3. Representing, by the use of the term "Made by," or any other term of similar import or meaning, or in any other manner, that it is the manufacturer of said barometers, or is other than the assembler thereof, until and unless it actually manufactures such barometers and the movements or mechanisms thereof.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.
testimony and other evidence taken before Arthur F. Thomas and John W. Addison, examiners of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, briefs filed herein, and oral arguments by Joseph C. Fehr, counsel for the Commission, and by Frank T. O'Brien, counsel for the respondent, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Fee & Stemwedel, Inc., its officers, representatives, agents and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of barometers, combination thermometers, hygrometers, and barometers, and other weather indicating instruments in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing, by the use of the term "Made in U. S. A." or any other terms of similar import or meaning or in any other manner, that the said barometers, combination thermometers, hygrometers, and barometers or other weather indicating instruments are wholly of American manufacture, when such products, or the movements thereof, or a substantial portion of the parts thereof, are of foreign manufacture.

2. Causing the brands or marks on imported barometer movements or other parts, or on other similar products, which indicate the foreign origin or manufacture thereof to be removed, erased or concealed so as to mislead or deceive ultimate purchasers with reference to the foreign origin or manufacture thereof, unless the removal or erasure or concealment of said brands or marks is necessary to the further manufacture or processing of said products.

3. Representing that respondent manufactures barometers unless and until it owns and operates or directly and absolutely controls the plant or factory wherein said products are manufactured by it.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

Complaint

IN THE MATTER OF

NEW YORK PATTERN COMPANY, INC., FASHION INSTITUTE, INC., AND JOHN HOWIE WRIGHT

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Where a corporation and an individual, who dominated and controlled the activities thereof, engaged in manufacture and sale of dress patterns under registered trade-mark "Hollywood"—

(a) Distributed to trade throughout United States, counter display catalogs of its said "Hollywood" patterns, front cover page of which simulated, with respect both to color, varying from month to month, and design depicted thereon, consisting of five-pointed silver star superimposed on basic coloring, similar catalogs of Hollywood Pattern Company, through which, as its wholly owned subsidiary, publisher of style magazine "Vogue" had for a number of years sold, under its registered trade-mark "Hollywood," its cheaper patterns, Samples of which had been distributed to chain and department stores throughout the United States and which, by end of February 1933, were on sale in practically every State of the United States; and

(b) Informed retail dealers in paper dress patterns throughout the United States, through its agents, that patterns shown in its catalogs were the only "Hollywood" patterns on the market, and in some instances made representation that said corporation had purchased the business of said Hollywood Pattern Co. to said retail dealers, by whom aforesaid representations were communicated to the purchasing public;

With result that members of consuming public purchased "Hollywood" patterns of said representing corporation as and for the patterns of said Hollywood Pattern Co., and trade was thus diverted from latter to it:

HeId, That such acts, policies and practices were to the prejudice of the public and of competitor, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. Charles F. Diggs, trial examiner,

Mr. Reuben J. Martin for the Commission.

Mr. Samuel Randel, of New York City, for respondents.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that New York Pattern Co., Inc., Fashion Institute, Inc., corporations, and John Howie Wright, an individual, have been, and are, using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereto would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Said respondent New York Pattern Co., Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of New York, with its principal office and place of business located at 119 West Nineteenth Street, in the city of New York, within the State of New York, and with its factory located in the city of South Bend, within the State of Indiana. Said respondent is now, and for more than 3 years last past has been, engaged in the manufacture and sale of paper dress patterns. Said respondent causes said paper dress patterns, when sold by it, to be transported from Indiana, the State of manufacture, to the purchasers thereof located in the State of Indiana and in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. There is now, and for more than 3 years last past has been, a constant current of trade and commerce by said respondent in said paper dress patterns between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. Said respondent Fashion Institute, Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of New York, with its principal office and place of business located at 119 West Nineteenth Street, in the city of New York, within the State of New York. Said respondent, Fashion Institute, Inc., is now, and for more than 3 years last past has been, engaged in the manufacture and sale of paper dress patterns, the publication of fashion magazines, and the dissemination of fashion news and information to dry goods retailers. Said respondent Fashion Institute, Inc., causes said paper dress patterns, magazines, fashion news and information, when sold by it, to be transported from the State of manufacture to the purchasers thereof located in the State of New York and in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. There is now, and for more than 3 years last past has been, a constant current of trade and commerce by said respondent, Fashion Institute, Inc., in said paper dress patterns, fashion magazines, fashion news and fashion information between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. Said respondents New York Pattern Co., Inc., and Fashion Institute, Inc., in the course and conduct of their respective businesses are now, and for more than 3 years last past have been, in substantial competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia with various individuals, firms, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the interstate sale of paper dress patterns, fashion magazines, fashion news, and fashion information.

Par. 4. Said respondent John Howie Wright is an individual whose principal place of business is located at 119 West Nineteenth Street in the city of New York, within the State of New York. Said respondent is the dominating personality behind said respondents New York Pattern Co., Inc., and Fashion Institute, Inc., and in various other corporations engaged in a similar business, which are affiliated with the said respondents New York Pattern Co., Inc., and Fashion Institute, Inc. As the dominating personality in said corporate respondents, New York Pattern Co., Inc., and Fashion Institute, Inc., and in the various affiliated companies, said John Howie Wright directs and controls the business policies and practices of said corporate respondents.

Par. 5. Conde Nast Publications, Inc., is a corporation existing under the laws of the State of New York, and for many years has been engaged in the publication and distribution in interstate commerce of fashion magazines, including Vogue, and fashion news, and fashion information. The magazine Vogue is recognized as one of the outstanding fashion magazines for women published in the United States, and the fashion news and information which is distributed by said Conde Nast Publications, Inc., is considered by women and by fashion experts to be among the most outstanding and authoritative in the country. Said Conde Nast Publications, Inc., has, through the medium of one of its divisions known as "Vogue Pattern Service," for many years been engaged in the manufacture and sale in interstate commerce of paper dress patterns. Said paper dress patterns have been sold, and now are sold, in the leading department and women's apparel and specialty stores throughout the country, under the trade name of "Vogue patterns," and are of outstanding quality as to fashion, workmanship, fit, and style. Said Vogue patterns are generally recognized as being among the leading patterns in the higher class pattern field, and retail at prices from 40 cents to $2, each.

Par. 6. In the year 1932, after due investigation, said Conde Nast Publications, Inc., decided to enter the low priced paper dress pattern field by manufacturing and distributing a paper dress pattern to retail at 15 cents. It was decided that the low priced paper dress patterns would not be manufactured by the makers of Vogue patterns, or sold in connection with Vogue patterns, but would be manufactured by a separate corporation and marketed under the brand name "Hollywood," as the city of Hollywood, Calif., has become recognized as a fashion center, and would be distributed through stores other than those handling "Vogue" patterns. Said Conde Nast Publications, Inc., on December 6, 1932, filed application in the U. S. Patent Office, to register the word "Hollywood" as a trade-mark for paper dress patterns, alleging it had used the word "Hollywood" in its business in interstate commerce since November 25, 1932. The application was refused under the Act of 1905, but, after amendment, registration of the word "Hollywood" as a trade-mark for paper dress patterns was granted to said Conde Nast Publications, Inc., on January 9, 1934, under the act of March 19, 1920. Thereafter, and in furtherance of its said plans, said Conde Nast Publications, Inc., caused to be organized under the laws of the State of Connecticut, a wholly-owned subsidiary corporation, under the name of Hollywood Pattern Co. Said Hollywood Pattern Co. has been, and now is, manufacturing and selling and distributing paper dress patterns in interstate commerce, under the name of "Hollywood patterns," to medium and cheaper priced stores, and said patterns retail for 15 cents, each.

Par. 7. For a number of years prior to the time that the Hollywood Pattern Co. began to make low priced paper dress patterns, this field was dominated by two manufacturers of paper dress patterns, namely, the Simplicity Pattern Co., and the respondent New York Pattern Co., Inc. Patterns manufactured and distributed by the respondent New York Pattern Co., Inc., and Simplicity Pattern Co., were patterns offered for sale principally in the cheaper priced stores, and generally through the medium of chain stores. Said respondent New York Pattern Co., Inc., prior to February 1934, manufactured paper dress patterns under the brand name of "Modern patterns," which retailed for 15 cents, and the "New York patterns," which retailed for 10 cents.

Par. 8. Said respondent New York Pattern Co., Inc., on December 30, 1932, after learning that Conde Nast Publications, Inc., was preparing to offer to the purchasing public paper dress patterns in the lower price field, filed application with the United States Patent Office for registration of the name "Hollywood" as a trade-mark for paper dress patterns, and alleged that said name had been used by said New York Pattern Co., Inc., in its business in interstate commerce, since about December 14, 1932. Said application was refused under the act of 1905, but after amendment, on February 6, 1934, said respondent New York Pattern Co., Inc., was granted a trade-mark in the name "Hollywood," for use on paper dress patterns, under the act of March 19, 1920. Thereafter, said respondent New York Pattern Co., Inc., has been manufacturing and distributing, and does now manufacture and distribute, in interstate commerce paper dress patterns under the brand name of "Hollywood patterns," which said patterns sell at retail for 10 cents.

Par. 9. Said individual respondent, John Howie Wright, and said corporate respondents, the New York Pattern Co., Inc., and Fashion Institute, Inc., which said corporate respondents are affiliated, and are controlled, directed and dominated by, said individual respondent, John Howie Wright, have, since February 1934, hindered and suppressed, and are now hindering and suppressing, competition in the manufacture and interstate sale of paper dress patterns in the low price field by:

1. Causing to be circulated throughout the United States, to retail stores, generally, engaged in the sale of paper dress patterns, and including stores handling patterns manufactured, sold, and distributed by the said Hollywood Pattern Co., various false, deceptive, misleading and disparaging statements as to the character, style, quality, workmanship, and desirability of paper dress patterns manufactured and sold by the makers of Vogue patterns, which said statements were in the form of fictitious newspaper clippings.

2. Causing to be circulated throughout the United States, and to retail stores handling paper dress patterns generally, including stores handling patterns manufactured, sold, and distributed by the said Hollywood Pattern Co., false, deceptive, and misleading statements as to the financial standing and stability of said Conde Nast Publications, Inc., the manufacturer and distributor of Vogue patterns and the sole owner of the Hollywood Pattern Co.

3. Causing to be circulated throughout the United States, and in retail stores generally, engaged in the sale of paper dress patterns, including those stores which handle patterns manufactured, sold, and distributed by the said Hollywood Pattern Co., various false, deceptive, and misleading statements as to the salability of Hollywood patterns manufactured and sold by the Hollywood Pattern Co., and various false, deceptive, and misleading statements to the effect that the Hollywood Pattern Co. is rendering second rate service.

4. Causing to be circulated throughout the retail stores engaged in the sale of paper dress patterns generally, including those stores which handle Vogue patterns, various false and misleading statements tending to disparage Vogue patterns by alleging that said patterns are the same as the cheaper-priced Hollywood patterns manufactured by the said Hollywood Pattern Co.

5. Issuing and distributing to retail stores throughout the United States engaged in the sale of paper dress patterns generally, including those stores which handle patterns manufactured by the said Hollywood Pattern Co., counter display books similar in design and color to the counter display books which are distributed by the said Hollywood Pattern Co., and which simulate and imitate the said counter display books of said Hollywood Pattern Co.

Par. 10. Said respondent Fashion Institute, Inc., in the conduct of its business, has caused retail stores generally, throughout the country, and that portion of the public which buys paper dress patterns, to believe that it, the said respondent, Fashion Institute, Inc., is an impartial and reliable agency for the dissemination of fashion news and information, by deceptively and misleadingly using as a part of its corporate name the word "Institute."

Par. 11. In truth and in fact, the paper dress patterns manufactured and sold by the said Conde Nast Publications, Inc., under the brand name of Vogue patterns are patterns of the highest quality as to style, fashion, design, workmanship, and fit; Conde Nast Publications, Inc., is of sound financial standing and stability; the paper dress patterns manufactured and sold by the said Hollywood Pattern Co. are not seconds, but of first quality workmanship designed and intended to be sold in the lower priced pattern field, and the service rendered by the said Hollywood Pattern Co. is first class service; Vogue patterns are not the same as Hollywood patterns, but are different as to style, fashion, and design, and intended to be, and are, sold for a different purpose to a different class of trade; the paper dress patterns manufactured by the said respondent New York Pattern Co. under the name Hollywood patterns are not the same as the Hollywood patterns manufactured and sold by the said Hollywood Pattern Co.; and in truth and in fact said respondent Fashion Institute, Inc., is not an impartial and reliable agency engaged in the dissemination of fashion news and information, but is a private organization engaged in the manufacture and sale of low priced paper dress patterns and fashion news and information for private gain.

Par. 12. The aforesaid false, deceptive, misleading, and disparaging statements and representations so made by said respondents, as above alleged, have the tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive, and do mislead and deceive, the purchasing public into the false and erroneous beliefs (a) that said statements are true; (b) that the patterns manufactured by the makers of Vogue patterns are undesirable as to character, workmanship, style, design, fashion, and fit; (c) that said Conde Nast Publications, Inc., the manufacturer and distributor of Vogue patterns is a company of unsound and unreliable financial standing and of no stability; (d) that the patterns manufactured and service rendered by the said Hollywood Pattern Co. are second rate and of inferior quality; (e) that Vogue patterns which are sold in the high class stores at prices ranging from 40 cents to $2 each are in truth and in fact exactly the same patterns and styles that are being sold under the name of Hollywood patterns through the lower priced, and chain, stores at 15 cents; (f) that in some instances the Hollywood patterns sold by the respondent New York Pattern Co. are manufactured and sold by the said Hollywood Pattern Co., and (g) that the respondent Fashion Institute is in truth and in fact a reliable agency for the dissemination of fashion news and information. The use by said respondent New York Pattern Co. of style books similar in color and design to the style books of the said Hollywood Pattern Co. is calculated to, tends to, and does, confuse the paper dress patterns manufactured by the two said companies in the minds of the purchasing public. Further, said false, deceptive, misleading, and disparaging statements have the tendency and capacity to, and do, divert trade to the said corporate respondents from their competitors, especially the said Hollywood Pattern Co., and to induce the public to purchase Hollywood patterns manufactured and sold by the said respondent New York Pattern Co. in preference to Hollywood patterns manufactured by the said Hollywood Pattern Co., because of such erroneous beliefs brought about as hereinabove set out. As a result thereof, substantial injury has been, and is now being, done by said respondents to substantial competitors in commerce among and between various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 13. The above acts and things done by said respondents, New York Pattern Co., Inc., Fashion Institute, Inc., and John Howie Wright, are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and of the respondents' competitors in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled, "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," approved September 26, 1914.

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on April 28, A. D. 1937, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondents, New York Pattern Co., Inc., Fashion Institute, Inc., and John Howie Wright, charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of answers thereto by respondents New York Pattern Co., Inc., and John Howie Wright, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of the complaint were introduced by Reuben J. Martin, attorney for the FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION DECISIONS

Findings

Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by Samuel Randel, before Charles F. Diggs, a trial examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceedings regularly came on for final consideration before the said Commission on the said complaint, the answers thereto, the testimony and other evidence, and brief in support of the complaint; and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent New York Pattern Co., Inc., was incorporated under the laws of the State of New York in 1928 or 1929, and its principal place of business is located at 119 West Nineteenth Street, in the city and State of New York.

Par. 2. Respondent Fashion Institute, Inc., was incorporated under the laws of the State of New York, but has not functioned or engaged in any business since approximately 1934.

Par. 3. The stockholders are the same in both of the respondent corporations.

Par. 4. Respondent John Howie Wright now resides in Toronto, Canada, and since 1936 has not owned any stock in either of the respondent corporations, nor has he participated in the management of either; but from the time of its incorporation up to the year 1936 he dominated and controlled the activities of respondent New York Pattern Co., Inc., and he dominated and controlled the activities of respondent Fashion Institute, Inc., from the time of its incorporation until it ceased to do business.

Par. 5. Respondent New York Pattern Co., Inc., since 1928 or 1929 has been engaged in the business of manufacturing paper dress patterns at its factory located in South Bend, Ind., and in the sale and distribution thereof to customers located throughout the United States.

Par. 6. The respondent Fashion Institute, Inc., during the time it was functioning, was engaged in the business of manufacturing paper dress patterns, and in the sale and distribution thereof to customers located throughout the United States.

Par. 7. Respondent New York Pattern Co., Inc., from the date of its incorporation to the present time, has been in substantial competition in commerce between and among the several States of the

Findings

United States with corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships engaged in the interstate sale of paper dress patterns, and respondent Fashion Institute, Inc., during the time it was functioning was similarly engaged.

Par. 8. Conde-Nast Publications, Inc., for many years past has published a style magazine known as "Vogue," and has also manufactured and sold throughout the United States paper dress patterns known as "Vogue" patterns; these patterns are recognized by the trade and public as being among the best standards of fashion in the higher-priced class, and range in price from 30 cents to $2 each. This corporation decided to manufacture paper dress patterns to be sold at retail for 15 cents, and to be known as "Hollywood" patterns, and in October 1932, it distributed samples of such patterns to chain and department stores throughout the United States and by the end of February 1933, these patterns were on sale in practically every State of the United States. This corporation, in order that the sale of its "Vogue" patterns should not be adversely affected, in December 1932, caused to be incorporated its wholly owned subsidiary, Hollywood Pattern Co., which company, since its incorporation, has manufactured the said "Hollywood" patterns. On December 6, 1932, Conde-Nast Publications, Inc., filed an application in the United States Patent Office to have the name "Hollywood" registered as a trade-mark, and on January 9, 1934, said application was granted. The Hollywood Pattern Co. used this trade-mark, but the same was not assigned to it until August 1936.

Par. 9. Respondent New York Pattern Co., Inc., on December 30, 1932, filed its application in the United States Patent Office to have the name "Hollywood" registered as a trade-mark and said application was granted on February 6, 1934. Since December 1932, this respondent has manufactured and sold throughout the United States paper dress patterns which retail at 10 cents each, and which it designates "Hollywood" patterns.

Par. 10. Respondent New York Pattern Co., Inc., distributes to the trade throughout the United States counter display catalogues of its "Hollywood" patterns, the front cover page of which simulates those distributed by the Hollywood Pattern Co., with respect both to the color which varies from month to month, and the design depicted thereon, which is a five-pointed silver star superimposed on the basic color. Said respondent, through its agents, informs retail dealers in paper dress patterns throughout the United States that the patterns shown in its catalogues are the only "Hollywood" patterns on the market, and in some instances said agents represented that said respondent corporation had purchased the business of the Hollywood Pattern Co., and such representations were communicated to the purchasing public.

PAR. 11. As a result of the matters detailed in the foregoing paragraph, members of the consuming public have purchased the “Hollywood” patterns of respondent New York Pattern Co., Inc., in the belief that they were purchasing patterns of the Hollywood Pattern Co., and as a result, trade has been diverted from the Hollywood Pattern Co. to said respondent.

CONCLUSION

The acts, policies and practices of the respondents as set forth in the foregoing findings as to the facts are to the prejudice of the public and of one of respondents' competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce, in violation of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answers of respondents New York Pattern Co., Inc., and John Howie Wright, testimony and other evidence taken before Charles F. Diggs, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, and brief in support of the complaint filed herein, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondents, John Howie Wright and New York Pattern Co., Inc., their officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of paper dress patterns in interstate commerce or in the District of Columbia, do forthwith cease and desist:

1. From representing by means of counter display catalogs or in any other manner that the paper dress patterns sold by the New York Pattern Co., Inc., under the designation “Hollywood” patterns are the only Hollywood patterns on the market.

2. From representing that the New York Pattern Co., Inc., has purchased the business of the Hollywood Pattern Co.

3. From representing that the paper dress patterns sold by the New York Pattern Co., Inc. under the name Hollywood patterns are the same as the paper dress patterns sold by the Hollywood Pattern Co. under the name Hollywood patterns.

4. From distributing a counter display catalog of the Hollywood patterns of the New York Pattern Co., Inc. which simulates, with respect to color and design, the counter display catalog of the Hollywood patterns of the Hollywood Pattern Co.

It is further ordered, That the complaint herein as to the respondent, Fashion Institute, Inc., be and the same is hereby dismissed.

It is further ordered, That the respondents, New York Pattern Co., Inc., and John Howie Wright, shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.
IN THE MATTER OF

HARRY CUTLER, INDIVIDUALLY, AND TRADING AS GENERAL SALES COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Where an individual engaged in sale and distribution of electric razors, cameras, radios, kitchen appliances, pencils, and pen and pencil sets to purchasers in other States—

Furnished to his customers various devices which involved the operation of games of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery schemes through which his said merchandise was distributed to the ultimate consumers thereof wholly by lot or chance, and which included the furnishing of push cards, order blanks, and circulars explaining his plan of selling his said products and allotting his premiums or prizes to the patrons of such push cards, in accordance with which amount paid for chance, if any, by customer was dependent upon number pushed by chance, and certain number entitled purchaser securing same to pen and pencil set, and receipt or failure to receive electric razor or article being thus disposed of was dependent upon success or failure in selecting from list of feminine names displayed on card, name corresponding to that concealed under card's large master seal, and persons who did not push winning number or name as above set forth, received nothing for the money paid by them, except right to push card; and

Placed thereby in hands of others means of conducting lotteries in the sale of his said merchandise through use of such cards as above described, and varying therefrom in minor details only, by which various other articles were sold and distributed by him solely by lot or chance, contrary to an established public policy of the United States Government, and in violation of criminal law and in competition with many who refrain from disposing of their merchandise by a method involving lottery or game of chance as contrary to public policy;

With result that many persons were attracted by his said sales plan or method of distribution of his merchandise, by element of chance involved therein, and were thereby induced to buy and sell such merchandise in preference to that offered and sold by his competitors who do not use same or similar methods of distribution, and trade was unfairly diverted to him from competitors aforesaid who, as above set forth, refrain from use of such method:

Held, That such practices were to the prejudice of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. Charles F. Diggs, trial examiner.
Mr. D. C. Daniel and Mr. P. C. Kolinski for the Commission.
Nash & Donnelly, of Chicago, Ill., for respondent.
Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Harry Cutler, individually and trading as General Sales Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Harry Cutler, is an individual doing business under the trade name of General Sales Co., with his principal office and place of business located at 231 South Wells Street, Chicago, Ill. Respondent is now, and has, for some time last past been, engaged in the sale and distribution of electric razors, cameras, radios, kitchen appliances, pencils, combination pen and pencil, and other articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent causes and has caused his said products, when sold, to be shipped or transported from his principal place of business aforesaid to purchasers thereof in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia at their respective points of location. There is now, and has been for some time last past, a course of trade by said respondent in such merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business respondent is and has been in competition with other individuals and with partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 2. In the course and conduct of his business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent, in soliciting the sale of and in selling and distributing his merchandise in commerce, furnishes and has furnished various push cards and plans of merchandising which involve the operation of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes, by which said merchandise is sold and distributed to the ultimate consumers thereof wholly by lot or chance. The sales plan or method adopted and used by respondent was and is substantially as follows:

Respondent distributes and has distributed to the purchasing public in commerce certain literature and instructions including, among other things, push cards, order blanks, illustrations of said products, and circulars explaining respondent’s said plan or method of selling said merchandise and of allotting it as premiums or prizes to the operators of said push cards. One of respondent's said push cards bears 40 feminine names with ruled columns on the reverse side of said card for writing in the name of the customer opposite the feminine name selected. Said push card has 40 small partially perforated disks and on the face of each of said disks is printed the word "push." Immediately beneath each of said disks is printed one of the feminine names printed alphabetically on the reverse side of the card. Concealed within each disk is a number, which is disclosed when the disk is pushed or separated from the card. The push card also has a large master seal, and concealed within the master seal is one of the feminine names appearing on the reverse side of said card.
The push card bears legends or instructions as follows:

NAME UNDER SEAL RECEIVES A GUARANTEED HAMILTON ELECTRIC DRY SHAVER NUMBERS Number 33 Receives
22, 25, 26, 27 PACKARD
ARE FREE Combination Pen and Pencil
NUMBERS 1 TO 29 PAY WHAT YOU DRAW
Numbers Over 29 Pay Only 29¢—No Higher
Write your name opposite name you select on reverse side.
PUSH OUT WITH PENCIL

Respondent furnishes and has furnished said representatives with additional instructions to be used in connection with the sale of his merchandise by means of said push card, some of which are as follows:

"How to Obtain Your Hamilton Electric Dry Shaver At No Cost
SUGGESTIONS FOR USING SALES CARD

The push card contains 40 girls' names—beneath each is a concealed number.
These numbers range from one upwards. The numbers from 9 to 16 ARE FREE. All numbers under 29 pay amount of number (one pays 1¢—19 pays 19¢, etc.). Any number over 29 only pays 29¢. NO HIGHER.

Your friends select any name they choose and push out the corresponding hole. You write down your friends' names opposite the names they select in the space provided on the back of this card. When all have been pushed out, you will find that you will have collected $9.95. Then remove the large seal at the top. Under it is the fortunate name. The person who selected that name is entitled to a Hamilton Electric Shaver. Now you can destroy the card—there is no need to return it to us.

Fill out the order blank (see other side). Send the order blank to us together with a Money Order or Bank Draft for $9.95. Payment of this amount entitles you to two Hamilton Shavers, one for you and one for the fortunate person who selected the name under the seal. The two Hamilton Shavers and other gifts will be shipped to you prepaid. Thus, you will receive your Hamilton Electric Dry Shaver at No Cost to You, and the fortunate person will receive his or her Dry Shaver At Hardly Any Cost. Isn't this an easy way to obtain valuable gifts?
You will have a lot of fun getting folks to push out names on the card. Everyone you know and come in contact with is a prospect. Show it to your fellow employees, friends, relatives and acquaintances. Then there is the grocer, butcher, baker, beauty parlor operator, barber, lodge and club member—and all the different stores where you trade. Sales of respondent's products by means of said push card are made in accordance with the above described legends and instructions. Said prizes or premiums are allotted to the customers or purchasers in accordance with the above legends and instructions. The said articles of merchandise are thus distributed to the purchasing public wholly by lot or chance.

Respondent furnishes and has furnished various push cards accompanied by said order blanks, instructions and other printed matter for use in the sale and distribution of all of his said merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. The sales plan or method involved in connection with the sale of all of said merchandise by means of said push cards is the same in principle as the one hereinabove described, varying only in detail.

PAR. 3. The persons to whom respondent furnishes the said push cards use the same in purchasing, selling and distributing respondent's merchandise in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan or method. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of his merchandise in accordance with the sales plan or method hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said sales plan or method in the sale of his merchandise and the sale of said merchandise by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plan or method is a practice of the sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of criminal laws.

PAR. 4. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above alleged involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure an article of merchandise without charge or at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms and corporations who sell and distribute merchandise in competition with respondent, as above alleged, are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other method that is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain there-
Findings

Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of his merchandise and the element of chance involved therein, and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or an equivalent method. The use of said sales plan or method by respondent, because of said game of chance, has a tendency and capacity to and does unfairly divert trade to respondent from his said competitors who do not use the same or an equivalent method, and as a result thereof substantial injury is being and has been done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on the 31st day of August 1938, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondent, Harry Cutler, individually and trading as General Sales Co., charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint, no answer having been filed by the respondent, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by D. C. Daniel and P. C. Kolinski, attorneys for the Commission, before Charles F. Diggs, an Examiner of the Commission, theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. No testimony or evidence were introduced by John A. Nash, attorney for the respondent. Thereafter, the proceedings regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, testimony and other evidence, and brief of the attorneys for the Commission; and the Commission, having duly considered the same and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.
FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Harry Cutler, doing business under the trade name General Sales Company, has his principal place of business at 231 South Wells Street, Chicago, Ill. Respondent is now and for the past year has been engaged in the sale and distribution of electric razors, cameras, radios, kitchen appliances, pencils and pen-and-pencil sets, all of which are sold and shipped by him to purchasers in States other than the State in which respondent's place of business is located and from which said shipments are made. In the course and conduct of his business respondent has been and is in competition with individuals, partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his said business, respondent furnishes and has furnished to his customers various devices which involve the operation of games of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery schemes, by which said merchandise is distributed to the ultimate consumers thereof wholly by lot or chance. The method or sales plan adopted and used by respondent is as follows:

Respondent furnishes his customers with push cards, order blanks and circulars explaining his plan of selling merchandise and allotting his premiums or prizes to the patrons of said push cards. On some of said push cards appear 40 partially perforated disks marked "Push," below each of which is printed one of the feminine names appearing on the reverse side of the push card. The push card also contains a large master seal, which conceals one of the feminine names. Respondent furnishes his representatives or customers with instructions for using said push card, the method outlined being as follows: The customer pushes the disk over the feminine name selected by him, thus disclosing a number which determines the amount to be paid by him in cents; but those pushing "29" or above are required to pay no more than 29 cents. The persons punching numbers 22, 25, 26, and 27 are not required to pay any amount. When all the disks have been punched, the master seal is broken and the person who has punched the disk over the same feminine name as that disclosed by the removal of the master seal receives an electric razor. The one who pushes the disk which discloses the number "33" receives a pen and pencil set. The person who does not push a winning name or number does not receive anything for the money paid by him except the right to push the card.
Order 28 F. T. C.

Par. 3. Various other articles of merchandise sold and distributed by said respondent are sold by means of push cards similar to that hereinabove described, varying only in minor details, and all of the respondent's products are sold and distributed solely by lot or chance.

Par. 4. Respondent, by the methods hereinabove described, places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of his said merchandise, and the said method of sale and distribution of his product is contrary to the established public policy of the Government of the United States, and is in violation of the criminal law.

Many persons are attracted by respondent's sales plan or method of distribution of his merchandise by the element of chance involved therein, and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by respondent's competitors who do not use the same or similar methods of distribution. Many of respondent's competitors refrain from disposing of their merchandise by a method involving lottery or game of chance because such method is contrary to public policy and as a result, trade is unfairly diverted from such competitors to the respondent.

CONCLUSION

The practices of the respondent as set forth in the aforesaid findings of facts are to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission (respondent having filed no answer thereto), testimony and other evidence taken before Charles F. Diggs, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint (respondent having offered no evidence), brief filed by counsel for the Commission (respondent having filed no brief and oral argument not having been requested), and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Harry Cutler, individually and trading as General Sales Company, or trading under any other name, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of electric razors, cameras, radios, kitchen ap-appliances, pencils, and pen-and-pencil sets, or any other merchandise in commerce as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Supplying to or placing in the hands of others push or pull cards, punchboards or other lottery devices for the purpose of enabling such persons to dispose of or sell any merchandise by the use thereof.

2. Mailing, shipping or transporting to agents or to distributors or members of the public push or pull cards, punchboards or other lottery devices so prepared or printed as to enable said persons to sell or distribute any merchandise by the use thereof.

3. Selling or otherwise disposing of any merchandise by the use of push or pull cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall within 60 days after the service upon him of this order file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.
IN THE MATTER OF

AL B. WOLF AND MAX SCHWARTZ, INDIVIDUALLY AND DOING BUSINESS UNDER THE TRADE NAMES OF PARAMOUNT PRODUCTS COMPANY, AND PARAMOUNT GARMENT COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Where two partners engaged in the sale and distribution of rotary clocks, watches, fountain pen desk sets, pencils, wearing apparel, cameras, and a variety of other articles of merchandise to purchasers in other States—

Furnishing to their customers various devices and plans of merchandising which involved operation of games of chance for distribution of said merchandise to ultimate consumers thereof wholly by lot or chance, and under which they furnished their customers with push cards, order blanks, and circulars explaining their plan of selling said merchandise and allotting premiums or prizes to the patrons of said push cards under a plan in accordance with which amount, if any, paid by patron was dependent upon number pushed by chance, and chance selection of three numbers entitled customers securing said particular numbers to Eversharp pencils, and receipt or failure to receive electric razor or article being thus disposed of was dependent on success or failure in selecting from list of feminine names appearing on the card, name corresponding to that concealed under card's master seal, and operator of card was likewise entitled to such article; and

Placed thereby in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of their said merchandise under which the various articles were sold by means of push cards similar to those above described, and varying therefrom in minor detail only, and were sold and distributed solely by lot or chance; contrary to an established public policy of the United States Government and in violation of the criminal law, and in competition with many who refrain from disposing of their merchandise by a method involving a lottery or game of chance as contrary to public policy;

With result that many persons were attracted by their sales plan or method of distribution of their merchandise by element of chance involved therein, and were thereby induced to buy and sell their merchandise in preference to that offered and sold by their competitors who do not use the same or similar methods of distribution, and trade was thus unfairly diverted to them from competitors aforesaid who do not, as above set forth, use such method:

Held. That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were to the prejudice of the public and of competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. Charles F. Diggs, trial examiner.

Mr. D. C. Daniel and Mr. P. C. Kolinski for the Commission.

Nash & Donnelly, of Chicago, Ill., for respondents.
Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Al B. Wolf and Max Schwartz, individually, and doing business under the trade names of Paramount Products Co. and Paramount Garment Co., hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Par. 1. Respondents, Al B. Wolf and Max Schwartz, are individuals doing business under the trade names of Paramount Products Co. and Paramount Garment Co., with their principal office and place of business located at 637 West Roosevelt Road, Chicago, Ill. Respondent, Max Schwartz, resides at 209 Canal Street, New York City, N. Y. Respondents are now and for some time last past have been engaged in the sale and distribution of rotary clocks, watches, fountain pen desk sets, pencils, razors, bedroom sets, wearing apparel, kitchen appliances, aluminum sets, cameras, traveling cases, dresser sets, rifles, tableware, table linens, cosmetics, and other articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondents cause and have caused said products, when sold, to be transported from their principal place of business in Illinois to purchasers thereof in the various States of the United States other than Illinois and in the District of Columbia at their respective points of location. There is now, and has been for some time last past, a course of trade by said respondents in such merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business, respondents are, and have been, in competition with other partnerships and individuals, and with corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of their business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondents, in soliciting the sale of and in selling and distributing their merchandise in said commerce, furnish and have furnished various devices and plans of merchandising which involve the operation of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes by which said merchandise is sold and distributed to the ultimate consumers thereof, wholly by lot or chance. The sales plan or method adopted and used by respondents was, and is, substantially as follows: Respondents distribute and have distributed to the purchasing public in said commerce certain literature and instructions, including among other things, push cards, order blanks, illustrations of said products, and circulars explaining respondents' plan or method of selling merchandise and of allotting it as premiums or prizes to the operators of said push cards. One of the respondents' push cards bears 63 feminine names with ruled columns on the reverse side of said card for writing in the name of the customers opposite the feminine name selected. Said push card has 63 small, partially perforated disks, and on the face of each of said disks is printed the word "Push." Immediately beneath each of said disks is printed one of the feminine names, printed alphabetically on the reverse side of the card. Concealed within each disk is a number which is disclosed when the disk is pushed or separated from the card. The push card also has a large master seal and concealed within the master seal is one of the feminine names appearing on the reverse side of said card. The push card bears legends or instructions as follows:

NAME UNDER SEAL RECEIVES

(Cut)  Esquire Electric
Numbers 31—41—51  Dry Shaver
Each Receive a Guaranteed  The EVERSHARP PENCIL  Winner
Nos. 1 to 25 Pay 1 to 25  (Do Not Remove)
Nos. Over 25 Pay Only 25  (Until All Sold)
Write Your Name Opposite Name You Select On Reverse Side

12—13—14
ARE FREE

Respondents furnish said representatives with additional instructions to be used in connection with the sale of their merchandise by means of said push card, some of which are as follows:

HOW SALES CARDS CAN BE USED

There is a number under each girl's name. This number represents the amount the person selecting that name is to pay as shown on the face of the card.

To avoid error it is advisable to write the customer's name on the line opposite the name they have selected.

Persons selecting numbers that are designated as Free Numbers on the face of the card Pay Nothing, yet they have an equal opportunity with the others for winning the name shown under the seal.
The numbers are so arranged as to total the amount shown on the back of the sales card. When all names have been taken and collections made the Large Seal is opened and the person who has selected the name corresponding to the name under the seal is declared the winner and is awarded their choice of any one of the awards.

The person selling the card also receives their choice of any one item.

If there are Extra Winners shown on the face of the card the person selecting the designated numbers are to be given those awards.

Prospects are to be found amongst co-workers in the office, store, or shop, friends, the grocer, butcher, beauty operator, barber, baker, fellow lodge or club members; uncles, aunts, cousins, nephews, nieces, neighbors. And many others.

Sales of respondents' products by means of said push card are made in accordance with the above described legends and instructions. Said prizes or premiums are allotted to the customers or purchasers in accordance with the above legends and instructions. The said articles of merchandise are thus distributed to the purchasing public wholly by lot or chance.

Respondents furnish, and have furnished, various push cards accompanied by said order blanks, instructions, and other printed matter for use in the sale and distribution of their merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. The sales plan or method involved in connection with the sale of all said merchandise by means of said push cards is the same in principle as the one hereinabove described, varying only in detail.

Par. 3. The persons to whom respondents furnish the said push cards use the same in purchasing, selling, and distributing respondents' merchandise in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan or method. Respondents thus supply to and place in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of their merchandise in accordance with the sales plan or method hereinabove set forth. The use by respondents of said sales plan or method in the sale of their merchandise and the sale of said merchandise by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plan or method is a practice of the sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws.

Par. 4. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above alleged involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure an article of merchandise without charge or at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell and distribute merchandise in competition with respondents as above alleged, are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other method that is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondents in the sale and distribution of their merchandise and the element of chance involved therein and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondents' merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondents who do not use the same or an equivalent method. The use of said sales plan or method by respondents, because of said game of chance, has a tendency and capacity to and does unfairly divert trade to respondents from their said competitors who do not use the same or an equivalent method, and as a result thereof, substantial injury is being and has been done by respondents to competition in commerce between and among various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce, within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on August 31, 1938, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondents, Al B. Wolf and Max Schwartz, individuals, doing business under the trade names of Paramount Products Co. and Paramount Garment Co., charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act.

After the issuance of said complaint, no answer being filed by the respondents, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of the complaint were introduced by D. C. Daniel and P. C. Kolinski, attorneys for the Commission, before Charles F. Diggs, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it. Respondent's attorney, John A. Nash, introduced no testimony or other evidence in opposition to the complaint. Said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceedings regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, testimony and other evidence, and brief in support of the complaint, no brief being filed in opposition thereto; and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. The respondents, Al B. Wolf, and Max Schwartz, are copartners doing business under the trade names of Paramount Products Co. and Paramount Garment Co., having their principal place of business at No. 637 West Roosevelt Road, Chicago, Ill. The respondents are now, and for some time last past have been, engaged in the sale and distribution of rotary clocks, watches, fountain pen desk sets, pencils, razors, bedroom sets, wearing apparel, kitchen appliances, aluminum sets, cameras, traveling cases, dresser sets, rifles, tableware, linens, cosmetics, and other articles of merchandise, all of which are sold and shipped by them to purchasers in States other than the State in which respondents' place of business is located and from which said shipments are made. In the course and conduct of their business, respondents have been and are in competition with individuals, partnerships, and corporations also engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar articles of merchandise in interstate commerce.

Paragraph 2. In the course and conduct of their business, respondents furnish and have furnished to their customers various devices and plans of merchandising which involve the operation of games of chance, by which said merchandise is distributed to the ultimate consumers thereof wholly by lot or chance. The method, or sales plan, adopted by respondents is as follows:

Respondents furnish their customers with push cards, order blanks, and circulars explaining their plan of selling merchandise and allotting premiums or prizes to the patrons of said push cards. On one of said push cards appear 63 partially perforated disks marked "Push," below each of which is printed one of the feminine names appearing on the reverse side of the push card. The push card also contains a large master seal which conceals one of the feminine names. Respondents furnish their representatives or customers with instructions for using said push cards, the method outlined being as follows:

The patron pushes the disk over the feminine name selected by him, thus disclosing a number which determines the amount to be paid by him in cents, but those punching "25," or above are required to pay no more than 25 cents. The persons punching numbers 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, or 16 are not required to make any payment. When all the disks have been punched the master seal is broken and the person who has punched the disk over the same feminine name as that disclosed by the removal of the master seal receives an electric razor; the person who has punched the disk which disclosed number 31, 41, or 51 receives an Eversharp pencil. The person operating the push board, or selling the pushes, receives an electric razor.

Par. 3. The various other articles of merchandise sold and distributed by respondents are sold by means of push cards similar to those hereinabove described, varying only in minor detail, and all of respondents' products are sold and distributed solely by lot or chance.

Par. 4. Respondents, by the methods hereinabove described, place in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of their said merchandise, and the said method of sale and distribution of their products is contrary to the established public policy of the Government of the United States and is in violation of the criminal law.

Par. 5. Many persons are attracted by respondents' sales plan or method of distribution of their merchandise by the element of chance involved therein, and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondents' merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by respondents' competitors who do not use the same or similar methods of distribution. Many of the respondent's competitors refrain from disposing of their merchandise by a method involving a lottery or game of chance, because such method is contrary to public policy, and as a result, trade is unfairly diverted from such competitors to the respondents.

CONCLUSION

The practices of the respondents, as set forth in the aforesaid findings of facts, are to the prejudice of the public and of respondents' competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in comby it, in support of the allegations of said complaint (respondents having offered no evidence), brief by counsel for the Commission (counsel for respondents having filed no brief and oral argument not having been requested), and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondents, Al B. Wolf and Max Schwartz, individually and doing business under the trade names of Paramount Products Co. and Paramount Garment Co. or trading under any other name, their representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of rotary clocks, watches, fountain pen desk sets, pencils, razors, bedroom sets, wearing apparel, kitchen appliances and aluminum sets, cameras, traveling cases, dresser sets, rifles, tableware, linens, cosmetics, or any other articles of merchandise in commerce as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Supplying to or placing in the hands of others push or pull cards, punchboards or other lottery devices for the purpose of enabling such persons to dispose of or sell any merchandise by the use thereof.

2. Mailing, shipping or transporting to agents or to distributors or members of the public, push or pull cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices so prepared or printed as to enable said persons to sell or distribute any merchandise by the use thereof.

3. Selling or otherwise disposing of any merchandise by the use of push or pull cards, punchboards or other lottery devices.

It is further ordered, That the respondents shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.
IN THE MATTER OF

ANYLITE ELECTRIC COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Where a corporation engaged in manufacture, offer, and sale of an electric device consisting of a coil of wire, or solenoid, in container to be placed around patients, whereby, by means of alternating electric current, electromagnetic field of claimed therapeutic value was created—

Represented, through statements appearing on carton in which said product was packed and shipped, and which set forth "Theronold Therapeutic Solenoid The New Way to Health," that use of said device would restore to user thereof normal health, and that it had therapeutic value, facts being such representation and claim was grossly exaggerated, misleading, and untrue, and said "Theronold" did not possess any therapeutic, remedial, or curative value and would not restore user to normal health;

With effect of misleading and deceiving substantial portion of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that said device would, in fact, restore user to normal health, and that it had therapeutic, remedial, or curative value, and of causing substantial portion of such public, because of said erroneous and mistaken belief thus engendered, to purchase same; to the substantial injury of a substantial portion of purchasing public in the various States and in the District of Columbia:

Held, That such acts and practices were all to the prejudice of the public and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Before Mr. John J. Keenan, trial examiner.

Mr. James L. Fort for the Commission.

Mr. Arthur W. Parry, of Fort Wayne, Ind., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Anylite Electric Co., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent Anylite Electric Co., is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Indiana with its principal office and place of business located at 200 Murray Street in the city of Fort Wayne, within the State of Indiana. Said respondent is now and for more than 2 years last past has been engaged in the manufacture, offering for sale, and sale of a device consisting of a coil of wire, or solenoid, in a container intended to be placed around patients, whereby, by means of alternating electric current, an electromagnetic field of the therapeutic value is said by respondent to be created. The said solenoid has been designated by respondent as a "Theronoid." Said respondent causes and for more than 2 years last past has caused said device, when sold by it, to be shipped from its place of business in Fort Wayne, Ind., to the purchasers thereof located in various States of the United States other than the State of origin of such shipments and in the District of Columbia. There is now and has been for more than 2 years last past a course of trade in said device, "Theronoid," sold and distributed by the respondent in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of said device, the respondent has made, and does now make, false and misleading statements as to the therapeutic value and effect of said device. Said representations are made by means of a statement appearing on the carton in which said product is packed and shipped as follows:

Theronoid
Therapeutic Solenoid
The New way to Health

Through the use of the statement and representation hereinabove set forth, which purports to be descriptive of the remedial, curative, or therapeutic properties of respondent's device, respondent has represented and does now represent directly and indirectly that the use of respondent's device, "Theronoid" will restore to the user thereof normal health and that said device has a therapeutic value.

Par. 3. The aforesaid representation and claim made by the respondent as hereinabove described is grossly exaggerated, misleading, and untrue in that respondent's device, Theronoid, does not possess any therapeutic, remedial, or curative value and will not restore normal health to the user thereof.

Par. 4. The use by the respondent of the foregoing false, deceptive, and misleading representation as above set forth has had and now has the capacity and tendency to and does mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken beliefs that respondent's said device will in fact restore the user thereof to normal health and that it has a therapeutic, remedial, or curative value and causes a substantial portion of the purchasing public, because of said erroneous and mistaken belief so engendered, to purchase respondent's said device. As a result thereof injury has been and is now being done by the respondent to a substantial portion of the purchasing public in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on February 10, 1939, issued, and on February 13, 1939, served, its complaint in this proceeding upon the Anylite Electric Co., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. Respondent filed its answer in which answer the respondent stipulated that the testimony taken in the Federal Trade Commission case, Theronoid, Incorporated, Docket No. 1865, could be reviewed by the Commission in the consideration of the instant complaint with the same force and effect as though the testimony had been introduced directly in this proceeding. Respondent, in its answer, waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to the said facts. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and answer, and the Commission, having duly considered said complaint, the answer thereto, and testimony introduced in the proceeding before the Commission known as Theronoid, Incorporated, Docket 1865; and the Commission, having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Anylite Electric Co., is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Indiana, with its principal office and place of business located at 200 Murray Street in the city of Fort Wayne within the State of Indiana. Said respondent has been engaged in the manufacture, offering for sale and sale of a device consisting of a coil of wire, or solenoid, in a container intended to be placed around patients, whereby, by means of alternating electric current, an electromagnetic field of therapeutic value is said by respondent to be created. The said solenoid has been designated by respondent as "Theronoid." Said respondent has caused said device, when sold by it, to be shipped from its place of business in Fort Wayne, Ind., to the purchasers thereof located in various States of the United States other than the State of origin of such shipments and in the District of Columbia. There has been, for more than 2 years last past, a course of trade in said device, Theronoid, sold and distributed by the respondent in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of said device, the respondent has made false and misleading statements as to the therapeutic value and effect of said device. Said representations are made by means of a statement appearing on the carton in which said product is packed and shipped as follows:

Theronoid
Therapeutic Solenoid
The New Way to Health

Through the use of the statement and representation hereinabove set forth, which purports to be descriptive of the remedial, curative, or therapeutic properties of respondent's device, respondent has represented, directly and indirectly, that the use of respondent's device, Theronoid, will restore to the user thereof normal health and that said device has a therapeutic value.

Par. 3. The aforesaid representation and claim made by the respondent as hereinabove described is grossly exaggerated, misleading, and untrue in that respondent's device, Theronoid, does not possess any therapeutic, remedial, or curative value and will not restore normal health to the user thereof.

Par. 4. The use by respondent of the foregoing false, deceptive, and misleading representation as above set forth has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that respondent's said device will in fact restore the user thereof to normal health and that it has therapeutic, remedial, or curative value, and causes a substantial portion of the purchasing public, because of said erroneous and mistaken belief so engendered, to purchase respondent's said device. As a result thereof, injury has been and is now being done by the respondent to a substantial portion of the purchasing public in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.
The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein found are all to the prejudice of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondent, and testimony introduced in the proceeding before the Commission known as Theronoid, Incorporated, Docket 1865, which the respondent stipulated in its answer may be considered as evidence in this proceeding with the same force and effect as though same had been introduced directly in this proceeding, and all intervening procedure and further hearing as to the facts having been waived, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Anylite Electric Co., Inc., and its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale or distribution of a certain electrical device known as a Theronoid, or similar electrical devices, in commerce as “commerce” is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing that said Theronoid has any therapeutic, remedial or curative value in the treatment of persons suffering from illness or disease.

2. Representing that the Theronoid will restore a person to normal health or produce other beneficial results to individuals not in normal health.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.
Where an individual engaged in selling and distributing clocks, desk lighters and other articles of merchandize in commerce among the various States and in the District of Columbia; in soliciting the sale of and in selling and distributing his merchandise—

Furnished various devices and plans of merchandising which involved operation of games of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery schemes through which said merchandise was sold and distributed to ultimate consumers wholly by lot or chance and in accordance with which he distributed to the purchasing public certain literature and instructions including, among other things, push cards, order blanks, illustrations of his merchandise and circulars explaining his plan of selling same and of allotting it as premiums or prizes to the operator of said cards for use in sale of his products under a plan and in accordance with cards' explanatory legend, pursuant to which amount paid, if any, for chance by customer was dependent upon number pushed by chance, and two numbers and last sale entitled purchaser securing numbers or making sale to "chrome desk lighter", and receipt or failure to receive "numerical clock" or article being thus disposed of, was dependent upon success or failure in selecting from list of feminine names on card, name corresponding to that concealed under card's master seal; and

Supplied thereby and placed in the hands of others means of conducting lotteries in the sale of his merchandise in accordance with aforesaid or similar sales plans under which fact as to whether purchaser received an article of merchandise or nothing for amount of money paid and which of aforesaid articles, if any, he was to receive was determined wholly by lot or chance, and involving game of chance or sale of a chance to procure article of merchandise at a price much less than normal retail price thereof; contrary to an established public policy of the United States Government and in violation of the criminal laws, and in competition with many who are unwilling to adopt and use said or any method involving game of chance or sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other methods contrary to public policy and refrain therefrom;

With result that many persons were attracted by said sales plan involved in sale and distribution of his merchandise and element of chance involved therein and were thereby induced to buy and sell such merchandise in preference to that offered and sold by said competitors who do not use such or equivalent method, and with effect, through use of such method and because of such game of chance of diverting unfairly trade to himself from his competitors aforesaid who do not used such or equivalent method; to the substantial injury of competition in commerce:
Complaint

Held, That such acts and practices were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce.

Mr. L. P. Allen, Jr. for the Commission.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Meyer Edelsohn, individually and trading as United Advertising Service, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said Act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the interest of the public, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Meyer Edelsohn, is an individual trading as United Advertising Service with his principal office and place of business located at 5715 Florence Avenue, Philadelphia, Pa. Respondent is now, and for some time last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of clocks, desk lighters and other articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent causes and has caused said products when sold to be transported from the city of Philadelphia, Pa., to purchasers thereof in the various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia at their respective points of location. There is now, and has been for some time past, a course of trade by respondent in such merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business, respondent is, and has been, in competition with other individuals and with partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 2. In the course and conduct of his business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent in soliciting the sale of and in selling and distributing his merchandise furnishes, and has furnished, various devices and plans of merchandising which involve the operation of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes by which said merchandise is sold and distributed to the ultimate consumers thereof wholly by lot or chance. The method or sales plan adopted and used by respondent was and is substantially as follows:

Respondent distributes and has distributed to the purchasing public certain literature and instructions, including, among other things, push cards, order blanks, illustrations of his said merchandise and circulars explaining respondent's plan of selling merchandise and of allotting it as premiums or prizes to the operators of said push cards. One of respondent's push cards bears 48 feminine names with ruled columns on the reverse side thereof for writing in the name of the customer opposite the feminine name selected. Said push card has 48 small, partially perforated disks on the face of which is printed the word "push." Concealed within each disk is a number which is disclosed when the disk is pushed or separated from the card. The push card also has a large master seal, and concealed within the master seal is one of the feminine names appearing on the reverse side of said card. The push card bears legends or instructions as follows:

Sales of respondent's merchandise by means of said push cards are made in accordance with the above-described legends and instructions. Said prizes or premiums are allotted to the customers or purchasers in accordance with the above legends and instructions. The fact as to whether a purchaser receives an article of merchandise or nothing for the amount of money paid, and which of said articles of merchandise the purchaser is to receive, if any, is thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

matter for use in the sale and distribution of his merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. The sales plan or method involved in connection with the sale of all of said merchandise by means of said push card is the same as that hereinabove described, varying only in detail.

PAR. 3. The persons to whom respondent furnishes the said push cards use the same in purchasing, selling, and distributing respondent's merchandise, in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan. Respondent thus supplies to, and places in the hands of, others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of his merchandise in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said sales plan or method in the sale of his merchandise and the sale of said merchandise by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plan or method is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws.

PAR. 4. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above alleged involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure an article of merchandise at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations, who sell or distribute merchandise in competition with the respondent, as above alleged, are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other method that is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of his merchandise and the element of chance involved therein, and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or an equivalent method. The use of said method by respondent, because of said game of chance, has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade to respondent from his said competitors who do not use the same or an equivalent method, and as a result thereof substantial injury is being, and has been, done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.
Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on March 16, 1939, issued, and on March 17, 1939, served, its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, Meyer Edelsohn, individually, and trading as United Advertising Service, charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of the said act. On April 11, 1939, the respondent filed his answer, in which answer he admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and answer thereto, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Meyer Edelsohn, is an individual trading as United Advertising Service with his principal office and place of business located at 5715 Florence Avenue, Philadelphia, Pa. Respondent is now, and for some time last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of clocks, desk lighters, and other articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent causes and has caused said products when sold to be transported from the city of Philadelphia, Pa., to purchasers thereof in the various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia at their respective points of location. There is now, and has been for some time past, a course of trade by respondent in such merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business, respondent is, and has been, in competition with other individuals and with partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of his business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent in soliciting the sale of and in selling and distributing his merchandise furnishes, and has furnished, various devices and plans of merchandising which involve the operation of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes by which said merchandise is sold and distributed to the ultimate consumers thereof wholly by lot or chance. The method or sales plan adopted and used by respondent was and is substantially as follows:

Respondent distributes and has distributed to the purchasing public certain literature and instructions, including, among other things, push cards, order blanks, illustrations of his said merchandise and circulars explaining respondent's plan of selling merchandise and of allotting it as premiums or prizes to the operators of said push cards. One of respondent's push cards bears 48 feminine names with ruled columns on the reverse side thereof for writing in the name of the customer opposite the feminine name selected. Said push card has 48 small, partially perforated disks on the face of which is printed the word "push." Concealed within each disk is a number which is disclosed when the disk is pushed or separated from the card. The push card also has a large master seal, and concealed within the master seal is one of the feminine names appearing on the reverse side of said card. The push card bears legends or instructions as follows:

Sales of respondent's merchandise by means of said push cards are made in accordance with the above-described legends and instructions. Said prizes or premiums are allotted to the customers or purchasers in accordance with the above legends and instructions. The fact as to whether a purchaser receives an article of merchandise or nothing for the amount of money paid, and which of said articles of merchandise the purchaser is to receive, if any, is thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

Respondent furnishes and has furnished various push cards accompanied by said order blanks, instructions, and other printed matter for use in the sale and distribution of his merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. The sales plan or method involved in connection with the sale of all of said merchandise by means of said push card is the same as that hereinabove described, varying only in detail.

Par. 3. The persons to whom respondent furnishes the said push cards use the same in purchasing, selling, and distributing respondent's merchandise, in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan. Respondent thus supplies to, and places in the hands of, others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of his merchandise in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said sales plan or method in the sale of his merchandise and the sale of said merchandise by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plan or method is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws.

Par. 4. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above found involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure an article of merchandise at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations, who sell or distribute merchandise in competition with the respondent, as above found, are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other method that is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of his merchandise and the element of chance involved therein, and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or an equivalent method. The use of said method by respondent, because of said game of chance, has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade to respondent from his said competitors who do not use the same or an equivalent method, and as a result thereof substantial injury is being, and has been, done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and answer of the respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and states that he waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Meyer Edelsohn, individually and trading as United Advertising Service, or trading under any other name or names, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of clocks, desk lighters or any other merchandise in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Supplying to or placing in the hands of others push or pull cards, punchboards or other lottery devices for the purpose of enabling such persons to dispose of or sell such merchandise by the use thereof.

2. Mailing, shipping or transporting to his agents or to distributors or to the public push or pull cards, punchboards or other lottery devices so prepared or printed as to enable said persons to sell or distribute any merchandise by the use thereof.

3. Selling or otherwise disposing of any merchandise by the use of push or pull cards, punchboards or other lottery devices.

It is further ordered, That within 60 days from the service of this order upon said respondent he shall file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which this order has been complied with.

MIDWEST STUDIOS, INC., IMPERIAL SALES COMPANY, AND B. E. YOUMANS

Docket 3011. Complaint, Dec. 9, 1936—Decision, May 11, 1939

Where a corporation engaged in offering and selling tinted or colored enlargements of photographs, and frames therefor, to members of the public through large number of solicitors and salesmen who worked together in crews under supervision of crew managers and traveled throughout the various States, and who were supplied by it, and carried and presented, credential cards certifying that they were duly accredited representatives of said corporation, authorized to show or demonstrate samples and to take orders, and with samples and with contract forms or order blanks directed and addressed to said corporation, and who acted as its agents and were accepted and dealt with as such by purchasing public;

In selling, through such various agents and representatives, and for the purpose of thus selling said products as aforesaid, and inducing purchasers thereof to sign contracts without understanding or being able to learn the nature, terms and conditions thereof or to obtain complete details regarding the transaction into which they were entering, and with the active cooperation of a second corporation, to which notes for balances due on products sold by former were, for a time, made payable, and stock of which was owned by the individual who was the president thereof, as of said former corporation, and large stockholder therein, and in control of the operation and management of both, and with other actively cooperated also in matters herein set forth through standardized sales talks furnished its said representatives, and with the knowledge, acquiescence and active cooperation of said corporations and said individual, and knowing false and misleading character thereof, and through its order blanks or contracts, and, as thus engaged in competition with those who sell colored enlargements of photographs and frames therefor in commerce among the various States and in the District of Columbia, and do not employ and maintain the practices below enumerated, but truthfully represent and honestly vend their products, and those engaged in painting and selling paintings in commerce as aforesaid, and who truthfully represent as paintings their said products—

(a) Exhibited to prospective purchasers various samples of attractively colored specimens of work of aforesaid corporation, glass enclosed, and informed prospective customer that the company, in order to advertise their paintings, was anxious to select a few customers who would display them in a prominent place in their homes, and represented that such offer constituted a special or introductory one to a selected few members of the community, available only for a short period of time, and represented and referred, in such connection, to their pictures as "paintings," "fine paintings," "free hand-painted portrait valued at $20," "oil painting worth $20," etc., and, in the contract form referred to product as a "$20 high grade painting, • • • future price $20 and up," and informed customers that the completed painting furnished by the corporation would be the same as the sample exhibited, facts being sale was not limited in any way, its said products never sold for any such price and were not paintings, it did not produce any oil paintings of photographs loaned to it, and was conducting no special advertising campaign, but was simply carrying on its regular sales plan employed in case of all customers, and pictures supplied were not in accordance with samples shown or representations made relative thereto;

(b) Made use, in aforesaid connection and in furtherance of sales plan in question, and to convince prospective purchaser that such enlargements were being obtained only by a selected few and for a nominal or incidental expense as a special offer or as a free picture given as an advertising offer, of so-called "draw," under which salesman purported to give prospect opportunity to draw lucky number entitling successful prospect to such supposed special consideration in connection with so-called special offer, and under which prospects were informed, after drawing, that they had secured the lucky number or had drawn "lucky," and were entitled to advantages of so-called special advertising offer, and to "a $20 picture free," or a "High-grade painting worth $20 for $1.95," and informed prospective customer, following such lucky draw and borrowing of some treasured family photograph for use in connection with making of so-called "painting," that nominal item of expense, or $1.95, was necessary to cover cost of "handling," "wrapping," or other item, and required payment of said amount, facts being so-called "painting" or picture was not free, but sum of $1.95 charged, as aforesaid, was usual or customary price thereof and more than covered cost to corporation of picture in question, and did not represent, as above set forth, actual cost of wrapping, etc., and said alleged "draw" was a fraudulent scheme conceived to mislead prospects into belief that they would secure a picture free or at a greatly reduced price and receive same to exclusion of other people in the same locality;

(c) Concealed carefully, in initial contact, from customer essential fact that customer was expected to and must eventually buy a frame for the painting from corporation in question, and did not intimate on such contact that real purpose and intent of entire proceeding was to sell customer frame, costing about $1.50 each at the factory, at prices ranging from $8.10 to $17, and that company's profit was made on sale of such products and covered any loss otherwise sustained, but informed customer, through appearance of the follow-up employee or so-called "field artist," as referred to in order blank and sales talk, with picture in octagon shape and convex in surface, that owing to peculiar shape of frames it would be difficult or not possible for customer to obtain frame elsewhere, and that frame selected by customer would be unsatisfactory and unacceptable to the company, and that customer would not receive his picture unless frame therefor was purchased from corporation; and

(d) Refused, further, to return photograph, which, in many instances, possessed great sentimental value and was unique, until the "transaction" was "completed," or customer had accepted picture and frame and paid therefor in full, and required customer, in cases in which transaction had not been thus completed, to sign note containing provision setting forth that such signature was voluntary "as evidence of balance due on portrait and frame" purchased from corporation, to be mailed to such signer "together with photo upon payment of this note in full," and made it its policy to retain customers' photographs until final payment had been made on frame in many cases where notes had been executed for balances due, and thus attempted to show balance due on picture which had already been paid for in full;

With result that members of the purchasing public were beguiled, through said alleged "draw," into believing that they were the exceptional few whom fortune had favored, and thus induced to sign contracts for completion and delivery of pictures in question, and, through use of sales plan above described and employed, and involving separate solicitation and calls by the original or contact salesman and second visit by such falsely designated "field artist," of misleading and forcing purchaser into buying something which he did not originally intend to buy, through special design of frame in which picture was delivered, and of thus placing in the hands of their sales representatives and so-called "field artists" means whereby they could and did sell picture frames for exorbitant amounts and force purchase of such products upon unsuspecting customers, and with effect that customers were thus compelled to buy such products from said corporation in order to receive their pictures or "paintings" and to obtain return of family photograph theretofore loaned to such corporation's agent by customer without information of any sort as to real nature of transaction in question; and

With further effect and result that purchasers were deceived, through such false and misleading representations, into buying aforesaid products of such corporation as and for those possessing the characteristics and qualities claimed for them, and of also placing thereby in the hands of said sales managers, sales agents and "field artists" means of deceiving their customers, and of unfairly diverting to them thereby trade of competitors engaged in selling, in commerce among the States and in the District of Columbia, products of the same kind and nature, truthfully advertised and represented by them:

Held, That such acts and practices were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. Henry M. White and Mr. Robert S. Hall, trial examiners.

Mr. Marshall Morgan, Mr. Reuben J. Martin and Mr. George Foulkes for the Commission.

Mr. Dan J. Kenney and Mr. B. E. Youmans, of Portland, Oreg., and Fry & Fry, of Chicago, Ill., for respondents.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Midwest Studios, Inc., a corporation, Imperial Sales Co., a corporation, and B. E. Youmans, an individual, each hereinafter referred to as re-Respondent, have been and are using unfair methods in competition in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act of Congress, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, the Commission hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondents, Midwest Studios, Inc., and Imperial Sales Co., are corporations organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Oregon, each with its place of business located on the second floor of the Government Building at 408 Southwest Second Street, Portland, Oreg. While each of these respondents is a separate entity each has the same president.

Respondent B. E. Youmans is president of the Midwest Studios, Inc., and president and treasurer of Imperial Sales Co. Respondent Youmans owns a controlling interest in each of said companies and directs the activities and controls the affairs and policies of each, including the conduct of sales campaigns, character of sales representations made, and all business interviews and correspondence incident thereto.

Respondent, Midwest Studios, Inc., is now and for more than 2 years last past has been engaged in the business of offering for sale and the sale of tinted or colored photographic enlargements of family and other photographs, and of frames therefor. Respondent, Midwest Studios, Inc., sells its products through the medium of salesmen or sales representatives appointed by it as agents in its behalf, to customers located in States other than the State of Oregon. In consummating such sales and in distributing such products, respondent, Midwest Studios, Inc., causes the pictures and frames so sold by it to be transported and delivered from its place of business in Portland in the State of Oregon, through and into various other States of the United States to respective purchasers thereof at their respective points of location. In the course and conduct of its said business respondent Midwest Studios, Inc., has been, and is now, engaged in direct and substantial competition with various corporations, partnerships, and individuals likewise engaged in the sale between and among the various States of the United States, of tinted or colored photographic enlargements of photographs and of frames therefor and, likewise with those corporations, partnerships, and individuals engaged in the sale among the various States of the United States of genuine original paintings, including oil paintings and water color paintings.

For many years prior to January 1, 1935, respondent Imperial Sales Co. was engaged in the sale of colored photographic enlargements at Portland, Oreg. Since said date said respondent has served as an agency and medium for respondent Midwest Studios, Inc., in collecting balances due from purchasers of pictures and frames sold by respondent, Midwest Studios, Inc., through its agents and representatives, to customers throughout the various States of the United States other than the State of Oregon, as will be more fully herein-after shown.

Par. 2. A crayon is a pencil-shaped piece of colored clay, chalk, or charcoal, used for drawing upon paper. A crayon drawing is the act or art of drawing with crayons.

A drawing is a representation produced by the art of drawing; a work of art produced by pen, pencil, or crayon.

A pastel, in art, is a colored crayon made of pigments ground with chalk and compounded with water into a sort of paste. A drawing made with a colored chalk or crayon is called a pastel, as is also the art of drawing with colored crayons.

Paint is defined as a substance used in painting composed of a dry coloring material intimately mixed with a liquid vehicle.

A painting is a likeness, image, or scene depicted with paints, without the aid of photography.

A water color is a painting with pigments for which water, and not oil, is used as a solvent.

A portrait, in its ordinarily accepted meaning, is a picture of a person drawn from life, especially a picture or representation of a face; a likeness particularly in oil.

An oil painting is a painting done by and with brushes in plastic oil colors on canvas, or other material, without the aid of photography.

Par. 3. In the course and conduct of its said business, respondent, Midwest Studios, Inc., causes agents and representatives employed by it to visit the homes of prospective customers in cities, towns, and rural communities of the various States of the United States. Under said respondent's selling plan, it organizes its said agents and representatives into squads or teams, each designated by a certain name and working a particular territory. Among such squads or teams so organized by and under the supervision and authority of respondent, Midwest Studios, Inc., for the purpose of selling tinted photographic enlargements made by it, are, and were, squads, crews, or teams designated by such titles as: Aces, Chinooks, Rangers, Rustlers, Cyclones, Beavers, Travelers, Champions, Pioneers, Buckaroos, Tigers, Terriers, and Texas Steers. Teams or crews are and have been placed in immediate charge of crew managers or foremen, who keep in constant touch with the daily activities of the respective salesmen or representatives of respondent company. Respondent, Midwest Studios, Inc., keeps and has kept close watch over the activities of its agents or representatives selling pictures and frames for it, and assists and promotes such work actively and continuously. Weekly bulletins, reviewing and discussing sales work, and containing high-powered sales talks, are prepared by the editorial department of respondent, Midwest Studios, Inc., and distributed by it among the salesmen, agents and representatives engaged in the sale of the products of respondent, Midwest Studios, Inc. In said bulletins are set forth lists of leading salesmen and leading teams or salesmen, covering weekly, quarterly or other periods. Leading salesmen are complimented in the bulletin for the records made by them, and others are encouraged to redouble their efforts. Sales talks containing approved methods of approach and salesmanship, and convincing arguments to be used in contacting prospective purchasers of pictures and frames, are likewise prepared and furnished by respondent, Midwest Studios, Inc., for distribution and use among its sales representatives and agents. Purchasers of respondent's products are given to understand that they are contracting or dealing with a duly constituted agent of the Midwest Studios, Inc., of Portland, Oreg. Each agent or salesman is furnished by said company with an identification card or card of credentials to be presented or exhibited by him when interviewing prospective purchasers.

Sales representatives and agents carry and exhibit alluring samples of free-hand paintings, some done in oil, some in water color, showing the color of the hair, eyes, complexion and clothing. A sales representative of respondent Midwest Studios, Inc. calls upon, or contacts a prospective customer and represents that a drawing contest will be held for the purpose of deciding who shall be one of the few lucky persons in a particular city or town to have respondent place free paintings in their homes in connection with a "special advertising offer." The agent or salesman, in connection with said drawing, produces a number of slips or envelopes. It is represented that most of said slips are blank but that a few are trade checks, or certificates, or coupons; that a customer is allowed two draws or trials; that if he draws a blank he does not win but if fortunate enough to draw a winning check, certificate or coupon, he will be entitled to receive a genuine $20 oil or water color painting free, or to receive a substantial discount on the price of a fine painting. The prospective customer draws and finally and invariably draws a lucky coupon, reading: "This entitles holder to our special advertising offer. Midwest Studios, Inc." The customer is thereupon congratulated by the agent upon his good luck. Believing the representations of the agent, to the effect that he has been lucky and has obtained a distinct advantage and has put himself in the position of obtaining something of value "free," the customer thereupon proceeds to sign a contract whereby, upon the payment of the sum of $1.95, respondent, Midwest Studios, Inc., agrees to make—"One of our $20.00 High Grade Paintings in a most pleasing size in the newest Octagon Design same as painting shown." The agent explains that the item of $1.95 represents merely postage charges or expenses of the agent. Said contract explains that—"This extraordinary offer" is made "for advertising purposes only to introduce paintings of a higher grade by a talented artist." Continuing the thought of the "advertising purpose only" the contract's next provision reads:

Therefore to assure us of a lasting advertisement this offer is conditional to the extent that the paintings be framed within a reasonable length of time.

Continuing further, the contract provides that before finishing the painting, a "Field Artist" will call upon the prospect with "a sketch of your photograph" and get "full particulars for finishing" and that at that time art craft frames of the newest design will be submitted for your selection." It is further provided that in the event a frame is not selected, the sketch will be left with the customer until a suitable frame is selected elsewhere, and then the painting will be finished at no additional cost.

Par. 4. Respondent's sales agents and representatives, when calling upon prospective customers with a "proof" or "sketch" of a painting to be made for them, endeavor in each instance to sell to said customer a frame or frames for said paintings, and when such sales are made and the frame is not paid for in full, said sales agent or representative, after taking an order for the frame in the name of Midwest Studios, Inc., causes the customer to sign a note for any sum due on said frames, in favor of Imperial Sales Co., Government Building, Portland, said note carrying a provision for the payment of interest at 10 percent. Thereby, in case of controversy for any reason with the purchaser of a painting, where the purchaser has given a note to the Imperial Sales Co., for any unpaid balance due on a frame, respondent, Midwest Studios, Inc. is enabled to avoid further responsibility in connection with its contract for the painting by referring the purchaser of the frame to the Imperial Sales Co., which company had nothing to do with, and plays no part in the production and sale of the painting. This plan, scheme, or arrangement enables the Midwest Studios, Inc., original seller of the "painting," through another corporation owned by it, to remove itself from the situation.
In truth and in fact the Midwest Studios, Inc., and Imperial Sales Co., while technically separate corporate entities, are and have been, one and the same in fact, each being owned, organized, and operating out of the same address in Portland, Oreg., by B. E. Youmans, the moving spirit in the business of the Midwest Studios, Inc., and the purchaser of a picture frame, in cases where a note has been given for an unpaid balance thereon, has thus found himself cut off with dealing with the original company with which he had contracted for his "painting," and has been remitted instead to a controversy with a collection agency holding a note against him bearing 10 percent interest.

Par. 5. The so-called "sketch" referred to in the aforesaid contract, and delivered to and left with the customer by respondent's so-called "Field Artist," is not in any sense a "sketch," but is merely, and so far, an untinted, uncolored, lightly printed photographic enlargement in black and white of the original family photograph that had been furnished to respondent's sales representative, and the contract for the "painting" is not, and has not been made with any customer for advertising purposes, but solely as a lead or step looking to the sale by respondent to the customer of a "suitable" frame for said "painting." In the event the customer should refuse to agree to buy one of respondent's frames, priced to him at exorbitant prices, the unfinished "painting," or "sketch" is left with the customer, the field artist departs, and the customer is remitted to his own resources to find a "suitable" frame for the "sketch," or "painting" to be. The customer learns to his astonishment that owing to the peculiar convex, octagonal shape of the "painting," a "suitable" frame for the same cannot be bought or located by him at any store or place known to or ascertainable by the customer in a reasonable or any other period of time, and that he must either buy a frame from respondent at respondent's price, or do without both a finished "painting" and frame therefor.

Respondent meanwhile retains the money paid in advance by the customer for the "$20.00 High Grade Painting" and retains the customer's family photograph, often of a deceased member of the customer's family.

The customer, in this situation, has paid for a "High Grade Painting" but is unable to obtain delivery thereof unless and until a frame is approved as "suitable" by a representative of Midwest Studios, Inc.

Par. 6. The pictures or photographs which are borrowed from prospective customers by the agents and representatives of respondent Midwest Studios, Inc. for the purpose of having "paintings" made therefrom, were, and are in most instances, pictures of members of the customer's family or near relatives, and many such pictures cannot possibly be duplicated. Such photographs so loaned and furnished to respondent by its customers possess and have possessed great sentimental value. In numerous instances the member of the family or near relative represented by the photograph, has been dead for many years. In making contracts with its customers, respondent inserts therein, a clause to the effect that no countermands are accepted. In case of a controversy involving alleged misrepresentations as to the character of the goods, or work done, or for other reasons, justified in the mind of the purchaser, the respondent, Midwest Studios, Inc., in the event any sum or balance is claimed to be due it from the purchaser, did and does insist upon holding the purchaser to the letter and terms of the contract, and as a means of enforcing compliance with the terms of the contract respondent did and does refuse to return the valued family photograph until the money claimed to be due it has been paid.

Respondent, in many instances, has retained original photographs and colored enlargements made therefrom, and has retained possession of enlargements fully paid for at the original contract price therefor, if subsequently frames for the same were not purchased by the customer from respondent Midwest Studios, Inc., for any reason. Under such type of duress, many customers who are and have been dissatisfied with the character or quality of the paintings made for them by respondent, and who assert, and have asserted, misrepresentations in connection therewith, have been forced to go through with the contract in order to obtain the return of a treasured family photograph.

Par. 7. In truth and in fact, the various statements and representations made by respondent Midwest Studios, Inc. through its agents and representatives, in selling its products and in offering them for sale in cities, towns and communities of the respective states of the United States, were and are false, deceptive, and misleading in the following, among other particulars:

(a) The alleged oil paintings, water color paintings, and paintings, represented and sold by respondent Midwest Studios, Inc. as "$20.00 High Grade Paintings" are not and never have been "oil paintings," "water color paintings," hand-painted paintings, or paintings at all, or any work of art produced through the art of drawing or drawn from life, but on the contrary, are and have been, merely cheap, photographic enlargements of photographs, thereafter tinted or colored by the use of pastel or crayon, water color or other powdered pigments sprayed upon the photographic enlargement, in solution, largely through the use of an air brush and compressed air.
(b) The said "paintings" as represented and sold are not worth, and never have been worth, or had the value of $20.00, or any other value approximating these amounts; nor have such products ever possessed or had the quality, characteristics or value of oil paintings, water colors, or other types of genuine paintings attributed to them by representatives of said respondent, but on the contrary comprise a cheap, inferior product, costing around $1.25 each.

(c) The sales prices represented for said "paintings" by sales representatives were and are fictitious and greatly in excess of the prices at which such tinted or colored photographic enlargements were ever sold or were ever intended or contemplated to be sold.

(d) The sum of $1.95 does not represent, and has never represented the cost of postage or the agent's expenses incurred in connection with the delivery of a "painting," but on the contrary represents the average price at which such type and quality of work is sold.

(e) Pictures or "paintings" made by respondent for customers are different from and greatly inferior in quality, workmanship and character to alleged samples thereof exhibited by agents endeavoring to obtain and obtaining contracts for such pictures or "paintings."

(f) Customers do not understand and have not agreed, in connection with contracts, that treasured family photographs are to be retained by respondent until payment of any sum alleged by respondent to be due him.

(g) Frames delivered in connection with the sale of said pictures of "paintings" are not the same as, but are inferior to, alleged samples of frames exhibited by agents while obtaining contracts therefor, and prices asked for said frames are exorbitant and far above the value thereof.

(h) Glasses for said picture frames are not unbreakable in character, but on the contrary are and may be readily broken.

(i) So-called "lucky slips" drawn by customers from agents upon the representation that the customer is thus obtaining a ticket, coupon or certificate entitling him to obtain a $20.00 High Grade Painting" free, falsely and deceptively induce the customer to believe that he has thereby obtained a distinct advantage, and influence him to enter into a contract for a "painting" and a frame therefor, when as a matter of fact all prospects found to have any available money were and are permitted to make a "lucky draw" and obtain such alleged "free painting" certificates and respondent, Midwest Studios, Inc., acting through its salesmen and representatives, further deceives the purchasing public by concealing the fact that the purchase of a suitable frame is made a condition in connection with the sale of respondent's "paintings" and that the customer will be forced in the end to buy a frame from respondent at respondent's own price.

Par. 8. There are, among the competitors of respondent, Midwest Studios, Inc., as described in paragraph 1 hereof, corporations, partnerships, firms and persons who are not engaged in the sale of tinted or colored photographic enlargements of photographs and of frames therefor, who do not employ the methods and practices set forth in paragraphs 3 to 6 of this complaint, but who truthfully represent their products and honestly vend the same, and there are also, among the competitors of respondent, Midwest Studios, Inc., corporations, partnerships, firms, and persons engaged in the business of producing and selling genuine paintings, who truthfully represent the same as "paintings."
Findings

Par 9. The use by respondents, Midwest Studios, Inc., Imperial Sales Co., and B. E. Youmans, of said practices as set forth in paragraphs 3 to 6 inclusive of this complaint, unfairly diverts trade from competitors and thereby substantial injury has been done, and is being done, by respondents to substantial competition in interstate commerce. By the use of the within described false and misleading representations, said respondents have deceived, and are deceiving, the public concerning the quality and value of their products sold as hereinbefore described, and have thereby induced, and are inducing, the public to purchase such products under the erroneous belief that the same are, and were, high grade quality paintings, and picture frames of exceptional merit and value respectively.

Par. 10. The above alleged acts and practices employed by said respondents as aforesaid are all to the prejudice of the public and the respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on December 9, 1936, issued and thereafter served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondents, Midwest Studios, Inc., and Imperial Sales Co., corporations, and B. E. Youmans, an individual, charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondents' answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of the said complaint were introduced by Marshall Morgan, Reuben J. Martin and George Foulkes, attorneys for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by Dan J. Kenny, B. E. Youmans and Albert H. Fry, attorneys for the respondents, before Henry M. White and Robert S. Hall, examiners for the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceeding came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto, and the oral arguments of counsel aforesaid; and the Commission having duly considered the same and being now fully advised in the premises finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes these its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondents, Midwest Studios, Inc., and Imperial Sales Co., are corporations organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Oregon, each with its place of business located in the Governor Building, 408 Southwest Avenue, in the city of Portland, Oreg.

