<sup>1</sup> Interline citations are to the reports of the National Reporter System and to the official United States Supreme Court Reports in those cases in which the proceeding, or proceedings, as the case may be, have been reported. Such cases do not include the decisions of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, nor, in all cases, some of the other proceedings set forth in the above table, and described or reported in the Commission's Decisions and the Commission publications entitled "Statutes and Decisions—1914-1929," and "Statutes and Decisions—1930-1938," which also include cases here involved, for their respective periods.

Said publications also include Clayton Act cases bearing on those sections of said Act administered by the Commission during the aforesaid period, but in which Commission was not a party. "S. & D." refers to earlier publication, reference to later being "1938 S. & D.". For "Memorandum of Court Action on Miscellaneous Interlocutory Motions" during the period covered by the second compilation, namely, 1930-1938, see said compilation at page 485 et seq.

FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION DECISIONS

FINDINGS AND ORDERS, DECEMBER 1, 1939, TO MAY 31, 1940

IN THE MATTER OF

STAFFORD T. MITCHELL, JANET M. MITCHELL, AND OTIS S. MITCHELL, DOING BUSINESS AS THE ARVIL COM- PANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3472. Complaint, July 7, 1938—Decision, Dec. 6, 1939

Where three individuals engaged in compounding two hair preparations, and in distributing and selling same to purchasers at various points in other States, in substantial competition with others also engaged in sale and distribution of similar preparations or other products designed and intended for similar usage, in commerce among the various States and in the District of Columbia; in advertising their said preparations in publications of general circulation, and in bulletins and other advertising folders distributed to members of the purchasing public situated in various States—

- (a) Represented that their product "Arvil" restored or replaced pigment in the hair shaft, and that use thereof caused hair to assume a natural or youthful color, and that graying hair was an indication that hair or scalp was not in normal health, facts being said "Arvil" did not restore or replace pigment as above set forth, but acted as a dye to color surface of hair, color of which is dependent upon pigment deposited in shaft thereof and which was not restored or replaced as aforesaid by use of such preparation, and graying hair was not indication that hair or scalp was not in normal health;
- (b) Represented that it was the consensus of scientific opinion that dandruff is caused by a germ, and represented that said "Arvil" was effective as antiseptic or astringent, applied to hair or scalp, and that it and their "Dawn Shampoo" preparation would permanently relieve dandruff or itching scalp and constituted effective treatments therefor and cures or remedies for baldness and for falling hair and cause or causes of such condition, facts being cause of dandruff is not definitely known, and it is not consensus of scientific opinion that it is caused by germ, as above set forth, and said preparations would not permanently relieve said condition or itching scalp, and did not constitute cure or remedy or effective treatment for former, or for baldness or cause or causes of falling hair; and
- (c) Represented that application of said "Arvil" to skin was always safe, facts being such application was not safe under all conditions, but use of said product, by virtue of lead acetate therein contained, might be injurious when so applied, and particularly where there was any injury, trauma, abrasion, or inflammatory or eczematous condition of the scalp, and, continued over a period of time, might result in lead poisoning;

Complaint

With effect of misleading and deceiving substantial portion of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that said representations were true, and into purchase of substantial volume of said products because of such belief, and with effect of thereby unfairly diverting trade to them from those also engaged in sale and distribution in commerce of similar preparations or other products designed and intended for similar usage, and who truthfully advertise the same:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. William C. Reeves, Mr. Charles F. Diggs, and Mr. Webster Ballinger, trial examiners.

Mr. Merle P. Lyon, Mr. George Foulkes, and Mr. Donovan Divet for the Commission.

Mr. Otis S. Mitchell, in behalf of himself and other respondents.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Stafford T. Mitchell, Janet L. Mitchell, and Otis S. Mitchell, individuals, trading as The Arvil Co., hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondents, Stafford T. Mitchell, Janet L. Mitchell, and Otis S. Mitchell, are individuals, trading under the name and style of The Arvil Co., with their office and place of business located at 1700 Wilson Avenue, Chicago, Ill. Respondents are now, and for more than 1 year last past have been, engaged in the business of compounding, distributing, and selling in commerce, as herein set out, hair preparations designated "Arvil" and "Dawn Shampoo."

PAR. 2. Said respondents being engaged in business as aforesaid, cause said products when sold to be transported from their place of business in Chicago, Ill., to purchasers thereof located at various points in States of the United States other than the State from which said shipments are made. Respondents now maintain a course of trade and commerce in said products distributed and sold by them, between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of their business, respondents are now, and have been, in substantial competition with other individuals, corporations, and firms likewise engaged in the business of selling and distributing similar preparations, or other preparations or products designed and intended for similar usage, in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. In the course and operation of their business and for the purpose of inducing individuals to purchase their line of products, respondents made, published, or caused to be published, in advertising folders and other literature, the following statements and representations:

You can, by the knowledge at hand, do much that will safely help you to retain the charm and vital appearance of youth.

So we conclude that this missing pigment or color must be replaced, either by the hair itself or some outside agency, for until this is done the hair will look gray in color.

The graying of the hair is a distinct sign that the hair and scalp is not in a normal, youthful health.

It has been accepted that dandruff is caused by a germ. A germ that must be eliminated before permanent relief from the dangers of the disease and the annoyance of the itching scalp that goes with it usually can be attained. You have probably noticed that for a limited time after a shampoo that your hair seems free from dandruff scales—but they appear later. This indicates that more than mere washing is necessary to effect any permanent good.

Both Stitson and Solis-Cohen agree that when the hair is falling out badly or baldness has already appeared that a specially prepared dilute solution of Tincture of Cantharides is often used to stimulate the scalp and thus encourage hair growth.

It provides lac sulphur for the treatment of dandruff Tincture of Cantharides to promote hair vigor, Plumbi Acetas as an astringent, antiseptic and protective element and glycerine as a lubricant and carrying agent to spread the preparation over the whole scalp and hair evenly. Its manner of application is by massage. AND—IT BRINGS TO GRAY HAIR A YOUTHFUL, NATURAL COLOR.

And the youthful color that will come to your hair, so natural to look upon, will be a reward to you I know.

Dawn Shampoo is a delightful product that cleans the hair and scalp thoroughly and healthfully. By itself it is a real hair health aid, used with ARVIL, each helps the other on your hair.

Offer No. 1—1 bottle ARVIL and
1 bottle Shampoo FREE.

In all of its advertising literature respondents represent through statements and representations herein set out, and through statements of similar import and effect that:

- (a) The application of Arvil to the skin is always "safe."
- (b) Arvil replaces missing pigment in the hair shaft proper.
- (c) Greying hair is a sign that the hair and scalp are not in normal health.

(d) It is the consensus of scientific opinion that dandruff is caused by a germ.

(e) Both "Arvil" and "Dawn Shampoo" will give "permanent" relief from dandruff or itching scalp and that both or either of respondents' products are a competent treatment for dandruff.

(f) Both products, or either of them, are competent treatments or effective remedies for conditions responsible for hair falling out, and will encourage hair growth, promote hair vigor and are effective remedies for baldness.

(g) Arvil has an antiseptic effect on the hair and scalp.

(h) Arvil causes hair to assume a "natural" and "youthful" color.

(i) The ingredient Plumbi Acetas in Arvil acts as an astringent, antiseptic, or protective element, and is present in the preparation because of these properties and not because of its dyeing effect on the hair.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid representations by respondents with respect to the therapeutic properties of their products, and the results obtained from the use thereof, are exaggerated, false, misleading, and untrue. In truth and in fact respondents' preparation "Arvil" is not safe to use in all cases, because it contains lead acetate, which is in some cases dangerous to use on the skin. Arvil does not replace pigment in the hair shaft proper, but as a dye it colors the surface of the hair. Graying hair is not a sign that the hair and scalp are not in normal health. Gray hair appears with age, and in many cases, on scalps that are in normal health. It is not the consensus of scientific opinion that dandruff is caused by a germ. Respondents' product will not give permanent relief from dandruff or itching scalp, or cause dandruff scales to disappear after treatment is discontinued. Said products are not competent treatments for dandruff or baldness, and they are not an effective remedy for conditions responsible for falling hair. Arvil does not have an antiseptic effect on the hair and scalp and will not cause hair to assume a "natural" or "youthful" color. Plumbi Acetas, the Latin words for lead acetate, does not act as an astringent, antiseptic, or protective element when applied to the scalp or hair, but acts as a dye leading to the formation of dark lead compounds on the hair, and, as set forth above, may, in some cases, cause lead poisoning.

PAR. 6. Each and all of the false and misleading statements made by respondents as hereinabove set forth in their advertising folders and other literature, in offering for sale and selling their products, had, and now has, a tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that all of said representations are true, and into the purchase of a substantial volume of respondents' products on account of such beliefs. As a result, trade is unfairly diverted to respondents from individuals, firms, and corporations likewise engaged in the business of selling similar preparations, or other preparations or products designed or intended for similar usage, and who truthfully advertise their products. As a consequence thereof substantial injury has been done and is now being done by respondents to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 7. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice of the public and to respondents' competitors, and constitute unfair methods of commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on July 7, 1938, issued, and on July 11, 1938, served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondents Stafford T. Mitchell, Janet M. Mitchell, and Otis S. Mitchell, individuals trading as The Arvil Co., charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint (respondents not having filed answer), testimony, and other evidences in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by Merle P. Lyon, Esq. and George Foulkes, Esq., attorneys for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by Otis S. Mitchell, attorney per se and for the remaining respondents, before William C. Reeves, Charles F. Diggs, and Webster Ballinger, examiners of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, testimony, and other evidence, brief in support of the complaint (respondents not having filed brief and oral argument not having been requested); and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondents, Stafford T. Mitchell, Janet M. Mitchell, and Otis S. Mitchell, are individuals trading under the name and style of The Arvil Co., with their office and place of business located at 1700 Wilson Avenue, Chicago, Ill. Respondents are now, and for more than 1 year prior to the issuance of the complaint herein were engaged in the business of compounding, distributing, and selling hair preparations designated "Arvil" and "Dawn Shampoo."

PAR. 2. Respondents being engaged in business as aforesaid cause said products, when sold, to be transported from their place of business in Chicago, Ill., to purchasers thereof located at various points in States of the United States other than the State from which said shipments are made. Respondents maintain, and at all times mentioned herein have maintained, a course of trade in commerce in said products, distributed and sold by them between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of their business, respondents are now, and have been, in substantial competition with other individuals, and with corporations and firms also engaged in the business of selling and distributing similar preparations, or other preparations or products designed and intended for similar usage, in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. In the course and operation of their business and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of their said products, respondents caused various statements and representations relative to said products to be inserted in advertisements in publications having a general circulation and in bulletins and other advertising folders distributed to members of the purchasing public situated in various States of the United States. Among and typical of said statements and representations are the following:

You can, by the knowledge at hand, do much that will safely help you to retain the charm and vital appearance of youth.

So we conclude that this missing pigment or color must be replaced, either by the hair itself or some outside agency, for until this is done the hair will look gray in color.

The graying of the hair is a distinct sign that the hair and scalp is not in a normal, youthful health.

It has been accepted that dandruff is caused by a germ. A germ that must be eliminated before permanent relief from the dangers of the disease and the annoyance of the itching scalp that goes with it usually can be attained. You have probably noticed that for a limited time after a shampoo that your hair seems free from dandruff scales—but they appear later. This indicates that more than mere washing is necessary to effect any permanent good.

Findings

Both Stitson and Solis-Cohen agree that when the hair is falling out badly or baldness has already appeared that a specially prepared dilute solution of Tincture of Cantharides is often used to stimulate the scalp and thus encourage hair growth.

It provides lac sulphur for the treatment of dandruff Tincture of Cantharides to promote hair vigor, Plumbi Acetas as an astringent, antiseptic and protective element and glycerine as a lubricant and carrying agent to spread the preparation over the whole scalp and hair evenly. Its manner of application is by massage. AND—IT BRINGS TO GRAY HAIR A YOUTHFUL, NATURAL COLOR.

And the youthful color that will come to your hair, so natural to look upon, will be a reward to you I know.

Dawn Shampoo is a delightful product that cleans the hair and scalp thoroughly and healthfully. By itself it is a real hair health aid, used with ARVIL, each helps the other on your hair.

1 bottle Shampoo FREE.

Through the use of the aforesaid statements and representations and others of similar import or meaning not herein set out, the respondents represent directly or by implication that:

- (a) The application of Arvil to the skin is always "safe."
- (b) Arvil replaces missing pigment in the hair shaft proper.
- (c) Greying hair is a sign that the hair and scalp are not in normal health.
- (d) It is the consensus of scientific opinion that dandruff is caused by a germ.
- (e) Both "Arvil" and "Dawn Shampoo" will give "permanent" relief from dandruff or itching scalp and that both or either of respondents' products are a competent treatment for dandruff.
- (f) Both products, or either of them, are competent treatments or effective remedies for conditions responsible for hair falling out, and will encourage hair growth, promote hair vigor and are effective remedies for baldness.
- (g) Arvil has an antiseptic effect on the hair and scalp.
- (h) Arvil causes hair to assume a "natural" and "youthful" color.
- (i) The ingredient Plumbi Acetas in Arvil acts as an astringent, antiseptic or protective element, and is present in the preparation because of these properties and not because of its dyeing effect on the hair.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid statements and representations by respondents with respect to the therapeutic properties of said products and the results obtained from the use thereof are exaggerated, false, and misleading. In truth and in fact, respondents' preparation "Arvil" is not safe for application to the skin in all cases. Said preparation contains lead acetate in an amount which may be in-

Findings

jurious when applied to the skin, particularly if there is any injury, trauma, abrasion, or inflammatory or eczematous condition of the scalp. The use of said preparation over a period of time may result in lead poisoning. The use of said preparation "Arvil" does not restore or replace pigment in the hair shaft but acts as a dye to color the surface of the hair. The color of the hair is dependent upon the pigment deposited in the hair shaft and the pigment of the hair is not restored or replaced by the use of "Arvil."

Graying hair is not an indication that the hair or scalp is not in normal health. The graying of the hair of aged persons is a natural process. Premature graying of the hair is not a physiological process and the cause thereof is not definitely known. Graying hair appears with age and in many cases on scalps that are in normal health. It is not the consensus of scientific opinion that dandruff is caused by a germ. Dandruff results from the scaling of the superficial layers of the epidermis of the scalp which is constantly being replaced by new growing cells from underneath which process to a certain extent is normal. The cause of dandruff is not definitely known.

There are two types of dandruff, to wit: The dry and the wet or oily types. Dry dandruff exists where there is an atrophied condition; wet dandruff exists where there is an inflammatory condition of the skin. A drug or combination of drugs which may be helpful in the dry type of dandruff may be harmful when used in the treatment of the wet type of dandruff and vice versa. The principal constituents of "Arvil" are sulphur, cantharides, and lead acetate. Sulphur is a mild germicide and a mild skin irritant. The quantity of sulphur in said preparation is insufficient to be of any substantial therapeutic value. Cantharides is a skin irritant and the use thereof may, in some cases, improve the circulation in the scalp. The preparation "Arvil" does not have an appreciable antiseptic or astringent effect when applied to the hair or scalp.

The use of neither one nor both of said preparations will permanently relieve dandruff or itching scalp, or is a cure or remedy or an effective treatment for dandruff, or is a cure or remedy or an effective treatment for baldness or for the cause or causes of falling hair. The most common form of baldness is the ordinary ideopathic or premature form, the cause of which is not known. There are various pathological causes of baldness and falling hair, such as ringworm and eczema of the scalp and various constitutional diseases. The preparation Arvil is essentially a hair dye. The effectiveness of the preparation Arvil in dyeing the hair is due to the plumbi acetate (lead acetate) contained therein, which combines with the sulphur to form a lead sulphide. Lead acetate is seldom prescribed in the treatment of scalp diseases because the use thereof may result in lead poisoning.

PAR. 6. The complaint in this proceeding incorrectly referred to respondent Janet M. Mitchell as Janet L. Mitchell. The complaint was duly served on respondent Janet M. Mitchell and the respondents herein stipulated and agreed, at a hearing duly called and held in this proceeding that respondent Janet M. Mitchell is the individual referred to in the complaint as respondent Janet L. Mitchell and the respondents further stipulated and agreed that the record herein show the true name of said respondent, to wit: Janet M. Mitchell. The Commission, therefore, finds that for all purposes in this proceeding, respondent Janet M. Mitchell and Janet L. Mitchell is one and the same person.

PAR. 7. Each and all of the false and misleading statements and representations made by respondents as hereinabove set forth had, and now has, the tendency and capacity to, and does, and did, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that said representations are and were true, and into the purchase of a substantial volume of respondents' products because of such erroneous and mistaken belief. As a result, trade is now, and has been, unfairly diverted to respondents from individuals, firms, and corporations also engaged in the business of selling and distributing in commerce among and between the various States of the United States similar preparations, or other preparations or products designed or intended for similar usage, and who truthfully advertise their products.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents, as herein found, are all to the prejudice of the public and to respondents' competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission (the respondents not having filed answer), testimony and other evidence taken before William C. Reeves, Charles F. Diggs, and Webster Ballinger, examiners of the Commission, theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, brief in support of the allegations of the complaint (respondents not having filed a brief and oral argument not having been requested), and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That respondents, Stafford T. Mitchell, Janet M. Mitchell, and Otis S. Mitchell, individually, and trading as The Arvil Co. or trading under any other name or names, their representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, or distribution of their hair preparations designated as "Arvil" and "Dawn Shampoo," or any other preparation composed of substantially similar ingredients, or possessing substantially similar properties whether sold under those names or any other name or names in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing that "Arvil" restores or replaces pigment in the hair shaft or that the use thereof causes the hair to assume a natural or youthful color or that said product produces color by any means other than dyeing the hair shaft.

2. Representing that graying hair is an indication that the hair or scalp is not in normal health.

3. Representing that it is the consensus of scientific opinion that dandruff is caused by a germ.

4. Representing that "Arvil" is effective as an antiseptic or astringent when applied to the hair or scalp.

5. Representing that either "Arvil" or "Dawn Shampoo," or both of said products, will permanently relieve dandruff or itching scalp or that either, or both of said products is an effective treatment for dandruff.

6. Representing that either "Arvil" or "Dawn Shampoo," or both of said products, is a cure or remedy for baldness or is a cure or remedy or an effective treatment for falling hair or the cause or causes thereof.

7. Representing, through failure to reveal that the use of "Arvil" on the skin is not wholly safe, particularly if there is any injury, abrasion or inflammatory or eczematous condition thereon, or through any other means or device or in any other manner, that "Arvil" contains no harmful or dangerous drugs, or that the use of said preparation will have no ill effects upon the human body.

It is further ordered, That respondents shall within 60 days after the service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION

Docket 3618. Complaint, Oct. 1, 1938—Decision, Dec. 6, 1939

Where a corporation engaged, as International Press Service, Inc., in sale in commerce among the various States of photographs of members of the public, posed, taken, developed, and finished by it and its agents and representatives, and an individual who was and had been president and treasurer thereof since its incorporation and had been participant in organization thereof and was one of its three stockholders and in direction and control of its sales activities and policies as below set forth, and who acted as photographer in its business and in the development, etc., of photographs taken by its agents and representatives of members of the public contacted by such agents and representatives; and as aforesaid engaged, in substantial competition with others similarly engaged in sale and distribution in commerce of photographs of members of the public, posed, taken, developed, and finished by such competitors;

In soliciting, through their "booker" or salesman, members of the public, usually selected from among those who had received publicity in newspapers or other publications and who, by reason of their business, professional, or other activities, were of news interest—

Represented to such persons, contacted usually by phone, that salesman or solicitor was a representative of Berkeley Studios, International Press Service, or of International Press Service, or of the Press Service or the International, and advised prospect thus approached that a photograph was desired for the press library of such corporation, and solicited appointment, without expense to one solicited, to permit making of photograph of such person for filing in such press library for release to any newspaper or other news publication which might call upon them for the furnishing of such a photograph, and advised inquiring prospect as to cost to him of one or more of the photographs thus taken on completion thereof, and invited person thus contacted, and to whom in due course they sent proofs, to "kindly approve one for press release and return it to our representative who will call * * *," and sought, at said time and irrespective of making of inquiries by prospects thus approached, to sell to said persons quantities of the finished photographs thus taken;

Notwithstanding fact corporation in question had no direct connection with any newspaper publication in the United States or in other countries, did not advertise its services to newspapers, had as its principal purpose the obtaining of the opportunity to photograph members of public and sell to said members such photographs, and purpose was not, primarily, to offer or cause to be published photographs solicited, as was case with the news

With result that through use of words "press service" and word "International," they created false impression in minds of members of public, thus approached, that such members were being interviewed by a representative of a regular press or news photo service organization or by International News Photos or International News Service, and that they were being asked for permission to have their photographs taken for publication in regular course of the services rendered by said organizations in connection with some present or future news item, and caused belief on part of such members that purchase of a photograph or photographs, if made, was only incidental to seller's occupation, and that such purchase, if it could then be made, would perhaps be more favorable and convenient to purchaser, and secured thereby initial contact, and usually overcame normal sales resistance on part of prospective purchasers, met with by competitors, and placed with purchasers instead of seller, and members of public solicited, initiative, and such members were deceived into erroneous and mistaken belief aforesaid and into purchase of pictures from them as and from a regular press or news photo service organization and International News Photos, and trade was thereby diverted unfairly to them from their competitors who do not falsely represent identity, nature or character of their respective businesses:

Mr. Morton M. Lewis, of Boston, Mass., for respondents.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Berkeley Studios International Press Service, Inc., a corporation, and Fred Friedwald, an individual, hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, Berkeley Studios International Press Service, Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under the laws of the State of Massachusetts and having its office and principal place of business at 36 Newbury Street in the city of Boston, State of Massachusetts. Respondent, Fred Friedwald is an individual having his office and principal place of business at 36

Newbury Street in the city of Boston, State of Massachusetts, and is president and treasurer of said corporation and directs and controls the sales activities and policies of said corporation with respect to the acts and practices herein set forth.

PAR. 2. The respondents are now, and have been, for more than two years last past engaged in the business of photographing persons, and in the sale and distribution of said photographs. Respondents sell said photographs to members of the purchasing public situated in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia and cause the said photographs, when sold by them, to be transported from their aforesaid place of business in the State of Massachusetts to the purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in various States of the United States, other than the State of Massachusetts, and in the District of Columbia. Respondents maintain, and at all times mentioned herein have maintained, a course of trade in commerce in said photographs among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. Respondents are engaged in substantial competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, with other corporations and individuals, and with partnerships and firms taking, selling, and distributing photographs. Among such competitors in said commerce are many who do not in any manner misrepresent the identity, nature, and character of their business, and who do not make any other false statements in connection with the sale and distribution of their said photographs.

PAR. 4. International News Service is a company existing and doing business for many years last past in the State of New York as a news gathering organization, with its principal place of business located at 235 East Forty-fifth Street in the city of New York, State of New York, and having branch offices in the various States of the United States and in many foreign countries. An associate company, International News Photos, cooperates with the International News Service throughout the United States and in foreign countries by taking pictures of many of the persons who are the subjects of its news items which, with said pictures, it furnishes to the newspapers in the United States and foreign countries. The International News Service has a valuable good will and prestige because of the interest in and accuracy of its news and is well and favorably known to the reading public throughout the United States.

PAR. 5. In the course and conduct of their said business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of their photographs, respondents have caused false and misleading statements and representations with respect to the identity, nature, and character of their business to be disseminated in commerce, as defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act. Respondents or their agents call on members of the purchasing public, situated in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, who have prior thereto received publicity in newspapers or other publications, and represent to such persons: That they are from the International Press Service or Press Service and that they desire a recent photograph of the person for the press or for publication therein; that they are representatives of the International, which desires a recent photograph of such person to be used with an article for an early edition or for its press library; and otherwise, directly or by implication, represent that they are representatives of the aforesaid International News Service, its associate, International News Photos, or one of the recognized news or photographic news services, desiring to procure the photograph of such person for the purpose of publishing the same.

By means of the use of such statements and representations, disseminated as aforesaid, the respondents or their agents procure permission from such persons to take their photographs. Respondents or their agents cause photographs of such persons to be taken, and thereafter request such persons to select and approve one of the negatives, which respondents or their agents represent is to be released to the press. After such selection is made by the prospective purchaser, respondents, or their agents attempt to sell, and sell, to such persons quantities of the finished photographs at prices greatly in excess of those prices at which photographs of a similar kind and quality are customarily and ordinarily sold by competitors of the respondents.

PAR. 6. The aforesaid statements and representations used and disseminated by the respondents in the manner above described are deceptive, false, misleading, and untrue. In truth and in fact, respondent corporation is not a news or press photographic agency. Neither the respondents nor their agents or representatives have any connection, direct or indirect, with any newspaper or other publication. The respondents do not take the photographs of the aforesaid members of the purchasing public for the purpose of distributing such photographs to newspapers or for the press library of the corporate respondent. The respondents take such photographs for the purpose of selling the same to such members of the purchasing public at exorbitant prices. The said corporate respondent receives very few, if any, calls for any of its said photographs from newspapers or other publications, and it does not have or maintain a press library. The respondents have no connection, direct or indirect, with the International News Service or International News Photos.

PAR. 7. The use by the respondents of the foregoing false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations with respect to the identity, nature, and character of the business of the corporate respondent has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such false statements and representations are true, and into the belief that the respondents or their agents represent the International News Service, International News Photos, or one of the recognized news or photographic news services, and causes a substantial portion of the purchasing public, because of said erroneous and mistaken belief, to purchase substantial quantities of respondents' photographs.

As a result, trade has been diverted unfairly to the respondents from their competitors in said commerce who truthfully advertise the identity, character, and nature of their business as described in paragraph 3. In consequence thereof, injury has been, and is now being, done by respondents to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on October 1, 1938, issued its complaint in this proceeding and caused it to be served on the respondents' International Press Service, Inc., a corporation (formerly Berkeley Studios International Press Service, Inc., a corporation), and Fred Friewald (referred to in said complaint as Fred Friedwald), an individual, charging the respondents with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act.

The respondents filed a joint answer to the complaint on October 8, 1938. Thereafter, testimony and other evidence in support of the complaint was introduced by Jay L. Jackson, attorney for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by Morton M. Lewis, attorney for the respondents, before Edward E. Reardon, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it. The testimony and other evidence introduced was duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the complaint, the answer of the respondents, the testimony and other evidence, brief in support of the complaint, and brief of respondents in opposition thereto, and upon oral arguments of John M. Russell, counsel for the Commission, and Morton M. Lewis, counsel for the respondents, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent International Press Service, Inc. is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under the laws of the State of Massachusetts since its incorporation in 1934. Its name was changed to Berkeley Studios International Press Service, Inc. in about 1935. Thereafter on or about December 28, 1937, its name was changed back to International Press Service, Inc. Its office and principal place of business is at 36 Newberry Street, Boston, Mass.

The respondent Fred Friewald is and has been president and treasurer of the respondent International Press Service, Inc. since its incorporation. He participated in the organization of the corporate respondent and he holds a stock interest therein and is one of its only three stockholders. He directs and controls the sales activities and policies of said corporation with respect to the acts and practices herein set forth. His office and principal place of business is located at 36 Newberry Street in the city of Boston, Mass. The complaint herein incorrectly referred to respondent Fred Friewald as Fred Friedwald. Said complaint was duly served on respondent Fred Friewald. Respondent Fred Friewald and the Fred Friedwald referred to in the complaint herein are, for all purposes in this proceeding, one and the same person.

PAR. 2. The respondent International Press Service, Inc., during various times since in or about the year 1934, has been engaged in the business of the sale in commerce among and between the various States of the United States of photographs of members of the public that were posed, taken, developed and finished by the corporate respondent, its agents, and representatives, as hereinafter set forth.

In the course and conduct of their aforesaid business, respondents, during the times mentioned herein, caused said photographs, when sold by them, to be transported from their aforesaid place of business in the State of Massachusetts to the purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in various States of the United States other than the State of Massachusetts.

PAR. 3. The respondents in the business of the sale and distribution, as aforesaid, of photographs of individuals, posed, taken, developed, and finished by respondents, are and have been, during the times above mentioned, in substantial competition with other individuals, firms, and corporations who are and have been engaged in the business of the sale and distribution in commerce among and between various States of the United States of photographs of members of the public which were posed, taken, developed, and finished by such competitors.

Among such competitors are many who do not in any manner misrepresent the identity, nature, and character of their business, and who do not make any other false statements in connection with the sale and distribution of their said photographs.

PAR. 4. There is in the United States, among other news services, a well-known news service designated the International News Service, which is and has been for a number of years past, engaged in supplying news items to newspapers and other publications in the various States of the United States. It is a recognized news agency, such as the Associated Press.

International News Service does not take photographs or pictures but in connection with its news service, it is, and has been, its regular practice to secure from the International News Photos copies of pictures or photographs, on its own account and at the request of newspapers and publications.

PAR. 5. The International News Photos is a subsidiary corporation of King Features Syndicate. Its business is the distribution of news photos, and the sale of photographs to newspapers both by free sale and under contracts in which it agrees to supply photographs to a paper for a certain period of time and for a certain price. It has representatives throughout the United States and elsewhere in the world.

The International News Photos does not take posed pictures. The pictures it takes are action pictures.

PAR. 6. The metropolitan newspapers, such as the Boston Herald, the Boston Globe, and the Boston Traveler, of Boston, Mass., each, keeps a library of files of pictures, containing photographs of individuals to the number of several hundred thousands, which each obtains and has obtained from a variety of sources, including its own staff photographers, the Associated Press, International News Photos, and occasionally from local photographers, and including such pictures as the newspaper's own reporters may take in the course of getting the day's news.

PAR. 7. The corporate respondent, International Press Service, Inc., has a library of files in which it has about 12,000 photographs, 97 per cent of which are photographs of residents of Boston, Mass.

The corporate respondent has no direct connection with any newspaper publication in the United States and no direct connection with any newspaper or other publication in other countries. It does not advertise, and it has not advertised, its services to newspapers, but the corporate respondent has, however, on occasions serviced newspapers, including The Boston Herald and The Boston Traveler, with photographs from respondent's library or photographs, and photographs of individuals taken by the corporate respondent have been published in the Boston Daily Globe.

The corporate respondent has also, on occasion, supplied glossy prints, or proofs of photographs, from its library files to the subjects of the photographs for publication in newspapers.

PAR. 8. The sale of photographs taken by the corporate respondent has been mostly to the subjects of the photographs. About 30 percent of the persons photographed by the corporate respondent, and whose consent to be photographed has been obtained upon the solicitation of respondent's representatives, as hereinafter described, purchase from the corporate respondent from one to a dozen photographs. The corporate respondent did a gross business of $9,000, approximately, in the sale of photographs in 1938.

PAR. 9. The price charged by respondents for photographs bought by a subject whose photograph has been taken by their photographer varies as to quality, size, etc. The top price is, and has been, $5 a print, or $60 per dozen, but respondents sell more of their photographs for which their price is $30 per dozen or $2.50 a print, than they sell of the higher priced photographs.

The prices of the finished photographs taken by the respondents are approximately the same as the prices at which photographs of a similar kind and quality are customarily sold by competitors of the respondents.

PAR. 10. Respondent Friewald, the president and treasurer of the corporate respondent, acts in the business of the corporate respondent as a photographer and in the developing, finishing, and dark room work in the completion of the photographs taken by the corporate respondent's agents and representatives of members of the public contacted by them. The corporate respondent also employs a "booker," a salesman whose duties are to make appointments with members of the public to have their photographs taken.

PAR. 11. The corporate respondent's "booker," or salesman, is one Herbert Pusick, who is one of the three stockholders of the corporate respondent. As a booker, he has charge of the sales and solicitations of appointments with members of the public for the taking of their photographs by the corporate respondent.

In the course of the respondents' business, their employee Pusick, or other employee acting as a solicitor, usually contacts members of the public by telephone to request the privilege of taking a photograph of the member of the public so approached. In contacting members of the public, the respondents select such persons from among those who have received publicity in newspapers or other publications, and those who by reason of their business, professional or other activities are of news interest. Having contacted a member of the public on the telephone, the respondents' employee, in the usual course of his procedure, states that he is a representative of Berkeley Studios, International Press Service, or that he is a representative of the International Press Service, and sometimes states that he is a representative of the Press Service, or the International, and inquires whether the person he has telephoned has a recent photograph, stating that such a photograph is desired for the press library of the corporate respondent. The member of the public telephoned is solicited to make an appointment for the taking of his photograph by the photographer of the respondents, which, it is stated, is to be without expense to the person solicited and to be for the purpose of being filed in the corporate respondent's press library to be released to any newspaper or other news publication who may call upon the respondents to furnish such a photograph.

After an appointment has been made for the taking of the photograph, the person solicited is told that within 2 or 3 days several proofs of the photograph will be submitted to him for the purpose of having his approval of one of the proofs. Usually at this stage of the transaction, or at its beginning, the person solicited asks the respondents' representative if he may purchase one or more of the photographs if he is pleased with them when the proofs have been submitted to him. Thereupon, the respondents' agent states the prices at which the completed photographs may be obtained in quantities of one or more, and some sales result from this procedure. Respondents have a card they enclose with the proofs which states "enclosed are proofs of the negatives for which you recently posed. Will you kindly approve one for press release and return it to our representative who will call within the next few days." Respondents' representative, when he calls, endeavors to sell prospects quantities of the finished photographs, even when prospect has not inquired concerning same. Respondent Fred Friewald testified that the respondents when they call upon prospects "have about the same approach as one to another."

PAR. 12. Members of the public generally, especially those members of the public who are subject to being solicited by the respondents' agents, are familiar with the fact that there are newspaper services whose sole activities consist of supplying items of news to newspapers and other news publications, and many of the public know of such associations as the Associated Press and the International News Service as such news gathering organizations, and that in the course of their supplying news items to the news publishers, it is their custom to deliver photographs of persons and places along with the news items furnished to news publications.

Members of the public know or have the impression that the obtaining and publishing of photographs by such news service organizations are incidental matters in connection with their news gathering activities.

On the other hand, the obtaining of the opportunity to photograph members of the public, and to sell such photographs to them, is the principal purpose and result of the aforesaid acts and practices of respondents. The respondents have no interest in and take no steps to cause the publication of photographs taken by them, while on the other hand, whenever a photograph is solicited by the news services, such as the International News Service or the Associated Press, the purpose is primarily to offer or cause the photographs in question to be published.

In soliciting members of the public to make appointments for the taking of their photographs, the respondents, by the use of the words "press service" and by the use of the word "International," which words are a part of the corporate name of the corporate respondent, create the false impression in the minds of the members of the public so approached that they are being interviewed by the representative of a regular press or news photos service organization, or by the International News Photos or International News Service, and that they are being asked for permission to take their photographs for publication in the regular course of the services rendered by such organizations in connection with some present or future news item.

By such solicitation the members of the public so approached are caused to believe that a purchase of a photograph or photographs, if made, is only incidental to the seller's occupation, and that a purchase of a photograph or photographs, if it can be then made, will be perhaps more favorable and convenient to the purchaser.

By such means, and by such false impression created, the respondents, through their agents and representatives, secure the initial contact and overcome the normal sales resistance on the part of prospective purchasers, which is met with by competitors in the taking and selling of photographs to members of the public and the initiative, a most influential element in the purchase and sale transaction of the photographs is usually thus, by the false impression created, placed with the purchasers, the members of the public solicited by the respondents, instead of remaining with the seller, the corporate respondent.

PAR. 13. The use by the respondents of the aforesaid false and misleading statements and representations has the capacity and tendency to, and does, and did, mislead and deceive members of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that the corporate respondent is and was a regular press or news photos service organization or is and was the International News Photos and into the purchase of pictures from respondents because of such erroneous and mistaken belief. In consequence thereof trade has been diverted unfairly to the respondents from their said competitors who do not falsely represent the identity, nature or character of their respective businesses.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents, and each of them, are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondents, testimony and other evidence taken before Edward E. Reardon, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, briefs filed herein and oral arguments by John M. Russell, counsel for the Commission, and by Morton M. Lewis, counsel for the respondents, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent International Press Service, Inc., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, and respondent Fred Friewald, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of photographs in com-

W. R. YOUNG, DOING BUSINESS AS NATIONAL EMPLOYEES TRAINING SERVICE

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3331. Complaint, Feb. 10, 1938—Decision, Dec. 7, 1939

Where an individual engaged, as National Employees Training Service, in sale and distribution of correspondence course lessons for persons expecting to take civil service examinations to qualify for appointment to positions in the United States classified civil service, and, as thus engaged, in selling his said courses and lessons to purchasers in other States, in active competition with others also engaged in sale of courses of instruction of same general nature in commerce among the several States—

- (a) Represented, directly or through agents, that he and his said agents were employed by the United States Government and represented the United States Civil Service Commission, and set forth on postal cards, containing various statements with respect to available Government positions and also words "Government positions $105 to $175 per month," and inviting inquiry on the attached prepaid reply card, but without advising recipient that he was in business of selling courses of instruction, trade name, National Employees Training Service, facts being neither he nor any of his agents were in the employ of the United States Government and in no way represented the United States Civil Service Commission;
- (b) Represented that his business had been in existence for many years and was an old established one, and that prospective students solicited would have to enroll immediately in order to get within the quota of Government positions allotted to said individual, and which was practically filled, facts being his business had not been in existence for many years, but only for a period of a few years, no such quota had been allotted for the benefit of any of the persons who might purchase courses of instruction which he sold, and he did not confine his soliciting to students of high scholastic standing, but solicited all persons who were willing to subscribe to the course;
- (c) Represented that jobs with the United States Government would be secured for the students taking the course of instruction offered by him, or that the money paid for such courses would be refunded, facts being he could guarantee no positions to any person completing his course, and, with few exceptions, did not refund price of tuition after being unable to secure a position for any student who had completed same; and
- (d) Represented that he was able to get advance information concerning examinations to be conducted by the Civil Service Commission, and that students who had completed his courses had preference over other applicants for positions in the classified civil service, facts being he could in no way influence or control such appointments, persons who completed his courses had no preference over others and he could be of no assistance to prospective appointees to such positions except by instructing them so that they might be better prepared to take the necessary examination to have their names placed upon

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that W. R. Young, an individual, doing business under the name and style of National Employees Training Service, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has been and is using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, W. R. Young, an individual, doing business under the name and style of National Employees Training Service, is now, and has been for more than 1 year last past, engaged in the sale and distribution in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, of courses of study and instruction intended for preparing students thereof for examinations for certain civil service positions under the United States Government, which said courses of study and instruction are pursued by correspondence through the medium of the United States mail. The office and principal place of business of said respondent in the conduct of said business is and has been located at 456 Book Tower Building, 1250 Washington Boulevard, Detroit, Mich. Said respondent, in the course and conduct of said business, during the time aforesaid, caused and does now cause, his said courses of study and instruction to be transported from his said place of business in Michigan to, into, and through States of the United States other than Michigan to the various purchasers thereof in such other States.

PAR. 2. During the time above mentioned other individuals, firms, and corporations in various States of the United States have been and are engaged in the sale and distribution in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia of courses of study and instruction intended for preparing students thereof for examinations for civil service positions under the United States Government and also of courses of study and instruction in other lines, all of which are pursued by correspondence. Said respondent has been, during the time aforesaid, in substantial competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States in the sale of his said courses of study and instruction with such other individuals, firms, and corporations.

PAR. 3. Said respondent, directly or through representatives and agents designated and appointed by him, has made many misrepresentations to prospective students in soliciting the sale of and in selling said courses of study and instruction, among which are the following:

1. That the sales representative soliciting students for said courses was in the employ of or otherwise represented or was connected with the United States Government.

2. That respondent in conducting his business as aforesaid was an agency of or representative of or connected with the United States Government, or the United States Civil Service Commission.

3. That the business of respondent was an old established business or that it had been in existence for many years.

4. That the prospective students solicited would have to enroll for instruction immediately in order to come within a definite quota, and that the quota was practically filled.

5. That a Government job was guaranteed to the student taking the course offered and if not obtained, money paid would be refunded.

6. That the school conducted by respondent had means of securing advance information concerning examinations held by the United States Civil Service Commission.

7. That respondent's students received preference over other candidates in securing appointments to Government positions.

8. That only a limited number of students was to be enrolled in a certain locality.

9. That the prospect solicited had been selected to take the training offered because of high standing in the community or because of superior education or because of other special qualifications.

10. That jobs were offered or that students taking the courses were placed in government positions by respondent school.

11. That a large number of respondent's former students had been placed in or had secured Government positions.

12. That personal help would be given to students taking the courses offered.

13. That the student solicited would be trained for a specific, designated Government position or appointment.

14. That prospective students solicited for said courses and whose contracts and payments were accepted, but who were not qualified by prior education or were not physically or otherwise qualified for Government positions for which training was offered, were properly qualified in such respects.

15. That the nature, character or extent of courses offered was other than that given.

The use by respondent of the word "National" in the name under which said business has been conducted, when used in connection with the sale of correspondence courses intended for preparing students thereof for positions in the classified civil service under the United States Government with other misrepresentations of Government connection by salesmen, as aforesaid, is misleading in that it serves to create an erroneous impression of Government connection and encourages misrepresentations by salesmen as aforesaid.

The term "National Employees" in the name of said school is also misleading in that it tends to create the erroneous impression that said school is an organization composed of employees of the National Government or that it is an official institution for training persons selected for appointment to Government positions.

In truth and in fact, neither respondent, nor the school conducted by him, nor anyone connected with said school, had any connection whatever with the United States Government or with the United States Civil Service Commission. Respondent's school is not an old established one but is a comparatively new institution. Respondent cannot and does not guarantee Government appointments, nor do students of such school receive any preference in appointments to Government positions. Neither respondent nor anyone connected with said school had any advance knowledge in regard to examinations conducted by the United States Civil Service Commission. Refunds are not made as a general thing if Government jobs are not obtained. Prospective students solicited or accepted for training were not limited by a definite quota or otherwise and were not specially selected but all available prospects were solicited and accepted. Respondent had no Government job to offer and could not place his students in Government jobs. Comparatively few, if any, of respondent's former students have been placed in or have secured Government positions. No personal help was given students taking respondent's courses but all instruction was by correspondence. All of respondent's instruction was general in character and was not for any specific or designated Government position or appointment.

PAR. 4. Respondent, in the sale of his said courses of study and instruction as aforesaid, through use of a so-called "Refund Agreement" as well as by direct representations of salesmen, has represented to students and prospective students that money paid for instruction will be refunded in the event Government positions are not obtained. The "Refund Agreement" used by respondent, as aforesaid, read as follows:

REFUND AGREEMENT

It is understood that I am to be trained for each Civil Service Examination covered by this contract until I have received a passing grade. Then, if I fail to receive an appointment during the period my name remains on the Government eligible list, I am upon written application to receive a refund of the entire amount paid for this training.

The implication of said agreement is that civil service examinations for which respondent's students prepare will be held within a reasonable time after such students have completed their courses and that Government appointments will be available within a reasonable time.

In truth and in fact said agreements are, for all practical purposes, meaningless and inoperative in a large majority of cases and are misleading for the reason that at certain times and in regard to certain examinations for which respondent has offered courses, no examinations are held for long periods of time and as to certain local examinations none is likely to be held in the locality where respondent's students are located. Moreover, even if an examination should be held and a student's name placed on an eligible list, the chances of appointment are and have been remote or, if an appointment is eventually made, it is usually only after a long waiting period due to the fact that in many of the classifications used in making appointments to the classified civil service and in regard to which respondent offers instruction, great numbers of eligibles are and have been available for comparatively few appointments.

PAR. 5. The use by respondent of the foregoing practices and representations and others similar thereto, in offering for sale and selling his courses of study and instruction, as herein set out, has had, and now has, the tendency and capacity to and does in fact mislead purchasers and prospective purchasers thereof into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such representations as set out in paragraphs 3 and 4 hereof are true, and induces them to purchase such courses of study and instruction on account thereof. Thereby trade is unfairly diverted to respondent from competitors engaged in the sale in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia of correspondence courses intended for preparing students thereof for civil service examinations as well as from those so engaged in such sale in other lines of study.

There are among the competitors of respondent those who, in the sale of their respective courses of study and instruction, do not similarly or in any manner misrepresent the same or matters pertaining thereto. As a result of respondent's said practices as herein set forth, substantial injury has been and is now being done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

PAR. 6. The above acts and things done by respondent are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and of competitors of respondent, and constitute unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce within the intent and meaning of section 5 of an act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," approved September 26, 1914.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on February 10, 1938, issued its complaint in this proceeding and caused same to be served upon the respondent W. R. Young, an individual doing business under the name and style of National Employees Training Service, charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of said act. No answer to said complaint was filed by said respondent and thereafter testimony and other evidence was introduced in support of the allegations of said complaint at Detroit, Mich., on July 5, 1938, and at Columbus, Ohio, on July 7, 1938, by Harry D. Michael, counsel for the Commission, before William C. Reeves, an examiner for the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, which testimony was reduced to writing and filed in the office of the Commission together with numerous pieces of documentary evidence received as exhibits. No testimony or other evidence was tendered by or on behalf of the respondent. Thereafter said proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the testimony taken and evidence received and the brief of counsel for the Commission in support of the complaint. No brief was filed by or on behalf of respondent and no request was made by him for permission to present oral argument, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises finds that this proceeding is in the public interest and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, W. R. Young, is an individual and for a number of years carried on business at Detroit, Mich., under the name and style of National Employees Training Service, during which time he was engaged in the business of the sale and distribution of courses of home study instruction conducted by correspondence and intended for use in the instruction of persons who expected to take examinations to be conducted by the Civil Service Commission of the United States for the purpose of creating registers of eligibles for appointment to positions in several of the branches of the classified civil service of the United States. The courses of instruction sold by respondent were divided into lessons and were in printed form and were sent by the United States mail by respondent from his place of business in Detroit in the State of Michigan through and into other States of the United States to the respective purchasers thereof. In the conduct of his said business, respondent was in active competition with various partnerships and corporations and other persons also engaged in the sale of courses of instruction of the same general nature as those sold by respondent, in commerce among several of the States of the United States.

PAR. 2. Respondent, in the course of his business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, in offering for sale and selling courses of instruction, either directly or through agents appointed by him, has made numerous statements and representations concerning such courses of instruction and the benefits to be derived from same, among which were statements and representations to the effect that respondent and his said agents were employed by the United States Government and represented the United States Civil Service Commission; that the business conducted by respondent was an old established business and had been in existence for many years; that prospective students solicited would have to enroll immediately in order to get within the quota of Government positions allotted to respondent, which quota was practically filled; that jobs with the United States Government would be secured for the students taking the courses of instruction offered by respondent or that the money paid for such courses would be refunded by respondent; that respondent was able to get advance information concerning examinations to be conducted by the United States Civil Service Commission; that students who completed the courses of instruction sold by respondent had preference over other applicants for positions in the classified civil service of the United States. Other statements and representations of similar import were made by respondent and his agents concerning said courses of instruction.

PAR. 3. As a means of contacting prospective purchasers of the courses of instruction offered for sale by him, respondent mailed to numerous unnamed box holders on rural free delivery routes in various States of the United States, postal cards which had printed thereon numerous statements among which were statements to the effect that due to death, retirement, and normal Government expansion many thousands of Government positions are opened for the trained man or woman each year; that American citizens of good health and character could qualify for Government positions and the request was made that the attached reply card be mailed for free samples of actual questions given in recent civil service examinations, but said cards contained no mention of the fact that respondent was in the business of selling courses of instruction. Attached to each of these cards was a business reply card which could be detached and mailed under the provisions of the United States Postal Laws and Regulations and was addressed to the National Employees Training Service, the trade name under which respondent carried on business. Each of these cards had printed thereon the request that it be detached and mailed. Also there was printed on each of said reply cards the following:

Government positions $105 to $175 per month.

Also the statement that no postage stamp was necessary and that the postage would be paid by the addressee. Respondent also caused like cards to be distributed by the Western Union Messenger Service from house to house in various cities of the United States. The evidence shows, and the Commission finds, that many persons who received these cards and detached the return portion and mailed same to respondent were influenced in so doing by the fact that the cards could be sent by mail without attaching a postage stamp thereto and the name of the addressee printed thereon, "National Employees Training Service," caused them to believe that respondent was in some way connected with the United States Government.

PAR. 4. The statements and representations made by respondent, either directly or by his agents, concerning the courses of instruction offered for sale and sold by him, and the benefits to be derived therefrom, as set out in paragraph 2 hereof, were false, misleading, and deceptive in that neither the respondent nor any of his agents was an employee of the United States Government; none of them in any way represented the Civil Service Commission of the United States; no quota of positions in the classified civil service of the United States had been allotted to respondent for the benefit of any of the persons who might purchase the courses of instruction sold by respondent; respondent could in no way influence or control appointments to positions in the classified civil service of the United States, and the persons who completed the courses of instruction sold by respondent had no preference over other applicants for said positions; respondent could be of no assistance to prospective appointees to such positions except by instructing them so that they might be better prepared to take the necessary examinations to have their names placed upon the eligibility rolls, and respondent had no advance information concerning examinations to be held by the Civil Service Commission of the United States except such information as was given to the public at large. Respondent could guarantee no positions to any person completing his course of study. With few exceptions, respondent did not refund the price of tuition after being unable to secure a position for any student who had completed the course of instruction. Respondent's school is not an old established institution but had been in existence only for a period of a few years. The respondent did not confine his soliciting to students of high scholastic standing but solicited all persons who were willing to subscribe to the course, without making any discrimination with respect to their scholastic attainments. Such claims and representations have and have had the capacity and tendency to confuse, mislead and deceive members of the public and to induce them to purchase the courses of instruction sold by respondent in the erroneous belief that respondent in some way controlled appointments to positions in the classified civil service of the United States and was in some way connected with the Civil Service Commission of the United States, and as a result, patronage has been diverted unfairly to respondent from schools conducted by competitors, which competitors have not made the same or similar claims and representations concerning the schools conducted by them or the courses of instruction sold by them.

Order

30 F. T. C.

CONCLUSION

The claims and representations made by the respondent as hereinbefore set out are all to the injury of the public and to competitors of respondent, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, testimony and other evidence taken before William C. Reeves, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint, brief filed on behalf of the Commission, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That W. R. Young, an individual, doing business under the name and style of National Employees Training Service, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, of courses of home study instruction designed for the preparation for civil service examinations, do forthwith cease and desist from representing:

1. Through the use of the word "National" or any similar word or words in the trade name, advertising literature, or in any other manner, that he has any connection with or is an agency of the United States Government or the United States Civil Service Commission.

2. That his business has been in existence for many years.

3. That the enrollment of students is limited by a definite quota, or that only a small number of students are accepted in any given territory, or that only persons with high scholastic attainments are accepted by respondent as prospective students for said course of instruction.

4. That civil service positions in the United States Government are guaranteed to students who have completed respondent's course of instruction.

5. That the price of tuition will be refunded if respondent fails to secure positions for students who have completed the course of instruction unless and until such refunds are in fact made in accordance with respondent's agreement.

6. That respondent has any advance information with respect to available positions in the civil service, which information cannot be secured from the United States Civil Service Commission, or that respondent has any additional or confidential information with respect to such positions which is not available to the public.

7. That respondent has any control of positions available in the civil service or that respondent's students are preferred by the United States Civil Service Commission over other students who have not taken respondent's course of instruction.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

GENERAL MOTORS CORPORATION, CHEVROLET MOTOR COMPANY, OLDS MOTOR WORKS, PONTIAC MOTOR COMPANY, BUICK MOTOR COMPANY, CADILLAC MOTOR CAR COMPANY, AND GENERAL MOTORS ACCEPTANCE CORPORATION

Docket 3001. Complaint, Nov. 30, 1936—Decision, Dec. 8, 1939

Where a corporation engaged in manufacture of a line of motor vehicles and in sale thereof, under various brand names, to public through a number of corporate subsidiaries and, after said subsidiaries' dissolution, through selling subsidiary, and a second concern which it organized to furnish credit to dealers in its said cars and to purchasers at retail buying same from dealer on a deferred payment or credit base, and which concern it entirely owned and controlled—

Featured, or caused to be featured, in numerous and extended advertisements of various kinds and in descriptions therein of their new "6%" plan, as published, directly and through said corporate subsidiaries and through neon lights, mats, and sample advertisements made available to their dealers for use in local advertising, symbol "6%," and so featured same in most of said advertising or advertisements, and in most of which there was not set forth extended explanation found in initial announcement of plan, that attention of purchaser was immediately drawn to said symbol or term and impression gained that there was meant 6 percent simple interest per annum, computed on declining balance as reduced by monthly payments;

Facts being that under method employed of applying charge of one-half of 1 percent per month for period of contract to initial unpaid balance and dividing by number of months involved sum of said balance and figure secured as aforesaid to derive monthly payment of customer, latter paid at rate in excess of 11 percent simple interest on amounts owed on transaction, as reduced by contract's monthly payments;

With effect of causing trade to be unfairly diverted to said corporation and, prior to their dissolution, to its various said subsidiaries, and to said concern, from competitors who did not in any manner misrepresent cost of credit charge for purchasing motor vehicles on installment or deferred payment plan in offer for sale or sale of their said products; to the substantial injury of competitors in commerce among the various States and in the District of Columbia:

Held, That such acts and practices were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. Edward E. Reardon, trial examiner.

Mr. James M. Hammond for the Commission.

Mr. John Thomas Smith, of New York City, for respondents.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of an act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that General Motors Corporation, Chevrolet Motor Co., Olds Motor Works, Pontiac Motor Co., Buick Motor Co., Cadillac Motor Co., and General Motors Acceptance Corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondents, have been and are using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act of Congress, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, General Motors Corporation, is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Delaware, and having its principal place of business at Detroit, in the State of Michigan.

The respondents, Chevrolet Motor Co., Olds Motor Works, Pontiac Motor Co., Buick Motor Co., and Cadillac Motor Co. are all corporations respectively, organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Michigan, with their principal place of business at Detroit, in said State.

Respondent, General Motors Acceptance Corporation is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, having its principal place of business located in the city of New York, in said State.

PAR. 2. Respondent, General Motors Corporation, for several years last past has been engaged in the business of manufacturing motor vehicles. Said manufacturing business is conducted through its several operating divisions producing Chevrolet, Oldsmobile, Pontiac, Buick, Cadillac, and LaSalle motorcars. The products thus manufactured are sold and shipped by the said General Motors Corporation either directly, or through its wholly owned respondent subsidiary selling corporations, to wit: Chevrolet Motor Co., Olds Motor Works, Pontiac Motor Co., Buick Motor Co., and Cadillac Motor Co. These said motor vehicles, when so sold, are transported from the State or States in which they are manufactured to the purchasers thereof located in a State or States other than the State in which such shipment or shipments originate. Said products also are extensively sold and shipped to various foreign countries.

The said respondent, General Motors Corporation, also owns the respondent, General Motors Acceptance Corporation, which was organized by the said respondent, General Motors Corporation, to provide a time-payment plan offered exclusively by dealers in General Motors products. The officers and directors of respondent, General Motors Corporation, are in some instances officers and directors of the respondent subsidiary selling corporations, and also of the respondent, General Motors Acceptance Corporation.

In the course and conduct of business, the respondents have been, and are in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged in similar businesses involving the offering for sale, the sale and distribution of motor vehicles in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and with foreign countries.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of business as described in paragraph 2 hereof, the respondent, General Motors Corporation, acting concertedly and in combination and cooperation with each of its respondent subsidiary selling corporations, and with respondent, General Motors Acceptance Corporation, devised, worked out, effectuated, adopted, and used a plan or method of financing the purchase of motor vehicles on a deferred or time payment plan, in connection with the offering for sale and the sale of motor vehicles in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and with foreign countries. The said respondent, General Motors Corporation, and its said respondent subsidiary selling corporations, and their authorized dealers, and the said respondent, General Motors Acceptance Corporation, acting concertedly and in cooperation each with the other, caused advertising matter to be distributed, or circulated between and among the various States of the United States, and also internationally, and through the media of newspapers, magazines, trade journals, circulars, posters, and other printed matter. In such advertising, said plan or method of financing was represented, designated, and referred to as a "6% Plan" and "New GMAC 6% Time Payment Plan."

PAR. 4. In truth and in fact, the aforementioned plan or method of financing the purchase of motor vehicles is not properly, truthfully, or accurately referred to in the advertising as represented in the preceding paragraph in that it tends to convey and conveys to purchasers and prospective purchasers of motor vehicles that said plan or method is a 6 percent simple interest plan of financing, whereas it actually refers to a plan of financing involving a 6 percent interest charge on the full amount of the account originally financed from the date it begins to run to the date the account is closed, regardless of the fact that the account is divided into, and amortized gradually and regularly by, monthly payments of equal amounts. For that reason, the said plan or method actually is a financing plan which involves the payment of interest at a rate much in excess of, or substantially 100 percent greater than the "6%" feature in the aforesaid advertising.

PAR. 5. The advertising matter as represented in paragraph 3 has the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive, and does mislead and deceive a substantial part of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that the said finance plan or method as above set forth contemplates a simple interest charge at the rate of 6 percent per annum upon the deferred and unpaid balances of the purchase price of motor vehicles and tends to and causes such purchasing public to buy motor vehicles in that belief. The interest rate of said finance plan or method actually amounts to almost 12 percent.

PAR. 6. The acts and practices of the several respondents, as herein set out, including the use of such advertising, as above set forth, have the capacity and tendency to, and do, serve to cause trade to be unfairly diverted to respondent, General Motors Corporation, its respondent subsidiary companies and authorized dealers, and to the respondent, General Motors Acceptance Corporation, and its affiliated companies, from competitors who do not adopt or use equivalent methods of advertising in the offering for sale or sale of motor vehicles. As a result thereof, substantial injury has been and is now being done by each and all of the respondents to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States.

PAR. 7. The aforementioned methods, acts, and practices of respondents are all to the prejudice of the public and respondents' competitors as hereinabove alleged. Said methods, acts, and practices constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of section 5 of an act of Congress, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," approved September 26, 1914.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission issued a complaint on November 30, 1936, against the respondents in this proceeding, General Motors Corporation, Chevrolet Motor Co., Olds Motor Works, Pontiac Motor Co., Buick Motor Co., Cadillac Motor Car Co., and General Motors Acceptance Corporation, and caused the complaint to be served upon the respondents, charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

The respondents, General Motors Corporation, Chevrolet Motor Co., Olds Motor Works, Pontiac Motor Co., Buick Motor Co., and Cadillac Motor Car Co., filed their joint answer to the complaint on December 23, 1936.

The respondent, General Motors Acceptance Corporation, filed its separate answer to the complaint on December 23, 1936.

Thereafter, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of the complaint were introduced by James M. Hammond, attorney for the Commission, before Edward E. Reardon, theretofore duly designated an examiner of the Commission. At the conclusion of the taking of testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of the complaint, the respondents, by their attorney John Thomas Smith, represented by Anthony J. Russo of counsel, rested the case without the introduction of testimony or evidence in opposition to the allegations of the complaint.

The testimony and other evidence introduced were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission.

Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission upon the complaint; the joint answer of the respondents, General Motors Corporation, Chevrolet Motor Co., Olds Motor Works, Pontiac Motor Co., Buick Motor Co., and Cadillac Motor Car Co.; the separate answer of respondent, General Motors Acceptance Corporation; the testimony and other evidence; brief in support of the complaint and brief of respondents in opposition thereto; and, the Commission having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, General Motors Corporation (hereinafter referred to as General Motors) was organized pursuant to the laws of the State of Delaware in 1916.

At all times since its incorporation it has been engaged in the manufacture and sale of motor vehicles. Its products are sold under the names and are commonly referred to as Chevrolets, Oldsmobiles, Pontiacs, Buicks, Cadillacs, and various and sundry other names. Its extended interests are administered through the medium of a number of subsidiaries by which means it promotes its various activities involving the sale of its cars, accessories, and parts to the purchasing public and the financing of credit transactions pertaining to those sales. Its principal office and place of business is at Detroit, Mich., in which State its principal factories also have their situs. It operates other factories and a considerable number of assembly plants in various other States. Its products are shipped from the State of Michigan and from its assembly plants to points throughout the United States and into the District of Columbia, for sale to the purchasing and consuming public through subsidiary corporations organized for that purpose.

PAR. 2. The respondent, Chevrolet Motor Co. (hereinafter referred to as the Chevrolet Co.) was incorporated under the laws of New Jersey prior to 1916. The respondents, Olds Motor Works (hereinafter referred to as the Olds Co.), the Pontiac Motor Co. (hereinafter referred to as the Pontiac Co.), the Buick Motor Co. (hereinafter referred to as the Buick Co.), and the Cadillac Motor Car Co. (hereinafter referred to as the Cadillac Co.), were each incorporated under the laws of Michigan prior to 1920, except the Pontiac Co., which was organized as a Michigan corporation prior to 1933. The principal place of business of all five of these companies was, prior to their dissolution at Detroit, Mich.

All of the capital stock of these five subsidiaries prior to their dissolution, except the necessary qualifying shares held in the names of individuals, was owned by General Motors. The functions of these five subsidiaries in the General Motors organization for a long time prior to the issuance of the complaint herein and up to the time of their dissolution consisted solely in marketing the cars manufactured by General Motors.

PAR. 3. At about the time of the issuance of the complaint herein, the Chevrolet, Pontiac, Olds, Buick, and Cadillac companies were dissolved and their assets transferred to General Motors. All of their functions were immediately assumed by a single corporation newly organized for that purpose known as the General Motors Sales Corporation. The new company was incorporated in 1936, pursuant to the laws of the State of Delaware and is a wholly owned subsidiary of General Motors with its principal office and place of business in the General Motors Building, Detroit, Mich. It is now, and has been since its organization, engaged in selling substantially all of the cars manufactured by General Motors for domestic consumption. It exercises within the General Motors organization all of the functions of the now dissolved Chevrolet, Pontiac, Olds, Buick, and Cadillac companies. At all times since it commenced operating it has exercised the same duties as the pre-existing Chevrolet, Pontiac, Olds, Buick, and Cadillac companies to whose functions it succeeded in the General Motors organization.

PAR. 4. The respondent, General Motors Acceptance Corporation (hereinafter referred to as GMAC), was incorporated in 1919 in the State of New York. It is entirely owned and controlled by General Motors and was organized by that company for the purpose of furnishing credit to dealers when purchasing cars from General Motors or its subsidiaries, and to retail purchasers when cars are bought by them on a deferred payment or credit basis.

Its credit facilities are made available to retail purchasers by furnishing a ready means whereby the retail dealer may dispose of the installment contracts given him by retail purchasers. By this process the retail purchaser may contract to buy a car manufactured by General Motors on a deferred-payment basis. The dealer in turn is at liberty to assign this contract to GMAC, if acceptable to that company, and receives the approximate value therefor, whereupon GMAC collects the monthly installments from the retail purchaser as they become due. GMAC functions exclusively in connection with sales negotiated by authorized dealers in cars manufactured by General Motors except as to used cars of other makes taken by those dealers in trade.

PAR. 5. At all times since 1934 General Motors has manufactured all of its cars regardless of the type or brand name under which they are commonly sold. Immediately following their manufacture these cars were sold to the Chevrolet, Olds, Pontiac, Buick, and Cadillac companies up to the time of their dissolution as above stated. These companies functioned only as selling agencies and, except for the small percentage of cars sold by them at their own retail stores, or sold by General Motors itself, as hereinafter described, disposed of the entire General Motors production of cars to authorized retail dealers in General Motors' cars, of whom there are several thousand located in all parts of the United States. The retail dealers in turn sold these cars to the public, being aided in that respect by the entire General Motors corps of subsidiaries named as respondents herein and the General Motors Sales Corporation following its organization.

Since dissolution of the Chevrolet, Olds, Pontiac, Buick, and Cadillac companies in the fall of 1936, the General Motors Sales Corporation has taken title to substantially all cars manufactured by General Motors for domestic distribution and disposed of them to the public through the medium of its authorized dealers in the same manner as the dissolved subsidiaries carried out their functions in this respect prior to their dissolution. The names of the dissolved corporations were continued as division names in the new selling company, such as Chevrolet division, General Motors Sales Corporation. The retail stores formerly maintained by the dissolved companies continued to be and still are operated by the General Motors Sales Corporation.

PAR. 6. All of the respondents named in this proceeding, including the five dissolved selling subsidiaries, at the time of the institution of this proceeding and for a long time prior thereto, were in competition with other companies likewise engaged in the sale of motor vehicles in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. The General Motor Sales Corporation has been likewise engaged in competition in said commerce since it took over the functions of the five dissolved selling subsidiaries as above described.

PAR. 7. Prior to their dissolution the Chevrolet, Pontiac, Buick, and Cadillac companies maintained several retail stores wherein cars manufactured by General Motors were sold direct to the public. Two of these stores were maintained by the Chevrolet Co. in Michigan. The Cadillac Co. maintained retail stores in New York, Michigan, and Illinois, which sold both Cadillac and LaSalle cars. The Buick Co. and the Pontiac Co. both maintained retail stores in Michigan. All of the balance of the cars manufactured by General Motors, except a few sold by General Motors itself, passed through the hands of its selling subsidiaries direct to the public through the medium of the authorized dealers in General Motors products. General Motors does not deal with these dealers direct, but through its selling subsidiaries.

The relationship between the dealer and the selling subsidiary of General Motors with whom he dealt was and is established by contract which was subject to cancellation on short notice. These contracts outline generally the way in which the dealer shall conduct his business and the manner in which he may purchase and sell the type of car in which he deals. Respondents furnished, or made available to the dealers, the necessary forms for keeping their accounts, making reports, purchasing and selling cars and computing the charges under the "6%" plan hereinafter described.

General Motors Sales Corporation now sells, and prior to its organization the five dissolved companies sold, the cars manufactured by General Motors either to the dealer for cash or on credit arranged through General Motors Acceptance Corporation. The dealer in turn sold to the retail purchaser for cash or on credit. In the latter case a conditional sales contract, chattel mortgage, or similar credit device, was executed by the retail purchaser, depending upon the law of the State in which the transaction occurred, providing for the discharge of the debt in monthly payments, usually over a period of 12, 18, or 24 months.

PAR. 8. The control of General Motors over its subsidiaries, to wit, Chevrolet, Olds, Pontiac, Buick, Cadillac, GMAC, and General Motors Sales Corporation, was and is complete, both through stock control and through the medium of an interlocking directorate. Directors and officers of General Motors were likewise officers and directors of each of these subsidiaries.

PAR. 9. In the fall of 1935 the respondent General Motors, through its various subsidiaries, announced a plan of financing the purchase of the several brands of motor vehicles manufactured and distributed by it, as aforesaid, on a deferred or installment payment plan which was referred to and described as the "6%" or "Six Per Cent" plan. This plan was first advertised by General Motors through its subsidiary GMAC in an advertisement which appeared in newspapers of wide and general circulation on October 2, 1935. The initial advertisement was as follows:

GENERAL MOTORS ACCEPTANCE CORPORATION

REDUCES TIME PAYMENT COSTS ON NEW CARS

With a new 6% Plan

SIMPLE AS A, B, C

A—TAKE YOUR UNPAID BALANCE

B—ADD COST OF INSURANCE

C'—MULTIPLY BY 6%—12 months' plan

(One-half of one percent per month for periods more or less than 12 months)

That's your whole financing cost. No extras. No service fees. No other charges.

GMAC announces today a new, economical way to buy any new General Motors car from General Motors dealers all over the United States.

It's the plan you've been waiting for—a plan you can understand at a glance. It is far simpler and more economical than any other automobile time payment arrangement you've ever tried.

Actually as simple as A, B, C—this new plan provides for convenient time payments of the unpaid balance on your car—including cost of insurance and a financing cost of 6%. This represents a considerable reduction in the cost of financing car purchases. It is not 6% interest, but simply a convenient multiplier anyone can use and understand. Nothing is added in the way of so-called service or carrying charges. There are no extras. Simply a straight forward, easy-to-understand transaction.

This simple step brings the world's finest cars within reach of thousands who have long needed new cars. When you buy a new Cadillac or Buick, Chevrolet or Pontiac, Oldsmobile or LaSalle, on this new plan, you actually save money!

And finally—buyers under this new plan receive an insurance policy in the General Exchange Insurance Corporation which protects them against Fire, Theft, and Accidental Damage to their cars.

Following the appearance of this advertising matter many similar advertisements were published both by GMAC and by the other five selling subsidiaries of respondent, to wit, the Chevrolet, Pontiac, Olds, Buick, and Cadillac companies. Some of them gave an extended explanation of the "6%" plan, such as is given in the advertisement quoted in full above, but most of them did not and confined themselves to a short reference to the "6%" plan. Typical references to the "6%" plan in these advertisements are as follows:

Chevrolet:

Compare Chevrolet's low delivered prices and the new, greatly reduced GMAC 6% Time Payment Plan.

Pontiac:

All Pontiac cars can be bought on GMAC's new 6% Plan which greatly reduces the cost of buying on time.

Olds:

New 6% GMAC Time Payment Plan.

Buick:

The new GMAC 6% TIME PAYMENT PLAN not only simplifies financing but actually cuts the cost of buying a car on time.

LaSalle:

Available on GMAC's new 6% Time Payment Plan.

Cadillac:

Available on GMAC's new 6% time payments.

In addition to these advertisements, the "6%" plan was highly publicized by the use of billboards and window posters. In many of these advertisements the symbol "6%" was featured in a size far greater than most of the other lettering in the advertisement. All of these advertisements were paid for by GMAC or the other selling subsidiaries of General Motors as indicated herein, entirely from their own funds or from a fund known as the "dealers' fund," which was collected and controlled by the selling subsidiaries. Money for the "dealers' fund" was raised by billing the dealers a specified amount in the invoice pertaining to each car sold to them. This charge was in turn passed along to the retail purchaser by the dealer. Neon signs featuring the term "6%" were also made available by said subsidiaries to dealers as were mats and sample advertisements for use in inserting advertisements in local newspapers, magazines, or circulars, at the dealer's expense.

The function and purpose of all this advertising, including that published by GMAC, was to promote and further the sale to the purchasing public of new cars manufactured by General Motors.

PAR. 10. The announcement and use of the "6%" plan by General Motors gave that company such an advantage over competitive motorcar manufacturers that all of its principal competitors promptly announced similar plans for financing the sale of new cars on a deferred-payment basis, and by the middle of January 1936, all of these competitors had announced similar "6%" financing plans. Complaints were issued by the Commission against all of these manufacturers. The names of the principal respondents and the docket numbers of these cases are as follows:

Docket 3002—Chrysler Corporation, et al.

Docket 3003—Graham-Paige Motors Corporation, et al.

Docket 3004—Hudson Motor Car Co., et al.

Docket 3006—Reo Motor Car Co.

Docket 3007—Packard Motor Car Co.

The complaints in these cases were substantially similar to the complaint in the instant proceeding. All of these respondents, with the exception of the Ford Motor Co., chose to stipulate the facts and agreed to cease and desist from the acts and practices alleged in these complaints. These agreements were executed at various dates during the spring and summer of 1936. These companies were forced to adopt the "6%" plan to promote the sale of motor vehicles because of the competitive disadvantage at which they were placed in view of the prior adoption and advertisement of such plan by General Motors and its subsidiaries.

PAR. 11. The respondent General Motors and its subsidiaries discontinued advertising the "6%" plan during the spring or summer of 1936. The General Motors Sales Corporation never published a "6%" plan advertisement although General Motors through its subsidiaries has placed in the hands of its dealers the requisite contract forms, tabulations, and data necessary to compute the "6%" plan, which plan is still used by the respondent General Motors and its subsidiaries although not publicly advertised by them.

PAR. 12. In most of the "6%" advertising sponsored by the respondents herein, the term "6%" was featured in such a way that the attention of the purchaser or prospective purchaser was immediately drawn to it. The testimony of the members of the public who were called to explain the impression they gained from these advertisements shows, and the Commission finds, that when the term "6%" is used in connection with monthly payments, it is understood to mean 6 percent simple interest per annum computed on the declining balance as reduced by said monthly payments.

As actually carried out in practice by the respondent General Motors and its subsidiaries the "6%" plan was computed by multiplying the unpaid balance on the car purchased by 6 percent in cases where the balance was to be paid in monthly installments over a period of 1 year. If for a shorter or longer period, the charge was one-half of 1 percent per month, so that for a period of 18 months the multiplier was 9 percent and for 24 months it was 12 percent. The sum thus obtained by this computation was then added to the original unpaid balance of the purchase price of the car and the total divided by the number of months over which the contract extended, for the purpose of obtaining the amount of each monthly installment. By this means there was no reduction of the amount charged under the "6%" plan to correspond with the diminution of the original unpaid balance by the monthly installments paid by the retail purchaser. The purchaser paid 6 percent, 9 percent, or 12 percent as the case might be, on the total amount originally owed which resulted in a charge of approximately 11½ percent simple interest per annum on an original balance as reduced by monthly payments instead of 6 percent interest as was generally implied. An example showing the difference in the amount paid by the purchaser under the 6 percent-plan and the amount that would have been paid at 6 percent simple interest per annum computed on the declining balance as reduced by the monthly installment payments made is as follows:

On an original unpaid balance of $400 amortized in equal monthly installments over a period of 18 months, the total charge for financing under the 6-percent plan was $36, which amounts to 11.3684 percent simple interest per annum. If the $400 balance were amortized in a like manner in equal monthly installments over 18 months, the charge for this credit computed at the rate of 6 percent interest per annum on the declining balance as reduced by the monthly payments would amount to a total of only $19 or $17 less than that charged under the "6%" plan. Other computations show that on an original balance of $300 paid in monthly installments over 1 year the "6%" plan charge was at the rate of 11.0769 percent interest per annum; on a 24-month debt of $600 the charge was equivalent to 11.52 percent interest.

The advertisements published by GMAC all furthered the sale of cars manufactured by General Motors. It was financially interested in promoting these sales. It was a subsidiary of General Motors and dealt exclusively with General Motors dealers. The record shows that during 1936 alone, it purchased 710,924 installment contracts covering new cars sold by General Motors dealers and that the unpaid balance on these contracts averaged $550 each. This business represented between 65 percent and 70 percent of all time-payment contracts on new cars negotiated by General Motors retail dealers during that year. Although GMAC was organized primarily as a finance company, to furnish credit to dealers and retail purchasers of General Motors cars, its activities in promoting the sales of General Motors cars, at retail as herein found, places it in the same category as the other sales subsidiaries of General Motors and it has and does promote the sale of such motor vehicles through such advertising matter. Other companies engaged in automobile financing of a general nature found a considerable reduction in business following the announcement of respondents' "6%" plan.

PAR. 13. There was, and is, a regular flow of commerce in said motor vehicles from the factories of the respondent General Motors in the State of Michigan to the retail purchasers thereof in other States, through retail dealers and, prior to their dissolution, through the Chevrolet, Pontiac, Olds, Buick, and Cadillac companies, and subsequently through their successor, General Motors Sales Corporation and this movement of motor vehicles manufactured by General Motors from the factories maintained by it in the State of Michigan, to said retail purchasers in other States was furthered, aided and assisted by the acts and practices of the respondent GMAC. General Motors and its subsidiaries, including GMAC, aided and assisted in the promotion and sale of motor vehicles by retail dealers through the medium of said "6%" or "six per cent" plan of financing deferred or installment payments on new motor vehicles and the advertisement and use of this plan by General Motors and its subsidiaries, including GMAC, increased the retail sale of new motor vehicles manufactured by General Motors to the benefit of it and its subsidiaries.

PAR. 14. The advertisements of the respondents herein as outlined in paragraph 9 hereof have the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive, and have misled and deceived, a substantial part of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that the said "6%" or "six per cent" finance plan, as above set forth, contemplates a simple interest charge of 6 percent per annum upon the deferred and unpaid balance of the purchase price of the motor vehicles sold by the respondents, and tends to cause, and has caused, such purchasing public to buy motor vehicles manufactured by General Motors because of that erroneous and mistaken belief, when in truth and in fact the total of the credit charge, computed in accordance with said "6%" or "six per cent" plan, amounts to approximately 11½ per cent simple interest per annum upon the deferred and unpaid balance, as diminished by the installment payments made, of the price of the motor vehicles sold to the purchasing public.

PAR. 15. The acts and practices of the several respondents herein had the capacity and tendency to and did, cause trade to be unfairly diverted to respondents General Motors, GMAC, and, prior to their dissolution, to the Chevrolet, Pontiac, Olds, Buick, and Cadillac companies, from competitors who did not, and who (including those stipulating to cease and desist) do not, in any manner misrepresent the cost of the credit charge for purchasing motor vehicles on the installment or deferred-payment plan in the offering for sale or sale of motor vehicles. As a result thereof, substantial injury has been done by the respondents to competitors in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent General Motors Corporation and its subsidiary, the respondent General Motors Acceptance Corporation, and prior to their dissolution, the respondents Chevrolet Motor Co., Olds Motor Works, Pontiac Motor Co., Buick Motor Co., and Cadillac Motor Car Co., were and are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of competitors of said respondents, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the joint answer of respondents, General Motors Corporation, Chevrolet Motor Co., Olds

Motor Works, Pontiac Motor Co., Buick Motor Co., and Cadillac Motor Car Co., and the separate answer of the General Motors Acceptance Corporation, testimony and other evidence taken before Edward E. Reardon, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it in support of the allegations of said complaint, and in opposition thereto, briefs, filed herein by James M. Hammond, counsel for the Commission, and by John Thomas Smith, represented by Anthony J. Russo, of counsel, attorneys for the respondents, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent General Motors Corporation, directly or through its subsidiary, General Motors Sales Corporation, or any other subsidiary, and respondent General Motors Acceptance Corporation, their respective officers, representatives, agents, and employees, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of motor vehicles or any other products in interstate commerce or in the District of Columbia, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Using the words "six per cent" or the figure and symbol "6%" or any other words, figures or symbols indicating percentage, in connection with the cost of, or the additional charge for, the use of a deferred or installment payment plan of purchasing motor vehicles or any other product, when the amount of such cost or charge collected from, or to be paid by, the purchaser of a motor vehicle or any other product under such plan is in excess of simple interest at the rate of 6 percent per annum, or at the rate indicated by such words, figures, or symbols, calculated on the basis of the unpaid balance due as diminished after crediting installments as paid;

2. Acting concertedly or in cooperation with any company, firm, or individual, or with any of their agents or dealers, in a way calculated to further the sale of motor vehicles or any other product through use of the methods referred to in paragraph 1 of this order.

It is further ordered, That the complaint be, and the same hereby is, dismissed as to the respondents Chevrolet Motor Co., Olds Motor Works, Pontiac Motor Co., Buick Motor Co., and Cadillac Motor Car Co., in view of the dissolution of these corporations since the institution of this proceeding.

It is further ordered, That the respondents shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

FORD MOTOR COMPANY AND UNIVERSAL CREDIT CORPORATION

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3005. Complaint, Dec. 1, 1936—Decision, Dec. 8, 1939

Where a corporation engaged, as one of largest producers and with wide influence, in manufacture of all types of automobiles, including trucks, and in transportation and sale of its said products and parts from its place of business and assembly plants at various points in the United States to several thousand retail dealer outlets throughout the United States;

Acting concertedly and in cooperation with a concern which it originally organized and incorporated to furnish credit to its dealers and retail purchasers, and which concern confined its business entirely to financing sale of cars, accessories, and parts made by said corporation and sold to its dealers and to financing retail sales of said corporation's cars by dealers to public, excepting only such used cars of other makes as were taken in trade by dealers, and which simultaneously published advertisements similar to those hereinbelow set forth, and following the announcement and adoption of similar plans by various competitors of such corporation—

Announced, through press release and in newspaper advertisements, its "$25-A-MONTH TIME PAYMENTS AND A NEW UCC 6% FINANCE PLAN," and referred thereto in many other advertisements, some of which, like original announcement, contained explanatory data with reference to working of plan in question, and others of which merely referred to so-called "6%" plan in some such way as "new UCC 6% finance plan" and "6% Plan of Financing. Total cost of credit is only ½% monthly on original unpaid balance and insurance. (6% for 12 months);"

Facts being plan in question, under which there was added to the original unpaid balance charge amounting to one-half of 1 percent a month for the number of months provided for payment thereof in particular contract, and sum thus arrived at, together with insurance coverage, was divided by said number of months to arrive at amount of customer's monthly payment, did not result in charge of 6 percent simple interest on amount owed under contract by customer as reduced from month to month by payments made, but amounted to approximately 11½ percent simple interest per annum on indebtedness as provided by customer's contract;

With effect of misleading and deceiving substantial part of purchasing public into erroneous belief that said finance plan or method, as above set forth contemplated a simple interest charge at the rate of six percent per annum upon the deferred and unpaid balance of the purchase price of motor vehicles, and of causing such public to buy said products from it through its authorized dealers and agents because of such belief, and of causing trade to be unfairly diverted to it and to its authorized dealers from competitors who did not in any manner misrepresent the cost of the credit charge for purchasing motor vehicles on installment or deferred payment plan in offer or sale thereof; to the substantial injury of competitors in commerce among the various States and in the District of Columbia:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of an act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Ford Motor Co. and Universal Credit Corporation, hereinafter named and referred to as respondents, have been and are using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act of Congress, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Ford Motor Co., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Delaware, with its principal place of business located at Dearborn, in the State of Michigan. It is now, and for a number of years last past has been engaged in the business of manufacturing motor vehicles and in the sale and transportation thereof in commerce between and among various States of the United States, in Canada, and in other foreign countries. It causes and has caused said motor vehicles, when sold, to be shipped from its place of business in the State of Michigan to purchasers thereof located in different parts of the United States, in Canada, and in other foreign countries.

Universal Credit Corporation is a corporation, organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Delaware, with its principal place of business located in the city of Detroit, in the State of Michigan. It is now, and for some time past, has been concertedly and cooperatively engaged with the said respondent, Ford Motor Co., in the offering for sale and sale of motor vehicles manufactured by the said respondent, Ford Motor Co., in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and with foreign countries.

In the course and conduct of their business, respondents, Ford Motor Co., and Universal Credit Corporation, have been at all times herein referred to in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged in similar businesses involving the sale and distribution of motor vehicles in commerce as hereinabove set out.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of their business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, the respondents, Ford Motor Co. and Universal Credit Corporation, acting concertedly and in cooperation each with the other, and with the authorized dealers of the said respondent, Ford Motor Co., devised, worked out, effectuated, adopted, and used in connection with the offering for sale and sale of motor vehicles manufactured by the said respondent, Ford Motor Co., in commerce as herein set out, a plan or method of financing the purchase of such vehicles on a deferred- or time-payment plan. The said respondent, Ford Motor Co., its authorized dealers, and the said respondent, Universal Credit Corporation, acting concertedly and in cooperation each with the other, caused advertising matter to be distributed or circulated, between and among the various States of the United States and also internationally, through the media of newspapers, trade journals, circulars, posters, and other printed matter. In such advertising, said plan or method of financing was variously represented, designated, and referred to as follows:

With the usual low down-payment, \$25 a month buys any type of new Ford car. Financing at  $\frac{1}{2}$  of 1% a month, or 6% for 12 months. You receive insurance at conference rates. Complete fire and theft insurance—and \$50 deductible collision, and protection against accidental physical damage to your car. The Universal Credit Company offers exclusively the Authorized Ford Finance Plan.

\$25 a month buys any model 1936 Ford V-8. Usual low down-payment.  $\frac{1}{2}$ % per month, or 6% per year, includes insurance. Ask any Ford dealer about the Universal Credit Company \$25-a-month 6% Finance Plans.

\$25 a month with the usual low down-payment, buys any new Ford V-8 car on new U. C. C.  $\frac{1}{2}$ % per month finance plans.

Ask about the \$25-a-month and  $\frac{1}{2}$ % per month Finance Plans of the Universal Credit Company.

Ask your Ford dealer about the new $25-a-month and U. C. C. 6% finance plan.

PAR. 3. In truth and in fact, the aforementioned plan or method of financing the purchase of motor vehicles is not properly, truthfully, or accurately referred to in the advertising matter as set forth in the preceding paragraph, in that it tends to convey and conveys to purchasers and prospective purchasers of motor vehicles the impression and belief that said plan or method is a 6 percent simple interest plan of financing, whereas it actually refers to a plan of financing involving a 6 percent interest charge on the full amount of of the account originally financed from the date it begins to run to the date the account is closed, regardless of the fact that the account is divided into, and amortized gradually and regularly by, monthly payments of equal amounts. For that reason, the said plan or method actually is a financing plan which involves the payment of interest at a rate much in excess of, or substantially 100 percent greater than, the "6%" feature in the aforesaid advertising.

