat with lessening of the congestion of the membranes of the mouth and throat. When you use ORASOL, the antiseptic remains in the mouth for several minutes, while in ordinary use mouth washes and gargles have only a few seconds contact.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that, according to medical opinion furnished the Commission—

PINE BROS. GLYCERINE TABLETS will not stop coughing instantly; nor are they oldest, quickest, surest, or safest known relief for coughs, colds, or throat infections; nor are they made doubly effective because of being scientifically combined with other ingredients; nor do doctors and druggists recommend them to stop coughs; nor are they America’s proven relief for coughs and torn throats; nor will they stop coughs in nature’s way without the use of drugs or upsetting the stomach; and in that ORASOL is not an antiseptic in any sense of the word; nor does its active ingredient Dihalal show satisfactory antiseptic qualities 18 times more powerful than phenol as a germ killer capable of ending bad breath, safe-guarding against infection or the spread of contagious disease germs; nor will ORASOL relieve and/or prevent colds and sore throat and do everything better than any mouth wash, breath purifier, cough drop or gargle; nor will it give the mouth a thorough antiseptic treatment of any sort whatsoever; nor will it protect the nose and throat from germs and assist nature’s defense against colds; nor will it act as an effective mouth antiseptic for children who dislike using a gargle; nor will it act as a prolonged antiseptic mouth wash or gargle; nor is Dihalal its active ingredient a new contribution to science discovered in European laboratories for which the respondent has exclusive rights to manufacture in tablet form.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling

* * * Every scientist or astronomer will concede the fact that those planets do have a vibration, which can be recognized by us upon this earth
* * * most of those who practiced the science charged such enormous fees that you could not afford to pay for the real authentic information and direction of the science.
But today through Admiral Arnold's Astrological Guide, a 46-page book of Scientific Astrological directions, you will find the information that you have been seeking. This book will even regulate your life each hour of the day according to scientific direction * * * circumstances arising from your actions, when you are not conforming to the laws of the universe and the planetary influences may reduce you to a condition of poverty, misery and unhappiness * * * you cannot win when going against the lines of least resistance, * * * build for yourself a foundation of security from which peace and happiness will come to you, a foundation built upon facts and science * * * put it into action today through the book I have prepared for you entitled Admiral Arnold's Astrological Guide.

* * * I have brought the science of Astrology up to a point where you can use it in your everyday life * * * you, who have been traversing life's pathway and have not accomplished your ambitions and have found unhappiness and discontent, stop and think * * * so long as you ignore the laws of the universe, obstacles will present themselves in the pathway of success, * * * It is the unwritten law, yours is the choice to conform with it and attain the highest ultimates in life or oppose it and take the chance of bringing yourself to a condition of misery, poverty and discontent. Why take a chance, why not use Astrology through its highest form and give yourself the assurance that you will accomplish your desires in the future * * * they need assistance to help them apply a scientific procedure to their everyday life that will enable them to meet competition in the business world. Admiral Arnold's Astrological Guide will tell you whom to marry to gain the greatest harmony in life, it will also tell you when to marry and give you the characteristics of your intended partner * * *.

* * * the sooner men and women come to the realization of the fundamental truths that will present to them a supreme and intelligent understanding of themselves, the sooner they will discard all this uncertainty, confusion, and misery * * * I have simplified this science for you and put it in book form so that you can regulate your everyday life, even by the hour, and, my friends, if you are looking for some form of direction, if you are at a loss to know which way to proceed, if you are in doubt of yourself, if your confidence has been broken, let Astrology through this book entitled Admiral Arnold's Astrological Guide, give you proper direction. * * * Astrology has helped thousands, it can help you. All you need is the desire to elevate yourself and your conditions and help you. You have that desire and will, through the use of Admiral Arnold's Astrological Guide, plan and proceed according to the oldest science known to man, you will succeed and nothing can stop you. * * *

* * * My prime purpose * * * is to simplify the science of Astrology, so you can use it yourself, so you will not depend on some one else to interpret it for you, and in order to accomplish that, I have spent years in preparing a Book entitled Admiral Arnold's Astrological Guide.
Admiral Arnold's Astrological Guide is a complete scientific directory with which you could so direct your efforts in your everyday life that you will be amazed to find what heights you may reach through the use of it.

Why take a chance on wrecking the home, or losing the love of your husband, by not knowing what to do, when to do or how to do. The book that I have written entitled "Admiral Arnold's Astrological Guide", is a complete directory for you in your everyday life, it will tell you according to planetary vibrations, when to avoid arguments or when arguments are liable to occur within your home.

I am going to make an offer for a limited time to my radio audience, and that offer is as follows: For each and every baby born since the first of January 1934, until further notice, I am going to present free of charge a vocational analysis according to the birth sign, providing the parents will fill out the necessary information on page 2 of my book entitled "Admiral Arnold's Astrological Guide", tear it out and mail it to me with a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Fathers and mothers, this is an offer that if you will take advantage of will in the course of years be priceless. It may be the beginning of a bright future for that beloved baby of yours, and in later years you can look at that child in manhood and womanhood and know that in giving it that education according to vocation by birth, you have made it possible for your child to gain success and happiness.

Miss Anne Smith * * * realized a ten-year dream to visit her mother in Czecho-Slovakia, when she won $1500 for having picked a starter in the English Derby at Epsom Downs * * * "Dear Admiral Arnold: I have been a user of your Guide for sometime, it has helped me in many ways, although recently I had an unusual happening. I will explain. I had an opportunity of purchasing a ticket for a sweepstakes during the last one. I had become accustomed to using the hour chart in your book, so naturally, I looked for my good hour that day, finding it unfavorable for buying just then, I left word I would call at his place to buy the ticket, as I had to sign my name and address. I want to be sure to have the right hour, this I done, and to my surprise a short time later I was notified that I was the winner of $1500."

Last night in my talk to you I showed you how a woman was able through using the science of Astrology according to direction in Admiral Arnold's Astrological Guide to bring peace and happiness into a home that was on the verge of destruction.

* * * Why go on a state of uncertainty against all laws of vibration and radiation, you will only fool yourself and pay the price of failure in the end. My friends, Admiral Arnold's Astrological Guide * * * will show you the way, * * * this book is written and sent forth in such a manner that any individual who can read or write can use it. Get a copy of this book and prepare yourself for the future.

* * * it will not be necessary for you to spend years of research work or study, because in my book * * * I have paved the way for you, in a simple manner, in which you can use the science of Astrology in its highest form, simply by following the directions in this book.

When walking down the street looking at the different displays in the store windows no doubt many of you have been undecided as to the purchase of some article that you might have seen. 0969. Vendor-Advertiser—Reducing Treatment.—The Wyeth Chemical Co., New York, N. Y., vendor-advertiser, is engaged in selling Jad Salts, offered as a fat reducer or a treatment for obesity, and in advertising represented:

1. See all the fat I have lost in two months. You eat three big meals a day yet grow thin fast by this easy method. Thanks to new scientific discoveries, a fat person can now lose a pound a day yet eat more than now. All you do is take a teaspoonful of the new Condensed Jad Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast and make two small changes in your eating, as explained in the Condensed Jad Salts folder. The first day you lose three to five pounds moisture weight alone. The system is cleared of depleting poisons. Fat melts away. Your youthful allure returns.
2. Condensed Jad Salts is urged as a poison-banishing agent and to banish unhealthy bloating.

3. Rip off fat by the new Jad method. In this way you can eat three full meals daily and lose comfortably as much as a full pound every day. Condensed Jad Salts banishes excess moisture weight and all puffiness and bloat at once.

4. Easy Jad reducing method now bringing new attractiveness to millions.

5. No tearing exercise. No starvation. Instead, a full stomach and never a hungry moment. Yet fat melts away. You can easily lose from four to seven pounds weekly. See the coarse lines of fat replaced by the refined lines of slenderess—and feel better than you ever felt before in your life.

WHAT YOU DO

There are just two simple things you do. Clear your system and keep it clear of waste matter, toxins, and depleting poisons with Condensed Jad Salts. Start with a teaspoonful in full glass of water tomorrow morning—then eat your fill—as much as your appetite can stand—of meals consisting of the following foods:

(A list of various foods which should be eaten.)

At the end of a week you'll see the scale down four to seven pounds, according to how much over-weight you are, from what you weighed the day you started. Your health, too, will be better. You'll be more active, more vigorous than perhaps for years. Your friends will soon begin to notice your increasing slenderness. You'll soon avoid the embarrassment of being called fat or bulky, and you'll do it with never a hungry moment.

6. If in doubt about this safe and simple way, ask any doctor. Show him this article. Ask him whether or not it is safe and sure. It marks the latest findings of scientific men in the field of weight reduction, for it performs two necessary and important functions. The condensed Jad Salts clear the bowels and system of the excessive toxins most overweight people have. The change in diet, the filling of the stomach to its limit with foods that turn to energy instead of fat decreases the weight day by day. The Salts build up your health. The change in food eases off the fat.

7. The world's most comfortable way to grow thin.

8. “Fat”, say the psychologists, “is one of the greatest tragedies of modern married life”, for a fat woman loses the desire for romance and gives up hopelessly the romantic form of youth. For many thousands the Jad method of fat reduction has meant the rebirth of this joy, literally made life a new adventure.

9. This amazing Jad way of fat reduction puts a new meaning on life for women who want to end the embarrassment of being called fat and yet are not willing to starve themselves to death getting thin.
10. The first day, by this Jad method, three to five pounds moisture weight alone are lost. At the end of a week you are as much as seven pounds lighter and feel better than you have for years, for you daily relieve your system of toxins, waste, and accumulated poisons. Soon you’re at your perfect weight, slim, vital, and youthfully attractive.

11. Take off fat comfortably. Take a teaspoonful of Condensed Jad Salts before breakfast in the morning and make two simple little changes in your diet. That’s all. Fat simply vanishes.

12. The most comfortable way to lose weight known in the scientific world today.

13. A remarkable health practice is sweeping the country. A way to improve vitality and appearance scientifically is being urged, and all this is, is drinking a glass of hot water before breakfast. Even many who thought they were well have found that this habit has thrown a new light on existence. Women who were “rundown”, sick, melancholy—say that it has literally transformed their lives. Drinking water this way really amounts to bathing inside, means the speedy relief of all headaches and stomach upsets and all the aches and pains, nervousness, and depression due to sluggish elimination. Results in quickly banishing skin blemishes and sallowness are often amazing. It is very simple—merely drinking a full glass of hot water before breakfast every day. In this you dissolve a teaspoonful of ordinary Condensed Jad Salts to flush or “wash out” naturally from the entire system accumulated wastes, bacteria, and poisons that may cause trouble in other parts of the body.

14. If you want to feel your best, day in and day out, with clear complexion and attractive appearance, remember what drinking a glass of hot water can mean. This scientific habit regularly acts to bathe you inside as you bathe yourself outside. Without the chemical action of harsh drugs. It “washes away” wastes, poisons, and toxins of the stomach and entire system. Results are quick and remarkable. Headaches, skin disorders due to sluggish intestines quickly go—vitality returns the internal bath.

15. A remarkable way has been found to aid women to keep vital and youthful, a method anybody can follow. It clears up a sallow, blemished complexion in an incredibly short time. It restores vitality when you are “rundown”, naturally corrects sluggish elimination with all the ailments that can follow. All you do is to drink a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast with a teaspoonful of ordinary Condensed Jad Salts added to it. This acts to “flush out” the stomach and entire thirty feet of the digestive canal, gets rid of accumulated waste and poisons. Nervousness, upsets, skin disorders due to the “lazy colon” will disappear. You will radiate unsuspected energy and optimism.
16. If you want to be safe against halitosis or bad breath, remember what scientists say about drinking a glass of hot water in the morning.

17. Thousands of women have adopted this internal hygiene. It has banished all complexion troubles and gives them a vivacity and youthful charm.

18. Vitality is renewed.

19. For a lovely velvety skin, scientists today simply urge drinking a glass of hot water in the morning to which you have added a teaspoonful of ordinary Condensed Jad Salts.

20. If your skin is sallow, if you have skin blemishes, remember that this is a fundamental remedy—gets at the cause of the trouble, corrects faulty elimination.

21. The first day, by this Jad method, three to five pounds moisture weight alone are lost. At the end of a week you are as much as seven pounds lighter and feel better than you have for years, for you daily relieve your system of toxins, waste, and accumulated poisons. Soon you are perfect weight, slim, vital, youthfully attractive. Nothing like this has ever been known before. Your doctor will advise it.

22. Your doctor will tell you this works safely.

23. Modern scientific discoveries enable you to get rid of fat today—fast and comfortably, without extra exercise, or three full meals. It means just taking a teaspoonful of Condensed Jad Salts in the morning and making two very small changes in the diet, as explained in the folder in the Condensed Jad Salts package. You eat your fill and take off as much as a pound a day.

24. This method of weight reduction is safe.

25. Feel like a new person. All it takes is a teaspoonful of ordinary Condensed Jad Salts. It works by relieving the system of the poisons and waste matter that follow hearty eating and reduces the excess body moisture that brings on puff, bloat and heaviness.

GUARANTEED TREATMENT AGAINST BALDNESS

No matter what your age. No matter how great your hair loss—whether you suffer from dandruff, oiliness, itching scalp—Pro-Ker is guaranteed to replace every hair that falls from the first moment of use—and promptly to correct the secondary conditions.
We will refund every cent you paid for Pro-Ker if it does not at least retain the amount of hair now on your head. These conditions, purely secondary, yield promptly to the application of Pro-Ker. Stop baldness. Pro-Ker is guaranteed to stop your hair loss from this moment on. Pro-Ker gets at all hair troubles by getting at the cause. Dandruff, thinning hair, oiliness, dryness cannot exist on a healthy scalp. Pro-Ker produces a healthy scalp. Today every man can be assured that he need not get bald. Pro-Ker does for the scalp what milk does for the body. Makes it vital, healthy, strong and healthy hair must grow on a healthy scalp.

THE TRUTH ABOUT HAIR AND HAIR TREATMENTS

There is only one way to protect yourself—KNOWLEDGE. Before you spend another cent on tonics and treatments read the Charles Nessler Theory in the "The end of the Bald Era". You know, of course, of Charles Nessler, recognized by colleges and universities as the founder of modern hair science discoverer of "hair migration."

Pro-Ker means the end of hair troubles. A new hair law by Charles Nessler "Dandruff Cures" Charles Nessler. Pro-Ker based on entirely new principles will promptly relieve dandruff, excess of oil, and itching scalp.

Dandruff actually removes the substance by creating the perfect hair-growing condition. Dandruff never appears on a normal scalp.

If you want abundant, healthy hair start today to use Pro-Ker. "Four months ago—19 weeks to be exact—I started Pro-Ker treatment. New hair started within the first month. Have used only two bottles on a complete bald section and a crop of fuzz is noticeable."

Pro-Ker will encourage nature in the normal function of hair replacement.

Stomach acid, pains, swellings, bad digestion or indigestion, inflammation of the liver, of the kidneys, intestinal catarrh, head pains, sleepiness, bad breath, rheumatism, coughs, bronchitis, eczema, asthma, etc., always have existed but when our ancestors were afflicted by any of these troubles they would seek aid by taking only herbs, and we say they were much healthier than us, is it not true? If our ancestors left us many aches and pains, they also left us many medicinal herbs we may take to fight any of these troubles which afflict us.

A great specialist in herbs is Mr. Giacomo La Guardia, and remember that only at Mr. La Guardia's store we will find herbs adapted for any one of our troubles, and they are the same herbs our ancestors used to use.