Respondent Midwest Studios, Inc., is engaged in the business of producing and offering for sale and selling tinted or colored enlargements of photographs and frames therefor. Prior to March 1936, notes for balances due on products sold by Midwest Studios, Inc., were made payable to respondent Imperial Sales Co. Since March 1, 1936, notes have been made payable to Imperial Finance Co., a trade name owned by and registered in the name of Midwest Studios, Inc., the Imperial Finance Co. taking over the function formerly exercised by the respondent Imperial Sales Co., that of handling installment notes for the Midwest Studios, Inc.

Respondent Youmans is president of each corporation, owns all the stock of Imperial Sales Co. and is a large stockholder in Midwest Studios, Inc. He is in charge of the latter company’s office force and finances, has contact with the field forces, has authority to make concessions on contracts and to authorize refunds. Complaints are referred to him. He personally has control of the operation and the details of the management of the business of the two corporations. Balances due on pictures and frames sold by Midwest Studios, Inc. have been made payable to and have been collected by Imperial Sales Co., entirely owned by respondent Youmans. This installment business, in the year 1936, amounted to $86,735.42.

Paragraph 2. In the course and conduct of its business of offering for sale and selling tinted or colored enlargements of photographs and frames therefor, the respondent Midwest Studios, Inc., has caused such products, when sold, to be transported from its place of business in Portland, Oreg., to purchasers thereof located in various States of the United States other than the State of Oregon. In the course and conduct of such business, respondent Midwest Studios, Inc. is in competition with other corporations and with partnerships, firms, and individuals likewise engaged in offering for sale and selling in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, colored, enlargements of photographs, pictures, and frames, and other similar products.
Findings

Par. 3. The pictures and frames of respondent Midwest Studios, Inc., also referred to herein as Midwest, are sold to members of the public by crews of solicitors and salesmen traveling throughout the various States of the United States, each crew working together under the supervision of a crew manager. There are from 125 to 150 salesmen. The sales people are divided into two general classes, "front men" with samples, who make the original contacts with customers, and follow-up men or "field artists," who call later to obtain color instructions for pictures and to sell frames therefor. Each salesman is supplied by Midwest with, and carries and presents, a card of certificates certifying him to be a duly accredited representative of Midwest Studios, Inc., Portland, Oreg., authorized to show or demonstrate samples and to take orders for future delivery. Samples of respondent's work are carried by its salesmen. Salesmen are also furnished by Midwest with contract forms or order blanks, each order being directed and addressed to Midwest Studios, Inc.

Prior to February 1936, the contract form for orders as employed by Midwest Studios, Inc. contained the following language and provisions:

"Midwest Studios, Inc.,
408 S. W. Second Ave.,
Portland, Oregon.

------------------------------------------ 1935.

Authorized capital $25,000.

By paying our representative $1.95 we will make for the undersigned one of our $20 HIGH GRADE PAINTINGS in the most pleasing size in the NEWEST OCTAGON DESIGN, same as painting shown.

This extraordinary offer is for advertising purposes only to introduce paintings of a higher grade, hand-finished by talented artists; therefore to assure us of a lasting advertisement this offer is conditional to the extent that the paintings be framed within a reasonable length of time.

Before finishing, our field artist will call on you with a sketch of your photograph and get full particulars for finishing; at that time art-craft frames of the newest design will be submitted for your selection. In the event a frame is not selected, the sketch will be left with you until a suitable frame is selected elsewhere; then the painting will be finished at no additional cost.

COUNTERMANDS NOT ACCEPTED. VERBAL AGREEMENTS NOT RECOGNIZED.

This offer cannot be extended, future price $20 and up. All work strictly guaranteed

The language of the above form of contract was amended about February 1936, to the extent of changing the word "painting" to "portrait" wherever the former word had occurred.
Order blanks covering the sale of frames were, and are, also employed by respondent Midwest Studios, Inc., space being reserved at the bottom thereof for the signature of the customer in each instance, the sales representative taking the order for respondent company also signing opposite the customer or purchaser variously as “advertising manager,” and “field artist.”

These forms of contracts were employed by salesmen for Midwest Studios, Inc., in taking orders to be executed by it. Based upon the testimony of customers of Midwest Studios, Inc., and upon the general representations of said respondent made both directly and through agents, salesmen and representatives, and also by reason of the use of the credential cards, contracts and order blanks, above described or referred to, the Commission finds that the respondent, Midwest Studios, Inc., as well as its salesmen and other representatives soliciting orders for pictures and frames therefor, have customarily represented to such customers and have induced them to understand that they are dealing direct with the respondent, Midwest Studios, Inc., and are purchasing pictures and frames direct from Midwest Studios, Inc. The Commission finds that solicitors, salesmen, managers, “field artists” and other representatives selling Midwest colored enlargements of photographs and frames therefor to members of the purchasing public are agents for Midwest and are accepted as such and dealt with as such by the purchasing public.

Par. 4. For the purpose of selling respondent Midwest’s colored enlargements of photographs and frames therefor, and inducing purchasers thereof to sign contracts without understanding or being able to learn the nature, terms and conditions thereof or to obtain complete details regarding the transaction into which they are entering, salesmen and other representatives of respondent, Midwest Studios, Inc., with the active cooperation of the respondents Imperial Sales Company and B. E. Youmans, by the use of standardized sales talks furnished by respondents, made and have made, under circumstances and in situations hereinafter related, representations as follows:

(a) Salesmen and other representatives of the respondent Midwest Studios, Inc., while traveling in crews and visiting homes in cities and towns in various States of the United States, exhibit to prospective purchasers various samples of attractively colored specimens of the work of Midwest Studios, Inc., enclosed in glass. The prospective customer’s attention is called to these specimens and the customer is informed that the company in order to advertise their paintings, is anxious to select a few customers who will display them in a prominent place in their homes. This proposition is represented as being a special or introductory offer to a selected few members of the community, available only for a short period of time.

(b) Respondent's salesmen in showing samples call particular attention to the quality of Midwest Studios' work. Pictures are and have been represented and referred to by respondent Midwest Studios and by its various salesmen and representatives as "paintings," "fine paintings," "free hand-painted portrait valued at $20," "oil painting worth $20," and as various types of paintings selling at or worth from $15 to $25, and in respondent's contract the product agreed to be supplied is a $20 high grade painting.  future price $20 and up." Respondent's product has been continuously called a "painting" and a substantial portion of customers called upon interpret the product as an "oil painting." Customers are informed that the completed "painting" furnished by Midwest Studios, Inc. will be the same as the sample exhibited.

(c) In connection with and in furtherance of respondent's said sales plan, and for the purpose of convincing the prospective purchaser that said colored photographic enlargement is being obtained only by a selected few, and for only a nominal or incidental expense as a "special offer" or as a "free picture given as an advertising offer," the prospective customer is then introduced to the "draw." Midwest Studios salesmen, upon entering the home of the customer, represent that the company is anxious to select a few customers to advertise their paintings and is willing to give her the opportunity to draw a lucky number. Customers who "draw" and are informed that they have drawn "lucky" are presented by the sales agent with a coupon reading "Special. This entitles the holder to our special advertising offer: Midwest Studios, Inc." Customers are informed that by reason of having drawn the "lucky envelope," they are entitled to picture or painting variously described as follows: "A $20 picture for nothing," "a $20 picture free, absolutely free," "a free hand-painted portrait valued at $20," "a $20 picture painted by an eastern artist," "a high-grade painting worth $20," a "High-grade painting worth $20 for $1.95," "a real oil painting," "A very beautiful painting worth $20 to $25 any way," and "a $20 picture like the one in the agent's case."

(d) Having induced the prospective customer to "draw lucky" so as to obtain a "free picture" and to sign a contract or order to that effect, respondent's salesman then borrows from the customer a treasured family photograph to be used in making a "sketch," outline or foundation for the "free painting." Finally after a treasured family photograph belonging to the customer is in the possession of respondent's sales representative, the customer is advised that there is a small or nominal item of expense involved, generally $1.95 (formerly $1.45) to cover the cost of "handling," "wrapping," parcel post or "the painter's time," which said sum the customer is required to pay at the outset on the "free painting."

The customer is finally informed by the first sales representative that in a few days a field artist will call with a "sketch" of the painting to obtain color instructions from the customer.

(e) The first sales representative to contact the customer speaks only of paintings or portraits. Salesmen carefully conceal from the customer the essential fact that he or she is expected to and must eventually buy a frame for the painting from the respondent Midwest Studios, Inc. There is no intimation from respondent's first contact salesman that the real purpose and intent of the entire proceeding is to sell the customer a frame; that the respondent company's profit is made on the sale of frames and covers any loss sustained by the company on the picture or painting. The matter of frames not being mentioned by the salesman obtaining the contract for the picture, the customer is not advised, and he has no way of knowing that owing to the peculiar shape of respondent company's frames they cannot be bought elsewhere.

(f) As a rule the photographs borrowed from customers by respondent's salesmen are photographs of members of the customer's family, or a near relative, and in some instances they cannot be duplicated. In many instances, the photograph in question is the only picture the family has of a particular person. These pictures in many instances possess great sentimental value.

(g) The second salesman, or so-called "field artist," introduces the customer to the matter of purchasing a frame. It is from the "field artist" that the customer begins to learn, and eventually does learn, what respondent's sales proposition really means. The second salesman or follow-up man, designated in respondent's order blank and in sales talks as "field artist," appears at the home of the customer with a preliminary sketch or unfinished photographic enlargement of the photograph theretofore loaned by the customer to respondent Midwest Studios' first or contact representative. This sketch is octagon shaped, convex in surface, 10 by 16 inches in size, and is done in sepia or brown tone. The "field artist," in addition to the sketch, brings along samples or pictures of frames. The dual job of the second salesman or "field artist" is to obtain coloring instructions for the "painting" and to sell the customer a frame for the "painting" that is to be made from the "sketch."
The average selling price of respondent Midwest Studios' frames is around $7.50. Frames are sold respectively, however, for $8.90, $9.90, $11, $11.95, $12, $13.95, $15, and $17. Frames cost about $1.50 each at the factory.

(l) The real situation as to the sale of frames by respondent, theretofore undisclosed by reason of the silence of respondent's salesmen on the subject of frames, is brought to light immediately upon the refusal of a customer to buy a frame or to carry the transaction through to a conclusion by paying any balance due on a frame and picture theretofore ordered. Upon refusing to purchase frames, customers are thereupon variously informed by respondent's "field artists" or follow-up salesmen that owing to the peculiar octagon shape of frames it will be difficult or it will not be possible for the customer to obtain a frame elsewhere; that frames selected by the customer will be unsatisfactory and unacceptable to the company, and that the customer will not receive his picture unless a frame therefor is purchased from Midwest.

(i) The first sales agent, in obtaining the loan of a treasured family photograph and explaining that it will be needed for making the "sketch" for the painting or portrait, does not disclose or even intimate that the customer will not be able, when the sketch is produced, to obtain then the return of the photograph that has been loaned the sales agent. The color instructions are obtained from the customer, not from the photograph, and customers understand that having paid all that was requested in the case of the painting or picture, the picture is their property.

It is established by the evidence that in various instances where customers refused to buy frames, respondent company would neither surrender to them the sketch or painting or the family photograph which had been loaned by the customer. Various customers have been informed that the photograph will not be returned until a frame is bought. The policy and practice of respondent company is and has been to retain the family photograph of the customer "until the transaction is completed" and the transaction is "not completed until the customer has either accepted the picture and frame and pays for it in accordance with the contract or the customer and the studio have entered into a satisfactory disposition of the case * * *." If the customer pays in full for the portrait and frame, the original photograph will be returned with these. If the customer fails or refuses to pay eventually, the photograph is returned when the time comes when the respondent company does not deem it advisable to press the matter further. In pursuance of the company's policy, customers' photographs are retained until final payment is made on the frame in cases where notes have been executed for balances due. In such cases the customer is required to sign a note containing the following provision:

I have voluntarily signed this note as evidence of balance due on portrait and frame purchased from Midwest Studios, Inc., which you are to mail to me, together with photo upon payment of this note in full as above specified.

By this means the respondent attempts and has attempted to show a balance due on a picture which has already been paid for in full.

Par. 5. Based upon the testimony of customers of Midwest Studios, Inc., upon the testimony of the officers, salesmen and other representatives of said company, and upon the failure and refusal of said officers, salesmen, and representatives to disclose to customers essential facts and situations bearing upon and influencing the course of said customers' dealings and contractual relations with said Midwest Studios, Inc., the Commission finds that:

Midwest Studios, Inc., does not and never has limited the sale of said pictures to a few selected customers in any given territory.

The picture or similar work does not now and never has sold for the price of $20 to $25.

Respondent Midwest Studios' $20 painting or picture offered as "free" for advertising purposes after the customer has drawn "lucky," is not free, but in fact the sum of $1.95 charged therefor is the usual customary price for which respondent sells said so-called paintings or pictures. The actual cost to Midwest of the picture sold by it is possibly a dollar and the sum of $1.95, collected from the customer at the beginning of each transaction is in fact an initial purchase price payment on a picture and is not and does not represent the actual cost of "wrapping," "handling" a picture, or "parcel post" or "the painter's time," as represented.

Respondent, Midwest Studios, Inc., is not and has not been engaged in any special advertising campaign. Pictures are not actually offered as, or in connection with, any special introductory offer, and the method by which respondent company, through its salesmen, undertakes to place and does place its pictures, portraits, or paintings in the homes of customers in various States of the United States was, and is, the regular sales plan employed by the company in the case of all customers.

Respondent, Midwest Studios, Inc., does not now and never has produced oil paintings of photographs loaned to it.

Based upon the testimony of photographers who enlarge and color photographs, artists who design and paint pictures, and curators who conduct exhibitions of art, the Commission finds that pictures sold and distributed by respondent, Midwest Studios, Inc., are not "paintings." Said pictures in no way conform to the established belief of the public as to what constitutes a painting nor do said pictures constitute paintings. The pictures sold and distributed by the respondent, Midwest Studios, Inc., are in fact colored photographs produced by making a photographic negative of a photograph loaned or furnished by the customer, an enlarged photograph then being made from the negative or specially prepared photographic paper, this being built up by the use of pastel and water color, principally applied by a mechanical device known as an air brush.
Findings

The Commission finds that a painting as understood by photographers who color photographs, artists who paint pictures, and the general public, is an original representation by the painter of a design, image, or object on a surface by means of paint, either pastel, water color or oil; a free-hand image by the artist painted directly on the surface without the intervention of any mechanical means such as a camera. This is the conception which the general public has of the term "painting" and is what they expect to get when a painting is purchased.

The alleged "draw" is a fraudulent scheme conceived for the sole purpose and with the result of inducing prospective purchasers to believe that if they draw "lucky" numbers they will have the advantage of securing pictures free, or at a greatly reduced price, and that they will further receive said pictures to the exclusion of certain other people in the same locality. In fact, however, every prospect is approached in the same way and all pay the same price. By means of this scheme, members of the purchasing public are beguiled into believing that they are the exceptional few whom fortune has favored.

The Commission finds that the said "draw" as employed by the Midwest Studios, Inc., does not give said purchaser a picture free or at a reduced price and does not give any customer any advantage or preference over any other customer. The Commission further finds that as a result of the representations of respondent's salesmen in relation to the "draw" customers considering that they have been lucky and have won or obtained a distinct advantage over other customers in the same locality are thereby induced to sign contracts for the completion and delivery of respondent's pictures.

The sales plan designed and employed by the respondents, which provides for the original or contact salesman selling or placing only the picture and a second or separate party known as a "field artist" delivering a "sketch" of the picture and selling the frame, is solely for the purpose, and has the effect of, misleading and forcing the purchaser into buying something which he did not originally intend buying, namely, a frame. The special design of frame in which the picture is delivered cannot be duplicated successfully except by the Midwest Studios, Inc. As a result, the purchaser is forced to deal with the respondent, Midwest Studios, Inc., in the purchase of said frame. By this method of dealing in frames, the respondents have placed, and are placing, in the hands of their sales representatives and "field artists" a means whereby said representatives and "field artists" can, and do, sell said picture frames for exorbitant amounts, and can force the purchase of frames upon unsuspecting customers.

The alleged "field artist," mentioned in respondent Midwest's "painting" contract and in sales talks, who comes to get color instruction and to sell a frame, is not an artist but merely another salesman posing under that title. The expression "field artist" is merely a nickname applied to them. They do no actual art work.

Par. 6. Based upon the testimony of customers of Midwest Studios, Inc., upon the testimony of the officers, salesmen and other representatives of said company, and upon documents employed by respondent company in connection with sales work, the Commission finds that if a customer accepts a "free painting," has paid $1.95 thereon as an item of incidental expense after having drawn "lucky," has loaned Midwest's representative a treasured family photograph, and then refuses to buy a frame from respondent, his plight is as follows: Respondent company will refuse to complete the "painting"; the customer, assuming it might be delivered to him, has up to that moment only a brown-toned unfinished print or "sketch," not suitable for framing, the contract is not subject to cancellation; and, in order to get the "free painting" which the customer thought he would get upon drawing "lucky" and paying $1.95 as an item of expense, and the return of the valued family photograph, the customer finds he must buy a frame from respondent Midwest Studios, Inc. The Commission finds that the record does not disclose any instance where one of Midwest's salesmen informed any customer where he or she might purchase a frame other than through respondent Midwest Studios, Inc., and that the record does disclose that customers were compelled to buy frames from respondent company in order to receive their pictures or paintings and to obtain the return of the family photograph they had theretofore loaned to the company's sales agent.

Par. 7. The Commission further finds that if the customer has agreed to accept a free painting, has drawn "lucky," has paid the expense item of $1.95, has loaned Midwest's sales representative a valued family photograph and has bought a frame on the installment plan, but has not finished paying for the frame, the respondent company, Midwest Studios, Inc., retains the sketch, the finished "painting," the valued family photograph and the frame until all sums claimed to be due to the company are paid to it in full.

The Commission further finds in this relation that customers have not agreed, and have not been given to understand by respondent's sales agents, that in lending a family photograph to respondent's sales agents for use in making a preliminary sketch, respondent, Midwest Studios, Inc., thereby obtained in effect and could undertake to assert a lien upon such photograph entitling respondent company to retain custody and possession of said photograph until any and all sums due, or claimed to be due, by the customer to Midwest Studios, Inc., were paid.

Par. 8. The Commission further finds, based upon the testimony of customers, that many were dissatisfied and deceived as a result of the representations of salesmen of Midwest Studios, Inc., were dissatisfied with the work done for them by the respondent company, and that pictures were not in accordance with samples previously shown or representations made relative thereto. This was the case with respect to pictures and frames alike. Customers who had been promised oil paintings did not receive oil paintings. Many customers complained about the quality and character of respondent's work. Many customers did not understand that the picture was to be in a peculiar octagonal shape and convex and some refused to accept the picture when the same was sent c. o. d. with no opportunity permitted to inspect the work before paying for it.

Par. 9. The Commission further finds that all of the representations by the salesmen and representatives of the respondent, Midwest Studios, Inc., were made with the knowledge, acquiescence and active cooperation of the respondents and respondents' salesmen and representatives for the purpose and with the result of selling Midwest Studios, colored enlargements or photographs and frames therefor. The respondents and said salesmen and representatives knew these representations to be false and misleading. The respondents further aided and abetted in the furtherance of said fraudulent sales plan and representations by furnishing said salesmen and representatives with standardized sales talks containing the false and misleading representations hereinbefore set out for their guidance.

Par. 10. There are among the competitors of respondent, Midwest Studios, Inc., and respondent, Imperial Sales Co., corporations, partnerships, firms, and persons who are engaged in the sale of colored enlargements of photographs and frames therefor in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, who do not employ and maintain the practices hereinbefore enumerated and described, but who truthfully represent and honestly vend their products, and there are also among the competitors of said respondents, corporations, partnerships, firms, and persons engaged in the business of painting portraits and selling paintings in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, who truthfully represent their products as being paintings.

PAR. 11. The use by respondents of the hereinabove enumerated false and misleading representations in connection with the offering for sale and sale of colored photographic enlargements and of frames therefor has had and now has the capacity and tendency to deceive, and has deceived, purchasers into buying respondent Midwest Studios, Inc.'s products as and for those possessing the characteristics and qualities claimed for them. Respondents, through such methods have placed, and are placing, in the hands of their sales managers, sales agents and "field artists," the means of deceiving customers.

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents have the capacity and tendency to, and do, divert unfairly to respondents the trade of competitors engaged in selling in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia products of the same kind and nature as those of respondents, which products are truthfully advertised and represented.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of the respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondents thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, taken before Henry M. White and Robert S. Hall, examiners of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, briefs filed herein, and oral arguments by Marshall Morgan, counsel for the Commission, and by Albert H. Fry, counsel for the respondents, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said
It is ordered, That the said respondent, Midwest Studios, Inc., a corporation, and Imperial Sales Co., a corporation, their officers, representatives, agents, and employees, and B. E. Youmans, an individual, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale and sale and distribution of colored or tinted photographs or colored enlargements thereof having a photographic base, and of frames therefor, in commerce as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing, directly or in any manner, that colored or tinted pictures, photographs, or photographic enlargements are hand-painted or are paintings.

2. Using the terms "free hand painted portrait," "oil painting," or the word "painting," either alone or in conjunction with any other terms or words or in any way to designate, describe or refer to colored or tinted pictures, photographs or photographic enlargements or other pictures produced from a photographic base or impression.

3. Misrepresenting that any specified sum is the actual cost of "handling" a picture, "wrapping," or "parcel post," or the "painter's time," or otherwise misrepresenting the actual cost of either materials or delivery.

4. Representing that a picture similar to sample displayed will be delivered unless the picture so delivered is of the same kind, quality, design, and workmanship.

5. Representing that respondents are conducting any special or advertising campaign in any particular place or locality for the purpose of obtaining special exhibitors, or otherwise, unless such campaign or such special offer is in fact then being conducted or made in such locality for such purpose.

6. Representing that said pictures are being, or will be, sold only to a limited number of customers, or otherwise misrepresenting any material fact concerning the terms and conditions of sale, or the extent to which the sale of such pictures is limited.

7. Misrepresenting through the use of a "draw," or drawing contest, or through the use of "lucky" blanks, slips, coupons, or certificates, or through the use of any other device, plan or scheme, or through any introductory or advertising offer, or otherwise, that any customer thereby would obtain a financial advantage or would be entitled to receive any picture free or would receive a substantial discount or reduction in the price of any picture or pictures.
8. Concealing from or failing to disclose to customers upon initial contact that the finished picture when delivered will be so shaped and designed that it can only be used in a specially designed, odd style of frame which can be obtained from Midwest Studios only.

9. Representing to customers in any manner that suitable frames for pictures may be purchased elsewhere unless such odd design of frame can in fact be readily purchased in the customary marts of trade.

10. Representing as the customary or regular prices or values of frames prices and values which are in excess of the prices at which frames are regularly and customarily sold in the normal and usual course of business.

11. Obtaining promissory notes which recite that there is an outstanding "balance due on portrait," or otherwise misrepresenting that any sum or balance is due on a picture, when in fact the purchaser has previously paid the full prescribed contract price for said picture.

12. Retaining the original photograph loaned to respondent for use in making its picture, or retaining the pictures made by it therefrom, after full payment has been made therefor, unless all of the terms and conditions upon which said original photograph or said picture made by respondent is to be retained in connection with the purchase and payment for a frame, or for any other purpose, are fully and adequately revealed to the purchaser at the time the original photograph is obtained from such purchaser.

It is further ordered, That the respondents shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF

CORNELIUS P. VAN SCHAACK, JR., TRADING AS THE INK COMPANY OF AMERICA AND PIONEER ADVERTISING COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3261. Complaint, Nov. 6, 1937—Decision, May 15, 1939

Where an individual engaged in offer and sale of sales promotion cards and certificates, fountain pen and pencil sets, and ink and pencil leads, to retailers and other consumers in various States and in the District of Columbia, and, as thus engaged, in (1) entering into written contracts with merchant, at 10 cents apiece, of pen and pencil certificates, to be distributed to merchant’s customers upon purchase by customer of $5 worth of mer· chant’s goods, as registered upon purchase cards supplied by said individual to merchant, and entitling customer to have same redeemed for pen and pencil set, as therein described, upon forwarding same to said individual with 80 cents for ink and pencil leads, and in (2) furnishing such merchants with various display posters and advertisements to be employed by them in distribution and use of such cards—

(a) Represented, in the course and operation of his said business, and to induce said merchants to purchase his said pen and pencil certificates and use plan above set forth, that the Ink Co. of America was carrying on a national campaign designed to advertise its “Ticoa” ink and pencil leads, and that such campaign was being conducted by the Pioneer Advertising.
Co. as a separate organization, so as to permit retail merchants to give away nationally advertised pen and pencil sets free;

Facts being said individual was not engaged in carrying on such a campaign to advertise products of said first-named company, use of said names or trade names constituted a subterfuge by said individual to carry his plan into effect to lead merchants to believe that they were separate and distinct organizations, and he was not interested in sale of such “Ticoa” ink and “Ticoa” pencil leads for use in the fountain pen and pencil sets distributed by him, but was principally and primarily interested in sale of such pro·

(b) Represented that pen and pencil sets furnished to customers were nationally advertised products and had retail value and usual selling price of $3.50, and set forth statements to such effect on certificates in question, and that such certificate entitled holder to a matched pen and pencil set absolutely free when sent, as herelineabove set forth, with 80 cents for the four bottles of “Ticoa” ink and four tubes of “Ticoa” leads;
Facts being sets delivered to merchants' customers were not nationally advertised brand, but were a brand not nationally known or nationally advertised, did not have a retail value or price of $3.50 each, but value and usual selling price substantially less than represented by individual, and cost of which to him was covered by sum of 80 cents which customers were required to send for redemption of their said certificates, as above set forth;

(c) Represented that retail merchant would receive free and without cost 3 pen and pencil sets, 12 tubes of lead, as many bottles of ink, and advertising material, upon entering into contract, and might designate therein nationally advertised brand of pen and pencil sets to be delivered to merchant's customers absolutely free in fulfillment of contract, and that adoption thereof by merchant would be without cost to him and would operate to his profit, in that said individual would refund amount paid for such certificates, together with additional amount for each certificate sent to him for redemption by merchant's customers;

Facts being adoption of such plan was not without cost to merchants, and did not operate to their profit, and said individual did not make cash refunds represented as above set forth, but offer thereof was a lure and snare devised and intended solely to secure execution of agreement by merchant in expectation of being able, through cooperation of said individual, to comply with terms of agreement and secure refunds from him for certificates sent in by his customers for redemption, as above set forth, and above statements and representations were otherwise false and misleading; and

(d) Represented, in advertisements in various newspapers and periodicals for agents to sell his merchandise, that $25 a day was usual and customary commission that would be earned by such agents through such sale;

Facts being his said salesmen did not, in ordinary and usual course of business, earn said amount or any other sum of money closely approximating it, but usually and customarily made substantially less;

With effect of misleading substantial number of retail merchants and of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that such false and misleading representations were true, and of inducing thereby substantial number of such merchants to purchase his said certificates and execute contracts in connection therewith, and with effect that trade was thereby diverted unfairly to him from his competitors in commerce as aforesaid, and who truthfully represent their products:

Held, That such acts and practices were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. Arthur F. Thomas and Mr. Edward E. Reardon, trial examiners.

Mr. George Foulkes for the Commission.

Hickey, Hall & Junge, of Chicago, Ill., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes,"
The Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Cornelius P. Van Schaack, Jr., trading as The Ink Co. of America and Pioneer Advertising Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has been and is using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act of Congress, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Cornelius P. Van Schaack, Jr., is now, and has been for more than 1 year last past, an individual doing business under the trade names The Ink Co. of America, located at 6 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and Pioneer Advertising Agency, located at 549 West Randolph Street, Chicago, Ill. Respondent is now, and has been during the time above mentioned, engaged in the business of offering for sale and selling sales promotion cards and certificates, fountain pen and pencil sets, ink and pencil leads, to retailers and other consumers located in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 2. Said respondent being engaged in business as aforesaid causes said sales promotion cards, and certificates, together with the advertising literature used in connection therewith and the various items of merchandise also used in connection therewith, when sold, to be transported from his office and principal places of business located in Chicago, Ill., to the purchasers thereof located in various points in States of the United States other than the State of Illinois. The respondent has at all times mentioned herein maintained a constant current of trade and commerce in said sales promotion cards and certificates and the merchandise sold in connection therewith between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

In the course and conduct of his business the respondent is now and has been in substantial competition with other individuals, firms, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the business of selling and distributing promotional sales plans of various types, fountain pen and pencil sets, ink, pencil leads and similar commodities, in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 3. In the course and conduct of his business respondent advertises in various newspapers, magazines, and periodicals for agents to sell his merchandise, and represents to such prospective salesmen that $25 a day is the usual and customary commission that will be earned by them through the sale of respondent's merchandise. Said advertising is as follows:

PREMIUM SALESMEN
$25. commission daily.
Summer Special: Giving free pen and pencil sets through retailers. Ticoa, 6 North Michigan, Chicago.

In fact, respondent's salesmen do not, in the ordinary and usual course of business, earn $25 per day or earn any other sum of money closely approximating $25 per day. The usual and customary earnings of such salesmen, in due course of normal business, is substantially less than $25 per day.

PAR. 4. Further, in the course of operation of his business and in order to sell his products respondent enters into a form of agreement or written contract with retail merchants who are contacted by respondent's selling agents.

The written form of contract provides for the purchase by a merchant of so-called "pen and pencil certificates," for which the merchant pays 10 cents a piece, and distribution of the same to the merchant's customers by the merchant upon the purchase by the customers of $5 worth of the merchant's goods. Each customer is supplied by the merchant with a purchase card upon which the amount of purchases are registered.

The certificate which the customer receives from the merchant upon the purchase of the required amount of merchandise is as follows:

$3.50 VALUE

NATIONALLY ADVERTISED PEN and PENCIL SET CERTIFICATE
This Certificate is Given With Our Compliments and Entitles Holder to a MATCHED PEN AND PENCIL SET "ABSOLUTELY FREE"

When sent with trial order for 4 bottles of TICOA Ink at 10¢ each and 4 tubes of TICOA Leads at 10¢ each. Total cost 80¢. Same being the regular price of TICOA "Super Quality" Ink and Leads. Postage, Handling and Packing Charges Fully Prepaid.

When the customer has received his certificate he may redeem the same by forwarding it to respondent with 80 cents for ink and pencil leads.
Respondent furnishes the retail merchants with various display posters and advertisements to be used by said retail merchants in distributing and using said cards.

Par. 5. In the course of the operation of his business and for the purpose of inducing retail merchants to purchase his pen and pencil certificates and to induce said retail merchants to use the plan above set forth, respondent makes the following representations:

1. That The Ink Co. of America is carrying on a national campaign designed to advertise its ink and pencil leads designated "Ticoa"; that the advertising campaign is carried on by the Pioneer Advertising Agency, a separate organization, so as to permit retail merchants to give away nationally advertised pen and pencil sets "free."

2. That the Ticoa ink and Ticoa pencil leads are of superior quality and have a regular retail price of 10¢ per package of leads and 10¢ per ounce of ink.

3. That the pen and pencil sets actually furnished to customers are nationally advertised products and have a retail value and usual selling price of §3.50.

4. That the retail merchant will receive "free" and without cost 3 pen and pencil sets, 12 tubes of lead, 12 bottles of ink and advertising material upon entering into the contract.

5. That retail merchants may designate in said agreement a nationally advertised brand of pen and pencil set and that the same will be delivered by respondent to the merchant’s customer absolutely free in fulfillment of the contract.

6. That the adoption of respondent’s plan by retail merchants will be without cost to them and will operate to their profit in that respondent will refund the amount paid for the certificates together with an additional amount of money for each certificate sent to respondent for redemption by the merchant’s customers.

7. That merchants will not be obliged to pay any postage, packing, or handling charges for the merchandise received by them from respondent.

Par. 6. Respondent’s representations as above set forth are grossly exaggerated, false, misleading, and untrue. In truth and in fact respondent has not been and is not engaged in carrying on a national campaign designed to advertise the products of The Ink Co. of America. The use of the trade names The Ink Co. of America and Pioneer Advertising Agency is a subterfuge by which respondent, in order to carry his plan into effect, leads the merchants to believe that the same are separate and distinct organizations. The respondent is in fact not interested in the sale of Ticoa ink and Ticoa pencil leads to be used in the fountain pen and pencil sets distributed by him but is interested principally and primarily in the sale of said promotional cards and certificates for the purpose of obtaining the profits resulting therefrom. Respondent does not enable retail merchants to give away nationally advertised pen and pencil sets free, but in fact the cost of said sets is included in the price paid by the merchant's customers for the ink and pencil leads they must purchase when redeeming the pen and pencil certificates and before receiving the pen and pencil set. Ticoa ink and Ticoa pencil leads are not of superior quality and they do not have a retail price of 10 cents per package of leads and 10 cents per ounce of ink. The pen and pencil sets which the respondent delivers to the merchant's customers are not a nationally advertised brand and respondent in the conduct of his business supplies said customers with a brand of pen and pencil set not nationally known or nationally advertised. Further, the said pen and pencil sets do not have a retail value or price of $3.50 each. In fact the retail value and the usual selling price of the sets is substantially less than represented by respondent and the sum of 80 cents which the customers send to respondent for redemption of their pen and pencil certificates covers the cost to respondent of said pen and pencil sets, together with 4 bottles of ink and 4 pencil lead sets. In fact, the retail merchant does not receive free of charge 3 pen and pencil sets, 12 tubes of lead, 12 bottles of ink and advertising material, but the cost of the same is included in the amount of money paid by the retail merchant to the respondent for the pen and pencil certificates. Further, when retail merchants designate their choice of a particular brand of pen and pencil set, their selection is disregarded by respondent and he systematically pursues the policy of substituting a cheaper pen and pencil set of a brand not nationally known. The adoption of respondent's plan by retail merchants does not operate without cost to them and does not operate to their profit. In fact, respondent does not make the cash refunds represented to merchants entering into such contracts. The purported cash refund to the merchants by the respondent is a lure and a snare devised and intended for the sole purpose of securing the execution of said agreement by retail merchants in expectation of being able, through the cooperation of respondent, to comply with the terms of the agreement and secure refunds from respondent for the pen and pencil certificates sent in for redemption to respondent by the said retail merchants' customers.

Par. 7. The effect of the foregoing false and misleading representations on the part of respondent is to mislead a substantial number of retail merchants, as well as a substantial portion of the consuming public, by inducing them to believe that the representations made by the respondent and his representatives are true and that upon purchase of respondent's sales promotion cards and certificates said retail merchant will receive the benefits to accrue therefrom, and that upon sending in the pen and pencil certificates for redemption their customers will receive the merchandise represented.

The foregoing false and misleading representations on the part of respondent serve as inducements for substantial numbers of retail merchants to purchase respondent's pen and pencil cards and certificates and execute the contracts in connection therewith. As a result thereof, trade has been unfairly diverted to respondent from individuals, firms, and corporations likewise engaged in the sale and distribution of sales promotional plans, fountain pen and pencil sets, ink, pencil leads, and similar commodities, and who truthfully represent their products. As a consequence thereof, substantial injury has been done and is now being done by respondent in competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

The above alleged acts and representations of respondent have been and are now all to the prejudice of the purchasing public and of respondent's competitors as aforesaid, and have been and are now unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled, "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on November 6, 1937, issued and on November 8, 1937 served its complaint in this proceeding upon repondent, Cornelius P. Van Schaack, Jr., trading as The Ink Co. of America and Pioneer Advertising Co., charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer, the Commission, by order entered herein, granted respondent's motion for permission to withdraw said answer and to substitute an answer admitting all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, which substitute answer was duly filed in the office of the Commission.
Thereafter, this procedure regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and substitute answer, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. The respondent, Cornelius P. Van Schaack, Jr., an individual, is now and for more than 1 year last past has been doing business under the trade names of The Ink Co. of America, located at 6 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and Pioneer Advertising Co., located at 549 West Randolph Street, Chicago, Ill.

Respondent is now, and has been during the time above mentioned, engaged in the business of offering for sale and selling sales promotion cards and certificates, fountain pen and pencil sets, ink and pencil leads, to retailers and other consumers located in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 2. The respondent being engaged in business as aforesaid causes said sales promotion cards, and certificates, together with the advertising literature used in connection therewith and the various items of merchandise also used in connection therewith, when sold, to be transported from his office and principal places of business located in Chicago, Ill., to the purchasers thereof located at various points in States of the United States other than the State of Illinois.

The respondent has at all times mentioned herein maintained a constant course of trade and commerce in said sales promotion cards and certificates and the merchandise sold in connection therewith between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

In the course and conduct of his business the respondent is now and has been in substantial competition with other individuals and with firms, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the business of selling and distributing promotional sales plans of various types, fountain pen and pencil sets, ink, pencil leads, and similar commodities, in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 3. In the course and conduct of his business respondent advertises in various newspapers, magazines, and periodicals for agents to sell his merchandise, and represents to such prospective salesmen that $25 a day is the usual and customary commission that will be earned by them through the sales of respondent's merchandise. Said advertising is as follows:
In fact, respondent's salesmen do not, in the ordinary and usual course of business, earn $25 per day or earn any other sum of money closely approximating $25 per day. The usual and customary earnings of such salesmen, in due course of normal business, is substantially less than $25 per day.

Par. 4. In the course of the operation of his business and in order to sell his products respondent enters into a form of agreement or written contract with retail merchants who are contacted by respondent's selling agents.

The written form of contract provides for the purchase by a merchant of so-called "pen and pencil certificates," for which the merchant pays 10 cents apiece, and distribution of the same to the merchant's customers by the merchant upon the purchase by the customers of $5 worth of the merchant's goods. Each customer is supplied by the merchant with a purchase card upon which the amount of purchases are registered.

The certificate which the customer receives from the merchant upon the purchase of the required amount of merchandise is as follows:

When the customer has received his certificate he may redeem the same by forwarding it to respondent with 80 cents for ink and pencil leads.
Respondent furnishes the retail merchants with various display posters and advertisements to be used by said retail merchants in distributing and using said cards.

Par. 5. In the course of the operation of his business and for the purpose of inducing retail merchants to purchase his pen and pencil certificates and to induce said retail merchants to use the plan above set forth, respondent makes the following representations:

1. That The Ink Co. of America is carrying on a national campaign designed to advertise its ink and pencil leads designated "Ticoa"; that the advertising campaign is carried on by the Pioneer Advertising Co., a separate organization, so as to permit retail merchants to give away nationally advertised pen and pencil sets "free."

2. That the pen and pencil sets actually furnished to customers are nationally advertised products and have a retail value and usual selling price of $3.50.

3. That the retail merchant will receive "free" and without cost 3 pen and pencil sets, 12 tubes of lead, 12 bottles of ink and advertising material upon entering into the contract.

4. That retail merchants may designate in said agreement a nationally advertised brand of pen and pencil set and that the same will be delivered by respondent to the merchant's customer absolutely free in fulfillment of the contract.

5. That the adoption of respondent's plan by retail merchants will be without cost to them and will operate to their profit in that respondent will refund the amount paid for the certificates together with an additional amount of money for each certificate sent to respondent for redemption by the merchant's customers.

Par. 6. Respondent's representations as above set forth are grossly exaggerated, false, misleading, and untrue. In truth and in fact respondent has not been and is not engaged in carrying on a national campaign designed to advertise the products of The Ink Co. of America. The use of the trade names The Ink Co. of America and Pioneer Advertising Co. is a subterfuge by which respondent, in order to carry his plan into effect leads the merchants to believe that the same are separate and distinct organizations. The respondent is in fact not interested in the sale of Ticoa ink and Ticoa pencil leads to be used in the fountain pen and pencil sets distributed by him but is interested principally and primarily in the sale of said promotional cards and certificates for the purpose of obtaining the profits resulting therefrom. Respondent does not enable retail merchants to give away nationally advertised pen and pencil sets free, but in fact the cost of said sets is included in the price paid by the merchant's customers for the ink and pencil leads they must purchase when redeem-
Findings

The pen and pencil sets which the respondent delivers to the merchant's customers are not a nationally advertised brand and respondent in the conduct of his business supplies said customers with a brand of pen and pencil set not nationally known or nationally advertised. Further, the said pen and pencil sets do not have a retail value or price of $3.50 each. In fact the retail value and the usual selling price of the sets is substantially less than represented by respondent and the sum of 80 cents which the customers send to respondent for redemption of their pen and pencil certificates covers the cost to respondent of said pen and pencil sets, together with 4 bottles of ink and 4 pencil lead sets. In fact, the retail merchant does not receive free of charge 3 pen and pencil sets, 12 tubes of lead, 12 bottles of ink and advertising material, but the cost of the same is included in the amount of money paid by the retail merchant to the respondent for pen and pencil certificates. Further, when retail merchants designate their choice of a particular brand of pen and pencil set, their selection is disregraded by respondent and he systematically pursues the policy of substituting a cheaper pen and pencil set of a brand not nationally known. The adoption of respondent's plan by retail merchants does not operate without cost to them and does not operate to their profit. In fact, respondent does not make the cash refunds represented to merchants entering into such contracts. The purported cash refund to the merchants by the respondent is a lure and a snare devised and intended for the sole purpose of securing the execution of said agreement by retail merchants in expectation of being able, through the cooperation of respondent, to comply with the terms of the agreement and secure refunds from respondent for the pen and pencil certificates sent in for redemption to respondent by the said retail merchants' customers.

PAR. 7. The use by the respondent of the foregoing false and misleading representations has had and now has the capacity and tendency to and does, mislead a substantial number of retail merchants as well as a substantial portion of the purchasing public, into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such false and misleading representations are true. The foregoing false and misleading representations on the part of respondent serve as inducements for a substantial number of retail merchants to purchase respondent's certificates and to execute the contracts in connection therewith.

As a result thereof, trade has been diverted unfairly to respondent from his competitors in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, who truthfully represent their products.
CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of the respondent in which answer respondent admits all of the material allegations of fact set forth in the complaint, and states that he waives all intervening procedure and further hearings as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Cornelius P. Van Schaack, Jr., individually and trading as The Ink Co. of America and Pioneer Advertising Co., or under any other name or names, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of sales promotion plans, including cards and certificates, fountain pen and pencil sets, ink and pencil leads, or other articles of merchandise in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing that the Pioneer Advertising Co., or the respondent trading under his own name or under any other trade name or names, has been or is conducting a national advertising campaign designed to advertise the products of The Ink Co. of America or of any person, firm, or corporation.

2. Representing that the Pioneer Advertising Co., The Ink Co. of America or any other instrumentalities owned and controlled by respondent and used by him in connection with the sale and distribution of said sales promotional plans, are organizations having separate ownership and control.

3. Using the term "free" or any other term of similar import and meaning to describe or refer to goods, wares or merchandise regularly offered in connection with the purchase of specified quantities of other merchandise.

4. Representing that the pen and pencil sets have a retail value and usual selling price of $3.50 or any other amount in excess of the price at which said pen and pencil sets are regularly and customarily sold in the ordinary course of business under normal conditions and circumstances.

5. Representing that the pen and pencil sets are nationally known or nationally advertised.

6. Representing that respondent refunds to his customers the purchase price for such certificates or makes additional payments to his customers in connection with the presentation of the certificates for redemption.

7. Representing any specified sum of money as possible earnings or profits of agents, salesmen, representatives, or distributors for any given period of time, which is not a true representation of the average net earnings or profits customarily made by respondent's active full-time agents, salesmen, representatives or distributors in the ordinary course of business under normal conditions and circumstances.

8. Representing that the participation by merchants in respondent's sales promotional plan is without cost to said merchants.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall within 60 days from service upon him of this order file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.
IN THE MATTER OF

CORNELIUS P. VAN SCHAAACK, JR., TRADING AS MID-WEST SALES SYNDICATE AND MID-WEST PORTRAIT SERVICE

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Where an individual engaged, as case might be, under names "Mid-West Sales Syndicate" and "Mid-West Portrait Service," in offer and sale of sales promotion cards and certificates, and also, respectively, of lanterns, batteries, and bulbs, and tinted photographic enlargements, and, as thus engaged, in entering into written contracts with retail merchants contacted by his selling agents, under which said individual agreed, for a specified sum, to furnish merchants with certificates to be distributed to merchants' customers purchasing certain amount of his merchandise and to be redeemed by him as below set forth—

(a) Represented, in advertising for agents to sell his merchandise in various newspapers and periodicals circulating among the various States and in the District of Columbia, that $25 a day was the usual and customary commission earned by his salesmen "Giving Away Free Electric Lanterns Through All Retail Dealers";

Facts being his said salesmen did not, in ordinary and usual course of business, earn such amount or any other amount of money closely approximating such sum, but, as usual and customary earnings in due course of normal business, substantially less;

(b) Represented, under name "Mid-West Sales Syndicate," to retail merchants solicited to enter into contracts for purchase of his "Red Guard Electric Lantern Certificates," to be distributed by merchant and redeemed by said individual for customers upon being sent in, as thereon set forth, with 80 cents to cover, at 10 cents each, six Chicago "Super Quality" batteries and two bulbs, that he was carrying on a national campaign to advertise such batteries and bulbs, and that such campaign was being carried on by aforesaid syndicate, and separate organization, so as to permit retail merchants to give away such lanterns free, and that adoption of such sales promotion plan by merchant would be without cost to him and would operate to merchant's profit, in that he would refund amount paid for certificates together with additional amount for each certificate sent to him for redemption by customers of merchant;

Facts being he was not engaged in any such campaign, and his said plan did not enable the merchant to give away such lantern free, but cost thereof was included in price paid by merchant's customers for batteries and bulbs which they were required to purchase when redeeming such lantern certificates and before receiving lantern, and plan did not operate without cost to merchant, nor to his profit, and he did not make such refunds, which were lure and snare devised and intended solely to secure execution of agreement by merchant.
MID-WEST SALES SYNDICATE, ETC. 1621

Complaint

(c) Represented, as aforesaid, that number of certificates which he would permit retail merchant to purchase was determined by manufacturer of such batteries and bulbs, and not by himself, and that lanterns had a retail and usual selling price of $1.50 and were given away "free" to merchant's customers, and set forth such purported value on said certificates and that they were "Absolutely Free" when certificates were sent in for such trial order with 80 cents, as above indicated;

Facts being there was no such limitation placed by manufacturers of aforesaid products upon amount of certificates which retail merchant might purchase, said batteries and bulbs were sold outright to said individual by such manufacturer and could be disposed of by him as his own property, and said lantern did not have any such retail value and usual selling price, but cost thereof was included in price paid by merchant's customers for batteries and bulbs as above set forth; and

(d) Represented that he would, at merchant's request, provide merchant with labels, circulars, and advertising matter to enable him properly to put plan into effect;

Notwithstanding fact he did not, in all cases, thus supply merchants; and

(e) Represented, under name "Mid-West Portrait Service," in entering into contracts with merchants and in soliciting such business of them, as here-inafore indicated, that the complete portrait and frame described in certificates furnished by him to merchant for distribution to merchant's customers upon the purchase of a certain amount of merchandise, and to be redeemed by said individual upon being sent to him with 99 cents, represented as amount to "defray handling costs," had a retail value and usual selling price of $5.50, and that the portraits furnished were "hand-painted oil portraits," facts being said portraits were not "hand-painted oil portraits," but enlarged photographs, colored, and did not have such retail value and usual selling price;

With effect of misleading substantial number of retail merchants and substantial portion of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that such false and misleading representations were true, and of inducing thereby substantial number of merchants to purchase his said certificates and to execute the contracts in connection therewith, and with effect that trade was thereby diverted unfairly to him from his competitors in commerce among the various States and in said District, and who truthfully represent their products:

Held, That such acts and practices were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. Edward E. Reardon, trial examiner.
Mr. George Foulkes for the Commission.
Hickey, Hall & Junge, of Chicago, Ill., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Cornelius P. Van Schaack, Jr., individually and trading as Mid-West Sales Syndicate and Mid-West Portrait Service, hereinafter referred to as respondent has violated the provisions of said act; and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:
Complaint

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Cornelius P. Van Schaack, Jr., an individual, is now, and has been for some time last past, doing business under the trade names of Mid-West Sales Syndicate and Mid-West Portrait Service, with his offices located at 549 West Randolph Street, Chicago, Ill. Under the name of Mid-West Sales Syndicate, respondent is engaged in the business of offering for sale and selling sales promotion cards, certificates, lanterns, batteries, and bulbs. Under the name of Mid-West Portrait Service respondent also sells sales promotion cards and certificates and in connection with a so-called sales promotion plan sells and distributes certain tinted photographic enlargements.

Par. 2. Said respondent, being engaged in business as aforesaid, causes said sales promotional plans, cards, and certificates, together with the advertising literature and various items of merchandise used in connection therewith, when sold, to be transported from his office and principal place of business located in Chicago, Ill., to the purchasers thereof located in various points in States of the United States other than the State of Illinois. Respondent has at all times mentioned herein maintained a course of trade and commerce in said sales promotion cards and certificates, and the merchandise sold in connection therewith, between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

In the course and conduct of said business, respondent is now, and has been, in substantial competition with other individuals, and with firms, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the business of selling and distributing promotional sales plans of various types, lanterns, batteries, and bulbs, photographs and similar commodities, in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 3. In the course and conduct of his business, respondent advertises in various newspapers, magazines, and periodicals having a circulation among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, for agents to sell his merchandise, and represents to such prospective salesmen that $25 a day is the usual and customary commission that will be earned by them through the sale of respondent's merchandise. Said advertising is as follows:

Premium Salesmen Summer Special; $25.00 Daily Commission
Giving Away Free Electric Lanterns Through All Retail Dealers.
Mid-West, 549 West Randolph, Chicago.
In fact, respondent’s salesmen do not, in the ordinary and usual course of business, earn $25 per day or earn any other amount of money closely approximating $25 per day. The usual and customary earnings of such salesmen, in due course of normal business, are substantially less than $25 per day.

PAR. 4. In the course and operation of his business and in order to sell his products, respondent enters into a form of agreement or written contract with retail merchants who are contacted by respondent’s selling agents.

Trading under the name of Mid-West Sales Syndicate, respondent enters into a form of contract with retail merchants in which he agrees for a specified amount of money, to furnish said retail merchants with certificates to be distributed to the merchants’ customers upon said customers’ purchasing a certain amount of merchandise, and respondent promises to redeem the certificates by distributing to said customers “one Red Guard electric lantern absolutely free.” The written form of contract provides for the purchase by a merchant of so-called “Red Guard Electric Lantern Certificates” for which the merchant pays 10 cents a certificate, and distribution of the same to the merchant’s customers by the merchant upon purchase by the customers of $5 worth of the merchant’s goods.

The certificate which the customer receives from the merchant upon purchase of the required amount of merchandise, is as follows:

When the customer has received his certificate he may redeem the same by forwarding it to respondent with 80 cents for batteries and battery bulbs.

Respondent furnishes the retail merchants with various display posters and advertisements to be used by said retail merchants in distributing and using said cards.

Par. 5. Trading under the name of Mid-West Sales Syndicate, respondent induces retail merchants to purchase his "Red Guard Electric Lantern Certificates" by making the following representations:

1. That respondent is carrying on a national campaign designed to advertise "Chicago Super Quality Batteries" and bulbs, and that the campaign is being carried on by the Mid-West Sales Syndicate, a separate organization, so as to permit retail merchants to give away "Red Guard Electric Lanterns" free.

2. That the adoption of respondent's plan of sales promotion by retail merchants will be without cost to them and will operate to their profit in that respondent will refund the amount paid for the certificates, together with an additional amount of money for each certificate sent to respondent for redemption by the merchant's customers.

3. That the number of certificates which respondent will permit a retail merchant to purchase is determined by the manufacturer of the batteries and bulbs and not by respondent.

4. That the lanterns have a retail value and usual selling price of $1.50.

5. That the lanterns are given away "free" to the merchants' customers.

6. That respondent will, at the merchant's request, provide the merchant with labels, circulars, and advertising matter for the purpose of enabling the merchant to properly put the plan into effect.

Par. 6. Respondent's representations as above set forth are grossly misleading, false, and untrue. In truth and in fact respondent has not been and is not engaged in carrying on a campaign designed to advertise Chicago Super Quality Batteries and Bulbs. Respondent's plan does not enable the merchant to give away to his customers "Red Guard Electric Lantern Free," but in fact the cost of said lanterns is included in the price paid by the merchants' customers for the batteries and bulbs they must purchase when redeeming the "Red Guard Electric Lantern Certificates" and before receiving the Red Guard Electric Lantern. Further, the said electric lantern does not have a retail value and usual selling price of $1.50. The adoption of respondent's plan by retail merchants does not operate without cost to them and does not operate to their profit. In fact, respondent does not make cash refunds to merchants entering into such contracts. The purported cash refunds to the merchants by the respondent are a lure and snare devised and intended for the sole purpose of securing execution of said agreements by retail merchants. In truth and in fact there is no limitation placed by the manufacturers of the batteries and bulbs upon the amount of certificates that a retail merchant can purchase. In fact the batteries and bulbs are sold outright to respondent by said manufacturers and respondent can dispose of the same as his own property. In truth and in fact respondent does not furnish the merchants with labels and circulars and advertising matter.

Par. 7. Trading under the name of Mid-West Portrait Service, respondent, Cornelius P. Van Schaack, Jr., enters into a form of contract with retail merchants in which he agrees for a specified sum of money to furnish said merchants with certificates to be distributed to the merchant's customers upon said customers' purchasing a certain amount of merchandise and which respondent promises to redeem by distributing to said customers "Hand-Painted Oil Portraits, Complete with Frame." The written form of contract provides for the purchase by a merchant of so-called "Hand-Painted Oil Portrait Certificates" for which the merchant pays 10 cents a certificate and distribution of the same to the merchant's customers by the merchant upon purchase by the customers of $5 worth of the merchant's goods. When the customer has received a certificate he may redeem the same by forwarding it to respondent with 99 cents, which amount is represented to "defray handling costs." Respondent furnishes the retail merchants with various display posters and advertisements to be used by said retail merchants in distributing and using trade cards and certificates.

Par. 8. Trading under the name of Mid-West Portrait Service, respondent induces retail merchants to purchase his "Hand-Painted Oil Portrait Certificates" by making the following representations:

That the complete portrait and frame furnished customers have a retail value and usual selling price of $5.50; that the portraits furnished customers are "hand-painted oil portraits."

Par. 9. The representations which respondent makes trading under the name of Mid-West Portrait Service are false, misleading, and untrue. In truth and in fact said portraits do not have a retail value and usual selling price of $5.50. Said portraits are not "Hand-Painted Oil Portraits" but are enlarged photographs colored.

Par. 10. The use by the respondent of the foregoing false and misleading representations has the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead a substantial number of retail merchants as well as a substantial portion of the consuming public, by inducing them to believe that the aforesaid representations made by the respondent and his representatives are true. The foregoing false and misleading representations on the part of respondent serve as inducements for substantial numbers of retail merchants to purchase respondent's certificates and to execute the contracts in connection therewith. As a result thereof, trade has been unfairly diverted to respondent from individuals, firms, and corporations likewise engaged in the sale and disposition of sales promotion plans, lanterns, batteries, bulbs, and colored photographs, and similar commodities and who truthfully represent their products. As a consequence, substantial injury has been done and is now being done by respondent to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 11. The aforementioned acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on October 12, 1938, issued, and on October 14, 1938, served, its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, Cornelius P. Van Schaack, Jr., individually, and trading as Mid-West Sales Syndicate and Mid-West Portrait Service, charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer, the Commission, by order entered herein, granted respondent's motion for permission to withdraw said answer and to substitute therefor an answer admitting all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, which substitute answer was duly filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and substitute answer, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.
FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. The respondent, Cornelius P. Van Schaack, Jr., an individual, is now, and has been for some time last past, doing business under the trade names of Mid-West Sales Syndicate and Mid-West Portrait Service, with his offices located at 549 West Randolph Street, Chicago, Ill.

Under the name of Mid-West Sales Syndicate, respondent is engaged in the business of offering for sale and selling sales promotion cards, certificates, lanterns, batteries, and bulbs.

Under the name of Mid-West Portrait Service respondent also sells sales promotion cards and certificates and in connection with a so-called sales promotion plan sells and distributes tinted photographic enlargements.

Paragraph 2. The respondent, being engaged in business as aforesaid, causes said sales promotional plans, cards, and certificates, together with the advertising literature and various items of merchandise used in connection therewith, when sold, to be transported from his office and principal place of business located in Chicago, Ill., to the purchasers thereof at respective points of location in States of the United States other than the State of Illinois.

Respondent has at all times mentioned herein maintained a course of trade and commerce in said sales promotion cards and certificates, and the merchandise sold in connection therewith, between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

In the course and conduct of said business, respondent is now, and has been, in substantial competition with other individuals, and with firms, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the business of selling and distributing promotional sales plans of various types, lanterns, batteries, and bulbs, photographs, and similar commodities, in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 3. In the conduct of his business, respondent advertises in various newspapers, magazines, and periodicals having a circulation among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, for agents to sell his merchandise, and represents to such prospective salesmen that $25 a day is the usual and customary commission that will be earned by them through the sale of respondent's merchandise. Said advertisement is as follows:

PREMIUM SALESMEN SUMMER SPECIAL; $25.00 DAILY COMMISSION
GIVING AWAY FREE ELECTRIC LANTERNS THROUGH ALL RETAIL DEALERS.
MID-WEST, 549 WEST RANDOLPH, CHICAGO.
Findings

In fact, respondent's salesmen do not, in the ordinary and usual course of business, earn $25 per day or earn any other amount of money closely approximating $25 per day. The usual and customary earnings of such salesmen, in due course of normal business, are substantially less than $25 per day.

Par. 4. In the operation of his business and in order to sell his products, respondent enters into a form of agreement or written contract with retail merchants who are contacted by respondent's selling agents.

Trading under the name of Mid-West Sales Syndicate, respondent enters into a form of contract with retail merchants in which he agrees for a specified amount of money, to furnish said retail merchants with certificates to be distributed to the merchants' customers upon said customers' purchasing a certain amount of merchandise, and respondent promises to redeem the certificates by distributing to said customers "one Red Guard electric lantern absolutely free." The written form of contract provides for the purchase by a merchant of so-called "Red Guard Electric Lantern Certificates" for which the merchant pays 10 cents a certificate, and distribution of the same to the merchant's customers by the merchant upon purchase by the customers of $5 worth of the merchant's goods.

The certificate which the customer receives from the merchant upon purchase of the required amount of merchandise, is as follows:

When the customer has received his certificate he may redeem the same by forwarding it to respondent with 80 cents for batteries and battery bulbs.

Respondent furnishes the retail merchants with various display posters and advertisements to be used by said retail merchants in distributing and using said cards.

Par. 5. Trading under the name of Mid-West Sales Syndicate, respondent induces retail merchants to purchase his “Red Guard Electric Lantern Certificates” by making the following representations:

1. That respondent is carrying on a national campaign designed to advertise “Chicago Super Quality Batteries” and bulbs, and that the campaign is being carried on by the Mid-West Sales Syndicate, a separate organization, so as to permit retail merchants to give away “Red Guard Electric Lanterns” free.

2. That the adoption of respondent’s plan of sales promotion by retail merchants will be without cost to them and will operate to their profit in that respondent will refund the amount paid for the certificates, together with an additional amount of money for each certificate sent to respondent for redemption by the merchant’s customers.

3. That the number of certificates which respondent will permit a retail merchant to purchase is determined by the manufacturer of the batteries and bulbs and not by respondent.

4. That the lanterns have a retail value and usual selling price of $1.50.

5. That the lanterns are given away “free” to the customers.

6. That respondent will, at the merchant’s request, provide the merchant with labels, circulars, and advertising matter for the purpose of enabling the merchant to properly put the plan into effect.

Par. 6. Respondent’s representations as above set forth are grossly misleading, false, and untrue.

In truth and in fact respondent has not been and is not engaged in carrying on a campaign designed to advertise Chicago Super Quality Batteries and Bulbs.

Respondent’s plan does not enable a merchant to give away to his customers “Red Guard Electric Lantern Free,” but in fact the cost of said lanterns is included in the price paid by the merchants’ customers for the batteries and bulbs they must purchase when redeeming the “Red Guard Electric Lantern Certificates” and before receiving the Red Guard Electric Lantern. Further, the said electric lantern does not have a retail value and usual selling price of $1.50. The adoption of respondent’s plan by retail merchants does not operate without cost to them and does not operate to their profit. In fact, respondent does not make cash refunds to merchants entering into such contracts.

The purported cash refunds to the merchants by the respondent are a lure and snare devised and intended for the sole purpose of securing execution of said agreements by retail merchants.

In truth and in fact there is no limitation placed by the manufacturers of the batteries and bulbs upon the amount of certificates that a retail merchant can purchase. In fact the batteries and bulbs are sold outright to respondent by said manufacturers and respondent can dispose of the same as his own property.

In truth and in fact respondent does not in all cases furnish the merchants with labels and circulars and advertising matter.

PAR. 7. Trading under the name of Mid-West Portrait Service, respondent, Cornelius P. Van Schaack, Jr., enters into a form of contract with retail merchants in which he agrees for a specified sum of money to furnish said merchants with certificates to be distributed to the merchant's customers upon said customers' purchasing a certain amount of merchandise and which respondent promises to redeem by distributing to said customers "Hand-Painted Oil Portraits, Complete with Frame." The written form of contract provides for the purchase by a merchant of so-called "Hand-Painted Oil Portrait Certificates" for which the merchant pays 10 cents a certificate and distribution of the same to the merchant's customers by the merchant upon purchase by the customers of $5 worth of the merchant's goods. When the customer has received a certificate he may redeem the same by forwarding it to respondent with 99 cents, which amount is represented to "defray handling costs." Respondent furnishes the retail merchants with various display posters and advertisements to be used by said retail merchants in distributing and using trade cards and certificates.

PAR. 8. Trading under the name of Mid-West Portrait Service, respondent induces retail merchants to purchase his "Hand-Painted Oil Portrait Certificates" by making the following representations:

That the complete portrait and frame furnished customers have a retail value and usual selling price of $5.50; that the portraits furnished customers are "hand-painted oil portraits."

PAR. 9. The representations which respondent makes trading under the name of Mid-West Portrait Service are false, misleading, and untrue.

In truth and in fact said portraits do not have a retail value and usual selling price of $5.50. Said portraits are not "Hand-Painted Oil Portraits" but are enlarged photographs colored.
PAR. 10. The use by the respondent of the foregoing false and misleading representations has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead a substantial number of retail merchants as well as a substantial portion of the purchasing public, into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such false and misleading representations are true. The foregoing false and misleading representations on the part of respondent serve as inducements for substantial numbers of retail merchants to purchase respondent's certificates and to execute the contracts in connection therewith.

As a result thereof, trade has been diverted unfairly to respondent from his competitors in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, who truthfully represent their products.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, and the answer of respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in the complaint, and states that he waives all intervening procedure and further hearings as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That respondent, Cornelius P. Van Schaack, Jr., individually, and trading as Mid-West Sales Syndicate and Mid-West Portrait Service, or under any other name or names, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of sales promotion plans, including cards and certificates, lanterns, batteries, bulbs, and colored and tinted photographs or pictures made from a photographic base or impression or other articles of merchandise in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing that the respondent has been or is conducting an advertising campaign designed to advertise said products.
2. Using the term "free" or any other term of similar import or meaning to describe or refer to goods, wares, or merchandise, regularly offered in connection with the purchase of specified quantities of other merchandise.

3. Representing that the participation by merchants in respondent's sales promotional plan is without cost to said merchants.

4. Representing that respondent refunds to his customers the purchase price for such certificates or makes additional payments to his customers in connection with the presentation of the certificates for redemption.

5. Representing that the number of certificates which merchants may purchase from the respondent is limited.

6. Representing that the lanterns have a retail value and usual selling price of $1.50 or that colored or tinted photographs have a retail value and usual selling price of $5.50, or any other amounts in excess of the prices at which said lanterns or photographs are regularly and customarily sold in the ordinary course of business under normal conditions and circumstances.

7. Representing that the respondent supplies to his customers labels, circulars, or other advertising matter relating to said sales promotional plan.

8. Using the terms "hand-painted," "hand-painted oil portraits," or "painted," either alone or in conjunction with other terms, or any other terms of similar import or meaning, in any way to designate, describe, or refer to colored or tinted pictures, photographs, or photographic enlargements or other pictures produced from a photographic base or impression.

9. Representing any specified sum of money as possible earnings or profits of agents, salesmen, representatives, or distributors for any given period of time, which is not a true representation of the average net earnings or profits consistently made by respondent's active full-time agents, salesmen, representatives, or distributors in the ordinary course of business under normal conditions and circumstances.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days from service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.
KASTAR SPECIALTY MANUFACTURING COMPANY, INC.

IN THE MATTER OF

KASTAR SPECIALTY MANUFACTURING COMPANY, INC.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 28, 1914

Where a corporation engaged in the sale and distribution at retail of automobile accessories, including gages, brake-rod supporters, gear-shift balls, and a variety of other articles, in commerce among the various States and in the District of Columbia—

Represented that it was the manufacturer of such products and owned and operated, or controlled, the plant or factory in which they were made, through use of word "Manufacturing" in its corporate name and words "Mfd. by" in statement "Mfd. by Kastar Specialty Manufacturing Company, Inc., New York, U. S. A.," on display cards, labels, individual cartons, letterheads, invoices, and other printed matter distributed throughout the United States and otherwise. Facts being it did not own, operate, or control a plant or factory for the manufacture of such accessories and other similar products sold and distributed by it, but filled orders for such articles with products which were made in a plant which it neither owned, operated, nor controlled;

With tendency and capacity, through use of words "Manufacturing" and "Mfd. by," as above set forth, to mislead and deceive purchasers and prospective purchasers by causing them mistakenly and erroneously to believe that it was the manufacturer of such products, etc., as above set forth, and to purchase its articles, on account of such mistaken and erroneous beliefs, from it as manufacturer, for dealing direct with which there has long been preference on part of substantial portion of purchasing and consuming public and dealers, as affording more reliance with reference to carrying out of contracts and lower prices, elimination of middlemen's profits, superior products, and other advantages:

Held, That such acts and practices were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Mr. B. G. Wilson for the Commission.

Lackenbach & Hirschman, of New York City, for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Kastar Specialty Manufacturing Co., Inc., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:
Paragraph 1. Respondent, Kastar Specialty Manufacturing Co., Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its offices and principal place of business at 510-18 Sixth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Respondent is now and for some time last past has been engaged in the business of selling and distributing at retail automobile accessories, including gages, brake-rod supporters, universal clamp on pedal pads, gear-shift balls, leak proof vulcanizing patches, headlight lens removers, reflector jewels, license-plate bolts, ash receivers, cigarette pack holders, and other automobile specialties, in commerce between and among various States of the United States and the District of Columbia.

Respondent causes and has caused said articles when sold to be shipped from its aforesaid place of business in New York, State of New York, to purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 2. In the course and conduct of its business as aforesaid, respondent in soliciting the sale of and in selling its products as above described, has caused display cards, labels, individual cartons, letterheads, invoices, and other printed matter to be distributed through the United States mail, and by other means, to customers and prospective customers located in States other than the State of New York, and in the District of Columbia. Certain of said printed matter includes the following statement:

The use of the word "Manufacturing" in respondent's corporate name and the words "Mfd. by" preceding respondent's corporate name serves as a representation that respondent is the manufacturer of such products and that respondent owns and operates or controls the plant or factory wherein such products are made or manufactured.

Paragraph 3. In truth and in fact respondent does not own and operate or control a plant or factory for the manufacture of the automobile accessories and other and similar products which it sells and distributes as hereinabove alleged, but respondent has filled and now fills orders for such articles of merchandise with products which are made or manufactured in a plant or factory which it neither owns, operates, nor controls.

Paragraph 4. There has long been a preference on the part of a substantial portion of the purchasing and consuming public and of dealers to deal direct with a manufacturer, in the belief that more reliance can be placed on a manufacturer with reference to carrying out contracts, and that lower prices, elimination of middlemen's profits, superior products and other advantages can thereby be obtained.

Par. 5. The use by the respondent of the word "Manufacturing" within its corporate name and the words "Mfd. by" preceding respondent's corporate name, as hereinabove alleged, has had, and now has, the tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive purchasers and prospective purchasers by causing them to mistakenly and erroneously believe that the respondent is the manufacturer of such products and owns and operates or controls the plant or factory wherein such products are made and to purchase respondent's articles on account of such mistaken and erroneous beliefs.

Par. 6. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on March 24, 1939, issued and thereafter served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent Kastar Specialty Manufacturing Co., Inc., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On April 14, 1939, the respondent filed its answer, in which answer it admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to the said facts. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on before the Commission on the said complaint and the answer thereto, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Kastar Specialty Manufacturing Co., Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its offices and principal place of business at 510-18 Sixth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Respondent is now and for some time last past has been engaged in the business of selling and distributing at retail automobile accessories, including gages, brake-rod supporters, universal clamp on pedal pads, gear-shift balls, leak-proof vulcanizing patches, headlight lens removers, reflector jewels, license-plate bolts, ash receivers, cigarette pack holders, and other automobile specialties, in commerce between and among various States of the United States and the District of Columbia.

Respondent causes and has caused said articles when sold to be shipped from its aforesaid place of business in New York, State of New York, to purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its business as aforesaid, respondent in soliciting the sale of and in selling its products as above described, has caused display cards, labels, individual cartons, letterheads, invoices and other printed matter to be distributed through the United States mail, and by other means, to customers and prospective customers located in States other than the State of New York, and in the District of Columbia. Certain of said printed matter includes the following statement:

The use of the word "Manufacturing" in respondent's corporate name and the words "Mfd. by" preceding respondent's corporate name serves as a representation that respondent is the manufacturer of such products and that respondent owns and operates or controls the plant or factory wherein such products are made or manufactured.

PAR. 3. In truth and in fact respondent does not own and operate or control a plant or factory for the manufacture of the automobile accessories and other and similar products which it sells and distributes as hereinabove alleged, but respondent has filled and now fills orders for such articles of merchandise with products which are made or manufactured in a plant or factory which it neither owns, operates, nor controls.

PAR. 4. There has long been a preference on the part of a substantial portion of the purchasing and consuming public and of dealers to deal direct with a manufacturer, in the belief that more reliance can be placed on a manufacturer with reference to carrying out contracts, and that lower prices, elimination of middlemen's profits, superior products, and other advantages can thereby be obtained.

PAR. 5. The use by the respondent of the word "Manufacturing" within its corporate name and the words "Mfd. by" preceding respondent's corporate name, as hereinabove alleged, has had, and now has, the tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive purchasers and prospective purchasers by causing them to mistakenly and erroneously believe that the respondent is the manufacturer of such products and owns and operates or controls the plant or factory wherein such products are made and to purchase respondent's articles on account of such mistaken and erroneous beliefs.
KASTAR SPECIALTY MANUFACTURING CO., INC. 1637

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondent in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and states that it waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That respondent Kastar Specialty Manufacturing Co., Inc., its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of automobile accessories and similar products in commerce as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

Representing, through the use of the word "manufacturing" or any other word of similar import or meaning in its corporate name, or through any other means or device, or in any manner, that the products sold and distributed by respondent are made or manufactured by it, unless and until such respondent actually owns and operates or directly and absolutely controls a manufacturing plant or factory wherein said products are manufactured by it.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.
IN THE MATTER OF

J. C. ROBERTSON, INDIVIDUALLY, AND TRADING AS NOVELTY DISTRIBUTING COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Where an individual engaged in sale and distribution of clocks in commerce between the various States; in soliciting sale of and in selling and distributing his said product—

Furnished his customers and prospective customers with push card involving sale and delivery to purchasing public of his said merchandise by means of a lottery scheme or gift enterprise through use of method or plan in accordance with which amount paid by purchaser for chance was dependent upon number secured from card by chance, and receipt or failure to receive clock was dependent upon success or failure in selecting from list of girl's names on card, name corresponding to that concealed under card's master seal, and persons not thus selecting received nothing other than privilege of making selection for money paid, and operator of card was compensated by receipt of clock; and

Supplied thereby and placed in bands of others means of conducting lotteries in the sale of his merchandise in accordance with such sales plan under which said clocks were distributed to purchasing public wholly by lot or chance and amount which customer paid for chance was similarly determined, and involving game of chance or sale of a chance to procure a clock at a price much less than normal retail price thereof; contrary to the public policy as long recognized in the common law and criminal statutes and to an established policy of the United States Government, and in competition with many who are unwilling to adopt and use said or any method involving game of chance or sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other method contrary to public policy and refrain therefrom;

With result that purchasing public was thus induced and persuaded into buying punches from said cards in hope of securing prize winning name and thus obtain clock for price of 29¢ or less, and many persons were attracted by his said method and by element of chance involved in sale thereof as above described, and were thereby induced to buy and sell his said merchandise in preference to that offered and sold by said competitors who do not use same or equivalent method, and result that, through use of such method and because of said game of chance, trade and custom were diverted to him from competitors aforesaid who do not use such methods:

Held, That such acts and practices, as above set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that J. C. Robertson, individually and trading as Novelty Distributing Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has been and is using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to the said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent is an individual doing business under the trade name and style of Novelty Distributing Co., with his principal office and place of business located at 117 West Harrison Street, Chicago, Ill. He is now, and for some time past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of clocks in commerce between and among the various States of the United States. He causes and has caused said merchandise when sold to be transported from his principal place of business in the State of Illinois to purchasers thereof in Illinois and in other States of the United States at their respective points of location. There is now, and has been for some time past, a course of trade and commerce by said respondent in such merchandise between and among the States of the United States. In the course and conduct of his business, respondent is in competition with other individuals and with partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of similar or like articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

Paragraph 2. In the course and conduct of his business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, the respondent, in soliciting the sale of and in selling and distributing the said clocks, has furnished his customers and prospective customers with a device commonly called a "push card," the use of which in connection with the sale and delivery to the purchasing public by the method or plan suggested by respondent involves the distribution of such merchandise to the purchasing public by means of a lottery scheme or gift enterprise. The method or sales plan suggested by respondent was and is substantially as follows:

The said push card has a number of partially perforated disks, and under each disk is a number; above each disk is a girl's name. The said push card also has two partially perforated master seals under each of which appears a girl's name corresponding to one of the names above the partially perforated disks. Purchasers select one of the disks and remove the same disclosing the number thereunder. Persons selecting numbers from 1 to 29 pay in cents the amount of such number, and persons selecting numbers over 29 pay 29¢ for the privilege of selecting one of the disks and names. The push card bears a legend informing purchasers and prospective purchasers of the plan or method by which said push card is operated and by which the clocks described thereon are to be distributed. When all of the names have been purchased and the master seals removed, the persons who selected the names corresponding to the names under the master seals receive one of the clocks heretofore referred to without further charge, and the person, salesman, agent, or representative soliciting purchases of chances, as above described, also receives one of said clocks without further charge or additional service. The numbers under the names are concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers, and they do not know how much they will have to pay for the privilege of selecting one of the names until the selection has been made and the disk removed. The names under the master seals are concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until all the disks have been selected or purchased. Thus, customers selecting names which do not correspond with the names under the master seals receive nothing but the privilege of making the selection for the money they pay. Persons selecting the names corresponding to the names under the seals receive one of the clocks for a price not exceeding 29¢, which is less than the normal retail price of such clocks. The purchasing public is thus induced and persuaded into purchasing pushes from said card in the hope of selecting a prize-winning name and thus obtaining a clock for a price of 29¢ or less. The said clocks are thus distributed to the purchasing public wholly by lot or chance, and the amount which the customer pays for a chance is determined wholly by lot or chance.

Par. 3. The persons to whom respondent furnishes the said push cards use the same in purchasing, selling, and distributing respondent's merchandise in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of his merchandise in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said method in the sale of his merchandise, and the sale of such merchandise by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said method, is a practice of the sort which the common law and criminal statutes have long deemed contrary to public policy, and is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States.
Par. 4. The sale of clocks to the purchasing public in the manner above alleged involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure a clock at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell or distribute such merchandise in competition with respondent, as above alleged, are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other method that is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by respondent's said method and by the element of chance involved in the sale thereof in the manner above described, and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or an equivalent method. The use of said method by respondent, because of said game of chance, has the tendency and capacity to, and does, divert trade and custom to respondent from his said competitors who do not use the same or an equivalent method.

Par. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on July 21, 1937, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, J. C. Robertson, individually, and trading as Novelty Distributing Co., charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On May 3, 1939, the respondent filed his answer, in which answer he admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and the answer thereto, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.
FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent, J. C. Robertson, is an individual doing business under the trade name and style of Novelty Distributing Co., with his principal office and place of business located at 117 West Harrison Street, Chicago, Ill. He is now, and for some time last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of clocks in commerce between and among the various States of the United States. He causes and has caused said merchandise when sold to be transported from his principal place of business in the State of Illinois to purchasers thereof in Illinois and in other States of the United States at their respective points of location. There is now, and has been for some time last past, a course of trade in commerce by said respondent in such merchandise between and among the States of the United States. In the course and conduct of said business, respondent is in competition with other individuals and with partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of similar or like articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of his business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, the respondent, in soliciting the sale of and in selling and distributing the said clocks, has furnished his customers and prospective customers with a device commonly called a "push card," the use of which in connection with the sale and delivery to the purchasing public by the method or plan suggested by respondent to said customers involves the distribution of such merchandise to the purchasing public by means of a lottery scheme or gift enterprise. The method or sales plan suggested by respondent was and is substantially as follows:

The said push card has a number of partially perforated disks and under each disk is a number; above each disk is a girl's name. The said push card also has two partially perforated master seals under each of which appears a girl's name corresponding to one of the names above the partially perforated disks. Purchasers select one of the disks and remove the same disclosing the number thereunder. Persons selecting numbers from 1 to 29 pay in cents the amount of such number, and persons selecting numbers over 29 pay 29¢ for the privilege of selecting one of the disks and names. The push card bears a legend informing purchasers and prospective purchasers of the plan or method by which said push card is operated and by which the clocks described thereon are to be distributed. When all of the names have been purchased and the master seals removed, the persons who selected the names corresponding to the names under the master seals receive one of the clocks heretofore referred to without further charge, and the person, salesman, agent, or representative soliciting purchases of chances, as above described, also receives one of said clocks without further charge or additional service. The numbers under the names are concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers, and they do not know how much they will have to pay for the privilege of selecting one of the names until the selection has been made and the disk removed. The names under the master seals are concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until all the disks have been selected or purchased. Thus, customer selecting names which do not correspond with the names under the master seals receive nothing but the privilege of making the selection for the money they pay. Persons selecting the names corresponding to the names under the seals receive one of the clocks for a price not exceeding 29¢, which is less than the normal retail price of such clocks. The purchasing public is thus induced and persuaded into purchasing pushes from said card in the hope of selecting a prize-winning name and thus obtaining a clock for a price of 29¢ or less. The said clocks are thus distributed to the purchasing public wholly by lot or chance, and the amount which the customer pays for a chance is determined wholly by lot or chance.

PAR. 3. The persons to whom respondent furnishes the said push cards use the same in purchasing, selling, and distributing respondent’s merchandise in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of his merchandise in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said method in the sale of his merchandise, and the sale of such merchandise by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said method, is a practice of the sort which the common law and criminal statutes have long deemed contrary to public policy, and is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States.