PAR. 4. The representations contained in the advertising matter as set forth in paragraph 2 have the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive, and do mislead and deceive a substantial part of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that the said finance plan or method as above set forth contemplates a simple-interest charge at the rate of 6 percent per annum upon the deferred and unpaid balances of the purchase price of motor vehicles and tends to and causes such purchasing public to buy motor vehicles from respondents and their duly authorized agents in that belief. The interest rate of said finance plan or method actually amounts to almost 12 percent.

PAR. 5. The acts and practices of the respondents as herein set out, including the use of such advertising, as above set forth, have a capacity and tendency to, and do serve to cause trade to be unfairly diverted to respondent, Ford Motor Co., and its authorized dealers and to the respondent, Universal Credit Corporation, and its affiliated companies, from competitors who do not adopt or use equivalent methods of advertising in the offering for sale or sale of motor vehicles. As a result thereof, substantial injury has been, and is now being, done by each and all of the respondents to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States.

PAR. 6. The aforementioned methods, acts, and practices of respondents are all to the prejudice of the public and respondents' competitors as hereinabove alleged. Said methods, acts, and practices constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of section 5 of an act of Congress, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," approved September 26, 1914.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission issued a complaint on December 1, 1936, against the respondents in this proceeding, the Ford Motor Co.

and the Universal Credit Corporation and caused the complaint to be served upon the respondents, charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

After the service of the complaint, and after the filing of a separate answer thereto by the respective respondents, and before the taking of testimony in support of the complaint, as to the Ford Motor Co., the Commission on April 9, 1937, approved a stipulation as to the facts, and agreement to cease and desist, executed by the respondent Universal Credit Corporation. Thereafter and on the 5th day of May 1937, the Commission issued an order dismissing the complaint, as to that respondent.<sup>1</sup>

The respondent, Ford Motor Co., on January 10, 1938, filed a motion to dismiss the complaint, as to it, and the motion was denied by the Commission by an order issued on January 11, 1938.

Thereafter, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of the complaint, as to the respondent, the Ford Motor Co., were introduced by James M. Hammond, attorney for the Commission, before Edward E. Reardon, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by the Commission.

At the conclusion of the introduction of testimony and evidence in support of the allegations of the complaint, the respondent, the Ford Motor Co., by its attorneys, Bodman, Longley, Bogle, Middleton & Farley, rested the case without the introduction of testimony or other evidence on the part of the Ford Motor Co. in opposition to the allegations of the complaint.

The testimony and other evidence introduced were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission.

Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission upon the complaint; the answer of the respondent, the Ford Motor Co.; the testimony and other evidence; brief in support of the complaint and brief of respondent, the Ford Motor Co., in opposition thereto; and, upon oral arguments of counsel for the Commission and counsel for the respondent, the Ford

This matter coming on to be heard by the Commission and it appearing that the respondent Universal Credit Corporation has entered into a stipulation [See 24 F. T. C. 1399] whereby it agreed to cease and desist from separately, concertedly, cooperatively, or otherwise using any advertising matter or furnishing to authorized dealers or distributors any advertising matter in which the expression "6%" is used, without equally prominent use, in direct conjunction therewith, of explanatory language which makes it clear that the said 6 percent does not refer to or indicate 6 percent per annum, simple interest, and the Commission having duly considered the same, and being now fully advised in the premises;

It is ordered, That the complaint herein be, and the same hereby is, dismissed as to the respondent Universal Credit Corporation.

Motor Co.; and, the Commission having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, Ford Motor Co., is a corporation organized and existing pursuant to the laws of the State of Delaware, having its principal office and place of business at Dearborn, Mich., at which point it engages in the business of manufacturing all types of automobiles, including trucks. Its products are shipped from its place of business, and from the assembly plants hereinafter referred to located at various points in the United States, to the purchasers thereof located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. To assist in carrying out the distribution of its products it maintains a number of assembly plants at points located in States other than the State of Michigan. Parts manufactured at the principal factory in Michigan are shipped to these assembly plants and there assembled into completed automobiles, including trucks, which are in turn shipped to purchasers or prospective purchasers in zones covering various States within shipping radius of said assembly plants.

The respondent, Ford Motor Co., is one of the largest producers of automobiles in the United States and has wide influence in the automobile manufacturing industry as a whole. During the calendar year 1935 it sold 1,065,000 automobiles in the United States including cars and trucks, 963,000 in 1936, and 975,000 in 1937.

PAR. 2. There are other corporations in the United States which are also engaged in the manufacture of automobiles in competition with respondent Ford Motor Co. and in the sale and distribution thereof in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Some of these competitors are as follows:

Chrysler Corporation, a Delaware corporation, having factories in the State of Michigan and other places. This corporation manufactures the Chrysler, DeSoto, Dodge, and Plymouth cars;

Nash-Kelvinator Corporation, having its factory and principal place of business at Kenosha, Wis.;

Graham-Paige Motors Corporation, having its principal place of business at Detroit, Mich.;

Hudson Motor Car Co., having its office and principal place of business located at Detroit, Mich.;

Reo Motor Car Co., having its office and principal place of business at Lansing, Mich.;

Packard Motor Car Co., having its office and principal place of business at Detroit, Mich.

All of these companies are now and have been for a long time last past engaged in the manufacture and sale of all types of automobiles in competition with respondent Ford Motor Co. Cars manufactured by these companies are shipped from their factories in the State of Michigan and elsewhere, to all parts of the United States for sale to the purchasing public.

In order to facilitate the sale of its cars to the purchasing public the respondent, Ford Motor Co., maintains several thousand retail dealer outlets throughout the United States. The relationship between the Ford Motor Co. and these dealers is established by contract. The manufacturer agrees to sell and the dealers agree to buy Ford cars at prices fixed by the manufacturer. The dealers agree to maintain places of business of a definite kind and nature and agree to sell the cars in the manner specified by the manufacturer. They purchase their cars from the Ford Motor Co. either for cash, sight draft, or through the Universal Credit Corporation on a credit basis. The dealers agree to take retail orders for new cars on a specified order blank and in other ways to operate their dealerships in the manner outlined in their contracts.

The respondent, Ford Motor Co., does not sell cars direct to the public. All of its products are sold to its dealers, who in turn deal with the public. The title passes first to the dealer, then to the retail purchaser from the dealer. The Ford Motor Co., however, aids, assists, and promotes the sale of its automobiles by the dealers through wide and extensive advertising in newspapers, magazines, billboards, and in other ways.

PAR. 3. The Universal Credit Corporation is a corporation organized and existing pursuant to the laws of the State of Delaware with its principal office and place of business in Detroit, Mich. It was originally incorporated and organized in 1928 by the Ford Motor Co. for the purpose of furnishing credit to its dealers and retail purchasers. In May 1933, the entire stock of the Universal Credit Corporation was sold by the Ford Motor Co. to the Commercial Investment Trust Co., of New York.

The business of the Universal Credit Corporation is confined entirely to financing the sale of cars, accessories and parts manufactured by the Ford Motor Co. and sold to Ford dealers and to the financing of retail sales of Ford cars by Ford dealers to the public, with the exception that in instances where a Ford dealer in the sale of new Ford cars takes a used car of another make in trade, the Universal Credit Corporation will finance the sale by the dealer of said cars of such other make. These dealer retail purchase contracts are entered into between the retail buyer and the dealer. Pursuant to the provisions of these contracts the retail buyer makes a down payment either in cash or by trading in a used car, or both, thus leaving an unpaid balance which the purchaser agrees to pay over a period extending, usually, for 12, 18, or 24 months.

The Universal Credit Corporation pursuant to its arrangement with the Ford Motor Co. will, if the dealer desires, and the same is acceptable, purchase this installment contract from the dealer and collect the payments from the retail purchaser.

PAR. 4. The Ford Motor Co. sells its cars only at wholesale to dealers. In some instances the sales of its cars are made direct to the dealer on a cash and delivery basis, the payment for the cars being made by the dealer direct to the Ford Motor Co. at time of delivery.

In instances other than through cash sales to dealers the Ford Motor Co. receives payment for the cars sold to dealers through transactions such as bill of sale and trust receipt, conditional sale contract, lease, or chattel mortgage depending upon the State in which the dealer is located. Through the medium of these credit transactions the Ford Motor Co. transfers its interest and title in the cars sold dealers on a credit basis to the Universal Credit Corporation, receives cash therefor and the dealer thereafter deals direct with that company in making payment for the cars. The bulk of the cars manufactured by the Ford Motor Co. is sold to dealers in this manner.

PAR. 5. What is commonly known to the public and to the automobile industry as the "six percent plan" of financing the retail sale of automobiles was first featured by the General Motors Corporation through its wholly owned subsidiary, the General Motors Acceptance Corporation, by the publication of advertisements on October 21, 1935, reading as follows:

GENERAL MOTORS ACCEPTANCE CORPORATION
REDUCES TIME PAYMENT COSTS ON NEW CARS

With a new 6% plan

SIMPLE AS A, B, C

- A—TAKE YOUR UNPAID BALANCE
C<sup>1</sup>—MULTIPLY BY 6%—12 months' plan.

(One-half of one percent per month for periods more or less than 12 months)

That's your whole financing cost. No extras. No service fees. No other charges.

GMAC announces today a new, economical way to buy any new General Motors car from General Motors dealers all over the United States.

It's the plan you've been waiting for—a plan you can understand at a glance. It is far simpler and more economical than any other automobiles time payment arrangement you've ever tried.

Actually as simple as A, B, C—this new plan provides for convenient time payments of the unpaid balance on your car—including cost of insurance and a financing cost of 6%. This represents a considerable reduction in the cost of financing car purchases. It is not 6% interest, but simply a convenient multiplier anyone can use and understand. Nothing is added in the way of so-called service or carrying charges. There are no extras. Simply a straight forward, easy-to-understand transaction.

This simple step brings the world's finest cars within reach of thousands who have long needed new cars. When you buy a new Cadillac or Buick, Chevrolet or Pontiac, Oldsmobile or LaSalle, on this new plan, you actually save money!

And finally—buyers under this new plan receive an insurance policy in the General Exchange Insurance Corporation which protects them against Fire, Theft and Accidental Damage to their cars.

Thereafter the General Motors Corporation through its subsidiaries published many thousands of advertisements featuring the "6%" plan. Some with the explanation as given above and others merely referred to a "6%" plan, without any explanation whatsoever.

Findings

In order to meet the selling advantage gained by the General Motors Corporation as a result of this highly publicized scheme of financing new car purchases, all other leading automobile manufacturing concerns promptly announced similar plans. All of these advertisements featured a "6%" plan computed approximately in the same manner as that described by the General Motors Corporation in the advertising as quoted above.

The first competitor to publish a similar plan was the Chrysler Corporation whose advertisements first appeared on November 10, 1935, to be followed in rapid succession by similar advertisements by the Nash Motors Co., Reo Motor Car Co., Hudson Motor Car Co., Graham-Paige Motors Corporation, Ford Motor Co., and Packard Motor Car Co. In order of appearance of these "6%" plan advertisements the respondent Ford Motor Co., was next to last with its first advertisement appearing on January 5, 1936, to be followed by the Packard Motor Car Co. on January 11, 1936. All of these advertisements appeared in newspapers of wide and general circulation.

All of these so-called "6%" plans featured in an outstanding manner the symbol "6%" or the words "Six Percent" and were computed in the same manner as that described hereinafter for the respondent, Ford Motor Company.

PAR. 6. Following the appearance of the "6%" plan advertisements, certain independent finance companies engaged primarily in the financing of retail sales of automobiles, were obliged to abandon their pre-existing methods of computing their charges in order to meet the competitive disadvantage to which they were put by the publication and operation of these "6%" plans. Prior to that time their charges and the charges of all automobile finance companies were slightly higher than those put into effect by the introduction of the "6%" plan. These pre-existing finance plans were predicated upon a flat charge for a specified credit over a definite period.

PAR. 7. On January 2, 1936, the Ford Motor Co. announced the adoption of a "6%" plan in a press release of that date, followed on January 5, 1936, by the issuance of a full page advertisement in Sunday newspapers throughout the country reading as follows:

F O R D
ANNOUNCES $25-A-MONTH
TIME PAYMENTS AND A
NEW UCC 6% FINANCE PLAN
Any New Ford V-8 Car
Can Now Be Purchased for $25 a Month with Usual Low Down-Payment

This $25-a-month time payment plan enables you to buy a New Ford V-8 car through your Ford dealer on new low monthly terms.

After the usual low down-payment is made, $25 a month is all you have to pay for any type of new car, including insurance and financing.

Your cost for this extension of credit is only one-half of 1 percent a month on your original unpaid balance and insurance. This plan reduces financing charges for twelve months to 6 percent. For example, if you owe a balance of $400 for your car and insurance, you pay $24 for the year of credit; if the balance is $200 you pay $12. Your credit cost for one year is the original unpaid balance multiplied by 6 percent.

UCC plans provide you with insurance protection at regular conference rates. You have not only fire and theft insurance, but $50 deductible collision, and protection against other accidental physical damage to your car.

The Universal Credit Company has made these plans available through Ford dealers in the United States.

FORD MOTOR COMPANY

Many other similar advertisements were published by Ford Motor Co. Some of these advertisements contained the explanatory data set forth in the advertisement quoted above, others merely referred to the "6%" plan in this manner:

Ask your Ford dealers about the new $25-a-month new UCC 6% finance plan. 6% Plan of Financing. Total cost of credit is only ½% monthly on original unpaid balance and insurance. (6% for 12 months)

The advertisements quoted above were all paid for in their entirety by the Ford Motor Co. Many similar advertisements were inserted and paid for by the Ford Motor Co. from a fund collected and controlled by it called the "Local or Dealers' Fund." This fund was created by collecting from the local dealers a fixed charge for advertising on each car sold by them. It was charged the dealer on the invoice to him; he in turn passed it on to the public. They were substantially the same as those quoted above. The advertisement of the "6%" plan was entirely discontinued by the Ford Motor Co. about the middle of 1936.

PAR. 8. Simultaneous with the appearance of the advertisements of the Ford Motor Co. as above outlined, similar advertisements were published by the Universal Credit Corporation entirely at its own expense. These advertisements were substantially the same as the Ford Motor Co.'s advertisements quoted above. All of the Universal Credit Co.'s advertisements referred to and promoted the sale of Ford cars and were designed to further the sale of these cars.

PAR. 9. The Ford Motor Co. and the Universal Credit Corporation were acting concertedly and in cooperation each with the other in the publication and operation of the "6%" plan for the purpose of furthering the sale of motor vehicles manufactured by the Ford Motor Co.

PAR. 10. Approximately simultaneous with the issuance of the complaint in this case, similar complaints were issued by the Commission against all the other larger automobile manufacturing companies in the United States. The docket number and the name of the principal respondent in each of these cases are as follows:

- Docket 3000—Nash Motors Company;
- “ 3001—General Motors Corp., et al.;
- “ 3002—Chrysler Corporation, et al.;
- “ 3003—Graham-Paige Motors Corp., et al.;
- “ 3004—Hudson Motor Car Company, et al.;
- “ 3006—Reo Motor Car Company;
- “ 3007—Packard Motor Car Company.

All of these cases, except those pertaining to the General Motors Corporation and the respondent Ford Motor Co., were disposed of by the Commission by accepting from the respondents stipulations as to the facts and agreements to cease and desist from the practices with which they were charged in these complaints. All of these agreements are substantially the same in context. The following statement, quoted from Comm. Ex. 75, pertaining to the Packard Motor Car Co. is exemplary:

Certain purchasers and prospective purchasers did interpret and understand that the advertising of said finance plan or method as above set forth did contemplate a simple interest charge at 6% per annum upon the deferred and unpaid balance of the purchase price of motor vehicles, and this did cause such members of the purchasing public to buy motor vehicles in that belief.

For competitive reasons the type of advertising above quoted was discontinued before the issuance of the complaint herein.

The respondent hereby stipulates and agrees, To cease and desist from separately, concertedly, cooperatively, or otherwise using any advertising matter or furnishing to authorized dealers or distributors any advertising matter in which the expression “6%” is used without equally prominent use, in direct conjunction therewith, of explanatory language which makes it clear that the said 6% does not refer to or indicate 6% per annum simple interest.

And it is further stipulated and agreed, That the respondent will not at any time use or employ any advertising which, regardless of lack of any deceptive intent, may reasonably be construed as indicating that the additional cost of purchasing on time payments is only 6% or any other percent simple interest per annum on unpaid balances of the purchase price of motor vehicles, if such is not the fact.

PAR. 11. The Universal Credit Corporation, co-respondent with Ford Motor Co. in this proceeding, entered into a similar stipulation and agreement to cease and desist on April 9, 1937, and thereafter on May 5, 1937, the case was dismissed as to that company. This stipulation and agreement contains provisions substantially the same as that quoted hereinabove in reference to the agreements with the other companies.

All of the concerns which executed these agreements to cease and desist have carried the same into effect. The testimony establishes, and the Commission finds, that in the event the respondent herein, Ford Motor Co., should again commence the advertisement of a "6%" plan, in the manner hereinabove described, it would result in placing the companies who have heretofore agreed to cease and desist from this practice at a competitive disadvantage in the industry.

PAR. 12. The manner in which the "6%" plan was computed in actual practice is exemplified by the following example deduced from the testimony and exhibits introduced in this case. Assume a time payment purchase and sale transaction of a new Ford car under the 6-per cent plan as advertised by the Ford Motor Co. between a member of the public and an authorized Ford dealer, in which the cash delivered price of the new car is $643 and the purchaser is credited with a payment of $243 in cash, or with the trade-in value of a used car received by the dealer as a down payment in a like sum. This leaves an unpaid balance of $400 on the purchase price of the car.

To the above unpaid balance, which the purchaser must pay over a period of months, assume there is added a charge for insurance coverage for the same period. This insurance is not sold by the Ford Motor Co. but is arranged for by the dealer to protect the car until paid for by the purchaser. If the retail buyer furnishes his own insurance, which he is at liberty to do, the cost of such insurance would not enter into the computation of the 6-percent plan. Where the amount for insurance coverage in the above transaction is $15, and the premium is paid by the dealer, the total amount to be paid by the retail purchaser to the retail dealer in deferred payments is, therefore, $415. Where this amount is paid in accordance with the so-called "6%" plan (one-half of 1 percent per month) in 18 consecutive monthly payments of substantially $25 each, the charge of one-half of 1 percent a month for 18 months, or 9 percent of the sum of $415, amounts to $37.35. This sum added to the original balance of $415 makes a total sum of $452.35 which must be paid by the purchaser to obtain title to the car.

If this same transaction with an unpaid balance of $415 were paid in a like manner at $25 per month over a period of 18 months, on a straight 6 percent simple interest per annum basis, computed on the declining balance as reduced by the monthly installments, the total interest charge would only amount to $19.34, or $18.01 less than the charge made pursuant to respondent's "6%" plan. Comparative tables, prepared by an expert accountant, in evidence in this case, indicate that the credit charge under respondent's "6%" plan amounted to approximately 11½ percent simple interest per annum.

Findings

The 6 percent plans of the competitors of the Ford Motor Co. were all computed in the manner described above. The average member of the public construed the "6%" plan, as advertised by the Ford Motor Co., to mean six per cent simple interest per annum of the unpaid balance remaining after the deduction of each successive monthly payment. The "6%" plan of the respondent Ford Motor Co. or that of its competitors was not computed at the rate of 6 percent simple interest per annum on the unpaid balance as reduced by the monthly payments of retail purchasers.

PAR. 13. There is a regular flow of commerce from Dearborn, Mich., in the cars manufactured by Ford Motor Co., through said retail dealers, to the retail purchasers thereof, located in the various states of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

The Ford Motor Co. aided and assisted the promotion and sale of its cars by said dealers through the medium of the said "6%" or "six per cent" plan of financing deferred or installment payments on new cars, and the advertisement of this plan by the Ford Motor Co. individually and in cooperation with its dealers and Universal Credit Corporation, as hereinabove described, increased the retail sale of cars so manufactured by the Ford Motor Co., to its benefit.

PAR. 14. The representations contained in the advertising matter of the respondent Ford Motor Co., as set forth in paragraph 7 hereof, have the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive, and do mislead and deceive, a substantial part of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that the said finance plan or method as above set forth contemplates a simple interest charge at the rate of 6 percent per annum upon the deferred and unpaid balance of the purchase price of motor vehicles and tends to cause, and has caused, such purchasing public to buy motor vehicles from the respondent Ford Motor Co., through its authorized dealers and agents, because of this erroneous and mistaken belief, when in truth and in fact the total of the credit charge, computed in accordance with said "6%" or "six per cent" plan, amounts to approximately 11½ percent simple interest per annum upon the deferred and unpaid balance, as diminished by the installment payments made, of the price of the motor vehicles sold to the purchasing public.

PAR. 15. The acts and practices of the respondent Ford Motor Co., as herein set out, including the use of the advertising described in paragraph 7 hereof, had the capacity and tendency to, and did serve to, cause trade to be unfairly diverted to respondent Ford Motor Co. and its authorized dealers from competitors who did not, and who (including those stipulating to cease and desist) do not, in any manner misrepresent the cost of the credit charge for purchasing motor vehicles on the installment or deferred-payment plan in the offering for sale or sale of motor vehicles. As a result thereof, substantial injury has been done by the respondent Ford Motor Co. to competitors in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, Ford Motor Co., as herein found, were all to the prejudice of the public, and of competitors of the respondent Ford Motor Co., and constitute an unfair method of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the stipulation as to the facts, agreement to cease and desist and dismissal heretofore entered herein as to the respondent, Universal Credit Corporation, the answer of respondent, Ford Motor Co., the testimony and other evidence taken before Edward E. Reardon, an examiner of the Commission, theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint, briefs filed herein and oral arguments by James M. Hammond, counsel for the Commission, and by Henry C. Bogle, counsel for the respondent, Ford Motor Co., and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent Ford Motor Company, has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Ford Motor Co., its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of motor vehicles in interstate commerce or in the District of Columbia, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Using the words "six per cent" or the figure and symbol "6%," or any other words, figures, or symbols indicating percentage, in connection with the cost of, or the additional charge for, the use of a deferred or installment payment plan of purchasing motor vehicles, when the amount of such cost or charge collected from, or to be paid by, the purchaser of a motor vehicle under such plan is in excess of simple interest at the rate of 6 percent per annum, or at the rate indicated by such words, figures or symbols, calculated on the basis of the unpaid balance due as diminished after crediting installments as paid.

2. Acting concertedly or in cooperation with any company, firm, or individual, or with any of its agents or dealers, in a way calculated to further the sale of motor vehicles through use of the methods referred to in paragraph 1 of this order.

It is further ordered, That the respondent Ford Motor Co., shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF

BEN BRAUDE, TRADING AS SALES STIMULATORS AND GLOBE CLOCK COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3873. Complaint, Aug. 18, 1939—Decision, Dec. 9, 1939

Where an individual engaged in sale and distribution of a sales stimulator plan and, in connection therewith, in sale and distribution of tableware, electric shavers, clocks, and other merchandise, to purchasers thereof in various States other than the State of origin of shipment and in District of Columbia, in substantial competition with others engaged in sale and distribution of such plans or merchandise as above-described;

In selling, through salesmen or distributors, said plan to retail merchants and said articles or merchandise to such merchants for distribution to their customers as premium merchandise, for sale to customers of such merchants at prices represented by said individual, and by such merchants to their customers, as substantially lower than ordinary retail value thereof when customers had been credited on cards, supplied to merchant under plan and by merchant to customer, with the $5, $10, or $20, or other sum, in trade as marked thereon—

- (a) Represented, in periodicals and other publications of general circulation among the various States, in furtherance of sale of his said plan and merchandise and in order to procure salesmen or distributors to sell same, that his salesmen were making up to $32 daily and approximately $350 a month in the ordinary course of their business of selling said plan and merchandise, through such statements as "Brand new guaranteed business plan * * * Sweeping the country. Inexperienced salesmen cleaning up * * *," "This means that the least you should make from an original $4.95 sale is $8.64 for repeat commissions plus $2 original commission, or a total of $10.64. Three sales a day should mean total earnings of $32 daily for you," and "WHAT SALESMEN SAY. Thanks for the commission check for $175.86. I know these twice-a-month checks are going to grow," facts being said distributors did not make any such sums in the ordinary course of their business of selling his plan and other merchandise, but amounts set forth were gross exaggerations of earnings made by his said salesmen in the ordinary course of their said business; and
- (b) Represented as the customary or regular prices for or values of premiums used by him in connection with his said plan, prices, or values which were fictitious and substantially exaggerated, through such statements as "$2.50 value silverware set for only 59¢," "Guaranteed time piece, $7.50 value," and statement that jewelers and department store executives had valued clock involved "all the way from $25 down to $10," and "Guaranteed. Has the quality, appearance, and performance of any $15 shaver," facts being ordinary retail value of the set of premium merchandise known as "Lady Esther Silverware" was substantially less than $2.50,

Complaint

as were ordinary retail values of "Globe Pendulum Clock" and dry shaver involved substantially less than $7.50 and $15, respectively;

With effect of misleading and deceiving substantial number of members of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that such false and misleading statements and representations were true, and into purchase of substantial quantities of said plan and merchandise by reason thereof, and with result that trade in commerce among the various States and in the District of Columbia was diverted unfairly to him from his said competitors who do not misrepresent to purchasers value of their merchandise or cost of their plans:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

Mr. Donovan Divet for the Commission.

Ryan, Condon & Livingston and Mr. Henry Junge, of Chicago, Ill., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Ben Braude, an individual trading as Sales Stimulators and as Globe Clock Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest hereby issues its complaint and states its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, Ben Braude, is an individual trading as Sales Stimulators and as Globe Clock Co. and having his office and principal place of business at 337 West Madison Street, in the city of Chicago, State of Illinois.

PAR. 2. Respondent is now, and has been for several years last past, engaged in the business of the sale and distribution of a sales stimulator plan and in the sale and distribution of tableware, electric shavers, clocks, and other merchandise in connection with the sale of said sales stimulator plan. Respondent causes said sales stimulator plan and the aforesaid various items of merchandise, when sold by him to be transported from his aforesaid place of business in the State of Illinois, or from the State or origin of the shipment thereof, to the purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in various States of the United States, other than the State of origin of the shipment thereof, and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said sales stimulator plan and the said various items of merchandise in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of his aforesaid business, the respondent is now, and has been during all the times mentioned herein, in substantial competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia with other persons and with firms, corporations, and partnerships, some of whom are engaged in the sale and distribution of sales stimulator plans and others in the sale and distribution of tableware, electric shavers, or clocks or all of such merchandise.

PAR. 4. Respondent sells said sales stimulator plan to retail merchants and sells said tableware, electric shavers, clocks, and other merchandise to said retail merchants for distribution to their customers as premium merchandise in connection with the operation of said sales stimulator plan. The retail merchants who purchase said plan from the respondent, pay $4.95 for advertising and other printed matter used in the operation of such plan, which includes cards bearing figures totaling $5, $10, $20, or other sums. Customers of the merchants are credited on such cards with the amounts of their purchases from the merchant, and when such purchases total the sum of the figures on the cards, the customers may purchase the aforesaid premium merchandise from the retail merchant at a price or prices which respondent represents to the merchants who in turn represent to their customers, is substantially lower than the ordinary retail value of such merchandise.

PAR. 5. Respondent sells said sales stimulator plan and the various items of merchandise to retail merchants by means of distributors or salesmen. In the course and conduct of his aforesaid business and in furtherance of the sale of said sales plan and merchandise, and in order to procure salesmen or distributors to sell said sales plan and merchandise, respondent has caused various statements and representations relative to said sales plan and to the earnings of respondent's salesmen or distributors to be inserted in periodicals and other publications having a general circulation among and between various States of the United States. Among and typical of such representations are the following:

Brand new guaranteed business plan for gasoline stations. Sweeping the country. Inexperienced salesmen cleaning up. Big sales outfit free. Stimulators, 337 W. Madison St., Chicago.

This means that the least you should make from an original $4.95 sale is $8.64 for repeat commissions plus $2 original commission, or a total of $10.64. Three sales a day should mean total earnings of $32 daily for you.

WHAT SALESMEN SAY—Thanks for the commission check for $175.80. I know these twice-a-month checks are going to grow.

Complaint

30 F. T. C.

In various other of said advertisements the names of businesses other than gasoline stations are inserted.

In the course and conduct of his aforesaid business, the respondent has caused various other statements and representations relative to said sales plan and merchandise to be inserted in periodicals and other publications having a general circulation among and between various States of the United States and in circulars and other bulletins disseminated to members of the public situated in various States of the United States. Among and typical of the statements and representations relative to the premium merchandise known as "Lady Esther Silverware," and concerning that part of said sales plan under which said tableware is distributed, are the following:

Here is the most sensationally successful sales stimulator plan we have ever created and which actually puts $5 into the cash register of any retailer at a total cost to him of only 1¢.

The merchant pays only $4.95 for the complete campaign. And here's the best part. He gets his money back when he has purchased just a few dozen silverware sets.

Sales Stimulators guarantees to refund to the dealer the Entire Cost of this advertising campaign, less the resale value of the silverware sets furnished, as soon as a total of 8 dozen silverware sets has been purchased by the dealer.

$2.50 value silverware set for only 59¢.

Among and typical of the statements and representations relative to the premium merchandise designated as Globe Pendulum Clock, and concerning that part of said sales plan under which said clocks are distributed, are the following:

Guaranteed time piece. $7.50 value.

The Globe Pendulum Clock is the combined product of the most talented artists, engineers and skilled craftsmen. It's new. It's different. It's sensational.

There is no clock even remotely resembling it in all the world. The nearest thing to it is a French clock that retails at from $125 upwards.

What do you think a clock like this would sell for? I asked this question of several jewelers and department store executives. The estimates ran all the way from $25 down to $10.

Under our plan, the retailer offers his customers an opportunity to secure a Globe Pendulum Clock for only $1.99 after purchasing $5 worth of merchandise. As the retailer pays only $2 for the clock the actual cost of the plan to him is just 1¢ for each $5 worth of business.

Retail value $7.50.

Sales Stimulators agrees to refund to the dealer the Entire Cost of the advertising campaign, less the resale value of the Globe Pendulum Clock furnished, as soon as a total of 4 dozen clocks has been purchased.

Among and typical of the statements and representations relative to the electric dry shaver which is distributed as premium merchandise and concerning that part of said sales plan under which said electric dry shaver is distributed, are the following:

Guaranteed. Has the quality, appearance, and performance of any $15 shaver.

Sales Stimulators guarantees to refund to the dealer the Entire Cost of this advertising campaign less the resale value of the electric dry shaver furnished, as soon as a total of three dozen electric dry shavers has been purchased by the dealer.

PAR. 6. Through the use of the aforesaid statements and representations and others of similar import or meaning not herein set out, the respondent has represented directly or by implication, that respondent's salesmen or distributors make up to $32 daily and approximately $350 a month in the ordinary course of their business of selling said sales plan and merchandise, that said sales plan costs the retail merchant only 1 cent for each $5 worth of business which the merchant receives from his customers under such plan, that the respondent refunds to the retail merchant the purchase price of said sales plan, less the value of the two initial sets of silverware, when the merchant has purchased just a few dozen silverware sets, that the aforesaid set of Lady Esther silverware has an ordinary retail value of $2.50, that the aforesaid Globe pendulum clock has an ordinary retail value of from $7.50 to $25, and that the aforesaid electric dry shaver has an ordinary retail value of $15.

PAR. 7. The aforesaid statements and representations by the respondent are false and misleading. In truth and in fact the respondent's salesmen or distributors do not make up to $32 a day or $350 monthly in the ordinary course of their business of selling said sales plan and other merchandise. Such amounts are gross exaggerations of the earnings made by said salesmen or distributors in the ordinary course of their business of selling said sales plan and merchandise. The cost of said sales plan to the retail merchant is in excess of 1 cent for each $5 worth of business received by the merchant from his customers under such plan. The said 1 cent represents the difference between the cost of the various items of merchandise to the merchant and the price for which the merchant sells said merchandise to his customers. The merchant is required to pay to the respondent $4.95 for the advertising matter and other literature relative to such plan in addition to losing 1 cent on each item of premium merchandise which he sells to his customers in connection with such plan. The respondent does not refund the purchase price of said sales plan, less the value of the initial sets of tableware, to the merchant when the merchant has purchased just a few dozen sets of tableware. In fact the merchant is required to purchase 18 dozen sets of silverware before such amount is refunded.

In truth and in fact the ordinary retail value of the aforesaid set of Lady Esther silverware is substantially less than $2.50. The ordinary retail value of the aforesaid Globe pendulum clock is substantially less than $7.50 and substantially less than $25, and the ordinary retail value of the aforesaid electric dry shaver is substantially less than $15.

PAR. 8. The use by the respondent of the aforesaid false and misleading statements and representations has the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial number of members of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that the aforesaid false and misleading statements and representations are true and into the purchase of substantial quantities of respondent's said sales stimulator plan and merchandise because of said erroneous and mistaken belief. As a direct result thereof, trade in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia has been diverted unfairly to the respondent from his said competitors who do not misrepresent the value of their merchandise, or the cost of their respective sales plans, to the purchasers thereof. In consequence thereof, substantial injury is being, and has been, done by respondent to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 9. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act the Federal Trade Commission on August 18, 1939 issued and on August 21, 1939 served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent Ben Braude, an individual trading as Sales Stimulators and as Globe Clock Co., charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer, the Commission by order entered herein granted respondent's motion for permission to withdraw said answer and to substitute therefor an answer admitting all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint except a portion of the allegations of paragraph 7 of said complaint, with respect to which no findings are made herein, and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, which substitute answer was duly filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and substitute answer and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, Ben Braude, is an individual trading as Sales Stimulators and as Globe Clock Co. and having his office and principal place of business at 337 West Madison Street, in the city of Chicago, State of Illinois.

PAR. 2. Respondent is now, and has been for several years last past, engaged in the business of the sale and distribution of a sales stimulator plan and in the sale and distribution of tableware, electric shavers, clocks, and other merchandise in connection with the sale of said sales stimulator plan. Respondent causes said sales stimulator plan and the aforesaid various items of merchandise, when sold by him to be transported from his aforesaid place of business in the State of Illinois, or from the State or origin of the shipment thereof, to the purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in various States of the United States, other than the State of origin of the shipment thereof, and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said sales stimulator plan and the said various items of merchandise in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of his aforesaid business, the respondent is now, and has been during all the times mentioned herein, in substantial competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia with other persons and with firms, corporations, and partnerships, some of whom are engaged in the sale and distribution of sales stimulator plans and others in the sale and distribution of tableware, electric shavers, or clocks or all of such merchandise.

PAR. 4. Respondent sells said sales stimulator plan to retail merchants and sells said tableware, electric shavers, clocks, and other merchandise to said retail merchants for distribution to their customers as premium merchandise in connection with the operation of said sales stimulator plan. The retail merchants who purchase said plan from the respondent, pay respondent $4.95 for advertising and other printed matter used in the operation of such plan, which includes cards bearing figures totalling $5, $10, $20 or other sums. Customers of the merchants are credited on such cards with the amounts of their purchases from the merchant, and when such purchases total the sum of the figures on the cards, the customers may purchase the aforesaid premium merchandise from the retail merchant at a price or prices which respondent represents to the merchants who in turn represent to their customers, is substantially lower than the ordinary retail value of such merchandise.

PAR. 5. Respondent sells said sales stimulator plan and the various items of merchandise to retail merchants by means of distributors or salesmen. In the course and conduct of his aforesaid business and in furtherance of the sale of said sales plan and merchandise, and in order to procure salesmen or distributors to sell said sales plan and merchandise, respondent has caused various statements and representations relative to said sales plan and to the earnings of respondent's salesmen or distributors to be inserted in periodicals and other publications having a general circulation among and between various States of the United States. Among and typical of such representations are the following:

Brand new guaranteed business plan for gasoline stations. Sweeping the country. Inexperienced salesmen cleaning up. Big sales outfit free. Stimulators, 337 W. Madison St., Chicago.

This means that the least you should make from an original $4.95 sale is $8.64 for repeat commissions plus $2 original commission, or a total of $10.64. Three sales a day should mean total earnings of $32 daily for you.

WHAT SALESMEN SAY—Thanks for the commission check for $175.86. I know these twice-a-month checks are going to grow.

In various other of said advertisements the names of businesses other than gasoline stations are inserted.

In the course and conduct of his aforesaid business, the respondent has caused various other statements and representations relative to said sales plan and merchandise to be inserted in periodicals and other publications having a general circulation among and between various States of the United States and in circulars and other bulletins disseminated to members of the public situated in various States of the United States. Among and typical of the statements and representations relative to the premium merchandise known as "Lady Esther Silverware," and concerning that part of said sales plan under which said tableware is distributed, are the following:

$2.50 value silverware set for only 59¢.

Among and typical of the statements and representations relative to the premium merchandise designated as Globe pendulum clock, and concerning that part of said sales plan under which said clocks are distributed, are the following:

Guaranteed time piece. $7.50 value.

What do you think a clock like this would sell for? I asked this question of several jewelers and department store executives. The estimates ran all the way from $25 down to $10.

Retail value $7.50.

Among and typical of the statements and representations relative to the electric dry shaver which is distributed as premium merchandise and concerning that part of said sales plan under which said electric dry shaver is distributed, are the following:

Guaranteed. Has the quality, appearance, and performance of any $15 shaver.

PAR. 6. Through the use of the aforesaid statements and representations and others of similar import or meaning not herein set out, the respondent has represented directly or by implication, that respondent's salesmen or distributors make up to $32 daily and approximately $350 a month in the ordinary course of their business of selling said sales plan and merchandise, that the aforesaid set of Lady Esther silverware has an ordinary retail value of $2.50, that the aforesaid Globe pendulum clock has an ordinary retail value of from $7.50 to $25, and that the aforesaid electric dry shaver has an ordinary retail value of $15.

PAR. 7. The aforesaid statements and representations by the respondent are false and misleading. In truth and in fact the respondent's salesmen or distributors do not make up to $32 a day or $350 monthly in the ordinary course of their business of selling said sales plan and other merchandise. Such amounts are gross exaggerations of the earnings made by said salesmen or distributors in the ordinary course of their business of selling said sales plan and merchandise.

In truth and in fact the ordinary retail value of the aforesaid set of Lady Esther silverware is substantially less than $2.50. The ordinary retail value of the aforesaid Globe pendulum clock is substantially less than $7.50 and the ordinary retail value of the aforesaid electric dry shaver is substantially less than $15.

PAR. 8. The use by the respondent of the aforesaid false and misleading statements and representations has the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial number of members of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that the aforesaid false and misleading statements and representations are true and into the purchase of substantial quantities of respondent's said sales stimulator plan and merchandise because of said erroneous and mistaken belief. As a direct result thereof, trade in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia has been diverted unfairly to the respondent from his said competitors who do not misrepresent the value of their merchandise, or the cost of their respective sales plans, to the purchasers thereof.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein set forth are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of the respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint except a portion of the allegations of paragraph 7 of said complaint, with respect to which no order is made herein, and states that he waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That respondent Ben Braude, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of any sales stimulator plan, or any merchandise for use in connection therewith, in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing any specified sum of money as possible earnings or profits of agents, salesmen, representatives, or distributors, which is not a true representation of the average net earnings or profits consistently made by his active full-time agents, salesmen, representatives or distributors in the ordinary course of business under normal conditions and circumstances.

2. Representing any specified sum of money as earnings or profits of any specified agent, salesman, representative, or distributor for any given period of time which has not in fact been consistently earned net by such agent, salesman, representative, or distributor in the ordinary course of business under normal conditions and circumstances.

3. Representing as the customary or regular prices or values for premiums used by respondent in connection with any sales stimulator plan, prices or values which are in fact fictitious and substantially in excess of the actual prices or values of such premiums.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after the service upon him of this order file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.

MODIFIED CEASE AND DESIST ORDER

Docket 2981. Order, Dec. 16, 1939

Order, in response to motion, modifying cease and desist order of January 20, 1938, 26 F. T. C. 441, so as to require respondent, its officers, etc., in connection with offer, etc., in interstate commerce or in District of Columbia, of cosmetics, to cease and desist from using term "Certified Cosmetics," and from misrepresenting qualities or composition of its said products, or Government guarantee, or use thereof as in said order set forth.

Before Mr. John L. Hornor, trial examiner.

Mr. DeWitt T. Puckett for the Commission.

Mr. George J. Crane, of Chicago, Ill., for respondent.

MODIFIED ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST, ETC.

This matter having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the motion of W. T. Kelley, chief counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, to modify the order to cease and desist issued in this proceeding on January 20, 1938, and it appearing to the Commission that the respondent was given proper notice and an opportunity to be heard on said motion, and the matter being now properly before the Commission for determination and the Commission having considered said motion and the record, and being now fully advised in the premises.

It is ordered, That the motion to modify the order to cease and desist issued herein on January 20, 1938, be, and the same hereby, is, granted.

It is further ordered, That the order to cease and desist issued herein on January 20, 1938, be, and the same hereby is, modified so as to read as follows:

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondent, testimony and other evidence taken before John L. Hornor, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, and briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto (no oral argument having been requested), and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of an act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled, "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

It is further ordered, That the respondent, Arabian Toilet Goods Co., Inc., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of cosmetics in interstate commerce or in the District of Columbia, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Using the term "Certified Cosmetics" or any other term of similar import or meaning to describe or refer to cosmetic products which have not been certified by some governmental or official authority.

2. Representing that its skin cream now designated as Wrinkle Creme, or any other cream containing substantially the same ingredients or possessing the same properties, sold under that name or any other name

(a) Will nourish or rejuvenate the skin.

(b) Will remove wrinkles and lines from the skin.

(c) Contains turtle oil or is guaranteed by the United States Government to contain pure turtle oil.

3. That turtle oil has been successfully used by the United States Government in removing scar tissue and wrinkles from wounded soldiers.

4. That the use of turtle oil has been indorsed or approved by the United States Government as a skin food and rejuvenator.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3870. Complaint, Aug. 15, 1939—Decision, Dec. 18, 1939

Where an individual engaged in sale and distribution of radios, coffee sets, roasters, and other articles of merchandise, to purchasers in various other States and in the District of Columbia; in soliciting and selling and distributing his said products—

Furnished customers and prospective customers with various devices, use of which, in connection with sale and distribution of said merchandise to purchasing public by method or plan suggested, involved sale and distribution thereof to such public by game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme, and distribution to purchasing public of pull cards, together with certain literature and instructions, including order blanks, depictions of products concerned, and circulars explaining plan in question, under which person selecting by chance, from list of 66 feminine names displayed on card, name corresponding with that concealed under card's large master seal, received choice of radio, coffee set, roaster, "34 piece set Wm. A. Rogers and Chest," waffle iron, or sandwich toaster tray set, and person securing two certain numbers concealed under card's various tabs received fountain pen desk set, and amount paid by customers was contingent upon numbers secured under tabs, as above set forth, and operator of card was compensated by same choice secured by person selecting winning feminine name, as above described; and

Supplied thereby to, and placed in hands of others, means of conducting lotteries in the sale of his said merchandise in accordance with aforesaid or similar sales plan, varying only in detail therefrom, and under which articles in question were distributed to purchasing public wholly by lot or chance, and amount which customer paid was similarly determined, and involving game of chance or sale of chance to procure article of merchandise at price much less than normal retail price thereof, contrary to an established public policy of the United States Government and in violation of the criminal laws, and in competition with many who are unwilling to adopt and use said or similar or any plan or method involving game of chance or sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other sales plan or method contrary to public policy, and refrain therefrom;

With result that many persons were attracted by said plan or method employed by such individual in sale and distribution of his merchandise, and by element of chance involved therein, and were thereby induced to buy and sell his said products in preference to those offered and sold by his competitors aforesaid, who do not use such or equivalent sales plan or method, and with effect, through use of such game of chance, of unfairly diverting substantial trade to him from his competitors aforesaid, who do not use such or equivalent method or plan:

Complaint

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

Mr. D. C. Daniel for the Commission.

Mr. Jacob J. Chapman, of Chicago, Ill., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Sam Luber, individually and trading as Dearborn Sales Co., has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Sam Luber, is an individual trading under the name of Dearborn Sales Co., with his principal office and place of business located at 711 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill. Respondent is now, and for some time last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of radios, coffee sets, roasters, silverware, waffle irons, toaster tray sets, and other articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent causes and has caused said merchandise, when sold, to be transported from his aforesaid place of business in Illinois to purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in the various States of the United States other than the State of Illinois, and in the District of Columbia. There is now, and for some time last past has been, a course of trade by respondent in said merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business, respondent is, and has been, in competition with other individuals and with partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of said business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, the respondent, in soliciting the sale of, and in selling and distributing his said merchandise, has furnished his customers and prospective customers with various devices, the use of which in connection with the sale and distribution of said merchandise to the purchasing public by the method or plan suggested by respondent involves the sale and distribution of said merchandise to the purchasing public by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. The sales plan or method adopted and used by respondent was and is substantially as follows:

Respondent distributes and has distributed to the purchasing public devices commonly known as pull cards, together with certain literature and instructions, including among other things order blanks, illustrations of his said merchandise, and circulars explaining respondent's plan of selling said merchandise and of allotting it as premiums or prizes to the operators of said pull cards. One of respondent's pull cards bears 66 feminine names with ruled columns for writing in the name of the customer opposite the feminine name selected. Said pull card has 66 small pull tabs on the face of each of which is printed a feminine name which appears elsewhere on said pull card. Concealed underneath each said pull tab is a number which is disclosed when that tab is pulled or separated from the card. The pull card also has a large master seal and concealed within the master seal is a feminine name which corresponds to one of the feminine names which appear elsewhere on said card. The pull card bears legends or instructions as follows:

SUGGESTIONS FOR USING SALES CARD

This Salesbook consists of 66 girls' names; under each girl's name is a concealed number. This number represents the amount the person selecting that particular name is to pay for participating in this opportunity.

These concealed numbers range from Number 1 upwards but your customers pay only 1¢ to 29¢, according to the number disclosed under the name pulled. For instance, if customer pulls Number 1, he pays 1¢. If Number 11 is pulled he donates 11¢, or if number 32 is pulled he pays only 29¢. NOTHING HIGHER THAN 29¢—29¢ is the maximum cost. (Total $16.95.)

Be sure to write in person's name opposite name they have selected on opposite page in corresponding place.

When all names have been pulled and collections made, you then remove the large seal and disclose the winner—the person who pulled the corresponding name is awarded their choice of either the 5-TUBE ELLIS RADIO, CALIENTE

Sales of respondent's merchandise by means of said pull cards are made in accordance with the above-described legends or instructions. Said prizes or premiums are allotted to customers or purchasers in accordance with the above legends or instructions. The said articles of merchandise are thus distributed to the purchasing public wholly by lot or chance and the amount which the customer pays for a chance is determined wholly by lot or chance.

Respondent furnishes and has furnished various pull cards, accompanied by said order blanks, instructions, and other printed matter for use in the sales and distribution of his merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. The sales plan or method involved in connection with the sale of all of said merchandise by means of said pull card is the same as that hereinabove described, varying only in detail.

PAR. 3. The persons to whom respondent furnishes and has furnished the said pull cards use and have used the same in purchasing, selling, and distributing respondent's merchandise in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan or method. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of his merchandise in accordance with the sales plan or method hereinabove set forth. The use by the respondent of said sales plan or method in the sale of his merchandise and the sale of said merchandise by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plan or method is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws.

PAR. 4. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above described involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure an article of merchandise at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell or distribute merchandise in competition with the respondent as above alleged are unwilling to adopt and use said sales plan or method, or any sales plan or method involving a game of chance, or the sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other sales plan or method that is contrary to public policy and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of his merchandise and by the element of chance involved therein, and have been and are induced to buy and sell respondent's merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or an equivalent sales plan or method. The use of said sales plan or method by respondent, because of said game of chance, has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert substantial trade to respondent from his said competitors who do not use the same or an equivalent sales plan or method.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on August 15, 1939, issued and thereafter served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, Sam Lubber, individually and trading as Dearborn Sales Co., charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On November 28, 1939, the respondent filed his answer in which answer he admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and the answer thereto and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Sam Lubber, is an individual trading under the name of Dearborn Sales Co., with his principal office and place of business located at 711 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill. Respondent is now, and for some time last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of radios, coffee sets, roasters, silverware, waffle irons, toaster tray sets, and other articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent causes and has caused said merchandise, when sold, to be transported from his aforesaid place of business in Illinois to purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in the various States of the United States other than the State of Illinois, and in the District of Columbia. There is now, and for some time last past has been, a course of trade by respondent in said merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business, respondent is, and has been, in competition with other individuals and with partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of said business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, the respondent, in soliciting the sale of, and in selling and distributing his said merchandise, has furnished his customers and prospective customers with various devices, the use of which in connection with the sale and distribution of said merchandise to the purchasing public by the method or plan suggested by respondent involves the sale and distribution of said merchandise to the purchasing public by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. The sales plan or method adopted and used by respondent was and is substantially as follows:

Respondent distributes and has distributed to the purchasing public devices commonly known as pull cards, together with certain literature and instructions, including among other things order blanks, illustrations of his said merchandise, and circulars explaining respondent's plan of selling said merchandise and of allotting it as premiums or prizes to the operators of said pull cards. Sales of respondent's merchandise by means of said pull cards are made in accordance with the above-described legends or instructions. Said prizes or premiums are allotted to customers or purchasers in accordance with the above legends or instructions. The said articles of merchandise are thus distributed to the purchasing public wholly by lot or chance and the amount which the customer pays for a chance is determined wholly by lot or chance.

Respondent furnishes and has furnished various pull cards, accompanied by said order blanks, instructions, and other printed matter for use in the sales and distribution of his merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. The sale plan or method involved in connection with the sale of all of said merchandise by means of said pull card is the same as that hereinabove described, varying only in detail.

PAR. 3. The persons to whom respondent furnishes and has furnished the said pull cards use and have used the same in purchasing, selling, and distributing respondent's merchandise in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan or method. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of his merchandise in accordance with the sales plan or method hereinabove described. The use by the respondent of said sales plan or method in the sale of his merchandise and the sale of said merchandise by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plan or method is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws.

PAR. 4. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above described involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure an article of merchandise at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell or distribute merchandise in competition with the respondent as above found are unwilling to adopt and use said sales plan or method or any sales plan or method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other sales plan or method that is contrary to public policy and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of his merchandise and by the element of chance involved therein, and have been, and are, induced to buy and sell respondent's merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or an equivalent sales plan or method. The use of said sales plan or method by respondent, because of said game of chance, has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert substantial trade to respondent from his said competitors who do not use the same or an equivalent sales plan or method.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent as hereinabove found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and states that he waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Sam Luber, individually and trading as Dearborn Sales Co., or trading under any other name or names, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of radios, coffee sets, roasters, silverware, waffle irons, toaster tray sets, or any other merchandise in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Supplying to or placing in the hands of others push or pull cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices, so as to enable such persons to dispose of or sell any merchandise by the use thereof.

2. Mailing, shipping, or transporting, to agents or to distributors or to members of the public, push or pull cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices, so prepared or printed as to enable said persons to sell or distribute any merchandise by the use thereof.

3. Selling, or otherwise disposing of, any merchandise by the use of push or pull cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3278. Complaint, Dec. 3, 1937—Decision, Dec. 19, 1939

Where an individual engaged in sale of various articles of merchandise, including blankets, bedspreads, silk hosiery, and other items and novelties, to purchasers in other States—

Furnished, through the mails and in some instances by door-to-door distribution, push cards, circulars descriptive of the several articles and novelties offered by him, and order blanks with directions for use of said cards for sale and distribution of his said products under a plan in accordance with which, and as a result of solicitation of public, person selecting, from number of girls' names displayed on card, name corresponding with that concealed under card's seal, was given choice of several of the articles of merchandise being thus disposed of, and person making sale of chances was similarly compensated, and amount paid by members solicited for chance was dependent upon particular number concealed by disc selected on card, as was, in case of certain cards, receipt of free chances, and under which persons other than individual selecting lucky name and operator of card, received nothing; and

Supplied thereby to and placed in the hands of others means by which lotteries were conducted in sale of articles and novelties involved and offered, sold, and distributed to purchasing public in accordance with aforesaid sales plan, under which products in question, ordered and shipped to numerous operators thus supplied, were distributed to purchasing public wholly by lot or chance, and amount paid therefor by respective customers was similarly wholly determined, and under which there was involved game of chance or sale of a chance to procure such articles and novelties at prices much lower than normal retail prices therefor, contrary to the established public policy of the United States Government, and in competition with those who do not sell such articles and novelties through any game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme;

With result that many purchasers of such products from said individual were attracted by element of chance involved in sales method by which they were distributed by him, and thereby induced to purchase same from him in preference to similar products offered and sold by competitors who did not and do not use similar methods, and with result, by reason of such preference, that members of public purchased substantial volume of merchandise and novelties from individual in question and trade was thereby diverted unfairly to him from competitors aforesaid;

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of an act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Yale I. Glubok, individually and trading as Reliable Sales Co., hererinafter referred to as respondent, has been and is using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to the said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent is an individual doing business under the name and style of Reliable Sales Co., with his principal office and place of business located at 5244 Enright Avenue, St. Louis, Mo. He is now, and for some time last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of various articles of merchandise including, among others, clocks, lamps, cameras, watches, cooking sets, tableware sets, and zipper bags in commerce between and among the various States of the United States. He causes and has caused such articles when sold to be shipped or transported from his place of business in the State of Missouri to purchasers thereof in Missouri and in other States of the United States at their respective points of location. There is now, and has been for some time last past, a course of trade and commerce by said respondent in such merchandise between and among the States of the United States. In the course and conduct of said business, respondent is in competition with other individuals and with partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of similar or like articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, the respondent, in soliciting the sale of and in selling and distributing the said merchandise, has furnished his customers and prospective customers with a device commonly called a "push-card," the use of which in connection with the sale and delivery to the purchasing public by the method or plan suggested by respondent involves the distribution of said articles of merchandise to the purchasing public by means of a lottery scheme or gift enterprise. The method or sales plan suggested by respondent was and is substantially as follows:

The said push card has a number of partially perforated discs, and concealed within each disc is a number. In immediate proximity to each disc is a girl's name. The said push card also has a master seal, and concealed within such master seal is a name corresponding to one of the names on the card. Purchasers select one of the discs and remove the same, disclosing the number thereunder. Persons selecting numbers from 1 to 17 pay in cents the amount of such number, except that persons selecting certain specified numbers receive their selection free of charge. Purchasers selecting numbers over 17 pay 17 cents. The push card bears a legend or legends informing purchasers and prospective purchasers of the plan or method by which said push card is operated, and by which the articles of merchandise described thereon are to be distributed. When all of the discs have been selected and the master seal removed, the person who selected the name corresponding to the name under the master seal receives one of the specified articles of merchandise heretofore referred to without further charge, and the person, salesman, agent, or representative soliciting sales by means of said card, as above described, receives one of the specified articles of merchandise without further charge or additional service. The numbers under the names are concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers, and they do not know how much they will have to pay for the privilege of selecting a particular name or whether the selection will be free of charge until the selection has been made and the disc removed. The name under the master seal is concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until all of the discs have been selected. Thus, customers selecting names which do not correspond with the name under the master seal receive nothing but the privilege of making a selection for the money they pay. The value of the various articles of merchandise varies, but each of said articles of merchandise has a retail value in excess of 17 cents. The person selecting the name corresponding to the name under the master seal receives one of the articles of merchandise for a price not exceeding 17 cents, which is much less than the normal retail price of said article. The purchasing public is thus induced and persuaded into purchasing pushes from said card in the hope of selecting a prize-winning name and thus obtaining an article of merchandise for a price of 17 cents or less. The said articles of merchandise are thus distributed to the purchasing public wholly by lot or chance, and the amount which the customer pays for a chance is determined wholly by lot or chance.

PAR. 3. The persons to whom respondent furnishes the said push cards use the same in purchasing, selling, and distributing respondent's merchandise in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of his merchandise in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said method in the sale of his merchandise, and the sale of such merchandise by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said method, is a practice of the sort which the common law and criminal statutes have long deemed contrary to public policy and is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States.

PAR. 4. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above alleged involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure an article of merchandise at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell or distribute merchandise in competition with respondent, as above alleged, are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other method that is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by respondent's said method and by the element of chance involved in the sale thereof in the manner above described, and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or an equivalent method. The use of said method by respondent, because of said game of chance, has the tendency and capacity to, and does, divert trade and custom to respondent from his said competitors who do not use the same or an equivalent method.

PAR. 5. In the course and conduct of his said business respondent, in the sale of said merchandise, has caused and causes the representations to be made to his customers and prospective customers:

- (a) That certain cameras have a retail value of $5; and
- (b) That certain electric ship-model lamps have a retail value of $6.50.

The truth and fact are that said cameras and lamps do not have a reasonable retail value or price as represented, but said purported retail value or price is grossly exaggerated and purely fictitious. A substantial portion of the purchasing public has been, and is, induced to purchase said cameras or lamps because of its reliance on said representations. The use by respondent of said representations has the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive many of respondent's customers into the erroneous belief that said cameras and lamps have the retail value and price represented. There are many competitors of respondent who do not falsely represent the value or price of the merchandise sold by them. The use of said representations by the respondent has the tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade to respondent from his said competitors, all to the injury of competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States.

PAR. 6. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of section 5 of an act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on December 3, 1937, issued its complaint in this proceeding and caused same to be served upon the respondent, Yale I. Glubok, individually and trading as Reliable Sales Co., charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of an answer thereto by said respondent, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by D. C. Daniel and William L. Pencke, attorneys for the Commission, before William C. Reeves and Charles F. Diggs, examiners for said Commission, theretofore duly designated by it, which testimony was reduced to writing and filed in the office of the Commission, together with numerous pieces of documentary evidence received as exhibits. No testimony or other evidence was introduced or tendered by or on behalf of said respondent. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the answer thereto, the testimony and other evidence, and briefs in support of the complaint. No briefs were filed by or on behalf of respondent and oral argument was waived by him, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, Yale I. Glubok, has carried on business under the name and style of Reliable Sales Co., which business has been conducted from his residence at 5244 Enright Avenue, in the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri. The business carried on by respondent consisted of the sale of various articles of merchandise, including blankets, bed spreads, silk hose, silverware, clocks, and novelties of various kinds. Respondent caused some of the articles of merchandise and novelties sold by him to be transported, when sold from his said place of business in St. Louis, in the State of Missouri, through and into other States of the United States to the respective purchasers thereof, and in the course and conduct of his said business respondent has been in active competition with various partnerships and corporations and other persons also engaged in the sale of similar articles of merchandise and novelties in commerce among several of the States of the United States.

PAR. 2. Respondent, in the course of his business as set out in paragraph 1 hereof, has mailed from his place of business in St. Louis, Mo., to persons in States of the United States other than the State of Missouri, cards, sometimes described as push cards. Each of these cards was accompanied by a circular descriptive of the several articles of merchandise and novelties offered for sale by respondent and an order blank which the person addressed was requested to use. Distribution of these cards, circulars, and order blanks in some instances was made from door to door by the respondent in person or by a messenger. Directions for the use to be made of the cards and order blanks were printed upon the back of each of the order blanks. Each of the cards had printed thereon in plain view a number of girls' names and above or below each name was a disc which concealed a number. Near the upper right-hand corner of each of the cards was a larger disc in the form of a seal, which disc concealed a name which was the same as one of the names printed elsewhere on the card. Members of the public were to be solicited to select one or more of the names on the card and to pay the number of cents indicated by the number or numbers concealed by the disc or discs above or below each of the names so selected, except that with one type of the cards, five of the numbers were free and selectors of these numbers paid nothing and selectors of numbers higher than 17 paid only 17 cents and with another type of card selectors of numbers higher than 10 paid only 10 cents. When all names on one of the cards had been selected and collection made of the various amounts, the large disc or seal was then opened and the name concealed by it was disclosed and the person who had selected the name which was concealed by the seal was given his choice of several of the articles of merchandise, and the person who had sold the chances upon one of the cards also was given his choice of such articles but the persons who had selected the other names on the card received nothing. The order blank was then filled out by the person who had sold the chances on the card and the articles of merchandise selected were indicated thereon and a money order for the amount required was inclosed with the order blank and mailed to respondent.

PAR. 3. The Commission finds that numerous persons to whom respondent furnished push cards, as set out in Paragraph 2 hereof, used same in purchasing, selling, and distributing articles of merchandise and novelties offered for sale by respondent in accordance with the sales plan described in said paragraph 2. Respondent in this manner supplied to, and placed in the hands of others, the means by which lotteries were conducted in the sale of such articles of merchandise and novelties. The Commission further finds that the articles of merchandise and novelties offered for sale and sold by respondent were distributed to the purchasing public wholly by lot or chance, and that the amount which each of the customers paid for a chance also was determined wholly by lot or chance; that the sale of such articles in such a manner involved a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure such articles of merchandise and novelties at prices much lower than the normal retail prices therefor, and that the use of said method in the sale and distribution of articles of merchandise and novelties is a practice of the sort which is contrary to the established policy of the Government of the United States.

PAR. 4. There are among the competitors of respondent persons, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of articles of merchandise and novelties of the same general nature as those sold by respondent and in the same trade territory as that reached by respondent in various States of the United States, which competitors do not sell such articles of merchandise and novelties by means of any game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. Many purchasers of articles of merchandise or novelties from respondent were attracted by the element of chance involved in the sales method by which such articles of merchandise and novelties were distributed by respondent and on that account were induced to purchase such articles of merchandise and novelties from respondent in preference to similar articles of merchandise and novelties offered for sale and sold by competitors of respondent who did not and who do not use similar methods, and on account of such preference members of the public have purchased a substantial volume of merchandise and novelties from respondent with the result that trade has been diverted unfairly to respondent from such competitors.

CONCLUSION

The acts and practices of the respondent, as herein set out have been, and are, to the prejudice and injury of the public and to competitors of respondent, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondent, testimony and other evidence taken before William C. Reeves and Charles F. Diggs, examiners of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint (respondent having offered no testimony or other evidence in opposition to the allegations of said complaint), brief of counsel for the Commission filed herein (respondent having filed no brief and oral argument not having been requested), and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Yale I. Glubok, individually and trading as Reliable Sales Co. or trading under any other name or names, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of blankets, bed spreads, silk hose, silverware, clocks or any other merchandise in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Selling or distributing any merchandise so packed and assembled that sales of such merchandise to the general public are to be made or may be made by means of a lottery, gaming device, or gift enterprise.

2. Supplying to or placing in the hands of others any merchandise, together with push or pull cards, punchboards, or any other lottery devices which said push or pull cards, punchboards or other lottery devices are to be used or may be used in selling or distributing said merchandise to the public.

3. Supplying to or placing in the hands of others push or pull cards, punchboards, or any other lottery devices either with assortments of merchandise or separately, which said push or pull cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices are to be used or may be used in selling or distributing such merchandise to the public.

Order

4. Selling or otherwise distributing any merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall within 60 days after service upon him of this order file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF
B & T FLOOR COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3541. Complaint, Aug. 17, 1938—Decision, Dec. 19, 1939

Where a corporation engaged in sale and distribution of extruded aluminum trimmings and metal products for trimming wall and floor covering materials; in advertising, under trade-mark "Chromedge," its said trimmings in circulars, folders, catalogs and stationery circulated generally throughout the United States, and through agents sent into various States—

- (a) Represented that it manufactured such trimmings, through use of such statements as "manufactured only by," etc.; and
- (b) Represented that its said trimmings were made of an alloy, one of the principal component parts of which was chromium, and that such trimmings, thus made, could be obtained only from it, and that so-called "Chromedge" was metal of superior quality, having attributes of chromium, and was preferable to extruded aluminum, through such statements as "can be obtained ONLY from ourselves or through an authorized distributor. Do not accept inferior imitations. * * *" and "* * * manufactured from a special white metal alloy in which we have incorporated chromium, magnesium, * * *";

Facts being it did not manufacture metal in question sold by it under trade name "Chromedge," nor manufacture the extruded aluminum alloy trimmings sold by it as aforesaid, so-called "Chromedge" was not a metal of superior quality having attributes of chromium, etc., but was in fact an extruded aluminum alloy purchased by it from aluminum manufacturer, by whom same was also sold to numerous competitors of said corporation for trimmings, as aforesaid;

With tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive substantial portion of purchasing public, and with effect of causing number of such public, many of whom prefer to purchase trimmings and metal products made of chromium because of durability and inherent qualities thereof, and on the part of which there has long existed preference for buying direct from manufacturer by reason of advantages thus had, as believed, in matter of better goods at lower prices, to purchase substantial volume of such trimmings from it, and of thereby causing trade to be diverted unfairly to it from its competitors who truthfully advertise and represent their metal trimmings, and of whom many sell and distribute such products of same general nature without in any way misrepresenting quality thereof or nature of material from which made, or that they are manufacturers of their products; to prejudice and injury of competitors and public:

Held, That such acts, practices, statements and representations, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

Before Mr. William C. Reeves, trial examiner.

Mr. Merle P. Lyon and Mr. Charles S. Cow for the Commission.

Mr. James M. Schooler and Mr. W. S. McDowell, of Columbus, Ohio, and Mr. Samuel Schrivener, Jr., of Washington, D. C., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that B & T Floor Co., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, B & T Floor Co., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Ohio, having its office and principal place of business at 135 North Front Street, Columbus, Ohio.

PAR. 2. Respondent is now and for more than 9 months last past has been in the business of selling and distributing extruded aluminum alloy trimmings and metal products. Respondent causes said products, when sold, to be transported from its place of business in Ohio to purchasers thereof located in the various States of the United States other than the State of Ohio and in the District of Columbia.

Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein, has maintained a course of trade in said products sold and distributed by it in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. Respondent, in the course and conduct of its said business, at all times herein mentioned has been, and is now, in competition with other corporations and with individuals, firms, and partnerships engaged in the advertising, sale, and distribution of extruded aluminum alloy trimmings and of metal products similar to those of respondent and of other products designed for similar usage in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of said business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of said products, respondent, by means of advertising circulars, folders, catalogs, and stationery circulated generally throughout the United States and through its agents sent into various States of the United States, has made many representations concerning the character and nature of said products. Among such representations made by respondent are the following:

CHROMEDGE, the brilliant solid white metal for trimming wall and floor covering materials, manufactured only by the B & T Floor Company, Columbus, Ohio.

* * * PLEASE NOTE: All Chromedge items are branded with our trade mark. Look for the name "Chromedge" on the flange. If it is not trademarked "chromedge," it is not genuine chromedge. Chromedge can be obtained ONLY from ourselves or through an authorized distributor. Do not accept inferior imitations. Insist on genuine Chromedge—so that you will be sure the beauty of your installations will endure * * *.

METAL. Chromedge is not a plated metal. Chromedge is manufactured from a special white metal alloy in which we have incorporated chromium, magnesium, silicon, iron, copper, etc. in such a way that it will accept and retain a brilliant, lustrous polish. Its ductility is of such a nature that it may be easily bent to fit curves and angles.

All of said statements, together with similar statements appearing in respondent's advertising literature, purport to be descriptive of respondent's products. In all of its advertising literature, by use of the trade name "Chromedge" and through other means respondent, directly or by inference through the statements and representations herein set out, and other statements of similar import and effect, represents that it manufactures the metal it sells under the trade name "Chromedge"; that "Chromedge" is a metal which is composed of a large percentage of chromium; that respondent corporation is the only concern from and through whom this material can be purchased; that "Chromedge" is a metal of superior quality having the attributes of chromium, and therefore, preferable to extruded aluminum.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid representations made by respondent with respect to the nature and quality of its products are grossly exaggerated, false, misleading, and untrue. In truth and in fact, respondent does not manufacture the metal it sells under the trade name "Chromedge." "Chromedge" is not a metal which is composed of a large percentage of chromium. "Chromedge" is not a metal of superior quality having the attributes of chromium and is not preferable to extruded aluminum. The true facts are that "Chromedge" is an extruded aluminum alloy trimming and is composed of approximately 98 percent aluminum and less than 1 percent chromium. The word "Chromedge" is merely a trade-mark of respondent B & T Floor Co. Extruded aluminum alloy trimmings with substantially identical component ingredients can be purchased from respondent's competitors who do not use the trade name "Chromedge" to describe the same.

PAR. 6. For many years there has existed a preference on the part of the purchasing public for buying goods direct from the manufacturer thereof. This preference results from the belief that manufacturers are able to offer lower prices, better quality and other advantages not obtainable elsewhere. There are those of the purchasing public who prefer to purchase metal products made of chromium in preference to those made of extruded aluminum because of the durability and inherent qualities of chromium.

PAR. 7. There are among respondent's competitors many who sell and distribute similar products and who do not in any way misrepresent the quality and character of their respective products and their respective business status.

PAR. 8. Each and all of the false and misleading statements and representations made by the respondent in describing its products, as hereinabove set out, were, and are, calculated to, and have had, and now have, a tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that all of said representations are true. On account of this erroneous and mistaken belief, a number of the consuming public have purchased a substantial volume of respondent's products, with the result that trade has been diverted unfairly to respondent from competitors likewise engaged in the business of selling and distributing said products, and who truthfully advertise their respective products. As a consequence thereof, injury has been done, and is now being done, by respondent to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 9. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on August 17, 1938, issued its complaint and caused same to be served upon the respondent B & T Floor Co., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of an answer thereto by said respondent, William C. Reeves, an examiner for said Commission, was designated and appointed to take testimony and to receive evidence in said proceeding, and pursuant thereto a hearing was held at Columbus, Ohio, on November 10, 1938, at which hearing a stipulation as to certain facts was entered into by and between Merle P. Lyon, counsel for the Commission, and James M. Schooler and W. S. McDowell, counsel for respondent, which stipulation was read into the record, whereupon testimony was taken and evidence received at the instance of counsel for the Commission explanatory of and supplementary to said stipulation, which stipulation and testimony has been reduced to writing and filed in the office of the Commission together with numerous pieces of documentary evidence received as exhibits. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission upon said complaint, the answer thereto, the stipulation as to the facts and testimony and evidence explanatory of and supplementary to said stipulation, and the brief in support of the charges stated in the complaint. No brief was filed on behalf of respondent and oral argument was waived by counsel for respondent, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent B & T Floor Co. is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Ohio with its principal place of business in the city of Columbus in said State. Said respondent is, and has been for more than a year, engaged in the business of selling and distributing extruded aluminum trimmings and metal products, for use in trimming wall and floor covering materials. It has caused, and now causes, the trimmings sold by it to be transported from its place of business at Columbus in the State of Ohio through and into various other States of the United States to the respective purchasers thereof, and in the course and conduct of its said business respondent has been, and is now, in active competition with various persons and partnerships and other corporations also engaged in the sale of similar materials in commerce between and among several of the States of the United States.

PAR. 2. The respondent, in the course and conduct of its business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, adopted and used a trade-mark consisting of the word "Chromedge" for the trimmings for wall and floor covering materials offered for sale and sold by it. In the course and conduct of its said business and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of said products, respondent by means of advertising in circulars, folders, catalogs, and stationery circulated generally throughout the United States, and through its agents sent into various States of the United States has made many representations concerning the character and nature of said product, among which were the following:

CHROMEDGE, the brilliant solid white metal for trimming wall and floor covering materials, manufactured only by the B & T Floor Company, Columbus, Ohio.

* * * PLEASE NOTE: All Chromedge items are branded with our trade-mark. Look for the name "Chromedge" on the flange. If it is not trade-marked "chrom-edge", it is not genuine chromedge. Chromedge can be obtained ONLY from ourselves or through an authorized distributor. Do not accept inferior imitations. Insist on genuine Chromedge—so that you will be sure the beauty of your installations will endure * * *.

METAL. Chromedge is not a plated metal, Chromedge is manufactured from a special white metal alloy in which we have incorporated chromium, magnesium, silicon, iron, copper, etc. in such a way that it will accept and retain a brilliant, lustrous polish. Its ductility is of such a nature that it may be easily bent to fit curves and angles.

The statements and representations contained in said advertising matter which respondent caused to be distributed, as stated, purported to be descriptive of the trimmings offered for sale and sold by respondent and by the use of these statements and representations, and other statements and representations of like import, together with the use of the trade mark "Chromedge," as stated, respondent represented that it manufactured such trimmings and that such trimmings were made of an alloy, one of the principal component parts of which was chromium; that trimming made of such alloy could be obtained only from respondent; that "Chromedge" was a metal of superior quality having the attributes of chromium and was preferable to extruded aluminum.

PAR. 3. The respondent does not manufacture the metal it sells under the trade name "Chromedge" and does not manufacture the extruded aluminum alloy trimmings it sells. "Chromedge" is not a metal which is composed of a large percentage of chromium but is composed of the following ingredients:

Magnesium-----	1.10% to 1.40%.
Silicon-----	45% to 65% of magnesium contents.
Chromium-----	0.20% to 0.30%.
Iron, maximum-----	0.20%.
Copper, maximum-----	0.05%.
Other elements, maximum of each-----	0.03%.
Aluminum, approximately-----	99.8%.

The metal sold by respondent under the name "Chromedge" is not a metal of superior quality having the attributes of chromium and is not preferable to extruded aluminum, but is, in fact, an extruded aluminum alloy. Respondent purchases practically all of its extruded aluminum alloy, which it sells under the trade name "Chromedge," from the Aluminum Co. of America, and said alloy is manufactured by the Aluminum Co. of America under a formula 53-S.

The same alloy is sold by the Aluminum Co. of America to numerous competitors of respondent and trimmings for wall and floor covering materials made of such alloy are sold by competitors of the respondent.

PAR. 4. The statements and representations made by the respondent in its advertising matter, as aforesaid, concerning its metal trimmings for wall and floor covering materials offered for sale and sold by it have the tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public and have caused a number of the purchasing public to purchase a substantial volume of such trimmings from the respondent, thereby causing trade to be diverted unfairly to the respondent from its competitors in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, who truthfully advertise and represent the metal trimmings offered for sale and sold by them, to the injury of such competitors.

PAR. 5. Many of the competitors of respondent sell and distribute trimmings for wall and floor covering materials of the same general nature as those sold by respondent, which competitors do not in any way misrepresent the quality of such trimmings or the nature of the material from which they are made, and do not falsely represent that they are the manufacturers of products sold by them. Members of the public prefer to purchase metal products made of chromium because of the durability and inherent qualities of that material. For many years there has existed a preference on the part of the purchasing public for buying goods direct from the manufacturer. This preference results from the belief that manufacturers are able to offer advantages not obtainable elsewhere, including goods of better quality at lower prices.

PAR. 6. Many members of the purchasing public prefer to purchase trimmings for wall and floor covering materials made of chromium rather than those made of extruded aluminum, and the statements and representations made by respondent in its advertising matter, without qualification or explanation, concerning the composition and nature of the alloy from which the trimmings offered for sale and sold by respondent were made, as set out in paragraph 2 hereof, constituted false and misleading claims, statements and representations and were to the prejudice of the public and to competitors of respondent and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

CONCLUSION

The acts, practices, statements, and representations of the respondent, as herein set out, have been and are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and to the competitors of respondent and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondent, testimony, and other evidence taken before William C. Reeves, an examiner of the Commission, theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, brief filed herein by Charles S. Cox, counsel for the Commission, no brief having been filed by the respondent and no oral argument having been requested, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent B & T Floor Co., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of extruded aluminum alloy trimmings and metal products in interstate commerce, or in the District of Columbia, do forthwith cease and desist from representing, directly or indirectly:

1. By use of the words "manufactured only by," "manufactured," or any other words of similar import and effect, or in any manner, that it is the manufacturer of any such product, unless and until the respondent actually owns and operates or directly and absolutely controls a manufacturing plant or factory wherein the product so represented is manufactured by it.

2. By use of the word "Chromedge" or any other word or words of similar import or meaning, or in any other manner, that extruded aluminum alloy metal, or any other metal not composed principally of chromium, is chromium.

3. That respondent's extruded aluminum alloy metal product designated "Chromedge" is anything other than extruded aluminum alloy metal, or that it is different in any material respect from the extruded aluminum alloys sold by its competitors.

4. That respondent's extruded aluminum metal product, now designated "Chromedge," has the attributes of chromium or that it is superior in quality, and preferable, to extruded aluminum.

Order

30 F. T. C.

5. That competitors' extruded aluminum alloy products are inferior to, or imitations of, the extruded aluminum metal products now sold by the respondent under the name "Chromedge," or that respondent's product is secured from sources not available to its competitors.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

Syllabus

IN THE MATTER OF
ZO-AK COMPANY, INC.COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914*Docket 3724. Complaint, Feb. 28, 1939—Decision, Dec. 19, 1939*

Where a corporation engaged in sale and distribution of certain medicinal or pharmaceutical preparations designated as "Zo-Ak Tablets" (blue label) or "Zo-Ak for Men," and "Zo-Ak Tablets" (orange label) or "Zo-Ak for Women," to wholesale and retail druggists and other purchasers in various other States and in the District of Columbia; in advertisements which it disseminated concerning its said preparations through the mails and through newspapers and periodicals of general circulation and through circulars and other printed or written matter distributed in commerce, and which were intended and likely to induce purchase thereof—

- (a) Represented that its said "Zo-Ak Tablets for Men" constituted a competent remedy or treatment for sexual debility and a stimulant for reduced virile powers, and was of peculiar value to men in relation to their sex life, and would build up health and strength, facts being said preparation was not a competent remedy or treatment for aforesaid conditions, nor of peculiar value, as above claimed, but acted only as an irritant, did not contain sufficient concentrated vitamins to be beneficial in building up health and strength, and did contain dangerous ingredient yohimbine hydrochloride, aphrodisiac effect of which cannot be produced by recognized and established therapeutic dosage, which was greatly exceeded by recommended dosage in preparation in question;
- (b) Represented that said "Zo-Ak Tablets for Women" constituted a remedy or relief for the nervous symptoms due to "change of life" and a cure, remedy, or relief for various symptoms of "change of life," such as hot flushes, dizzy spells, bursting headaches, "nerves," irritability and crying spells, facts being said preparation was not a remedy or relief for such symptoms, did not make period in question one of greater ease and comfort, and was not a cure or relief for hot flushes, etc., as above set forth, and was entirely insufficient to accomplish any of the results claimed therefor by it; and
- (c) Failed to reveal to purchasers and prospective purchasers, in false advertisements disseminated by it, that use of its said preparation for men, under conditions prescribed or under such conditions as are customary or usual, in some cases caused injury to health and might be injurious, taken as aforesaid, and caused irritation and injury to urinary tract, with serious nephritis as one of its possible after-effects;

With effect of misleading and deceiving substantial portion of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that such false statements, representations, and advertisements were true, and of inducing portion of said public, because of such belief, to purchase its injurious, drug-containing medicinal preparations:

Held, That such acts and practices were all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Zo-Ak Co., Inc., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Zo-Ak Co., Inc., is a corporation organized and doing business under the laws of the State of New York, with its office and principal place of business located at 56 West Forty-fifth Street, New York, N. Y. Respondent is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, engaged in the business of selling and distributing certain medicinal or pharmaceutical preparations designated as Zo-Ak Tables (blue label), or Zo-Ak for Men, and Zo-Ak Tables (orange label), or Zo-Ak for Women.

In the course and conduct of its said business, respondent causes said preparations, when sold, to be transported from its place of business in the State of New York to wholesale and retail druggists and other purchasers thereof located in various States of the United States other than the State of New York and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade and commerce in said preparations among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business, respondent has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination, of false advertisements concerning its said medicinal preparation, by United States mails, by insertion in newspapers and periodicals having a general circulation and also in circulars and other printed or written matter, all of which are distributed in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, and by other means in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, for the purpose of inducing and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of its said medicinal preparations, and has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing, the dissemination of false advertisements concerning its said medicinal preparations by various means for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of its said products in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act. Among and typical of the false statements and representations contained in said advertisements disseminated and caused to be disseminated, as aforesaid, are the following:

MEN

Get free booklet about Zo-Ak Tablets—the formula of a well-known New York physician created especially for men. Zo-Ak contains quick acting vegetable stimulants plus essential vitamin concentrates in adequate amounts to build up health and strength.

ZO-AK A SPECIAL TONIC FOR MEN

It is the formula of a well-known New York physician created especially for men whose virile vigor is temporarily lowered. Zo-Ak contains Quick Action vegetable stimulants plus Adequate amounts of essential vitamin concentrates to build up health and strength.

MEN

Whose virile power is temporarily below par should try Zo-Ak, the formula of a well-known New York physician created especially for men. Zo-Ak contains quick acting vegetable ingredients plus adequate amounts of essential vegetable concentrates to build up health and strength. Try Zo-Ak faithfully as directed. Then if you don't notice a marked stimulation of virile power your druggist will refund your money.

In many cases however virility is not lost but merely lowered by overwork or worry. This is especially noticeable in business men who after a hard day at the office come home thoroughly unfit for the marital attentions their wives expect. * * * For such men whose virile powers are temporarily reduced, not lost, a course of treatment with Zo-Ak Tablets frequently gives the necessary boost that assists nature.

Zo-Ak Tablets are indicated for temporary reduction of virile powers since they stimulate the natural functions of important organs.

Take 2 or 3 Zo-Ak Tablets three times daily one-half hour before meals. For best results take Zo-Ak at least a month. * * * The longer you take Zo-Ak Tablets the more satisfactory will be the result from their use. However many men get quick stimulation after a single bottle.

Thousands of men whose virile powers have become temporarily reduced or weakened (but not totally lost) have found that Zo-Ak Tablets give them the stimulation they so much desire.

Zo-Ak contains two potent quick acting vegetable herb substances which are acknowledged by many of the medical profession to be invaluable in stimulating the important organs concerned with masculine functions.

In addition to these stimulants Zo-Ak contains essential vitamin concentrates in adequate dosage. These build up health and strength.

Generally around the age of 40 or 45 most women go through a physiological change called the menopause or "change of life."

This change is often accompanied by many distressing and miserable symptoms. These are hot flushes, dizzy spells, bursting headaches, "nerves," irritability and crying spells.

Complaint

30 F. T. C.

These symptoms often last for months, often years, but fortunately they may be considerably relieved in many cases by the use of hormones and certain substances contained in Zo-Ak Tablets for Women (orange box).

These tablets are also the formula of a prominent New York physician so they may be taken with confidence. Zo-Ak Tablets for Women are not a "cure all" but a special medicine intended to relieve the nervous symptoms of the "change of life" and make this trying period one of greater ease and comfort.

PAR. 3. Through the use of the statements hereinabove set forth and others similar thereto not specifically set out herein, all of which purport to be descriptive of the remedial, curative, or therapeutic properties of respondent's products, respondent has represented, and does now represent, directly and indirectly, that its preparation, Zo-Ak Tablets for Men, or Zo-Ak Tablets (blue label), is a competent remedy, treatment, or stimulant for sexual debility or reduced virile powers; that it is of peculiar value to men in relation to their sex life and that said preparation will build up health and strength; that Zo-Ak Tablets (orange label), or Zo-Ak for Women, is a remedy or relief for the nervous symptoms due to "change of life" and is a cure, remedy, or relief for various symptoms of "change of life," such as hot flushes, dizzy spells, bursting headaches, "nerves," irritability and crying spells.

PAR. 4. The aforesaid representations and claims used and disseminated by the respondent as hereinabove described are grossly exaggerated, misleading and untrue. In truth and in fact, respondent's medicinal preparation, Zo-Ak Tablets (blue label), or Zo-Ak for Men, is not a competent remedy, treatment or stimulant for sexual debility or reduced virile powers and is not of peculiar value to men in relation to their sex life but acts only as an irritant to the sexual organs. Furthermore, this preparation does not contain sufficient concentrated vitamins to make it beneficial in the building up of health and strength. In truth and in fact, Zo-Ak Tablets (orange label), or Zo-Ak for Women, is not a remedy or relief for the nervous symptoms of the "change of life" and does not make this trying period one of greater ease and comfort. Furthermore, this preparation is not a cure or relief for hot flushes, dizzy spells, bursting headaches, "nerves," irritability and crying spells, and is entirely insufficient to accomplish any of the results claimed for it by the respondent's directions.