DISEASE OF THE STOMACH AND INTESTINE

The Stomach should have special consideration because it is the motive force which gives energy to all the members so that they may be able to exercise that function. Remember that no member can act efficiently without a good functioning of the stomach. It is strange and deplorable to treat such an important organ according to our pleasure. We have a regard for the other organs, giving them adequate rest, but the stomach, which should always be nourished, is completely neglected.

We then suffer the consequences of complicated and constant diseases.

Dispositions are so diverse and it is particularly those of a NERVOUS disposition who are more easily affected. In general there are very few who tolerate modern food without experiencing injury to the health.

The first symptoms of digestive diseases are apparently light. One has a disagreeable sensation in the stomach. Swelling and heaviness in the stomach immediately after the meals still do not seem to point to any disease; pyrosis and acid regurgitations of the stomach are always symptoms of incipient disease.
Take it in time, do not delay a single moment. Today you may be able to prevent the possible harmful consequences of the disease because the stomach is the motor force of the entire organism.

Why not prevent in time? At the first symptoms of disturbance, make immediate use of La Guardia Stomach Tea and Tonic, a combination of herbs, roots, flowers and leaves, selected and gathered in the East Indies, on the Alps of Italy and on the mountains of Sila and Sicily and afterwards subjected to the examination of the most expert professors of botany.

Gas in the stomach, acidity, swelling of the stomach, vertigo, headache, bad breath, coated tongue, constipation, irritation, inflammation, nervousness, fatigue, vomiting, etc.

In addition to the affections mentioned above it is of great efficacy in some forms of kidney and liver disorders, nervous disturbances, backache and is very efficacious for purifying the blood.

If your children suffer with constipation, headache, lack of appetite, indigestion, visceral catarrh * * * this decoction should be taken every evening in the manner specified.

You may eat what you like, not harming in any way the beneficial effect which your stomach derives from these herbs.

We are all subject to the danger of indigestion but we are all able to combat it in only TWO MINUTES by drinking a cup of these beneficial herbs, thus eradicating swellings, acidity, and any disturbance of the stomach.

Return to MOTHER NATURE because nature creates these herbs and she alone can inspire real confidence.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in fact although requested to do so the respondent has furnished no proof of dealers' earnings and profits as represented; kerosene is not a cheap heating oil and cannot be operated more cheaply than coal for the same number of heat units generated; neither is such a heater better or cheaper than city or natural gas; the heater is not given "free" to anyone and the purported demand for it is greatly exaggerated.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

   4. Produces an extreme amount of heat for the least amount of money;
   5. When running full blast costs less than one cent an hour to operate;

0982. Vendor-Advertiser—Medicinal Treatment.—The Master Drug Co., Inc., Omaha, Nebr., vendor-advertiser, is engaged in selling a medicinal treatment offered for numerous ailments, known as "Commanders", and in advertising represented:

You know, friends, if a food does not contain a vitamin content, it should never be taken into the system. The most common non-vitamin foods are sugar, white flour, white rice and macaroni products. Look to some other source for your carbohydrates, proteins and fats. For even the foods containing the greater vitamin content is not sufficient to make up a vitamin deficiency in your system. Lack of vitamins and the results of such a condition may be witnesses on every hand. Folks suffering from rheumatism, arthritis, neuritis, stomach, kidney, and bladder disorders, eye, ear, nose, and throat infection. Those folks who are suffering from high blood pressure, secondary anemia, Bright's disease, who are suffering from constipation and colitis—friends, these conditions are brought on by lack of vitamins in their regular diet. You must have the vitamins or the carbohydrates and proteins and fats and salts will not support life. The difference in vitamins and lack of vitamins is the difference in feeling fit every day, lots of pep, able to enjoy your work and your friends and being sick and draggy all the time. It is next to impossible, friends, to receive sufficient quantities of vitamins from the ordinary run of present day foodstuffs. You must resort to vitamin concentrates. The answer is Commanders, spelled C-O-M-M-A-N-D-E-R-S, because scientists have proved that vitamins activate each other. Therefore, you must take all of the vitamins in sufficient quantity and in a harmonious relationship. That's exactly what you get in Commanders. In one Commander you actually receive vitamins equivalent to many, many pounds of ordinary food. In one Commander there are vitamins equivalent to the vitamins in the following: one quart of milk, 100 loaves of white bread, plus one large spoonful of cod liver oil, one cake of yeast, one egg, one orange, one plate of spinach, and one plate of whole wheat. Vitamins! Pure vitamins in concentrate form and in sufficient quantity, but not only that, in a most harmonious relationship. Not just one or two vitamins.
friends, I mean vitamins A, B, C, D, E, and G. That's exactly what you get in Commanders. Now if you're sick from the common cold, get Commanders and break that cold in record time. You can do it with Commanders. If you can't, Commanders will not cost you one red cent. If you're suffering from constipation, colitis, stomach disorders, or if you're suffering from secondary anemia, get Commanders and save the difference. Remember the price—one dollar, and Commanders are on sale at all of the leading drug stores everywhere. Commanders is spelled C-O-M-M-A-N-D-E-R-S.

Commanders are derived from pure food sources.
Commanders are rich in all six of the known vitamins.
The food value in Commanders has been derived from pure food sources as milk, spinach, eggs, wheat, and fruit.
Every Commander contains all six vitamins in raw, active, and potent form, and in such highly concentrated form that one Commander with each meal aids in the correction of many diseases, and builds our vigor to withstand infection and fatigue.

Today there is one certain way in which we can give our bodies these needed vitamins. That is by taking Commanders.

Every Commander contains the vitamins from the 38 best known sources.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that the said claims and representations of the advertiser are not supported by the evidence submitted.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That Commanders
1. Are derived from pure food sources; or
2. Are "rich" in all six of the known vitamins; or
3. Aid in the correction of many diseases; or
4. Build our vigor to withstand infection and fatigue; or
5. Contain the vitamins from the 38 best known sources;

(b) That Commanders are a competent remedy in the treatment of

5. Eye, ear, nose, and throat infections,
6. High blood pressure,
7. Secondary anemia,
8. Bright's disease,
9. Constipation and colitis, or
10. The common cold.
(c) That the foregoing ailments are "brought on by lack of vitamins in the regular diet", unless duly qualified to indicate only that certain ones are sometimes so caused;

(d) That "in one Commander there are vitamins equivalent to vitamins in the following: one quart of milk, 100 loaves of white bread, plus one large spoon full of cod liver oil, one cake of yeast, one egg, one orange, one plate of spinach, and one plate of whole wheat";

(e) That "you get vitamins A, B, C, D, E, and G" in Commanders in effective amounts;

(h) That to be healthy and normal, one "must resort to vitamin concentrates"; use of such expressions as "up to," "as high as" or any equivalent therewith the words, "In which Best Products Corporation has indicating clearly that the respondent does not own or occupy, save in a limited way, the building pictured. (Oct. 16, 1935.)

It also provides for a copy of free course in credits, collections, slips to issue to each client you sell. This free course was originally written to sell at the high price think of being able to give it free to every one of your customers who install one of your systems. Only three sales daily net you $90 to $180 per week. It should not be long before you approach an income of at least $8,000 to $12,000 a year. I make it possible for capable men to earn $90 or more a week for three sale daily.

Each customer becomes a member of the C. G. A. and gets special collection advice for a whole year without one cent of extra cost.

Rated at $100,000.

Will you accept a dignified position showing these men how to collect the money that is rightfully theirs? The men chosen will represent one of the largest corporations of its kind in America?

A major part of the C. G. A. Systems are installed on trial without investment until the system has paid for itself. No matter how it is sold, however, C. G. A. is guaranteed to prove at least twelve times worth its cost, or the Credit Guaranty Association makes good. Success comes to you easily with C. G. A. and without high pressure selling, as you do not ask your prospect to risk a penny as cash, and because you sell nothing on profits. You cannot have a single failure, C. G. A. cannot fail. It must make good or we will.

A single sale per day can net you $72 clear profit every week. If the average man should easily make two to five installations a day, earning from $144 to $360 a week there is literally no end to this tremendous business and its profits for you.

Sales men are making regular incomes of up to $120, and more weekly.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that the Commission is advised by its medical authorities that while said preparation may have some effect in the relief of itching and the removal of crusts and scales associated with eczema, it is not a competent remedy for all forms of that ailment; and although it may have some influence as an antiseptic against superficial ringworm fungi, the curative claims for athlete’s foot are not deemed justified by the tests submitted; furthermore it would have no curative value in the treatment of piles or pimples.

I am so well pleased with my violin that I must write and tell you. My friends are all astonished when I tell them that I got it free from the Chicago Correspondence School of Music.

How many of you folks out there would like to be able to play a fiddle, guitar, mandolin, five-string banjo, tenor banjo, or a Hawaiian-style guitar? Well, in just a few minutes I'm going to tell you how you can now easily and quickly learn to play any of these instruments right at home. At the head of the faculty of the Chicago Correspondence School of Music is a virtuoso of outstanding genius, Professor Albert H. MacConnell, who has devoted the past twenty years of his life to teaching. Under his masterful guidance you cannot fail to learn with reasonable practice of your lessons.

For having perfected his famous inductive system of violin study and his technique of the first position, Professor MacConnell is praised by the whole world of music. Formerly Director of the Band and Orchestra Department of Baker University and Director of the Arcadia School of Music of Des Moines, Iowa, Professor MacConnell later was appointed Director of Music at the Englewood Conservatory of Music in Chicago. Today, as Dean of the Chicago Correspondence School of Music, he is extending to thousands the benefits of new study, talent, and his experience.

This is one of the great teachers whose personal advice, counsel, and help are yours until you have completed the last lesson of your course. Compare the advantages of learning under masters who give to each and every pupil personal individual attention.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated, and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that the instruments furnished by respondent with its correspondence course in music are not such as are used by professional musicians.
nor are they given away FREE; nor is said course offered at a special price if applicant "acts at once"; nor is said course sent on a 5 days' trial without applicant sending a penny of his money; nor do students receive the closest personal attention and supervision of their study of said course under a master or masters in the musical profession "praised by the whole world."

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

"83 MEN IN 100
Vote for TOASTED MALT flavor

Is there a hot cereal that men really like? And like to have it for breakfast regularly? An official of a great University determined to find out. He arranged to have served at the University tables a delicious new cereal called 2 Stipulations 01030, 01031, 01032, and 01033 not released.

Malt-O-Meal. Then asked the men who tried it to vote. 83 in 100 said they like its toasted malt flavor, and furthermore, liked it better than any other hot cereal they had ever tasted.

An official at a great University asked over 1,000 men which hot cereal they liked best for breakfast, and 83 in 100 voted Malt-O-Meal their favorite.

One package of Malt-O-Meal cooks up to 14 pounds of food, or the equal in cereals. Hence, it saves $1.75 or more every time you buy and use a package.

A football coach at a great University has popularized among college athletes what is probably the first hot cereal that ever appealed to men in a big way—a cereal called Malt-O-Meal. He served this new type of breakfast food first at his training tables because it is a great energy food. Repairs the tired tissues of the muscles, and the squads went for it almost to a man. Yes, voted it their favorite. Preferred it to seven other brands that had been served.

Because it contains the concentrated value of wheat, one package of Malt-O-Meal cooks up to 14 pounds of food.

The cereal that leading colleges serve to football players at the training tables.

Malt-O-Meal . . . supplies the body a substance that builds up the muscles. That renews them. Gives the whole body increased muscular energy.

Malt-O-Meal . . . supplies the body a substance that goes right to the muscles and renews them.

Malt-O-Meal . . . supplies the muscles a substance that renews them—keeps them from tiring out.

Every one of your boys and girls listening in has a chance to develop alert minds and strong bodies by eating Malt-O-Meal.

Malt-O-Meal . . . Served at the training tables of leading colleges to the football players.

Malt-O-Meal is approved as an energy food by the world's largest organization of doctors.

9 men in 10 like Malt-O-Meal.

By actual vote the players at leading colleges and high schools said they like Malt-O-Meal better than any other hot cereal.

A noted football coach asked 1,000 players on different teams, "which hot breakfast food do you like best?" And more, yes, more players voted for Malt-O-Meal than for any other.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated, and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that according to medical opinion rendered the Commission, Malt-O-Meal does not possess energizing or health-giving properties capable of building up or renewing muscles; nor does its increase in bulk in cooking result in unusual economic or food value, such increase being merely caused by the water in which it is cooked, as in the case of all cooked cereals; furthermore, the evidence submitted does not sustain the specific claims made as to the popularity of this product.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:
(a) That 83 men in 100 prefer Malt-O-Meal to any other hot cereal they had ever tasted;
(b) That an official of a great University asked over 1,000 men which hot cereal they like best for breakfast and 83 in 100 voted Malt-O-Meal their favorite;
(c) That Malt-O-Meal has been voted the favorite of all-hot cereals by the athletes of leading high schools and colleges;
(d) That Malt-O-Meal possesses special qualities for giving energy or health; unless such representations specify that Malt-O-Meal “aids” in giving energy or health;
(e) That Malt-O-Meal will build and renew muscles; unless such representations specify that Malt-O-Meal “aids” in building and renewing muscles;
(f) That Malt-O-Meal, alone, will give boys and girls a chance to develop alert minds and strong bodies;
(g) That Malt-O-Meal is approved as an energy food by the world’s largest organization of doctors;
(h) That 9 men in 10 like Malt-O-Meal.
(i) That Malt-O-Meal’s increase of bulk in cooking results in unusual economic or food value;
and from making any other claims or assertions of like import, unless substantiated by fact.
The respondent wishes to reserve the right to have tests of the palatability and popularity of Malt-O-Meal made by independent and unbiased investigators, and after having the results and methods used in making these tests sworn to by Certified Public Accountants or other competent investigating organizations, to publish the results of such tests in its advertising.
The respondent reserves the right to state the following specific results of an investigation on the taste preference of certain football players, as follows:

When a group of prominent athletic coaches asked 440 high school and college men which hot cereal they especially enjoyed for its flavor 354 or 80% named Malt-O-Meal.

The respondent assumes all responsibility for any and all representations appearing in testimonials published by it and stipulates and agrees that it will not publish or cause to be published any testimonial containing any representation contrary to the foregoing agreement. (Dec. 23, 1935.)

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that according to medical opinion rendered the Commission, the product advertised will not do the things claimed for it; that it is really not a “tonic.”

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:
(a) That Lone Wolf Hair Tonic—

- Can you imagine anyone imbued with a spirit of kindness toward others when he, himself, is be-deviled by indigestion and a sluggish system. Its asking too much of human nature to think so. No, you've got to be rid of the poisons that's in your body before you can know the thrill of real kindness in your heart;
- Stop eating the de-mineralized and devitalized groceries that are all too plentiful nowadays. Turn to fruits, vegetables, milk, cheese and nut meats * * * eat more salads and less meat. - The natural fragrant herb medicine that is so helpful to the entire digestive tract.
- Take a small amount on the tip of your tongue, wash them down with a little water, and you’re on the way to feeling better.

Perhaps it is the simple nature of these crushed herbs * * * or maybe the old belief that a nice tasting medicine can't be good * * * but whatever it is, I have had scores of folks tell me they were agreeably surprised how quickly effective CRUSHED HERBS are.

Well, said one man who stopped in the store a few days ago; "my former acquaintance with herbs led me to expect something that tasted bitter and nasty.
So when I found how pleasant Vikonite CRUSHED HERBS were I got suspicious. I felt sure it wouldn't help me. But it did. It helped me a lot and what is more I KNOW what I am taking, and I don't need to hesitate to take it whenever my digestion is a bit off."

It's not only good health policy but good economy  * * to take Vikonite CRUSHED HERBS.

The very best sort of intestinal medicine  * * like the best sort of food  * * is NATURAL and a medicine that you know thoroughly. Just what does that mean? It means that the medicine you take into your mouth should be an open book  * * you should know what you are taking and WHY! You DO know when you take Vikonite CRUSHED HERBS.