PAR. 4. The sale of clocks to the purchasing public in the manner above found involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure a clock at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell or distribute such merchandise in competition with respondent, as above found, are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other method that is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by respondent's said method and by the element of chance involved in the sale thereof in the manner above described, and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or an equivalent method. The use of said method by respondent, because of said game of chance, has the tendency and capacity to, and does, divert trade and custom to respondent from his said competitors who do not use the same or an equivalent method.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and states that he waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That respondent, J. C. Robertson, individually, and trading as Novelty Distributing Co., or trading under any other name or names, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of clocks or any other articles of merchandise in commerce as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Supplying to, or placing in the hands of, others push or pull cards, punchboards or other lottery devices, for the purpose of enabling such persons to dispose of, or sell, any merchandise by the use thereof.

2. Mailing, shipping, or transporting to his agents or to distributors or to members of the public push or pull cards, punchboards or other lottery devices so prepared or printed as to enable said persons to sell or distribute any merchandise by the use thereof.

3. Selling or otherwise disposing of any merchandise by the use of push or pull cards, punchboards or other lottery devices.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall within 60 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.
Where an individual engaged in manufacture, sale, and distribution of ladies' knitted undergarments, to wholesale and retail dealers and other customers in various other States and in the District of Columbia—

(a) Represented that certain of his said garments were composed of a mixture of silk and wool, through labels, tags, and markers attached thereto which described same, as case might be, as containing "33\% silk and wool" and "15\% silk and wool," facts being neither garment thus referred to was composed of silk mixed with wool, but said products were composed, respectively, of 92 percent cotton and 8 percent rayon, and 90 percent cotton and 10 percent rayon, and contained no silk, product of cocoon of silkworm, as long understood by purchasing and consuming public generally from said word, and held in high esteem in products made thereof for their preeminent qualities; and

(b) Represented certain of said garments as "30\% wool and rayon," through use of statements in which word "wool" was accentuated by use of large type and word "rayon" was printed in much smaller type, on labels, tags, and markers, notwithstanding fact that they were not composed of admixture of wool and rayon in proportion represented, but were composed of 78 percent cotton, 9 percent rayon and 13 percent wool;

With capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive trade, including wholesale and retail dealers and substantial portion of purchasing public, into erroneous belief that such representations were true, and that said garments were composed of silk and wool, products of which have established reputation as possessing superior cold resistant qualities over those made from cotton or other material, and for which there is decided preference on part of purchasers and prospective purchasers of undergarments over other, and of causing such trade and public to purchase said products as result of such erroneous belief thus engendered:

Held, That such acts and practices were all to the prejudice of the public and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Before Mr. Edward E. Reardon, trial examiner.
Mr. James L. Fort for the Commission.
Mr. Bernard Austin, of New York City, for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Abraham Tabach-
Respondent Abraham Tabachnick is an individual trading as Uneeda Underwear Co., with his office and principal place of business located at 335 Van Siclen Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. This respondent is now and for more than two years last past has been engaged in the manufacture, sale and distribution of ladies' knitted undergarments. He sells and has sold and distributed such undergarments to wholesale and retail dealers and other customers located in various States of the United States and causes said products, when sold by him to be transported from his place of business in the State of New York to the purchasers thereof located in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his business, and in soliciting the sale of and selling his said products, the respondent has represented and is now representing that certain ladies' knitted undergarments manufactured, sold and distributed by him are composed of a mixture of silk and wool, by means of labels, tags, and markers attached to said garments which designate and describe said products as follows:

This garment contains 33\%\% silk and wool.

In truth and in fact, the knitted undergarments designated as containing 33\% percent and wool are not, in fact, composed of silk, the product of the cocoon of the silkworm, admixed with wool, but instead, the said undergarments so designated are, in fact, composed of 92 percent cotton and 8 percent rayon. The undergarments designated as being composed of 15 percent silk and wool are not, in fact, composed of silk, the product of the cocoon of the silkworm, admixed with wool, but instead, contain 90 percent cotton and 10 percent rayon.

PAR. 3. In addition to the above described undergarments, the respondent also manufactures, sells, and distributes certain ladies' knitted undergarments which are designated by means of labels, tags, and markers as being composed of "30% wool and rayon." On these labels, tags, and markers the respondent accentuates the term "wool" by use of large type while the term "rayon" is printed in much smaller type. In truth and in fact, said garments are not composed of an admixture of wool and rayon in the proportion represented by the respondent, but instead, said garments are composed of 78 percent cotton, 9 percent rayon, and 13 percent wool.

PAR. 4. The word "silk" has had for many years last past and still has in the minds of the purchasing and consuming public generally a definite and specific meaning, to wit, the product of the cocoon of the silkworm. Silk products for many years have held, and still hold, great public esteem and confidence for their preeminent qualities. Fabrics made of all wool or wool and silk have established a reputation as possessing superior cold resistance qualities over fabrics made from cotton or other materials. Purchasers and prospective purchasers of undergarments on account of such reputation have a decided preference for all wool or silk and wool fabrics over fabrics composed in part of cotton.

PAR. 5. The use by the respondent of the representations set forth herein has had and now has the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive the trade, including wholesale and retail dealers, and a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that such representations are and were true, and to cause them to purchase said products as a result of such erroneous beliefs engendered as above set forth.

PAR. 6. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on the 10th day of January 1939, issued its complaint in this proceeding and caused the complaint to be served upon the respondent, Abraham Tabachnick, an individual trading as Uneeda Underwear Co., charging him with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act.

After the issuance of the complaint, respondent filed his answer, admitting all the material allegations of fact set forth in the complaint and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearing as to the facts. The answer was duly filed in the office of the Commission on the 2d day of April 1939.

Thereafter this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the complaint and answer, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent Abraham Tabachnick, is an individual trading as Uneeda Underwear Co., with his office and principal place of business located at 335 Van Siclen Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. This respondent is now, and for more than 2 years last past has been, engaged in the manufacture, sale, and distribution of ladies' knitted undergarments. He sells, and has sold and distributed, such undergarments to wholesale and retail dealers and other customers located in various States of the United States, and causes said products, when sold by him, to be transported from his place of business in the State of New York to the purchasers thereof located in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of his business, and in soliciting the sale of and selling his said products, the respondent has represented, and is now representing, that certain ladies' knitted undergarments manufactured, sold, and distributed by him are composed of a mixture of silk and wool, by means of labels, tags, and markers attached to said garments, which designate and describe said products as follows:

This garment contains \( 33\frac{1}{3}\% \) silk and wool.

In truth and in fact, the knitted undergarments designated as containing \( 33\frac{1}{3}\% \) percent silk and wool are not, in fact, composed of silk, the product of the cocoon of the silkworm, admixed with wool, but instead, the said undergarments so designated are, in fact, composed of 92 percent cotton and 8 percent rayon. The undergarments designated as being composed of 15 percent silk and wool are not, in fact, composed of silk, the product of the cocoon of the silkworm, admixed with wool, but instead, contained 90 percent cotton and 10 percent rayon.

Par. 3. In addition to the above-described undergarments, the respondent also manufactures, sells, and distributes certain ladies' knitted undergarments which are designated by means of labels, tags, and markers, as being composed of "30 percent wool and rayon." On these labels, tags, and markers the respondent accentuates the term "wool" by use of large type while the term "rayon" is printed in much smaller type. In truth and in fact, said garments are not composed of an admixture of wool and rayon in the proportion represented by the respondent, but instead, said garments are composed of 78 percent cotton, 9 percent rayon and 13 percent wool.

Par. 4. The word "silk" has had for many years last past, and still has, in the minds of the purchasing and consuming public generally a definite and specific meaning, to wit: The product of the cocoon of the silkworm. Silk products for many years have held, and still hold, great public esteem and confidence for their preeminent qualities. Fabrics made of all wool or wool and silk have established a reputation as possessing superior cold resistance qualities over fabrics made from cotton or other material. Purchasers and prospective purchasers of undergarments, on account of such reputation, have a decided preference for all wool or silk and wool fabrics over fabrics composed in part of cotton.

Par. 5. The use by the respondent of the representations set forth herein has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive the trade, including wholesale and retail dealers, and a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that such representations are, and were, true, and to cause them to purchase said products as a result of such erroneous beliefs engendered as above set forth.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, and the answer of respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and states that he waives all intervening procedure and future hearings as to the said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Abraham Tabachnick, individually and trading as Uneeda Underwear Co., or under any other name or names, his representatives, agents and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of ladies’ knitted undergarments and other similar apparel in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Using the word “silk” or any other word or words of similar import or meaning to designate or describe any fabric or other product which is not composed wholly of silk, the product of the cocoon of the silkworm; or from using the word “wool” or any other word or words of similar import or meaning to designate or describe any fabric or other product which is not composed wholly of wool; or from using the words “silk and wool” or any other words of similar import or meaning to designate or describe any fabric or other product which is not composed wholly of silk, the product of the cocoon of the silkworm, combined solely with wool; except that in the case of a fabric or product composed in part of silk or in part of wool, or in part of silk and in part of wool, and in part of a material or materials other than silk and wool, such words may be used as descriptive of the respective silk and wool content if there is used in immediate connection therewith in letters of equal size and conspicuousness a word or words accurately describing and designating each constituent fiber or material thereof in the order of its predominance by weight beginning with the largest single constituent.

2. Representing that any fabric or other product has a stated percentage of silk and wool or silk or wool unless in fact such fabric or product does contain silk and wool or silk or wool in the proportions stated.

3. Advertising, offering for sale, or selling, fabrics or any other products composed in whole or in part of rayon, without clearly disclosing the fact that such fabrics or products are composed of rayon and when such fabrics or products are composed in part of rayon and in part of other fibers and materials, such fibers or materials, including the rayon, shall be named in the order of their predominance by weight, beginning with the largest single constituent.

This order shall not be construed as permitting the use of the unqualified word “silk” to designate, describe or refer to weighted silk.

This order shall not be construed as permitting the use of the unqualified word “wool” to designate, describe or refer to any wool which is not virgin or unused wool.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.
IN THE MATTER OF

RICHARD ROSEBURY ORGANIZATION, INC., AND
RICHARD W. ROSEBURY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Where a corporation engaged in soliciting orders for, and in selling, various magazines through solicitors who called upon purchasing public—

(a) Represented, as aforesaid, to prospective subscribers, that they would receive two or more designated magazines at the price and for the period stated by the solicitor, and exhibited to prospective subscriber, and delivered to him if he subscribed, printed receipt form furnished by said corporation, which acknowledged receipt of amount paid and which, and, while ostensibly naming two or more magazines which subscriber was to receive, through arrangement and prominence given to certain words, and thus appearing to corroborate solicitor's representation, as matter of fact named but one;

(b) Told subscribers receiving such receipts for "Current Events," and upon which were also displayed, as above indicated, words "International News" and "Good Stories" and statement "Good Stories feature of Current Events and International News adds to its educational value," that such subscribers would receive "Good Stories," "Current Events," and "International News," and thus, or otherwise, led them to believe they would receive such three magazines, facts being magazine "Good Stories" only was ordered from publisher by said corporation and received by subscriber; and

(c) Failed to forward, in some instances, to publisher of any magazines, subscriptions secured by its representatives from subscribers, who received no periodical whatsoever;

With effect of causing purchasers to buy magazine subscriptions from it and its representatives in erroneous and mistaken belief that in so purchasing they would receive subscriptions to a greater number of magazines than was the case, and of thereby diverting unfairly trade to it from those of its competitors who, in soliciting subscriptions to magazines, truthfully represent identity and number to be received by the subscribers thereto; to the injury of competition in commerce:

Held, That such acts and practices were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Mr. B. G. Wilson for the Commission.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Richard Rosebury Organization, Inc., and Richard W. Rosebury, an individual, hereinafter referred to as the respondents, have violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, setting forth its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent Richard Rosebury Organization, Inc., is a corporation created by and existing under the laws of the State of New York with its principal office and place of business located at 522 Fifth Avenue, city of New York, State of New York. Respondent Richard W. Rosebury is an individual and is the directing head and dominating personality of the Richard Rosebury corporation and has his principal office and place of business at 522 Fifth Avenue, city of New York, State of New York. He is now and has been at all times mentioned herein responsible for the development of the policies and direction of the affairs of Richard Rosebury Organization, Inc.

Paragraph 2. Respondents are now, and for more than 1 year last past have been, engaged in the business of soliciting orders for and selling various magazines, and cause said magazines, when sold, to be transported from the places of business of the respective publishers thereof, to and into various other States of the United States and the District of Columbia.

Respondents maintain, and at all times mentioned herein have caused to be maintained, a course of trade in said magazines in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 3. In the course and conduct of their business respondents are in active and substantial competition with other corporations and with partnerships and individuals engaged in the solicitation of subscriptions for, sale and distribution of, magazines in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 4. Respondents' method of doing business is to send solicitors throughout the country, who call upon the public. When a subscription to a magazine is secured, it is to be forwarded to the publisher thereof, usually pursuant to previous arrangement made by respondents with the publisher.

Paragraph 5. In seeking subscriptions from the public, as aforesaid, respondents' solicitors represent to prospective subscribers that they will receive two or more designated magazines at the price and for the period stated by the solicitor; and the solicitor exhibits to the prospective subscriber, and delivers to him if he subscribes, a printed receipt form furnished to the solicitor by respondents, acknowledging receipt of the amount paid by the subscriber and, in fact, naming but one magazine which the subscriber is to receive. However, the receipt is in such form, as to prominence given some words on the face there­of, as to make it appear, except upon careful reading, to corroborate the solicitor's representation that the subscriber is to receive two or more magazines. The descriptive words so given prominence actually relate to features of the magazine subscribed for, but appear to be the names of the additional magazines the solicitor has represented the subscriber will receive. Typical and representative of such receipt form is the following:

The subscribers receiving receipts such as above set out have been and are told by respondents' representatives, or otherwise led to believe, that they will receive three magazines, to wit, Good Stories, Current Events, and International News, while in truth and in fact the respondents order from the publisher and the subscribers receive the magazine Good Stories only. In some instances, subscriptions secured by respondents' representatives are not forwarded to the publisher of any magazine and the subscribers receive no magazine whatsoever.

Par. 6. There are among respondents' competitors many who do not misrepresent the number or identity of the magazines which subscribers are to receive for the subscription price paid.
PAR. 7. The use of the above-described false and misleading representations and methods on the part of respondents has the capacity and tendency to cause, and does cause, purchasers to buy magazine subscriptions from respondents and their representatives in the erroneous and mistaken belief that in so purchasing they will receive subscriptions to a greater number of magazines than they actually will receive. As a result trade has been diverted unfairly to respondents from those of their competitors who, in soliciting subscriptions to magazines, truthfully represent the identity and number of magazines to be received by the subscribers thereto. In consequence thereof, injury has been, and is being, done by respondents to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on February 14, 1939, issued and on February 15, 1939, served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondents Richard Rosebury Organization, Inc., and Richard W. Rosebury, an individual, charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent Richard Rosebury Organization's answer, the Commission by order entered herein granted respondent's request for permission to withdraw said answer and to substitute therefor an answer admitting all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearing as to the said facts, which substitute answer was duly filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and substitute answer and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.
FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent Richard Rosebury Organization, Inc. is a corporation organized under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its principal office and place of business located at 522 Fifth Avenue, city of New York, State of New York.

Paragraph 2. Respondent Richard Rosebury Organization, Inc. is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, engaged in the business of soliciting orders for and selling various magazines. It causes said magazines, when sold, to be transported from the places of business of the respective publishers of said magazines to and into various States of the United States other than the State of origin of such shipments and the District of Columbia.

Respondent maintains and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in such magazines in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 3. In the course and conduct of its business, respondent is now and has been in active and substantial competition with other corporations and with partnerships and individuals engaged in the solicitation of subscriptions for, and in the sale and distribution of, magazines in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 4. Respondent, in the conduct of its business, sends solicitors throughout the country, who call upon the purchasing public soliciting subscriptions for the various magazines offered by the respondent. When a subscription to a magazine is secured, it is to be forwarded to the publisher thereof, usually pursuant to previous arrangement made by respondent with the publisher.

Paragraph 5. In seeking subscriptions from the public, as aforesaid, respondent's solicitors represent to prospective subscribers that they will receive two or more designated magazines at the price and for the period stated by the solicitor; and the solicitor exhibits to the prospective subscriber, and delivers to him if he subscribes, a printed receipt form furnished to the solicitor by respondent, acknowledging receipt of the amount paid by the subscriber and which ostensibly names the two or more magazines which the subscriber is to receive, but which as a matter of fact names but one magazine which the subscriber is to receive. The receipt is in such form, as to prominence given some words on the face thereof, as to make it appear, except upon careful reading, to corroborate the solicitor's representation that the subscriber is to receive two or more magazines. The subscribers receiving receipts such as above set out have been and are told by respondent's representatives, or otherwise led to believe, that they will receive three magazines, to wit, Good Stories, Current Events, and International News, while in truth and in fact the respondent orders from the publisher and the subscribers receive the magazine Good Stories only. In some instances, subscriptions secured by respondent's representatives are not forwarded to the publisher of any magazine and the subscribers receive no magazine whatsoever.

Par. 6. There are among respondent's competitors many who do not misrepresent the number or identity of the magazines which subscribers are to receive for the subscription price paid, and who do not solicit and accept subscriptions for magazines which are not delivered to such subscribers.
PAR. 7. The use of the above-described false and misleading representations and methods on the part of respondent has the capacity and tendency to cause, and does cause, purchasers to buy magazine subscriptions from respondent and its representatives in the erroneous and mistaken belief that in so purchasing they will receive subscriptions to a greater number of magazines than they actually will receive. As a result trade has been diverted unfairly to respondent from those of its competitors who, in soliciting subscriptions to magazines, truthfully represent the identity and number of magazines to be received by the subscribers thereto. In consequence thereof, injury has been, and is now being, done by respondent to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 8. The respondent Richard W. Rosebury, an individual, died during the pendency of this proceeding.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondent Richard Rosebury Organization, Inc., in which answer said respondent admits all of the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and states that it waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That respondent Richard Rosebury Organization, Inc., its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of magazines, or subscriptions for magazines, in interstate commerce, do forthwith cease and desist:

(a) From representing, through statements made by its solicitors or statements appearing on receipts or other printed matter exhibited to prospective subscribers for such magazines, that a subscriber is to receive a greater number of magazines than those which are actually delivered, or a magazine or magazines other than the magazine or magazines which are actually delivered to said subscriber.

(b) From accepting subscriptions from subscribers for magazines where the magazine or magazines covered by such subscriptions are not thereafter actually delivered to such subscribers.

(c) From misrepresenting in any manner, directly or indirectly, the identity or number of magazines to be received by a subscriber for the subscription price paid or agreed upon.

It is further ordered, That this proceeding be closed as to the respondent Richard W. Rosebury.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.
In the Matter of

ADOLPH FRIEDMAN, TRADING AS SUPERYARN COMPANY

Complaint, Findings, and Order in Regard to the Alleged Violation of Sec. 5 of an Act of Congress Approved Sept. 26, 1914

Docket 3753. Complaint, Apr. 1, 1939—Decision, May 20, 1939

Where an individual engaged in sale and distribution of various grades and types of textile fabrics and knitting yarn; in describing his products in catalogs, price lists, and in advertisements in periodicals, newspapers, and other publications distributed among prospective purchasers of said products in various States and in the District of Columbia—

(a) Represented that certain product was composed entirely of unweighted silk, through use of words “Silk Boucle” in descriptive matter referring thereto, and other similar statements in various advertising material, price lists, catalogs, and on labels, notwithstanding fact product thus referred to was composed entirely of rayon and was not composed entirely of unweighted silk, product of cocoon of silkworm, as long definitely and specifically understood by purchasing and consuming public generally from said word, and as meaning unweighted product not subjected to process of metallic bath, and products of which have been long held in great public esteem and confidence for their preeminent qualities;

(b) Made use of such nondisclosing designations as “Special Boucle” on labels and in catalogs, to designate or describe rayon products and yarn which had appearance and feel of silk and were, by purchasing and consuming public, indistinguishable therefrom;

(c) Represented that certain of his products were of a finer grade and higher quality, or of a different fiber, than was actually the fact, through use of words or phrases indicative to purchasing public of certain fiber, grade, or quality, such as “Cashmere,” on labels and in advertising and catalogs, to designate and describe products which did not contain hair of cashmere goat, as long understood from word as applied to such products made therefrom, and well and favorably known to purchasing public and associated by members thereof with word, as thus applied, but were composed of other wool and not hair aforesaid;

(d) Made use of words, associated in mind of purchasing and consuming public as descriptive of wool exclusively, to designate and describe certain yarn products composed in part thereof only, and in part of other material, through use of such terms as “Zephyr Tweed” and “Tweed Velnette” on labels, advertising material, and in catalogs, to designate yarn product composed in part of wool and in part of rayon, and described latter as composed of “wool mixture and silk nub,” notwithstanding fact composition thereof was of wool and rayon entirely, as aforesaid, and said products were not that certain kind of fabric made entirely of wool, as long well and favorably known to substantial portion of purchasing and consuming public from word “tweed”; and
(e) Represented, through use of words "Manufacturer of Superyarn" and "Importer" on his billheads, business cards and advertising material, that he was manufacturer and importer of yarn or yarn fiber and material, notwithstanding fact he was not such manufacturer or importer, for dealing directly with which there has long been preference on part of substantial portion of purchasing and consuming public as affording, in its belief, lower prices, superior products and other advantages;

With tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive substantial portion of purchasing public into erroneous belief that all said representations were true, and that said individual had truthfully represented constituent fiber or material of his various products, and that they were actually made or imported by him, and with result, as consequence of such belief, that number of consuming public purchased substantial volume of his said products and trade was diverted unfairly to him from competitors likewise engaged in sale and distribution in commerce and in District of Columbia of various grades and types of knitting yarn:

 Held, That such acts and practices were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Mr. James L. Fort for the Commission.
Woods & Wertlieb, of New York City, for respondent.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Adolph Friedman, an individual, trading as Superyarn Co., has violated the provisions of said Act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Adolph Friedman, is an individual trading as Superyarn Co., with his principal place of business located at 353 Grand Street, in the city of New York, State of New York.

Paragraph 2. Respondent is now and for a year or more last past has been engaged in the business of selling and distributing various grades and types of textile fabrics and knitting yarn. Respondent sells his products to members of the purchasing public situated in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and causes said products when sold by him to be transported from his place of business in the State of New York to the purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in various States of the United States other than the State of New York and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains and at all times mentioned herein has maintained a course of trade in said products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. Respondent is engaged in substantial competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia, with other individuals and with corporations, firms and partnerships engaged in the business of selling and distributing various grades and types of knitting yarn in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of his said business the respondent has engaged in the practice of falsely representing the constituent fiber or material of which the various products sold and distributed by him are made, by means of false representations on labels attached to his products and in various advertising matter and by a failure to disclose the rayon content of certain of his products. In furtherance of this practice and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of his said products, respondent has caused false statements and representations purporting to be descriptive of such products and their respective constituent fiber or material to be inserted in catalogs, price lists, and in advertisements appearing in magazines, newspapers and in other publications distributed among prospective purchasers of said products situated in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 5. Among and typical of the acts and practices above described, the respondent represents certain of his products as being composed entirely of silk, the product of the cocoon of the silkworm, when in fact said products are composed entirely of rayon. As an example of this practice the respondent causes certain advertisements to be inserted in various publications, of which the following is an example:

Silk Boucle 88¢
Lowest prices. New textures and shadings. 1001 rich, bright, lasting colors. Satisfaction guaranteed. SUPERYARN CO., DEPT. D 353
Grand Street, New York, New York. Free Samples.

By means of the above statement, together with other and similar statements appearing in various advertising material, price lists, catalogs, and on labels, distributed as aforesaid, the respondent represents that said product is composed entirely of unweighted silk, the product of the cocoon of the silkworm, when in truth and in fact said product is composed entirely of rayon.

PAR. 6. Another and typical act and practice engaged in by the respondent in falsely representing his products, is the use on labels and in catalogs, distributed as aforesaid, of designations or descriptions applied to rayon products which have the appearance and feel of silk, and are by the purchasing and consuming public indistinguishable from silk, and which designations do not disclose that said products are composed of rayon. As a typical example of this practice, the respondent uses the term “Special Boucle” in the manner and form above described to designate and describe a product composed entirely of rayon, and fails to disclose the fact that said yarn is composed of rayon.

PAR. 7. Typical also of said acts and practices, the respondent represents certain of his products as being of a finer grade, higher quality or of a different fiber than is actually the fact by the use of words or phrases indicative to the purchasing public of a certain fiber, grade or quality. An example of this practice is the respondent’s use of the word “cashmere” on labels, in advertising material, and in catalogs distributed as aforesaid, to designate and describe products which do not contain the hair of the cashmere goat but instead are composed of other wool.

PAR. 8. A further typical act and practice on the part of the respondent is the use of words which are associated in the minds of the purchasing and consuming public as being descriptive of wool exclusively, to designate and describe certain yarn products, as aforesaid, which are composed in part of wool and in part of other materials. As an example of this practice the respondent uses the terms “Zephyr Tweed” and “Tweed Velnette” on labels, in advertising material, and in catalogs, distributed as aforesaid, to designate a yarn product composed in part of wool and in part of other materials. As an example of this practice the respondent describes said product as being composed of a “wool mixture and silk nub” when in fact said product is composed entirely of wool and rayon.

PAR. 9. The word “silk” for many years last past has had and still has, in the minds of the purchasing and consuming public generally, a definite and specific meaning, to wit, the product of the cocoon of the silkworm. Silk products for many years have held, and still hold, great public esteem and confidence for their preeminent qualities. The unqualified word “silk” has, in the minds of the purchasing and consuming public, the definite and specific meaning of unweighted silk or silk which has not been subjected to the process of a metallic bath.

The word “cashmere” has long been applied to a particular type of wool fiber that is made from the hair of the cashmere goat, and which product has for a long time been known well and favorably to the purchasing public. The word “cashmere” when used in connection with the designation and description of yarns or other products having the general appearance of wool fibers, is considered by members of the purchasing public as being a descriptive designation of a cashmere wool product composed entirely of the hair of the cashmere goat.

The word "tweed" is a word long and favorably known to a substantial portion of the purchasing and consuming public as a certain kind of fabric composed entirely of wool.

The word "rayon" is the name of a chemical fiber or fabric which simulates silk in that it has the appearance and feel of silk and is by the purchasing public practically indistinguishable from silk.

Par. 10. In addition to the acts and practices above described, the respondent by use of the words "Manufacturer of Superyarn" and "Importer" on billheads, business cards, and advertising material, represents that he is a manufacturer and importer of yarns or yarn fiber and material. In truth and in fact respondent is not a manufacturer of yarn and is not an importer of yarns or yarn fiber or material.

There has long been a preference on the part of a substantial portion of the purchasing and consuming public for dealing directly with the manufacturer or importer in the belief that lower prices, superior products and other advantages can thereby be obtained, and the claims of respondent that he is a manufacturer and importer would have a tendency to cause such persons to purchase respondents' products.

Par. 11. The use by the respondent of the aforesaid acts and practices has had and now has a tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that all of said representations are true and that the respondent has truthfully represented the constituent fiber or material of his various products and that said products are manufactured or imported by the respondent. On account of this erroneous and mistaken belief a number of the consuming public have purchased a substantial volume of respondent's products with the result that trade has been diverted unfairly to the respondent from his competitors who are also engaged in the sale and distribution in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, of various grades and types of knitting yarn. As a consequence thereof injury has been done and is now being done by respondent to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 12. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on April 1, 1939, issued, and on April 3, 1939 served, its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, Adolph Friedman, trading as Superyarn Co., charging him with unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On April 27, 1939, respondent filed his answer, in which answer he admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and the answer thereto, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Adolph Friedman, is an individual trading as Superyarn Co., with his principal place of business located at 353 Grand Street in the city of New York, State of New York.

Par. 2. Respondent is now, and for a year or more last past has been, engaged in the business of selling and distributing various grades and types of textile fabrics and knitting yarn. Respondent sells his products to members of the purchasing public situated in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and causes said products when sold by him to be transported from his place of business in the State of New York to the purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in various States of the United States other than the State of New York and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 3. Respondent is engaged in substantial competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia, with other individuals and with corporations, firms, and partnerships engaged in the business of selling and distributing various grades and types of knitting yarn in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of his said business, the respondent has engaged in the practice of falsely representing the constituent fiber or material of which the various products sold and distributed by him are made, by means of false representations on labels attached to his products and in various advertising matter, and by failure to disclose the rayon content of certain of his products. In furtherance of this practice and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of his said products, respondent has caused false statements and representations purporting to be descriptive of such products and their respective constituent fiber or material to be inserted in catalogs, price lists, and in advertisements appearing in magazines, newspapers and in other publications distributed among prospective purchasers of said products situated in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 5. Among and typical of the acts and practices above described, the respondent represents certain of his products as being composed entirely of silk, the product of the cocoon of the silk worm, when, in fact, said products are composed entirely of rayon. As an example of this practice, the respondent causes certain advertisements to be inserted in various publications such as the following:

SUPERYARNS
SUPERYARN CO. DEPT. D.

By means of the above statement, together with other and similar statements appearing in various advertising material, price lists, catalogs, and on labels, distributed as aforesaid, the respondent represents that said product is composed entirely of unweighted silk, the product of the cocoon of the silk worm, when, in truth and in fact, said product is composed entirely of rayon.

PAR. 6. Another and typical act and practice engaged in by the respondent in falsely representing his products is the use on labels and in catalogs, distributed as aforesaid, of designations or descriptions applied to rayon products which have the appearance and feel of silk, and are by the purchasing and consuming public indistinguishable from silk, and which designations did not disclose that said products are composed of rayon. As a typical example of this practice the respondent uses the term “Special Boucle,” in the manner and form above described, to designate and describe a product composed entirely of rayon, and fails to disclose the fact that said yarn is composed of rayon.

PAR. 7. Typical also of said acts and practices, the respondent represents certain of his products as being of a finer grade and a higher quality or of a different fiber than is actually the fact, by the use of words or phrases indicative to the purchasing public of a certain fiber, grade or quality. An example of this practice is the respondent's use of the word "cashmere" on labels, in advertising material, and in catalogs, distributed as aforesaid, to designate and describe products which do not contain the hair of the Cashmere goat but instead are composed of other wool.

PAR. 8. A further and typical act and practice on the part of the respondent is the use of words which are associated in the minds of the purchasing and consuming public as being descriptive of wool exclusively, to designate and describe certain yarn products, as aforesaid, which are composed in part of wool and in part of other material. As an example of this practice, the respondent uses the terms "Zephyr Tweed" and "Tweed Velnette" on labels, advertising material, and in catalogs, distributed as aforesaid, to designate a yarn product composed in part of wool and in part of rayon. In connection with the use of "Tweed Velnette," respondent describes said product as being composed of a "wool mixture and silk nub," when in fact said product is composed entirely of wool and rayon.

PAR. 9. The word "silk" for many years last past has had, and still has, in the minds of the purchasing and consuming public generally, a definite and specific meaning, to wit: The product of the cocoon of the silk worm. Silk products for many years have held, and still hold, great public esteem and confidence for their preeminent qualities. The unqualified word "silk" has, in the minds of the purchasing and consuming public, the definite and specific meaning of unweighted silk or silk which has not been subjected to the process of a metallic bath.

The word "cashmere" has long been applied to a particular type of wool fiber that is made from the hair of the Cashmere goat, and which product has for a long time been known well and favorably to the purchasing public. The word "cashmere," when used in connection with the designation and description of yarns or other products having the general appearance of wool fibers, is considered by members of the purchasing public as being a descriptive designation of a cashmere wool product composed entirely of the hair of the Cashmere goat.
The word “tweed” is a word long and favorably known to a substantial portion of the purchasing and consuming public as a certain kind of fabric composed entirely of wool.

The word “rayon” is the name of a chemical fiber or fabric which simulates silk in that it has the appearance and feel of silk and is, by the purchasing public, practically indistinguishable from silk.

Par. 10. In addition to the acts and practices above described, the respondent, by use of the words “Manufacturer of Superyarn” and “Importer”, on bill heads, business cards and advertising material, represents that he is a manufacturer and importer of yarn or yarn fiber and material. In truth and in fact, respondent is not a manufacturer of yarn and is not an importer of yarn or yarn fiber or material.

There has long been a preference on the part of a substantial portion of the purchasing and consuming public for dealing directly with a manufacturer or importer in the belief that lower prices, superior products and other advantages can thereby be obtained.

Par. 11. The use by the respondent of the aforesaid acts and practices has had, and now has, a tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that all of said representations are true and that the respondent has truthfully represented the constituent fiber or material of his various products and that said products are actually manufactured or imported by the respondent. On account of this erroneous and mistaken belief, a number of the consuming public have purchased a substantial volume of respondent’s products with the result that trade has been diverted unfairly to the respondent from his competitors who are also engaged in the sale and distribution in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia of various grades and types of knitting yarn.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent’s competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce, and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce, within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of the respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and states that he waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Adolph Friedman, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of various grades and types of textile fabrics and knitting yarn and other like articles of merchandise in commerce, as “commerce” is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing that respondent’s products are composed of fibers or materials other than those of which they are actually composed.

2. Using the words “Tweed” or “Wool” or any other words or terms of similar import and meaning, to describe or designate any fabric or product which is not composed entirely of wool.

3. Representing that the quality, grade or character of respondent’s products are superior to or different from their true quality, grade or character.

4. Using the word “Cashmere” or any other word or words of similar import or meaning to describe or designate any fabric or product which is not composed wholly of the hair of the Cashmere goat.

5. Using the unqualified word “silk” or any other word or words of similar import or meaning, to designate or describe fabrics which are not composed wholly of unweighted silk, the product of the cocoon of the silkworm, except that in the case of a fabric or product composed in part of unweighted silk and in part of materials other than unweighted silk, such words may be used as descriptive of the silk content if there is used in immediate connection or conjunction therewith, in letters of equal size and conspicuousness, a word or words accurately describing and designating each constituent fiber or material thereof in the order of its predominance by weight, beginning with the largest single constituent.

6. Advertising, offering for sale or selling fabrics or any other products composed in whole or in part of rayon without clearly disclosing the fact that such fabrics or products are composed of rayon, and when such fabrics or products are composed in part of rayon and in part of other fibers or materials, such fibers or materials, including rayon, shall be named in the order of their predominance by weight, beginning with the largest single constituent.
7. Representing that the respondent is a manufacturer, unless and until he actually owns and operates or directly and absolutely controls a manufacturing plant wherein said products are actually manufactured.

8. Representing that respondent is an importer, unless he directly imports from a foreign country a substantial portion of the products offered for sale and sold by him.

This order shall not be construed as approving the use of the term "wool" to designate, describe or refer to any wool which is not virgin or unused wool.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after the service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.
Where an individual engaged in sale and distribution of correspondence courses in diet and health, in which diets recommended contained no water, as such, and no table salt, but consisted of fresh red meats, fruit and vegetable juices, and such other foods as said individual deemed suitable to eliminate waste and produce vitality in the student or patient, in view of his condition and surroundings, and to rid him of diseases and to keep him well for the rest of his life, and in advertising his said courses through testimonial letters and circulars sent by mail into the other States, and in periodicals circulating among the several States, and in competition with others engaged in sale of correspondence courses in home study in the field of diet to men and women living in the several States, and in securing their students through national advertising conforming, as a rule, to recognized canons of truth, and also with those engaged in making and selling in commerce medicinal preparations and apparatus used and useful for the treatment of specific diseases or ailments of the body—

(a) Represented that congestion or waste matter in the blood was the cause of all diseases, and that starvation of the affected part or parts was the only one disease, and that every disease known or yet to be discovered and named was necessarily a result of poor circulation of the blood or starvation of affected tissues; and

(b) Represented that his courses were competent and adequate treatment for cure and elimination of all diseases of human beings whatsoever, and specifically for named diseases, including appendicitis, heart trouble, asthma, arthritis, and others, and that through following his courses memory and eyesight would be improved, circulation restored to normal, and various other beneficial results accomplished, including increase in income and wealth and promotion of the health and efficiency of one's children, etc.;

Facts being congestion or waste matter in blood is not cause of all diseases, nor is every disease necessarily result of poor circulation of blood or starvation of affected part or parts, and his said courses did not constitute competent or adequate treatment for all diseases, with possible exception of restricted number caused by diet deficiency, many patients receiving only such treatment would, in opinion of outstanding authorities in medical profession, be neglected, substitution of fruit and vegetable juices for water is positively dangerous to patients suffering from some ailments, and method of treatment or diet outlined do not constitute adequate or competent treatment for various diseases specified, and has no therapeutic or medical value, with possible exception aforesaid in so-called deficiency diseases;

Complaint 28 F. T. C.

With capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive substantial portion of public into erroneous and mistaken belief that such representations were true, and to induce many members of purchasing public to buy his said courses as consequence of erroneous and mistaken belief thus engendered, with result that trade was diverted unfairly to him from others engaged in sale and distribution of medicinal preparations and apparatus for treatment of specific diseases and ailments; to the substantial injury of competitors in commerce:

_Held_. That such acts and representations were to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before _Mr. John W. Addison_, trial examiner.

_Mr. Alden S. Bradley_ and _Mr. Merle P. Lyon_ for the Commission.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes,” the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that George Henry Brinkler, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has been and now is using unfair methods of competition in commerce as “commerce” is defined in said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issued its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent is an individual maintaining his office and principal place of business at 458 Ocean Drive, Miami Beach, in the State of Florida.

Par. 2. Respondent for more than 5 years last past has operated under various trade names, such as, “Brinkler School of Eating,” “Brinkler School of Food Science,” “Brinkler School of Nutrition,” and now operates under the trade name, “Brinkler Institute,” and during the course and conduct of this business, respondent has been and now is engaged in the business of selling and transporting to purchasers in States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, other than the State of Florida, a correspondence course in diet and health; and in the course and conduct of his business, as aforesaid, has maintained a constant current of trade and commerce in interstate commerce of such commodity, and sells and transports said correspondence course from his place of business in the State of Florida to the purchasers thereof at their respective locations in States other than the State of Florida and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 3. Persons, firms, copartnerships, and corporations other than the respondent are likewise engaged in the business of selling cor-response courses in diet and health in commerce among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia in competition with the respondent.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of such business, respondent has represented by statements, by advertisements published in various periodicals, by advertising literature, and otherwise:

(a) That respondent’s correspondence course in diet and health is a competent treatment for all diseases.

(b) And that the method of diet as contained in the course of instruction offered by the respondent is an adequate treatment for:

1. Indigestion
2. Tumors
3. Boils
4. Blood clots
5. Pyorrhea
6. Pimples
7. Catarrh of the eyes
8. Catarrh of the nose
9. Deafness
10. Bronchitis
11. Asthma
12. Tuberculosis
13. Gastritis
14. Appendicitis
15. Gall stones
16. Heart trouble
17. Paralysis
18. Kidney trouble
19. Fevers
20. Goitre
21. Liver trouble
22. Eczema
23. Leucorrhrea
24. Hay fever
25. Hemorrhages
26. Vaginal blood tumors
27. Prurigo
28. Hemorrhoids
29. Sciatica
30. Hardening of the arteries
31. Congestion of the brain
32. Dandruff
33. Headaches
34. Arthritis
35. Gonorrhea or any sexual disease
36. Cataract.

(c) That by following said course one’s memory or eyesight will be improved.

(d) That the following of said course will enable one to increase his income.

(e) That by following said course one will either gain or reduce any number of pounds within any certain period of time.

(f) That by following said course circulation or health will be restored.

(g) That by following said course the feet will be restored to normal.

(h) That by following said course the heart will be returned to normal, or the legs will be freed from oedema.
(i) That the observance of said course will—
(1) Double brain or muscle power.
(2) Give dependable health and activity in old age.
(3) Improve or increase creative talent, originality, affection, or energy.

(j) That every disease is due to congestion.

(k) That the observance of said course will promote a normal functioning of all organs and tissues.

(l) That the observance of said course will bring wealth.

(m) That the observance of said course will have any beneficial effect upon marital relations.

(n) That the children of those who observe said course will be healthy or efficient.

(o) That the observance of said course of instruction will produce—
1 The cleansing of the system; or 2 The reconstruction or building of the system; or 3 The normal functioning of the system.

PAR. 5. In truth and in fact respondent's correspondence course is not a competent treatment for all diseases; is not an adequate treatment for any of the diseases listed, 1 to 36 inclusive, in subparagraph (b) of paragraph 4 of this complaint. The correspondence course of treatment so sold and offered for sale by the respondent as above related has no therapeutic or medical value; does not improve the memory or the eye-sight; will not enable the user to increase his income; has no variable capacity to cause the gain or loss of avoirdupois; will not of itself restore health or circulation; will not reduce the swelling or return to normal condition the feet, heart, or legs; has no capacity to double the brain or muscular power of the user or to insure health and activity in old age; and improve or increase creative talents, originality, affection, or energy. It is not true that every disease is due to congestion. The observance of the course as offered by the respondent will not of itself promote a normal functioning of all organs and tissues; has no capacity to bring wealth; and has no inherent capacity to cause a beneficial effect upon marital relations; and further; that the use of such course as indicated by the respondent will not increase the health or efficiency of children of the user; has no inherent capacity for reconstruction or rebuilding of the system and cannot materially and beneficially effect the normal function of the system.

Customers and potential customers throughout the various States of the United States have been deceived and misled into the false belief that the statements of the respondent were and are as represented by the respondent, and that the same had and have a definite and valuable therapeutic effect in the treatment of the maladies and diseases of the human body as represented by him. The said statements and representations also had and have a tendency and capacity to cause members of the consuming public, in reliance upon the erroneous belief as above set forth, to purchase and use the course of treatment of the respondent instead of purchasing and using the remedies and products of competitors of the respondent for the treatment of the maladies and diseases and pathological conditions of the human body, including those set forth in the statements of the respondent and others represented by the respondent as being conditions in which the use of one or more of respondent's products have a curative value.

Par. 6. There are among the competitors of the respondent persons, firms, copartnerships, and corporations in substantial competition with the respondent, but who do not falsely represent the curative or therapeutic values of the commodity vended by them.

Par. 7. The acts, practices, and representations of the respondent serve as added inducements to purchasers and prospective purchasers, to purchase substantial quantities of the product sold by the respondent, and have a tendency and a capacity to, and do, divert a substantial volume of trade from the competitors of the respondent to the respondent, with a result that substantial injury was done by the respondent to substantial competition in commerce as hereinafore set out.

Par. 8. The above acts and practices of the respondent are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and substantial competitors of the respondent in interstate commerce, and constitute unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," approved September 26, 1914.

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on November 21, 1935, issued and on November 25, 1935, served its complaint in this proceeding upon George Henry Brinkler, an individual, charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of the said act, and said respondent entered his appearance and filed his answer herein. Thereafter, hearings were held and testimony and other evidence was introduced by Alden S. Bradley and Merle P. Lyon, attorneys for the Commission, in support of the allegations of the complaint, and by W. E. Walsh, attorney for respondent, in opposition to the allegations of the complaint, before John W. Addison, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly appointed by it. Thereupon this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and other evidence and briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto; and the Commission having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent, George Henry Brinkler, is an individual trading as Brinkler Institute, with his place of business located at 458 Ocean Drive, Miami Beach, Fla. He formerly traded as Brinkler School of Eating and as Brinkler School of Food Science. Respondent is engaged in the sale and distribution of a correspondence course in diet and health. A 4-week course sells for $20. The diets recom-manded by respondent in said correspondence course in diet and health contain no water as such and no table salt, but consist of fresh red meats, fruit and vegetable juices and such other foods as respondent deems suitable to eliminate waste and produce vitality in the student or patient in view of his condition and surroundings and to rid him of diseases and keep him well for the rest of his life. The Brinkler Institute is listed as a correspondence school by National Home Study Council.

Par. 2. Respondent Brinkler advertises his courses in diet and health by means of testimonial letters and circulars sent by mail from Florida into other States and in magazines circulating among the several States and causes the courses, when sold, to be transported from Florida into other States and there delivered to the buyers.

Par. 3. There are other individuals, partnerships, and corporations in the United States engaged in the business of selling correspondence courses in home study in the field of diet in competition in commerce with respondent to men and women living in the several States and of causing the courses so sold to be transported from the State in which the seller is located into other States and there de-ivered to the buyers. They secure their students through national advertising conforming as a rule to the recognized canons of truth.
There are also individuals, partnerships, and corporations engaged in making and selling in commerce among the several States medicinal preparations and apparatus used and useful for the treatment of specific diseases or ailments of the human body.
Par. 4. Respondent, to promote the sale of his correspondence courses in commerce, among the several States and in the District of Columbia, represents that congestion or waste matter in the blood is the cause of all diseases and that his courses are competent and adequate treatment for the cure and elimination of all diseases of human beings whatsoever. He makes the representation both generally for all diseases and specifically for named diseases including among many others appendicitis, congestion of the brain, goiter, tuberculosis, heart trouble, asthma, blood clots, deafness, cataract, arthritis, and gall stones. Respondent also represents that, by following his courses of instruction, the memory and eyesight will be improved, circulation will be restored to normal, the feet will be restored to normal, the legs will be freed from oedema, brain or muscle power will be doubled, dependable health and activity in old age will be assured, creative talent, originality, affection, and energy will be improved or increased, normal functioning of all organs and tissues will be promoted, weight can be controlled or regulated at will, income or wealth will be increased, marital relations will be beneficially affected, the health and efficiency of one's children will be promoted, and the system will be cleansed, rebuilt, reconstructed, and restored to normal functioning. Respondent further represents that there is only one disease, starvation of the affected part or parts, and that every disease now known and every disease yet to be discovered and named is necessarily a result of poor circulation of the blood or starvation of affected tissues.

Par. 5. Congestion or waste matter in the blood is not the cause of all diseases and the method of treatment or the diet outlined in respondent's correspondence courses are not a competent or adequate treatment for all diseases, with the possible exception of the restricted number of diseases such as scurvy, beri-beri, and rickets, caused by diet deficiency and it is false, misleading, and deceptive to represent them as such. Many patients receiving only such treatment would, in the opinion of outstanding authorities in the medical profession, be neglected, and the substitution of fruit and vegetable juices for water is positively dangerous to patients suffering from some ailments. The method of treatment or the diet outlined in respondent's courses of instruction are not an adequate or competent treatment for appendicitis, congestion of the brain, cancer, goiter, tuberculosis, heart trouble, diabetes, asthma, blood clots, deafness, cataract, indigestion, arthritis, osteomyelitis, paresis, typhoid fever, gall stones, septicemia and the other diseases, ailments and conditions mentioned in respondent's advertising literature and courses of instruction. The method of treatment of the diet outlined in the correspondence courses sold by respondent have no therapeutic or medical value except possibly in the treatment of the so-called deficiency diseases. It is not true that there is only one disease, starvation of the effected part or parts, and that every disease now known and every disease yet to be discovered and named is necessarily a result of poor circulation of the blood or affected tissues.

PAR. 6. Each and all of the false and misleading statements so made by respondent, as set forth above, have had and now have the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such representations are true; and to induce many members of the purchasing public to buy respondent's said courses as a result of the erroneous and mistaken belief engendered by such representations, with the result that trade is diverted unfairly to respondent from other individuals and from partnerships and correspondence courses in diet and health who truthfully advertise and represent their said courses, and from other individuals, and from partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of medicinal preparations and apparatus for the treatment of specific human diseases and ailments. Substantial injury has been and is being done by respondent George Henry Brinkler to his competitors in commerce among and between the several States of the United States and to the public.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and representations of respondent George Henry Brinkler have been and are to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

It is ordered, That the respondent, George Henry Brinkler, his representatives, agents, and employees, individually or under any trade name or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution in commerce as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, of correspondence courses in diet and health, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing that congestion or waste matter in the blood is the cause of all diseases.

2. Representing that the diet or method of treatment outlined in said courses of instruction offered for sale and sold by him is a competent or adequate treatment for the cure and elimination of all diseases, or for any diseases except the restricted number of diseases caused by diet deficiency.

3. Representing that the diet or method of treatment outlined in said courses of instruction is a competent or adequate treatment of appendicitis, congestion of the brain, cancer, goiter, tuberculosis, heart trouble, diabetes, asthma, blood clot, deafness, cataract, indigestion, arthritis, osteomyelitis, paresis, typhoid fever, gall stones, or septicemia.

4. Representing that there is only one disease, starvation of the affected part or parts, and that every disease yet to be discovered and named is necessarily a result of poor circulation of the blood or starvation of affected tissues.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF

STEVEN V. GIMINO AND ANTHONY V. GIMINO, TRADING AND DOING BUSINESS AS ELITE PUBLISHING COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Where two individuals engaged in publication and sale of book variously known as "Collection of Successful Business Plans" and "The Elite Collection of Successful Business Plans," to purchasers in other States and in the District of Columbia, in substantial competition with others engaged in publication, sale, and distribution, or in sale and distribution, of similar books and articles in commerce as aforesaid, and including many who do not in any way misrepresent the content of their said books or the earnings which may be derived from the operation of the plans described therein—

(a) Represented, in advertisements in periodicals of general circulation in various States, that their "free booklet" described "107 plans for making $20.00-$100.00 weekly in home or office," and referred in such advertising to "107 plans for operating a successful business of your own," with earnings from $20 to $100 a week, starting in spare time at home;

Facts being booklet in question, which was in fact sent free to inquirers, did not describe plans themselves in any practical detail, but was merely suggestive of general nature of each and some of its salient features, and they had no knowledge or information to the effect that the average net earnings or profits consistently made by purchasers of their said books, in following one or more of the said plans in the ordinary and usual course of business, and under ordinary and usual conditions and circumstances, amounted to from $20 to $100 as above set forth, and had no reasonable grounds for belief that earnings or profits therefrom amounted to such sums;

(b) Made such statements, in their said advertising and in letters and circulars sent to prospective purchasers, as "No peddling or house-to-house selling" and "107 plans for starting a business ••• No risk; start the plans which require no investment," and "Statistics prove that the man or woman who starts an independent business, however small, has sixteen times the chance to become a marked success as the man who accepts a position on a salary";

Facts being that all their said plans involved sale of articles or services, many were adapted essentially to peddling or house-to-house sales, and, while methods of sale by mail or through agents or salesmen were suggested in lieu of house-to-house or office-to-office selling by operators of plan and personal direct selling by operator might be avoided by following their proposals, such selling was necessary in many cases, there is no plan for engaging in any independent business which does not involve risk through possibility of loss of either time or money, and they had no knowledge of reliable and authentic statistics to the effect above stated with respect to prospects of persons starting an independent business as compared with person employed on a salary; and

(c) Made such statements, as aforesaid, as "These plans are different • • • We could point out hundreds of examples of men and women who have started with nothing but a dollar or two and the right plan who are now independently wealthy," and, in connection with "Plan One," set forth that "$5,000 in one year is the earnings reported by one operator of this unique idea," and set forth that "If you are a hard worker you should find it just as easy to make big money with these plans as to 'hold down' a $25 a week job for somebody else," and in referring to financial rewards in said free booklet to be gained from operation of a number of their different plans, made such statements, among others, as "Although men and women everywhere are earning literally thousands of dollars a year in this plan, the field is not one-tenth covered," and "If the profits are reinvested the operator can soon be making thousands of dollars yearly," "a sizable business can be built from a 'shoe-string' start," etc., and referred to their plans as "Approved plans for securing additional incomes," and "• • • proved winners. All you have to do is 'follow instructions,'" and "Guaranteed to be practical and legitimate";

Facts being they were without knowledge or information or reasonable grounds for belief that any purchasers of said books had attained independent wealth or earnings of $5,000 or $10,000 by following one or more of their plans in ordinary course of business and under normal conditions and circumstances, and were without knowledge or information to effect that average net earnings or profits consistently made, as above set forth, by purchasers in following such various plans as set forth in said "free booklet," amounted to the varying sums represented, and had no reasonable grounds for believing that they did amount thereto, and their said plans were not "approved" by any reliable or independent person or agency or organization qualified to pass judgment on such matters, and, while plans in question outlined in greater or less detail, were projects which might result in profits to some degree, dependent upon industry and capacity of operator, locality and other usual facts involved in such matters, in no case was financial success in particular enterprise assured simply by following directions given, and certain of plans involved were not legitimate in accepted sense of word, nor legal if carried on in Interstate commerce in manner proposed;

With capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive substantial portion of purchasing public into erroneous belief that said representations and implications were true, and to cause substantial portion of such public, because of such erroneous belief, to buy their said books, and thus divert trade to them from competitors who have not made use of similar representations concerning their said products:

Held, That such acts and practices were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. John J. Keenan, trial examiner.
Mr. R. W. Branch for the Commission.
Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Steven V. Gimino and Anthony V. Gimino, individuals, trading and doing business under the name and style of Elite Publishing Co., hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. The said respondents, Steven V. Gimino and Anthony V. Gimino, are individuals trading and doing business under the name and style of Elite Publishing Co., with their office and principal place of business at 214 Grand Street, New York City, State of New York.

Paragraph 2. Respondents are now, and for more than 2 years last past have been, engaged in the business of publishing and selling a certain book, variously known as "Collection of Successful Business Plans" and "The Elite Collection of Successful Business Plans."

Respondents cause the copies of this book, when sold, to be transported from their place of business in the State of New York to purchasers thereof located in States of the United States other than the State of New York and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 3. In the course and conduct of their said business, respondents are now, and have been for more than 2 years last past, in substantial competition with other firms and partnerships and with individuals and corporations engaged in the publication, sale, and distribution, or in the sale and distribution, of similar books or articles in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 4. In the course and conduct of their said business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of the said books, the respondents have advertised in magazines of interstate circulation. Typical of the advertisements so issued are the following:

Free booklet describes 107 plans for making $20.00-$100.00 weekly in home or office, business of your own.

Free booklet describes 87 plans for making $20.00-$100.00 weekly in home or office, business of your own.

PAR. 5. In the course and conduct of their said business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of the said books, respondents have caused to be sent by means of the United States mails and otherwise to prospective purchasers, letters and circulars containing statements relative to the said books and plans, of which the following are typical:

107 plans for starting a business * * * No risk; start the plans which require no investment.

Statistics prove that the man or woman who starts an independent business, however small, has sixteen times the chance to become a marked success as the man who accepts a position on a salary.

These plans are different * * * We could point out hundreds of examples of men and women who have started with nothing but dollar or two and the right plan who are now independently wealthy.

Plan One * * * $5,000 in one year is the earnings reported by one operator of this unique idea.

Q. I want to run a big business; I want the opportunity to make $10,000 a year or more; can I do it with you plans?

A. Earnings in any business are usually in proportion to the effort given and there are many of our plans which are earning more than the amount you mention for the operators. If you are a hard worker you should find it just as easy to make big money with these plans as to "hold down" a $25 a week job for somebody else.

The plans are bound together in a handsome leatherette covered book.

Approved plans for securing additional incomes.

Our plans are proved winners. All you have to do is "follow instructions."

The plans are guaranteed to be practical and legitimate.

By the said statements and others of like import and effect in their advertising literature, respondents directly and by inference represent that the "free booklet" describes 87 or 107 plans for making money in the home or office; that no risk is involved in the operation of the said plans; that by following any of the said plans earnings of $20 to $100 weekly might be attained; that the chance of one starting an independent business achieving a marked success is sixteen times greater than that of a person on a salary; that independent wealth has been attained by many people by the use of respondents' plans; that earnings of $5,000 or $10,000 per year have been made by persons using respondents' plans; that in the execution of the said plans no peddling or house-to-house selling is necessary; that the binding of the book is composed of leather; that the plans have been

“approved” by a reputable or independent person or agency or organization qualified to pass judgment on such matters; that the use of the plans is certain to result in financial gain; and that the plans are legitimate in the accepted sense of the word.

Par. 6. The representations made by the respondents directly or by inference with respect to the said free booklet, to their book variously designated “Collection of Successful Business Plans” and “The Elite Collection of Successful Business Plans,” and to the said plans and the results which may reasonably be anticipated to be attained by their use are false, misleading, and untrue. In truth and in fact respondents’ “free booklet” does not describe the said 87 or 107 plans, but is merely descriptive of the book which describes the plans, which said book is not in fact free, but is sold for $3 per copy. It is extremely improbable that the persons by whom respondents’ advertisements are read or to whom their books are sold, will in fact realize earnings of $20 to $100 per week by carrying out any of the said plans. The chance of one starting an independent business achieving a marked success is not sixteen times greater than that of a person on a salary. Independent wealth has not been attained by many people by the use of respondents’ plans. Earnings of $5,000 or $10,000 per year have not been realized by a utilization of many of the said plans, and as to the plans pursuant to which such earnings might conceivably be reached, they would be possible only after a substantial investment of time, effort, and money. Many of the plans involve selling or peddling or house-to-house canvassing. The binding of the said book is not composed of leather. The plans have not been “approved” by an independent person or agency or organization of repute qualified to pass judgment on such matters. The plans are not “proved winners.” The plans do involve a certain risk of financial loss and are not free from risk. Certain of the plans are neither legitimate in the accepted sense of the word nor legal if carried on in interstate commerce in the manner proposed.

Par. 7. There are among respondents’ competitors many who are engaged in the business of publishing and selling books or articles of a like character, who do not in any way misrepresent the quality and content of their said books or the earnings which may be derived from the operation of the plans described therein.

Par. 8. Each and all of the false and misleading statements and representations made by respondents as hereinabove set out were and are calculated to, and have had, and now have, a tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that all of said representations are true. As a direct result of this erroneous and mistaken belief, a number of the consuming public have purchased substantial numbers of respondents' work with the result that trade has been diverted unfairly to respondent from competitors likewise engaged in the business of publishing and selling similar books or articles, and who truthfully advertise the same. As a consequence thereof injury has been done, and is now being done, by respondents to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 9. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on July 30, 1938, issued its complaint in the above-entitled proceeding and caused same to be served on the respondents, Steven V. Gimino and Anthony V. Gimino, carrying on business under the name and style of Elite Publishing Co., charging them with violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of the answer thereto by respondents, a stipulation as to the facts was made and entered into by and between W. T. Kelley, Chief Counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, and the respondents, which stipulation provided that the facts set out therein may be made a part of the record herein and may be taken as the facts in this proceeding in lieu of testimony in support of the charges stated in the complaint herein or in opposition thereto, and that said Commission may proceed upon said facts (and from inferences it may draw therefrom) to make its report stating its findings as to the facts and its conclusion based thereon and enter its order disposing of the proceeding without the presentation of arguments or the filing of briefs, and said stipulation has been accepted and approved by the Commission. Thereafter the matter came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the answer thereto, and the said stipulation as to the facts and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises finds that said proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.
FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. The said respondents, Steven V. Gimino and Anthony V. Gimino, individuals trading and doing business under the name and style of Elite Publishing Co., have their office and principal place of business at 214 Grand Street, New York City, State of New York. They are now and for more than 2 years last past have been engaged in the business of publishing and selling a certain book variously known as "Collection of Successful Business Plans" and "The Elite Collection of Successful Business Plans," and have caused copies of this book, when sold, to be transported from their place of business in the State of New York to purchasers thereof located in States of the United States other than the State of New York and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of their said business, respondents are now and have been for more than 2 years last past, in substantial competition with various persons and corporations and other partnerships engaged in the publication, sale, and distribution or in the sale and distribution of similar books and articles of commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 2. In the course and conduct of their business, as set out in paragraph 1 hereof, and for the purpose of inducing members of the public to purchase the books offered for sale by them, respondents have caused advertisements to be published in magazines and other periodicals of general circulation in various States of the United States. The following are typical excerpts from such advertisements:

Free booklet describes 107 plans for making $20.00--$100.00 weekly in home or office, business of your own.

Free booklet describes 87 plans for making $20.00--$100.00 weekly in home or office, business of your own.

FREE BOOK

Write for booklet describing "107 plans for operating a successful business of your own."

Advertising in these identical or substantially similar forms was continued until the service of the complaint.

The "free booklet" to which these advertisements refer was, in fact, sent to inquirers entirely free of any charge, either in money, services, or otherwise. This booklet, however, did not describe the plans themselves in any practical detail, but was merely suggestive of the general nature of each plan and some of its salient features.

Respondents did, in fact, publish the collection of plans referred to above, which did, in fact, contain at different times the number of plans claimed in the foregoing advertisements.

At the time the said representations with respect to possible weekly earnings of "$20-$100" were made, respondents had no knowledge or information to the effect that the average net earnings or profits consistently made by purchasers of said books in following one or more of the said plans in the ordinary and usual course of business and under ordinary and usual conditions and circumstances amounted to from $20 to $100, and had no reasonable grounds for belief that such earnings or profits amounted to such sums.

All of the plans involve the sale of articles or services. Many of them are adapted essentially to peddling or house-to-house sales. As to these, respondents in substantially all cases suggest methods of sale by mail or through agents or salesmen, in lieu of house-to-house or office-to-office selling by the operator of the plan. Although, by following respondents' proposals, personal direct selling by the operator of the plan may be avoided, in many cases such selling is necessary.

Par. 3. In the course and conduct of their said business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of the said books, respondents have caused to be sent, by means of the United States mails and otherwise, to prospective purchasers, letters and circulars containing statements relative to the said books and plans, of which the following, indicated by quotation marks, are typical:

107 plans for starting a business • • • No risk; start the plans which require no investment.

There is no plan for engaging in any independent business which does not involve risk through the possibility of loss of either time or money.

Statistics prove that the man or woman who starts an independent business, however small, has sixteen times the chance to become a marked success as the man who accepts a position on a salary.

At the time the said representation was made, respondents had no knowledge of reliable and authentic statistics to the effect stated.

These plans are different • • • We could point out hundreds of examples of men and women who have started with nothing but a dollar or two and the right plan who are now independently wealthy.

Plan One • • • $5,000 in one year is the earnings reported by one operator of this unique idea.
Q. I want to run a big business; I want the opportunity to make $10,000 a year or more; can I do it with your plans?

A. Earnings in any business are usually in proportion to the effort given, and there are many of our plans which are earning more than the amount you mention for the operators. If you are a hard worker you should find it just as easy to make big money with these plans as to "hold down" a $25 a week job for somebody else.

At the time said representations with respect to the possible attainment of independent wealth or earnings of $5,000 or $10,000 were made, respondents were without knowledge or information or reasonable grounds for belief that any purchasers of the said books had attained such wealth or earnings by following one or more of the said plans in the ordinary course of business and under normal conditions and circumstances.

The plans are bound together in a handsome leatherette covered book.

The binding of the book is not composed of leather. This statement was deleted from the "free booklet" shortly after April 28, 1936.

Approved plans for securing additional incomes.

The plans have not been approved by any reliable or independent person or agency, or organization, qualified to pass judgment on such matters.

Our plans are proved winners. All you have to do is "follow instructions."

The plans outlined in greater or less detail are projects which may result in profits to some degree, dependent upon the industry and capability of the operator, the locality and other usual facts that enter into the success of any business enterprise. However, in no case is financial success in the particular enterprise assured simply by following the directions given.

The plans are guaranteed to be practical and legitimate.

Certain of the plans are not legitimate in the accepted sense of the word, nor legal if carried on in interstate commerce in the manner proposed.

Par. 4. In the "free booklet," respondents include as to the financial rewards to be gained from the operation of a number of their different plans, statements of which the following are typical:

It is an ideal mail order item and several people we know of are making handsome incomes selling it through the mails.

An ambitious worker can secure independence and an income equal to his fondest hopes.

If full time and earnest attention is given to it, the earnings may be made as high as $3.00 or more per hour.
If you handle it the way we tell you, a sizable business can be built from a "shoe-string" start.

People we know of who are today working this plan are making incomes ranging from $100.00 to $200.00 a month.

A plan good for $10.00 to $15.00 a day in any fair sized town or city.

Nevertheless, it can be made to pay $6,000.00 or more in local operation, and the risk involved is trifling.

* * * paying no less than $20.00 a week for easy work.

This pays from $150.00 to $300.00 per month, or possibly a little more.

A permanent business, paying up to $200.00 a month or more, can be developed.

If the profits are reinvested the operator can soon be making thousands of dollars yearly.

Although men and women everywhere are earning literally thousands of dollars a year in this plan, the field is not one-tenth covered.

At the time said representations were made respondents had no knowledge or information to the effect that the average net earnings or profits consistently made in the ordinary and usual course of business and under normal conditions and circumstances by purchasers of said books in following the said various plans to which the foregoing statements apply, amounted to the varying sums represented, and had no reasonable grounds for belief that such earnings and profits amounted to such sums.

Par. 5. There are, among respondents' competitors, many who do not in any way misrepresent the content of their said books or the earnings which may be derived from the operation of the plans described therein.

Par. 6. The above and foregoing representations and implications, and others of like character, so made by the respondents in connection with the offering for sale and sale of their books, are misleading and deceptive, and have the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that said representations and implications are true, and to cause a substantial portion of the purchasing public, because of said erroneous belief, to purchase respondents' books; and as a result, trade has been diverted to respondents from competitors who have not made use of similar representations concerning books sold by them.

CONCLUSION

The acts and practices of the respondents herein, as set out in the foregoing findings, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of competitors of respondent, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.
ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

It is ordered, That the respondents, Steven V. Gimino and Anthony V. Gimino, their agents and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of certain books describing plans or methods of setting up businesses now known as "Collection of Successful Business Plans," and "The Elite Collection of Successful Business Plans," whether sold under those names or under any other names, in commerce as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing any specified sum of money as possible earnings or profits which might accrue to purchasers of respondents' books or publications by following one or more of the plans suggested therein, which is not a true representation of the average net earnings or profits consistently made by purchasers by said means in the ordinary course of business and under normal conditions and circumstances.

2. Representing any specified sum of money as earnings or profits which have accrued to any purchaser of said books or publications, who has followed one or more of the plans suggested therein, which is not a true representation of the consistent net earnings by such purchasers by said means in the ordinary course of business and under normal conditions and circumstances.

3. Representing or holding out by the use of such expressions as "Independent Wealth," "Sizable Business," "Thousands of Dollars a Year," and words of like or similar import, that purchasers of said books will, by following one or more of respondents' plans, attain considerable financial worth unless such success has usually or customarily been attained by such purchasers under normal business conditions and in the due course of business.
4. Representing that any booklet, folder, circular, or the like, describes plans for independent business ventures, unless and until it does in fact describe such plans.

5. Representing that the chance of a person starting an independent business achieving success is greater than that of one who works for a salary, unless and until such fact is established by authentic and reliable statistics.

6. Representing that no peddling or house-to-house canvassing is necessary, if in fact either is normally involved in the conduct of respondents' plans.

7. Representing that the said plans are legitimate, unless all of them are legitimate in the generally accepted sense of the word.

8. Representing that the plans have been "approved," unless and until (a) they have been approved by a reputable independent person or agency or organization qualified to pass judgment on such matters, or (b) the name of the person by whom they have been "approved" is disclosed.

9. Representing that the use of the plans or any of them is certain to result in financial gain or may be undertaken without risk of loss.

It is further ordered, That the respondents shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.
IN THE MATTER OF

W. K. HONBAUM, DOING BUSINESS AS MONARCH STOVE TOP COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Where an individual engaged in transportation, sale and distribution of his "Monarch Stove Top" for use on open top gas ranges or stoves, through agents or salesmen who contacted the general public by house-to-house canvass, and whom he equipped with circulars and printed advertisements containing matter purporting to be descriptive of his said product and efficacy thereof—

(a) Represented thereby that his said appliances were properly ventilated to insure proper combustion, and that use thereof was safe and harmless, and that through such use consumption of gas would be reduced and cooking capacity of stove or range increased, facts being his said products would not lessen consumption of gas in any respect, enable user to cook from two to four articles with one burner, or increase stove's cooking capacity to any extent, and were not ventilated sufficiently to insure proper combustion, but were so constructed that there was grave danger of carbon monoxide gas, rendering use thereof unhealthy and dangerous; and

(b) Represented that the soiling of walls, windows, or curtains by open top gas stoves or ranges would be prevented by use of such appliances, facts being their use did not tend to lessen or prevent escape of steam and grease from food when cooking, and would not, therefore, prevent walls, windows, and curtains from soiling, and did not, as represented, through failure to prevent grease and food particles from depositing on stove or range, constitute perfect sanitary systems for such product;

With capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive purchasing public and with effect of leading substantial portion thereof into a false and erroneous belief that said appliance would reduce amount of gas consumed to substantial extent, similarly increase cooking capacity, and prevent soiling of walls, etc., and was properly ventilated, as set forth, and entirely safe, and with result, as direct consequence of such beliefs, thus induced, that substantial number of said public purchased substantial number of its said tops, and trade was thus diverted unfairly to it from competitors engaged in selling and distributing closed top gas stoves and competitors engaged in selling appliances for same purpose and use, and who in no way misrepresent the quality or efficacy of their respective products; to the injury of competition in commerce:

Held, That such acts and practices were to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. Robert S. Hall and Mr. Miles J. Furnas, trial examiners.

Mr. Floyd O. Collins and Mr. Joseph C. Fehr for the Commission. Mr. T. Emmett McKenzie, of Washington, D. C., for respondent.
Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that W. K. Honbaum, an individual, doing business as Monarch Stove Top Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. W. K. Honbaum is an individual doing business under the trade name of Monarch Stove Top Co., and his principal place of business is located in Hamburg, Mich., and his business address is Box 77, Hamburg, Mich.

Par. 2. Respondent is now, and has been for a number of years last past, engaged in the manufacture, transportation, sale, and distribution between and among the various States of the United States, of an appliance to be used on open top gas ranges, or open top gas stoves, and designated "Monarch Stove Tops." Respondent causes said appliances, when sold, to be shipped and transported in commerce from respondent's place of business, in Hamburg, Mich., to purchasers thereof located at various points in States of the United States other than the State of Michigan and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and has maintained, a course of trade in the sale and distribution of said appliances in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 3. Respondent, in the course and conduct of his said business, is now, and at all times herein referred to has been, in substantial competition with other individuals and with firms, corporations, and partnerships likewise engaged in the sale and distribution of tops for open top gas ranges and open top gas stoves, and other appliances to be used for the same and similar purpose as the appliance which respondent sells in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. These competitors do not in any way misrepresent the quality or efficacy of their products, or resort to unfair methods of competition in offering for sale and selling their respective products in such commerce.

Par. 4. Respondent, W. K. Honbaum, in the course and conduct of his business in selling and offering for sale said stove tops, has employed agents or salesmen, to sell said product, and these agents or salesmen contact the general public by house-to-house canvass. Respondent equips said agents or salesmen with circulars and printed advertisements, on which is printed matter purporting to be descriptive of respondent's product and the efficacy of said product. In describing the quality and efficacy of his product on said circulars and printed matter the respondent represents; among other things:

A perfect sanitary system for the gas range, warranted not to warp or crack.
Reduce your gas bill.
Increases cooking capacity.
Eliminates unsanitary grates.
Prevents soiling of walls, windows, and curtains.
The ventilated section at the rear is elevated so that the heated air will escape, after it has traveled the full length of the top, thus giving abundant circulation of air, and complete combustion.

In addition to such representations in his pamphlets, circulars, and other advertising literature, respondent's salesmen, in the course of their employment, and in the scope of their employment, represent to the prospective purchaser that said stove tops will reduce the users' gas bills, and will increase the cooking capacity of a stove or range to a considerable extent.

PAR. 5. All of said representations, as above set out, and many other similar representations not specifically mentioned herein, made directly by respondent and his authorized agents, are highly exaggerated, false and misleading, and had, and now have, the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive the purchasing public and did, and do now, lead a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the false and erroneous belief that when said appliance is used on an open top gas range or stove; (1) It will reduce the amount of gas consumed to a substantial extent; (2) It will increase the cooking capacity of a stove or range to a substantial extent; (3) It will prevent soiling of walls, windows and curtains; (4) It is properly ventilated to insure proper combustion; (5) It is entirely safe to use.

PAR. 6. In truth and in fact, the said appliance, when used, will not lessen the consumption of gas in any respect. It will not increase the cooking capacity of an open top gas stove or range to any appreciable degree. It will not prevent the walls, windows, and curtains of kitchens from becoming soiled from steam, grease, and other matters. Said appliance is not ventilated sufficiently to insure proper combustion, but is so constructed that there is a grave danger of escape of carbon monoxide gas, which renders the use of said appliance highly hazardous.

PAR. 7. In addition to the false and misleading representations and unfair acts and practices above set out on the part of respondent, respondent's salesmen in soliciting orders and securing contracts for said stove tops, for the purpose of securing the initial payment, make representation that said stove tops will be delivered to the purchaser, and be delivered on a specified date. The truth is the stove tops are not delivered on the date promised, and in many cases are never delivered, and in such cases, the respondent refuses to refund the amount deposited.

Par. 8. As a direct consequence of the mistaken and erroneous beliefs induced by the acts and representations hereinabove set out, a substantial number of the purchasing public has purchased a substantial number of respondent's stove tops, with the result that trade has been diverted unfairly to the respondent from competitors who are engaged in selling and distributing closed top gas stoves, and from competitors who are engaged in selling appliances for the same purpose and use for which the respondent's product is manufactured, distributed and sold, and who in no way misrepresent the quality or efficacy of their respective products. As a result of the unfair acts and false and misleading representations of the respondent, injury has been, and is now being, done to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia.

Par. 9. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice of the public, and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce, within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on the 20th day of April 1938, issued and thereafter served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, W. K. Honbaum, an individual doing business under the trade name Monarch Stove Top Co., charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by Floyd O. Collins and Joseph C. Fehr, attorneys for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by W. K. Honbaum, respondent, before Robert S. Hall and M. J. Furnas, examiners of the Commission, theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and other evidence and brief in support of complaint (respondent not having filed brief nor requested oral argument), and the Commission, having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that the proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. W. K. Honbaum is an individual doing business under the trade name of Monarch Stove Top Co., with his principal place of business located in Hamburg, Mich. His business address is Box 77, Hamburg, Mich.

Respondent is now, and has been for a number of years last past, engaged in transportation, sale, and distribution between and among the various States of the United States, of an appliance to be used on open top gas ranges, or open top gas stoves, and designated "Monarch Stove Top." Respondent causes said appliances, when sold, to be shipped and transported in commerce from respondent's place of business; in Hamburg, Mich., to purchasers thereof located at various points in States of the United States other than the State of Michigan and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and has maintained, a course of trade in the sale and distribution of said appliances in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. The respondent, in the course and conduct of his said business, is now, and at all times herein referred to has been, in substantial competition, in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, with other individuals and with firms, corporations, and partnerships also engaged in the sale and distribution of tops for open top gas ranges and open top gas stoves, and other appliances to be used for the same and similar purpose as the appliance which respondent sells in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. To induce the purchase of his commodity by the purchasing public, respondent, W. K. Honbaum, in the course and conduct of his business in selling and offering for sale said stove tops, has employed agents or salesmen, to sell said product, and these agents or salesmen contact the general public by house-to-house canvass. Respondent equips said agents or salesmen with circulars and printed advertisements, on which is printed matter purporting to be descriptive of respondent's product and the efficacy of said product. In describing the quality and efficacy of his product on said circulars and printed matter the respondent represents; among other things:
Findings

A perfect sanitary system for the gas range, warranted not to warp or crack. Reduce your gas bill.
Increase your cooking capacity.
Eliminates unsanitary grates.
Prevents soiling of walls, windows, and curtains.
Reduces Gas Bills.
Will cook from two to four articles with one burner.
Will keep a whole meal hot until ready to serve, with one burner turned low.
Prevents the unsanitary grates and over-laps (does not set in) the place they occupy, thus eliminating all places for grease and dirt to accumulate.

Par. 4. The National Bureau of Standards tested one of respondent's stove tops for the purpose of ascertaining the truth or falsity of respondent's claims as set out in paragraph 3 herein. The results of said test show and the Commission finds that the respondent's stove tops when used will not lessen the consumption of gas in any respect. Respondent's stove tops will not enable the user to cook from two to four articles with one burner lighted, neither will they increase the cooking capacity of a stove or range to any extent. Said stove tops are not ventilated sufficiently to insure proper combustion but are constructed so that there is a grave danger of carbon monoxide gas which renders their use unhealthy and dangerous. Said stove tops when used will not tend to lessen or prevent the escape of steam and grease from food when cooking and will not therefore prevent walls, windows, and curtains from soiling. Said stove tops will not prevent grease and food particles from depositing on the stove or range and are therefore not perfect sanitary systems for gas ranges and open top gas stoves.

Par. 5. All of the representations, as above set out, made directly by respondent and his authorized agents, are highly exaggerated, false, and misleading, and had, and now have, the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive the purchasing public and did, and do now, lead a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the false and erroneous belief that when said appliance is used on an open top gas range or stove: (1) It will reduce the amount of gas consumed to a substantial extent; (2) it will increase the cooking capacity of a stove or range to a substantial extent; (3) it will prevent soiling of walls, windows, and curtains; (4) it is properly ventilated to insure proper combustion; (5) it is entirely safe to use.

Par. 6. As a direct consequence of the mistaken and erroneous beliefs induced by the acts and representations hereinabove set out, a substantial number of the purchasing public has purchased a substantial number of respondent's stove tops, with the result that trade has been diverted unfairly to the respondent from competitors who are engaged in selling and distributing closed top gas stoves, and from competitors who are engaged in selling appliances for the same purpose and use for which the respondent's product is manufactured, distributed, and sold, and who in no way misrepresent the quality or efficacy of their respective products. As a result of the unfair acts and false and misleading representations of the respondent, injury has been, and is now being, done to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found, are to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, and the answer of respondent, testimony and other evidence taken before Robert S. Hall and M. J. Furnas, examiners of the Commission, theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, and brief filed herein by Floyd O. Collins, counsel for the Commission (respondent not having filed brief and oral argument not having been requested), and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent, W. K. Honbaum, an individual, doing business under the trade name of Monarch Stove Top Co., has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, W. K. Honbaum, individually and trading as the Monarch Stove Top Co. or under any other name or names, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of appliances now designated as "Monarch Stove Tops," or any other appliances of substantially similar construction and design, in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing that such appliances are properly ventilated or insure proper combustion.
2. Representing that the use of such appliances is safe or harmless.
3. Representing that the consumption of gas in stoves or ranges will be reduced by reason of the use of such appliances.
4. Representing that the use of such appliances will increase the cooking capacity of a stove or range.

5. Representing that the soiling of walls, windows, or curtains by open top gas stoves or ranges will be prevented by reason of the use of such appliances.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.
IN THE MATTER OF

H. F. ALLEN, TRADING AS TECHNICAL LABORATORIES AND AS TECHNICAL PRODUCTS COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Where an individual engaged in sale of product, under names "Aratone" and "Sinozone," for use by consuming public afflicted with nasal catarrh, simple bronchial asthma and hay fever, and in distributing his said product through wholesale and retail druggists; in advertisements thereof issued, published, and circulated to and among the consuming public of the United States in various forms of printed matter, by radio broadcasts, and in other ways—
(a) Represented that said product was a competent and safe remedy, cure or treatment for nasal catarrh, hay fever, asthma, and colds, and that it was healing and would prevent or cure nasal irritation and aid in preventing poisons from being carried from the nasal passage into the rest of the body, and would flush out impurities contained therein, and that use thereof was harmless, facts being it would not accomplish said various results, was not a competent treatment or safe and effective remedy for nasal catarrh, hay fever, asthma, or colds, and was no more than a palliative affording temporary relief from some of the symptoms or manifestations of such conditions, repeated use which for such relief might result in harm or serious injury to patient; and

(b) Represented through use of word "Laboratories" in trade name employed by him, and in his said advertising, that he conducted, operated or maintained a laboratory for the purpose of manufacturing, testing or experimenting with preparation sold by him, facts being he neither owned nor controlled any laboratory for investigation or research in connection with preparation, sale and distribution of such products;

With effect of misleading and deceiving substantial portion of purchasing public into belief that all of said representations made by him, as above set forth and indicated, were true, and with result, as direct consequence of such mistaken and erroneous belief induced by said advertising and representations, of causing consuming public to purchase substantial volume of said preparation, and of thus diverting trade unfairly from others engaged in sale of like and similar products for like and similar purposes, and who truthfully advertise the same; to the substantial injury of competition in commerce:

Held, That such acts and practices, as above set forth, were all to the prejudice of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. Charles P. Vicini, trial examiner.