PAR. 5. In addition to the false and misleading statements hereinabove set forth, the respondent is also engaged in the dissemination of false advertisements as aforesaid in that respondent fails to reveal to the purchasers and prospective purchasers that the use of its medicinal preparation, Zo-Ak Tablets (blue label), or Zo-Ak for Men, under conditions prescribed or under such conditions as are customary or usual in some cases cause injury to health.

Zo-Ak Tablets (blue label), or Zo-Ak for Men, contains the dangerous ingredient yohimbine hydrochloride. The aphrodisiac effect of yohimbine hydrochloride cannot be produced by the recognized and established therapeutic dosage. The recommended dosage for respondent's preparation is greatly in excess of the therapeutic dosage. Such tablets taken under the conditions prescribed by respondent and under the conditions which are customary or usual may be injurious to the health of the users thereof and cause irritation and injury to the urinary tract and serious nephritis may be one of its after-effects.

PAR. 6. The use by the respondent of the foregoing false, deceptive and misleading statements, representations and advertisements disseminated as aforesaid with respect to said medicinal preparations has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such false statements, representations, and advertisements are true and induces a portion of the purchasing public, because of such erroneous and mistaken belief, to purchase respondent's medicinal preparations containing injurious drugs.

PAR. 7. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on February 28, 1939, issued, and on March 1, 1939, served, its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondent, Zo-Ak Co., Inc., a corporation, charging it with unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of an answer by said respondent, the Commission, by order entered herein, granted said respondent's motion for permission to withdraw said answer and to substitute therefor an amended answer admitting all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, which substitute answer was duly filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and amended answer, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Zo-Ak Co., Inc., is a corporation organized and doing business under the laws of the State of New York, with its office and principal place of business located at 56 West Forty-fifth Street, New York, N. Y. Respondent is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, engaged in the business of selling and distributing certain medicinal or pharmaceutical preparations designated as Zo-Ak Tablets (blue label), or Zo-Ak for Men, and Zo-Ak Tablets (orange label), or Zo-Ak for Women.

In the course and conduct of its said business, respondent causes said preparations, when sold, to be transported from its place of business in the State of New York to wholesale and retail druggists and other purchasers thereof located in various States of the United States other than the State of New York and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade and commerce in said preparations among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business, respondent has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination, of false advertisements concerning its said medicinal preparations, by United States mails, by insertion in newspapers and periodicals having a general circulation and also in circulars and other printed or written matter, all of which are distributed in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and by other means in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, for the purpose of inducing and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of its said medicinal preparations and has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing, the dissemination of false advertisements concerning its said medicinal preparations by various means for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of its said products in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act. Among and typical of the false statements

Zo-Ak Tablets are indicated for temporary reduction of virile powers since they stimulate the natural functions of important organs.

Take 2 or 3 Zo-Ak Tablets three times daily one-half hour before meals. For best results take Zo-Ak at least a month. * * * The longer you take Zo-Ak Tablets the more satisfactory will be the result from their use. However, many men get quick stimulation after a single bottle.

Thousands of men whose virile powers have become temporarily reduced or weakened (but not totally lost) have found that Zo-Ak Tablets give them the stimulation they so much desire.

Zo-Ak contains two potent quick acting vegetable herb substances which are acknowledged by many of the medical profession to be invaluable in stimulating the important organs concerned with masculine functions.

In addition to these stimulants Zo-Ak contains essential vitamin concentrates in adequate dosage. These build up health and strength.

Generally around the age of 40 or 45 most women go through a physiological change called the menopause or "change of life."

This change is often accompanied by many distressing and miserable symptoms. These are hot flushes, dizzy spells, bursting headaches, "nerves," irritability and crying spells.

These symptoms often last for months, often years, but fortunately they may be considerably relieved in many cases by the use of hormones and certain substances contained in Zo-Ak Tablets for Women (orange box).

Findings

30 F. T. C.

These tablets are also the formula of a prominent New York physician so they may be taken with confidence. Zo-Ak Tablets for Women are not a "cure all" but a special medicine intended to relieve the nervous symptoms of the "change of life" and make this trying period one of greater ease and comfort.

PAR. 3. Through the use of the statements hereinabove set forth and others similar thereto not specifically set out herein, all of which purport to be descriptive of the remedial, curative, or therapeutic properties of respondent's products, respondent has represented, and does now represent, directly and indirectly, that its preparation, Zo-Ak Tablets for Men, or Zo-Ak Tablets (blue label), is a competent remedy or treatment for sexual debility and is a stimulant for reduced virile powers; that it is of peculiar value to men in relation to their sex life and that said preparation will build up health and strength; that Zo-Ak Tablets (orange label), or Zo-Ak for Women, is a remedy or relief for the nervous symptoms due to "change of life" and is a cure, remedy, or relief for various symptoms of "change of life," such as hot flushes, dizzy spells, bursting headaches, "nerves," irritability and crying spells.

PAR. 4. The aforesaid representations and claims used and disseminated by the respondent as hereinabove described are grossly exaggerated, misleading and untrue. In truth and in fact, respondent's medicinal preparation, Zo-Ak Tablets (blue label), or Zo-Ak for Men, is not a competent remedy or treatment for sexual debility or a stimulant for reduced virile powers and is not of peculiar value to men in relation to their sex life but acts only as an irritant to the sexual organs. Furthermore, this preparation does not contain sufficient concentrated vitamins to make it beneficial in the building up of health and strength. In truth and in fact, Zo-Ak Tablets (orange label), or Zo-Ak for Women, is not a remedy or relief for the nervous symptoms of the "change of life" and does not make this trying period one of greater ease and comfort. Furthermore, this preparation is not a cure or relief for hot flushes, dizzy spells, bursting headaches, "nerves," irritability and crying spells, and is entirely insufficient to accomplish any of the results claimed for it by the respondent's directions.

PAR. 5. In addition to the false and misleading statements hereinabove set forth, the respondent is also engaged in the dissemination of false advertisements as aforesaid in that respondent fails to reveal to the purchasers and prospective purchasers that the use of its medicinal preparations, Zo-Ak Tablets (blue label), or Zo-Ak for Men, under conditions prescribed or under such conditions as are customary or usual in some cases cause injury to health.

Zo-Ak Tablets (blue label), or Zo-Ak for Men, contains the dangerous ingredient yohimbine hydrochloride. The aphrodisiac effect of yohimbine hydrochloride cannot be produced by the recognized and established therapeutic dosage. The recommended dosage for respondent's preparation is greatly in excess of the therapeutic dosage. Such tablets taken under the conditions prescribed by respondent and under the conditions which are customary or usual may be injurious to the health of the users thereof and cause irritation and injury to the urinary tract and serious nephritis may be one of its after-effects.

PAR. 6. The use by the respondent of the foregoing false, deceptive and misleading statements, representations, and advertisements disseminated as aforesaid with respect to said medicinal preparations has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such false statements, representations, and advertisements are true and induces a portion of the purchasing public, because of such erroneous and mistaken belief, to purchase respondent's medicinal preparations containing injurious drugs.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and states that it waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Zo-Ak Co., Inc., a corporation, its officers, agents, and representatives, directly or through any corporate or other device, do forthwith cease and desist from:

Disseminating, or causing to be disseminated, any advertisement by means of the United States mails or in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, by any means, for the purpose

IN THE MATTER OF NUTRINE CANDY COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 2 (a) OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED OCT. 15, 1914, AS AMENDED BY AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED JUNE 19, 1936; AND OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3756. Complaint, Apr. 11, 1939—Decision, Dec. 19, 1939

Where a corporation engaged in manufacture, offer, sale, and distribution of a small line of fancy boxed candy to dealers, and of bulk candy, in which it specialized, directly to retailers in some 15 States, and for sale of which bulk candy of like grade and quality it maintained 4 separate and distinct price schedules governing price to be charged in accordance with classification of particular dealer as Eastern Syndicate, National Syndicate, Small Syndicate, or Small Retail account, as case might be—

Discriminated in price through sale of its said candy to purchasers competitively engaged with one another in resale thereof at its "ES," "NS," "SS," and "SR" prices, in accordance with classification of such customers, governed by no standard rule, by its salesmen, and in accordance with permitted action of latter in selling to same customer certain items under "NS" or "SS" price classifications and rest of items purchased at same time under "SR" list price, and thereby sold different competitively engaged purchasers candy of like grade, quality, and quantity at varying prices and price differentials ranging from a low of $0.0075 per pound to high of $0.04% per pound, depending upon brand of candy thus sold and purchased;

With result that the effect of such discriminations in prices might be to lessen competition between those retailers who purchase from it in one of aforesaid price classifications and competing retailers who purchase in higher price classification, and to injure, destroy, and prevent competition between said retailers and to tend to concentrate in most favored retailers, who were in direct competition with those less favored, retail sales of its said products, and with tendency and capacity to eliminate and destroy bulk candy business of latter:

Held, That such discrimination in price in sale in commerce of bulk candies of like grade and quality to purchasers competitive one with the other, absent anything in record to justify same, constituted violation of provisions of section 2 (a) of Clayton Act, as amended by Robinson-Patman Act; and

Where said corporation engaged also, as aforesaid, in manufacture, offer, sale, and distribution of its fancy boxed candy to retail dealers in aforesaid States, including various assortments thereof which were so packed and assembled as to involve use of a lottery scheme when sold and distributed to consumer, and were composed of (1) number of 1-pound boxes of candy, together with push card for use in sale and distribution of such candy under a plan in accordance with which customer and purchaser paid therefor varying amount, ranging from 1 cent to 39 cents, as determined by number concealed within disk bearing feminine name selected, or of (2) other assortments involving lottery or chance feature similar to aforesaid, and varying therefrom in detail only—

Complaint

Sold and distributed such assortments to and through direct and indirect retail dealer purchasers thereof, by whom, in accordance with aforesaid or similar plans as above described, same were exposed and sold to purchasing public, and thereby supplied to and placed in the hands of others means of conducting lotteries in the sale of its boxed candy, involving sale and distribution of such product by means of game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme, and under which, as set forth, fact as to whether purchaser paid 1 cent or any intervening amount up to 39 cents for pound box containing candy of like grade and quality, was determined solely and wholly by lot or chance, contrary to an established public policy of the United States Government and in violation of the criminal laws of many States, and in competition with (1) many who regard such method of sale and distribution of candy as contrary to public policy, as morally bad and encouraging gambling, as injurious to the candy industry itself as resulting in merchandising of candy through a lottery scheme, and as providing retail merchants with means of violating the public policy and laws of the several States, and with (2) many who are unwilling to adopt and use said or similar plan or method or any method involving sale of candy by chance or lottery in violation of public policy or of criminal statutes;

With the result that retailers were attracted by its said sales plan and element of chance involved therein, and were thereby induced to buy and sell its said boxed candy in preference to that offered and sold by competitors who do not use same or similar sales method, and trade was thereby diverted to it from its competitors aforesaid; to the substantial injury of competition in commerce among the various States:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

Mr. John W. Carter, Jr., for the Commission.

Hickey & Hall, of Chicago, Ill., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Count 1

The Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that the party respondent named in the caption hereof, and hereinafter more particularly designated and described, since June 19, 1936, has violated, and is now violating, the provisions of section 2 of the Clayton Act as amended by the Robinson-Patman Antidiscrimination Act approved June 19, 1936 (U. S. C., title 15, sec. 13), hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges with respect thereto as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, Nutrine Candy Co., is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Illinois, with its principal office and place of business located at 419 West Erie Street, Chicago, Ill.

PAR. 2. Respondent corporation is now and has been since prior to June 19, 1936, engaged in the business of manufacturing, offering for sale, selling, and distributing, candy, including a small line of fancy candies packed in boxes, but in general specializing in bulk candy as more particularly described herein. Respondent sells bulk candy direct to retail dealers in commerce between and among the States of Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Tennessee, Michigan, Iowa, Indiana, Kansas, Missouri, Ohio, Kentucky, West Virginia, and western Pennsylvania, and as a result of said sale causes said product to be shipped and transported from Chicago, Ill., to the purchasers thereof who are located in the aforementioned States. There is, and has been at all times herein mentioned, a continuous current of trade and commerce in said product across State lines between respondent's factory and the purchasers of said product.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of its business as aforesaid, respondent, during the time herein mentioned, has been and is now in substantial competition with other corporations, individuals, partnerships, and firms engaged in the business of manufacturing, selling, and distributing candy in commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

Purchasers of respondent's candy in the course of their business in reselling respondent's candy, during the time herein mentioned, have been and are now in substantial competition with each other.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of its business as aforesaid, since June 19, 1936, respondent has been and is now discriminating in price between different retailers buying said candy of like grade and quality sold by it in interstate commerce by giving and allowing certain of said retailers of its product different prices than given or allowed other retailers. Said discrimination in price is brought about by the following practice pursued by the respondent, to wit:

Respondent sells its products under four different price lists, which price lists are designated by the following letters:

ES, NS, SS, and SR

So-called Eastern Syndicate accounts are classified under the letters "ES." National Syndicate accounts are classified under the letters "NS." Small Syndicate accounts are classified under the letters "SS" and Small Retail accounts under the letters "SR." Customers purchasing on the "SR" price list pay the highest prices, while customers purchasing on the other price lists pay lower prices for goods of like grade and quality. For the purpose of illustrating the differential in price resulting from the four price lists, there is appended hereto and made a part of this paragraph a tabulation showing the prices at which the various kinds of candy were sold to customers purchasing under the various classifications during the period from July 1 to July 5, 1937, inclusive.<sup>1</sup>

Respondent permits its salesmen to classify customers as the salesmen see fit and in many instances customers who are small retailers are classified as and sold at the prices specified for sales to syndicate accounts. Furthermore, the salesmen frequently sell certain items to their customers from the "NS" or "SS" price lists and then the rest of the items purchased by the same customer are from the "SR" price list.

Respondent does not make known to its customers that it sells its products at the prices set forth in the various classifications. The salesmen are promised commissions of 12 percent on the Small Retail accounts, 5 percent on the Small Syndicate accounts, and 2 percent on the National Syndicate accounts.

PAR. 5. The general effect of said discrimination in price by the respondent set forth above has been and may be substantially (a) to lessen competition between those retailers who purchase from respondents in one of the aforesaid lower-priced classifications and competing retailers who purchase in a higher-priced classification; (b) to injure, destroy, and prevent competition between the aforesaid retailers; and (c) to tend to create a monopoly in the more favored retailers who are in direct competition with retailers who are not so favored as to receive the benefit of said lower prices, in that a substantial amount of business in this line of commerce has been and is being diverted to the favored retailers with the cumulative effect of having a tendency and capacity to eliminate and destroy the bulk candy business of said small independent retail dealers.

PAR. 6. The foregoing alleged acts and practices of said respondent are violations of section 2 (a) of the first section of the said act of Congress approved June 19, 1936, entitled "An Act to amend section 2 of the act entitled 'An act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies, and for other purposes,' approved October 15, 1914, as amended (U. S. C., title 15, sec. 13), and for other purposes."

Count 2

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Nutrine Candy Co., a corporation in its own name and right and trading under the name and style of Superior Candy Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof

would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. For its charges under this paragraph of this count, said Commission relies upon the matters and things set out in paragraphs 1 and 2 of count 1 of this complaint to the same extent and as though the allegations of said paragraphs 1 and 2 of said count 1 were set out in full herein, and said paragraphs 1 and 2 of said count 1 are incorporated herein by reference and made a part of the allegations of this count.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its business as aforesaid, respondent, during the time herein mentioned, has been and is now in substantial competition with other corporations, individuals, partnerships, and firms engaged in the business of manufacturing, selling, and distributing candy in commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of its business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and has sold to dealers certain assortments of candy so packed and assembled as to involve the use of a lottery scheme when sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. One of said assortments is sold and distributed to the purchasing public in the following manner: This assortment consists of a number of 1-pound boxes of candy together with a device commonly called a push card. The card contains a number of partially perforated disks with a feminine name printed immediately above each of said disks and with the word "push" printed on the face of said disk. Concealed within each disk is a number and when a disk is pushed or separated from the card the number is disclosed. The numbers range from 1 to 39 but are not arranged in numerical sequence. Sales are from 1 cent to 39 cents and the person pushing a disk from said card pays in cents the amount of the number disclosed. Each purchaser is entitled to and receives a box of candy. The push card bears legends or instructions as follows:

Sales of said boxes of respondent's candy are made by means of said push cards in accordance with the above-described legends or instructions. The prices to be paid for said boxes of candy are thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

The respondent manufactures, sells, and distributes various assortments of candy involving a lot or chance feature but such assortments and the method of sale and distribution thereof are similar to the one hereinabove described and vary only in detail.

PAR. 4. Retail dealers who purchase respondent's said assortments of candy directly or indirectly expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the aforesaid sales plans. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of its candy in accordance with the sales plans or methods hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said sales plans or methods in the sale of its candy and the sale of said candy by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plans or methods is a practice of the sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws of many of the States of the United States.

PAR. 5. The sale of candy to the purchasing public in the manner above alleged involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure a box of candy at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell or distribute candy in competition with the respondent as above alleged are unwilling to adopt and use said sales plans or methods or any methods involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other methods that are contrary to public policy or in violation of criminal statutes and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plans or methods employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of its candy and the element of chance involved therein and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's candy in preference to candy offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or equivalent methods. The use of said methods by respondent because of said game of chance has a tendency and capacity to and does unfairly divert trade to respondent from its said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent methods, and as a result thereof substantial injury is being, and has been done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

PAR. 6. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of an act of Congress, entitled, "An Act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies, and for other purposes," approved October 15, 1914 (the Clayton Act), as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act, approved June 19, 1936 (title 15, sec. 13) and pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on the 11th day of April 1939, issued and on April 12, 1939, served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondent, Nutrine Candy Co., a corporation, charging it, the aforesaid corporation, in count 1 thereof, with violating the provisions of section 2 (a) of the Clayton Act, as amended, by the Robinson-Patman Antidiscrimination Act approved June 19, 1936 (U. S. C., title 15, sec. 13), and in count 2 thereof charging it, the aforesaid Nutrine Candy Co., with the use of unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce in violation of the provisions of section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act (U. S. C., title 15, sec. 45).

After the issuance and service of the said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer, the Commission, by order entered herein, granted respondent's motion for permission to withdraw said answer and to substitute therefor an answer admitting all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearing, which substitute answer was duly filed in the office of the Commission.

Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the complaint aforesaid, the respondent's substitute answer thereto, and the Commission now having duly considered the record and being fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Count 1

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Nutrine Candy Co., is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Illinois with its principal office and place of business located at 419 West Erie Street, in the city of Chicago, State of Illinois. Respondent is now, and for several years last past has been, engaged in the manufacture of candy in the city of Chicago, and in the sale, offering for sale, selling, and distribution to dealers of a small line of fancy candies packed in boxes, but specializing generally in the sale, offering for sale, selling, and distribution of bulk candy direct to retail dealers in the States of Wisconsin, Minnesota, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Tennessee, Michigan, Iowa, Indiana, Kansas, Missouri, Ohio, Kentucky, West Virginia, and western Pennsylvania. It causes said bulk candy, when sold, to be shipped or transported from its principal place of business in the State of Illinois to purchasers thereof in the State of Illinois and in the other States of the United States as hereinabove named. In so carrying on said business, respondent has been, and now is, engaged in active competition with other corporations and with partnerships, individuals, and firms engaged in the manufacture of candy and in the sale and distribution thereof in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, and the purchasers of respondent's candy in the course of their business in reselling same have been for several years last past and are now in substantial competition with each other.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its business, as aforesaid, respondent has established, and subsequent to June 19, 1936, has maintained and now maintains, four separate and distinct price schedules on bulk candies of like grade and quality. Upon each schedule, so established and maintained, respondent causes to be listed under the various brand and trade names all of the bulk candy manufactured, sold, handled, and distributed by it, together with the price per pound of each brand so listed. The schedules, as aforesaid, are designated by symbols, to wit: "ES," "NS," "SS," and "SR." Theoretically, all dealers who qualify as Eastern Syndicate accounts are so classified and the schedule or price list designated "ES" is used in determining what price per pound such dealer must pay for the bulk candy so purchased; all dealers who qualify as National Syndicate accounts are so classified and the schedule or price list designated "NS" is used in determining what price per pound such dealer must pay for the bulk candy so purchased; all dealers who qualify as Small Syndicate accounts are so classified and the schedule or price list designated "SS" is used in determining what price per pound such dealer must pay for the bulk candy so purchased, and all dealers who qualify as Small Retail accounts are so classified and the schedule or price list designated "SR" is used in determining what price per pound such dealer must pay for the bulk candy so purchased, and the price per pound for its bulk candy of like grade and quality varies according to such schedules. Dealers purchasing under the "ES" price list pay the lowest price per pound, while dealers purchasing under the "SR" pay the highest price per pound for candy of like grade and quality.

Respondent, during the period July 1 to July 5, 1937, inclusive, sold and offered for sale in commerce to purchasers, competitive one with the other, its bulk candies of like grade and quality at varying differentials, as hereinbelow illustrated:

PAR. 3. Every customer purchasing respondent's bulk candy is classified and placed under one of these price schedules. Respondent itself, however, does not classify each customer nor does it have any standard rule governing the classification of its customers but permits its salesmen to determine and decide the classification within which the particular purchaser is placed. This method in many instances has resulted, and will continue to result, in the classification of some small retailers either as "ES," "NS," or "SS" accounts and in sales to such retailers under either the "ES," "NS," or "SS" price schedules. Respondent has also permitted its salesmen to sell certain items to one customer under the "NS" or "SS" price classification and the rest of the items purchased by the same customer at the same time under the "SR" price list. This method of selling its products has resulted and is resulting in respondent's selling to different purchasers, competitive with each other, candy of like grade, quality, and quantity at varying prices. Said price differentials range from a low of \$0.0075 per pound to a high of \$0.047 $\frac{7}{8}$  per pound, depending upon the brand of candy so sold and purchased.

PAR. 4. The difference in price at which respondent sells its bulk candies of like grade and quality, as set out in paragraphs 2 and 3 above, amounts to and are discriminations in price in commerce between purchasers of respondent's bulk candies.

PAR. 5. The Commission finds that the discriminations in prices, hereinabove found in paragraphs 2 and 3 as having been made by respondent, in sale in commerce of its bulk candies of like grade and quality to purchasers competitive the one with the other in the resale of said candies has been, and may be:

(a) Substantially to lessen competition between those retailers who purchase from respondent in one of the aforesaid price classifications and competing retailers who purchase in a higher price classification.

(b) To injure, destroy, and prevent competition between the aforesaid retailers.

(c) To tend to concentrate in the more favored retailers who are in direct competition with the less-favored retailers the retail sales of its products, with the effect of having the tendency and capacity to eliminate and destroy the bulk candy business of said less-favored retailers.

CONCLUSION

Nothing appearing in the record to justify the price discriminations hereinabove found, the Commission, therefore, concludes that the respondent Nutrine Candy Co., has discriminated in price in the sale in commerce of its bulk candies of like grade and quality to purchasers competitive one with the other, as hereinabove set out, in violation of the provisions of subsection (a) section 2 of the Clayton Act as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act, approved June 19, 1936 (U. S. C., title 15, sec. 13).

Count 2

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Nutrine Candy Co., a corporation doing business in the method and manner as aforesaid, and as hereinabove more fully set out in the findings as to the facts in paragraphs 1 and 2 under count 1, also in its own name and right and trading under the name and style of Superior Candy Co., with its principal office and place of business located at 419 West Erie Street, Chicago, Ill., is now and has been, subsequent to June 19, 1936, engaged in the manufacturing, offering for sale, selling, and distributing of fancy candy packed in boxes. Respondent sells its boxed candy direct to retail dealers in commerce between and among the States of Wisconsin, Minnesota, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Tennessee, Michigan, Iowa, Indiana, Kansas, Missouri, Ohio, Kentucky, West Virginia, and western Pennsylvania. It causes said box candy, when sold, to be shipped or transported from its principal place of business in the State of Illinois to purchasers thereof in the State of Illinois and in the other States of the United States as hereinabove named. In so carrying on said business, respondent has been and now is engaged in active competition in the sale and distribution of its box candy with other corporations and with partnerships, individuals, and firms engaged in the manufacture of candy and in the sale and distribution thereof in commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its business of selling and distributing fancy candy packed in boxes, as aforesaid, the respondent, Nutrine Candy Co., in its own name and right and trading under the name and style of Superior Candy Co., since June 19, 1936, has been, and is now, selling to dealers various assortments of candy so packed and assembled as to involve the use of a lottery scheme when sold and distributed to the consumer thereof.

One of such assortments manufactured, sold, and distributed by respondent, consists of a number of 1-pound boxes of candy, together with a device commonly known as a push card. The 1-pound boxes of candy are distributed to the purchasing public by means of this push card and in the following manner:

The card bears the following legend or instructions:

and contains a number of partially perforated disks with a feminine name printed immediately above each disk and the word "push" printed on the face of each disk. Concealed from the purchaser or prospective purchaser and within each disk is a number ranging from 1 to 39 but the numbers are not arranged in numerical sequence. When a disk is pushed or separated from the card, the number concealed, as aforesaid, is for the first time disclosed or exposed and the purchaser pushing the disk or separating the disk from the card must pay in cents the amount of the number so disclosed and upon such payment receives for the amount so paid a 1-pound box of candy. One purchaser may thus be required to pay 39 cents for a pound box of respondent's candy, while another purchaser may be required to pay 1 cent or any other intervening amount between 1 cent and 39 cents for a pound box containing candy of like grade and quality. Whether a purchaser is to pay 1 cent or any intervening amount up to 39 cents for a pound box of candy of like grade and quality is determined solely and wholly by lot or chance. The other assortments of box candy manufactured, distributed, and sold by respondent as aforesaid involve a lottery or chance feature similar to the one just above described, varying only in detail.

PAR. 3. Retail dealers purchasing all or any one of respondent's said assortments of box candy, directly or indirectly, expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan or one similar thereto but varying in detail. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of its box candy and the use of such plan or methods in the sale of its box candy and the sale of said box candy by and through the use thereof and by the aid of the aforesaid sales plan or methods similar thereto, varying only in detail, is a practice of the sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws of many States of the United States.

PAR. 4. The sale and distribution of candy by the retailers by the method described herein or methods similar thereto, varying only in detail, as distributed by respondent, is the sale and distribution of candy by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. Many competitors regard such method of sale and distribution of candy as contrary to public policy; as morally bad and encouraging gambling; as injurious to the candy industry itself, because it results in the merchandising of candy by means of a lottery scheme; and as providing retail merchants with a means of violating the public policy and the laws of the several States. Many persons, firms and corporations who sell or distribute candy in competition with respondent are unwilling to adopt and use the same or a similar sales plan or methods or any method involving the sale of candy by chance or lottery in violation of public policy or in violation of criminal statutes. The retailers are attracted by the sales plan of respondent and the element of chance involved therein and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's box candy in preference to box candy offered for sale by the competitors of respondent who do not use the same or a similar sales method, resulting in diverting trade to respondent from its said competitors who do not use a similar sales method. As a result thereof, substantial injury is being, and has been, done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the substituted answer filed thereto by the respondent, Nutrine Candy Co., admitting the material allegations of fact in the complaint to be true, and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearing as to the said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusions, which findings and conclusions are hereby made a part hereof, that said respondent has violated the provisions of an act of Congress entitled "An Act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and for other purposes" approved October 15, 1914, as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act, approved June 19, 1936 (title 15, sec. 13) and that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That respondent, Nutrine Candy Co., a corporation, its officers, directors, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution, and delivery of its bulk candy and box candy in interstate commerce do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. The unlawful discrimination in prices found in paragraphs 2 and 3 of count 1 of the aforesaid findings as to the facts and conclusion.

2. Engaging in any similar discrimination in price in the sales of its bulk candy in interstate commerce under substantially like circumstances and conditions between purchasers competitively engaged one with the other in the resale of said candies of like grade and quality.

3. Selling or distributing candy or any other merchandise so packed and assembled that sales of said candy or other merchandise to the general public are to be made or may be made by means of a lottery, gaming device, or gift enterprise.

4. Supplying to or placing in the hands of dealers assortments of said candy or any other merchandise, together with punchboards, push or pull cards, or other lottery devices, which said punchboards, push or pull cards, or other lottery devices are to be used or may be used in selling or distributing said candy or other merchandise to the general public.

5. Supplying to or placing in the hands of dealers, punchboards, push or pull cards, or other lottery devices, either with assortments of said candy or other merchandise or separately, which said punchboards, push or pull cards, or other lottery devices are to be used or may be used in selling or distributing said candy or other merchandise to the general public.

6. Selling or otherwise disposing of said candy or any other merchandise by the use of punchboards, push or pull cards, or any other device or devices.

It is further ordered, That the respondent Nutrine Candy Co., a corporation, shall within 60 days after service upon it of this order file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with the order to cease and desist hereinabove set forth.

IN THE MATTER OF

JOHN C. JOHNSON, TRADING AS JOHNSON'S LIXOLENE
COMPANYCOMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914*Docket 3887. Complaint, Sept. 9, 1939—Decision, Dec. 19, 1939*

Where an individual engaged in manufacture, sale, and distribution of medicinal preparation which was recommended by him for treatment of eczema, ringworm, athlete's foot, and other diseases, ailments and conditions of skin and scalp, and which consisted, essentially, of solution of salicylic acid in diluted mixture of alcohols, together with small amount of boric acid and trace of methyl salicylate; in advertisements concerning his said product which he disseminated through the mails, through circulars and other printed or written matter distributed in commerce among the various States, and through continuities broadcast from radio stations of extrastate audience, and through various means, and which were intended and likely to induce, directly or indirectly, purchase of his said product—

- (a) Represented that his said product, or "Johnson's Lixolene," was a safe skin remedy and reliable compound and effective antiseptic and powerful germicide, and competent, adequate and effective remedy for treatment and cure of eczema, athlete's foot, acne, psoriasis, dandruff, poison ivy, warts, and corns;
- (b) Represented that all eczemas and other diseases of the skin are caused by parasitic infection, and that proper treatment for relief or cure thereof is local application of a mild germicide such as his said product, and that such product constituted competent, adequate and effective remedy for diseases of scalp, such as dandruff, seborrhea, and alopecia, and gave complete relief for all parasitic infections of skin and scalp; and
- (c) Represented that he was a physician or doctor of medicine and had a recognized standing and reputation as a dermatologist and chemist, and was properly qualified by education, research, and training to prescribe for various diseases of skin and scalp;

Facts being his said product or "Lixolene" did not have qualities or achieve results claimed and represented as above set forth, was neither skin remedy nor powerful germicide nor competent, adequate or effective remedy or cure for eczema or for various other conditions above set forth, and had no therapeutic value in treatment thereof, beyond temporarily relieving, due to its mildly antiseptic and counter-irritant properties, itching, all eczemas and other skin diseases are not caused by parasitic infection, but eczemas in many cases are due to allergic conditions resulting from food contacts, plant pollens or other causes, requiring, for proper treatment in many cases, complicated procedure of competent physician, he was neither physician or doctor of medicine nor possessed of recognized standing or reputation as dermatologist or chemist, and facts set forth by him with reference to cause of acne and reproduction of bacteria and functioning thereof in causing skin diseases were false;

Complaint

With tendency and capacity, through use of such false and misleading statements, representations, and advertisements in designating or describing his said product and effectiveness in treatment of various diseases, ailments, and conditions of the skin and scalp, to mislead substantial portion of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that all of said representations were true, and that his product possessed properties represented and would, in truth, accomplish results claimed, and with result, as direct consequence of such mistaken and erroneous beliefs induced as aforesaid, that number of purchasing public bought substantial volume of his said product:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Mr. Merle P. Lyon for the Commission.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that John C. Johnson, an individual, trading as Johnson's Lixolene Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent is an individual trading under the name and style of Johnson's Lixolene Co., with his office and principal place of business located at 4028 Hill Crest Drive, San Diego, Calif. Respondent is now, and for several years last past has been engaged in the manufacture, sale, and distribution of a medicinal preparation known as "Johnson's Lixolene," which is recommended by him for the treatment of eczema, ringworm, athlete's foot, psoriasis, acne, dandruff, poison ivy, warts, corns, and other diseases, ailments, and conditions of the skin and scalp.

PAR. 2. Said respondent, being engaged in business as aforesaid, causes and has caused his said product "Johnson's Lixolene," when sold, to be transported from his place of business in San Diego, Calif., to purchasers located in States of the United States other than the State of origin of such shipments, and in the District of Columbia. There is now, and has been during all the times herein mentioned, a course of trade in the aforementioned product sold by the respondent in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of his said business, the respondent has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning his said product, by United States mails, by circulars and other printed or written matter, all of which are distributed in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, and by continuities broadcast from radio stations which have sufficient power to, and do, convey the programs emanating therefrom to listeners located in various States of the United States other than the State in which said broadcasts originate, and by other means in commerce as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of his said product; and has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning his said product, by various means, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of his said product in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act. Among, and typical of the false statements and representations contained in said advertisements, disseminated and caused to be disseminated, as aforesaid, are the following:

Johnson's Lixolene. The Safe Skin Remedy.

A Reliable Compound, An Effective Antiseptic, A Powerful Germicide. Used Externally for Eczema, Athlete's Foot, Acne, Ringworm, Psoriasis, Dandruff, Poison Ivy, Warts and Corns.

It is a well established fact that all Eczemas of the skin are caused by parasitic infection and the proper treatment is the local application of a Real Germicide on the skin where the disorder is present.

When these parasites get through the epidermis or outer layer of the skin, they take up their abode in the tissues where they can get a good supply of blood, lay their eggs, and hatch millions in just a short time.

The cause of Acne is the clogging of the pore or gland by a morbidly increased discharge of sebaceous matter on the skin; this hard tallow or grease in the gland causes it to become enlarged and inflamed, thus a portal is made and an invitation given for the germ to enter and develop the dreaded stage of Acne known as Acne Vulgares. Treatment to be desired for Acne in any stage is a mild germicide applied locally, which will gently peel the epidermis or outer skin and kill the parasite.

Johnson's Lixolene has proven to be a marvelous remedy in giving complete relief to a great host of young people whose faces were badly marred by the ravages of Acne.

Diseases of the Scalp—As Dandruff, Seborrhea and Alopecia. In recent years science has discovered that these disorders are all caused by parasites or germs in the skin. Through years of experience as a Dermatologist and chemist, we are glad to offer to any who need a real remedy for dandruff, Johnson's Lixolene.

This radio address is given by Dr. J. C. Johnson, the author of Johnson's Lixolene, "The Safe Skin Remedy," for the benefit of those who are interested in knowing of this new remedy which is offered in the drug stores for the relief of even the most chronic cases of eczemas. This is our third time to broadcast over this station, spreading the news about the therapeutic value of Lixolene in giving complete relief from the causes of all parasitic infections of the skin.

On account of the distinctive therapeutic value of Johnson's Lixolene to completely relieve all parasitic infections of the skin, we are receiving thousands of letters from grateful people who have been cured of all types of skin diseases as mentioned in this letter above.

PAR. 4. Through the use of the statements and representations hereinabove set forth, and other similar statements not herein set out, all of which purport to be descriptive of respondent's product and its effectiveness as a remedy or cure for the various diseases, ailments and conditions of the skin hereinbefore set out, the respondent has falsely represented, directly and by inference and implication, among other things: (1) That respondent's product "Johnson's Lixolene" is a safe skin remedy, a reliable compound, an effective antiseptic, a powerful germicide, and a competent, adequate and effective remedy for the treatment and cure of eczema, athlete's foot, acne, ringworm, psoriasis, dandruff, poison ivy, warts, and corns; (2) that all eczemas and other diseases of the skin are caused by parasitic infection, and that the proper treatment for the relief or cure thereof is the local application of a mild germicide such as respondent's product; (3) that respondent's product is a competent, adequate, and effective remedy or cure for diseases of the scalp, such as dandruff, seborrhea, and alopecia; (4) that respondent's product gives complete relief for all parasitic infections of the skin and scalp; and (5) that respondent is a medical doctor, and has a recognized standing and reputation as a dermatologist and chemist; and is peculiarly qualified by education, research and training to cure or prescribe for the various diseases of the skin and scalp.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid representations, used and disseminated by the respondent in the manner above described, are grossly exaggerated, misleading, and untrue, and constitute false advertisements. The true facts are that Johnson's Lixolene does not have any of the qualities or achieve any of the results claimed and represented as hereinbefore described.

Johnson's Lixolene consists essentially of a solution of salicylic acid in a diluted mixture of alcohols, together with a small amount of boric acid and a trace of methyl salicylate. Insofar as their action on the skin is concerned, these ingredients are all local irritants and mild antiseptics which may have some tendency to dissolve or wash away fat and greasy materials on the skin and produce a destruction of the superficial cell layers of the skin.

Johnson's Lixolene is neither a safe skin remedy, a reliable compound, an effective antiseptic, nor a powerful germicide. The ingredients contained therein are definitely irritating and are dangerous to use except under the direction of a competent physician. Johnson's Lixolene is not a competent, adequate or effective remedy or cure for eczema, acne, ringworm, psoriasis, dandruff, poison ivy, seborrhea, or alopecia. All eczemas and other diseases of the skin are not caused by parasitic infection, but many eczemas result from contact with foods, plant pollens, or other causes. The proper treatment for eczemas and other skin ailments is not in all cases the local application of a mild germicide, but many cases of eczema, acne, and other ailments of the skin must be treated by a complicated procedure under the skillful direction of a competent physician. Respondent's product will not give complete relief for all parasitic infections of the skin or scalp. Respondent is not a physician or medical doctor and has no recognized standing or reputation as a dermatologist or chemist. Moreover, respondent's advertising representations as to the cause of acne and eczemas of the skin are unscientific, false, and deceptive. Acne is not caused by a parasite, and bacteria do not reproduce by laying eggs, or cause skin diseases by hatching millions of germs under the skin.

PAR. 6. The use of the aforesaid false and misleading statements, representations and advertisements by the respondent in designating or describing his said product, Johnson's Lixolene, and its effectiveness in the treatment of the various diseases, ailments, and conditions of the skin and scalp, in offering for sale and in selling his said product, had, and now has, a tendency and capacity to mislead a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that all of said representations are true, and that said product possesses the properties represented and will in truth accomplish the results claimed.

PAR. 7. As a direct consequence of the mistaken and erroneous beliefs induced by the acts and representations of the respondent, as hereinabove detailed, a number of the purchasing public has purchased a substantial volume of respondent's said product, Johnson's Lixolene.

PAR. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on September 9, 1939, issued, and on October 6, 1939, served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent John C. Johnson, an individual trading as Johnson's Lixolene Co., charging him with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On October 25, 1939, the respondent filed his answer in which answer he admitted all of the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and the answer thereto, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent is an individual trading under the name and style of Johnson's Lixolene Co., with his office and principal place of business located at 4028 Hill Crest Drive, San Diego, Calif. Respondent is now, and for several years last past has been, engaged in the manufacture, sale, and distribution of a medicinal preparation known as "Johnson's Lixolene," which is recommended by him for the treatment of eczema, ringworm, athlete's foot, psoriasis, acne, dandruff, poison ivy, warts, corns, and other diseases, ailments, and conditions of the skin and scalp.

PAR. 2. Said respondent, being engaged in business as aforesaid, causes and has caused his said product "Johnson's Lixolene," when sold, to be transported from his place of business in San Diego, Calif., to purchasers located in States of the United States other than the State of origin of such shipments, and in the District of Columbia. There is now and has been during all the times herein mentioned, a course of trade in the aforementioned product sold by the respondent in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of his said business, the respondent has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning his said product, by United States mails, by circulars and other printed or written matter, all of which are distributed in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, and by continuities broadcast from radio stations which have sufficient power to, and do, convey the programs emanating therefrom to listeners located in various States of the United States other than the State in which said broadcasts originate, and by other means in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of his said product; and has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning his said product, by various means, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of his said product in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act. Among, and typical of the false statements and representations contained in said advertisements, disseminated and caused to be disseminated, as aforesaid, are the following:

Johnson's Lixolene. The Safe Skin Remedy.

A Reliable Compound, An Effective Antiseptic, A Powerful Germicide. Used Externally for Eczema, Athlete's Foot, Acne, Ringworm, Psoriasis, Dandruff, Poison Ivy, Warts, and Corns.

It is a well established fact that all Eczemas of the skin are caused by parasitic infection and the proper treatment is the local application of a Real Germicide on the skin where the disorder is present.

When these parasites get through the epidermis or outer layer of the skin, they take up their abode in the tissues where they can get a good supply of blood, lay their eggs, and hatch millions in just a short time.

The cause of Acne is the clogging of the pore or gland by a morbidly increased discharge of sebaceous matter on the skin; this hard tallow or grease in the gland causes it to become enlarged and inflamed, thus a portal is made and an invitation given for the germ to enter and develop the dreaded stage of Acne known as Acne Vulgares. Treatment to be desired for Acne in any stage is a mild germicide applied locally, which will gently peel the epidermis or outer skin and kill the parasite.

Johnson's Lixolene has proven to be a marvelous remedy in giving complete relief to a great host of young people whose faces were badly marred by the ravages of Acne.

Diseases of the Scalp—As Dandruff, Seborrhea, and Alopecia. In recent years science has discovered that these disorders are all caused by parasites or germs in the skin. Through years of experience as a Dermatologist and chemist, we are glad to offer to any who need a real remedy for dandruff, Johnson's Lixolene.

This radio address is given by Dr. J. C. Johnson, the author of Johnson's Lixolene, "The Safe Skin Remedy," for the benefit of those who are interested in knowing of this new remedy which is offered in the drug stores for the relief of even the most chronic cases of eczemas. This is our third time to broadcast over this station, spreading the news about the therapeutic value of Lixolene in giving complete relief from the causes of all parasitic infections of the skin.

On account of the distinctive therapeutic value of Johnson's Lixolene to completely relieve all parasitic infections of the skin, we are receiving thousands of letters from grateful people who have been cured of all types of skin diseases as mentioned in this letter above.

PAR. 4. Through the use of the statements and representations hereinabove set forth, and other similar statements not herein set out, all of which purport to be descriptive of respondent's product and its effectiveness as a remedy or cure for the various diseases, ailments, and conditions of the skin hereinabove set out, the respondent has falsely represented, directly and by inference and implication, among other things: (1) That respondent's product "Johnson's Lixolene" is a safe skin remedy, a reliable compound, an effective antiseptic, a powerful germicide, and a competent, adequate, and effective remedy for the treatment and cure of eczema, athlete's foot, acne, psoriasis, dandruff, poison ivy, warts, and corns; (2) that all eczemas and other diseases of the skin are caused by parasitic infection, and that the proper treatment for the relief or cure thereof is the local application of a mild germicide such as respondent's product; (3) that respondent's product is a competent, adequate, and effective remedy or cure for diseases of the scalp, such as dandruff, seborrhea, and alopecia; (4) that respondent's product gives complete relief for all parasitic infections of the skin and scalp; and (5) that respondent is a medical doctor, and has a recognized standing and reputation as a dermatologist and chemist, and is peculiarly qualified by education, research and training to cure or prescribe for the various diseases of the skin and scalp.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid representations, used and disseminated by the respondent in the manner above described, are grossly exaggerated, misleading and untrue, and constitute false advertisements. The true facts are that Johnson's Lixolene does not have any of the qualities or achieve any of the results claimed and represented as hereinabove described.

Johnson Lixolene consists essentially of a solution of salicylic acid in a diluted mixture of alcohols, together with a small amount of boric acid and a trace of methyl salicylate. Insofar as their action on the skin is concerned, these ingredients are all local irritants and mild antiseptics which may have some tendency to dissolve or wash away fat and greasy materials on the skin and produce a destruction of the superficial cell layers of the skin.

Johnson's Lixolene is neither a skin remedy nor a powerful germicide. It is not a competent, adequate, or effective remedy or cure for eczema, acne, psoriasis, dandruff, poison ivy, seborrhea, or alopecia, and it does not have any therapeutic value in the treatment thereof in excess of temporarily relieving the symptom of itching due to its mildly antiseptic and counter-irritant properties. All eczemas and other diseases of the skin are not caused by parasitic infection, but many eczemas of the skin are caused by allergic conditions which may result from contact with foods, plant pollens or other causes. The proper treatment for eczemas and other skin ailments is not in all cases the local application of a mild germicide, but many cases of eczema, acne and other ailments of the skin must be treated by a complicated procedure under the skillful direction of a competent physician. Respondent is not a physician or medical doctor and has no recognized standing or reputation as a dermatologist or chemist. Respondent's product will not give complete relief for all parasitic infections of the skin or scalp. Moreover, respondent's advertising representations as to the cause of acne and eczemas of the skin are unscientific, false, and deceptive. Acne is not caused by a parasite, and bacteria do not reproduce by laying eggs, or cause skin diseases by hatching millions of germs under the skin.

PAR. 6. The use of the aforesaid false and misleading statements, representations, and advertisements by the respondent in designating or describing his said product, Johnson's Lixolene, and its effectiveness in the treatment of the various diseases, ailments, and conditions of the skin and scalp, in offering for sale and in selling his said product, had, and now has, a tendency and capacity to mislead a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that all of said representations are true, and that said product possesses the properties represented and will in truth accomplish the results claimed.

PAR. 7. As a direct consequence of the mistaken and erroneous beliefs induced by the acts and representations of the respondent, as hereinabove detailed, a number of the purchasing public has purchased a substantial volume of respondent's said product, Johnson's Lixolene.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

tions of fact set forth in said complaint and states that he waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent John C. Johnson, an individual trading as Johnson's Lixolene Co., or trading under any other name or names, his agents, servants, representatives, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, do forthwith cease and desist from:

Disseminating or causing to be disseminated any advertisement by means of the United States mails or in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, by any means, for the purpose of inducing, or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of the medicinal preparation known as Johnson's Lixolene, or any other medicinal preparation composed of substantially similar ingredients or possessing substantially similar therapeutic properties, whether sold under the same name or under any other name or names, or disseminating or causing to be disseminated, any advertisement by any means for the purpose of inducing, or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, of said medicinal preparation, which advertisements represent directly or through implication:

1. That the use of respondent's preparation is a remedy or cure for eczema, acne, psoriasis, dandruff, poison ivy, seborrhea, or alopecia, or has any therapeutic value in the treatment thereof in excess of temporarily relieving the symptom of itching by reason of its mildly antiseptic and counter-irritant properties.

2. That respondent's preparation is a germicide.

3. That all eczemas or other diseases of the skin are caused by parasitic infection.

4. That the use of respondent's preparation will give relief for all parasitic infections of the skin or scalp.

5. That the proper treatment for eczema or other skin ailments is, in all cases, the local application of a germicide.

6. That respondent is a physician or medical doctor, or that he has any recognized standing or reputation as a dermatologist or chemist.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after the service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF
NATIONAL NUMBERING MACHINE COMPANY, INC.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SUBSEC. (A) OF SEC. 2 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED OCT. 15, 1914,
AS AMENDED BY AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED JUNE 19, 1936

Docket 3889. Complaint, Sept. 12, 1939—Decision, Dec. 19, 1939

Where a corporation engaged in manufacture of typographic numbering machines of five-wheel and six-wheel type for stock, and in sale, offer and distribution of such machines to purchasers in commerce among the various States engaged in substantial competition with each other in resale of said machines, and, as engaged as aforesaid in manufacture, sale, etc., of such machines, in active competition with others engaged in manufacture, sale, and distribution in commerce of similar products—

- (a) Discriminated in price between dealer purchasers in active competition with one another in resale of such machines to same prospective purchasers, through selling to certain company 100 machines at net price of $6 per machine, while selling, at or about same time, 300 machines of like grade and quality at net price of $5 per machine to dealer competitor, by whom substantial number of such machines, thus purchased by it, were advertised and resold at net price of $7.50 and $8.50 for the five-wheel and six-wheel types, respectively; and
- (b) Discriminated in price through selling for resale its machines of like grade and quality in quantities of five or less and at net prices varying from $6 to $8 per machine to various other concerns, corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships competitive the one with the other;

With the result that the effect of such discriminations in price made by it as aforesaid in sale in commerce of its said typographic numbering machines of like grade and quality to purchasers competitive the one with the other, had been and might be—

(1) Substantially to lessen competition with it and with favored purchasers;

(2) To tend to create a monopoly in it and in said favored purchasers in line of commerce in which it and favored customers engaged; and

(3) To injure, destroy or prevent competition in sale and distribution of said typographic numbering machines between it and its competitors, and between said favored purchasers of said machines receiving such discriminatory prices and other less favored competing purchasers of same machines not receiving such discriminatory prices:

Held, That said corporation discriminated in price in sale in commerce of its said machines of like grade and quality to purchasers competitive one with the other, in violation of provisions of subsection (a) of section 2 of the Clayton Act, as amended.

COMPLAINT

The Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that the party respondent named in the caption above and hereinafter more particularly described, at various times since June 19, 1936, has violated and is now violating the provisions of subsection (a) of section 2 of the Clayton Act, as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act, approved June 19, 1936 (U. S. C. title 15, sec. 13), issues its complaint stating its charges with respect thereto as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, National Numbering Machine Co., Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its office and place of business at 1 Beekman Street, New York, N. Y. Said respondent was incorporated in 1936 and from that time up to June 1938, manufactured special made-to-order typographic numbering machines. Thereafter respondent commenced the production of typographic numbering machines for stock. Respondent sells and distributes such machines in commerce between and among the various States of the United States causing said machines to be shipped and transported from their place of manufacture in New York, N. Y., to purchasers thereof located in the various States of the United States.

PAR. 2. For more than 25 years prior to June 1938, typographic numbering machines were manufactured, sold, and distributed in the United States by 4 producers, all located in New York City. Two of such producers sell and distribute their machines at list prices of $12 per machine for the 5-wheel type and $14 per machine for the 6-wheel type. The other 2 sell and distribute their machines at list prices of $13 for the 5-wheel type and $15 for the 6-wheel type. All of said machines are sold and distributed to dealers at a functional discount of 33½ percent from list price and are sold and distributed to users at a discount from list price of 5 percent on purchases of 6 to 11 machines, 10 percent on purchases of 12 to 24 machines, 15 percent on purchases of 25 to 49 machines, and 20 percent on purchases of 50 machines or more.

PAR. 3. In June 1938, respondent began the manufacture, sale, and distribution of stock typographic numbering machines at list prices of $13 for the 5-wheel type and $15 for the 6-wheel type per machine. Several months after June 1938, however, respondent in an effort to compete more effectively with the better-known machines of its older and better established competitors reduced its list prices thereon to $11 for the 5-wheel type and $13 for the 6-wheel type and offered discounts to the trade generally from said list prices of 35 percent on purchases of 6 to 12 machines, 40 percent on purchases of 12 to 25 machines, 40 percent plus 5 percent on purchases of 25 to 100 machines and special discounts on purchases of 100 machines or more.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of its business as aforesaid, respondent is now and during the time herein mentioned has been in substantial competition with other corporations, individuals, partnerships, and firms engaged in the business of manufacturing, selling, and distributing typographic numbering machines in commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

PAR. 5. In the course and conduct of its business as above described, respondent has discriminated in price and is now discriminating in price between different purchasers buying typographical numbering machines of like grade and quality for resale to dealers and users by giving and allowing to some of its purchasers of said machines lower prices than those given or allowed to other of its purchasers competitively engaged one with the other in the resale of the said machines to dealers and ultimate users within the United States. Respondent, since June 1938, sold 300 of said machines of both the 5- and 6-wheel type to the Craftsmen Machinery Co. of Boston, Mass., at a net price of $5 per machine and at or about the same time has sold 100 machines of like grade and quality to the American Wood Type Manufacturing Co. of New York City at a net price of $6 per machine, both of which concerns are dealers in said machines and are in active competition one with the other for the resale of said machines to the same prospective purchasers. The Craftsmen Machinery Co. has advertised and resold a substantial number of the machines so purchased at unit prices of $7.50 for the 5-wheel type and $8.50 for the 6-wheel type. The respondent has likewise, since June 1938, sold for resale machines of like grade and quality in quantities of 5 or less to various other concerns, corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships at net prices varying from $6 to $8 per machine.

PAR. 6. The general effect of said discriminations in price made by said respondent as above set out has been and may be substantially to lessen competition with respondent and with the favored purchasers; to tend to create a monopoly in respondent and in said favored purchasers in the line of commerce in which said respondent and said favored purchasers are engaged; to injure, destroy, or prevent competition in the sale and distribution of said typographic numbering machines between respondent and its competitors and between the said favored purchasers of said machines receiving such discriminatory prices and other less favored competing purchasers of the same machines not receiving said discriminatory prices.

PAR. 7. The foregoing alleged acts of said respondent are in violation of section 2 (a) of the Clayton Act, as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act, approved June 19, 1936 (U. S. C., title 15, sec. 13).

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of an act of Congress entitled "An Act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies and for other purposes," approved October 15, 1914 (The Clayton Act), as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act, approved June 19, 1936 (title 15, sec. 13), the Federal Trade Commission on the 12th day of September 1939, issued and thereafter served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondent, National Numbering Machine Co., Inc., a corporation, charging it, the aforesaid corporation, with violating the provisions of section 2 of the Clayton Act as amended, by the Robinson-Patman Anti-discrimination Act approved June 19, 1936, (U. S. C. title 15, sec. 13).

After the issuance and service of the said complaint, the said respondent, National Numbering Machine Co., Inc., by its attorney Irvin Fox, filed a request with the Commission seeking an extension of time within which to file the answer of respondent. By an order entered on the 28th day of October 1939, the Commission extended such time from October 3, 1939, to October 30, 1939. On October 4, 1939, the said respondent, National Numbering Machine Co., Inc., by its attorney Irvin Fox, filed its answer admitting all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearings as to the said facts.

Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the complaint filed and served as aforesaid, the motion to extend time for filing answer, the order extending said time, the answer of respondent admitting all the material allegations of fact in said complaint, the waiver, by the respondent, of all intervening procedure and further hearing, and the Commission now having duly considered the record and being fully advised in the premises, makes this its findings as to the facts and from these facts draws the conclusion hereinafter set out.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, National Numbering Machine Co., Inc., is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of New York, with its principal office and place of business located at 1 Beekman Street, in the city of New York, N. Y., and until June 1938, was engaged in the manufacture of special made-to-order typographic numbering machines.

Since June 1938, the said respondent has been, and now is, engaged in the city of New York in the manufacturing of typographic numbering machines of the five-wheel and six-wheel type for stock, and in the sale, offering for sale, selling, and distribution of such machines to purchasers in commerce between and among the various States of the United States. In the course of its business respondent causes said machines when sold, to be shipped and transported from its principal place of business in the State of New York to purchasers thereof in the State of New York and in the various States of the United States.

In so carrying on its business as aforesaid, respondent has been, and now is, engaged in active competition with other corporations, individuals, partnerships, and firms engaged in the manufacture of typographic numbering machines and in the sale and distribution thereof in commerce between and among the various States of the United States; and the purchasers of said machines manufactured and sold by respondent as aforesaid, in the course of their business in reselling said machines, have been for several years last past, and are now, in substantial competition with each other.

PAR. 2. The Craftsman Machinery Co. of Boston, Mass., and the American Woodtype Manufacturing Co. of New York City are dealers in typographic numbering machines and are in active competition one with the other in the resale of such machines to the same prospective purchasers. Respondent sold to American Woodtype Manufacturing Co. of New York City 100 machines at a net price of $6 per machine, and at or about the same time sold to the Craftsman Machinery Co. of Boston, Mass., 300 machines of like grade and quality at a net price of $5 per machine. The Craftsman Machinery Co. of Boston, Mass., advertised and has resold a substantial number of the machines, purchased as aforesaid, to users at a net price of $7.50 and $8.50 for the 5-wheel and 6-wheel type respectively.

The respondent has likewise since June 1938, sold for resale its machines of like grade and quality, in quantities of five or less, to various other concerns, corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships, competitive the one with the other, at net prices varying from $6.00 to $8.00 per machine.

The different prices as found and set out herein amount to, and are, discriminations in price in commerce between purchasers of respondent's typographic numbering machines.

Order

30 F. T. C.

PAR. 3. The Commission finds that the discriminations in price made by respondent, as aforesaid, in the sale in commerce of its typographic numbering machines of like grade and quality to purchasers competitive the one with the other, has been, and may be,

(a) Substantially to lessen competition with respondent and with the favored purchasers.

(b) To tend to create a monopoly in respondent and in said favored purchasers in the line of commerce in which said respondent and in which favored customers engage.

(c) To injure, destroy or prevent competition in the sale and distribution of said typographic numbering machines between respondent and its competitors and between said favored purchasers of said machines receiving such discriminatory prices and other less favored competing purchasers of the same machines not receiving such discriminatory prices.

CONCLUSION

The Commission therefore concludes that the respondent, National Numbering Machine Co., Inc., has discriminated in price in the sale in commerce of its typographic numbering machines of like grade and quality to purchasers, competitive one with the other, as hereinabove set out, in violation of the provisions of subsection (a) Section 2 of the Clayton Act as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act, approved June 19, 1936, (U. S. C. title 15, sec. 13).

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer filed by respondent, National Numbering Machine Co., Inc., admitting the material allegations of fact in the complaint to be true, and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearing as to the said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom, which findings and conclusion are hereby made a part hereof, that said respondent has violated the provisions of an Act of Congress entitled "An act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies and for other purposes" approved October 15, 1914, as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act approved June 19, 1936, (U. S. C. title 15, sec. 13).

It is ordered, That respondent, National Numbering Machine Co., Inc., and its successors, together with its respective officers, directors, representatives, agents, and employees, in the sale of respondent's typographic numbering machines of like grade and quality sold for use, consumption, or resale within the United States, do forthwith cease and desist from:

(a) Discriminating in price, either directly or indirectly, between the Craftsman Machinery Co. and the American Woodtype Manufacturing Co., and, where either or any of the sales are in interstate commerce, between other purchasers competitively engaged one with the other in the resale of such machines, by selling such typographic numbering machines to such customers at the different prices set forth in paragraph 2 of the aforesaid findings as to the facts and conclusion.

(b) Discriminating in price, where either or any of the sales are in interstate commerce, between different purchasers competitively engaged in the resale of its typographic numbering machines by means of price differences substantially similar to the price differences set forth in paragraph 2 of the aforesaid findings as to the facts and conclusion unless the differences between the prices paid by such purchasers make only due allowance for differences in the cost of manufacture, sale, or delivery resulting from the differing methods or quantities in which such machines are to such purchasers sold or delivered.

It is further ordered, That the respondent, the National Numbering Machine Co., Inc., a corporation, shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with the order to cease and desist hereinabove set forth.

MODIFIED ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST, ETC.

This matter coming on to be heard by the Commission upon the motion of the Chief Counsel for the Commission, filed November 1, 1939, that the Commission modify the order to cease and desist as entered herein on March 3, 1932, and it appearing that notice that said motion would be heard by the Commission on November 15, 1939, was duly served upon respondents, and it further appearing that respondents herein have not been engaged in the manufacture of cigars under the brand names "Havana Fruit" and "Havana Velvet," respectively, since the year 1933, and that said respondents have no intention of resuming the manufacture and sale of cigars under such brand names, and the Commission having duly considered the said motion and the record herein, and being now fully advised in the premises.

It is ordered, That the motion to modify the order to cease and desist issued herein on March 3, 1932, be, and the same hereby is, granted in all respects except for the period of time within which said respondents are directed to file a report of compliance with the terms of this order.

It is further ordered, That the order to cease and desist issued herein on March 3, 1932, be, and the same hereby is, modified so as to read as follows:

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the entire record, including the complaint of the Commission, and the answer of the respondents thereto, the stipulation as to the facts agreed upon and approved; and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of section 5 of the act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

It is now ordered, That W. H. Snyder, R. P. Snyder, and Roger N. Snyder, partners, doing business under the trade name and style W. H. Snyder & Sons, and each of them, their agents, individual or corporate, representatives, servants, employees, and successors in business, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of cigars in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do cease and desist from:

Using the word "Havana" or any other word or words, terms, or picturizations indicative of Cuban origin or descriptive of Cuba, alone or in conjunction with any other word or words, to describe, designate, or in any way to refer to cigars which are not made from tobacco grown on the island of Cuba.

It is further ordered, That the respondents shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

It is further ordered, That within the period of 2 years and 30 days from August 10, 1939, the respondent Herbert L. Smith, be and is hereby directed and ordered to file with the Federal Trade Commission a report in writing setting forth with particularity the manner in which he has complied with the terms of this order.

IN THE MATTER OF YARDLEY OF LONDON, INC.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 2330. Complaint, Mar. 15, 1935—Decision, Dec. 20, 1939

Where a domestic corporation, subsidiary of an English concern of London, engaged at its place of business in the United States in mixing, compounding, and manufacturing, among other toilet requisites, cosmetics and products, soaps, perfumes, powders, bath salts, facial creams, brilliantines, and after-shaving lotions, from such domestic products, as case might be, as alcohol, distilled water, mineral oil, borax, waxes, glycerin, menthol crystals, salt crystals, magnesium, and petroleum jelly, and from such imported products as perfume concentrates, milling chips or ribbons, imported waxes and others, and in sale and distribution of its various products from its place of business to retail dealer purchasers at various points in the several States and in the District of Columbia, in substantial competition with others engaged in sale and distribution of like and similar products in commerce as aforesaid—

- (a) Represented, in advertisements in newspapers and other publications circulating among the various States and in said District, and on labels as below set forth and otherwise, that said products were English and imported, through use of words "London," "English," or "Old English," and other words, depictions, etc., indicative of English origin, and made use of such terms and phrases as "33 Old Bond Street," "Straight from Bond Street" and word "London" as part of its corporate name, in connection with offer of said various products;
- (b) Made use of labels which were identical with those used by the parent company in England, and there made, for its perfumes compounded in this country, from London perfume concentrates, domestic alcohol and distilled water, and placed in bottles made, in some instances, in the United States from English molds and designs, and which consisted of old English print depicting vendors of lavender flowers in London in the 1770's, and bore inscription "YARDLEY'S OLD ENGLISH LAVENDER—Yardley & Company, Ltd., London—Est. 1770," and sold its said perfume, thus bottled and labeled, in containers bearing the same imprint and words "YARDLEY Old English LAVENDER—33 Old Bond Street, London,"; and
- (c) Made use of such words as "English," "Old English," "33 Old Bond Street, London," in describing its Complexion Cream and other products made as above set forth, and made use of label substantially identical with that employed on its perfume, as above described, on its bath salts, together with words "YARDLEY London," and set forth on boxes in which bottles of its said salts, thus labeled, were packed, words "YARDLEY LAVENDER BATH SALTS—Established in England in 1770," together with designation or reproduction on top of each box of Royal Coat of Arms with familiar lion and unicorn, and legend, underneath, "By Appointment to H. M. The Queen—YARDLEY—33 Old Bond Street, London";

Notwithstanding fact perfumes and other products thus referred to, designated and labeled, were mixed and compounded, as above set forth, in this country from domestic and imported ingredients, and did not originate as finished products in London, or England;

With tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive a substantial part of the purchasing and consuming public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that all of said products were made and compounded into the finished or completed product in England, and then imported into the United States, and, as such, decidedly preferred by some members of purchasing public over similar and less expensive articles of domestic manufacture by reason of widespread popularity and demand long enjoyed by toilet requisites made or compounded in England or France, and superiority thereof, as believed by many, in quality and other desirable characteristics over similar articles made or compounded in the United States; and

With result that purchasing and consuming public bought substantial portion of its said products as and for those made and compounded in England, and trade was thereby unfairly diverted to it from its competitors engaged in manufacture, sale, and distribution, or in sale and distribution, of toilet requisites, including perfumes, cosmetics, bath salts, after-shaving lotions, brillantines and facial creams, and who truthfully represent the country wherein their products are made or compounded; to the substantial injury of competition in commerce:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce.

Before Mr. Edward M. Averill, Mr. John J. Keenan, and Mr. Robert S. Hall, trial examiners.

Mr. John W. Hilldrop and Mr. Morton Nesmith for the Commission.

Townsend & Lewis, of New York City, for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of an act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Yardley of London, Inc., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has been and is using unfair methods of competition in commerce as "commerce" is defined in said act of Congress, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Yardley of London, Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New Jersey, with its principal place of business located at Union City, in the State of New Jersey. It is now and, for a number of years last past, has been engaged as a subsidiary of Yardley and Co., Ltd., of London, England, in the importation, mixing, compounding, and manufacturing of toilet requisites, including soaps, powders, perfumes, cosmetics, and other products, and in the sale and distribution of said products in commerce between and among various States of the United States. It causes and has caused said products, when sold, to be shipped from its place of business in the State of New Jersey to purchasers thereof located in a State or States other than the State of New Jersey. In the course and conduct of its business, Yardley of London, Inc., was at all times herein referred to in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged in the sale and distribution in interstate commerce of similar products.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, Yardley of London, Inc., caused advertisements and advertising matter to be inserted in newspapers and other publications having interstate circulation and wherein appeared the following statements which were published and circulated in the various States of the United States of America: "World-wide Christmas Broadcast from 33 Old Bond Street" and "Each year from Yardley House in London, thousands of gifts go out to the four corners of the earth." In the said advertisements certain articles of merchandise which respondent ships and distributes to and into various of the States of the United States of America from its place of business in the State of New Jersey, were referred to in said advertisements as "Yardley's English Lavender," "Yardley's Famous English Lavender Soap," "English Lavender," "Yardley's English Lavender Bath Salts." In said advertisements so published as aforesaid, an invitation was extended by respondent to the retailers thereof to "give yourself an English complexion," and in said advertisements the following statements were made: "Those marvelous English complexions you'll see at the Embassy Club in London—almost anywhere in Mayfair—haven't just happened that way. English women take care of their complexions * * *." Respondent, in announcing the opening of a certain retail shop by it which it maintains at 620 Fifth Avenue, New York City, in which it sells the articles of merchandise it manufactures at its place of business in New Jersey and ships to said shop at 620 Fifth Avenue in the city of New York, N. Y., in interstate commerce, caused the following advertisements to be inserted in newspapers having an interstate circulation and which were published and distributed in various of the States of the United States of America: "Straight from Bond Street and fragrant with English Lavender." "From their shop in Bond Street, London, Yardley has brought gifts of dignity and charm to you." "Christmas with all the charm of Old England." "Yardley of London." "Cosmetics imported from Bond Street." "We are constantly in receipt of bulk shipments from our factories in England"; when in truth and in fact, the said products so advertised and shipped in interstate commerce as aforesaid or a large portion thereof were not manufactured, mixed, branded, or compounded into the finished product in England and were not imported into the United States of America as finished products from England, but were products composed of ingredients which though imported from England, were mixed or compounded into the finished product in the United States of America; or were products, some of the ingredients of which were obtained from or through Yardley and Company, Ltd., London, England, and thereafter mixed or compounded in the United States of America with ingredients of domestic production to form the finished product.

PAR. 3. There is a preference on the part of certain of the buying public for goods, wares, and merchandise which are manufactured in foreign countries and imported into the United States of America, and such goods so manufactured and imported command and bring from the said section of the public a higher price in the markets of the United States of America than domestic goods, wares, and merchandise of the same nature and description. The advertising and the labeling of its goods, wares, and merchandise by respondent in manner and form as hereinbefore set out have a capacity to mislead and deceive the purchasing public by creating the impression and belief that the products advertised and offered for sale by respondent in interstate commerce as aforesaid are all manufactured in England and imported to America, which has the tendency and capacity to divert trade to respondent from the competitors of respondent who actually import similar goods, wares and merchandise which are manufactured in foreign countries, into the United States for sale to the buying public and from those competitors of respondent who manufacture and sell in interstate commerce similar goods, wares and merchandise to those sold in interstate commerce by respondent but who truthfully represent same to be manufactured in the United States instead of foreign countries.

PAR. 4. Wherefore, the above alleged acts and things done by respondent are to the prejudice of the public and respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce within the intent and meaning of section 5 of an act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," approved September 26, 1914.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on March 15, 1935, issued, and on March 16, 1935, served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondent, Yardley of London, Inc., charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by John W. Hilldrop and Morton Nesmith, attorneys for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by Dallas S. Townsend, attorney for the respondent, before Edward M. Averill, John J. Keenan and Robert S. Hall, examiners of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto, and the oral arguments of Morton Nesmith and Dallas S. Townsend; and the Commission, having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Yardley of London, Inc., is a New Jersey corporation. Its plant and principal place of business is located in Union City, N. J. It also maintains a retail shop at 620 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Respondent is now, and for some time last past has been, a subsidiary of Yardley and Co., Ltd. of London, England. Respondent is now, and for several years last past has been, engaged in the mixing, compounding, and manufacturing of toilet requisites and cosmetics, including soaps, perfumes, powders, bath salts, facial creams, brilliantines, after shaving lotions, and other products, and in the sale and distribution thereof in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

In the course and conduct of its business, the respondent offers for sale and sells its products in commerce as aforesaid to retail dealers purchasing said products for resale. When the products are so sold, the respondent causes them to be transported from its place of business in the State of New Jersey to the purchasers thereof located at various points in the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and for some time past has maintained, a course of trade in its products in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its business, respondent is, and has been for some time past, engaged in substantial competition with other corporations and with partnerships, firms, and individuals engaged in the sale and distribution of like and similar products in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. Respondent in the course of its business has caused certain representations to be made with respect to its preparations through advertisements inserted in newspapers and other publications having a circulation between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Typical of said representations are the following:

World-wide Christmas broadcast from 33 Old Bond Street.

Each year from Yardley House in London, thousands of gifts go out to the four corners of the earth.

Give yourself an English complexion.

Those marvelous English complexions you'll see at the Embassy Club in London—almost anywhere in Mayfair—haven't just happened that way. English women take care of their complexions * * *.

Straight from Bond Street and fragrant with English Lavender.

From their shop in Bond Street, Yardley has brought gifts of dignity and charm to you.

Christmas with all the charm of Old England.

Yardley of London.

Cosmetics imported from Bond Street.

In said advertisements, on the labels used for the products hereinafter referred to, and in other ways, the respondent has described and referred to all of said products as being English and as being imported products. Some of said products are specifically designated as follows:

Yardley's English Lavender.

Yardley's Famous English Lavender Soap.

English Lavender, and Yardley's English Lavender Bath Salts.

PAR. 4. The procedure generally followed by respondent in manufacturing its products is as follows: The respondent receives certain imported ingredients in bulk from its parent company, Yardley and Co., Ltd. of London. At the respondent's plant in Union City, New Jersey, these ingredients are mixed, in most cases, with certain domestic ingredients according to the parent company's formula for that particular product. Among the domestic ingredients which are used in the manufacture of respondent's products are the following: Alcohol, borax, carbonate, magnesium, calcium carbonate, castor oil, bath salt crystals, colors and dyes, glycerin, mineral oil, paraffin wax, rice starch, potassium hydroxide, zinc oxide, greases, vaseline, menthol crystals, and magnesium stearate.

The procedure followed by respondent in the manufacture of its perfumes is as follows: Respondent imports from London perfume concentrates or compounds which consist of a blended mixture of various oil extracts from flowers and plants. The concentrate is not a usable commodity until alcohol, which is the diluting medium is added. Respondent, at its plant in New Jersey, adds domestic alcohol and distilled water in varying percentages to this concentrate and produces a usable and merchandisable perfume. The perfume is then placed into bottles which are in some instances made in the United States from English molds and designs. The bottles are then labeled with labels made in England which are identical with those used by respondent's parent company. Each of these labels consists of an old English print depicting the vendors of lavender flowers in London in the 1770's and bears the following inscription:

YARDLEY'S OLD ENGLISH
LAVENDER
Yardley & Company, Ltd.
London
Est. 1770

After being bottled and labeled, the perfume is placed into boxes. Each box has imprinted upon it the print above described and is inscribed as follows:

YARDLEY
Old English
LAVENDER
London

The procedure followed by respondent in the manufacture of its soap is as follows: Respondent imports from London milling chips or ribbons. At its plant in New Jersey, it adds the perfume concentrate to the chips or ribbons and this mixture is then pressed or stamped by machines into cakes of soap. The cakes are then imprinted, wrapped and put into boxes for shipment.

Respondent's English Complexion Cream is composed of several imported ingredients and two domestic ingredients, namely, mineral oil and borax. The mixing, compounding and transformation takes place in respondent's plant in Union City, N. J.

Respondent's "Lavender Brilliantine" is composed of five waxes and one perfume. Three of these waxes are obtained domestically and are mixed in respondent's plant in New Jersey with the imported ones. To this mixture is added the perfume. This perfume consists of the imported compound or concentrate to which has been added varying percentages of domestic alcohol as above described. The completed product is packed in metal containers upon which appear the print above described and which bear the following inscription:

YARDLEY'S
Old English Lavender
Solidified
BRILLIANTINE
YARDLEY
London

Respondent's "After Shaving Lotion" is composed of the following domestic products: alcohol, distilled water, glycerin, and menthol crystals, to which is added the imported perfume concentrate. These ingredients are mixed and compounded at respondent's plant in Union City, N. J.

Respondent's "Lavender Bath Salts" is composed of salt crystals, magnesium and perfume. The salt crystals and magnesium are domestically obtained and the perfume which is added consists of the perfume concentrate plus domestic alcohol. These ingredients are mixed and compounded at respondent's plant in Union City, N. J. The completed product is bottled and labeled, the label, except for the addition of the words "Bath Salts," being identical with that used on respondent's perfume. The metal top has imprinted thereon:

YARDLEY
London

These bottles are then packed in boxes which are labeled:

YARDLEY
LAVENDER BATH SALTS
Established in England in 1770

Respondent's "Night Cream #1441," as it is known in this country, or "Skin Food" as known in England, is composed of six ingredients, three of which are domestically obtained, namely, mineral oil, petroleum jelly, and borax. These ingredients are mixed and compounded at respondent's plant in Union City, N. J.

PAR. 5. Toilet requisites, including cosmetics and perfumes, made or compounded in England or France, have for many years enjoyed widespread popularity and demand on the part of a portion of the American purchasing public, many of whom believe and consider that such articles made or compounded in England or France are superior in quality and other desirable characteristics to similar articles made or compounded in the United States. There is, therefore, a decided preference for such articles by some members of the purchasing public, and such imported articles sell for a higher price in this country than similar articles of domestic manufacture. Tariff duties are higher on such imported articles in the finished or completed form than on bulk shipments of certain of the ingredients thereof.

PAR. 6. The use by the respondent of the statements, claims, and representations as herein set out and others of similar import, not herein set out, in connection with the sale and distribution of its aforesaid products, has had, and now has, the tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive a substantial part of the purchasing and consuming public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that all of said products are manufactured and compounded into the finished or completed product in England and then imported into the United States.

As a result of this mistaken and erroneous belief, the purchasing and consuming public have purchased a substantial portion of respondent's products, with the result that trade has been unfairly diverted to the respondent from its competitors engaged in the manufacture, sale, and distribution or in the sale and distribution of toilet requisites, including perfumes, cosmetics, bath salts, after shaving lotions, brillian-tines, and facial creams, who truthfully represent the country wherein their products are made or compounded. As a consequence thereof, substantial injury has been and is being done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondent, testimony and other evidence taken before Edward M. Averill, John J. Keenan, and Robert S. Hall, examiners of the Commission, theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, briefs filed herein and oral arguments by Morton Nesmith, counsel for the Commission, and by Dallas S. Townsend, counsel for the respondent, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Yardley of London, Inc., its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of toilet requisites and cosmetics, including, without limitation, perfumes, bath salts, facial creams, brilliantines, and after shaving lotions in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing, through the use of the words "London" (except as provided in paragraph 3 hereof), "English," or "Old English," or through the use of any other words, phrases, symbols or picturizations indicative of English origin, or through any other means or device, or in any manner, that any of the aforesaid toilet requisites and cosmetics which were in fact made, compounded, diluted or bottled in the United States, or in any place other than England, were made, compounded, diluted or bottled in England or are of English origin; provided, however, that the country of origin of the various ingredients thereof may be stated when immediately accompanied by a statement that such products were made, compounded, diluted or bottled, as the case may be, in the United States or in such place other than England.

2. Using the terms or phrases "33 Old Bond Street," "Straight from Bond Street," or any other words or phrases of similar import to describe or in any way refer to any of the aforesaid toilet requisites or cosmetics which were in fact made, compounded, diluted or bottled in the United States or in any place other than England.

3. Using the word "London" as part of its corporate name in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of any of the aforesaid toilet requisites or cosmetics, which were in fact made, compounded, diluted or bottled in the United States or in any place other than England, without clearly and conspicuously stating in immediate connection therewith that such products were made, compounded, diluted or bottled, as the case may be, in the United States or in such place other than England.

Where four partners engaged in sale and distribution of their drug-containing "Mange Lotion" to purchasers in various other States and in the District of Columbia; in advertisements which they disseminated through the mails, through insertion in circulars and other printed or written matter distributed in commerce in the various States, and in other ways and through various other means, and which were likely and intended to induce, directly or indirectly, purchase of their said preparation—

- (a) Represented that their said product was a competent and effective cure or remedy and treatment for eczema and all types of mange, abscesses, cuts, sores, and other diseases and disorders of the skin on dogs and that, where thus used, it would in all cases cause hair to grow;
- (b) Represented that, applied to human beings, it constituted such a cure or remedy and treatment for eczema and all cases of itching scalp, and competent and effective cure or remedy for athlete's foot and dandruff, and would cause hair to grow on bald spots on the head of human beings; and
- (c) Represented that it was a guaranteed treatment for itching of scalp on human beings and for scratching dogs;

Facts being said preparation would not in all cases cause hair to grow on dogs, was not such a cure, remedy, or treatment for eczema or itching scalp or for other conditions above set forth, would not cause hair to grow on bald spots as above, was not such a cure, remedy, or treatment for any diseases or disorders of skin on dogs or human beings due to or persisting because of systemic disorder or condition, guarantee was limited to refund of purchase price and was not of preparation's therapeutic value, and representations and claims made as above were otherwise false and misleading and false advertisements;

With effect of misleading and deceiving substantial number of members of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that such false and misleading statements and representations were true, and into purchase of its said drug-containing preparation:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth were all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Mr. Maurice C. Pearce for the Commission.

AMENDED AND SUPPLEMENTAL COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that W. H. Shanks, W. J. Goggin, Clara Shanks, and Jessie G. Goggin, individuals and copartners trading as Shanks Laboratories, hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its amended and supplemental complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondents, W. H. Shanks, W. J. Goggin, Clara Shanks, and Jessie G. Goggin, are individuals and copartners trading as Shanks Laboratories and having their principal office and place of business in the city of Columbus, State of Ohio.

PAR. 2. The respondents are now, and have been for several years last past, engaged in the business of selling and distributing a medicinal preparation containing drugs designated "Shanks Mange Lotion." Respondents cause said preparation, when sold by them, to be transported from their aforesaid place of business in the State of Ohio to the purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in various States of the United States other than the State of Ohio, and in the District of Columbia. Respondents maintain, and at all times herein mentioned have maintained, a course of trade in said preparation in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of their aforesaid business, the respondents have disseminated and are now disseminating, and have caused and are now causing the dissemination of false advertisements concerning their said preparation, by United States mails, by insertion in circulars and other printed or written matter, all of which are distributed in commerce among and between the various States of the United States; and by other means in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of their said preparation; and have disseminated and are now disseminating, and have caused and are now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning their said preparation, by various means, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of their said preparation in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act. Among and typical of the false statements and representations contained in said advertisements disseminated and caused to be disseminated, as aforesaid, are the following:

The guaranteed treatment. For itchy scalps and scratching dogs.

I have been successful in compounding a preparation to be used in the treatment of mange, eczema, cuts, sores, abscesses, etc. that over a period of 20 years * * * it has never failed to effect a rapid clearing up of all forms of skin diseases * * *.

Nothing is much more unsightly not to mention the uncomfortableness, of a dog that is continually scratching and biting at himself in order to allay the continual itch. * * * In every case without one single exception Shanks Mange Lotion has cleared up this condition and produced a growth of coat.

Shanks gives quick relief, controls many so-called "hopeless cases" of mange, eczema and similar skin diseases.

One application brought results. It brings quick relief from mange and has cleaned up many so-called hopeless cases of skin disorders * * *.

Shanks controls almost "hopeless" skin diseases.

I find your Mange Lotion the most wonderful coat and skin conditioner I have ever used. It cleared up a very bad case of mange amazingly fast.

You, too, will find Shanks Mange Lotion the greatest preparation you have ever used.

SHANKS MANGE LOTION—FOR HUMAN USE—SCALP AND DANDRUFF TREATMENT.

A treatment of this kind every week or 10 days will clear a scalp of dandruff and stop any itching condition.

I was troubled with an itching condition of my scalp for several years. This was so annoying that many nights after retiring I was compelled to get up and wash my scalp with cold water, which gave temporary relief. Shanks Mange Lotion used once or twice monthly has cleaned up this condition entirely and keeps the scalp feeling fine.

Alopecia (bald or bare spots that appear rather suddenly). Some physicians claim this is caused by a nervous condition, some claim they do not know what the cause is. Regardless of the cause Shanks Mange Lotion used twice daily has never failed to clear up this condition and produce a regrowth of hair.

I have had a bald spot on my head about the size of a half dollar for over six months and have been treating it by a physician with salves, lotions and lights, but no results. A barber recommended I try Shanks Mange Lotion. I purchased a 50¢ size bottle and applied it twice daily. Before this amount was all used the hair was coming in thicker than on other parts of my head.

ATHLETE'S FOOT. The U. S. Department of Drugs and Foods claim this is incurable. Probably they are correct. However, if you are troubled with this condition give Shanks Mange Lotion a trial.

Infant 3 months old. All of body covered with eczema. Various remedies were used, all of which caused the child to cry and become very irritable. Shanks Mange Lotion was applied. It caused no discomfort to the child. After one application daily for ten days the skin appeared normal.

PAR. 4. Through the use of the aforesaid statements and representations and others of similar import or meaning not herein set out, the respondents represent directly or by implication that said preparation is a competent and effective cure or remedy, and a competent and effective treatment, for eczema, all types of mange, abscesses, cuts, sores, and all other diseases and disorders of the skin on dogs and that the use of said preparation will in all cases cause hair to grow on dogs. The respondents further represent, as aforesaid, that said preparation when applied to human beings is a competent and effective cure or remedy, and a competent and effective treatment, for eczema and all cases of itching scalp, that said preparation is a competent and effective cure or remedy for athlete's foot and dandruff, and will cause hair to grow on bald spots on the head of human beings. The respondents further represent, as aforesaid, that the said preparation is a guaranteed treatment for itching of the scalp on human beings and for scratching dogs.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid statements and representations by respondents, used and disseminated in the manner above described, are false and misleading and constitute false advertisements. In truth and in fact, said preparation is not a cure or remedy or a competent or effective treatment for eczema, all types of mange, abscesses, cuts, sores, or all other diseases or disorders of the skin on dogs. Said preparation will not in all cases cause hair to grow on dogs. Said preparation is not a cure or remedy or a competent or effective treatment for eczema or all cases of itching of the scalp on human beings. Said preparation is not a cure or remedy for athlete's foot or dandruff and will not cause hair to grow on bald spots on the head of human beings. Said preparation is not a cure or remedy or a competent or effective treatment for any diseases or disorders of the skin on dogs or human beings which diseases or disorders are due to or persist because of a systemic disorder or condition. Said preparation is not a guaranteed treatment for itching of the scalp on human beings or for scratching dogs. Such guarantee is limited by the respondents to a refund of the purchase price of said preparation to the purchaser thereof but is not a guarantee of the therapeutic value of said preparation.

PAR. 6. The use by the respondents of the aforesaid false and misleading statements and representations has the tendency and capacity to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial number of members of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that the aforesaid false and misleading statements and representations are true and into the purchase of respondents' said medicinal preparation containing drugs.