A very little bit of Agar-Agar grows amazingly when we have taken it, and thereby induces natural, normal intestinal activity.

Is your skin sallow or pasty looking? Are there little blotches beneath the surface? Do the whites of your eyes look cloudy? Are you inclined to yawn, stretch, and wish you could sleep instead of pursue your duties? Then by all means get after the pent-up systematic poisons which no doubt are at the root of this condition. And if you really need and must take a medicine  * * let it be a natural medicine  * * a medicine composed of nature's own herbs  * a medicine of which you can truly say: "I Know what I am taking!"

The tendency of the mixture is to end sluggishness, excess body wastes which are largely responsible for the appearance of ugly skin sallowness, pastiness and blemishes. These same wastes make you feel loggy and tired and wretched even on these fine spring days. Get rid of them. Start today with Crushed Herbs and see how wonderful you feel after only a short course of this splendid stomach mixture. You'll probably wonder what became of those dull, headachy hours which used to plague you after meals  * * especially heavy meals. You'll delight in the new spring and energy in your stride when you go out doors, and the renewed appreciation you feel for the beauties of this lovely season. But the best of all you'll treasure the improvement in your complexion, once Crushed Herbs have taken care of those excess poisons.

Power your tired body with amazing new food! At last! Science brings you this vital element of life  * * works wonders for nervous tired run down people. Read the amazing story of lecithin, energizing ingredient of all living tissue.

Lecithin, the most powerful source of food energy known to science.

The builder, the energizer of all living organisms.

Now a great European discovery makes it available for your daily use. For a long time diet authorities recognized phosphorous as the essential nerve food. This made it important because the nerves control the activities of every bodily organ and process. Every one knows that folks with a great reserve of nerve force are seldom ill, and that they retain their good looks, smooth skin and vigorous activity for years. It is the man or woman who has weakened nerves who ages fast, whose skin gets a pasty, sallow color, and on whose face are lines that add immeasurably to the years. But the trouble with this element phosphorous was that all known forms were either unfit for use, or they appeared in foods where assimilation was very slow. Then, suddenly out of a clear sky, a new form of phosphorous was found — a form that was so quickly assimilated by the hungry system that results followed very rapidly. This form was called Lecithin, and it was found in almost every kind of animal and plant cell — eggs, sperm, roe, and seeds. Needless to say, Lecithin was received with enthusiasm by thousands, and so successful were results in numerous cases of frazzled, over-wrought nerves that some scientists predicted it would soon wipe out aggravating cases of neurasthenia, or nervous breakdown. In a measure, this Lecithin virtue has prompted hundreds to try Nu-Vitolyn—the original lecithin food beverage — and often without knowing their good fortune, these folks received doubly rapid benefits. Why? Well, they received the lecithin—and other splendid mineral benefits of Nu-Vitolyn itself.

Gain a Shapely, Stunning Figure. — Do you want to add pounds of firm rounded flesh—to fill out female curves to gorgeous beauty? You will be amazed how quickly Nu-Vitolyn builds up your figure to lovely contours.

Builds Sturdy, Healthy Children.

Nu-Vitolyn adds to your daily diet an enriched supply of the most perfect food known.

An amazing Source of Energy.

Well, my friends, I tell you that if you want to erase tell-tale nervous lines from your face that make you look years older, try thoroughly this Nu-Vitolyn feeding.

Make a definite three weeks' test—just as hundreds of other happy people have at my suggestion, and I'll wager that at the end of that time you'll look much younger, you'll feel so much more active and cheerful that your friends will wonder at the improvement.

You simply cannot receive so much super-nourishment—so generous a helping of high-power nerve food without showing its benefits.

Just another thought: Your children should be given Nu-Vitolyn, too — especially if they have a tendency to shy away from milk. The milk taste sometimes looses its attraction for youngsters, but just add Nu-Vitolyn and you'll find them taking it in gulps and coming back for more.

I have seen whole families delighted over the improved health and beauty which Nu-Vitolyn gave them, and I'd enjoy having you join the happy throng.

WOMEN! DELAYED?

When Nature fails use safe reliable Menstrua.
So powerful Positively Forces Remarkably Speedy Results in many most stubborn unnatural delays, without pain, harm, or inconvenience.
Type Doctors Prefer.
Two Remarkable Products.—To bring Modern Woman Her Freedom at last—from the troublesome conditions these wonderful products are designed to insure against and correct.
Menstrua—For Ending Delayed Menstruation.
Marvelous Menstrua! The Ultra-Modern Triumph of Medical Science!
When nature fails, use safe, reliable Menstrual Designed to Powerfully and Positively Force Remarkably Speedy Results—without pain, harm, or inconvenience—in many of the most Stubborn Delays arising from the usual unnatural causes.

Amazingly Quick Acting! Pills and tablets are so hard they may take many hours to dissolve in the body, and sometimes they pass out of the body without dissolving and therefore have no effect whatsoever. Menstrua, however, is different! Produced by a wonderful scientific invention, it has usually dissolved in the body and entered the blood stream within ten minutes after taking. It is especially designed to bring desired results where ordinary regulators fail.

Because it is more quickly assimilated by the body, Menstrua is a Marvelous Monthly Regulator of a type greatly favored by physicians.
Renowned Physicians and Scientists recommend the pure vegetable ingredients contained in Menstrua for their effectiveness in above mentioned menstrual delays, irregularities, pain, and suppression.

Menstrua, Though Extremely Powerful in Forcing Results, is Absolutely Safe, acts without pain, and leaves no bad after effects.

However, you can be assured there is nothing that will be quicker acting than Menstrua. As a general rule, the longer the suppression has existed, the longer it may be necessary to take Menstrua before Nature reacts in bringing about the flow. But at that Menstrua is Far Quicker than inferior products!

Hygeen—For Antiseptic Safeguarding in Feminine Hygiene.

Hygeen Tablets—Deemed by Oxford University Physician’s Tests as the Safest, Most Effective, Feminine Hygiene Product Known!

In accordance with a determination to give its customers the Best, The Purity Products Company is proud to present to American Womanhood its Hygeen Tablets, for Feminine Hygiene. They are designed for Dependable Yet Safe Antisepsia in absolutely safeguarding against inherent, innate, nonextraneous, infectious germ or bacteriological life in uterine and vaginal discharges and secretions in the vaginal canal.

Some time ago a group of prominent English physicians, thoroughly alarmed at the increasing variety and nature of various feminine hygiene products offered to the public—set about to determine which one was the safest and most effective.

These physicians realized that for a product to be merely ineffective was dangerous enough, when women depend on sterile sanitation. But for a product to be harsh, toxic, poisonous, and injurious to the delicate tissues, they considered to be of alarming danger!

So this group of English Physicians under the auspices of the English Medical Society, had the Oxford University, Department of Anatomy and Zoology, determine under Dr. John R. Baker—which was the safest and most dependable antiseptic product for women to use in feminine hygiene.
The Result of This Most Thorough Investigation Revealed This Same Hygeen Tablet Holds First Place Among All the Products Investigated.

What a Feminine Hygiene Product Should Be—At the outset these English Physicians laid down a set of ideal conditions that an ideal feminine hygiene product must possess.

In the vagina, close to the mouth of the womb, it quickly dissolves into a substantial Germ Destroying Foam—which expands, Creeps, Pushes, by effervescence, its terrific yet harmless germ destruction into every tiny fold and crevice where even douches so often fail to reach.

Directions.—Simply insert a genuine Hygeen Tablet close to the womb, and forget it. A bulge at one side and depression at the other side of the tablet make insertion by the tip of the finger easy. Upon contacting the natural moisture of the vagina, the tablet changes into a powerful germ destroying foam which remains active for many hours to sterilize every vestige of infectious uterine secretions and discharges in the vagina. After which the foam can be douched out with water. Being a rather dry foam it remains within the vagina. It is not felt nor does it interfere with any act, function, or fecunding of female nature.

The Astounding Wonder of Hygeen Tablets! They have 1½ times the germ destroying power of carbolic acid per Rideal & Walker Phenol Coefficiency Test—yet are as harmless as milk to the delicate tissues and membranes! So harmless that a solution of the tablet is used to wash the eyes of new-born babies in a German Maternity Hospital. If accidentally swallowed by a child no harm can result.

European Physicians and Surgeons have given this tablet their printed and enthusiastic endorsement!

For Hygeen Tablets are also a deodorant for use after menstruation. Many a serious condition can arise from imperfect feminine hygiene, such as suppurations, (discharges), leucorrhoea, etc. By killing germ life with Hygeen Tablets, European Physicians testify to these and other discharges disappearing.

Three Other Products Did No Good—"I ordered from three different places and they were no good. Then I ordered yours and it did the work. I never had to go to bed and never had any pains."

A Doctor Told Me it Was Good—"Your remedy is the best. A doctor told me it was good. I find it fine and the best." Mrs. O. W. (Ill.)

Delayed Two Months, Flow Started in Nine Hours.—"Last month I was relieved after a delay of two months, in nine hours, and I felt so much better. Please mail me another package for enclosed money." Mrs. G. M. (Ill.).

My Monthly Flow Started—"One hour after I mailed my order for a second box, my monthly flow started. I shall certainly pass a good word to my friends regarding your treatment, and shall continue to use it myself in the future."

Mrs. F. M. (N. Y.).

I Had Quite A Display—"After taking only six doses I had quite a display. Will be in a position to recommend to friends in the future." Mrs. E. Y. (Ill.).

To correct these conditions, the symptoms of which are so common—Acid Stomach, Gas in Stomach, Indigestion, Distress from Overeating, Heartburn, "Sour Stomach", Bloating, Belching, Sleepless Nights, and even Constipation—I compounded a special tablet formula to which I have given my own name. Personal experience in my own wide practice, which comes from every walk of life—from the day-laborer to business executives and stars of the stage and screen—proved how effective my special tablet formula is in bringing relief to even severe and chronic cases of Stomach Distress caused by hyperacidity, which is so common to us all.

I took but one bottle of Dr. W. B. Mayo’s Tablets, and they certainly put me back in my old form again. I’ve gained ten pounds and feel like a million.

I decided to at least give your Tablets a trial. You cannot imagine my delight when they afforded me immediate relief after my first treatment.

Here is health, comfort, relief from pain, and the full joy of life calling to you.

Sore and Inflamed Stomach-Bowels caused by overacidity, constipation, gas pains Relieved Within 15 Days. A great discovery by this well-known physician who has now perfected a special tablet formula that gives quick and positive relief from stomach pain.

I am a man 74 years old, have suffered the past seven years from what the doctors told me was stomach ulcers. Part of the time I suffered excruciating pains and had two hemorrhages. I saw your ad in a magazine and wrote you for a sample, which helped me so much. I ordered a $5.00 treatment and after using about half of the treatment the pains have all left me, and I can eat the things I like without any discomfort.

I tried your tablets and am taking this liberty to tell you that I had immediate relief and I feel like telling the world that your tablets are the only thing that has helped definitely.

I received the tablets on the fifth. I have taken them fifteen days, and they have almost completely healed the soreness in my stomach.

Your most amazing tablets have given me immediate relief and I sincerely recommend them.

I might say that I have taken numerous remedies and after trying your tablets I found immediate relief.

After taking a few of your tablets I was amazed at the immediate relief obtained.

I know how many try first this remedy and then that one in search of relief, only to meet with failure and become more skeptical. The more skeptical you are, the more I welcome this opportunity to bring you relief.

Results from Mayo Tablets are not a question of waiting many months—relief usually begins to come soon after you start taking the tablets.

The sooner you start taking Mayo Tablets, the sooner you will start to enjoy relief. Stomach ailments, unless they are taken care of, usually continue to get worse. They often lead to dangerous complications, added pain and suffering. You should not delay another day.

They do not contain injurious drugs that merely deaden pain but are compounded from the purest and finest ingredients that help you and help nature correct the cause of your trouble.

Points the way to permanent and positive relief.

In Mayo Tablets you will find welcome relief, from a scientific treatment that goes to the root of the stomach trouble and eliminates the cause. Harsh cathartics and the usual run of pills only give temporary relief. They may stop discomfort, but they do not permanently relieve.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated, and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that according to medical opinion rendered the Commission this product is not an adequate remedy for the treatment of stomach

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated, and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that there is no clear indication that the furniture advertised is used furniture and the amount of saving represented is based upon the difference between the price of new furniture and sale price of the used furniture.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated, and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that according to scientific opinion rendered the Commission the device does not eliminate outside aerial, produce better tone, more selectivity, greater volume, and does not trap static or eliminate interference, and will not work on all types of radio.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

01102. Vendor-Advertiser—Effervescent Tablets.—C-T-C Corporation, successor to The Haley M-O Co., Jersey City, N. J., vendor-advertiser, is engaged in selling Haley's C-T-C, offered as a treatment for colds and other ailments, and in advertising represented:

Haley's C-T-C, a remarkable new product for correcting over-acidity of the blood.
Doctors will tell you that most colds can be greatly relieved and more quickly cleared up by correcting an acid condition. Haley's C-T-C, meaning Citrates, Tartrates, and Carbonates, will do this quickly and safely. It is an effervescent alkalinizer which reaches the cause of the cold by neutralizing the acid in both your blood and your stomach. You will find it as pleasant to take as a glass of mineral water and an ideal corrective when laxatives are not required.

Too much eating, smoking or too little sleep results in an acid condition which in turn is the cause of most simple colds, headaches, sour stomach, or general tired run-down feeling. Keep fit with Haley's C-T-C.

Many women in their desire for slim hips and youthful figures have discovered that most reducing diets cause acids in blood, acids that make you feel tired and dull and weaken your system. Fortunately they too have found that Haley's C-T-C successfully counteracts this distressing acid condition. Just C-T-C and a glass of water for a clear head and healthful alkalinity.

Most common colds are accompanied by acidity causing headaches and dull lifelessness. Haley's C-T-C keeps the system alkaline, free from this excessive acidity. Also many have found Haley's C-T-C invaluable the morning after for clearing stuffy heads.

In Haley's C-T-C I have at last found and become acquainted with a preparation that will serve as an alkalinizer and not at the same time act as a laxative * * * the acid condition was corrected by C-T-C which gradually eased away the spells of irritation, biliousness and mental and physical discomfort.

Haley's C-T-C is a non-laxative corrective for over-acidity.

Acidity usually accompanies any weakened condition of the system. That is why Haley's C-T-C is of such benefit to you when you are run down by a cold, loss of sleep or reducing * * * is a perfect alkalinizer for correcting an acid condition.

Haley's C-T-C * * * not only relieves excess stomach acids, but acid in the blood as well.

Haley's C-T-C to prevent as well as correct simple headaches, colds, sour stomach, run-down feeling and lack of pep in the morning caused by an excessive acid in the blood as well as stomach which affects the entire system.

The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that according to medical opinions rendered the Commission, said product will not correct the conditions indicated.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That C-T-C will correct over-acidity in the blood or will have an appreciable effect upon the alkaline reserve of the blood;

(b) That C-T-C is a competent and complete remedy for colds;

(c) That C-T-C will keep the system alkaline and free from acidity;
(d) That C-T-C will prevent or correct simple headache, sour stomach, run-down feeling and lack of pep in the morning caused by excessive acid in the blood, or by any condition other than gastric hyperacidity;

(e) That reducing diets cause acidity and that C-T-C will counteract or remedy such acid conditions;

and from making any other claims or assertions of like import.

01103. Vendor-Advertiser-Medicinal Preparation.—E. W. Craighill and W. E. Brunson, copartners trading as The Zulvar Co., Hollywood, Calif., vendorAdvertiser, is engaged in selling Zulvar, for rheumatism, and in advertising represented:

Try Zulvar entirely at my own risk.