Mr. Reuben J. Martin for the Commission.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that H. F. Allen, trading as Technical Laboratories and as Technical Products Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, H. F. Allen, an individual, trading as Technical Laboratories and as Technical Products Co., with his principal place of business located at 24 Bridge Road, in the city of Berkeley, State of California, is now and has been for more than one year past engaged in the sale and distribution of a preparation for use in the nose and nasal passages, advertised and sold under the trade names "Sinozone" and "Aratone."

Paragraph 2. In the course and conduct of his business, as hereinbefore described, respondent has caused said product, when sold, to be transported from his place of business in the State of California to the purchasers thereof located in various States of the United States other than the State of California, and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 3. In the course and conduct of his business, respondent has been, and is now, in substantial competition with other individuals, partnerships, firms, and corporations, engaged in the distribution and sale in interstate commerce of like and similar products or other products and treatments intended, designed and used for similar purposes.

Paragraph 4. In the course and conduct of his business, and to induce the purchase of his said product, in said commerce, the respondent, by means of letters, circulars, leaflets, newspaper and magazine advertisements, and radio broadcasts, has circulated and disseminated among prospective purchasers many statements concerning said product. These statements contain many false and misleading representations and implications as to the efficacy of said product and the nature of the business operated by the respondent. Among and typical of the statements so used by the respondent are the following:

- Relieves nasal catarrh and simple bronchial asthma.
- The medicine will not irritate.
- It is healing.
- It is harmless.
- It will aid in stopping the poisons which are in the nose from being carried into the rest of the body * * * and dropping of mucus into the stomach which causes a loss of appetite, skin eruptions, acid stomach, and a general run-down feeling will be relieved.
- It will flush out many impurities in your nasal passages.

Technical Laboratories.

By the means and in the manner aforesaid, the respondent represents and implies that said product is a competent treatment and effective remedy for nasal catarrh and bronchial asthma; that it is a nonirritating, harmless and healing preparation; that it is of material benefit in stopping the poisons which may be in the nose and which may be carried to other parts of the body; that it is of material benefit in stopping and relieving the dropping of mucus from the nose into the stomach; that it will flush out impurities in the nasal passages; and that its use will prevent the loss of appetite, skin eruptions, acid stomach and a general run-down feeling. Through the use of the word "Laboratories" in his trade name and in his advertising matter, the respondent represents and implies that he maintains a scientifically equipped laboratory wherein tests relating to said product have been and are conducted by trained and qualified scientists.

PAR. 5. The representations and implications so made and used by the respondent, as hereinabove alleged, with respect to said product are grossly exaggerated, false, misleading, and deceptive. In truth and in fact, said product is not a competent treatment and effective remedy for nasal catarrh and bronchial asthma, and it is not a nonirritating, harmless and healing preparation. The use of said product is not of material benefit in stopping the poisons which may be in the nose and which may be carried to other parts of the body and in stopping and relieving the dropping of mucus from the nose into the stomach. Said product will not flush out impurities in the nasal passages and the use thereof will not prevent the loss of appetite, skin eruptions, acid stomach and a general run-down feeling. The respondent does not own, operate or control a scientifically equipped laboratory wherein tests pertaining to said preparation have been and are conducted by trained and qualified scientists.

PAR. 6. Among the competitors of respondent described in paragraph 3 hereof are many who do not in any manner misrepresent the qualities and properties of their products and who do not use the methods, acts and practices used by the respondent, as herein alleged, in connection with the sale and distribution of their said products in said commerce.

PAR. 7. The acts and practices of the respondent in making and using said representations and implications in connection with the sale and distribution of said product in said commerce and to induce the purchase thereof, as hereinabove alleged, have had, and now have, the tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the mistaken and erroneous belief that all of said representations and implications are true and have caused many members of the purchasing public, because of said mistaken and erroneous beliefs, to purchase a substantial volume of respondent's said product with the result that trade in said commerce has been diverted unfairly to the respondent from his competitors to their injury and to the injury of the public.

PAR. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on May 21, 1938, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondent, H. F. Allen, an individual, trading as Technical Laboratories and as Technical Products Co., charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. The respondent, H. F. Allen, filed no answer to the complaint. Thereafter, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by Reuben J. Martin, attorney for the Commission, before Charles P. Vicini, an examiner of the Commission, theretofore duly designated by it, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by Howard F. Allen, the respondent, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the testimony and other evidence, and brief in support of the complaint, respondent not having requested oral argument; and the Commission having duly considered the same, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, H. F. Allen, is an individual, trading as Technical Laboratories, and as Technical Products Co., with his principal place of business located at 24 Bridge Road, Berkeley, Calif. Respondent is now, and has been for more than 1 year last past, engaged in the sale of a product known as "Aratone" and as "Sinozone," for use by the consuming public who are afflicted with nasal catarrh, simple bronchial asthma and hay fever. Respondent distributes his product through the medium of wholesale and retail druggists.
Par. 2. The respondent causes said product, "Aratone" or "Sinozone" when sold, to be transported from his place of business in Berkeley, Calif., to the purchasers thereof located in the States of Oregon and Washington and other States of the United States.

Par. 3. Respondent is now, and for more than 1 year last past, has been engaged in substantial competition with other individuals, partnerships, firms, and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of other products of similar usage in commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

Par. 4. Respondent, in soliciting the sale of and in selling his said products, and for the purpose of creating a demand therefor, now causes, and for more than 1 year last past has caused, advertisements to be issued, published, and circulated to and among the consuming public of the United States in various forms of printed matter, by radio broadcasts, and in other ways.

Par. 5. Respondent makes, and has made, to the general consuming public, statements with reference to the alleged value and merit of said products, some of which statements so made and circulated by the respondent are as follows:

The Sinozone Laboratories want you to know, when the statement is made that Sinozone is having an outstanding success in relieving nasal catarrh, hay fever, bronchial asthma and head colds, they are making a statement backed by ample and sufficient proof in their files. Are you troubled with nasal congestion, or stuffed up, and feeling out of sorts? Remember, the Laboratories continually make the claim that ordinarily after you have used Sinozone two or three times you will experience a relief from this bothersome, clogged up condition. This statement is supported by unquestionable proof. And keep in mind the fact that Sinozone is harmless. If you are suffering with hay fever, nasal catarrh, a cold or attacks of bronchial asthma, buy a container of Sinozone from your druggist and note the quick relief it brings. Sinozone is spelled S I N O Z O N E and is sold by all Owl Drug Stores and independent druggists.

When the nasal passages are clogged up due to hay fever, nasal catarrh, or a simple attack of bronchial asthma, you will do anything to secure relief. Nasal congestion is certainly a troublesome and annoying ailment. You can use Aratone to relieve and clear this congestion, knowing it possesses four important qualities:

1. Aratone is dependable. Thousands use it and recommend it.
2. Aratone is safe. It does not contain narcotics.
3. Aratone is effective. It fights nasal catarrh, hay fever, and colds with eleven carefully selected ingredients.
4. Aratone acts promptly. The liquid is designed to relieve the congestion the moment you begin to use it, and remember, it is harmless. Don't suffer. All druggists sell Aratone, spelled A R A T O N E.

Are your nasal passages congested due to hay fever, nasal catarrh, or bronchial asthma? Do you feel you would give most anything for relief from this stuffed up, bothersome condition? The Technical Laboratories tell you continually of the remarkable work Aratone is doing in clearing these stubborn
Findings

Do you think the Laboratories would broadcast the fact that Aratone has produced this clearing action if this were not the case? Based on results secured by those who have purchased Aratone for hay fever, nasal catarrh, or colds, the Laboratory does not hesitate to say that after the first two or three applications you will ordinarily note a quick relief from these congested conditions. The product contains no narcotics and is harmless. If your druggist does not sell Aratone, send $1.00 to this station, KNX, Hollywood, Don't let hay fever, nasal catarrh, or simple bronchial asthma get you down. Use Aratone, spelled ARATONE. You can get Aratone at any Sontag Drug Store. * * * Above all things, you do not have to wait a day or an hour or two minutes to feel Aratone getting to work. Within one minute after it has entered your nasal passages you will feel it beginning to clear and open up the breathing organs. It does not do this harshly, but in a soothing, cleansing way. The medicine will not irritate. Positively not. It is harmless. Where you have a bad cold, Nasal Catarrh, Simple Bronchial Asthma, or Nasal Congestion, it will tend to start a flow of mucus that will relieve you almost immediately * * *.

What "Aratone" Does

It will aid in stopping the poisons which are in the nose from being carried into the rest of the body. That dripping and dropping of mucous into the stomach which causes a loss of appetite, skin eruptions, acid stomach, and a general rundown feeling, will be relieved * * * . It will flush out many impurities in your nasal passages. Those morning headaches will disappear, sneezing will stop, you will have a good night's sleep and above all you will get a breath of real fresh air. And that will aid Nature to do its work, for you will have strength to throw off attacks of these nasal troubles. Aratone gets into those inflamed and swollen nasal passages and fights the congestion the moment it enters the nose.

Par. 6. "Aratone" and "Sinozone" are exactly the same product made according to the following formula:

Alkaline solution 1⅔ gallons. Chlorabutonal solution strength .8, 1⅔ gallons. 4 ounces Lilly's ephedrine sulphate making a 1% ephedrine solution.

Ingredients of alkaline solution:

- Alcohol 6%
- Thymol ⅔ grain
- Menthol ⅔ gr.
- Phenol ⅔ gr.
- Eucalyptol ¼ min.
- Methyl salicylate ⅓0 min.
- Benzoic acid ½ gr.
- Sodium borate 16 gr.
- Glycerine 40 min.
- Coloring
- Oil of peppermint to perfume.

Par. 7. Respondent neither owns nor controls any laboratory for investigation or research in connection with the preparation, sale and distribution of the products "Aratone" and "Sinozone."
Par. 8. The preparation “Aratone,” or “Sinozone,” has no curative or remedial effect on existing irritation but will increase existing irritation and cause independent irritation. It is harmful; is not healing; will not aid in stopping the poisons which are being carried into the rest of the body from the nasal passage; and it will not flush out impurities in the nasal passage. The preparation “Aratone,” or “Sinozone,” is not a competent treatment or a safe, effective remedy for nasal catarrh, hay fever, asthma or colds, and is no more than a palliative, affording temporary relief from some of the symptoms or manifestations of these conditions, and the repeated use thereof for the relief of these conditions might result in harm or serious injury to the patient.

Par. 9. Each and all of the false and misleading statements and representations made by respondent, as aforesaid by means of advertisements, radio broadcasts and in other ways in offering for sale and selling “Aratone” and “Sinozone” were and are calculated to and have had and now have the tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive, and do mislead and deceive, a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the belief that all of said representations are true.

Par. 10. Respondent, as a direct consequence of such mistaken and erroneous belief induced by said advertising and representations, causes the consuming public to purchase a substantial volume of said preparation known as “Aratone” and as “Sinozone,” with the result that trade has been unfairly diverted from other corporations, firms, partnerships, and individuals engaged in the sale of like and similar products intended to be used for like and similar purposes, who truthfully advertise their products. As a result thereof, substantial injury has been done and is being done by respondent to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as set forth in the foregoing findings as to the facts are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent’s competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, to which no answer was filed, testimony and other evidence taken before Charles P. Vicini, an examiner of the Commission, theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, and brief in support of the complaint filed herein, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That respondent, H. F. Allen, an individual, individually and trading as Technical Laboratories and Technical Products Co., or trading under any other name, his representatives, agents, and employees, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of "Aratone" or "Sinozone" in interstate commerce, or in the District of Columbia, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing that the preparation now designated as "Aratone" and "Sinozone" or any other preparation composed of the same or similar ingredients, and possessing similar properties under whatever name sold, is a competent and safe remedy, cure or treatment for nasal catarrh, hay fever, asthma, or colds; that said preparation is healing; that it will prevent or cure nasal irritation; that it will aid in preventing poisons being carried from the nasal passage into the rest of the body; that it will flush out impurities contained in the nasal passages; that its use is harmless, or that said preparation has any medicinal or therapeutic value in the treatment of catarrh, hay fever, asthma or colds other than as a palliative remedy to afford temporary relief.

2. Representing through the use of the word "Laboratory" or any other term of similar meaning or like import as a part of his trade name, or in any other manner, or through any other means or devices, that he conducts, operates or maintains a laboratory for the purpose of manufacturing, testing or experimenting with the preparation sold by him, until and unless he actually owns and operates or directly and absolutely controls a laboratory for said purposes.

It is further ordered, That the respondent, H. F. Allen, an individual, shall, within 10 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission an interim report in writing stating whether he intends to comply with this order, and if so, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he intends to comply; and that within 60 days after the service upon him of this order, said respondent shall file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.
IN THE MATTER OF

MASON, AU & MAGENHEIMER CONFECTIONERY MANUFACTURING COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3477. Complaint, July 8, 1938—Decision, May 31, 1939

Where a corporation engaged in manufacture and sale of candy assortments which were so packed and assembled as to involve use of a lottery scheme, gift enterprise, or game of chance, when sold and distributed to consumers thereof, and included two separate packages, which, sold together, constituted one complete assortment which could be sold and distributed to consuming public by means of a lottery scheme, gift enterprise, or a game of chance, and contained, in one of said packages, 150 pieces of penny candy of uniform size and shape, and in other of said packages, 24 larger pieces of candy to be given as prizes to purchasers of said penny pieces of uniform size and shape in first package containing pink instead of white centers;

Sold to dealers and jobbers for display and resale by retail dealer purchasers thereof in accordance with aforesaid sales plan such assortments, and thereby supplied to and placed in the hands of others means of conducting lotteries, gift enterprises, or games of chance in sale of its products in accordance with such sales plan, involving game of chance or sale of a chance to procure larger piece of candy; contrary to the established public policy of the United States Government and in competition with many who are unwilling to offer or sell candy so packed or assembled as above described or otherwise arranged or packed for sale to the purchasing public so as to involve a game of chance or sale of a chance to win by chance or any other methods contrary to public policy and refrain therefrom;

With capacity and tendency thus to induce wholesalers, jobbers, retailers, and public to purchase its said products in preference to candy offered and sold by its competitors and with results that many dealers in, and ultimate purchasers of, candy were attracted by such methods of packing and assembling said candy, and element of chance involved therein, and were thereby induced to purchase such candy so packed, assembled and sold by it in preference to that offered and sold by competitors who do not use such or equivalent method, and with tendency and capacity, because of said game of chance, unfairly to divert to it substantial trade from its competitors aforesaid who do not use such or equivalent method as unfair or unlawful, to lessen competition in said trade, and to deprive purchasing public of benefit of free competition:

Held, That such acts and practices, as above set forth, were all to the injury and prejudice of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. Miles J. Furnas, trial examiner.

Mr. D. C. Daniel for the Commission.
Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Mason, Au & Magenheimer Confectionery Manufacturing Co., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Mason, Au & Magenheimer Confectionery Manufacturing Co., is a corporation organized and doing business under the laws of the State of West Virginia with its principal office and place of business located at 22 Henry Street, in the city of Brooklyn, State of New York. Respondent is now and for some time last past has been engaged in the manufacture of candy and in the sale and distribution thereof to dealers and jobbers located at points in the various States of the United States and causes and has caused its said products when sold to be transported from its principal place of business in the State of New York to purchasers thereof in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia at their respective places of business; and there is now and has been for several years last past a course of trade in commerce by said respondent in such candy between and among the States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business, respondent is in competition with other corporations, and with partnerships and individuals engaged in the manufacture of candy and in the sale and distribution thereof in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of its business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and has sold to dealers and jobbers certain assortments of candy so packed and assembled as to involve the use of a lottery scheme, gift enterprise, or game of chance when sold and distributed to the consumers thereof.

The respondent has packed and assembled certain of its candies in two separate packages which when sold together constitute one complete assortment which has been and may be sold and distributed to the consuming public by means of a lottery scheme, gift enterprise, or game of chance. One of the said packages contains 150 pieces of candy of uniform size and shape, 126 of which have white centers and 24 of which have pink centers. The other package referred to above contains 24 pieces of candy which said pieces of candy are larger than the pieces of candy of uniform size and shape contained in the first package above described. The said 24 pieces of candy in the second package described are to be given as prizes to purchasers of said pieces of candy of uniform size and shape in the first package referred to in the following manner: The said pieces of candy of uniform size and shape retail at a price of 1¢ each but the purchasers who procure one of the said pieces of candy having pink centers are entitled to receive and are to be given free of charge one of the said larger pieces of candy heretofore referred to and contained in the second package. The color of the center of the said piece of candy of uniform size and shape is effectively concealed from the purchasers or prospective purchasers until a selection has been made and a particular piece of candy is broken open. The aforesaid purchasers of said candies of uniform size and shape who procure the candy having a pink center thus procure one of the said larger pieces of candy wholly by lot or chance.

PAR. 3. The dealers and jobbers to whom respondent sells its assortments resell the same to retail dealers and said retail dealers expose said assortments for sale and sell said candy to the purchasing public in accordance with the sales plan above described. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries, gift enterprises, or games of chance in the sale of its products in accordance with the said sales plan and said sales plan has the capacity and tendency of inducing wholesale dealers, jobbers, retail dealers, and the public to purchase respondent’s said products in preference to candy offered for sale and sold by its competitors.

PAR. 4. The sale of candy to the purchasing public in the manner above described involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure a larger piece of candy.

The use by respondent of said method and the sale of its candy through the use thereof and by the aid of said method is a practice of the sort which has long been contrary to the established public policy of the Government of the United States.

Many persons, firms, and corporations who make and sell candy in competition with the respondent are unwilling to offer for sale or sell candy so packed or assembled as above described or otherwise arranged and packed for sale to the purchasing public so as to involve a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or by any other method that is contrary to public policy and such competitors refrain therefrom.

PAR. 5. Many dealers and ultimate purchasers of candy are attracted by respondent’s said method of packing and assembling said candy and by the element of chance involved in the sale thereof in the manner above described and are thereby induced to purchase said candy so packed and assembled and sold by respondent in preference to candy offered for sale and sold by competitors of respondent who do not use the same or an equivalent method. The use of said method by respondent has the tendency and capacity, because of said game of chance, unfairly to divert to respondent trade and custom from its said competitors who do not use the same or an equivalent method because the same is unfair or unlawful; to lessen competition in said candy trade; and to deprive the purchasing public of the benefit of free competition.

PAR. 6. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on July 8, 1938, issued, and thereafter served, its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, Mason, Au & Magenheimer Confectionery Manufacturing Co., charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On May 9, 1939, the respondent filed its answer, in which answer it admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and the answer thereto, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPHS 1. Respondent, Mason, Au & Magenheimer Confectionery Manufacturing Co., is a corporation organized and doing business under the laws of the State of West Virginia with its principal office and place of business located at 22 Henry Street, in the city of Brooklyn, State of New York. Respondent is now and for some time last past has been engaged in the manufacture of candy and in the sale and distribution thereof to dealers and jobbers located at points in the various States of the United States and causes and has caused its said products when sold to be transported from its principal place of business in the State of New York to purchasers thereof in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia at their respective places of business; and there is now and has been for several years last past a course of trade in commerce by said respondent in such candy between and among the States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business, respondent is in competition with other corporations, and with partnerships and individuals engaged in the manufacture of candy and in the sale and distribution thereof in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of its business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and has sold to dealers and jobbers certain assortments of candy so packed and assembled as to involve the use of a lottery scheme, gift enterprise, or game of chance when sold and distributed to the consumers thereof.

The respondent has packed and assembled certain of its candies in two separate packages which when sold together constitute one complete assortment which has been and may be sold and distributed to the consuming public by means of a lottery scheme, gift enterprise, or game of chance. One of the said packages contains 150 pieces of candy of uniform size and shape, 126 of which have white centers and 24 of which have pink centers. The other package referred to above contains 24 pieces of candy which said pieces of candy are larger than the pieces of candy of uniform size and shape contained in the first package above described. The said 24 pieces of candy in the second package described are to be given as prizes to purchasers of said pieces of candy of uniform size and shape in the first package referred to in the following manner: The said pieces of candy of uniform size and shape retail at a price of 1¢ each but the purchasers who procure one of the said pieces of candy having pink centers are entitled to receive and are to be given free of charge one of the said larger pieces of candy heretofore referred to and contained in the second package. The color of the center of the said pieces of candy of uniform size and shape is effectively concealed from the purchasers or prospective purchasers until a selection has been made and a particular piece of candy is broken open. The aforesaid purchasers of said candies of uniform size and shape who procure the candy having a pink center thus procure one of the said larger pieces of candy wholly by lot or chance.

Par. 3. The dealers and jobbers to whom respondent sells its assortments resell the same to retail dealers and said retail dealers expose said assortments for sale and sell said candy to the purchasing public in accordance with the sales plan above described. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries, gift enterprises, or games of chance in the sale of its products in accordance with the said sales plan and said sales plan has the capacity and tendency of inducing wholesale dealers, jobbers, retail dealers, and the public to purchase respondent's said products in preference to candy offered for sale and sold by its competitors.
Conclusion

Par. 4. The sale of candy to the purchasing public in the manner above described involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure a larger piece of candy.

The use by respondent of said method and the sale of its candy through the use thereof and by the aid of said method is a practice of the sort which has long been contrary to the established public policy of the Government of the United States.

Many persons, firms, and corporations who make and sell candy in competition with the respondent are unwilling to offer for sale or sell candy so packed or assembled as above described or otherwise arranged and packed for sale to the purchasing public so as to involve a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or by any other method that is contrary to public policy and such competitors refrain therefrom.

Par. 5. Many dealers and ultimate purchasers of candy are attracted by respondent's said method of packing and assembling said candy and by the element of chance involved in the sale thereof in the manner above described and are thereby induced to purchase said candy so packed and assembled and sold by respondent in preference to candy offered for sale and sold by competitors of respondent who do not use the same or an equivalent method. The use of said method by respondent has the tendency and capacity, because of said game of chance, unfairly to divert to respondent substantial trade and custom from its said competitors who do not use the same or an equivalent method because the same is unfair or unlawful; to lessen competition in said candy trade; and to deprive the purchasing public of the benefit of free competition.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as hereinbefore found are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.
ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and states that it waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Mason, Au & Magenheimer Confectionery Manufacturing Co., its officers, representatives, agents, employees, directly, or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of candy or any other merchandise in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Selling and distributing candy so packed and assembled that sales of such candy to the general public are to be made or may be made by means of a lottery, gaming device, or gift enterprise.

2. Supplying to or placing in the hands of dealers packages or assortments of candy which are to be used, or may be used, to conduct a lottery, gaming device, or gift enterprise in the sale or distribution of candy, or any other merchandise, to the public.

3. Supplying to, or placing in the hands of dealers, assortments of candy or other merchandise together with a lottery device, which lottery device is to be used, or may be used, in selling or distributing such candy or other merchandise to the public.

4. Supplying to or placing in the hands of dealers a lottery device either with assortments of candy or other merchandise, or separately, which lottery device is to be used, or may be used, in selling or distributing such candy or other merchandise to the public.

5. Packing or assembling in the same package, or packages, of candy or other merchandise for sale to the public at retail, pieces of candy of uniform size and shape having centers of a different color, together with larger pieces of candy, or other articles of merchandise, which said larger pieces of candy, or other articles of merchandise, are to be given as prizes to purchasers procuring a piece of candy having a center of a particular color.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.
IN THE MATTER OF

PUBLIX PRINTING CORPORATION

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Where a corporation engaged in manufacture, sale, and distribution of sales promotion cards, which were so designed and arranged as to involve use of a lottery scheme or gift enterprise when used by dealers in promoting and increasing sales of their merchandise to the consuming public and which included several groups involving in all cases lottery scheme or gift enterprise and varying in detail only, one of which included cards arranged for punching out and recording sales to a total amount of $5.20 and had enclosed or concealed within a secret panel on card legend entitling holder of card, when opened, to amounts in trade ranging from 20 cents to $5 and others of which provided for recording sales totaling $10 worth of merchandise by numbers arranged around the border of the card and for the winning of amounts from 20 cents up to $10 by holder of card and in accordance with particular legend concealed under secret panel—

Sold to retail merchant customers assortments of such sales promotion cards, together with various display posters and advertisements for merchant's use in distributing and making use of cards in question through distribution, as suggested, to customers of merchant making purchases and the punching out on the margin of the cards of the amount of such purchases, and the awarding of amounts to customer in accordance with legend revealed within secret panel of particular card, upon the completion thereon of the total amount of purchases, and provided with other suggested methods involving in all cases lottery, game of chance or gift enterprise, its various merchant customers, by whom said sales promotion cards were distributed to customers and prospective customers and awards shown on secret panels thereon honored; contrary to an established public policy of the United States Government and in violation of criminal law and in competition with various manufacturers and distributors of such promotion cards, premium cards, price concession cards, and coupon trading stamps, which, when used by dealers do not involve lottery scheme, game of chance or gift enterprise and in competition with many who sell and distribute various cards or devices for promoting or increasing sales of dealers and who are unwilling to offer or sell cards or devices so designed and arranged as above set forth, or otherwise so designed and arranged as to involve a game of chance, lottery scheme, or gift enterprise and refrain therefrom;

With result that consuming public was induced to deal with or purchase merchandise from dealers using its devices because of lottery scheme, game of chance, or gift enterprise connected therewith, in preference to purchasing merchandise from dealers using devices of its competitors, and dealers were thereby induced to buy its said cards in preference to devices of competitors and trade was unfairly diverted to it from its competitors aforesaid:

Complaint

Held, That such acts and practices were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

Before Mr. Miles J. Furnas, trial examiner.
Mr. D. C. Daniel for the Commission.
Mr. Samuel H. Solomon, of Chicago, Ill., for respondent.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Publix Printing Corporation, a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the interest of the public, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Publix Printing Corporation, is a corporation organized and doing business under the laws of the State of Illinois with its principal office and place of business located at 633 South Plymouth Court, Chicago, Ill. Respondent is now, and for some time last past has been, engaged in the manufacture of sales promotion cards and in the sale and distribution thereof to dealers located at points in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent causes, and has caused, its said sales cards, when sold, to be transported from its principal place of business in the city of Chicago, Ill., to purchasers thereof located in the various States of the United States, other than the State of Illinois, and in the District of Columbia, at their respective points of location. There is now, and has been for some time last past, a course of trade by said respondent in such sales promotion cards in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business, respondent is in competition with other corporations and with partnerships and individuals engaged in the manufacture of sales promotion cards, trade cards, discount cards, premium cards, coupons, and trading stamps and in the sale and distribution thereof in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 2. In the course and conduct of its business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells, and has sold, cards so designed and arranged as to involve the use of a lottery scheme or gift enterprise when used by dealers in promoting and increasing sales of their merchandise to the consuming public. The respondent manufactures and distributes several groups of sales promotion cards, but they all involve a lottery scheme or gift enterprise and vary only in detail. The sale promotion cards in one such group are herein described for the purpose of showing arrangement, design and principle involved. On the front of such card is the following:

The secret panel referred to on the said card is partially perforated to indicate where it may be opened, but until the said panel is opened, the legend thereunder is effectively concealed from the holder of said card. The said legends under the secret panel vary in amount from 20 cents to $5. The legend under the secret panel is effectively concealed until the panel has been opened, and the amount which the holder of said card will receive in trade is thus determined wholly by lot or chance. On the reverse or back of the said sales promotion card is the following language:

In appreciation of your patronage, we have devised a new plan whereby we share our profits with you. When this card is fully punched, present same to us intact. We will then open the “Covered Wagon” and you will receive the award printed thereon Absolutely Free. Should You Open the “Covered Wagon” the Card Becomes Void. WA.RDS UP TO $5.00—NO BLANKS

(Merchant's advertisement)

Other cards manufactured and distributed by the respondent provide for recording the sales of $10 worth of merchandise by the numbers arranged around the border of the card and provide for the winning of amounts from 20 cents up to $10 by the legends under the secret panel.

Respondent furnishes the retail merchants with various display posters and advertisements to be used by said retail merchants in distributing and using said cards.

Par. 3. The retail merchants to whom respondent sells assortments of said sales promotion cards, distribute the same to their customers and prospective customers and honor the awards as shown under the secret panel of said cards. One method advocated or suggested by respondent and used by a substantial number of retail merchants is as follows: the cards are distributed without cost to customers and prospective customers of said retail merchants and when purchases are made, punches corresponding to the amount of such purchases are made around the margin of said card and when all the numbers around the margin of said card are punched, the secret panel is opened and the customer is entitled to merchandise of the said merchant in the amount shown by the legend under the said secret panel, without additional charge. The respondent in its literature and by its representatives suggests various methods for the use of said cards by its dealers, all of which methods involve a lottery, game of chance, or gift enterprise.

Par. 4. There are in competition with respondent various manufacturers and distributors of sales promotion cards, premium cards, price concession cards, coupons and trading stamps, which, when used by dealers, do not involve a lottery scheme, game of chance, or gift enterprise. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell and distribute various cards or devices for promoting or increasing the sales of dealers are unwilling to offer for sale or sell cards or devices so designed and arranged as above alleged, or otherwise designed and arranged, as to involve a game of chance, lottery scheme, or gift enterprise, and such competitors refrain therefrom.

Par. 5. The use by respondent of said methods in designing and arranging its said cards and distributing the same for redistribution to the public is a practice of the sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and is in violation of criminal laws. The consuming public is induced to deal with or purchase merchandise from dealers using respondent's cards in preference to purchasing merchandise from dealers using the devices of respondent's competitors, because of the lottery scheme, game of chance, or gift enterprise connected with respondent's said cards. By reason thereof, dealers are induced to purchase respondent's said cards in preference to devices of respondent's competitors. The sale and distribution of the aforesaid sales cards has the tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade to respondent from its said competitors, and as a result thereof substantial injury is being and has been done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 6. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on March 21, 1939 issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, Publix Printing Corporation, a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On May 3, 1939 the respondent filed its answer in which answer it admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and the answer thereto; and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Publix Printing Corporation, is a corporation organized and doing business under the laws of the State of Illinois with its principal office and place of business located at 633 South Plymouth Court, Chicago, Ill. Respondent is now, and for some time last past has been, engaged in the manufacture of sales promotion cards and in the sale and distribution thereof to dealers located at points in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent causes, and has caused, its said sales cards, when sold, to be transported from its principal place of business in the city of Chicago, Ill., to purchasers thereof located in the various States of the United States, other than the State of Illinois, and in the District of Columbia, at their respective points of location. There is now, and has been for some time last past, a course of trade by said respondent in such sales promotion cards in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business, respondent is in competition with other corporations and with partnerships and individuals engaged in the manufacture of sales promotion cards, trade cards, discount cards, premium cards, coupons, and trading stamps and in the sale and distribution thereof in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of its business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells, and has sold, cards so designed and arranged as to involve the use of a lottery scheme or gift enterprise when used by dealers in promoting and increasing sales of their merchandise to the consuming public. The respondent manufactures and distributes several groups of sales promotion cards, but they all involve a lottery scheme or gift enterprise and vary only in detail. The sale promotion cards in one such group are herein described for the purpose of showing arrangement, design and principle involved. On the front of such card is the following:

The secret panel referred to on the said card is partially perforated to indicate where it may be opened, but until the said panel is opened, the legend thereunder is effectively concealed from the holder of said card. The said legends under the secret panel vary in amount from 20 cents to $5. The legend under the secret panel is effectively concealed until the panel has been opened, and the amount which the holder of said card will receive in trade is thus determined wholly by lot or chance. On the reverse of back of the said sales promotion card is the following language:

AWARDS UP TO $5.00—NO BLANKS

(Merchant’s Advertisement)

Other cards manufactured and distributed by the respondent provide for recording the sales of $10 worth of merchandise by the numbers arranged around the border of the card and provide for the winning of amounts from 20 cents up to $10 by the legends under the secret panel.

Respondent furnishes the retail merchants with various display posters and advertisements to be used by said retail merchants in distributing and using said cards.

PAR. 3. The retail merchants to whom respondent sells assortments of said sales promotion cards, distribute the same to their customers and prospective customers and honor the awards as shown under the secret panel of said cards. One method advocated or suggested by respondent and used by a substantial number of retail merchants is as follows: The cards are distributed without cost to customers and prospective customers of said retail merchants and when purchases are made, punches corresponding to the amount of such purchases are made around the margin of said card and when all the numbers around the margin of said card are punched, the secret panel is opened and the customer is entitled to merchandise of the said merchant in the amount shown by the legend under the said secret panel, without additional charge. The respondent in its literature and by its representatives suggests various methods for the use of said cards by its dealers, all of which methods involve a lottery, game of chance, or gift enterprise.
Par. 4. There are in competition with the respondent various manufacturers and distributors of sales promotion cards, premium cards, price concession cards, coupons, and trading stamps, which, when used by dealers, do not involve a lottery scheme, game of chance, or gift enterprise. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell and distribute various cards or devices for promoting or increasing the sales of dealers are unwilling to offer for sale or sell cards or devices so designed and arranged as above found, or otherwise designed and arranged, as to involve a game of chance, lottery scheme, or gift enterprise, and such competitors refrain therefrom.

Par. 5. The use by respondent of said methods in designing and arranging its said cards and distributing the same for redistribution to the public is a practice of the sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and is in violation of criminal laws. The consuming public is induced to deal with or purchase merchandise from dealers using respondent's cards in preference to purchasing merchandise from dealers using the devices of respondent's competitors, because of the lottery scheme, game of chance, or gift enterprise connected with respondent's said cards. By reason thereof, dealers are induced to purchase respondent's said cards in preference to devices of respondent's competitors. The sale and distribution of the aforesaid sales cards has the tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade to respondent from its said competitors.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and states that it waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to the said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent is violating the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.
It is ordered, That the respondent, Publix Printing Corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of sales promotion schemes or any other merchandise in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Selling or distributing sales promotion cards or any other device so made that their use by the retail dealers constitute, or may constitute, the operation of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

2. Supplying to, or placing in the hands of, retail dealers or others sales promotion cards or sales booster plans or schemes or any other devices which are used or which may be used, without alteration or rearrangement thereof, to conduct a lottery, game of chance, or gift enterprise when distributed to the consuming public.

3. Furnishing or supplying to dealers display posters or circulars, or other advertising literature, bearing legends or statements informing the public as to the manner in which said sales promotion cards or other lottery devices are to be or may be distributed and used.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

Mr. Reuben J. Martin for the Commission.

Charge: Subsidizing salesmen of dealers and employees of competitors, in giving and offering to give to employees of competitors and employees of dealers handling and selling competitive products, as an inducement to influence them to push or favor sale of its products over those of its competitors, cash bonuses and prizes; in connection with manufacture and sale of vacuum sweepers in interstate commerce.

Case closed without prejudice by following order:

This matter coming on to be heard by the Commission upon the record, and the Commission having duly considered the same, and being now fully advised in the premises;

It is ordered, That the case growing out of the complaint herein be, and the same hereby is, closed without prejudice to the right of the Commission, should the facts so warrant, to reopen the same and resume prosecution thereof in accordance with its regular procedure.

Note.—Order to cease and desist, following findings in the matter as of same date, required respondent, its officers, etc., to "cease and desist from directly or indirectly:

"Giving or offering to give cash bonuses or prizes to employees or salesmen of dealers who handle and sell vacuum sweepers of the respondent and of one or more of the respondent's competitors, when such employees or salesmen have been instrumental in making a sale of vacuum sweepers manufactured by the respondent."

Said order was thereafter vacated by following order:

This matter came on for consideration by the Commission on the motion on behalf of the Commission that the order to cease and desist issued herein May 27, 1919, be modified by adding thereto the following: "without the full knowledge and consent of the employers of such employees or salesmen" and on the application of counsel for the respondent filed April 26, 1928, to vacate and set aside said order to cease and desist on the ground that said order is contrary to law.

It appeared (A) that, after the complaint herein was issued and an answer filed by the respondent, a stipulation between the Commission and the respondent was made and filed, agreeing and consenting to certain facts as therein set forth and to the issuing of an order to cease and desist as prayed for in the complaint; (B) that thereafter the Circuit Court of Appeals in the cause entitled Federal Trade Commission v. Kinney-Rome Co. [275 Fed. 665] held that the giving of premiums by a manufacturer to salesmen of dealers to further sales of its product in preference to the products of its competitors did not constitute an unfair method of competition when premiums were so given with the knowledge and consent of said dealers; (C) that there was and is in the possession of the Commission no evidence tending to show that this respondent ever gave premiums or rewards to salesmen of dealers without the latter's knowledge and consent.

Wherefore, the Federal Trade Commission after consideration holds that the order to cease and desist heretofore entered herein, pursuant to the agreement and stipulation of the respondent, is not contrary to law nor void, but that in order to equalize competitive conditions between the respondent and its competitors, this Commission should in the exercise of its discretion cause said order to be vacated.

Now, therefore, The Federal Trade Commission orders that the said order to cease and desist be and the same is hereby vacated.

Appearances in the earlier proceedings were:
Mr. Charles D. Moore for the Commission.
Mr. Clarence G. Herbruck and Black, McCuskey, Ruff & Souers, of Canton, Ohio, for respondent.

ECONOMIC FILMS, INC., ET AL. Complaint, February 19, 1935.
Order of dismissal, April 14, 1939. (Docket 2301.)
Charge: Claiming or implying, falsely and misleadingly, indorsement or sponsorship of President; in connection with sale, lease and distribution of film captioned “Forward America,” which, as alleged, purports to be dedicated to American housewife, contrasts, through pictorial and oral representation, system of retail distribution and sale through independent stores, with that through chain stores and mail-order organizations, and includes, in representations therein contained, repeated use of likeness of President, and in oral comment repeated reference to President, with alleged direct tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive housewives and others attending as hereinbefore indicated, facts being President never directly authorized use of his name or likeness in said picture or in connection therewith.

Dismissed by following order:
This matter coming before the Commission, and the Commission being fully advised in the premises by memorandum of the Chief Counsel and otherwise, and it appearing that there is at this time no substantial public interest supporting the prosecution of this proceeding,

It is hereby ordered, That the above-entitled proceeding be, and the same hereby is, dismissed.

Charge: Entering into agreements to combine, consolidate, and unite numerous and extensive properties, businesses, and interests into a common enterprise, involving acquisition of assets, businesses, and capital stocks, and including physical properties and assets; with resulting substantial lessening, if not complete elimination of potential and actual competition theretofore existing, contrary to public policy expressed in section 7 of Clayton Act and in violation of section 5 of Federal Trade Commission Act, and with dangerous tendency unduly to hinder competition in iron and steel industry in northeastern section of United States, as in complaint specified, through union of respondents, as alleged in complaint, and in unreastonable restriction of competition amounting to restraint of trade;
ORDERS OF DISMISSAL, ETC.

contrary to public policy expressed in sections 1 and 3 of Sherman Antitrust Act, and in violation, as aforesaid, of section 5, through control and dominant influence brought about through challenged combination.

Case closed by following order:
This proceeding having been on the suspense calendar of the Commission and being now removed from such suspense calendar for consideration, and the Commission having duly considered the same and being fully advised in the premises;

Now, therefore, it is hereby ordered, That the case growing out

STIPULATIONS

DIGEST OF GENERAL STIPULATIONS OF THE FACTS AND AGREEMENTS TO CEASE AND DESIST

2351. Radios—Prices.—Midwest Radio Corp., engaged in the manufacture of radio receiving sets and in the sale and distribution thereof in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Midwest Radio Corp., in soliciting the sale of and selling its products in interstate commerce, agreed to cease and desist from illustrating or describing a radio set or any other merchandise and quoting therewith a display price in the advertising copy which is not the actual price of the set or other merchandise as illustrated or described; from illustrating a high-priced set and quoting a price which applies to a less expensive set, or otherwise making representations in advertising copy which do not conform accurately to the representations and illustrations contained in its sales catalog. From quoting a price which does not cover the complete set as illustrated, unless in juxtaposition therewith and in equally conspicuous type the explanation be made that the price quoted applies only to specified parts or items and no more. (Jan. 3, 1939.)

2352. Automobile Parts and Accessories—Source or Origin, Business Status and Prices.—Dallas E. Winslow, Inc., a corporation, trading under the name Continental-DeVaux Parts and Service Division and

1 For false and misleading advertising stipulations effected through the Commission’s radio and periodical division, see p. 1825 et seq.

The digests published herewith cover those accepted by the Commission during the period covered by this volume, namely, January 1, 1939, to May 31, 1939, inclusive. Digests of all previous stipulations of this character accepted by the Commission—that is, numbers 1 to 2350, inclusive—may be found in vols. 10 to 27 of the Commission’s decisions.

In the interest of brevity there is omitted from the published digests of the published stipulations agreements under which the stipulating respondent or respondents, as the case may be, broadly agree that should such stipulating respondent or respondents ever resume or indulge in any of the practices, methods, or acts in question the stipulation may be used in evidence against such respondent or respondents in the trial of the complaint which the Commission may issue, or that in event of such resumption or indulgence, or of issuance by Commission of complaint and institution of formal proceedings against respondent, as in the stipulation provided, such stipulation and agreement, if relevant, may be received in such proceedings as evidence of the prior use by the respondent or respondents of the methods, acts, or practices herein referred to.

also as Continental Automobile Co., engaged in the sale and distribution of automobile parts and accessories in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

There was formerly on the market an automobile named "DeVaux," put out by the DeVaux Automobile Co. In 1932 a deal was made whereby the manufacture of the DeVaux automobile was assumed by the Continental Motors Corp. of Detroit, Mich., which thereupon organized the Continental Automobile Co. for the subsequent manufacture of DeVaux cars. The name "DeVaux" was dropped, and instead there was substituted the name "Continental," under which name the car was thereafter sold. The new Continental and the old DeVaux were much alike, so that parts were interchangeable. In 1934 the manufacture of the Continental automobile was discontinued and the Continental Automobile Co. was dissolved, whereupon the parent company, Continental Motors Corp., sold to Winslow-Baker-Meyerling Corp. of Detroit, predecessor of the present Dallas E. Winslow, Inc., all production and service parts, fixtures, and equipment owned by the Service Department of the Continental Automobile Co. The purchaser also acquired the right to use the name "Continental Automobile Company" for a period of 2 years and until revocation by Continental Motors Corp. At the end of the 2-year period, in 1936, the Continental Motors Corp. rescinded the right to the use of the name "Continental Automobile Company" by Dallas E. Winslow, Inc.

Dallas E. Winslow, Inc., in advertising and promoting its sale of automobile parts in interstate commerce, by means of catalogs, trade literature, spoken statements, or otherwise, agreed to cease and desist from—

The use of the trade name "Continental-DeVaux Parts and Service Division," or the trade name "Continental Automobile Company," or the name "Continental," or the name "DeVaux," or the word "Division" in connection with any trade name; or otherwise designating itself in a manner so as to import or imply that it is in any way connected with the makers of Continental or DeVaux automobiles, or that its business is conducted by them as a division of their establishment, when such are not the facts.

Representing, either inferentially or by direct statement, that it conducts a manufacturing business; or by the use of statements such as "Genuine factory parts," "Factory service facilities," etc., that the automobile parts sold by it are made in a factory owned, operated or controlled by it, when such are not the facts.
Representing pictorially or otherwise that its premises and equipment are more extensive than they are in fact, or that it occupies the whole of the premises depicted, when such is not the fact.

Representing either directly or inferentially that all Continental or DeVaux automobile parts sold by it are made by the Continental Automobile Co. or by the Continental Motors Corp., when such is not the fact.

Representing, by the use of such statements as "Low factory prices," "Order your parts direct from the factory," or in any other way, that the customer is dealing with the manufacturer and not with a jobber, or that the prices quoted are the actual manufacturers' prices, when such are not the facts. (Jan. 3, 1939.)

2353. Faucet Type Water Heater—Nature, Qualities and Safety.—Louis Newland, Louis B. London, and Marice Grober, copartners trading as Hot Flash Co., engaged in the business of manufacturing a so-called faucet type water heater and in the sale thereof under the trade name "Hot Flash" in interstate commerce, in competition with other partnerships, individuals, firms, and corporations likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Louis Newland, Louis B. London, and Marice Grober agreed and each of them agreed, in soliciting the sale of and selling said Hot Flash devices in interstate commerce, to cease and desist from the use in advertisements and advertising matter or in any other way of statements or representations which directly assert or import or imply that the said devices can be operated as cheaply as most household electrical devices, or that the said devices will supply or are capable of supplying hot water of any stated gallonage and of any specified temperature in excess of what is actually the fact. The said copartners also agreed to cease and desist from stating or representing that the said Hot Flash devices, employing the recommended use of a 20-ampere, 125-volt fuse plug in connection with the kind of circuit found in the ordinary home, is either safe, sane, or sound, when such is not the fact. (Jan. 3, 1939.)

2354. Correspondence and Shop—Training Courses—Opportunities, Earnings, Employment, Business Status, Endorsements and Testimonials.—Ralph Hemphill, an individual residing at Glendale, Calif., is the president of and owns the controlling interest in Hemphill Schools, Inc., a California corporation; Hemphill Schools, Inc., a Washington corporation; Hemphill Schools, Inc., an Illinois corporation; Hemphill Schools, Inc., a New York corporation; Hemphill Schools, Inc., a Tennessee corporation; Hemphill Schools, Inc., a Massachusetts corporation; each of the aforesaid corporations have been engaged in conducting a finishing school of residential instruction in Diesel mechanics and operation, as a complement to preliminary home-study correspondence courses of instruction in said subjects conducted by the California corporation, Hemphill Schools, Inc. The said Hemphill Schools, Inc. (of California) now sells and for some time past has sold said correspondence courses of instruction in interstate commerce. The business thus cooperatively engaged in by the aforesaid corporations has been at all times herein referred to in competition with that of other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged. Said corporations have entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Hemphill Schools, Inc., a California corporation; Hemphill Schools, Inc., a Washington corporation; Hemphill Schools, Inc., a Michigan corporation; Hemphill Schools, Inc., an Illinois corporation; Hemphill Schools, Inc., a New York corporation; Hemphill Schools, Inc., a Tennessee corporation; Hemphill Schools, Inc., a Massachusetts Corporation; and Ralph Hemphill, agreed, and each agreed, in soliciting the sale of and selling their correspondence and combination correspondence and shop-training courses in interstate commerce, to cease and desist—

From overstating and misrepresenting the demands and opportunities for employment in the Diesel field, and from making any representations the effect of which is to convey the belief that the opportunities for those who take the instruction courses sold by Hemphill Schools, Inc., exceed the facts.

From using in their advertising matter, or in talks by their solicitors, overstatements or misrepresentations as to the actual earning power or probable salaries, advancement, promotions, or future security of their graduates and students.

From the use of statements or representations importing or implying that they are in position to offer employment to their graduates, or will procure employment for all their graduates, when such are not the facts.

From designating themselves as "Engineering Schools" or their graduates as "Engineers," so long as they do not maintain the full curriculum of approved engineering schools and their graduates have not the status and standing of graduate engineers.

From advertising their business or courses of study under the classification of "Help Wanted" or "Male Help Wanted," so as to import or imply that said corporations have positions open and available, when in fact the purpose of said advertising is but to enroll students for a course of instruction.

From representing that the combination course offered is full or complete, or will equip one generally for any position in the Diesel field when such is not the fact; and from concealing that greater "horsepower rating" at additional cost to the student, will be essential before he is so qualified.

From representing, either directly or indirectly, that any person, though lacking in proper education, experience, or aptitude, can become a competent and expert Diesel man by taking their courses of instruction.

From representing that the Diesel industry is giving "innumerable" men a new start, or is "sweeping the country," or "revolutionizing industry," or "fast replacing all other forms of power"; or is "man's greatest power producer," or that "nation-wide Dieselization is here."

From representing that for students of their study courses there are "unlimited" or "tremendous" opportunities, "brilliant future," "rich, sure, and permanent rewards in all branches"; opportunities to triple one's income, double his earning power, or increase his monthly wage by an amount equalling the total cost of the course; that such opportunities for their students are "increasing year by year" or are "greater than ever before"; or that qualified Diesel men are "in demand," or that "the Diesel industry needs your services."

From representing that the Hemphill Schools are "recognized as the Official Practical Diesel Engineering Schools of America"; are "connected" with the most important Diesel users; the "only" school indorsed by leaders of the industry; have more successful graduates than "all" other Diesel schools; or that manufacturers, distributors and owners "when in need of trained men write to Hemphill Diesel Schools."

From asserting that a testimonial letter from one Diesel manufacturer is indicative of what Diesel manufacturers "as a whole" think of the Hemphill training and the ability of its graduates.

From representing that the city of Boston extended an "invitation" to establish a Hemphill Diesel School there. (Jan. 4, 1939.)

2355. Correspondence Courses—Nature, Etc.—Vocational Service, Inc., a corporation, engaged in the business of enrolling students and selling in interstate commerce, home-study courses of instruction in Diesel engines, air conditioning, and aircraft construction, exclusively for Hemphill Schools, Inc., Thermo Air Conditioning Service, Inc., and Aero Industries Technical Institute, Inc., respectively, the controlling stock of all four corporations named being owned by Ralph Hemphill; causing said printed and mimeographed courses of instruction to be shipped in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.
Vocational Service, Inc., in soliciting and promoting the sale of and selling instruction courses in interstate commerce, agreed to cease and desist from:

Representing that Vocational Service, Inc. was established for the specific purpose of rendering a two-fold service; or is dedicated to an impartial and disinterested helpful guidance service to the student in selecting the right training; or that it makes no difference what line the student may consider; or from using any other form of presentation the effect of which is to convey the belief that its object is to serve the student primarily, when such is not the fact.

Stating or otherwise representing that Vocational Service, Inc., was founded by outstanding men in the industrial educational field, and put into action to fill a need for vocational guidance for young men and young women everywhere to find the proper kind of work best suited to them, and help them to a better understanding of such work.

Promising, either directly or inferentially, to recommend qualified vocational schools in the broad field of arts and crafts suitable to whatever line would be appropriate to the inquirer; or to “find the right school for the right student,” whatever his inclination or aptitude; when in fact no schools whatsoever are recommended but the three mechanical schools whose courses it sells.

Representing, either by direct statement or by inference, that Vocational Service, Inc., is not bound in any way to recommend the various schools and institutions which it represents; or that it exercises the greatest freedom of action, or has any independence of action in such respect.

The use of the title “Registrar” in referring to its sales agents, or of any other word or words the effect of which is to import or imply that such representatives have any official or other capacity than that of salesmen of certain courses of instruction offered for sale by Vocational Service, Inc.

The use, either in its sales-promotional literature or in talks by its solicitors, of statements such as, “I am not a salesman,” “I am not here to sell your husband anything, not even an idea. My job is to investigate,” “I will never tell him he should take the (Diesel, air conditioning, or aircraft) training,” “My job is to investigate for various vocational training organizations,” “Before the schools will consider the student we must know a lot about him and that is why I am checking up on this fellow,” “I am supposed, at this time, to recommend your acceptance or rejection. If I tell the school to accept you and it should develop that you are not qualified for this kind of work, it would reflect on me and Vocational Service, so I must be very careful about my decision”; or of any other statements importing or implying that the primary purpose of the so-called “service” and of the agent conducting the interview is other than that of selling certain courses of instruction to all likely prospects.

Asserting that the school it represents is “very strict” about admitting students, or that it accepts them “only after a very thorough investigation”; or that its salesman will “try to make it possible” for the prospect to gain admission; or by guile, artifice, or subtlety conveying the impression that it is a rare privilege for one to be permitted to buy said course of instruction, when it is in fact available to any mechanically minded person who can pay for it.

The use of adroit statements such as, “In order to have the greatest freedom of independent action, Vocational Service, Inc., does not accept any responsibility for the fulfillment of any contract between students and its subscriber schools”; or of any other statements couched in language the effect of which may be to confuse and mislead the reader into the belief that its refusal to stand back of the contracts it negotiates, is for the purpose of better serving him and the public, when such is not the fact.

The use of statements such as, “With a fair and conscientious observance of the responsibility of such a task, Vocational Service, Inc. warrants the highest degree of public confidence and cooperation,” or of any other statement or representation of similar implication so as to import or imply, or which may cause the belief by prospects that assistance or advice tendered or to be tendered them by the said Vocational Service, Inc., is in no wise biased or influenced by its common aims, objects, ownership, or financial interests with the three mechanical schools whose courses it sells; when such is not, in practice, the fact. (Jan. 4, 1939.)

2356. Vending Machines—Employment, Opportunities, Guarantees, Earnings, Qualities, Etc.—The Ad-Lee Co., Inc., an Illinois corporation, engaged in the sale and distribution, in interstate commerce, of coin-operated vending machines and of confections for use therein, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

The Ad-Lee Co., Inc., in soliciting the sale of and selling its vending machines, by published advertisements, by trade-promotional literature, or by spoken statement, agreed to cease and desist from:

Advertising or otherwise representing that a manager is wanted; or that any position is being offered, or employment in the handling of its business, or an immediate income or any income whatsoever in such alleged capacity; or making representations of any kind the effect of which may be to cause the reader to believe that anything is intended thereby but the sale of merchandise to him, when such is not the fact.

Overstating and misrepresenting the opportunities for large and exceptional profits to be made in the vending-machine merchandising business; and making representations the effect of which is to convey the belief that the opportunities for those who buy and operate “Ever-Ready Merchandisers” exceed what the facts disclose.

Representing that a cash return on the investment is guaranteed to the buyer of an “Ever-Ready Merchandiser,” or that the company guarantees him against loss of his investment, or insures him against any money loss; or that such covenants are written into the company’s sales contract with him; when such are not the facts.

Overstatements or misrepresentations as to the actual profits made by “Ever-Ready” merchandisers; or representations that an operating profit of 53 percent, or an average monthly net profit of $5.63 per machine, or a monthly net profit of $563 on 100 machines may reasonably be expected by the owners of “Ever-Ready Merchandisers”; or that many such owners have reported net profits up to $10 monthly or up to $15 monthly, when such are not the facts; or in any other way, representing probable average profits in excess of the average made by all its purchasers, or unusual profits in any case not reliably supported by facts.

Representations, either directly or by specious argumentation or concealment of facts, that the expense of a merchandising business through vending machines is “automatically kept at a minimum, thus always assuring maximum profits”; or that such is a “protected” or “simple” business, or is adapted to “any man of normal intelligence” regardless of qualifications and environment; or that one’s problems are “solved” and his future “assured” if he will purchase and operate its “Ever-Ready Merchandisers.”

Representations that every man, woman, and child is a potential customer of an “Every-Ready” vending machine, or that each 1,000 persons in a community can profitably support 10 such machines; or that the prospective buyer may confidently visualize himself as the owner of 200, 300, or 400 “Ever-Ready Merchandisers each serving its quota of customers, making money for you, rain or shine, night and day, winter and summer, year after year.”

Asserting or implying that money invested in coin-controlled machines pays in returns several times what the same amount invested in any other business would pay; or that the returns are five to ten times as much; or, without proper qualification that a vending-machine business pays its owner from $150 to $1,000 monthly.

Representing that the “Ever-Ready Merchandiser” is slug-proof or that with said vending machine only a bona-fide 1-cent piece will cause the automatic mechanism to respond, when such is not the fact.

Representing that the mechanism of the "Ever-Ready Merchandiser" is so exactly adjustable that the same amount of confections will be released each time, when such is not the fact. (Jan. 5, 1939.)

STIPULATIONS

Shelton Looms Distributing Corp., in soliciting the sale of and selling its products in interstate commerce, agreed to cease and desist from the use, or from placing in the hands of others for their use, of labels bearing the word “seal,” either alone or in connection with the word “Hudson” and also of the word “Sealo,” or any other word or words, so as to import or imply that the products thus labeled are made or fabricated from the fur or pelt of a seal when such is not the fact; labels containing picturizations designed to indicate or to give the impression that such products are fabricated from the fur or pelt of a seal, when such is not the fact; labels bearing the word “Sealkin” or the word “Molekin,” or any other phonetic spelling or contraction of the words “sealskin” and “moleskin,” respectively, so as to import or imply that the products to which said word or words refer are made or fabricated from the fur or pelt of a seal or mole, when such is not the fact. (Jan. 6, 1939.)

2362. Burial Vaults—Qualities.—Permanent Concrete Products, Inc., a corporation, engaged in the business of manufacturing burial vaults made of concrete and in the sale thereof in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, firms, individuals, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Permanent Concrete Products, Inc., in soliciting the sale of and selling its concrete vaults in interstate commerce, agreed to cease and desist from the use of the word “Permanent” as part of its corporate or trade name and from the use of the said word “Permanent” or of any other word or words of similar meaning, either alone or in connection or conjunction with the statement “The Answer To The Sunken Grave Problem” or in any other way so as to import or imply the effect of which tends or many tend to convey the belief to purchasers or prospective purchasers that said vaults will give or furnish everlasting protection to either caskets or bodies encased therein, when such is not the fact. The said corporation also agreed to cease and desist from the use of the statement “100 Year Products” or of any other statement or representation referring to the durability or other qualities of its vaults in the absence of substantiating proof as to the truth thereof. (Jan. 6, 1939.)

2363. Men’s Shirts—Government Specifications or Requirements; Conformance and Source.—Jacob Rombro and Theodore Rombro, co-partners trading under the firm name and style of Rombro Bros., engaged in the business of manufacturing men’s shirts and in the sale and distribution thereof in interstate commerce, in competition with other partnerships, firms, individuals, and corporations likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.
Jacob Rombro and Theodore Rombro, in soliciting the sale of and selling their products in interstate commerce, agreed to cease and desist from the use of the letters “U. S. A.” either independently or in connection or conjunction with any other word or words or in any way so as to import or imply or the effect of which is to convey or may tend to convey the belief to purchasers that the products so labeled, branded, marked, or advertised are or have been made for the United States Government or its Army in accordance with Government specifications or requirements or that the said products are or have been disposed of by the United States Government or Army as surplus stock. (Jan. 6, 1939.)

2364. Merchandise—Lottery Scheme.—Jacob Ruderman, an individual trading as Consolidated Specialty Co., engaged in the business of selling numerous articles of merchandise in interstate commerce, in competition with other individuals, firms, partnerships, and corporations likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Jacob Ruderman, in soliciting the sale of and selling his merchandise in interstate commerce, agreed to cease and desist from the use of any scheme, plan or method of sale or of promoting the sale of such merchandise which involves or includes the use of any lottery, alleged gift enterprise or scheme of chance whereby the identity of an article of merchandise to be purchased or the price to be paid therefor, or both the article and its price, is or are determined by lot or chance. (Jan. 7, 1939.)

2365. Face Powder—Quantity.—Premier Laboratories, Inc., a corporation, engaged in the sale of a face powder designated “Max Factor,” in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Premier Laboratories, Inc., agreed, in connection with the sale or offering for sale of its face powder in interstate commerce, to cease and desist from representing through the use of over-sized cartons or containers or in any other manner that a substantially larger quantity or amount of such face powder is contained therein than is actually the case. (Jan. 9, 1939.)

2366. Jewelry—Composition and Government Specifications or Requirements Conformance.—Automatic Chain Co., a corporation, engaged in the manufacture of low-priced jewelry, including neck chains and bracelets fabricated from gold-covered wire of a type known to the industry as rolled gold plate, and in the sale and distribution thereof in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

In the jewelry trade the mark “12 Kt 1/20” means and is understood to mean that one-twentieth by weight of the entire article is 12-carat gold, or that, on a fractional basis, the gold content is 25/1000 fine gold; the mark “14 K 1/10” means that one-tenth by weight of the entire article is 14-carat gold, or, on a fractional basis, 58.3/1000. Allowing for a ten-per-cent tolerance, an article so marked is deemed misbranded which does not have an actual fine-gold content of 52.5/1000. The term “gold filled,” as established by the commercial standards set up by the Department of Commerce of the United States Government, means and is understood to mean that the article so marked has a coating of gold of not less than 10-carat fineness, and that the weight of such gold is not less than one-twentieth the weight of the entire article.

Automatic Chain Co., in promoting the sale of and selling its products in interstate commerce, agreed to cease and desist from—

The use in its advertising or as a stamp or marking or label for its neck chains or other articles of the term “12 Kt 1/20,” either alone or in connection with the words “gold filled,” or otherwise, when in fact the gold content of said mounting is other than 25/1000 fine gold or better; or the use of the term “14 K 1/10,” either alone or in connection with the words “gold filled,” or otherwise when in fact the gold content of such articles is not 14 K 1/10 or better and does not assay at least 52.5/1000 fine gold throughout.

Marking or otherwise labeling or designating a neck chain or other article with the gold designations of the wire from which such chain or article was fabricated when the completed chain or article does not itself have such gold content.

Labeling or otherwise describing articles which have been merely gold-flashed with terminology that indicates the presence of substantial quantities of gold, when such is not the fact.

The use of the word “gold” as applicable to an article whose gold content is too minute to merit such description or whose coating is too thin to constitute a gold plate.

The use in its advertising or as a stamp or marking for a product of the term “gold filled,” unless such article has a coating of gold of not less than 10-carat fineness and unless the weight of such gold is at least one-twentieth the weight of the entire article.

Guaranteeing or otherwise representing that an article offered for sale is gold filled or otherwise in strict accordance with the commercial standards issued by the United States Department of Commerce and/or approved by the American Standards Association, when such is not the fact. (Jan. 11, 1939.)
2367. Luggage—Composition.—Meyer Brodie and Morris White, copartners trading under the firm name and style of “M & M Bag and Suitcase Company,” engaged in the business of manufacturing luggage and in the sale thereof in interstate commerce, in competition with other partnerships, corporations, individuals, and firms likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Meyer Brodie and Morris White, in soliciting the sale of and selling their bags in interstate commerce, agreed to cease and desist from the use as a mark, stamp, brand, or otherwise to designate said products, of a picturization of the head or any other characteristic representation of a steer, cow, or animal so as to import or imply or the effect of which conveys or may tend to convey the belief to purchasers that the material of which said bags are made is in fact leather, that is to say, the hide or skin of an animal which has been tanned, tawed or otherwise dressed for use, when such is not the fact. (Jan. 3, 1939.)

2368. Supplemental Feed Products for Poultry and Hogs—Composition.—Consolidated Products Co., a corporation, engaged in the business of manufacturing four supplemental feed products for poultry and hogs which it sells and has sold under the general trade name “Semi-Solid,” in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Consolidated Products Co., in soliciting the sale of and selling its said product in interstate commerce, agreed to cease and desist from the use in its advertisements and advertising matter of whatever kind or character, or in any way, of the word “milk” to designate or as descriptive of said product which is not in fact whole milk from the cow. Said corporation also agreed to cease and desist from the use of the word “milk,” without proper qualification, as descriptive of an ingredient which the said product contains so as to import or imply that said product actually contains whole milk from the cow as an ingredient thereof, when such is not the fact. (Jan. 10, 1939.)

2369. Dental Floss—Nature of Manufacture.—Woltra Co., Inc., a corporation, engaged in the sale and distribution of dental floss in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Woltra Co., Inc., in soliciting the sale of and selling its dental floss in interstate commerce, agreed to cease and desist from the use on its labels, in its advertising matter, or otherwise, of the use of the word “Sterilized” as descriptive of said product so as to import or imply or the effect of which is to convey or tend to convey the belief to purchasers that said product so described is sterile at the time of its purchase and/or will remain so until removal thereof from its package. (Jan. 10, 1939.)

2370. Cosmetic Preparation—Qualities.—Dermique, Inc., a corporation, engaged in the sale and distribution of a cosmetic preparation under the trade name “Beauty Sleep” and the further description “The Miracle Masque Cream” in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Dermique, Inc., in soliciting the sale of and selling its “Beauty Sleep” preparation in interstate commerce, agreed to cease and desist from the use in its advertisements and printed matter or otherwise of statements or representations, the effect of which is to convey or to tend to convey the belief to purchasers that said preparation, when externally applied to the skin, will correct or remove wrinkles and lines over night or at all, regardless of the cause thereof, or will refine crepy skin and large pores or cause sagging contours to become firm or solid, when such are not the facts. (Jan. 11, 1939.)

2371. Coffee—Composition and Source or Origin.—Joseph Victorri and Co., Inc., a corporation, engaged in the importation of oils, wines, coffee, and other specialties from tropical or subtropical countries and in the sale and distribution thereof in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, firms, individuals, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

The coffee grown in Puerto Rico has a distinctive flavor and quality esteemed by many consumers. A high grade of such coffee is blended and packed by Cafeteros de Puerto Rico, of Ponce, Puerto Rico, a cooperative organization of Puerto Rican coffee blenders, and marketed under the trade name “Cafe Rico.” Cafeteros de Puerto Rico has advertised this blend extensively emphasizing the trade name.

Joseph Victorri and Co., Inc., in promoting the sale of and selling its products in interstate commerce, agreed to cease and desist from the use of the words “Rico Cafe” as a trade name or otherwise to designate a blend of coffees offered for sale and sold by it so as to import or imply, or the effect of which is to convey or tend to convey the belief to purchasers that the product so labeled or designated is Puerto Rican coffee or a blend thereof, when such is not the fact. Listing, designating, or in any manner whatsoever representing any coffee product as “Cafe Rico” which is not the actual blend of coffee packed and marketed by Cafeteros de Puerto Rico and properly branded; Representing, by the use of words, names, or places applicable to Puerto Rico, or in any other manner, that a product so designated has its origin in Puerto Rico, when such is not the fact; Selling a product labeled or tagged in a manner that states, imports, or implies that such product is blended and packed in Puerto Rico, when such is not the fact. (Jan. 11, 1939.)

2372. Coffee—Composition and Source or Origin.—Dannemiller Coffee Co., a corporation, engaged in the business of importing, blending, and distributing tea and coffee, including a blend of coffees imported from Central America, South America and Arabia, which blended coffee it designates and labels “Rico Cafe,” causing the same, so branded, to be placed in the channels of interstate commerce through the medium of Joseph Victori and Co., Inc., which sells and ships said “Rico Cafe” in interstate commerce in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Dannemiller Coffee Co., in connection with the sale of its products, agreed to cease and desist from—

(a) The use of the words “Rico Cafe” as a trade name or otherwise to designate a blend of coffees offered for sale and sold by it so as to import or tend to convey the belief to purchasers, that the product so labelled or designated is Puerto Rican coffee or a blend thereof, when such is not the fact.

(b) Holding itself out, by means of labels or in any other way, to be a blender and roaster of coffee in Yauco or elsewhere in Puerto Rico, under the trade name Solivellas & Co., Sucrs., or otherwise, when such is not the fact.

(c) Representing, by the use of words, names or places applicable to Puerto Rico, or in any other manner, that a product so designated has its origin in Puerto Rico, when such is not the fact. (Jan. 11, 1930.)

2373. Hair Preparations—Qualities, Etc.—The Mme. C. J. Walker Manufacturing Co., Inc., a corporation, engaged in the business of manufacturing toilet and cosmetic products, including a shampoo, designated “Mme. C. J. Walker’s Vegetable Oil Shampoo,” and two hair preparations known as “Madam C. J. Walker’s Wonderful Hair Grower” and “Madam C. J. Walker’s Temple Grower,” and selling said preparations in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, firms, individuals, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

The Mme. C. J. Walker Manufacturing Co., Inc., in soliciting the sale of and selling its so-called “Hair Grower,” or its “Temple Grower" in interstate commerce, agreed to cease and desist from the use in its advertisements and advertising matter of whatever kind or character, or on its cartons, or in any other way, of statements or representations which directly assert or clearly import or imply that said preparations, or either thereof, when used upon the scalp or hair, will promote hair growth or will cause hair to grow or prevent its falling out or will accomplish such, or any other results for which there is no proper medical or other substantiation or proof. Said corporation also agreed to cease and desist from stating or representing in its advertising matter or otherwise that its shampoo product, through application thereof to the hair or scalp, will nourish or furnish nutriment to the hair through the roots thereof. (Jan. 11, 1939.)

2374. Calling and Business Cards—Nature of Manufacture.—Frederic Eschenburg, an individual, engaged in the business of selling a type of calling and business cards prepared by the process known as raised or processed printing and also as "Thermography," a process of writing involving the use of heat, in interstate commerce, in competition with other individuals, firms, partnerships, and corporations likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Frederic Eschenburg, in soliciting the sale of and selling his products in interstate commerce, agreed to cease and desist from the use of the word "engraving" or "embossed" to represent or as descriptive of his products in his advertising matter of whatever kind or character, either independently or in connection or conjunction with any other word or words so as to import or imply that such products are engraved or are the result of impressions made from inked engraved plates, commonly known to the trade and purchasing public as "engraving" or "embossing"; and from the use of such words, or either thereof, in any way, the effect of which is or may be to convey the belief to purchasers that said products are engraved or embossed. (Jan. 11, 1939.)

2375. Courses of Instruction—Nature, Opportunities, Earnings, Etc.—Southwestern Diesel Schools, Inc., a corporation, engaged in conducting a vocational school in Diesel engines and in the sale and distribution, of a combination home-study and practical Diesel course, in interstate commerce, in competition with other individuals, corporations, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Southwestern Diesel Schools, Inc., in soliciting the sale of and selling its courses of instruction in interstate commerce, agreed to cease and desist from—
(a) Representing, by statements such as, "Learn Diesel in Monroe," "Learn Diesel in Tampa," "This is not a correspondence course," that the prospective student is offered complete theory and shop training in his home town, when such is not the fact.

(b) Overstating and misrepresenting the demands and opportunities for employment in the Diesel field, and making any representations the effect of which is to convey the belief that the opportunities for those who take the course sold by Southwestern Diesel Schools, Inc. exceed the facts.

(c) Using in its advertising matter or in personal solicitations by salesmen, overstating or representations as to the actual earning power or probable salaries, advancement, promotions, or future security of its graduates and students.

(d) Representing that the Diesel industry offers "Financial independence," or is "rebuilding the whole world," or "changing the industrial world," or "changing the social world," or has "limitless possibilities for multiplying jobs"; or that "the need for skilled men in it is becoming greater with each succeeding month"; or that it "offers even greater opportunities" than did the automotive industry; or that "thousands of specially trained men will be needed" or the number "will grow with increasing rapidity"; or that "Diesel power is rapidly replacing steam and gas and no one engaged in the production of power can definitely say how long their jobs will last"; or that such opportunity "has no ceiling"; or that no other field offers or "has ever offered greater opportunities"; or that Diesel training is "enabling men to earn greater incomes than any former position could have yielded"; or that through Diesel, men "have in a comparatively short time become outstanding in industry and are well on their road to fortune"; or that "every industry is now turning to Diesel power"; or that "the world is urgently calling" for Diesel men; or that "never before has industry so strongly urged men who are prepared to come forward".

(e) Designating its course as "Diesel Engineering," so long as it does not maintain the full curriculum of an approved engineering school. (Jan. 12, 1939.)

2376. Optical Goods—Composition.—Bishop Co., Inc., a corporation, engaged in the manufacture of optical goods and in the sale and distribution thereof in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

In the optical and jewelry trade the marks "1/10-12 K" and "1/10-12 K G. F." mean and are understood to mean that one-tenth by weight of the entire article is 12-carat gold, or that, on a fractional basis, the gold content is 50/1000 fine gold. Allowing for a ten-per cent tolerance, any article so marked is deemed misbranded if it does not have an actual fine-gold content of 45/1000.

Bishop Co., Inc., in promoting the sale of and selling its optical goods in interstate commerce, agreed to cease and desist from stamping, marking or labeling spectacle frames or mountings with the term “1/10–12 K,” either alone or in connection with the initials “G. F.,” or otherwise, when in fact the gold content of such frames or mountings is not 1/10–12 K or better and does not assay at least 45/1000 fine gold throughout. (Jan. 13, 1939.)

Casein Glue—Qualities, Etc.—Tenex Manufacturing Corp., a corporation, engaged in the business of manufacturing casein glue and in the sale and distribution thereof in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Tenex Manufacturing Corp. agreed to cease and desist from the use on its labels or in its advertisements of the word “waterproof” or the statement “immune to water” as descriptive of its Tenex Glue offered for sale and sold in interstate commerce, when in fact, said product is not waterproof; and from the use of the word “waterproof” or the statement “immune to water” or of any other word or statement of similar meaning so as to import or imply that the product thus referred to is impervious to the effect of water, when such is not the fact. (Jan. 16, 1939.)

2378. Jewelry—Composition.—Bastian Brothers Co., a corporation, engaged in the manufacture of class and fraternity jewelry and in the sale and distribution thereof in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, firms, individuals, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

In the jewelry industry and trade an article described as “gold” is understood to be of ten carats or better in fineness, unless an inferior quality be duly stamped or branded in connection with the word “gold.”

Bastian Brothers Co., in promoting the sale of and selling its products in interstate commerce, agreed to cease and desist from stamping, branding, labeling or otherwise designating an article as “gold” the quality of which is less than ten carats fineness, unless such word “gold” be immediately accompanied by a quality mark indicating clearly and accurately its degree of fineness throughout the article; as, for example, “8 K Gold.” (Jan. 16, 1939.)

2379. Correspondence Courses of Instruction—Opportunities, Earnings, Guarantees, Employment, Etc.—Public Office Preparation, Inc., a corporation, engaged in conducting a correspondence school and in the sale of courses of study intended to prepare students for examinations for civil-service positions in the United States Government, selling and distributing such printed courses of instruction in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Public Office Preparation, Inc., in soliciting the sale of and selling its courses of instruction in interstate commerce by means of sales literature, spoken statements, or otherwise, agreed to cease and desist from—

Overstating and misrepresenting the opportunities for employment in the service of the United States Government; and from making any representations the effect of which is to convey the belief that the opportunities for those who take the instruction courses sold by Public Office Preparation, Inc., are greater than is in fact the case.

Representing, either by direct statement or by inference, that there are approximately 800,000 Government employees in the classified civil service, or that all but a small percentage of civil employees in the Government are in such classified service, when such is not the fact.

Representing that there never was a greater opportunity to get into Government service than there is today, when such is not the fact.

Using in its advertising matter or in personal solicitations by salesmen, overstatements or misrepresentations as to the actual earning power or probable salaries, advancement, promotions, or security of its graduates and students.

Representing that the basic salary of Government stenographers is $1,600 per annum, or that, if work is satisfactory, a $100 promotion each year is given, or that two mental tests are given each year by the Government with salary increases for those who pass with good grades, or that, when annual leave or sick leave has not been taken by the end of the year, the Government employee will receive money instead, or that a Government Civil Service position will be guaranteed any of its students who may pass the examination with a satisfactory grade.

Representing that it has placed more people in Government positions in the past three years than Harvard University has placed in the past three hundred years; or that it has "placed" any persons whatsoever in Government positions, when such is not the fact.

Making unfounded or exaggerated statements as to the probable number of civil-service positions available at any time in any given locality, or generally.

Representing, either directly or inferentially, that it is specially prepared or authorized to give full information regarding civil-service examinations to be held and the qualifications with respect thereto, or that it has a knowledge of or access to examination questions that will be given, or obtains the same, through devious channels or in any other manner.

The use in mailing matter or otherwise of terms or phrases so worded as to have the capacity to mislead or confuse prospective students into the belief that they are receiving a communication from or are dealing with the United States Government, when such is not the fact. (Jan. 17, 1939.)

2380. Dental Floss—Nature.—Belding-Heminway-Corticelli, a corporation, engaged in the business of manufacturing a dental floss and in the sale thereof in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Belding-Heminway-Corticelli, in offering for sale and selling its dental floss in interstate commerce, agreed to cease and desist from the use on labels or otherwise of the word "Sterilized" so as to import or imply or the effect of which is to convey or which may tend to convey the belief to purchasers that the said product is sterile at the time of its purchase and removal from its original package. (Jan. 17, 1939.)

2381. Governors for Trucks or Motor Vehicles—Success.—Handy Governor Corporation, engaged in the business of manufacturing governors, among other automotive devices, and in the sale thereof to manufacturers of truck or motor vehicles in interstate commerce, in competition with other manufacturers, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Handy Governor Corporation, in soliciting the sale of and selling its said governors in interstate commerce, agreed to cease and desist from the use in its advertisements and advertising matter or otherwise of the statements "close to 90 percent of all 1938 trucks specify Handy" or of any other statement or representation of similar implication, the effect of which conveys or may tend to convey the belief that approximately nine-tenths of all trucks manufactured in 1938 were equipped with Handy governors, and from the use of the said or any similar statement or representation referring to alleged installations of the Handy governors which is exaggerated, that is to say, in excess of the number of installations of such governors actually made during the stated period of time in the said motor vehicles. The said corporation also agreed to cease and desist from stating or representing that its Handy governors are used as "standard" equipment for the various trucks or motor vehicles in which they are installed, when in fact, the said devices are installed as optional, and not as standard equipment. (Jan. 18, 1939.)

2382. Gas Ranges, Etc.—Prices and Government Approval.—George Wasserman, an individual trading as George's Radio Co., engaged in the business of selling and distributing household appliances in retail stores maintained by him in the District of Columbia, engaged in commerce as defined by the Federal Trade Commission Act, selling and distributing merchandise, including gas ranges, in competition with other individuals, firms, partnerships, and corporations, likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

George Wasserman, in promoting the sale of and selling merchandise in commerce, as defined by the Federal Trade Commission Act, agreed to cease and desist from—quoting a fictitious price as being the regular price or the list price of merchandise which he offers for sale, or quoting a figure purporting to be its actual or genuine value which is in excess of the price for which said merchandise is sold or can be obtained in the usual course of business; representing that a price quoted for merchandise offered for sale is "special," when it is in fact the regular price for which he sells such merchandise; representing, either directly or inferentially, by the adroit use of words, by confusing picturization, concealment of fact, or in any other manner, that an article of merchandise pictured or otherwise featured may be bought for a price indicated, when such is not the fact; representing that a certain kind of gas range is selected by the United States Government for P. W. A. new housing projects because of its greater efficiency and longer life, when such is not the fact. (Jan. 19, 1939.)

2383. Mufflers—Composition.—Cisco, Inc., a corporation, engaged in the business of manufacturing men's and women's mufflers and scarves and in the sale and distribution of said products in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged methods of competition as set forth therein.

Cisco, Inc., in soliciting the sale of and selling its mufflers in interstate commerce, agreed to cease and desist from the use on its brands or labels or in its advertisements or advertising matter of whatever kind or character of the words "All Silk" or the word "Silk" or any other silk-connoting word as descriptive of a product not composed wholly of silk, the product of the cocoon of the silk worm, or as descriptive of the substantial silk content of a product but which silk content has been weighted or contains any metallic weighting whatsoever: Provided, however, That if the product is composed in substantial part of weighted silk and the word “silk” or other silk-connoting word is used to describe or refer to such weighted silk content, then in that case, the said silk-connoting word shall be immediately accompanied by the word “Weighted” or “weighting” printed in equally conspicuous type, together with the percentage of such weighting as, for example, “silk, weighted 45%,” “silk with 45% metallic weighting,” or the like: Provided, further, That if the said product is composed in part of rayon and in greater part of weighted silk, then in that case, any and all advertising, branding, labeling, marking, selling, offering for sale, invoicing, or representations concerning or pertaining to said product shall clearly and unequivocally disclose such rayon content as well as the fact that the silk content of said product is weighted as, for example, “Silk (weighted 45%) and Rayon.” (Jan. 19, 1939.)