PAR. 7. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on July 26, 1939, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondents, W. H. Shanks, W. J. Goggin, Clara Shanks, and Jessie G. Goggin, individuals and copartners trading as Shanks Laboratories, charging them with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On August 29, 1939, the Commission issued its amended and supplemental complaint in this proceeding, and subsequently served said complaint upon said respondents. On November 17, 1939, the respondents filed their answer, in which answer they admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said original complaint and in said amended and supplemental complaint and waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said original complaint and said amended and supplemental complaint and the answer thereto, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondents, W. H. Shanks, W. J. Goggin, Clara Shanks, and Jessie G. Goggin, are individuals and copartners trading as Shanks Laboratories, and having their principal office and place of business in the city of Columbus, State of Ohio.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint and the amended and supplemental complaint of the Commission and the answer of the respondents, in which answer respondents admit all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and in said amended and supplemental complaint and state that they waive all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondents, W. H. Shanks, W. J. Goggin, Clara Shanks, and Jessie G. Goggin, individually and as copartners trading as Shanks Laboratories, or trading under any other name or names, their representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, do forthwith cease and desist from:

Disseminating or causing to be disseminated any advertisement, by means of the United States mails, or in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, by any means, for the purpose of inducing or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of the medicinal preparation designated by the name "Shanks Mange Lotion," or any other medicinal preparation composed of substantially similar ingredients or possessing substantially similar therapeutic properties, whether sold under the same name or under any other name or names, or disseminating or causing to be disseminated any advertisement by any means for the purpose of inducing, or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, of said medicinal preparation, which advertisements represent, directly or through implication:

1. That said preparation is a cure or remedy or a competent or effective treatment for eczema, abscesses, cuts, or sores.

2. That said preparation is a cure or remedy for athlete's foot or dandruff.

3. That said preparation will cause hair to grow on bald spots on the head of human beings.

4. That said preparation is in all cases a competent or effective treatment for itching scalp on human beings or mange on dogs.

5. That said preparation is a cure or remedy or a competent or effective treatment for any diseases or disorders of the skin on human beings or dogs, unless such representations are restricted to those cases of such diseases or disorders which are not due to and do not persist because of a systemic disorder.

It is further ordered, That the respondents shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

BEN RANSOM, TRADING AS RANSOM ELECTRIC COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3905. Complaint, Sept. 30, 1939—Decision, Dec. 20, 1939

Where an individual engaged in business of buying for resale and selling to retail trade, incandescent electric lamp bulbs, including certain of said products made in Japan and by him imported therefrom, and marked or branded as there made, and including also bulbs purchased by him from domestic manufacturers and certain products made under trade name "Elite Lamp Service," and, as thus engaged, in selling his said products to purchasers at various points in other States and in the District of Columbia, in competition with others engaged in sale and distribution of electric lamp bulbs, and including many competitors who do not in any manner misrepresent their products or the source or origin thereof—

- (a) Represented that said imported products were of domestic manufacture or origin, through removing therefrom words "Made in Japan" and packing same in cartons upon which were printed words "Made in U. S. A." and "Lednew Lamps" or "The Lednew Corporation," and selling and shipping, thus containered and marked, said bulbs to purchasers in commerce as aforesaid set out, with effect of misleading and deceiving purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that bulbs manufactured in and imported from Japan were made in the United States; and
- (b) Represented that bulbs dealt in by him as aforesaid were made by other than the real or actual manufacturer, through setting forth, on cartons in which he placed certain bulbs brought from domestic makers, as name of purported manufacturer of product enclosed, name of which was not that of manufacturer of lamp bulbs enclosed therein, or, in some instances, name of any manufacturer of such products, with effect of misleading and deceiving purchasing public and causing it erroneously to believe that domestically manufactured bulbs were made by company whose name appeared on carton or container thereof, as above set forth, and that such products were of quality and grade of bulbs usually made and sold by concern whose name thus appeared; and
- (c) Represented that the Bureau of Standards had adopted and promulgated specifications for incandescent electric lamp bulbs, and that bulbs sold by him under trade name above set forth were made in conformity therewith, through statement "All the E. L. S. lamps are made in conformity with the specifications of the U. S. Bureau of Standards," facts being said bureau had not adopted or promulgated any such specifications with which his said product could conform;

With capacity and tendency to mislead substantial portion of purchasing public through such false, deceptive, and misleading acts and practices, and cause it to believe said statements and representations to be true, and with result, as direct consequence of such mistaken and erroneous beliefs induced by said acts and practices, that substantial number of consuming public purchased substantial volume of his said bulbs, and trade was thereby unfairly diverted to him from his competitors in commerce; to their substantial injury and that of the public:

Held, That such acts and practices were all to the prejudice of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

Mr. Clark Nichols for the Commission.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Ben Ransom, an individual trading as Ransom Electric Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be to the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Ben Ransom, is an individual trading as Ransom Electric Co., with his office and principal place of business located at 147 Second Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn. The respondent is now, and has been for several years last past, engaged in the business of buying and selling incandescent electric lamp bulbs. A large part of the electric bulbs bought and sold by the respondent are manufactured in Japan and imported by the respondent into the United States. Respondent in the conduct of his business as aforesaid has been, and is, engaged in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, by importing products from Japan and by causing his products, when sold, to be transported from his aforesaid place of business in the State of Tennessee to purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in the various States of the United States other than the State of Tennessee and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his aforesaid business, and at all times herein referred to, respondent has been, and is, in substantial competition with corporations, firms, partnerships, and other individuals engaged in the business of selling and distributing incandescent electric lamp bulbs in commerce among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, who do not use the methods or engage in the unfair acts or practices herein alleged.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of his business aforesaid, the respondent has been, and is, engaged in importing from Japan Japanese-manufactured incandescent electric lamp bulbs marked or branded with the words "Made in Japan." Before selling, said Japanese-manufactured incandescent lamp bulbs, respondents has removed, and does remove, the original mark or brand, "Made in Japan" in order to conceal from prospective purchasers the source of origin of said electric bulbs. In order to further mislead and deceive prospective purchasers as to the source of origin of said electric bulbs, respondent has inserted said bulbs, and does insert said bulbs, into small sleeves or wrappers upon which are printed the words "Lednew Lamps," "Made in the U. S. A.," "The Lednew Corporation" so as to signify that they were manufactured in the United States by the Lednew Corporation. Said lamp bulbs, enclosed in wrappers as aforesaid, have been, and are being, packed by the respondent into cartons or containers marked or branded with words or letters similar to those on the wrappers, including the words and letters, "Made in U. S. A.," "Lednew Lamps," and "The Lednew Corporation" which likewise signify that said products were manufactured in the United States by the Lednew Corporation. Said incandescent electric lamp bulbs, deceptively packed and marked as described above, have been sold, and are being sold, by the respondent in commerce as heretofore alleged.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of the business aforesaid, the respondent has purchased, and does purchase, incandescent lamp bulbs from various manufacturers in the United States; and said American-manufactured bulbs have been, and are being, packed and sold by respondent in packages or containers branded or marked with the name of a manufacturing concern which is not the true manufacturer thereof.

PAR. 5. In the course and conduct of the business aforesaid, and in order to induce the purchase of certain of his lamp bulbs sold under the name or brand of "The Elite Lamp Service," the respondent has distributed, and is now distributing, and causing to be distributed, to the purchasing public situated in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, circulars, pamphlets, wrappers, and other advertising material containing statements and representations relative to the quality and efficiency of said electric lamp bulbs. Among and typical of the false and misleading statements, disseminated as aforesaid, is the following:

All the E. L. S. lamps are made in conformity with specifications of the U. S. Bureau of Standards * * *

Through the use of the aforesaid statements and representations, and others of similar import and meaning not herein set forth, respondent has represented, directly and by implication, that the United States Bureau of Standards has adopted and promulgated specifications for incandescent electric lamp bulbs, and that respondent's electric lamp bulbs which have been and which are being sold by him under the trade name or brand of "The Elite Lamp Service" are made in conformity with such specifications.

The aforesaid statements and representations are false, misleading, and untrue. In truth and in fact, the United States Bureau of Standards has not adopted or promulgated any specifications for incandescent electric lamp bulbs with which respondent's said bulbs could conform.

PAR. 6. The use by the respondent of the foregoing false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations, and the aforesaid unfair and deceptive acts or practices, has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such statements and representations are true, and has caused, and now causes, a substantial portion of the purchasing public, because of such erroneous and mistaken belief, to purchase respondent's incandescent electric lamp bulbs. As a result thereof, trade in commerce among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia has been diverted unfairly to the respondent from his competitors who are likewise engaged in said commerce and who do not misrepresent the source or origin and quality of their incandescent electric lamp bulbs.

PAR. 7. The aforesaid methods, acts, or practices of the respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts or practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on the 30th day of September 1939, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondent, Ben Ransom, an individual, trading as Ransom Electric Co., charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing by respondent of three answers dated October 5, October 9, and October 23, 1939, respectively, the Commission, by order entered herein, granted respondent's motion for permission to withdraw said answers and to substitute therefor an answer admitting all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, which substitute answer was duly filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and substitute answer, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, Ben Ransom, is an individual and is the sole owner and operator of the Ransom Electric Co., and his business address is 211 Second Avenue North, Nashville, Tenn. The respondent is now, and has been for several years last past, engaged in the business of buying for resale and selling to the retail trade incandescent electric lamp bulbs.

PAR. 2. The respondent, in the conduct of such business, has caused said merchandise when sold to be shipped to purchasers thereof located at various points in the several States of the United States other than the State from which said shipments are made, and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the conduct of such business, the respondent is, and has been, in competition with other persons, and with corporations, firms, and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of incandescent electric lamp bulbs in commerce among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Among said competitors are many who do not in any manner misrepresent their products or the source or origin thereof.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of his business, as aforesaid, the respondent has been, and is engaged in importing from Japan incandescent electric lamp bulbs, manufactured in Japan, which bulbs were marked or branded with the words "Made in Japan." Before selling such bulbs so marked and branded, the respondent buffed off, or otherwise removed from the bulbs, the words "Made in Japan." Respondent then packed the bulbs in cartons upon which were printed the words "Made in U. S. A.," "Lednew Lamps," or "The Lednew Corporation" and sold and shipped said bulbs in said cartons to purchasers in commerce, as aforesaid. In some instances respondent purchases incandescent electric lamp bulbs from domestic manufacturers and places such lamp bulbs, when offered for sale and sold to retailers for resale to the public, in cartons or containers upon which is placed or printed the name of the purported manufacture thereof, which name in truth and in fact is not the name of the manufacturer of the lamp bulbs enclosed in said carton or container or, in some instances, the name of any manufacturer of such lamp bulbs.

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent have misled and deceived the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that the bulbs manufactured in, and imported from, Japan were made and manufactured in the United States of America. Such acts and practices also misled and deceived the purchasing public and caused it erroneously to believe that domestically manufactured bulbs were made and manufactured by the company whose name appears on the carton or container in which such bulbs are offered for sale and sold, and that such bulbs were of the quality and grade of bulbs usually made and sold by the company whose name appeared on said carton or container.

Respondent also purchased for resale certain incandescent electric lamp bulbs manufactured under the trade name "The Elite Lamp Service," and sold and distributed such lamps to retailers in commerce as above described for resale to the consuming public, and as a part of the sale and distribution of such lamps furnished to such retailers, advertising matter, circulars and pamphlets upon which was printed, among other things, the following statement with reference to the bulbs sold under said trade name:

All the E. L. S. lamps are made in conformity with the specifications of the U. S. Bureau of Standards

Through the use of the aforesaid statement and representation, respondent has represented, directly and by implication, that the United States Bureau of Standards has adopted and promulgated specifications for incandescent electric lamp bulbs and that respondent's said bulbs sold under said trade name are made in conformity with such specifications. The aforesaid statement and representation is false, misleading, and deceptive, for in truth and in fact the United States Bureau of Standards has not adopted or promulgated any specifications for incandescent electric lamp bulbs with which respondent's said bulbs could conform.

PAR. 5. Respondent's acts and practices as hereinabove described are false, deceptive and misleading and were and are calculated to and have the capacity and tendency to mislead a substantial portion of the purchasing public and cause it to believe that said statements and representations are true. As a direct consequence of such mistaken and erroneous beliefs induced by the acts and practices of the respondent as aforesaid, a substantial number of the consuming public has purchased a substantial volume of respondent's incandescent electric lamp bulbs with the result that trade has been unfairly diverted to respondent from his competitors in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, and substantial injury has been, and is now being, done by respondent to its competitors and to the public.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, Ben Ransom, trading as Ransom Electric Co., are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and states that he waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Ben Ransom, an individual, trading as Ransom Electric Co., his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of incandescent electric lamp bulbs in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing, through removal from bulbs of the words "Made in Japan" or the removal of any other words indicating foreign origin of bulbs, or by placing bulbs imported from Japan or any other foreign country in cartons or containers bearing the words "Made in the U. S. A.," "Lednew Lamps," or "The Lednew Corporation," or any other names indicating domestic manufacture of such bulbs or any other word or words indicating domestic origin, or in any other manner, that bulbs made or manufactured in Japan or any other foreign country are made or manufactured in the United States of America.

2. Representing, through names of purported manufacturers placed on the cartons or containers in which bulbs are offered for sale and sold, or in any other manner, that bulbs are manufactured or made by anyone other than the real or actual manufacturer thereof.

3. Representing, through the use of the statement "All of the E. L. S. lamps are made in conformity with the specifications of the U. S. Bureau of Standards," or any other words of similar import and meaning, that the bulbs offered for sale and sold by the respondent conform to specifications of the United States Bureau of Standards or any other bureau or division of the United States Government, unless and until such bureau or division has promulgated specifications for incandescent electric lamp bulbs and the products so represented conform thereto.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF
JOHNSON & JOHNSON, THE KENDALL COMPANY, AND THE BAY COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3393. Complaint, Apr. 29, 1938—Decision, Dec. 21, 1939

Where three corporations which (1) were engaged at their respective places of business in manufacture of medical supplies, such as gauze, bandages, bandage rolls, cotton sponges, napkins, pads, adhesives, and similar products, and in sale thereof among the various States of the United States, the Territories thereof, and in the District of Columbia, to purchasers in other States, (2) made, in the aggregate, about 85 percent of all such products manufactured in the United States and sold therein, with balance divided among 12 others, output of no one of which equalled that of any of the aforesaid three, and (3) were and, but for acts below set forth, would be, in competition with one another as to price in sale of said various products between and among the various States of the United States, etc.—

Entered into and carried out an agreement, combination, understanding, and conspiracy among themselves to fix and maintain, and by which they did fix and maintain, uniform prices to be exacted, and which they did exact, from purchasers of their said gauze, bandages, bandage rolls, and other products, as above set forth; and, in pursuance of said combination, agreement, etc.—

- (a) Concertedly fixed and maintained uniform prices for their said products, and communicated with one another proposed changes therein, in advance of trade notification thereof, and maintained for products aforesaid published list prices; and
- (b) Agreed to and did divide the United States into zones for which they fixed and maintained, concertedly, uniform prices exacted by them from purchasers of their said gauze bandages, bandage rolls, and other products, as above set forth;

With result that said acts and practices hindered and prevented price competition between and among said corporations in sale of said various products in commerce, and had a dangerous tendency so to do, and placed in such corporations power to control and enhance prices, and created in them a monopoly in sale of said various products and unreasonably restrained commerce therein:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice of the public, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. Robert S. Hall, trial examiner.

Mr. Edward L. Smith for the Commission.

Hurd, Hamlin & Hubbell, of New York City, and Mr. Kenneth Perry, of New Brunswick, N. J., for Johnson & Johnson.

Ropes, Gray, Boyden & Perkins, of Boston, Mass., for The Kendall Co.

Miller, Canfield, Paddock & Stone and Mr. Horace W. Bigelow, of Detroit, Mich., for The Bay Co.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Johnson & Johnson, The Kendall Co., and The Bay Co., hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent Johnson & Johnson is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New Jersey, with its principal office and place of business in New Brunswick in said State; respondent The Kendall Co. is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Massachusetts, with its principal office and place of business in the city of Walpole in said State; respondent The Bay Co. is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Connecticut, with its principal office and place of business in the city of Bridgeport in said State.

PAR. 2. The said respondents are now and since their being organized have been engaged in the manufacture at their respective places of business of medical supplies such as gauze bandage, bandage rolls, cotton sponges, napkins, pads, adhesives, and similar products, and in the sale thereof between and among the various States of the United States, the territories thereof, and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of their businesses, all of the said respondents for more than 5 years last past have caused and still cause such gauze bandages, bandage rolls, cotton sponges, napkins, pads, adhesives, and similar products, when sold directly and indirectly by them, to be transported in interstate commerce from their respective places of business to, into, and through various States of the United States other than the States in which they respectively have their factories and places of business, to the purchasers in such other States to whom such gauze bandages, bandage rolls, cotton sponges, napkins, pads, adhesives, and similar products, are and have been sold. Respondent The Kendall Co. now sells, and for more than 5 years last past has sold through two of its subsidiary corporations, Bauer & Black and Lewis Manufacturing Co., who in turn have sold directly and through agents, and sales are and have been made by the said respondents, Johnson & Johnson and The Bay Co., directly and through agents.

The amount of such gauze bandages, bandage rolls, cotton sponges, napkins, pads, adhesives, and similar products manufactured and sold directly and indirectly by the respondents constitutes and at all times since 1933 has constituted approximately 85 percent of all of the gauze bandages, bandage rolls, cotton sponges, napkins, pads, adhesives, and similar products manufactured in the United States and sold therein, the balance of such gauze bandages, bandage rolls, cotton sponges, napkins, pads, adhesives, and similar products manufactured in the United States being manufactured by 12 other manufacturers, none of which manufactures as much of such gauze bandages, bandage rolls, cotton sponges, napkins, pads, adhesives, and similar products as does any of the respondents, Johnson & Johnson, The Kendall Co., and The Bay Co. The respondents were prior to September 1933, in competition as to price with one another in the sale of such gauze bandages, bandage rolls, cotton sponges, napkins, pads, adhesives, and similar products between and among the various States of the United States, the territories thereof, and in the District of Columbia, and but for the combination, agreement, understanding, and conspiracy hereinafter described, said respondents would have been at all times since September 1933, and would now be in such price competition with one another.

PAR. 3. In September 1933, said respondents for the purpose of eliminating price competition among themselves, entered into, have since carried out, and are still carrying out, an agreement, combination, understanding, and conspiracy among themselves to fix and maintain, and by which they have fixed and maintained uniform prices to be, and which have been and are still being, exacted by them from their purchasers of such gauze bandages, bandage rolls, cotton sponges, napkins, pads, adhesives, and similar products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Pursuant to and for the purpose of carrying out the aforesaid combination, agreement, understanding, and conspiracy, the said respondents have, among other things, done the following:

(a) By agreement among themselves have fixed and maintained, and still fix and maintain, uniform prices for gauze bandages, bandage rolls, cotton sponges, napkins, pads, adhesives, and similar products, sold by them and by each of them;

(b) Agreed to divide, and pursuant to such agreement have divided the United States into zones for which zones the respondents have by agreement fixed and maintained and still fix and maintain uniform prices exacted by them from their purchasers of gauze bandages, bandage rolls, cotton sponges, napkins, pads, adhesives, and similar products.

PAR. 4. The acts and practices of the respondents as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public; have a dangerous tendency to and have actually hindered and prevented price competition between and among respondents in the sale of gauze bandages, bandage rolls, cotton sponges, napkins, pads, adhesives, and similar products in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act; have placed in respondents the power to control and enhance prices; have created in the respondents a monopoly in the sale of gauze bandages, bandage rolls, cotton sponges, napkins, pads, adhesives, and similar products in interstate commerce; have unreasonably restrained interstate commerce in gauze bandages, bandage rolls, cotton sponges, napkins, pads, adhesives, and similar products and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on April 29, 1938, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondents, Johnson & Johnson, The Kendall Co. and The Bay Co., charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondents' answers, the Commission, by order entered herein, granted respondents motions for permission to withdraw said answers and to substitute therefor answers admitting all of the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, which substitute answers were duly filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and substitute answers, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent Johnson & Johnson is a corporation organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New Jersey, with its principal office and place of business in New Brunswick in said State; respondent The Kendall Co. is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Massachusetts, with its principal office and place of business in the city of Walpole in said State; respondent The Bay Co. is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Connecticut, with its principal office and place of business in the city of Bridgeport in said State.

PAR. 2. The said respondents are now and since their being organized have been engaged in the manufacture at their respective places of business of medical supplies such as gauze, bandages, bandage rolls, cotton sponges, napkins, pads, adhesives, and similar products, and in the sale thereof between and among the various States of the United States, the territories thereof, and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of their businesses, all of the said respondents for more than 5 years last past have caused and still cause such gauze, bandages, bandage rolls, cotton sponges, napkins, pads, adhesives, and similar products, when sold directly and indirectly by them, to be transported in interstate commerce from their respective places of business to, into, and through various States of the United States other than the States in which they respectively have their factories and places of business, to the purchasers in such other States to whom such gauze, bandages, bandage rolls, cotton sponges, napkins, pads, adhesives, and similar products, are and have been sold. Respondent The Kendall Co. now sells, and for more than 5 years last past has sold through two of its subsidiary corporations, Bauer & Black and Lewis Manufacturing Co., who in turn have sold directly and through agents, and sales are and have been made by the said respondents, Johnson & Johnson and The Bay Co., directly and through agents.

The amount of such gauze, bandages, bandage rolls, cotton sponges, napkins, pads, adhesives, and similar products manufactured and sold directly and indirectly by the respondents constitutes and at all times since 1933 has constituted approximately 85 percent of all of the gauze, bandages, bandage rolls, cotton sponges, napkins, pads, adhesives, and similar products manufactured in the United States and sold therein, the balance of such gauze, bandages, bandage rolls, cotton sponges, napkins, pads, adhesives, and similar products manufactured in the United States being manufactured by 12 other manufacturers, none of which manufactures as much of such gauze, bandages, bandage rolls, cotton sponges, napkins, pads, adhesives, and similar products as does any of the respondents, Johnson & Johnson, The Kendall Co., and The Bay Co. The respondents were, prior to September 1933, in competition as to price with one another in the sale of such gauze, bandages, bandage rolls, cotton sponges, napkins, pads, adhesives, and similar products between and among the various States of the United States, the territories thereof, and in the District of Columbia, and but for the combination, agreement, understanding, and conspiracy hereinafter described, said respondents would have been at all times since September 1933, and would now be, in such price competition with one another.

PAR. 3. In September 1933, said respondents for the purpose of eliminating price competition among themselves, entered into, have since carried out, and are still carrying out, an agreement, combination, understanding, and conspiracy among themselves to fix and maintain, and by which they have fixed and maintained uniform prices to be, and which have been and are still being exacted by them from their purchasers of such gauze, bandages, bandage rolls, cotton sponges, napkins, pads, adhesives, and similar products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Pursuant to and for the purpose of carrying out the aforesaid combination, agreement, understanding and conspiracy, the said respondents have, among other things, done the following:

(a) By agreement among themselves: (1) Have fixed and maintained, and still fix and maintain, uniform prices for gauze, bandages, bandage rolls, cotton sponges, napkins, pads, adhesives, and similar products sold by them and each of them; (2) have communicated to one another proposed changes in the prices of the aforesaid products prior to the release to the trade of notice of such proposed changes in prices; (3) have maintained published list prices for the aforesaid products.

(b) Agreed to divide, and pursuant to such agreement have divided, the United States into zones for which zones the respondents have by agreement fixed and maintained and still fix and maintain uniform prices exacted by them from their purchasers of gauze, bandages, bandage rolls, cotton sponges, napkins, pads, adhesives, and similar products.

Order

30 F. T. C.

CONCLUSION

The acts and practices of the respondents as herein found are all to the prejudice of the public, have a dangerous tendency to and have actually hindered and prevented price competition between and among respondents in the sale of gauze, bandages, bandage rolls, cotton sponges, napkins, pads, adhesives, and similar products in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act; have placed in respondents the power to control and enhance prices; have created in the respondents a monopoly in the sale of gauze, bandages, bandage rolls, cotton sponges, napkins, pads, adhesives, and similar products in such commerce; have unreasonably restrained such commerce in gauze, bandages, bandage rolls, cotton sponges, napkins, pads, adhesives, and similar products and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answers of respondents, in which answers respondents admit all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and state that they waive all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondents, Johnson & Johnson, The Kendall Co., and The Bay Co., their respective officers, agents, servants, and employees, in connection with the sale and the offering for sale of gauze, bandages, bandage rolls, cotton sponges, napkins, pads, adhesives, and similar products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Entering into and carrying out any conspiracy, combination, or undertaking to fix and maintain uniform prices in the sale of gauze, bandages, bandage rolls, cotton sponges, napkins, pads, adhesives, and similar products to any and all classes and kinds of buyers.
2. Agreeing to communicate or communicating to any another changes and proposed changes in prices prior to the release to the trade in the regular course of business of notice of such price changes.
3. Agreeing to maintain and maintaining pursuant to any such agreement, published list prices.

4. Agreeing to divide, and dividing pursuant to such agreement, the United States into zones and with respect to such zones, fixing and maintaining uniform prices for gauze, bandages, bandage rolls, cotton sponges, napkins, pads, adhesives, and similar products.

It is hereby further ordered, That the respondents, and each of them, shall, within 60 days from the day of the date of the service upon them of this order, file with this Commission reports in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they shall have complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF THE ASSOCIATION OF AMERICAN ARTS, INC., ET AL.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3409. Complaint, May 7, 1938—Decision, Dec. 22, 1939

Where a corporation and two individuals who, together with a third, were the incorporators thereof and directed and controlled its activities, policies, and affairs, engaged in offer and sale of tinted or colored enlargements of family and other photographs and of frames therefor; and two other persons engaged as agents and sales representatives for said two individuals and corporation in the offer and sale of their aforesaid products and in serving, in the case of one of said persons, as assistant manager for said individuals and said corporation;

In carrying on their said business through visiting, directly and through agents and representatives employed by them, homes of prospective customers in cities, towns, and rural communities of the various States, and through sales talks containing approved methods of approach and convincing arguments for use in contacting such prospective purchasers, prepared and furnished by them for distribution among and use by their salesmen, along with sample cases containing attractive specimens of genuine pastel paintings, oil color and water color paintings, identification card or credentials, contract forms and blanks, receipts and similar documents, and certificates or coupons for use in connection with so-called "draw," as below set forth, and under general procedure by which (1) one of their agents or representatives obtained photograph to serve as model for alleged Venetian convex portrait paintings, pastel and other types of so-called "paintings," (2) second and different salesman, in due course, submitted outline or proof of enlarged photograph and then endeavored to collect full price agreed upon for uncompleted alleged "pastel" or "painting," and to induce customer to agree to buy frame therefor, and (3) third and final representative delivered alleged "pastel" or "painting" and collected any sum remaining due and for frame, if customer had agreed to buy one, and under which purchasers were given to understand that they were contracting or dealing with duly constituted agents or representatives of said corporation, individuals, and persons, or of one of their trade name companies; and, as aforesaid engaged, in direct and substantial competition with others likewise engaged in sale of tinted or colored photographs, enlargements, and frames therefor, in commerce among the various States, and with others engaged in similar sale of genuine original pastels and paintings, including oil and water colors—

(a) Represented, directly and through their said agents and sales representatives, that the finished pictures would be hand painted oil portraits on canvas and that paintings were done on Japanese silk, and made use of such terms as "pastel," "painting," "oil portraits," and "pastel portrait painting" to designate and refer to said photographs or enlargements thereof, or pictures produced on photographic base or impression, facts being so-called "pastels" or "paintings" were not such in any sense of word but, on contrary, were merely cheap, quickly made, photographic enlargements tinted or colored, and costing about $1.25 each; and

- (b) Represented that cost of production of one of so-called Venetian convex portrait paintings, unframed, was $3.98, while similar cost of the smaller pastel portrait painting, so-called, was $7.90, and that of larger one was $15.80, and that said prices for unframed paintings were special prices, and that "special" offers were being made to selected customers, to expire on given date, and due to advertising campaign which they were conducting;
- (c) Represented, that particular types of children were being selected for reproduction work in their art school, and that the work was being done by unemployed artists, and, through the trade names made use of by them and otherwise, that they or their businesses were artists or art associations, and that art work would be performed without charge, and that portrait paintings made by them were often purchased by advertising concerns, and that pictures of the children would be used as models in the studio conducted by them, and that they were conducting exhibitions from which cereal manufacturers would select subjects for use in their advertising, and that any compensation received as result of purchases by advertising concerns as aforesaid would be turned over to the children's parents; and
- (d) Represented, in aforesaid general connection, through one of such individuals, that he was an artist and had been commissioned to make such pastels or paintings and that it was necessary and advisable to have his signature as such artist on each picture, and that child's picture, if customer would agree, would be placed on exhibition at the Boston Studio of the supposed American Art Association, under which, and similar, trade names they carried on their business;

Facts being prices named as above set forth did not represent cost nor special prices but, on the contrary, their regular prices, which were highly exorbitant and fictitious in character, methods made use of by them were those employed customarily by them and their agents and sales representatives, in the conduct of their businesses, and said individual was not an artist commissioned, etc., as above set forth, and other statements above set out with respect to supposed nature of their said businesses as organizations of artists, and with respect to exhibition or purchase of children's portraits, etc., were false;

- (e) Represented, in connection with their said selling methods, that a drawing contest would be held to decide who should be one of a few lucky persons in a particular city or town to have placed in their homes by them free paintings, and made use, in such connection, of plan under which customer, allowed two draws or trials to win trade check or coupon, or blank, invariably drew former, to be advised, upon the conclusion of negotiation with the agent for a fine "pastel" or "painting" free at the close thereof, that a so-called nominal charge, assertedly representing merely "actual cost" of materials to be used, needed to be paid;

Facts being such alleged "draw" or "drawing" was mere sham device employed by them to induce prospective customer to believe that if he drew a lucky "coupon" or certificate he would thereby have distinct advantage of obtaining pastel or painting "free" or at price below that ordinarily charged customers, and other customers, unknown to each other, were similarly approached and likewise beguiled into erroneous belief that they were exceptional one favored by fortune and chance;

Complaint

- (f) Concealed from persons thus solicited and contacted fact that it would be impossible, due to specially designed, odd style of frame, to secure for alleged pastel or painting frame from any source other than themselves, and assured those inquiring in advance, that there would be no difficulty in such matter, and advised customers upon delivery of the completed picture, to their surprise, that it would be futile for them to have so-called pastels or paintings framed elsewhere, and gave them to understand that the pictures would soil or otherwise deteriorate unless suitably framed, including glass, and thus and thereby sold to customers, along with the alleged pictures, pastels, or paintings, frames at grossly exorbitant prices; and
- (g) Refused to return valued family photograph in case of controversy as to alleged misrepresentation as to character or quality of work or otherwise, and insisted upon holding purchaser to letter and terms of contract and enforcing compliance therewith.

With result that many customers, dissatisfied in aforesaid respects and who asserted misrepresentations, were forced to go through with contract in order to obtain return of treasured family photograph and public was misled and deceived, (1) through use of term "Art Association," as to character of business actually being conducted, and caused to confuse business in question with various organizations which might properly be designated under similar name as such associations, and, (2) through such false and misleading representations made directly or with knowledge, acquiescence and active cooperation of said individuals and persons with intent and result of selling said colored enlargements and frames therefore, was deceived concerning quality and value of their products and in other particulars as above described; and

With further result public was thereby induced to purchase said products in erroneous belief that they were high-grade, quality pastels or paintings and picture frames of exceptional merit and value, and trade was unfairly diverted to them from their competitors hereinabove set forth, including those who do not employ such practices in selling their tinted or colored enlargements and frames, but truthfully represent their products and honestly sell the same, and including those engaged in business of painting genuine pastels and paintings and who truthfully represent their products as such:

Mr. Marshall Morgan for the Commission.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that The Association of American Arts, Inc., a corporation; Edward Ziman and Harry Burney (otherwise known as H. E. Burney, H. E. Bernstein, and Harry E. Bernstein), individually, and trading as partners under the trade names American Art Association, Paramount Art Studios, and Royal Art Association; Jack A. Burney (otherwise known as Jack A. Bernie, Jacob Bernstein, and Jack A. Burnstein), individually, and trading as Burney Fairchild Studio and The Fine Art Portrait Co., and as agent for Edward Ziman, Harry Burney, and The Association of American Arts, Inc.; Peter F. Friedman (also known as Peter F. Fairchild), individually, and also trading as The Burney Fairchild Studio and as agent for Edward Ziman, Harry Burney, and The Association of American Arts, Inc.; Alfred Davis, Paul Seidler, Eli Lictofsky, and Hulbert Beauregard, individually, and as agents for Edward Ziman, Harry Burney, and The Association of American Arts, Inc., hereinafter referred to as respondent, have violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, The Association of American Arts, Inc., with its principal office and place of business located at 486 Boylston Street, Boston, Mass., was incorporated under the laws of the State of Massachusetts on July 6, 1937, with the following incorporators: Harry E. Bernstein, Edward Ziman, and Jack A. Bernie, who direct the activities and control the policy and affairs of such respondent company. These three persons, together with Paul Seidler and Eli Lictofsky, became and have served as directors of said corporation.

Respondents, Edward Ziman and Harry Burney are individuals residing at Boston in the State of Massachusetts and doing business at 486 Boylston Street, Boston, Mass., where they also are and have been trading as partners under the trade names American Art Association, Paramount Art Studios, and Royal Art Association.

The American Art Association and the Paramount Art Co., located at 486 Boylston Street, Boston, Mass., were registered at the office of the City Clerk at Boston, Mass., by respondents, Edward Ziman and Harry E. Bernstein, and on April 13, 1936, these respondents registered at the office of the City Clerk at Boston the Royal Art Co., located likewise at 486 Boylston Street, Boston, Mass. Respondents, Edward Ziman and Harry Burney, trading as individuals and likewise as partners, are the owners and the operators of the business conducted by them at the above stated Boston address through the medium of the aforementioned corporation and trade name companies and the agents and sales representatives employed by them, and they direct and have directed the activities and control and have controlled the business policies and practices of said companies.

Complaint

The American Art Association, stated to be doing business at 710 Eddy Street, Providence, R. I., was previously registered at the office of the City Clerk of Providence, R. I., on September 17, 1935, by Edward Ziman and Harry Burney, both stated to be of 1626 Commonwealth Avenue, Brighton, Mass. The Paramount Art Co. was registered at the same time at the office of the City Clerk at Providence, R. I., with the same personnel and same Providence address.

Respondents, Paul Seidler, Peter F. Friedman, also known as Peter F. Fairchild, Hulbert Beauregard, Eli Lictofsky, and Alfred Davis, individually, and through the medium of trade name companies, all located and doing business at 486 Boylston Street, Boston, Mass., are and have been agents and sales representatives for the said Edward Ziman, Harry Burney, and The Association of American Arts, Inc., Alfred Davis being also assistant manager for said respondents in connection with the businesses conducted by them at said address, 486 Boylston Street, Boston.

Respondents hereinabove named are now, and for some time last past have been, engaged in the business of offering for sale and selling tinted or colored enlargements of family and other photographs, and of frames therefor. Respondents sell their products directly and through the medium of salesmen or representatives appointed by them as agents in their behalf to customers located in States other than the State of Massachusetts. In consummating such sales and in distributing such products, respondents cause the pictures and frames so sold by them to be transported and delivered from their places of business in Boston in the State of Massachusetts through and into various other States of the United States to the respective purchasers thereof at their respective points of location. In the course and conduct of their said business, respondents have been and now are engaged in direct and substantial competition with various corporations, partnerships, and individuals likewise engaged in the sale of tinted or colored photographic enlargements and frames therefor in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, and likewise with corporations, partnerships, and individuals engaged in the sale of genuine original pastels and paintings, including oil paintings and water color paintings in commerce among the various States of the United States as will be more fully hereinafter shown.

PAR. 2. A crayon is a pencil-shaped piece of colored clay, chalk, or charcoal used for drawing upon paper. A crayon drawing is the act or art of drawing with crayons.

A drawing is a representation produced by the art of drawing; a work of art produced by pen, pencil, or crayon.

The pastel, in art, is a colored crayon made of pigments ground with chalk and compounded with water into a sort of paste. A drawing made with a colored chalk or crayon is called a pastel, as is also the art of drawing with colored crayons.

Paint is defined as a substance used in painting composed of a dry coloring material intimately mixed with a liquid vehicle. A painting is a likeness, image, or scene depicted with paints without the aid of photography.

A water color is a painting with pigments for which water, and not oil, is used as a solvent.

A portrait, in its ordinarily accepted meaning, is a picture of a person drawn from life, especially a picture or representation of a face; a likeness, particularly in oil.

An oil painting is a painting done by hand with brushes in plastic oil colors on canvas, or other material, without the aid of photography.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of their said business respondents directly and through agents and representatives employed by them visit the homes of prospective customers in cities, towns, and rural communities of the various States of the United States. Sales talks containing approved methods of approach and convincing arguments to be used in contacting prospective purchasers of pictures and of frames therefor, and contract forms and blanks, receipts, and similar documents, are prepared and furnished by respondents for distribution and use among their salesmen; also certificates or coupons to be used in connection with the "draw," as hereinafter related.

PAR. 4. Respondents make their pictures in the following manner: A negative is made of a family or other type of photograph furnished by the purchaser or consumer to one of respondents' agents or sales representatives. This photograph is and has been obtained by the salesman or sales representative to serve as a model for alleged Venetian convex portrait paintings, pastel, and other types of so-called "paintings." The negative made from the photograph furnished is then used to make a photographic enlargement of the original photograph. A second and different salesman thereafter submits an outline or proof of the enlarged photograph in due course, and endeavors at that time to collect the full price theretofore agreed upon for the incompleting alleged "pastel" or "painting," and also to induce the customer to agree to buy a frame therefor. A third and final representative delivers the finished alleged "pastel" or “painting,” collects any sum remaining due thereon, and also collects for the frame if the customer has agreed to buy one.

Purchasers of pictures are given to understand that they are contracting or dealing with duly constituted agents or representatives of respondents or of one of respondents' trade name companies, and each agent or salesman is furnished by respondents with an identification card or card of credentials to be presented or exhibited by him when interviewing prospective purchasers. Sample cases containing attractive specimens of genuine pastel paintings, oil color and water color paintings, are also furnished agents or solicitors by said respondents for use in soliciting orders in their behalf.

PAR. 5. In the course and conduct of their said business, respondents directly and through their agents and sales representatives employed by them as aforesaid, make and cause to be made various false, misleading and deceptive representations. Typical of such representations, among others, are the following:

That $3.98, unframed, is the cost of production of one Venetian convex portrait painting; that $7.90, unframed, is the cost of production of one pastel portrait painting 10½ by 14½ inches in size; that $15.80, unframed, is the cost of production of one pastel portrait painting 14½ by 20½ inches in size; that pastels and paintings would be made at cost and only for a select few in each community; that Mr. Burney is an artist, has been commissioned to make the pastels or paintings, and it is necessary and advisable to have his signature, as such artist, on each picture; that if the customer would agree to have her children's portraits painted, the same would be placed on exhibition at the Boston Studio of the American Art Association; that a very special offer was being made to selected customers which would expire on a given date; that “special” offers made were due to an advertising campaign being conducted by the respondents; that finished pictures would be hand-painted oil portraits on canvas; that paintings are done on Japanese silk; that work is done by unemployed artists; that the American Art Association, not being in a position to employ live models, was therefore selecting particular types of children for reproduction in their art school; that art work would be performed without charge; that the companies have art classes where paintings are produced; that portrait paintings by the companies are often purchased by advertising concerns and that any compensation received as a result of such purchases would be turned over to the parents of the children whose portraits were thus purchased; that the child's picture submitted would be used as a model in the studio conducted by the respondents in Boston; that the companies were conducting exhibitions from which cereal manufacturers would select subjects to be used in their advertising; that the prices of $3.98, $7.90, and $15.80 for unframed paintings are special prices.

PAR. 6. In further connection with their selling methods, respondents represent that a drawing contest will be held for the purpose of deciding who shall be one of a few lucky persons in a particular city or town to have respondents place free paintings in their homes. The agent in connection with said drawing produces a number of slips of paper. It is represented that most of said slips are blank but that a few are trade checks or coupons; that a customer is allowed two draws or trials; that if he draws a blank he does not win, but if fortunate enough to draw a winning check or coupon, he will be entitled to receive a genuine oil painting or pastel free. The prospective customer draws, and finally, and invariably, draws a lucky coupon, allegedly giving him an oil painting free. The customer is thereupon congratulated by the agent upon his good luck. Believing the representations of the agent to the effect that he has been lucky and has obtained a distinct financial advantage the customer is thereby induced to continue negotiations with said agent and to make a contract with the said agent for a fine "pastel" or "painting" free. The customer is casually and incidentally informed when the agent is departing that there is just a nominal charge to be paid in connection with the transaction, representing the "actual cost" of the materials to be used in making the "painting" or "pastel."

Said alleged "draw" or "drawing" was, and is, a mere sham device employed by respondents for the sole purpose of inducing the prospective purchaser to believe that if he draws a lucky "coupon" or certificate, he will thereby have the distinct advantage of obtaining a pastel or painting "free" or at a price below that ordinarily charged customers, when in truth and in fact other customers unknown to each other are approached in the same manner through the use of said drawing scheme and device, and likewise have been beguiled into believing that they are exceptional ones favored by fortune and chance, when such is not the fact.

PAR. 7. After obtaining through the representations of the first visiting agent a contract from the customer for the purchase of a pastel or painting, a second and different agent or representative calls upon the customer with an unfinished proof or enlargement of the alleged pastel or painting and on this visit collects or attempts to collect the entire sum due for the unfinished alleged pastel or painting; and at the same time undertakes to sell the customer a frame therefor. The matter of the frame is here mentioned for the first time, and the customer learns, to his surprise and dismay, from the salesman that it will be impossible to obtain a frame for the alleged pastel or painting from any source other than the said respondents. Said customers are given to understand then that the pictures, pastels, or paintings of respondents are of such a distinct or unusual shape as to make it impossible to obtain frames for them in department, furniture, or other stores; and further, that it would be futile for the customer to attempt to have the pastels or paintings framed by any other organization than those of the respondents, the work being so technical that only their experts could give satisfaction. Said customers in this connection are given to understand that their pictures will soil, smear, or deteriorate unless covered by a suitable frame, including glass, and customers being influenced by said representations thereupon undertake to preserve the pictures they have bought by purchasing frames therefor. The alleged pictures, pastels, or paintings, and frames are sold to customers by respondents at grossly exorbitant prices. In case of unexpected preliminary inquiry from the customer as to whether or not it may be possible to obtain readily a frame for said alleged "pastel" or "painting," respondents' sales agents and representatives falsely, and with a view to effecting the contemplated sale, assure the customer that he will experience no difficulty in obtaining a frame; following which positive assurance, the second salesman who appears at the home for the purpose of collecting any sum due on the painting and selling a frame therefor will break the real news to the customer to the effect that it is only possible to obtain a frame from respondents.

PAR. 8. Respondent, Harry Burney, among others, makes and has made it a practice to call upon various customers for the purpose of exhibiting to them the proof or sketch of the pastel or painting they have ordered, to collect in advance of the completion thereof any sum remaining due on said pastel or painting, and to endeavor to sell the customer a frame for the pastel or painting so purchased by him. On the occasion of these visits respondent Burney represents to the customer that he, Burney, is an artist and that in such capacity he has duly signed his name on said pastel or painting for the customer who has "commissioned" him to paint the same.

In further connection with the conduct of their said business respondents represent that they are, and conduct, an art association or art institute, where works of art may and will be exhibited, in this manner making a distinct impression upon the customer with respect to their standing and reputation in the world of art.

PAR. 9. In truth and in fact, the various statements and representations made by respondents and by their sales agents and representatives in selling and offering for sale their pictures in cities, towns, and communities of the respective States of the United States, were and are false, deceptive, and misleading in the following, among other, particulars:

The so-called "pastels" or "paintings" as sold by respondents are not pastels or paintings in any sense of the word, but, on the contrary, are merely cheap, quickly made photographic enlargements tinted or colored, costing about $1.25 each. Said alleged "pastels" and "paintings" are in no instance sold at cost, and the respective prices of $3.98, $7.90, and $15.80 at which respondents sell unframed "pastels" and "paintings" and the prices for which frames therefor are sold, are not special prices offered by respondents to a select few in any community or otherwise, but, on the contrary, are respondents' regular prices, highly exorbitant and fictitious in character representing substantial profit to respondents, and the methods by which said products are sold are the customary methods ordinarily employed by respondents and their agents and sales representatives in the conduct of their businesses. Respondent, Burney, is not an artist and has not been commissioned in any instance to make a pastel or painting for any customer as alleged, and his signature on the proof or finished product of any alleged pastel or painting is not that of a commissioned artist in the sense that such term is used and understood. Children's portraits will not be and have not been placed on exhibition at the Boston studio of the American Art Association, particular types of children are not being selected by respondents for the purpose of reproducing paintings of them in respondents' art school for the alleged reason that respondents are not in a position to employ live models, or for any other reason, and children's pictures are not and have not been used as models in any studio conducted by the respondents in Boston or elsewhere. Alleged portrait paintings by respondents are not purchased by advertising concerns and no compensation is received as a result of such alleged purchases to be turned over to the parents of children whose portraits are stated to have thus been purchased. Finished pictures are not hand-painted oil portraits on canvas and paintings are not made on Japanese silk, nor by unemployed artists. Respondents do not have art classes where paintings are produced and art work is not performed without charge. No special offer expiring on a given date has been or is being made to selected customers, and no special offers are being made as a result of any advertising campaign being conducted by respondents. Neither the respondents nor the trade name companies operated by them conduct exhibitions from which cereal manufacturers select subjects to be used in their advertising.

The Association of American Arts, Inc., the American Art Association, the Royal Art Association, and the Paramount Art Studios

are not and never have been art associations or art studios in the sense that such terms are known and accepted in the field or world of art. On the contrary, the business conducted now or heretofore by respondents, through the medium of the above styled corporate and trade names, is and has been no more, in fact, than a business enterprise to sell to the public for profit cheap colored or tinted photographic enlargements and frames therefor. The use by respondents of the term "art association" has misled and deceived the public as to the character of the business actually conducted by respondents, and has caused the public to confuse respondents' business with various organizations, some similar in name or designation, which are conducting, and which properly may be designated as, art associations.

Further, representations made by respondents and their agents and sales representatives in connection with the so-called draw are highly deceptive in various aspects, and customers, believing that they have been actually lucky and have obtained an advantage through the draw, are thereby induced to enter into contracts with respondents for the purchase of pictures and frames therefor.

Respondents in further connection with the sale of said frames have deceived customers by withholding from them at the time a pastel or painting is ordered the fact that it will be impossible for the customer thereafter to obtain a frame to fit said pastel or painting except from the respondents and at the prices exacted by respondents therefor.

PAR. 10. The pictures or photographs which are secured from prospective purchasers by the agents and representatives of respondents for the purpose of having "pastels" or "paintings" made from them are, in most instances, pictures of members of the family, or dear relatives, and many such pictures cannot possibly be duplicated. Such photographs furnished to respondents by their customers possess, and have possessed, great sentimental value. In case of controversy as to alleged misrepresentation as to the character or quality of the work done, or for other reasons justified in the mind of the purchaser, the respondents insist upon holding the purchaser to the letter and terms of the contract, and, as a means of enforcing compliance with the contract in every instance, respondents refuse to return the valued family photograph until the money claimed to be due has been paid to respondents. Under such type of duress, many customers who are dissatisfied with the character or quality of the picture made for them, and who assert, and have asserted, misrepresentation in connection therewith, have been forced to go through with the contract in order to obtain the return of a treasured family photograph.

PAR. 11. There are among the competitors of respondents, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, corporations, partnerships, firms, and persons who are engaged in the sale of tinted or colored enlargements of photographs and of frames therefor, who do not employ the practices as set forth in paragraphs 3 to 8 of this complaint, but who truthfully represent their products and honestly vend the same; and there are also, among the competitors of respondents, corporations, partnerships, firms, and persons engaged in the business of painting genuine pastels and paintings who truthfully represent their products as such.

PAR. 12. By the use of the within described false and misleading representations, respondents have deceived and are deceiving the public concerning the quality and value of the products sold by them as aforesaid and in the various other particulars as hereinbefore described and related, and have thereby induced, and are inducing, the public to purchase said products under the erroneous belief that the same are and were high-grade quality "pastels" or "paintings," and picture frames therefor, of exceptional merit and value. The use by respondents of the said practices as set forth in paragraphs 3 to 8 of this complaint tends to and does unfairly divert trade from competitors and thereby substantial injury has been done, and is being done, by respondents to competition in interstate commerce among and between the various States of the United States.

PAR. 13. The acts and things above alleged to have been done and the false representations alleged to have been made by respondents are to the prejudice of the public and of respondents' competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on May 7, 1938, issued, and on May 9, 1938, served, its complaint in this proceeding upon respondents, The Association of American Arts, Inc., a corporation; Edward Ziman and Harry Burney (otherwise known as H. E. Burney, H. E. Bernstein, and Harry E. Bernstein), individually, and trading as partners under the trade names American Art Association, Paramount Art Studios, and Royal Art Association; Jack A. Burney (otherwise known as Jack A. Bernie, Jacob Bernstein, and Jack A. Burnstein), individually, and trading as Burney Fairchild Studio and The Fine Art Portrait Company, and as agent for Edward Ziman, Harry Burney, and The Association of American Arts, Inc.; Peter F. Friedman (also known as Peter F. Fairchild), individually, and also trading as The Burney Fairchild Studio, and as agent for Edward Ziman, Harry Burney, and The Association of American Arts, Inc.; Alfred Davis, Paul Seidler, Eli Lictofsky, and Hulbert Beauregard, individually, and as agents for Edward Ziman, Harry Burney, and The Association of American Arts, Inc., charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint, respondent, The Association of American Arts, Inc., filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy on May 26, 1938, was adjudicated a bankrupt on May 31, 1938, and thereafter, as of January 1, 1939, pursuant to the provisions of chapter 179 of the acts of 1939 of the State of Massachusetts, was dissolved as nonexistent. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondents' answer thereto, the Commission by order entered herein, granted motions filed by respondents, H. E. Bernie (or Bernstein), J. A. Bernie (or Jack A. Bernie or Bernstein), Eli Lictofsky (or A. Davis), and by Edward Ziman for permission to withdraw their said answer and to substitute therefor answers admitting all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearings as to said facts, which substitute answers were duly filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and substitute answers, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, The Association of American Arts, Inc., with its principal office and place of business prior to and at the time of the filing of the complaint herein, located at 486 Boylston Street, Boston, Mass., was incorporated under the laws of the State of Massachusetts on July 6, 1937, with the following incorporators: Harry E. Bernstein, Edward Ziman, and Jack A. Bernie, who directed the activities and controlled the policies and affairs of such respondent company. These three persons, together with Paul Seidler and Eli Lictofsky, became and served as directors of said corporation.

Respondents, Edward Ziman and Harry Bernie, the latter also known as H. E. Bernie or Bernstein, each hereinafter referred to as respondent, are individuals who, prior to, and at the time of the issuance of complaint herein, resided at Boston in the State of Massachusetts and were engaged in business at 486 Boylston Street, Boston, Mass., where they had been trading as partners under the trade names American Art Association, Paramount Art Studios, and Royal Art Association.

The American Art Association and the Paramount Art Studios, which prior to, and at the time of the issuance of complaint herein, were also located at 486 Boylston Street, Boston, Mass., were registered at the office of the City Clerk at Boston, Mass., by respondents Edward Ziman and Harry E. Bernstein, and on April 13, 1936, these respondents registered at the office of the City Clerk at Boston the Royal Art Co., located likewise at 486 Boylston Street, Boston, Mass. Respondents, Edward Ziman and Harry Burney, trading as individuals and likewise as partners, were the owners and the operators of the business conducted by them at the above stated address and through the medium of the aforementioned corporation and trade name companies and the agents and sales representatives employed by them, directed the activities and controlled the business policies and practices of said companies.

Jack A. Burney, otherwise known as Jack or J. A. Bernie, Jacob Bernstein, and Jack A. Bernstein; and Eli Lictofsky, otherwise known as A. or Alfred Davis, each hereinafter referred to as respondent, prior to and at the time of the issuance of the complaint herein, traded individually, and through the medium of various trade name companies as agents and sales representatives for the said Edward Ziman, Harry Burney or Bernie and the Association of American Arts, Inc., respondent Eli Lictofsky or Alfred Davis, also serving as assistant manager for respondents Harry Ziman and Harry Burney or Bernie and the Association of American Arts, Inc.; at the aforementioned address 486 Boylston Street, Boston, Mass.

PAR. 2. The four above named individual respondents, at the time of the issuance of the complaint herein, and for some time prior thereto, were engaged in the business of offering for sale and selling tinted or colored enlargements of family and other photographs, and of frames therefor. Respondents sold their products directly and through the medium of salesmen or representatives appointed by them as agents in their behalf to customers located in States other than the State of Massachusetts. In consummating such sales and in distributing such products, respondents caused the pictures and frames so sold by them to be transported and delivered from their places of business in Boston, in the State of Massachusetts through and into various other States of the United States to the respective purchasers thereof at their respective points of location. In the course and conduct of their said business, respondents had been and were engaged in direct and substantial competition with various corporations, partnerships, and individuals likewise engaged in the sale of tinted or colored photographic enlargements and frames therefor in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, and likewise with corporations, partnerships, and individuals engaged in the sale of genuine original pastels and paintings, including oil paintings and water color paintings in commerce among the various States of the United States.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of their said business respondents directly and through agents and representatives employed by them visited the homes of prospective customers in cities, towns, and rural communities of the various States of the United States. Sales talks containing approved methods of approach and convincing arguments to be used in contacting prospective purchasers of pictures and of frames therefor, and contract forms and blanks, receipts, and similar documents, were prepared and furnished by respondents for distribution and use among their salesmen; also certificates or coupons to be used in connection with the "draw" as hereinafter related.

PAR. 4. Respondents made their pictures in the following manner: A negative was made of a family or other type of photograph furnished by the purchaser or consumer to one of respondents' agents or sales representatives. This photograph was obtained by the salesman or sales representative to serve as a model for alleged Venetian convex portrait paintings, pastel, and other types of so-called "paintings." The negative made from the photograph furnished was then used to make a photographic enlargement of the original photograph. A second and different salesman thereafter submitted an outline or proof of the enlarged photograph in due course, and endeavored at that time to collect the full price theretofore agreed upon for the incompleting alleged "pastel" or "painting," and also to induce the customer to agree to buy a frame therefor. A third and final representative delivered the finished alleged "pastel" or painting," collecting any sum remaining due thereon, and also collected for the frame if the customer had agreed to buy one.

Purchasers of pictures were given to understand that they were contracting or dealing with duly constituted agents or representatives of respondents or of one of respondents' trade name companies, and each agent or salesman was furnished by respondents with an identification card or card of credentials to be presented or exhibited by him when interviewing prospective purchasers. Sample cases containing attractive specimens of genuine pastel paintings, oil color and water color paintings, were also furnished agents or solicitors by said respondents for use in soliciting orders in their behalf.

PAR. 5. In the course and conduct of their said business, respondents directly and through their agents and sales representatives employed by them as aforesaid, made and caused to be made various false, misleading, and deceptive representations. Typical of such representations, among others, were the following:

That $3.98, unframed, was the cost of production of one Venetian convex portrait painting; that $7.90, unframed, was the cost of production of one pastel portrait painting 10½ by 14½ inches in size; that $15.80, unframed, was the cost of production of one pastel portrait painting 14½ by 20½ inches in size; that pastels and paintings would be made at cost and only for a selected few in each community; that Mr. Burney was an artist, had been commissioned to make pastels or paintings, and it was necessary and advisable to have his signature, as such artist, on each picture; that if the customer would agree to have her children's portraits painted, the same would be placed on exhibition at the Boston Studio of the American Art Association; that a very special offer was being made to selected customers which would expire on a given date; that "special" offers were made due to an advertising campaign being conducted by the respondents; that finished pictures would be hand painted oil portraits on canvas; that paintings were done on Japanese silk; that work was done by unemployed artists; that the American Art Association, not being in a position to employ live models, was therefore selecting particular types of children for reproduction work in their art school; that art work would be performed without charge; that the companies had art classes where paintings were produced; that portrait paintings by the companies were often purchased by advertising concerns and that any compensation received as a result of such purchases would be turned over to the parents of the children whose portraits were thus purchased; that the children's pictures submitted would be used as models in the studio conducted by the respondents in their business; that the companies were conducting exhibitions from which cereal manufacturers would select subjects to be used in their advertising; that the prices of $3.98, $7.90, and $15.80 for unframed paintings were special prices.

PAR. 6. In further connection with their selling methods, respondents represented that a drawing contest would be held for the purpose of deciding who should be one of a few lucky persons in a particular city or town to have respondents place free paintings in their homes. The agent in connection with said drawing produced a number of slips of paper. It was represented that most of said slips were blank, but that a few were trade checks or coupons; that a customer was allowed two draws or trials; that if he drew a blank he did not win, but if fortunate enough to draw a winning check or coupon he would be entitled to receive a genuine oil painting or pastel free. The prospective customer drew, and finally, and invariably, drew a lucky coupon, allegedly giving him an oil painting free. The customer was thereupon congratulated by the agent upon his good luck, believing the representations of the agent to the effect that he had been lucky and had obtained a distinct financial advantage. The customer was thereby induced to continue negotiations with said agent and to make a contract with the said agent for a fine "pastel" or "painting" free. The customer was casually and incidentally informed when the agent was departing that there was just a nominal charge to be paid in connection with the transaction, representing the "actual cost" of the materials to be used in making the "painting" or "pastel." Said alleged "draw" or "drawing" was a mere sham device employed by respondents for the sole purpose of inducing the prospective customer to believe that if he drew a lucky "coupon" or certificate, he would thereby have the distinct advantage of obtaining a pastel or painting "free" or at a price below that ordinarily charged customers, when in truth and in fact other customers unknown to each other were approached in the same manner through the use of said drawing scheme and device, and likewise were beguiled into believing that they were exceptional ones favored by fortune and chance when such was not the fact.

PAR. 7. After obtaining through the representations of the first visiting agent a contract from the customer for the purchase of a pastel or painting, a second and different agent or representative called upon the customer with an unfinished proof or enlargement of the alleged pastel or painting and on this visit collected or attempted to collect the entire sum due for the unfinished alleged pastel or painting; at the same time undertook to sell the customer a frame therefor. The matter of the frame was here mentioned for the first time, the customer learning to his surprise and dismay from the salesman that it would be impossible to obtain a frame for the alleged pastel or painting from any source other than the said respondents. Said customers were given to understand then that the pictures, pastel, or paintings of respondents were of such a distinct or unusual shape as to make it impossible to obtain frames for them in department, furniture, or other stores; and further, that it would be futile for the customer to attempt to have the pastels or paintings framed by any other organization than those of respondents, the work being so technical that only their experts could give satisfaction. Said customers in this connection were given to understand that their pictures would soil, smear, or deteriorate unless covered by suitable frames, including glass, and customers being influenced by said representations thereupon undertook to preserve the pictures they had bought by purchasing frames therefor. The alleged pictures, pastels, or paintings and frames were sold to customers by respondents at grossly exorbitant prices. In case of unexpected preliminary inquiry from the customer as to whether or not it might be possible to obtain readily a frame for said alleged "pastel" or "painting," respondents' sales agents and representatives falsely, and with a view to effecting the contemplated sale, assured the customer that he would experience no difficulty in obtaining a frame; following which positive assurance the second salesman who appeared at the home for the purpose of collecting any sum due on the painting and selling a frame therefor would break the real news to the customer to the effect that it was only possible to obtain a frame from respondents.

PAR. 8. Respondent, Harry Burney, among others, made it a practice to call upon various customers for the purpose of exhibiting to them the proof or sketch of the pastel or painting which they had ordered, to collect in advance of the completion thereof any sum remaining due on said pastel or painting, and to endeavor to sell the customer a frame for the pastel or painting so purchased by him. On the occasion of these visits respondent Burney represented to the customer that he, Burney, was an artist and that in such capacity, he had duly signed his name on said pastel or painting for the customer who had "commissioned" him to paint the same.

In further connection with the conduct of their said business respondents represented that they were conducting an art association or art institute, where works of art might and would be exhibited, in this manner making a distinct impression upon the customer with respect to their standing and reputation in the world of art.

PAR. 9. The Commission finds that the various statements and representations made by respondents and by their sales agents and representatives in selling and offering for sale their pictures in cities, towns, and communities of the respective States of the United States, were false, deceptive, and misleading in the following, among other particulars:

The so-called "pastels" or "paintings" as sold by respondents were not pastels or paintings in any sense of the word, but on the contrary, were merely cheap, quickly made photographic enlargements tinted or colored, costing about $1.25 each. Said alleged "pastels" and "paintings" were in no instance sold at cost, and the respective prices of $3.98, $7.90, and $15.80 at which respondents sold unframed "pastels" and "paintings" and the prices for which frames therefor were sold, were not special prices offered by respondents to a select few in any community or otherwise, but, on the contrary, were respondents' regular prices, highly exorbitant and fictitious in character representing substantial profit to respondents, and the methods by which said products were sold were the customary methods ordinarily employed by respondents and their agents and sales representatives in the conduct of their businesses. Respondent Burney was not and is not an artist and had not been commissioned in any instance to make a pastel or painting for any customer as alleged, and his signature on the proof or finished product of any alleged pastel or painting was not that of a commissioned artist in the sense that such term is used and understood. Children's portraits were not placed on exhibition at the business studio of the American Art Association, particular types of children were not selected by respondents for the purpose of reproducing paintings of them in respondents' art school, and children's pictures were not used as models in any studio conducted by the respondents in business or elsewhere. Alleged portrait paintings by respondents were not purchased by advertising concerns and no compensation was received as a result of such alleged purchases to be turned over to the parents of children whose portraits were stated to have thus been purchased. Finished pictures were not hand-painted oil portraits on canvas and paintings were not made on Japanese silk, nor by unemployed artists. Respondents did not have art classes where paintings were produced and art work was not performed without charge. No special offer expiring on a given date was made to selected customers, and no special offers were made as a result of any advertising campaign conducted by respondents. Neither the respondents nor the trade name companies operated by them conducted exhibitions from which cereal manufacturers selected subjects to be used in their advertising.

The Association of American Arts, Inc., the American Art Association, the Royal Art Association, and the Paramount Art Studios were not art associations or art studios in the sense that such terms are known and accepted in the field or world of art. On the contrary, the business conducted by respondents, through the medium of the above styled corporate and trade names was no more, in fact, than a business enterprise to sell to the public for profit cheap colored or tinted photographic enlargements and frames therefor. The use by respondents of the term "art association" mislead and deceived the public as to the character of the business actually conducted by respondents, and caused the public to confuse respondents' business with various organizations, some similar name or designation which were conducting, and which properly might be designated as, art associations.

Further, representations made by respondents and their agents and sales representatives in connection with the so-called draw were highly deceptive in various aspects, and customers, believing that they had been actually lucky and had obtained an advantage through the draw when such was not the fact, were thereby induced to enter into contracts with respondents for the purchase of pictures and frames therefor.

Respondents, in further connection with the sale of said frames deceived customers by withholding from them the fact that at the time a pastel or painting was ordered it would be impossible for the customer thereafter to obtain a frame to fit said pastel or painting except from the respondents and at the prices exacted by respondents therefor.

PAR. 10. The Commission finds that the pictures or photographs which were secured from prospective purchasers by the agents and representatives of respondents for the purpose of having "pastels" or "paintings" made from them were, in most instances, pictures of members of the family, or dear relatives, and that many such pictures could not possibly be duplicated. Such photographs furnished to respondents by their customers possess great sentimental value. In case of controversy as to alleged misrepresentation as to the character or quality of the work done, or for any other reasons justified in the mind of the purchaser, the respondents insisted upon holding the purchaser to the letter and terms of the contract, and as a means of enforcing compliance with the contract respondents refused to return the valued family photograph until the money claimed to be due had been paid to respondents. Under such type of duress, many customers dissatisfied with the character or quality of the picture made for them, and who asserted misrepresentation in connection therewith, were nevertheless forced to go through with the contract in order to obtain the return of a treasured family photograph.

PAR. 11. The Commission further finds that all of the representations by the salesmen and representatives of respondents were made with the knowledge, acquiescence, and active cooperation of respondents for the purpose and with the result of selling colored enlargements of photographs and frames therefor. The respondents and said salesmen and representatives knew these representations to be false and misleading. The respondents further aided and abetted in the furtherance of said fraudulent sales plan and representations by furnishing salesmen and representatives with standardized sales talks containing for their guidance the false and misleading representations hereinbefore set out.

PAR. 12. There were among the competitors of respondents as described in paragraph 1 hereof, corporations, partnerships, firms, and persons who were engaged in the sale of tinted or colored enlargements of photographs and of frames therefor, who did not employ the practices set forth in paragraphs 3 to 8 of the complaint, but who truthfully represented their products and honestly sold the same; and there were also among the competitors of respondents, corporations, partnerships, firms, and persons engaged in the business of painting genuine pastels and paintings, who truthfully represented their products as such.

PAR. 13. By the use of the within described false and misleading representations, respondents deceived the public concerning the quality and value of the products sold by them as aforesaid and in the various other particulars as hereinbefore described and related, and thereby induced the public to purchase said products under the erroneous belief that the same were high-grade quality "pastels" or "paintings," and picture frames of exceptional merit and value. The use by respondents of the said practices as set forth in paragraphs 3 to 8 of the complaint tended to and did unfairly divert trade to the respondents from their competitors hereinabove described who were likewise engaged in commerce among and between the various States of the United States.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the within named respondents, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answers of respondents, H. E. Bernie or Bernstein, otherwise known as Harry Burney or H. E. Burney; J. A. Bernie or Bernstein, otherwise known as Jack A. Burney or Jacob Bernstein; Eli Lictofsky, otherwise known as A. Davis or Alfred Davis, and Edward Ziman, in which answers respondents admit all the material allegations of fact set forth in the complaint, and state that they waive all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondents, H. E. Bernie or Bernstein, otherwise known as Harry Burney or H. E. Burney; J. A. Bernie or Bernstein, otherwise known as Jack A. Burney or Jacob Bernstein; Eli Lictofsky, otherwise known as A. Davis or Alfred Davis, and Edward Ziman, individuals, their representatives, agents, and employes, directly or through any corporate or other device, including any trade name, in connection with the advertising, offering for sale, and sale and distribution of colored or tinted photographs or enlargements having a photographic base and of frames therefor, in commerce as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing, directly or in any manner, that colored or tinted pictures, photographs, or photographic enlargements are hand-painted or are paintings.

2. Using the terms "pastel" or painting," "oil portraits" or "pastel portrait painting," either alone or in conjunction with any other terms or words or in any way to designate, describe, or refer to colored or tinted pictures, photographs or photographic enlargements, or other pictures produced from a photographic base or impression.

3. Misrepresenting that any specified sum is the actual cost of production of a picture or otherwise misrepresenting the actual cost of either materials or delivery.

4. Representing that a picture similar to sample displayed will be delivered unless the picture so delivered is of the same kind, quality, design, and workmanship.

5. Representing that respondents are conducting any special or advertising campaign in any particular place or locality for the purpose of obtaining special exhibitors, or otherwise, unless such campaign or such special offer is in fact then being conducted or made in such locality for such purpose.

6. Representing that said pictures are being, or will be, sold only to a limited or selected number of customers, or otherwise misrepresenting any material fact concerning the terms and conditions of sale, or the extent to which the sale of such pictures is limited.

7. Representing that any portrait will be placed on exhibition in any studio or other place of display, or that respondents' portrait paintings are purchased by advertising concerns and that any compensation received from such sale will be turned over to the customer.

8. Representing that particular types are being selected for the purpose of reproducing "paintings" in respondents' art school, or that respondents have art classes where paintings are produced and art work performed without charge.

9. Representing by means of any trade name or otherwise that the respondents operate or are connected with any art association or art studio.

10. Representing through the use of a "draw," or any drawing contest, or through the use of "lucky" blanks, slips, coupons, or certificates, or through the use of any other device, plan, or scheme, or through any introductory or advertising offer, or otherwise, that any customer thereby would obtain a financial advantage or would be entitled to receive any picture free or would receive a substantial discount or reduction in the price of any picture or pictures.

11. Concealing from or failing to disclose to customers upon initial contact that the finished picture when delivered will be so shaped and designed that it can only be used in a specially designed, odd style of frame, which can be obtained from respondents only.

12. Representing to customers in any manner that suitable frames for pictures may be purchased elsewhere unless such odd design of frame can in fact be readily purchased in the customary marts of trade.

13. Representing as the customary or regular prices or values of pictures or frames, prices and values which are in excess of the prices at which such products are regularly and customarily sold in the normal and usual course of business.

14. Retaining the original photograph loaned to respondents for use in making a picture, unless all of the terms and conditions upon which said original photograph is to be retained in connection with the purchase and payment for a picture or frame, or for any other purpose, are fully and adequately revealed to the purchaser at the time the original photograph is obtained from such purchaser.

It is further ordered, That the respondents shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

It is further ordered, That this proceeding be, and the same hereby is, closed as to the respondent, The Association of American Arts, Inc., said corporation having been inactive for more than a year and having been duly dissolved, and that the proceeding be closed as to respondents Peter F. Friedman, (also known as Peter F. Fairchild), Paul Seidler, and Hulbert Beauregard, without prejudice to the right of the Commission to reopen the same and resume prosecution thereof in accordance with the Commission's regular procedure should future facts so warrant.

IN THE MATTER OF
GRAVITONIC LIFE RAY CORPORATION, INC., AND FRED W. REED

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3451. Complaint, June 7, 1938—Decision, Dec. 22, 1939

Where a corporation and an individual, its president and in charge of its affairs, engaged, in cooperation with each other, in manufacture, sale and distribution of an electric appliance or table to purchasers in various other States and in the District of Columbia, in competition with others likewise engaged in sale and distribution in commerce among the various States of products and preparations intended, designed, and used for purposes for which they recommended their product; in describing same in advertisements in pamphlets, leaflets, newspapers, and magazines distributed among public in various States—

- (a) Represented that their said device was a scientific discovery which was based upon scientific foundations and forces and which located causes or troubles of disease and purified blood stream by mechanical action thereof; and
- (b) Represented that said device cured and relieved various ailments and conditions, including sinus infections in a few applications, sleeping sickness, blindness caused by ticcouloureux, tuberculosis, stomach and gall bladder troubles, kidney trouble and arthritis, cancer, high blood pressure, and a number of others;

Facts being device in question was not a discovery, would not accomplish any such results or locate causes of any troubles or diseases and was not a competent or effective treatment therefor, but was worthless and of no use in diagnosis, cure or treatment of disease, and had no scientific foundation and no beneficial effect on the system, and statements in question were false, misleading and untrue;

With tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive substantial portion of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that all of their said representations were true, and with result that number of consuming public purchased substantial volume of their said electric tables and trade was thereby diverted unfairly to them from their competitors engaged in sale and distribution in commerce of products and preparations intended, designed, and used for purposes for which their device was recommended, and who truthfully represented effectiveness of their respective products:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Gravitonic Life Ray Corporation, Inc., a corporation, and Fred W. Reed, individually, and as president of Gravitonic Life Ray Corporation, Inc., hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent Gravitonic Life Ray Corporation, Inc., is organized under the laws of the State of Florida. Its officers are Fred W. Reed, president, and Mrs. Helen Stowers, secretary. Its main office is located at 687 Central Avenue, St. Petersburg, Fla.

Respondent Fred W. Reed of 1330 North Meridian Street, Indianapolis, Ind., is the president of respondent Gravitonic Life Ray Corporation, Inc., a corporation, and controls and directs the activities, practices and policies of said corporate respondent in the course and conduct of the business and in doing the acts and things hereinafter described. Respondent Fred W. Reed uses the respondent Gravitonic Life Ray Corporation Inc., and other corporations as instrumentalities and means through which he conducts the business and does the acts and things hereinafter described. Respondents Fred W. Reed and Gravitonic Life Ray Corporation, Inc., separately and collectively, also use various trade names in conducting the business and in doing the acts and things hereinafter described. Among the corporations used by the respondent Fred W. Reed as instrumentalities and means of conducting the business, and doing the acts and things hereinafter described, are the following: Gravitonic Life Ray Estate, Ltd., and Gravitonic Life Ray Estate, Inc. Among the trade names used by the respondents Gravitonic Life Ray Corporation, Inc. and Fred W. Reed are the following: Gravitonic Life Ray Estate, Ltd., and Gravitonic Life Ray Estate, Inc.

In doing the acts and things hereinafter alleged, and during all of the time herein mentioned, respondents Gravitonic Life Ray Corporation, Inc. and Fred W. Reed have acted together and in cooperation with each other.

PAR. 2. Respondents, trading in their own names and through said corporations and under said trade names as aforesaid, have been for some time past, and are now, engaged in the business of manufacturing and in selling and distributing an electrical appliance. The last known place of business of the respondents was 1330 North Meridian Street, Indianapolis, Ind. The product advertised and sold is a table to which is attached an electrical appliance and other accessories. Respondents have conducted their said business at and from various points in the United States.

The respondents cause their said product, when sold, to be transported from the point in the State where they happen to be located at the time of a particular sale into and through the several States of the United States to the purchasers thereof, located at various points in States of the United States other than the State of origin of such shipments and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of their business in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia respondents have been and are in substantial competition with individuals, partnerships, and corporations engaged in said commerce in the sale and distribution of similar products and in the sale and distribution of products and preparations intended, designed, and used for the purposes for which the respondents recommend their said product.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of their business in said commerce, and for the purpose of inducing members of the public to purchase said product, respondents advertise said product in booklets, pamphlets, circulars, by personal contact, and by other means, all purporting to be descriptive of said product and its effectiveness and value for the uses and purposes for which it is advertised. In the aforesaid advertisements distributed among prospective purchasers, and in newspapers and magazines and other types of advertisements circulated among said prospective purchasers and the public, as aforesaid, statements to the following effect are made:

THE GRAVITONIC LIFE RAY now being presented to the public, is a wonderful discovery which promises to revolutionize the present methods of making examinations and the treatment of practically all human ills. As the name implies, this discovery is based on the forces of gravity, the tonic of the air, and the vibrational impulses in the ether surrounding the earth. All life is, or is affected by vibration and these vibrations in the ether both build and destroy life. THE GRAVITONIC LIFE RAY is the summation of all the rays which produce and support life. The gamma rays and all other rays which tend to destroy life, have been screened out. These life rays show practically no tendency to heat, and in no way resemble electricity. Nothing seems to stop them for they will pass through all known substances. Furthermore, the supply is inexhaustible.

* * * * *

The ray seems to be unfailling in its powers to locate the cause of the trouble. The blood stream is purified by the mechanical action of the GRAVITONIC LIFE RAY which destroys disease germs, reduces poisons and stimulates the muscles that absorb the poisons and draws them to the surface.

* * * * *

Complaint

30 F. T. C.

In a large percentage of all bodily ills, sinus trouble is found to be the basic cause. It is the relief of this same sinus trouble which has, oddly enough, given the medical profession so much real trouble; yet the ray will relieve sinus infections in a few applications. Sleeping sickness victims have been aroused, patients blinded by tie-douloureux have had sight restored, tuberculosis, stomach and gall bladder troubles have been relieved and cured, diseases of the kidneys overcome, arthritis victims relieved and cured, gland disorders corrected, likewise diabetes, tumor, prostate trouble, colds, dizziness, anemia, cancer, chronic indigestion, acute appendicitis, goiter, colitis, dyspepsia, nervousness, spinal trouble, high blood pressure, tonsillitis, catarrh, and mastoid and ear trouble have been relieved and cured.

* * * * *

Asserting he has captured, caged and finally tamed a real "life ray" from the wilds of space, Frederick Williams Reed of Hollywood has just concluded a series of demonstrations admittedly somewhat mystifying to the scientists who have seen it. So long as this ray sojourns in matter that matter is alive, he says; as soon as it goes out the thing is armiated [sic] dies. He describes it as a "force" diffused throughout the universe, variously described as "nervous ether," "life fluid," "vital principle," and so on.

"Every diseased part of the body," Reed declared, "has a vibration peculiar to itself. Trained fingers can, therefore, identify a disease, whether it is cancer, tuberculosis or something else, by the feel of the vibrations," and it is asserted that certain malignant diseases have been cured by passing this ray through a patient's body.

GRAVITONIC LIFE RAY—WHAT IS IT?

Hear the voices and music vibrate from vegetables, flowers and the human body, transmitted through the human hand * * *

Feel vitality surge through your body * * *

See demonstration and be Convinced!

All of said statements, together with many similar statements appearing in respondents' advertising literature purport to be descriptive of their product and its affectiveness in treating or curing many of the diseases, ailments, afflictions and conditions of the human body. In all of their advertising literature, respondents represent, through the statements and representations herein set out and other statements of similar import and effect, that their product, Gravitonic Life Ray, will prevent and cure, or is beneficial in the treatment of, many of the diseases, ailments, afflictions, and conditions which may be present or exist in the human body.

PAR. 5. In truth and in fact said product is not a wonderful discovery which promises to revolutionize methods of making examinations, and a treatment of practically all human ills. The product is not a scientific discovery based on forces of gravity, the tonic of the air, and the vibrational impulses of the ether surrounding the earth. The said product will not locate the causes of any troubles or diseases. The said product will not relieve the symptoms of, and is not a remedy or cure for, sinus trouble and infections, sleeping sickness, blindness caused by ticcouloureux, or for tuberculosis, stomach and gall bladder troubles, diseases of the kidneys, arthritis, gland disorders, diabetes, tumor, prostate trouble, colds, dizziness, anemia, cancer, chronic indigestion, acute appendicitis, goiter, colitis, dyspepsia, nervousness, spinal trouble, high blood pressure, tonsillitis, catarrh, or mastoid and ear trouble.

Said product named herein when manufactured, advertised, and distributed is then and there misrepresented in that the aforesaid statements regarding the therapeutic, curative, and other benefits and effects thereof shown on the different circulars, and other advertisements, and by personal orations to the public, as aforesaid, are false and fraudulent, and the same are applied knowingly and in reckless and wanton disregard of their truth or falsity.

PAR. 6. There are among respondents' competitors in commerce as herein set out, those who do not in any way misrepresent the character and nature of their products, and who do not make use of any of the misleading representations herein set out or similar ones with respect to the therapeutic value of their respective products.

PAR. 7. Each and all of the false and misleading statements and representations made by the respondents in designating or describing their product and the effectiveness of said product for curing, treating, or relieving the diseases, ailments, afflictions, and conditions of the human body herein named, in offering for sale and selling their said product, were, and are, calculated to, and have had, and now have a tendency and capacity to mislead a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that all of said representations are true and that said product will, in truth, accomplish the results claimed. Further, as a direct consequence of the mistaken and erroneous beliefs, induced by the acts and representations of the respondents, as hereinabove detailed, a number of the consuming public have purchased a substantial volume of respondents' product with the result that trade has been unfairly diverted to the respondents from competitors likewise engaged in the business of distributing and selling similar products or other products designed, intended and sold for use in the cure, relief or treatment of the various diseases, ailments, afflictions and conditions named herein, and who truthfully represent the effectiveness of their respective products. As a result, thereof, injury has been, and is now being, done by respondent to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 8. The aforesaid acts and deceptive practices of the respondents as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on June 7, 1938, issued its complaint in the above-entitled proceeding, and caused same to be served upon respondents, Gravitonic Life Ray Corporation, Inc., and Fred W. Reed, individually, charging them with violation of Section 5 of the provisions of said act. Respondent entered an appearance and filed an answer to the complaint, and thereafter, beginning on August 8, 1938, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by William L. Taggart, attorney for the Commission, before Arthur F. Thomas, and Randolph Preston, trial examiners of the Commission, which testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission.

Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, and brief in support of the complaint. Respondent not having filed a brief, and oral argument not having been requested, and the Commission having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Gravitonic Life Ray Corporation, Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Florida. It maintains its principal office and place of business in St. Petersburg, Fla. Respondent Fred W. Reed is an individual, and is president of respondent corporation, and in charge of its affairs. Also he carries on business under the trade names of the respondent corporation, and similar ones, such as Gravitonic Life Ray Estate, Ltd., Reed's Gravitonic Health Institute, etc. The corporate respondent, and the individual respondent Fred W. Reed, acting in cooperation with each other, are engaged in the manufacture, sale and distribution of an electrical appliance or table. The respondents cause said product when sold to be transported from their place of business in St. Petersburg, Fla., to purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States, and in the District of Columbia. Respondents maintain and at all times mentioned herein have maintained a course of trade in said product in commerce between and among various States of the United States, and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of their business respondents are in competition with other corporations, firms, and individuals who are likewise engaged in the sale and distribution in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, of products and preparations intended, designed, and used for the purposes for which respondents recommend their product.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of the business, respondent Reed, in cooperation with the corporate respondent, and in the sale and distribution of the product, caused to be published in advertisements, pamphlets, leaflets, newspapers, and magazines, distributed among the public in the various States, certain advertisements in order to induce said public to take treatments by use of, and to purchase said electrical table. In these advertisements respondents have published and distributed among many others, the following statements:

The GRAVITONIC LIFE RAY now presented to the public is a wonderful discovery which promises to revolutionize the present methods of making examinations, and the treatment of practically all human ills. As the name implies this discovery is based upon the forces of gravity, the tonic of the air, and the vibrational impulses thereof in the ether surrounding the earth. All life is, or is affected by vibrations and these vibrations in the ether both build and destroy life. The GRAVITONIC LIFE RAY is the summation of all the rays which produce and support life. The GAMMA RAYS and all other rays which tend to destroy life, have been screened out.

The RAY seems to be unfailing in its power to locate the cause of the trouble. The blood stream is purified by the mechanical action of the GRAVITONIC LIFE RAY which destroys disease germs, reduces poisons, and stimulates the muscles that absorb the poisons and draws them to the surface.

In a large percentage of all bodily ills, sinus trouble is found to be the basic cause. It is the relief of this same sinus trouble which has, oddly enough, given the medical profession so much real trouble; yet the RAY will relieve sinus infections in a few applications. Sleeping sickness victims have been aroused, patients blinded by ticcouloureux have had sight restored, tuberculosis, stomach and gall bladder troubles have been relieved and cured; diseases of the kidneys overcome, arthritis victims relieved and cured, gland disorders corrected, likewise diabetes, tumors, prostate trouble, colds, dizziness, anemia, cancer, chronic indigestion, acute appendicitis, catarrh, colitis, dyspepsia, nervousness, spinal trouble, high blood pressure, tonsillitis, and mastoid and ear trouble have been relieved and cured.

PAR. 3. The foregoing statements, all of which purport to be descriptive of respondents' product and its effectiveness in treating or curing many diseases and conditions of the human body, are false, misleading and untrue. Respondents' device is worthless and is of no use in the diagnosis, cure or treatment of disease. It is not a discovery and will not revolutionize methods of making examinations or the treatment of practically all human ills. This device will not locate the causes of any troubles or diseases. The use of respondents' device is not a cure or remedy for sinus trouble and infections, sleeping sickness, blindness caused by ticcouloureux, tuberculosis, stomach and gall bladder troubles, diseases of the kidneys, arthritis, gland disorders, diabetes, tumor, prostate trouble, colds, dizziness, anemia, cancer, chronic indigestion, acute appendicitis, colitis, dyspepsia, nervousness, spinal trouble, high blood pressure, tonsilitis, catarrh, mastoid and ear trouble, and the use of such device is not a competent or effective treatment for any of said diseases and disorders. Respondents' device has no scientific foundation and will have no beneficial effect on the human system.

PAR. 4. Each and all of the false and misleading statements and representations made by the respondents in describing the said product as hereinabove set out, were and are calculated to, and have had the tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that all of said representations are true. As a result of this erroneous belief, a number of the consuming public have purchased a substantial volume of respondents' electrical tables with the result that trade has been diverted unfairly to respondents from their competitors engaged in the business of selling and distributing in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, products and preparations intended, designed and used for the purposes for which respondents recommend their said products, and who truthfully represent the effectiveness of their respective products.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondents, testimony and other evidence taken before Arthur F. Thomas and Randolph Preston, Esqs., examiners of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint, brief of the Commission filed herein, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that the respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondents, Gravitonic Life Ray Corporation, Inc., a corporation and its officers and Fred W. Reed, individually and as President of Gravitonic Life Ray Corporation, Inc., whether trading under the trade names of Gravitonic Life Ray Estate, Ltd., Gravitonic Life Ray Estate, Inc., or any other trade name, their respective agents, representatives and employees directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of an electrical appliance or device now designated as Gravitonic Life Ray Table, or any other appliance, or device of similar design or having substantially the same uses and purposes whether sold under this name or any other name in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing that respondents' device is a scientific discovery or based upon any scientific foundation.