Zulvar has relieved arthritis, neuritis, and rheumatism suffering for others.

* * * People who once suffered as perhaps you are now and have experienced their first genuine relief, after using Zulvar.

It is used * * * as a tonic.

Zulvar not only quickly relieves immediate suffering but combats the trouble at its source * * * Tends to bring you definite and lasting relief and protection from recurring attacks of rheumatic conditions.

It contains no drugs.

Many physicians recommend Zulvar.

My special 30-day, no risk, trial offer * * * my money-back guarantee protects you * * * I am willing to send you a full 30-day treatment with the understanding that it does not cost you one penny, unless you are benefited. You are the sole judge. Send in your order right now * * * After receiving the Zulvar, use it for thirty days as per directions, and if you are not satisfied with the results, just return the empty bottles and in accordance with my printed money-back guarantee I will refund every cent of your money by return mail.

As long as some benefit is accomplished, you will be encouraged to continue the treatment until you are completely free of the ailment.

You cannot expect Zulvar to entirely correct your condition in just thirty days. Give Zulvar a fair chance by continuing to take the two baths a week and use the drinking water according to directions.

Do not skip a single treatment of either the Zulvar baths or the drinking water. When once you start, the good work should not be stopped or even delayed. It only retards your recovery.

The physician in charge of my case pronounced my trouble as arthritis. After treatments from local physicians and spending seven weeks in the hospital with no beneficial results, and suffering the loss of some seventy pounds in ten weeks, I was brought home very weak and my right leg devoid of any feeling, also causing pains throughout my body. My last local physician returned in January, suggested that I try Zulvar, both internally and also as a bath. After using it some eight weeks I not only regained the use of my limb, discarded my crutch, but was able to drive my car and get about most satisfactorily.

I received an injury by falling. Results of which developed in ostero-arthritis of the spine and very painful. I could not sleep on account of pain, and finally my nerves went to pieces. I heard of Zulvar and bought Zulvar. I took it and used it according to directions in less than a month I feel like a new person.

I suffered with neuritis. I was finally told of the marvelous results of Zulvar and I secured several bottles and immediately took daily baths. After a week I began to sleep in three weeks I had no pain day or night since that time I have had no recurrence of the pain, do not find any need of Zulvar for that purpose, however, when I am quite fatigued I enjoy a Zulvar bath for it revives one as nothing else can do.

Thirty-five years ago I was pronounced an incurable, chronic rheumatic case. I began using Zulvar treatments several years ago and have not been without it since. At the present time I consider myself a normal healthy man. For the last three years I have not suffered any of the agonizing pains, nor constant colds so common to my previous rheumatic condition.

Zulvar has not only been instrumental in helping to restore health to sufferers from arthritis, neuritis, rheumatism, but it has also been a vital factor in the treatment of skin diseases. Among such diseases are acne, athlete's foot, eczema, psoriasis, and other less painful and troublesome diseases of the skin.

After having weeping eczema for over a year on my feet the doctor told me I could not be cured. Your agent came to my house and left me three bottles of Zulvar and I used it constantly on my feet, and took it, too. In four weeks I was cured.

After a hot day at the beach, over-exposure to the rays of the sun, a warm Zulvar bath is a most effective way of preventing serious sun burn.

Hot Zulvar packs applied to boils have been most efficient in drawing the poisons to the surface and quickly removing these most violent skin eruptions.

I purchased your three-months' treatment of Zulvar for my husband. His stomach does not trouble him any more his neuritis has gone and his athlete's feet are all healed and well.

By using Zulvar you supply nature with a vital element necessary to correct the condition which causes the agonizing and disheartening despair that accompanies such disorders as arthritis, neuritis, rheumatism, and many skin diseases.

Trial sent free If you are suffering agonizing pains, write today for free trial of Zulvar and full information The Zulvar Company.

01104. Vendor-Advertiser—Medicinal Preparation.—Percalx, Inc., Burley, Idaho, vendor-advertiser, is engaged in selling a preparation recommended for the treatment of Hay Fever, Asthma, chronic colds and sinus infections, known as Percalx, and in advertising represented:

This new method of developing resistance to Hay Fever grows out of the fact that in a large number of cases there seems to be a definite connection between Hay Fever attacks, and a deficiency of Calcium in the system. When this Deficiency Is Overcome, the Body Develops Its Own Natural Resistance to Asthma, Hay Fever and Chronic Colds. This new method therefore is simply the restoration of needed calcium to the system. This is made possible by Percalx Build-Up Units. Percalx is a white, tasteless, odorless form of concentrated calcium.

Build up your system now. Prevent or ease asthma attacks later.
Thus came this great discovery which has astounded the medical profession, relieving thousands of sufferers from Asthma, Sinus Infections, Chronic Colds, and Hay Fever.

Relief for 9 out of 10 who have Hay Fever, Asthma, Chronic Colds, or Sinus Infection by means of a marvelous new discovery which overcomes Calcium Deficiency.

Percalx is the amazing calcium concentrate recently discovered which is easily absorbed by the body and makes it possible to multiply by 4 times the daily intake of calcium, thereby correcting calcium deficiency;

Percalx should be looked upon more as a food than a medicine. It supplies, stimulates and hastens the absorption of calcium which the body requires—then Nature effects the relief or cure by giving the body normal resistance;

Two summers ago I took the Percalx treatment and after taking it for eight days I began getting relief. I have had permanent relief from hay fever through the Percalx treatment;

Although my sinus and head cold trouble is of long standing and very persistent, I have had remarkable results from Percalx;

For more than twenty-five years I have suffered from hay fever. It later also manifested itself in a form of eczema. I began taking Percalx, and upon the completion of the treatment I have had no hay fever and my skin has cleared up entirely. I have obtained complete relief without changing climate or living conditions;

I suffered from infection of the ethmoids, and I want to express to you the fine results I obtained through Percalx. Ever since last autumn and all winter I kept catching cold, one right after another. This was followed this spring by an infection of the ethmoids. Within 10 days or two weeks, after commencing to take Percalx, I obtained almost instant relief. I did not have much faith in Percalx before I began taking it, but I have plenty now. It is truly a wonderful preparation;

For the First Time Doctors Now Know That It Is These People, Deficient in Calcium, Who Usually Suffer from Asthma, Chronic Colds, Sinus Infections, and Hay Fever;

In some mysterious way, it fortifies the body. Resistance to attacks of asthma increases. Sometimes the results come with startling suddenness. Other times this resistance develops over a period of time—slowly but surely;

Already thousands of people have secured lasting relief, after suffering a lifetime from this scourge, after futilely trying dozens of different "remedies" or "cures", after spending hundred of dollars on doctor's bills.

In a stipulation filed and approved by the Federal Trade Commission this vendor-advertiser admits making such representations and specifically stipulates and agrees in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That Percalx—

1. Develops resistance to hay fever or colds; or
2. Builds up the system; or
3. Prevents or eases asthma attacks; or
4. Increases resistance to attacks of asthma; or
5. Gives lasting or permanent relief;
(b) That persons, deficient in calcium, usually suffer from asthma, chronic colds, sinus infections, or hay fever;

(c) That Percalx affords almost instant relief after being taken for ten days;

(d) That Percalx "should be looked upon more as a food than a medicine";

(e) That Percalx makes it possible to multiply by 4 times the daily intake of calcium;

(f) That Percalx has relieved thousands of sufferers from asthma, sinus infections, chronic colds, and hay fever, or affords relief to 9 out of 10 who suffer from these ailments;

(g) That there is a definite connection between hay fever attacks and a deficiency of calcium;

(h) That Percalx has afforded, or will afford, relief in cases where other remedies or cures have failed, or where treatment by physicians has been unsuccessful;

(i) That Percalx is an effective treatment or remedy for eczema or infection of the ethmoids;

(j) By direct statement or reasonable implication that there is a deficiency of calcium in the average diet, and from making any other claims or assertions of like import.

01107. Vendor-Advertiser—Massage Device.—James Brown, an individual, doing business under the trade name of Prostaid-National, Marshall, Mich., vendor-advertiser, is engaged in selling Prostaid, offered as a prostatic massage device, and in advertising represented:

Your prostate, is it weak, inflamed or enlarged? Strengthen and invigorate this vital gland by prostatic massage.

Your prostate gland! Is it strong, healthy and vigorous? Are all the forces and functions of this vitally important gland in healthful and harmonious accord? Or is it weak, congested, and painful and you feel distress in many ways, such as lack of pep, lame or weak back, pains in the legs, feet and sides; dull, dead feeling and soreness in the pelvis and groins, symptoms of which appear to be sciatica, rheumatism, lumbago, kidney or bladder trouble? Do you know these are signs of prostate trouble and that the seat and source of prostate trouble is all in One central spot, easily reached and which can be covered by a silver dollar?

* * * Take this man to man letter as your introduction to a new, direct, and Drugless treatment for relief from many of the troubles and weaknesses that most men past forty, experience as a result of weak, congested, or enlarged prostate gland.

The enclosed matter shows how the prostate gland controls its allied functions; and the easy, sensible Spot-Reaching manner in which direct prostate massage may change your weakness into prostate strength and vitality.

My plain proposition is just exactly this; I want to prove to You, absolutely and conclusively in the privacy of your room, that prostatic massage is the Right treatment for prostatic weakness and congestion; and that Prostaid actually massages, awakens and invigorates the prostate gland and seminal vesicles.

If you want prostatic strength and vigor and absolute and personal proof in ten minutes that you may look, feel and Act ten years younger, send for your Prostaid today.

And in further contrast to medicines, can’t you safely conclude that if Prostaid delivers All its action and effectiveness to the prostate, right where it is needed, Prostaid is in reality 100% effective and efficient?

Prostaid is a Direct method of treatment that goes to its task like an arrow to its mark.

Every pressure of the hand bulb forces out the old, inactive circulation and stimulates the secretive ducts. When the hand bulb pressure is released, new blood comes into the prostate—and the continued pressure and release of the hand bulb accomplishes the massage of the prostate gland.

Yet, prostatic massage is and for years has been, a standard and reliable remedy for prostatic weakness and inactivity.
Prostaid is an honest method of treatment, fairly and honestly represented and offered to men who want prostatic health and strength. We expect it to prove itself to you as it has to thousands of other men. Guaranteed to last and give you good service for life.

The special and direct effectiveness of Prostaid is due to three distinctive features in its construction and design:

1. The Length of the pipe itself, it really reaches the Spot—the vitally important nerve centers at the Top of the prostate gland, as well as the seminal vesicles.

2. The Size and Shape of the pipe, making it easy and pleasant to insert. (Prostaid has been used with benefit and success as a non-rigid rectal dilator in many forms of piles.)

3. An auxiliary Air Vent near the top of the pipe, which allows smooth, even inflation and recession of the massaging air cushion.

No other instrument combines all these three vitally important features which are necessary for successful prostatic massage.

Now then; when pressure is applied against the prostate, the same thing happens as when you apply pressure to a wet sponge; the excess fluid is pressed out of it.

And a weakened, inactive, congested prostate, under proper massage and pressure, is relieved of its congestion of fluids—the tiny ducts and channels are cleansed and emptied. As the hand bulb pressure is released, new circulation flows into the gland; and the result of a series of proper prostatic massages is an awakened, strengthened, and invigorated prostate.

Treat yourself at home.

Prostaid is an honest treatment, fairly and honestly described and represented, and honestly offered to men who stand in need of prostatic health and strength.

Use Prostaid—and learn what other men have learned about this new and better way of regaining prostatic vigor and vitality through this easy, home method of air-cushioned prostatic massage that means action and results that you can feel and enjoy.

Nowadays the accepted method of toning and vitalizing the prostate is prostatic massage. And just because I know that Prostaid really reaches and massages the prostate gland—and furthermore because so many men have written good reports after using it, I am convinced that in the majority of cases of prostatic weakness, inactivity, or enlargement, Prostaid will prove helpful and beneficial.

Good doctors and specialists are using Prostaid instead of the finger method for the simple reason that Prostaid reaches the Spot at the Top of the prostate gland, which cannot always be reached by the finger method.

Now, then, if you agree that a strong, healthy, vigorous prostate gland is worth the slight effort you may make to treat Yourself in the privacy of your room and at your convenience when and where you wish (using Prostaid is as easy as combing your hair), I ask you to try Prostaid.

Consider the prostate as the central powerhouse of pelvic energy and you will know why congestion or weakness of this gland reduces your vital force. Proper prostatic massage relieves this congestion, cleanses the ducts and channels, and stimulates the controlling nerve centers. No other treatment reaches the prostate gland exactly the same as prostatic massage.

If you now have frequent or regular prostatic massage, Prostaid will appeal to you as an economical and convenient means of self-treatment. If you never have had prostatic massage, learn from the enclosed matter the definite points of superiority of massage over drug or medical treatments; and how this direct spot reaching the Spot Touching Prostaid applies to the relief of prostatic weakness, congestion, and inflammation.
The Federal Trade Commission, from an investigation made, has reason to believe that the foregoing statements are incorrect, exaggerated and misleading, having the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers to the injury of competitors, in that, according to scientific opinion rendered the Commission, respondent's device is ineffectual as a method of prostatic massage and is capable of producing harmful effects in some cases.

The prevention of Athlete's Foot by French's Foot Powder FFP No. 22.

The treatment of this irritating condition can be divided into two classes: The old and unsatisfactory method and the new, modern, and satisfactory method by the use of FFP No. 22. For years numerous preparations have been presented to the public for the cure of this intensely irritating condition; * * * some of these preparations would actually cure the infection of the feet, but they failed to keep the feet cured because they failed to prevent reinfection of the feet as soon as the treatment was stopped.

French's foot powder No. 22—the new, modern, and scientific treatment for "Athlete's Foot" has solved this problem.

After a great deal of study and investigation it was discovered that the reason why the feet did not remain cured was because the feet were re-infected as soon as they were put into the infected footwear * * * as soon as this discovery was made, the problem presented itself to destroy the germs in the footwear without injuring or damaging the footwear, even to the finest of shear hosiery * * *. It was believed * * * that this object could be accomplished by the use of a foot powder, providing such a powder could be discovered; * * * four years were spent in a skin clinic, actually testing different powder preparations before one was obtained which would actually accomplish the following results:

2. Kill the infection of footwear;
3. Cause no irritation to the feet;
4. Do no damage to even the finest hosiery, shoes, etc.
5. Accomplish these results at one and the same time with just one preparation.

This powder * * * starts in immediately to kill the infection of the feet and footwear.

It also produces a checking influence in the excessive sweating cases of the feet, and is therefore a most excellent remedy for sweaty and smelly feet.

By dusting FFP No. 22 into the shoes once a day after the feet have been cured, the re-infestation of the shoes and feet is prevented, even though the feet come in contact with infected places.

1 A substitute stipulation entered into subsequent to the period covered by this volume and dealing with the same respondent and subject matter sets forth—

Respondent's admission that while said FFP No. 22 is the 22nd formula tried out and the only one now advertised and sold and which is claimed to be a competent remedy for said ailment and one which will prevent infection or reinfection, used as directed, it is not a cure nor permanent in its effects but must be used as frequently as danger of infection or odors obtain; and Respondent's agreement to cease and desist from representing that said preparation will "cure" said ailment and other infection at once, within a few days, or at all; or assure quick and permanent relief in the treatment thereof and of all foot odors; or that it is a "sure" remedy for athlete's foot, or for all foot odors and from making other claims or assertions of like import.

Petition by the Walter H. Johnson Candy Company for review of order of Commission. Order affirmed.

[718] Irving H. Fathchild, J. E. Beach, Charles J. Schofield, Jr., and L. A. Smoler, all of Chicago, Ill., for petitioner.

1 Reported in 78 F. (2d) 717. Case before the Commission reported in 19 F. T. C. 203.
Petition for rehearing denied Sept. 21, 1935.