2384. Typewriter Ribbons—Composition, Success and Business Status.—Clayton J. Tiller, an individual trading as C. J. Tiller Co., engaged in the sale and distribution of typewriter ribbons in interstate commerce, in competition with other individuals, firms, partnerships, and corporations likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Clayton J. Tiller, in soliciting the sale of and selling typewriter ribbons in interstate commerce, agreed to cease and desist from the use in his advertising of whatever kind or character, on the boxes containing said products, or in any other way, of the words “Sea Island” as descriptive of said products not made of that kind of cotton known as “Sea Island” cotton; and from the use of the said words together with tropical island scenery or in any other way so as to import or imply or the effect of which conveys or may tend to convey the belief to purchasers that the said products are made or manufactured of Sea Island cotton, when such is not the fact. Said individual also agreed to cease and desist from stating or representing that he has sold “thousands” or any other indicated amount of the so-called “Executive Trays” during the last year or at all for $3.50 or any other price, when such is not the fact. The said individual further agreed to cease and desist from the use on his letterheads or otherwise of the use of the words “Manufacturers of” or of any other words of similar meaning so as to import or imply that he makes or manufactures the products offered for sale and sold by him or that he actually owns and operates the plant or factory in which said products are manufactured, when such is not the fact. (Jan. 19, 1939.)

2385. Optical Goods—“Certified” and Composition.—Gate City Optical Co., a corporation, engaged in the sale and distribution of optical goods and supplies in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

In the optical and jewelry trade, the mark “1/10-12 K” means and is understood to mean that one-tenth by weight of the entire article is 12-carat gold, or that, on a fractional basis, the gold content is 50/1000 fine gold. Allowing for a 10-percent tolerance, an article so marked is deemed misbranded if it does not have an actual fine-gold content of 45/1000.

Gate City Optical Co., in promoting the sale of and selling its optical goods in interstate commerce, agreed to cease and desist from the use of the word “certified” as applied to or descriptive of an article of merchandise which has not been analyzed or appraised by an authorized impartial agency, its quality being duly attested in writing by such agency, to be as represented; The use in its advertising or as a stamp or marking for its spectacle mountings of the term “1/10-12 K,” either alone or in connection with the initials “AaA1,” or in any way, when in fact the gold content of said mountings is other than 45/1000 fine gold or better; Designating or describing a “center” mounting for spectacles as being solid gold or 1/10-12 K throughout when it is not so composed in all its parts; or using the word “guaranteed” as applied to products which are not in fact duly guaranteed. If the gold content of but a part of said centers assays 45/1000 fine gold or better and the term “1/10-12 K” or the term “solid gold” is used it shall be made clearly to appear that such term refers only to that part of said centers which assays as represented and that the remaining parts thereof are not so included; designating spectacle frames or other products as “rhodium” which are not composed throughout of rhodium. If the article is composed of some other metal and only the surface has been finished or coated with rhodium, such fact shall be clearly indicated by suitable terms. (Jan. 23, 1939.)

2386. Spectacle Mountings—Composition.—Louis Jacobitti, an individual trading under the name of National Optical Co., engaged in the manufacture of optical goods and in the sale and distribution thereof in interstate commerce, in competition with other individuals, firms, partnerships, and corporations likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

In the optical and jewelry trade the mark “1/10 12 K G. F.” means and is understood to mean that one-tenth by weight of the entire article is 12-carat gold or that, on a fractional basis, the gold content is 50/1000 fine gold. Allowing for a 10-percent tolerance, any article so marked is deemed misbranded which does not have an actual fine-gold content of 45/1000.
Louis Jacobitti, in promoting the sale of and selling his spectacle mountings in interstate commerce, agreed to cease and desist from stamping, marking or labeling such mountings with the term “1/10 12 Kt,” either alone or in connection with the initials “G. F.,” or in any way, when in fact the gold content of said mountings is other than 1/10 12 K and/or assays other than 45/1000 fine gold or better; and from guaranteeing or otherwise representing that a product contains not less than 45/1000 fine gold where the fine-gold content is actually less than 45/1000. (Jan. 23, 1939.)

2387. Books—Composition, “New” and Prices.—William H. Wise and Co., Inc., engaged in the business of publishing books and in the sale and distribution thereof in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

William H. Wise and Co., Inc., in soliciting the sale of and selling its books in interstate commerce, agreed to cease and desist, in its advertisements or trade-promotional literature, from the use of the words “Stamped in gold,” “Richly stamped in gold,” “Rich gold-stamped,” as descriptive of bindings which are not in fact stamped in gold or gold leaf, and from the use of the word “gold” in any way so as to import or imply that the material used in marking or stamping said books is gold leaf, when such is not the fact; representing that a book offered by it for sale is “new,” is being published for the “first time,” that “never before have the contents been gathered together in one volume,” or that “it is the only book of its kind,” when in fact one or more previous editions of the text thereof have been marketed; quoting a fictitious price as being the regular price of a book, or quoting a figure purporting to be its actual or genuine value which is in excess of the price for which said book is sold or can be obtained in the usual course of business; representing that a price offered is “special” or that the price is “going up,” so as to import or imply that the price asked for the book is other than its regular price or that the quoted price will be available only for a short duration of time or by prompt acceptance, when such are not the facts; representing that the price offered is made possible only through thousands of orders received prior to publication or because of cooperation by many friends and customers, when such are not the facts. (Jan. 23, 1939.)

2389. Cloth fabrics or Pieces—Nature, Price of Premium and Employment.—Rolla L. Long, an individual, trading as National Distributors, engaged in the business of selling cloth fabrics or pieces in interstate commerce, in competition with other individuals, firms, partnerships, and corporations likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Rolla L. Long, in soliciting the sale of and selling his cloth pieces in interstate commerce, agreed to cease and desist from the use in his advertisements and advertising matter or otherwise of such words as "Beautiful Silk Pieces" or "Fast Color Prints and Percales" as descriptive of cloth pieces so as to import or imply or the effect of which tends or may tend to convey the belief to purchasers that the cloth pieces are of sufficient size so as to be adapted for use in the making of garments, as dresses, unless, if and when the said quoted words are so descriptively used, they shall be accompanied by some other word or words printed in equally conspicuous type so as to indicate clearly that the said cloth pieces are only remnants or scraps whose utility is limited to uses such as the making of quilts. The said individual also agreed to cease and desist from stating or representing in his advertising matter or otherwise that the face powder offered as an inducement to prospective customers is priced at $1, when in fact, such alleged price is fictitious and much in excess of the price at which the said powder is sold in the usual course of trade. The said individual further agreed to cease and desist from offering through the medium of his advertising or otherwise, to employ prospective customers to address postal cards at home, when in fact such offer is not a bona fide one, that is to say, all acceptances of such offer are ignored by the said Rolla L. Long. (Jan. 24, 1939.)

2390. Casein Glue—Qualities.—I. F. Laucks, Inc., a corporation, engaged in the business of manufacturing a casein glue and in the sale and distribution thereof under the trade name "Lauxein" in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

I. F. Laucks, Inc., agreed to cease and desist from the use on its labels or in its advertising matter of the word "Waterproof" as descriptive of its "Lauxein" glue offered for sale and sold in interstate commerce, when in fact, said product is not waterproof; and from the use of the word "waterproof" in any way so as to import or imply that said product is impervious to the effect of water, when such is not the fact. (Jan. 26, 1939.)

turers' Laboratories, Inc., is a corporation owned and controlled by Roy C. Landry. Roy C. Landry, operating at various times under the aforesaid names, and for part of said time under the corporate status mentioned, engaged in conducting a trade school and selling correspondence courses in refrigeration and air conditioning and in Diesel mechanics and operation, in interstate commerce, in competition with other individuals, corporations, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Roy C. Landry and Manufacturers' Laboratories, Inc., in soliciting the sale of and selling their correspondence courses in interstate commerce, agreed to cease and desist from overstating and misrepresenting the demands and opportunities for employment in the Diesel field, and from making any representations the effect of which is to convey the belief that the opportunities for those who take the course sold by Roy C. Landry and/or Manufacturers' Laboratories, Inc., exceed the facts; using in their advertising matter or in personal solicitations by salesmen overstatements or misrepresentations as to the actual earning power or probable salaries, advancement, promotions, or future security of their graduates and students; the use of "Help Wanted" or other employment columns in newspapers or other publications to contact prospective students in such manner as to mislead or deceive such prospective students into the belief that a job is offered; representing that they will "select" or will "accept" a limited number of persons for training, when in fact their course is available to all persons able to pay for same; representing that they have local Diesel operating jobs available in the vicinity of the prospect's home, or any other employment, for which he may be selected as a trainee, when such is not the fact; representing that they find employment for their graduates, or that they have authority to offer all available positions on new installations of Diesel to those on their lists, or that they maintain a placement service for all graduates, or that they have the tendency or capacity to mislead students, prospective students or the public as to the character of said school, its courses of instruction, or its influence in obtaining employment for students; designating graduates of their course as "Certified Diesel Engine Technicians," or in any other way, so as to import or imply that such persons are competent technicians or experts or have been so attested in writing by a qualified independent agency, board or commission; designating their course as "Diesel Engineering" so long as they do not maintain the full curriculum of an approved engineering school; designating a refund agreement as a "Money Back Guaranty" where the decision as to the making of the refund is left entirely to the pleasure of the one called upon to make it and/or where $30, or any other sum, is to be held out by them and not refunded under any circumstances; the use as a trade name or as a corporate name of any of the following: "Manufacturers' School"; "Manufacturers' School of Technology"; "Manufacturers' School, Division of Manufacturers' Laboratories, Inc."; "Manufacturers' Laboratories,"; "Manufacturers' Laboratories, Inc."; "Manufacturers"; "The Original School"; or of any other name or expression the effect of which is to convey or tend to convey the belief that the said school is maintained, supported or sponsored by or in any way affiliated with manufacturing concerns, or that it teaches the technical science of the industrial arts, or that it is the pioneer of technical and practical training, when such are not the facts. (Jan. 30, 1939.)

2392. Ladies' Wearing Apparel—Composition.—Herman B. Levy, an individual, trading as Sally Negligee Co., engaged in the business of manufacturing ladies' wearing apparel and in the sale and distribution thereof in interstate commerce, in competition with other individuals, firms, partnerships, and corporations likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Herman B. Levy, in promoting the sale of and selling his products in interstate commerce, agreed to cease and desist from the use of the words "pure dye," or the word "satin," or the word "crepe," or any other silk-connoting word or words, as descriptive of fabrics not composed of silk, the product of the cocoon of the silkworm; or in any way so as to import or imply that the fabrics, or any part thereof, to which said words refer are composed of silk, when such is not the fact. If the word "crepe" is used properly to describe the type of weave or construction of a rayon fabric, in such case the word "crepe" shall be immediately accompanied by the word "rayon," printed in type equally conspicuous, so as to indicate clearly that said product is in fact rayon; as, for example, "rayon crepe." From the use of the word "Sil-Key," or of any phonetic spelling or contraction of the word "silk" so as to import or imply that the products to which said word refers are or may be composed of silk, when such is not the fact. From selling or offering for sale any product made of rayon without disclosure of the fact that the material of which said product is composed is rayon, made clearly and unequivocally, in the invoices and labeling and in all advertising matter, sales-promotional descriptions or representations thereof, however disseminated or published. (Jan. 30, 1939.)

2393. Photographic Enlargements and Frames Therefor—Free Product, Nature, Special Offers, Price, Etc.—Fine Arts Association, a corporation, engaged in the sale and the offering for sale and selling in interstate commerce of tinted or colored enlargements of photographs and frames therefor, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Fine Arts Association, in soliciting the sale and the selling in interstate commerce of pictures and frames therefor, agreed to cease and desist from stating or representing, either directly or through its salesmen or agents or in any other way, that a picture or portrait offered as an inducement to obtain a prospective customer’s order: is a “free” gift valued at $25 or any other designated amount, when such is not the fact; is being, or will be, sold only to a limited number of customers, or otherwise misrepresenting any material fact concerning the terms and conditions of sales, or the extent to which the sale of such pictures is limited; is given free or as a gratuity to the customer or can be obtained other than or by the purchase or in consideration of the purchase of merchandise with which the alleged “free” gift is included, when such is not the fact.

Fine Arts Association further agreed in connection with the aforementioned sale and soliciting of its said pictures and frames therefor to cease and desist from representing: That its said colored or tinted pictures, photographs, or photographic enlargements are hand-painted or are paintings, and from using the terms “oil painting,” “portrait painting,” “hand painting,” or the word “painting,” either alone or in conjunction with any other terms or words in any way to designate, describe, or refer to colored or tinted pictures, photographs, or photographic enlargements or other pictures produced from a photographic base; through the use of a “draw” or voting contest or through the use of “lucky” blanks, slips, coupons, or certificates, or through use of any other device, plan, or scheme or through any contest or special introductory or advertising offer, that any customer thereby would obtain a financial advantage or be entitled to receive any picture free or receive any discount or reduction in the price of any picture or pictures.

The said Association further agreed to cease and desist from the practice of withholding or concealing from customers purposely or otherwise information regarding the price they must pay for frames, and from withholding or concealing likewise from customers information disclosing that the products of the company when shipped to the customer will be shipped "collect on delivery" and that the customer will not be permitted to inspect the same, including the quality or faithfulness of respondent's work, until the customer has paid in full any and all charges due for a frame or for a picture or portrait and frame. (Feb. 3, 1939.)

2394. Rings—Composition.—Loren Murchison & Co., Inc., a corporation, engaged as a jobber in the sale and distribution of school jewelry, medals, and trophies in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

In the jewelry trade the term "10 K" as applied to a ring means that the ring is composed throughout of gold alloy of 10-carat fineness, which is to say that the fine gold content is $\frac{1}{24}$ by weight of the entire article. Thus, a ring with a shell of 10-carat gold enclosing a core of silver or some other base metal is not properly referred to as a solid-gold ring or as a 10-carat ring.

Loren Murchison & Co., Inc., in promoting the sale of and selling merchandise in interstate commerce, agreed to cease and desist from exhibiting, through its authorized agents or otherwise, rings of 10 K solid gold with the statement or representation that it will deliver rings as ordered according to sample, when such agreement is not performed; representing that a ring offered for sale is solid gold or of 10 K quality, when in truth the ring delivered to the purchaser has but a shell of gold enclosing a core of base metal and/or is not composed throughout of a gold alloy of 10 K fineness or better; representing itself to be a manufacturer of rings or other merchandise, when such is not the fact. (Feb. 3, 1939.)

2395. Bread and Soft Drinks—Lottery Scheme.—Arthur W. Covert and Nell Covert, copartners trading under the name and style of Covert Baking Co., engaged in the bread-making business and in the sale and distribution of such bread and of soft drinks in interstate commerce, in competition with other partnerships, firms, individuals, and corporations likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Arthur W. Covert and Nell Covert agreed, and each of them agreed, in soliciting the sale of and selling products in interstate commerce, to cease and desist from the use of any scheme, plan, or method of sale or of promoting the sale of said products which involves any gift enterprise, lottery, or scheme of chance whereby cash or its equivalent is given or offered as a prize or premium for or in consideration of the purchase of any other article. (Feb. 3, 1939.)
2396. Toothache Remedy—Qualities.—William G. Turner, an individual trading as Lenox Manufacturing Co., engaged for a number of years in the business of manufacturing a toothache remedy and in the sale of said product under the trade name “Dent-Zel-Ite” in interstate commerce, in competition with other individuals, firms, partnerships, and corporations likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

William G. Turner, in connection with the sale and distribution of his product designated “Dent-Zel-Ite” in commerce as defined by said act, agreed to cease and desist from the use in his advertisements and advertising matter of whatever kind or character or in any other way of statements or representations which directly assert or import or imply that the said product is a tooth filling or that its use will prevent tooth decay, close, seal, or protect tooth cavities, or will banish toothaches or sleepless nights or prevent formation of tooth cavities or relieve one of the necessity of professional dental treatment, or that by its use, one is enabled to perform the functions of a dentist or be one’s own dentist. (Feb. 6, 1939.)

2397. Peanuts—Lottery Scheme.—D. Walter Turner, an individual, trading as the Walter Turner Coffee Co., engaged in sale of peanuts and other merchandise in interstate commerce, in competition with other individuals, firms, partnerships, and corporations likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

D. Walter Turner, in connection with the sale and distribution of his merchandise in interstate commerce, as defined by the act, agreed to cease and desist from the use of any scheme, plan, or method of sale or of promoting the sale of such merchandise which involves the use of any gift enterprise, lottery, or scheme of chance whereby cash or any article is given as a prize or premium for or in consideration of the purchase of any other article. (Feb. 13, 1939.)

2398. Correspondence Courses of Instruction—Opportunities, Earnings, Employment, Limited Offers, Etc.—Diesel Engineering School of Los Angeles, a corporation, and its officers, William O. Anderson, president, John I. Anderson, vice president, Grace E. Hague, treasurer, and Harold McClanahan, secretary and counsel, engaged in conducting a vocational school in Diesel engines and in the sale and distribution, in interstate commerce, of a combination home study and practical course in Diesel mechanics and operation, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.
Diesel Engineering School of Los Angeles and William O. Anderson, John I. Anderson, Grace E. Hague, and Harold McClanahan agreed, and each agreed, in soliciting the sale of and selling their correspondence course in interstate commerce to cease and desist from—

Overstating and misrepresenting the demands and opportunities for employment in the Diesel field, and from making any representations the effect of which is to convey the belief that the opportunities for those who take the instruction courses sold by Diesel Engineering School of Los Angeles exceed the facts.

Using in their advertising matter or in talks by their solicitors overstatements or misrepresentations as to the actual earning power or probable salaries, advancement, promotions, or future security of their graduates and students.

The use of statements or representations importing or implying that they are in position to offer employment to their graduates or will procure employment for all their graduates, when such are not the facts.

Designating their school as an "engineering school" or its graduates as "engineers," so long as it does not maintain the full curriculum of approved engineering schools and its graduates have not the status and standing of graduate engineers, or designating a staff member as a "consulting engineer" when he is not such in fact.

Advertising their business or course of study under the classification of "Help Wanted" or any other employment columns of publications, so as to import or imply that they have positions open and available, when in fact the purpose of said advertising is but to enroll students for a course of instruction.

Representing, either directly or indirectly, that any person, though lacking in proper education, experience, or aptitude, can become a competent and expert Diesel man by taking their course of instruction.

Publishing such statements as "Diesel unlimited. Wanted One Million Men," "No great business has ever expanded as fast as Diesel," "Nothing else offers equal opportunity for quick, sure advancement," "Fastest growing industry in the world," "High pay and success await the trained Diesel engineer," "Better jobs and higher pay available," "Unlimited opportunity for thousands of men," "The whole world of Diesel stretches ahead of you with your Engineer Certificate," "We have covered the principal sources of employment for trained Diesel men, and so far our efforts in placement have been uniformly successful," "The owners of Diesel are eager to find anyone who has a knowledge of Diesel engines," "Qualified repair men are scarce and wages are correspondingly high," "Because of the few available men experienced in Diesel engineering, salaries are high," "Within a few years time there will be more than one million men to handle the available jobs"; or any other words, statements, expressions, or picturizations tending to lead a reader to believe that high salaries, genuine success, and unlimited opportunities are assured him by enrolling in said course; or that available men in Diesel are few or scarce, or that the wages are correspondingly high.

Representing an offer to be limited as to the number of persons to be accepted or selected for such instruction, or otherwise, when there is in fact no such limitation and no selection, the course being available to all persons who can pay for it.

The use of any so-called satisfaction agreement or other refund or money-back agreement between said school and a student wherein such refund is conditioned upon contingencies entirely within the control of the school and/or upon requirements which normally cannot be met by the average dissatisfied student.

Issuance of any certificate or diploma which represents the course of study or instruction covered or completed, or the accomplishments or standing of the student receiving such certificate of diploma, in a manner having the capacity or tendency to mislead students, prospective students, or the public. (Feb. 14, 1939.)

2399. Correspondence Courses of Instruction—Business Status, Opportunities, Earnings, Employment, Etc.—Robert A. Flinn and Ruby L. Flinn, copartners trading under firm name and style of "Associated Training Institute," with James M. Cattanach engaged in capacity of general manager of said business, engaged in sale and distribution of printed and mimeographed correspondence courses of instruction in Diesel mechanics and operation, in interstate commerce in competition with other partnerships, firms, individuals, and corporations likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Robert A. Flinn and Ruby L. Flinn and James M. Cattanach, in connection with the sale and distribution of their courses of instruction in commerce as defined by the act, agreed to cease and desist from—

(a) The use in their trade name or in any other manner as applied to their school, of the word "Institute" either alone or in connection with any other word or words; or from the use of any similar term, title, or designation the effect of which is to import or imply or cause the belief that such correspondence trade school is an institution or organization for the promotion of learning, philosophy, art or science.
(b) Overstating and misrepresenting the demands and opportunities for employment in the Diesel field or the air-conditioning and refrigeration field; and from making any representations, the effect of which is to convey the belief that the opportunities for those who take the course sold by them exceed the facts.

(c) The making of misleading or deceptive statements or representations by way of advertising, oral representations, or otherwise, concerning the character, nature, quality, value, or scope of the course of instruction or educational service offered by them or in any other material respect, with the tendency or capacity to mislead or deceive students, prospective students, or the public;

(d) The making of misleading or deceptive statements or representations regarding actual or probable earnings or opportunities for students or prospective students of such courses.

(e) The making of misleading or deceptive statements or representations as to services to be rendered in connection with the securing or attempting to secure employment for students.

(f) Representing either directly or indirectly that any person, though lacking in proper education, experience, or aptitude, can become a competent and expert Diesel man or air-conditioning and refrigeration man by taking their courses of instruction.

(g) Referring to a home-study course as "strictly practical" which consists merely of printed texts and includes no shop or practical training; or as an "Extension Course" where the same is not offered by a resident school.

(h) Representing that they operate "in cooperation with" or "under contract with" Diesel Engineering Institute or with "the world's oldest and largest institute for the advancement of Diesel power," or with "the world's oldest and largest institute of its kind," or with Greer Shop Training, Inc., or with "the million dollar school," or with schools of 30 or 36 years' standing, or with a school "guaranteeing 100% satisfaction to students"; when in fact their only real contracts with such concerns are, on the one hand, to buy printed texts from a publishing house, and on the other hand, to refer students to a shop-training school for practical work, where such students make their own arrangement; or the making of any other direct or implied representations, the effect of which is to convey the belief that their business coordinates with and has the backing, the prestige, and the responsibility of certain outstanding institutions in the Diesel and air-conditioning field, when such is not the fact.

(i) The use of titles such as "Chief Vocational Advisor" when there is none, and "Consulting Engineer" for a staff employee, or of any other name, title, or designation having the tendency or capacity to mislead students, prospective students, or the public as to the character of the institution or its courses of instruction.
(j) Alteration of purported quotations from industrial or other authorities whereby, through omissions or changes, such quotations appear to refer to the air-conditioning and refrigeration industry, when such is not the fact.

(k) Description of a Diesel text publishing house in such way as to convey the impression that it is the world’s oldest and largest institute for air-conditioning and refrigeration; or the use of any other subtlety or artifice, the effect of which is to imply that this school is affiliated or associated with the oldest and largest air-conditioning and refrigeration institute in the world, when such is not the fact.

(l) The use of a fictitious name such as "The Engineering Institute" to conceal the real name and the limited scope of "Diesel Engineering Institute."

(m) The issuance of a "Diesel Proficiency Certificate" or of an "A. T. I. Proficiency Certificate" to one who has completed a mere home study course in Diesel engines or in air-conditioning and refrigeration; or of any other type of certificate or diploma having the capacity or tendency to convey an erroneous belief as to the accomplishments or standing of a student receiving same.

(n) The use of any refund agreement or similar contract between school and student, such as an "Honor Roll Scholarship," or otherwise, which is conditioned upon circumstances entirely within the control of the school; or of any agreement to refund voluntarily the full amount paid by the student, or any part thereof, within 30 days or at all, upon the school's finding, from his "Qualification Record," that he should not continue the course; or of any other refund agreement conditioned upon the decision or judgment of the school, or otherwise involving deception, misrepresentation, bad faith, or the deceptive concealment of pertinent facts.

(o) Issuing any so-called "Post Graduate Advisory Service and Employment Plan," or similar instrument, which requires the payment of $60 or any other sum for alleged future services for which a student has already paid or obliged himself, by separate contract, to pay; representing that such "certificate" is worth $60 or any other sum; or by befuddling or confusing promises, procuring an assignment from the student of future earnings as and when received, and/or whether or not such earnings are secured through the school's efforts. (Feb. 11, 1939.)

2400. Cooking Assemblies—Capacity and Earnings.—Leonard E. Dickerson, an individual trading as Dickerson Manufacturing Co., engaged in the business of manufacturing gas and electric cooking assemblies, Models D and H, for lunch counter operations and in the sale and distribution thereof under the trade name "Mexihot Barbecue Hamburger Machine" in interstate commerce, in competition with other individuals, firms, partnerships, and corporations likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Leonard E. Dickerson, in connection with the sale and distribution of his machine assemblies in commerce as defined by the act, agreed to cease and desist from the use of the statement that the griddle of such device is “14 x 16 inches,” the effect of which is to convey or tend to convey the belief to purchasers or prospective purchasers that the useful or operative cooking surface or area of said griddle actually is of the dimensions and size indicated; that each of the food containers of said device is of “one gallon” capacity so as to import or imply that such container actually will hold one gallon, that is to say, four standard quarts. The said Leonard E. Dickerson also agreed to cease and desist from stating or representing that either of said machines will “pay for itself first week” so as to import or imply that the average purchaser of such machine will be able to realize sufficient profits during the first week of its use to cover the cost of the same, when such is not the fact. (Feb. 15, 1939.)

2401. Correspondence Courses of Instruction—Business Status, Employment, Opportunities, Earnings, Endorsements, Etc.—Motor Institute of America, a corporation, engaged in the sale and distribution of a printed mimeographed correspondence course of instruction concerning automobiles and Diesel engines, in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Motor Institute of America, in connection with the sale and distribution of its courses of instruction in commerce as defined by the act, agreed to cease and desist from:

(a) The use of the word “Institute” either with or without the words “Motor” and “America” as a part of or in connection with the corporate name under which it carries on its business; and from the use of said word “Institute” independently or in connection with any other words or expressions implying or suggesting that such correspondence trade school is an organization conducted for the promotion of learning, philosophy, art, or science, or is an association of the members of the motor industry of America for the purpose of considering and solving their problems as such.

(b) The use in advertisements of words such as “men wanted” or expressions of similar import, featured in headlines or otherwise, to contact prospective students in such manner as to mislead or deceive such prospective students into the belief that a job is offered.

(c) The use of “blind” advertisements to attract prospective students when such advertisements fail to set forth that courses of instruction or other educational services are being offered in such manner as to mislead or deceive students, prospective students, or the public.

(d) Overstating and misrepresenting the demands and opportunities for employment in the Diesel field, and from making representations, the effect of which is to convey the belief that the opportunities for those who take the course sold by it exceed the facts.

(e) Using in its advertising matter or in personal solicitations by its salesmen overstatements or misrepresentations as to the actual earning power or probable salaries, advancement, promotions, or future security of its graduates and students.

(f) The making of misleading or deceptive statements or representations by way of advertising, oral presentation, or otherwise concerning the character, nature, quality, value, or scope of the course of instruction or educational service offered; or in any other material respect with a tendency or capacity to mislead or deceive students, prospective students, or the public.

(g) Representing that said school has laboratories or shop facilities of its own for the training of its students; that it was a pioneer in the field of Diesel training; that it is affiliated with, or endorsed by, leading members of the industry; or that industries look to said school for their Diesel men; or that its Diesel graduates are occupying profitable positions throughout the world; or making any claims or assertions of like import when not the facts.

(h) Representing either directly or indirectly that any person, though lacking in proper education, experience, or aptitude, can become a competent and expert Diesel man by taking its course of instruction.

(i) The making of misleading or deceptive statements or representations as to the services to be rendered in connection with the securing or attempting to secure employment for its students; or as to its influence or connection with any industrial or other organization, such as the Chrysler, Studebaker, or Pierce Arrow companies.

(j) Representing an offer as “special” when it is in fact a regular offer, or as “low” when it is in fact higher than its previous prices charged for the course, with a tendency or capacity to mislead, and deceive students, prospective students, or the public.

(k) Representing that certain testing equipment will be given a student upon payment of a stated amount toward his tuition when it fails to give the equipment as promised.

(l) Representing that it will “select” or will “accept” a limited number of persons for training when in fact its course is available to all likely prospects.
(m) Representing that said concern is a pioneer school in the Diesel field, or that its graduates have made their success in Diesel, when such are not the facts.

(n) Alteration of testimonial letters or other purported quotations whereby, through deletion of dates and by substitutions and omissions of words, such letters or quotations appear to refer to the Diesel course of instruction offered by said school, when such is not the fact.

(o) The use of the title "Vocational Adviser" for its sales agents; or "Acceptance Committee," "Technical Department," "Placement Department," etc., for nonexistent groups or entities; or of assertions such as "I am here to select * * * and recommend," "This is where my job comes in. I am selecting men to be admitted to our Training Program," "Now, I cannot actually accept any man's application for admittance. I can merely approve it and recommend it to the Acceptance Committee of the Motor Institute of America," "I am sent here to make the decision as to whether or not you can qualify for this Training," "My job is to look you over as carefully as I can to determine, in advance, if you can qualify to take this training and to make good in the Diesel Field," "If I feel you ARE qualified and accept your Application, you will be investigated still further when your Application reaches Chicago"; or of any other statements importing or implying that said concern is strict about admitting its trainees, receives them only after careful investigation, and confers a privilege by accepting enrollments, or that, the purpose of the agent conducting the interview is other than that of simply selling said course of instruction to all persons who can pay for it.

Harrison Lund, an individual, engaged in the sale under the trade name “Lund's Grape Juice Company,” of a beverage designated “Lund's Magic of the Grape,” and also in the sale, under the trade name “Lund's Health Institute,” of correspondence courses consisting of some 50 lessons in dietetics, in interstate commerce, in competition with other individuals, firms, corporations and concerns likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

C. Harrison Lund, in connection with the sale and distribution of his beverage product in commerce as defined by the act, agreed he will cease and desist from the use in his advertisements and advertising or printed matter of whatever kind or character or in any other way of statements or representations so as to import or imply or the effect of which is to convey or which may tend to convey the belief to purchasers that the said product is an adequate treatment for or will have any curative effect on all or any of the various diseases named in paragraph 2 of the stipulation, namely, cold, stomach, liver, kidney, intestine, lung, or bladder trouble, rheumatism, emaciation, over-weight, cancer, or any other sickness, or that the said product is such as to effectively control, maintain or restore health or frequently all that is needed to get well. The said individual also agreed to cease and desist from the use of the words “Magic of the Grape” as a trade name or designation for said product which is not composed of the juice or the fruit of the grape, and from the use of the word “grape” in any way so as to import or imply that said product is composed of the juice or the fruit of the grape, when such is not the fact. If the product is composed in substantial part of the juice or fruit of the grape and in part of other substance, and the word “grape” is used as a trade name or otherwise as descriptive thereof, then in that case, the word “grape” shall be immediately accompanied by some other word or words printed in equally conspicuous type so as to indicate clearly that said product is not composed wholly of grape. The said individual further agreed to cease and desist from the use of the words "Health Institute" as a part of or in connection with the trade name under which he carries on his business, and from the use of the word "Institute" either alone or in connection with the word "Health" or with any other word or words so as to import or imply that the business carried on by the said individual is that of an organization conducted for the promotion of learning, philosophy, art or science or is an institution or sanitorium equipped for the restoration of health; the said individual also agreed to cease and desist from stating or representing in his advertising matter or in any other way that the so-called "Consulting Dietist" correspondence course offered by him is of such efficiency that all persons who take the same will be thereby so qualified as to be properly designated "Consulting Dietist." The said individual also agreed to cease and desist from stating or representing that disease generally is curable by the use of natural foods or by dieting, when such is not the fact. (Apr. 3, 1939.)

2439. Health Food Products and Devices and Correspondence Courses—Business Status, Scientific Facts, Government Sanction, Competitive Products, Qualities, Etc.—Martin W. Pretorius, an individual doing business under the trade name of Food Chemistry Educational Institute, and New Century Foods, Inc., a corporation, engaged in the sale and distribution in interstate commerce, of health food products, health appliances and cooking devices, and the publication of a magazine entitled "Food Science," in competition with other individuals, corporations, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Martin W. Pretorius and New Century Foods, Inc., in connection with the sale and distribution of food products, devices and correspondence courses in commerce as defined by the act, agreed they will cease and desist from—

The use of the word "Institute" as part of or in connection with the trade name with which they carry on their business; and from the use of the word "Institute" independently or in connection with any other words or expressions implying or suggesting that their private business is either an organization for the promotion of learning, philosophy, art or science or an association of food chemists for the purpose of considering and solving their problems as such.

Representing that the primary purpose of their organization is "for educating the laymen in the science of building perfect bodies" or as "purely educational" or that the foods sold by them are "merely to accommodate our students" where a certain food is "not available," when in fact the principle purpose is to sell their so-called health foods and devices to all persons that can be persuaded to buy them.

Representing that they manufacture the products sold by them or that such products are prepared under the direction or supervision of Nutritional Chemists, New Century Foods, Inc., or of Nutritional Chemists, Food Chemistry Educational Institute, or of New Century Foods, Inc., when such are not the facts.

Falsely attributing alleged scientific findings or statements to Dr. H. A. McGuigan or any other person.

Misquoting any records of the Federal Trade Commission or other Government agency.

Representing, by published statements, oral presentation, or otherwise, that food is poisoned by the use of aluminum cooking utensils, or that boiling water in aluminum produces hydro-oxide acid poison; cooking an egg in aluminum produces aluminum phosphate poison; boiling salt meat in aluminum produces aluminum chloride poison; frying bacon in aluminum produces a powerful narcotic acid poison, which produces coma and in excessive doses will cause death; boiling soda water in aluminum produces hydro-oxide of sodium; all vegetables cooked in aluminum are made poisonous by the production of hydro-oxide acid; water boiled in aluminum vessels neutralizes digestive juices, prevents digestion, produces stomach and gastrointestinal disorders, ulcers of the stomach, acidosis of the blood, or a condition similar to anaemia.

The use in any way of fictitious, bewildering, or pseudoscientific terms or any combination of chemical terms so arranged as to have the capacity or tendency to mislead, confuse, or deceive the purchasing public regarding the chemical or physiological properties of any article or product.

Representing that cancer is believed to be due to aluminum poisoning or that aluminum is one of the chief chemical poisons responsible for such disease, or that the use of aluminum pots is forbidden in the preparation of food for cancer patients in hospitals, or that the use of aluminum utensils is known to interfere with recovery from cancer; or that by the use of their parchment paper for cooking one may easily safeguard himself from such alleged aluminum poisoning or consequent bodily ills.

Representing that by the use of their foods, health courses, or devices one can solve his individual health problem, "no matter what it is"; and that "there is no need for you to continue to suffer"; or that the foods offered for sale by them "produce specific results in the body," when such are not the facts.

Representing that "alkalinization" will serve to correct bodily ills generally; or that the various products or health courses recommended and sold by them constitute competent treatments or remedies for any of the following conditions: Anemia, apoplexy, acute appendicitis, cancer, diphtheria, fibroids, gallstones, locomotor ataxia, multiple sclerosis, abscess, acne, ascites, bladder stones, boils, Bright's disease, influenza, and cold in the head, insomnia, jaundice, leucorhea, menopause, menstrual disorders, mental derangement, paralysis, pleurisy, fever, pneumonia, enlargement of prostate gland, syphilis, tonsilitis, tapeworms, tumors, tuberculosis, uremia, rheumatism, acidosis, diabetes, failing sight, the pains of child delivery, cataract, or the debilitations of old age.

The use of such deceptive, fallacious, and extravagant statements as “Guaranteed health for life,” “No Doctor or hospital bills,” “No loss of pay because of sickness,” as descriptive of benefits to be received through the “Pretorius Scientific Feeding.”  (Apr. 4, 1939.)

2440. Rugs and Other Household Goods—Source or Origin, Nature of Manufacture and Seconds.—May, Stern & Co., a corporation engaged in the sale of household goods, including rugs, in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

May, Stern & Co., in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution in commerce as defined by the act, agreed it will cease and desist from the use of the word “Persian” or the word “Chinese” either alone or in connection or conjunction with any other word or words or in any way as descriptive of its products so as to import or imply or the effect of which conveys or may tend to convey the belief to purchasers that said products are of the designated oriental origin or manufacture, when such is not the fact. Said corporation also agreed to cease and desist from the use in its advertisements and advertising matter or otherwise of the words “triple-loomed” as purportedly descriptive of its products, when in fact such words are meaningless and not warranted. Said corporation further agreed to cease and desist from advertising or otherwise offering for sale products which are, in fact, what is known as “factory” or “mill” seconds, without clearly and unequivocally disclosing such fact.  (Apr. 7, 1939.)

2441. Perfumes—Imported, Business Status and Source or Origin.—Benjamin J. Rosenthal, an individual, trading as “Francaise Perfumerie et Cie,” engaged in business of bottling perfumes purchased by him in bulk and in the sale of such bottled products in interstate commerce, in competition with other individuals, firms, partnerships, and corporations likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition in commerce as set forth therein.
Benjamin J. Rosenthal agreed that in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of his products in commerce as defined by the act, he will cease and desist from the use in advertisements and advertising matter or in any other way.

1. Of the words "Imported Perfumes" to define or as descriptive of his products in such manner or in any way so as to import or imply that the products referred to were compounded or manufactured abroad into finished or completed perfumes and as such brought or shipped to the United States of America, when such is not the fact.

2. Of the words "Reproductions of fine imported perfumes" or from the use of the word "reproductions" in connection with named French or other fine perfumes in any way as descriptive of his products, when in truth his said products were not reproductions of the said named French or other fine perfumes.

3. Of the words "Paris London" or any other foreign address on his stationery or otherwise so as to import or imply that the said individual has a place of business or an office at said places or at any of them, when such is not the fact.

4. Of the words "Francaise Perfumerie et Cie" as and for the trade name under which he offers for sale or sells his products and from the use of the word "Francaise" or of the word "French" or of any other word or words of similar meaning in any way so as to import or imply that the products offered for sale and sold by him are of French origin, when such is not the fact. (Apr. 10, 1939.)

2442. Novelty Merchandise, Fireworks and Punchboards—Lottery Schemes and Devices.—Irwin Siegel, a sole trader residing in Cleveland, Ohio, and doing business as U. S. Merchandise and Fireworks Co., engaged in the sale and distribution of novelty merchandise, fireworks and punchboards in interstate commerce, in competition with other individuals, firms, partnerships, and corporations likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Irwin Siegel, in connection with the sale and distribution of his products in commerce as defined by said act, agreed he will cease and desist from supplying to, or placing in the hands of others, punchboards, push or pull cards, or other lottery devices for the purpose of enabling such persons to dispose of or sell any merchandise by the use thereof; mailing, shipping, or transporting to agents or to distributors or members of the public punchboards, push or pull cards, or other lottery devices so prepared or printed as to enable said persons to sell or distribute any merchandise by the use thereof; selling or otherwise disposing of any merchandise by the use of punchboards, push or pull cards, or other lottery devices. (Apr. 10, 1939.)

2443. Electric Fans, Pen and Pencil Sets and Push Cards—Lottery Schemes and Devices.—T. J. Leviton and Harry Cole, copartners trading under the firm name of Transcontinental Sales Co., engaged in the sale and distribution of electric fans, pen and pencil sets, and push cards in interstate commerce, in competition with other firms, partnerships, corporations likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

T. J. Leviton and Harry Cole, and each of them, agreed that in connection with their sale and distribution of merchandise in commerce as defined by the act, agreed they will cease and desist from supplying to, or placing in the hands of others, push or pull cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices for the purpose of enabling such persons to dispose of or sell any merchandise by the use thereof; mailing, shipping, or transporting to agents or to distributors or members of the public push or pull cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices so prepared or printed as to enable said persons to sell or distribute any merchandise by the use thereof; selling or otherwise disposing of any merchandise by the use of push or pull cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices. (Apr. 10, 1939.)

2444. Stationery, Etc.—Nature of Manufacture.—Branford Press, a corporation, engaged in the business of selling stationery, wedding invitations, engagement announcements, and the like, in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Branford Press, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of its products in commerce as defined by the act, agreed it will cease and desist from the use in its advertising or printed matter or in any other way of the word “engraved” or of any other word or words of similar meaning as descriptive of said products so as to import or imply or the effect of which causes or may tend to convey the belief to purchasers that said products are the result of impressions made from inked engraved plates, generally known to the purchasing public as “engraving” or “embossing,” when such is not the fact. (Apr. 10, 1939.)

2445. Sweaters and Other Knitted Wear—Prices.—M. W. Carp and J. L. Diener, copartners trading under the firm name and style of Cardean Knitwear Co., engaged in the jobbing or wholesale distribution of sweaters and other knitted wear in interstate commerce, in competition with other partnerships, corporations, individuals, and firms likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

M. W. Carp and J. L. Diener, agreed they will cease and desist, both in their capacity as copartners and as individuals, from selling and distributing in commerce as defined by the act, or from selling and distributing in such commerce to others for sale, products to which are affixed or which are accompanied by tags or other indicia bearing what purports to be a retail selling price, but which price is exaggerated and fictitious and/or much in excess of the price at which said products are sold in the ordinary course of trade. (Apr. 10, 1939.)

2447. Hair and Scalp Preparation—Qualities.—Alexander C. Brent, Jr., an individual trading as Cuban Cosmetic Co., engaged in the business of manufacturing or compounding a preparation for use upon the hair and scalp and in the sale and distribution thereof under the trade name “Four-In-One Cuban Combination Hair Treatment” in interstate commerce, in competition with other individuals, firms, partnerships, and corporations likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Alexander C. Brent, Jr., in connection with the sale and distribution of his product in commerce as defined by the act, agreed he will cease and desist from the use in his advertisements and advertising matter of whatever kind or character or in any other way of any statement or representation which directly asserts or which clearly imports or implies or the effect of which tends or may tend to convey the belief to the consuming public that said product, when locally applied to the scalp, will cause hair to grow, or that such use of the said product will stop or correct falling hair or dandruff or will stop eczema, tetter, ring worm, or any other fungus infection. (Apr. 11, 1939.)

2448. Citrus Fruits—Source or Origin.—Cooperative Indian River Growers, Inc., a corporation, engaged in the business of packing citrus fruits for its own members, under the trade name “Indian River,” and also in the packing of fruits for other concerns, and in the sale and distribution of the fruits which it packs, in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition.

The term “Indian River,” when used to describe the origin of citrus fruits, refers to a territory on the East Coast of Florida along the Indian River and in the Counties of Brevard, Indian River, St. Lucie, and Martin. The citrus fruits grown in the Indian River section have long enjoyed a reputation for superior quality, and the growers of and dealers in such fruits have acquired a valuable good will in the term "Indian River" as applied to such fruits.

Cooperative Indian River Growers, Inc., in connection with its sale and/or distribution of citrus fruits in commerce as defined by the act, agreed it will cease and desist from the use, or placing in the hands of others for their use, of labels, brands, or other trade indicia bearing the words "Indian River," or words, phrases, statements, or representations of similar import as descriptive of citrus fruits not produced or grown in the Indian River region of Florida; and from the use of the words "Indian River" in any way which may have the capacity or tendency to confuse, mislead, or deceive purchasers into the belief that the products so designated were grown or produced in the Indian River region of Florida, when such is not the fact. (Apr. 12, 1939.)

2449. Citrus Fruits—Source or Origin.—Brandes & Lipschitz, Inc., a corporation, engaged in operating retail fruit stands in the city of New York and also importing into New York citrus fruits produced in Florida, and in the sale and distribution thereof in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

The term "Indian River," when used to describe the origin of citrus fruits, refers to a territory on the East Coast of Florida along the Indian River and in the Counties of Brevard, Indian River, St. Lucie, and Martin. The citrus fruits grown in the Indian River section have long enjoyed a reputation for superior quality, and the growers of and dealers in such fruits have acquired a valuable good will in the term "Indian River" as applied to such fruits.

Brandes & Lipschitz, Inc., in connection with its sale and distribution of citrus fruits in commerce as defined by the act, agreed it will cease and desist from the use, or placing in the hands of others for their use, of labels, brands, or other trade indicia bearing the words "Indian River," or words, phrases, statements, or representations of similar import as descriptive of citrus fruits not produced or grown in the Indian River region of Florida; and from the use of the words "Indian River" in any way which may have the capacity or tendency to confuse, mislead, or deceive purchasers into the belief that the products so designated were grown or produced in the Indian River region of Florida, when such is not the fact. (Apr. 12, 1939.)
2450. "Fresh'nd Aire" Fans—Qualities.—Robert W. Devore, an individual trading as "Fresh'nd Aire Company," engaged in the business of assembling electrically driven fans equipped at the rear with a device intended to heat and vaporize two certain preparations, one a so-called deodorizer and purifier and the other a fragrance, such vapor being diffused by the action of the fan throughout the room wherein it is installed and operated, and selling said products in interstate commerce, in competition with other individuals, firms, partnerships, and corporations likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Robert E. Devore, in connection with the advertisement, sale, or distribution of his "Fresh'nd Aire" fans in commerce as defined by the act, agreed to cease and desist from the use of the term "Air Conditioning" or of any other word or words of similar meaning or import, as descriptive of said fans whose operation does not result in humidifying or dehumidifying the room air, the mechanical cooling or heating of such air to specified temperatures, the mechanical delivery and circulation of fresh air, and the removal or filtering of dirt from the air, as the term "Air Conditioning" is generally understood and accepted to mean and imply to the trade and public. The said Robert W. Devore also agreed to cease and desist from stating or representing in his advertising or otherwise that the so-called deodorizing preparation used in connection with his fans will completely absorb and destroy all room odors or cause them to disappear within a few moments, when such is not the fact. (Apr. 13, 1939.)

2451. Candy—Lottery Scheme.—Fred E. Foos Candy Co., Inc., a corporation, engaged in the manufacture and packaging of various candy assortments and in the sale thereof in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, firms, individuals, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Fred E. Foos Candy Co., Inc., in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of its candy assortments in commerce as defined by the act, agreed it will cease and desist from selling and distributing directly to retail dealers or to jobbers or wholesale dealers for resale to the retail trade candy assortments so packaged and assembled that sales of such candy to the consuming public are to be made or may be made by means of a lottery, gaming device, or scheme of chance; supplying to or placing in the hands of others for resale packaged assortments of candy which are so arranged as to enable the same to be sold or disposed of by means of a lottery, gaming device or scheme of chance; supplying to or placing in the hands of others for resale packaged assortments of candy together with any plan or plans involving the use of a lottery, gaming device, or scheme of chance which is to be or may be used in the sale or distribution of said candies. (Apr. 7, 1939.)

2452. Insect Lanterns—Qualities.—Jackman & Co., Inc., a corporation, engaged in the business of manufacturing alleged mosquito electrocutors and in the sale thereof under the trade designation “Death Ray Lantern,” in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Jackman & Co., Inc., in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of its lanterns in commerce as defined by the act, agreed it will cease and desist from the use in its advertisements and advertising matter or in any other way of statements or representations which directly assert or clearly import and imply that the light furnished by the lantern will attract mosquitoes and other flying insects to it in sufficient numbers to make said device of distinct value in the control of such insects; that mosquitoes and other flying insects which may be attracted by the light will all be electrocuted or killed upon contacting the electrically charged wires surrounding the lantern; that the destruction of mosquitoes or flying insects which may be attracted by the light is due solely to electrocution resulting from their contacting the charged wires surrounding the lantern, when such is not the fact. (Apr. 14, 1939.)

2453. Casein Glue—Qualities.—Perkins Glue Co., a corporation, engaged in the business of manufacturing a casein glue and in the sale thereof in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Perkins Glue Co., in connection with the sale and distribution of its casein glues in commerce as defined by the act, agreed to cease and desist from the use in its advertising matter or otherwise of the word “Waterproof” as descriptive of said products which are not, in fact, waterproof, and from the use of the word “Waterproof” in any way so as to import or imply that said products are impervious to water or its effect, when such is not the fact. (Apr. 14, 1939.)

2454. Novelties and Push Cards—Free, Composition, Prices, Lottery Schemes and Devices and Earnings.—Grund Art & Novelty Co., Inc., a corporation, engaged in sale and distribution of novelties and push cards in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.
Grund Art & Novelty Co., Inc., in connection with its sale and distribution of merchandise in commerce as defined by said act, agreed to cease and desist from—

(a) Representing that any article is given "Free" or without cost when receipt of such article is contingent upon any consideration, terms, or conditions, as payment of money, purchase of other articles, or rendering of services, not clearly and unequivocally disclosed in direct connection with the making of such representations.

(b) The use of the term "Genuine Pig Grained" or of words phrases, statements or representations of similar import as descriptive of a product not composed of pig skin; or the quoting of a fictitious price or figure as the alleged value of an article which is in excess of the price for which such article is available to the public in the due course of business.

(c) Supplying to, or placing in the hands of others, push or pull cards, punchboards or other lottery devices for the purpose of enabling such persons to dispose of or sell any merchandise by the use thereof.

(d) Mailing, shipping, or transporting to agents or to distributors or members of the public push or pull cards, punchboards or other lottery devices so prepared or printed as to enable said persons to sell or distribute any merchandise by the use thereof.

(e) Selling or otherwise disposing of any merchandise by the use of push or pull cards, punchboards or other lottery devices.

(f) Representing any specified sum of money as possible earnings or profits of agents, salesmen, representatives, or distributors, for any given period of time, which is not a true representation of the average earnings or profits consistently made by its active, full-time agents, salesmen, representatives or distributors in the ordinary course of business and under normal conditions and circumstances.

(g) Representing any specified sum of money as earnings or profits of any specified agent, salesman, representative or distributor, for any given period of time, which has not in fact been consistently earned by such agent, salesman, representative or distributor, in the ordinary course of business and under normal conditions and circumstances. (Apr. 17, 1939.)

2455. Wines—Business Status and Government Supervision.—Bonded Wineries, Inc., a corporation, engaged as wholesaler in sale and distribution of wines in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnership likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition in commerce as set forth therein.

Under the Internal Revenue Laws the term "Bonded Wineries" means premises on which wines are produced or fermented before payment of tax, with Government supervision over said premises to assure the collection of revenue. When the term “Bonded Wineries” is used as a trade name by a company not engaged as a producer or fermenter, it is misleading insofar as it creates or tends to create the impression in the minds of the public that the user thereof is a producer or fermenter of wines operating under Government supervision and endorsement.

Bonded Wineries, Inc., in connection with its sale and distribution of wines in commerce as defined by said act, agreed to cease and desist from the use of the words “Bonded Wineries” as the corporate or trade name under which it carries on its business, or from the use of the word “Bonded” or the word “Wineries” either together or independently, or words, phrases, statements, or representations of similar import as descriptive of its business; and from the use of these or any other statements the effect of which tends or may tend to convey the belief to the purchasing public that it is a producer or fermenter of wines operating under Government supervision and endorsement, or is a producer or fermenter of wines, at all, when such are not the facts. (Apr. 20, 1939.)

2456. Baby Chicks—Unique Nature and Commission Approval.—Harry E. Ohls and Charles Yeager, copartners trading under the name and style “Ohls Poultry Yards & Hatchery,” engaged in the business of operating hatcheries at Marion and Mt. Vernon, Ohio, and at Marshall, Mo., and in the sale of baby chicks in interstate commerce, in competition with other partnerships, corporations, individuals, and firms likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Harry E. Ohls and Charles Yeager, in connection with the advertisement, sale, and distribution of their White Leghorn baby chicks in commerce as defined by the act, agreed they will cease and desist from the use of the word “Giant” as descriptive of said chicks or the breed thereof, when in fact no such breed of White Leghorn chicks exists, and from the use of the word “Giant” either alone or in connection with any other word or words or in any way so as to import or imply that the said chicks are of a special breed or strain of White Leghorn chicks which, when raised by the ordinary purchaser, would be of giant or super size, when such is not the fact. The said copartners also agreed to cease and desist from the use in their advertising or other printed matter of statements or representations, the effect of which conveys or may tend to convey the belief to purchasers or prospective purchasers of said chicks that the Federal Trade Commission has either accepted or approved any of the statements made or contained in said advertising or printed matter. (Apr. 20, 1939.)
2457. Neck Chains—Composition and Business Status.—Frank A. Duke, a sole trader operating under the assumed name of Etna Chain Co., engaged in the assembly of neck chains fabricated from gold covered wire of the type known to the industry as rolled gold plate, and in the sale and distribution thereof in interstate commerce, in competition with other individuals, corporations, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition in commerce as set forth therein.

In the jewelry trade the mark “1/20–12 Kt.” means and is understood to mean that 1/20 by weight of the entire article is 12 carat gold, or that, on a fractional basis, the gold content is 25/1000 fine gold. Allowing for a 10 percent tolerance, an article that is so marked will be deemed misbranded if it does not have a fine gold content of 22.5/1000. The term “Gold Filled,” as established by the commercial standards set up by the Department of Commerce of the United States Government means and is understood to mean that the article so marked has a coating of gold of not less than 10 carat fineness and that the weight of such gold is not less than 1/20 the weight of the entire article.

The jewelry manufacturing industry in America is largely centered in the city of Providence, State of Rhode Island; and a manufacturer of jewelry whose address is Providence, R. I., has by reason thereof some degree of prestige in dealing with the jewelry trade.

Frank A. Duke, in connection with his sale and distribution of neck chains or other articles in commerce as defined by said Act, agreed to cease and desist from—

(a) Labeling, marking, stamping, or otherwise designating neck chains or other articles with the term “1/20–12 Kt.,” either alone or in connection with the words “Gold Filled,” or otherwise, when in fact the gold content of such mounting is other than 25/1000 gold or better; or the use of the words “Gold Filled” as applied to any article having a coat of gold of less than 10 carat fineness and when the weight of such gold is less than 1/20 the weight of the entire article.

(b) Designating himself as a “manufacturer of chains” when in fact he merely cuts up chains already manufactured by others and assembles them for the market; or, by direct statement or reasonable inference, representing that he operates a factory or plant in Providence, R. I., or that the chains which he sells are manufactured by him in Providence, R. I., or elsewhere, when such are not the facts.

2458. Pianos and Furniture—Free and Special Prices.—Sterchi Brothers Stores, Inc., a corporation, engaged in the retail furniture business in a number of cities in various southern States and in the sale and distribution of such furniture, including pianos, in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition in commerce as set forth therein.

Sterchi Brothers Stores, Inc., in connection with its sale and distribution of pianos or other merchandise in commerce as defined by said act, agreed to cease and desist from—

(a) Representing that any article is loaned, given, or delivered "free" or without cost when receipt of such article is contingent upon any consideration, terms, or conditions, as payment of money, purchase of other articles or rendering of services, not clearly and unequivocally disclosed in direct connection with the making of such representations.

(b) Representing that the prices quoted for any merchandise are at reduced figures, when such is not the fact; or that such prices are "Special" or "Extra Special," when they are the usual and customary prices for which said merchandise is sold; or that they are an "Extra Special bargain" when such figures are equal to or in excess of those for which the same or similar merchandise is available to the public in the due course of business.

(c) The use of statements such as "Ordered Sold," "Must be sold or moved to stop expense of storage," or representations of similar import, with the capacity and tendency to convey the belief to purchasers that a particular sale of merchandise is due to unusual and necessitous circumstances or is being made at sacrifice prices, when such are not the facts.

(d) Representing that the purchaser can "save money" by buying direct from the warehouse when in fact the shipment advertised is all sold from the warehouse and no other prices are quoted. (Apr. 24, 1939.)

Continental Envelope Corp., in connection with the sale and distribution of its products in commerce as defined by the act, agreed to cease and desist from stating or representing in its advertisements and advertising matter or otherwise that the said corporation produces over 1,000,000 envelopes a day or over 300,000,000 a year, when such is not the fact; and from the use of the aforesaid or any other statements concerning the production of products by the said corporation which do not truthfully and accurately represent the actual output of products. The said corporation also agreed to cease and desist from stating or representing in its said advertising or in any other way that purchasers of its products “save up to 30 percent” so as to import or imply that the prices asked by said corporation for its products are up to 30 percent less than prevailing prices or the prices charged or the discounts allowed by competitors, when such is not the fact. (Apr. 24, 1939.)

2460. Liquors—Source or Origin.—Standard Distillers Products, Inc., engaged as a wholesaler of liquors and in the sale and distribution thereof in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Prior to the passage of the National Prohibition Act there had been on the market for many years a brand of rye whiskey put out by Winand Distilling Co. in Pikesville, Md., which was well and favorably known to the trade under the name “Pikesville.” The enactment of the prohibition law resulted in the cessation of the business, the dismantling of the distillery at Pikesville, and the surrender of the corporate charter of its owner. The present owner of the trade mark “Pikesville” for whiskey or distilled spirits is The Maryland-Pikesville Distillery, Inc., which neither owns nor operates a distillery, but has granted exclusive license to Standard Distillers Products, Inc. for the use and enjoyment of the good will, trade-mark “Pikesville” throughout the United States.

Standard Distillers Products, Inc., in connection with its sale and distribution of whiskey products and distilled spirits in commerce as defined by the act, agreed it will cease and desist from the use on its labels, brands, or other trade indicia of the word “Pikesville” as a designation of or as applied to any whiskey or distilled spirit product which is not of the same type and quality as the product formerly made by Winand Distilling Co., known to the trade and to the public as “Pikesville”; labelling, branding, or otherwise designating a whiskey or distilled spirit product in any manner with the capacity or tendency to convey the belief to purchasers that such liquor was distilled or produced in Pikesville, Md., when such is not the fact. (Apr. 24, 1939.)

ships, and corporations likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

The term "wholesale," as applied to commercial transactions, means and is understood to mean selling to the trade for resale, and seldom, if ever, to the purchasing public; and a wholesaler is a distrib­utor whose principal business is selling to the retail dealer. It is the character of sales to the trade, that makes and distinguishes a wholesaler. It is a common practice for wholesalers to quote list prices for the items set forth in their catalogs which they distribute to the trade. These list prices correspond generally to the retail prices for which such articles are supposed to be sold to the public.

The dealer in purchasing such items is allowed a trade discount whereby he is enabled to make his profit. Thus a discount of 50 percent and an additional cash discount of 10 percent makes a total discount from the list price of 55 percent, whereby the cost of an article to the retail dealer is but 45 percent of the retail price advertised to the public.

Caroline R. Macher and Robert J. Macher, and each of them agreed, that in connection with their sale and distribution of watches, jewelry, and other merchandise in commerce as defined by the act, they will cease and desist from the use of the word "wholesale" as a part of the trade name under which they carry on their industrial jobbing business, or the words "Wholesale" or "Wholesale's" in referring to their quoted prices, or any other word or words of like import, either alone or in connection with other words as descriptive of the business conducted by them, when in fact such business is not wholesale; and from the use of said words or either thereof, in any way so as to import or imply that the business conducted by them is that of a wholesaler, that is to say, consists of the sale of products to the trade for resale as distinguished from sale to the ultimate consumer, when such is not the fact; Representing in any way that they offer nationally advertised brands of silverware or other articles at "Wholesale prices" or "Wholesale's prices," when they do not in fact sell them at regular wholesale prices; The use in their advertising matter of purported "Retail prices" of products in connection with stated discounts to which said prices are allegedly subject so as to import or imply that the purchaser obtains said products at actual wholesale prices or that said discounted prices are wholesale prices or are other than the regular and customary prices for which the products are offered for sale and sold to the members of the consuming public in the usual course of business, when such is not the fact; Representing their business to be in its 56th year or in any other way that it has been in operation for a period of time that antedates 1930; or that their said business is the successor to the Wholesale House of J. Macher, when such is not the fact. (Apr. 25, 1939.)

2462. Candies—Lottery Scheme.—Miss Saylor's Chocolates, Inc., a corporation, engaged in the business of manufacturing candies and in the sale thereof, chiefly to cigar and drug store dealers, in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Miss Saylor's Chocolates, Inc., in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of its candies in commerce as defined by the act, agreed it will cease and desist from supplying or placing in the hands of others punch boards or other lottery devices for the purpose of enabling such persons to dispose of or sell said merchandise by the use thereof; mailing, shipping or transporting to the retail or other trade or to members of the public punchboards or other lottery devices so prepared or printed as to enable said trade or persons to sell or distribute merchandise by the use thereof; advertising, selling, or otherwise disposing of merchandise by the use of punchboards or other lottery devices. (Apr. 25, 1939.)

2463. "Hychex Jelly," Etc.—Business Status.—Hychex Laboratories, Inc., a corporation, engaged in the sale and distribution in interstate commerce, of diaphragms, rings and a so-called "Hychex jelly," in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Hychex Laboratories, Inc., in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of its products in commerce as defined by the act, agreed it will forthwith cease and desist from the use in connection with or as a part of its corporate or the trade name under which it carries on its business of the word "Laboratories," and from the use of the said word "Laboratories" in any way in soliciting the sale of its products so as to import or imply that the said corporation owns and operates or controls a laboratory or laboratories, when such is not the fact. (May 3, 1939.)

2464. Necklaces and Sales Cards or Boards—Lottery Schemes and Devices.—Imperial Merchandise Co., Inc., a corporation, engaged, among other things, in the business of purchasing merchandise, consisting of necklaces and sales cards or boards, and in the sale thereof in interstate commerce, through its Secretary, Louis Bloom, under the registered trade name "Trans-Pacific Import Company," in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships
likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Imperial Merchandise Co., Inc., in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of its merchandise in commerce as defined by the act, agreed it will forthwith cease and desist from supplying or placing in the hands of others punchboards, push cards or other lottery devices for the purpose of enabling such persons to dispose of or sell said merchandise by the use thereof; mailing, shipping or transporting to the trade or to members of the public punchboards, push cards or other lottery devices so prepared or printed as to enable said trade or persons to sell or distribute merchandise by the use thereof; advertising, selling or otherwise disposing of merchandise by the use of punchboards, push cards or other lottery devices. (May 4, 1939.)

2465. Sponges, Etc.—Business Status.—Addison Sponge Co., Inc., a corporation, engaged in the business of selling sponges and chamois skins in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Addison Sponge Co., Inc., in connection with the offering for sale, and sale and distribution of its products in commerce as defined by the act, agreed it will forthwith cease and desist from the use in its advertisements and advertising matter or otherwise of statements or representations, the effect of which is to convey or tend to convey the belief to readers that the said Addison Sponge Co., Inc., actually owns and operates or controls a sponge packing house at Tarpon Springs, Fla., or elsewhere, or that the business which it purchased from The Jos. Niehaus Co. was that of a packer and producer of sponges and that it, the said Addison Sponge Co., Inc., succeeded to such business as a producer and packer of sponges; or cuts or pictorial representations of any building, marked or accompanied by words or statements so as to import or imply or which may cause readers to believe that the said Addison Sponge Co., Inc., uses or occupies the whole of said building in the conduct of its business, when such is not the fact. (May 8, 1939.)

2466. Hosiery—Nature of Manufacture and Source or Origin.—Blackstone Hosiery Mills, Inc., a corporation, engaged in the manufacture of hosiery and in the sale and distribution thereof in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.
English Ribbed hose is a distinctive type and quality of hosiery originating in England, manufactured there under a patented process, and imported into the United States where it has long been favorably known and recognized by the trade and the purchasing public. Since 1930, licensees of the English manufacturer have in this country used a machine known to the trade as “Komet” to make ribbed hose similar to the original English rib. Another machine used in the United States for the manufacture of ribbed hose is known to the trade as “R. I.” The R. I. machine differs, however, in certain material respects from the Komet and from machines used in England for the making of the English Ribbed type; and is not capable of turning out a hose of the type and quality known to the trade and the public as English Ribbed.

Blackstone Hosiery Mills, Inc., agreed, in connection with its sale and distribution of hosiery products in commerce as defined by the act, it will cease and desist from the use, on transfers, brands or other markings of said products, of the words “Made in English Fashion” as descriptive of hosiery which is not in fact so made; or representing or characterizing a product in any other way that may import or imply, or the effect of which may be to convey the belief that the same is either an English product or is of a style and quality known to the trade and to the public as English Ribbed hose, when such is not the fact. (May 9, 1939.)

2467. Hosiery—Nature of Manufacture and Source or Origin.—Waldensian Hosiery Mills, Inc., a corporation, engaged in the manufacture of hosiery and in the sale and distribution thereof in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

English Ribbed hose is a distinctive type and quality of hosiery originating in England, manufactured there under a patented process, and imported into the United States where it has long been favorably known and recognized by the trade and the purchasing public. Since 1930, licensees of the English manufacturer have in this country used a machine known to the trade as “Komet” to make ribbed hose similar to the original English rib. Another machine used in the United States for the manufacture of ribbed hose is known to the trade as “R. I.” The R. I. machine differs, however, in certain material respects from the Komet and from machines used in England for the making of the English Ribbed type; and is not capable of turning out a hose of the type and quality known to the trade and the public as English Ribbed.

Waldensian Hosiery Mills, Inc., in connection with its sale and distribution of hosiery products in commerce as defined by said act, agreed to cease and desist from the use, on transfers, brands or other markings of said products, of the words "Made in English Fashion" as descriptive of hosiery which is not in fact so made; or representing or characterizing a product in any other way that may import or imply, or the effect of which may tend to convey the belief that the same is either an English product or is of a style and quality known to the trade and to the public as English Ribbed hose, when such is not the fact. (May 11, 1939.)

2468. Dresses—Composition.—Joseph Levay, Inc., a corporation, engaged in the business of manufacturing women's dresses from materials purchased by it from the fabricators thereof and in the sale of said dresses under the designation "Renella Prints," in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Joseph Levay, Inc., in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of products in commerce as defined by the act, agreed it will forthwith cease and desist from invoicing, branding, labeling, advertising, or otherwise representing any product containing rayon, in whole or in part, without making full, proper and nondeceptive disclosure of the fiber content thereof by stating the names of the fibers present in the order of their predominance by weight and by giving the percentages of any fibers which are or may be present in less than a substantial proportion. (May 12, 1939.)

The process employed in the production of signature stamps, until recently, required the making of a woodcut as the basis for the stamp, which involves a photographic process whereby the signature submitted is transferred by means of a stock-composing machine to a previously sensitized wood block. A skilled wood engraver then gouges around the copy to a shallow depth, after which the block is placed in a routing machine for completion. A clay mold is made from the woodcut and unvulcanized stamp gum is placed in the mold and submitted to hot pressure, resulting in a rubber duplicate of the woodcut.
A hand engraving process has been developed by The Autograph Engravers, of Chicago, Ill., for use in the manufacture of its “HE” rubber stamp signatures, whereby the signature submitted is traced by hand with the aid of a tracing paper and hectograph ink direct to the rubber pattern, thus leaving the facsimile standing. This obviates the intermediate steps of woodcut, clay mold and vulcanization.

Bankers & Merchants Stamp Works, Inc., in connection with its sale and distribution of facsimile autograph stamps in commerce as defined by the act, agreed it will cease and desist from distributing, or placing in the hands of others for their use, any advertising, order blanks, or other representations of whatever kind or character containing trade-marks, descriptions of, or references to certain designated products so as to import or imply that orders received as the result of such advertising or by the use of such order blanks will actually be filled with the product indicated, when such is not the fact; representing or causing others to represent its products in any way which tends or may tend to convey an erroneous belief to purchasers that said corporation will and does fill orders with the advertised product for which the orders have been received, when such is not the fact. (May 12, 1939.)

2470. Colored Drawings or Pictures of Merchandise—Business Status.—Max L. Hill, an individual trading as “The Journal Printing Company,” engaged as a job printer in the business of color printing and in the sale in interstate commerce of colored drawings or pictures of merchandise to customers and which drawings or pictures such customers use in connection with the advertisement and sale by them of such merchandise; in competition with other individuals, firms, partnerships, and corporations likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Max L. Hill agreed that he will forthwith cease and desist from stating or representing in his advertisements and advertising matter or in any other way that either the photographing or the engraving involved in the production of the finished advertising offered for sale, sold, and distributed by him in commerce as defined by the act, is done in his own plant, or that a plant owned, operated, or controlled by him is equipped to do and does perform either the colored photography or the photoengraving work contemplated and required in the production of the said finished advertising, when such is not the fact. (May 15, 1939.)

2471. Motor Oils, Greases, Etc.—Business Status.—Penn-Crest Refining Co., Inc., a corporation, engaged in the blending of motor oils and the compounding of greases and other lubricants and in the sale and distribution thereof in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition in commerce as set forth therein.

Pennsylvania is a State famous in the oil industry, and Oil City is a famous address within that State for petroleum products produced and refined there which are well and favorably known to the public.

Penn-Crest Refining Co., Inc., in connection with the sale and distribution of its products in commerce as defined by said act, agreed to cease and desist from

(a) The use of the word "refining" as a part of or in connection or conjunction with the corporate or trade name under which it advertises, offers for sale or sells its preparations in interstate commerce; and from the use of the word "refining" or of any other word of similar meaning so as to import or imply or the effect of which tends or may tend to convey the belief to purchasers that the preparations sold by it are made in an oil refinery which it owns and operates or directly and absolutely controls, when such is not the fact.

(b) The use of the address "Oil City, Pennsylvania" or of any other address in the State of Pennsylvania in any manner so as to import or imply or the effect of which may be to convey the belief to purchasers that said corporation has a place of business or conducts its operations in Oil City or elsewhere in Pennsylvania, when such is not the fact. (May 16, 1939.)

2472. Hospital and Laboratory Supplies—Source or Origin.—Hellige, Inc., a corporation, engaged in selling at wholesale various types of hospital and laboratory supplies, including cover glasses bearing the trade name "Checker Brand" in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition in commerce as set forth therein.

Hellige, Inc., in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of its products in commerce as defined by said act, agreed to cease and desist from the use in its price lists or on its labels affixed to the containers of its products or in any other way of the slogan "Made in U. S. A." or of any other word or words of similar inference so as to import or imply that the glass of which said products are composed is or that the products in their entirety are of domestic origin, when such is not the fact. (May 18, 1939.)

tion in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition in commerce as set forth therein.

Milshire Garment Co., Inc., in connection with the sale and distribution of its products in commerce as defined by said act, agreed to cease and desist from—

(a) Representing in, on, or in connection with its labels, brands, or other trade indicia, or in any way, either directly or by implication, by the use of words, pictures, deceptive type, or otherwise, that a garment so labeled or referred to is 100 percent camel's hair when the fiber content thereof is not in fact 100 percent camel's hair; or that the garment has any other content or composition of fiber which is not true in fact.

(b) Indicating directly or by implication or appearance of product the composition of a garment of mixed fibers without naming all such fibers, with equal conspicuousness, in the order of their predominance by weight; and giving the percentage of each such fiber present to such extent as is necessary in the respective circumstances to prevent confusion and misunderstanding or deception of the purchasing public as to the fiber content of such merchandise.

(c) The use, in, on, or in connection with its labels, brands, or other trade indicia of any pictures or depictions of a camel or other animal, or of any other depictions or pictorial representations, in a manner having the capacity, tendency, or effect of misleading or deceiving the purchasing public in respect to such merchandise.

(d) The use of the legend "100%" or of any representation of similar import, in, on or in connection with its labels, brands, or other trade indicia, as descriptive of merchandise in any manner which has or may have the capacity or tendency to confuse, mislead, or deceive the purchasing public as to the quality, composition, or character thereof. (May 19, 1939.)

2474. Novelty Merchandise—Lottery Scheme and Devices.—Jack Chertow, Mary Finkelson Fractor, and Louis Fractor, individuals, engaged for some time past under the firm name and style "American Premium House" in the business of selling novelty merchandise at wholesale and retail in interstate commerce, in competition with other partnerships, individuals, firms, and corporations likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition as set forth therein.

Jack Chertow, Mary Finkelson Fractor, and Louis Fractor, in connection with the sale and distribution of their merchandise in commerce as defined by said act, agreed, and each of them agreed to cease and desist from—
(a) Supplying to or placing in the hands of others, pull cards or other lottery devices for the purpose of enabling such persons to dispose of or sell any merchandise by the use thereof.

(b) Mailing, shipping, or transporting to agents, distributors, or members of the public pull cards or other lottery devices so prepared or printed as to enable such persons to sell or distribute any merchandise by the use thereof.

(c) Selling or otherwise disposing of any merchandise by the use of pull cards or other lottery devices.

(d) The use of a scheme, plan, or method of sale or of promoting the sale of merchandise which involves or includes the use of any lottery, alleged gift enterprise, or scheme of chance whereby the identity of an article of merchandise to be purchased or the price to be paid therefor, or both the article and its price, is or are determined by lot or chance. (May 23, 1939.)

2475. Card or Tag Products—Special Advantages.—Photo-Markets, Inc., a corporation, engaged in the publication of a magazine entitled “Photo-Markets” the purpose of which being to avail its readers of information as to probable markets for their amateur photographic work, selling said magazines to dealers for resale and also direct to members of the reading public located in the District of Columbia and in various States. Incidental to the sale of the magazine, the said Photo-Markets, Inc., also engaged in the sale of so-called “press cards” and of so-called “press tags” designed for attachment to the license plates of automobiles, said cards being inscribed to the effect that the person whose name appears thereon is an “accredited press photographer” and that “all courtesies extended will be appreciated by the Affiliates Press,” in competition with other corporations, individuals, and concerns likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the following alleged unfair methods of competition in commerce as set forth therein.

Photo-Markets, Inc., in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of its card or tag products in commerce as defined by the act, agreed that it will forthwith cease and desist from the use in its advertisements and advertising matter, on its said cards or tags, or in any other way, of the word “press” as descriptive, of said products or from in any other way stating or representing that the purchasers or holders of its said products will be granted or afforded exceptional privileges for photographic work or any other purpose by the authorities, as officers of the police or fire departments, of local cities or communities generally, when such is not the fact. (May 23, 1939.)

commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition in commerce as set forth therein.

The term "glare," as applied to colored eye-protective glasses, signifies an unpleasant sensation and a temporary blurring of vision caused by a high luminosity of the field of view, either as a whole or in part.

American Spectacle Co., Inc., in connection with the sale and distribution of its sun glasses in commerce as defined by said act, agreed to cease and desist from representing in any way whatsoever, or from placing in the hands of others the means of representing that said sun glasses bar or exclude 94 percent of harmful glare, or any other percentage which exceed the actual glare excluding capabilities thereof. (May 22, 1939.)

2477. Animal and Poultry Preparations—Qualities.—Master Laboratories, Inc., a corporation, engaged in the manufacture or compounding of a line of animal and poultry preparations, one of such preparations being designated "Poultone" and another "Master Capsule," and in the sale of said preparations in interstate commerce in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition in commerce as set forth therein.

Master Laboratories, Inc., in connection with the advertisements, offering for sale, sale, or distribution of its "Poultone" or "Master Capsule," or any other product containing substantially similar ingredients, whether under the same name or names or under any other name in interstate commerce or in the District of Columbia, agreed to cease and desist from stating or representing that the administration of such products, or of either thereof, to sick or ailing poultry will take care of or solve all the worm problems faced by the poultry raiser or will kill all worms or serve as a treatment and control of worms generally: Provided, however, If said products, or either thereof, possess medicinal properties or value which, when administered to poultry, will rid or cure such poultry of a particular type or kind of worm, and a representation is made to such effect, then in such case, the particular type or kind of worm referred to, shall be conspicuously and unequivocally disclosed in immediate connection with such representation. (May 25, 1939.)

firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition in commerce as set forth therein.

Perfumes imported from France are generally esteemed by the purchasing public for their superior quality, the French having developed this art through many years to a high degree; and perfumes manufactured in France and imported into the United States are preferred by a substantial portion of the purchasing public.

Gabilla, Inc., in connection with its sale and distribution of perfume products in commerce as defined by said act, agreed to cease and desist from—

(a) The use of the words "Paris" or "France" on its labels, containers, cartons, or otherwise in any way so as to import or imply or cause the belief that any product so marked is of French origin or was compounded or blended into its finished state at Paris, or in France; when such is not the fact.

(b) The use of the words "Bottled in U. S. A." or equivalent words, on or in connection with bottles containing products manufactured or processed within the United States, so as to import or imply, or the effect of which may be to cause the belief that the product within the bottle was imported in bulk into the United States and merely poured into the bottle from the bulk container; when such is not the fact.

(c) The use of any foreign address on its letterheads, on its products, in its trade literature, or otherwise, in any manner so as to import or imply, or the effect of which may be to cause the belief that said corporation has an office or place of business located at the address named in the foreign country indicated, when such is not the fact. (May 26, 1939.)

2479. Fly Ribbons—Composition.—Solo Chemical Works, Inc., a corporation, engaged in the business of manufacturing so-called tubular fly ribbons and in the sale thereof in interstate commerce, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged, entered into the following agreement to cease and desist from the alleged unfair methods of competition in commerce as set forth therein.

(a) That very few foods supply calcium.
(b) That the use of Darical Wafers will safeguard the health of expectant and nursing mothers unless expressly limited to supplying calcium requirements.
(c) That nervousness, insomnia and "run down" condition will be treated effectively in any substantial proportion of cases by the administration of Darical Wafers, or that calcium deficiency is to any great extent responsible for such conditions.

The respondent further agreed not to publish or cause to be published any testimonial containing any representation contrary to the foregoing agreement. (Jan. 3, 1939.)

02306. Iron Rest—Opportunities, Earnings and Free Product.—The Neverlift Co., Inc., a corporation, 6903 Woodlawn Avenue, Chicago, Ill., vendor-advertiser, was engaged in selling a device for easing the work of ironing, known as—Neverlift Iron Rest and agreed in soliciting the sale of and selling said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That the Neverlift Iron Rest sells so easy on a one-minute demonstration that a sale is made on nearly every call.
(b) That distributors can make 150% profit, unless it is explained that the distributor must purchase this device in lots of 5,000 and sell them all at the retail price of 50 cents in order to make this profit.
(c) That the "Sample Offer Plan" is "free" so long as the recipient must purchase a given number of these devices in order to obtain the "free" sample. (Jan. 6, 1939.)

02307. Booklet re Alleged Treatment for Old Leg Sores—Nature and Qualities.—F. C. Rath, an individual, doing business under the trade

1 The stipulations in question are those of the radio and periodical division with vendor-advertisers. Said division was created as of October 18, 1938 to carry on the functions and duties of the former special board of investigation. Period covered is that of this volume, namely, January 1, 1939, to May 31, 1939, inclusive. For digests of previous stipulations, see vols. 14 to 27 of Commission's decisions. The work in question as successively and currently carried on by the two units, above referred to, is dealt with in a summary way in the Commission's 1939 annual report at p. 135 et seq.

(rr) That representatives of the Cookware Co. of America know that they are true emissaries of health.

(ss) That respondent's book, "Healthward," is sent "free" of charge to all purchasers of Cookware, so long as such offer is contingent upon the purchase of a stated amount of respondent's merchandise.