2. Representing that respondents' device will locate the causes or troubles of any disease.

3. Representing that the use of respondents' device is a cure or remedy for sinus trouble and infections, sleeping sickness, blindness caused by ticdouloureux, tuberculosis, stomach and gall bladder troubles, diseases of the kidneys, arthritis, gland disorders, diabetes, tumor, prostate trouble, colds, dizziness, anemia, cancer, chronic indigestion, acute appendicitis, colitis, dyspepsia, nervousness, spinal trouble, high blood pressure, tonsillitis, catarrh, mastoid and ear trouble, or that its use constitutes a competent and effective treatment therefor.

4. Representing that the use of respondents' device will have any beneficial effect upon the human system or any beneficial value in the treatment of any disease or condition of the human body.

It is further ordered, That respondents shall, within 30 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

OF SEC. 2 (c) OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED OCT. 15, 1914, AS AMENDED
BY SEC. 1 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED JUNE 19, 1938

Docket 3765. Complaint, Apr. 17, 1939—Decision, Dec. 22, 1939

Where (a) five corporations which (1) were engaged in producing and distributing produce, foodstuffs, and allied products and in selling and shipping same in interstate commerce to the below-described individual, jobber thereof, and to other purchasers, and which (2) were fairly representative of a large group of other sellers likewise thus engaged in producing, distributing, and selling such products as aforesaid to such individual and others, and which, as thus engaged, were in active competition with other producers and distributors of similar commodities in endeavoring to sell and ship the same in interstate commerce to said jobber or broker and competitors thereof; and (b) other sellers—

Transmitted, paid, and delivered to said individual jobber or broker so-called brokerage fees or commissions consisting of certain percentage of the quoted sales prices agreed upon between each of such sellers and said individual, or flat commission thus agreed upon, upon purchases made of them by said individual for the business operated by him as jobber of produce, foodstuffs, and allied products, and for corporate wholesale dealer in such products, of which he owned 84 percent of the outstanding stock and of which he was president and member of its board of directors, and the affairs of which he actively managed and conducted; and

Where said individual engaged as above set forth, in the course and conduct of his individual business and of corporate business controlled and operated by him as above described; in purchasing the stock requirements of each of said businesses from sellers residing in other States, including sellers above set forth, for shipment to him and storage in warehouse used jointly by the two businesses and sale therefrom by his said jobbing or brokerage business to divers wholesalers of such commodities and by said corporate business, controlled and operated by him as above, to divers retailers thereof—

Received and accepted so-called brokerage fees or commissions upon commodities resold by him as jobber as aforesaid to wholesale dealers therein, and upon commodities resold by said corporate wholesaler to divers retailers therein, while in fact sole party at interest in and active manager of said jobber or brokerage business and while president and member of board of directors of said corporate wholesaler and manager of its affairs, and in connection with which various purchasing transactions upon which such so-called brokerage fees or commissions were respectively paid and transmitted, and accepted and received, no services whatsoever had been or were being rendered to, for, or on behalf of said various sellers by said individual trading as above set forth, or by said corporate wholesaler, but in which connection said individual was acting in fact for and on behalf of his own interest and as representative of said wholesaler controlled by him, with benefits possibly accruing to sellers solely incidental to buying services performed by said wholesaler:

Held, (1) That said corporate sellers, through granting and paying fees and commissions as brokerage to said individual upon his purchases, without services being rendered therefor, violated subsection (c) of Section 2 of the Clayton Act, as amended, and (2) that said individual, trading as above set forth, violated provisions of said subsection of such statute by receiving and accepting fees and commissions as brokerage upon purchases from said corporate and other sellers without services being rendered therefor.

Before Mr. Charles E. O'Connor, trial examiner.

Mr. John T. Haslett for the Commission.

Mr. Seward R. Moore, of Minneapolis, Minn., for San Pat Vegetable Co.

Warlow & Carpenter, of Orlando, Fla., for Chase & Co.

COMPLAINT

The Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that the parties respondent, named in the caption hereof and hereinafter more particularly designated and described, since June 19, 1936, have violated and are now violating the provisions of section 2 (c) of the act of Congress entitled "An Act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies and for other purposes," approved October 15, 1914 (the Clayton Act), as amended by the Act of Congress entitled "An Act to amend section 2 (c) of the act entitled 'An Act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies and for other purposes' approved October 15, 1914, as amended (U. S. C. title 15, sec. 13), and for other purposes," approved June 19, 1936 (the Robinson-Patman Act), hereby issues this its complaint against said parties respondent and states its charges with respect thereto as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent Jake Felt is an individual trading and doing business as the Fruit and Produce Exchange, with his principal office and place of business at Linden Station, Memphis, Tenn. The business engaged in by respondent Jake Felt under the said trade name is that of a jobber of produce, foodstuffs, and allied products.

Respondent M. E. Carter & Co. is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Tennessee, with its principal office and place of business at Linden Station, Memphis, Tenn. The business of the respondent M. E. Carter & Co. is that of a wholesale dealer in produce, foodstuffs and allied products.

Eighty-four percent of the outstanding stock of the respondent corporation M. E. Carter & Co. is owned by respondent Jake Felt who is president and a member of the board of directors thereof, and who actively manages and conducts its affairs.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of the aforesaid respective businesses engaged in by the respondents Jake Felt and M. E. Carter & Co., said respondent Jake Felt, trading as the Fruit and Produce Exchange, purchases the stock requirements of each of said businesses, said requirements consisting of produce, foodstuffs, and allied products, from sellers residing in States other than the State of Tennessee, among whom are the respondent sellers hereinafter named. Pursuant to such purchases commodities are shipped by said sellers from the respective States in which such sellers are located into and through the various States of the United States to the respondent Jake Felt, trading as the Fruit and Produce Exchange.

Said commodities when received are stored in a warehouse which is used jointly by the said respondent Jake Felt, trading as the Fruit and Produce Exchange, and respondent M. E. Carter & Co.

Sales from said stock of goods so purchased and stored in the common warehouse as aforesaid are made by respondent Jake Felt, trading as the Fruit and Produce Exchange, to divers wholesalers of such commodities, and by respondent M. E. Carter & Co. to divers retailers of such commodities.

PAR. 3. Respondent Milton K. Altschul, Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Illinois, with its principal office and place of business located at 264 Wholesale Terminal Building, Los Angeles, Calif.

Respondent San Pat Vegetable Co. is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Texas, with its principal office and place of business at Sinton, Tex.

Respondent A. O. Kolberg is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Texas, with its principal office and place of business at McAllen, Tex.

Respondent Albert Miller & Co. is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Delaware, with its principal office and place of business located at 308 West Washington Street, Chicago, Ill.

Respondent Chase & Co. is a corporation organized and existing and by virtue of the laws of the State of Florida, with its principal office and place of business located at Sanford, Fla.

The respondents named in this paragraph will hereinafter be referred to as "seller respondents." Each of the seller respondents named in this paragraph is engaged in the sale of commodities to respondent Jake Felt and other customers residing in States other than the respective States in which the seller respondents are located, pursuant to which sales, commodities are shipped and transported by each of the said seller respondents into and through various States of the United States to their respective customers. Said seller respondents are fairly typical and representative members of a large group or class of producers and sellers engaged in the common practice of selling some of their commodities in interstate commerce, as aforesaid, to respondent Jake Felt and to competitors of said respondent Jake Felt and respondent M. E. Carter & Co. Said group or class of sellers comprises a large number of such producers and sellers too numerous to be specifically named herein or to be brought before the Commission in this proceeding without manifest inconvenience and delay.

PAR. 4. In the course of the purchasing transactions by said respondent Jake Felt, trading as the Fruit and Produce Exchange, as set forth in paragraph 2 hereof, resulting in the delivery of commodities by the seller respondents and other sellers to respondent Jake Felt, said seller respondents and other sellers, since June 19, 1936, have transmitted, paid and delivered, and do transmit, pay and deliver, to said respondent Jake Felt, so-called brokerage fees or commissions, the same being a certain percentage of the quoted sales prices agreed upon between each of such sellers and respondent Jake Felt, and respondent Jake Felt, since June 19, 1936, has received and accepted and is receiving and accepting such so-called brokerage fees or commissions upon commodities resold by respondent Jake Felt, trading as the Fruit and Produce Exchange, to divers wholesale dealers in such products, and resold by respondent M. E. Carter & Co. to divers retail dealers, while said respondent Jake Felt is the sole party at interest in and is the active manager of the business engaged in under the trade name of the Fruit and Produce Exchange, and while 84 percent of the outstanding stock of the respondent M. E. Carter & Co. is owned by said respondent Jake Felt, who is president and a member of the board of directors thereof and actively manages its affairs.

In all the purchasing transactions hereinabove referred to, in connection with which the so-called brokerage fees or commissions have been and are paid and transmitted by said seller respondents and other sellers and have been and are accepted and received by said respondent Jake Felt, no services whatsoever in connection with said purchases have been rendered, or are now being rendered, to, for, or on behalf of said seller respondents or any other seller by either said respondent Jake Felt, trading as the Fruit and Produce Exchange, or respondent M. E. Carter & Co.

PAR. 5. The transmission and payment of said so-called brokerage fees or commissions by the seller respondents and other sellers to and the receipt and acceptance thereof by the respondent Jake Felt upon the purchases of said respondent Jake Felt, trading as the Fruit and Produce Exchange in the manner and under the circumstances hereinabove set forth, is in violation of the provisions of section 2 (c) of the above-mentioned act of Congress entitled "An Act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies and for other purposes," approved October 15, 1914 (the Clayton Act), as amended by the act of Congress entitled "An Act to amend section 2 of an act entitled 'An Act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies and for other purposes,' approved October 15, 1914, as amended (U. S. C., title 15, section 13) and for other purposes," approved June 19, 1936 (the Robinson-Patman Act).

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the act of Congress entitled "An Act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies, and for other purposes," approved October 15, 1914, (the Clayton Act), as amended by section 1 of an act entitled "An Act to amend section 2 of the Act entitled 'An Act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies, and for other purposes,' approved October 15, 1914, as amended (U. S. C. title 15, section 13), and for other purposes," approved June 19, 1936 (the Robinson-Patman Act), the Federal Trade Commission on April 17, 1939, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon the parties respondent named in the caption hereof charging them with violating the provisions of paragraph (c) of section 2 of the said act as amended.

After the issuance and service of said complaint an answer admitting all the material allegations as set forth in the complaint to be true was filed on behalf of the individual respondent Jake Felt, the respondent Jake Felt trading as the Fruit and Produce Exchange and the respondent M. E. Carter & Co. Answers admitting and denying various material facts alleged in the complaint were also filed on behalf of all other respondents. Pursuant to written notice to all respondents herein of the date, place and time hearing would be held, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by an attorney for the Commission before an examiner for the Commission, and no opposition to the allegations of the complaint was introduced, nor were there any appearances made by the respondents Milton K. Altschul, Inc., San Pat Vegetable Co., A. O. Kolberg, Albert Miller & Co. and Chase & Co.

Thereafter, admissions of facts alleged in the complaint as to place of incorporation of respondents A. O. Kolberg and Albert Miller & Co. and waivers of intervening procedure, briefs and oral argument were received from all respondents, except the respondent Milton K. Altschul, Inc. The foregoing together with testimony and other evidence, were duly received and filed in the office of the Commission; the respondent Milton K. Altschul, Inc., was apprized of his procedural rights in connection with the filing of brief and oral argument before the Commission and failed to reply to communications sent him by the Commission, and the Commission having duly considered the same and now being fully advised in the premises finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and conclusion.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent Jake Felt is an individual trading and doing business as the Fruit and Produce Exchange, with his principal office and place of business at Linden Station, Memphis, Tenn.

The business engaged in by the respondent Jake Felt under the said trade name is that of jobber of produce, foodstuffs and allied products.

The respondent M. E. Carter & Co. is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Tennessee with its principal office and place of business located at Linden Station, Memphis, Tenn.

The business of the respondent M. E. Carter & Co. is that of a wholesale dealer in produce, foodstuffs, and allied products. Eighty-four percent of the outstanding stock of the respondent corporation M. E. Carter & Co. is owned by the respondent Jake Felt, who is president and a member of the board of directors thereof, and who actively manages and conducts its affairs.

PAR. 2. Respondent Milton K. Altschul, Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Illinois with its principal office and place of business located at 264 Wholesale Terminal Building, Los Angeles, Calif.

Respondent San Pat Vegetable Co. is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Texas with its principal office and place of business at Sinton, Tex.

Respondent A. O. Kolberg is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Texas with its principal office and place of business at McAllen, Tex.

Respondent Albert Miller and Company is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Delaware with its principal office and place of business located at 308 West Washington Street, Chicago, Ill.

Respondent Chase & Co. is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Florida with its principal office and place of business located at Sanford, Fla.

This group of respondents will hereinafter be referred to as "seller respondents."

The seller respondents are fairly representative of a large group of sellers engaged in producing and distributing produce, foodstuffs, and allied products which they sell and ship in interstate commerce to the respondent Jake Felt, trading as The Fruit and Produce Exchange, and to other purchasers thereof. Each of the seller respondents actively competes with other producers and distributors of similar commodities in endeavoring to sell and ship the same in interstate commerce to the broker respondent and to competitors of the broker respondent.

PAR. 3. Since June 19, 1936, in the course and conduct of the respective businesses engaged in by the respondents Jake Felt and M. E. Carter & Co., said respondent Jake Felt, trading as The Fruit and Produce Exchange, has purchased the stock requirements of each of said businesses, said requirements consisting of produce, foodstuffs, and allied products from sellers residing in States other than the State of Tennessee, among whom are the seller respondents herein named.

Pursuant to such purchases, commodities are shipped by said sellers from the respective States in which such sellers are located into and through the various States of the United States to the respondent Jake Felt, trading as The Fruit and Produce Exchange.

Such commodities, when received, are stored in a warehouse which is used jointly by the said respondent Jake Felt, trading as The Fruit and Produce Exchange, and the respondent M. E. Carter & Co.

Sales from said stock of goods so purchased and stored in the common warehouse, as aforesaid are made by the respondent Jake Felt, trading as The Fruit and Produce Exchange, to divers wholesalers of such commodities and by respondent M. E. Carter & Co. to divers retailers of such commodities.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of the business engaged in by the said respondent Jake Felt, trading as The Fruit and Produce Exchange, wherein commodities are delivered by the said seller respondents and other sellers to the respondent Jake Felt, said seller respondents and other sellers, since June 19, 1936, have transmitted, paid and delivered, and do transmit, pay, and deliver, to said respondent Jake Felt, trading as The Fruit and Produce Exchange, so-called brokerage fees or commissions, the same being a certain percentage of the quoted sales prices agreed upon between each of such sellers and respondent Jake Felt, or a flat commission agreed upon between each of such sellers and respondent Jake Felt, and respondent Jake Felt, since June 19, 1936, has received and accepted, and does receive and accept, such so-called brokerage fees or commissions upon commodities resold by said respondent Jake Felt, trading as The Fruit and Produce Exchange, to divers wholesale dealers in such products, and resold by respondent M. E. Carter & Co. to divers retail dealers, while said respondent Jake Felt is the sole party at interest in and is the active manager of the business engaged in under the trade name of The Fruit and Produce Exchange, and while said respondent Jake Felt is president and a member of the board of directors of the respondent corporation M. E. Carter & Co. and actively manages its affairs.

In all the purchasing transactions engaged in by the said respondent Jake Felt in connection with which so-called brokerage fees or commissions have been and are paid and transmitted by said seller respondents and other sellers, and have been and are accepted and received by said respondent Jake Felt, no services whatsoever in connection with said purchases have been rendered or are now being rendered to, for, or on behalf of said seller respondents or any other seller by said respondent Jake Felt, trading as The Fruit and Produce Exchange, or the respondent M. E. Carter & Co.

In all matters and transactions wherein the respondent Jake Felt, trading as The Fruit and Produce Exchange, negotiated or dealt with sellers in connection with the purchase of commodities by said respondent Jake Felt, trading as The Fruit and Produce Exchange, the said respondent Jake Felt was acting in fact for and on behalf of his own interest and as a representative of the respondent M. E. Carter & Co., which is controlled by the said respondent Jake Felt, and any benefits which may have accrued to the seller respondents or other sellers therefrom were benefits solely incidental to the buying services performed by the respondent M. E. Carter & Co.

Order

30 F. T. C.

CONCLUSION

Under the facts and circumstances set forth in the foregoing findings of fact, the Commission concludes that the respondents Milton K. Altschul, Inc., San Pat Vegetable Co., A. O. Kolberg, Albert Miller & Co., and Chase & Co., have violated and are now violating the provisions of subsection (c), section 2, of the Clayton Act, as amended, by granting and paying fees and commissions as brokerage to the respondent Jake Felt, individually and trading as The Fruit and Produce Exchange, upon his purchases without services being rendered therefor.

The Commission further concludes that the respondent Jake Felt, individually and trading as The Fruit and Produce Exchange, has violated and is now violating the provisions of subsection (c) of section 2 of the said statute by receiving and accepting fees and commissions as brokerage upon purchases from the seller respondents and other sellers without services being rendered therefor.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer filed herein by the respondent Jake Felt, individually, trading as The Fruit and Produce Exchange, and as president of the respondent M. E. Carter & Co., admitting all the material allegations of the complaint to be true, the answers, admitting and denying various material facts of the complaint of the other respondents and admissions of facts alleged in the complaint as to place of incorporation of respondents A. O. Kolberg and Albert Miller & Co., testimony and other evidence taken before an examiner for the Commission theretofore duly designated by it in support of said complaint, and waivers of intervening procedure, briefs, and argument were received from all respondents, except the respondent Milton K. Altschul, Inc. The foregoing were duly received and filed in the office of the Commission. The respondent Milton K. Altschul, Inc., was apprized of his procedural rights in connection with the filing of brief and oral argument before the Commission and failed to reply to communications sent him by the Commission, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion, which findings and conclusion are hereby made a part hereof, that said respondents have violated the provisions of an act of Congress entitled "An Act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies and for other purposes," approved October 15, 1914, as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act approved June 19, 1936 (U. S. C. title 15, sec. 13).

It is ordered, That the respondents Milton K. Altschul, Inc., San Pat Vegetable Co., A. O. Kolberg, Albert Miller & Co., and Chase & Co., and their officers, representatives, agents, and employees, in connection with the sale and distribution of commodities in interstate commerce, do forthwith cease and desist from paying or granting to the respondent Jake Felt, individually, trading as The Fruit and Produce Exchange, or under any other name, any fee or commission paid as brokerage or any allowance in lieu thereof upon the purchases made by the respondent Jake Felt without services being rendered therefor by the respondent Jake Felt.

It is further ordered, That the respondent Jake Felt, individually and trading as The Fruit and Produce Exchange, his representatives, agents, and employees, either in their capacities as employees of the respondent Jake Felt or in their individual capacities, in connection with the purchase of commodities in interstate commerce by the respondent Jake Felt, individually and trading as The Fruit and Produce Exchange, do forthwith cease and desist from accepting or receiving from sellers any fees or commissions as brokerage or any allowance in lieu thereof.

It is further ordered, That the complaint herein be, and the same hereby is, dismissed as to the respondent M. E. Carter & Co. for the reason that the record does not disclose that any brokerage or commissions or any allowances or discounts in lieu thereof have been paid, granted, or transmitted to the respondent M. E. Carter & Co.

It is further ordered, That the parties respondent shall within 60 days after service upon them of this order file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF UNIVERSAL CORDAGE COMPANY, INC.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 23, 1914

Docket 3612. Complaint, Sept. 23, 1938—Decision, Dec. 27, 1939

Where a corporation engaged in manufacturing remade rope and cordage from reclaimed Manila fiber, and in sale and distribution of its said products to customers in various States and in the District of Columbia—

- (a) Caused the words "Pure Manila" to appear on labels and brands affixed to its remade rope and cordage and made use of said words in designating its products on announcements and invoices to dealers, jobbers, and distributors, and stenciled the same in the branding of burlap containers thereof, facts being its said product, labeled, branded, and advertised as above set out, was not, as understood by substantial portion of purchasing public from words "Pure Manila," rope or cordage made of new and unused fiber or material theretofore unused for rope or cordage, with each fiber going into the product from the beginning of the rope-making process entirely new, but was restranded and assembled by it from reclaimed fiber obtained from old, used and discarded rope, and while there is a difference in appearance of such a product made from new material and one made from that which is used or discarded which expert in trade might detect, substantial portion of purchasing public cannot determine by appearance of rope such difference, and custom and practice, known to purchasers and users of rope and cordage, has been generally adopted by manufacturers, distributors, and sellers thereof of so marking or branding their products as to indicate presence of old or used fiber when employed in manufacture thereof; and
- (b) Represented itself to be "new manufacturers of pure Manila rope" in statements to the trade through the medium of the mail, facts being its factory equipment was less than equipment and machinery used by manufacturers in making rope and cordage of new materials, it eliminated approximately two-thirds of rope-making in its process of using fiber of old product, and about two-thirds of labor cost of making rope from new material by assembling from reclaimed fiber obtained from old, used, and discarded rope, its product so as to be enabled thereby to sell to purchasing public at substantially lower prices than could be offered by manufacturers of Manila rope and cordage of new fiber and material, its products;

With effect of misleading and deceiving many dealers and members of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken beliefs induced as aforesaid and with result that trade in commerce was thereby diverted unfairly to it from competitors who do not misrepresent the nature, character, and quality of the material used in the manufacture of rope and cordage and otherwise misrepresent their goods; to injury of competitors in commerce:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Complaint

Before Mr. Robert S. Hall, trial examiner.

Mr. John R. Phillips, Jr. for the Commission.

Weisman, Celler, Quinn, Allen & Spett, of New York City, for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Universal Cordage Co., Inc., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Universal Cordage Co., Inc., is a corporation created by and existing under the laws of the State of New York, with its principal offices and place of business located at 312 Bridge Street, in the city of Brooklyn, State of New York.

PAR. 2. Respondent is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, engaged in the business of manufacturing remade rope and cordage from reclaimed Manila fiber, and in the sale and distribution thereof. Respondent causes said rope and cordage when sold to be transported from its place of business in the State of New York to its customers located in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said rope and cordage sold and distributed by it in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of its business respondent is in active and substantial competition with other corporations, and with firms, partnerships, and individuals engaged in the sale and distribution of rope and cordage in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of its said business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of said rope and cordage, respondent has caused the words "Pure Manila" to appear on labels and brands affixed to its remade rope and cordage, and on announcements and invoices to dealers, jobbers, and distributors, and in stenciled brandings on burlap containers for such rope and cordage. Respondent has also represented itself, through the medium of the United States mail, to be "new manufacturers of pure Manila Rope."

Complaint

All of said statements, together with similar statements appearing on the labels, brands, announcements, invoices, and the stenciled brandings on its burlap containers, purport to be descriptive of the character, quality, nature, and fiber of respondent's rope and cordage. By use of said labels, brands, announcements, invoices, stenciled brandings, and through other means, the respondent, through the statements and representations as aforesaid, and other statements of similar import and effect, represents that its rope and cordage are in whole manufactured from new pure Manila fiber.

PAR. 5. The representations made by the respondent with respect to the character, quality, nature, and fiber of its rope and cordage are grossly exaggerated, false, misleading, and untrue. In truth and in fact its rope and cordage are not manufactured from new and unused pure Manila fiber, but are restrand and assembled from reclaimed fiber obtained from old, used, and discarded rope and hawsers, which fact is not indicated or disclosed upon its merchandise or in the labels brands, announcements, or other sales-promotional representations used in respect thereto.

The cost to respondent of obtaining old and used rope and hawsers, and the restrand and assembling the reclaimed fiber therefrom as aforesaid, is much less than the cost of manufacturing new rope and cordage made from new Manila fiber, and respondent is thereby enabled to sell its said rope and cordage to retailers, jobbers, and wholesalers and to the purchasing public at substantially lower prices than manufacturers of Manila rope and cordage from new material.

The manufacturers, distributors, and sellers of rope and cordage made from new pure Manila fiber have generally adopted and followed, and they now follow, the common practice and custom of truthfully disclosing the various fibers and materials from which such rope and cordage are made, and this custom and practice on the part of said manufacturers, distributors, and sellers of rope and cordage is understood and relied upon by the purchasing public in its purchase thereof to mean rope and cordage manufactured from new and unused Manila fiber unless otherwise expressly specified.

PAR. 6. There are among respondent's competitors many who manufacture and sell rope and cordage who do not in any way misrepresent the quality or character of their respective ropes and cordage and the materials from which they are made.

PAR. 7. Each and all of the false and misleading statements and representations made by respondent in designating and describing its rope and cordage, as hereinabove set out, have had and now have a tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that all of such representations are true and that its said rope and cordage are made from new and unused pure Manila fiber, and to lead the public into the purchase of a substantial volume of respondent's said rope and cordage because of said mistaken and erroneous belief, with the result that trade in said commerce has been diverted unfairly to the respondent from its competitors, likewise engaged in manufacturing, distributing, and selling rope and cordage in said commerce, who truthfully represent the quality and character of their respective rope and cordage and the material or fiber from which they are manufactured. As a consequence thereof, substantial injury has been done and is now being done by respondent to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on the 28th day of September A. D. 1938, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondent Universal Cordage Co., Inc., charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint, testimony, and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by John R. Phillips, Jr., attorney for the Commission, before Robert S. Hall, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter the proceedings regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, the testimony and other evidence, and brief in support of the complaint; and the Commission, having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Universal Cordage Co., Inc., is a corporation created by and existing under the laws of the State of New York, with its principal office and place of business located at 312

Bridge Street, in the city of Brooklyn, State of New York. It is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been engaged in the business of manufacturing remade rope and cordage from reclaimed Manila fiber, and in the sale and distribution thereof. Respondent causes said rope and cordage, when sold, to be transported from its place of business in the State of New York, to its customers located in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said rope and cordage sold and distributed by it in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. Respondent, in the course and conduct of its said business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of said rope and cordage, has caused the words "Pure Manila" to appear on labels and brands affixed to its remade rope and cordage. It has also caused the words "Pure Manila" to appear in designating its products on announcements and invoices to dealers, jobbers, and distributors, and has also stenciled said words in the branding of burlap containers for such rope and cordage; and in statements to the trade through the medium of the United States mail, respondent has also represented itself to be "new manufacturers of pure Manila rope."

PAR. 3. A substantial portion of the purchasing public believe the words "Pure Manila" when used on labels, brands, and advertisements of rope and cordage, mean that the product thus labeled, branded, and advertised, is a rope or cordage made of new and unused fiber, or from material theretofore unused for rope or cordage; that each fiber going into the product, from the beginning of the rope-making process, is entirely new fiber. The words "new manufacturers of pure Manila rope" mean, also, to such substantial portion of the purchasers of rope that the makers of rope or cordage thus branded, labeled, or advertised, are manufacturers of pure Manila rope, and that such makers have ample factory equipment to begin with the raw material and process such raw material into a finished new rope or cordage product.

PAR. 4. Respondent's product, labeled, branded and advertised as shown in paragraph 2 hereof, is not rope or cordage manufactured from new and unused, pure Manila fiber. The respondent restrands and assembles its products from reclaimed fiber obtained from old, used, and discarded rope. Respondent's factory equipment is less than the equipment and machinery used by manufacturers in manufacturing rope and cordage of new materials. In using fiber of old ropes, the preliminary steps of combing or preparing, and the spinning process necessary in making rope of new fiber are eliminated, which elimination is approximately two-thirds of rope making. Approximately two-thirds of the labor cost of manufacturing rope from new material is eliminated by respondent's methods of assembling its product from reclaimed fiber obtained from old, used, and discarded rope. Respondent is thereby enabled to sell its rope and cordage to the purchasing public at substantially lower prices than can be offered by manufacturers of Manila rope and cordage from new fiber or material.

PAR. 5. While there is a difference in the appearance of rope manufactured from new material and rope manufactured from used or discarded material, which an expert in the rope trade might detect, yet a substantial portion of the purchasing public cannot determine by the appearance of the rope, such difference.

PAR. 6. Manufacturers, distributors, and sellers of rope and cordage have adopted generally the custom and practice, which is generally known to purchasers and users of rope and cordage, of so marking or branding their products as to indicate the presence of old or used fiber when such fiber is used in the manufacture thereof, and to fail to so mark or brand rope and cordage containing old and used fiber leads purchasers to believe that such rope and cordage contain no old or used fiber.

PAR. 7. The use by the respondent of the statements and representations hereinabove set out, in connection with the offering for sale and sale of its rope and cordage in commerce, as herein set out, has had the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive many dealers and members of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken beliefs induced as above set out. As a result thereof, trade in said commerce has been diverted unfairly to the respondent from competitors who do not misrepresent the nature, character, and quality of the material used in the manufacture of rope and cordage, and who do not otherwise misrepresent their products. In consequence thereof, injury has been done, and is now being done, by respondent to competitors in commerce between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, no answer having been filed by the respondent, testimony and other evidence taken before Robert S. Hall, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint, brief in support of the complaint filed by John R. Phillips, Jr., counsel for the Commission, no brief having been filed on behalf of the respondent, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Universal Cordage Co., Inc., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of rope and cordage in interstate commerce or in the District of Columbia, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing that rope or cordage made in whole or in part from used or reclaimed Manila fiber is made of new and unused fiber.

2. Using the words "Pure Manila" or any other words of like import and meaning to designate, describe or refer to rope or cordage made in whole or in part from used or reclaimed Manila fiber.

3. Representing, through the use of the words "New manufacturers of Pure Manila rope and fiber" or through the use of any other words importing or implying that respondent is the manufacturer of the products sold by it, that the respondent is the manufacturer of the rope and cordage sold by it, unless and until it actually owns and operates, or directly and absolutely controls, a manufacturing plant wherein said products are manufactured in their entirety by the respondent.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF
RALSTON PURINA COMPANYCOMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914*Docket 3102. Complaint, Apr. 10, 1937—Decision, Dec. 28, 1939*

Where a corporation engaged in manufacture of livestock feeds, cereal foods for human consumption, and food for dogs and other animals, including its "Purina Dog Chow," and in sale and distribution of its said product to purchasers in other States, in substantial competition with others similarly engaged in sale of like products or of those for the same purposes—

Represented, in pamphlets, circulars, labels, and other advertising matter circulated through the several States and in the District of Columbia, that said "Purina Dog Chow" contained pure beef, pure meat, and meat, facts being ingredient thus referred to, and properly designated as "meat meal" or dehydrated meat meal, purchased by it from packing companies and manufacturers thereof, was made by them under a process by which the meat trimmings, deposits of fat, various organs, incidental bone, etc., were so treated that two of four chemical food elements of meat, namely, fat and moisture, were removed, and any small amount included in original contents placed in vats or containers made use of was changed both physically and chemically, and there was no meat or beef in the meat meal or finished ingredient placed, in form of dry meal or powder, in said dog food;

With tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive substantial part of purchasing and consuming public into erroneous and mistaken belief that said dog food contained pure beef, pure meat, or meat, and with result, as consequence of such belief, that purchasing and consuming public bought substantial amount thereof and trade was unfairly diverted to it from its competitors engaged in manufacture, sale, and distribution of such products, or in sale and distribution thereof, and who truthfully represent the contents of their said products; to the substantial injury of competition in commerce:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Before Mr. W. W. Sheppard, Mr. Miles J. Furnas, and Mr. Randolph Preston, trial examiners.

Mr. S. Brogdyne Teu, II and Mr. Donovan Divet for the Commission.

Mr. Crawford Johnson and Mr. Thomas S. McPheeters, Jr. of Bryan, Williams, Cave & McPheeters, of St. Louis, Mo., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of an act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Ralston Purina Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has been and is now using unfair methods of competition in commerce as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Missouri, with its principal place of business located in the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri. It is now, and for some time past has been, engaged in the manufacture of live stock feeds, cereal foods for human consumption and of food for dogs and various other animals, among which said products is a dog food which it offers for sale and sells under the trade name "Purina Dog Chow." The respondent sells and distributes said product in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, causing the same when sold to be shipped from its place of business in the State of Missouri to purchasers thereof located in a State or States other than the State of Missouri.

In the course and conduct of its business, the respondent has been, and is, in substantial competition with various other corporations, partnerships, firms, and individuals engaged in the sale of similar products or products to be used for the same and similar purposes, which competitors cause their products when sold to be transported to purchasers thereof located in the various States of the United States.

PAR. 2. In the course of promotion of sale and sale of its dog food under the trade name "Purina Dog Chow," the respondent causes representations and statements to be made in pamphlets, circulars, labels, and other advertising matter circulated throughout the several States of the United States to the following effect, gist, or meaning:

That the product contains "pure beef," "pure meat," or "meat."
That it contains "whole milk."

And that 1 pound of its product contains as much food value as 3 pounds of fresh or canned meat.

In truth and in fact, the product does not contain "pure beef," "pure meat," or "meat." The portion of the contents so designated and described is properly known and referred to as dehydrated meat scraps. Said product does not contain "whole milk," but is made of dried skimmed milk. One pound of the product does not contain as much food value as 3 pounds of fresh or canned meat.

PAR. 3. Under the foregoing facts and circumstances, the representations, statements, and terms used by respondent in its advertising matter, as set forth in paragraph 2 hereof, are false and misleading, and have the capacity and tendency to deceive and do deceive the ultimate purchasers and consumers into buying that which they do not intend to buy. Through and by virtue of the use of such representations, statements, and terms in its advertising matter, as aforesaid, the respondent has placed and is placing in the hands of its wholesaler and retailer purchasers, the means of deceiving the ultimate purchasers and consumers. The aforesaid practices have the capacity and tendency to divert to respondent the trade of competitors engaged in selling in interstate commerce products of the same kind and nature as those of respondent, which products are truthfully advertised and described, and thereby substantial injury is done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

PAR. 4. The acts and things above alleged to have been done and the false representations alleged to have been made by respondent are to the prejudice of the public and the competitors of respondent and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of section 5 of an act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," approved September 26, 1914.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on the 10th day of April 1937, issued, and thereafter served, its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondent, Ralston Purina Co., charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act.

After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, testimony in support of the allegations of the complaint was introduced, first, by S. Brogdyne Teu, II, before W. W. Sheppard, a duly appointed trial examiner of the Commission; subsequently before Miles J. Furnas, duly appointed trial examiner of the Commission, and later, before Randolph Preston, a duly appointed trial examiner of the Commission, designated by it to preside at said hearings. The respondent was represented at all of these hearings by its attorneys, Bryan, Williams, Cave & McPheeters,

Findings

30 F. T. C.

Crawford Johnson and Thomas S. McPheeters, Jr., of said firm, appearing as its counsel. Said testimony and other evidence was duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceedings regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said pleadings, testimony and other evidence, briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto, and oral argument of the counsel aforesaid. Mr. Donovan Divet, of the Chief Counsel's staff, presented the argument on behalf of the Commission; and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent is a corporation, organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Missouri, with its principal place of business located in the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri. It is now, and for some time past has been, engaged in the manufacture of livestock feeds, cereal foods for human consumption, and of food for dogs and various other animals, among which said products is a dog food which it offers for sale and sells under the trade name "Purina Dog Chow." The respondent sells and distributes said product in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, causing the same, when sold, to be shipped from its place of business in the State of Missouri to purchasers thereof located in a State or States other than the State of Missouri.

In the course and conduct of its business the respondent has been and is in substantial competition with various other corporations and with firms, partnerships, and individuals engaged in the sale of similar products, or of products to be used for the same purposes, which competitors cause their products, when sold, to be transported to purchasers thereof located in various States of the United States.

PAR. 2. In the course of the promotion of sale and the sale of its dog food under the trade name "Purina Dog Chow," the respondent has caused and causes representations and statements to be made in pamphlets, circulars, labels, and other advertising matter circulated throughout the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, among others, to the following effect, that the said product contains pure beef, pure meat, and meat, when in truth and in fact said product does not contain pure beef, pure meat, beef or meat; but the ingredient of the said product so designated and described is properly known and referred to as "meat meal" or more fully as dehydrated meat meal. The ingredient which the respondent represents as pure beef, pure meat, or meat is purchased by said respondent from Armour & Co. of Chicago, from Swift & Co. of Chicago, and from the Kohr Packing Co. of Davenport, Iowa, and after being purchased is put into the final product Purina Dog Chow by the respondent. The said ingredient is made by all the said companies from substantially the same materials and by substantially the same processes of manufacture. For the purpose of manufacturing said ingredient the said companies place meat trimmings, deposits of fat, hearts, lungs, spleen, kidneys, paunches, intestines to a limited extent, incidental bone, and connective tissue in the organs and abdominal tract into large containers or vats. The final product, Purina Dog Chow, is 8 percent beef meal and 8 percent pork meal. When the respective companies are manufacturing pork meal for use by the respondent the ingredients of the meal are taken from hogs and when they are manufacturing beef meal the ingredients are taken from beef animals. The contents of the containers or vats are subjected to a temperature of 212° F. or more. The contents of the containers or vats are subjected to this temperature for from 6 to 8 hours, and as a part of this heating process the fats and oils are drawn off. The remaining contents of the vats or containers are then placed in an expeller or screw-worm, which forces out any fat or oil remaining after the heating process. The heating process also substantially reduces the moisture content of the original contents of the vats or containers. Chemically, meat is composed of four food elements, which are protein, fat, moisture, and calcium. The heating processes used by all of the companies from which the respondent purchases the ingredient in Purina Dog Chow designated as meat or beef remove from the original contents of the vats or containers two of the four chemical food elements of meat, to wit, the fat and the moisture. Meat is the edible portion of the carcass of an animal. The original contents of the said containers or vats include a small amount of meat but the Commission finds that the contents of said vats or containers as a whole cannot properly be designated as meat, as pure meat, as beef, or as pure beef, and further finds that whatever meat is included in the original contents placed in said vats or containers is changed both physically and chemically by the heating process and the expelling process of the various companies with the result that there is no meat or beef in the final ingredient, meat meal, which is placed in the said Purina Dog Chow in the form of a dry meal or powder. The Commission finds that the proper designation of the ingredient on which the respondent has based its assertions that said Dog Chow contains meat, pure meat, beef, or pure beef, is meat meal or more fully, dehydrated meat meal.

PAR. 3. The use by the respondent of the representations and statements aforesaid, and of others of similar import not herein set out, in connection with the sale and distribution of the aforesaid product, Purina Dog Chow, has had, and now has, the tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive a substantial part of the purchasing and consuming public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that said product contains pure beef, pure meat, or meat. As a result of this mistaken and erroneous belief, the purchasing and consuming public have purchased a substantial amount of respondent's product, with the result that trade has been unfairly diverted to respondent from its competitors in the manufacture, sale, and distribution of such products, or in the sale and distribution thereof, which competitors truthfully represent the contents of their respective products; as a consequence thereof, substantial injury has been and is being done by the respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition and unfair and deceptive acts and practices, in commerce, within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission on the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondent, testimony, and other evidence taken before W. W. Sheppard, Miles J. Furnas, and Randolph Preston, examiners of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of said complaint and in opposition thereto, briefs filed herein, and oral arguments by Donovan Divet, counsel for the Commission, and by Crawford Johnson, counsel for the respondent, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent Ralston Purina Co., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of its food for dogs known as Purina Dog Chow, or any other product containing substantially similar in-redients, whether sold under the same name or under any other name, in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

Using the terms "pure beef," or "pure meat" or "meat" or "beef" or any other terms of similar import or meaning to designate or describe dehydrated meat meal, or any product which is not meat or beef in fact.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

COMPANY, INC.COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914*Docket 3276. Complaint, Dec. 2, 1937—Decision, Dec. 28, 1939*

Where a corporation engaged in manufacture of fabrics and in sale thereof to garment manufacturers and other purchasers located throughout the various States and in the District of Columbia; in soliciting and selling certain of its fabrics to such manufacturers—

- (a) Supplied such customers with tags and labels to be affixed and attached to garments made therefrom, and which were thus affixed by said customers to garments made from fabrics in question, and which bore statement "PURE DYE NANUETTE CREPE DuPont Rayon and Silk," with words "Pure Dye" and "Crepe" featured thereon and words "Dupont Rayon and Silk" printed in small and less conspicuous type, and which tags and labels set forth, on back thereof, " 'Nanquette Crepe' makes possible the elimination of tin-weighted cloths for lingerie," "The 'Nanquette Crepe' label is the guarantee of PURE DYE * * *," "Best results are obtainable when the silk lingerie is ironed * * *," and thereby represented to purchasing public and garment manufacturers that fabrics thus advertised, offered, and sold were silk, facts being they were not made of silk, product of cocoon of silkworm, as long definitely and specifically associated with word in mind of retail dealers and consuming public generally, but were composed entirely of materials other than silk, and made of rayon; and

Where second concern engaged in manufacture of women's undergarments and other allied products, and in sale thereof to retailers and other purchasers throughout the various States and in the District of Columbia—

- (b) Tagged and labeled garments made by it from fabrics which it purchased from such fabric manufacturer with tags and labels supplied by manufacturer in question, as above described, and in a display folder, with which it accompanied its said garments, set forth legend "PURE DYE NANUETTE CREPE DuPont Rayon and Silk," with words "Pure Dye" and "Raysilk" featured in large conspicuous type and words "Made of Silk and Rayon" printed in less conspicuous type, and in other display folders, with which it accompanied other garments made, offered and sold by it, featured words "Van Ceta Taffeta Slips" and "Val Sheen Satin Slips," and represented thereby to members of purchasing public and retail and other dealers that garments thus advertised, offered and sold were silk, facts being they were not products of silk, long held in great public esteem and confidence for their preeminent qualities and long associated in public mind with fabric made from cocoon of silkworm, or silk as designated, described and referred to in case of dress goods, ladies' undergarments, and other items of wearing apparel as "Pure Dye," "Crepe," "Taffeta," and "Satin" or through coined word including word "silk";

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of an act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that A. Schottland, Inc., a corporation, and Valmor Undergarment Co., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondents, have been and are using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as commerce is defined in said act, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, A. Schottland, Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New Jersey with its office and principal place of business located at 1441 Broadway, New York, in said State. It is now, and for many years last past has been, engaged in the business of manufacturing fabrics. It sells, and has sold and distributed, such goods to garment manufacturers and other customers located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. It causes, and during the time above mentioned has caused, its said goods, when sold, to be shipped from its factories located at Nanuet, N. Y., and at Rocky Mount, N. C., to the purchasers thereof located in the various States of the United States other than the States of origin of such shipments.

Respondent Valmor Undergarment Co. is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York with its office and principal place of business located at 149 Madison Avenue, New York, in said State. It is now, and for many years last past has been, engaged in the business of manufacturing ladies' undergarments and other allied products. It sells, and has sold and distributed, such undergarments and other allied products to retail dealers and other customers located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. It causes, and during the time above mentioned has caused, its said products when sold to be shipped from its place of business in New York City to the purchasers thereof located in the various States of the United States other than the State of New York.

There is now, and has been at all times mentioned herein, a constant current of trade and commerce by said respondents in said products so sold by them between and among the various States of the United States. Respondents are now, and at all times herein mentioned have been, in substantial competition with other corporations and with persons, firms, and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of fabrics, ladies' undergarments, and other allied products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent A. Schottland, Inc., in soliciting the sale of and selling certain of its products to garment manufacturers supplies its customers with tags and labels to be affixed and attached to the garments made from said fabrics. Said customers did, and do, attach and affix such tags and labels to the garments manufactured by them from said products. The said labels and tags bear the following statement:

PURE DYE

NANUETTE

DuPont Rayon and Silk

On both the tags and labels the words "Pure Dye" and "Crepe" are featured and displayed prominently in large, conspicuous type, while the words "DuPont Rayon and Silk" are printed in small and less conspicuous type. On the backs of the tags the following statements appear: " 'Nanuette Crepe' makes possible the elimination of 10-weight cloths for lingerie," "The 'Nanuette Crepe' label is a guarantee of PURE DYE * * *," and "Best Results are obtainable when the silk lingerie is ironed * * *." Other fabrics sold and shipped by the respondent, A. Schottland, Inc., in commerce as set out in paragraph 1 are branded or labeled "RAYSILK." The foregoing statements and representations made by the respondent, A. Schottland, Inc., as in this paragraph set out, serve as representations to the purchasing public and to garment manufacturers that such fabrics so advertised and offered for sale were, and are, silk fabrics. The representations hereinabove set forth are, and were, false and misleading in that said fabrics so represented, designated and referred to are not, and were not, composed of silk, the product of the cocoon of the silkworm, but are, and were, composed of materials other than silk.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of its business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent Valmor Undergarment Co. purchases certain fabrics manufactured by respondent A. Schottland, Inc., which are tagged, branded, and labeled, as set out in paragraph 2 hereof. Respondent Valmor Undergarment Co. uses said fabrics so purchased and so tagged, branded, and labeled in the manufacture by it of garments, ladies' slips, and other allied products which it offers for sale and sells, tagged and labeled as aforesaid, in commerce as hereinbefore set out, accompanied by a display folder bearing the following:

PURE DYE
NANUETTE

DuPont Rayon and Silk

The said display folders featured the words, "Pure Dye" and "Ray-silk," in large conspicuous type, while the words "Made of Silk and Rayon" were printed in less conspicuous type. Other garments manufactured by the respondent Valmor Undergarment Co. and offered for sale and sold in commerce as hereinbefore set out were accompanied by display folders on which appeared in large, conspicuous type "Van Ceta Taffeta Slips," and "Val Sheen Satin Slips."

The statements and representations made by the respondent Valmor Undergarment Co., as in this paragraph set out, serve as representations to members of the purchasing public and to retail dealers and other dealers that such garments so advertised and offered for sale were, and are, silk garments. Such representations are, and were, false and misleading in that said garments so represented, designated and referred to are not, and were not, composed of silk, the product of the cocoon of the silkworm, but are, and were, composed of materials other than silk.

PAR. 4. The word "silk" for many years last past has had and still has in the mind of the retail dealers and consuming public generally a definite and specific meaning, to wit: The product of the cocoon of the silkworm. Silk products for many years have held and still hold a great public esteem and confidence for their preeminent qualities. Silk fiber has long been woven into a variety of fabrics; a variety of distinctive terms has been applied to the fabrics resulting from different types of weaving of silk fiber. Dress goods, ladies' undergarments, and other items of wearing apparel designated, described, and referred to as "Pure Dye," "Crepe," "Taffeta," and “Satin” or by use of any coined word which includes the word “Silk,” have been for a long time, and at the present time still are, associated in the public mind with the fabric made from the cocoon of the silkworm commonly known and understood by the public generally as “silk.”

PAR. 5. There are among the competitors of respondents mentioned in paragraph 1 hereof corporations, individuals, partnerships, and firms engaged in the manufacture and sale of fabrics, garments, ladies' slips, and other allied products who do not misrepresent the kind of goods manufactured and offered for sale by them.

PAR. 6. The use by respondents of the representations set forth herein have had, and now have, the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that such representations are, and were, true and to cause them to purchase said products as a result of such erroneous beliefs engendered as above set forth. The use by respondents of the representations aforesaid has unfairly diverted, and does unfairly divert, trade in said commerce to the respondents from their said competitors, and thereby substantial injury is being, and has been, done by respondents to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States.

PAR. 7. The above alleged acts and practices, of respondents, as hereinabove alleged, are all to the prejudice of the public and respondents' said competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of section 5 of an act of Congress entitled “An act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes,” approved September 26, 1914.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on December 2, 1937, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondents, A. Schottland, Inc., and Valmor Undergarment Co., Inc., charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On March 16, 1938, the respondent Valmor Undergarment Co., Inc., filed its substitute answer to the complaint in which it admitted the truth of all the material allegations of the complaint. The respondent A. Schottland, Inc., filed its answer to the complaint on December 23, 1937. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondents' answers thereto testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by James L. Fort, Esq., attorney for the Commission, and by Mr. George Schottland, the secretary of respondent, A. Schottland, Inc., in its behalf in opposition to the complaint, before Edward E. Reardon, Esq., an examiner of the Commission, theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission upon the said complaint, the answers of the respondents, the testimony and other evidence, the brief of counsel for the Commission in support of the complaint (respondents not having filed a brief and oral argument not having been requested); and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, A. Schottland, Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New Jersey and having its office and principal place of business at No. 1441 Broadway, in the city and State of New York. It is and has been for many years last past engaged in the business of manufacturing fabrics in its factories, which are located at Rocky Mount, N. C., and at Nanuet, N. Y., and in the business of selling, in commerce, the fabrics manufactured by it to garment manufacturers and to other purchasers of its fabrics, located throughout the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. The respondent, Valmor Undergarment Co., Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, and having its office and principal place of business at No. 149 Madison Avenue, in the city and State of New York. It has been for many years last past and now is engaged in the business of manufacturing women's undergarments and other allied products and in the business of selling same, in commerce, to retail dealers and to other purchasers located throughout the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. The respondents, A. Schottland, Inc., and Valmor Undergarment Co., Inc., in the sale by them, respectively, of fabrics, women's undergarments and other allied products, are and have been, during all the times mentioned and referred to above, in substantial competition, in commerce, among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, with other individuals, firms, and corporations who are and have been engaged in the sale of fabrics, women's undergarments, and other allied products.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of its business as described herein, respondent, A. Schottland, Inc., in soliciting the sale of and selling certain of its fabrics to garment manufacturers, supplies its customers with tags and labels to be affixed and attached to the garments made from said fabrics. Said customers affix such tags and labels to the garments manufactured by them from the said fabrics. The said labels and tags bear the following statement:

PURE DYE
NANUETTE
DuPont Rayon and Silk

On both the tags and labels the words "Pure Dye" and "Crepe" are featured and displayed prominently in large, more conspicuous type, while the words "DuPont Rayon and Silk" are printed in small and less conspicuous type. On the backs of the tags the following statements appear.

"Nanulette Crepe" makes possible the elimination of tin weighted cloths for lingerie

The "Nanulette Crepe" label is a guarantee of PURE DYE * * *

Best results are obtainable when the silk lingerie is ironed * * *

The foregoing statements and representations made by the respondent, A. Schottland, Inc., as set out herein, serve as representations to the purchasing public and to garment manufacturers that such fabrics so advertised, offered for sale, and sold, were, and are, silk fabrics. The representations hereinabove set forth are, and were, false and misleading in that said fabrics so represented, designated, and referred to are not, and were not, composed of silk, the product of the cocoon of the silkworm, but are, and were, composed entirely of materials other than silk, to wit, rayon.

PAR. 5. In the course and conduct of its business as described herein, respondent Valmor Undergarment Co., Inc., purchases certain fabrics manufactured by the respondent A. Schottland, Inc., with which fabrics respondent A. Schottland, Inc., furnishes certain tags and labels as described herein. Respondent Valmor Undergarment Co., Inc., uses said fabrics, so purchased, and said tags and labels in the manufacture by it of garments, ladies' slips, and other allied products which it offers for sale and sells, tagged and labeled as aforesaid, in commerce, accompanied by a display folder bearing the following:

PURE DYE
NANUETTE

DuPont Rayon and Silk

The said display folders featured the words "Pure Dye" and "Ray-silk" in large conspicuous type, while the words "Made of Silk and Rayon" were printed in less conspicuous type. Other garments manufactured by the respondent Valmor Undergarment Co., and offered for sale and sold in commerce as hereinbefore set out were accompanied by display folders on which appeared in large, conspicuous type "Van Ceta Taffeta Slips," and "Val Sheen Satin Slips."

The statements and representations made by the respondent Valmor Undergarment Co., Inc., as in this paragraph set out, serve as representations to members of the purchasing public and to retail dealers and other dealers that such garments so advertised and offered for sale were, and are, silk garments. Such representations are, and were, false and misleading in that said garments so represented, designated, and referred to are not, and were not, composed of silk, the product of the cocoon of the silkworm, but are, and were, composed of materials other than silk.

PAR. 6. The word "silk" for many years last past has had and still has in the mind of the retail dealers and consuming public generally a definite and specific meaning, to wit: The product of the cocoon of the silkworm. Silk products for many years have held and still hold a great public esteem and confidence for their preeminent qualities. Silk fiber has long been woven into a variety of fabrics; a variety of distinctive terms has been applied to the fabrics resulting from different types of weaving of silk fiber. Dress goods, ladies' undergarments, and other items of wearing apparel designated, described and referred to as "Pure Dye," "Crepe," "Taffeta," and "Satin" or by use of any coined word which includes the word "Silk," have been for a long time, and at the present time still are, associated in the public mind with the fabric made from the cocoon of the silkworm commonly known and understood by the public generally as "Silk."

PAR. 7. There are among the competitors of respondents, corporations, individuals, partnerships, and firms engaged in the manufacture and sale of fabrics, garments, ladies' slips, and other allied products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia who do not misrepresent in any manner the kind or quality of goods manufactured, offered for sale, and sold by them.

PAR. 8. The use by respondents of the representations set forth herein have had, and now have, the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that such representations are, and were, true and to cause them to purchase said products as a result of such erroneous beliefs induced as above set forth. The use by respondents of the representations aforesaid has unfairly diverted, and does unfairly divert, trade in commerce to the respondents from their said competitors, and thereby substantial injury is being, and has been, done by respondents to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondent Valmor Undergarment Co., Inc., in which answer the Valmor Undergarment Co., Inc., admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and states that it waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts; the answer of the respondent, A. Schottland, Inc., denying many of the material allegations of the complaint, testimony, and other evidence taken before Edward E. Reardon, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, and brief filed by the counsel for the Commission, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondents, A. Schottland, Inc., and Valmor Undergarment Co., Inc., their respective officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of textile fabrics including women's undergarments and garments or similar products, in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Using the words "pure dye" or any other word or words of similar import or meaning to designate or describe fabrics which are not composed wholly of unweighted silk, the product of the cocoon of the silkworm, provided that in the case of a fabric or material composed in part of unweighted silk and in part of materials other than unweighted silk, such words may be used as descriptive of the unweighted silk content if there is used in immediate connection or conjunction therewith in letters of equal size and conspicuousness, a word or words accurately describing and designating each constituent fiber or material thereof in the order of its predominance by weight, beginning with the largest single constituent;

2. Using the words "satin," "taffeta," or "crepe" or any other word or words of similar import or meaning to describe or designate any fabric or product which is not composed wholly of silk, the product of the cocoon of the silkworm: Provided, however, That when said words are used truthfully to designate or describe the type of weave, construction or finish, such words must be qualified by using in immediate connection and conjunction therewith in letters of at least equal size and conspicuousness a word or words clearly and accurately naming or describing the fibers or materials from which said product is made;

3. Using the term "silk" or any other term or terms which includes the word "silk," or any colorable simulation thereof, or using any other term of similar import or meaning to describe or designate any fabric or product which is not wholly composed of silk, the product of the cocoon of the silkworm, provided that in the case of a fabric or product composed in part of silk and in part of materials other than silk, such term or similar terms may be used as descriptive of the silk content when immediately accompanied by a word or words accurately describing and designating such other materials in the order of their predominance by weight, beginning with the largest single constituent.

It is further ordered, That the respondents shall within 60 days after service upon them of this order file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner in which they have complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF CIVILIAN PREPARATORY SERVICE, INC.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3387. Complaint, Apr. 22, 1938—Decision, Dec. 28, 1939

Where a corporation engaged in sale and distribution of correspondence courses of study and instruction for civil service examinations for certain Government positions to purchasers in various other States, in substantial competition with others similarly engaged in sale and distribution in commerce among the various States and in the District of Columbia of correspondence courses of study and instruction to prepare students for such examinations, and of correspondence courses of study and instruction of other kinds; in soliciting, directly and through its representatives, sale of its said courses—

- (a) Represented that it or its representatives were connected with or under supervision of Government or Civil Service Commission, and that it was cooperating with and working in conjunction with said commission or by authorization thereof in preparing students for such examinations, and that its school had been selected by such commission to select and prepare candidates for civil service examinations and positions, facts being neither it nor its representatives had any connection with Government or Civil Service Commission, did not cooperate with latter or operate by authority thereof, as above set forth, and statements and representations made as above described were otherwise false;
- (b) Represented that it was able to and did secure advance information with respect to civil service examinations, and that such examinations would be held at specified times and places, or within specified time, and that Government positions were open or available to those taking its course and passing Civil Service examination, facts being it had no means of securing advance information with respect to such examinations not open to members of general public, and did not in fact secure such information, in case of the greater percentage of students solicited Government positions were not then open and available, nor were civil service examinations fixed for definite time or place or to be held within specified time in the future, nor within reasonable time thereafter;
- (c) Represented that prospects solicited had been selected for definite Government positions after qualifying by taking its courses and passing the civil service examination, and that it was necessary to take said course in order to take such examination or secure a position under the classified civil service, and that its students were given preferences in such examinations or in appointments to such positions, and that its school had the recognition or approval of the Government or said commission, facts being neither it nor its representatives had any official authority to select prospects for such positions or examinations therefor, representations made by it as above set forth were otherwise false, and it could not assure or guarantee Government position to its students and did not fulfill such representations made by its representatives; and

(d) Represented that payment of purchase price of its course of instruction, or balance due after initial payment, might be paid after the student obtained a position with the Government, facts being it did not fulfill promises made by its representatives that payments on the cost of its courses might be thus deferred, but required payment during period of instruction, regardless of employment by Government;

With effect of misleading purchasers and prospective purchasers of its said courses into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such various misrepresentations were true, and to induce such purchasers to buy its said courses of study and instruction by reason thereof, and of thereby unfairly diverting trade to it from competitors engaged in sale of similar and other courses, and including those who, in the sale of their respective courses, do not similarly or in any manner misrepresent the same or matters pertaining thereto; to the substantial injury of competition in commerce among the various States:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. Robert S. Hall, trial examiner.

Mr. John R. Phillips, Jr. for the Commission.

Via, Hardwick & Quinlan, of Huntington, W. Va., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Civilian Preparatory Service, Inc., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Said respondent, Civilian Preparatory Service, Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of West Virginia with its office and principal place of business located at Simms-Keller Building, in the city of Huntington in said State.

PAR. 2. Said respondent, Civilian Preparatory Service, Inc., a corporation, is now, and has been for more than 2 years last past, engaged in the sale and distribution in commerce between and among the various States of the United States of courses of study and instruction intended for preparing students thereof for examinations for certain civil service positions under the United States Government, which said courses of study and instruction are pursued by correspondence through the medium of United States mail. Respondent in the course and conduct of said business during the time aforesaid caused and does now cause its said courses of study and instruction to be transported from its said place of business in West Virginia to, into, and through States of the United States other than West Virginia to the various purchasers thereof in such other States.

PAR. 3. During the time above mentioned other individuals, firms, and corporations in various States of the United States have been and are engaged in the sale and distribution in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia of courses of study and instruction intended for preparing students thereof for examinations for civil service positions under the United States Government and also of courses of study and instruction of other kinds, all of which are pursued by correspondence. Said respondent has been, during the time aforesaid, in substantial competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States in the sale of its said courses of study and instruction with such other individuals, firms, and corporations.

PAR. 4. Said respondent, in soliciting the sale of and in selling its said courses of study and instruction has made many misrepresentations to prospective students both directly and through its representatives, among which misrepresentations are the following:

1. That such representatives represent or are connected with or are under the supervision of the United States Government or the United States Civil Service Commission.

2. That respondent, in conducting said business as aforesaid, is an agency or representative of or connected with the United States Government or the United States Civil Service Commission, or that it is cooperating with or working in conjunction with or by authorization of the United States Civil Service Commission in preparing students for civil service examinations.

3. That a Government job is assured or guaranteed to the student taking the course offered.

4. That respondent has means of securing and does in fact secure advance information concerning examinations to be held by the United States Civil Service Commission.

5. That Government positions are open and available to students taking respondent's course and passing the civil service examination.

6. That civil service examinations will be held at definite times or places or within a specified time.

7. That the prospect solicited has been selected for a definite Government position after qualifying by taking respondent's course and passing the civil service examination.

8. That it is necessary to take respondent's course in order to take a civil service examination or secure a Government position under the classified civil service.

9. That respondent school has been selected by the United States Civil Service Commission to select and prepare candidates for civil service examinations and positions.

10. That the balance due after the initial payment may be paid after the student starts working for the Government.

11. That respondent school is recognized or approved by the Government.

12. That students of the school conducted by respondent are given preferences in civil service examinations or in appointments to Government positions.

PAR. 5. In truth and in fact neither respondent nor its representatives represent or are connected with the United States Government or the United States Civil Service Commission, nor do they cooperate with or operate by authority of said Civil Service Commission in preparing students for civil service examinations. Respondent cannot assure or guarantee a Government job to its students and does not fulfill such representations when made by its representatives. Respondent has no means of securing advance information concerning examinations to be held by the United States Civil Service Commission that is not open to members of the general public, nor does it in fact secure such information. In the greater percentage of cases of solicitation of students by respondent's representatives, Government positions are not open and available at the time and civil service examinations are not fixed for a definite time or place or to be held within a specified time in the future, nor are examinations for such positions held within a reasonable time thereafter. Neither respondent nor its representatives have any official authority to select prospects for Government positions or for examinations therefor. It is not necessary to take respondent's courses in order to take civil service examinations or to secure Government positions under the classified civil service. The school conducted by respondent has not been selected by the United States Civil Service Commission to prepare candidates for civil service examinations and positions. Respondent does not fulfill promises made by its representatives that payments on the cost of its courses may be made after its students start working for the Government, but requires payment therefor during the period of instruction regardless of employment by the Government. The school conducted by respondent is not recognized or approved by the Government and students thereof are not given preferences in civil service examinations or in appointments to Government positions.

PAR. 6. The foregoing representations used by respondent through its representatives in offering for sale and selling its courses of study and instruction have had and now have the tendency and capacity to do in fact mislead purchasers and prospective purchasers thereof into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such representations as set out in paragraph 4 hereof are true, and to induce them to purchase such courses of study and instruction on account thereof. Thereby trade is unfairly diverted to respondent from competitors engaged in the sale in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia of correspondence courses intended for preparing students thereof for civil service examinations as well as from those so engaged in such sale in other lines of study.

There are among the competitors of respondent those who in the sale of their respective courses of study and instruction do not similarly or in any manner misrepresent the same or matters pertaining thereto. As a result of respondent's said practices, as herein set forth, substantial injury has been and is now being done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

PAR. 7. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on April 22, 1938, issued, and on April 25, 1938, served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondent, Civilian Preparatory Service, Inc., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint, and the filing of respondent's answer, the Commission, by order entered herein, granted respondent's motion for permission to withdraw said answer and to substitute therefor an answer admitting all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and substitute answer, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Said respondent, Civilian Preparatory Service, Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of West Virginia with its office and principal place of business located at Simms-Keller Building, in the city of Huntington in said State.

PAR. 2. Said respondent, Civilian Preparatory Service, Inc., a corporation, is now, and has been for more than two years last past, engaged in the sale and distribution in commerce between and among the various States of the United States of courses of study and instruction intended for preparing students thereof for examinations for certain civil service positions under the United States Government, which said courses of study and instruction are pursued by correspondence through the medium of United States mail. Respondent in the course and conduct of said business during the time aforesaid caused and does now cause its said course of study and instruction to be transported from its said place of business in West Virginia to, into and through States of the United States other than West Virginia to the various purchasers thereof in such other States.

PAR. 3. During the time above mentioned other individuals, firms, and corporations in various States of the United States have been and are engaged in the sale and distribution in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia of courses of study and instruction intended for preparing students thereof for examinations for civil service positions under the United States Government and also of courses of study and instruction of other kinds, all of which are pursued by correspondence. Said respondent has been, during the time aforesaid, in substantial competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States in the sale of its said courses of study and instruction with such other individuals, firms, and corporations.

PAR. 4. Said respondent, in soliciting the sale of and in selling its said courses of study and instruction has made many misrepresentations to prospective students both directly and through its representatives, among which misrepresentations are the following:

1. That such representatives represent or are connected with or are under the supervision of the United States Government or the United States Civil Service Commission.

Findings

30 F. T. C.

2. That respondent, in conducting said business as aforesaid, is an agency or representative of or connected with the United States Civil Service Commission, or that it is cooperating with or working in conjunction with or by authorization of the United States Civil Service Commission in preparing students for civil service examinations.

3. That a Government job is assured or guaranteed to the student taking the course offered.

4. That respondent has means of securing and does in fact secure advance information concerning examinations to be held by the United States Civil Service Commission.

5. That Government positions are open and available to students taking respondent's course and passing the civil service examination.

6. That civil service examinations will be held at definite times or places or within a specified time.

7. That the prospect solicited has been selected for a definite Government position after qualifying by taking respondent's course and passing the civil service examination.

8. That it is necessary to take respondent's course in order to take a civil service examination or secure a Government position under the classified civil service.

9. That respondent school has been selected by the United States Civil Service Commission to select and prepare candidates for civil service examinations and positions.

10. That the balance due after the initial payment may be paid after the student starts working for the Government.

11. That respondent school is recognized or approved by the Government.

12. That students of the school conducted by respondent are given preferences in civil service examinations or in appointments to Government positions.

PAR. 5. In truth and in fact neither respondent nor its representatives represent or are connected with the United States Government or the United States Civil Service Commission, nor do they cooperate with or operate by authority of said Civil Service Commission in preparing students for civil service examinations. Respondent cannot assure or guarantee a Government job to its students and does not fulfill such representations when made by its representatives. Respondent has no means of securing advance information concerning examinations to be held by the United States Civil Service Commission that is not open to members of the general public, nor does it in fact secure such information. In the greater percentage of cases of solicitation of students by respondent's representatives, Government positions are not open and available at the time and civil service examinations are not fixed for a definite time or place or to be held within a specified time in the future, nor are examinations for such positions held within a reasonable time thereafter. Neither respondent nor its representatives have any official authority to select prospects for Government positions or for examinations therefor. It is not necessary to take respondent's courses in order to take civil service examinations or to secure Government positions under the classified civil service. The school conducted by respondent has not been selected by the United States Civil Service Commission to prepare candidates for civil service examinations and positions. Respondent does not fulfill promises made by its representatives that payments on the cost of its courses may be made after its students start working for the Government, but requires payment therefor during the period of instruction regardless of employment by the Government. The school conducted by respondent is not recognized or approved by the Government and students thereof are not given preferences in civil service examinations or in appointments to Government positions.

PAR. 6. The foregoing representations used by respondent through its representatives in offering for sale and selling its courses of study and instruction have had and now have the tendency and capacity to and do in fact mislead purchasers and prospective purchasers thereof into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such representations as set out in paragraph 4 hereof are true, and to induce them to purchase such courses of study and instruction on account thereof. Thereby trade is unfairly diverted to respondent from competitors engaged in the sale in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia of correspondence courses intended for preparing students thereof for civil service examinations as well as from those so engaged in such sale in other lines of study.

There are among the competitors of respondent those who in the sale of their respective courses of study and instruction do not similarly or in any manner misrepresent the same or matters pertaining thereto. As a result of respondent's said practices, as herein set forth, substantial injury has been and is now being done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Order

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of the respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and states that it waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Civilian Preparatory Service, Inc., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of its courses of study and instruction, in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing that the respondent or its representatives have any connection with or are under the supervision of the United States Government or the United States Civil Service Commission, or that respondent is cooperating with or working in conjunction with or by authorization of the United States Civil Service Commission in preparing students for civil service examinations, or that its school has been selected by the United States Civil Service Commission to select and prepare candidates for civil service examinations and positions.

2. Representing that the respondent is able to secure any advance information with respect to civil service examinations which is not available to the general public.

3. Representing that Government positions are open or available to students taking respondent's course and passing the civil service examination, or that civil service examinations will be held at a specified time or place, unless such examinations have in fact been set by the United States Civil Service Commission for such time and place.

4. Representing that a prospect solicited has been selected for a definite Government position after qualifying by taking respondent's course and passing the civil service examination, or that it is necessary to take respondent's course in order to take a civil service examination or secure a government position under the classified civil service.

5. Representing that students of the school conducted by respondent are given preferences in civil service examinations or in appointments to Government positions, or that respondent's school has the recognition or approval of the United States Government or the Civil Service Commission.

6. Representing that the payment of the purchase price of respondent's course of instruction, or any part thereof, may be deferred until after the student has obtained a position with the Government, unless and until such is the fact.

It is further ordered, That respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

METZ BROS. BAKING COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 2 (a) OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED OCT. 15, 1914, AS AMENDED BY SEC. 1 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED JUNE 19, 1936

Docket 3740. Complaint, Mar. 20, 1939—Decision, Dec. 28, 1939

Where a corporation engaged in manufacture, offer, sale, and distribution of bread between and among the States of Iowa, Minnesota, South Dakota, and Nebraska, for resale in said various States and, as thus engaged, in substantial competition with others similarly engaged in manufacture, sale, and distribution of said product in commerce—

Discriminated in price between different purchasers buying said bread of like grade and quality sold by it in interstate commerce for use, consumption, and resale, through giving and allowing to some of its purchasers lower prices than given or allowed to others of its purchasers, in lowering prevailing wholesale price of bread sold by it and its competitors in various trade areas in aforesaid section from 11 cents to 8 cents for 24-ounce loaf, and from 8 cents to 6 cents for 16-ounce loaf, while retaining, in certain Iowa trade area, price of 10 cents for 24-ounce loaf, 8 cents for 20-ounce loaf, and 6 cents for 16-ounce loaf;

With result that effect of said discrimination in price thus made by it was to substantially lessen competition and to injure, destroy, or prevent competition between it and its competitors in sale and distribution of such product, and to tend to create monopoly in it in line of commerce concerned in the various localities or trade areas in the United States in which said competitors respectively were engaged:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the facts and circumstances set forth, were in violation of section 2 (a) of act of Congress approved October 15, 1914, as amended.

Before Mr. Webster Ballinger, trial examiner.

Mr. John T. Haslett for the Commission.

Sifford & Wadden, of Sioux City, Iowa, for respondent.

COMPLAINT

The Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that the party respondent named in the caption hereof, and hereinafter more particularly designated and described, since June 19, 1936, has violated and is now violating the provisions of section 2 of the Clayton Act as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act, approved June 19, 1936 (U. S. C., title 15, sec. 13), hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges with respect thereto as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, Metz Bros. Baking Co., is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Iowa, with its principal office and place of business located at 408 Pearl Street, Sioux City, Iowa, and plants located at Sioux City, Iowa, and Sioux Falls, S. Dak.

PAR. 2. Respondent corporation is now and has been since June 19, 1936, engaged in the business of manufacturing, offering for sale, selling, and distributing bread. Respondent sells and distributes said product in commerce between and among the States of Iowa, Minnesota, South Dakota, and Nebraska, and preliminary to or as a result of said sales causes said product to be shipped and transported from the place of origin of the shipment to the purchasers thereof who are located in the aforementioned States other than the State of origin of the shipment. There is, and has been at all times herein mentioned, a continuous current of trade and commerce in said product across State lines between respondent's factories and the purchasers of said product. Said product is sold and distributed for resale within the States of Minnesota, South Dakota, Nebraska, and Iowa.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of its business, as aforesaid, respondent is now and during the time herein mentioned has been in substantial competition with other corporations and with individuals, partnerships, and firms engaged in the business of manufacturing, selling, and distributing bread in commerce.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of its business, as aforesaid, since June 19, 1936, respondent has been and is now discriminating in price between different purchasers buying said bread of like grade and quality sold by the respondent in interstate commerce for use, consumption, and resale by giving and allowing certain of its said purchasers of its product lower prices than given or allowed other of its said purchasers. Said discrimination in price is, by the following practice and policy, pursued by the respondent, to wit: In certain trade areas or localities respondent sells its product of the same grade, quality, and weight at lower prices than it sells the identical product in other trade areas or localities. To illustrate, the respondent, in the course and conduct of its business, maintains two manufacturing plants for bread, one of said plants being located in Sioux City, Iowa, and the other plant being located in Sioux Falls, S. Dak.

From its plant located in Sioux Falls, S. Dak., respondent sells its product to customers located in the trade areas of southeastern, northwestern, and central South Dakota and a part of southwestern Minnesota, and 30 miles into the northwestern territory of Iowa. From its plant located in Sioux City, Iowa, respondent sells its product to customers located in the aforementioned area and also to customers located in the trade area comprising the city of Omaha, Nebr., and in and around the trade area of Marshall and Worthington, Minn.

From the respondent's plants, as aforementioned, fleets of trucks are operated for the sale and distribution of bread into and through the various States, as aforesaid. Prior to September 16, 1938, the prevailing wholesale price of bread sold by the respondent and its competitors in the various trade areas, as aforesaid, except in the State of Iowa, was 11 cents for a 24-ounce loaf, and 8 cents for a 16-ounce loaf. On September 16, 1938, respondent lowered the wholesale price of bread within the trade areas designated as southwestern Minnesota and southeastern, northwestern, and central South Dakota, from 11 cents to 8 cents for a 24-ounce loaf, and from 8 cents to 6 cents for a 16-ounce loaf, or a decrease in the wholesale price of 27 percent; while in the trade area of the northwestern section of the State of Iowa the respondent maintained a price of 6 cents for a 16-ounce loaf, 8 cents for a 20-ounce loaf, and 10 cents for a 24-ounce loaf.

PAR. 5. The general effect of said discrimination in price so made by the respondent, as set forth above, has been and may be (a) substantially to lessen competition, and (b) to injure, destroy, or prevent competition between respondent and its competitor in the sale and distribution of such product, and (c) to tend to create a monopoly in respondent in said line of commerce in the various localities or trade areas in the United States in which such competitors respectively are engaged in business.

PAR. 6. The foregoing alleged acts and practices of said respondent are violations of subsection 2 (a) of section 1 of the said act of Congress approved June 19, 1936, entitled, "An act to amend section 2 of the act entitled 'An act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies and for other purposes,'" approved October 15, 1914, as amended (U. S. C., title 15, sec. 13), and for other purposes.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of an act of Congress entitled "An act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies and for other purposes," approved October 15, 1914 (the Clayton Act), as amended by section 1 of an act entitled "An act to amend section 2 of the act entitled 'An act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies, and for other purposes,' approved October 15, 1914, as amended (U. S. C., title 15, sec. 13) and for other purposes" approved June 19, 1936 (the Robinson-Patman Act), the Federal Trade Commission on March 20, 1939, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondent Metz Bros. Baking Co., a corporation, charging it with discriminating in price between different purchasers of bread in violation of subsection (a) of section 2 of the said act, as amended.

After the issuance and service of said complaint an answer was filed by the respondent Metz Bros. Baking Co. Pursuant to written notice to the respondent herein of the date, place, and time hearing would be held, the respondent by counsel appeared and made motion before a trial examiner for the Commission to withdraw the answer filed and to file with the Commission in lieu thereof an answer admitting all the material allegations as set forth in the complaint to be true, and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearings, all of which appears in the record herein. Subsequently, the Commission, by order entered herein, granted respondent's motion for permission to withdraw said answer and to substitute therefor an answer admitting all the material allegations of the complaint to be true and waiving all intervening procedure, which substitute answer was duly filed in the office of the Commission.

Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearings before the Commission on said complaint and substitute answer, briefs, and oral arguments of counsel having been waived, and the Commission having duly considered the same and being now fully advised in the premises, makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, Metz Bros. Baking Co., is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Iowa with its principal office and place of business located at 408 Pearl Street, Sioux City, Iowa, and having plants located at Sioux City, Iowa, and Sioux Falls, S. Dak.

PAR. 2. The respondent is engaged in the business of manufacturing, offering for sale, selling, and distributing bread. The respondent sells and distributes such product in commerce between and among the States of Iowa, Minnesota, South Dakota, and Nebraska, and causes such product to be shipped and transported from the place of origin of the shipment to purchasers who are located in the aforementioned States other than the State of origin of the shipment. There has been at all times a continuous current of trade and commerce in said product across State lines between respondent's manufacturing plants and the purchasers of said product. The product manufactured by the respondent is sold and distributed for resale within the States of Minnesota, South Dakota, Nebraska, and Iowa.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of its business as aforesaid, the respondent has been and is in substantial competition with other corporations and with individuals, partnerships, and firms engaged in the business of manufacturing, selling, and distributing bread in commerce.

PAR. 4. Since June 19, 1936, in the course and conduct of the business engaged in by the respondent, the respondent has been discriminating in price between different purchasers buying said bread of like grade and quality sold by the respondent in interstate commerce for use, consumption, and resale by giving and allowing some of its purchasers of its product lower prices than given or allowed other of its said purchasers. The respondent pursued the following practice and policy in discriminating in price, to wit: In certain trade areas or localities respondent sold its product of the same grade, quality, and weight at a lower price than it sold the identical product in other trade areas or localities. From the respondent's plant located in Sioux Falls, S. Dak., respondent sold its product to customers located in the trade areas of southeastern, northwestern, and central South Dakota, and a part of southwestern Minnesota, and 30 miles into the northwestern territory of Iowa. From its plant in Sioux City, Iowa, respondent sold its product to customers located in the aforementioned area and also to customers located in the trade area comprising the city of Omaha, Nebr., and in and around the trade area of Marshall and Worthington, Minn. From these plants as aforementioned, fleets of trucks operate for the sale and distribution of bread into and through the various States as aforesaid. Prior to September 16, 1938, the prevailing wholesale price of bread sold by the respondent and the respondent's competitors in the various trade areas as aforesaid, except in the State of Iowa, was 11 cents for a 24-ounce loaf, and 8 cents for a 16-ounce loaf. On September 16, 1938, respondent lowered the wholesale price of bread within the trade areas designated as southwestern Minnesota and southeastern, northwestern, and central South Dakota from 11 cents to 8 cents for a 24-ounce loaf and from 8 cents to 6 cents for a 16-ounce loaf, while at the same time, in the trade area of the northwestern section of the State of Iowa, the respondent maintained a price of 6 cents for a 16-ounce loaf, 8 cents for a 20-ounce loaf, and 10 cents for a 24-ounce loaf.

PAR. 5. The effect of said discrimination in price so made by the respondent as heretofore set forth has been to substantially lessen competition and to injure, destroy, or prevent competition between respondent and its competitors in the sale and distribution of such product and to tend to create a monopoly in respondent in said line of commerce in the various localities or trade areas in the United States in which such competitors respectively are engaged.

CONCLUSION

Under the facts and circumstances set forth in the foregoing findings of facts, the Commission concludes that the aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, Metz Bros. Baking Co., are in violation of section 2 (a) of said act of Congress entitled "An act to amend section 2 of an act entitled 'An act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies and for other purposes' approved October 15, 1914, as amended (U. S. C., title 15, sec. 13) and for other purposes."

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, and the answer filed herein on December 2, 1939, by respondent admitting all the material allegations of the complaint to be true and waiving the taking of evidence and all other intervening procedure, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion, which findings and conclusion are hereby made a part hereof, that said respondent has violated the provisions of section 2 (a) of an act of Congress entitled "An act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies, and for other purposes," approved October 15, 1914 (the Clayton Act), as amended.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Metz Bros. Baking Co., its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, cease and desist:

1. From selling bread from its plants at Sioux City, Iowa, or Sioux Falls, S. Dak., to purchasers in the trade areas designated as southwestern Minnesota and southeastern, northwestern, and central South Dakota at 8 cents for the 24-ounce loaf, while selling bread of like grade and quality to purchasers in the trade area designated as the northwestern section of the State of Iowa at 10 cents for the 24-ounce loaf; and to purchasers in the trade areas designated as southwest Minnesota and southeastern, northwestern, and central South Dakota at 8 cents for the 24-ounce loaf, while selling such product to purchasers in the trade area designated as the northwest section of the State of Iowa at 8 cents for the 20-ounce loaf.

2. From continuing or resuming the discriminations in price found by the Commission in paragraph 4 of the findings as to the facts.

3. From otherwise discriminating in price in manner and degree substantially similar to the discriminations set forth in paragraph 4 of the Commission's findings as to the facts.

Order

30 F. T. C.

It is further ordered, That the said respondent, Metz. Bros. Baking Co., within 60 days from the date of the service upon it of this order, shall file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it is complying and has complied with the order to cease and desist hereinabove set forth.

IN THE MATTER OF
McKESSON & ROBBINS, INC.COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3791. Complaint, May 16, 1939—Decision, Dec. 28, 1939

Where a corporation engaged in manufacture of its "Calox Tooth Powder" or dentifrice, and in sale and distribution thereof to purchasers at various points in other States, in substantial competition with those likewise engaged in such sale and distribution of tooth powders or dentifrices, including among competitors some who do not in any way misrepresent the ingredients in or efficacy of their products in distribution thereof in commerce; in advertising its said product in newspapers and other periodicals of general circulation in the various States and in the District of Columbia, and through broadcasts from radio stations of interstate scope and power—

- (a) Represented, directly and through implication, that use of said powder would assure possession of teeth which were white, clear and sparkling and which were beautiful as those of movie stars, and that such stars employed its said powder to the exclusion of other dentifrices and relied upon it alone in the care of their teeth, through such statements, among others, as "For teeth that 'Shine like the Stars' use Calox Powder," "* * * Take a cue from Hollywood * * *," "* * * gives teeth the whiteness and brilliance the screen demands. It deserves its popularity with the stars * * *," facts being no dentifrice alone is capable of giving all movie stars white, clear and sparkling teeth, use of its said tooth powder alone will not assure possession of such teeth or those as beautiful as teeth of such stars, and such stars do not employ said powder to exclusion of all other dentifrices nor rely thereon or upon any other dentifrice alone in the care of their teeth;
- (b) Represented, as aforesaid, that no tooth surface was neglected and that its said dentifrice would clean the proximal surfaces between the teeth, and that use thereof would result in the liberation of nascent oxygen in the mouth and would prevent film or decay and remove all types of stains, asserted three worst enemies of one's teeth, facts being said powder would not result in such liberation, but the foam resulting from use thereof, which it emphasized, was due largely to the soap content thereof, and it would not clean the proximal surfaces nor prevent film or decay or remove all types of stains, or any stain other than the ordinary surface stains;
- (c) Represented that sodium perborate in said powder would keep gums firm and healthy, and that use of a tooth powder was more effective in cleansing and polishing teeth than was use of a tooth paste, and would neutralize acid mouth conditions and constituted an effective antiacid, facts being said sodium perborate will not accomplish results claimed therefor and might not be a safe cleansing agent for continued use by one unusually sensitive or allergic thereto, dentists differ in their preference for tooth powders or tooth pastes for the brushing, polishing or cleansing of teeth,

Complaint

there is no consensus of opinion in the dental profession favoring use of tooth powders instead of tooth pastes, and said "Calox" will not neutralize acid mouth conditions, is not an efficient antiaacid and, except for use as a mild deodorant, has no substantial value for purposes other than cleansing and polishing the teeth; and

- (d) Represented that said "Calox" was more economical to purchase and use than competitive dentrifices and would accomplish results which could not be accomplished by such competing products, many of which it asserted had a greater tendency to injure, scratch, or destroy tooth enamel, tooth structure, or mouth tissues, facts being whether said powder was more economical to purchase and use than competitive tooth pastes would depend upon facts involved in any such comparison of costs and uses, cleansing ingredients of said powder were chalk, soap, sodium perborate, calcium peroxide, and magnesium carbonate, with foam largely due, as above set forth, to soap content and not to release of oxygen by other ingredients, most dentrifices, including pastes and powders, possess in common essential ingredients which are generally safe and effective for such cleansing purposes, many competing products have no more tendency to injure, scratch, or destroy tooth enamel, structure, or mouth tissue than has said "Calox," and effectiveness of any tooth powder or paste is dependent largely upon manner in which applied, with brush employed playing an important part in cleansing process;

With tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive substantial portion of purchasing public into erroneous belief that such representations were true, and with result, as direct consequence of such beliefs induced by said misrepresentations, that number of purchasing public bought substantial quantity of its said powder and trade was unfairly diverted to it from others likewise engaged in sale and distribution of dentrifices truthfully advertised and vended by them; to the substantial injury of competition in commerce: Held, That such acts, practices, and representations were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that McKesson & Robbins, Inc., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Maryland, with its office and principal place of business located at Bridgeport, Conn. Respondent is now, and for many years last past has been, engaged in the manufacture, sale, and distribution of various drugs, pharmaceutical, and proprietary products, including, among others, a dentifrice known as "Calox Tooth Powder."