Before ALSCHULER, SPARKS, and FITZHENRY, Circuit Judges.

FITZHENRY, Circuit Judge:

This matter comes before the court on a petition for review filed by the Walter H. Johnson Candy Company from an order issued by the Federal Trade Commission to cease and desist certain practices held to constitute an unfair method of competition. The Commission found that petitioner was engaged in the manufacture and sale of candy in interstate commerce; that among the candies manufactured by it are certain boxes of candy known as lottery, prize or draw packages which are so assembled and packed as to be resold to the purchasing public, principally children, by lot or chance; that this constitutes a lottery or gaming device; that many competitors of petitioner regard such method of sale as morally bad and encouraging gambling among children and therefore refuse to sell candy so packed and assembled and are thereby put to a disadvantage in competing. The Commission held the use of such methods by petitioner to be injurious to the public and to competitors and that it has resulted in the diversion of trade to petitioner and is a restraint upon, and a detriment to, the freedom of fair and legitimate competition in the candy industry. On the basis of these findings of fact, it issued the order to cease and desist which this court is asked to vacate in these proceedings.

It is contended by petitioner that the order which it challenges rests upon a record from which much of the evidence offered by petitioner was improperly excluded. The evidence excluded consisted, in large part, of the testimony of parents, educators, etc., that these confections were purchased extensively by religious denominational schools for resale to children and that they had a wholesome rather than a deleterious effect upon the moral development of the children. Other evidence which was excluded was the testimony of manufacturers that they had no objection, moral or otherwise, to manufacturing and selling this candy.

The Commission properly excluded this evidence as irrelevant to the issues before it. Several manufacturers had testified that they felt the practice of selling these candies to be unscrupulous and that they could not descend to such a practice and were therefore put to an unfair disadvantage in their business. That not all manufacturers believed the practice to be dishonest or that these manufacturers were mistaken in their beliefs was clearly immaterial and irrelevant. The very recent case of Federal Trade Commission v. Keppel & Bro., 291 U. S. 304, involved facts strikingly similar to those here. The court there said:
a trader may not, by pursuing a dishonest practice, force his competitors to choose between its adoption or the loss of their trade. A method of competition which casts upon one's competitors the burden of the loss of business unless they will descend to a practice which they are under a powerful moral compulsion not to adopt, even though it is not criminal, was thought to involve the kind of unfairness at which the statute was aimed.

Nor could the evidence have properly been admitted as proof that the proceeding was not brought in "the interest of the public." In the Keppel case, supra, the Supreme Court held in respect to this same practice of sale and manufacture that it was of the sort which the common law and criminal statutes have long deemed contrary to public policy. The court said:

For these reasons a large share of the industry holds out against the device, despite ensuing loss in trade, or bows reluctantly to what it brands unscrupulous. It would seem a gross perversion of the normal meaning of the word, which is the first criterion of statutory construction, to hold that the method is not "unfair."

In another part of the same opinion the court said:

If the practice is unfair within the meaning of the act, it is equally clear that the present proceeding, aimed at suppressing it, is brought, as Section 5 of the Act (15 USCA, Sec. 45) requires, "to the interest of the public."

The other points raised by petitioner in its brief and upon oral argument have been [719] carefully considered and this court finds that the questions raised were decided adversely to petitioner in the Keppel case, supra.

The order of the Commission is affirmed.

FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION v. CIVIL SERVICE TRAINING BUREAU, INC.¹

No. 7049

(Circuit Court of Appeals, Sixth Circuit. June 29, 1935)

INTERSTATE COMMERCE—CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS.

Selling of service by a correspondence school in Interstate transactions held to constitute "commerce among the several States" within Federal Trade Commission Act and hence to be within the jurisdiction of the Federal Trade Commission to regulate (Federal Trade Commission Act, Sec. 4, 15 USCA, Sec. 44).

¹Reported in 79 F. (2d) 113. The case before the Commission is reported in 19 F. T. C. 166. Petition by Commission for rehearing relative to court's modification of parts of Commission order denied on Oct. 10, 1935.
UNFAIR METHODS OF COMPETITION—JURISDICTIONAL CRITERIA—PREREQUISITES—MONOPOLY—CORRESPONDING SCHOOLS.

That unfair competition of correspondence school did not result in practical monopoly in trade held not to deprive Federal Trade Commission of jurisdiction to issue cease and desist order, since jurisdiction for such purpose depended only on whether methods complained of were unfair, whether they were methods of competition in interstate commerce, and whether proceeding by Commission to prevent use of such methods appeared to be in interest of public (Federal Trade Commission Act, Sec. 5, 15 USCA, Sec. 45).

FINDINGS OF COMMISSION—WHERE SUPPORTED BY EVIDENCE.

Findings of Federal Trade Commission are conclusive if supported by evidence.

UNFAIR METHODS OF COMPETITION—MISREPRESENTATION—TRADE OR CORPORATE NAMES—GOVERNMENTAL CONNECTION—CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS.

Order of Federal Trade Commission prohibiting use by correspondence school of terms "civil service" and "bureau" or any similar term in its name and prohibiting representations that it could assist its students in getting Government positions, other than by assisting them in preparing for examinations, held proper where it appeared that such practices had operated to create false impression that institution had governmental connection.

UNFAIR METHODS OF COMPETITION—MISREPRESENTATION—OPPORTUNITIES FOR USING OFFERING—CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS—CIVIL SERVICE COURSES—KINDS OF POSITIONS.

Evidence held to sustain finding of Federal Trade Commission that while correspondence school claimed to offer instruction qualifying its students to take civil service examinations fitting them for certain positions, no examinations for such positions were held, and to justify order prohibiting school from designating any course offered by any term other than corresponding classification used by Civil Service Commission.

UNFAIR METHODS OF COMPETITION—MISREPRESENTATION—OPPORTUNITIES FOR USING OFFERING—CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS—CIVIL SERVICE COURSES—EMPLOYEES NEEDED.

Order of Federal Trade Commission prohibiting correspondence school preparing students for civil service examinations from advertising existence of government jobs or that persons were wanted to fill such jobs held proper only to extent that it prohibited untruthful advertisements.

ORDERS OF COMMISSION—WHERE PRACTICE LONG DISCONTINUED AND PRESUMABLY ABANDONED.

Federal Trade Commission was without authority to issue cease and desist order as to practices of correspondence school which had been long discontinued and as to which there was no reason to apprehend renewal.

On application for enforcement of an order of Commission, order of Commission modified and, as modified, affirmed, and compliance with order as modified and affirmed, directed.
H. D. Michael and M. A. Morrison, both of Washington, D. C. (W. T. Kelley and James W. Nichol, both of Washington, D. C., on the brief), for petitioner.

J. C. Spear, of Cleveland, Ohio (R. J. Davis, of Cleveland, Ohio, on the brief), for respondent.

Before Moorman, Simons, and Allen, Circuit Judges.

Allen, Circuit Judge:

This is an application for the enforcement of a cease and desist order of the Federal Trade Commission issued under Section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act, Title 15, U. S. C., Section 45. The respondent, a correspondence school, engaged in the sale and distribution of courses of study to prepare students for civil service examinations, makes three contentions in its answer:

(1) That the Commission was without jurisdiction for the reason that it was constituted for the purpose of dealing with cases involving the sale of commodities in interstate commerce, and that while the respondent conducted an interstate business, it was not dealing in commodities, but was selling a service.

(2) That Section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act contemplates that the methods of unfair competition declared unlawful must be such as to result in a practical monopoly in the trade, and that no such unfair competition has been shown to exist.

(3) That the evidence adduced before the Commission is insufficient to support the order.

The first contention is untenable. The act applies to unfair methods of competition "in commerce", commerce being defined as including "commerce among the several States". Title 15, U. S. C., Section 44. In International Textbook Co. v. Pigg, 217 U. S. 91, 107, the court held that intercourse or communication between persons in different States by means of correspondence through the mails is commerce among the States within the meaning of the Constitution, especially where such intercourse and communication relate to regular continuous business and to the making of contracts and the transportation of books, papers, etc., pertaining to such business. That decision squarely involved the selling of service by a correspondence school in interstate transactions, and is controlling here.

The second contention is also without merit.

The jurisdiction of the Commission to issue a cease and desist order depends upon the existence of three prerequisites: (1) That the methods complained of are unfair; (2) that they are methods of competition in interstate commerce, and (3) that the proceeding by the Commission to prevent the use of the methods appears to be in the interest of the public. Federal Trade Commission v. Raladam Co., 283 U. S. 643; Federal Trade Commission v. Royal Milling Co., 288 U. S. 212, 216.
NEITHER THE STATUTE NOR THE DECISIONS REQUIRE THAT UNFAIR METHODS OF COMPETITION MUST CONSTITUTE PRACTICALLY A MONOPOLY IN THE TRADE IN ORDER TO FALL WITHIN THE PROHIBITIONS OF THE ACT.

WITH REFERENCE TO THE THIRD CONTENTION, HAVING IN VIEW THE RULE THAT THE FINDINGS OF THE COMMISSION ARE CONCLUSIVE IF SUPPORTED BY EVIDENCE (FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION ACT, SECTION 5, TITLE 15, U. S. C., SECTION 45; FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION V. WINSTED HOISIERY CO., 258 U. S. 483, 491; FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION V. ALGOMA LUMBER CO., 291 U. S. 67, 73), WE THINK THE EVIDENCE SUFFICIENT TO SUSTAIN THE FINDINGS [115] UPON WHICH ARE BASED PARAGRAPHS 1, 2, 3, AND 5 OF THE COMMISSION'S ORDER.1

AS TO PARAGRAPHS 1 AND 3, THE RESPONDENT ADMITS THAT IT STILL USES THE WORDS “CIVIL SERVICE” AND “BUREAU” IN ITS NAME. THE COMMISSION FOUND IN SUBSTANCE THAT THE NAME OF THE RESPONDENT HAS A TENDENCY TO CREATE, AND HAS ACTUALLY CREATED, THE BELIEF THAT IT REPRESENTS OR HAS AN OFFICIAL CONNECTION WITH THE UNITED STATES CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION, OR THAT IT IS A BUREAU OR AGENCY OF THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT.

THE SIMILARITY OF THE NAME “CIVIL SERVICE TRAINING BUREAU, INC.,” WITH THAT OF THE UNITED STATES CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION IN ITSELF OPERATES TO CREATE THE FALSE IMPRESSION THAT THIS PRIVATE INSTITUTION HAS A GOVERNMENTAL CONNECTION. A NUMBER OF WITNESSES TESTIFIED IN SUBSTANCE THAT THE NAME MADE THEM THINK THAT THE SCHOOL WAS AN ADJUNCT OF THE GOVERNMENT. THESE FACTS JUSTIFIED THE COMMISSION IN ISSUING THAT PART OF ITS ORDER EMBODIED IN PARAGRAPHS 1 AND 3.

THE REQUIREMENT OF PARAGRAPH 2 OF THE ORDER WAS BASED UPON THE COMMISSION'S FINDING THAT WHILE THE RESPONDENT CLAIMED TO OFFER INSTRUCTION FOR THE CIVIL SERVICE, QUALIFYING ITS STUDENTS TO TAKE EXAMINATIONS, IT SAID BUSINESS WAS CONDUCTED AS AFORESAID, OR OF ANY OTHER WORD OR EXPRESSION THEREIN WHICH IMPLIES OR SUGGEST ANY CONNECTION WITH THE CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION OR THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT, OR THE USE OF ANY SUCH REPRESENTATION MADE IN ANY OTHER MANNER.

1. “IT IS ORDERED THAT RESPONDENT • • • CEASE AND DESIST FROM THE FOLLOWING PRACTICES, TO WIT:

1. THE USE OF THE TERM ‘CIVIL SERVICE’ AND THE WORD ‘BUREAU’, OR EITHER OF THEM, IN THE NAME UNDER WHICH SAID BUSINESS IS CONDUCTED AS AFORESAID, OR OF ANY OTHER WORD OR EXPRESSION THEREIN WHICH IMPLIES OR SUGGESTS ANY CONNECTION WITH THE CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION OR THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT, OR THE USE OF ANY SUCH REPRESENTATION MADE IN ANY OTHER MANNER.

2. DESIGNATING ANY COURSE OFFERED BY ANY TERM OTHER THAN BY SUCH A TERM AS MAY CORRESPOND TO SOME CLASSIFICATION USED BY THE UNITED STATES CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION AT THE TIME SUCH COURSE IS OFFERED AND FOR WHICH EXAMINATIONS ARE HELD BY SAID COMMISSION.

3. REPRESENTING THAT RESPONDENT CAN ASSIST ITS STUDENTS IN GETTING GOVERNMENT POSITIONS OTHER THAN BY ASSISTING THEM IN PREPARING FOR EXAMINATIONS.

5. THE USE OF ANY ADVERTISEMENT WHICH BY ITS WORDING OR BY THE HEADING UNDER WHICH IT IS PLACED, OR OTHERWISE, REPRESENTS OR IMPLIES THAT GOVERNMENT JOBS ARE OFFERED OR ARE TO BE HAD OR THAT PERSONS ARE WANTED TO FILL SUCH JOBS, OR THAT THE ADVERTISEMENT IS THAT OF THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT OR OF A REPRESENTATIVE OR AGENT THEREOF.

6. THE USE OF ANY CONTRACT FORM WHICH REPRESENTS OR IMPLIES THAT A GOVERNMENT JOB IS GUARANTEED.”
tions fitting them for certain positions, no examinations for those positions were held. Testimony was given to the effect that few, if any, civil service examinations were held in the lines in which respondent gave instruction, and hence applicants were misled. Numerous witnesses stated that no examination or examinations for which they had qualified had ever been held. This paragraph of the order was based on findings sustained by ample evidence.

As to the requirement in paragraph 5, misleading and "blind" advertisements had been used, implying that there were Government jobs available, and that the respondent was an agent or representative of the Government. While this practice was modified, the answer shows that "blind" advertisements were still being used after the filing of the complaint. However, this part of the order should be modified so as to prohibit only untruthful representations as to the existence of Government jobs or that persons are wanted to fill such jobs. There may be times in the future when such representations can truthfully be made. With this modification, the facts adduced justify the issuance of paragraph 5 of the order.

With reference to paragraphs 4 and 6, the practices described in these paragraphs which were admitted to have been carried on formerly by the respondent were demonstrated by uncontroverted evidence to have been discontinued in 1932. The misrepresentations as to the number of civil service employees, the nature of the positions available, etc., were made by respondent's salesmen, aided in their interviews by an inaccurate booklet. Respondent suppressed the booklet and warned the salesmen not to use the information. A misleading guaranty of refund which had been employed in respondent's contract form was actually interpreted as constituting the guaranty of a Government job. This was altered, and these practices were discontinued by respondent prior to September 16, 1933, when the proceeding before the Commission was instituted. The Commission is not authorized to issue a cease and desist order as to practices long discontinued, and as to which there is no reason to apprehend renewal. L. B. Silver Co. v. Federal Trade Commission (C. C. A.), 292 Fed. 752; cf. United States v. U. S. Steel Corp., 251 U. S. 417, 445.

The order of the Commission is modified by the elimination of paragraphs 4 and 6, and paragraph 5 is modified so as to prohibit untruthful representations that Government jobs are offered or are to be had, or that persons are wanted to fill such jobs, and is otherwise affirmed. Paragraphs 1, 2, and 3 of the order are affirmed. The respondent, its officers, directors, agents, representatives, servants and employees are ordered to comply with the order of the Commission as modified and affirmed.
FINDINGS OF COMMISSION—Court's Limitations.
Court must accept Federal Trade Commission's fact findings if supported by evidence and should not merely weigh evidence to see if court would reach same conclusion.