(tt) That Dr. H. M. Adolph, head of C. C. A. Health Department, is legally (or otherwise) qualified to render any service pertaining to health or diet.

(uu) That the twelve C. C. A. Health Foods, or any one of them, are effective in restoring deficient elements to the body, or in bringing about a healthy condition of the body.

(vv) That Cookware Co. of America—
1. Opens the "Avenue to Health" for every one;
2. Offers a "perfected" health system; or
3. Provides "health insurance"
(wv) That "Dr." Burnette's Cookware saves Health, Money, Time, Worry.

(ax) That the book, "Healthward"—

1. Possesses value and/or merit; or
2. Is "free of charge," so long as the recipient must purchase a definite amount of goods to obtain a copy.

(yy) That, with "Dr." Burnette's highly perfected cookware, anyone can avoid having burned food, scorched food, or foods that stick.

(zz) That the “exclusive adjustable ventilators” with which Cookware Utensils are equipped permit undesirable odors in cooking to escape without notice (or renders the odors less undesirable or less noticeable than if the odors escaped through some other kind of orifice) and/or allow needed fresh air to reach the food as it cooks.

(aaa) That a set of Cookware Utensils—

1. Means far more to you and your loved ones than any life insurance policy as large as any one could obtain; or
2. Are a protection against the hazards of life.

(bbb) That Cookware Utensils—

1. Are the latest, most efficient and easiest to use health utensils that have been designed.
2. Will automatically save the health-giving elements of natural foods.
3. Have been developed to a point where it is a rare thing to burn any food.

(ccc) That recognized authorities have accepted these new cooking utensils as the most economical and the most efficient ever offered.

(ddd) That cooking without water, with "Dr." Burnette's Cookware Utensils, makes food more tasty, tender, and healthful than food cooked in other ways or is more efficient in saving needed elements; or implying through the use of similar representations that these results or the advantages of "waterless" cooking are exclusive with Cookware Utensils or can be obtained only through the use of Cookware Utensils.

(eee) That cooking without grease, with "Dr." Burnette's Cookware Utensils, saves the digestive system and/or eliminates stomach ailments.

(ff) That one may cook with more accuracy with "Dr." Burnette's Cookware Utensils than with other utensils.

(fff) That by cooking with "Dr." Burnette's Cookware Utensils one may save money because—

1. There is very slight food shrinkage.
2. One may save on greases.
3. Foods do not stick or burn.
4. Cheaper cuts of meat may be used; or implying through similar phraseology that these savings may be accomplished only when the respondent's utensils are employed.

(hhh) That "Dr." Burnette's Cookware Utensils enable one to cook with less fuel.

The respondent also agreed in soliciting the sale of its products in interstate commerce:

(iii) Not to include under the caption "Exclusive Advantages of Cookware", or any other heading of similar import, the heat indicator or the "air-tight, water-seal rim, or to represent in any other manner that these features are exclusive with Cookware Utensils; and
STIPULATIONS

(iii) Not to represent in any manner as "exclusive" any feature or attribute of its utensils, unless the same is, in fact, exclusive and not found in any other make of utensils. (Feb. 15, 1939.)

(a) That he manufactures five hundred or any number of products in excess of those actually manufactured in his plant.

(b) That his bleaches are safe or enable the user to have soft, smooth skin or eliminate complexion worries.

(c) That his skin lightener is double quick or gives double quick action or gives the user a new complexion.

(d) That his Lemon Vanishing Cream gives the user a lighter skin.

(e) That his salesmen can earn $600 or any certain amount except that the publication of actual earnings with statements of true circumstances is not prohibited by this provision; or that his offer to salesmen is the biggest money-making offer ever made.

(f) That the ingredients of his “One Minute Hair Tonic” get into the scalp or penetrate the scalp to do their work.
(g) That his "Madam Jones Female Tablets" give quick relief or prevent monthly pain.

(h) That his earrings are engraved or that any of the jewelry sold by him is engraved unless the cutting process is used in making the designs.

(i) That the set of the rings distributed with his "Sweet Georgia Brown" agent's outfit is a white stone.

(j) That his "Rolling Massage Cream" corrects, eliminates or is an effective treatment for blackheads, enlarged pores, wrinkles, age lines, bumps, pimples or blotches or does more than cleanse the skin.

(k) That his "Magic Pink Lovin' Cream" brightens the skin in one minute or at all.

(l) That his "No-Odor Liquid" gets rid of body odor.

(m) That his Lucky Mojo Perfume will enable the user to surround herself with love or win friends.

(n) That his perfume is triple strength.

(o) That through the use of his "Corn Knocker" corns may be lifted out or that it stops pains or enables one to dance and walk without pain.

(p) That his Red Clover Compound helps the whole system or keeps the blood in better condition.

(q) That any of his perfumes is a "French Creation" or of French origin.

The said M. G. Neuman further agreed to cease and desist from the use of the trade name "Triple Action Hair Strength" and "Jickee La France" for the products now so designated, and to cease and desist from designating his lotion as "Cucumber Lotion" unless and until said lotion contains a substantial amount of cucumber juice or extract. (Mar. 7, 1939.)

02340. Cosmetics—Qualities, Nature, Etc.—Marie Earle, Inc., a corporation, 714 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. (a) That the product herein designated as Essential Cream:
   1. Will purify the skin generally or of any specific substance,
   2. Removes deeply imbedded grime, or that grime is deeply imbedded, or that this product will cleanse more than the surface of the skin,
   3. Will refresh the pores of the skin, or that such pores become tired,
   4. Replaces or replenishes the natural oils of the skin, or that such results may be obtained by any external application,
   5. Will keep the skin young, or
   6. Is enriching or will enrich the skin.
STIPULATIONS

(b) That the use of soap and water is inefficient or is detrimental to the skin, that harmful alkali is present in the finest soaps, or that soap or water or both are too drying for use on the skin.

(c) That the products advertised and sold by Marie Earle, Inc., or any of them, have any effect upon the muscles or upon the facial contour.

(d) That the product designated herein as "Perfection Acne Lotion" or any other preparation of the same or similar composition, is a competent treatment for acne due to systemic conditions, noninflammatory blemishes or blackhead conditions, or that it is a competent treatment for general oiliness of the skin or blemishes due to clogged pores, or that such a product will affect the functioning of the oil glands or dissolve secretions embedded in the pores.

(e) That any of the products advertised and sold by Marie Earle, Inc., used either alone or in combination, will nourish the skin or tissues or have any beneficial effect at all upon the underlying tissues.

(f) That any of the products advertised and sold by Marie Earle, Inc., is rejuvenating or will rejuvenate the skin.

(g) That the product herein designated as Stimulating Oil is a competent treatment or an effective remedy for an oily skin or for an anemic skin.

(h) That the Perfection Special Lotion will without qualification heal inflammatory conditions, skin eruptions, pimples, blotches, cold sores, Insect bites or similar conditions of the skin.

(i) That the product hereinafter designated as Astringent Throat Cream, or any other preparation of the same or similar composition, is an astringent or will prevent or counteract crepey or sagging conditions or lines.

(j) That the product designated Marrow Cream will provide nourishment for the skin or tissues or will overcome or be of any value in the treatment of scrawniness, stringiness, bagginess, over-thinness, or any of its manifestations, or that its use will develop the face, neck, shoulders, back, bust, or any other portion of the human anatomy.

(k) That Onguent pour les Cils, or any other of the products advertised and sold by Marie Earle, Inc., will promote the growth of eye lashes or eye brows or overcome or improve thin lashes.

(l) That the product designated Eye Cream is a competent treatment for lines or wrinkles, regardless of the cause thereof.

(m) That the product hereinafore designated Strong Astringent, or any other of similar composition, will effectively remedy an oily skin condition, regulate or have any other effect upon the oil glands, tone the skin generally or give the skin a fine soft texture.

(n) That the product hereinafore designated Perfection Elixir (Liquid Bleach) will "clear" the skin.

Marie Earle, Inc. further agreed to cease and desist from the use of the word "Acne" as a part of the trade name for the product hereinbefore designated "Acne Lotion," or any other product of the same or similar composition, unless in direct connection therewith and in equally conspicuous type the product is limited to the treatment of superficial conditions only.

Marie Earle, Inc. further agreed to cease and desist from designating as "astringent," either by the wording of the trade name or otherwise, the product hereinbefore referred to as "Astringent Throat Cream," or any other preparation of the same or similar composition.
Marie Earle, Inc. further agreed to cease and desist from designating or otherwise advertising the product hereinbefore referred to as "Strong Astringent," in any way which states, imports or implies that the astringent properties of this preparation are strong so long as they are in fact extremely mild.

Marie Earle, Inc. further agreed to cease and desist from designating as a bleach the preparations herein referred to as "Perfection Elixir (Liquid Bleach)" and "Perfection Extra Strong Bleach (Liquid)," unless the products are accompanied by a warning to the effect that the container thereof must be kept tightly closed in order to retain the effectiveness of the respective product, and that even when kept tightly closed the bleaching power of the product cannot be relied upon for more than a limited period of time.

Marie Earle, Inc. represents and asserts that the sale of the product hereinbefore designated as Stimulating Oil has been discontinued and that the sale of this product or any other of the same or similar composition will not be resumed.

Marie Earle, Inc. further represents and asserts that the sale of the product referred to as Perfection Extra Strong Bleach (Powder) in the foregoing has been discontinued and that the sale of this product or any other of the same or similar composition will not be resumed. (Mar. 8, 1939.)

02342. Cattle and Poultry Feeds.—Qualities and Composition.—Alma B. Dannen, Dwight L. Dannen, Arline Mannschreck, and H. L. Dannen, Dannen, partners trading as Dannen Grain and Milling Co., 412 Street, St. Joseph, Mo., vendor-advertisers, were engaged in selling cattle feeds designated Big Dee Dairy Feed and Little Dee Dairy Feed and poultry feeds designated Big Dee Chick Starter, Big Dee Laying Mash and Green Top Egg Mash and agreed in soliciting the sale of and selling said products in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That the product in connection with a program of diet or exercise will cause one to have normal weight or enable one to lose any desired amount of superfluous weight or to control one's weight, or to get rid of flesh.

(b) That the advertised method of weight reduction is a natural method or that it assures health.

(c) That "every" human being is born calcium poor or that a great majority of people are deficient in calcium and phosphorus.

(d) That by using the advertised method of weight reduction one cannot fail to improve the figure where such improvement is desired. (Mar. 9, 1939.)
(a) That the minerals in their dairy feed are proportioned to give "unexcelled" milk production or are perfectly balanced.

(b) That their dairy feed is the "ideal" ration for dairy cows before freshening or "insures" the health of the cow and calf.

(c) That the Vitamin E in their poultry feed controls range paralysis or that a deficiency of Vitamin E will cause range paralysis.

(d) That the Vitamin F in their poultry feeds will build feathers or help digestion or that a deficiency of Vitamin F will cause dull feathers or unthrifty birds.

(e) That the Vitamin G in their products will ward off or guard against intestinal disturbances; or that a deficiency of this vitamin causes digestive upsets, nervousness or sore mouth or inflammation of the tongue.

(f) That the Potassium Iodide in their feed controls or regulates the beating of the heart.

(g) That the iodine in their feeds aids in the feathering of poultry unless limited to expediting "moulting" or that the use of iodine in their feeds results in a saving of foods.

(h) That the Bone Meal in their feeds aids or prevents diarrhea.

(i) That their Chick Starter will raise chicks when others fail.

(j) That the use of their Chick Starter is the surest, safest, or simplest method of raising baby chicks or that it enables one to market broilers "earlier" or makes them weigh heavier.

(k) That their feeds are "doubly fortified" with vitamins or contain an "excess" of vitamins.

(l) That their feeds increase egg production, improve shell texture, reduce blood spots, increase fertility, improve hatchability, produce stronger chicks, reduce mortality, give better moults, or protect against disease unless limited to their use in flocks which have been previously fed on an improperly balanced or unbalanced diet.

(m) That their Chick Starter "insures" 2-pound broilers in record time or will "insure" more vitality, fewer cripples, or better feathered, earlier, heavier fliers.

(n) That most poultry feeds are deficient in minerals or that ordinary corn meal does not contain the corn germ or the most valuable elements of the whole grain.

(o) That their Chick Starter supplies nutrition with greatest economy of feed. (Mar. 9, 1939.)

02343. Men's Clothing—Composition and Free Products.—Franklin Tailoring Co., a corporation, also doing business as Jackson Tailoring Co., 330 South Franklin Street, Chicago, Ill., vendor-advertiser, was engaged in selling Men's Clothing and agreed in soliciting the sale of and selling said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) Designating, describing or representing as "Wool," "All Wool," or "Woolen" the fabrics used in the manufacture of its clothing (except linings and fittings) when such fabrics are not composed wholly of wool.

(b) Designating, describing or representing as "Wool," "All Wool," or "Woolen" any fabric made partly of wool and partly of cotton, silk, rayon, linen, or any other fiber, unless the same is designated, described or represented as "Wool and Cotton," "Wool and Silk," "Wool and Rayon," etc. in the order of the predominating fiber content.
(c) Representing that certain of its suits are free to its salespersons or agents when such suits are in fact bought and paid for by services performed by said salespersons or agents in the sale of merchandise. (Mar. 14, 1939.)

02344. Gasoline Saving Device—Qualities, Indorsement, Etc.—Akron Lamp and Manufacturing Co., a corporation trading as Diamond Fuelizer, 369 Steese Building, Akron, Ohio, vendor-advertiser, was engaged in selling a device designed to save gasoline and designated Diamond Fuelizer and agreed in soliciting the sale of and selling said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That the Diamond Fuelizer when used with Colgra Super Film as a cylinder spray or otherwise:

1. Will give the average motorist one gallon of gas in every five for one cent; or
2. Will greatly increase gasoline mileage; or
3. Will keep repair and fuel expenses at a minimum; or
4. Will prevent overheating unless qualified to state that such is accomplished by helping to keep the motor cooler; or
5. Will reduce pre-ignition unless qualified to state that such is accomplished by a reduction of carbon formation.

(b) That said device will, by leaning the fuel mixture, save gasoline or result in better mileage unless expressly limited to cases where the carburetor is improperly adjusted so as to allow too rich a mixture for maximum efficiency.

(c) That said device saves $30 to $50 worth of gasoline during the year on an average car.

(d) That any designated amount of Colgra is “free” when supplied with the Diamond Fuelizer unless such is actually the case.

(e) That 450 miles may be obtained from one gallon of gasoline unless the explanation to the effect that some person has claimed that such is merely potential energy is printed so as to be equally conspicuous.

The said Akron Lamp and Manufacturing Co. further agreed, in promoting the sale of the Diamond Fuelizer, to cease and desist from the use of any so-called “Certificate of Merit” or “Seal of Approval,” awarded by the Automotive Test Laboratories of America, or from any representation to the effect that this device has been tested and/or approved by any laboratory, unless such product has been approved or accepted by an accredited testing laboratory. (Mar. 16, 1939.)

02345. Lubricant—Qualities, Etc.—Akron Lamp and Manufacturing Co., a corporation, 369 Steese Building, Akron, Ohio, vendor-advertiser, was engaged in selling a lubricant to be added to gasoline and oil and designated Colgra Super Film, and agreed in soliciting the sale of and selling said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That by the use of Colgra Super Film, a definite reduction in motor friction will result unless, where such reduction was obtained in tests conducted under abnormal operating conditions or where such reduction may be expected only under abnormal operating conditions, such conditions are clearly indicated.

(b) That the addition of Colgra Super Film to oils and greases will cause such oils and greases to last two or three times longer. (Mar. 16, 1939.)

02346. Correspondence Course—Qualities, Nature, Trade Name, Etc.—John Kegell and Jessie Kegell, copartners, doing business under the trade name The Healing Ministry, P. O. Box 2020, Asheville, N. Car., vendor-advertisers, were engaged in selling a correspondence course of instruction designated The Christly Method of Healing, and agreed in soliciting the sale of and selling said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That they possess or can impart to others the knowledge, training, and power to heal and cure disease or injury, give immunity to bad luck, avoid damage to crops, or give special or "inside information" with regard to any of such matters.

(b) That the course of instruction by them offered for sale and sold imparts to others the knowledge, training, or power to heal the sick.

(c) That they or either of them have had or now have authority to issue or award diplomas, titles, or degrees.

(d) That the number of courses of instruction by them sold is limited to twelve or any other number per month unless such is a fact.

(e) That they or either of them possess or can teach others the art of divine healing.

(f) That either of them have extraordinary or unusual qualifications, authority, or power such as to enable them to prevent bad luck, protect from all forms of evil, to protect crops, or that they are enabled to teach others to do so, or that they have any "inside information" relating to mental, spiritual, or divine healing.

(g) That their course of instruction of itself is an aid to the retention of youth or health.

(h) That they can teach the purchasers of their course of instruction to perform miracles.

The said John Kegell and Jessie Kegell further agreed that they would cease and desist from using the words "Healing Ministry" as a trade name in connection with the offering for sale and sale of their said course of instruction. (Mar. 8, 1939.)

02347. Electric Razor—Qualities, Prices, Business Status, Earnings, Lottery Schemes, Etc.—Electric Razor Products, Inc., a corporation trading as General Devices Co., 6537 Russell Street, Detroit, Mich., vendor-advertiser, was engaged in selling an electric razor designated Cadillac Electric Dry Shaver and agreed in soliciting the sale of and selling said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That its device is of standard type.

(b) That said razor is the only one of its type in direct selling or that can be sold for less than $10.00.

(c) That said razor is of any definite value in excess of the price at which it is sold or intended to be sold.
(d) That said razor is the lowest priced or of higher quality than other makes of similar type.
(e) That General Devices Company is a $25,000,000 industry.
(f) That success or an income to salespersons or agents is guaranteed.
(g) That any razor is free to a salesperson or agent so long as the price thereof is included in other articles which he is required to pay for.
(h) That said razor gives smoother, faster, or closer shaving, that it sharpens itself or improves with age or that it is automatic.
(i) That any offer made in connection with the sale of its razors which is open to any person who may answer its advertisement and not limited with respect to time is a special offer.

The said Electric Razor Products, Inc., in soliciting salespersons or dealers in aid of the sales of such merchandise, further agreed:

(j) Not to make unmodified representations or claims of earnings in excess of the average earnings of respondent's active full-time salespersons or dealers achieved under normal conditions in the due course of business.
(k) Not to represent that such salespersons or dealers will have the chance or opportunity of earning any amount which is in excess of amounts theretofore actually earned by one or more of respondent's salespersons or dealers under normal conditions in the due course of business.
(l) Not to represent or hold out as maximum earnings by the use of such expressions as "up to," "as high as" or any equivalent expression, any amount in excess of what has actually been accomplished by one or more of respondent's salespersons or dealers under normal conditions in the due course of business.

The said Electric Razor Products, Inc., further agreed to cease and desist from distributing to agents, salespersons, or prospective purchasers any scheme, plan, or device which is designed for or may be used in conducting a lottery. (Mar. 16, 1939.)

02348. Medicinal Preparation—Qualities, Composition and Manufacturer.—Biovegetin Products, Inc., a corporation, operating under the trade name of V. M. Products, 510 North Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill., vendor-advertiser, was engaged in selling a medicinal preparation designated Vi-Donna Capsules and agreed in soliciting the sale of and selling said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That scientists agree that a few capsules of the product are sufficient to supply the body's need for vitamin E.
(b) That the product is the "life giver" or "the best".
(c) That the product will prevent sterility and incapacity for reproduction.
(d) That the product will prevent atrophy or degeneration of the testes, or that it "preserves" vital tissues.
(e) That the product is of value in the prevention of abortion, miscarriage or still birth, or that in this connection it will do more than build up resistance against a predisposition thereto due to a deficiency of vitamin E.
(f) That the product is "certified" to contain "the fullest" amount of vitamin E.
(g) That the product is manufactured by the advertiser, unless and until the advertiser owns, maintains, or operates a factory wherein the product is manufactured. (Mar. 17, 1939.)

(n) That Herbtex will increase the flow of bile.

The respondent further agreed to cease and desist from representing that this product is safe, or is not drastic or severe, or has no harmful resultants, and also agreed that all advertising published in the future relating to this product will contain a warning to the effect that this preparation is in certain cases harmful in that it may aggravate the conditions of those individuals who are sensitive to iodides or afflicted with tuberculosis or toxic goiter. (Mar. 16, 1939.)

02355. Men's Clothing—Composition and Wholesaler.—Homeland Tailors, Inc., a corporation, 2500 East Ashland Avenue, Baltimore, Md., vendor-advertiser, was engaged in selling men's clothing and agreed, in connection with the dissemination of future advertising, to cease and desist from representing directly or by implication:

(a) Designating, describing, or representing as “wool” or “worsted” the fabrics used in the manufacture of its clothing (except linings and fittings) when such fabrics are not wholly composed of wool; and

(b) Designating, describing, or representing as “wool” or “worsted” any fabric made partly of wool and partly of cotton, silk, rayon, linen, or other fiber, unless the same is designated, described, or represented as “wool and cotton,” “wool and silk,” “wool and rayon,” etc. in the order of the predominating fiber content;

(c) Representing that respondent is a “wholesale” tailoring shop. (Mar. 21, 1939.)

02356. Cosmetic Preparations—Qualities and Composition.—Varady, Inc., a corporation, 427 West Randolph Street, Chicago, Ill., vendor-advertiser, was engaged in selling cosmetic preparations designated Varady Oil of Youth, Varady Face Cream and Varady Face Powder and agreed, in connection with the dissemination of future advertising, to cease and desist from representing directly or by implication:

(a) That any of the products hereinbefore referred to will—

1. Constitute a “cure” for dry skin;
2. “Correct,” “banish” or “end” dry skin;
3. Permanently supply the skin with missing elements;
4. Be completely absorbed by dry skin cells;

or any other claim to the effect that its products will have any permanent effect upon dry skin unless the application of such products be continued;
(b) That any of the products hereinbefore referred to eliminate or prevent wrinkles, regardless of cause, or that such products will keep the skin young or cause the skin to regain youthfulness.

(c) That the said Varady Face Cream is wax-free, or contains no wax, that no competing creams liquefy when in contact with the face, or that all competing products contain wax.

(d) That the pores of the skin are “deep,” or that said products sink deep into the pores or will penetrate below or through the pores.

(e) That the said Varady’s cream removes twice as much dirt as do all competing products or removes materials from the pores, unless limited to the softening and removal of such materials by rubbing and massage.

(f) That any of the said Varady, Inc., products are radically new or differ radically from all competing products.

(g) That any of the said Varady, Inc., products has any appreciable effect upon the muscles unless expressly limited to its value as a lubricant for massage, rubbing or patting.

(h) That the said Varady’s face powder never lets that oil of the skin come through or never becomes transparent on the face, or that all competing products cause the skin to shine, or from implying that the said Varady’s face powder reflects less light than all other competing products. (Mar. 21, 1939.)

02357. (a) That any product sold by this advertiser will of itself affect the shape of the facial contour.

(b) That any product sold by this advertiser will prevent or eliminate lines, wrinkles, signs of age or a withered throat, regardless of cause.

(c) That the DuBarry Derma-Sec Formula will preserve a youthful throatline.

(d) That any substantial results are achieved by a single application of the aforementioned products.

(e) That any product or products sold by this advertiser will permanently correct or remedy dry or parched skin.

(f) That every woman requires a Derma-Sec Formula.

(g) That any product sold by this advertiser is a skin food or will nourish the skin.

(h) That the product heretofore designated DuBarry Special Preparation for Blackheads “frees” the skin of blackheads.

(i) That DuBarry Rose Cream Mask “clarifies” the complexion.

(j) That the use of products sold by this advertiser as a home treatment duplicates the exact methods and results of salon treatments.

(k) That the use of any products sold by this advertiser will “banish” fatigue or any other condition.

(1) That the application of the principles involved in the "Beauty Angle Treatment" recommended by this advertiser will:

1. Restore vitality to the skin,
2. Eliminate sallowness, bumps or blotches, or
3. Constitute the natural way to achieve any given results, or that it is the only treatment by which the circulation is stimulated naturally;

(m) That products sold by this advertiser cause the skin to look young.

(n) That any products are guaranteed unless essential conditions and limitations of such guarantee are clearly explained in direct connection therewith.

Richard Hudnut further agreed to cease and desist from the use, without proper qualification in terms of equal conspicuousness, of the trade names "DuBarry Tissue Cream," "DuBarry Contour Cream," "DuBarry Moulding Oil," and "DuBarry Special Preparation for Blackheads."

The said Richard Hudnut further agreed not to publish or cause to be published any testimonial containing any representation contrary to the foregoing agreement. (Mar. 21, 1939.)

02358. Caustic—Qualities and Safety.—Pennsylvania Salt Manufacturing Co., a corporation, 1000 Widener Building, Philadelphia, Pa., vendor-advertiser, was engaged in selling a flake or powder caustic designated "Lewis' Lye" and agreed in soliciting the sale of and selling said product in interstate commerce to cease and desist from representing directly or otherwise:

(a) That Lewis' Lye is "unequalled" as a drain pipe opener, for cleaning garbage pulls, soap-making, disinfecting, or that it "is the highest test lye possible for trained chemists to produce."

(b) That Lewis' Lye is "kind to your hands" and/or "safe for the most delicate fabrics."

(c) That Lewis' Lye can "always" be relied upon for satisfactory results.

(d) That Lewis' Lye will kill or destroy roundworm eggs, unless used with hot water as directed.

(e) That Lewis' Lye—

1. Kills worm eggs;
2. Kills germs;
3. Makes milking machines germ-free, or sterilizes such machines; or
4. Kills bacteria, except the vegetative form.

(f) That Lewis' Lye—

1. Helps prevent bovine abortion, unless it is explained that this statement is not true under all conditions;
2. "Destroys" roundworm eggs;
3. Prevents roundworm and disease; or
4. "Controls" roundworms or tapeworms.

(g) That Lewis' Lye—

1. Is a "general conditioner," when fed to hogs; or
2. "Controls" hog mange and/or dog mange.
(h) That Lewis' Lye, fed to hogs—
1. Produces bigger gains on less feed;
2. Makes the feed more digestible, unless limited to specific feeds;
3. Neutralizes harmful acids, unless limited to slop or swill;
4. Helps make hulls more digestible, unless limited to specific hulls;
5. Provides the alkaline condition necessary for the quick and proper "assimilation" of food;
6. Makes the hogs bring a higher market price;
7. Fattens hogs quicker;
8. Puts a finer finish on the hogs; or
9. Keeps them healthy.

(i) That Lewis' Lye fed hogs seldom have roundworms;

(j) That Lewis' Lye—
1. Will "rid" the premises of Bang's disease;
2. Produces better poultry; or "rids" poultry houses of lice, mites, roundworms and/or disease germs.

(k) That Lewis' Lye is more than six times as strong as carbolic acid.

(l) That Lewis' Lye is the "original economical" water softener.

(m) That Lewis' Lye "destroys" bad odors, unless it is explained that it must reach the cause of such odors.

(n) That Lewis' Lye will "keep down" flies in outdoor toilets or similar places.

(o) That "it pays" to feed Lewis' Lye to hogs. (Mar. 22, 1939.)

02359. Stock and Poultry Feed—Qualities and Testimonials.—Ralston Purina Co., a corporation trading as Purina Mills, St. Louis, Mo., vendor-advertiser, was engaged in selling a cow feed designated Purina Cow Chow, a hog feed designated Purina Sow and Pig Checkers, and a chicken feed designated Purina Chick Startena and agreed, in connection with the dissemination of future advertising, to cease and desist from representing directly or by implication—

(a) That by feeding Purina Sow and Pig Checkers one will obtain more pigs per litter, when farrowed, will have more pigs living at weaning time or pigs that will weigh more at any time; unless such representation is limited to those cases where an unbalanced or deficient ration has theretofore been fed or that by the use of said feed one may in all cases be assured of any definite number of pigs or pigs of any definite weight or definite increase in weight within any specific time.

(b) That by feeding Purina Chick Startena one may be assured of healthy chicks, or chicks weighing more than if they had been fed other feeds unless such claims are limited to those cases where failure to get optimum results are due to improper feeding, or that when said product is fed the chance of failure in the poultry business is eliminated and profit assured or that when fed with other of its products is the only way one may be assured of eggs when prices are high.

(c) That the government has established a standard weight for chicks.

(d) That by feeding Purina Cow Chows one may put new life into a dairy cow unless such claims are limited to those cases where failure to get optimum results theretofore was due to improper feeding or that one may in all cases be assured of a cow with an udder free from congestion at freshening time, calving within any definite time or a calf able to stand within any definite time or a cow in a healthy condition.
(e) That by feeding Purina Cow Chows one may under all conditions obtain more milk from dairy cows or be assured of any definite increase in milk production.

The said Ralston Purina Co. further agreed not to publish or cause to be published any testimonial containing any representation contrary to the foregoing agreement. (Mar. 29, 1939.)

02360. (f) That any article is “engraved” unless the design thereof is actually produced by cutting or carving.
(g) That imitation diamonds sold by respondent look like, pass for, or cannot be distinguished from genuine diamonds.
(h) That said imitation diamonds are reproductions.
(i) That either or any of the watches offered for sale—

1. Is guaranteed for accuracy by a 100 year old factory or by a million dollar factory.
2. Is thoroughly dependable.
3. Is accurate as it is beautiful.
4. Is a perfect time keeper.
5. Will be taken by friends of the wearer for a $50 watch.
6. Or has a fully guaranteed movement.

Myer D. Field further agreed, in soliciting the sale of said imitation diamonds, to cease and desist from using the word “diamond” alone or in combination with any other word to designate or describe such articles unless the term is modified by the word “imitation” or a true synonym thereof printed in direct connection with the word “diamond” and in equally conspicuous type.
Myer D. Field further agreed to cease and desist, by the use of foreign names or otherwise, from representing that any product sold by him originated in or was imported from a foreign country, when in fact such article did not originate in and was not imported from a foreign country.

Myer D. Field further agreed, in soliciting the sale of his products, to cease and desist from using the word "Diamond" as a part of his trade name until such time as he actually deals in genuine diamonds.

The said Myer D. Field agreed not to publish, or cause to be published, any testimonial containing any representation contrary to the foregoing agreement. (Apr. 19, 1939.)

02372. Key Check Outfit, Clipping Bureau Outfit, Mail Order Plan and Embossing Ink—Free Products, Opportunities, Earnings, Special Offers, Testimonials, Etc.—William H. Bohn, an individual trading as William H. Bohn Co., Post Office Box 86, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., vendor-advertiser, was engaged in selling a Key Check Outfit, an outfit for operating a clipping bureau, Mail Order schemes, and Rotex-Process Embossing Ink and agreed, in connection with the dissemination of future advertising, to cease and desist from representing directly or by implication

(a) That he furnishes outfits for making key checks, unless it be clearly indicated that said outfits are not furnished free of charge.
(b) That the making of key checks with his outfit brings big profits.
(c) That there is no competition in the key check business.
(d) That any offer is a special offer, unless it offers inducements not regularly made and is available for a limited time only.
(e) That his outfit for operating a clipping bureau will result in profit to the purchasers thereof.
(f) That his Rotex-Process Embossing Ink will enable one to "engrave" his personal handwriting.
(g) That his mail order plan—
1. Will enable one to make extra profits.
2. Offers 300 ways of making money.
3. Contains "profitable" tested mail order plans.
5. Contains practical tested formulas.
6. Contains successful honest schemes.
7. Has enabled men to establish successful business with nominal capital.
8. Is offered to the purchaser at a special introductory price when in truth and in fact the price at which said mail order plan is offered is the regular sales price thereof.

The said William H. Bohn in soliciting salespersons and agents, in the sale of Key Check Outfit, outfit for operating a clipping bureau, Mail Order Schemes, and Rotex-Process Embossing Ink, agreed:

(h) Not to represent or hold out as a chance or an opportunity any amount in excess of what has actually been accomplished by one or more of his salespersons or agents under normal conditions in the due course of business;
STIPULATIONS

(i) Not to represent or hold out as maximum earnings by the use of such expressions as "up to," "as high as," or any equivalent expression, any amount in excess of what has actually been accomplished by one or more of his salespersons or agents under normal conditions in due course of business; and

(j) That in future advertising where a modifying word or phrase is used in direct connection with a specific claim or representation of earnings, such word or phrase shall be printed in type equally conspicuous with as to form, and at least one-fourth the size of the type used in printing such statement or representation of earnings.

The said William H. Bohn agreed not to publish or cause to be published any testimonial containing any representations contrary to the foregoing agreement. (Apr. 21, 1939.)

02373. Poultry Preparation—Qualities, Guarantee, Testimonials, Etc.—M. Sullivan, an individual trading as More Egg Co., 333 North Fifteenth Street, Philadelphia, Pa., vendor-advertiser, was engaged in selling a poultry preparation designated More Egg Tonic and agreed, in connection with the dissemination of future advertising, to cease and desist from representing directly or by implication

(a) That the product will cause any definite results within any definite period of time.

(b) That use of the product will enable one to "keep hens laying all winter" or to "get eggs all winter" or to double egg production or that it "makes hens work all the time" or that it makes layers out of loafers.

(c) That the product is an egg producer or that it is of any value in increasing egg production unless limited to its aid in supplying calcium to diets deficient in that ingredient.

(d) That the advertiser guarantees "results" or that every package is guaranteed, unless stated in direct connection therewith that the guarantee pertains only to a return of the purchase price if a purchaser is not satisfied and requests return of the purchase price within thirty days from the date of such purchase.

(e) That the product "revitalizes" the flock.

(f) That the advertiser is a poultry "expert."

The said M. Sullivan further agreed to cease and desist from using the words "More Egg Tonic" or any other words of similar import or meaning as a trade name for the product.

The said M. Sullivan further agreed not to publish or cause to be published any testimonial containing any representation contrary to the foregoing agreement. (Apr. 25, 1939.)

02374. Cord Set—Opportunities, Earnings, Guarantee, Testimonials, Etc.—Grover B. Higgins, an individual trading as The Neverknot Co., 4525 Ravenswood Ave., Chicago, Ill., vendor-advertiser, was engaged in selling a cord set designated the DeLuxe Neverknot Cord Set and agreed in connection with the dissemination of future advertising, to cease and desist from representing directly or by implication

(a) That one "just can't help" making money with his plan or that one is "bound to succeed", or that any number or percentage of persons will always buy the products.
(b) That he guarantees:
1. One's success or a profit.
2. Sales, or that one will sell his product.
(c) That his guarantee is “unconditional”.

Grover B. Higgins further agreed to cease and desist from publishing the terms of any guarantee unless all of the terms thereof are stated in direct connection therewith.

Grover B. Higgins further agreed to cease and desist from representing or implying through use of the words “samples furnished,” or any other words of similar import or meaning, in contact advertisements, or otherwise, that any article is furnished without condition when the fulfillment of any obligation other than that published in the advertisement is necessary before delivery of the article referred to.

The said Grover B. Higgins further agreed not to publish or cause to be published any testimonial containing any representation contrary to the foregoing agreement. (Apr. 26, 1939.)

02375. Soap—Qualities and Testimonials.—The Procter & Gamble Co., a corporation, Cincinnati, Ohio, vendor-advertiser, was engaged in selling a detergent designated Camay Soap and agreed, in connection with the dissemination of future advertising, to cease and desist from representing directly or by implication

(a) That the use of Camay Soap will keep the skin young.
(b) That the use of Camay Soap will keep the skin clear or smooth or remove the cause of most skin blemishes or ailments in any way which would include cases where such results will not be achieved by cleansing the skin.
(c) That no other soap can compare with Camay for cleansing the skin, or that it cleanses the skin in any place not reached by other soaps, or that only Camay can cleanse the skin so as to retain a fresh appearance, or that it stimulates the skin as does no other soap, or that no other soap works the way Camay does.
(d) That the use of Camay will insure the skin against roughness, blemishes or premature aging.
(e) That Camay Soap “reaches down to the pores” or any other claim implying that the pores have any substantial depth.

While not abandoning its right to claim that Camay Soap may be used safely upon sensitive skins generally, The Procter & Gamble Co. agreed that it will forthwith cease and desist from representing directly or by implication that Camay Soap “can’t irritate the most sensitive skin”, or any other claim which may import or imply that it is nonallergic.

The said The Procter & Gamble Co. agrees not to publish or cause to be published any testimonial containing any representation contrary to the foregoing agreement. (May 1, 1939.)

STIPULATIONS 1877

York, N. Y., vendor-advertiser, was engaged in selling a laundering product designated La France and agreed, in connection with the dissemination of future advertising, to cease and desist from representing directly or by implication

(a) That La France contains or constitutes any cleansing agent superior to or different from pure soap or that it enables one to use less soap except to the extent that La France itself supplies the required pure soap content of a laundry solution, or that the addition of La France to a solution containing an adequate amount of pure soap makes that soap cleanse more efficiently.

(b) That if one uses La France, clothes will not require any rubbing or scrubbing.

The said General Foods Corp. agreed not to publish or cause to be published any testimonial containing any representation contrary to the foregoing agreement. (May 4, 1939.)

02377. Poultry Remedy—Qualities and Testimonials.—Tim Lake Laboratories, Inc., a corporation, Des Moines, Iowa, vendor-advertiser, was engaged in selling a poultry remedy designated "Jermite" and agreed, in connection with the dissemination of future advertising, to cease and desist from representing directly or by implication—

(a) That Jermite "guarantees":
   1. Reduced chick loss;
   2. Rapid chick growth;
   3. Riddance of disease germs;
   4. Prevention of coccidiosis;
   5. Elimination of worm hazard; or
   6. Control of simple diarrhea.

(b) That Jermite acts 4 ways:
   1. Antiseptic.
   2. Appetizer.
   3. Intestinal cleanser.
   4. Bone builder.

(c) That Jermite:
   1. Increases vitality of entire flock;
   2. Increases egg production;
   3. Increases hatchability of eggs;
   4. Supplies the mineral not found in most feeds;
   5. Is a bowel regulator;
   6. Aids the bowels to function normally; or
   7. Is a liquid poultry tonic.

(d) That Jermite contains:
   1. Iron Sulphate, a blood builder and tonic;
   2. Copper Sulphate, a muscle builder;
   3. Sulphate of Soda, a bowel regulator;
   4. Salicylic Acid, an intestinal antiseptic; or
   5. Oil of Anise, a digestor and appetizer.

(e) That Jermite:
   1. Will "control" and "relieve" simple diarrhea, bowel trouble, coccidiosis, and other intestinal ailments; or
   2. Acts as a bowel regulator or an intestinal cleanser.
(f) That Jermite has a similar action on hogs.

(g) That one gallon of Jermite:
1. Will anticepticize and germitize 250 gallons of drinking water;
2. Will germitize 32 sacks of feed when fed according to directions;
3. Will make 7 boxes of average poultry tablets sold under other trade names, usually selling at $1 per box;
4. Will take care of 300 baby chicks for 90 days when used in the drinking water and feed;
5. Will take care of 150 hens for 90 days when used in drinking water and feed;
6. Will take care of 150 turkey poultis or hens for 90 days when used in drinking water and feed; or
7. Will take care of 30 hogs for 77 days when used in slop feed.

The said Tim Lake Laboratories, Inc. further agreed not to publish or cause to be published any testimonial containing any representation contrary to the foregoing agreement. (May 5, 1939.)

02378. Sign Letters—Composition, Opportunities, Earnings and Testimonials.—Fred M. Cole, an individual trading as Neonite, Akron, Ohio, vendor-advertiser, was engaged in selling Sign Letters and agreed, in connection with the dissemination of future advertising, to cease and desist from representing directly or by implication:

(a) From the use in his advertisements and advertising matter of the words "gold" or "silver" or any other word or words, or in any way so as to import or imply, or which may have a capacity or tendency to mislead or deceive purchasers into the belief that said products are made or composed of gold in whole or in part, or are made or composed of silver in whole or in part, when such is not the fact.

The said Fred M. Cole further agreed—

(b) Not to make unmodified representations or claims of earnings in excess of the average earnings of active full-time purchasers of advertiser's products, achieved under normal conditions in the due course of business.

(c) Not to represent that such purchasers will have the chance or opportunity of earning any amount which is in excess of amounts theretofore actually earned by one or more purchasers of advertiser's products under normal conditions in the due course of business.

(d) Not to represent or hold out as maximum earnings by the use of such expressions as "up to," "as high as," or any equivalent expression, any amount in excess of what has actually been accomplished by one or more purchasers of advertiser's products under normal conditions in the due course of business; and

(e) That in future advertising where a modifying word or phrase is used in direct connection with a specific claim or representation of earnings, such word or phrase shall be printed in type equally conspicuous with, as to form, and at least one-fourth the size of the type used in printing such statement or representation of earnings.

The said Fred M. Cole agreed not to publish or cause to be published any testimonial containing any representations contrary to the foregoing agreement. (May 12, 1939.)
02379. Fog Light—Qualities and Testimonials.—The Kristee Products Co., a corporation, Akron, Ohio, vendor-advertiser, was engaged in selling a product designated Kristee Fog-Lite and agreed, in connection with the dissemination of future advertising, to cease and desist from representing directly or by implication:

That amber beam generally, or that the amber beam resulting from use of the advertiser's product, has a greater degree of penetration, or from otherwise representing or implying that it provides a clearer, or better, or a more lengthy vision than ordinary beams.

The said The Kristee Products Co. agreed not to publish or cause to be published any testimonial containing any representation contrary to the foregoing agreement. (May 15, 1939.)

02380. Household Merchandise—Opportunities, Earnings, Free Products and Testimonials.—Vera P. Williams, proprietor, and L. O. Williams, attorney in fact for Vera P. Williams, doing business as The C. I. Togstad Co., Togstad Building, Kokomo, Ind., vendor-advertiser, was engaged in selling Household Merchandise and agreed, in connection with the dissemination of future advertising, to cease and desist from representing directly or by implication:

(a) That agents or salespersons, regardless of age, residence, experience, or business qualifications, “make big money” or “earn steady incomes,” or “get into a business of their own.”

(b) That “$8.00 free sample display” or “free sample display” is furnished agents so long as the agent or salesperson is required to make a cash deposit in order to secure such outfit.

(c) That C. I. Togstad Company’s “free premium” plan enables agents or salespersons to make quick, easy sales.

(d) That agents earn or receive any money for merely taking orders unless in equally conspicuous words in direct connection therewith, it is clearly stated they must pay for and deliver the goods ordered and collect therefor to earn anything for taking the orders.

(e) That any sum of money is paid to any person for just serving 100 neighborhood families with Togstad’s household necessities.

(f) That $500.00 cash bonus, besides $2,000.00 yearly earnings (or $40.00 every week) will be paid to agents or salespersons “just for serving 100 neighborhood families with Togstad’s Famous 400 Household Necessities.”

(g) That any agent is assured a splendid income or that such agent can quickly line up 100 regular users of C. I. Togstad Company’s merchandise, or that it is certain that he can make money the first day.

(h) That anything is free that requires time, service, or money as a condition precedent to receiving it.

(i) That any article is free when the cost of it has been considered and included in the selling price of some other article.

The said Vera P. Williams, proprietor, and L. O. Williams, attorney in fact for Vera P. Williams, in soliciting salespersons, agents, or dealers in aid of the sales of such merchandise, further agreed:

(j) Not to make unmodified representations or claims of earnings in excess of the average earnings of The C. I. Togstad Company’s active full-time salespersons, agents, or dealers achieved under normal conditions in the due course of business.

(k) Not to represent that such salespersons, agents, or dealers will have the chance or opportunity of earning any amount which is in excess of amounts theretofore actually earned by one or more of The C. I. Togstad Company's salespersons, agents or dealers under normal conditions in the due course of business.

(l) That in future advertising where a modifying word or phrase is used in direct connection with a specific claim or representation of earnings, such word or phrase shall be printed in type equally conspicuous with, as to form, and at least one-fourth the size of the type used in printing such statement or representation of earnings.

The said Vera P. Williams, proprietor, and L. O. Williams, attorney in fact for Vera P. Williams, agreed not to publish or cause to be published any testimonial containing any representation contrary to the foregoing agreement. (May 16, 1939.)

02381. Shoes, Foot Comfort Appliances and Remedies—Ailments, Qualities and Testimonials.—The Scholl Manufacturing Co., Inc., a corporation, 211-213 West Schiller St., Chicago, Ill., vendor-advertiser, was engaged in selling arch supports designated Dr. Scholl's Scientific Arch Supports, shoes designated Dr. Scholl's Scientific Shoes, and various foot comfort appliances and remedies and agreed, in connection with the dissemination of future advertising, to cease and desist from representing directly or by implication:

(a) That arthritic or rheumatic-like foot and leg pains, callouses, fatigue, sore heels and tired feet are always signs or symptoms of weak or fallen arches.

(b) That Dr. Scholl's Arch Supports—

1. Will instantly relieve foot pains and physical disturbances, or will quickly relieve all foot pains and physical disturbances; or
2. Will relieve foot strain, weak feet, flat feet, tired, aching feet, cramped toes, foot or leg pain, and fatigue without expressly limiting such claims to those conditions when due to lack of proper support to the arches of the feet; or
3. Will alone assure the wearer of correction of weak or fallen arches without massage or exercise, or that they will alone restore the arch to normal.

(c) That so-called Arch Support Shoes or appliances of one standard elevation to fit all feet and of non-adjustable construction, are valueless.

(d) That Dr. Scholl's Scientific Shoes—

1. Will "eliminate" the possibility of fatigue whether caused by improper fitting shoes or otherwise, or will "eliminate" the possibility of strain on muscles, nerves, and ligaments; or
2. Will result in new foot health, or in new youthfulness, or new vitality.

(e) That by wearing Dr. Scholl's Scientific Shoes any kind of comfort or health is insured.

(f) That Dr. Scholl is the World's leading foot authority.
STIPULATIONS

(9) That persons wearing Dr. Scholl shoes will have no foot troubles.

(h) By the unqualified use of words and phrases such as, "end foot troubles," "afford relief from any foot trouble, foot ailment, or foot pain," or "assure quick relief from every common foot trouble," or in any other manner, that the various Dr. Scholl foot remedies and appliances will end or relieve all foot troubles without exception or qualification or will assure quick relief from every common foot trouble.

The Scholl Manufacturing Co., Inc. agreed not to publish or cause to be published any testimonial containing any representation contrary to the foregoing agreement. (May 22, 1939.)

02382. Medicinal Preparation—Qualities, Results, Safety and Testimonials.—Ring-Rout, Inc., a corporation, 710 Queen and Crescent Building, P. O. Box 208, New Orleans, La., vendor-advertiser, was engaged in selling a medicinal product known as "Ring-Rout" which is alleged to be a cure for tinea trichophyton, hereinafter referred to as "Ringworm," "Foot Itch," and/or "Athlete's Foot" and agreed, in connection with the dissemination of future advertising, to cease and desist from representing directly or by implication:

(a) That Ring-Rout will accomplish results which other preparations are not capable of accomplishing, or that it has special inherent qualities and/or properties which are not possessed by other preparations when such other preparations are composed of substantially the same ingredients and compounded for the same purpose.

(b) That treatment with Ring-Rout will kill the fungi of Athlete's Foot, in actual cases of infection, without an appreciable length of time lapsing between its application to the infected area and the killing of such fungi; or that it will kill the fungi encountered in actual cases of the said infection within any definite period of time.

(c) That Ring-Rout may be used with the expectancy of obtaining a complete and absolute purge of the fungi of Athlete's Foot unless such representations are qualified to indicate that many cases of the said infection are extremely rebellious to treatment, that successful therapy depends upon many factors such as guarding against reinfection and that no one preparation has yet been discovered which will, in all instances, be an effective treatment for the said infection throughout its various stages.

(d) That the results accomplished in laboratory tests indicate that Ring-Rout is effective in completely destroying the fungi of Athlete's Foot encountered in actual cases of the infection.

(e) That Ring-Rout is the result of any specialized or professional research or that it has been formulated by a great specialist.

(f) That Ring-Rout has proven effective for treatment in 95% of cases of the said infection in clinical tests conducted by doctors, unless such representations are qualified to indicate that such tests constitute only an extremely small minority of all cases subjected to clinical study and that the data therein compiled are not correct when applied to average, general conditions which prevail with respect to curing Athlete's Foot;

(g) That the action of Ring-Rout in removing the outer layers of the skin is nonirritating and harmless.
The said Ring-Rout, Inc., further agreed not to publish or cause to be published any testimonial containing any representation contrary to the foregoing agreement. (May 22, 1939.)

02383. Seeds—Opportunities and Earnings.—A. Otis Arnold, an individual trading and doing business as American Seed and Plant Co., Quincy, Ill., vendor-advertiser, was engaged in selling plant seeds designated Golden Seal Seed and Ginseng Seed and agreed, in connection with the dissemination of future advertising, to cease and desist from representing directly or by implication:

(a) That any one can grow Ginseng or Golden Seal or that to cultivate the same is easy or in all instances profitable.
(b) That Golden Seal and Ginseng prices have increased in recent years.
(c) That one may easily produce $1,000 worth of roots on a small plot of ground, or that the returns from any plot of ground will average any definite sum or that one may expect big returns or any specified profit from raising Golden Seal or Ginseng.
(d) That the supply of Golden Seal Seed and Ginseng Seed is limited or is likely to be exhausted by the buyer demand. (May 24, 1939.)

02384. Skin and Scalp Remedies and Shampoo—Qualities.—Mentos Products, Inc., a corporation, 1409 North Hirst Street, Philadelphia, Pa., vendor-advertiser, was engaged in selling a hair shampoo designated Mentos Shampoo and skin and scalp remedies designated Mentos and Mentos Face and Skin Remedy and agreed, in connection with the dissemination of future advertising, to cease and desist from representing directly or by implication:

(a) That the use of Mentos will promote the growth of hair.
(b) That Mentos or Mentos Shampoo is capable of cleansing below the pore openings.
(c) That Mentos or any of its ingredients penetrates into the depths of the follicles or will "medicate the glands."
(d) That Mentos is efficacious in "building the resistance of the skin and scalp."
(e) That the use of Mentos will result in a permanent cessation of falling hair or scalp itching or "sores between toes."
(f) That the use of Mentos will cure eczema or ringworm or psoriasis or scalp irritations or scaly scalp conditions or dandruff conditions.
(g) That the use of Mentos will clear the skin of lesions of eczema or of ringworm or of psoriasis.
(h) That the use of Mentos will clear dandruff unless limited to the removal of loose scales of dandruff.
(i) That the quality of the hair is improved in proportion to the quantity of Mentos used.
(j) That Mentos Face and Skin Remedy is good for all skin irritations.
(k) That Mentos Face and Skin Remedy "purifies" or beautifies the skin.
(l) That Mentos Face and Skin Remedy clears rash.
(m) That Mentos Face and Skin Remedy is of therapeutic value in cases of ingrown hair or of sunburn or of mosquito bites.
(n) That the use of Mentos Face and Skin Remedy is of any therapeutic value in cases of eczema or psoriasis or ringworm unless it is expressly stated in direct connection therewith that its value in these conditions is limited to temporary palliative relief and that such palliative relief may be obtained in only some cases of eczema, ringworm, and psoriasis.

(o) That the use of Mentos Face and Skin Remedy is of value in all cases of pimples or acne.

(p) That the use of Mentos Shampoo will promote the growth of hair or will result in permanent cessation of falling hair.

(q) That Mentos Shampoo is a competent treatment in the relief of eczema of psoriasis or ringworm. (May 26, 1939.)

02385. Information—Employment.—Clifford W. Wells, an individual, 109 North Front Street, Baltimore, Md., vendor-advertiser, was engaged in selling “information” on how to obtain employment in the American Merchant Marine and how to become a sailor and agreed, in connection with the dissemination of future advertising, to cease and desist from representing directly or by implication:

(a) That an inexperienced individual or individuals can find employment in the Merchant Marine or elsewhere, where employees are known as seamen, by following out his “Instructions.”

(b) That he has knowledge of any specific available job or jobs in the Merchant Marine or elsewhere, where employees are known as seamen, by publishing or causing to be published the words “How To Obtain A Job In The American Merchant Marine” or “Become a Seaman—Sail The Seven Seas on Tramp Steamers” or any other words of like import in classified advertisement columns or elsewhere entitled “Instructions” or otherwise.

(c) That his “Instructions” will assist an individual in obtaining employment in the Merchant Marine or elsewhere, where employees are known as seamen, unless such representations are qualified to indicate that such “Instructions” pertain only to routine matters such as living conditions on the waterfront, methods of registering for employment, kinds of clothing to provide one’s self with, classifications and rates of pay relative to seamen’s jobs, the slang phraseology which is used aboard ship, and the other general information which is actually imparted by the said Clifford W. Wells to his subscribers.

(d) That any individual may sail to any port of his own choice as an employee of a vessel bound thereto simply by waiting for that particular vessel to embark therefor. (May 26, 1939.)
DECISIONS OF THE COURTS IN CASES INSTITUTED AGAINST OR BY THE COMMISSION

IRA W. MINTER AND CLAYTON A. MINTER, INDIVIDUALLY AND AS COPARTNERS DOING BUSINESS UNDER THE FIRM NAMES AND STYLES OF MINTER BROTHERS AND DOUGLASS CANDY COMPANY v. FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION

No. 6795

(Circuit Court of Appeals, Third Circuit. February 14, 1939)

CEASE AND DESIST ORDERS—LOTTERY MERCHANDISING—"BREAK AND TAKE" CANDY SELLING—WHERE TO CHILDREN—IF WHOLE INDUSTRY "INFECTED."

The Federal Trade Commission had statutory power to enter a cease and desist order against the "break and take" method of selling candy to children, as against contention that power did not exist because the whole candy manufacturing business was infected with the "break and take" virus.

CEASE AND DESIST ORDERS—WHERE SUPPORTING EVIDENCE.

An order of Federal Trade Commission supported by evidence is conclusive.

TRADE ACTS AND PRACTICES—LOTTERY MERCHANDISING.

Although wagering contracts were valid at common law, in modern times, in both England and most of the states of the United States, gambling transactions are unenforceable and only the loser has recourse to the courts.

CEASE AND DESIST ORDERS—LOTTERY MERCHANDISING—"BREAK AND TAKE" CANDY SELLING—WHETHER CHILDREN VENDEE CONSUMERS.

Petition to review order of Federal Trade Commission that candy manufacturers cease and desist from disposing of candy by means of the "break and take" method on ground that candy did not reach children was dismissed.

The "break and take" method is the sale of merchandise or amusement as in the case of motion picture bank nights, by the inducement of a "lottery." The customer does not buy only a chance represented by a ticket, he pays for a chattel and a chance for another unpaid for chattel, the ticket being the opportunity for fortuitous selection of a differentiatated article.

1 Including the period covered by this volume, or through May 31, 1939, three injunctive orders or decrees have been entered under the provisions of Section 13 of the Federal Trade Commission Act, which was among those added to the original law by the Wheeler-Lea Act, approved March 21, 1938. First of such orders or decrees was that in case of F. T. C. v. Hartman Wholesale Drug Co., Inc., et al., D. C. for N. D. of Ill., September 16, 1938, 27 F. T. C. 1693, and the other two, entered prior to June 1, 1939, were in the cases of F. T. C. v. Western Chemicals, Inc., et al., D. C. for W. D. of Wash., March 27, 1939, and F. T. C. v. Lewyn Drug, Inc., D. C. for S. D. of Cal., Central Division, April 7, 1939, reported in this volume, infra, at pages 1939 and 1951, respectively.

2 Reported in 102 F. (2d) 69. The case before the Commission is reported in 26 F. T. C. 994.
On petition for review from order of Commission, petition dismissed.

Mr. David H. Kinley, of Philadelphia, Pa., for petitioners.
Mr. W. T. Kelley, chief counsel, Federal Trade Commission, Mr. Martin A. Morrison, assistant chief counsel, and Mr. James W. Nichol, special attorney, all of Washington, D. C., for respondent.

Before BIGGS, CLARK, and BUFTINGTON, Circuit Judges.

CLARK, Circuit Judge:
This case seems to us a futile continuation of earlier litigation. The trade practices of these petitioners have already been expressly condemned in a unanimous opinion of the United States Supreme Court, Federal Trade Commission v. Keppel & Bro., 291 U. S. 304, February 5, 1934. As the high court there adopted, or rather amplified, the view of the then minority of this court, we can be supposed to be thoroughly familiar with the holding.

The particular practice whose ceasing and desisting was there and here ordered is known in the marts of commerce as selling by "break and take" (pick and take, draw deals, punch cards and punchboards) rather than by "straight goods" packages. The nomenclature furnishes a clue to the disapproval both of the judicial bodies and encouragingly, of the "better element" of the trade itself.

The "break and take" method is the sale of merchandise (or amusement as in the case of motion picture bank nights, 12 Wisconsin Law Review 251, 17 Boston University Law Review 238), by the inducement of a lottery. The customer does not buy only a chance represented by a ticket, he pays for a chattel and a chance for another unpaid for chattel, the ticket being the opportunity for fortuitous selection of a differentiated article. It is, so to speak, a lottery with trimmings, and one might observe that a lottery by any other name will smell as bad.

This selling by lottery seems to have prevailed largely where it least should have prevailed, namely, in the sale of penny candy to little children. The Federal Trade Commission's brief cites 18 of these candy cases initiated by it and sustained by the Circuit Courts of Appeal and the United States Supreme Court since the decision of the Keppel case above cited. These cases are collected in the notes to section 45 of title 15 U. S. C. A. on pages 66-75 of the supplement, and see note 5 of 43 Yale Law Journal 1339. See also In the matter of Boyd Houser Candy Co. and In the matter of The Newton Products Company, Vol. 4 Federal Register No. 27, p. 607. It has not always been so limited. As long ago as 1918 we find the Federal Trade Commission prohibiting the sale of tea and coffee with coupons for prizes concealed in certain packages, Buddha Tea Co., 1 F. T. C. 159 (1918), Everybody Mercantile Co., 3 F. T. C. 60 (1920), and only recently the commission was

The petitioners and the other practitioners of this type of merchandising have followed that ancient precept of the sea, "women and children first," except that they pervert instead of protect weakness. Taking candy from children has never been highly regarded. Forcing it upon them through their possession of an instinct that the adult world recognizes and has always recognized as at the bottom of many of its troubles, seems to us shameful. We have rarely seen of a more unpleasant example of commercial cynicism than is disclosed by the testimony of the petitioners' president, Ira W. Minter:

Q. In your opinion, Mr. Minter, is this form of advertising injurious to the public?
A. The public benefits by it.

Q. In what way would you say the public benefits by it?
A. By getting additional value for the purchase of the particular goods that it is being offered with. (Record, p. 148.)

The "benefit" and "additional value" so euphemistically referred to, is our old friend "something for nothing," the consequences of too enthusiastic pursuit of which are known to judges in their official capacities.

In view of the controlling decision of the Supreme Court in Federal Trade Commission v. Keppel & Bro., above cited, any extended discussion of the law is inappropriate. Petitioners attempt three distinctions. Two of them touch upon the judicial history of its interpretation. They say, first, that the Federal Trade Commission has no statutory power because the whole candy manufacturing business is infected with the "break and take" virus. In the light of the sentiments we have just expressed, we should be loath to believe this of any body of business men. Happily we do not have to. First, the witnesses making this depressing assertion, Minter and Coughlin, the president and candy broker of the petitioners are somewhat interested. Second, it is flatly contradicted by two other candy manufacturers called by the Commission, Voneiff, p. 39 and Roskamm, p. 102. Although the latter's business reformation was not altogether voluntary (cease and desist order), he did not limit himself to his own business but referred to earlier and, to him, more Halcyon days in the trade generally, saying:

In the days when break and take were so actively sold in a much larger volume than they are today, we used to receive constant requests from our salesmen, wanting to know why, if other firms could make these packages, we would not make them, and advised us that in many instances their customers were buying a general line of merchandise such as ours, from sources who could supply them with break and take, and vigorously demanded therefore that we also give them a similar assortment to do business with so that they can get their normal share of the distribution and earn their pro rata commission. (Record, p. 102.)

Even if this had not been so and if the entire penny candy trade, had indulged in the practice alleged to be obnoxious, we believe the present trend of decision under section 45, title 15, U. S. C. A supports the order. That trend is away from the requirement of injury to a particular competitor and toward the protection of the general consumer.

The direction of that judicial current depends, of course, upon the construction of a very general word "competition." The issue is whether it may be construed to include situations where the practices to be struck down are rife in an entire industry, Jurisdiction of Federal Trade Commission Over False Advertising, 31 Col. Law Rev. 527, or whether the Commission can only intervene when one honest competitor enters the field, Scope of the Jurisdiction of the Federal Trade Commission over False and Misleading Advertising, 40 Yale Law [71] Journal 617 (comment), The Meaning of Methods of Competition in Commerce, 31 Michigan Law Review 808.

Light has, very properly, been sought in the halls of Congress. An entire article has been devoted to a collection of excerpts from the debates in the Senate, Unfair Methods of Competition, 25 Yale Law Journal 20, and further references to the Congressional debates are collected in note 18 on page 532 of Mr. Handler's (a leading authority on the subject) article in 31 Col. Law Review 534, above cited. A perusal of these debates leaves us with the impression that general words were employed to make possible the meeting of future contingencies. We say this although we recognize the danger voiced by Mr. Justice Cardozo in repeating the words of Professor Gray in his lectures on the Nature and Sources of the Law:

that the difficulties of so-called interpretation arise when the legislature has had no meaning at all; when the question which is raised on the statute never occurred to it; when what the judges have to do is, not to determine what the legislature did mean on a point which was present to its mind, but to guess what it would have intended on a point not present to its mind, if the point had been present. (Cardozo, The Nature of the Judicial Process, p. 15.)

It is not unreasonable to suppose that the very purpose of the legislative body, here as often, was to stop the gaps of judge made law. If we can indulge in a priori reasoning, we might note the addition by Congress on June 23, 1938 of the phrase “unfair or deceptive acts in commerce” to the former “unfair methods of competition in commerce,” 52 Stat. 1028.

Petitioners' second ground for distinguishing the Keppel case opens up another vista of interpretation as to the meaning of another general word—this time the word “unfair.” Here again and again naturally the effort is toward limitation. The rugged individual wishes to continue in his ruggedness and wishes to correspondingly narrow the scope of interference by a bureaucratic and possibly slightly more ethical government. The courts have not agreed with their rugged view, however, and have gradually widened that scope. They have brought their standard of fairness even closer to an ever, we think, higher conception of business ethics. That process of widening is discussed in the law review articles above cited, 39 Yale Law Journal 22, 31 Michigan Law Review 808, 31 Col. Law Review 527, 40 Yale Law Journal 617. See also The Legal Phases of Advertising by Francis Finkelhor, 1938.

The distinction attempted is based on a difference of fact. In the Keppel case the candy of the break and take package was of inferior quality to that of the straight goods. Here it is not. The argument seems to be derived from the attempt of the dissenting opinion of this court, Keppel & Bro. v. Federal Trade Commission, 63 F. (2d) 81, 85, to bring the practice within the conception of “deception.”

The learned judge of this court writing that opinion concludes that driving the nongambling packages from the shelves forced cheating of the consuming children. This stretching of logic was, we surmise, occasioned by a desire to bring the case within the established precedents which stressed deception.
The Supreme Court, as is its special privilege, rejected this, shall we say, rather tortured construction of the practice and placed its decision on a more satisfactory legal and a more fundamental ethical ground. If you cheat people, you affect their pocketbook; if you encourage them to gamble, you affect their character.

Mr. Justice Stone said:

But here the competitive method is shown to exploit consumers, children, who are unable to protect themselves. It employs a device whereby the amount of the return they receive from the expenditure of money is made to depend upon chance. Such devices have met with condemnation throughout the community. Without inquiring whether, as respondent [72] contends, the criminal statutes imposing penalties on gambling, lotteries and the like, fail to reach this particular practice in most or any of the States, it is clear that the practice is of the sort which the common law and criminal statutes have long deemed contrary to public policy. For these reasons a large share of the industry holds out against the device, despite ensuing loss in trade, or bows reluctantly to what it brands unscrupulous. It would seem a gross perversion of the normal meaning of the word, which is the first criterion of statutory construction, to hold that the method is not "unfair." Federal Trade Commission v. Keppel & Bro., 291 U. S. 304, 313.

The writer of a note in the Yale Law Journal has commented on this opinion, saying:

Granting that those practices which business men "should not adopt" constitute unfair methods of competition, the question still remains as to why, in the face of a diversion of trade which might otherwise be retained, they should refuse to use the method involved in the principal case. The reason is found in the injury which its use will entail to the public. In the advertising cases, that injury consists of deception with the resultant purchase of a different and usually inferior article than is represented. In the case under consideration, while the deception element was lacking, still the consumers of the product were induced by the gaming device to purchase a product inferior to that which they might otherwise procure for the same price. But in the eyes of the Court the financial injury was subordinate to the moral one, which consisted of a tendency to encourage gambling, a form of conduct that it deemed subversive of general morality and so contrary to public policy as frequently to have been an object of statutory prohibition.

See also 10 N. Y. U. Law Quarterly Rev. 11, 82 U. Pa. Law Rev. 664, 665. It is interesting to record that the business men responsible for the publication of that most excellent book, Public Regulation of Competitive Practices, had anticipated the sentiments of the learned Justice and the learned author. We quote:

As a method of sales promotion, lotteries are so unusual as to warrant but passing notice. They are unusual because they were well known to be opposed to public policy even prior to the enactment of the regulatory legislation of 1914, and in some States they have been made penal offenses by statute. The reasons for this general condemnation of lotteries are primarily ethical and not economic. It is regarded as contrary to sound morality that men should be encouraged to seek "something for nothing"—or for a trifle. At the same time it is recognized that there are economic objections to a scheme which extracts small contributions from many, without compensation, for the benefit of the chance recipient of an unearned prize. P. 138-139.

In other words an honest lottery as a method of promoting sales was held to constitute an unfair method of competition. This appears to be sound doctrine. If it is unfair competition to tempt buyers by misrepresentations of the quality of goods, it may be regarded as likewise unfair to tempt them to buy goods not upon their merits but upon the chance of securing something for nothing. P. 140.

As the United States Supreme Court in the Keppel case has rejected the petitioners' officers' tolerance toward children's lotteries, it is perhaps impertinent to indulge in any homily on the economics and ethics of gambling. The temptation and its cause have been eloquently described by Lecky in his Democracy and Liberty.

The foregoing remarks will show the great difficulty and complexity of these questions about the connection between legislation and morals. Perhaps the most important and most difficult is the attitude the law should assume towards voluntary habits which are the cause of great and widespread misery in the community. One of the most conspicuous of these is gambling. * * * Yet no one will doubt that gambling may easily become a passion scarcely less irresistible and less injurious than drink, and it is a passion which is common to all latitudes and to all stages of civilization. Probably its chief root is that craving for excitement to which I have just referred as one of the deepest and strongest springs of human action. Man is so constituted that tranquil pleasure rarely suffices him. There are chords in his being which must be touched in another way, and he imperiously needs the thrill of intense emotion, even when that emotion is far from being exclusively pleasurable. P. 107, vol. 2.

The particular form of gambling in question here, the lottery, has come in for particular attention. Because of the ease of and profit in its operation, the lottery has had a long and international history and has been utilized for the support of the revenue and other beneficent purposes, Channing, History of the United States, vol. 4, pp. 24-27, vol. 5, pp. 197-200; the Reference Shelf, Muller, Lotteries, vol. 10, No. 2. Its evil has been thus described:

The real objection to lotteries is that most of their patrons are poor people, who can ill afford the sums they spend. Their dreams of success, of sudden unearned riches, are the unhealthy dreams of the escapist who finds the burden of his normal existence almost insupportable. The lottery, in short, has the same weakness as the sales tax; it is a levy on those who can least afford it: it reduces the purchasing power of the poor, and the revenues that might be derived from it by the Government would help reduce the tax burden on the rich. The Reference Shelf, Muller, Lotteries, vol. 10, No. 2, pp. 103-104.
and it is accurate, we think, to say that the number of lotteries and of those approving them in the world are on the decline. The Reference Shelf, Muller, Lotteries, vol. 2, No. 2, Negative Discussion, p. 103.

However that may be, there is no doubt about the current attitude of our people, at least so far as it is reflected in their institutions, if not in their habits. Four States forbid all forms of gambling, Index Digest of State Constitutions, The New York State Constitutional Convention Commission, 1915, p. 702, and 33 States forbid it in the form of lotteries, Index Digest of State Constitutions, above cited, p. 977. All attempts to repeal these provisions have failed, Proceedings of the New York State Constitutional Convention, 1938, vol. 6, p. 200. The United States (sections 191, 336, 387, title 18, U. S. C. A., sections 135, 136, title 19, U. S. C. A.) and all 48 States have signified their legislative abhorrence of gambling by lottery, 38 C. J. 303.

More germane to the principal case is the position of our courts. We say more germane because we cannot overlook (as some people did in 1919) the difficulties inherent in the enforcement of sumptuary legislation.

It is necessary to lay the foundation of the public administration in the affections of the people. George Washington, Richardson, Messages and Papers of the Presidents (1789-1897) vol. VI, p. 10.

and see Lecky, above cited, pp. 106, 107. There is no such difficulty in the negative act of failing to give effect to transactions deemed to be contrary to public policy. Although wagering contracts were valid at common law, in modern times, in both England and most of the States of the United States, gambling transactions are "unenforceable" and only the loser has recourse to the courts, 27 C. J. 1048, 1080.

In our opinion, the requirement that the trader cease and desist from making a profit out of a lottery is more analogous to this abstention of the courts than it is to positive punishment of the habits of a people. As a matter of fact, even a nation of adult bingo players (cf. testimony of petitioners' candy broker, Record p. 179) would acquiesce in the prevention of pandering to the same instinct in their young.

Such, at any rate, has been the attitude of the law makers from earliest times. So we find the Pandect providing:

It is determined that no one that has given money on loan to a filiusfamilias, to be paid even after the death of the parent in whose power he is, shall be given any action or claim, that so these money-lenders of the worst sort may know that no filiusfamilias can contract a debt that will be good in the event of his father's death. D. 14, 6, 1.
This enactment “derived its name either from Macedo, a well-known usurer; or from Macedo, a young debauchee, whose crimes had drawn the attention of the Senate to the perils arising from spendthrift children,” Tacitus, Ann. 11, 13, Suetonius, Vesp. 11. In England in 1541 an act prohibited lotteries because the young men spent their time gambling instead of practising archery, 29 Journal of Criminal Law and Criminology 598, above cited. Many States attach special criminal significance to the encouragement of gambling by minors, Cent. 21, Gaming 203, Cyc. 20, 000. This ancient and modern legislation is but the reflection of a general opinion. The editors of The School Review related it to the particular practices of the case at bar:

Children as well as adults are today constantly being exposed to the lure of various types of gambling schemes. These are rapidly increasing in number. One can hardly drop into the corner store or stop on the road while driving without running into slot machines, punchboards, and pin-ball games. And how appealing to the eye and imagination the manufacturers have made these devices!

The situation has reached such proportions that serious consideration must be given to an intelligent attack on the problem. The soundest protection of the individual against the gambling evil would seem to be found in an intelligent understanding of the truth. Children cannot be protected from the various gambling schemes so common today by merely allowing them to grow up in ignorance of the facts, in the hope that they will never come into contact with them. The truth of the matter is that they come into contact with them at an early age and learn about them through very undesirable experiences. Various gambling schemes are used at American Legion carnivals and even church bazaars. As if the end justified the means!

In order to find out what proportion of our children had some experience with slot machines and punchboards, we checked the children in the eighth grade. We found that 93 pupils or 78 percent of the class had played slot machines and 64 pupils or 52 percent had played punchboards. With such proportions at the elementary-school level, what can we expect later on?

The experiences of children with such devices are usually very inadequate and misleading. The unfortunate thing about gambling is the fact that people tend to forget their losses but always remember their “winnings.” The thrill of winning makes a strong impression on the individual, and it remains in his memory. Then too it inflates his “ego” to win, and he constantly reminds others of his “good judgment.” The losses are not as clearly appreciated because usually no account is kept of the nickels or quarters squandered on the machines from time to time. The “winnings,” however, always come in one larger payment and greatly impress the individual. Have you ever heard people tell about their great losses? But you have heard them tell about their “winnings.” As a result the impression grows that certain people are always lucky. Individuals themselves develop the attitude that they are just naturally lucky and can get something for nothing. This impression is particularly effective with children. An Instance of Realistic Civil Education, The School Review, February 1938, pp. 92, 93.

Petitioners seem to have had some realization of the reaction we have just been discussing. Their third ground of distinction from Federal Trade Commission v. Keppel & Bro. above cited, is the pretense that the candy does not reach the mouths of children. This assertion almost calls for the application of the Physical Facts Rule discussed in two recent opinions of this court. "The manufacturer puts up candy for sale to jobbers who sell to small neighborhood stores, particularly those adjacent to schools," Witness, Roskamm, p. 98. Does petitioners' president envisage many of his grown-up friends and acquaintances gorging themselves on penny candy? If he does, we do not.

The petition for review is dismissed.

HELEN ARDELLE, INC., BROWN & HALEY, CANTERBURY CANDY MAKERS, INC., IMPERIAL CANDY COMPANY, AND ROGERS CANDY COMPANY v. FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION

No. 8842

(Circuit Court of Appeals, Ninth Circuit. February 14, 1939)

TRADE ACTS AND PRACTICES—LOTTERY MERCHANDISING—PUNCHBOARD SELLING—WHERE LAST AND CHANCE PUNCHES WINNERS.

Punchboard for privilege of punching which retail candy dealer received from customers 5 cents a punch, where customer purchasing last punch received box of candy regardless of number drawn by him, whereas other boxes were awarded only to customers drawing certain lucky numbers constituted a "lottery" or "gambling device."

CEASE AND DESIST ORDERS—LOTTERY MERCHANDISING—PUNCHBOARD SELLING.

A punchboard method of selling candy by candy manufacturers by a lottery or gambling device constituted "unfair competition" within Federal Trade Commission Act and justified cease and desist order (Federal Trade Commission Act, sec. 5, 15 U. S. C. A. Sec. 45).

TRADE ACTS AND PRACTICES—LOTTERY MERCHANDISING—PUNCHBOARD SELLING—FAIRNESS OR UNFAIRNESS OF—DETERMINATION OF AS LAW OR FACT.

Whether candy manufacturers' method of competition which involved use of a lottery or gambling device was fair or unfair was a question of law to be determined by courts, and not a question of fact to be determined by testimony.

1 Reported in 101 F. (2d) 718. The cases before the Commission are reported in 25 F. T. C. 361, 370, 434, 481 and 527, respectively.
CEASE AND DESIST ORDERS—LOTTERY MERCHANDISING—PUNCHBOARD SELLING—ORDER'S SCOPE—PROHIBITION OF ASSORTMENTS WHICH “MAY BE” SOLD BY LOTTERY, ETC.

Where Federal Trade Commission found that candy manufacturers using punchboard method of selling candy were guilty of unfair competition, cease and desist order which would prevent manufacturers from selling any candy which any person might thereafter sell by means of a lottery was too broad.

(The syllabus, with substituted captions, is taken from 101 F. (2d) 718)

On petition to review orders of Commission, orders modified and, as modified, affirmed.

Flood, Lenihan & Ivers, of Seattle, Wash., for petitioners.

Mr. W. T. Kelley, chief counsel, Federal Trade Commission, Mr. Martin A. Morrison, assistant chief counsel, and Mr. P. C. Kolinski, Mr. James W. Nichol, and Mr. Daniel J. Murphy, special attorneys, all of the Federal Trade Commission, all of Washington, D. C., for respondent.

Before Denman, Mathews, and Healy, Circuit Judges.

MATHEWS, Circuit Judge:

Five Washington corporations—Helen Ardelle, Inc., Brown & Haley, Canterbury Candy Makers, Inc., Imperial Candy Co., and Rogers Candy Co.—have petitioned this court to review and set aside orders of the Federal Trade Commission requiring them to cease and desist from certain practices which, the Commission holds, constitute an unfair method of competition in commerce, within the meaning of § 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act, 38 Stat. 719, 15 U. S. C. A. § 45.

Facts found by the Commission and not disputed by petitioners are as follows:

Petitioners are engaged in the manufacture of candy in the State of Washington and in the sale and distribution thereof in interstate commerce. They have many competitors similarly engaged. Petitioners sell and distribute to retail dealers, and to wholesale dealers who sell and distribute to retail dealers, assortments of candy, called “draw” or “deal” assortments, each containing several boxes of candy, and, with each assortment, a device called a punch-board, by means of which the retail dealer sells and distributes such candy to the general public.

This punchboard is, as its name indicates, a board designed to be punched. For the privilege of punching it, the retail dealer receives from his customers 5 cents a punch. Each punch of the board discloses a number which, until then, is concealed. The numbers are not arranged in numerical sequence. Thus, each customer punching the board "draws" a number. The customer purchasing the last punch on the board receives, regardless of the number drawn by him, one of the boxes of candy in the assortment accompanying the board. The other boxes of candy are awarded to customers drawing certain lucky numbers. These are designated on a legend or statement attached to the board. All other numbers are, in effect, blanks. Customers drawing them receive nothing. The blanks are many, the lucky numbers few. Each box of candy is worth more than 5 cents. Thus, an occasional customers gets, for 5 cents, a box of candy, worth considerably more. Others get nothing except the privilege of punching the board.

This, obviously, is a lottery or gambling device.

All sales of candy by petitioners, whether to wholesale or to retail dealers, are outright sales, petitioners retaining no control over such candy after delivering it to the dealer. Petitioners, however, in making such sales, know that the candy will be, and intend that it shall be, sold to the public by means of punchboards, as above described. They accordingly pack and assemble the candy in "draw" or "deal" assortments, so that it may be so sold without alteration or rearrangement. They also furnish with each assortment a punchboard and, attached to it, a legend or statement explaining its use. Thus, knowingly and purposely, petitioners cause and procure their candy to be sold and distributed to the public by means of a lottery or gambling device.

Petitioners have many competitors who will not and do not use, or cause or procure others to use, any lottery or gambling device. The Commission found, upon ample evidence, that such competitors are placed at a disadvantage in competing with petitioners, in that, because of the element of chance involved, many customers are attracted by the punchboard method of selling candy and are thereby induced to purchase petitioners', instead of their competitors' candy. Thus, by the use of a lottery or gambling device, petitioners are able to, and do, compete successfully with those who will not and do not use this method of competition.

That petitioners are using this method, and using it as a method of competition in interstate commerce, is not disputed. They nevertheless ask us to set aside the Commission's orders, on the ground that its conclusion—which they call a finding—that the method is unfair is not supported by testimony. Petitioners' brief states:

Petitioners contended before the Commission and now contend before this court that the record in these cases wholly fails to sustain the finding of the Commission that this "punchboard" method of distribution is considered to be an unfair method of competition in the Pacific Northwest, the area in which these petitioners conduct their business. The Commission in these cases failed to produce a single witness who was actually or even potentially a competitor of these petitioners who did or would testify that the method of distribution used by the petitioners is considered to be an unfair method of competition.

Hence, it is argued, "the finding of the Commission that the 'punchboard' method of candy distribution in the Pacific Northwest constitutes an unfair method of competition within the meaning of § 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act cannot be sustained."