PAR. 2. Said respondent, being engaged in business as aforesaid, causes and has caused its said product, "Calox Tooth Powder," when sold, to be transported from its factory at Bridgeport, Conn., to purchasers located in States of the United States other than the State of origin of such shipments, and also in the District of Columbia. There is now, and has been during all the times herein mentioned, a course of trade in the aforementioned product sold by the respondent in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of its business, respondent is now and has been in substantial competition with other corporations and with persons, firms, and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of tooth powders, tooth pastes, and other products intended and used for cleansing teeth, in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business, the respondent has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning its said product, by United States mails, by insertion in newspapers and periodicals having a general circulation, and also in circulars and other printed or written matter, all of which are distributed in commerce among and between the various States of the United States; and by continuities broadcast from radio stations which have sufficient power to, and do, convey the programs emanating therefrom to listeners located in various States of the United States other than the State in which said broadcasts originate, and by other means in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of its said product; and has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning its said product, by various means, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of its said product in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act. Among, and typical of the false statements, and representations contained in said advertisements, disseminated and caused to be disseminated, as aforesaid, are the following:<sup>1</sup>

The primary representation used by the respondent in its current advertising is the picturization of various popular movie stars, together with the picturization of a can of Calox Tooth Powder, accompanied by the slogan, "For Teeth that 'Shine like the Stars' use Calox Powder."

PAR. 5. Through the use of the statements and representations hereinabove set forth, and other similar statements not herein set out, all of which purport to be descriptive of respondent's tooth powder and its effectiveness in cleansing the teeth and mouth, the respondent has falsely represented, directly and by inference and implication, among other things: (1) That movie stars have white, clear, and sparkling teeth because they use Calox Tooth Powder, and that Calox alone keeps their teeth white, clear, and sparkling, (2) That anyone who uses Calox Tooth Powder can have teeth as beautiful as those of the movie stars, and that the use of Calox Tooth Powder alone will result in beautiful teeth like those of movie stars, (3) That Calox Tooth Powder will help clean the proximal surfaces between the teeth as well as the broad exposed areas of the teeth, (4) That the sodium perborate contained in Calox Tooth Powder is a safe and efficient cleansing agent, and that it results in the liberation of nascent oxygen in the mouth in such manner as to effectively remove or prevent film, stain, or decay, (5) That the sodium perborate contained in Calox Tooth Powder will have a beneficial effect on the gums and help to keep them firm and healthy, (6) That the use of Calox Tooth Powder will make all normal sets of teeth white and brilliant, (7) That tooth powders, including Calox Tooth Powder are more effective for brushing, polishing, and cleansing teeth than tooth pastes, and are generally recommended by dentists in preference to tooth pastes, (8) That Calox Tooth Powder neutralizes acid mouth conditions, is an efficient antacid, and has substantial value for other purposes than cleansing the teeth, (9) That Calox Tooth Powder is a deodorant, and (10) That Calox Tooth Powder is more economical to purchase and use than competitive tooth pastes.

PAR. 6. The aforesaid representations, used and disseminated by the respondent in the manner above described, are grossly exaggerated, misleading, and untrue, and constitute false advertisements. The true facts are that Calox Tooth Powder does not have any of the qualities or achieves any of the results claimed and represented as hereinabove described.

The only cleansing ingredients contained in Calox Tooth Powder are chalk, soap, sodium perborate, calcium peroxide, and magnesium carbonate. Sodium perborate is a drug which should be used in the mouth only under the supervision of a dentist or physician, and is so highly alkaline that indiscriminate use thereof, as in a dentifrice, may result in alkaline burns and lesions of the gums and oral tissues. The consistent use of a dentifrice containing sodium perborate in the concentration found in Calox Tooth Powder may have the tendency and effect of causing soreness, irritation, and chemical burns of the gums and oral tissues.

In truth and in fact, the movie stars do not depend upon Calox Tooth Powder or any other dentifrice alone, but they employ the services of dentists who give them regular prophylactic treatments. The white, clear and sparkling teeth of movie stars is not the result of the use of Calox Tooth Powder, and Calox Tooth Powder alone does not keep their teeth white, clear, and sparkling. Movie stars generally do not use Calox Tooth Powder exclusively or in preference to competing dentifrices, and the permitted use of pictures and testimonials of various movie stars in respondent's advertising of Calox Tooth Powder is the result of a reciprocal publicity arrangement primarily intended for the advertising value thereof in promoting the screen careers and popularity of said movie stars. The use of Calox Tooth Powder will not result in teeth comparable to, or as beautiful as, the teeth of movie stars pictured in respondent's advertising.

Neither Calox Tooth Powder nor any other dentifrice will help clean the proximal surfaces between the teeth or exert any cleansing effect beyond the parts actually reached by the toothbrush. The effect of the sodium perborate contained in Calox Tooth Powder, either alone or in conjunction with any other cleansing ingredients contained therein, in the liberation of active oxygen is extremely slow and will not take place to any marked degree during the short time that Calox Tooth Powder is applied to the teeth. The foam obtained from the use of Calox Tooth Powder is due to the soap content thereof, and not to oxygen released by the sodium perborate or any other ingredient contained therein. Calox Tooth Powder will not prevent film, stain, or decay of teeth. The use of sodium perborate in a dentifrice will not prevent or eradicate gum infection or have any beneficial effect on the gums, but on the contrary may result in painful burns and lesions of the gums. The use of Calox Tooth Powder will not make all normal sets of teeth white and brilliant. Many normal sets of teeth vary in all shades of color and translucency ranging from brilliant to dull and these shades cannot be altered or changed by the use of any dentifrice. Tooth powders, including Calox Tooth Powder, are no more effective for brushing, polishing, and cleansing teeth than tooth pastes. Tooth powders having a chalk base are very similar in properties to toothpastes, and there is no polishing ingredient contained in Calox Tooth Powder which is not found in other tooth powders or pastes. Most dentifrices, both pastes and powders, are composed essentially of chalk or other abrasives which are standardized and safe so far as their cleansing ingredients are concerned. Tooth powders are not generally recommended by dentists in preference to tooth pastes. Calox Tooth Powder is not an efficient antacid and is not effective to neutralize acid-mouth conditions. It does not have substantial value for oral hygiene purposes other than cleansing the teeth. The normal acid-alkali balance of the blood or other bodily fluids cannot be easily changed, and neither Calox Tooth Powder nor any other dentifrice will have any beneficial effect toward changing this balance. Calox Tooth Powder does not have any therapeutic value or any value other than to assist the toothbrush in the cleansing of the teeth. Calox Tooth Powder is not a competent and effective deodorant, and the only effect of the flavoring or other ingredients contained therein is to temporarily mask the breath or other unpleasant odors in some cases. Calox Tooth Powder is no more economical to purchase and use than other tooth powders or pastes. Calox Tooth Powder is no more concentrated or economical to use than other competing dentifrices, and its use does not accomplish results that cannot be accomplished by other competing preparations. Competitive dentifrices do not injure, scratch, or destroy tooth enamel, tooth structure, or mouth tissues to any greater extent than does respondent's tooth powder. The use of competitive dentifrices, including pastes, is neither unsafe nor dangerous. All tooth powders and pastes are essentially similar in properties and effect. Any cleansing effect accomplished by brushing the teeth with tooth paste or powder is due primarily to the mechanical action of the brush and not to the ingredients contained in the tooth paste or powder.

PAR. 7. There are among respondent's competitors many who manufacture, sell, and distribute tooth powders and tooth pastes and other products designed, intended and sold for the purpose of cleansing and beautifying the teeth who do not in any way misrepresent the qualities, effectiveness, or character of their respective products.

PAR. 8. The use of the aforesaid false and misleading statements, representations and advertisements by the respondent in designating or describing its said product, Calox Tooth Powder, and the effectiveness of said product in the cleansing and care of the teeth, in offering for sale and in selling its said product, had, and now has, a tendency and capacity to mislead a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that all of said representations are true, and that said product possesses the properties represented and will in truth accomplish the results claimed.

PAR. 9. As a direct consequence of the mistaken and erroneous beliefs induced by the acts and representations of the respondent, as hereinabove detailed, a number of the purchasing public has purchased a substantial volume of respondent's said product, Calox Tooth Powder, with the result that trade has been unfairly diverted to the respondent from competitors likewise engaged in the business of distributing and selling tooth powders, tooth pastes, and similar products or other products designed, intended and sold for use in the cleansing and care of the teeth, and who truthfully represent the effectiveness and qualities of their respective products.

As a result thereof, injury has been and is now being done by respondent to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 10. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on the 16th day of May 1939, issued its complaint against said respondent McKesson & Robbins, Inc., and caused such complaint to be served as required by law, charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act.

On June 22, 1939, an answer was filed by the respondent. Thereafter, a stipulation was entered into whereby it was stipulated and agreed that a statement of facts signed and executed by the said respondent by its counsel, Clinton Robb, and W. T. Kelley, chief counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, subject to the approval of the Commission, may be taken as the facts in this proceeding and in lieu of testimony in support of the charges stated in the complaint, or in opposition thereto, and that the said Commission may proceed upon said statement of facts to make its report, stating its findings as to the facts and its conclusion based thereon, and enter its order disposing of the proceeding without the presentation of argument or the filing of briefs. Thereafter this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, answer, and stipulation, said stipulation having been approved, accepted, and filed, and the Commission having duly considered the same and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, McKesson & Robbins, Inc., is a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Maryland with its chief office and principal place of business in the city of New York, N. Y., but with other offices in the city of Bridgeport, Conn., and elsewhere in the United States. Respondent is now and for some time has been engaged in the business of manufacturing, selling, and distributing in commerce among and between the various States of the United States a tooth powder or dentifrice known as "Calox Tooth Powder."

PAR. 2. By order of the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, December 19, 1938, in Proceedings for the Reorganization of a Corporation Under Chapter 10 of the Bankruptcy Act, William J. Wardall was appointed sole trustee with authority to conduct the business of respondent corporation, under which authorization he since has continuously acted and now is acting.

PAR. 3. Respondent, being engaged in business as aforesaid, causes said preparation, when sold, to be transported from its place of business in the State of Connecticut to purchasers thereof located at various points in States of the United States other than the State from which said shipments are made. Respondent maintains a course of trade in commerce in said product distributed and sold by it between and among the various States of the United States.

PAR. 4. Respondent is now and has been in the course and conduct of its business as aforesaid in substantial competition with other corporations and with firms and individuals likewise engaged in the business of distributing and selling tooth powders or dentifrices in commerce among and between the various States of the United States.

PAR. 5. Respondent, in the course and conduct of its business in such commerce for the purpose of inducing the purchase of that product, Calox Tooth Powder, has caused advertisements to be placed in newspapers and other periodicals in general circulation in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia and to be broadcast from radio stations of interstate scope and power. These advertisements contain statements concerning the ingredients in, and efficacy of, the product Calox Tooth Powder, and the results that may be expected to be obtained from the use thereof.

Prior to the date of the issuance of the complaint herein, respondent in those advertisements made in substance the following statements:

1. For teeth that "Shine like the Stars" use Calox Powder.

2. Let a star show you how to have teeth that shine like the stars! Brush your teeth as the movie stars do—Change to Calox! A star's teeth are precious as jewels. Only a superb dentifrice gets the job of protecting and polishing them. Many Hollywood stars—following the advice of dentists—have chosen powder for brushing their teeth. But not just any powder. The Hollywood choice is the safer, softer powder—Calox. Take a cue from Hollywood. Decide to change to Calox—today. Then watch ugly stains disappear. Watch Calox bring up a high mirror gloss on your teeth. Hollywood has no "patent" on beautiful teeth. You, too, can have * * * teeth that shine like the stars.

3. Why Hollywood says "O. K." 1. Gives "High-Luster" Polish. Five scientifically approved cleansing and polishing agents get to work. Teeth start to sparkle! 2. Double safe Because It Is * * * Double Sifted through 100-mesh screens. It cannot contain any grit or pumice. 3. Releases Oxygen. Oxygen is Nature's own purifying agent. 4. Made with Prescription Care by McKesson & Robbins who have supplied drugs to physicians since 1833.

4. Have teeth That Shine Like the Stars. Calox gives teeth the whiteness and brilliance the screen demands. It deserves its popularity with the stars. Out in Hollywood, where a "starry" smile is worth more cold cash than anywhere on earth, they found out how Calox makes teeth sparkle! So it's Calox in many of the stars' dressing rooms! Calox for that last important brushing before the picture is "shot." Could you use "starry" teeth? Then take your teeth seriously. Use the dentifrice that has been tested and proved in the greatest "Personality Laboratory" in the world * * * in the movie studios of Hollywood. Wake up the brilliance that your teeth have naturally. Make them * * * shine like stars! Calox is fine and soft * * * a product of pharmaceutical purity. It cleanses safely. And doubly assures cleansing by releasing live oxygen in the mouth. Oxygen is Nature's own purifying agent. Calox promotes mouth health * * * helps neutralize mouth acids * * * tends to strengthen gums.

5. Remember, Calox is safe. Screen stars make sure of safety * * * they wouldn't risk a scratchy polish.

6. Adds a charming sparkle to your smile—take this tip from Hollywood * * * use Calox Tooth Powder * * * the very same pure, safe, refreshing dentifrice that helps protect the radiant smile of Jean Parker, scores of other famous screen stars, and millions of people throughout the world.

7. No tooth surface is neglected when your patient uses Calox. In practical mouth hygiene, you recognize the value of cleaning teeth all over, at least twice daily. Calox Tooth Powder does not stop with the broad exposed areas, but helps clean the proximal surfaces between the teeth as well. Its the safe and efficient amount of perborate in Calox that frees nascent oxygen to foam into the interstices and help force out debris with its penetrating bubbles.

8. It's so easy to combat the discoloration and damage caused by those three enemies lurking in your mouth—Film, Stain and Decay. Calox Tooth Powder contains a special polishing ingredient—marvelously effective and absolutely safe—which removes Film and banishes Stain. The teeth are restored to their natural, lustrous whiteness. And at the same time Calox fights decay. It frees a foam of live, bubbling oxygen that reaches and purifies. Some dentifrices aim at one of the Dental Enemies and some aim at another. The McKesson Laboratories perfected Calox to banish ALL THREE.

9. Film, Stain and Decay are the three worst enemies of your teeth. Stop them now—before any one says YOU have a "corn-on-the-cob" smile! Calox Tooth Powder removes film and banishes stains with marvelous effectiveness. It polishes the enamel gently, safely, restoring the gleaming natural whiteness of the teeth. A special ingredient tones the gums and helps to keep them firm and healthy. But the outstanding service of Calox is in fighting decay. It releases foaming oxygen that penetrates into the crevices where often dentifrices cannot reach—cleansing and protecting "The Forgotten 60" (hidden surfaces between the teeth).

10. Now—Oxygen Powder actually Foams All Over Teeth and Gums. Calox, as you know, is the famous formula containing Sodium Perborate which is universally used by dentists and physicians in treating Vincent's Infection or "trench mouth." This ingredient in combination with others is the reason why Calox Tooth Powder releases oxygen and lime-water upon contact with moisture in the mouth. You will feel the effects and see the benefits soon after starting to use it. Film and stain are speedily removed. Dull teeth begin to shine. Mouth acids are neutralized. The breath is actually deodorized and sweetened.

11. See how new-born Oxygen Whitens Teeth! Yes, it's true that Calox is not like ordinary tooth powders! It gives results in far shorter time because it contains genuine Sodium Perborate. This ingredient, frequently prescribed for "trench mouth" by dentists and physicians, releases 9 percent available oxygen. These oxygen bubbles force their way into tiny crevices not reached by many dentifrices. Decaying particles are swiftly deodorized. The breath is sweetened. Cleansing action on the teeth is many times more powerful. Calox is absolutely safe and non-irritating, entirely effective. Your own dentist will confirm the fact that Calox is actually healing to the gums and mucous membranes.

12. Dentists Use Powder For Whiter Teeth. Do likewise—and save 50% on Dentifrice.

13. Calox Tooth Powder is not an ordinary dentifrice. It is scientifically designed to accomplish what others neglect. In the mouth it liberates the purifying element oxygen, which foams in tiny penetrating bubbles, into every crevice. It reaches the forgotten areas where food debris ferments, and cleans them out. At the same time the whole mouth is sweetened and deodorized. Calox creates a gentle antacid, milk of lime, which flows over and around the teeth, neutralizing harmful acids. Calox is an ideal dentifrice for protecting the health of the gums. It cleanses, soothes and tones them up with a special ingredient, frequently prescribed by physicians in cases of Vincent's Infection, "trench mouth" and other gum diseases.

14. Calox cleans and polishes all five of the tooth surfaces, including the hidden 60 of the interstices * * * with absolutely no abrasion. The perborate in Calox releases germ-fighting, nascent oxygen bubbles. These penetrate into and force decaying, acid particles out of between-the-teeth spaces and aid greatly in whitening all above-the-gum areas. Calox stimulates normal salivary alkalinity and itself releases gentle, antacid milk of lime. The special ingredients of Calox soothe and tone the gums and keep them healthy.

15. Dentists Recommend It—Dental Authorities say, "Use Powder for home care of the teeth."

16. Saves You Money—Calox costs only one-third as much to use as less efficient dentifrices.

17. Safer, More Effective—Calox is 100% dentifrice. Contains no injurious or unnecessary substances.

18. Dentists Advise Use of Powder. Safer, More Effective. Decay germs breed on the 60 "forgotten" areas, out of sight, where no ordinary dentifrice disturbs them. When you use Calox Tooth Powder, bubbles of purifying OXYGEN penetrate and cleanse those danger spots. Calox chases germs, neutralizing acids, deodorizes food debris. Polishes teeth safely to marvelous whiteness. Keeps gums firm and healthy. Calox costs no more than most tooth pastes. Goes three times as far!

PAR. 6. It is stated by respondent that thirteen of these eighteen statements in the foregoing excerpts from the advertising of Calox Tooth Powder numbered 4, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, and 18 herein, were discontinued by respondent corporation in 1937. Respondent further states that statements or excerpts numbered 2, 3, and 5 were discontinued in 1938, and only statements or excerpts numbered 1 and 6 are stated to have been used in 1939.

PAR. 7. The use of the aforesaid advertisements, disseminated in the manner described, is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of a cosmetic, to wit, Calox Tooth Powder.

PAR. 8. There is no dentifrice which alone is capable of giving all movie stars white, clear, and sparkling teeth, and the use of Calox Tooth Powder alone will not assure the possession of teeth that are white, clear and sparkling. The use of Calox Tooth Powder will not assure beautiful teeth or teeth that are as beautiful as those of some movie stars. No dentifrice can clean tooth surfaces it does not contact and Calox Tooth Powder will not clean the proximal surfaces between the teeth. The Sodium Perborate contained in Calox Tooth Powder, which is approximately 10 percent, might not be a safe cleansing agent for continued use by a person unusually or peculiarly sensitive or allergic to that drug. The use of Calox Tooth Powder will not result in the liberation of nascent oxygen in the mouth. Calox Tooth Powder will not prevent film on teeth or decay of teeth and will not remove all types of stain from the teeth or any stain other than ordinary surface stains. The Sodium Perborate in Calox

Tooth Powder will not keep gums firm and healthy nor make all normal sets of teeth white and beautiful. Dentists differ in their preference for tooth powders or tooth pastes for the brushing, polishing or cleansing of the teeth and there is no consensus of opinion in the dental profession favoring the use of tooth powders instead of tooth pastes. Calox Tooth Powder will not neutralize acid mouth conditions, is not an efficient antacid, and except for its use as a mild deodorant has no substantial value for purposes other than cleansing and polishing the teeth. Whether Calox Tooth Powder is more economical to purchase and use than competitive tooth pastes will depend upon the facts involved in any such comparison of costs and uses.

PAR. 9. Movie stars do not employ Calox Tooth Powder to the exclusion of all other dentifrices, nor do movie stars rely upon this or any other dentifrice alone in the care of their teeth. The cleansing ingredients of Calox Tooth Powder are chalk, soap, sodium perborate, calcium peroxide, and magnesium carbonate. The foam obtained from the use of Calox Tooth Powder is largely due to the soap content thereof and not to oxygen released by any other ingredient. Most dentifrices, including pastes and powders, possess in common essential ingredients which are generally safe and effective for such cleansing purposes. Many competing dentifrices have no more tendency to injure, scratch or destroy tooth enamel, tooth structure, or mouth tissues than has Calox Tooth Powder. The effectiveness of any tooth powder or tooth paste in the cleansing of the teeth depends largely upon the manner in which applied, and the brush employed with such paste or powder plays an important part in the cleansing process.

PAR. 10. Among the competitors of the respondent are some who do not in any way misrepresent the ingredients in, or the efficacy of, their products in distributing the same in commerce.

PAR. 11. The aforesaid acts and practices of this respondent had, and some of them now have, a tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that these representations are true. Furthermore, as a direct consequence of such mistaken and erroneous beliefs, induced by the misrepresentations of respondent as aforesaid, a number of the purchasing public has purchased a substantial quantity of respondent's product, Calox Tooth Powder, with the result that trade has been unfairly diverted from other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged in the sale and distribution of dentifrices who truthfully advertise and vend the same. As a result thereof, substantial injury has been, and is now being done by the said respondent-ent herein to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts, practices, and representations of the said respondent have been, and are, all to the prejudice and injury of the public and said respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondent, and a stipulation as to the facts entered into between the respondent herein and W. T. Kelley, chief counsel for the Commission, which provides, among other things, that the statement of facts contained therein may be made a part of the record herein, and may be taken as the facts in this proceeding, and in lieu of testimony in support of the charges stated in the complaint, or in opposition thereto, and that the Commission may proceed upon said statement of facts to make its report stating its findings as to the facts (including inferences which it may draw from the said stipulated facts) and its conclusion based thereon, and enter its order disposing of the proceeding without the presentation of argument or the filing of briefs; and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, McKesson & Robbins, Inc., a corporation, its officers, agents, and representatives, directly or through any corporate or other device, do forthwith cease and desist from:

Disseminating, or causing to be disseminated, any advertisement by means of the United States mails or in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, by any means, for the purpose of inducing or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of a dentifrice now designated by the name of Calox Tooth Powder, or any other dentifrice composed of substantially similar ingredients or possessing substantially similar therapeutic properties, whether sold under that name or under any other name, or disseminating or causing to be disseminated any advertisement by any means for the purpose of inducing or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, of said dentifrice, which advertisements represent, directly or through implication, that the use of Calox Tooth Powder alone will assure the possession of teeth that are white, clear, and sparkling, or will assure beautiful teeth or teeth that are as beautiful as those of some movie stars; that said dentifrice will clean the proximal surfaces between the teeth; that the use of Calox Tooth Powder will result in the liberation of nascent oxygen in the mouth; that Calox Tooth Powder will prevent film on teeth or decay of teeth or that it will remove all types of stain from the teeth or any stains other than ordinary surface stains; that the sodium perborate in Calox Tooth Powder will keep gums firm and healthy and make all normal sets of teeth white and beautiful; that the use of a tooth powder is more effective in cleansing and polishing the teeth than is the use of a tooth paste; that Calox Tooth Powder will neutralize acid mouth conditions, or is an effective antacid; that, except for its use as a mild deodorant, it has any substantial value for purposes other than cleansing and polishing the teeth; that Calox Tooth Powder is more economical to purchase and use than competitive dentifrices unless such is the fact; that movie stars employ Calox Tooth Powder to the exclusion of all other dentifrices, or rely upon it or any other dentifrice alone in the care of the teeth; that the foam obtained from the use of Calox Tooth Powder is due to the oxygen released by any ingredient thereof or is due to anything other than the soap content thereof; that many competing dentifrices have a greater tendency to injure, scratch or destroy tooth enamel, tooth structure, or mouth tissues than has Calox Tooth Powder; or that Calox Tooth Powder will accomplish results which could not be accomplished by competing dentifrices.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF

MICHAEL P. BRIGANTI AND FRED C. MATTIA, TRADING
AS PREMIER COLOR WORKS AND MATTIA AND BRIGANTI COMPANYCOMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914*Docket 3826. Complaint, June 19, 1939—Decision, Dec. 28, 1939*

Where an individual engaged in manufacture and sale, under brand name "Ave Maria," of line of effervescent and laxative products—

Set forth on tin containers in which his "Ave Maria Effervescent Preparation" and "Ave Maria Laxative Preparation" were packed, and on cardboard cartons in which such containers were enclosed, legend "* * * Made in U. S. A. from a highly recommended formula of Dr. Arnaldo Piutti, Director of the Pharmaceutical Institute of 'Reggio Universita Di Napoli' (Italy)," and depicted reproductions of three gold medals and decorations and, immediately thereunder, legend "Highest awards in the Hygienic Divisions of International Expositions";

Facts being said products had not, as thus represented, been made from formulas recommended by such a person, and medals and decorations were not reproductions of original medals and decorations awarded such products at expositions, and products in question had not been exhibited at exhibitions as aforesaid nor thus awarded medals or other prizes at expositions, such as preferred by substantial number of persons among purchasing public, and especially Italian-Americans, as superior merchandise to that which has not received any such awards;

With effect of misleading substantial portion of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that all such representations were true, and with result, as direct consequence of such mistaken belief, that number of said purchasing public bought substantial volume of his said products and trade in commerce was thereby diverted unfairly to him from competitors engaged in sale of effervescent and laxative products and who truthfully represent their merchandise; to the injury of competition in commerce:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Mr. Robert P. Bellinger for the Commission.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Michael P. Briganti and Fred C. Mattia, individually and as copartners trading as Premier Color Works and Mattia and Briganti Co., hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondents, Michael P. Briganti and Fred C. Mattia, are copartners doing business under the trade names of Premier Color Works and Mattia and Briganti Company, with their offices and principal place of business located at 382 Pearl Street, New York, N. Y.

PAR. 2. Respondents are now, and for more than one year last past have been, engaged in the business of manufacturing and selling under the brand name of "Ave Maria" a line of effervescent and laxative products. Respondents cause said products, when sold, to be transported from their place of business in the State of New York to purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in various States of the United States other than the State of New York and in the District of Columbia.

Respondents maintain and at all times herein mentioned have maintained a course of trade in said products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of their business, respondents are in substantial competition with other partnerships and with firms, corporations, and individuals engaged in the sale and distribution of effervescent and laxative products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of their business, respondents offer for sale and sell an effervescent product designated "Ave Maria Effervescent Preparation" and a laxative product designated "Ave Maria Laxative Preparation." The tin containers in which said products are packed by respondents, and the cardboard cartons in which the containers are enclosed when the products are prepared for sale by respondents, have printed thereon statements and representations concerning the source of the formulas for said products and concerning purported awards made with respect to said products. The statement and representation concerning the source of the formulas is as follows:

* * * Made in U. S. A. from a highly recommended formula of Dr. Arnaldo Piutti, Director of the Pharmaceutical Institute of "Reggio Università" di Napoli' (Italy).

On the tin container and cardboard carton, in which respondents' said Ave Maria products are packaged, are depicted reproductions of three gold medals and of a decoration. Immediately under said reproductions is the following statement:

Highest awards in the Hygienic Divisions of International Expositions.

In the manner and by the means aforesaid, respondents represent directly and by implication that their said "Ave Maria" products are manufactured from formulas recommended by one Dr. Arnaldo Piutti who is represented to be Director of the Pharmaceutical Institute of the Royal University of Naples (Italy); that the three medals and the decoration depicted on the containers and cartons of said "Ave Maria" preparations, as aforesaid, are reproductions of original medals and decorations awarded said products at various expositions and that respondents' products have received the highest awards in the Hygienic Divisions of International Expositions.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid statements and representations of respondents are false, misleading, and untrue. In truth and in fact said Ave Maria products are not made from formulas recommended by said Arnaldo Piutti. The medals and the decorations depicted on the containers and cartons, as aforesaid, are not reproductions of medals or decorations awarded said products at expositions. Said products were not exhibited at any international exposition and did not receive the awards depicted on the containers and cartons of the products. Respondents' said "Ave Maria" products have not been awarded any medals or other prizes at International expositions. Said products have not received any awards in the Hygienic Divisions of International Expositions.

There are among the purchasing public a substantial number of persons, especially among Italian-Americans, who have a preference for goods which have received awards at expositions, under the belief that such merchandise is superior to merchandise which has received no such awards.

PAR. 6. Each and all of the foregoing false and misleading statements and representations, made by respondents in offering for sale and selling their "Ave Maria" products, as hereinbefore set out, had and now has the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that all of said representations are true. As a direct result of this erroneous and mistaken belief, a number of the purchasing public has purchased a substantial volume of respondents' said "Ave Maria" products, with the result that trade in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, has been diverted unfairly to respondents from competitors engaged in the business of selling effervescent or laxative products, and who truthfully represent their merchandise. As a result thereof, injury has been done and is being done by respondents to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 7. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce, within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on June 19, 1939, issued, and on June 20, 1939 served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondents Michael P. Briganti and Fred C. Mattia, individually and as copartners, trading as Premier Color Works and Mattia and Briganti Co., charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act.

On December 15, 1939, the respondent, Fred C. Mattia, individually and as the sole owner of and trading as Premier Color Works and Mattia and Briganti Co., filed his answer, in which answer he admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, except that said respondent therein alleged that on September 29, 1939, the respondent, Fred C. Mattia, purchased the entire interest of his copartner, Michael P. Briganti, in the business operated under the trade names of Premier Color Works and Mattia and Briganti Co., and since said date has been and is now the sole owner and proprietor thereof, in which the said Michael P. Briganti owns no interest, and has not been connected therewith in any manner since thus disposing of his interest. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, and the said answer thereto of the individual respondent, Fred C. Mattia, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPHS 1. Respondent, Fred C. Mattia, individually is the sole owner and proprietor of the business which he operates under the trade names of Premier Color Works and Mattia and Briganti Co., with his office and principal place of business located at 382 Pearl Street, New York, N. Y.

PAR. 2. The said respondent is now and for more than one year last past has been engaged in the business of manufacturing and selling under the brand name of "Ave Maria" a line of effervescent and laxative products. Said respondent causes said products when sold to be transported from his place of business in the State of New York to purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in various States of the United States other than the State of New York and in the District of Columbia.

Said respondent maintains and at all times herein mentioned has maintained a course of trade in said products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of his business said respondent is in substantial competition with other individuals and with corporations, firms, and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of effervescent and laxative products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of his business said respondent offers for sale and sells an effervescent product designated "Ave Maria Effervescent Preparation" and a laxative product designated "Ave Maria Laxative Preparation." The tin containers in which said products are packed by said respondent and the cardboard cartons in which the containers are enclosed when the products are prepared for sale by said respondent, have printed thereon statements and representations concerning the source of the formulas for said products and concerning purported awards made with respect to said products. The statement and representation concerning the source of the formulas is as follows:

* * * Made in U. S. A. from a highly recommended formula of Dr. Arnaldo Piutti, Director of the Pharmaceutical Institute of "Reggio Universita" Di Napoli (Italy).

On the tin container and cardboard carton in which said respondent's Ave Maria products are packaged, are depicted reproductions of three gold medals, and of a decoration. Immediately under said reproductions is the following statement:

Highest awards in the Hygienic Divisions of International Expositions.

In the manner and by the means aforesaid the said respondent represents directly and by implication that his said Ave Maria products are manufactured from formulas recommended by one Dr. Arnaldo Piutti, who is represented to be Director of the Pharmaceutical Institute of the Royal University of Naples (Italy) ; that the three medals and the decoration depicted on the containers and cartons of said Ave Maria preparations as aforesaid are reproductions of original medals and decorations awarded said products at various expositions, and that said respondent's products have received the highest awards in the Hygienic Divisions of International Expositions.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid statements and representations of said respondent are false, misleading and untrue. In truth and in fact, said Ave Maria products are not made from formulas recommended by said Arnaldo Piutti. The medals and the decorations depicted on the containers and cartons, as aforesaid, are not reproductions of medals or decorations awarded said products at expositions. Said products were not exhibited at any international exposition and did not receive the awards depicted on the containers and cartons of the products. Said respondent's Ave Maria products have not been awarded any medals or other prizes at international expositions. Said products have not received any awards in the Hygienic Divisions of International Expositions.

There are among the purchasing public a substantial number of persons, especially among Italian-Americans, who have a preference for goods which have received awards at expositions, under the belief that such merchandise is superior to merchandise which has received no such awards.

PAR. 6. Each and all of the foregoing false and misleading statements and representations made by said respondent in offering for sale and selling his Ave Maria products, as hereinbefore set out, had and now has the capacity and tendency to and does mislead a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that all of said representations are true. As a direct result of this erroneous and mistaken belief, a number of the purchasing public has purchased a substantial volume of the said respondent's Ave Maria products, with the result that trade in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia has been diverted unfairly to said respondent from competitors engaged in the business of selling effervescents or laxative products and who truthfully represent their merchandise. As a result thereof, injury has been done and is being done by said respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of said respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce, within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of the respondent, Fred C. Mattia, individually, and as the sole owner of and trading as Premier Color Works and Mattia and Briganti Company, in which answer said respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and in addition thereto alleges that on September 29, 1939, the respondent, Fred C. Mattia, purchased the entire interest of his copartner, Michael P. Briganti, in the business operated under the trade names of Premier Color Works and Mattia and Briganti Company, and since said date has been and is now the sole owner and proprietor thereof, in which the said Michael P. Briganti owns no interest, and has not been connected therewith in any manner since thus disposing of his interest, and states that he waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Fred C. Mattia, an individual, trading as Premier Color Works and Mattia and Briganti Co., or trading under any other name or names, his agents, servants, representatives, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of his line of effervescent and laxative products designated by the brand name of "Ave Maria," "Ave Maria Effervescent Preparation," "Ave Maria Laxative Preparation," or by any other name or names, in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing that the formulas from which said products are manufactured are or were originated or recommended by an official or representative of the Royal University of Naples, or by any other person or persons who in truth and in fact have not originated or recommended said formulas.

Order

30 F. T. C.

2. Representing through the use of medals or any other decoration depicted on the containers or cartons in which said products are packaged, or in any other manner that said products have been awarded any medals, prizes, or other awards of merit by any International Exposition or any other Exposition or by any divisions thereof until and unless said products have in fact won the awards represented.

It is further ordered, That the said respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.

It is further ordered, That this case be closed as to the individual respondent Michael P. Briganti, without prejudice to the right of the Commission to reopen the same and continue the prosecution thereof in the event such action is warranted by the facts.

Syllabus

IN THE MATTER OF
HOWARD D. JOHNSON COMPANYCOMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914*Docket 3827. Complaint, June 21, 1939—Decision, Dec. 28, 1939*

Where a corporation engaged in manufacture of ice cream and other food products, and in sale and distribution thereof to purchasers in other States, in substantial competition with others engaged in sale and distribution of such various products, and including competitors selling and distributing in commerce and in the District of Columbia ice cream and food products, who do not misrepresent in any manner whatsoever the nature, character, quality, or method of manufacture of products thereof, nor make misrepresentations of any other character or nature to induce public to purchase their products; in advertisements which it disseminated through the mails, through newspapers of general circulation, and through circulars and other printed or written matter distributed among the various States, and through broadcasts from radio stations of extra-State audience and otherwise, and which were intended and calculated to induce purchase of its products—

Referred to its ice cream as "home made" and to its food as "wholesome—home cooked," and, in further connection with its trade name, referred to its business as makers of "home made ice cream, candies and pastries," and thereby represented to public that said products were in fact home made in the manner and of the ingredients characteristic of the preparation of such products in the home for consumption in the home, as distinguished from factory-made products made of ingredients and by ordinary means of production used in factories making such products for sale, facts being its said products were made in factory of the ordinary ingredients and by the ordinary methods of production used in factories making such products for sale;

With effect of deceiving and misleading prospective purchasers and purchasers of its products into belief that such representations were true, and with result, as consequence of such mistaken and erroneous beliefs, that substantial portion of purchasing public was induced to and did purchase ice cream and other food products from it, and trade was thereby unfairly diverted in such products to it from its competitors; to the injury of competition in commerce:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Howard D. Johnson Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Howard D. Johnson Co., is a corporation, organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Massachusetts, with its principal place of business located at 89 Beale Street, in the city of Wollaston, Mass. It is now, and has been for several years heretofore, engaged in the manufacture of ice cream and other food products and in the sale and distribution thereof in commerce between and among the various States of the United States. Respondent causes said products when sold to be transported from its place of business in the State of Massachusetts to the purchasers thereof located at points in States of the United States other than the State of Massachusetts. It maintains, and for a period of more than 1 year last past has maintained, a course of trade in said products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

PAR. 2. Respondent has been, and is, engaged in substantial competition in the sale and distribution of said ice cream and other food products with other corporations and with partnerships and individuals likewise engaged in the business of selling and distributing ice cream and other food products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business, the respondent has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning its said products, by United States mails, by insertion in newspapers having a general circulation and also in circulars and other printed or written matter, all of which are distributed in commerce among and between the various States of the United States; and by continuities broadcast from radio stations which have sufficient power to, and do, convey the programs emanating therefrom to listeners located in various States of the United States other than the State in which said broadcasts originate and by other means in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of its said products; and has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning its said products, by various means, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of its said products in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act. Among, and typical of the false statements and representations contained in said advertisements, disseminated and caused to be disseminated, as aforesaid, are the following:

Howard Johnson food is wholesome—home cooked.

Howard D. Johnson Company. Home made food and ice cream.

Howard D. Johnson Company. Makers of Howard Johnson's home made ice cream, candies and pastries.

PAR. 4. The aforesaid statements made and disseminated by respondent in offering for sale and selling its ice cream and other food products, as set forth in paragraph 3 thereof, purport to be descriptive of its merchandise and serve as representations to the public that said products are in fact home made in the manner and of the ingredients characteristic of the preparation of such products in home for consumption in the home as distinguished from factory made of the ingredients and by the ordinary means of production used in factories manufacturing such products for sale.

PAR. 5. In truth and in fact the statements made and disseminated by respondent, as set out in paragraph 3 hereof, are false and misleading for the reason that said products are factory made of the ingredients and by the ordinary methods of production used in factories manufacturing such products for sale.

PAR. 6. There are now and have been competitors of respondent selling and distributing ice cream and other food products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia who do not misrepresent in any manner whatsoever the nature, character, quality, or method of manufacture or production of the products offered for sale and sold by them, nor do they make misrepresentations of any other character or nature to induce the public to purchase the products offered for sale and sold by them.

PAR. 7. The use and dissemination by respondent of the false, deceptive, and misleading statements, representations, and advertisements set forth in paragraph 3 hereof, had and have the capacity and tendency to, and did and do, deceive and mislead prospective purchasers and purchasers of its products into the belief that such representations are true. On account of such mistaken and erroneous beliefs, a substantial portion of the purchasing public has been, and is, induced to purchase ice cream and other food products from respondent, and thereby trade has been, and is, unfairly diverted to respondent from competitors named in paragraphs 2 and 6 hereof. As a result thereof, injury has been, and is now being, done by respondent to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States.

· PAR. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on June 21, 1939, issued and on June 22, 1939, served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent Howard D. Johnson Co., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer, the Commission, by order entered herein, granted respondent's motion for permission to withdraw said answer and to substitute therefor an answer admitting all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearings as to the facts, and stating further that prior to the issuance of said complaint the respondent had discontinued the use of the words "home made" or "home cooked" or any other words of similar import and meaning in describing or designating the ice cream and other food products sold by it, which substitute answer was duly filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and substitute answer, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Howard D. Johnson Co., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Massachusetts, with its principal place of business located at 89 Beale Street, in the city of Wollaston, Mass. It is now, and has been for several years heretofore, engaged in the manufacture of ice cream and other food products and in the sale and distribution thereof in commerce between and among the various States of the United States. Respondent causes said products when sold to be transported from its place of business in the State of Massachusetts to the purchasers thereof located at points in States of the United States other than the State of Massachusetts. It maintains, and for a period of more than 1 year last past has maintained, a course of trade in said products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

PAR. 2. Respondent has been, and is, engaged in substantial competition in the sale and distribution of said ice cream and other food products with other corporations and with partnerships and individuals likewise engaged in the business of selling and distributing ice cream and other food products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business, the respondent has disseminated, and has caused the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning its said products, by United States mails, by insertion in newspapers having a general circulation and also in circulars and other printed or written matter, all of which were distributed in commerce among and between the various States of the United States; and by continuities broadcast from radio stations which had sufficient power to, and did, convey the programs emanating therefrom to listeners located in various States of the United States other than the state in which said broadcasts originated, and by other means in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, for the purpose of inducing, and which were likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of its said products; and has disseminated, and has caused the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning its said products, by various means, for the purpose of inducing, and which were likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of its said products in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act. Among and typical of, the false statements and representations contained in said advertisements, disseminated and caused to be disseminated by the respondent, as aforesaid, were the following:

Howard Johnson home made ice cream.

Howard Johnson food is wholesome—home cooked.

Howard D. Johnson Company. Home made food and ice cream.

Howard D. Johnson Company. Makers of Howard Johnson's home made ice cream, candies and pastries.

PAR. 4. The aforesaid statements made and disseminated by respondent in offering for sale and selling its ice cream and other food products, as set forth in paragraph 3 hereof, purported to be descriptive of its merchandise and served as representations to the public that said products were in fact home made, in the manner and of the ingredients characteristic of the preparation of such products in the home for consumption in the home, as distinguished from factory made products made of the ingredients and by the ordinary means of production used in factories manufacturing such products for sale.

PAR. 5. In truth and in fact the statements made and disseminated by respondent, as set out in paragraph 3 hereof, were false and misleading for the reason that said products were made in a factory of the ordinary ingredients and by the ordinary methods of production used in factories manufacturing such products for sale.

PAR. 6. There are now, and have been, competitors of respondent selling and distributing ice cream and other food products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia who do not misrepresent in any manner whatsoever the nature, character, quality, or method of manufacture or production of the products offered for sale and sold by them, nor do they make misrepresentations of any other character or nature to induce the public to purchase the products offered for sale and sold by them.

PAR. 7. The use and dissemination by respondent of the false, deceptive, and misleading statements, representations and advertisements as above set forth had the capacity and tendency to, and did, deceive and mislead prospective purchasers and purchasers of its products into the belief that such representations were true. On account of such mistaken and erroneous beliefs, a substantial portion of the purchasing public was induced to, and did, purchase ice cream and other food products from the respondent, thereby unfairly diverting trade in such products to the respondent from its competitors. As a result thereof, injury has been done by respondent to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent Howard D. Johnson Co., as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of the complaint to be true and states that it waives hearing on the charges set forth in said complaint and that without further evidence or other intervening procedure the case might proceed to final hearing upon the record, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Howard D. Johnson Co., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, do forthwith cease and desist from disseminating or causing to be disseminated any advertisement by means of the United States mails or in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, by any means, for the purpose of inducing or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of its food products, or disseminating or causing to be disseminated, any advertisement by any means for the purpose of inducing, or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, of said food products, which said advertisement represents, directly or through implication, that said food products are home made or home cooked, unless and until said products are in fact made or cooked in the manner and of the ingredients characteristic of the preparation of such products in the home for consumption in the home, as distinguished from factory made products made of the ingredients and by the ordinary means of production used in factories manufacturing such products for sale.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF MERRILL CANDY COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3128. Complaint, May 14, 1937—Decision, Dec. 29, 1939

Where a corporation engaged in manufacture of candy and in sale and distribution thereof to jobber and retailer purchasers in other States, including assortments with which, as case might be, it furnished (a) push cards designed and intended for use in distribution of said candy wholly by lot or chance under a plan in accordance with which and legend secured by chance, as displayed under disk selected and removed, purchaser or customer received by chance for 5 cents paid one candy bar, five candy bars, small canoe of candy, or package of choice candies, and maker of last sale on each of cards secured or was given larger canoe filled with candy, or (b) push cards of various types and design and punchboards for use in distribution of candy wholly by lot or chance and of same general nature and operation in substantially same manner as above described, and (c) articles of merchandise including pieces of glassware and chromium dishes for use as special prizes in operation of particular cards and boards;

Sold together with push cards or punchboards or both, such candies and articles of merchandise to jobbers and retailers by whom as said jobbers' vendees, or purchasers direct, such candies were resold to purchasing public by use of one or other of aforesaid devices and in manner and by sales plan above described; and supplied thereby to and placed in hands of others means by which games of chance, gift enterprises, and lotteries were conducted in said products' resale or distribution by retailers aforesaid, involving game of chance or sale of a chance and use of method or practice in such sale and distribution, contrary to established public policy of the United States Government and in violation of the laws of several of the States and in competition with those who are unwilling to employ in sale and distribution of candy and articles of merchandise dealt in by them any method or sales plan involving games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes and refrain from use thereof, to their competitive disadvantage;

With result that many purchasers of candy and articles of merchandise from it were attracted by element of chance involved in sale and distribution of such candies and articles through use of push cards and punchboards furnished by it and were thereby induced to purchase said candies and articles offered by it in preference to similar products offered by competitors who did not furnish with candies and articles sold by them similar push cards and punchboards or similar devices, and jobber and retail dealers purchased substantial amount of candies and articles of merchandise from it and trade was thereby diverted unfairly to it from its competitors aforesaid:

Held, that such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the injury and prejudice of the public and constituted unfair methods of competition.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of an act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that the Merrill Candy Co., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has been and is using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act of Congress, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, Merrill Candy Co., is a corporation organized and doing business under the laws of the State of Wisconsin, with its principal office and place of business located at 1215-17 East Main Street, in the city of Merrill, State of Wisconsin. Respondent is now, and for several years last past has been, engaged in the manufacture of candies and in the sale and distribution thereof to wholesale dealers, jobbers, and retail dealers located at points in the various States of the United States. Respondent causes and has caused its said products when sold to be transported from its principal place of business in the city of Merrill, State of Wisconsin, to purchasers thereof in Wisconsin and in other States of the United States at their respective points of location. There is now, and has been for several years last past, a course of trade and commerce by said respondent in such candies between and among the States of the United States. In the course and conduct of said business, respondent is in competition with other corporations and with partnerships and individuals engaged in the manufacture of candies and in the sale and distribution thereof in commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and has sold to wholesale and retail dealers assortments of candy so packed and assembled as to involve, or which are designed to or may involve, the use of a lottery scheme when sold and distributed to the ultimate consumers thereof. Such assortments are composed of a number of bars of candy and a number of packages of candy, together with a device commonly called a "push card." The said bars of candy and the packages of candy are sold and distributed to the consuming public by means of said push card in the following manner:

Sales are 5 cents each, and each purchaser is entitled to one push from said card. When a push is made from said card, a number is disclosed. The numbers begin with one and continue to the number of pushes there are on the card, but the numbers are not arranged in numerical sequence. The card bears statements informing purchasers that certain numbers receive specified packages of candy, that certain other numbers receive a specified number of bars of candy, that all other numbers receive one bar of candy, and that the last sale from said assortment receives one of the specified packages of candy. The numbers on said card are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until a selection has been made and the particular push separated from the card. The fact as to whether a purchaser receives one or more than one bar of candy, or one of the packages of candy, for the price of 5 cents is thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

The respondent manufactures, sells, and distributes several assortments involving the use of a push card in the sale and distribution thereof to the consuming public, but all of said assortments involve the same principle as set forth above, and vary only in detail.

PAR. 3. The wholesale dealers and jobbers to whom respondent sells its assortments resell said assortments to retail dealers, and said retail dealers and the retail dealers to whom respondent sells direct expose said assortments for sale and sell said candy to the purchasing public in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of its product in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth; and said sales plan has the capacity and tendency of inducing purchasers thereof to purchase respondent's said product in preference to candy offered for sale and sold by its competitors.

PAR. 4. The sale of said candy to the purchasing public in the manner above alleged involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure packages or bars of candy. The use by respondent of said method in the sale of candy, and the sale of candy by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said method, is a practice of the sort which the common law and criminal statutes have long deemed contrary to public policy, and is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States. The use by respondent of said method has the tendency unduly to hinder competition or create monopoly in this, to wit: That the use thereof has the tendency and capacity to exclude from the candy trade competitors who do not adopt and use the same method or an equivalent or similar method involving the same or an equivalent or similar element of chance or lottery scheme. Many persons, firms, and corporations who make and sell candy in competition with the respondent, as above alleged, are unwilling to offer for sale or sell candy so packed and assembled as above alleged, or otherwise arranged and packed for sale to the purchasing public so as to involve a game of chance, and such competitors refrain therefrom.

PAR. 5. Many dealers in and ultimate purchasers of candy are attracted by respondent's said method and manner of packing said candy and by the element of chance involved in the sale thereof in the manner above described, and are thereby induced to purchase said candy so packed and sold by respondent in preference to candy offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or equivalent methods. The use of said method by respondent has the tendency and capacity, because of said game of chance, to divert to respondent trade and custom from its said competitors who do not use the same or an equivalent method; to exclude from said candy trade all competitors who are unwilling to and who do not use the same or an equivalent method because the same is unlawful; to lessen competition in said candy trade and to tend to create a monopoly of said candy trade in respondent and such other distributors of candy as use the same or an equivalent method; and to deprive the purchasing public of the benefit of free competition in said candy trade. The use of said method by respondent has the tendency and capacity to eliminate from said candy trade all actual competitors, and to exclude therefrom all potential competitors who do not adopt and use said method or an equivalent method.

PAR. 6. The aforementioned method, acts, and practices of respondent are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors, as hereinabove alleged. Said method, acts, and practices constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of section 5 of an act of Congress, entitled "An act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," approved September 26, 1914.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on May 14, 1937, issued its complaint in this proceeding and caused same to be served upon the respondent Merrill Candy Co., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations contained in said complaint were introduced by D. C. Daniel and P. C. Kolinski, attorneys for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of said complaint by Adam P. Schewe, the president of the respondent corporation, before William C. Reeves, Charles F. Diggs, and Miles J. Furnas, examiners for said Commission, theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony was reduced to writing and filed in the office of the Commission together with numerous pieces of documentary evidence received as exhibits. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission upon the said complaint, the answer thereto, the testimony taken and evidence received and brief in support of the complaint. No brief was filed by or on behalf of the respondent and oral argument was waived by it, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

Findings

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, Merrill Candy Co., is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Wisconsin with principal place of business at Merrill in said State; for a number of years it has been engaged in the business of the manufacture, sale, and distribution of candy. It has caused candy manufactured by it, when sold, to be transported from its place of business in the State of Wisconsin to purchasers thereof located in other States of the United States, and in the course and conduct of its said business said respondent has been, and is now, in active competition with numerous persons and partnerships and other corporations also engaged in the manufacture and sale, or the sale, of candy in commerce among several of the States of the United States.

PAR. 2. Respondent, in the course of its business as set out in paragraph 1 hereof, has furnished with some assortments of candies sold by it, devices sometimes described as push cards, upon each of which were stamped 75 disks, each of which concealed a legend. Printed upon each of the cards were the words "All winners, no blanks." These cards were intended for use as follows: Members of the public were to be solicited to select 1 or more of the disks on 1 of the cards and to pay therefor 5 cents for each of the disks selected, whereupon the disks so selected were pushed from the card and the legend concealed thereby disclosed, some of which legends entitled the customer to only 1 candy bar; other such legends entitled the customer to 5 candy bars; other legends so obtained entitled the customer to a small canoe filled with candy; other such legends entitled the customer to 1 package of choice candies and the person to whom the last sale on each of the cards was made, was given a larger canoe filled with candy but whether a selector of 1 of the disks obtained 1 candy bar, 5 candy bars, a small canoe filled with candy, a package of choice candies, or a larger canoe filled with candy was wholly a matter of chance and the customer did not know the number of candy bars to which he was entitled or whether he would receive 1 of the small canoes filled with candy, or a package of choice candies, until the disk selected by him was pushed from the card and the legend concealed thereby was disclosed. With other assortments of candies sold by it, respondent has furnished push cards of various types and designs and with still other assortments of candies so sold, respondent has furnished devices sometimes known as punchboards, but all such cards and boards so furnished by respondent were designed and intended for use in the distribution of candies wholly by lot or chance and were of the same general nature and were operated in substantially the same manner as were the push cards described herein.

PAR. 3. The annual sales made by respondent of candies with which it furnished push cards or punchboards have aggregated $45,000 and approximately 70 percent of such sales have been made to dealers located in States other than the State of Wisconsin. Push cards and punchboards have been furnished by respondent with about 35 percent of its entire output. With some of the assortments or candies sold by respondent with which it furnished push cards or punchboards as set out in paragraph 2 hereof, articles of merchandise, including pieces of glassware and chromium dishes, were included for use as special prizes in the operation of such cards or boards.

PAR. 4. The Commission finds that the candies, glassware, and chromium dishes intended for use as special prizes in the operation of the push cards and punchboards, as set out in paragraph 3 hereof, were sold by respondent to jobbers and to retail dealers and with such sales it furnished push cards or punchboards, or both, and such candies and articles of merchandise so sold to jobbers were resold by them with the accompanying push cards or punchboards to retail dealers, and such candies and articles of merchandise were resold by the retail dealers to the purchasing public by the use of one or the other of the devices and in the manner and by the sales plan described in paragraph 2 hereof. The Commission further finds that respondent by furnishing such cards and boards, or either type of said devices, with the candies and articles of merchandise sold by it, thereby supplied to and placed in the hands of others the means by which games of chance, gift enterprises, and lotteries have been conducted. The Commission further finds that the use of such cards and boards, or either of such devices, in the resale and distribution by retail dealers of the candies and articles of merchandise sold by respondent, involved a game of chance or the sale of a chance and that the use of such methods in the sale and distribution of such candies and articles of merchandise was a practice of the sort which is contrary to the established public policy of the Government of the United States and is in violation of the laws of several of the States of the United States.

PAR. 5. There are among the competitors of respondent persons, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the manufacture and sale, or the sale, of candies and articles of merchandise of the same general nature as those sold by respondent and in commerce between and among various States of the United States, which competitors were unwilling to employ in the sale and distribution of candies and articles of merchandise dealt in by them, any method or sales plan which involved games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes, and refrained from the use of such practices, and as a result were placed at a disadvantage in competition. Many purchasers of candies and articles of merchandise from respondent were attracted by the element of chance involved in the sale and distribution of such candies and articles of merchandise by the use of push cards and punchboards furnished by respondent, and were thereby induced to purchase such candies and articles of merchandise offered for sale by respondent, in preference to similar candies and articles of merchandise offered for sale by competitors of respondent who did not furnish with candies and articles of merchandise sold by them similar push cards and punchboards or similar devices, and as a result jobbers and retail dealers purchased a substantial amount of candies and articles of merchandise from respondent with the result that trade was thereby diverted unfairly to respondent from said competitors.

CONCLUSION

The acts and practices of respondent, as herein found, are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of

respondent, testimony, and other evidence taken before William C. Reeves, Charles F. Diggs, Miles J. Furnas, examiners of the Commission, theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, brief of counsel for the Commission, filed herein (respondent having filed no brief and oral argument not having been requested), and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Merrill Candy Co., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of candy or any other merchandise in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Selling or distributing candy or any other merchandise so packed and assembled that sales of said candy or other merchandise to the general public are to be made, or may be made, by means of a lottery, gaming device, or gift enterprise.

2. Supplying to, or placing in the hands of, others packages or assortments of candy or other merchandise together with push or pull cards, punchboards or any other lottery devices, which said push or pull cards, punchboards or other lottery devices are to be used, or may be used, in selling or distributing said candy or other merchandise to the general public.

3. Supplying to or placing in the hands of others push or pull cards, punchboards, or any other lottery devices, either with assortments of candy or other merchandise, or separately, which said push or pull cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices, are to be used or may be used in selling or distributing such candy or other merchandise to the general public.

4. Selling or otherwise distributing any merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF
ROY E. REED AND FLORENCE A. REED, TRADING AS DIESEL ENGINEERS, ASSOCIATED

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
 OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3258. Complaint, Nov. 1, 1937—Decision, Dec. 29, 1939

Where an individual, and the wife of said individual, active participant with him in business in question and, together with him, responsible for policies and activities thereof, including advertising, and possessed of a wife's community property interest therein under the laws of the State concerned, engaged together in the conduct, through courses of study and instruction, by correspondence and through classroom instruction, of a school in the theory, operation, maintenance, and repair of Diesel engines and air-conditioning equipment, and, as thus engaged, in soliciting students in said and other States through salesmen or agents and in also advertising both courses of study and instruction by radio and by newspapers located in aforesaid and other States, and having general circulation throughout the United States, and in circulars distributed through their said agents and through the mail—

- (a) Represented and implied, through "blind advertisements" in the "Help Wanted" columns of various newspapers in the several States, such as "Wanted men and young men to earn while learning Diesel and Air conditioning. D. E. A., 807 S. Flower," "Diesel Air-conditioning Refrigeration Classes now forming. Summer rates in effect. Jobs furnished while training. You can work and earn while you learn," "Men—Small but welcome earnings while learning Diesel. Mechanically inclined ambitious men only. Minimum initial fee $15 * * *," and others of similar tenor, that persons responding would be afforded opportunity to learn to construct, operate, maintain, and repair Diesel engines and air-conditioning equipment while working for pay in a factory or shop in which such engines and equipment were made and repaired by a person or concern engaged therein;

Facts being such advertisements were inserted in "Help Wanted" columns, not to offer employment but to obtain students for school in question, individuals concerned did not own any such factory or shop, and, while conducting an employment bureau in connection with school in question, did not afford students opportunity to work in a factory or shop constructing, operating, maintaining, or repairing such engines or equipment except in very rare instances, and did not afford students, in many instances, opportunity to work at anything, and it was not until after making of initial payment for instruction to said individuals that facts aforesaid became known to person responding to advertisements in question;

- (b) Placed on their letterheads, used in correspondence with prospective students soliciting sale of their said courses and instruction, words "Diesel Engineers, Associated. Consulting Engineers" and, on printed agreements with students, set forth same legend, together with words "Application Associate Engineering Membership," and in such agreements described students as members, agreement as membership, and diploma to be awarded upon completion of course of study and instruction as "Associate engineering membership;"

Facts being organization with which student became connected was not, as thus represented, an association of engineers banded together for the promotion of some common enterprise of mutual benefit to members, but trade school conducted by individuals aforesaid for profit, persons whose names were set out and designated as above set forth on such letterheads were not consulting engineers, nor engineers at all, and no degrees in engineering had been received either by any of said persons thus referred to or by any member of staff or faculty of school in question, of which Bachelor of Science degree was only one of any kind possessed by any member, and, notwithstanding possession of practical experience with engines of various types by some of such members and theoretical courses in engineering subjects and certain consultation by students, teachers, and occasionally others in such subjects, but without remuneration, they were not in fact consulting engineers or persons with thorough education and wide experience competent to give valuable professional engineering advice;

(c) Represented, through their agents by means of printed matter and instructions placed in said agents' hands, that there were growing opportunities to make or earn large amounts of money in the "wonderful" and "new" field and salaries amounting to hundreds of dollars a month, and that their teachers or staff were expert engineers, and that after theoretical training was completed there was a laboratory available for practical training, including necessary and practical machine shop training on lathes, drill presses, etc., so as to give student "a complete working knowledge of the things necessary for him to know so he can hold down a good job," and stressed the qualifications of their "Chief Engineer" as "a writer of note," with many years of "practical Engineering Experience";

Facts being there is little demand for services of students trained in their school, such persons, after completing their courses of study and instruction, are not engineers nor qualified thereby to do work of engineers or of people skilled in construction, maintenance, operation and repair of Diesel engines or air-conditioning equipment, many of their students are unable to obtain work in the field for which they have trained, their said school is not well equipped for laboratory or shop work nor is their teaching force well qualified to give the instruction advertised, and representations made by them as above set forth grossly misrepresent and exaggerate demand for and qualifications and earnings of persons trained by them, and education, training and experience of their teachers, and nature and extent of the equipment available to students at their said school; and

(d) Represented to prospective students that initial amounts of money paid for tuition would be refunded if student was unable to go on with the training, and that students would be paid a specified salary for working in said individuals' plant and thus reimbursed, and that, upon completion of course of study sold, positions would be available for their students in which the knowledge acquired by them in said courses could be applied, and made practice of allowing an asserted special discount from price set forth on contracts or agreements;

Facts being, excepting cases where payment was made by minor without consent of parents or legal guardian, refunds of initial payments or other payments were at all times refused regardless of salesmen's representations, in reliance upon contract statements to effect that no oral representations would be recognized, said individuals did not own or operate a plant in which students were employed, nor pay students specified or any salary or secure work reimbursing students for money paid to said individuals, money received by such students in cases in which employment was secured for them by said individuals did not reimburse them for their tuition, they did not secure positions or work for students completing their courses in which latter might apply knowledge acquired from said courses, positions of such a nature in many cases were not available to such students through their own efforts or otherwise, and price secured through asserted special discount by the various students was the price regularly charged others for same course at same time;

With effect of misleading and deceiving many prospective purchasers of their said courses of study and instruction and causing them erroneously to believe that representations and implications made and used by said individuals in connection with offer, sale and distribution thereof were true, and of causing many prospective purchasers, because of such erroneous beliefs, to purchase said courses of study and instruction from such individuals and thereby unfairly divert trade in commerce to them from their competitors who do not use acts, practices and methods employed by individuals aforesaid; to said competitors' substantial injury and to that of public:

Held, That such acts, practices, and methods were all to the injury and prejudice of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of an act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Roy E. Reed and Florence A. Reed, hereinafter referred to as respondents, have been, and are using unfair methods of competition in commerce as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect, as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondents Roy E. Reed and Florence A. Reed are individuals presently trading under the name and style Diesel Engineers, Associated, formerly trading as Diesel Training School, with their office and principal place of business at 805½ South Flower Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

Respondents are now, and have been for more than 2 years last past, engaged in the sale and distribution of courses of study and instruction in the construction, operation, maintenance, and repair of Diesel engines and air conditioning equipment. When said courses of study and instruction are sold, respondents cause the books, lessons, and other printed and written matter used in connection therewith to be transported from their said place of business in the city of Los Angeles, Calif., to the purchasers thereof located at various points in the several States of the United States, other than the State of California, and in the District of Columbia. Respondents now maintain, and have maintained at all times mentioned herein, a constant current of trade and commerce in said products between and among the various States of the United States, and in the District of Columbia.

In the course and conduct of their said business, as aforesaid, respondents are now, and for more than 2 years last past have been, in substantial competition in commerce between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, with various other individuals and with corporations, partnerships and firms engaged in the sale and distribution of like and similar courses of study and instruction in the construction, operation, maintenance and repair of Diesel engines and air conditioning equipment.

PAR. 2. Respondents, in the course and conduct of their business, as aforesaid, for the purpose of inducing individuals to purchase said courses of study and instruction, place advertisements in newspapers circulated in various States of the United States and employ a number of representatives who travel in various of the States of the United States making personal solicitation of prospective students for said courses of study and instruction.

PAR. 3. Respondents have adopted the practice of running what are commonly known as "blind advertisements" in the Help Wanted Column of various and sundry newspapers located in the several States of the United States. Among and typical of these advertisements are the following:

WANTED men & young men to earn while learning DIESEL & AIR CONDITIONING. D. E. A., 807 S. Flower.

DIESEL Air-Conditioning Refrigeration Classes now forming. Summer rates in effect. Jobs furnished while training. You can work and earn while you learn. DIESEL ENGINEERS ASSOCIATED. Room 715. Hotel Whitmore. Sunday Only.

OPPORTUNITY FOR DIESEL ENGINEERING—Learn under lic. engineers, earn while learn. Sun Box 133.

MECHANIC—Part time job while learning. Diesel. Salary and tuition. Address Box 308 News-Pilot.

MEN to earn while learning air conditioning or Diesel. 807 S. FLOWER.

MEN—Small but welcome earnings while learning Diesel. Mechanically inclined ambitious men only. Minimum initial fee $15. Write Box 61-G. News-Journal.

EARN money while learning Diesel. Write Box #575, Oklahoman and Times.

In said advertisements respondents represent and imply that persons responding to said advertisements will be afforded an opportunity to learn to construct, operate, maintain, and repair Diesel engines and air conditioning equipment while working for pay in a factory or shop in which Diesel engines and air conditioning equipment are manufactured and repaired by a firm engaged in that business. In truth and fact, the respondents do not own or operate a shop or factory where Diesel engines and air conditioning equipment are manufactured or repaired, nor do they provide employment in such a shop or factory for persons responding to said advertisements. Said advertisements are simply a "blind" to secure contact with prospective purchasers of said courses of study and instruction so sold and distributed by the respondents, as aforesaid. This fact does not become known to persons responding to said advertisements until after the making of an initial payment by such persons.

PAR. 4. On letterheads used in corresponding with prospective students in soliciting the sale of and selling said courses of study and instruction, the respondents place the following words:

DIESEL ENGINEERS, ASSOCIATED Consulting Engineers

J. D. Moore,
Chief of Staff

John F. Voogt,
Chief Consulting Engineer

V. F. Payton,
Consulting Engineer

E. Norrbom,
Consulting Engineer

J. L. Mercer,
Consulting Engineer

On agreements with students, respondents place the following words:

DIESEL ENGINEERS, ASSOCIATED Consulting Engineers

APPLICATION ASSOCIATE ENGINEERING MEMBERSHIP

In said agreement the student is described as a "member," and the agreement of enrollment is described as a "membership," and the "diploma" to be awarded the "member" upon completion of the courses of study and instruction is described as an "associate engineering membership."

By the means and in the manner aforesaid, respondents represent and imply that the organization with which the "member" is to be associated is an association of engineers, banded together for the promotion of some common enterprise of mutual benefit to the members; that the said J. D. Moore, designated Chief of Staff, and John F. Voogt, designated Chief Consulting Engineer, and the other persons designated as Consulting Engineers are engineers with a thorough education and wide experience, competent to give valuable professional advice in engineering matters and persons who, because of their rank and profession, are consulted by other engineers. In truth and fact, the organization with which the student, or "member," becomes associated is not an association of engineers banded together for the promotion of some common enterprise of mutual benefit to all the members, but is simply a trade name used by the said respondents in furthering the sale of said courses of study and instruction for the profit and for the benefit of the respondents. In truth and fact, the said J. D. Moore, designated Chief of Staff, and John F. Voogt, designated Chief Consulting Engineer, and the other persons designated as Consulting Engineers are not engineers with a thorough education and wide experience, competent to give professional advice in engineering matters, and are not persons who, because of their rank and profession, are consulted by other engineers on engineering matters.

PAR. 5. Respondents, in the course and conduct of their business as aforesaid, through said representatives, and in printed matter placed in the hands of said representatives, grossly misrepresent and exaggerate the demand for, and the qualifications and earnings of, persons trained by the respondents in the construction, operation, maintenance, and repair of Diesel engines and air conditioning equipment, and grossly misrepresent and exaggerate the education, training and experience of the teachers employed by the respondents and grossly misrepresent the nature and extent of the equipment available to "members" in respondents' "shops," purportedly operated at their said place of business at Los Angeles, Calif., and the instructional force available to teach such "members" in said "shops."

PAR. 6. Respondents, in many instances, represent to prospective purchasers of said courses of study and instruction that upon completion of a specified number of assignments, the respondents will return to purchasers the initial amount of money paid for the "membership" and represent that if the earnings of the "members" are not sufficient to enable the "member" to live in Los Angeles, Calif., while receiving instruction in respondents' "shops" that the initial payment made will be returned, and in some instances respondents represent that if for any reason the "member" is unable to complete said courses of study and instruction, that all money received by the respondents will be returned to such "member." Respondents, in some instances, represent to prospective purchasers of said courses of study and instruction that the "member" will be paid a specified salary per week for working in the "plant" of the respondents, which earnings would reimburse the "member." In other instances, respondents represent to prospective "members" that, upon completion of said courses of study and instruction, positions will be available for such "members" where the knowledge acquired from respondents' said courses of study and instruction can be applied.

In truth and fact, the respondents do not return to purchasers the initial amount of money paid for the "membership" upon completion of a specified number of lesson assignments. In many instances, the earnings of the "members" are not sufficient to enable them to live in Los Angeles, Calif., while receiving instruction in respondents' "shops" and respondents do not return the initial payment made. Respondents do not return the money received from a "member" who has been unable to complete said courses of study and instruction. Respondents do not pay to "members" a specified salary per week for working in the "plant" of respondents, and positions are not available to "members" upon completion of respondents' said courses of study and instruction.

PAR. 7. Respondents, in many instances, represent that the prices at which said courses of study and instruction are offered are a special price available for a limited time only, and, in other instances, the respondents represent that the price for said courses of study and instruction is to be increased by $25 or $50 in the near future. In truth and fact, the prices at which respondents offer to sell and sell said courses of study and instruction are not special prices, limited in time, but are the prices at which said courses of study and instruction are regularly offered for sale and sold. In truth and fact, in those instances where the respondents represent that the price is to be shortly increased by some $25 or $50, respondents do not contemplate, nor do they make, such raises in the price at which said courses of study and instruction are sold.

PAR. 8. The aforesaid acts, practices, and methods of the respondents have the capacity and tendency to and do mislead and deceive many prospective purchasers of respondents' said courses of study and instruction in the construction, operation, maintenance, and repair of Diesel engines and air conditioning equipment, and cause them erroneously to believe that the representations and implications so made and used by the respondents in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of their said courses of study and instruction are true, and have the tendency and capacity to and do cause many prospective purchasers, because of said erroneous beliefs, to purchase said courses of study and instruction from the respondents, thereby unfairly diverting trade in said commerce to the respondents from their competitors who do not use the acts, practices, and methods used by the respondents, to the substantial injury of said competitors in said commerce and to the injury of the public.

PAR. 9. The above alleged acts, practices, and methods of the respondents are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of section 5 of the act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on November 1, 1937, issued and on November 5, 1937, served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondent Roy E. Reed and upon the respondent Florence A. Reed, individuals trading under the name and style Diesel Engineers, Associated. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondents' answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by Hilburn H. Covington, attorney for the Commission, and by P. E. Cavaney, attorney for the respondents, before Charles P. Vicini, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, and brief in support of the complaint (respondents not having filed a brief and oral argument not having been requested); and the Commission, having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent Roy E. Reed is an individual formerly doing business under the name and style of Diesel Engineers, Associated. The same business was formerly conducted by respondent Roy E. Reed under the name and style Diesel Training School. Subsequent to the issuance of the complaint in this proceeding, the respondent changed the trade name under which he conducted said business from Diesel Engineers, Associated, to Allied Engineering

Findings

30 F. T. C.

School. The business under whichever of the three names mentioned above conducted is, and at all times hereinafter mentioned has been, owned by the respondent Roy E. Reed. The respondent Florence A. Reed is, and at all times hereinafter mentioned has been, the wife of the said Roy E. Reed, and both said respondents are now and have been at all times hereinafter mentioned citizens and residents of the State of California, domiciled therein. The principal office and place of business of said business is, and at all times mentioned herein has been, located at 805-807 South Flower Street, Los Angeles, Calif. The respondent Florence A. Reed now has, and at all times hereinafter mentioned has had, the community property interest of a wife in said business under the laws of the State of California and at all times mentioned herein has actively participated in the management of said business, and is now and at all times herein mentioned has been, together with the respondent Roy E. Reed, responsible for the policies and activities of said business, including its advertising.

Respondents in the conduct of said business are now, and for more than 2 years last past have been, engaged in the conduct of a school offering a course of study and instruction in the theory, operation, maintenance, and repair of Diesel engines and air-conditioning equipment. In said school respondents offer said courses of study and instruction both by correspondence and by classroom instruction, at 805-807 South Flower Street, Los Angeles, Calif. In connection with both types of study and instruction respondents employ salesmen or agents to solicit students in California and in other States of the United States. Respondents also advertise both courses of study and instruction by radio, and in newspapers located in California and in other States of the United States, and having a general circulation throughout the United States, and in circulars distributed by their said agents and by United States mail. As a result of such solicitation and advertising, respondents do obtain, and at all times herein mentioned have obtained, students residing in California and residing in other States of the United States, both for the correspondence and for the resident courses of study and instruction. In connection with said correspondence courses of study and instruction, respondents do mail, and at all times herein mentioned have mailed, lesson sheets and other literature by United States mail to students located in California and in other States of the United States. In the course and conduct of said business, as aforesaid, respondents are now, and at all times herein mentioned have been, in substantial competition in commerce between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia with various other individuals and with corporations, partnerships, and firms engaged in the sale and distribution in interstate commerce of like and similar courses of study and instruction in the theory, operation, maintenance and repair of Diesel engines and air-conditioning equipment.

PAR. 2. As a part of the advertising of said business and for the purpose of obtaining students for both courses of instruction in said school, respondents have inserted and caused to be inserted in the "Help Wanted" columns of various and sundry newspapers located in the several States of the United States certain advertisements, known as blind advertisements. Among and typical of these advertisements are the following:

Wanted men and young men to earn while learning Diesel and Air Conditioning. D. E. A., 807 S. Flower.

Diesel Air-conditioning Refrigeration Classes now forming. Summer rates in effect. Jobs furnished while training. You can work and earn while you learn.

Opportunity for Diesel Engineering—learn under lic. engineers, earn while learn. Sun Box 133.

Mechanic—Part-time job while learning. Diesel. Salary & tuition. Address Box 308 News-Pilot.

Men to earn while learning Air conditioning or Diesel. 807 S. Flower.

Men—Small but welcome earnings while learning Diesel. Mechanically inclined ambitious men only. Minimum initial fee $15. Write Box 61-A, News-Journal.

Earn money while learning Diesel. Write Box E-575. Oklahoman and Times.

By the use of said advertisements, and others of similar import not herein specifically set out, respondents represent and imply that persons responding to such advertisements will be afforded an opportunity to learn to construct, operate, maintain, and repair Diesel engines and air-conditioning equipment while working for pay in a factory or shop in which Diesel engines and air-conditioning equipment are manufactured and repaired by a person, firm or corporation engaged in that business. Said advertisements, in truth and in fact, are inserted in said "Help Wanted" columns not for the purpose of offering employment but for the purpose of obtaining students for said school. Respondents do not own or operate a factory or shop where either Diesel engines or air-conditioning equipment is manufactured or repaired. Respondents conduct an employment bureau in connection with said school, but do not afford students an opportunity to work in a factory or shop constructing, operating, maintaining or repairing Diesel engines or air-conditioning equipment except in very rare instances, and, in many instances, do not afford an opportunity to work at anything. These facts do not become known to persons responding to said advertisements until after an initial payment for instruction has been made to respondents.

PAR. 3. On letterheads used in correspondence with prospective students, soliciting the sale of and selling said courses of study and instruction, respondents place the following words:

Diesel Engineers, Associated
Consulting Engineers

On said letterheads said words are followed by the names of various persons connected with said school, including the names of John F. Voogt and others who are described on said letterheads as consulting engineers.

On printed agreements with students respondents place the following words:

Diesel Engineers, Associated
Consulting Engineers

Application Associate Engineering Membership

In said agreements students are described as members, the agreement of enrollment is described as a membership, and the diploma to be awarded upon completion of the course of study and instruction is described as an "associate engineering membership."

By the means and in the manner aforesaid, the respondents represent and imply that the organization with which the student, described as a member, is to be associated is an association of engineers banded together for the promotion of some enterprise of mutual benefit to the members, and that the said persons designated as consulting engineers are engineers with a thorough education and wide experience, competent to give valuable professional advice in engineering matters and persons who because of their rank in the profession are consulted by other engineers. In truth and in fact, the organization with which the student or member becomes associated is not an association banded together for the promotion of any common enterprise of mutual benefit to all members, but is a trade school conducted by the respondents for profit. The persons designated as consulting engineers are neither engineers nor consulting engineers. Neither said persons designated as consulting engineers nor any of the members of respondents' staff or faculty holds or has received any degree in engineering. Only one member of respondents' faculty holds a degree of any kind, to wit, James D. Moore, who holds the degree of Bachelor of Science. Although some of the members of respondents' staff and faculty have had practical experience with engines of various types, have had theoretical courses in engineering subjects, and are consulted by students, teachers and, occasionally, by others wishing advice on engineering subjects, none of them receive remuneration.

neration for such consultations, are in fact consulting engineers, or are persons with a thorough education and wide experience, competent to give valuable professional engineering advice.

PAR. 4. Respondents in the course and conduct of said business have placed printed matter in the hands of their said agents, and have otherwise instructed said agents concerning representations to be made to prospective students, which representations are made by said agents to prospective students. Typical of said instructions are the following:

Many prospects will ask technical questions about the operations of Diesels. It should be easy for you to get around such questions by saying, "Mr. —, I am not a diesel engineer. The school maintains a staff of expert engineers to answer technical questions. If I were an Engineer, I would be drawing a nice salary of from three to five hundred dollars per month, but I am getting into this new industry, and in a short time I expect to be in a position to earn some real money, for I know what fortunes were cleaned up when the automobile industry was new".

It is wonderful and it is new. There are so many opportunities in this field for men who are really Properly trained that you could spend hours telling of them.

If I can show you where I have something that will give you an advantage over other men, if I can show you where in a short length of time you can be in a position to earn good money, and at a cost that you can afford, is it possible for you to raise a small amount of money with which to get started?

We want to impress upon the prospective members of this organization the fact that we know how they should be taught. We give them all the necessary theory in twenty assignments. After these are completed, they are ready to go into the laboratory for practical training. A member is not ready for practical work until he knows Diesel theory. It would be like "putting the cart before the horse" to put him in the laboratory and then teach him theory. In the laboratory we give him the necessary training in machine shop work—working on lathes, drill presses, shapers, etc. We also give him welding experience. In fact a practical training has been arranged to give him a complete working knowledge of the things necessary for him to know so he can hold down a good job.

Stress the engineers who have written the text for this course. There isn't a man in the field today who has the qualifications for editing a practical theory course as has our Chief Engineer, J. D. Moore. He is a writer of note, besides having had twenty-five years of practical Engineering Experience. Study the data given on the engineers.

Through these representations and others of similar import not specifically set forth herein, respondents grossly misrepresent and exaggerate the demand for and the qualifications and earnings of persons trained by respondents, and grossly misrepresent and exaggerate the education, training and experience of the teachers employed by respondents, and grossly misrepresent and exaggerate the nature and extent of the equipment available to students at respondents' said school in Los Angeles, and the instructional force available to teach said students. There is little demand for services of students trained in respondents' said school; said students, after completing respondents' said courses of study and instruction, are not engineers and are not qualified by said course of study and instruction to do the work of engineers or the work of persons skilled in the construction, maintenance, operation and repair of Diesel engines or air-conditioning equipment; many of respondents' students are unable to obtain work in the field for which respondents have trained them. Respondents' said school is not well equipped for laboratory or shop work. Respondents' teaching force is not well qualified to give the instruction advertised by respondents.

PAR. 5. Respondents have represented to prospective students that initial amounts of money paid for tuition would be refunded if the student was unable to go on with the training. In truth and in fact, except in cases where a payment is made by a minor without the consent of such minor's parents or legal guardians, respondents refuse at all times to refund initial payments or other money paid by prospective students for either of said courses of instruction, regardless of representations made by them, or their salesmen, relying in such refusal upon statements made in their contracts with such students to the effect that no oral representations will be recognized.

PAR. 6. Respondents have represented to prospective students that said students would be paid a specified salary for working in respondents' plant, which earnings would reimburse the student, and have further represented that upon completion of the course of study sold positions would be available for such students in which positions the knowledge acquired by the pursuit of respondents' said courses of study and instruction could be applied. Respondents do not own or operate a plant in which students are employed, do not pay students a specified salary, or any salary, and do not secure work for students which reimburses them for money paid to respondents. In cases where employment is secured by respondents for students, money received by said students is paid in compensation for services rendered and does not reimburse said students for tuition. Respondents do not secure positions or work for those students who complete either of their said courses of instruction in which knowledge acquired from respondents' said courses of instruction can be applied, and, in many cases, such positions are not available to said students through their own efforts or by any other means.

PAR. 7. Respondents indicate the price of their courses of instruction and study on the contracts or agreements entered into with students, and make a practice of allowing a discount on said price so stated on said contract or agreement. When said discount is allowed, the rate after the deduction of the discount is represented to the student as a special rate or price to him, whereas, in fact, the price or rate paid by the student is the price charged other students for the same course at the same time.

PAR. 8. The aforesaid acts, practices, and methods of the respondents have the capacity and tendency to, and do, mislead and deceive many prospective purchasers of respondents' said courses of study and instruction and cause them erroneously to believe that the representations and implications so made and used by the respondents in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of their courses of study and instruction are true, and have the tendency and capacity to and do cause many prospective purchasers, because of said erroneous beliefs, to purchase said courses of study and instruction from the respondents, thereby unfairly diverting trade in said commerce to the respondents from their competitors who do not use the acts, practices and methods used by the respondents, to the substantial injury of said competitors in said commerce and to the injury of the public.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts, practices, and methods of the respondents are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

It is ordered, That the respondents, Roy E. Reed and Florence A. Reed, individually and trading under the name and style of Diesel Engineers, Associated, Diesel Training School, Allied Engineering School, or any other name, their representatives, agents and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution in interstate commerce or in the District of Columbia of courses of instruction in Diesel engineering, air-conditioning or in any other subject or subjects, do forthwith cease and desist:

1. From representing, through advertisements in classified advertising pages of newspapers, magazines and other advertising literature, under such headings as "Help Wanted" or "Employment," or in any other manner, that persons responding to such advertisements may obtain an opportunity to work for pay while receiving instruction relating to Diesel engineering, air-conditioning equipment or any other subject.

2. From representing, in any way, that said respondent, or either of them constitutes or is connected with, or that the school which they conduct is, an association of engineers banded together for the promotion of any enterprise of mutual benefit to the members, and from representing that their students become members of such an organization.

3. From representing, in any manner, or by any method, that their students become members of any organization except as students in a school, and from representing that the school conducted by said respondents is any kind of organization other than a trade school.

4. Representing that the teachers in respondents' said school are consulting engineers, unless such persons are in fact fully qualified by education and practical experience in the engineering field to be designated as such and are employed and consulted by concerns or individuals actively engaged in the engineering field other than respondents.

5. Representing that teachers in respondents' said school are engineers, unless such persons are in fact fully qualified by education and practical experience in the engineering field to be designated as such.

6. From misrepresenting and exaggerating the demand for and the qualifications and earnings of persons trained in respondents' school.

7. From misrepresenting and exaggerating the education, training and experience of teachers employed by respondents.

8. From misrepresenting and exaggerating the equipment available to respondents' students at respondents' place of business or elsewhere.

9. From representing that initial payments made by prospective students, or any other amounts paid by students for tuition, will be refunded, when such refunds are not in fact made.

10. From representing that students will receive a specified salary, or any salary, while pursuing courses of instruction at respondents' school, or that students will be reimbursed for their tuition in any way, unless and until a salary is paid or students are reimbursed for the tuition paid in some manner.

11. From representing that upon completion of any of respondents' courses of study and instruction positions will be available offering work in the field of said courses of study and instruction, unless such positions are available and may be secured by students.

12. From representing that the price at which a course of study is offered is a special price, unless said price is lower than the sum charged other students for the same course of study and instruction at the same time.