DISCONTINUANCE OF UNFAIR METHODS—Effect.
In proceeding under Trade Commission Act, mere discontinuance of unfair competitive methods is no defense (Trade Commission Act, Sec. 5, 15 USCA, Sec. 45).

Evidence held to support Federal Trade Commission's finding that cosmetic manufacturer maintained prices by agreements with dealers and prevented sale of products to cut-price dealers.

RESALE PRICE MAINTENANCE—Private Redress Against Price Cutters.
Where manufacturer tries to maintain resale prices by restrictions marked on products or otherwise communicated to retailer, violation thereof gives manufacturer no cause of action either at common law or under copyright or patent laws.

RESALE PRICE MAINTENANCE—Legality—Contracts—Combinations or Cooperative Efforts—Antitrust Laws.
Where manufacturer seeks to maintain resale prices by system or policy of contracts, combinations, or cooperative efforts, such system or policy violates antitrust laws.

PUBLIC INTEREST—Private Rights—Nonviolation by Practice.
That allegedly unfair competitive practice violates no private right does not necessarily preclude existence of public interest within protection of Federal Trade Commission.

RESALE PRICE MAINTENANCE—Cosmetics—Wholesale and Retail Prices.
Cosmetic manufacturer's policy of maintaining wholesale and retail prices held unlawful as tending to stifle competition.

Petition by the Armand Company, Inc., and others to review an order of Commission against petitioner. Affirmed.

Charles Wesley Dunn, of New York City, for petitioners.
W. T. Kelley, chief counsel, Federal Trade Commission, Martin A. Morrison, assistant chief counsel, and James W. Nichol, all of Washington, D. C., for respondent.

Before MANTON, SWAN, and CHASE, Circuit Judges.

MANTON, Circuit Judge:

This petition seeks a review of an order of the Federal Trade Commission directing petitioners to cease and desist from (1) entering into or procuring, either directly or indirectly, from wholesale or retail dealers, contracts, agreements, understandings, promises or assurances that respondent's products, or any of them, are to be resold by such wholesale or retail dealers at prices specified or fixed by petitioner; (2) entering into or procuring either directly or indirectly from wholesale dealers contracts, understandings, promises or assurances that petitioner's products are not to be resold by such wholesalers to price-cutting retail dealers.

The complaint was filed against the petitioner, an Iowa corporation, and others, June 27, 1925, charging the maintenance of resale prices for its products fixed at arbitrary levels through the medium of expressed or implied agreements. Section 5, Trade Commission Act, 38 Stat. 719 (15 USCA, Sec. 45). After extensive hearings and consideration, the order appealed from was entered, January 27, 1933, reciting a finding that the petitioner was engaged in interstate commerce and that its practices were to the prejudice and injury of wholesale and retail dealers and the public and are unfair methods of competition in commerce.

Petitioner's business is manufacturing and selling toilet articles and cosmetics. It sells its products to wholesale and retail dealers throughout the United States and by the use of various means of advertising has built up a large and substantial demand for its products by the public.

In November, 1919, petitioner adopted a plan or policy of suggesting to dealers who purchased its products, the resale prices therefor, and at that time made its first public announcement of its policy in writing, and caused such to be published and circulated among the wholesale and retail druggists of the United States. Since that time its policy has been expressed orally as well as in writing through its representatives who communicated the conditions of its policy in regard to resale of its product by word of mouth. Petitioner's policy, reduced to writing and circulated, has been unchanged since 1919, and states that the petitioner, in the interest of fairness and justice to all concerned, suggests fair resale prices for its products and declines to sell to dealers who effect any other unfair trade practices in the merchandising of its products. As an evidence of the petitioner's appreciation of a purchaser's "continued and active interest" in the merchandising of petitioner's products, its policy was found declared to be to include certain free goods as a "generous dividend." Another feature of petitioner's merchandising policy was to have the resale of its products confined to the wholesale and retail drug trade, at least as far as such confinement was possible. At all times the petitioner has made it at least an unwritten part of its merchandising policy, to suggest to wholesale dealers that they do not sell petitioner's products to department stores.

Beginning with the year 1920, petitioner requested all dealers who wished to buy its products—the request being made either directly or through petitioner's salesmen—to make a written and signed "declaration of intention" as to the manner in which it was proposed to resell petitioner's products, and all dealers received a model form of declaration of intention, which was required to be signed by the dealers and returned to the petitioner. This form stated that it was the purpose of the dealer who signed it to observe the fair resale prices suggested by the petitioner for its products, and that the declaration of intention was made freely and voluntarily and was not to be understood as either an express or implied obligation or agreement on the part of the dealer. It was further declared that the intention to observe petitioner's suggested resale prices was in recognition of petitioner's right to refuse to sell to dealers who did not charge petitioner's suggested retail prices. The declaration of intention was further stated to be that the dealer would sell petitioner's products only within the dealer's own store and that the dealer would not sell the products to any other dealer. By a circular letter in 1920, petitioner's salesmen were instructed that they might lawfully inquire, prior to sale, whether a dealer intended to resell at the prices suggested by the petitioner and that they might suggest to a dealer that he write a declaration of intention to that effect according to the form sent. The salesmen were likewise directed not to make "any agreement with the dealers as to the resale prices."

Since the first publication in 1919 of its merchandising policy, the petitioner has from time to time republished it to the wholesale and retail dealers, informing them that the petitioner declined to sell its products to dealers who did not charge petitioner's suggested retail prices. It has also been the practice of the petitioner to inform dealers that upon receipt of a satisfactory declaration of their intention as to the prices at which they would sell petitioner's products, petitioner would give "prompt and interested attention to their orders."

In 1922 the petitioner discontinued its practice of obtaining signed declarations of intention from its dealers, and in April, 1923, dealers were informed that declarations of intention signed by them would be considered null and void. But mere discontinuance of unfair competitive methods, however, is no defense. Fed. Trade Comm. v. Wallace (C. C. A.) 75 F. (2d) 733, 738; Butterick Co. v. Fed. Trade Comm. (C. C. A.) 4 F. (2d) 910; Fox Film Corp. v. Fed. Trade Comm. (C. C. A.) 296 Fed. 353; Guarantee Veterinary Co. v. Fed. Trade Comm. (C. C. A.) 285 Fed. 853. And the discontinuance of this practice did not bring about a discontinuance of its policy as to resale prices. The record is replete with evidence that although declarations of intention were no longer obtained or required, agreements or understandings were entered into between the petitioner and certain dealers whereby dealers, in consideration of the sale by petitioner of its products to said dealers, agreed to refuse to resell petitioner's products to retail stores which did not, upon resale, charge the retail prices suggested by the petitioner. Secret instructions were given to salesmen to follow this plan as late as September, 1923. And as late as September, 1927, petitioner's president reiterated the same method.

In 1923, the petitioner entered into an agreement with a drug company of Seattle, Wash., whereby the drug company agreed not to sell petitioner's product to retail dealers who resold the products at a price less than that suggested by the petitioner. In pursuance of this agreement, and in cooperation with the petitioner, the drug company has kept a list of those retail dealers in its sales territory who are known to be price cutters, and it has consistently refused since entering into that agreement, to sell petitioner's products to such dealers because they were price cutters. In 1924 a similar agreement was entered into with a firm in Louisville, Ky., whereby the latter agreed to resell the petitioner's products at the prices suggested by the petitioner in consideration of the fact that petitioner would thereafter sell its goods to the drug company. Other agreements were made by the petitioner with other firms throughout the country for the years after 1922, the details of which it is unnecessary to state here.

Agreements with these firms, and others, indicated clearly a desire to have a tacit or oral agreement for the fixing of prices on resale or price maintenance. At petitioner's suggestion it caused those wholesale dealers, to whom it sold its products, to police their territory through their salesmen so as to discover what retail dealers were selling petitioner's products below the prices fixed by the petitioner, and thereby prevent any such retailers from obtaining goods from the petitioner. "Salesmen" were taught and trained in the petitioner's merchandising policy, and their specific duty was to instruct dealers, both wholesale and retail, in that policy. Through salesmen and by circularized literature, the entire drug trade has been plainly informed by the petitioner that any dealer who failed to sell at petitioner's suggested retail prices would be unable to obtain petitioner's products in the future. Wholesale dealers were informed that they would be unable to purchase petitioner's products if they resold them to any retail dealer who failed to resell at petitioner's suggested prices. In many instances such price cutters were refused sales and were dropped from petitioner's list of customers, but later reinstated upon satisfying the petitioner of their willingness to comply with petitioner's policy, and that thereafter they would maintain prices.

It was found as a fact by the Commission that the chief objective of petitioner's merchandising policy was the maintenance of the wholesale and retail prices suggested by the petitioner for its products, and that the direct effect of petitioner's practices had been and now is to suppress competition among wholesalers and between retail dealers engaged in the distribution and sale of petitioner's products. The further effect was the constraint imposed upon wholesale and retail dealers in selling petitioner's products at prices fixed by the petitioner, and the preventing of sale by such dealers of petitioner's products at prices which such dealers desired, thereby depriving the ultimate purchasers of petitioner's products of that advantage of price which otherwise would be theirs in a natural and unobstructed flow of commerce under free competition.

The Commission concluded that the petitioner's practices were to the prejudice and injury of the public and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and a violation of section 5 of the Trade Commission Act. The findings of the Commission are amply supported by the evidence. The evidence supports the finding that by agreements between petitioner and its dealers it maintained prices and prevented those who would not do so from securing petitioner's products.

Where a manufacturer tries to maintain the resale prices of his goods, by restrictions marked on the goods or otherwise communicated to the retailer, a violation of these restrictions does not create a cause of action in favor of the manufacturer either at common law or under the copyright or patent laws, and where resale prices are sought to be maintained by a system or policy of contracts, combinations, or cooperative efforts, such system or policy is illegal and in

This petitioner dealt with 39,000 retail druggists out of a total of 56,000, and 247 wholesale druggists out of a total of 550. The wholesalers and retailers were in competition with each other in the sale of petitioner's products. This is a kind of competition between wholesalers and retailers of a product of a single manufacturer which was intended by the decisions of the courts to be free and open. The policy in question had a tendency to stifle competition and was unlawful.

Order affirmed.

FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION v. HIRES TURNER GLASS COMPANY

No. 5591

(Circuit Court of Appeals, Third Circuit. July 11, 1935)

TRADE TERMINOLOGY—SECONDARY MEANING—“COPPER-BACK MIRROR”.

In proceeding for enforcement of Federal Trade Commission's cease and desist order, evidence held to support findings that term "copper-back mirror" had acquired secondary meaning prior to its use by defendant corporation which manufactured mirrors which were described as copper-back mirrors, and that such mirrors did not contain essentials of genuine copper-back mirrors (Federal Trade Commission Act Sec. 5, 15 USCA Sec. 45).

ENFORCEMENT APPLICATIONS—COURT’S LIMITATIONS AND DUTY—COMMISSION FINDINGS.

On application for enforcement of Federal Trade Commission's cease and desist order, court must sustain commission if there is any substantial evidence upon which its findings are based.

UNFAIR METHODS OF COMPETITION—SALE AS AND FOR COPPER BACK MIRRORS OF PRODUCT WITH SHELLAC AND POWDERED COPPER BACKING.

Purchaser who orders copper-back mirror in justifiable belief that he will receive mirror with backing which consists of solid sheaf of copper electrolytically applied to reflecting medium, but who receives instead mirror with backing of shellac and powdered copper, is prejudiced within meaning of act prohibiting unfair competition.

TRIAL EXAMINER'S REPORT—AS PART OF RECORD—MOTION FOR CERTIFICATION, ABSENT SHOWING OF FINDINGS NOT SUPPORTED BY EVIDENCE.

On application for enforcement of Federal Trade Commission's cease and desist order, in absence of proof that Commission's fact findings were not supported by evidence, motion for certiorari for diminution of record ordering Commission to certify to reviewing court report of trial examiner would be denied, since Commission's findings of fact were conclusive if supported by any evidence.

(Upon Petition for Modification of Judgment)

TRADE TERMINOLOGY—CEASE AND DESIST ORDERS—COURT'S LIMITATIONS, PENDING COMMISSION ACTION.

Federal Trade Commission Act does not authorize Circuit Court of Appeals to make rulings as to what name or names comply with cease and desist order prior to action thereon by Federal Trade Commission.

CEASE AND DESIST ORDERS—"COPPER-BACKED" FOR MIRRORS NOT ELECTROLYTICALLY SHEALED—PROPRIETY—WHERE TERM QUALIFIED.

Cease and desist order preventing manufacturer from designating mirrors with protective coating, consisting of mixture of shellac and powdered copper, as "copper-backed" mirrors or by expression of like import, was modified to authorize manufacturer to use such designations as were accompanied by qualifying terms clearly signifying that copper backing on mirrors was not electrolytically applied.

(The syllabus, with substituted captions, is taken from 81 F. (2d) 362)

On application by Commission for enforcement of an order directing respondent to cease and desist from certain practices as constituting unfair competition under Federal Trade Commission Act, and motion of respondent for writ of certiorari for diminution of the record, order modified, and writ denied.

Mr. Robert E. Healy, Mr. Harry D. Michael, and Mr. Martin A. Morrison, all of Washington, D. C., for petitioner.
Mr. Leon Edelson, of Philadelphia, Pa., for respondent.

Before WOOLLEY, DAVIS, and THOMSON, Circuit Judges.

THOMPSON, Circuit Judge:

The Federal Trade Commission, the petitioner, charged Hires Turner Glass Company, the respondent, with unfair competition in interstate commerce in violation of Section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act (15 USCA Sec. 45) and issued the following cease and desist order:

[363] * * * It is ordered that respondent, Hires Turner Glass Company, a corporation, its officers, directors, agents, representatives, servants, and employees in connection with the sale, offering for sale, or distribution in interstate commerce, of mirrors having thereon a protective coating consisting of a mixture of shellac and powdered copper, cease and desist from designating the same as "copper-back" mirrors, "copper-backed" mirrors, mirrors "backed with copper", or by other word, words, or expression of the same meaning or like import.

The respondent refused to comply with this order. The petitioner thereupon filed an application for an enforcement order in this court. The respondent contends that there is no evidence that the terms "copper-back", "copper-backed", or "backed with copper" are not properly descriptive of its mirrors; or that trade is diverted to the respondent because of its use of the prohibited terms; or that such use tends to deceive the trade and purchasing public.

In approaching these issues, we bear in mind the admonition in Federal Trade Commission v. Algoma Lumber Co., 291 U. S. 67, 73, where the Supreme Court said:

The findings of the Commission as to facts, if supported by testimony, shall be conclusive. (15 USCA Sec. 45.) The Court of Appeals (64 F. (2d) 618), though professing adherence to this mandate, honored it, we think, with lip service only. In form the court determined that the finding of unfair competition had no support whatever. In fact what the court did was to make its own appraisal of the testimony, picking and choosing for itself among uncertain and conflicting inferences. Statute and decision (Federal Trade Commission v. Pacific States Paper Trade Assn., 273 U. S. 52, 61, 63) forbid that exercise of power.