The argument assumes, erroneously, that whether petitioners' method of competition—which, admittedly, involves the use of a lottery or gambling device—is fair or unfair is a question of fact to be determined by testimony. Actually, it is a question of law to be determined by the courts. Federal Trade Commission v. Gratz, 253 U. S. 421, 427; Federal Trade Commission v. Beech-Nut Packing Co., 257 U. S. 441, 453; Federal Trade Commission v. Curtis Publishing Co., 260 U. S. 563, 579; Federal Trade Commission v. Raladam Co., 283 U. S. 643, 648; Federal Trade Commission v. R. F. Keppel & Bro., supra, p. 314. Testimony of witnesses as to how, in their opinion, the question should be determined would be useless and improper. The Supreme Court has, in the Keppel case, declared the law on this subject, not for one State or one Circuit only, but for the entire United States, including the Pacific Northwest.

As stated before, petitioners pack their candy in boxes. They call these boxes fancy packages. They also call their candy fancy package candy, and call their business the fancy package candy business. They say in their brief that there is no testimony that anyone engaged in the fancy package candy business is injured by their use of the punchboard method of selling and distributing candy. Hence, they contend, the Commission's finding that their use of this method injures their competitors is not supported by testimony. The contention is based on the false assumption that petitioners are in competition only with those who sell and distribute candy in fancy packages. There is abundant testimony that sales of petitioners' candy by the punchboard method are in competition with, and subtract from, "straight" sales of other candy. Whether such candy is sold in fancy packages, plain boxes, tinfoil wrappers, or paper bags is quite immaterial.

Sales of petitioners' candy by the punchboard method exceed, in the aggregate, $250,000—five million punches—a year. Here, as in the Keppel case, supra (p. 309), the practices complained of affect not only competing manufacturers, but the far greater number of wholesalers and retailers to whom the manufacturers sell, and the customers to whom the retailers sell. It is clear, therefore, that the present proceeding is not a mere private controversy, but is, as § 5 of the act requires, "to the interest of the public."

Each of the five orders under review reads as follows:

It is ordered that the [petitioner], its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution in interstate commerce of candy, do forthwith cease and desist from:

(1) Selling and distributing to jobbers and wholesale dealers for resale to retail dealers, or to retail dealers direct, candy so packed and assembled that sales of such candy to the general public are to be made, or may be made, by means of a lottery, gaming device, or gift enterprise.

(2) Supplying to or placing in the hands of wholesale dealers and jobbers or retail dealers assortments of candy which are used, or which may be used, without alteration or rearrangement of the contents of such assortments, to conduct a lottery, gaming device, or gift enterprise in the sale or distribution of the candy contained in said assortments to the public.

(3) Packing or assembling in the same assortment of candy for sale to the public at retail boxes of candy, together with a device commonly called a "punchboard," which punchboard is for use, or which may be or is designed to be used, in distributing or selling said candy to the public at retail.

(4) Furnishing to retail and wholesale dealers and jobbers a device commonly called a "punchboard," either with assortments of candy or separately, bearing a legend or legends or statements informing the purchasing public that the candy is being sold to the public by lot or chance or in accordance with a sales plan which constitutes a lottery, gaming device, or gift enterprise.

Petitioners contend that paragraphs (1) and (2) of each order are too broad, [72] in that they relate not only to sales which are to be made by means of a lottery, gaming device, or gift enterprise, but to those which "may be" so made, and relate not only to assortments of candy which are to be used in conducting a lottery, gaming device, or gift enterprise, but to those which "may be" so used. This point is well taken. The orders, as drawn, would prevent petitioners from selling any candy which any person might thereafter sell by means of a lottery, gaming device, or gift enterprise, or might thereafter use in conducting a lottery, gaming device, or gift enterprise, even though such sale or use was not designed, intended, caused, procured, or consented to by petitioners. This, obviously, was not the intention of Congress. Federal Trade Commission v. A. McLean & Son, supra,
The orders are modified by striking out the words "or may be made," in paragraph (1) of each order, and by amending paragraph (2) of each order to read as follows:

(2) Supplying to or placing in the hands of wholesale dealers and jobbers or retail dealers assortments of candy whose contents are arranged to conduct a lottery, gaming device, or gift enterprise in the sale or distribution of the candy contained in said assortments to the public.

As thus modified, the orders are affirmed.

THE GOODYEAR TIRE & RUBBER COMPANY v. FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION

No. 7369

(Circuit Court of Appeals, Sixth Circuit. February 16, 1939.)

DISCRIMINATING IN PRICE—CLAYTON ACT, SEC. 2—PROVISOS OR EXCEPTIONS—WHERE DIFFERENCES BASED ON GRADE, QUALITY, QUANTITY; COST OF SELLING, ETC.; OR IN GOOD FAITH TO MEET COMPETITION—AS MUTUALLY EXCLUSIVE.

The exceptions to statutory price discrimination prohibition permitting discrimination based on differences in grade, quality, or quantity of commodity sold and differences in cost of selling or transportation and discriminations made in good faith to meet competition are mutually exclusive, and the exception permitting allowance for difference in cost of selling or transportation does not qualify the preceding exception permitting discrimination on account of differences in grade, quality or quantity (Clayton Act, sec. 2, 15 U. S. C. A. sec. 13).

STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION—CONGRESSIONAL DEBATE—WHERE COMMON AGREEMENT THROUGHOUT.

Although statements in debate are of doubtful aid in construing statutes, common agreement throughout consideration of legislation, when it exists, may be considered in determining purpose of legislation.

STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION—CONGRESSIONAL DEBATE—WHEN MEANING PLAIN ON FACE.

When meaning of act to be construed is plain on its face, resort to reports of congressional committees concerning it is unnecessary.

DISCRIMINATING IN PRICE—CLAYTON ACT, SEC. 2—PROVISOS OR EXCEPTIONS—WHERE DIFFERENCES BASED ON GRADE, QUALITY, QUANTITY—WHETHER LIMITATION TO APPROXIMATE COST SAVINGS.

The provision of statutory price discrimination prohibition permitting discrimination in price on account of differences in grade, quality, or quantity of commodity sold did not limit discrimination in price on account of quantity to approximate savings in cost.

1Reported in 101 F. (2d) 620. The case before the Commission is reported in 22 F. T. C. 232. Certiorari denied Oct. 9, 1939, 60 Sup. Ct. 74.
The persuasiveness of evidence may upon occasion be destroyed by analysis even though uncontroverted.

Evidence—Where Uncontroverted—Analysis to Weaken or Overcome.

Evidence that prices did not vary according to varying volume of business of mail order house purchasing automobile tires from tire manufacturer, that there was no quantity commitment in contracts, and that price discrimination in favor of mail-order house was proportionally greater than that allowed independent dealers, was insufficient to establish that differential was not on account of quantity, and hence within exception to statute prohibiting price discrimination.

Cease and Desist Orders—Discriminating in Price—Clayton Act, Sec. 2—Provisos or Exceptions—Where Differences Based on Grade, Quality, Quantity—Where Differential Favoring Mail Order House Did Not Vary with Varying Volume, No Quality Commitments in Contracts, and Proportionally Greater Than Allowed Independents.

The Federal Trade Commission was without power to direct discontinuance of price differentials, if reasonably based on quantity, in favor of mail-order house purchasing automobile tires, and its order so directing could not be upheld, where, because of failure to recognize any proper standard for making of such finding, there was no finding determining that price differentials involved were not based on quantity.

On petition by Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. to review, cease and desist order of Commission charging it with violation of Clayton Act by discriminating in price of tires between those sold in interstate commerce to a mail-order house on the one hand and to dealers on the other, order set aside; Hamilton, Circuit Judge, dissenting.

Mr. Grover Higgins, of Cleveland, Ohio (Messrs. Newton D. Baker, Grover Higgins, and H. Chapman Rose, all of Cleveland, Ohio, on the brief), for petitioner.

Mr. P. B. Morehouse and Mr. E. F. Haycraft, both of Washington, D. C. (Messrs. W. T. Kelley, Martin A. Morrison, Everett F. Haycraft, Pgad B. Morehouse, and James W. Nichol, all of Washington, D. C., on the brief), for respondent.

Before Hicks, Simons, and Hamilton, Circuit Judges.

Simons, Circuit Judge:

The cease and desist order sought to be reviewed charges the petitioner with violation of §2 of the Clayton Act by discriminating in the price of tires between those sold in interstate commerce to Sears, Roebuck & Co. on the one hand and to dealers on the other, with the effect of lessening competition and tending to create a monopoly in their manufacture and distribution.

The case is here for the second time. At the first hearing, upon learning that the offending practices of the petitioner which led to the order had been discontinued under compulsion of the amendment to § 2 of the Clayton Act made on June 19, 1936, by the Robinson-Patman Act (U. S. C. A. title 15, § 13), and with complete comprehension of the rule that discontinuance of a condemned practice constituting a violation of the act does not render a controversy moot where the offender by the mere exercise of volition may resume them, United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Assn., 166 U. S. 290, 309, 310, and other cases, yet conceiving ourselves bound by the decision and reasoning in United States v. Hamburg-Amerikanische Co. etc., 239 U. S. 466, and by the analogy of present circumstances to those there adjudicated and the relief there granted, held the controversy moot, set aside the order, and remanded the case, but without direction to dismiss the complaint and without prejudice to the filing of a supplemental complaint under the amended law. Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. v. Federal Trade Commission, 92 F. (2d) 677. Neither side supporting our view, the Supreme Court, without indicating departure from the rule announced in the Hamburg-Amerikanische case, without pointing to aught inapposite in our analogy or citing the reference, reversed. Federal Trade Commission v. Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., 304 U. S. 257. Upon its remand the cause is before us for decision upon the merits after full reargument.

As indicated in our former opinion, the controversy involves principally an interpretation given by the Commission to § 2 of the Clayton Act. That section declares it to be unlawful to discriminate in price between purchasers of commodities where the effect of such discrimination may be to substantially lessen competition or tend to create a monopoly in any line of commerce, subject to the proviso:

That nothing herein contained shall prevent discrimination in price between purchasers of commodities on account of differences in the grade, quality, or quantity of the commodity sold, or that makes only due allowance for difference in the cost of selling or transportation, or discrimination in price in the same or different communities made in good faith to meet competition.

The petitioner contends that a discrimination in price is permitted if based upon the quantity of the commodity sold, without respect to whether it makes only due allowance for difference in cost of selling or transportation. The Commission contends that while the proviso permits discrimination on account of differences in quantity, such discrimination is not permitted unless reasonably related to and approximately no more than the difference in cost, and that a price discrimination is contrary to § 2 unless it can be shown that it represents and fairly approximates lower costs.
Prior to 1926 the large mail-order house of Sears, Roebuck & Company, with [622] retail stores in many cities of the United States, bought its tires from one or more small manufacturers. Though doing a much larger general business than its principal competitor, Montgomery, Ward & Company, its tire business failed to keep pace with that of the latter. It set about to improve this condition by changing the personnel of its tire department and inaugurating a vigorous advertising campaign, and sought Goodyear as a source of tire supply. Its first contract with Goodyear in 1926 covered its requirements for a period of 3 years. The price was cost of manufacture plus a profit of 6 percent, later adjusted in some instances to 6½ percent. Sears was to do its own advertising and to sell the tires under trade-names of its own. In May 1928, a second contract was concluded covering requirements to December 31, 1932, but terminable on that date by a year of advance notice. In the summer of 1931 Sears, signifying its intention to terminate, a new arrangement was made by which a 10-year contract was entered into upon Goodyear paying to Sears a consideration in cash and common stock amounting to $1,250,000. Like preceding arrangements, the contract called for a price of cost plus profit.

Under its several contracts with Sears, Goodyear manufactured and sold to Sears during the 8-year period, 1926–1933, more than 19,000,000 tires, for which Sears paid to it a gross sum of $129,252,984, and a net sum of $116,359,367. The Commission made an exhaustive study of the cost of tires sold by Goodyear under the Sears contracts and that of tires sold to its independent dealers upon a similar volume of business. It found that based upon the profit and loss statement of Goodyear adjusted as the result of such study, Goodyear realized on its sales to Sears during the entire period a total net profit of $7,715,794.56, and on its sales of equal volume to service-station dealers a net profit of $20,425,807.21. The difference of $12,710,012.65 in net profit it found to be the aggregate net price discrimination not accounted for by differences in cost of transportation and selling according to the respondent’s own calculations and based upon the method which it itself suggested. It concluded that this price discrimination in favor of Sears against independent service-station dealers was not justified by differences in cost of transportation or selling. Conceding that quantity discounts are exempt because they involve some economic utility that should be preserved, the Commission asserts that the quantity exception does not permit price discrimination without limit or restraint, that while a difference in quantity of the commodity sold must be given reasonable weight in determining whether the discriminatory price is warranted, yet in arriving at a price on account of quantity it is necessary that the difference in price be reasonably related to the difference in cost, though remote and unsubstantial differences in cost may be disregarded.

The petitioner, conceding that price discrimination on account of quantity does not mean discrimination without limit, denies that such discrimination must be based on difference in cost or be reasonably related to such difference. It points to the value to Goodyear of the Sears requirements in removing hazard and insuring stability, the avoidance of profit fluctuation inevitable in its other business, and the casting upon Sears of the risk which Goodyear normally bore of raw material price decline and credit losses. It asserts that these advantages, over and above mere savings in costs, are substantial and real, even though they may not readily be measured in terms of dollars, and that the statute by its language permits a discrimination that will measure economic advantage of quantity sales beyond mere savings in cost.

The Commission dismissed from its consideration all intangible economic advantages of quantity sales over and above savings in cost as being too speculative and remote to justify price discrimination. Accepting the finding that the $12,000,000 difference in profit between tires sold to Sears and an equal volume of business with independent dealers measures its discount in excess of savings, the petitioner points out that this discrimination amounts to but 6.96 percent of the gross price to Sears. The Commission's counsel, however, contends that this calculation is erroneous, in that the profit differential should be related not to the gross selling price of tires to Sears but to the cost of their manufacture, and that so computed the discrimination not accounted for by savings is 11.89 percent. So it is argued on the one hand that the discrimination on account of quantity is reasonably related to the economic advantages of quantity sales in the volume made to Sears and on the other that discrimination on account of quantity even if permitted by the statute is too great to be so related.

Primary consideration must necessarily be given to the meaning of § 2 of the Clayton Act. It will be observed that by the proviso, nothing contained in the section is to prevent discrimination in price between purchasers of commodities (1) "on account of differences in the grade, quality, or quantity of the commodity sold," or (2) "that makes only due allowance for difference in the cost of selling or transportation," or (3) "discrimination in price in the same or different communities made in good faith to meet competition." With the third exception of the proviso we are not concerned, and as to the meaning of the second exception there is no dispute. It is conceded that there may be a discrimination in price based upon quantity, but the Commission would read the second exception as a limitation or qualification of the first. We see no warrant for such construction and the structure of the proviso as well as the history of the section repel it.

The three exceptions of the proviso would seem to be mutually exclusive. If the second qualifies and limits the first, the word "quantity" in the first exception appears to be redundant. Mindful of the rule that statements in debate are of doubtful aid to the construction of the statute, yet when there is common agreement throughout the consideration of legislation such agreement may properly be considered in determining its purpose. Federal Trade Commission v. Raladam Co., 283 U. S. 643, 650; Humphrey's, Executor v. United States, 295 U. S. 602, 624. The history of § 2 of the Clayton Act, both before and after its passage, its subsequent amendment by the Robinson-Patman Act, so that the phrase dealing with differences in quantity reads, "That nothing herein contained shall prevent differentials * * * which make only due allowance for differences in the cost of manufacture, sale, and delivery, resulting from the differing methods or quantities in which such commodities are to such purchasers sold or delivered," point with greater than usual persuasiveness not only to its original purpose but to subsequently discovered infirmities, in the light of matured views upon the necessity of further regulation.

In its report of the Clayton Bill to the House of Representatives, the House Judiciary Committee made it clear that its primary purpose was to reach the practice of destroying competition in certain sections by lowering prices below cost and thereafter recouping such losses at the expense of the general public when monopoly had been achieved. The Senate Committee adopted the report (Cong. Record, vol. 51, p. 15837). In the House it was pointed out by Mr. Webb in charge of the bill (ibid., p. 9072), that the practice of giving a cheaper rate to the purchaser who buys in wholesale lots was a business necessity that the Committee did not feel warranted in trying to disturb. When it was objected that this would allow great mail-order houses to buy in enormous quantities and so to retain the great advantages they had always had, it was suggested that a section be drawn to correct that evil, but no such amendment was incorporated in the act. The Clayton Act was passed in 1914, but until the present investigation began the Commission never assumed it had the power to prohibit price discrimination on account of quantity when unrelated to differences in cost. In 1928 Senate Resolution 224 directed the Commission to undertake an inquiry into the chain store system of marketing and distribution. Its final report was filed December 14, 1934 (Senate Document No. 4, 74th Congress, first session). In it the Commission indicated that lower selling prices were a very substantial if not the chief factor in the growth of chain store merchandising, and specifically discussing § 2 of the Clayton Act (p. 97), said:

That unless the price discrimination permitted "on account of" quantity shall make "only due allowance" therefore, § 2 of the Clayton Act may be readily evaded by making a small difference in quantity the occasion for a large difference in price. If the section is to have any vitality it must either be interpreted and enforced to that effect or it should be amended to that effect.

In its annual report for the year ending June 30, 1935, the Commission recommended the enactment of a law forbidding a seller "to discriminate unfairly or unjustly in price between different purchasers" or else a law "to clearly define the discrimination in price intended to be forbidden." Quite promptly bills were concurrently introduced into the House and Senate, each of which eliminated the proviso of the old § 2 and substituted the language we have already recited. The two bills were consolidated under the style of the Robinson-Patman Bill, and as consolidated enacted into law June, 1936, with amended § 2 unchanged. In reporting the bill, the House Judiciary Committee (Report 2287, 74th Congress, second session), said:

* * * present § 2 of the Clayton Act places no limit upon quantity differentials of any kind. * * * This proviso is of great importance for * * * it also limits the use of quantity price differentials to the sphere of actual cost differences. * * * In the above exemption the phrase "which makes only due allowance" is carried over from the present act, but as coupled with the remainder of the clause, is here extended to limit quantity differentials to differences in cost of manufacture, sale and delivery as provided in said subsection 2.

In the report of the Senate Judiciary Committee (1502), it was said:

The weakness of present § 2 lies principally in the fact that (1) it places no limit upon differentials permissible on account of differences in quantity. * * *

We defer to the rule that when the meaning of an Act of Congress is plain on its face there is no occasion to resort to the reports of Congressional Committees concerning it, Standard Fashion Co. v. Magrane-Houston Co., 258 U. S. 346, and it seems to be clear that § 2 of the Clayton Act permits discrimination in price on account of quantity without relation to savings in cost, and that the distinguishing phraseology employed in the two exceptions must not be ignored. But if in the light of the Commission's own change of view as to its meaning we assume it to be necessary to resort to extrinsic aid to ascertain it, it is made clear by the declaration of the several Committees of the Congress and the history of the section, that the amendment incorporated in the Robinson-Patman Act marks a change in the law and not mere clarification. So concluding we deem the order of the respondent erroneous insofar as it is necessarily based upon a construction of the law, which limits discriminations in price on account of quantity to approximate savings in cost.

We do not find anything in the case of American Can Co. v. Ladoga Canning Co., 44 F. (2d) 763 (C. C. A. 7), to conflict with this view. There was in that case direct and substantial evidence that the discriminations there involved were not in good faith made on account of differences in quantity, and that the contention that they were so made was an afterthought first conceived when the case went to trial. There is no such factual situation here.

The Commission's counsel insist that even though the Commission is wrong in its construction of § 2, it found as a fact that the excess differential of $12,000,000 on tires sold to Sears over the price to independent dealers on a similar volume of business was not on account of quantity, and that this finding is based upon substantial evidence and so conclusive upon us. The contention requires analysis. We may say at once that it is not a sufficient answer to say, as does the petitioner, that Mr. Litchfield of the Goodyear Co. testified that such differential was in good faith made on account of quantity after detailed consideration of the survey and report of experts, and his testimony stands unimpeached, for as we have frequently said, the persuasiveness of evidence may upon occasion be destroyed by analysis even though uncontroverted.

It is urged that the finding that excess discrimination was not on account of quantity is supported by evidentiary facts, including the fact that prices did not vary according to the varying volume of the Sears' business, that there was not quantity commitments in the Sears' contracts, and that the discrimination was proportionally greater than that allowed dealers in view of the economic principle that at some point saturation must be reached beyond which no increase in quantity would justify an increase in discount. These evidentiary circumstances do not of themselves, however, sustain an ultimate finding that the differential was not on account of quantity. The lack of a definite commitment when the contract was for Sears' entire requirements, less minor checking orders, the failure of the price to rise and fall concurrently with the rise and fall of quantity shipments, and the lack of relation between the discount to Sears and the gradations of discount to independent dealers, are all inherent in the nature of a cost-plus agreement of such unusual volume as was expected to and did result from the Sears' business, for the evidence discloses that it was from 13 to 36 times the volume of that of Goodyear's largest independent customer.

[625] All this aside, however, it seems perfectly clear that the findings and conclusions of the Commission that the discrimination in price was not on account of quantity, were all based upon the Commission's interpretation of the law. This permeated all of its discussion and controlled its evidentiary findings and its ultimate conclusions. Section 17 of the Commission's findings dealing with the present question is a composite of evidentiary facts, reasoning, and conclusion. Without denying that there are economic advantages in dealing with a large customer on the basis of hazard, the stabilizing of production and profit, and other factors not translated into dollar and cents advantage, it is determined without pretense of appraising such advantages that they are too speculative, intangible, and remote to justify a price discrimination. It is further determined that the discrimination was not a quantity discount as customarily understood in the trade, because the Commission, weighing the testimony of expert economists pro and con, concluded that quantity discounts not justified on approximate savings are in that field considered as a form of price cutting, and so condemned by the law. The conclusion is inescapable that any discrimination in price exceeding by more than a negligible amount a due allowance for differences in cost must have brought about the same result. The Commission found no standard in the law by which a discrimination on account of quantity unrelated to savings in cost is to be judged. There is therefore no finding that the petitioner's differential, whether it be 6.96 percent or a greater percentage, is not on account of quantity because such discrimination is not permitted and may not be judged by a non-existent standard. Once a discrimination is found unrelated to savings in cost, it is ipso facto to be condemned. So is there not only a misconstruction of the law, but a refusal to recognize a standard of judgment not based on such misconstruction and so impossibility of its application to the facts if rightly construed.

Applicable in this connection is the language of the court in the Raladum Company case, supra: "Official powers cannot be extended beyond the terms and necessary implications of the grant. If broader powers be desirable they must be conferred by Congress. They cannot be merely assumed by administrative officers nor can they be created by the courts in the proper exercise of their judicial function." We conclude that the Commission had no power to command discontinuance of price differentials reasonably based on quantity, and there is no finding which properly construed determines that those here involved are not so based, since no standard for the making of such finding is recognized.

The order of the respondent is set aside.

HAMILTON, Circuit Judge (dissenting).

I am unable to concur in the majority opinion. With all due regard to, and respect for, the legal ability of my associates, I believe they have included in the proviso of the statute a case that lies beyond its direct expression and not within its letter or spirit.

This statute should be construed in the light of attendant conditions and the state of the law at the time of its enactment and applied to carry out the intention and meaning of the legislature gleaned from its language. A proviso which operates to limit the application of the general provisions of a statute should be strictly construed to include no case not within its letter. The last rule is especially applicable to the case here under consideration.

A proviso may be used as a guide in the selection of one or the other of two possible constructions of words or phrases found in a statute doubtful in scope, but to read into it a meaning not comprehended by the enactment itself and contrary to its terms, makes it an instrument of discrimination and defeats, rather than clarifies, legislative intent.

Usually provisos find their way into statutes at the behest of persons who are unreasonably apprehensive as to their effect and by those who wish to obtain immunity from their terms. They are the favorite instrument of lobbyists and those who desire to escape the effect of general provisions of a statute applicable to a large class. Having put in a proviso which in many instances is needless, in order to satisfy the persistent and allay a particular class, courts are sometimes led to construe it as to relieve of liability those plainly within the scope of the statute and impose liability on those not so apprehensive of its effect or so diligent to protect their interests.

The problem of monopolies has engaged the attention of organized society for centuries. The first regulatory statute was passed in England in 1624, making all illegal except such as might be authorized by Parliament in respect to new manufacturing enterprises carried on by corporations or companies. The proviso in this statute was used as an excuse for subsequent transgressions of the act and so it is that provisos have since been an avenue of evasion.

A private monopoly is indefensible and intolerable. To this principle all agree. The first Federal law on the subject was passed in 1890 (26 Stat. 209). It was designated An Act to Protect Trade and Commerce Against Unlawful Restraints and Monopolies and was passed as the result of widespread and vehement popular insistence that something be done to curb the growing tendency toward concentration of industry to the disadvantage of both the consumer and small producer. It declared illegal "every contract, combination in the form of trusts or otherwise or conspiracy in restraint of trade or commerce among the several states or with foreign nations," and that "every person who shall monopolize or attempt to monopolize, or combine or conspire with any other person or persons, to monopolize any part of the trade, or commerce among the several states” violates the act.

Efforts to eliminate restraints or attempted restraints of competition were carried on by the United States under this act for 24 years. Its success fluctuated with the courts’ interpretation of what the words and phrases of the act meant. There was difficulty in applying such vague terms as “contracts in restraint of trade” and “attempts to monopolize” when the question arose as to the applicability of these terms to concrete situations. The tendency toward industrial concentration continued unabated which resulted in the disappearance of small units of production and brought forth two paradoxical types of economic restraint; one, no competition; the other, ruinous competition. President Wilson, in his message to the Sixty-third Congress, said:

We are sufficiently familiar with the actual processes and methods of monopoly and of the many hurtful restraints of trade to make definition possible, at any rate up to the limit of which experience has disclosed. These practices, being now abundantly disclosed, can be explicitly and item by item forbidden by statute in such terms as will practically eliminate uncertainty, the law itself and the penalty being made equally plain.

Such was the historic background and the motives which moved the framers of the legislation which was passed as The Federal Trade Commission Act and the Clayton Anti-Trust Act of 1914 which concerns us here. Johnson v. Southern Pacific Co., 196 U. S. 1, 22.

A study of the debates upon these measures in Congress clearly shows the intent to declare illegal all practices regarded as likely to promote monopolies thus forestalling an evil before its development.

During the course of the debates, Senator Walsh, of Montana, in referring to the Clayton Act, said:

The purpose of the legislation of which the pending bill forms a part is to preserve competition where it exists, to restore it where it is destroyed and to permit it to spring up in new fields. Congressional Record, Oct. 5, 1914, vol. 51, p. 16.

While the Federal Trade Commission Act and the Clayton Act were passed separately they were considered by Congress concurrently, reference to the other being frequently made in the course of the debates on each, and they should be understood as complementary attempts to promote our government’s basic concept of economic equality.

In the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Congress attempted to set up a permanent body of trained personnel whose duty it was to safeguard and promote competition in industry. The companion Clayton law was entitled "An Act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies, and for other purposes." Section 2 of the act (U. S. C. A. 15, sec. 13) provides:

Sec. 2. That it shall be unlawful for any person engaged in commerce, in the course of such commerce, either directly or indirectly, to discriminate in price between different purchasers of commodities, which commodities are sold for use, consumption or resale. * * * Provided, That nothing herein contained shall prevent discrimination in price between purchasers of commodities on account of differences in the grade, quality or quantity of the commodity sold, or that [627] makes only due allowance for difference in the cost of selling or transportation, or discrimination in price in the same or different communities made in good faith to meet competition: And provided, further, That nothing herein contained shall prevent persons engaged in selling goods, wares, or merchandise in commerce from selecting their own customers in bona fide transactions and not in restraint of trade.

Respondent found, and the facts conclusively show, that petitioner has violated the above section unless exempt under the proviso. Bearing in mind the rule of interpretation heretofore announced that the intention of the legislature is controlling, the single question in the case is what is meant by the expression "discrimination in price between purchasers of commodities on account of difference in grade, quality, or quantity."

The Commission finds, and the undisputed evidence shows, there was no difference in grade or quality between the tires petitioner sold to its dealers generally and those sold to Sears-Roebuck & Co., so the single issue is the true construction of the phrase "on account of the difference in quantity." It is a rule of universal application that words or phrases in a statute must be construed to carry out the manifest intent of the Congress and in all cases they should be construed in the sense which best harmonizes with the context and promotes to the fullest extent the desired objective.

Every technical rule as to the construction or force of particular terms must yield to the clear expression of the paramount will of the legislature and the words and phrases of a statute will be construed in their ordinary sense, and with the meaning commonly attributed to them in the ordinary business affairs of life. Sproles v. Binford, 286 U. S. 374, 397.

Excluding the proviso in the statute here, every discrimination in price between different purchasers is prohibited. It was not intended that the prohibition should be cancelled by the proviso. Such an interpretation would lead to an absurdity and if the rule of liberality applied in the majority opinion is applicable to the proviso, it sets up a method of evasion not intended by the Congress. For the reasons heretofore pointed out, a proviso must be strictly construed.

The Congress intended to maintain competitive prices, which means those resulting from the activities of many buyers and sellers, each of whom can affect the outcome only by buying or selling large or small quantities according as the price is at one point or another. It intended to proscribe monopoly prices which are those fixed with a view to the advantage of the purchaser or seller by a single (exclusive) seller or buyer or by a combination of sellers or buyers acting as a unit. Monopolistic prices are always possible when a seller is able to deal differently with the same classes of buyers of the same product or to manage in some other way to sell his goods in virtually separate markets. Recognizing this practice and in order to suppress monopolies at their inception, the Congress penalized sales of the same article to different customers at different prices.

If the contract between the petitioner and Sears-Roebuck falls within the definition of the term “monopolistic prices” above outlined, there is a violation of the act regardless of difference in quantity, because the transaction is what is commonly known in ordinary business affairs as fixing a discriminatory price and by a device having the monopolistic tendency denounced by the Clayton Act.

The rule to be followed in the construction of statutes relating to commercial transactions is that the descriptive terms applied to articles of commerce shall be understood according to the acceptation given them by commercial men doing business in our country at the time of the passage of the act in which they are found.

Under this rule the expression “discrimination in price between purchasers of commodities on account of difference in grade, quality, or quantity of the commodity sold” must be construed in the light of business practices in this regard at the time of the passage of the act. The testimony in the record of those familiar with the industry shows that quantity discounts on account of tire purchases are relatively small and based upon certain definite and known volumes of purchases none of which have any resemblance to the transaction between petitioner and Sears-Roebuck & Co. This being true the acts of the petitioner bring it within the general provisions of the antitrust laws and exclude it from the protection of the proviso therein.

[628] The statutes here in question do not require the adventitious aid of subsequent kindred legislation for the purpose of elucidation. “In other words, where Congress has expressly legislated in respect to a given matter that express legislation must control in the absence of subsequent legislation equally express, and is not overthrown by any mere inferences or implications to be found in such subsequent legislation.” Rosecrans v. United States, 165 U. S. 257, 264. It is the primary duty of courts to interpret the meaning of statutes and a resort to contemporaneous or executive construction is both unnecessary and improper where the language used is clear or its meaning can be ascertained by the use of intrinsic aids alone. Bates &
The mere failure of public officers charged with the public duty to enforce statutes against odious monopolies or their acquiescence in the conditions that permit them to flourish should not be allowed to stand in the way of the administration of such laws or be construed to estop more diligent and efficient public officials when they attempt to terminate monopolistic practices and tendencies.

I am of the opinion the order of the Commission should be upheld.

CALIFORNIA RICE INDUSTRY v. FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION*

No. 8844

(Circuit Court of Appeals, Ninth Circuit. March 17, 1939)

INTERSTATE COMMERCE—SALES FOR TRANSPORTATION WITHOUT STATE—F. O. B. MILL OR DOCK DELIVERY—RICE MILLERS.

Sales of rice by millers for transportation outside the state, were sales in "interstate" or "foreign commerce" within jurisdiction of Federal Trade Commission, whether performance by millers was by shipment into other states and territories or by delivery to buyers at mill or dock "f. o. b." for shipment to points outside state (Federal Trade Commission Act, 1914, sec. 5, 15 U. S. C. A. sec. 45).

RESTRANIT OF TRADE—CONCERT OF ACTION—PRICE COMPETITION—ELIMINATION BY SELLER GROUP—FOOD STAPLE—PUBLIC INTEREST—JUDICIAL NOTICE.

The Circuit Court of Appeals takes judicial notice of the public interest involved in the elimination of price competition by a group of sellers to the public of substantially the entire supply of a preferred staple food such as rice.

CEASE AND DESIST ORDERS—APPELLATE PROCEEDINGS—DISPOSITION OF CASE—FINDINGS ON MATTERS OF JUDICIAL KNOWLEDGE—WHETHER COMMISSION REQUISITE.

FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION ACT—SCOPE AND PURPOSE—PREVENTIVE AIM—SECTION 5.

One of purposes of statute empowering Federal Trade Commission to prevent use of unfair methods of competition in interstate and foreign commerce is to stop in their incipiency those methods of competition which fall within meaning of word "unfair."

*Reported in 102 F. (2d) 716. The case before the Commission is reported in 26 F. T. C. 968.
The Federal Trade Commission Act is designed to aid in keeping free the potential as well as the immediate competitor for food customers' patronage.

The Circuit Court of Appeals would take judicial notice that potentially there were many competitors who were not parties to price-fixing agreement between growers and millers who might acquire rice from California's existing and expanding rice fields.

"UNFAIR METHODS OF COMPETITION"—SCOPE AND MEANING—As Pertaining to and Comprehensive.

A "method," as used in provision in Federal Trade Commission Act empowering commission to prevent using unfair "methods" of competition in Interstate and foreign commerce, means "associated with" or "connected with" or "pertaining to," and word "competition" is used in a broad sense covering the whole field of competition, so that use of phrase "using unfair methods of competition" means an "unfair method pertaining to the maintenance of competition."

"UNFAIR METHODS OF COMPETITION"—SCOPE AND MEANING—Freedom of Competitive Action—Where Competitors, Actual or Potential, Adversely Affected—As Then Unfair.

Price-fixing agreement between growers and millers of substantially all rice grown in the state of California, for purpose of attaining uniformity of price, was an "unfair method of competition," within meaning of provision in Federal Trade Commission Act empowering commission to prevent use of "unfair methods of competition."

Order of Federal Trade Commission was valid to extent that it required voluntary rice industry association and its members, in connection with offering for sale, and selling and distributing rice and rice [717] products in Interstate and foreign commerce, to refrain from, by agreement, fixing and maintaining uniform prices, distributing or adopting uniform price lists or employing other devices tending to fix prices.
Order of Federal Trade Commission was invalid to extent that it attempted to direct millers of rice from fixing or determining quotas or percentages of rice crop that millers might mill or process, since milling was "intrastate" rather than "interstate commerce."

On petition by the California Rice Industry and others to review and set aside an order of Commission requiring petitioners to refrain from pursuing certain practices in connection with the sale and distribution of rice, order affirmed in part and reversed in part; Mathews, Circuit Judge, dissenting.

Mr. Harry M. Creech, of San Francisco, Cal., for petitioners.

Mr. W. T. Kelley, Chief Counsel, Mr. Martin A. Morrison, Assistant Chief Counsel, Mr. Daniel J. Murphy, and Mr. James W. Nichol, Special Attorneys, Federal Trade Commission, all of Washington, D. C., for respondent.

Before Denman, Mathews, and Healy, Circuit Judges.

DENMAN, Circuit Judge:

This is a petition to review and set aside an order of the Federal Trade Commission requiring petitioners to "cease and desist, in connection with offering for sale, sale and distribution of rice and rice products in commerce as defined in section 4 of the Federal Trade Commission Act, from doing and performing by agreement, combination or conspiracy between or among any two or more of said respondents (petitioners here), or with others, the following acts and things:

1. Fixing and maintaining uniform prices.
2. Compiling, publishing and distributing any joint or uniform list or compilation of prices.
3. Adopting any joint or uniform price list or other device which fixes prices.
4. Discussing through the medium of meetings of the California Rice Industry or its Marketing and Crop Boards, or in any similar manner, uniform prices, terms, discounts, agreements upon prices, by resolution or otherwise, or employing any similar device which fixes or tends to fix prices, or which is designed to equalize or make uniform the selling prices, terms, discounts or policies of respondent millers.
5. Fixing or determining the quotas or percentages of the rice crop that the miller respondents may mill or process which, thereby, unlawfully restricts or hinders the sale of rice or rice products in interstate commerce.

The California Rice Industry is a voluntary unincorporated association. It does not have officers or directors, neither does it have articles of organization, constitution or by-laws, except the Intrastate Marketing Agreement dated August 28, 1935, which created it. Or-organized within the association and controlling and administering its policies and activities are the Crop Board and the Marketing Board. The Agreement provides for a Crop Board composed of members selected by Rice Growers Association of California, Paddy Rice Growers of California, Independent Rice Growers, the latter being growers unorganized except for purposes of the Intrastate Marketing Agreement, and members selected by joint action of the first and last named organizations. Some of the rice growers who are members of the Crop Board were made respondents by the Federal Trade Commission and all such respondents are petitioners here. The Marketing Board is composed of members selected by the Rice Growers Association of California, a grower and miller cooperative, and by those others signatory to the Intrastate Marketing Agreement engaged in the State of California in milling rice or marketing rice. Some of the individuals who have constituted the Marketing Board were made respondents by the Federal Trade Commission and all such respondents are petitioners here. Harry M. Creech, for many years counsel for the Rice Growers Association of California and later attorney in the drafting and execution of the Intrastate Marketing Agreement, is the neutral nonvoting chairman of the Marketing Board, neutral nonvoting member of the Crop Board and attorney for the California Rice Industry. The Federal Trade Commission included him as a respondent and he is a petitioner here. In addition to the above individuals, the Federal Trade Commission also included as respondents all but two of the various individuals, firms, corporations and cooperatives who signed the Intrastate Marketing Agreement. They are petitioners herein.

Substantially all of the rice produced within the State of California is of a shorter and plumper grain than the medium and longer grained rices produced in other sections of the United States. This rice, as grown and milled in California, is known as California-Japan type and the petitioners include or represent substantially everyone in California so engaged.

The petitioners' brief admits that "Substantially all of such rice after milling is sold and delivered by those among petitioners engaged cooperatively or commercially in milling rice and some part is shipped by such millers into other States and Territories." [Italics supplied.] About half the rice grown and milled in California is shipped to Hawaii, about a quarter of the remainder is shipped to Puerto Rico and the balance is sold in California and in various other states of the United States.

There is a long established preference for this type of rice in Hawaii, where but a relatively small amount of other rice is imported from Japan and the southern states. Also in Puerto Rico it is a preferred type, commanding a higher price than other types of rice sold there. The Commission properly may have inferred that its peculiarly plump characteristics have found consumers in other states who prefer it. It is obvious that the price of such a food, having such preferring consumers, will be affected if all competition of its suppliers is eliminated. Such evidence tends to support the Commission's finding of ultimate fact (though stated as a conclusion) that "2. As a result of the respondents entering into and making effective the agreement as above described, competition in the sale of rice and rice products in commerce as hereinabove referred to has been restricted and suppressed."

In addition to the admission of interstate shipments above italicized, the California-Japan type rice is sold by petitioners under sales contracts "fob cars" at the mill or "fob dock" at San Francisco, most of which is destined for points outside the state. The loading "on board" the cars or the car or truck movement from the rice mill to the dock, constitutes the beginning of the interstate or foreign transit. Thus there are sales contracts, in which it is found to be the practice of petitioners to charge uniform, fixed prices, which, as well as the delivery to the buyers, are "in" interstate or foreign commerce. *Dahnke-Walker Milling Co. v. Bondurant, 257 U. S. 282, 290, 291; Addyston Pipe & Steel Co. v. U. S. 175 U. S. 211, 241; U. S. v. Addyston Pipe and Steel Co., (C. C. A.-6) 85 Fed. 271, 298; U. S. v. United Shoe Machinery Co. (D. C. E. D., Mo.) 234 Fed. 127, 144; Santa Cruz Co. v. N. L. R. B., 303 U. S. 453, 463; Pennsylvania R. R. Co. v. Clark Bros. Coal Mining Co., 238 U. S. 456, 468. Cf. Federal Trade Comm. v. Pacific States Paper Trade Ass'n. 273 U. S. 52, 63, where intrastate price list was held a price factor in interstate transactions.

These facts establish that the acts interdicted by paragraphs "1" to "4" inclusive of the Commission's order are "in" interstate commerce and hence satisfy that requirement of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

The Commission's complaint was issued on March 26, 1937. The relevant portions of section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act as it then read (Act of September 26, 1914, c. 311, 38 Stat. 717, 719-720; U. S. C., 1934 ed., title 15, § 45), are:

Sec. 5. That unfair methods of competition in (interstate and foreign) commerce are hereby declared unlawful.

The commission is hereby empowered and directed to prevent persons, partnerships, or corporations, * * * from using unfair methods of competition in (interstate and foreign) commerce.

Whenever the commission shall have reason to believe that any such person, partnership, or corporation has been or is using any unfair method of competition in commerce, and if it shall appear to the [719] commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be to the interest of the public, it shall issue and serve upon such person, partnership, or corporation a complaint stating its charges in that respect * * *. [Italics supplied.]
The questions remain whether the acts prohibited by paragraphs “1” to “4” inclusive of the Commission's order come within the class of “unfair methods of competition” in such commerce and whether their prevention “would be to the interest of the public,” as these terms are used in section 5 of the Act.

The Commission has found the sales are at a uniform fixed price, the same for each petitioner, and that the uniformity is attained by a price fixing agreement among the petitioners. It has been found that “At meetings held on Tuesday of each week the Marketing Board from time to time, and with the concurrence of the Crop Board, fixes an industry price for extra-fancy clean rice, and from this price, by use of a formula adopted by said Marketing Board, the base price, producer's price, and trade prices for all grades of processed rice are computed.”

The price fixing clauses of the Agreement provide with relation to the “industry price,” from which by use of a formula the price at which rice is to be offered for sale is computed, that “by vote of either the Marketing Board or the Crop Board in the manner hereinafter provided, Industry Prices fob dock San Francisco for Extra Fancy clean rice of types produced in California shall be the simple average of the price for Extra Fancy Blue Rose rice at New Orleans for the ten preceding weeks as reported by the Federal-State Marketing News Service in its official Rice Market Review, provided that if more than one price is reported for any week then the price used in the average shall be the midpoint between the high and low so reported, plus ten cents per bag in the case of California Japan type or 35 cents per bag in the case of any other type, * * *.”

The brief of petitioners admits the effectiveness of fixing the uniform prices above the arbitrarily set New Orleans market price of another rice, and compares the result with that of the prior free competition and emphasizes the benefit to the miller-vendors and, it claims, to the growers as well. The probability is that no such agreement would have been made to fix the price for the small remainder sold in California to California buyers.

The total volume of the annual crop of rough or “paddy” California-Japan type rice grown in California is about 3,000,000 bags, which is equivalent to 1,500,000 bags of clean rice. We take judicial notice of the public interest involved in the elimination of all price competition by a group of sellers to the public of substantially the entire supply of such a volume of one of the preferred staple foods. Since section 5 (e) of the Act (15 U. S. C. A. § 45 (c)) empowers us to make final disposition of the case upon the “pleadings, evidence and proceedings”¹ no specific finding by the Commission is required of a fact so judicially known.

All the growers, processors and sellers in interstate and foreign commerce of the California-Japan type rice, here appearing, are satisfied with such a control of prices. There is no evidence of dissatisfaction by other growers. Hence this part of the review narrows itself to the question whether the agreed elimination of competition in price fixing is an "unfair method of competition" as that phrase is used in section 5 of the act.

Each of the petitioners is a potential competitor of each other in the sale of this food of the common people. This potential competition is prevented not only by the mutual promises of the millers but by the sanction of a substantial fine on any miller violating the agreement by selling his rice at a price less than that fixed by the Marketing Board. The fine is collected from a Millers' Trust Fund created by the Agreement.2

[720] It is obvious that the consumers of this food will be most unlikely to receive the benefit which, under competition, would flow

2 "Article IV. Miller's Trust Fund

1. Each miller on or before the 10th of the first full calendar month next following the execution hereof and on or before the 10th day of each month thereafter, shall pay into the Millers' Trust Fund 10 cents for each bag of paddy processed by it in the month preceding, plus 10 cents for each bag of paddy processed by it during the said preceding month in excess of its quota. If any miller fails to make the required payment by the 16th of the month in which such payment is due, he shall pay an additional 5 cents per bag for all paddy processed during said preceding month. In computing the amounts payable under this paragraph, there shall be deducted all amounts similarly payable in any other Marketing Agreement for the California Rice Industry to which the parties hereto are signatory.

2. Expenses deemed necessary by the Marketing Board and incurred incident to the performance by the Marketing Board of its functions and duties hereunder shall be paid from the Millers' Trust Fund.

3. On October 1, 1936, and on October 1 of each year thereafter, or upon any interim termination of this Agreement, the Millers' Trust Fund, after deducting accrued expenses in accord herewith, shall be distributed to the respective millers in the same percentages as their normal volume percentages, except that a miller who has exceeded his total quota for the preceding 12 months shall receive only one-half of his normal volume percentage of the amount contributed by him for such excess.

4. By 60 percent affirmative vote presenting at least three members of the Marketing Board, partial distributions of the Millers' Trust Fund may be made not exceeding in the aggregate 50 percent of the total collections to any given date, nor more frequently than at monthly intervals.

"Article XII. Enforcement

3. If at any time it is found by the Marketing Board, after due notice, hearing and determination under procedure as prescribed by the Marketing Board, that a miller has failed or is failing to abide by, or has violated or is violating any provision of this agreement, or any sales terms, rules, regulations, or policies prescribed by the Marketing Board pursuant hereto, the Marketing Board shall cause to be deducted from such miller's share in the Millers' Trust Fund as damages a sum or sums not exceeding four times the profit estimated by the Marketing Board, if any, realized by such miller in the transaction in respect of which such default or violations occurred, and no such deduction for such default or violations shall in any event be less than five hundred dollars. All sums thus deducted shall be distributed to the other millers in proportion of their respective normal volume percentages."
to them in the form of lower prices charged by miller-vendors whose costs are less than those of competitors, because of improved mechanical processes, higher managerial or operating efficiency, or advantageous location with respect to transportation costs.

This deprivation of benefit to the consumer resulting from lower costs of the more efficient miller-vendors arises from the fact that no higher cost miller-vendor of rice would join in the combination to fix the price unless the price be one advantageous to it. That is to say, the strong tendency in any such combination is to fix a price making a profitable return on the rice to the particular miller-vendor which has the highest production cost at the point of sale. In addition is the pressure, always present with a monopoly controlling the supply of a particular product preferred by consumers, to raise the price to a point which affords an unreasonable profit to all members composing the group of monopolizing suppliers. The success of the price as fixed by the Agreement may lead to a revision of its method of price fixing and a higher price agreed on. One of the purposes of the Act is "to stop in their incipiency those methods of competition which fall within the meaning the word 'unfair.'" Federal Trade Comm. v. Raladam Co., 283 U. S. 643, 647.

Prior to the Agreement, the petitioners were competing with one another for food customers' patronage. This normal economic condition is what the Congress has created the Federal Trade Commission to aid in maintaining.

The Agreement has destroyed the freedom to compete by the sanction of the fine on any one of the price fixers who may seek at any time a greater economic advantage because of his superior energy, ability and resources to process more than his permitted quota of the crop of rice and making larger sales at smaller profits. Each petitioner is a potential competitor who, if freed, would renew the desired norm of free competition with the others. That is to say, each petitioner, through the price fixing Agreement, prevents each other from the free use of his economic power and ability. It is the "potential" as well as the immediate competitor whose competition the Act seeks to keep free. Federal Trade Comm. v. Raladam Co., 283 U. S. 643, 651; [721] Federal Trade Comm. v. Klesner, 280 U. S. 19, 28.

We take judicial notice that potentially there are many other competitors—persons not parties to the Agreement—who may acquire rice from California's existing and expanding rice fields. Against such outside competition, here again, each price-fixer, through the Agreement, hamstrings each other price-fixer in the free exercise of his energy and economic power. The single price as here fixed makes it impossible for him to meet the day to day change of a free market. The acts interdicted by the Commission certainly are methods of competition, unfair both to the petitioners and the consumers of the food, if a "fair field and no favors" is the condition sought to be protected by the Federal Trade Commission Act.

There is no question that a destruction by the use of economic power by one interstate vendor of the freedom of his competitor's trade, if not accomplished by a contract or other combination with the latter, would warrant the Commission's order to cease and desist. However, it is contended that since petitioners have by an agreement eliminated price competition in the California-Japan type rice, and it has proved profitable to them, and, since each is dealing with his own property, there is no "unfair method of competition" involved in each preventing the other from a free competition with one or more of the agreeing parties which would destroy any price fixing profit, or in preventing one or more of them from competing with an outsider whom the price-fixers are not able to persuade to join them.

We do not so narrow the meaning of the phrase "unfair method of competition." We regard Congress to have used the preposition "of" in the broader sense stated in the dictionaries as meaning "associated with" or "connected with" or "pertaining to" and the word "competition" in a broad sense covering the whole field of competition. That is to say, we construe the phrase as meaning an "unfair method pertaining to the maintenance of competition."

This construction of the phrase accords with the purpose of the act as repeated in identical language in several opinions of the Supreme Court. A method is "an unfair method of competition" if it does not leave to each actual or potential competitor a "fair opportunity" for the play of his contending force engendered by an honest desire for gain. "The great purpose of both statutes (Federal Trade Commission and Clayton Acts) was to advance the public interest by securing fair opportunity for the play of the contending forces ordinarily engendered by an honest desire for gain. And to this end it is essential that those who adventure their time, skill and capital should have large freedom of action in the conduct of their own affairs." (Emphasis supplied.) Federal Trade Comm. v. Sinclair Co., 261 U. S. 463, 476. Int. Shoe Co. v. Federal Trade Comm., 280 U. S. 291, 298; Federal Trade Comm. v. Raladam Co., 283 U. S. 643, 647.

The Supreme Court in Federal Trade Commission v. Pacific States Paper Trade Assn., 273 U. S. 32, has so treated the phrase in sustaining the Commission's cease and desist order to associations of paper sellers in interstate commerce who, by agreement and understanding, had divided the Pacific Coast States into regional areas where they sold 75 percent of the paper and paper products, other than newsprint, there consumed. Each local association distributed uniform price lists to its members to be observed in its territory within the State. The secretary of each was authorized to investigate complaints against members to determine whether they sold below the established prices; and three of the associations authorized the imposition of heavy fines on members for making such sales. These association lists were habitually carried and used by the salesmen of members in quoting prices and making sales outside the State. No association had any requirements that such price lists be observed outside the State; and the quoting of, or the making of sales at, lower or different prices in such territory was not deemed an infraction of rules or trade regulations by reason of which any jobber or wholesaler could complain.

Referring to the prices fixed by the local associations, the Commission said the habitual carrying and use of such price lists by member jobbers in quoting prices and making sales outside the State, had a natural tendency to and did limit and lessen competition therein, and the result of such practice was fixed and uniform prices for such products within such territories.

Paragraph (b) of the Commission's order was to prevent the local associations, their officers and members, separately or in combination, from using any price list fixed by agreement between wholesalers in soliciting or selling in interstate commerce, and from making and distributing any such price list intended for use in making such sales.

This court held that the order to cease and desist the use of the common price list should be reversed because there was no showing that there was a "combination" of the dealers for such use. This court stated that such a combination would bring the price-fixing within the order of the Commission. Pacific States Paper Trade Assn. v. Fed. Trade Comm., 4 F. (2d) 457, 460.

In reversing this court and deciding to be valid the cease and desist order of the Commission because the facts justified a finding of such a price-fixing combination, the Supreme Court held:

The weight to be given to the facts and circumstances admitted, as well as the inferences reasonably to be drawn from them is for the commission. Its conclusion that the habitual use of the established list lessens competition and fixes prices in interstate territory cannot be said to be without sufficient support. Paragraph (b) does not go beyond what is justified by the findings. It is valid. [Italics supplied.] Federal Trade Comm. v. Pacific States Paper Trade Assn., 273 U. S. 52, 63.

Here were no findings of a method of competition unfair or harmful to any competing paper-seller outside the combination. Neither the Supreme Court nor the Commission considered relevant the question whether the sellers of the 25 percent outside the combination were damaged by its price-fixing. The reasoning of the opinion would apply a fortiori if 100 percent instead of 75 percent of the paper business had been controlled by the combination and it had changed the prior actual competitors into no more than potential competitors restrained by the agreement.

In the paper associations, as in the Rice Industry here, no member of the combination was found injured in his profits by the restraint of the combined members. It is obvious that it was the harm by destroying a "fair opportunity" for competition among themselves and to the public from the "fixed and uniform prices" established by the combination which made unfair this method of restraining competition. We hold paragraphs "1" to "4" inclusive of the Commission’s order to be valid.

It is suggested that construing the so-called Intrastate Agreement as controlling interstate shipments and prices, it does no more for the rice industry than is permitted by the Agricultural Adjustment Act. There was a so-called Interstate Marketing Agreement of which the Secretary of Agriculture was a signatory, made prior to the agreement here involved, but the Secretary of Agriculture subsequently withdrew his approval. Congress has created in the Agricultural Adjustment Act a mechanism permitting the elimination of certain competitive factors in interstate commerce in agricultural products but, in the absence of a government control of such a regulated economy, competition cannot be impaired by such an agreement as that of petitioners.

With regard to paragraph "5" of the Commission’s order directed against the fixing or determining of quotas of the petitioners in rice milling, this enterprise [723], like mining in the Carter Coal case, is not commerce and is intrastate in character. Carter v. Carter Coal Co., 298 U. S. 238, 299, 317.

Undoubtedly the fixing of such quotas "affects" the volume of rice which after milling is sold and delivered into interstate commerce,

8 The so-called Intrastate Marketing Agreement provides:

"Article III. Processing Quotas

1. The Marketing Board shall promptly determine from all available statistical information and state in terms of percentages of the total annual shipment, the proportionate shipment of California rice by calendar months. These percentages will hereinafter be referred to as 'normal monthly demand percentages.'

2. The Marketing Board shall on October 1, 1933, and on October 1, of each year thereafter, so long as this Agreement shall be in effect, estimate the total available supply of rice for the ensuing year and apply it to the 'normal monthly demand percentages' to determine the estimated monthly volume for the ensuing year.

3. Each month the Marketing Board shall determine a processing quota for each Miller of the estimated monthly volume for the succeeding month by applying each Miller's normal volume percentage to the estimated volume for said succeeding month, and adding such Miller's unused volume, if any, of the two months next preceding. A quota shall include and apply to all rice milled whether on toll or otherwise."
but unlike the National Labor Relations Act⁴ the Federal Trade Commission Act does not create a control in the Commission of practices both “affecting” interstate commerce and “in” interstate Commerce. Since the Commission’s authority is confined to transactions “in” interstate commerce, paragraph “5” of its order to cease and desist from “fixing or determining the quotas or percentages of the rice crop that the miller respondents may mill or process * * *” is beyond its jurisdiction and void.

The Commission’s order is affirmed as to paragraph “1” to “4” inclusive and reversed as to paragraph “5” thereof.

After the issuance of the complaint on March 26, 1937, the Act was amended prescribing as a remedial measure that to the extent that the order of the Commission is affirmed, this court shall thereupon issue its own order commanding obedience to the terms of such order of the Commission. (15 U. S. C. A. sec. 45 (c)). Such an order of this court will be issued.

Matthews, Circuit Judge (dissenting):

This is a petition to review and set aside an order issued by the Federal Trade Commission. Petitioners are California Rice Industry (an unincorporated association), members of the association (hereafter called the millers)⁵ members of the association’s marketing board⁶ and members of its crop board.⁷ The order requires petitioners to “cease and desist, in connection with offering for sale, sale and distribution of rice and rice products in commerce as defined in section 4 of the Federal Trade Commission Act,⁸ from doing and performing by agreement, combination or conspiracy between or among any two or more of [petitioners], or with others, the following acts and things:

1. Fixing and maintaining uniform prices.
2. Compiling, publishing and distributing any joint or uniform list or compilation of prices.
3. Adopting any joint or uniform price list or other device which fixes prices.

Grosjean Rice Milling Co.; Growers Rice Milling Co., a corporation; Pacific Trading Co., a corporation; Phillips Milling Co., a corporation; Rice Growers Association of California, a corporation; Rosenberg Brothers & Co., a corporation; and William Crawford, trading as Woodland Rice Milling Co.
⁸ 38 Stat. 719, 15 U. S. C. A. sec. 44. By this section, “commerce” is defined as “commerce among the several States or with foreign nations, or in any Territory of the United States or in the District of Columbia or between any such Territory and another, or between any such Territory and State or foreign nation, or between the District of Columbia and any State or Territory or foreign nation.”
4. Discussing through the medium of meetings of the [association] or its Marketing and Crop Boards, or in any similar manner, uniform prices, terms, discounts, agreements upon prices, by resolution or otherwise, or employing any similar device which fixes or tends to fix prices, or which is designed to equalize or make uniform the selling prices, terms, discounts, or policies of [the] millers.

5. Fixing or determining the quotas or percentages of the rice crop that the [millers] may mill or process which, thereby, unlawfully restricts or hinders the sale of rice or rice products in interstate commerce.

[724] The order was issued on March 26, 1938, in a proceeding under section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act.\(^9\) Hence, the Commission’s authority to issue the order must be found, if at all, in section 5, as it existed on that date.\(^10\) Section 5, as it then existed, declared that unfair methods of competition in commerce\(^11\) were unlawful. It empowered and directed the Commission to prevent persons, partnerships or corporations, except banks and common carriers subject to the Interstate Commerce Act, from using such methods of competition. To that end, it provided:

Whenever the commission shall have reason to believe that any such person, partnership, or corporation has been or is using any unfair method of competition in commerce, and if it shall appear to the commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be to the interest of the public, it shall issue and serve upon such person, partnership, or corporation a complaint stating its charges in that respect, and containing a notice of a hearing upon a day and at a place therein fixed at least thirty days after the service of said complaint. The person, partnership, or corporation so complained of shall have the right to appear at the place and time so fixed and show cause why an order should not be entered by the commission requiring such person, partnership, or corporation to cease and desist from the violation of the law so charged in said complaint. * * * If upon such hearing the commission shall be of the opinion that the method of competition in question is prohibited by this act, it shall make a report in writing in which it shall state its findings as to the facts, and shall issue and cause to be served on such person, partnership, or corporation an order requiring such person, partnership or corporation to cease and desist from using such method of competition. * * *

Then, as now, section 5 empowered this court, upon petition of either party, to review and affirm, modify or set aside any such order, and provided that, upon such review, the Commission’s findings as to the facts, if supported by testimony, should be conclusive.

Section 5, as it then existed, did not empower the Commission to prevent, or to require anyone to cease or desist from, any act or thing except the use of an unfair method of competition in commerce. The order here under review does not purport to be an order preventing, or requiring petitioners to cease or desist from using, any such method of competition. It says nothing about competition or methods of competition.

\(^10\) With the amendment of June 23, 1938 (52 Stat. 1028), we are not here concerned.

There is no finding, nor any evidence which would warrant a finding, that petitioners have any competitors, actual or potential. On the contrary, it appears from the findings that the millers—who, so far as shown, are the only petitioners engaged in any business—are engaged in the business of milling, in the State of California, a particular type of California-grown rice and in the business of selling and distributing such California-grown, California-milled rice in interstate commerce and in commerce between the State of California and the Territories of Hawaii and Puerto Rico, and that no one else is similarly engaged. Whether anyone else desires to, or could under any circumstances, engage in either of these businesses, the record does not show. Since, from the record, petitioners do not appear to have any competitors, actual or potential, they cannot, I think, be said to be using any unfair method of competition. Federal Trade Commission v. Raladam Co., 283 U. S. 643, 646-654.

The conclusion just stated is not inconsistent with Federal Trade Commission v. Pacific States Paper Trade Ass'n, 273 U. S. 52. The respondents in that case were wholesale paper dealers and trade associations of which they were members. The respondent dealers constituted a majority, but not all, of the wholesale paper dealers in the Pacific Coast States and had 75 percent, but not all, of the wholesale paper business in that region. In their business, the respondent dealers had actual as well as potential competitors. They had, as actual competitors, wholesale dealers who were not members of the association, paper manufacturers who sold direct to the retail trade, and paper brokers who negotiated such sales. In that competition, the respondents used methods which the Supreme Court held were unfair methods of competition.

If, in the Pacific States case, the respondents had had no competitors, actual or potential, the Supreme Court, undoubtedly, would have applied in that case the doctrine which, subsequently, it applied in the Raladam case—that one who has no competitors cannot be said to be using an unfair method of competition.

The order should be set aside.

DISCRIMINATING IN PRICE—CLAYTON ACT, SEC. 2, PAR. (c)—BROKERAGE OR COMMISSION PROVISIONS—WHERE SELLER TO BUYER COMMISSIONS ON BUYER PURCHASES VIA MARKETING INFORMATION AND PURCHASING SERVICE CONCERN—WHETHER VIOLATIVE "DUE PROCESS" AS APPLIED TO.

The statute prohibiting payment or receipt of commissions, except for services rendered, either to other party or to an intermediary acting on his behalf, is not violative of the due process clause as applied to firm which, while furnishing combined marketing information and purchasing service for wholesale distributors, passed on to distributors the commissions it received from sellers (15 U. S. C. A., sec. 13 (c); U. S. C. A. Const. Amend. 5).

DISCRIMINATING IN PRICE—CLAYTON ACT, SEC. 2, PAR. (c)—BROKERAGE OR COMMISSION PROVISIONS—WHERE SELLER TO BUYER COMMISSIONS ON BUYER PURCHASES VIA MARKETING INFORMATION AND PURCHASING SERVICE CONCERN—WHETHER VIOLATIVE "FREEDOM OF CONTRACT" AS APPLIED TO.

The statute prohibiting payment or receipt of commissions, except for services rendered, either to other party or to an intermediary acting on his behalf, does not interfere with "freedom of contract" as applied to firm which, while furnishing combined marketing information and purchasing service for wholesale distributors, passed on to distributors the commissions it received from sellers.

TRADE ACTS AND PRACTICES—WHERE TENDENCY HARMFUL—PROHIBITION—CONGRESSIONAL POWER—AS PREVENTIVE.

In prohibiting practices because of their harmful tendency, Congress need not limit its prohibition to cases in which those practices have actually resulted in the evil which it was purpose of statute to prevent.

OLIVER BROTHERS, INC., ET AL. v. FED. TRADE COMMISSION 1927

Discriminating in Price—Clayton Act, Sec. 2, Par. (c)—Brokerage or Commission Provisions—Services Rendered Exception—Where Seller to Buyer Commission on Buyer Purchases via Marketing Information and Purchasing Service Concern—Whether for Services Rendered Seller—as Agent of Buyer, Not Seller.

A firm engaged in furnishing combined marketing information and purchasing service at stipulated monthly compensation was an agent of buyers and not of sellers, so that brokerage commissions received by firm from sellers and passed on to distributors whom firm represented were not paid for services rendered sellers within exception of statute prohibiting payment or receipt of commissions either to other party or to intermediary acting on his behalf, except for services rendered.

Discriminating in Price—Clayton Act, Sec. 2, Par. (c)—Brokerage or Commission Provisions—Services Rendered Exception—Compensation for Buyer Services—Where Incident to Purchase and not Necessary Service of Seller.

Compensation received by buyer for services rendered by him or his agent to come within excepting clause of statute prohibiting payment or receipt of commissions except for services rendered, either to other party or to an intermediary acting on his behalf, must be such as seller was bound to render in connection with sale, not such as were performed by buyer in connection with purchase or such as were rendered to him by his agent to enable him to purchase.

Cease and Desist Orders—Discriminating in Price—Clayton Act, Sec. 2, Par. (c)—Brokerage or Commission Provisions—Where Seller to Buyer Commissions on Buyer Purchases via Marketing Information and Purchasing Service Concern.

The action of a firm engaged in furnishing a combined marketing information and purchasing service at a stipulated monthly compensation, while acting as purchasing agent for wholesale distributors, in crediting or passing on to distributors broker's commissions received from sellers, was in violation of statute prohibiting payment or receipt of premiums, except for services rendered, either to the other party or to intermediary acting on his behalf.

[764] Petition by Oliver Bros., Inc., and others to review order of Commission directing petitioners to cease and desist from payment or receipt of fees or commissions in alleged violation of Robinson-Patman Act, denied, Commission's cross-petition asking for enforcement of order allowed, and such decree entered.

Mr. T. Russell Cather, of Winchester, Va., and Mr. Felix H. Levy, of New York City (Mr. John D. Swartz, of New York City, on the brief), for petitioners.

Messrs. Raymond N. Beebe, Adrien F. Busick, Seth W. Richardson, and Davies, Richberg, Beebe, Busick & Richardson, all of Washington, D. C., amici curiae.

Before Parker and Soper, Circuit Judges, and Wyche, District Judge.

Parker, Circuit Judge:

This is a petition to review an order of the Federal Trade Commission directing petitioners to cease and desist from payment or receipt of fees or commissions in violation of section 2 (c) of the Robinson-Patman Act, 49 Stat. 1426, 15 U.S.C.A. 13 (c). The order was entered in a proceeding instituted against Oliver Brothers, Inc., thereafter referred to as Oliver, a purchasing agent for wholesale distributors, certain of the buyers whom it represented in making purchases and certain of the manufacturers or sellers from whom purchases were made. The charge was that, while acting as agent for the buyers, Oliver received brokerage commissions from the sellers which it credited or passed on to the buyers. The case was heard on a stipulation that the record made in the proceeding of the Commission against the Biddle Purchasing Co. et al. should be adopted as the record correctly describing the business practices of Oliver; and the order in the Oliver case followed, in substance, the findings and order in the Biddle case. The Biddle order was reviewed by the Circuit Court of Appeals of the Second Circuit and petition to set it aside was denied in Biddle Purchasing Co. v. Federal Trade Commission, 2 Cir. 96 F. 2d 689, and certiorari was denied by the Supreme Court. 59 S.Ct. 101: To the petition that we review and set aside the order in the Oliver case, the Commission has filed a cross petition asking a decree for the enforcement of the order.

There is, in reality, no dispute as to the facts, but only as to the inferences to be drawn from admitted facts and constituting mixed questions of law and fact. All of the petitioners are engaged in interstate commerce. Oliver furnishes a purchasing service to over 300 distributing concerns scattered over the United States, who are principally wholesalers of automobile, electrical, radio, mill, machine, plumbing, steam, and hardware supplies. It has an office in New York and a branch office in Chicago. It has several salesmen who travel throughout the United States to solicit distributing concerns to purchase its market information and purchasing services and who, at times, contact manufacturers and processors. It has also a number of buyers and assistant buyers who place orders for its subsubscribers and deal with manufacturers, processors, and producers in their behalf. It examines and tests the wares of such manufacturers and producers and obtains from them prices and descriptions of goods which it sends to its subscribers. It furnishes the subscribers a loose-leaf price book, showing the prices and sources of supply of the merchandise in which they are interested, and keeps this book current by the issuance of price sheets and bulletins from time to time, as prices and sources of supply change. It also makes purchases for its subscribers of the goods described in its information service and gives them the benefit of the brokerage commissions which it collects from the sellers upon such purchasers. The Commission found that these brokerage commissions were passed on to the buyers with the knowledge of the sellers. Petitioners challenge this finding in so far as it relates to knowledge of the sellers; but an examination of the record shows that it is amply sustained by the testimony and that the matter was one of common knowledge in the trade. (See Biddle transcript of record pages 165, 193, 283-284, 314, 321, 327, 347, 372, 379-380, 387, 490, 544, 582, 596, 608, 615, 635, 645, 656, 675, 688, 741.)

For the informational and purchasing services thus rendered its subscribers, [765] Oliver receives a stipulated monthly compensation of $25 and upward. The brokerage commissions received by 86 percent of the subscribers on their purchases amount to less than the amount paid Oliver. Those received by the remaining 14 percent are in excess of the amount so paid.

A written contract is entered into between Oliver and each of its subscribers. This contract is on stationery describing Oliver as "Resident buyers for wholesalers of hardware, iron, steel, metals, etc." The following provisions thereof are pertinent and illuminating:

We hereby agree to act as your New York, Chicago and Pittsburgh Resident Representatives in the capacity of Purchasing Agents.

We agree to furnish you our loose-leaf Price Book and send you our General Service covering lines as per the subject hereof; also to send you Oliver Brothers' Comment Letters, letters on Market Conditions, lists of special offerings, and submit to you other information in the way of prices and market information which we may consider to be of interest to you.

We will use our best efforts to secure the lowest possible prices on your inquiries or orders. We will forward to the manufacturers or parties with whom we have favorable arrangement such orders for merchandise as you may send to us.

Orders which we may receive from you or letters which we may receive are to be regarded as authority to act as your Agents in connection with any transaction which may transpire between us. While we will use our best efforts in acting as your Agent it is understood that we will not be liable for the failure of any manufacturer of supplies to perform his agreements or promises in connection with quotations or shipments.
It is mutually agreed that all communications between us in the way of correspondence, Comment Letters, letters on Market Conditions or Confidential Price Sheets, shall be treated as strictly confidential and used solely in connection with your own business and shall not be divulged to other parties nor procured for the use of other parties.

The facts with respect to the purchases made by Oliver are thus stated by the Commission:

Oliver receives daily from its subscribers approximately 100 orders. When a subscriber forwards an order to Oliver, usually at a specified price, Oliver transmits the order to the seller. The seller ships the product direct to the buyer, in most cases billing the buyer at the price specified in the order. The buyer in most cases makes payment direct to the seller. The seller then sends a commission or brokerage on the transaction and Oliver pays this to the buyer or credits it to his account. If a buyer fails to name the purchase price, he expects to get the last price quoted by Oliver in its bulletins, or a lower price. If Oliver finds that the market has advanced he communicates with the buyer and confirms the order at the new price before transmitting it to the seller. The buyer in some cases names the seller whose products are wanted, but in some cases he relies upon Oliver to transmit the order to some producer who will supply goods of the quality and standard required.

And the whole course of business between Oliver and its subscribers is summed up in paragraph 11 of the Commission's findings as follows:

The contract between respondent Oliver Brothers, Inc., and its subscribers is construed by the parties thereto as being a contract for the sale and purchase of the Oliver market information service with a privilege extended to the buyers of using the Oliver purchasing services at their option. The buyers pay the monthly fee stipulated in the contract for the market information service. The buyers exercise their option to use the purchasing services of Oliver Brothers, Inc., in order to secure a discount in price from the current market price and the buyers when purchasing commodities through Oliver compute the net price at which the purchase is made as being the quoted price less the fee or commission paid by the seller as brokerage to Oliver and by Oliver transmitted to them. The buyers, in their bookkeeping, do not treat the brokerage fees and commission received from respondent Oliver Brothers, Inc., as being an offset to the monthly fee paid by them to Oliver. The amount of the monthly fee paid by the buyers to Oliver is fixed at the time the contract is made, but the amount of the brokerage fees and commissions which may be received by a given buyer from the utilization of the Oliver purchasing service is unknown and incapable of ascertainment at the time the contract is entered into.

[766] In its tenth finding the Commission states its conclusions with respect to the agency of Oliver and the services rendered by it as follows:

In all of the purchasing transactions which the respondent Oliver Brothers, Inc., executes for its buyers, Oliver Brothers, Inc., is the agent and representative of the buyer, and acts in fact for such buyer and in his behalf, and is subject to his control, insofar as such purchasing transaction is concerned. Said respondent Oliver Brothers, Inc., in such purchasing transaction is neither the agent nor representative of the seller nor does it act for or in behalf or is it under the control of such seller. Such services as respondent Oliver Brothers, Inc., may render to the seller in selling his commodities are incidental to the particular purchase and sale transaction, and if any services are so rendered by Oliver in connection with the sale or purchase of such commodities, such services are donated by Oliver Brothers, Inc., to the seller. There is not, in fact, any payment of brokerage commissions made by any of respondent sellers to respondent Oliver Brothers, Inc., which is not intended for the buyer and which does not reach the buyer. Such brokerage commissions, being intended for the buyers, are not in fact paid in satisfaction of any contractual or other indebtedness due from the seller to respondent Oliver Brothers, Inc., for services rendered, or otherwise. These payments, in effect are actually made from the seller to the buyer and the buyer receives a discount in price equivalent to the brokerage fee paid to him. Respondent buyers render no service to respondent sellers in connection with the purchase of commodities through respondent Oliver Brothers, Inc. Respondent buyers render no service to respondent Oliver Brothers, Inc., in connection with the purchase of goods, wares and merchandise made for them by said respondent Oliver Brothers, Inc.

Complaint is made of this finding that it ignores evidence of certain sellers as to the benefit derived by them from dealings with Oliver. Briefly stated, this evidence is to the effect that these sellers furnish Oliver lists and prices of what they have to sell; that, in sending out circulars to its subscribers, Oliver brings about a sale of the goods more satisfactorily than a broker would do; and that for this reason brokerage commissions are allowed Oliver on sales resulting from the Oliver service. On the basis of this evidence, petitioners contend that the Commission should have found that Oliver renders a service to the sellers which justifies the commissions paid, and that the contrary finding by the Commission in its tenth finding of fact is unsupported by the evidence. As heretofore indicated, we think that the controversy here is over conclusions to be deduced from the facts rather than over the facts themselves; but as we shall hereafter point out we are in accord with the conclusions of the Commission.

On the whole record, there can be no doubt that the following is the truth with respect to the matters in controversy: Oliver is the agent of the buyers and not of the sellers and is paid by the buyers for the service rendered them. It collects brokerage commissions from the sellers on purchases made for the buyers which it credits to the accounts of the buyers or otherwise passes on to them. In furnishing the service which it has contracted to furnish the buyers, it affords to the sellers facilities for placing their goods before the buyers and obviates the necessity of their employing brokers to reach these customers; but this is a service rendered the buyers which Oliver has bound itself to render them under their subscription contracts. The benefit to the sellers is incidental to this service rendered the buyers and is not the result of a service undertaken for the benefit of the sellers.
No showing was made as to whether the effect of this practice of Oliver "may be substantially to lessen competition, or tend to create a monopoly in any line of commerce, or to injure, destroy or prevent competition with any person who either grants or knowingly receives the benefit" of the brokerage commissions allowed, as required by section 2 (a) of the Robinson-Patman Act, since the proceeding before the Commission was not had under that section but under section 2 (c). The argument is made that the provisions of section 2 (a) with respect to limitation of competition or tendency to create monopoly must be read into section 2 (c), and that, unless this is done, section 2 (c) is unconstitutional because violative of the due process clause of the Fifth Amendment. These contentions of the petitioners, together with their contentions as to the applicability of the act to the trade practices which we have outlined, present three questions for our consideration: (1) Must the Robinson-Patman Act be so construed as to read the limitations of section 2 (a) into section 2 (c) as limitations upon the latter section? (2) If not, is section 2 (c) invalid when tested by the due process clause of the Fifth Amendment? And (3) does the case as presented fall within the exception contained in section 2 (c)? We think that all of these questions must be answered in the negative.

The Robinson-Patman Act of June 19, 1936, 49 Stat. 1526, was an amendment of the Clayton Anti-Trust Act of October 15, 1914, 38 Stat. 730. Section 2 of the Clayton Act, which was the section amended, merely forbade discrimination in price when the effect of such discrimination was to substantially lessen competition or tend to create monopoly. The Robinson-Patman Act broadened the scope of this provision, conferred upon the Federal Trade Commission power to establish quantity differentials for the purpose of determining discrimination, and cast the burden of proof upon one charged with discrimination to justify any discrimination shown. Receipt of price discrimination was made unlawful for the first time, 2 (f); and three specific matters were forbidden as unfair trade practices by subsections (c), (d) and (e), viz.: the granting of commission or brokerage, or any allowance in lieu thereof, to the other party to the transaction or his agent, the making of discriminatory payments by seller to buyer for services rendered by the latter and discrimination by the seller in the rendering of services to the buyer. It is perfectly clear that all three of these practices were forbidden because of their tendency to lessen competition and create monopoly, without regard to their effect in a particular case; and there is no reason to read into the sections forbidding them the limitations contained in section 2 (a) having relation to price discrimination, which is an extremely difficult matter to deal with and is condemned as unfair only in those cases where it has an effect in suppressing competition or in tending to create monopoly. The forbidding of specific practices because of their tendency toward a general result, also forbidden, is familiar legislative practice; and no reason suggests itself why the limitations and provisions relating to one should be read into those relating to the other. The subsection immediately applicable is section 2 (c), which is as follows:

(c) That it shall be unlawful for any person engaged in commerce, in the course of such commerce, to pay or grant, or to receive or accept, anything of value as a commission, brokerage, or other compensation, or any allowance or discount in lieu thereof, except for services rendered in connection with the sale or purchase of goods, wares, or merchandise, either to the other party to such transaction or to an agent, representative, or other intermediary therein where such intermediary is acting in fact for or in behalf, or is subject to the direct or indirect control, of any party to such transaction other than the person by whom such compensation is so granted or paid.

The language of this section is so clear that there is no occasion to resort to the reports of Congress to ascertain what was intended. It may not be amiss to note, however, that House Rep. 2687, 74th Cong., 2d sess., has this to say with regard to it (it was then section (b)):

Section (b) deals with the abuse of the brokerage function for purposes of oppressive discrimination. The true broker serves either as representative of the seller to find him market outlets, or as representative of the buyer to find him sources of supply. In either case he discharges functions which must otherwise be performed by the parties themselves through their own selling or buying departments, with their respective attendant costs. Which method is chosen depends presumptively upon which is found more economical in the particular case; but whichever method is chosen, its cost is the necessary and natural cost of a business function which cannot be escaped. It is for this reason that, when free of the coercive influence of mass buying power, discounts in lieu of brokerage are not usually accorded to buyers who deal with the seller direct, since such sales must bear instead their appropriate share of the seller’s own selling cost.

Among the prevalent modes of discrimination at which this bill is directed is the practice of certain large buyers to demand the allowance of brokerage direct to them upon their purchases or its payment to an employee, agent, or corporate subsidiary whom they set up in the guise of a broker, and through whom they demand that sales to them be made. But the positions of buyer and seller are by nature adverse, and it is a contradiction in terms incompatible with his natural function for an intermediary to claim to be rendering services for the seller when he is acting in fact for or under the control of the buyer, and no seller can be expected to pay such an intermediary so controlled for such services unless compelled to do so by coercive influences in compromise of his natural interest. Whether employed by the buyer in good faith to find a source of supply, or by the seller to find a market, the broker so employed discharges a sound economic function and is entitled to appropriate compensation by the one in whose interest he so serves. But to permit its payment or allowance where no such service is rendered, where in fact, if a “broker,” so labeled, enters the picture at all it is one whom the buyer points out to the seller rather than one who brings the buyer to the seller, would render the section a nullity. The relation of the broker to his client is a fiduciary one. To collect from a client for service rendered in the interest of a party adverse to him, is a violation of that relationship; and to protect those who deal in the streams of commerce against breaches of faith in its relations of trust, is to foster confidence in its processes and promote its wholesomeness and volume.

And the Report of the House and Senate Conference Committee, House Rep. 2951, 74th Cong., 2d sess., interprets the section as follows:

This subsection permits the payment of compensation by a seller to his broker or agent for services actually rendered in his behalf; likewise by a buyer to his broker or agent for services in connection with the purchase of goods actually rendered in his behalf; but it prohibits the direct or indirect payment of brokerage except for such services rendered. It prohibits its allowance by the buyer direct to the seller, or by the seller direct to the buyer; and it prohibits its payment by either to an agent or intermediary acting in fact for or in behalf, or subject to the direct or indirect control, of the other.