It is further ordered, That the respondents shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF
GIMBEL BROTHERS, INC., AND MORRIS KAPLAN
& SON, INC.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3364. Complaint, Mar. 28, 1938—Decision, Dec. 29, 1939

Where a corporation engaged in the operation of a department store from which it sold wools, woolens, and mixtures of wool, and rayon and cotton and other materials used in making of women's coats, dresses and suits, to members of purchasing public in the various States and in the District of Columbia, in substantial competition with others engaged in sale and distribution of wools, mixtures, and other materials used as above set forth—

Represented and described as "woolens" and "luxurious woolens" certain joblot of fabrics which consisted, as case might be, of all wool, wool and rayon, wool, rayon and cotton, and wool and cotton, and which, consisting of mill ends purchased at different times from various manufacturers and sold to said department store "as is" by vendor wholesaler and jobber of woolens, dress goods and pile fabrics, and known to trade as "experimental pieces," were mostly labeled "as are," and thereby represented to members of purchasing public that such fabrics were woolen fabrics and composed solely of wool;

Notwithstanding fact very large part of dress goods thus advertised and sold were composed largely of cotton and rayon, tests made thereon by National Bureau of Standards and others showed proportions of wool falling far short of minimum of 95 percent by weight of total fiber content, requiring, under standards promulgated by said Bureau, accompaniment, as therein set forth, of word "wool" with figure stating guaranteed percentage thereof, in as visible and distinct style as label word "wool," "woolen," or "worsted," and dress goods in question, in very large part, could not truthfully be advertised as "wool" or "woolens";

With tendency and capacity, through word's unqualified use as aforesaid, to mislead and deceive public into belief that said dress goods or cloth were composed entirely of wool, or fleece of sheep, as long definitely and specifically understood by manufacturers, retailers and consuming public generally, from words "wool" or "woolen," and, as such, held in high esteem in products made thereof for preeminent qualities and for warmth, durability and beauty of fabrics made therefrom, and preferred over other fiber admixtures by public, which, relying chiefly on seller representations for fabric wool content, cannot generally distinguish admixture from wholly wool product, and thereby cause members of public to purchase such fabrics, in aforesaid erroneous belief, as wool wholly, and not mixtures of wool and cotton, or wool, rayon and cotton, or wool and rayon, or wool and any other material, and divert trade unfairly to said store from competitors, of whom many do not misrepresent nature, character or content of fabrics offered by them, and of whom some, possessing, in common with many leading department stores and store herein concerned, own bureaus of standards, in which tests can be made to ascertain wool content of merchandise offered, do make such tests and hold responsible individual buyer for truthfulness of advertising of goods purchased by him and offered for resale by store; to definite injury of trade of competitors who truthfully disclose mixture of fibers other than wool in their fabrics:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. John J. Keenan, trial examiner.

Mr. Merle P. Lyon for the Commission.

Chadbourne, Wallace, Parke & Whiteside, of New York City, for Gimbel Brothers, Inc.

Guzik & Watsky of New York City, for Morris Kaplan & Son, Inc.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Gimbel Brothers, Inc., a corporation, and Morris Kaplan & Son, Inc., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. The said respondent Gimbel Brothers, Inc. is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its principal office and place of business located at Broadway and 33rd Street, in the city of New York and State of New York. Said respondent is now, and for many years last past has been, engaged in the business of operating a chain of department stores, and from its New York City store sells goods, wares, and merchandise to customers located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. It causes, and during the time above mentioned has caused, its said goods, when sold, to be shipped from its place of business in New York to the purchasers thereof located in the various States of the United States other than the State of New York. There is now, and, at all times mentioned herein, has been, a course of trade and commerce by said respondent Gimbel Brothers, Inc., in said goods, so sold by it, between and among the various States of the United States, and said respondent is now, and at all times mentioned herein, has been in substantial competition with other corporations, and with other persons, firms, and partnerships, engaged in the sale of goods, wares, and merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. The respondent, Morris Kaplan & Son, Inc., is a corporation likewise organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its office and principal place of business located at 222 West 39th Street, in the city of New York and State of New York. Said respondent is now, and for many years last past has been, engaged in the wholesaling and jobbing of woolens, dress goods, and pile fabrics, which it purchases from various manufacturers throughout the United States. From its New York City office said respondent sells said woolens, dress goods, and pile fabrics to department stores and other retailers of said goods located in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. It causes, and during the time above mentioned has caused, its said goods, when sold, to be shipped from its place of business in New York, to the purchasers thereof located in the various States of the United States other than the State of New York. There is now, and, at all times mentioned herein, has been, a course of trade and commerce by said respondent, Morris Kaplan & Son, Inc., in said goods, so sold by it, between and among the various States of the United States; and said respondent is now, and at all times mentioned herein, has been, in substantial competition with other corporations, and with other persons, firms, and partnerships engaged in the wholesaling and jobbing of woolens, dress goods, and pile fabrics in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of its business as described in Paragraph 1 herein, the respondent Gimbel Brothers, Inc., in soliciting the sale of and selling certain of its goods, wares, and merchandise to the general public, caused to be published in daily newspapers in the city of New York and having an interstate circulation certain advertisements containing headlines as follows:

The foregoing statements and representations made by the respondent Gimbel Brothers, Inc. as in this paragraph set out, serve as representations to members of the purchasing public that such products so advertised and offered for sale were, and are, woolen products. The representations hereinabove set forth are, and were, false and misleading in that said products or the majority of them so represented, designated and referred to, were not, and are not 100 percent wool or all wool or composed chiefly or entirely of wool, but were and are mixtures of wool, cotton and rayon, or mixtures of wool and rayon, or mixtures of wool and cotton, or mixtures of wool and fiber composition.

PAR. 4. The word "wool" or "woolen" for many years last past has had, and still has, in the minds of garment manufacturers, jobbers, retailers, and the consuming public generally a definite and specific meaning, to wit, the fleece or hair obtained from sheep. Woolen products for many years have held, and still hold, great public esteem and confidence for their preeminent qualities, and have been woven into a variety of fabrics noted for their qualities of warmth, durability, and beauty. Dress goods and other items of wearing apparel designated, described, and referred to as "woolen" have been for a long time, and at the present time still are, associated in the public mind with the fabric made from the hair or fleece of sheep commonly known and understood by the public generally as "wool."

The word "woolen" when used by respondents as herein detailed without qualification as to the material from which dress goods or cloth are composed has the tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive the public into believing that such dress goods or cloth are composed chiefly or entirely of wool, and that they are not mixtures of wool and cotton, or wool, rayon and cotton, or of wool and rayon or of wool and any other material.

PAR. 5. In the course and conduct of its jobbing business as described in paragraph 2 herein, the respondent Morris Kaplan & Son, Inc., purchased at various times from various manufacturers located in States of the United States other than the State of New York, certain dress goods or fabrics known to the trade as "mill ends," the majority of which was composed of mixtures of wool, cotton, and rayon, or wool and rayon, or wool and cotton in varying proportions. In the further course of its said jobbing business, said respondent Morris Kaplan & Son, Inc. solicited the sale of and sold to the respondent Gimbel Brothers, Inc., 7,150 yards of said goods at a price of $1 a yard, representing said goods to be "woolens," although said respondent Morris Kaplan & Son, Inc. well knew or had reason to know that said goods were not in fact woolens or composed entirely or even principally of wool.

PAR. 6. Respondent Gimbel Brothers, Inc., having purchased from respondent Morris Kaplan & Son, Inc. the 7,150 yards of dress goods designated as "woolens" in the manner and under the circumstances as described in paragraph 5 hereof, thereupon proceeded to retail them to the general public through its New York store at 33rd Street and Broadway, and solicited the sale thereof to the purchasing public by means of newspaper advertising and otherwise as more particularly described in paragraph 3 of this complaint, and did sell substantial quantities thereof by individual sales to purchasers residing in States of the United States other than the State of New York.

PAR. 7. In purchasing said 7,150 yards of dress goods as hereinbefore described at the bargain low price of $1 per yard from respondent Morris Kaplan & Son, Inc., the said respondent Gimbel Brothers, Inc. knew, or had reason to know, or should have known, that said dress goods were not wool or woolen goods, or composed chiefly or entirely of wool, and could not truthfully be represented to the purchasing public as "woolens." Under the terms and conditions contained in the written order under which said respondent Gimbel Brothers, Inc. purchased said goods, it reserved the right and privilege of testing said merchandise and of cancelling the order and returning said goods if the merchandise was found not to be as represented. Nevertheless, said respondent, either with full knowledge that said goods were not woolens or woolen goods, or with negligent, careless, and reckless neglect of its duty to test said products or inquire into their composition, wilfully, negligently, and fraudulently failed and neglected to ascertain the true composition and character of said goods, by inquiry, examination, test or otherwise, and advertised said goods to the general public in unqualified terms as "woolens."

PAR. 8. Among the competitors of the respondents there are corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships engaged in the business of operating department stores, selling goods, wares, and merchandise or wholesaling and jobbing woolens, dress goods and pile fabrics, who do not misrepresent the composition, quality and materials of goods offered for sale by them.

PAR. 9. The use by respondents of the representations set forth herein have had and now have the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that such representations were and are true and to cause them to purchase said products as a result of such erroneous beliefs engendered as above set forth. The use by respondents of the representations aforesaid has unfairly diverted and does unfairly divert trade in said commerce to the respondents from those of their said competitors who do not use such deceptive practices and methods. Thereby injury is being, and has been, done by respondents to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States.

PAR. 10. The aforesaid acts, practices and representations of the respondents as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on March 28, 1938, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondents, Gimbel Brothers, Inc., a corporation, and Morris Kaplan & Son, Inc., a corporation, charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondents' answers thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of the complaint were introduced by Merle P. Lyon, attorney for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of complaint by Horace G. Hitchcock and Watson T. Southworth of Chadbourne, Wallace, Parke and Whiteside of New York City, N. Y., on behalf of respondent Gimbel Brothers, Inc., and Leo Guzik of Guzik and Watsky, New York City, N. Y., on behalf of respondent Morris Kaplan & Son, Inc., before John J. Keenan, a duly appointed trial examiner of the Commission, designated by it to receive such testimony and evidence, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceedings regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the answers thereto, the testimony and other evidence and briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto (no oral argument having been requested or made). And the Commission, having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent Morris Kaplan & Son, Inc., is a New York corporation engaged in the wholesaling and jobbing of woolens, dress goods, and pile fabrics with its office and principal place of business located at 222 West Thirty-ninth Street, in the city of New York, State of New York. Said respondent sold to the respondent Gimbel Brothers, Inc., on or about March 1, 1938, 7,150 yards of certain dress goods or fabrics known as "Mill ends" purchased by it at different times from various manufacturers, a large part of which were composed of mixtures of wool, cotton and rayon in varying proportions at a price of $1 per yard. The sale of said goods was made "as is" and consisted of "sample pieces" and "experimental pieces." The goods involved in this case were purchased by the buyer of Gimbel Brothers, Inc., after inspection at the place of business of the respondent Morris Kaplan & Son, Inc., and were then shipped to the New York store of Gimbel Brothers, Inc., and said shipment was not in interstate commerce. The respondent Morris Kaplan & Son, Inc., retained no control of said goods after the sale and delivery to Gimbel Brothers, Inc., and made no representation to the general public in connection with the retail sale thereof.

PAR. 2. Respondent Gimbel Brothers, Inc., is a corporation organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its principal office and place of business located at Broadway and Thirty-third Street, in the city of New York, and State of New York. It is now, and for many years last past has been, engaged in the business of operating a department store, from which it sells wools, woolens, and mixtures of wool, and rayon and cotton and other materials used in the making of women's coats, dresses and suits. Respondent causes, and at all times herein mentioned has caused, its said merchandise, including the products herein involved, to be sold and distributed to members of the purchasing public located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. It causes, and during the times herein mentioned has caused, its said merchandise when sold to be transported from its place of business in the city of New York, State of New York, to purchasers located in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent is now, and has been for many years last past, in substantial competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia, with other corporations and with individuals, firms, and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of wools, and mixtures of wool, rayon and cotton and other materials used in the making of women's coats, dresses, and suits.

PAR. 3. Respondent Gimbel Brothers, Inc., in the course and conduct of its business, as set out in paragraph 2 hereof, in soliciting the sale of and selling certain fabrics for use in the making of women's coats, dresses and suits, has caused advertisements to be published in newspapers of general circulation in various States of the United States in which advertisements said respondent represented and described as "woolens" and "luxurious woolens," a certain job-lot of fabrics, consisting of some pieces of all wool, some composed of wool and rayon, some composed of wool, rayon and cotton and others composed of wool and cotton. The said fabrics purchased from Morris Kaplan & Son, Inc., are known to the trade as "experimental pieces," and were at the time of purchase by respondent Gimbel Brothers, Inc., for the most part labeled "as are." Said fabrics were represented and described by Gimbel Brothers, Inc., as "woolens."

PAR. 4. The words "wool" or "woolen" for many years last past have had, and still have, in the minds of the manufacturers, retailers and the consuming public generally, a definite and specific meaning, to wit: the fleece or hair obtained from sheep. Woolen or wool products for many years have held, and still hold, great public esteem and confidence for their preeminent qualities and have been woven into a variety of fabrics noted for their quality of warmth, durability, and beauty. Dress, suit and coat fabrics for wearing apparel represented, designated, described, and referred to as "wool" or "woolens" have been for a long time, and at the present time still are, associated in the public mind with a fabric entirely made from the hair or fleece of sheep. There is a public preference for wool fabrics over mixtures of wool and other fibers, and the public is more likely to purchase fabrics advertised as "wool" or "woolens" than fabrics advertised as mixtures of wool and other fibers, if the prices are comparable. The public is generally unable to distinguish all-wool fabrics from fabrics containing mixtures of wool and other fibers and relies chiefly on the representations of the seller as to the wool content of fabrics.

The word "woolens" when used by respondent Gimbel Brothers, Inc., in the advertisement of the dress goods, or cloth purchased from Morris Kaplan & Son, Inc., as aforesaid, without qualification as to the materials from which said dress goods or cloth are composed has the tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive the public into believing that such dress goods or cloth are composed entirely of wool, and that they are not mixtures of wool and cotton, or wool, rayon, and cotton, or of wool and rayon or of wool and any other material. The use by respondent of such statements, representations and designations of the fabrics offered for sale by it, has the capacity and tendency to cause members of the public to purchase such fabrics in the erroneous belief that such goods were wholly of wool.

PAR. 5. The fabric advertised, represented and described by respondent Gimbel Brothers, Inc., as "woolens," as set out in paragraph 3 hereof, were not composed wholly of wool; a large percentage of same were composed of wool and rayon or wool, rayon, and cotton, or wool and cotton. The use by the respondent of such representations, statements, descriptions, and designations of said fabrics serve as representations to members of the purchasing public that such fabrics were "woolen" fabrics and were composed solely of wool.

Three separate and independent tests were made of the wool content of the merchandise involved in this proceeding, one by the National Bureau of Standards, Washington, D. C., a second by the Industrial By-Products and Research Corporation, acting as Gimbel's Bureau of Standards and the third by the Forstmann Woolen Co. The tests performed by the National Bureau of Standards were made on 10 pieces of cloth selected at random from the specific lot involved in this proceeding which was on sale at the New York store of respondent, Gimbel Brothers, Inc. Said tests showed that of these 10 pieces, only 4 were all wool, and the other 6 were composed in large part of cotton and rayon in quantities varying from 65 percent to 75 percent. The tests, both microscopic and chemical, made by the Chief Chemist of the Forstmann Woolen Co. on 3 pieces of cloth chosen also at random showed that their wool content was only 30 percent, 34 percent, and 60 percent respectively. The tests made by the respondent, Gimbel Brothers, Inc., through its own Bureau of Standards, the Industrial By-Products and Research Corporation, showed that only 7 out of 12 pieces tested were all wool. The other 5 pieces contained from 31.1 percent rayon to 66.2 percent cotton and rayon.

It is established by the record in this case, and the Commission so finds, that a very large part of the dress goods advertised and sold by the respondent Gimbel Brothers, Inc., at this special sale in March 1938 were composed largely of cotton and rayon, and could not truthfully be advertised as "wool" or "woolens."

Commercial Standard CS 65-38 for wool and part wool fabrics, promulgated by the National Bureau of Standards, provides that the terms "wool," "woolens," or "worsted," when utilized in labeling or otherwise referring to fabrics of which the wool-fiber content is less than 95 percent by weight of the total fiber content, shall be preceded by a figure indicating the guaranteed minimum percentage of wool fiber. The figure stating the guaranteed percentage of wool shall be as visible, legible, clear, and distinct as the label word "wool," "woolen," or "worsted."

PAR. 6. There are among the competitors of respondent Gimbel Brothers, Inc., as mentioned in paragraph 2 hereof many who do not misrepresent the nature, character, or content of the fabrics offered for sale by them. In a special sale of similar merchandise offered by a competitor of the respondent Gimbel Brothers, Inc., at approximately the same date, the goods were truthfully represented as "Spring Woolens and Mixtures of Wool and Rayon." Many leading department stores, including the respondent, Gimbel Brothers, Inc., have their own Bureaus of Standards, in which tests can be made to ascertain the wool content of merchandise offered for sale. Some competitors of respondent, Gimbel Brothers, Inc., do make such tests, and hold the individual buyer responsible for the truthfulness of the advertising of the goods purchased by him and offered for resale by the store.

The statements, representations, descriptions, and designations made by respondent, Gimbel Brothers, Inc., as set out in paragraph 3 hereof, have the capacity and tendency to divert trade unfairly to respondent from said competitors. The advertising representations of respondent Gimbel Brothers, Inc., as heretofore set forth are therefore definitely injurious to the trade of competitors who truthfully disclose the admixture of fibers other than wool in the fabrics offered for sale by them.

CONCLUSION

The acts and practices of the respondent Gimbel Brothers, Inc., as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of said respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answers of the respondents, testimony and other evidence taken before John J. Keenan, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, and briefs of counsel for the Commission and counsel for the respondents, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that the respondent Gimbel Brothers, Inc., a corporation, has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent Gimbel Brothers, Inc., its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of textile fabrics in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Using the word "wool," or "woolens" or any other word or term descriptive of wool, to describe, designate or in any way refer to any fabric or product which is not composed wholly of wool; Provided, however, That in the case of fabrics or products composed in part of wool and in part of other fibers such words may be used as descriptive of the wool content if there is used in immediate connection or conjunction therewith, in letters of at least equal size and conspicuousness, words truthfully describing and designating each constituent fiber or material thereof in the order of its predominance by weight, beginning with the largest single constituent, and provided further that if any particular fiber in said fabrics or products is not present in a substantial amount by weight, the percentage in which such fiber is present shall then be specifically disclosed.

2. Representing in any manner whatsoever that fabrics or products offered for sale or sold by it contain wool in greater quantity, percentage, or degree than is actually the case.

It is further ordered, That the respondent Gimbel Brothers, Inc., shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

It is further ordered, That the complaint be dismissed as to the respondent Morris Kaplan & Son, Inc., a corporation.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3825. Complaint, June 17, 1939—Decision, Dec. 29, 1939

Where an individual engaged in sale of books on various subjects, including the playing of various musical instruments, ventriloquism, hypnotism, fortune telling, crystal gazing, mind reading, and the interpretation of dreams, and of watches, optical goods, skeleton keys, and a large number of other articles of various sorts and kinds, to purchasers in other States and in the District of Columbia; in listing and describing various articles sold and distributed by him in catalog containing some 2,000 items and distributed by the mails and otherwise to purchasers and prospective purchasers in various States and in said District—

- (a) Represented that through his said books of instruction one could learn to play various musical instruments quickly without personal instruction, tedious practice, or any knowledge of music, through such statements as "Learn to play the piano by easy method at home," "Play Hawaiian or steel guitar in five minutes," "The famous five minute courses," etc., facts being it is impossible to gain, by the use of his said books, the ability "to play," in the generally accepted sense of the word, the piano, Hawaiian or steel guitar, ukelele, or instruments covered in such "famous five minute courses";
- (b) Represented that through his said books of instruction in hypnotism, purchaser would acquire a power which would enable him to assert influence over those with whom he came in contact, direct affairs of others, increase his own self respect, will power, ambition, and magnetism of his personality, and be enabled to cure bad habits in others, including tobacco, morphine, and drug habits, facts being books in question would not give one such power as above described;
- (c) Represented that through said books of instruction in ventriloquism, fortune telling, crystal gazing, and mind reading, purchaser might become proficient therein, facts being use of said books would not enable purchaser to tell fortunes, foretell future events, read minds of others, or interpret or correctly define the meaning of dreams;
- (d) Represented that certain telescopes offered by him were of fine quality and were of 2½ power, and that the cases of certain watches were guaranteed gold finished and would never tarnish and had exclusive features, facts being said various representations were false; and
- (e) Represented that product "U-Kan-Plate" would give worn-down pieces a brilliant coating of silver, and that his skeleton keys would open all sorts of doors, facts being former would not result in articles upon which used being "silver plated" in generally accepted meaning of term, and any coating deposited would be readily and quickly removed in ordinary usage, and keys sold and distributed and thus referred to would be effective only upon locks of simplest and cheapest construction;

With capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive substantial portion of purchasing public into erroneous belief that all said representations were true, and that he had truthfully represented quality, material, construction, durability, and other characteristics of his various products, and with result that number of purchasing public, by reason of such erroneous and mistaken beliefs, were induced to buy his products aforesaid:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Mr. Randolph W. Branch for the Commission.

Nash & Donnelly, of Washington, D. C., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Milton Meyer, an individual, trading and doing business under the name of Milton Products Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent Milton Meyer, an individual, conducts his business under the name and style of Milton Products Co., with an office and principal place of business at 2440 Lincoln Avenue, city of Chicago, State of Illinois.

PAR. 2. Respondent is now, and has been for more than 8 months last past, engaged in the business of selling books of instruction in various subjects and other books, watches, optical goods, skeleton keys, and a large number of other articles of various sort and kinds.

The respondent causes and has caused the said books and articles when sold to be transported from the place where his business is conducted in the State of Illinois to purchasers thereof located in States of the United States other than the State of Illinois and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of his business the respondent publishes a catalog listing and describing the various articles of merchandise sold and distributed by him, which catalog contains approximately 2,000 items. Respondent distributes this catalog by United States mails and by other means to purchasers and prospective purchasers located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

For the purpose of inducing the purchase of the various products sold and distributed by him and listed in said catalog, the respondent in the course and conduct of his business has engaged in the practice of falsely representing the quality, material, construction, durability, and other characteristics of the products sold and distributed by him. In furtherance of this practice the respondent places in said catalog various descriptive statements concerning his various products, which statements are exaggerated, false and misleading, and which are designed to mislead and deceive the prospective purchaser of such products.

PAR. 4. Typical of these acts and practices are representations made by respondent with reference to certain books of instruction sold and distributed by him, such as "Learn to Play the Piano by Easy Method at Home," "Learn to Vamp Easily," "Play Hawaiian or Steel Guitar in Five Minutes," "Illustrated Five Minute Ukulele Course," "The Famous Five Minute Courses," and many others. In such advertising respondent represents that the purchaser can learn to play various musical instruments quickly without personal instruction, tedious practice or any knowledge of music. In truth and in fact it is impossible to gain by the use of the respondent's books the ability "to play" in the generally accepted sense of the word the piano, Hawaiian guitar, ukulele, or any other instrument covered by respondent's various books of instruction.

PAR. 5. Also typical of the acts and practices described above are representations that by the use of certain books of instruction sold and distributed by the respondent the purchaser could learn and become proficient in ventriloquism, clog dancing, hypnotism, fortune telling, crystal gazing, mind reading, and interpretation of dreams. It is further represented by the respondent that by means of the instructions on hypnotism the purchaser will acquire a power which will enable him to assert influence over those with whom he comes in contact, direct the affairs of others, increase his own self respect, will power, ambition, and the magnetism of his personality, and will enable him to cure bad habits in others including the tobacco, morphine, and drug habits.

In truth and in fact said books are of no value for self instruction. Respondent's instructions on hypnotism will not give one power to influence or direct the affairs of others, cure bad habits including drug addiction, or enhance the self respect, will power, or personal magnetism of the purchaser. The use of said various instruction books will not enable the purchaser to tell fortunes, foretell future events, read the minds of others, or enable him to interpret or correctly divine the meaning of dreams.

PAR. 6. Another typical example of the acts and practices above described is falsely representing the material, quality, construction, durability, and other characteristics of the various articles of merchandise sold and distributed by respondent. As an example of this practice are representations that respondent's telescopes are fine quality and 2½ power; that his watch cases are guaranteed gold finished, will never tarnish, and have exclusive features; that his product "U-Kan-Plate" will give worn-down pieces a brilliant coating of silver; that his skeleton keys will open all sorts of door locks.

In truth and in fact respondent's telescopes are not of fine quality or two and one-half power. Respondent's watch cases are not guaranteed, will quickly tarnish, and have no exclusive features. The product "U-Kan-Plate" will not result in coating metallic articles on which it is used with a plating of pure silver and any coating deposited by such use will be readily and quickly removed in ordinary usage. The skeleton keys sold and distributed by the respondent are effective only upon locks of the cheapest and simplest construction.

PAR. 7. The use by the respondent of the aforesaid acts and practices has had and now has the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that all of said representations are true and that the respondent has truthfully represented the quality, material, construction, durability, and other characteristics of his various products. On account of this erroneous and mistaken belief a number of the purchasing public have been induced to purchase respondent's products.

PAR. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on June 17, 1939, issued, and on June 19, 1939, served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent Milton Meyer, an individual trading and doing business as Milton Products Co., charging him with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On August 7, 1939, respondent filed his answer, in which he admitted certain material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, denied other allegations of fact set forth therein, and waived all intervening procedure and further hearing on the charges set forth in the complaint. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the complaint and the answer thereto, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom :

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent Milton Meyer, an individual, conducts his business under the name and style of Milton Products Co. with an office and principal place of business at 2440 Lincoln Avenue, City of Chicago, State of Illinois.

PAR. 2. Respondent is now, and was for more than 8 months prior to the issuance of the complaint herein, engaged in the business of selling books of instruction in various subjects and other books, watches, optical goods, skeleton keys, and a large number of other articles of various sorts and kinds.

Respondent causes and has caused the said books and articles, when sold, to be transported from the place where his business is conducted in the State of Illinois to purchasers thereof located in States of the United States other than the State of Illinois and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of his business the respondent published a catalog listing and describing the various articles of merchandise sold and distributed by him which catalog contains approximately 2,000 items. Respondent distributed this catalog by United States mails and by other means to purchasers and prospective purchasers located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

For the purpose of inducing the purchase of various products sold and distributed by him and listed in said catalog, respondent in the course and conduct of his business has falsely represented the quality, material, construction, durability, and other characteristics of various of the products sold and distributed by him. In furtherance thereof respondent has placed in the said catalog descriptive statements concerning various products, which statements are exaggerated, false, and misleading, and which are designed to deceive and mislead prospective purchasers.

PAR. 4. Among the articles advertised by respondent as aforesaid are certain books of instruction among which are:

Learn to play the piano by easy method at home.

Learn to vamp easily.

Play Hawaiian or steel guitar in five minutes.

Illustrated five minute Ukelele course.

The famous five minute courses. .

In advertising the said books of instruction respondent has represented that the purchaser can learn to play various musical instruments quickly without personal instruction, tedious practice or any knowledge of music. In truth and in fact it is impossible to gain by the use of the respondent's books the ability "to play," in the generally accepted sense of the word, the piano, Hawaiian or steel guitar, ukelele or the instruments covered by the "Famous five minute Courses."

PAR. 5. Among the articles advertised by the respondent as aforesaid, are certain books of instruction in ventriloquism, hypnotism, fortune telling, crystal gazing, mind reading, and the interpretation of dreams. In advertising the said books of instruction respondent has represented that by means of the instructions in hypnotism the purchaser will acquire a power which will enable him to assert influence over those with whom he comes in contact, direct the affairs of others, increase his own self respect, will power, ambition, and the magnetism of his personality and will be enabled to cure bad habits in others, including the tobacco, morphine, and drug habits. Respondent has represented that by the use of his books of instruction in ventriloquism, fortune telling, crystal gazing, and mind reading, the purchaser may become proficient therein.

In truth and in fact respondent's instructions in hypnotism will not give one power to influence or direct the affairs of others, cure bad habits, including drug addiction or enhance the self respect, will power, or personal magnetism of the purchaser. The use of the other instruction books hereinbefore mentioned will not enable the purchaser to tell fortunes, foretell future events, read the minds of others, or enable him to interpret or correctly divine the meaning of dreams.

PAR. 6. Among the articles advertised by respondent as aforesaid are telescopes, watches, a preparation described by respondent as "U-Kan-Plate" and skeleton keys. In advertising the said articles respondent has represented that the said telescopes are of fine quality and are 2½ power, that the cases of the said watches are guaranteed gold finished, will never tarnish and have exclusive features, that the product "U-Kan-Plate" will give worn down pieces a brilliant coating of silver, and that his skeleton keys will open all sorts of door locks. In truth and in fact respondent's telescopes are not of fine quality or 2½ power. Respondent's watch cases are not guaranteed, will quickly tarnish and have no exclusive features. The use of the product "U-Kan-Plate" will not result in the articles upon which it is used being "silver plated" in the generally accepted meaning of the term and any coating deposited by such use will be readily and quickly removed in ordinary usage. The skeleton keys sold and distributed by respondent are effective only upon locks of simplest and cheapest construction.

PAR. 7. The use by the respondent of the aforesaid acts and practices has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that all of said representations are true, and that the respondent has truthfully represented the quality, material, construction, durability, and other characteristics of his various products. On account of this erroneous and mistaken belief a number of the purchasing public have been induced to purchase respondent's products.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of the respondent, in which answer respondent admits certain material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and denies other allegations of fact set forth therein, and states that he waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Milton Meyer, individually, and trading as Milton Products Co., or under any other name or names, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or indirectly, or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of his merchandise in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing, directly or indirectly that by the use of respondent's books of instruction on the playing of musical instruments, one can acquire the ability to play the piano, guitar or ukelele; or, that by the use of respondent's book of instructions on hypnotism, one can acquire the power to cure one's self of the addiction to drugs or other bad habits, enhance one's self respect, will power or personal magnetism, or influence or direct the affairs of others; or that, by the use of respondent's other books of instruction, one may be enabled to tell fortunes, foretell future events, read the minds of others, or interpret or divine the meaning of dreams; or that one can acquire any ability, power, or quality through or by means of any course of instruction, books or other literature of respondent, when such is not the fact.

2. Representing, directly or indirectly, that respondent's telescopes are of  $2\frac{1}{2}$  power or that such telescopes or other optical goods sold by respondent are of a quality and power which, in fact, they do not possess.

3. Representing, directly or indirectly, that any watches or jewelry sold by respondent will not tarnish, possess exclusive features or are finished in gold, when such is not the fact.

4. Representing, directly or indirectly, that respondent's product "U-Kan-Plate" or any similar product sold by respondent will, when applied to metal, "plate," as distinguished from "coat," such metal with silver.

5. Representing, directly or indirectly, that skeleton keys sold by respondent will open any and all kinds of door locks, when such is not the fact.

It is further ordered, That said respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF

PRIME HAT COMPANY, INC., AND VINCENT GERBINO, SAMUEL SCIFO, VITO DIGREGORIO AND JOHN SCIFOCOMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914*Docket 3830. Complaint, June 22, 1939—Decision, Dec. 29, 1939*

Where a corporation and four individuals, who were general officers thereof and, as such, managed, controlled, and dominated its corporate affairs and activities, engaged in manufacture of hats from felt materials obtained from old, worn, and previously used products, and in so treating and processing, through cleaning, steaming, ironing, and shaping, and fitting with new trimmings, sweat bands and size labels, old, worn, and used felt hat bodies purchased by them that they had the appearance of new hats made from felts which had never been worn—

Sold said hats, with appearance aforesaid, and with no label, marking, or designation stamped thereon to indicate to purchasing public that they were in fact made from old, worn, and previously used bodies, cleaned and renovated as above set forth, to jobbers and wholesalers, by whose retail dealer vendees said hats were resold to purchasing public without disclosing facts aforesaid, and failed, through use of words "Made Over Hat" under such terms as "Quality Hats" and other similar words or names embossed on sweat bands attached thereto, to disclose to purchasers that articles in question were in fact made from old, worn, and previously used hat bodies, as distinguished from products made from shop-worn hat bodies which had never been worn or used, as made in many instances by manufacturers through similar process employed with new but shop-worn hats reclaimed by them from merchants' shelves;

With effect of misleading and deceiving substantial number of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that said products were made either from new and unused materials or from new but shop-worn bodies which had never been worn or used, and, by reason of such belief, into purchase of substantial number thereof:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice of the public and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Prime Hat Co., Inc., a corporation, and Vincent Gerbino, Samuel Scifo, Vito Digregorio, and John Scifo, individually and as officers of said Prime Hat Co., Inc., hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Prime Hat Co., Inc., is now and has been at all times mentioned herein, a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its office and principal place of business located at 97 East Houston Street, in the city and State of New York. Respondents Vincent Gerbino, Samuel Scifo, Vito Digregorio, and John Scifo are individuals and are president, vice president, secretary, and treasurer, respectively, of respondent Prime Hat Co., Inc., and as such manage, control, and dominate its corporate affairs and activities. All of said respondents have their office and principal place of business at No. 97 East Houston Street, in the city and State of New York. Respondents are now, and for more than 1 year last past have been, engaged in the business of manufacturing hats from felts and other materials obtained from old, worn, and previously used hats, and of selling the same to retailers, jobbers, and wholesalers located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondents cause, and at all times herein mentioned have caused, such hats to be transported from their place of business in the city and State of New York to the aforesaid purchasers thereof, at their respective points of location in various States of the United States other than the State of New York and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of said business, described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondents buy old, worn, and used felt hats. The old, worn, and used felt hat bodies are cleaned, steamed, ironed, and shaped by respondents and then fitted with new trimmings, sweat bands, size labels, and sold by respondents to retailers, who, in turn sell said products to the purchasing public.

PAR. 3. The aforesaid old, worn, and previously used hat bodies, after having been made by respondents into hats with new trimmings, sweat bands, size labels, as described in paragraph 2 hereof, have the appearance of new hats manufactured from felts which have never been worn, and said hats are sold by respondents to retailers, and to jobbers and wholesale dealers without any label, marking, or designation stamped thereon to indicate to the purchasing public that said hats are in fact manufactured from old, worn, and previously used felt hat bodies, which have been cleaned and renovated by respondents. Said hats are also sold to jobbers and wholesale dealers and are resold by said jobbers and wholesale dealers to retail dealers, who sell them to the purchasing public without disclosing the fact that said hats are manufactured from felts, previously worn and then cleaned and renovated, and under such circumstances as to indicate that they are in fact new hats.

In the course of the operation of their business respondents use the words "Quality Hats" and other similar words or names in designating said merchandise. Respondents cause said words or similar words or names to be embossed on sweat bands which are attached to said hats. Immediately under the words "Quality Hats" or under similar terms and names used by respondents in designating said hats, respondents have caused to be embossed the words "Made Over Hat."

It is the practice of various manufacturers of hats to manufacture finished hats from previously used felt hat bodies, and from new felt hat bodies, obtained from new but shop-worn hats, as well as from newly manufactured felt. Shop-worn hats are new hats which are reclaimed from merchants' shelves by said hat manufacturers, and which have never been worn or used. Said shop-worn hats are cleaned, steamed, and renovated by such hat manufacturers in the same manner as hats made from old, worn, and previously used felt hat bodies.

By the use of the words "Made Over Hat" in the manner aforesaid, respondents fail to disclose to purchasers that said hats are made from old, worn, and previously used hat bodies, as distinguished from hats made from shop-worn hat bodies which have never been worn or used.

PAR. 4. The use by respondents of the acts and practices, above set forth, has the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial number of wholesale dealers, jobbers, retail dealers, and members of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken beliefs that the said hats are manufactured either from new and unused materials, or are made from new but shop-worn hat bodies which have never been worn or used, and into the purchase of a substantial number of said hats because of such erroneous and mistaken beliefs.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice of the public, and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce, within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on the 22d day of June A. D. 1939, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondents Prime Hat Co., Inc., a corporation, and Vincent Gerbino, Samuel Scifo, Vito Digregorio, and John Scifo, individually and as officers of Prime Hat Co., Inc., a corporation, charging them with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondents' answer thereto, evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint was introduced by Robert Mathis, Jr., attorney for the Commission, no evidence being introduced in opposition thereto by the respondents, before John L. Hornor, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said evidence was duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the answer thereto, the evidence, and brief in support of the complaint (respondents not having filed brief, and oral argument not having been requested); and the Commission, having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Prime Hat Co. Inc., is now and has been at all times mentioned herein, a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its office and principal place of business located at 97 East Houston Street, in the city and State of New York. Respondents Vincent Gerbino, Samuel Scifo, Vito Digregorio, and John Scifo are individuals and are president, vice president, secretary, and treasurer, respectively, of respondent Prime Hat Co., Inc., and as such manage, control, and dominate its corporate affairs and activities. All of said respondents have their office and principal place of business at No. 97 East Houston Street, in the city and State of New York. Respondents are now, and for more than 1 year last past have been, engaged in the business of manufacturing hats from felt materials obtained from old, worn, and previously used hats, and of selling the same to jobbers and wholesalers located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. Respondents cause, and at all times herein mentioned have caused, such hats to be transported from their place of business in the city and State of New York to the aforesaid purchasers thereof, at their respective points of location in various States of the United States other than the State of New York and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of said business, described in paragraph 1 above, respondents buy old, worn, and used felt hats. The old, worn, and used felt hat bodies are cleaned, steamed, ironed, and shaped by respondents and then fitted with new trimmings, sweat bands, size labels.

PAR. 4. The aforesaid old, worn, and previously used hat bodies after having been made by respondents into hats with new trimmings, sweat bands, and size labels, as described in paragraph 3 above, have the appearance of new hats manufactured from felts which have never been worn, and said hats are sold by respondents to jobbers and wholesale dealers without any label, marking, or designation stamped thereon to indicate to the purchasing public that said hats are in fact manufactured from old, worn, and previously used felt hat bodies, which have been cleaned and renovated by respondents.

Said hats so sold to jobbers and wholesale dealers are resold by said jobbers and wholesale dealers to retail dealers, who sell them to the purchasing public without disclosing the fact that said hats are manufactured from felts previously worn and then cleaned and renovated and that they are not in fact new hats.

In the course of the operation of their business respondents use the words "Quality Hats" and other similar words or names in designating said merchandise. Respondents cause said words or similar words or names to be embossed on sweat bands which are attached to said hats. Immediately under the words "Quality Hats" or under similar terms and names used by respondents in designating said hats, respondents have caused to be embossed the words "Made Over Hat."

PAR. 5. It is the practice of various manufacturers of hats to manufacture finished hats from previously used felt hat bodies, and from new felt hat bodies, obtained from new but shop-worn hats, as well as from newly manufactured felt. Shop-worn hats are new hats which are reclaimed from merchants' shelves by said hat manufacturers and which have never been worn or used.

In many instances said shop-worn hats are cleaned, steamed, renovated, and reblocked by said hat manufacturers, part of the methods used by such shop-worn hat manufacturers being similar to the methods used by manufacturers who make hats from old, worn, and previously used felt hat bodies.

By the use of the words "Made Over Hat" in the manner aforesaid, respondents failed to disclose to purchasers that said hats are made from old, worn, and previously used hat bodies, as distinguished from hats made from shop-worn hat bodies which have never been worn or used.

PAR. 6. The use by respondents of the acts and practices above set forth has the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive, and has misled and deceived, a substantial number of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that the said hats are manufactured either from new and unused materials, or are made from new but shop-worn hat bodies which have never been worn or used, and into the purchase of a substantial number of said hats because of such erroneous and mistaken belief.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents, as herein found, are all to the prejudice of the public, and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondents, testimony, and other evidence taken before John L. Hornor, an examiner of the Commission, theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, brief in support of the complaint (respondents not having filed a brief, and oral argument not having been requested), and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That respondent, Prime Hat Co., Inc., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees and respondents Vincent Gerbino, Samuel Scifo, Vito Digregorio, and John Scifo, individually and as officers of said corporation, their representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of hats in commerce as defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing that hats composed in whole or in part of used or second-hand materials are new or are composed of new materials by failure to stamp on the sweat bands thereof, in conspicuous and legible terms which cannot be removed or obliterated without mutilating the sweat bands, a statement that said products are composed of second-hand or used materials, provided that if sweat bands are not affixed to such hats, then such stamping must appear on the bodies of such hats in conspicuous and legible terms which cannot be removed or obliterated without mutilating said bodies.

2. Representing in any manner that hats made in whole or in part from old, used, or second-hand materials are new or are composed of new materials.

It is further ordered, That the respondents shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

UALSCOMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914*Docket 3855. Complaint, July 20, 1939—Decision, Dec. 29, 1939*

Where a corporation and three individuals who were officers and directors thereof and stockholders therein and, as case might be, controlled, formulated, and directed its practices and policies, and who acted together and in cooperation with each other in acts and things below set forth, engaged in manufacture of candy and in sale and distribution of certain assortments thereof which were so packed or assembled as to involve the use of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes when sold and distributed to the consumers thereof and with which, as case might be, it included (1) push card for use in sale and distribution of certain assortments under plan by which person, for 5 cents paid, received, in accordance with number pushed by chance from one to four candy bars and last sale on card entitled purchaser to eight of such bars, and (2) various other push cards for use in sale and distribution of their said candy under plan similar to that described and varying therefrom in detail only and involving game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme;

Sold such assortments, along with such push cards to wholesalers, jobbers, and retailers by whom, as direct or indirect purchasers thereof, such assortments were exposed and sold to purchasing public in accordance with aforesaid sales plan involving game of chance or sale of chance to procure additional bars of candy without additional cost, contrary to an established public policy of the United States Government and in violation of the criminal laws and in competition with many who are unwilling to adopt and use said or any method involving game of chance or sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other method contrary to public policy and refrain therefrom:

With result that many persons were attracted by said sales plan or method employed by them in sale and distribution of their candy and in element of chance involved therein and were thereby induced to buy and sell their said candy in preference to that of competitors aforesaid who do not use same or equivalent methods and with effect through use of such method and because of said game of chance of unfairly diverting trade to them from their competitors aforesaid:

Held, that such acts and practices under the circumstances set forth were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that U-Need Candy Co., Inc., a corporation, and Louis J. Weger, Mrs. Louis J. Weger, and Charles R. Hosey, individuals, hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of said act and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the interest of the public, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent U-Need Candy Co., Inc., is a corporation organized and doing business under the laws of the State of Indiana, with its principal office and place of business located at 1231 West Washington Avenue, South Bend, Ind. Respondent Charles R. Hosey is an individual and prior to April 3, 1939, was secretary and treasurer, a stockholder, and a director of corporate respondent. Respondent Louis J. Weger, an individual, is and has been president, a stockholder, and director of the corporate respondent. Respondent Mrs. Louis J. Weger, an individual, is and has been a stockholder and director of corporate respondent. Respondents Louis J. Weger, Mrs. Louis J. Weger, and Charles R. Hosey, within the time mentioned herein, formulate, control, and direct the practices and policies of the corporate respondent. All of said individual respondents and said corporate respondent, within the time mentioned herein, acted together and in cooperation with each other in doing the acts and things hereinafter alleged. Respondents are and have been, within the time mentioned herein, engaged in the manufacture of candy and in the sale and distribution thereof to wholesale dealers, jobbers, and retail dealers located at points in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondents cause and have caused, within the time mentioned herein, said products when sold to be transported from their principal place of business in the city of South Bend, Ind., to purchasers thereof, at their respective points of location in the various States of the United States other than Indiana and in the District of Columbia. There is and has been, within the time mentioned herein, a course of trade by respondents in such candy in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business, respondents are and have been, within the time mentioned herein, in competition with other corporations and with partnerships and individuals engaged in the sale and distribution of candy in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of their business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondents, within the time hereinabove set forth, sell and have sold to wholesale dealers, jobbers, and retail dealers certain assortments of candy so packed and assembled as to involve the use of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes when sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. One of said assortments is herein fully described for the purpose of showing the method used by respondents and is as follows:

This assortment consists of bars of candy together with the device commonly called a push card. The push card has 60 partially perforated disks, on the face of each of which is printed the word "Push." Concealed within the said disks are numbers. If the number punched corresponds with any of the numbers set out in the legend at the top of said card, the purchaser thereof is entitled to additional bars of candy without additional cost. Sales are 5 cents each and those not securing a winning number receive one bar of candy. The said card bears a legend or statement as follows:

5¢	Assortment No. 2	5¢
A SALE	DELICIOUS CANDY BARS	A SALE
All Winners—No Blanks
EVERY SALE RECEIVES A 5¢ CANDY BAR
No. 15 Receives 4 5¢ BARS—No. 25 Receives 3 5¢ BARS
Numbers 7—14—21—28—35—42—49—56 Each Receive 2 5¢ BARS
LAST SALE ON CARD RECEIVES 8 5¢ CANDY BARS

Sales of respondents' candy are made in accordance with the above legend. The numbers aforesaid are effectively concealed until a purchase has been made and the disk pushed or separated from said card. The said bars of candy are thus distributed to the purchasing public wholly by lot or chance.

The respondents furnish and have furnished, within the time hereinabove set forth, various push cards for use in the sale and distribution of their candy by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. Such cards are similar to the one herein described and vary only in detail.

PAR. 3. Retail dealers who purchase respondents' said candy, directly or indirectly, expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the sales plan aforesaid. Respondents thus supply to and place in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of their products in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondents of said sales plan or method in the sale of their candy and the sale of said candy by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plan or method is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws.

PAR. 4. The sale of candy to the purchasing public by the method and plan hereinabove set forth involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure additional bars of candy without additional cost. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell and distribute candy in competition with respondents, as above alleged, are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other method contrary to public policy and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondents in the sale and distribution of their candy and in the element of chance involved therein and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondents' candy in preference to candy of said competitors of respondents who do not use the same or equivalent methods. The use of said methods by respondents because of said game of chance has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade to respondents from their said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent methods, and as a result thereof substantial injury is being and has been done by respondents to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on July 20, 1939, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondents, U-Need Candy Co., Inc., a corporation, and Louis J. Weger, Mrs. Louis J. Weger, and Charles R. Hosey, individuals, charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On August 18, 1939, the respondent Charles R. Hosey filed his answer, and on November 28, 1939, the respondents U-Need Candy Co., Inc., Louis J. Weger, and Mrs. Louis J. Weger, filed their answer. In such answers respondents admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and waived all intervening procedure and further hearings as to said facts. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission upon the said complaint and the answers thereto, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent U-Need Candy Co., Inc., is a corporation organized and doing business under the laws of the State of Indiana, with its principal office and place of business located at 1231 West Washington Avenue, South Bend, Ind. Respondent Charles R. Hosey is an individual and prior to April 3, 1939, was secretary and treasurer of corporate respondent, and a stockholder and a director therein. Respondent Louis J. Weger, an individual, is and has been president, a stockholder, and director of the corporate respondent. Respondent, Mrs. Louis J. Weger, an individual, is and has been a stockholder and director of corporate respondent. Respondents, Louis J. Weger and Mrs. Louis J. Weger formulate, control, and direct the practices and policies of the corporate respondent. Prior to April 3, 1939, respondent, Charles R. Hosey, participated in controlling and formulating such policies. All of said individual respondents acted together and in cooperation with each other in doing the acts and things hereinafter found. Respondents are and have been, engaged in the manufacture of candy and in the sale and distribution thereof to wholesale dealers, jobbers, and retail dealers located at points in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondents cause and have caused, said products when sold to be transported from their principal place of business in the city of South Bend, Ind., to purchasers thereof, at their respective points of location in the various States of the United States other than Indiana and in the District of Columbia. There is and has been, a course of trade by respondents in such candy in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business, respondents are and have been, in competition with other corporations and with partnerships and individuals engaged in the sale and distribution of candy in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Findings

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of their business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondents, sell and have sold to wholesale dealers, jobbers, and retail dealers certain assortments of candy so packed or assembled as to involve the use of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes when sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. One of said assortments is herein fully described for the purpose of showing the method used by respondents and is as follows:

This assortment consists of bars of candy together with the device commonly called a push card. The push card has 60 partially perforated disks, on the face of each of which is printed the word "Push." Concealed within the said disks are numbers. If the number punched corresponds with any of the numbers set out in the legend at the top of said card, the purchaser thereof is entitled to additional bars of candy without additional cost. Sales are 5 cents each and those not securing a winning number receive only one bar of candy. The said card bears a legend or statement as follows:

Assortment No. 2

Sales of respondents' candy are made in accordance with the above legend. The numbers aforesaid are effectively concealed until a purchase has been made and the disk pushed or separated from said card. The said bars of candy are thus distributed to the purchasing public wholly by lot or chance.

The respondents furnish and have furnished, various push cards for use in the sale and distribution of their candy by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. Such cards are similar to the one herein described and vary only in detail.

PAR. 3. Retail dealers who purchase respondents' said candy, directly or indirectly, expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the sales plan aforesaid. Respondents thus supply to and place in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of their products in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondents of said sales plan or method in the sale of their candy and the sale of said candy by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plan or method is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws.

PAR. 4. The sale of candy to the purchasing public by the method and plan hereinabove set forth involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure additional bars of candy without additional cost. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell and distribute candy in competition with respondents, as above found, are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other method contrary to public policy and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondents in the sale and distribution of their candy and in the element of chance involved therein and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondents' candy in preference to candy of said competitors of respondents who do not use the same or equivalent methods. The use of said method by respondents because of said game of chance has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade to respondents from their said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent methods.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondents, in which answer respondents admit all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and state that they waive all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondents U-Need Candy Co., Inc., a corporation, its officers, and Louis J. Weger, Mrs. Louis J. Weger, and Charles R. Hosey, individuals, their respective representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of candy or any other merchandise in commerce as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Selling or distributing candy, or any other merchandise, so packed and assembled that sales of such candy, or other merchandise, to the general public are to be made, or may be made, by means of a lottery scheme, gaming device, or gift enterprise.

2. Supplying to, or placing in the hands of, others assortments of candy, or other merchandise, together with push or pull cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices, which said push or pull cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices, are to be used, or may be used, in selling or distributing such candy, or other merchandise, to the general public.

3. Supplying to, or placing in the hands of, others push or pull cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices, either with assortments of candy, or other merchandise, or separately, which said push or pull cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices are to be used, or may be used, in selling or distributing such candy, or other merchandise, to the general public.

4. Selling, or otherwise disposing of, any merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

It is further ordered, That the respondents shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Stone Bros., Inc., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the interest of the public, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Stone Bros., Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Illinois. Its principal office and place of business was formerly located at 800 South Ada Street, Chicago, Ill., but is now located at 1838 West 33d Street, Chicago, Ill. Respondent is now, and for some time last past has been engaged in the sale and distribution of candy, liquor chests, utility chests, and other articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent causes and has caused said merchandise, when sold, to be transported from its aforesaid places of business in Illinois, to purchasers thereof, at their respective points of location, in the various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. There is now, and has been for some time last past, a course of trade by respondent in such merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business, respondent is, and has been, in competition with other corporations and with partnerships and individuals engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent, in soliciting the sale of and in selling and distributing its merchandise, furnishes and has furnished various devices and plans of merchandising which involve the operation of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes, by which said merchandise is sold and distributed to the ultimate consumers thereof wholly by lot or change. One of respondent's assortments substantially illustrates the sales plan or method used in the sale and distribution of its merchandise to the purchasing public, and is as follows:

This assortment consists of a liquor chest, 1 section of which is packed with candy, together with a device commonly called a push card. One of respondent's push cards bears 60 small, partially perforated discs on the face of which is printed the word "Push." Above each of said discs is printed a feminine name with ruled columns on the face of said push card for writing in the name of the customer opposite the feminine name selected. Concealed within each of said discs is a number which is disclosed when the disc is pushed or separated from the card. The said numbers are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until the disc is pushed or separated from the card. The push card also has a large master seal and concealed within the master seal is one of the feminine names appearing above the said discs. The person selecting the feminine name corresponding to one under the master seal receives a premium or prize. Persons selecting certain designated numbers also receive prizes. Push card bears a legend or instruction as follows:

Pick your Favorite Girl's Name
WIN THIS BEAUTIFUL LIQUOR CABINET
And Glasses Ready to Serve
Filled With Delicious Candies
Nos. 1 to 10 Pay What You Punch—All Others Pay 10¢
Do Not Remove Seal Until All Punches Are Sold

Sales of respondent's merchandise by means of said push card are made in accordance with the above described legend or instructions. Said prizes or premiums are allotted to the customers or purchasers in accordance with the above legend or instructions. The fact as to whether a purchaser receives an article of merchandise or nothing for the amount of money paid is thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

Respondent furnishes and has furnished various push cards for use in the sale and distribution of its merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise or lottery scheme. The sales plan or method involved in connection with the sale of all of said merchandise by means of said push cards is the same as that hereinabove described, varying only in detail.

PAR. 3. Retail dealers who purchase respondent's said merchandise, directly or indirectly, expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of its merchandise in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said sales plan or method in the sale of its merchandise and the sale of said merchandise by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plan or method, is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws.

PAR. 4. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above alleged, involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure an article of merchandise at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell or distribute merchandise in competition with the respondent, as above alleged, are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other method that is contrary to public policy and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of its merchandise and the element of chance involved therein, and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or an equivalent method. The use of said method by respondent, because of said game of chance, has a tendency and capacity to and does unfairly divert trade in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, to respondent from its said competitors who do not use the same or an equivalent method and as a result thereof substantial injury is being and has been done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on August 26, 1939, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, Stone Bros., Inc., charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On November 28, 1939, the respondent filed its answer, in which answer it admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and the answer thereto and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Stone Bros., Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Illinois. Its principal office and place of business was formerly located at 800 South Ada Street, Chicago, Ill., but is now located at 1838 West 33d Street, Chicago, Ill. Respondent is now, and for some time last past has been engaged in the sale and distribution of candy, liquor chests, utility chests and other articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent causes and has caused said merchandise, when sold, to be transported from its aforesaid places of business in Illinois, to purchasers thereof, at their respective points of location, in the various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. There is now, and has been for some time last past, a course of trade by respondent in such merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business, respondent is, and has been, in competition with other corporations and with partnerships and individuals engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent, in soliciting the sale of and in selling and distributing its merchandise, furnishes and has furnished various devices and plans of merchandising which involve the operation of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes, by which said merchandise is sold and distributed to the ultimate consumers thereof wholly by lot or chance. One of respondent's assortments substantially illustrates the sales plan or method used in the sale and distribution of its merchandise to the purchasing public, and is as follows:

Findings

30 F. T. C.

This assortment consists of a liquor chest, 1 section of which is packed with candy, together with a device commonly called a push card. One of respondent's push cards bears 60 small, partially perforated discs on the face of which is printed the word "Push." Above each of said discs is printed a feminine name with ruled columns on the face of said push card for writing in the name of the customer opposite the feminine name selected. Concealed within each of said discs is a number which is disclosed when the disc is pushed or separated from the card. The said numbers are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until the disc is pushed or separated from the card. The push card also has a large master seal and concealed within the master seal is one of the feminine names appearing above the said discs. The person selecting the feminine name corresponding to one under the master seal receives a premium or prize. Persons selecting certain designated numbers also receive prizes. The push card bears a legend or instruction as follows:

"Pick your Favorite Girl's Name
WIN THIS BEAUTIFUL LIQUOR CABINET
And Glasses Ready to Serve
Filled With Delicious Candies
Nos. 1 to 10 Pay What You Punch—All Others Pay 10¢
Do Not Remove Seal Until All Punches Are Sold"

Sales of respondent's merchandise by means of said push card are made in accordance with the above described legend or instructions. Said prizes or premiums are allotted to the customers or purchasers in accordance with the above legend or instructions. The fact as to whether a purchaser receives an article of merchandise or nothing for the amount of money paid is thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

Respondent furnishes and has furnished various push cards for use in the sale and distribution of its merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. The sales plan or method involved in connection with the sale of all of said merchandise by means of said push cards is the same as that hereinabove described, varying only in detail.

PAR. 3. Retail dealers who purchase respondent's said merchandise, directly or indirectly, expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of its merchandise in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said sales plan or method in the sale of its merchandise and the sale of said merchandise by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plan or method, is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws.

PAR. 4. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above found, involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure an article of merchandise at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell or distribute merchandise in competition with the respondent, as above found, are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other method that is contrary to public policy and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of its merchandise and the element of chance involved therein, and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or an equivalent method. The use of said method by respondent, because of said game of chance, has a tendency and capacity to and does unfairly divert trade in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, to respondent from its said competitors who do not use the same or an equivalent method.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and states that it waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Order

30 F. T. C.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Stone Bros., Inc., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of candy, liquor chests, utility chests or any other merchandise in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Supplying to or placing in the hands of others push or pull cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices, so as to enable such persons to dispose of or sell any merchandise by the use thereof;

2. Mailing, shipping, or transporting to agents or to distributors or to members of the public, push or pull cards, punchboards or other lottery devices, so prepared or printed as to enable said persons to sell or distribute any merchandise by the use thereof;

3. Selling, or otherwise disposing of, any merchandise by the use of push or pull cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Martin Benjamin Rothman, an individual, trading as Esquire Products, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the interest of the public, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Martin Benjamin Rothman, is an individual, trading as Esquire Products. His principal office and place of business is located at 216 North Clinton Street, Chicago, Ill. Respondent is now, and for some time last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of radios, waffle irons, silverware, coffee tray sets, pencils, griddles, and other articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent causes and has caused said merchandise, when sold, to be transported from his aforesaid place of business in the State of Illinois to purchasers thereof, at their respective points of location, in the various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. There is now, and has been for some time last past, a course of trade by respondent in such merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business, respondent is, and has been, in competition with other individuals and with partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent in soliciting the sale of and in selling and distributing his merchandise furnishes and has furnished, various devices and plans of merchandising which involve the operation of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes by which said merchandise is sold and distributed to the ultimate consumers thereof wholly by lot or chance. The method or sales plan adopted and used by respondent was and is substantially as follows:

Respondent distributes and has distributed to the purchasing public certain literature and instructions, including, among other things, push cards, order blanks, illustrations of the said merchandise and circulars explaining respondent's plan of selling merchandise and of allotting it as premiums or prizes to the operators of said push cards and to the purchasing and consuming public. One of respondent's push cards bears 64 small, partially perforated discs on the face of which is printed the word "push." Below each of said discs is printed a feminine name with ruled columns on the reverse side of said push card for writing in the name of the customer opposite the feminine name selected. Concealed within each of said discs is a number which is disclosed when the disc is pushed or separated from the card. The said numbers are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until the disc is pushed or separated from the card. The push card also has a large master seal and concealed within the master seal is one of the feminine names appearing below the said discs. The person selecting the feminine name corresponding to the one under the master seal receives a premium or prize. Persons selecting certain designated numbers set out in the legend at the top of said card or the last sale on the card also receive premiums or prizes. The push card bears a legend or instruction as follows:

Complaint

Sales of respondent's merchandise by means of said push card are made in accordance with the above-described legend or instructions. Said prizes or premiums are allotted to the customers or purchasers in accordance with the above legend or instructions. The fact as to whether a purchaser receives an article of merchandise or nothing for the amount of money paid or an article of merchandise free, and which of said articles of merchandise the purchaser is to receive, if any, is thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

Respondent furnishes and has furnished, various push cards accompanied by said order blanks, instructions, and other printed matter for use in the sale and distribution of his merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. The sales plan or method involved in connection with the sale of all of said merchandise by means of said push cards is the same as that hereinabove described, varying only in detail.

PAR. 3. The persons to whom respondent furnishes, and has furnished, the said push cards use the same in purchasing, selling, and distributing respondent's merchandise, in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan. Respondent thus supplies to, and places in the hands of, others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of his merchandise in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said sales plan or method in the sale of his merchandise and the sale of said merchandise by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plan or method is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws.

PAR. 4. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above alleged involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure an article of merchandise at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations, who sell or distribute merchandise in competition with the respondent, as above alleged, are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other method that is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of his merchandise and the element of chance involved therein, and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or an equivalent method. The use of said method by respondent, because of said game of chance, has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia to respondent from his said competitors who do not use the same or an equivalent method, and as a result thereof substantial injury is being, and has been, done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 5. By prices set out on his push cards and other printed matter which are circulated through the United States mails to his customers and prospective customers in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, respondent represents and has represented to customers and prospective customers that his automatic pencils have a retail value in excess of the normal retail selling price of said pencils. The respondent represents and has represented his automatic pencils to have a retail value and selling price of $1.00. In truth and in fact the said pencils have a retail value and selling price of substantially less than $1.00.

PAR. 6. The use by respondent of the representations set forth in paragraph 5 herein has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive, and has misled and deceived, a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that such representations are true and into the purchase of substantial quantities of respondent's said automatic pencils as a result of such erroneous belief. As a result thereof, trade in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia has been diverted unfairly to respondent from his said competitors who do not falsely represent the retail value and selling price of their respective automatic pencils. As a consequence thereof, substantial injury is being done, and has been done, by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 7. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on September 28, 1939, issued and on September 29, 1939, served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, Martin Benjamin Rothman, an individual, trading as Esquire Products, charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On November 28, 1939, the respondent filed his answer, in which answer he admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and the answer thereto, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Martin Benjamin Rothman, is an individual, trading as Esquire Products. His principal office and place of business is located at 216 North Clinton Street, Chicago, Ill. Respondent is now, and for some time last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of radios, waffle irons, silverware, coffee tray sets, pencils, griddles, and other articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent causes, and has caused, said merchandise, when sold, to be transported from his aforesaid place of business in the State of Illionis to purchasers thereof, at their respective points of location, in the various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. There is now, and has been for some time last past, a course of trade by respondent in such merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business, respondent is, and has been, in competition with other individuals and with partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent, in soliciting the sale of, and in selling and distributing his merchandise, furnishes, and has furnished, various devices and plans of merchandising which involve the operation of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes by which said merchandise is sold and distributed to the ultimate consumers thereof wholly by lot or chance. The method or sales plan adopted and used by respondent was, and is, substantially as follows:

Respondent distributes, and has distributed, to the purchasing public certain literature and instructions, including, among other things, push cards, order blanks, illustrations of the said merchandise and circulars explaining respondent's plan of selling merchandise and of allotting it as premiums or prizes to the operators of said push cards and to the purchasing and consuming public. One of respondent's push cards bears sixty-four small, partially perforated discs on the face of which is printed the word "push." Below each of said discs is printed a feminine name with ruled columns on the reverse side of said push card for writing in the name of the customer opposite the feminine name selected. Concealed within each of said discs is a number which is disclosed when the disc is pushed or separated from the card. The said numbers are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until the disc is pushed or separated from the card. The push card also has a large master seal and concealed within the master seal is one of the feminine names appearing below the said discs. The person selecting the feminine name corresponding to the one under the master seal receives a premium or prize. Persons selecting certain designated numbers set out in the legend at the top of said card or the last sale on the card also receive premiums or prizes. The push card bears a legend or instruction as follows:

"NAME UNDER SEAL RECEIVES

ESQUIRE JR. RADIO
ESQUIRE TWIN AUTOMATIC
WAFFLE IRON

34-PIECE WM. A. ROGERS

Sales of respondent's merchandise by means of said push card are made in accordance with the above-described legend or instructions. Said prizes or premiums are allotted to the customers or purchasers in accordance with the above legend or instructions. chandise free, and which of said articles of merchandise the purchaser is to receive, if any, is thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

Respondent furnishes, and has furnished, various push cards accompanied by said order blanks, instructions, and other printed matter for use in the sale and distribution of his merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. The sales plan or method involved in connection with the sale of all of said merchandise by means of said push cards is the same as that hereinabove described, varying only in detail.

PAR. 3. The persons to whom respondent furnishes, and has furnished, the said push cards use the same in purchasing, selling, and distributing respondent's merchandise, in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan. Respondent thus supplies to, and places in the hands of, others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of his merchandise in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said sales plan or method in the sale of his merchandise and the sale of said merchandise by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plan or method is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws.

PAR. 4. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above found involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure an article of merchandise at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations, who sell or distribute merchandise in competition with the respondent, as above found, are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other method that is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of his merchandise and the element of chance involved therein, and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or an equivalent method. The use of said method by respondent, because of said game of chance, has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia to respondent from his said competitors who do not use the same or an equivalent method.

Order

PAR. 5. By prices set out on his push cards and other printed matter which is circulated through the United States mails to his customers and prospective customers in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, respondent represents, and has represented, to customers and prospective customers and prospective customers that his automatic pencils have a retail value in excess of the normal retail selling price of said pencils. The respondent represents, and has represented, his automatic pencils to have a retail value and selling price of $1.00. In truth and in fact the said pencils have a retail value and selling price of substantially less than $1.00.

PAR. 6. The use by respondent of the representations set forth in paragraph 5 herein has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive, and has misled and deceived, a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that such representations are true and into the purchase of substantial quantities of respondent's said automatic pencils as a result of such erroneous belief. As a result thereof, trade in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia has been diverted unfairly to respondent from his said competitors who do not falsely represent the retail value and selling price of their respective automatic pencils. As a consequence thereof, substantial injury is being done, and has been done, by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and states that he waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Order

30 F. T. C.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Martin Benjamin Rothman, an individual, trading as Esquire Products or trading under any other name or names, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of radios, waffle irons, silverware, coffee tray sets, pencils, griddles, or any other merchandise in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing as the customary or regular price or value of respondent's products prices and values which are in fact fictitious and greatly in excess of the prices at which such products are customarily offered for sale and sold in the normal course of business;

2. Supplying to or placing in the hands of others push or pull cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices, so as to enable such persons to dispose of or sell any merchandise by the use thereof;

3. Mailing, shipping, or transporting to agents or to distributors or to members of the public, push or pull cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices so prepared or printed as to enable said persons to sell or distribute any merchandise by the use thereof;

4. Selling, or otherwise disposing of, any merchandise by the use of push or pull cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF

LOUIS G. MEYERS, DOING BUSINESS AS NATIONAL PEN
COMPANY AND PHOENIX SALES COMPANY.COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914*Docket 3796. Complaint, May 31, 1939—Decision, Jan. 15, 1940*

Where an individual engaged in sale and distribution of specialty merchandise, including fountain pens, pencils, jewelry, and various other products; in statements concerning his said products in various advertising circulars, coupons, and other printed matter and in newspapers and other publications distributed among prospective purchasers thereof in the various States and in the District of Columbia—

- (a) Represented, in connection with offer of his fountain pens, rings and necklaces, that the certificate or coupon referred to in connection with offer of such pens was worth $4.41, and, together with 59 cents, entitled bearer to one of his "$5.00 VACUUM FILLER SACKLESS FOUNTAIN PENS," and that coupon referred to in connection with offer of his rings and necklaces was worth similar amount and, with 59 cents, entitled bearer to one of his "regular $5.00 Facsimile Diamond Rings" or one of his regular $5.00 "CROSS NECKLACES," facts being the prices referred to as customary retail prices of such products were greatly in excess of those at which they were ordinarily offered and sold in normal course of business, and said certificates or coupons had no such value or any value whatever, as price charged in addition thereto was regular and customary one at which he sold his said products in usual course of business;
- (b) Represented, in such various advertisements, that said pens were tested in every case and guaranteed to be unbreakable for life, and held 200 percent more ink than ordinary fountain pen on market, and required no repairs, and that so-called "facsimile" diamonds in his said rings had practically same blue-white color, same perfect cutting and brilliance as genuine diamonds costing one hundred times as much, and were not mere imitations, but represented utmost skill of modern science, and that each ring carried with it a lifetime guarantee and that guarantee covered tarnish of mountings, loss of stone or brilliancy, facts being such pens did not have greater capacity than ordinary fountain pens, would not last a lifetime or be free from necessity of repair, and jewelry was not guaranteed against tarnish nor stones against loss of brilliancy, said jewelry was a very cheap grade and would tarnish immediately or shortly, and was not set with diamonds or facsimile diamonds having same quality, etc., as above set out, as the genuine stones, and purported stones were of no better grade or quality than ordinary cheap imitations; and said rings, necklaces and other articles of jewelry sold and distributed by him would not last a lifetime and were not guaranteed so to do; and
- (c) Represented, in such various advertisements, that offers there referred to of such products were limited and special or introductory, through such statements as "Limit 3 pens to each Certificate," "Price After Sale $5.00," "MANUFACTURER'S INTRODUCTORY OFFER," "Limit Two Rings to a Coupon,"

Complaint

"This offer made possible by the manufacturer," and "introductory offer," facts being he was not conducting an introductory or special offer, but price charged, as above set forth, was regular and customary one at which he sold his products in usual course of business, and did not, as asserted by him, represent cost of advertising and sales expense, but, as aforesaid, was usual and ordinary retail price, and number of articles, as above set forth, was not limited by him, but he sold as many thereof as purchaser was willing to buy;

With capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive substantial portion of purchasing public into erroneous belief that all said representations were true and that he had truthfully represented quality, material, construction, and durability of his various products and price at which they were sold, and with result, by reason of such belief, that number of purchasing public bought substantial volume of his products and trade was thereby diverted unfairly to him from his competitors engaged in sale and distribution in commerce of fountain pens, pencils, jewelry, and similar products and who do not misrepresent quality and characteristics of their goods or price at which they are sold; to the injury of competition in commerce:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the injury and prejudice of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

Before Mr. Lewis C. Russell, trial examiner.

Mr. DeWitt T. Puckett for the Commission.

Bergner & Bergner, of New York City, for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Louis G. Meyers, an individual, doing business as National Pen Co. and Phoenix Sales Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, Louis G. Meyers, is an individual doing business as National Pen Co. and Phoenix Sales Co. and has his place of business located at Birmingham, Ala., and at various other points. Respondent is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of specialty merchandise including fountain pens, pencils, jewelry, and various other products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondent causes said products, when sold, to be transported from his said places of business to the purchasers thereof, located in the various States of the United States other than the State of origin of such shipments. Respondent maintains and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said fountain pens, pencils, jewelry, and similar products sold and distributed by him in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

In the course and conduct of his business respondent is in active and substantial competition with other individuals and with corporations and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of specialty merchandise such as fountain pens, jewelry, and other products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his business the respondent has engaged in the practice of falsely representing the quality, material, construction, and durability of his various products and the price at which said products are sold and distributed by him, by means of false statements in various advertising matter. In the furtherance of this practice and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of his said products, respondent has caused said false statements and representations to be inserted in various advertising circulars, coupons, and other printed matter and in advertisements appearing in newspaper and other publications, all of which are distributed among prospective purchasers of said products located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, which false statements and representations purport to be descriptive of such products, their quality, construction, and durability and the price at which said products are offered for sale.

PAR. 3. Among and typical of the acts and practices above described are false statements and representations made and disseminated by the respondent in the manner aforesaid with reference to fountain pens and jewelry sold and distributed by the respondent. Among and typical of such statements and representations are the following:

1. Representations made in connection with the sale and distribution of Fountain Pens:

50¢—This Certificate Is Worth $4.41—59¢.

This certificate and 59¢ entitles the bearer to one of our Genuine Indestructible $5.00 VACUUM FILLER SACKLESS FOUNTAIN PENS. A lifetime guarantee with each pen.

Price After Sale $5.00.

Every pen tested and guaranteed to be unbreakable for life.

This pen holds 200% more ink than any ordinary fountain pen on the market. No repair bills.

Limit 3 pens to each Certificate.

3. Representations made in connection with the sale and distribution of Cross Necklaces:

THIS COUPON AND ONLY 59¢ Entitles Bearer to One of our Regular $5.00
CROSS NECKLACES

In Plain or With Facsimile DIAMONDS

Bring this coupon and 59¢ to our store and receive one of our regular $5.00 Cross Necklaces. You save exactly $4.41 . . . This 59¢ merely helps pay for local advertising, expenses, salespeople, etc.

Limit 2 to a Coupon.

This offer made possible by the manufacturer.

This is an introductory offer, and the Cross Necklaces will be $5.00 after this sale.

Mail orders add 6¢ extra.

By means of the above representations and others similar thereto not specifically set out herein, the respondent represents, both directly and indirectly, that the customary and usual retail prices at which his various products are offered for sale and sold are greatly in excess of the retail prices at which they are offered for sale and sold under the terms and conditions as set out in said advertisements; that the certificate or coupon referred to is actually worth $4.41 when offered as part payment of the purchase price of any specified article. By the same means the respondent represents that he is conducting a special or introductory offer and that the price charged for said products in addition to the coupon is merely to pay local advertising expenses and cost of sale. The respondent further represents that the offer of said products at the price specified in said advertisements is a limited offer for a limited period of time and that the purchasers of said products are limited to two or three products to each coupon, as therein specified. By the same means the respondent further represents that the fountain pens sold and distributed by him are guaranteed to last a lifetime; that they have an ink capacity greater than the ordinary fountain pen and that the pens never need repair. By the same means also the respondent represents that the diamond rings, necklaces, and other articles of jewelry sold and distributed by him will not tarnish and will last a lifetime and that said fountain pens and articles of jewelry carry a lifetime guarantee and also a guarantee against tarnishing of mountings and loss of stone brilliancy. By use of the word "facsimile" as descriptive of his diamonds, respondent represents that the various articles of jewelry sold by him are equipped with stones having the general appearance, qualities, and brilliance possessed by diamonds and are of a quality and value greater than an imitation diamond.

PAR. 4. In truth and in fact the prices represented by the respondent as the customary retail prices of his products are, in fact, fictitious and greatly in excess of the prices at which such products are customarily offered for sale and sold by the respondent in the normal course of business. The respondent is not conducting an introductory or special offer, and the certificate or coupon referred to in said advertisements does not have the value of $4.41 or any value whatsoever as the price charged by the respondent in addition to the certificate or coupon is the regular and customary price at which respondent sells his products in the usual course of business. The price charged by the respondent in addition to the coupon is not the cost of advertising and sales expense, but represents the retail price usually and ordinarily charged by the respondent for such products. The respondent does not limit the number of articles which may be purchased by any customer but sells as many of such articles as the purchaser is willing to buy. The fountain pens sold and distributed by the respondent do not have a greater capacity than ordinary fountain pens, will not last a lifetime or be free from necessity of repair. The diamond rings, necklaces, and other articles of jewelry sold and distributed by the respondent will not last a lifetime and said articles of jewelry and fountain pens are not guaranteed to last a lifetime or the jewelry guaranteed not to tarnish or the stones to lose brilliancy. In fact said jewelry is of a very cheap grade and quality and will tarnish immediately or within a very short time. The jewelry sold and distributed by the respondent is not set with diamonds or facsimile diamonds and the purported stones do not have the same quality, color, or brilliance of genuine diamonds, and are not of any better grade or quality than ordinary cheap imitations.

PAR. 5. The use by the respondent of the aforesaid acts and practices has had and now has a capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that all of said representations are true and that the respondent has truthfully represented the quality, material, construction, and durability of his various products and the price at which said products are sold. On account of this erroneous and mistaken belief a number of the purchasing public have purchased a substantial volume of respondent's products with the result that trade has been diverted unfairly to the respondent from his competitors who are also engaged in the sale and distribution in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia of fountain pens, pencils, jewelry, and similar products and who do not misrepresent the quality and characteristics of their products or the price at which said products are sold. As a consequence thereof, injury has been done and is now being done by the respondent to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 6. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on May 31, 1939, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent Louis G. Meyers, an individual, doing business as National Pen Co. and Phoenix Sales Co., charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. At a regularly scheduled hearing in the matter on November 8, 1939, the respondent dictated on the record an answer, in which answer he admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and the answer thereto, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, Louis G. Meyers, is an individual doing business as National Pen Co. and Phoenix Sales Co. and has his place of business located at Birmingham, Ala., and at various other points. Respondent is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of specialty merchandise including fountain pens, pencils, jewelry, and various other products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondent causes said products, when sold, to be transported from his said places of business to the purchasers thereof, located in the various States of the United States other than the State of origin of such shipments. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said fountain pens, pencils, jewelry and similar products sold and distributed by him in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

In the course and conduct of his business respondent is in active and substantial competition with other individuals and with corporations and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of specialty merchandise such as fountain pens, jewelry, and other products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his business the respondent has engaged in the practice of falsely representing the quality, material, construction, and durability of his various products and the price at which said products are sold and distributed by him, by means of false statements in various advertising matter. In the furtherance of this practice and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of his said products, respondent has caused said false statements and representations to be inserted in various advertising circulars, coupons, and other printed matter and in advertisements appearing in newspapers and other publications, all of which are distributed among prospective purchasers of said products located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, which false statements and representations purport to be descriptive of such products, their quality, construction, and durability and the price at which said products are offered for sale.

PAR. 3. Among and typical of the acts and practices above described are false statements and representations made and disseminated by the respondent in the manner aforesaid with reference to fountain pens and jewelry sold and distributed by the respondent. Among and typical of such statements and representations are the following:

1. Representations made in connection with the sale and distribution of Fountain Pens:

This offer made possible by the manufacturer.

This is an introductory offer, and the Cross Necklaces will be $5.00 after this sale.

Mail orders add 6¢ extra.

By means of the above representations and others similar thereto not specifically set out herein, the respondent represents, both directly and indirectly, that the customary and usual retail prices at which his various products are offered for sale and sold are greatly in excess of the retail prices at which they are offered for sale and sold under the terms and conditions as set out in said advertisements; that the certificate or coupon referred to is actually worth $4.41 when offered as part payment of the purchase price of any specified article. By the same means the respondent represents that he is conducting a special or introductory offer and that the price charged for said products in addition to the coupon is merely to pay local advertising expenses and cost of sale. The respondent further represents that the offer of said products at the price specified in said advertisements is a limited offer for a limited period of time and that the purchasers of said products are limited to two or three products to each coupon, as therein specified. By the same means the respondent further represents that the fountain pens sold and distributed by him are guaranteed to last a lifetime; that they have an ink capacity greater than the ordinary fountain pen and that the pens never need repair. By the same means also the respondent represents that the diamond rings, necklaces and other articles of jewelry sold and distributed by him will not tarnish and will last a lifetime and that said fountain pens and articles of jewelry carry a lifetime guarantee and also a guarantee against tarnishing of mountings and loss of stone brilliancy. By use of the word "facsimile" as descriptive of his diamonds, respondent represents that the various articles of jewelry sold by him are equipped with stones having the general appearance, qualities and brilliance possessed by diamonds and are of a quality and value greater than an imitation diamond.

PAR. 4. In truth and in fact the prices represented by the respondent as the customary retail prices of his products are, in fact, fictitious and greatly in excess of the prices at which such products are customarily offered for sale and sold by the respondent in the normal course of business. The respondent is not conducting an introductory or special offer, and the certificate or coupon referred to in said advertisements does not have the value of $4.41 or any value whatsoever as the price charged by the respondent in addition to the certificate or coupon is the regular and customary price at which respondent sells his products in the usual course of business. The price charged by the respondent in addition to the coupon is not the cost of advertising and sales expense but represents the retail price usually and ordinarily charged by the respondent for such products. The respondent does not limit the number of articles which may be purchased by any customer but sells as many of such articles as the purchaser is willing to buy. The fountain pens sold and distributed by the respondent do not have a greater capacity than ordinary fountain pens, will not last a lifetime or be free from necessity of repair. The rings, necklaces, and other articles of jewelry sold and distributed by the respondent will not last a lifetime and said articles of jewelry and fountain pens are not guaranteed to last a lifetime. The jewelry is not guaranteed against tarnish and the stones are not guaranteed against loss of brilliancy. In fact said jewelry is of a very cheap grade and quality and will tarnish immediately or within a very short time. The jewelry sold and distributed by the respondent is not set with diamonds or facsimile diamonds and the purported stones do not have the same quality, color, or brilliance of genuine diamonds, and are not of any better grade or quality than ordinary cheap imitations.

PAR. 5. The use by the respondent of the aforesaid acts and practices has had and now has a capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that all of the said representations are true and that the respondent has truthfully represented the quality, material, construction, and durability of his various products and the price at which said products are sold. On account of this erroneous and mistaken belief a number of the purchasing public have purchased a substantial volume of respondent's products with the result that trade has been diverted unfairly to the respondent from his competitors who are also engaged in the sale and distribution in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia of fountain pens, pencils, jewelry, and similar products and who do not misrepresent the quality and characteristics of their products or the price at which said products are sold. As a consequence thereof, injury has been done and is now being done by the respondent to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, Louis G. Meyers, an individual doing business as National Pen Co. and Phoenix Sales Co., as herein found, are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and states that he waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Louis G. Meyers, an individual, doing business as National Pen Co. and as Phoenix Sales Co. or trading under any other name, his agents, his employees and representatives, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of fountain pens, pencils, necklaces, and rings or any other products in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing as the customary or regular prices or values for any of respondent's products, prices, and values which are in fact fictitious and greatly in excess of the prices at which such products are customarily offered for sale and sold in the normal course of respondent's business.

2. Representing that any articles of merchandise customarily and regularly sold through the use of any purported certificate, coupon, or other similar device have any value in excess of the actual money price required to be paid.

3. Representing that any certificate, coupon, or similar device has any monetary value in the purchase of an article which is customarily or regularly sold by the respondent at the price required to be paid with or without such device.

Order

30 F. T. C.

4. Representing that any of the various products sold and distributed by the respondent are of a character and quality different from and superior to other similar products of comparable price.

5. Representing that the number of respondent's articles of merchandise which may be purchased by any customer is limited, or that such articles may be purchased for a limited time only.

6. Representing that the fountain pens sold and distributed by the respondent will last a lifetime, are unbreakable, will never need repair or that they have a greater ink capacity than ordinary fountain pens.

7. Representing that respondent's rings or necklaces are set with diamonds or facsimile diamonds or possess color or brilliance in any way comparable to diamonds, or that they can be worn a lifetime or any appreciable period of time and remain free from tarnish, loss of brilliancy or loss of stones.

8. Representing that the respondent is conducting a special or introductory advertising offer or that the price charged for respondent's products, in addition to the coupon, is only to cover cost of advertising and sales expense.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.

MENTHO-MULSION, INCORPORATED (FORMERLY M. L. CLEIN &amp; COMPANY), AND MAX L. CLEIN AND SADIE B. CLEIN

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3674. Complaint, Dec. 23, 1938—Decision, Jan. 16, 1940

Where a corporation, and two individuals who were president and vice president thereof and had dominant control of its advertising policies and business activities and cooperated with one another and acted in concert in doing acts and things below set forth, engaged in sale and distribution of certain cough and cold medicines under designation "Mentho-Mulsion" and "Malco Cold Tablets," to purchasers in other States and in the District of Columbia, in substantial competition with others engaged in sale and distribution of similar and other medicinal products intended and sold for relief of such ailments and conditions, and including many who do not make any misrepresentations or false statements concerning the therapeutic value or efficacy of their respective products; in advertisements which they disseminated through the mails, newspapers and periodicals of general circulation, through circulars and other printed matter distributed in commerce among the various States, through continuities broadcast from radio stations of extrastate audience, and through various means, and which were intended and likely to induce purchase of their said preparations—

- (a) Represented that their said "Mentho-Mulsion" was a cure or remedy for coughs and would stop cough spasms, and remedy, cure or relieve every cough, irrespective of the cause thereof, through such statements as "* * * quick, safe remedy for coughs", "The proven remedy for bad coughs," "* * * stops cough spasms immediately" and others of similar tenor, facts being it did not constitute a cure or remedy for coughs generally, and would not stop cough spasms or relieve every cough, irrespective of cause thereof, and, while having a palliative effect in cases of coughs due to common colds, was not effective in frequent cases in which coughs are manifestations of certain serious physical disorders; and
- (b) Represented that their "Malco Cold Tablets" would drive common colds out of the system, and constituted a cure or remedy for colds, irrespective of the cause thereof, through such statements as "* * * fight colds five ways" and "* * * designed to drive common colds completely out of your system", facts being they would not accomplish such last result and, while having a palliative effect in partially relieving symptoms commonly encountered in colds, did not constitute remedies or cures therefor;

With effect of misleading and deceiving substantial portion of purchasing public into erroneous belief that all such representations were true, and with consequence, as direct result thereof, that number of consuming public purchased their products and trade was diverted unfairly to them from competitors aforesaid, engaged in sale and distribution of similar and other products designed and sold for relief of such ailments and conditions, and who truthfully advertise their respective products and effectiveness thereof:

Complaint

30 F. T. C.

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all of the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

Before Mr. John W. Addison, trial examiner.

Mr. Morton Nesmith and Mr. John M. Russell for the Commission.

Mr. Clarence H. Calhoun, of Atlanta, Ga., for respondents.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that M. L. Clein & Co., a corporation, and Max L. Clein and Sadie B. Clein, individuals, hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of said act and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. M. L. Clein & Co. is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Georgia, and respondents, Max L. Clein and Sadie B. Clein, individuals, are president and vice president, respectively, thereof. The individual respondents have dominant control of the advertising policies and business activities of said corporate respondent, and all of said respondents have cooperated each with the other and have acted in concert in doing the acts and things hereinafter alleged. Respondents' office and principal place of business is located at 219 Norris Building, Atlanta, Ga.