What facts did the petitioner find? Are these facts supported by testimony? We summarize the findings of fact:

The respondent is a Pennsylvania corporation engaged in the manufacture of mirrors and in their sale in interstate commerce. In 1930 the respondent began to manufacture in commercial quantities and to sell in interstate commerce mirrors having a protective coating or backing consisting of a mixture of shellac and powdered copper. The mixture was applied by brush or spray either immediately next to the reflecting medium or separated therefrom by an intervening coating of ordinary mirror-backing paint, in accordance with a process owned by the Peacock Laboratories, Inc. The respondent was the first licensee of the Peacock Laboratories, Inc., to advertise and sell mirrors as "copper-back", "copper-backed", and "backed with copper", when prepared by the above process. The same terminology was used by the respondent, its officers, agents, and representatives in letters, invoices, communications and conversations with the trade. Prior to the respondent's use of this process, those terms had acquired a fixed meaning in the trade and signified mirrors backed with a solid sheath or film of copper deposited upon the reflecting medium by an electrolytic or electroplating process. The mixture of shellac and powdered copper does not form a solid metallic copper coating or film. The metallic element is not continuous nor are the particles of copper in metallic contact, since each particle of copper is surrounded by a film of shellac and no part of the copper is adherent to or in metallic contact with the reflecting medium. The respondent’s type of mirror sells for slightly more than ordinary mirrors and for considerably less than electrolytic copper-back mirrors since its manufacture does not require special equipment. The use of the prohibited terms when applied to the respondent’s mirrors, has a tendency and capacity to confuse, mislead and deceive the trade and public and to divert trade to the respondent.

The following is a summary of the testimony upon which the petitioner based its findings:

Electrolytic copper-back mirrors had been known since 1858 and had been imported in large quantities from England, France, Belgium, and Holland from 1900 until the World War and thereafter in lesser quantities. The terms generally used to describe and designate these imported mirrors were “copper-back”, “copper-backed”, or “backed with copper”, literal translations of the French “dos cuivre” and the German “verkupfert”. English mirrors, on which were stamped “copper-backed” and which were similar to those imported between 1902 and 1914, were offered in evidence. Electrolytic copper-back mirrors [364] had been manufactured in the United States for approximately forty years. In 1925 the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company began the production of electrolytic copper-back mirrors on a large commercial scale. It placed a label containing the term “copper-back mirror” on every such mirror manufactured by it. It used this terminology in advertising, circulars and magazine articles, as well as in correspondence, invoices and orders. The only use of this terminology, prior to its use by the respondent, had been in its application to electrolytic copper-back mirrors. Trade was diverted from the makers of electrolytic copper-back mirrors because of the comparatively low price of the respondent’s mirror, and from the makers of ordinary mirrors because of the general belief that copper-back mirrors are superior to painted back mirrors.

It may well be that, had this court been a fact-finding tribunal, it might have reached conclusions other than those reached by the petitioner. The petitioner, however, had before it ample evidence upon which to find that the terminology had acquired a secondary meaning, prior to its use by the respondent, and that the respondent’s mirrors did not contain the essentials of genuine copper-back mirrors. Inasmuch as it is the duty of the Commission to determine the facts, it is our duty to sustain the Commission if there is any substantial evidence upon which its findings are based. Federal Trade Commission v. Artloom Corporation (CCA) 69 F. (2d) 36.

Even though there was no evidence of actual deception, the natural and probable result of the use of descriptive names, which do not properly describe the respondent’s product, has the tendency and

As was said by the Supreme Court in Federal Trade Commission v. Algoma Lumber Co., supra:

The consumer is prejudiced if upon giving an order for one thing, he is supplied with something else * * *. In such matters, the public is entitled to get what it chooses, though the choice may be dictated by caprice or by fashion or perhaps by ignorance.

So, if the purchaser orders a copper-back mirror in the justifiable belief that he will receive a mirror with a backing consisting of a solid sheath of copper electrolytically applied to the reflecting medium and receives, instead, a mirror having a backing of shellac and powdered copper, he is prejudiced.

The order of the Federal Trade Commission is affirmed. An enforcement order may be entered in accordance with the prayer of the petition.

There is pending before us the respondent’s motion for a writ of certiorari for diminution of the record. We are asked to order the Federal Trade Commission to certify to this court the report of the trial examiner. As we have indicated, the Commission’s findings of fact are conclusive if supported by any evidence. In the absence of proof that the fact findings are not so supported, there is no substantial ground for the granting of the respondent’s motion. It is accordingly denied.

Upon Petition for Modification of Judgment
(December 20, 1935)

Before DAVIS and THOMPSON, Circuit Judges.

THOMPSON, Circuit Judge:

The Federal Trade Commission Act confers authority upon this court to enforce, set aside or modify orders of the Commission (Sec. 5, 15 USCA 45), but, we think, does not confer authority upon the court to make rulings as to what name, or names, comply with the cease and desist order prior to action thereon by the Commission. If, however, the Commission’s order is so comprehensive as to prevent respondent from using such designations for its mirrors as are accompanied by qualifying terms which clearly signify that its copper backing is not electrolytically applied, it may be modified to that extent.

The Commission’s cease and desist order is accordingly modified by adding thereto the following:

Provided, however, that the respondent may use such designations as are accompanied by qualifying terms which clearly signify that the copper backing on its mirrors is not electrolytically applied.
Orders of Commission—Misrepresentation—Nature of Manufacture—Machine or Hand-Made—"Indian" or "Indian-Made" Jewelry.

Federal Trade Commission's order that seller of "Indian" or "Indian-made" jewelry should represent that process of manufacture was performed by Indians and should specify steps in which modern machinery was used, was modified so as to require seller to specify method of manufacture only so far as machinery was substituted for hand hammering, shaping, or ornamenting jewelry.

Before Lewis and McDermott, Circuit Judges, and Kennedy, District Judge.

Per Curiam:

Briefs and argument on rehearing have clarified the dispute and narrowed the issues. Petitioner now expressly asserts that machinery used in manufacturing the raw material—the slugs or blanks—with which the Indian starts his artistry is outside the scope of the hearing or the order; that the order is not concerned with the dimensions of the raw material; that the order is designed to confine the term “Indian-made” to those who heat and hammer the slug or blank before ornamentation, and that the order does not define the amount of such heating or hammering. So construed, the order is applicable only to so much of respondent's jewelry, if any, as is not heated and hammered at all before ornamentation.

Both sides complain of the complexity and the difficulty of complying with our modification of petitioner's order; petitioner's order is complex and has already given rise to much misunderstanding. The second paragraph of petitioner's order will be modified to read as follows:

It is now ordered that respondent, its agents, representatives, and employees, shall cease and desist from designating, describing, or offering any of its silver jewelry products for sale in interstate commerce as "Indian" or "Indian-made" jewelry, where in substantial part machinery (other than hand tools, or nonmechanical equipment, or buffing wheels for polishing) shall be substituted for hand-hammering, shaping or ornamenting the same, unless the label, stamp, catalogue, or advertising shall clearly, expressly and legibly state the method of such manufacture in immediate context with the descriptive terms.

A decree will be entered vacating our former modification of the Commission's order, affirming the order of the Commission as now modified, each party to pay its own costs.

FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION v. WALKER'S NEW RIVER MINING CO. 1

No. 3882

(Circuit Court of Appeals, Fourth Circuit. October 8, 1935)

COURT REVIEW—FINDINGS OF COMMISSION—WHERE SUPPORTED BY TESTIMONY.

Federal Trade Commission's fact findings, if supported by testimony, are conclusive (Federal Trade Commission Act Sec. 5, 15, USCA Sec. 45).

GEOGRAPHICAL NAMES—WHERE POSSESSED OF PECULIAR TRADE SIGNIFICANCE—APPLICATION TO PRODUCT OF DIFFERENT ORIGIN.

Where geographical origin has acquired peculiar trade significance, use of term descriptive of such article cannot be applied to product of different origin, even though such product may be of identical quality.

GENERIC OR GEOGRAPHICAL NAMES—WHERE SECONDARY MEANING—UNFAIR COMPETITION—RELIEF.

Suit for unfair competition is maintainable in case of use of name that has acquired secondary significance, though name is not good trade-mark because of its generic or geographical nature.

TRADE AND CORPORATE NAMES—GEOGRAPHICAL NAMES—WHERE SECONDARY MEANING—"NEW RIVER" FOR PRODUCT NOT FROM "NEW RIVER" DISTRICT—RELIEF.

Use of words "New River" in corporate name and trade-name, and offering for sale its coal as "New River coal" by corporation whose mines were 75 to 100 miles distant and separated by mountain range from district widely known as "New River district" and from which only best coal was sold as "New River coal", held "unfair competition" within Federal Trade Commission Act justifying cease and desist order.

Reported in 79 F. (2d) 437. Case before Commission reported in 18 F. T. C. 176.
In unfair competition case, Circuit Court of Appeals cannot make its own appraisal of testimony or substitute judgment of court for that of Federal Trade Commission.

Prevention by Federal Trade Commission of use of words "New River" in corporate name and trade-name and of offering for sale its coal as "New River coal" by corporation whose mines were 75 to 100 miles distant from district known as "New River district", from which only best coal was sold as "New River coal" held "in interest of public" as required by Federal Trade Commission Act.

On application for enforcement of order of Commission, order affirmed, and enforcement order granted.

Mr. James M. Brinson, special attorney, Federal Trade Commission, of Washington, D. C.  (Mr. W. T. Kelley, chief counsel, Mr. Martin A. Morrison, assistant chief counsel, Federal Trade Commission, and Mr. James W. Nichol, all of Washington, D. C., on the brief), for petitioner.

Mr. George Cochran Doub, of Baltimore, Md.  (Parker, Carey & Doub, of Baltimore, Md., on the brief), for respondent.

Before PARKER and NORTHcott, Circuit Judges, and CHESNUT, District Judge.

NORTHcott, Circuit Judge:

This is a proceeding under the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, Section 5 (15 USCA Sec. 45), seeking the affirmance and enforcement of an order entered by the Commission on the first day of February 1934, requiring the respondent, Walker's New River Mining Company, a corporation, to cease and desist from certain practices, found by the Commission to constitute unfair methods of competition forbidden by the act.

In April 1932 the Federal Trade Commission, hereinafter referred to as the Commission, filed and served complaint [458] against the respondent, charging "unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce" in violation of said Section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act. Respondent's answer to the complaint was filed in May 1932 and after the complaint was amended, in an immaterial respect, evidence was taken before an examiner of the Commission and a number of witnesses were examined. The matter was then heard before the Commission and after consideration the following order was entered:
This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondent, the testimony and evidence, briefs and arguments of counsel for the Commission and counsel for respondent, and the Commission having filed its report stating its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that the respondent has violated the provisions of an act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes—

It is now ordered that respondent Walker's New River Mining Company, in or in connection with, offering for sale or selling coal in interstate or foreign commerce or in commerce between the State of West Virginia and the District of Columbia or in the District of Columbia, cease and desist directly or indirectly from—

(1) Describing or designating said coal as "New River" coal or by the abbreviation "N. R.", or by any other abbreviation, letters or words of the same or similar import unless such coal originates, is produced or mined in that portion of West Virginia lying, being or situated within the territory generally known as the "New River" field or district.

(2) Using in its corporate name the words "New River" or words, or abbreviations of the same or similar import unless coal so offered for sale or sold originates or is produced or mined in the "New River" field or district as described in paragraph one hereof.

It is further ordered that respondent file a report in writing with the Commission within 60 days from and after service of this order, setting forth in detail the manner and form of its compliance therewith.

After the entry of this order and on March 23, 1934, the respondent tendered an offer of compliance with the order which, in August 1934 the Commission notified the respondent was not satisfactory and, in its answer to the application before us, the respondent withdrew that offer and requested a determination of the validity of the order of the Commission without reference to this offer of compliance.

The respondent is a West Virginia corporation and has since the year 1927, and is now, engaged in the business of mining coal from mines situated at Flint in the county of Randolph in the State of West Virginia, in the vicinity of the town of Elkins, where it has its principal office and place of business. The company sells its coal in various States in competition with various producers and sellers of coal in interstate commerce, including producers of coal in what is known as the New River coal field, producing and selling "New River" coal.
Coal has been mined in southern West Virginia in territory contiguous or adjacent to New River since the year 1872, and this territory has for a number of years been known or designated as the New River field or district. Coal is mined in this New River district from several seams, principally, the Sewell, the Beckley, the Fire Creek, and the Welch. These seams extend beyond the boundaries of the so-called New River field, both in a northerly and southerly direction. The Sewell seam extends to the north into Pennsylvania and in that State is known as the Sharon. Coal from all these seams named as being mined in the New River field are classified in geological literature as “New River Group of the Pottsville Series.”

Mining operations in what was originally known as the New River field were extended from time to time until that field, as it is now known, embraces substantial parts of the counties of Fayette, Raleigh, and Greenbrier in the State of West Virginia.

There are 63 producers of coal in what is properly known as the New River field, and for more than 25 years last past coal from this field has been and is now being sold as New River coal. It has been and is the policy of the coal operators in the New River field to offer for sale as New [459] River coal only coal of the highest grade mined in the New River district, irrespective of the particular seam from which it has been extracted. Coal found in any seam in the New River field of an inferior quality is not sold by the producers of coal in that field as New River coal. Coal producers of the New River field have for many years past spent large sums of money in advertising such high-grade product of their mines as “New River” coal. The result has been that wholesale and retail dealers in coal and the consuming public have associated the words “New River” with coal of a distinctively and uniformly high-grade character and quality, produced in what is known as the New River field proper. The words “New River” have therefore acquired a value in the coal business, and the use of the words “New River” is of unquestioned advantage in that business.

The mines of the respondent are situated in a region from 75 to 100 miles distant from what is recognized in the coal business as the New River field or district, a region separated from the New River field not only by distance but by a range of mountains. The mines of the respondent are situated in what is known as the Cheat Mountain Coal field, and the Commission found as a fact that coal produced from respondent mines is not New River coal as known by the purchasing public.

Respondent enjoys a more favorable freight rate for the transportation of its coal to certain sections in the northeast of the United States than producers of coal in the New River district.
At the time of its organization as a company, respondent adopted the words New River and incorporated them in its company name and has used and now uses said words in connection with offering for sale and selling its coal in interstate commerce and has caused the words to be conspicuously displayed in advertising its product. Respondent describes the coal it sells as "New River" coal and invoices it as such.

As the result of respondent's practices, dealers in coal have bought its product and sold it to consumers as New River coal.

From all this the Commission reached the conclusion in its opinion that the practice of respondent in using the words "New River" in its corporate and trade name and offering for sale and selling its coal as New River coal resulted in misleading and deceiving the public into the handling and use of its coal as New River coal, when in fact it was not New River coal as generally recognized for a number of years in the coal trade, and that the effect of these practices of the respondent has been to divert trade to respondent from competitors selling coal produced in the New River district and from competitors selling coal from other districts or fields in the United States, including the Cheat Mountain district.

The sole question presented here is whether the Commission was warranted in reaching the conclusion that the respondent has not the right to use the words "New River" in its business, and if respondent has not this right whether the proceeding before the Commission was in the "interest of the public" as required by the statute.

The findings of the Commission as to facts, if supported by testimony, are conclusive. (15 USCA Sec. 45; Federal Trade Commission v. Algoma Lumber Co., 291 U. S. 67). Here the Commission has found that the efforts of the coal operators, in what is geographically known as the New River field, to distinguish New River coal from other grades of coal and to give it a recognized reputation for quality, have been successful; that New River coal is widely known in the trade as a coal of high quality; that this result has been brought about by the expenditure of large sums of money by the coal operators in what is geographically known as the New River field; and that not all coal mined in the New River field is regarded or sold as New River coal, only that of the best quality mined there being so sold. We are of the opinion that all of these findings are correct and that they are supported by the testimony taken before the Commission.

The Commission, in its opinion held, that, while there can be no exclusive trade appropriation of a geographical term, where a geographical origin has acquired a peculiar trade significance the use of a term descriptive of such article cannot be applied to a product of a different origin, even though such a product may be of identical quality; and that it was misleading to pretend to the trade that a geographical test of quality is being offered, when in truth the test offered is a geological one. We agree with this holding.