And we are not impressed with the argument that when construed without the limitation prescribed by 2 (a) section 2 (c) is violative of the due process clause of the Fifth Amendment. It is addressed to a definite evil in interstate trade and commerce which Congress has full power to regulate. It is uniform in operation and applies to all persons alike. It is not arbitrary or unreasonable, but is directed toward the elimination of hidden discriminations in price which are thought to be injurious to the proper operation of a free competitive system of trade and commerce and to have a tendency to promote unreasonable restraints and monopolization. As said by the Circuit Court of Appeals of the Second Circuit in the Biddle case, supra: "Congress may have had in mind that one of the principal evils inherent in the payment of brokerage fees by the seller to the buyer directly or through an intermediary, is the fact that this practice makes it possible for the seller to discriminate in price without seeming to do so. If a price discount is given as a brokerage payment to a controlled intermediary, it may be and often is concealed from other customers of the seller. One of the main objectives of section 2 (c) was to force price discriminations out into the open where they would be subject to the scrutiny of those interested, particularly competing buyers."

Counsel for appellants rely upon Fairmont Creamery Co. v. Minnesota 274 U. S. 1, which held invalid, under the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment, a State statute which forbade the purchase of milk in one locality of the State at a higher price than paid in another locality. That statute was held unconstitutional because it was thought that its inhibition had "no reasonable relation to the anticipated evil—high bidding by some with purpose to monopolize or destroy competition." The same cannot be said of the practice forbidden by the section here under consideration, as shown in the reports of the Committee of Congress from which we have quoted, supra. Of such a practice, what was said by the Supreme Court in Booth v. Illinois, 184 U. S. 425, with respect to the prohibition of option contracts to sell or buy grain at a future time is appropos. The court said:

The argument then is, that the statute directly forbids the citizen from pursuing a calling which, in itself, involves no element of immorality, and therefore by such prohibition it invades his liberty as guaranteed by the supreme law of the land. Does this conclusion follow from the premise stated? Is it true that the legislature is without power to forbid or suppress [769] a particular kind of business, where such business, properly and honestly conducted, may not, in itself be immoral? We think not. A calling may not in itself be immoral, and yet the tendency of what is generally or ordinarily or often done in pursuing that calling may be toward that which is admittedly immoral or pernicious. If, looking at all the circumstances that attend, or which may ordinarily attend, the pursuit of a particular calling, the State thinks that certain admitted evils cannot be successfully reached unless that calling be actually prohibited, the courts cannot interfere, unless, looking through mere forms and at the substance of the matter, they can say that the statute enacted professedly to protect the public morals has no real or substantial relation to that object, but is a clear, unmistakable infringement of rights secured by the fundamental law.

Any contention that this section of the statute constitutes an interference with freedom of contract is answered by what was said by the Supreme Court in West Coast Hotel Co. v. Parrish, 300 U. S. 379, as follows:

The Constitution does not speak of freedom of contract. It speaks of liberty and prohibits the deprivation of liberty without due process of law. In prohibiting that deprivation the Constitution does not recognize an absolute and uncontrollable liberty. Liberty in each of its phases has its history and connotation. But the liberty safeguarded is liberty in a social organization which requires the protection of law against the evils which menace the health, safety, and morals, and welfare of the people. Liberty under the Constitution is thus necessarily subject to the restraints of due process, and regulation which is reasonable in relation to its subject and is adopted in the interests of the community is due process.

This essential limitation of liberty in general governs freedom of contract in particular. More than 25 years ago we set forth the applicable principle in these words, after referring to the cases where the liberty guaranteed by the Fourteenth Amendment had been broadly described:

"But it was recognized in the cases cited, as in many others, that freedom of contract is a qualified and not an absolute right. There is no absolute freedom to do as one wills or to contract as one chooses. The guaranty of liberty does not withdraw from legislative supervision that wide department of activity which consists of the making of contracts, or deny to government the power to provide restrictive safeguards. Liberty implies the absence of arbitrary restraint, not immunity from reasonable regulations and prohibitions imposed in the interests of the community." Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. McGuire, 219 U. S. 549, 565.
There is no ground for the contention that, in prohibiting practices because of their harmful tendency, Congress must limit its prohibition to cases in which those practices have actually resulted in the evil which it was the purpose of the statute to prevent. “If the laws passed are seen to have a reasonable relation to a proper legislative purpose, and are neither arbitrary nor discriminatory, the requirements of due process are satisfied, and judicial determination to that effect renders a court functus officio.” Nebbia v. New York, 291 U. S. 502, 537.

We come then to the final question in the case, viz., whether the brokerage commissions here involved come within the exception contained in section 2 (c), i. e. are they paid for services rendered to the sellers? A sufficient answer to the question is found in the fact that the commissions are received by the buyers and not by Oliver, and that there can be no contention that any services are rendered by the buyers to justify the payment of compensation to them. The fact that the commissions pass through the hands of Oliver is immaterial; for it is understood on all sides that they are paid for the benefit of and go to the buyers under the contract which Oliver has with them.
The statute forbids the receiving of such commissions except for serv­ cices rendered. The buyers receive them and they admittedly render no service to earn them. It is idle to contend that they are merely being reimbursed for what they have paid to Oliver by way of subscription.
They are receiving brokerage commissions on their purchases; and the fact that they may have paid the purchasing agent for services rendered them and that they receive the commissions because of this does not alter the fact that they are receiving the commissions on their purchases.

[770] And even if it were true that Oliver rendered services to the sellers, we do not think that this would change the situation. No one would contend that, without violating this section, a broker representing the seller could give his commissions to the buyer; for in such case the action of the broker would be the action of his principal, the seller, and would amount to the allowance of commissions by the seller to the other party to the transaction in direct violation of the statutory provision. As we have seen, it constitutes a clear violation of the section for the buyer to receive commissions allowed an agent who represents him alone. If, therefore, the buyer may not receive commissions allowed either his own agent or the agent of the seller, it would seem to follow necessarily that he may not receive commissions allowed a broker who is the agent of both. We may assume that under the section it is permissible for a broker to render services to both buyer and seller and to receive from both compensation for the services rendered; but this is a very different thing from the buyer himself receiving the compensation.
And we think that the Commission was correct in holding upon the facts that the services rendered by Oliver were rendered to the buyers and not to the sellers. Oliver is the agent of the buyers, not of the sellers. The services rendered in advising the buyers as to the character and prices of sellers' merchandise are services rendered the buyers under their contracts, and are services rendered in the purchase and not in the sale of the goods. While such services resulting in sales by the sellers and obviating, no doubt, the adoption of other sales devices, are of undoubted benefit to them, this benefit is incidental and is an entirely different thing from the rendering of services by an agent responsible to the seller as principal. If it were a sufficient basis to bring the allowance of brokerage commissions within the exception of the section, every purchasing agent for a chain of stores might lawfully receive such commissions; for he does for the stores of his chain precisely what is done by Oliver for the subscribers to its service and benefits the sellers in making sales in precisely the same way. We have no doubt that it was just this sort of thing that it was the purpose of the act to prevent.

The case presented is not unlike that before the Supreme Court in Lehigh Valley R. R. Co. v. United States 243 U. S. 444, in which a carrier made payments to a shipper, who was a mere importer and forwarder, for services rendered in bringing business to its road. In holding this a violation of the provisions of the Elkins Act as amended, the Supreme Court, speaking through Mr. Justice Holmes, said:

It is true no doubt that George W. Sheldon & Co. in the performance of the services for which it is paid maintains offices here and abroad, advertises the railroad, solicits traffic for it, does various other useful things, and, in short, we assume, benefits the road and earns its money, if it were allowable to earn money in that way. It is true also that in Interstate Commerce Commission v. F. H. Peavey & Co., 222 U. S. 42, an owner of property transported was held entitled under section 15 of the Act to Regulate Commerce to an allowance for furnishing a part of the transportation that the carrier was bound to furnish. (So Union Pacific R. R. Co. v. Updike Grain Co., 222 U. S. 215, and United States v. Baltimore & Ohio R. R. Co., 231 U. S. 274.) But that case goes to the verge of what is permitted by the act. The services rendered by George W. Sheldon & Co., although in a practical sense "connected with such transportation," were not connected with it as a necessary part of the carriage—were not "transportation service." In the language of Union Pacific R. R. Co. v. Updike Grain Co., 222 U. S. 215, 220—and in our opinion were not such services as were contemplated in the Act of June 29, 1906, c. 3591, sec. 4, 34 Stat. 589, amending section 15 of the original act. On the other hand the allowance for them falls within the plain meaning of section 2 of the Act of 1906, to which we referred above.

Just as the services performed by Sheldon & Co. in that case were not a part of what the carrier was paid for, although undoubtedly resulting in benefit to the carrier, so the services performed by Oliver here, although beneficial to sellers, are no part of what the sellers are paid for, but on the contrary are services rendered the buyers for which they have already paid Oliver. For the sellers to pay for them is for them to pay Oliver for services which Oliver was bound to render the buyers and [771] which the sellers were under no duty to perform in connection with the sales made. Such payment falls, therefore, within the condemnation of the language used by the Supreme Court in Mitchell Coal & Coke Co. v. P. R. R. Co., 230 U. S. 247, 263, wherein it was said, "To pay shippers for doing their own work would have been a mere gratuity, and if here the carrier was not bound to haul from the mine it had no more right to pay these companies for bringing their coal over the spur track to the junction than it would have had to pay a merchant for hauling his goods in a wagon to the railroad depot". See also Merchants Warehouse Co. v. United States, 283 U. S. 501, 511. For compensation received by a buyer for services rendered by him or his agent to come within the excepting clause of section 2 (c) of the statute, we think that such services must be such as the seller was bound to render in connection with the sale, not such as were performed by the buyer in connection with the purchase or such as were rendered to him by his agent to enable him to purchase.

It is argued that the act was directed at the practices of chain stores in using the force of great buying power to obtain these concessions from the seller. It is sufficient answer that the act makes no distinction as to size and shows no intention to give the small any more than the great the right to receive brokerage commissions on their purchases. Because of the buying power possessed by purchasing agents, whether representing chains or independent dealers, sellers may be willing to allow them brokerage commissions and may consider such commissions earned in the sense that the sellers are thus enabled to sell goods without resorting to other sales devices; but the fact remains that the buyer who receives the brokerage allowed his purchasing agent receives an advantage, and a concealed advantage, which the buyer who purchases directly from the dealer does not receive. It was this sort of discrimination, we think, which it was the purpose of this section of the act to forbid.

Much argument has been directed to the question as to whether the control exercised by buyers over Oliver is the kind of control contemplated by the statute. This discussion is wholly irrelevant in view of the fact that the commissions are paid to an agent "acting in fact for and in behalf of" buyers and are actually received by the buyers themselves. The clause of the statute, "or is subject to the direct or indirect control" is in the alternative and need not be considered when the payment is made to an agent acting "for or in behalf" of the other party, or to the other party himself. Of course, an agent acting for and in behalf of another is under his control; and it was to reach other intermediaries, such as were dealt with in Trunz Pork Stores v. Wallace, 2 Cir. 70 F. 2d 688, that Congress inserted the broad alternative provision.

For the reasons stated, the petition to set aside the order of the Commission will be denied, the prayer of the cross-petition will be allowed and decree will be entered enforcing the Commission's order.

Order enforced.

FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION v. WESTERN CHEMICALS, INC., MAFFETT SALES CORPORATION, BARTELL DRUG STORES, FRANK L. WILSON, N. B. WILSON, AND REUEL K. YOUNT.

No. 46

(District Court, Western District of Washington. March 27, 1939)

Decree of preliminary injunction by District Judge John C. Bowen, restraining, for the reasons and as below set forth, including immediate and irreparable injury to public in further dissemination of such false advertisements, advertisement of product "Alcoban," for reduction of weight, pending issuance of complaint by Commission against defendants under section 5 of Commission Act and disposition of such complaint as in said decree set forth.

Mr. W. T. Kelley, chief counsel, Federal Trade Commission, and Mr. Gerard A. Rault, special attorney, both of Washington, D. C., for plaintiff.

Mr. Charles C. Hall, of Washington, D. C., for defendants.

DECREE

This cause coming on to be heard upon the complaint of the Federal Trade Commission for the issuance of a preliminary injunction against the defendants Western Chemicals, Inc., Maffett Sales Corporation, Bartell Drug Stores, Frank L. Wilson, N. B. Wilson, and Reuel K. Yount, and the court having read the pleadings and affidavits filed in connection therewith and having heard and considered the arguments of counsel, and

It appearing to the Court, That the defendants reside or transact business in the Western District of Washington, and

It appearing to the Court, That it has jurisdiction over the parties and the subject matter hereof and that the law and the evidence are in the favor of the plaintiff and against the defendants, and

It appearing to the Court, That said defendants have disseminated, are now disseminating, and have and do now cause to be disseminated,

1 Not reported in Federal Reporter.

2 Such complaint, duly issued in the matter of Western Chemicals, Inc., et al., Docket 3735, and is pending as of this writing, awaiting Commission disposition.
false advertisements by the United States mails and by other means in commerce for the purpose of inducing and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of a preparation known as "Alcoban," and by various means for the purpose of inducing, or which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase in commerce of said preparation "Alcoban" in violation of the Federal Trade Commission Act, by means of which advertising the defendants have falsely represented that said preparation "Alcoban" is a competent, safe, and scientific treatment for alcoholism and that its use will have no ill effect upon the human body, and

It appearing to the Court, That the preparation "Alcoban" contains as active ingredients ephedrine hydrochloride, emetine hydrochloride, and pilocarpine hydrochloride and that each of these drugs is in itself potent and powerful and when combined with the others in this preparation results in a compound which may have a marked toxic and sometimes fatal effect upon the human system, and

It appearing to the Court, That the further dissemination of such false advertisements would cause immediate and irreparable injury to the public and that it would be in the public interest to enjoin and restrain the further dissemination of said advertising pending the issuance of a complaint by the Federal Trade Commission under section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and until such complaint is dismissed by the Commission or set aside by a court on review or the order of the Commission to cease and desist made thereon has become final within the meaning of section 5 of said act,

It is hereby ordered, adjudged, and decreed, That the defendants Western Chemicals, Inc., Maffett Sales Corporation, Bartell Drug Stores, Frank L. Wilson, N. B. Wilson, and Reuel K. Yount, their agents, servants, representatives, employees, successors, and assigns, and all other persons participating with them and having notice of this order, be, and they hereby are and each of them is hereby strictly enjoined and restrained from:

Disseminating or causing to be disseminated any advertisement by means of the United States mails or in interstate commerce by any means for the purpose of inducing or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of the preparation known as "Alcoban," whether mentioned specifically by name or not, or disseminating and causing to be disseminated any advertisement by any means for the purpose of inducing or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase in interstate commerce of said preparation "Alcoban" and which advertisements represent that such preparation, whether mentioned specifically by name or not, is a competent, safe and scientific treatment for alcoholism and that its use will have no ill effects upon the human body, or which advertisements fail to state that said preparation if used as directed or under such conditions as are customary and usual may result in the serious illness and in some cases the death of the user; pending the issuance of the complaint by the Federal Trade Commission against said defendants under section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act and until such complaint is dismissed by the Commission or set aside by a United States Circuit Court of Appeals or the Supreme Court of the United States on review, or the order of the Commission to cease and desist made thereon has become final within the meaning of section 5 of said act.

It is further ordered, That this decree of injunction issue without bond.

BELMONT LABORATORIES, INC. v. FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION

No. 6738

(Circuit Court of Appeals, Third Circuit. March 29, 1939)

FALSE ADVERTISING—SPECIFIC PRACTICES—QUALITIES, RESULTS AND HISTORY, AND ENDORSEMENT, USE OR STANDING OF PRODUCT—SOAP AND OINTMENT FOR SKIN AILMENTS—INTERNALLY CAUSED CONDITIONS AS DIFFERENTIATING CLAIMS' VALIDITY.

Claim that soap and ointment eliminated specified and other skin disorders, that they were the "original" treatment for such disorders, and that some of the best known skin specialists were using the treatment "exclusively," held false in fact and unlawful, as regards skin disorders that proceed from internal causes, but not as regards disorders which are due to external causes, and "ivy poison" which is an irritant reaction from a vegetable fibre.

"Original" appears to be used in the two senses of "novel" and "not otherwise obtainable." "Exclusiveness" is by definition a rare attribute.

CEASE AND DESIST ORDERS—FALSE ADVERTISING—WHETHER REPRESENTATIONS WHERE MATTER NOT QUESTIONED BY COMMISSION.

On petition to review a cease and desist order of Federal Trade Commission, the court cannot question advertising in respect not questioned by the Commission.

FALSE ADVERTISING—ADVERTISING VEHICLES—AS NONDECEPTIVE TO EXPERT AND INFORMED OR NONAVAILABLE TO LAITY IN ADVANCE OF PURCHASE—SOAP AND OINTMENT ADVERTISING IN PROFESSIONAL JOURNALS AND BY LEAFLETS IN PRODUCTS' CARTONS.

Untruthful advertising of soap and ointment cannot be justified on ground that readers of professional journals are too smart to be deceived and that lay purchasers buy blindly because the leaflet is inside the ointment carton.

1 Reported in 103 F. (2d) 538. The case before the Commission is reported in 28 F. T. C. 244. Petitions for rehearing in the above matter by Belmont Laboratories, Inc. and by the Commission were respectively denied on May 3, 1939 and May 15, 1939.
FALSE ADVERTISING—DEFENSES OR PLEAS—UNWISDOM OF INJURED.

Both "deceit," apart from negligent misrepresentation, and "false advertising," are "intentional torts," and the "should have known or acted more wisely" of the injured is inappropriate in both cases.

CEASE AND DESIST ORDERS—FALSE ADVERTISING—DEFENSES OR PLEAS—LOCUS POENITENTIAE OF OFFENDER.

On review of cease and desist order respecting untruthful advertising petitioner's plea of locus poenitentiae must be denied.

CEASE AND DESIST ORDERS—FALSE ADVERTISING—SCOPE—SOAP AND OINTMENT FOR SKIN AILMENTS—WHERE CURABLE THROUGH EXTERNAL APPLICATION—AS MAKING TOO BROAD.

A cease and desist order respecting advertising of a soap and an ointment was too broad as applied to diseases curable through external application.

CEASE AND DESIST ORDERS—FALSE ADVERTISING—SCOPE—SOAP AND OINTMENT FOR SKIN AILMENTS—WHERE FOREIGN OR CANADIAN ADVERTISING SOUGHT TO BE REACHED—AS TOO BROAD.

A cease and desist order respecting advertising of a soap and an ointment was too broad, where it attempted to cover advertising in Canada.

(The syllabus, with substituted captions, is taken from 103 F. (2d) 538)

On petition for review from order of Commission, order modified is accordance with opinion, and affirmed.

Mr. Laurence H. Eldredge and Montgomery & McCracken, all of Philadelphia, Pa., for petitioner.

Mr. W. T. Kelley, chief counsel, Federal Trade Commission, Mr. Martin A. Morrison, assistant chief counsel, and Mr. DeWitt T. Puckett and Mr. James W. Nichol, special attorneys, all of Washington, D. C., for respondent.

Before Biggs, Maris, and Clark, Circuit Judges.

CLARK, Circuit Judge:

The Federal Trade Commission had before it here a rather mild instance from a black chapter of American business history. The emptor who is greedy (mail fraud) or gluttonous (food) or vain (cosmetics) may be getting more protection than he deserves; so he perchance should be forced to "cavere." Around the emptor whose sole desire is relief from the ills to which our mortal flesh is heir, the law has thrown too transparent and tardy a cloak. That, at least, is the opinion of those who should know.

A distinguished Senator of the United States:

They are the people, who for the sake of a few dirty dollars, are willing to imperil the comfort, the wealth, and the lives of millions of people who cannot protect themselves. From a speech by Senator McCumber sponsoring the original Pure [539] Food and Drugs Act (1906), 40 Cong. Rec., part 3, p. 2053.
A leading medical authority:

In the field of medicine human credulity learns little from experience. In the purchase of any kind of merchandise, except that sold for the alleged alleviation or cure of disease, the buyer has a chance of learning eventually whether or not he has been swindled. In the purchase of an automobile, a piano, or a suit of clothes, time will prove whether it was a good or a bad bargain; nature, through its agencies of wear and tear, makes clear whether one has been cheated. But when we go into the market to buy medicament or medical service, we are at sea for here we have nature not as an assistant to aid our judgment but as an opponent to confuse it. In from 80 percent to 85 percent of all cases of human ailments, it is probable that the individual will get well whether he does something for his indisposition or does nothing for it. The healing power of nature—vis medicatrix naturae—fortunately for biologic perpetuity, works that way. The seller of medicaments, then, obviously starts with at least an 80 percent chance in his favor.

The pills and panaceas of today are colloquially, but incorrectly, called "patent medicines"; incorrectly, because among the thousands of remedies offered to the public for the self-treatment of disease there are probably not half a dozen that are really patented. The reasons are not far to seek. The United States Patent Office is not supposed to grant a patent on a product unless it can be shown that the article on which protection is sought is a new and useful invention. This simple requirement is sufficient in itself to prevent practically all so-called "patent medicines" from being patentable. From the Introduction (p. vii) of Dr. Arthur J. Cramp's 3rd volume of Nostrums and Quackery and Pseudo-Medicine.

A leading legal scholar:

The seriousness of the problem of false advertising, both sociologically and financially, requires no demonstration. The toll which is assessed upon the consumer runs into the millions; the effects upon the health and well-being of the community are incapable of estimation. Handler, The Jurisdiction of the Federal Trade Commission Over False Advertising, 31 Columbia Law Review 527, 551.

A leading journalist:

In the patent-medicine business, the essential art was not medicine, nor chemistry. The fundamental genius for it was psychological. It consisted of skill in playing on the credulity of the simple-minded and the trusting.

* * * * *

The patent-medicine manufacturers made an art of describing the symptoms of diseases in such a way as to terrorize the reader of their pamphlets and advertisements into believing he had one or more of the ailments they pretended to cure; and in describing their cure-alls in terms to convey the conviction of hope. Mark Sullivan, Our Times, Vol. II, America Finding Herself, p. 511.

A distinguished former President and Chief Justice of the United States:

Fraudulent misrepresentations of the curative value of nostrums not only operate to defraud purchasers but are a distinct menace to the public health. There are none so credulous as sufferers from disease. The need is urgent for legislation which will prevent the raising of false hopes of speedy cures of serious ailments by misstatements of facts as to worthless mixtures on which the sick will rely while their diseases progress unchecked. President Taft, Message to Congress June 21, 1911, see 48 Cong. Rec., part 12, p. 675.

The present distinguished Chief Justice of the United States:

we find no ground for saying that Congress may not condemn the interstate transportation of swindling preparations designed to cheat credulous sufferers and make such preparations, accompanied by false and fraudulent statements illicit with respect to interstate commerce, as well as, for example, lottery tickets.

In sustaining the Sherley Amendment (U. S. C. A. title 21, sec. 10) to the original Pure Food and Drugs Act, an amendment made necessary by the failure of the majority of the Court in the case of U. S. v. Johnson, 221 U. S. 488, to agree with his views. Seven Cases v. United States, 239 U. S. 510, 516-517.

It is thus apparent that our "mild" is not in characterization of ethics but in description of harm. The products advertised (Mazon), a soap and an ointment, are germane only to the treatment of certain diseases of the skin. These diseases, always irritating and sometimes painful, [540] may work from the inside out. As the reverse is not true, they affect the case and not the wheels of our human watch. They cannot, therefore, make it cease ticking. So the false therapeutic claims of the petitioner company may disappoint. The disappointment will not, however, be fatal.

The advertisements objected to are curative, not palliative in tenor. They assert the "elimination" rather than the alleviation of the conditions treated. They are listed as Federal Trade Commission Exhibits 4, 3, and 2B and read:

In circulars addressed to members of the medical profession:

Mazon—an ethical preparation compounded under the personal supervision of its originator—is the original treatment of its character for: Eczema, Psoriasis, Head Scalds, Ivy Poison, Ring Worm, Athlete's Foot, Barber's Itch, And Other Skin Disorders.

The colloidal nature of the base of Mazon and its strong penetrating characteristics, together with its healing and soothing ingredients, afford quick and permanent elimination of Eczema and other skin disorders. Federal Trade Commission's Exhibit 4.

No other treatment for permanent cure has ever been discovered * * *. Some of the best-known skin specialists in the City (of Philadelphia) are using it exclusively and praise it highly. Federal Trade Commission's Exhibit 4.

In a professional journal having wide circulation among graduate nurses:

Thousands of physicians have clinically proved the effectiveness of Mazon treatment, and are prescribing it daily to permanently eliminate: (diseases substantially similar to those listed above). Federal Trade Commission's Exhibit 3.

In leaflets (somewhat less boastful) contained in each individual package of its product:
The therapeutic value and distinctive characteristics of Mazon were immediately recognized by physicians, who by personal clinical tests and observations, proved to their own satisfaction the unusual effectiveness of Mazon in the treatment and elimination of symptoms associated with certain types of: Eczema, Psoriasis, Alopecia, Dandruff, Ring Worm, Ivy Poison, Athlete’s Foot, and other skin irritations. Federal Trade Commission’s Exhibit 2B.

Do Not Attempt to Diagnose Your Own Skin Condition. Consult your physician and be guided by his advice. Federal Trade Commission’s Exhibit 2B.

Such a claim is medically untrue. It fails to recognize the scientific necessity for the application of internal remedies to diseases, which, by their etiology (the science of causes), proceed from internal disorders. Ring worm, head scalds (favus), athlete’s foot, barber’s itch, and ivy poison are excluded from this necessity. They are due to external causes, ring worms, favus, and athlete’s foot being parasitic or fungoid in character, and ivy poison being an irritant reaction from a vegetable fibre. In eczema, psoriasis, alopecia (falling hair), and dandruff (seborrhea, a cause of alopecia) on the other hand, the outward manifestation is, in part at least, the result of an inward disturbance. There is something amiss in the interaction of the body’s chemical elements (metabolism). As both the physicians called by the petitioner company are, with one possible exception, in agreement as to what we have just said, we do not have to corroborate their testimony by resort to any principle of judicial notice, Illinois Cudahy Packing Co. v. Kansas City Soap Co., 247 F. 556; 23 C. J. 168. It is nevertheless comforting to find the medical works in complete accord, Knowles, Diseases of the Skin, as to: ringworm, p. 394, favus, p. 384, athlete’s foot, p. 389, barber’s itch, p. 392, ivy poison, p. 167; as to: eczema, p. 119, alopecia (there are four kinds), p. 475 et sequitur, seborrhea, p. 452. The exception spoken of is psoriasis. The medical witnesses differ on its etiology and we find the same difference in the text book, Knowles, above cited, p. 102. All, however, agree upon the necessity for internal remedies, Knowles, above cited, p. 104.

The Commission might well have stopped with this question of etiology. Once the internal cause of the disease is established, it does not take a doctor to point out the futility of an outward application to an interior evil. Such application can do no more than alleviate by modifying the exterior symptoms. Accordingly, petitioner’s [541] advertisements, in their assertion of elimination, are bad in medicine and, fortunately for the public, bad also in law.

The advertising complained of uses two other words of, to be conservative, exaggeration—“original” and “exclusively.” Dr. Saul testified, Record p. 138, that the components of the compound (Commission’s Exhibit 6, record p. 159) are all “common drugs used in the practice of medicine.” An examination of the medical authority already cited amply supports his view. The principal drugs indicated, sodium salicylate, resorcinol, and phenol are prescribed in the paragraphs covering external treatment of the diseases mentioned, Knowles, above cited, pp. 105, 128, 399, 461, 483. One might add that the formulas there set out are more complete.

Here "original" appears to be used in the two senses of "novel" and "not otherwise obtainable." Strictly speaking, therefore, it has no bearing on efficacy and so no relation to false hopes. But it has, it seems to us, a harmful connotation appropriate to each sense. The implication of newness is well recognized. In law what is old may be good, but in science progress is well prized. One has a vision of thousands of doctors and druggists working in thousands of hospitals and laboratories and emerging with—Mazon. In the second sense it may, like the apple, keep the doctor away. It carries a suggestion of mystery and of secret sources. The fact is that, as we have seen, its ingredients can be obtained by resort to the prescription blank of the family physician.

It seems even less necessary to dwell upon the claim of exclusiveness. That, one need hardly observe, is by definition a rare attribute. What we have just said shows, we think, that there is no semblance of rarity. The "leading specialists," both those called to the witness stand and in the profession generally, may prescribe Mazon (one medical witness did and the other did not), but they do not pretend that their treatment has only that one facet.

We cannot, because the Federal Trade Commission did not, question either the reference in the advertising to "other" skin diseases, the claim that the ointment was prepared in collaboration with the University of Pennsylvania Medical School, or the implication that some special quality in the accompanying and high-priced soap makes it indispensable to an advantageous use of the ointment. Any rule of ejusdem generis does not seem appropriate to a unilateral effect on the consumer's mind. They cannot be expected to add the limiting "like." Fisher, The Proposed Food and Drugs Act, A Legal Critique, 1 Law & Contemporary Problems, 74, 82. We imagine that the University of Pennsylvania medical authorities may be surprised at the generous assistance furnished to their former pharmacist by their staff. The nature of the chemical cooperation of soap and ointment if any, is not developed.

As might be expected from the words of the act, i.e. "unfair" and "competition," the stock attempts to escape its incidence stress the entire absence of the first and the indefiniteness of the second. In the field of therapeutic claims, precedents are scarce. This is due, in part at least, to the discouraging history of the legislative efforts to extirpate an admitted and shocking evil. The best account of that struggle is to be found in books by those who took part in it. We refer to chapter 27, volume II, of Our Times, by Mr. Mark Sullivan, from which we have already quoted, and the autobiography of the famous Dr. Wiley. See also, Reiger, The Struggle for Federal Food & Drugs Legislation, 1 Law & Contemporary Problems 3; Weber, The Food, Drug, & Insecticide Administration, Its History and Organization; Kallet and Schlink, 100,000,000 Guinea Pigs; Kallet, Counterfeit; and, Lamb, American Chamber of Horrors (one chapter of which is entitled, Blood Money). That history, not yet as we think ended, shows the proprietary medicine lobby fighting a successful rear-guard action against anything and everything calculated to enlighten the sick and suffering public. They fought, of course, in the courts as well as in the Congress, one of their notable victories coming strangely enough from the mouth of the son of the Autocrat of the Breakfast Table, U. S. v. Johnson, above cited, and requiring the passage of the Sherley Amendment, above cited, to restore the legislative intent. The Consumer's Protection Under the Federal Pure Food and Drugs Act, 32 Columbia Law Review 720; Shearer, The National Government and False Advertising, 19 Iowa Law Review 28. A comparison of the terms of the so-called Tugwell Bill (introduced by Senator Copeland as S. 1944, 73rd Cong., 1st sess.) with those of the two companion and mayhap overlapping statutes which eventually became law, the Copeland Act (U. S. C. A. [542] title 21, sec. 321) and the Wheeler-Lea Amendment (U. S. C. A. title 15, sec. 55) leads to the belief that the lobby is still going strong. Fisher, The Proposed Food and Drugs Act, A Legal Critique, above cited; A Proposed Revision of the Food and Drug Laws, 22 Georgetown Law Journal 306; Woodward, It's an Art, chapter 25, Congress Says "Boo"; Lamb, American Chamber of Horrors, above cited.

So we find the Government department technically equipped to ascertain the truth about drugs prevented from exercising jurisdiction where the greatest damage is done, and the Government department with no such facilities constrained to act lest the people perish. The author of a legislative note in a recent issue of the Virginia Law Review writes:

The Federal Trade Commission, on the other hand, has handled cases involving false advertising for a number of years with some success, despite the limitations on its jurisdiction. * * * The proceedings of the Commission in which orders are issued only after full hearings, have established an enviable reputation for their impartiality so that appeals from them are relatively infrequent. It does not appear, however, that the Commission has at present adequate means of obtaining the necessary scientific evidence to fully cope with false advertising in this field. 22 Virginia Law Review 812, 820.

We may say that the examination of witnesses gives the impression that the Federal Trade Commission's legal staff did not equip itself with even the elementary medical books we borrowed from a local physician.
We come now to a consideration of such precedents as exist. In Minter v. Federal Trade Commission, 102 F. (2d) 69 (decided February 14, 1939), we had recent occasion to discuss what we deemed a judicial tendency to broaden the meaning of competition in the interests of consumer protection. Even without such liberal construction, we think the "procedural restriction" of Federal Trade Commission v. Raladam, 283 U. S. 643 (criticized in Handler, Jurisdiction of the Federal Trade Commission Over False Advertising, 31 Columbia Law Review 527, 549, 551; Federal Trade Commission and False and Misleading Advertising, 31 Michigan Law Review 804), has been fully met by the proof here. In fact, one of the offending circulars was distributed in explanation of some litigation with that most exasperating of all competitors, the former employee who has departed with a trade secret. For the most recent discussion of Federal Trade Commission v. Raladam and the later case of Hughes Inc. v. Federal Trade Commission, 77 F. (2d) 886, cert. den. 296 U. S. 617, see an interesting note in the February number of the Columbia Law Review, 39 Columbia Law Review 259, 261.

The only other case we have been able to find in the therapeutic field seems to have escaped the attention of counsel for the Commission. It is reported sub nomine, Fairyfoot Products Co. v. Federal Trade Commission, 80 F. (2d) 684. It deals with a bunion cure in contrast with the obesity cures (Marmola, Bad-Em Salts) of the two cases previously cited. The opinion, by Judge Alschuler of the Seventh Circuit, expresses a point of view which seems to us more in accord with a suppression of the actual evil legislated against than that of some of the earlier cases.

We quote:

That petitioner's plaster has virtue may, for the purposes hereof, be conceded. Indeed, it would be quite unreasonable to assume that one putting out a purported remedy for an affliction would not employ some ingredients or means calculated to benefit some cases at some stage. But this would not justify such sweeping claims as the condemned items of this advertising matter disclose, which were evidently intended to induce in the public mind the belief that here was an absolute and unfailing panacea for bunions of all kinds and degrees.

Just where lies the line between "puffing," which is not unlawful and unwarranted, and misleading representations in advertising, is often very difficult of ascertainment. But in our judgment this case does not present such embarrassment, since the advertising here condemned is well beyond any "puffing" indulgence. Fairyfoot Products Co. v. Federal Trade Commission, 80 F. (2d) 684, 686.

As the writer of an article to which we have several times referred (Fisher, The Proposed Food and Drugs Act, A Legal Critique, above cited, p. 82) points out:
In the field of therapeutic representation a fine line between "remedy" and "cure" has been drawn, although as often as not the gullible purchaser has been deceived in both [543] instances. * * * Some courts seem entirely too content with a "commercial" standard of truth, piously hoping that the purchaser will not be so gullible as to be deceived by the depicted panaceas.

We are not pious and we are not content with the advertisements in the case at bar.

The suggested comparison between what was sought and what was had would have emphasized this very point. To check the obscurantism about puffing, the draftsmen offered two provisions. First, in order to discourage self-medication in the case of 36 named diseases, falsity was attributed to any representation made to laymen as to the effect of any drug in their treatment, A Proposed Revision of Food and Drug Laws, 22 Georgetown Law Journal 306; Fisher, The Proposed Food and Drugs Act, A Legal Critique, above cited, p. 98. The petitioner, in the less blatant of its two advertisements, makes a gesture in obeisance to this same principle. But it combines this lip service with a therapeutic claim—so the sufferer is left with a choice of reliances. Second, the test of truth was made the "general agreement of medical opinion," Fisher, The Proposed Food and Drugs Act, A Legal Critique, above cited, p. 95.

Petitioner addresses some argument to the especial character of its circulation. It says that one putative audience will not read and the other will not heed. In other words, the contention is made that physicians and readers of professional journals are too smart to be deceived and that lay purchasers buy blind because the leaflet is inside the carton containing the ointment. We think that one position is untrue legally and the other factually.

Conceding the somewhat violent assumption that prospective patients never read medical and nursing journals, we do not concede either the ethics or the law of a proposition which puts a premium on a failure in wickedness. In the closely analogous field of common law deceit, the courts have long since refused to sanction the application of some idea of contributory negligence as a defense. Both deceit (apart from negligent misrepresentation), the genus, and false advertising, the species, are intentional torts and the "should have known or acted more wisely" of the injured are inappropriate in both cases, Green, Deceit, 16 Virginia Law Review 763; Bohlen, Misrepresentation as Deceit, Negligence, or Warranty, 42 Harvard Law Review 732, 739; 49 Harvard Law Review 830 (Note); Harper and McNeely, A Synthesis of the Law of Misrepresentation, 22 Minnesota Law Review 939, 957. We believe that Congress might well have given some thought to this before enacting paragraph (a) of section 55, title 15, U. S. C. A. If they had, they would have recognized the confusion in using the proviso of the proposed self-medication section and leaving out the section itself.
We find an equal inadequacy in the petitioner's reasoning about the casual inferences properly to be drawn from the enclosure of the leaflet. In the first place, the retailer is obviously interested in familiarizing himself with the goods he offers for sale. Recommendation will follow upon knowledge whether or not it is accompanied by belief. In the second place, the self-medicator's conviction is not dependent upon one use. He may and often must be influenced to a further purchase before success or failure is finally apparent, or he may and often must be influenced to a further purchase for treatment of some subsequent one of the other skin diseases mentioned or implied.

We are constrained also to ignore petitioner's plea of locus poenitentiae. Experience has compelled the Commission to insist upon the letter of its bond. So the courts have upheld it in demanding a stipulation, Federal Trade Commission v. A. McLean & Son, 84 F. (2d) 910, Federal Trade Commission v. Morrissey, 47 F. (2d) 101, and in requiring that such stipulation be unconditional, Fairyfoot Products v. Federal Trade Commission, above cited, 686.

We arrive therefore at this conclusion. We are satisfied with the Commission's cease and desist order entered January 6, 1938, except in two particulars. We think that subparagraphs b and d of paragraph 1 should be omitted because they apply to the diseases curable through external application, and paragraph 3 should be omitted because it improperly attempts to extend the jurisdiction of the Commission to Canada. We leave untouched subparagraph a of paragraph 1. The words used therein are "competent remedy or cure."

Our quotation from Fisher's The Proposed Food and Drugs Act, A Legal Critique (pages 11-12 of this opinion) contains an implied criticism of the judicial effort to draw a "fine line" between remedy and cure. We agree with that criticism and in support of it cite an excerpt from an opinion of the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit:

There was still room for a conclusion that substantial mischief resided in the claim of a universally efficacious remedy for the numerous and widely prevalent maladies in question; for the term "remedy" must at least imply a curative tendency, although not of course guaranteeing a cure. Simpson v. U. S., 241 Fed. 841, 845.

It is hardly necessary to comment upon the synonymity of "efficacious" in the passage above quoted and "competent" in the Commission's order or to call attention to the a fortiori character of a civil proceeding. The contrary holding of United States v. Natura Co., 250 Fed. (D. C.) 925, is an example of the judicial line drawing animadverted on above.

The order of the Federal Trade Commission is modified in accordance with this opinion and is in all other respects affirmed.
STARTUP CANDY COMPANY v. FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION

No. 1789

(Circuit Court of Appeals, Tenth Circuit. Mar. 31, 1939)

Order dismissing petition to review Commission's order in Docket 2705, 25 F. T. C. 234, directing respondent, its officers, etc., in offering for sale, sale and distribution of candy, to cease and desist from the use of lottery schemes, as therein set forth.

Mr. H. Hartland Halliday, of Salt Lake City, Utah, for petitioner.

Mr. W. T. Kelley, chief counsel, Federal Trade Commission, of Washington, D. C., for respondent.

Before LEWIS and PHILLIPS, Circuit Judges.

PER CURIAM.

This cause came on to be heard on the motion of petitioner to withdraw the petition for review herein and was submitted to the court.

On consideration whereof, it is now here ordered by the court that said motion be and the same is hereby granted and that the petition to review in this cause be and the same is hereby dismissed out of this court at the costs of petitioner.

It is further ordered by the court that the clerk of this court forthwith transmit to the secretary of the Federal Trade Commission a certified copy of this order.

FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION v. LEWYN DRUG, INCORPORATED

File No. 315–J

(District Court, Southern District of California, Central Division. April 7, 1939)

Decree of preliminary injunction by District Judge Wm. P. James, restraining, for the reasons and as below set forth, including immediate and irreparable injury to public in further dissemination of such false advertisements, advertisement of "Dr. Haller's Prescriptions" for women, and pending issuance of amended complaint by Commission against defendant under section 5 of Commission Act and disposition of such amended complaint as in said decree set forth.

Mr. W. T. Kelley, chief counsel, Federal Trade Commission, and Mr. Gerard A. Rault, special attorney, both of Washington, D. C., for plaintiff.

1 Report in 102 F. (2d) 1015.
2 Not reported in Federal Reporter.
3 Such amended complaint duly issued in the matter of Lewyn Drug, Inc., Docket 2934, and was followed by order to cease and desist issued as of June 6, 1939, 29 F. T. C. 7.
This cause coming on to be heard upon the complaint of the Federal Trade Commission for the issuance of a preliminary injunction against the defendant, Lewyn Drug, Inc., and the court having read the pleadings and affidavits filed in connection therewith and having heard and considered the arguments of counsel, and

It appearing to the Court, That the defendant is domiciled in and transacts business in the Southern District of California, and

It appearing to the Court, That it has jurisdiction over the parties and subject matter hereof, and that the law and the evidence are in favor of the plaintiff and against the defendant, and

It appearing to the Court, That said defendant is engaged in the sale and distribution of two medicinal preparations for the relief of delayed menstruation designated as Dr. Haller's Prescription 5000 and Dr. Haller's Prescription 2000, in commerce between and among the various states of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and

It appearing to the Court, That said defendant has disseminated, is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of false advertisements by the United States mails and by other means in commerce for the purpose of inducing and which are likely to induce directly or indirectly the purchase of said medicinal preparations, and by various means for the purpose of inducing or which are likely to induce directly or indirectly the purchase in commerce of said medicinal preparations in violation of the Federal Trade Commission Act by means of which advertising the defendant has falsely represented that the use of said preparations is a competent, safe, and scientific treatment for delayed menstruation and that their use will have no ill effects upon the human body, and

It appearing to the Court, That the use of either of these preparations may result in gastrointestinal disturbances such as catharsis, nausea, and vomiting, with pelvic congestion, inflammation and congestion of the uterus and adnexa leading to excessive uterine hemorrhage, and in those cases where either of these preparations is used to interfere with the normal course of pregnancy, may result in uterine infection with injury to the pelvic and abdominal structures, causing septicemia or blood poisoning, and

It appearing to the Court, That the further dissemination of such false advertisements would cause immediate and irreparable injury to the public, and that it would be in the public interest to enjoin and restrain the further dissemination of said advertising pending the issuance of an amended and supplemental complaint by the Federal Trade Commission under section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and until such complaint is dismissed by the Commission or set aside by a court on review or the order of the Commission to cease and desist made thereon has become final within the meaning of section 5 of said act,

It is hereby ordered, adjudged and decreed, That the defendant, Lewyn Drug, Incorporated, its officers, servants, representatives, employees, successors, and assigns and all other persons participating with them and having notice of this order, be and they hereby are, and each of them is hereby strictly enjoined and restricted from:

Disseminating or causing to be disseminated any advertisements by means of the United States mails or in commerce by any means for the purpose of inducing or which is likely to induce directly or indirectly the purchase of said preparations known as Dr. Haller's Prescription 5000 and Dr. Haller's Prescription 2000, whether sold under the same names or under any other names, or disseminating and causing to be disseminated any advertisement by any means for the purpose of inducing or which is likely to induce directly or indirectly the purchase in commerce of said preparations, and which advertisements represent that either or both of said preparations constitute a safe, competent and scientific treatment for delayed menstruation and that their use will have no ill effects upon the human body, or which advertisements fail to state that said preparations if used as directed or under such conditions as are customary and usual may result in the serious illness and in some cases the death of the user;

Pending the issuance of an amended and supplemental complaint by the Federal Trade Commission against said defendant under section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and until such complaint is dismissed by the Commission or set aside by a United States Circuit Court of Appeals or the Supreme Court of the United States on review, or the order of the Commission to cease and desist made thereon has become final within the meaning of section 5 of said Act,

It is further ordered, That this decree of injunction issue without bond.
PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE—DUE PROCESS—FAIR TRIAL.

Administrative agencies must grant a fair trial.

CEASE AND DESIST ORDERS—VALIDITY—DUE PROCESS—FAIR TRIAL.

A cease and desist order made by Federal Trade Commission is invalid as violative of "due process" if persons ordered to cease and desist were deprived of fair trial.

CEASE AND DESIST ORDERS—APPELLATE PROCEDURE—EVIDENCE PROFFERED BEFORE COMMISSION—REJECTION AS DEPRIVING OF FAIR TRIAL—ON MOTION TO STRIKE—WHERE MATTER INVOLVED IN MERITS.

A motion to strike transcript of record filed in Circuit Court of Appeals reviewing cease and desist order of Federal Trade Commission did not bring before court the question whether persons ordered to cease and desist were deprived of fair trial by not being permitted to make of record matters properly included in record, since determination of question required an examination of merits and motion did not bring case before court on merits (Federal Trade Commission Act, sec. 5 (c), 15 U. S. C. A. sec. 45 (c)).

Upon motions to strike transcript of record from the files, to require filing of proper Record, or to vacate cease and desist order in proceeding by California Lumbermen's Council and others to review cease and desist order of Commission, motions denied.

Mr. Morgan J. Doyle, of San Francisco, Calif., for petitioner.

Mr. W. T. Kelley, chief counsel, Federal Trade Commission, and Mr. Martin A. Morrison, assistant chief counsel, and Mr. Daniel J. Murphy and Mr. James W. Nichol, special attorneys, all of Washington, D. C., for respondent.

Before GARRECHT, HANEY, and STEPHENS, Circuit Judges.

STEPHENS, Circuit Judge:

Petitioners present two motions. One is to strike the transcript of the record heretofore filed in this court, and the other (premised upon the granting of the first) is to require respondent to file a proper transcript of the record or to vacate the cease and desist order made by respondent. Both motions must be denied.

1 Reported in 103 F. (2d) 304. The case before the Commission is reported in 27 F. T. C. 515.
The basis of the motion to strike is that the record as it is before us is not the true record of the proceedings had before the trial examiner. An examination of the petition and supporting affidavits reveals that such record is a true record of the evidence received, but that the real complaint is that the hearing was so conducted by the examiner as not to allow petitioners to make of record matters properly included in the record.

If, then, petitioners have been deprived of a fair trial the order made by the Commission is invalid as violative of due process. A motion to strike the transcript is not, however, the manner in which to bring such a question before us, for its determination requires an examination of the merits of the case that we may know the pertinency of the excluded matter in its relationship to the case as a whole. This case is not now before us on the merits.

We shall not herein attempt to advise petitioners as to the course they should pursue, but we are constrained to remark that since section 5 (c) of the Federal Trade Commission Act and section 10 (e) (f) of the National Labor Relations Act are similar, the case of Consolidated Edison Co. of New York v. N. L. R. B., 305 U. S. 197, December 5, 1938, may be found helpful.

FOI RET SALES COMPANY INC., ET AL. v. FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION

No. 16034

(Circuit Court of Appeals, Second Circuit. April 28, 1939)

Decree by Learned Hand, Augustus N. Hand and Robert P. Patterson, Circuit Judges, resettling court's prior decree of December 16, 1938, following opinion and decision affirming Commissioner's order in Floret Sales Co., Inc., et al., Docket 3164, 26 F. T. C. 806, so as to prohibit respondent from representing, through use of words "Les Parfums des Jardines de Floret," or other foreign words, or otherwise, that perfumes made or compounded in the United States are made in France or other foreign country, or imported, but to permit respondents, petitioners herein, while observing injunction above set forth, to state on packages, etc., of their products, that "The concentrates of which these perfumes are made were produced in France."

and, as such, were imported into the United States, where they were combined or diluted with domestic alcohol, and the resulting perfume was bottled in U. S. A."; as in said resettling decree in detail set forth.

Mr. John A. Glaccum of Munn, Anderson & Liddy, of New York City, for petitioners.

Mr. W. T. Kelley, chief counsel, Federal Trade Commission, Mr. Martin A. Morrison, assistant chief counsel, and Mr. S. Brodyne Teu, II and Mr. James W. Nichol, special attorneys, all of Washington, D. C., for respondent.

FINAL DECREE

This cause having heretofore been presented and submitted to this Court by counsel for the several parties hereto, upon printed briefs and oral arguments; and this Court, thereafter, to wit: on the 5th day of December 1938, after duly considering the same and being fully advised in the premises, having made, delivered and entered herein its opinion upon and decision of this cause, which opinion and decision include and close with these words, to wit: "The petition is denied and the order affirmed"; and there having thereafter, to wit: On the 16th day of December 1938, been made and entered herein a formal decree upon said opinion and decision; and respondent Federal Trade Commission having thereafter, to wit: On the 17th day of April 1939, filed herein its certain written petition or motion for an order resettling said decree by amending the same to read in the language of a certain proposed decree attached to said petition as an exhibit thereto and as a part thereof; and notice of said motion having been duly served upon counsel for petitioners, and counsel for the petitioners having appeared herein in answer to said petition or motion, and said petition or motion having been duly submitted to this Court for consideration and decision; and the Court having duly considered the same and being fully advised in the premises, this Court now hereby orders, adjudges and decrees that its said decree herein so made and entered herein on the 16th day of December 1938, except the title thereto and the first paragraph thereof, which shall remain unchanged and unaffected by this order resettling said decree, be and the same hereby is resettled to read as follows, to wit:

First: Now therefore, it is hereby ordered, adjudged, and decreed, That said order to cease and desist issued by the Federal Trade Commission, respondent herein, under date of February 19, 1938, be, and the same hereby is, affirmed.

Second: And it is hereby further ordered, adjudged, and decreed, That the petitioners, Fioret Sales Co., Inc., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, and Murray W. Morin and Irving Unterman, individually and as officers of petitioner Fioret Sales Co., Inc., in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of perfumes in interstate commerce or in the District of Columbia, cease and desist, either directly or through implication, from representing, through the use of such words as “Les Parfums des Jardine de Fioret” or through the use of any foreign words or phrases, or through any other means or device, or in any manner, that perfumes manufactured or compounded in the United States are made or compounded in France or in any other foreign country, or are imported.

Third: And it is hereby further ordered, adjudged, and decreed, that, so long as petitioners shall obey the terms of the second paragraph hereof, they shall be, and hereby are, permitted and authorized to imprint upon or affix to packages, cartons, bottles, or other containers of their said perfumes the following words, to wit: “The concentrates of which these perfumes are made were produced in France and, as such, were imported into the United States, where they were combined or diluted with domestic alcohol, and the resulting perfume was bottled in U.S.A.”

Fourth: And it is hereby further ordered, adjudged, and decreed, that the petitioners, Fioret Sales Co., Inc., and Murray W. Morin and Irving Unterman, individually and as officers of Fioret Sales Co., Inc., shall have 90 days after the service upon them of a copy of this decree to comply with said decree, and shall within said 90 days file with the Federal Trade Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this decree.

NATIONAL SILVER COMPANY v. FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION

(Circuit Court of Appeals, Second Circuit. May 1, 1939)

Order by Circuit Judge Harrie B. Chase, dismissing petitions for review of Commission’s modified order in Docket 2111, 27 F. T. C. 558, directing respondent, its officers, etc., in the offer, sale and distribution of knives and flatware cutlery, to cease and desist from falsely representing its products as “Stainless” and “Stainlessproof,” etc., as in said order set forth.

Brill, Bergenfeld & Brill, of New York City, for petitioner.

ORDER

This matter having come on to be heard, and upon the motion of Brill, Bergenfeld & Brill, attorneys for the petitioner National Silver Co., a corporation, and upon the approval of the Federal Trade Commission as appears from the letter of said Federal Trade Commission dated April 20, 1939, attached hereto, it is hereby Ordered, adjudged, and decreed, That the petitions for review heretofore filed on May 17, 1938, and on September 24, 1938, be and the same hereby are withdrawn and the said proceeding be and the same hereby is dismissed.

BAYUK CIGARS INCORPORATED v. FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION

No. 3788

(Circuit Court of Appeals, Third Circuit. May 8, 1939)

Decree by Circuit Judge John Biggs, Jr., modifying, as below set forth, prior decree modifying and affirming Commission's cease and desist order in Docket 1391, 12 F. T. C. 19, with respect to use of certain labels, designations, etc., for domestically made cigars containing either no Havana tobacco or such tobacco only in a minor proportion.

Mr. Jerome J. Rothschild of Fox, Rothschild, O'Brien & Frankel, for petitioner.

Mr. W. T. Kelley, chief counsel, Federal Trade Commission, Mr. Martin A. Morrison, assistant chief counsel, and Mr. James W. Nichol, special attorney, all of Washington, D. C., for respondent.

DECREE

And now, The 8th day of May, 1939, after hearing of the motion by the Federal Trade Commission for a modification of the decree entered in the above cause on November 21, 1930, and the answer filed thereto by Bayuk Cigars Incorporated,

It is now ordered, adjudged, and decreed, By this Court that Bayuk Cigars Incorporated, its officers, directors, agents, representatives, servants, and employees, on and after 2 years from the date hereof shall cease and desist in connection with the shipment or distribution of cigars from any of its factories in Interstate Commerce from using the word "Havana" or other word or words of similar import, alone or in conjunction with the word "Ribbon" or with any other word or words, as or in a brand or trade name for, or as descriptive of, cigars unless the cigars to which such brand or trade name has been applied contain a sufficient quantity of tobacco grown on the Island of Cuba to warrant the use made of such trade mark, trade name, or description.

It is further ordered, adjudged, and decreed, That pending the expiration of the said period of 2 years, the decree of this court entered November 21, 1930, shall remain in full force and effect save that Bayuk Cigars Incorporated upon the adoption of some new brand name containing the word "Ribbon" but eliminating the word "Havana" may during said period of 2 years but not thereafter accompany such new brand name with the words "Formerly Havana Ribbon" without the addition of the qualifying words prescribed in the aforesaid decree of November 21, 1930; provided however that such accompanying words be in letters substantially smaller than the new brand name.

It is further ordered, adjudged, and decreed, That the original decree of June 14, 1930, entered in the above cause shall remain in full force and effect with respect to the brand and trade name Mapacuba.

Without withdrawing, limiting, or otherwise disturbing the jurisdiction of the Federal Trade Commission over this case, the court will retain jurisdiction of the case to act within its powers in any exigencies that may arise by reason of the premises.

BUNTE BROTHERS, INC. v. FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION

No. 0651

(Circuit Court of Appeals, Seventh Circuit. May 17, 1939)

CEASE AND DESIST ORDERS—LOTTERY MERCHANDISING—DEFENSES OR PLEAS—THEREFORE AGREEMENT OF RESPONDENT TO DISCONTINUE—AS PRECLUDING.

A candy manufacturer's agreement to discontinue selling of candy in "break and take" assortments did not preclude Federal Trade Commission from issuing order requiring manufacturer to desist from that practice (Federal Trade Commission Act, sec. 5, 15, U. S. C. A. sec. 45).

CEASE AND DESIST ORDERS—LOTTERY MERCHANDISING—PUNCHBOARD SELLING—AS DIVERSION AND NON-COMPETITIVE WITH LEGITIMATE PRODUCT.

A candy manufacturer using punchboards in sale of candy contrary to public policy could not avoid cease and desist order of Federal Trade Commission on ground that method of sale by which winners on punchboards were alone entitled to candy constituted a mere diversion and did not constitute competition with sale of legitimate candy.

1Reported in 104 F. (2d) 996. The case before the Commission is reported in 26 F. T. C. 786.
CEASE AND DESIST ORDERS—LOTTERY MERCHANDISING—PUNCHBOARD SELLING—WHERE IN COMPETITION WITH CANDY MANUFACTURERS NOT SO SELLING PRODUCT, ABSENT UNFAIR COMPETITION IN RETAIL TRADE IN USE OF BOARDS.

A candy manufacturer which sold candy to jobbers, wholesalers and dealers in assortments including a punchboard as a means to be used in final disposition of candy was guilty of unfair competition with candy manufacturers selling for cash, and was properly ordered to cease and desist from that practice, regardless of whether there was any unfair competition in actual use, ABSENT UNFAIR COMPETITION IN RETAIL TRADE IN USE OF BOARDS.

(Syllabus, with substituted captions, is taken from 104 F. (2d) 996)

On petition for review of order of Commission, order affirmed.

Mr. W. T. Kelley, chief counsel, Federal Trade Commission, Mr. Martin A. Morrison, assistant chief counsel, and Mr. P. C. Kolinski and Mr. James W. Nichol, special attorneys, all of Washington, D. C., for respondent.

Before Sparks, Major, and Treanor, Circuit Judges.

MAJOR, Circuit Judge:

This is a petition to review an order of the Federal Trade Commission entered February 19, 1938 under section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act, 15 U. S. C. 45, in reference to unfair methods of competition in commerce, which order involves, among other things, the interstate shipment of candy described as "break and take" and "punchboard assortments." The order is based on findings of the Commission made after hearings held on an amended complaint issued January 7, 1936. The original complaint against petitioner was issued May 1, 1930, involving only the "break and take" assortments. As to this, petitioner did not contest and an order was entered by the Commission April 3, 1934. This order was set aside January 17, 1936 when the amended complaint was filed, covering both candy assortments.

The Commission found, among other things, that petitioner is an Illinois Corporation, with its principal place of business in Chicago; that it has been for several years engaged in the manufacture of candies and in the sale and distribution thereof to wholesalers, jobbers and retail dealers located in all States of the United States, and makes its shipments interstate. It was found that petitioner, prior to April 1, 1934, shipped in interstate commerce, assortments of candy known in the candy trade as "break and take" assortments; that such assortments consist of a number of pieces of candy retailing for 1 cent each and with differently colored centers and a few larger bars; that the smaller pieces of candy purchased for 1 cent each are broken open by the purchaser to determine the color of the center; that some pieces with certain colored centers and the last piece in the assortment entitle the purchasers thereof to a larger bar of candy free of charge; that the assortments comprise both the smaller pieces of candy and the prizes and are sold by the petitioner as a unit to the purchasers of such assortments. The Commission found that on or about April 1, 1934, the petitioner discontinued the sale and distribution of assortments similar to those just described to purchasers located in States other than the State of Illinois.

The Commission also found, among other things, that the petitioner ships in interstate commerce, assortments of candy consisting of a number of boxes of candy accompanied by a punchboard; that a punchboard is a cardboard device containing pieces of paper with printed numbers; that the numbers on each board are effectively concealed from the purchasers until a punch or selection has been made and a particular punch selected from the board; that the punches or chances sell for five cents each; that purchasers of chances who select winning numbers are given one of the boxes of candy without additional charge; that the purchasers of chances who do not select winning numbers receive nothing but the privilege of punching a number from the board; that some of the boards distribute boxes of candy and other articles of merchandise as prizes to purchasers selecting or punching particular numbers. The packages of candy in the assortments consist of 1 or 2 pound boxes which range in retail price from 60 cents to $5 per box; these assortments consisting of boxes of candy and a punchboard are sometimes referred to as "deals."

The above related facts as to both the "break and take" and "punchboard assortments" are not in dispute. In fact, they are conceded by petitioners. It is also admitted that each candy assortment involves the use of chance and that such use is contrary to public policy.

It is also agreed by the petitioner that the use of chance prior to April 1, 1934 in the "break and take" assortments constituted an unfair method of competition under the act in question. It is agreed that the sale of penny candies by the aid of the element of chance in such assortments necessarily injures its competitors and that proof of such is unnecessary. The only question raised with reference to the Commission's order insofar as it pertains to this assortment is that inasmuch as petitioner had made a report of compliance to the Commission, that it would cease and desist from selling such assortments in interstate commerce and that a finding to such effect was made by the Commission, that the Commission's order in respect thereto is unauthorized or justified. This contention cannot be sustained. The act in question provides:
Whenever the Commission shall have reason to believe that any such person, partnership, or corporation has been or is using any unfair method of competition or unfair or deceptive act or practice in commerce, it shall issue and serve a complaint, etc.

It seems obvious that the words “has been” in the language just quoted authorize the Commission to issue its cease and desist order notwithstanding the unfair method complained of has been discontinued. This construction of the statute is sustained by the great weight of authority.

In Federal Trade Commission v. Goodyear Company, 304 U. S. 257, 260, the court said:

Discontinuance of the practice which the Commission found to constitute a violation of the Act did not render the controversy moot.

This court, in Federal Trade Commission v. A. McLean and Son, 84 F. (2d) [998] 910, 913, with reference to this same question, said:

Discontinuance or abandonment is no defense to the order, for, if true, it would be no guaranty that the challenged acts will not be renewed. Federal Trade Commission v. Wallace (C. C. A.) 75 F. (2d) 733. The benefit to respondents of an abandonment may be fully protected by their report to the Commissioner as required by the Commission’s order.

In Federal Trade Commission v. Wallace, 75 F. (2d) 733, 738, the court said:

Respondent says that he ceased his “admitted activities” at once when this cause was filed. Abandonment will not be presumed and, even though pleaded and presently effective, is no bar to the entry of an enforcement order.

Petitioner’s attack upon the Commission’s order as it affects the “punchboard assortments” is somewhat difficult for us to comprehend. After conceding that such assortments involve the use of chance and is violative of public policy, it argues that the sale of such assortments is not an unfair method of competition under the act. We find this statement in petitioner’s reply brief:

If this court determines that the use of chance in connection with the distribution of merchandise is an unfair method of competition per se under all circumstances, regardless of the manner in which it is used or its effect, then the court must decide that the Commission had jurisdiction.

Apparently, the distinction which is sought to be made between the instant case and the many adjudicated cases wherein the courts have considered and sustained the Commission’s order under the same or similar circumstances, is the use made by the retailer of the condemned device. It is this use which is finally made upon which petitioner premises its argument that there is no competition with the sale of legitimate candy, and that the only competition afforded is with other punchboard operators or gambling devices. This fanciful theory is thus illustrated by petitioner:
A customer with $1 in his pocket intending to buy a box of candy goes into a drug store and passes a counter with candy punchboards. He hesitates, attempting to decide between his desire to buy the candy and his desire to gamble. He finally prefers the punchboard and plays his entire dollar away on it. He either gets nothing for his dollar or wins a box of candy. In either case he does not buy the candy he came in to buy. There is diversion here from the person who manufactured the box of candy to the manufacturer of the punchboard assortment. Had the manufacturer of candy also manufactured punchboard assortments he could have had an even chance at this customer's dollar; by not doing so he has lost the business that might be obtained had he manufactured and sold punchboards.

Then it is argued:

There has been diversion here but there is no competition. The want or desire to gamble on the punchboard is not the same desire or want as the desire or want to eat candy. One set of competitors compete with each other to supply the want or the desire to gamble; a completely different set of competitors compete with each other to supply the want or desire for candy.

We are unable to subscribe to such theory. To us it is devoid of all logic. The customer who spends his dollar on a candy punchboard does so with the expectation of acquiring a box of candy. If he succeeds he has procured a box of candy which otherwise he would have purchased as a cash sale. If, however, he spends his dollar on the punchboard and wins nothing, his money is gone and there will be no cash sale of a box of candy. In either event, the dealer who offers his candy for cash has been deprived of a sale and his business reduced and interfered with to that extent. We think it is a fallacy to say there has been a diversion but no competition. It is difficult for us to understand how a competitor could be injured except by diverting his business. The one who is responsible for that diversion is a competitor and if the diversion is occasioned by a gambling apparatus which is contrary to public policy, per se, we think, unquestionably, such a method constitutes unfair trade practice as defined by the act.

We are familiar with no case where this precise question has been determined, yet there are cases where competition apparently is recognized to result from diversion. In Federal Trade Commission v. Winsted Company, 258 U. S. 483, 493, it is said:

For when misbranded goods attract customers by means of the fraud which they perpetrate, trade is diverted from the producer of truthfully marked goods.

In Federal Trade Commission v. Raladam Co., 283 U. S. 643, where the order of the Commission was reversed for failure to show competition, the court, in discussing the matter, on page 653 said:

It is impossible to say whether, as a result of respondent's advertisements, any business was diverted, or was likely to be diverted, from others engaged in like trade, • • •.
In Federal Trade Commission v. Keppel & Bro., 291 U. S. 304, 308, which we think is decisive of the case here, the court said:

Upon the record it is not open to question that the practice complained of is a method of competition in interstate commerce and that it is successful in diverting trade from competitors who do not employ it.

And again on page 313:

A method of competition which casts upon one's competitors the burden of the loss of business unless they will descend to a practice which they are under a powerful moral compulsion not to adopt, even though it is not criminal, was thought to involve the kind of unfairness at which the statute was aimed.

If, however, there were any merit in petitioners' contention concerning the form which its business takes in the retail trade, it would constitute no defense to the order complained of for the reason that the order only runs against interstate sales of "chance" candy to dealers. The means employed by the dealer in disposing of the candy is of little consequence. Petitioner sells to jobbers, wholesalers, and dealers, candy in an assortment which includes a punchboard as a means to be used in its final disposition. In such business he is in direct competition with the candy manufacturer who is engaged in the sale of his product for cash. The latter, under such circumstances, is not able to successfully compete with such a method. As a result, he must either suffer a loss of business or engage in a method which, admittedly, is a species of gambling and contrary to public policy.

The court, in Federal Trade Commission v. Winsted Company, supra, page 494, said:

The honest manufacturer's business may suffer, not merely through a competitor's deceiving his direct customer, the retailer, but also through the competitor's putting into the hands of the retailer an unlawful instrument, which enables the retailer to increase his own sales of the dishonest goods, thereby lessening the market for the honest product.

There the court was dealing with the use of false and deceptive brands and labels attached to merchandise. Much stronger language, we think, would be appropriate in the instant case where the sales of petitioner's product are enhanced by the use of a gambling device sold in connection therewith and placed in the hands of the retailer for the purpose of increasing its sales.

Owing to the narrow question which petitioners here raise, it would serve no good purpose for us to cite or review the many authorities where the act in question has been construed and discussed. In the recent case of Ardelle, Inc. v. Federal Trade Commission, 101 F. (2d) 718, the court sustained the order of the Commission under facts almost identical with those here presented.

A study of the authorities and the record convinces us that the order of the Commission was justified, both by the law and the facts.

The same is affirmed.

C. 597 (and, before Commission, 13 F. T. C. 34), court, on March 9, 1931, following issuance of show cause rule on March 2, denied motion of company for dismissal of Commission's application on ground company had fully complied with order, and, on May 4 following, handed down its per curiam decision favorable to the Commission.

RECORD—TRIAL EXAMINER'S REPORT—WHETHER PART OF. In Arnold Stone Co., Inc. v. F. T. C., decided May 25, 1931, 49 F. (2d) 1017 (C. C. A. 5), 15 F. T. C. 606 (and, before Commission, 14 F. T. C. 291), court denied motion for order directing Commission to file said report as part of record, opposed by Commission in line with its accepted practice of considering such report as confidential document for office use only.

RECORD—TRIAL EXAMINER'S REPORT—WHETHER PART OF. In Flynn & Emrich Co. v. F. T. C., decided October 12, 1931, 52 F. (2d) 836 (C. C. A. 4), 15 F. T. C. 625 (and, before Commission, 14 F. T. C. 310), following petitioner's request that Commission certify trial examiner's report as part of record on appeal, Commission's refusal to do so, and petitioner's action in printing same as an addendum to record, the court, without deciding question or giving report in question any consideration, intimated that the report was proper part of record.

For decision involving matter of this same general character and during subsequent period covered by instant volume, namely, January 1, 1939, to May 31, 1939, see California Lumbermen's Council et al. v. F. T. C., 103 F. (2d) 304, published supra at p. 954, in which court denied motions by petitioner, following its petition to review cease and desist order, to strike transcript of record, and to require respondent to file proper transcript or vacate cease and desist order.
FINDINGS—SUPPLEMENTAL—ADDITIONAL EVIDENCE, AND CERTIFICATION, AFTER REVIEW PETITION. In Consolidated Book Publishers, Inc. v. F. T. C., decided November 25, 1931, 53 F. (2d) 942 (C. C. A. 7), 15 F. T. C. 637 (and, before Commission, 14 F. T. C. 13 and 15 F. T. C. 292), court, on July 8, 1931, at instance of Commission and by reason of decision of Supreme Court in Raladam case (283 U. S. 643, 51 S. Ct. 587), granted leave to adduce additional evidence, following the taking of which, and the making and certifying to the court of supplemental findings of fact based thereon, and concerning general effect of methods employed by respondent in business with competitors, court rendered its decision on the merits, in favor of Commission.

PETITIONS FOR REVIEW—WHERE ARGUMENTATIVE, EXTRANEOUS TO RECORD, ETC. In Royal Milling Co. et al. v. F. T. C., in which, on May 4, 1932, 58 F. (2d) 581 (C. C. A. 6), 16 F. T. C. 679 (and, before Commission, 15 F. T. C. 38), decision adverse to Commission was reversed by Supreme Court on February 6, 1933, 288 U. S. 212, 53 S. Ct. 335, 17 F. T. C. 664, motion by Commission to strike portions of petition for review as argumentative, extraneous to record, etc., opposed by petitioner, with filing of brief, was granted on November 6, 1931, and case thereafter decided, as above set forth.

RECORD—TRIAL EXAMINER’S REPORT—WHETHER PART OF. In Raladam Co. v. F. T. C., decided against the Commission on June 28, 1930, 42 F. (2d) 430 (C. C. A. 6), 14 F. T. C. 683 (and, before Commission, 12 F. T. C. 363), and affirmed by Supreme Court on May 25, 1931, 283 U. S. 643, 51 S. Ct. 587, 15 F. T. C. 598, lower court, in its opinion (p. 432), gave consideration to question whether trial examiner’s report, as insisted by petitioner, was properly a part of the record for review, and, lacking Circuit Court of Appeals rules on the subject, held that the exclusion of such report was supported by the better reason, and denied motion to include same, but directed that if record was prepared for review by Supreme Court, motion to bring in examiner’s findings be included.

RECORD—TRIAL EXAMINER’S REPORT—WHETHER PART OF. In Algoma Lumber Co. et al. v. F. T. C., decided March 7, 1932, 56 F. (2d) 774 (C. C. A. 9), 16 F. T. C. 657 (and, before Commission, 15 F. T. C. 139, 167, 168), and in which court’s subsequent decision against Commission on the merits in 64 F. (2d) 618, 17 F. T. C. 669, was reversed by Supreme Court in 291 U. S. 67, 54 S. Ct. 315, 18 F. T. C. 669, Court of Appeals, on March 7, 1932, granted Commission’s motion to amend ex parte order by striking out requirement that copy of trial examiner’s report be included in the record to be certified by the Commission.
Record—Printing of—Cost—Restriction of Issue and Diminution of, in Interest Saving Excessive. In F. T. C. v. Paramount Famous-Lasky Corp. et al., decided against the Commission on April 4, 1932, 57 F. (2d) 152 (C. C. A. 2), 16 F. T. C. 660 (and, before Commission, 11 F. T. C. 187), in which the record, one of the largest ever before the Commission, comprised more than 17,000 pages of testimony, with extensive exhibits consisting of more than 15,000 additional pages, and cost of which, under rules of court, fell upon Commission, court, on March 9, 1931, granted motions of Commission: (1) For leave to amend its application for enforcement so as to limit the issue to paragraph 2, relating to “block booking”; and (2) for an order directing a revision and condensation of the transcript, the establishment of such revision and condensation as the record of evidence, and that the Commission cause to be printed only such record.

Record—Trial Examiner’s Report—Whether Part of. In The Arrow-Hart & Hegeman Electric Co. v. F. T. C., decided January 30, 1933, 63 F. (2d) 108 (C. C. A. 2), 17 F. T. C. 658, (and, before Commission, 16 F. T. C. 393), and decided against the Commission on the merits in 65 F. (2d) 336, 17 F. T. C. 683 (affirmed in 291 U. S. 587, 54 S. Ct. 532, 18 F. T. C. 691), court, in per curiam opinion, holding that court’s own rules did not require inclusion of trial examiner’s report as part of record, that such reports were for assistance of the Commission, to be kept in its files for reference, and not binding upon one charged with violation of the act, and that results or conclusions of the Commission were to be found in the findings adopted by it, granted motion of Commission to strike out such part of record, and denied that of petitioner for order directing Commission to amplify it in said respect.

Record—Printing of—Cost—Diminution of, in Interest Saving Excessive. In F. T. C. v. Inecto, Inc., decided on April 2, 1934, 70 F. (2d) 370 (C. C. A. 2), 18 F. T. C. 705 (and, before Commission, 16 F. T. C. 198—and in which, following settlement by negotiation of matter at issue, as below indicated, consent decree, not reported in Federal Reporter (20 F. T. C. 722), was entered February 18, 1935) the court, following its previous order for the elimination of nonessential portions of the record before printing—made at the instance of the Commission and opposed by respondent as beyond the court’s power—denied Commission’s motion for leave to present case without printing entire record; holding, in a per curiam opinion, that its rule, on application for enforcement of an order, required that the transcript of an entire record be printed, and that, lacking consent of the parties to printing less, the court could not do otherwise than require all the testimony to be printed as constituting court's record for review.

Enforcement Applications—Answers—Where Irrelevant. In F. T. C. v. Artloom Corp., decided on January 30, 1934, 69 F. (2d) 36 (C. C. A. 3), 18 F. T. C. 680 (and, before Commission, 14 F. T. C. 383), in which Commission on April 11, 1933 moved to strike portions of answer as not relevant to issues and court postponed argument on such motion until final argument on the merits, court affirmed Commission's order without further reference to motion.

Record—Printing of—Exhibits and Errata In Transcript. In E. Griffith Hughes, Inc. v. F. T. C., decided in favor of Commission on June 3, 1935, 77 F. (2d) 886 (C. C. A. 2), 20 F. T. C. 734 (and, before Commission, 18 F. T. C. 1), court, on March 12, 1934, granted petitioner's motion to dispense with printing of the exhibits and denied its motion for correction of certain errata in transcript of testimony on ground that latter was matter to be taken care of before Commission.

Record—Trial Examiner’s Report—Whether Part of. In F. T. C. v. Hires Turner Glass Co., decided on July 11, 1935, 81 F. (2d) 362 (C. C. A. 3), 21 F. T. C. 1207 (and, before Commission, 18 F. T. C. 69), in which court modified order of Commission, court also denied motion requesting it to order Commission to certify to the court report of trial examiner, holding that, in absence of proof that Commission's findings of fact, conclusive if supported by any evidence, were not so supported, there was no substantial ground for granting said motion.

Record—Printing of—Exhibits—Costs—Savings. In F. T. C. v. E. J. Wallace, decided on February 9, 1935, 75 F. (2d) 733 (C. C. A. 8), 20 F. T. C. 713 (and, before Commission, 10 F. T. C. 135), in which court, after modification to make Commission's order more effective, unanimously affirmed same and entered decree of enforcement, court on April 10, 1934, on motion of Commission, entered order making it unnecessary to print or otherwise reproduce exhibits in case for use upon hearing before the court of Commission's application for enforcement, with resulting saving of some $10,000 to the Commission, and on April 25, 1934, on motion of Commission, entered order granting leave to have transcript printed at Government Printing Office in Washington instead of at St. Louis, as provided for in previous order.
INTERLOCUTORY MOTIONS, ETC. 1969

Proceedings Before Commission—Evidence and Testimony—Subpoenas—Where Requiring Appearance and Testimony of Commission's Investigating Attorney-Examiner, Not Theretofore Requested of Nor Directed by Commission. In the matter of Edison-Bell Co., Inc., et al., Docket 2223 (in which were involved alleged misrepresentations in connection with sale and offer of radios and radio sets in interstate commerce, and in which cease and desist order, reported in 23 F. T. C. 69, issued as of July 17, 1936), subpoena, directing Commission's investigating attorney-examiner in the case to testify, issued at instance of counsel for respondents by the District Court for the Southern District of New York, no application having theretofore been made to the Commission to direct him to testify, as usual in such cases, was vacated on December 23, 1935, following objection of Commission counsel at adjournment of hearing and appearance of said counsel before District Court, where he contended that court did not have power to issue such subpoena; counsel (1) pointing out that under section 9 of Federal Trade Commission Act order of the court compelling witnesses to appear before Commission is to issue only in event of contumacy or refusal to obey subpoena theretofore issued by Commission, and calling court's attention to provisions of the act relating to making public by any employee of Commission of any information obtained by it.

Proceedings Before Commission—Stay Order Under 77-B of National Bankruptcy Act—Applicability to Commission Proceeding. In Englander Spring Bed Co., Inc., Docket 2602 (in which were involved use of alleged fictitious prices and in which cease and desist order, reported in 26 F. T. C. 68, issued on December 14, 1937), following (1) application, after case was set for trial and respondent notified, of respondent to District Court for Southern District of New York for capital reorganization under said Bankruptcy Act and the obtaining of a stay of all proceedings then pending against it; (2) disregard, in reliance on said stay, by respondent's principal officers of Commission subpoenas requiring their appearance at scheduled hearing; (3) calling of the case for hearing at time set by Commission attorney, who questioned applicability of said stay order to Commission proceedings; (4) obtaining of an adjournment by respondent, ostensibly to secure construction from court of its order which would specifically include Commission proceedings; (5) application by respondent for injunction to restrain Commission and its attorney from further action in premises; and (6) filing of a cross-bill by the Commission praying that the stay order be decreed to exempt from its terms any proceeding on behalf of the Commission, that application for injunction be disallowed, and that officers theretofore subpoenaed be directed summarily to appear and testify; prayers of the cross-bill were allowed, and an order entered in all respects in conformity thereto.

Proceedings Before Commission—Evidence and Testimony—Subpoenas Dues Tecum—Where Refusal on Ground Ill Health. In Viscose Co., et al., Docket 2161 (in which was involved alleged conspiracy in restraint of trade in connection with sale and offer of rayon yarn, and in which cease and desist order, reported in 25 F. T. C. 421, issued on July 3, 1937), after several postponements granted at respondents' request and refusal of certain witnesses, on ground of ill health, to respond to subpoenas duces tecum issued by the Commission, there ensued following developments, to wit: (1) Securing of orders by the Commission from District Court for the Southern District of New York compelling such witnesses to appear before Commission's trial examiner on February 5, 1936, to testify, etc.; (2) the obtaining of a stay on February 4, 1936, by said witnesses, until February 14, to enable them to undergo medical examination; (3) modification of such stay on February 7, on motion of Commission counsel, and court order that such witnesses submit themselves to committee of doctors for examination between February 14 and 21; (4) filing of doctors' report on February 24, pronouncing witnesses able to testify; and (5) granting of Commission motion on March 3, and the compelling by the court of testimony by such witnesses on March 18, 1936, before trial examiner.

Proceedings Before Commission—Motion to Restrain on Ground, Inter Alia, Intrastate CommercePurely Involved. In National Optical Stores Co., et al., Docket 3143 (in which complaint, issued on June 4, 1937 and involving various alleged misrepresentations with reference to optical goods, is presently pending), motion on November 30, 1937, by counsel for respondents for temporary injunction, filed with District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, on grounds that their business was purely intrastate and that Commission, therefore, was without jurisdiction to hold hearings in pursuance of charges set forth in its complaint, was followed by Commission with motion to dismiss bill, which was sustained and injunction proceedings dismissed on December 3, 1937.