In French Republic v. Saratoga Vichy Spring Co., 191 U. S. 427 the court said: "True the name is geographical; but geographical names often acquire a secondary signification indicative not only of the place of manufacture or production, but of the name of the manufacturer or producer and the excellence of the thing manufactured or produced, which enables the owner to assert an exclusive right to such name as against every one not doing business within the same geographical limits; and even as against them, if the name be used fraudulently for the purpose of misleading buyers as to the actual origin of the thing produced, or of palming off the productions of one person as those of another."

Suit for unfair competition may be maintained in the case of the use of a name that has acquired a secondary significance, even though the name be not a good trade mark, on account of its generic or geographical nature. Elgin National Watch Co. v. Illinois Watch Case Co., 179 U. S. 665.

That the brand "New River" coal has acquired a particular significance in the coal trade, both to the dealer and the consumer, cannot be doubted; that this result has been brought about, as found by the Commission, by the expenditure of large sums of money by the coal operators in the New River field (geographically) is undisputed. This being true, these operators have acquired something of value and are entitled to be protected in the use of it. That the use of these words is of value is shown not only by the testimony, but is to be presumed from the fact that the respondent has shown itself so anxious to use and continue to use the words New River in its business without having in any way contributed to the efforts which gave the words their peculiar value in the coal trade. That such a course on the part of the respondent constitutes an unfair method of competition is plain.

In Federal Trade Commission v. Algoma Lumber Co., supra, Mr. Justice Cardozo lays down the unquestioned rule that the Circuit Court of Appeals is not at liberty to make its own appraisal of the testimony or to substitute the judgment of the court for that of the Commission. Here we feel that the conclusion of the Commission was not only supported by testimony but was the proper one.

Even were the product of the respondent identical in quality with New River coal, that would not justify the use of the words "New River." In Federal Trade Commission v. Royal Milling Co. et al., 288 U. S. 212, the court said: "If consumers or dealers prefer to purchase a given article because it was made by a particular manufacturer or class of manufacturers, they have a right to do so, and this right cannot be satisfied by imposing upon them an exactly similar article, or one equally as good, but having a different origin."

While it is true that what is now known as the New River coal field may properly, in the development of the coal business in that region, be extended to include sections not now included, clearly that field may not now be considered to include the section in which the respondent's mines are located, distant as they are from 75 to 100 miles from the New River field and being separated from it by a mountain range.

The order of the Commission was fully warranted by the facts and the law; was made by an experienced body created by Congress for the purpose of deciding questions of this character and the order to cease and desist is affirmed. An enforcement order may be entered in accordance with the prayer of the petition.

Affirmed.

The Federal Trade Commission, petitioner herein, having filed with this court on, to wit, October 17, 1935, its application for the enforcement of an order to cease and desist issued by it against the respondent, under date of March 18, 1935, under the provisions of Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes" (38 Stat. 719, 15 U. S. C. A., sec. 45); and said petitioner having also certified and filed herein, as required by law, a transcript of the entire record in the proceeding lately pending before it, in which said order to cease and desist was entered, including all the testimony taken and the report of said petitioner; and respondent having subsequently filed his answer to said application for enforcement, in which answer respondent stated he was not willing to contest said application for enforcement or the proceedings based thereon, and in which answer said respondent consented that this court might, upon said application and respondent’s answer thereto, and upon the pleadings, testimony, and proceedings set forth in the transcript aforesaid, make and enter its decree affirming said order to cease and desist and commanding respondent, his agents, representatives, and employees to comply therewith.

Now, therefore, it is hereby ordered, adjudged, and decreed, That said order to cease and desist, issued by the Federal Trade Commission, petitioner herein, under date of March 18, 1935, be and the same hereby is affirmed.

that the appliance or device designated Super-Fyre Amplifying Unit, or by any other name, will, when used in connection with the ignition system of an automobile engine, affect the operation of the spark plugs of the ignition system so as to cause the engine to have more power and speed, to be smoother in its running, to have less accumulation of carbon and less mechanical trouble from accumulation of carbon, to cause the engine to start more readily, and to save gas in the operation of the engine, and that by the use of the said applicance or device more mileage can be obtained from a certain quantity of gas than would be obtained without the use of the said appliance or device; unless and until the said appliance or device is in fact so constructed and so adjusted to the resistance of fouled spark plugs of an ignition system with which it is sold to be used, that the appliance or device will interrupt the electric current of the ignition system to the extent necessary to cause the fouled spark plugs to fire, which, before the appliance or device was used, would not fire.

And it is hereby further ordered, adjudged, and decreed, That the respondent, Nathan Hoffman, shall, within 30 days after the service

The Federal Trade Commission, petitioner herein, having filed with this court on, to wit, October 21, 1935, its application for the enforcement of an order to cease and desist issued by it against the respondent, under date of June 12, 1934, under the provisions of Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes" (38 Stat. 719, 15 U. S. C. A., sec. 45); and said petitioner, having also certified and filed herein, as required by law, a transcript of the entire record in the proceeding lately pending before it, in which said order to cease and desist was entered, including all the testimony taken and the report of said petitioner; and respondent having subsequently filed his answer to said application for enforcement, in which answer respondent stated he was not willing to contest said application for enforcement or the proceedings based thereon, and in which answer said respondent consented that this court might, upon said application and respondent's answer thereto, and upon the pleadings, testimony, and proceedings set forth in the transcript aforesaid, make and enter its decree affirming said order to cease and desist and commanding respondent, his agents, employees, and representatives to comply therewith.

And it is hereby further ordered, adjudged, and decreed, That the respondent, Ward J. Miller, shall, within 60 days after the service upon him of a copy of this decree, file with the Federal Trade Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this decree.

FAIRYFOOT PRODUCTS COMPANY v. FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION

No. 5426

(Circuit Court of Appeals, Seventh Circuit. December 23, 1935)

UNFAIR METHODS OF COMPETITION—MISREPRESENTATION OF BUNION PLASTER—PROPERTIES OR QUALITIES OF PRODUCT.

Evidence held to support Federal Trade Commission's finding that bunion plaster seller's advertising matter stating that by use of seller's plaster bunion were dissolved, that pain stopped instantly, that permanent relief followed, that foot again resumed its natural appearance and shape, that bunion suffering was ended completely, that normal functions were stimulated, and that the absence of irritation and continuous massage of plaster plus seller's special formula gradually reduced bunion hump, constituted unfair trade competition.

CEASE AND DESIST ORDERS—WHERE PREDICATED ON FINDINGS SUPPORTED BY EVIDENCE—COURT'S LIMITATIONS.

Where Federal Trade Commission's findings are supported by evidence, its order properly predicated thereon may not be disturbed by courts (15 U. S. C. A. sec. 45).

[683] STIPULATIONS WITH COMMISSION—WHERE PURPORTED ACCEPTANCE QUALIFIED—EFFECT ON SUBSEQUENT PROCEEDINGS.

Where seller, when first notified by Federal Trade Commission of asserted impropriety in seller's advertising matter, expressed willingness to comply with Commission's wishes, but in making stipulation to discontinue objectionable practices stated that if within six months any competitor used representations or statements equivalent to barred statements, seller would feel at liberty to resume use of phrases contained in stipulation, condition held to neutralize stipulation as undertaking to discontinue alleged unfair trade practices as regards seller's contention that proceeding against seller was contrary to Commission's practice, where stipulation for discontinuance had been made.

1 Reported in 80 F. (2d) 684.

CEASE AND DESIST ORDERS—DISCONTINUANCE OF PRACTICE—WHERE NO DEFINITE ASSURANCE OF NON-RENEWAL—EFFECT.

Mere discontinuance of unfair competitive practice cannot serve to bar cease and desist order of Federal Trade Commission based on that discontinued practice, particularly in absence of definite assurance that it will not be renewed.

"MONEY-BACK" SALES—WHERE MISREPRESENTATION IN OFFERING—EFFECT.

That sales were made on stipulation that if after seven days' trial customer was not satisfied he could return unused portion of article purchased and obtain refund of entire purchase price held not to indicate absence of unfair trade practice, since unfairness was not in sales, but in competition in trade.

UNFAIR METHODS OF COMPETITION—GOOD FAITH OF RESPONDENT—EFFECT.

Unfair competitive practice may exist even if one accused of practice is in entire good faith in its employment.

On petition to review cease and desist order of Commission, order affirmed.

Before EVANS and ALSCHULER, Circuit Judges, and STONE, District Judge.

ALSCHULER, Circuit Judge:

Petitioner seeks review of a "cease and desist" order1 of the Federal Trade Commission upon its holding that petitioner had

1 "It is now ordered that the respondent, Fairyfoot Products Co., its officers, agents, and employees, forthwith cease and desist from representing, in advertising matter, circular letters, by means of radio broadcast, or otherwise, in or in connection with selling or offering for sale in interstate commerce, its device or preparation known as 'Fairyfoot' bunion remedy treatment:

'That the treatment is approved by leading physicians and surgeons; that by the use of Fairyfoot bunions are dissolved, pain is stopped instantly, or almost instantly, and permanent relief follows; the foot again resumes its natural appearance and shape; bunion suffering is ended completely, the normal functions are stimulated; the absence of irritation and the continuous massage of the plaster plus the special 'Fairyfoot' formula gradually reduces the bunion lump; that 'Fairyfoot' gently dissolves the swelling caused by inflammation and should restore the foot to its normal appearance; it brings sure and certain relief from bunion suffering and the user can know the pleasure of bunion-free feet; and cease and desist from representing in any other or similar manner or words that its said device or preparation works a cure for, or gives permanent relief from, bunions, or attribute to it or its medicinal formula any result or effect other than that which may be derived from a mechanical device that relieves the pressure or irritation of the shoe at the affected part and temporarily relieves pain.'
transgressed the Federal Trade Commission Act by its unfair competition in the advertising of a bunion plaster.

There is no question but that petitioner, in the marketing in interstate commerce of its bunion plaster, had employed the advertising methods condemned by the Commission's order. Petitioner maintains, however, that this matter was not properly objectionable, but was largely justified by the facts, and that where exaggeration appeared it was only such "puffing" of the article as is not violative of the law. Petitioner further contends and the evidence fairly es-establishes, that long prior to the filing of the Commission's complaint petitioner had been informed by the Commission that the advertising matter was objectionable, and was asked to refrain from further employment of it; that thereupon petitioner modified its advertisements by eliminating the alleged objectionable features, destroying its plates which contained them, and preparing new advertising matter which was submitted to the Commission and was thereafter used; and that petitioner entered into an obligation to the Commission that the alleged objectionable matter would not again be, and that it was not thereafter, employed; that it was the practice of the Commission in such cases to accept this assurance, and not begin any proceeding based on the practices objected to which had been in good faith abandoned and were not thereafter renewed; that for over two years next preceding the commencement of the proceeding against the petitioner the matters called to its attention by the Commission as objectionable had been entirely eliminated, and were not used; that nevertheless, contrary to the practice of the Commission, the proceeding against petitioner was begun, predicated entirely upon the advertising matter which had long been discontinued; and that the findings of the Commission and its cease and desist order were based wholly upon the abandoned advertising matter.

That petitioner's plaster has virtue may, for the purposes hereof, be conceded. Indeed, it would be quite unreasonable to assume that one putting out a purported remedy for an affliction would not employ some ingredients or means calculated to benefit some cases at some stage. But this would not justify such sweeping claims as the condemned items of this advertising matter disclose, which were evidently intended to induce in the public mind the belief that here was an absolute and unfailing panacea for bunions of all kinds and degrees.

Just where lies the line between "puffing", which is not unlawful and unwarranted, and misleading representations in advertising, is often very difficult of ascertainment. But in our judgment this case does not present such embarrassment, since the advertising here condemned is well beyond any "puffing" indulgence.
We are satisfied that the record discloses substantial evidence to support the Commission's findings that the condemned advertising matter constituted unfair trade competition. In general, where the Commission's findings are thus supported, its order properly predicated thereon may not be disturbed by the courts. 15 U. S. C. A. sec. 45; Federal Trade Comm. v. Algoma Lumber Co., 291 U. S. 67; Federal Trade Comm. v. Pacific States Paper Trade Assn., 273 U. S. 52; Federal Trade Comm. v. Winsted Hosiery Co., 258 U. S. 483.

It seems that after the Commission first notified petitioner of the asserted impropriety in the advertising matter, petitioner, while maintaining the propriety of its advertising, expressed a willingness to comply with the Commission's wishes in the matter; and thereafter there was sent from the Commission to petitioner a form to be filled out, which embodied an undertaking to discontinue and not renew the methods of competition objected to as unfair. This form petitioner filled out and signed and forwarded to the Commission. Probably this would have ended the matter but for the communication which petitioner sent the Commission with the executed form, stating:

If within six months from date any competitor publishes or uses in any form of printed matter words or phrases such as we have been barred from using, or any representations or statements equivalent thereto, in form or substance, we shall then feel at full liberty to resume any and all part of such phrases or words as are contained in the stipulation.

The Commission made no reply to this communication, but about two years later filed the complaint. Thereafter, in replying to petitioner's contention that the objectionable advertising had been long and permanently discontinued, and an undertaking to that effect sent to the Commission, it was stated to petitioner on behalf of the Commission:

This condition made the acceptance of your stipulation impossible and the Commission declined to approve it, and then ordered that the complaint against you be issued and served.

While it would have been in line with good practice and gracious conduct for the Commission to notify petitioner that no such conditional stipulation could be or would be accepted, we are of the view that the imposition of the condition neutralized the stipulation as an undertaking to discontinue the alleged unfair trade practices. Besides, it has been often held that the mere discontinuance of an unfair competitive practice cannot serve to bar a "cease and desist" order based on that discontinued practice, particularly where there is no definite assurance that it will not be renewed. Federal Trade Comm. v. Wallace (C. C. A.) 75 F. (2d) 733; Federal Trade Comm. v. Good-Grape Co. (C. C. A.) 45 F. (2d) 70; Lighthouse Rug Co. v. Federal Trade Comm. (C. C. A.) 35 F. (2d) 163; Arkansas Wholesale

It is contended for petitioner that all its sales were made upon the stipulation that if after seven days' trial the customer is not satisfied with the remedy he may return the unused portion of it and the whole purchase price will be unconditionally refunded, and that this of itself indicates the absence of unfair trade practice. The unfairness alleged is not in any sale or sales, but in competition in the trade. If without any refund offer the methods to induce purchase of the articles are unfairly competitive, it is immaterial what the seller may propose to do in case the customer becomes dissatisfied. The unfairness, if any, lies in the methods of securing the order as against competitors, regardless of what thereafter may happen. In Harrison v. United States (C. C. A.) 200 Fed. 662, which petitioner cites with evident reliance, no such question was involved. In that case there were indictments for using the mails in furtherance of a scheme to defraud in the sale of washing machines and vacuum cleaners. It was held that a bona fide offer to refund in case of a buyer's dissatisfaction would have important and possibly controlling bearing upon the question of fraudulent scheme. But no question of fraud is here involved. Indeed, a given unfair competitive practice may exist even if the one accused of the practice is in entire good faith in its employment. Federal Trade Comm. v. Algoma Lumber Co., supra, p. 79; Federal Trade Comm. v. Balme (C. C. A.) 23 F. (2d) 615.

While the Commission's findings whereon its order herein is predicated are phrased in the present as well as in the past tense, we do not understand that these findings to any extent impugn or condemn the advertising matter employed by petitioner after its discontinuance of the advertising matter first complained of; nor that the order under review includes within its scope any of petitioner's advertising matter used after such discontinuance; and it is upon such construction of the order that we conclude the order is in this respect, as well as otherwise, not objectionable.

The order of the Commission is affirmed.

IN THE MATTER OF LOUIS LEAVITT

(Circuit Court of Appeals, Second Circuit. December 24, 1935)

Contempt Proceedings—Violation of Section 5—Court Decrees or Orders Enjoining—Misrepresentation of Paints.