PAR. 2. Respondents now are and for more than 2 years last past have been engaged in the sale and distribution of certain cough and cold medicines known as Mentho-Mulsion and Malco Cold Tablets, respectively. Respondents cause said products, when sold, to be transported from their place of business in the State of Georgia to purchasers thereof located in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondents maintain, and at all times mentioned herein have maintained, a course of trade in said Mentho-Mulsion and said Malco Cold Tablets in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of said business respondents are now and for the time mentioned herein have been in substantial competition with other corporations and individuals and with partnerships and firms engaged in the sale and distribution of similar and other medicinal products intended and sold for the relief of coughs and colds, respectively, in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Among such competitors there are many who do not make any misrepresentations or false statements concerning the therapeutic value or efficacy of their respective products.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of their aforesaid business, the respondents have disseminated and are now disseminating, and have and do now cause to be disseminated, false advertisements for the purpose of inducing and which were and are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of respondents' said medicinal preparations. Said false advertisements were and are disseminated by the use of the United States mails; by insertion in newspapers, and periodicals having a general circulation and also in circulars and other printed matter, all of which are distributed in commerce among and between the various States of the United States; and by continuities broadcast from radio stations which have sufficient power to, and do, convey the programs emanating therefrom to listeners thereto located in the various States of the United States other than the State from which said broadcast originates. Various means have been and are used by respondents to disseminate or cause the dissemination of said false advertisements for the purpose of inducing, or which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase in commerce among and between the various States of the United States of respondents' said medicinal preparations. Among, and typical of, the statements and representations contained in said false advertisements so used and disseminated as aforesaid are the following:

Mentho-Mulsion is a quick safe remedy for coughs

The proven remedy for bad coughs

The only creosote mixture that stops cough spasms immediately

* * * And do not let the children hang on to a nagging cough—Mentho-Mulsion will stop coughs of children or grown-ups immediately

Malco Cold Tablets fight colds five ways

Malco Cold Tablets are designed to drive common colds completely out of your system.

PAR. 5. All of said statements, together with similar statements occurring in respondents' aforesaid advertising literature and radio broadcasts, purport to be descriptive of respondents' products and of their effectiveness when taken. In all of such advertising, respondents represent through the statements and representations herein set out and through other statements of similar import and effect that Mentho-Mulsion is safe; that it constitutes a remedy or cure for every cough irrespective of the cause thereof; that it stops cough spasms and that it will relieve every cough irrespective of the cause thereof.

In all of such advertisements, respondents represent, through the statements and representations herein set out and through other statements of similar import and effect that Malco Cold Tablets constitute a remedy or cure for colds irrespective of the cause thereof and will drive colds completely out of the system.

PAR. 6. The representations and implications so made and used by respondents with respect to the nature and properties of their said products and of their effectiveness when taken are grossly exaggerated, false, and misleading. In truth and in fact Mentho-Mulsion is not entirely safe because of the presence of chloroform therein. The preparation known as Mentho-Mulsion does not constitute a cure or remedy for coughs generally and its use will not stop cough spasms. This preparation will not relieve every cough irrespective of the cause thereof but may have a palliative effect in cases of coughs due to common colds. Coughs are frequently manifestations of certain serious physical disorders of a systemic character and respondents' preparation is not effective in such cases.

Malco Cold Tablets do not constitute remedies or cures for colds though such preparation may have a palliative effect in partially relieving symptoms commonly encountered in colds. Malco Cold Tablets will not drive common colds out of the system.

PAR. 7. Respondents' use of the aforesaid false advertisements disseminated in the manner above described induces, or is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of a drug.

PAR. 8. The use by the respondents of the foregoing false and misleading representations, disseminated as aforesaid, in describing their said medicinal preparations and the effectiveness thereof, has had, and has, a tendency and capacity to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that all of said representations are true. As a direct result of this mistaken and erroneous belief, a number of the consuming public have purchased respondents' products with a result that trade has been diverted unfairly to the respondents from competitors hereinabove described who are engaged in the business of selling and distributing similar and other products designed and sold for the relief of coughs and colds and who truthfully advertise their respective products and the effectiveness thereof when used. As a result of respondents' acts and practices as herein described injury has been done and is now being done by respondents to their competitors in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 9. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on December 23, 1938, issued and subsequently caused its complaint to be served in this proceeding upon respondents M. L. Clein & Co., a corporation, and Max L. Clein and Sadie B. Clein, individuals, charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and filing of respondents' answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of the complaint were introduced by Morton Nesmith, attorney for the Commission, and in opposition thereto by Clarence H. Calhoun, attorney for respondents, before John W. Addison, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, and brief in support of the complaint, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, M. L. Clein & Co., the name of which has now been changed to Mentho-Mulsion, Incorporated, is a corporation, organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Georgia. Respondents, Max L. Clein and Sadie B. Clein, individuals, are president and vice president, respectively, thereof. The individual respondents have dominant control of the advertising policies and business activities of said corporate respondent, and all of said respondents have cooperated each with the other and have acted in concert in doing the acts and things hereinafter alleged. Respondents' office and principal place of business was located at 219 Norris Building, Atlanta, Ga., but is now located at 409 Commercial Exchange Building, Atlanta, Ga.

PAR. 2. Respondents now are and for more than 2 years last past have been engaged in the sale and distribution of certain cough and cold medicines known as Mentho-Mulsion and Malco Cold Tablets, respectively. Respondents cause said products when sold, to be transported from their place of business in the State of Georgia to purchasers thereof located in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondents maintain, and at all times mentioned herein have maintained, a course of trade in said Mentho-Mulsion and said Malco Cold Tablets in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of said business respondents are now and for the time mentioned herein have been in substantial competition with other corporations and individuals and with partnerships and firms engaged in the sale and distribution of similar and other medicinal products intended and sold for the relief of coughs and colds, respectively, in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Among such competitors there are many who do not make any misrepresentations or false statements concerning the therapeutic value or efficacy of their respective products.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of the aforesaid business, the respondents have disseminated and are now disseminating, and have and do now cause to be disseminated, false advertisements for the purpose of inducing and which were and are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of respondents' said medicinal preparations. Said false advertisements were and are disseminated by use of the United States mails; by insertion in newspapers and periodicals having a general circulation, and also in circulars and other printed matter, all of which are distributed in commerce among and between the various States of the United States; and by continuities broadcast from radio stations which have sufficient power to and do convey the programs emanating therefrom to listeners thereto located in the various States of the United States other than the State from which said broadcast originates. Various means have been and are used by respondents to disseminate or cause the dissemination of said false advertisements for the purpose of inducing, or which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase in commerce among and between the various States of the United States of respondents' said medicinal preparations. Among and typical of the statements and representations contained in said false advertisements so used and disseminated as aforesaid are the following:

Mentho-Mulsion is a quick, safe remedy for coughs

The proven remedy for bad coughs

The only creosote mixture that stops cough spasms immediately

* * * And do not let the children hang on to a nagging cough—Mentho-Mulsion will stop coughs of children or grown-ups immediately

Mentho-Mulsion is a mild sure remedy

Mentho-Mulsion

Don't cough your head off—ask your druggist about Mentho-Mulsion * * the sure fire cough relief

Malco Cold Tablets fight colds five ways

Malco Cold Tablets are designed to drive common colds completely out of your system.

Respondents have discontinued the advertising hereinabove set out, both in their radio continuity, and newspapers, magazine and other periodical publications, except where such statements are coupled with and used in juxtaposition with phraseology which indicates clearly that such coughs are due to colds.

PAR. 5. All of said statements, together with similar statements occurring in respondents' aforesaid advertising literature and radio broadcasts, purport to be descriptive of respondents' products and of their effectiveness when taken. In all of such advertising, respondents represent through the statements and representations herein set out and through other statements of similar import and effect that Mentho-Mulsion is safe; that it constitutes a remedy or cure for every cough irrespective of the cause thereof; that it stops cough spasms and that it will relieve every cough irrespective of the cause thereof.

In all of such advertisements, respondents represent, through the statements and representations herein set out and through other statements of similar import and effect that Malco Cold Tablets constitute a remedy or cure for colds irrespective of the cause thereof and will drive colds completely out of the system.

PAR. 6. The representations and implications so made and used by respondents with respect to the nature and properties of their said products and of their effectiveness when taken are grossly exaggerated, false, and misleading. In truth and in fact Mentho-Mulsion does not constitute a cure or remedy for coughs generally and its use will not stop cough spasms. This preparation will not relieve every cough irrespective of the cause thereof but may have a palliative effect in cases of coughs due to common colds. Coughs are frequently manifestations of certain serious physical disorders of a systemic character and respondents' preparation is not effective in such cases.

Malco Cold Tablets do not constitute remedies or cures for colds though such preparation may have a palliative effect in partially relieving symptoms commonly encountered in colds. Malco Cold Tablets will not drive common colds out of the system.

The formula for Mentho-Mulsion indicates the presence of chloroform but not in sufficient quantity to render it unsafe if taken in accord with the directions on its container.

PAR. 7. Respondents' use of the aforesaid false advertisements disseminated in the manner above described induces, or is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of a drug.

PAR. 8. The use by the respondents of the foregoing false and misleading representations, disseminated as aforesaid, in describing their said medicinal preparations and the effectiveness thereof, has had and now has a tendency and capacity to and does mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that all of said representations are true. As a direct result of this mistaken and erroneous belief, a number of the consuming public have purchased respondents' products with the result that trade has been diverted unfairly to the respondents from competitors hereinabove described who are engaged in the business of selling and distributing similar and other products designed and sold for the relief of coughs and colds and who truthfully advertise their respective products and the effectiveness thereof when used.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondents, testimony and other evidence taken before John W. Addison, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, brief filed herein by John M. Russell, counsel for the Commission, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondents Mentho-Mulsion, Incorporated (formerly M. L. Clein & Co.), a corporation, and its officers, and Max L. Clein and Sadie B. Clein, individuals, and their respective agents, representatives, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, do forthwith cease and desist from disseminating or causing to be disseminated any advertisement by means of the United States mails, or in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, by any means, for the purpose of inducing or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of the medicinal preparations known as Mentho-Mulsion and Malco Cold Tablets, or any other medicinal preparation possessing substantially similar ingredients or possessing substantially similar therapeutic properties, whether sold under the same name or under any other name or names, or disseminating or causing to be disseminated any advertisement, by any means, for the purpose of inducing or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of said medicinal preparations in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, which advertisements represent, directly or through implication:

1. That respondents' preparation Mentho-Mulsion is a cure or remedy for coughs, or that it will stop cough spasms or that it will have any therapeutic value in the treatment of coughs due to physical disorders of a systemic character, or that it has any therapeutic value in the treatment of coughs in excess of providing temporary relief in cases of coughs due to common colds.

2. That respondents' preparation Malco Cold Tablets will drive common colds out of the system or that said preparation constitutes a cure or remedy for colds or has any therapeutic value in the treatment thereof in excess of providing a palliative relief from some of the symptoms commonly encountered in colds.

It is further ordered, That the respondents shall, within 60 days from the date of service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

DIVIDUALS AS OFFICERS, AGENTS, AND REPRESENT-ATIVES

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3858. Complaint, July 22, 1939—Decision, Jan. 16, 1940

Where corporate manufacturer and two other concerns, together with certain officers and employees thereof, engaged in the sale and distribution of glass to dealers and consumers in State of Indiana from Indianapolis branch or place of business therein and in conducting in said State glazing contracting business, namely—

I. Corporation engaged in manufacture of glass and in sale and distribution thereof and in conducting glazing contracting business throughout the United States, with factories or manufacturing plants in several States and some 75 warehouses or jobbing branches in various cities including Indianapolis one from which it sold and distributed its said product to dealers therein and consumers thereof in State of Indiana exclusively, and conducted therein also glazing contracting business; and

II. Two corporations respectively engaged in said city as wholesale distributors of glass purchased by them from various manufacturers in different States of the United States other than Indiana and in reselling such glass to dealers in or retailers and consumers of said product in Indianapolis trade area and in the State of Indiana exclusively and in also carrying on exclusively within said State glazing contracting business.

In carrying on, as aforesaid engaged, their businesses in competition with one another in sale and distribution of glass and in glazing contracting business within State of Indiana, and in competition also, as case might be with—

(1) Other jobbers and distributors of glass and glazing contractors with places of business in said State and in other States who undertook to sell and distribute glass and make contracts and installation thereof within same parts of Indianapolis trade area within which aforesaid concerns or distributors conducted their respective businesses and did in some instances thus sell, etc., and who were in competition in so doing with one another and with one or more of distributors aforesaid in area in question, and who, in some instances and in case of distributors with places of business in other States shipped or caused to be shipped glass for jobs secured in said trade area by glazing contractors located within and without such area, and who bid successfully thereon in competition with concerns above described; and

(2) Glazing contractors, not dealers in or distributors of glass, located in said State and in other States who sought to and did make glazing contracts within portion of Indianapolis trade area in which aforesaid distributors conducted glazing business, and were in competition with one or more of such distributors in seeking and securing such contracts in said area and who in some instances purchased glass for jobs therein in which they were in competition with some or all of such distributors, from dealers and distributors of such product in other States and caused shipment of glass thus purchased to be shipped into State in question from other States as aforesaid—

Entered into, accepted, signed or ratified as case might be, contract negotiated by recently formed local union, membership of which embraced from 85 percent to 95 percent of glaziers in said city and employment of which was then essential to securing and carrying out contracts on most construction or repair jobs therein, and especially those of any size, by which, among other things, it was provided that no member of union would be allowed "to work for any glazing contractor who has not signed this agreement," or "lived up to the provisions thereof" and that "to be recognized as a glazing contractor employer must be in glass and glazing business, evidence of which shall be the stocking of a reasonable quantity of flat glass products, necessary truck and warehouse equipment for legitimate glazing operation to service the building and replacement trade," and continuous employment of "at least three men"; and

Where said local, and district council of trade or trades concerned, and the national brotherhood of trade or trades concerned of which such local was member, and certain individuals who were agents, officers, or representatives of said organization, and as case might be—

Negotiated, ratified and approved contract aforesaid and decided compliance with terms thereof constituted prerequisite to recognition as union glazing contractor by any contractor seeking such recognition, and carried out and enforced provisions and decision aforesaid;

With effect that glazing contractors within State in question and in other States who, prior to signing and execution of contract in question by and between distributor concern involved and said local had in some instances performed glazing contracts within that part of Indianapolis trade area in which some or all of said distributor concerns had conducted such business were, as a result of quoted provisions of contract in question and during period thereof unable to bid upon or execute such contracts; and

With result that capacity and effect of provisions in question were to tend—

1. To prevent glazing contractors and glass distributors, located both within State of Indiana and in other States of United States, from bidding upon, or securing, glazing contracts, and from selling glass in that part of Indianapolis trade area in which distributor concerns conducted glazing contracting business;

2. To unreasonably lessen and suppress competition in the sale of glass and in procurement of glazing contracts within said Indianapolis trade area by glass distributors and glazing contractors located both in State of Indiana and in other States of the United States;

3. To unduly restrict glazing contractors, both within State of Indiana and in other States of United States, desiring to bid upon, and secure, glazing contracts in said Indianapolis trade area, but who did not enter into aforementioned contract because not then qualified to do so under provisions thereof;

4. To unduly interfere with natural flow in commerce of glass into State of Indiana from other States of United States; and

5. To unduly restrict and restrain sale of glass in trade and commerce between and among several States; and

With result further that capacity and tendency of such provisions for employment of glaziers in connection with installation of any plate, window, safety, or structural glass sold or distributed in interstate commerce and for structures or buildings, and requiring as prerequisite to employment of glaziers by glazing contractor, as above set forth, maintenance of specific stock, truck or warehouse equipment, and continuous employment of specified number of men in connection with operation of business, was to bring about results enumerated as above set forth:

Held, That such acts and practices of said various concerns, organizations, and individuals, under circumstances set forth, were all to prejudice of public and had dangerous tendency to hinder and prevent competition in glazing contracting business in that part of Indianapolis trade area in which aforesaid distributor concerns conducted such business, to place in said concerns, organizations and individuals power to control glazing contracting business therein, and to unduly restrict and restrain sale and distribution of glass in trade and commerce between the several States, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Mr. Fletcher G. Cohn for the Commission.

Mr. Leland Hazard and Mr. Joseph T. Owens, of Pittsburgh, Pa., for Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., Philip G. King and H. B. Higgins.

Noel, Hickam, Boyd & Armstrong, of Indianapolis, Ind., for Stewart-Carey Glass Co., and J. Morris Haines.

Mr. Carl Wilde, of Indianapolis, Ind., for Capitol Glass Co., W. J. Byrne and Robert W. Byrne.

Mr. Joseph A. Padway, of Washington, D. C., for Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America; L. P. Lindelof; Clarence E. Swick; District Council No. 27 of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, of Indianapolis, Ind.; Courtney E. Hammond; Glaziers' Local Union No. 1165, of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, of Indianapolis, Ind.; and Joseph Schubert.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said Act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that the respondents herein named have violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. The words and terms defined in this paragraph have the following meaning as used in this complaint:

“glass” means plate, window, safety, and structural glass;

“respondent distributors” refers to respondent Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, Stewart-Carey Glass Co., and Capitol Glass Co.

“Indianapolis trade area” means the area including, surrounding and adjacent to the City of Indianapolis, Ind., both in the State of Indiana and in the adjoining States;

“glazing contracting business” means the business of contracting to sell and install glass in buildings and structures and also of selling glass therefor and installing the same therein;

“glazing contractor” means one who engages in the glazing contracting business;

“sash and door manufacturers” refers to concerns which manufacture sashes, doors and frames in which glass is set or fitted at the factory of the manufacturer.

PAR. 2. Respondent, Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., is a corporation, organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Pennsylvania with its office and principal place of business located in the Grant Building, Pittsburgh, Pa. It is engaged in the business of manufacturing glass, and of selling and distributing same, and of conducting a glass glazing contracting business throughout the United States. It has factories or manufacturing plants in several States of the United States and maintains and operates approximately 75 warehouses or jobbing branches located in cities in various States of the United States, from which it sells and distributes its glass to dealers and consumers located in the same and different States and in which it conducts a glazing contracting business. Among said jobbing branches so maintained and operated by it is the Indianapolis, Ind., jobbing and distributing branch, which sells and distributes its glass to dealers in, and consumers of, glass in the Indianapolis trade area, and also conducts a glazing contracting business in said area.

Respondent Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co.’s Indianapolis branch is managed by respondent Philip G. King, who is an employee and representative and agent of the respondent Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. in the Indianapolis trade area, and whose address is % Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., Indianapolis, Ind.

Complaint

30 F. T. C.

Respondent, H. B. Higgins is executive vice president of respondent Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., and as such is the officer, representative, and agent of said respondent who supervises the activities of the Indianapolis, Ind., branch of respondent Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co.; his office is located at the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., Grant Building, Pittsburgh, Pa.

PAR. 3. Respondent, Stewart-Carey Glass Co., is a corporation, organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Indiana, with its office and principal place of business located at Virginia Avenue and South New Jersey Street, Indianapolis, Ind. It is a wholesale distributor of glass which it purchases from various manufacturers thereof located in different States of the United States; it resells such glass to retailer dealers therein, and it also does a glazing contracting business, in the Indianapolis trade area.

Respondent, J. Morris Haines is secretary and general manager of respondent Stewart-Carey Glass Co., and as such directs its policies; his office address is % Stewart-Carey Glass Co., Virginia Avenue and South New Jersey Street, Indianapolis, Ind.

PAR. 4. Respondent, Capitol Glass Co., is a corporation, organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Indiana, with its office and principal place of business located at 401 West South Street, Indianapolis, Ind. It is a wholesale distributor of glass which it purchases from various manufacturers thereof located in different States of the United States; it resells said glass to dealers within the Indianapolis trade area. It likewise engages in the glazing contracting business in said area.

Respondents, W. J. Byrne and Robert W. Byrne are president and vice president, respectively, of said corporation, and are the executive officers who control and direct its affairs; the places of business of both are % Capitol Glass Co., 401 West South Street, Indianapolis, Ind.

PAR. 5. Respondent, Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, is an association incorporated under the laws of the State of Indiana, with its principal office and place of business located at 217 North 6th Street, La Fayette, Ind. It is an organization comprised of local unions, district councils, and subordinate bodies throughout the United States, whose members are employed in the several branches of the building trade enumerated in its constitution and including glaziers.

Respondents, L. P. Lindelof and Clarence E. Swick, individuals, are general president and general secretary, respectively, of respondent Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, and as such are the executive officers of said Brotherhood with their offices located at 217 North 6th Street, La Fayette, Ind.

Respondents, District Council No. 27 and Glaziers' Local Union No. 1165, both of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, with their offices and principal places of business being located at 29 South Delaware Street, Indianapolis, Ind., and 250 Leeds Avenue, Indianapolis, Ind., respectively, are unincorporated associations of glaziers whose members are members of the respondent Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, and which members are engaged in glazing and installing glass in buildings in the Indianapolis trade area.

Respondent, Courtney E. Hammond, an individual, is the secretary of said respondent, District Council No. 27, and his office is located at 29 South Delaware Street, Indianapolis, Ind.

Respondent, Joseph Schubert, an individual, is the business agent of said respondent, Glaziers' Local Union No. 1165 of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, and as such represent said respondent Union and its members in its and their dealings with respondent distributors and other glass distributors and glazing contractors in the Indianapolis trade area. His address is % Glaziers' Local Union 1165 of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, 250 Leeds Avenue, Indianapolis, Ind.

Respondents named in this paragraph are engaged in unfair methods and practices, hereinafter set out, which directly affect and restrain competition in the sale and distribution of glass in commerce between and among the several States of the United States.

PAR. 6. Respondent distributors are in competition with one another in the sale and distribution of glass and in the glazing contracting business in the Indianapolis trade area, except insofar as said competition has been hindered, lessened, restrained, or restricted, or potential competition among them forestalled, by the unfair practices and methods hereinafter set forth.

There are other jobbers and distributors of glass, with their places of business located both in the State of Indiana and in other States of the United States, who are engaged in the sale and distribution of glass in the Indianapolis trade area, and who are also engaged in the glazing contracting business therein, who are in competition with one another and with one or more of the respondent distributors, except insofar as such competition has been hindered, lessened, restrained, or restricted, or potential competition among them forestalled, by the use by respondent distributors and the other respondents named herein of the unfair practices and methods hereinafter set out.

There are also glazing contractors, located both in the State of Indiana and in other States of the United States, who were not dealers in, or distributors of, glass, but who seek to make, and do make, glazing contracts in the Indianapolis trade area, purchasing the necessary glass for such work from dealers and distributors of glass located both in the State of Indiana and in other States of the United States; such glazing contractors are in competition with one or more of respondent distributors in seeking to secure, and securing, glazing contracts in the aforementioned trade area, except insofar as such competition has been hindered, lessened, restricted, and restrained, or potential competition among them forestalled, by the use by respondent distributors and the other respondents named herein of the unfair practices and methods hereinafter set forth.

PAR. 7. Those glass distributors who are in competition with respondent distributors, as above described, and whose places of business are located in States other than the State of Indiana, in the course and conduct of their businesses sell glass to glazing contractors who bid on and secure glazing contracts on construction and repair jobs in the Indianapolis trade area, and, when they make such sales, said distributors ship, or cause to be shipped, the glass for said jobs, from their said places of business located in States other than the State of Indiana, into the State of Indiana.

Those competitors of respondent distributors who do not sell or distribute glass, but are glazing contractors, in the course and conduct of their businesses, in many instances purchase glass for those jobs in the Indianapolis trade area for which they have glazing contracts from dealers and distributors of same located in States other than the State of Indiana, which dealers and distributors as part of such purchases, ship, or cause to be shipped, said glass into the State of Indiana.

PAR. 8. All of respondent distributors are engaged in unfair methods and practices which directly affect and restrain competition in the sale and distribution of glass in commerce between and among the several States of the United States.

PAR. 9. In order to secure and execute contracts on most construction or repair jobs, especially those of any size, in the Indianapolis trade area, it is necessary for glazing contractors to employ glaziers who are members of respondent Glaziers' Local Union No. 1165.

PAR. 10. In 1938, respondent distributors, acting through and by means of their respective officers and agents, which officers and agents have hereinbefore been named as parties respondent, and respondent Glaziers' Local No. 1165, acting through and by means of respondent Joseph Schubert, and with the approval and sanction of the other respondents heretofore named and described in paragraph 5, entered into and thereafter carried out an understanding and agreement to restrict and restrain the sale and distribution of glass in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and more particularly in the Indianapolis trade area.

PAR. 11. As a part of, and pursuant to, the aforementioned understanding and agreement, and in furtherance thereof, all of the respondents, among other acts and things, agreed:

1. To restrict and restrain, and they have restricted and restrained, the employment of members of respondent, Glaziers' Local Union No. 1165, by any one other than respondent distributors.

2. To prevent, and they have prevented, distributors of glass competing with respondent distributors, or desiring to compete with them, which distributors are located both within and outside the State of Indiana, from securing glaziers to install glass in buildings and structures being erected or repaired in the Indianapolis trade area.

3. To preclude, and they have precluded, such competing distributors, located both in the State of Indiana and in other States of the United States, from bidding on contracts for the supply and installation of glass in such buildings and structures in said trade area.

4. To preclude, and they have precluded, such competing distributors located both in the State of Indiana and in other States of the United States, from supplying and installing glass in buildings and structures being erected or repaired in said trade area.

5. To compel, and they have compelled, such competing distributors and also competing glazing contractors located both in the State of Indiana and other States of the United States, desiring to do glazing contracting business in the Indianapolis trade area, to employ at least three men continuously, regardless of whether or not such distributor or contractor could provide employment for such men.

6. To compel, and they have compelled, all glazing work to be done at the situs of each respective job.

7. To prevent, and they have prevented, any glazing work from being done in the shop unless permission first be secured from respondent Joseph Schubert, the business agent of respondent Glaziers' Local Union No. 1165.

8. To prevent, and they have prevented, sash and door manufacturers operating in the Indianapolis trade area from glazing glass and installing the same in sash and door frames in their respective factories.

9. To use, and they have used, other means, methods, and practices to restrict and restrain the employment of members of respondent

Glaziers' Local Union No. 1165 by any one other than respondent distributors.

PAR. 12. For the purpose of making effective the understandings and agreements heretofore set forth in paragraphs 10 and 11, and of requiring compliance therewith, respondent distributors, acting through and by means of their agents, officials, and representatives, herein named as parties respondent, did enter into and sign during the month of May 1933, and did thereafter carry into effect, a written agreement with respondent Glaziers' Local Union No. 1165, which union acted through and by means of respondent Joseph Schubert, and with the approval and sanction of the respondents heretofore named in paragraph 5; and all of the respondents did thereafter carry into effect such agreement; said agreement among other things provides that:

1. No member of the respondent Glaziers' Local Union No. 1165 will be allowed to work for any glazing contractor that has not signed the aforementioned agreement and has not lived up to its provisions.

2. To be recognized as a glazing contractor, one must be an employer engaged in the glass and glazing business.

3. Evidence that one is in such business shall be the stocking of a reasonable quantity of flat glass products, necessary truck and warehouse equipment, and legitimate glazing operations to service the building and replacement trade.

4. Further evidence that one is in the glass and glazing business shall be the continuous employment of at least three men.

5. All glazing work must be done at the situs of each respective job and no glazing work can be done in shops unless permission first be secured from the business agent of respondent Glaziers' Local Union No. 1165.

6. No firm, partnership, or corporation signing the aforementioned agreement shall be permitted to accept glazing contracts from, or sublet glazing contracts to, any glazing firm, partnership, or corporation who has not signed this agreement, or any agents of such glazing firm, partnership or corporation.

PAR. 13. Each of respondents, at the times herein mentioned, acted in concert with one or more of the other respondents in doing and performing the acts and things hereinabove alleged in furtherance of the understanding and agreement heretofore set forth.

PAR. 14. The capacity, tendency and effect of said agreement and understanding, and the acts and things done by respondents in pursuance thereof, are and have been:

1. To monopolize in respondent distributors the glazing contracting business in the Indianapolis trade area.

2. To prevent glazing contractors and glass distributors located outside the State of Indiana from bidding upon or securing glazing contracts, and from selling glass, in the Indianapolis trade area.

3. To unreasonably lessen, eliminate, restrict, stifle, hamper, and suppress competition in the sale of glass and in the procurement of glazing contracts in the Indianapolis trade area by glass distributors and glass contractors located both in the State of Indiana and in other States of the United States.

4. To deprive the purchasing and consuming public and public agencies of the advantages in price, service, and other considerations which they would enjoy under conditions of normal, unrestricted, and free competition in the sale of glass and in the procurement of glazing contracts in said area, and to otherwise operate as a restraint upon, obstruction to, and detriment to the freedom of fair and legitimate competition in such sales and procurements.

5. To suppress, eliminate, and discriminate against glazing contractors both in and outside of the State of Indiana desiring to bid on glazing contracts in the Indianapolis trade area, but who do not, or cannot, enter into the aforementioned agreement with respondent Glaziers' Local Union No. 1165.

6. To obstruct and prevent the establishment of new glazing contractors in the Indianapolis trade area.

7. To eliminate and suppress competition among glass distributors and glazing contractors both in the State of Indiana and in other States of the United States in the sale of glass for glazing contracts in the Indianapolis trade area.

8. To burden, hamper, and interfere with the normal and natural flow of commerce in glass from the various States of the United States other than the State of Indiana into the State of Indiana;

9. To injure the competitors of respondent distributors, which competitors are engaged both in the sale and distribution of glass and in the glazing contracting business, by unfairly diverting business and trade from said competitors.

10. To prejudice and injure glass distributors and glazing contractors both in the State of Indiana and in other States of the United States who do not or cannot enter into the aforementioned agreement with respondent Glaziers' Local Union No. 1165.

11. To unduly and unlawfully restrict and restrain the sale of glass in trade and commerce between and among the several States of the United States.

PAR. 15. The understanding and agreement heretofore set out and the acts and things done by respondents thereunder and in furtherance thereof, as above alleged, constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on the 22d day of July 1939, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondents named in the caption hereof, charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. Subsequently, all of the respondents filed their answers to said complaint. Thereafter, stipulations were entered into whereby it was stipulated and agreed that statements of fact signed and executed by respondents, Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., a corporation, Philip G. King, individually and as manager of the Indianapolis, Ind., branch of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., H. B. Higgins, individually and as vice president of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., and their counsel Leland Hazard; respondents Stewart-Carey Glass Co., a corporation, and J. Morris Haines, individually, and as secretary and general manager of the Stewart-Carey Glass Co., and their counsel James W. Noel; Capitol Glass Co., a corporation, W. J. Byrne individually and as president of the Capitol Glass Co., Robert W. Byrne, individually and as vice president of the Capitol Glass Co., and their counsel, Carl Wilde; and Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, a corporation, L. P. Lindelof, individually and as general president of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, Clarence E. Swick, individually and as general secretary of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, District Council No. 27 of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America of Indianapolis, Ind., an unincorporated association, Courtney E. Hammond, individually and as secretary of District Council No. 27 of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, Glaziers' Local Union No. 1165, of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America of Indianapolis, Ind., an unincorporated association, Joseph Schubert, individually and as Business Agent of Glaziers' Local Union No. 1165, of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, Indianapolis, Ind., and their counsel Joseph A. Padway, and W. T. Kelley, chief counsel of the Federal Trade Commission, subject to the approval of the Commission, may be taken as the facts in this proceeding and in lieu of testimony in support of the charge stated in the complaint, or in opposition thereto, and that the said Commission may proceed upon said statements of facts to make its report, stating its findings as to the facts and its conclusion based thereon and enter its order disposing of the proceeding without the presentation of arguments or the filing of briefs. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, answers and stipulations, said stipulations having been approved, accepted and filed by the Commission, and the Commission having duly considered the same and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. The words and terms defined in this paragraph have the following meaning as used in this findings as to the facts and conclusion:

“glass” means plate, window, safety, and structural glass;

“respondents distributors” refers to respondent Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, Stewart-Carey Glass Co., and Capitol Glass Co.;

“Indianapolis trade area” means the area including, surrounding and adjacent to the City of Indianapolis, Ind., both in the State of Indiana, and in the adjoining States;

“glazing contracting business” means the business of contracting to sell and install glass in buildings and structures and also of selling glass therefor and installing the same therein;

“glazing contractor” means one who engages in the glazing contracting business.

PAR. 2. Respondent, Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., is a corporation, organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, with its office and principal place of business located in the Grant Building, Pittsburgh, Pa. It is engaged in the business of manufacturing glass, and of selling and distributing same, and of conducting a glass contracting business, throughout the United States. It has factories or manufacturing plants in several States of the United States and maintains and operates approximately 75 warehouses or jobbing branches located in cities in various States of the United States, from which it sells and distributes its glass to dealers and consumers thereof. Among said jobbing branches so maintained and operated by it, is the Indianapolis, Ind., jobbing and distributing branch, from which it sells, and distributes its glass to dealers in, and consumers of, glass located in the States of Indiana, exclusively, and also conducts a glazing contracting business in such State.

Respondent, Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co.'s Indianapolis, Ind., branch is managed by respondent Philip G. King, who is an employee and representative and agent of Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. in the aforementioned area in which the Indianapolis, Ind., branch of said respondent Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. sells and distributes the glass of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. and in which it also conducts a glazing contracting business. His address is in care of Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., Indianapolis, Ind.

Respondent, H. B. Higgins is vice president of respondent Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., and as such, is the officer, representative, and agent of said respondent who supervises the activities of the Indianapolis, Ind., branch of said respondent; his address is in care of Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., Grant Building, Pittsburgh, Pa.

PAR. 3. Respondent Stewart-Carey Glass Co. is a corporation, organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Indiana, with its office and principal place of business located at Virginia Avenue and South New Jersey Street, Indianapolis, Ind. It is a wholesale distributor of glass which it purchases from various manufacturers thereof located in different States of the United States other than the State of Indiana; it resells said glass to retail dealers in the Indianapolis trade area and does a glazing contracting business, confined to its own sales of glass, solely within the State of Indiana.

Respondent, J. Morris Haines is secretary and general manager of respondent Stewart-Carey Glass Co., and as such directs its business policies; his address is in care of Stewart-Carey Glass Co., Virginia Avenue and South New Jersey Street, Indianapolis, Ind.

PAR. 4. Respondent, Capitol Glass Co., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Indiana, with its office and principal place of business located at 432 South Missouri Street, Indianapolis, Ind. It is a wholesale distributor of glass which it purchases from various manufacturers thereof located in different States of the United States; it resells said glass to dealers in, and consumers of, same, exclusively within the State of Indiana, and likewise does a glazing contracting business exclusively within such State.

Respondents, W. J. Byrne and Robert W. Byrne are president and vice president, respectively, of said corporation, and are the executive officers who control and direct its affairs, the place of business of both being in care of Capitol Glass Co., 432 South Missouri Street, Indianapolis, Ind.

PAR. 5. Respondent, Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America is an association incorporated under the laws of the State of Indiana, with its principal office and place of business located at 217 North Sixth Street, LaFayette, Ind. It is an organization comprised of local unions, district councils, and subordinate bodies throughout the United States, whose members are employed in the several branches of the building trade enumerated in its constitution and including glaziers.

Respondents, L. P. Lindelof and Clarence E. Swick are general president and general secretary, respectively, of respondent Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, and as such are the executive officers of said Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, with their offices being located at 217 North Sixth Street, LaFayette, Ind.

Respondents, District Council No. 27 and Glaziers' Local Union No. 1165, both of respondent Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, with their offices and principal places of business located at 29 South Delaware Street, Indianapolis, Ind., and 250 Leeds Avenue, Indianapolis, Ind., respectively, are unincorporated associations of glaziers, whose members are likewise members of respondent Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, and which members are engaged in glazing and installing glass in buildings in the Indianapolis trade area; the jurisdiction of said respondent Glaziers' Local Union No. 1165 extends throughout the southwestern part of the State of Indiana and a small section of the eastern part of the State of Illinois.

Respondent, Courtney E. Hammond is the secretary of said respondent, District Council No. 27, with his office being located at 29 South Delaware Street, Indianapolis, Ind.

Respondent, Joseph Schubert was, during the period of time covered by the complaint in this case, business agent of said respondent Glaziers' Local Union No. 1165 of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, and as such represented during said period, said respondent Union and its members in its and their dealings with respondent distributors and other glass distributors and glazing contractors in the Indianapolis trade area. His address is in care of Glaziers' Local Union No. 1165 of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, 250 Leeds Avenue, Indianapolis, Ind.

PAR. 6. Respondent distributors are, and were, in competition with one another in the sale and distribution of glass and in the glazing contracting business within the State of Indiana.

There are, and were, in May 1938, other jobbers and distributors of glass, and glazing contractors with their places of business located both in the State of Indiana and in other States of the United States, who undertake, and undertook, to sell, distribute, and make contracts for the installation of, glass, and who in some instances, do, and did, sell and distribute and contract for the installation of, glass within the same parts of the Indianapolis trade area, within which all of said respondent distributors conduct and conducted their respective businesses, and who are, and were, in competition with one another, and are, and were, in competition with one or more of the respondent distributors in said area in which respondent distributors conduct like businesses.

There are, and were, in May 1938, also glazing contractors located both in the State of Indiana and in other States of the United States, who are not dealers in, or distributors of, glass, but who seek to make, and sought to make, and do make, and did make glazing contracts within that portion of the Indianapolis trade area in which the respondent distributors conduct a glazing business. These other glazing contractors are, and were, in May 1938, in competition with one or more of the respondent distributors in seeking to secure, and securing, glazing contracts within the aforementioned part of the Indianapolis trade area in which respondent distributors, or some of them, make, or made, or seek to make, or sought to make, glazing contracts.

PAR. 7. Those competitors of respondent distributors who do not sell or distribute glass but are glazing contractors, in the course and conduct of their respective businesses, in some instances purchase, and did purchase, in May 1938, glass for those jobs within the Indianapolis trade area, where they are, and were, in competition with some, or all of the respondent distributors, from dealers and distributors of same, located in States other than the State of Indiana, and cause, and caused, said dealers and distributors as part of such purchases, to ship or cause to be shipped, said glass into the State of Indiana, from other States of the United States.

PAR. 8. Those glass distributors who are in competition with the respondent distributors, as above found, and whose places of business are located in States other than in the State of Indiana, in some instances, sell, and have sold, in May 1938, glass to glazing contractors who bid on and secure, and have bid on and secured, in May 1938, glazing contracts on construction and repair jobs in that part of the Indianapolis trade area in which some or all of the respondent distributors likewise bid on, have bid on, in May 1938, secured and have secured, in May 1938, glazing contracts, and when said glass distributors make such sales, they ship, have shipped, or cause to be shipped, or have caused to be shipped, the glass for said jobs, from their said places of business located in States other than the State of Indiana, into the State of Indiana.

PAR. 9. Eighty-five percent to ninety-five percent of the glaziers in the city of Indianapolis, Ind., are members of said Union.

In order to secure and execute contracts on most construction or repair jobs, especially those of any size, in the city of Indianapolis, Ind., where all of the respondent distributors conduct a glazing contracting business, it is, and was in May 1938, necessary for glazing contractors to employ glaziers who are members of the respondent Glaziers' Local Union No. 1165.

PAR. 10. Respondent, Glaziers' Local Union No. 1165 was organized early in the year 1938 and none of the respondent distributors previously had entered into or signed any contracts with said respondent Union, for the employment by said respondent distributors of members of said respondent Union.

PAR. 11. During the first part of the year 1938, respondent, Joseph Schubert, acting for and on behalf of respondent Glaziers' Local Union No. 1165, entered into negotiations with the respondent distributors for the purpose of negotiating with them a contract, upon which all parties could agree, regarding the employment by said respondent distributors of members of respondent Glaziers' Local Union No. 1165, on the glazing contract work conducted by said respondent distributors within that part of the Indianapolis trade area in which said respondent distributors engaged in the glazing contracting business.

PAR. 12. As hereinbefore found, pursuant to, and as a result of the aforementioned negotiations by and between the respondent distributors and the respondent Joseph Schubert, acting for and on behalf of respondent Glazier's Local Union No. 1165, a contract was entered into, under date of May 6, 1938, by and between said respondent distributors and respondent Glaziers' Local Union No. 1165 concerning the employment by said respondent distributors of members of said respondent Glaziers' Local Union No. 1165, which contract remained in effect until on or about July 1, 1938, pertinent parts of which are as follows:

Entered into this Sixth day of May, 1938, between the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, Stewart-Carey Glass Company, and Capitol Glass Company, parties of the first part, herein referred to as the "companies", and the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paper Hangers of America, Glaziers' Local Union No. 1165, Indianapolis, Indiana, party of the second part, hereinafter referred to as the "Union", WITNESSETH:

ARTICLE II: No member of the Union will be allowed to work for any glazing contractor who has not signed this agreement or that has not lived up to the provisions of this agreement. To be recognized as a glazing contractor au employer must be in the glass and glazing business, evidence of which shall be the stocking of a reasonable quantity of flat glass products, necessary truck and warehouse equipment for legitimate glazing operation to service the building and replacement trade and who continuously employs at least three men.

The aforementioned contract entered into under date of May 6, 1938, in addition to the sections above quoted, contained 13 other articles, covering, among other things, hours of work, rates of pay, and conditions of employment.

PAR. 13. After said contract of May 6, 1938, was signed by the three respondent distributors and by respondent Glaziers' Local Union No. 1165, it was adopted and approved by respondent District Council No. 27, and forwarded by respondent Courtney E. Hammond, secretary of said respondent District Council No. 27, to respondent Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, at its office in LaFayette, Ind., it being required by the practice, rules, and regulations of said respondent Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America that before such a contract was effective, same had to be approved by both the district council and the general executive board of the brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America.

Certain glazing contractors in the Indianapolis trade area, who took the position that, because of the aforementioned provisions of said contract, they were unable to comply with the same and were thereby unable to employ union glaziers in the Indianapolis trade area, over which respondent Glaziers' Local Union No. 1165 had jurisdiction, filed a complaint regarding said provisions of the contract of May 6, 1938, with respondent Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America.

To such complaint, respondent Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America through its general executive board, gave a decision that the terms of the aforesaid contract entered into by and between the three respondent distributors and respondent Glaziers' Local Union No. 1165, on May 6, 1938, had to be complied with if any contractor sought to be recognized as a union glazing contractor.

The executive board of said respondent, Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, did not return to respondent District Council No. 27, the aforementioned contract of May 6, 1938, sent to it by respondent Courtney E. Hammond, stamped with the approval of said board, as is its usual custom when such a contract is approved by the board.

PAR. 14. Respondents, L. P. Lindelof, general president of respondent Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, and respondent Clarence E. Swick, general secretary of said respondent Brotherhood, both individually, and acting in their respective positions, carried out the aforesaid decisions of the general executive board of said respondent Brotherhood.

PAR. 15. The aforementioned contract of May 6, 1938, entered into, by, and between the three respondent distributors and respondent Joseph Schubert, acting for and on behalf of respondent Glaziers' Local Union No. 1165, was accepted, ratified, and enforced, for a period extending from May 6, 1938, to on or about July 1, 1938, by respondents Glaziers' Local Union No. 1165, by respondent Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, by L. P. Lindelof, individually and as general president of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, by Clarence E. Swick, individually and as general secretary of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, by District Council No. 27 of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, and by Courtney E. Hammond, individually and as secretary of District Council No. 27 of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America.

PAR. 16. The provisions of said contract of May 6, 1938, to the effect that no member of the Union can work for any glazing contractor who has not signed and lived up to the provisions of said contract are usual provisions in contracts between glaziers' local unions and employers, and no charge is made in this proceeding that said provisions are in violation of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

PAR. 17. There were glazing contractors, located both within the State of Indiana, and in other States of the United States, who, prior to the signing and execution of the aforementioned contract of May 6, 1938, by and between the respondent distributors and respondent Glaziers' Local Union No. 1165, had, in some instances, performed glazing contracts within that part of the Indianapolis trade area in which some or all of the respondent distributors had conducted such a business, and, who, because of the above quoted provisions of said contract regarding the requirements for recognition as a glazing contractor, were unable, during the period extending from May 6, 1938, to on or about July 1, 1938, to bid upon, or to execute, glazing contracts within the aforementioned parts of the Indianapolis trade area, in which some, or all, of said respondent distributors conducted a glazing contracting business in competition with said glazing contractors.

PAR. 18. Respondents, Philip G. King, individually, and as manager of the Indianapolis, Ind., branch of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass

Co.; H. B. Higgins, individually and as vice-president of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co.; J. Morris Haines, individually and as secretary and general manager of Stewart-Carey Glass Co.; W. J. Byrne, individually and as president of the Capitol Glass Co.; and Robert W. Byrne, individually and as vice president of the Capitol Glass Co., either signed, or ratified and approved the aforementioned contract of May 6, 1938.

PAR. 19. The aforementioned contract of May 6, 1938, through the mutual consent of all the respondents, did not remain in force and effect subsequent to on or about July 1, 1938. During the period extending from May 6, 1938, to on or about July 1, 1938, there were some glazing contractors who conducted such a business within that part of the Indianapolis trade area in which some, or all of the respondent distributors, conducted a like business, who did not comply with the particular provisions of said contract hereinbefore quoted in paragraph 12, but were able to secure, and did secure, union glaziers to perform work on glazing contracts which they had within said territory.

PAR. 20. During the aforesaid period from May 6, 1938, to on or about July 1, 1938, when the aforesaid contract was in force and effect, the capacity and effect of the provisions in said contract, which required evidence by an employer to show that he was a glazing contractor, to wit: that he had the stocking of a reasonable quantity of flat glass products, necessary truck and warehouse equipment for legitimate glazing operation to service the building and replacement trade, and to continuously employ at least three men, were that said provisions tended:

1. To prevent glazing contractors and glass distributors, located both within the State of Indiana and in other States of the United States, from bidding upon, or securing, glazing contracts, and from selling glass in that part of the Indianapolis trade area in which respondent distributors conducted a glazing contracting business.

2. To unreasonably lessen and suppress competition in the sale of glass and in the procurement of glazing contracts within that part of the Indianapolis trade area in which the respondent distributors conducted a glazing contracting business, by glass distributors and glazing contractors located both in the State of Indiana and in other States of the United States.

3. To unduly restrict glazing contractors, both within the State of Indiana and in other States of the United States, desiring to bid upon, and secure, glazing contracts in that part of the Indianapolis trade area in which respondent distributors conducted a glazing contracting business, but who did not enter into the aforementioned contract on May 6, 1938, because they were not qualified to do so at that time under the provisions of said contract.

4. To unduly interfere with the natural flow in commerce of glass from States of the United States other than the State of Indiana, into the State of Indiana.

5. To unduly restrict and restrain the sale of glass in trade and commerce between and among the several States of the United States.

PAR. 21. The capacity and tendency of provisions in any agreement, contract, or understanding for the employment of glaziers in connection with the installation of any plate, window, safety, or structural glass, in structures or buildings, which glass is sold or distributed in interstate commerce, which require as a prerequisite to the right or privilege of any glass distributor or glazing contractor to employ such glaziers that:

1. Any such glass distributor or glazing contractor must have or maintain a stock of any specific quantity of flat-glass products, in connection with the operation of his business; or

2. Any such glass distributor or glazing contractor must have or maintain any trucking or warehousing equipment to service the building or replacement trade, in connection with the operation of his business; or

3. Any such glass distributor or glazing contractor must have or maintain the continuous employment of any specific number of men, in connection with the operation of his business;

Are the same as those resulting from similar provisions in the aforementioned contract of May 6, 1938, as heretofore found in paragraph 20.

CONCLUSION

The acts and practices of respondents, as hereinabove found, are all to the prejudice of the public, and have a dangerous tendency to hinder and prevent competition in the glazing contracting business in that part of the Indianapolis trade area in which the respondent distributors conduct such a business, to place in respondents the power to control the glazing contracting business therein, to unduly restrict and restrain the sale and distribution of glass in trade and commerce between the several States of the United States and constitute unfair methods of competition within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

ents and stipulations as to the facts entered into by and between the respondents herein, and W. T. Kelley, chief counsel for the Commission, which provide, among other things, that without further evidence or other intervening procedure, the Commission may issue and serve upon the respondents herein and each of them, findings as to the facts and conclusion based thereon, and an order disposing of this proceeding, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that the said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That respondents, Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., a corporation, Stewart-Carey Glass Co., a corporation, Capitol Glass Co., a corporation, Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, a corporation, District Council No. 27 of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, of Indianapolis, Ind., an unincorporated association, Glaziers' Local Union No. 1165, of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, of Indianapolis, Ind., an unincorporated association, and the representatives, successors, assigns, officers, agents, and employees of each of said respondents; Philip G. King, individually, and as manager of the Indianapolis, Ind., branch of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., H. B. Higgins, individually, and as vice president of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., J. Morris Haines, individually, and as secretary and general manager of the Stewart-Carey Glass Co., W. J. Byrne, individually, and as president of the Capitol Glass Co., Robert W. Byrne, individually, and as vice president of the Capitol Glass Co., L. P. Lindelof, individually, and as general president of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, Clarence E. Swick, individually, and as general secretary of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, Courtney E. Hammond, individually, and as secretary of District Council No. 27 of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, Joseph Schubert, individually, and as business agent of Glaziers' Local Union No. 1165 of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America; directly or indirectly, by any means, shall, in connection with the sale or distribution in interstate commerce of plate, window, safety, or structural glass, or in connection with the installation of such glass in structures or buildings, forthwith cease and desist from entering into, effectuating, approving, or recognizing any agreement, contract, or understanding which contain any of the following requirements or provisions as a prerequisite to the right or privilege of any glass distributor or glazing contractor to employ glaziers for the installation of such glass products in structures or buildings:

Order

1. A requirement or provision that any such glass distributor or glazing contractor must have or maintain a stock of any specified quantity of flat glass products, in connection with the operation of his business.

2. A requirement or provision that any such glass distributor or glazing contractor must have or maintain any trucking or warehousing equipment to service the building or replacement trade, in connection with the operation of his business.

3. A requirement or provision that any such glass distributor or glazing contractor must have or maintain the continuous employment of any specific number of men, in connection with the operation of his business.

It is further ordered, That the respondents herein, and each of them, shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

MODIFIED CEASE AND DESIST ORDER

Docket 2836. Order, Jan. 25, 1940

Order, in response to motion, modifying cease and desist order of November 8, 1939, 29 F. T. C. 1306, so as to require respondents, their officers, etc., in connection with offer, etc., in commerce, of food and toilet products and household cleaners, to cease and desist from misrepresenting volume of respondents' business or risk or expense incurred by their salesmen or distributors, or using term "free" to describe articles offered as compensation for distribution thereof, or misrepresenting earnings or profits of sales persons or dealers, as in said order below set forth.

Before Mr. Edward E. Reardon and Mr. Randolph Preston, trial examiners.

Mr. Alden S. Bradley and Mr. M. C. Pearce for the Commission.

Frost & Jacobs, of Cincinnati, Ohio, and Mr. J. M. George, of Winona, Minn., for respondents.

MODIFIED ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the motion of W. T. Kelley, Chief Counsel for the Commission, to modify the order to cease and desist heretofore issued in this proceeding on November 8, 1939, and the Commission having considered said motion and the record herein and being now fully advised in the premises;

It is ordered, That the motion to modify the order to cease and desist as issued herein on November 8, 1939, be, and the same hereby is, granted as prayed;

It is further ordered, That the order to cease and desist issued herein on November 8, 1939, be, and the same hereby is, modified so as to read as follows:

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of the respondents, in which answer respondents admit the material allegations of facts set forth in said complaint, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that the said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act;

It is ordered, That the respondents, The American Products Co., a corporation, and The Zanol Products Co., a corporation, their officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of food and toilet products and household cleaners in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Misrepresenting in any manner the volume of respondents' business.

2. Representing that salesmen or distributors of respondents' merchandise incur no risk or expense when in fact respondents require a deposit from such persons for the goods, samples, or sales equipment supplied.

3. Using the term "free" or any other terms of similar import or meaning to describe or refer to articles offered as compensation for distributing respondents' merchandise unless all of the terms and conditions of such offer are clearly and unequivocally stated in equal conspicuousness and in immediate connection or conjunction with the term "free" or other terms of similar import or meaning and there is no deception as to the price, quality, character, or any other feature of such article or as to the services to be performed in connection with obtaining such articles.

4. Representing any specified sum of money as possible earnings or profits of sales persons or dealers for any stated period which is not a true representation of the net earnings or profits which have been made for such stated period of time by a substantial number of respondents' active sales persons or dealers in the ordinary course of business under normal conditions and circumstances.

5. Representing any specified sum of money as earnings or profits of any specified dealer or sales person for any stated period of time unless such sum of money has in fact been earned net, by such dealer or sales person averaged over a period of at least 2 months in the ordinary course of business and under normal conditions and unless such representation is immediately accompanied by a statement to the effect that such dealer or sales person is an exceptional or unusual dealer or sales person.

It is further ordered, That the respondents shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF FRYE COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3741. Complaint, Mar. 21, 1939—Decision, Jan. 25, 1940

Where a corporation engaged in sale and distribution of medicinal preparation under designation and label "Pancreobismuth," "Pancreo Bismuth" and "Pancreobismuth and Pepsin," to purchasers in other States, in substantial competition with others engaged in sale and distribution of similar preparations or other products designed and intended for similar usage, in commerce among the various States and in the District of Columbia; in advertisements in newspapers and other periodicals of general circulation, and in advertising folders and literature which it printed and circulated throughout the several States to customers and prospective customers, and in which it featured name "Pancreo Bismuth and Pepsin"—

- (a) Represented that its said product was effective in treatment of all cases of upset stomach and relieved indigestion due to acid condition of the stomach, and tended to neutralize excess acid and allay irritation, and constituted aid in digestion of starchy foods and helped to give relief from distress caused thereby; and
- (b) Represented, through use of name "Pancreo Bismuth and Pepsin" or "Pancreo Bismuth" or "Pancreobismuth" in connection with its said product, that same possessed physiological or therapeutic value due to presence of pancreatin or pepsin;

Facts being two ingredients in question were rendered physiologically inert when taken internally in preparation involved, active ingredients of which were bismuth subnitrate, sodium bicarbonate, and ginger, and, while product possessed therapeutic value of a simple antacid and carminative tending temporarily to neutralize excess acid and relieve symptoms of distress from gastric hyperacidity, it had no effect on causative factors thereof or systemic causes of excess acid in system, was not effective in treatment of upset stomach or relief of indigestion due thereto, other than as indicated, and statements and representations above set forth were otherwise false, deceptive, exaggerated, and misleading, with respect to therapeutic value of product in question; and

Where said corporation engaged as aforesaid; in advertisements which it disseminated concerning its said product through the mails and through insertion in circulars and other printed or written matter distributed in commerce among the various States, and which were intended and likely to induce purchase of its said product, and which were disseminated as above set forth through various means—

- (c) Represented, through use of trade name "Pancreobismuth," that product in question contained pancreatin as active ingredient thereof, facts being amount thereof was negligible and without physiological value and inert in preparation in question, active ingredients of which were as hereinabove set forth;

With effect of misleading and deceiving substantial portion of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that principal active ingredients in product in question were indicated by names "Pancreobismuth," "Pancreo Bismuth," and "Pancreobismuth and Pepsin," and that representations with reference to therapeutic value thereof and results to be obtained from its use were true, and with result of unfairly diverting thereby trade to it from others also engaged in sale and distribution in commerce of similar preparations or other products designed and intended for similar usage, and who truthfully advertise the same:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

Before Mr. Webster Ballinger, trial examiner.

Mr. George Foulkes and Mr. R. P. Bellinger for the Commission.
Perry, Saunders & Cheney, of Boston, Mass., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Frye Co., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Frye Co., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Massachusetts, with its office and principal place of business located at 36 Pleasant Street, Watertown, Mass.

PAR. 2. Respondent is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, engaged in the business of selling and distributing a medicinal preparation designated "Pancreo Bismuth & Pepsin" and "Pancreobismuth." Respondent causes said product, when sold, to be transported from its place of business in Massachusetts to purchasers thereof located in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times herein mentioned has maintained, a course of trade in said product in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of its business respondent is in substantial competition with other corporations, and with individuals, firms, and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of like and similar products, or other products and treatments intended and used for similar purposes, in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Complaint

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of its business, and for the purpose of inducing individuals to purchase its product, respondent has caused advertisements to be inserted in newspapers and other periodicals of general circulation throughout the United States, and has printed and circulated throughout the several States of the United States to customers and prospective customers certain advertising folders and literature, in all of which respondent has caused the name of its product "Pancreo Bismuth & Pepsin" to be prominently and conspicuously displayed, together with the following statements:

For distress due to upset stomach, FRYE'S PANCREO BISMUTH & PEPSIN.

Relieves indigestion due to acid stomach, FRYE'S PANCREO BISMUTH & PEPSIN.

For upset stomach—take PANCREO BISMUTH & PEPSIN.

PANCREO tends to neutralize excess of acid and allay irritation.

FRYE'S PANCREO BISMUTH aids in the digestion of starchy foods—that's how it helps to give you relief from the distress these foods often cause.

In all of its advertising literature respondent represents through statements and representations herein set out, and through statements of similar import and effect, that,

1. Its product is effective in the treatment of all cases of upset stomach.
2. Its product relieves indigestion due to acid stomach.
3. Its product tends to neutralize excess acid and allay irritation.
4. Its product aids in the digestion of starchy foods and helps to give relief from distress caused by starchy foods.

PAR. 5. The statements and representations made by respondent with respect to the therapeutic value of its product are false and misleading and untrue. Such product is not effective in the treatment of all cases of upset stomach and such product does not relieve all cases of indigestion due to acid stomach. While such product possesses the therapeutic value of a simple antacid and carminative which tends temporarily to neutralize excess acid and to relieve the symptoms of distress from gastric hyperacidity, such product does not have any effect on the causative factors of gastric hyperacidity and does not have any effect on the systemic causes of excess acid in the system. Respondent's product does not permanently tend to neutralize excess acid or allay irritation but only tends to give temporary relief from the distress of such symptoms. The product is not an aid in the digestion of starchy foods and does not help to give relief from distress caused by starchy foods.

PAR. 6. In its advertising matter respondent designates its product as "Pancreo Bismuth & Pepsin." The use by respondent of the name "Pancreo Bismuth & Pepsin" in designating its product, has the tendency and capacity to, and does, lead purchasers to believe that pancreatin and pepsin are substantial physiologically active ingredients of said product. In truth and in fact pancreatin and pepsin are not psychologically substantial active ingredients of the product. The principal active ingredients of respondent's product "Pancreo Bismuth & Pepsin" are sodium bicarbonate, bismuth subnitrate and ginger. The sodium bicarbonate in respondent's product prevents any effectiveness by reason of the pepsin contained in the product.

PAR. 7. Each and all of the false and misleading representations made by the respondent in its advertising and newspapers, magazines, and pamphlets in offering for sale and selling its product, as hereinabove set out, had, and now have the tendency and capacity to, and do, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that all of said representations are true. As a direct result of this erroneous and mistaken belief a number of the purchasing public has purchased a substantial volume of respondent's product with the result that trade in said commerce has been diverted unfairly to respondent from competitors likewise engaged in the business of selling and distributing like and similar products or other products and treatments intended, designed and used for similar purposes in said commerce who truthfully advertise their products and the effectiveness thereof when used. As a result thereof, injury has been done, and is being done, by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 8. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business, since March 21, 1938, the respondent has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning its said product by using the name "Pancreobismuth" in designating said product, by United States mails, by insertion in circulars and other printed or written matter, all of which are distributed in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly the purchase of its said products; and has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning Pancreobismuth, by various means, and for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of its said product in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act. Among, and typical of the false statements or representations contained in said advertisements, disseminated and caused to be disseminated, as aforesaid, are the following:

A formula—which will materially benefit your patients—Pancreobismuth.

Pancreobismuth

Antacid—Digestant

A formula which will materially benefit your patients.

The use by respondent of the name "Pancreobismuth" in designating its product has the tendency and capacity to, and does, lead purchasers to believe that pancreatin is an active ingredient of the product. In truth and in fact the amount of pancreatin in respondent's product is negligible, having no physiological value. The active ingredients of Pancreobismuth are sodium bicarbonate, bismuth, subnitrate and ginger.

PAR. 9. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce, and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on the 21st day of March 1939, issued its complaint and thereafter caused the same to be served upon the respondent, Frye Co., a corporation. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer thereto testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced before Webster Ballinger, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission.

Thereupon the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing upon the said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and other evidence and brief in support of the allegations of the complaint, and the Commission having duly considered the matter, and being fully advised in the premises, makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Frye Co., is a corporation organized in 1935 under the laws of the State of Massachusetts, and has ever since its incorporation maintained its principal office and place of business at 36 Pleasant Street, Watertown, Mass. Respondent is now, and was, for more than 1 year prior to the issuance of the complaint, engaged in the sale and distribution of a medicinal preparation designated and labelled "Pancreobismuth," "Pancreo Bismuth," and "Pancreobismuth and Pepsin."

PAR. 2. Respondent, being engaged in business as aforesaid, caused said preparation when sold, to be transported from its place of business in Watertown, Mass., to purchasers thereof located at various points in States of the United States other than the State from which said shipments were made. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in commerce in said preparation, distributed and sold by it, between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of its business, respondent is now, and had been, in substantial competition with other individuals, and with corporations and firms also engaged in the business of selling and distributing similar preparations, or other preparations or products designed and intended for similar usage, in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR 4. In the course and conduct of its said business, during the time mentioned in paragraph 1, and for the purpose of inducing individuals to purchase its preparation, respondent caused advertisements to be inserted in newspapers and other periodicals of general circulation throughout the United States, and printed and circulated throughout the several States of the United States to customers and prospective customers certain advertising folders and literature, in all of which respondent caused the name of its product "Pancreo Bismuth and Pepsin" to be prominently and conspicuously displayed, together with the following statements:

For distress due to upset stomach, FRYE'S PANCREO BISMUTH & PEPSIN.

Relieves indigestion due to acid stomach, FRYE'S PANCREO BISMUTH & PEPSIN.

For upset stomach—take PANCREO BISMUTH & PEPSIN.

PANCREO tends to neutralize excess of acid and allay irritation.

FRYE'S PANCREO BISMUTH aids in the digestion of starchy foods—that's how it helps to give you relief from the distress these foods often cause.

Through the use of the aforesaid statements and representations and others of similar import or meaning, not herein set out, the respondent represented, directly or by implication, that:

1. Its product is effective in the treatment of all cases of upset stomach;
2. Its product relieves indigestion due to acid stomach;
3. Its product tends to neutralize excess acid and allay irritation;
4. Its product aids in the digestion of starchy foods and helps to give relief from distress caused by starchy foods.

PAR. 5. The use of the said name "Pancreo Bismuth and Pepsin" or "Pancreo Bismuth" or "Pancreobismuth," in connection with said preparation, is deceptive and misleading, and each of the representations set out in paragraph 4 made by respondent with respect to the therapeutic value of its said preparation and the results to be obtained from its use, were, and are, exaggerated, misleading, and untrue.

Respondent's product contains milk sugar, bismuth subnitrate, sodium bicarbonate and small amounts of pepsin, powdered ginger, and pancreatin. Pancreatin and pepsin, the ingredients referred to in the name of the product, are rendered physiologically inert when taken internally in the preparation involved herein. The active ingredients in this preparation are bismuth subnitrate, sodium bicarbonate, and ginger. The name "Pancreo Bismuth and Pepsin" or "Pancreobismuth" or "Pancreo Bismuth" has a tendency to lead prospective purchasers into the erroneous belief that they are going to obtain some physiological effect from the presence of pancreatin and pepsin, whereas in truth and in fact these two ingredients as used in the preparation are rendered physiologically inert.

While said preparation possesses the therapeutic value of a simple antacid and carminative, which tends temporarily to neutralize excess acid and to relieve the symptoms of distress from gastric hyperacidity, said preparation does not have any effect on the causative factors or gastric hyperacidity or the systemic causes of excess acid in the system. Such product is not effective in the treatment of upset stomach or in the relief of indigestion due to acid stomach in excess of being a simple antacid and carminative. Respondent's said preparation does not tend to permanently neutralize excess acid or allay irritation but only tends to give temporary relief from the distress of such symptoms. It is not an aid in the digestion of starchy foods; and it does not help to give relief from distress caused by starchy foods.

PAR. 6. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business, since March 21, 1938, the respondent, by using the name "Pancreobismuth" in designating said product, has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of false advertisements concerning its said product by United States mails, by insertion in circulars and other printed or written matter, all of which are distributed in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of its said products, and has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning Pancreobismuth, by various means, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of its said product in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act. Among, and typical of the false statements or representations contained in said advertisements, disseminated and caused to be disseminated, as aforesaid, are the following:

A formula—which will materially benefit your patients—Pancreobismuth.

Pancreobismuth

Antacid—Digestant

A formula which will materially benefit your patients.

The use by respondent of the name "Pancreobismuth" in designating its product has the tendency and capacity to, and does, lead purchasers to believe that pancreatin is an active ingredient of the product. In truth and in fact the amount of pancreatin in respondent's product is negligible, having no physiological value and being inert in said preparation. The active ingredients of Pancreobismuth are sodium bicarbonate, bismuth subnitrate and ginger.

PAR. 7. The use of the aforesaid deceptive and misleading names, Pancreobismuth, Pancreo Bismuth, and Pancreobismuth and Pepsin, and the aforesaid exaggerated and misleading representations made by respondent, in offering for sale and selling its product, as hereinbefore set out, had, and has, the tendency and capacity to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that the principal active ingredients in said preparation are indicated by the aforesaid names, and that said representations with reference to the therapeutic value of the preparation, and the results to be obtained from its use, are true. As a result, trade is now, and has been, unfairly diverted to respondent from corporations, copartnerships, firms, and individuals also engaged in the business of selling and distributing in commerce among and between the various States of the United States similar preparations or other products designed and intended for similar usage, and who truthfully advertise their preparations or products.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce, and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Order

30 F. T. C.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondent, testimony and other evidence taken before Webster Ballinger, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint, brief filed herein by the counsel for the Commission, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Frye Co., a corporation, its officers, agents, representatives, and employees, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of a medicinal preparation now designated as "Pancreobismuth," "Pancreo Bismuth," or "Pancreobismuth and Pepsin," or any other preparation containing substantially the same ingredients or possessing substantially similar therapeutic properties, in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing that said preparation has therapeutic value in the treatment of upset stomach, or in the relief of indigestion due to acid stomach, or in the neutralization of excess acid and allaying of irritation, in excess of being a simple antacid and carminative tending to give temporary relief from distress caused by such symptoms.

2. Representing that said preparation is beneficial in aiding the digestion of starchy foods or in relieving distress caused by starchy foods.

3. Representing that said preparation possesses physiological or therapeutic value due to the presence of pancreatin or pepsin when such ingredients are not present in such amounts and in such form as to be active ingredients thereof.

4. Using the trade names "Pancreobismuth," "Pancreo-Bismuth," or "Pancreobismuth and Pepsin," or any other trade names containing the words "pancreatin" or "pepsin" or any other adaptation of such words, to designate, describe or in any way refer to respondent's present product or any other similar product which does not possess pancreatin and pepsin in such amounts and in such form as to be active ingredients therein.

It is further ordered, That the respondent, Frye Co., a corporation, its officers, agents, representatives, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, do forthwith cease and desist from:

Order

Disseminating or causing to be disseminated any advertisement by means of United States mails or in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, by any means, for the purpose of inducing or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of a medicinal preparation now known or designated by the name of "Pancreobismuth" or any other medicinal preparation composed of substantially similar ingredients or possessing substantially similar therapeutic properties, or disseminating or causing to be disseminated any advertisement by any means for the purpose of inducing or which is likely to induce directly or indirectly, the purchase in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, of said medicinal preparation, which advertisements represent, directly or through implication, by the use of the trade name "Pancreobismuth," or any other trade name containing the word "Pancreatin," or any adaptation thereof, or in any other manner, that said preparation contains pancreatin as an active ingredient thereof.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

Docket 3697. Complaint, Feb. 2, 1939—Decision, Jan. 26, 1940

Where an individual engaged in manufacture of imitation marble and granite tombstones and memorials which (1) were produced from a mixture of crushed marble or granite, cement and other ingredients, called "Marble-texture" and "Granitexture," respectively, and (2) simulated in shape, design, color and appearance memorials carved from natural marble or granite, and in sale and distribution of said products, depictions of which in his catalogs had general appearance of natural marble and granite memorials similarly pictured, to purchasers, who did not usually see samples thereof until ordered and paid for, and who were situated in other States and in the District of Columbia, in substantial competition in commerce among the various States and in said District with others engaged in sale and distribution of tombstones and memorials made of similar materials and with those engaged in sale and distribution of such products made from natural marble and granite; in advertising his said tombstones and memorials in catalogs, circular letters, mail order solicitations, magazines, and farm papers—

- (a) Represented that they were natural marble or granite, and would retain as high a polish as said substances, and were superior to and would last longer than the natural or ordinary marble or granite, and would not crack, crumble or disintegrate from natural causes, and were everlasting, through such statements as "* * * manufactured from the finest marble and granite * * *," "* * * will outlast ordinary marble and granite," "* * * the marble or granite monument that is so beautiful today, may in a few short years discolor, crumble or crack. * * *," "* * * withstands all the elements, it does not absorb moisture and is not susceptible to influences which so often cause gradual decomposition, loss of polish * * *," etc., facts being his said products were not natural marble or granite, would not take or retain as high a polish as the other or last as long, and were not superior thereto or less porous, etc., but were in fact inferior in every particular and would crack, crumble and disintegrate under ordinary weather conditions; and
- (b) Represented that a footstone was given free by him with every order for tombstone or memorial, and that his products were from 33½ percent to 50 percent lower in price, through so stating, and through such statements as "FREE Footstone with Every Order Without additional cost to you, we include with each order a footstone to match," facts being a footstone was not given free, as above set forth, but price thereof was included in that asked for tombstone or memorial, so-called "free" offer was in fact a continuing combination offer regularly made by him, and prices of his said products were not 33½ percent to 50 percent lower than those asked by his competitors for products of the same or substantially the same quality and weight, but were approximately the same;

Complaint

With effect of leading members of purchasing public to believe that his said memorials were carved from natural marble and granite, and of causing substantial part of purchasing public, through such various false and misleading statements and representations concerning his said memorials, to buy said products in preference to those of his competitors, and of thereby diverting trade in commerce unfairly to him from his competitors aforesaid:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

Before Mr. John W. Addison, trial examiner.

Mr. J. M. Russell and Mr. Morton Nesmith for the Commission.

Mr. Marvin G. Russell, of Atlanta, Ga., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Roy D. Burnsed, an individual, trading as Southern Art Stone Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, Roy D. Burnsed, is an individual, trading as Southern Art Stone Co., having his office and principal place of business located at 1927 Piedmont Road, N. E., Atlanta, Ga.

He is now and for several years last past has been engaged in the business of manufacturing and selling imitation marble and granite tombstones and memorials produced from a mixture of crushed marble or granite, cement and other ingredients called Marbletexture and Granitexture, respectively. Respondent causes said products when sold to be transported from his place of business in the State of Georgia to purchasers thereof located in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said Marbletexture and Granitexture tombstones and monuments in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of said business, respondent is now, and for the time mentioned herein, has been in substantial competition with other individuals, firms, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of tombstones and memorials made of materials, and in a manner, similar to the said products of respondent, and of tombstones and memorials made of other materials other than marble and granite, who do not misrepresent their said products and their prices in the manner respondent is hereinafter alleged to misrepresent his products and their prices; and in the sale and distribution of tombstones and memorials made of natural marble and granite; doing such business in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of his said business the respondent, in connection with the promotion of the sale and the sale of his said products in such commerce, and as an inducement for the purchase thereof, has caused and is now causing many false and misleading statements and representations respecting the nature and price of his said products and as to his alleged guarantee of his claims therefor to be inserted in catalogs, circular letters, mail order solicitations, magazines, and farm papers, such as Progressive Farmer, Southern Ruralist, Southern Planter and Grit, which are circulated in the various States of the United States. Among and typical of the statements and representations contained in said false advertisements so used and disseminated as aforesaid, are the following:

* * * our products are manufactured from the finest marble and granite * * *

* * * Artstone is given permanence that will outlast ordinary marble and granite. Artstone Marble texture and Granite texture Monuments are very hard, very dense, but are not porous or brittle * * *

Located in the great marble and granite section of America * * *

Our monuments will not crack, fade or crumble, they will stand throughout the ages * * * vastly superior * * * and cost less than ones * * * purchased from other concerns.

* * * This highly polished product will not chip, crack, crumble, fade or otherwise disintegrate from natural causes.

* * * a product that is an eternal tribute and a permanent satisfaction.

* * * The marble or granite monument that is so beautiful today, may in a few short years discolor, crumble or crack. It is a long-proven fact that genuine marble slabs suffer total destruction in less than a century.

* * * Changeable weather and temperature cause no deterioration. Artstone withstands all the elements, it does not absorb moisture and is not susceptible to influences which so often cause gradual decomposition, loss of polish, crumbling, and finally loss of character and appearance.

33 $\frac{1}{3}$ % to 50%

Lower in Price

Besides the fact that Artstone is more beautiful and durable than other monuments, its prices are considerably lower.

Artstone will outlast ordinary marble and granite. Our monuments are not affected by weather or temperature, and will not deteriorate, discolor or decompose from any natural causes.

FREE Footstone with Every Order

Without additional cost to you, we include with each order a footstone to match.

We guarantee our monuments conform exactly with all descriptions and specifications.

PAR. 4. In all of said statements, together with similar statements not herein set out, the respondent has represented that his said synthetic products are genuine natural marble and granite tombstones and memorials; that they take and retain a higher polish and luster than natural marble or granite; that they will last forever; that they are superior to natural marble or granite in that they are less porous and stronger and more enduring; that they are sold to customers by respondent for from 33 $\frac{1}{3}$  to 50 percent less than similar products of the same quality and weight are sold by respondent's competitors; that a footstone is given free by respondent with every order for a tombstone or memorial.

PAR. 5. The statements and representations so made and used by respondent in connection with the promotion of the sale and sale of his said products are false and misleading. In truth and in fact Marbletexture and Granitexture tombstones and memorials which respondent advertises for sale and sells as aforesaid are not natural marble or granite, but are manufactured by respondent from cement and other ingredients and are known as cast stone. They will not take or retain as high a polish as natural marble or granite. They will not last forever, or as long as natural marble or granite. They are not superior to natural marble or granite, or less porous or stronger or more enduring. They are in fact inferior in every particular thereto and will crack, crumble and disintegrate under ordinary weather conditions. The prices asked for respondent's said products are not 33 $\frac{1}{3}$  to 50 percent lower than those asked by his competitors for products of the same or substantially the same quality and weight, but are approximately the same. A footstone is not given "free" with each order, but the price thereof is included in the price respondent asks for the tombstone or other material and the so-called "free offer" is in fact a continuing combination offer regularly made by respondent.

Respondent's tombstones and other memorials in shape, design, color and appearance simulate memorials carved from natural marble or granite. The pictures of the memorials in respondent's catalogs have the general appearance of natural marble and granite memorials similarly pictured. Nowhere in his advertisements is it disclosed that they are synthetic or cast stone memorials. Purchasers do not usually see samples of them before they are ordered and paid for, all of which, especially in conjunction with the respondent's misleading and false statements, is calculated to and has a tendency and capacity to, and it has, and does, lead members of the purchasing public to believe respondent's memorials are carved from natural marble or granite.

PAR. 6. Each and all of the false and misleading statements and representations disseminated as aforesaid by respondent concerning his said products, as hereinabove set out have, and have had, a tendency and capacity to and do cause a substantial part of the purchasing public to purchase respondent's said products in preference to those of his said competitors, and thus trade in said commerce has been diverted, and is being diverted, unfairly to respondent from his said competitors. As a result thereof injury has been and is now being done by respondent to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 7. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on the 2d day of February 1939, issued, and on the 6th day of February 1939, served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent Roy D. Burnsed, an individual trading as Southern Art Stone Co., charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of the complaint were introduced by Morton Nesmith, attorney for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by Marvin G. Russell, Atlanta, Ga., attorney for the respondent, before John W. Addison, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, and brief in support of the complaint (respondent not having filed brief, and oral argument not having been requested); and the Commission, having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, Roy D. Burnsed, is an individual, trading as Southern Art Stone Co., having his office and principal place of business located at 1927 Piedmont Road, N. E., Atlanta, Ga.

He is now and for several years last past has been engaged in the business of manufacturing and selling imitation marble and granite tombstones and memorials produced from a mixture of crushed marble or granite, cement and other ingredients called Marbletexture and Granittexture, respectively. Respondent causes said products when sold to be transported from his place of business in the State of Georgia to purchasers thereof located in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said Marbletexture and Grain texture tombstones and monuments in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his business, the respondent is now, and has been, in substantial competition, in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, with other individuals and with firms, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of tombstones and memorials made of materials similar to those used by the respondent in his tombstones and memorials and also with individuals, firms, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of tombstones and memorials made from natural marble and granite.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of his said business the respondent, in connection with the promotion of the sale and the sale of his said products in such commerce, and as an inducement for the purchase thereof, has caused and is now causing many statements and representations respecting the nature and price of his said products and as to his alleged guarantee of his claims therefor to be inserted in catalogs, circular letters, mail order solicitations, magazines, and farm papers, such as Progressive Farmer, Southern Ruralist, Southern Planter and Grit, which are circulated in the various States of the United States. Among and typical of the statements and representations contained in said advertisements so used and disseminated as aforesaid, are the following:

We guarantee our monuments conform exactly with all descriptions and specifications.

PAR. 4. In all of said statements, together with similar statements not herein set out, the respondent has represented that his said synthetic products are genuine natural marble and granite tombstones and memorials; that they take and retain a higher polish and luster than natural marble or granite; that they will last forever; that they are superior to natural marble or granite in that they are less porous and stronger and more enduring; that they are sold to customers by respondent for from 33½ percent to 50 percent less than similar products of the same quality and weight are sold by respondent's competitors; that a footstone is given free by respondent with every order for a tombstone or memorial.

PAR. 5. The statements and representations so made and used by respondent in connection with the promotion of the sale and sale of his said products are false and misleading. In truth and in fact Marbletexture and Granitexture tombstones and memorials which respondent advertises for sale and sells as aforesaid are not natural marble or granite, but are manufactured by respondent from cement and other ingredients and are known as cast stone. They will not take or retain as high a polish as natural marble or granite. They will not last forever, or as long as natural marble or granite. They are not superior to natural marble or granite, or less porous or stronger or more enduring. They are in fact inferior in every particular thereto and will crack, crumble and disintegrate under ordinary weather conditions. A footstone is not given "free" with each order, but the price thereof is included in the price respondent asks for the tombstone or other material and the so-called "free offer" is in fact a continuing combination offer regularly made by respondent.

Respondent's tombstones and other memorials in shape, design, color and appearance simulate memorials carved from natural marble or granite. The pictures of the memorials in respondent's catalogs have the general appearance of natural marble and granite memorials similarly pictured. Nowhere in his advertisements is it disclosed that they are synthetic or cast stone memorials. Purchasers do not usually see samples of them before they are ordered and paid for, all of which, especially in conjunction with the respondent's aforesaid misleading and false statements, is calculated to and has a tendency and capacity to, and does, lead members of the purchasing public to believe respondent's memorials are carved from natural marble or granite.

PAR. 6. Each and all of the false and misleading statements and representations concerning his said products disseminated by respondent as hereinabove set out have, and have had, a tendency and capacity to and do cause a substantial part of the purchasing public to purchase respondent's said products in preference to those of his said competitors. Thus trade in commerce, among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, has been diverted, and is being diverted, unfairly to respondent from his said competitors.

CONCLUSION

The acts and practices of the respondent as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of competitors of the respondent and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondent, testimony and other evidence taken before John W. Addison, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, brief filed in support of the complaint herein, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Roy D. Burnsed, an individual trading as Southern Art Stone Company, or trading under any other name or names, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of imitation marble and granite tombstones and memorials composed of crushed marble, granite or any similar material mixed with cement and other ingredients, in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing that respondent's products are natural marble or granite, or that they will retain as high a polish as marble or granite, or that such products are superior to, or will last longer than natural or ordinary marble or granite.

2. Representing that respondent's products will not crack, crumble or disintegrate from natural causes, or that they are everlasting or will last forever.

3. Using the term "free" or any other term of similar import or meaning to designate, describe or in any way refer to articles of merchandise regularly included in a combination offer with tombstones or other merchandise.

4. Representing that respondent's products are from 33 $\frac{1}{3}$ % to 50% lower in price than similar products of comparable quality and weight sold by respondent's competitors or that they are to any extent lower in price than such products unless and until they are in fact lower to such extent, quality and weight considered.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.

COMPLAINT

The Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that the parties respondent named in the caption hereof, and hereinafter more particularly described, since June 19, 1936, have violated and are now violating the provisions of subsection (c) of section 2 of the Clayton Act as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act, approved June 19, 1936 (U. S. C., title 15, section 13), issues its complaint stating its charges with respect thereto as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent Charles V. Herron is an individual, doing business under the firm name and style of Charles V. Herron Co., a sole proprietorship, and has his principal office and place of business at 101 North Governor Street, Evansville, Ind., and has been prior to June 19, 1936, and is now engaged in the buying and selling, for his own account, of beans, and also engaged in the business of and acting as broker in the sale of foodstuffs, grocery products, canned goods, and allied commodities. Respondent buys, sells, and distributes said commodities in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, causing said commodities to be shipped and transported to him from the various place of business of those from whom respondent purchases said commodities located in States other than the State of Indiana, and sells and distributes the commodities so purchased for his own account in commerce and ships and transports said commodities pursuant to said sales to his customers located in the States of Kentucky, Illinois, and Indiana.

PAR. 2. Respondent Ryon Grain Co. is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Michigan with its principal office and place of business located at 428 Mutual Building, Lansing, Mich., and has been and is engaged in the business of selling and distributing grain and beans in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, causing said grain and beans to be shipped and transported from said place of business in Lansing, Mich., to purchasers thereof located in the various States of the United States for use and resale within said States.

PAR. 3. McLaughlin, Ward & Co. is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Michigan, with its principal office and place of business at 200 East Pearl Street, Jackson, Mich., and has been and is engaged in the sale and distribution of beans and other foodstuffs and allied commodities in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, causing said beans, foodstuffs, and allied commodities to be shipped and transported from its place of business in Jackson, Mich., to purchasers thereof located in the various States of the United States, for use and resale within said States.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of his business as aforesaid since June 19, 1936, respondent Charles V. Herron, trading as Charles V. Herron Co., has been and is now making purchases of beans in commerce from said seller respondents, Ryon Grain Co. and McLaughlin, Ward & Co., which said beans are shipped or caused to be shipped by said seller respondents from the State of Michigan into the State of Indiana and in the course of making said purchases in commerce, for his own account, of said beans from said seller respondents, Ryon Grain Co. and McLaughlin, Ward & Company, said respondent Charles V. Herron, trading as Charles V. Herron Company, has been and is now receiving and accepting from said seller respondents, Ryon Grain Co. and McLaughlin, Ward & Co., and said seller respondents have been and are now making and granting to respondent Charles V. Herron, trading as Charles V. Herron Co., an allowance of 6 cents per bag of beans in lieu of brokerage upon said purchases in commerce from said seller respondents, Ryon Grain Co. and McLaughlin, Ward & Co., for which said allowance upon said purchases so made in commerce no services whatsoever have at any time been rendered or are now being rendered by respondent Charles V. Herron, trading as Charles V. Herron Co.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid acts of the respondents constitute a violation of the provisions of subsection (c) of section 2 of the above mentioned Clayton Act, as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act, approved June 19, 1936 (U. S. C., title 15, section 13).

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of an act of Congress entitled "An act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies and for other purposes," approved October 15, 1914 (the Clayton Act), as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act, approved June 19, 1936 (title 15, section 13), the Federal Trade Commission on October 16, 1939, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon the parties respondent named in the caption hereof, charging them with violating the provisions of paragraph (c) of section 2 of said act as amended. After the issuance and service of said complaint, separate answers on behalf of each of said respondents were filed by their counsel. Thereafter, pursuant to motions filed by each of said respondents through counsel, the Commission entered its order permitting all of said respondents to withdraw the answers theretofore filed by them and to file in lieu thereof substitute answers, which said substitute answers were duly filed by each of said respondents and which said substitute answers admitted all of the material allegations of fact alleged in the complaint to be true, with the exception that each of said answers expressly denied that no services were rendered by said respondent Charles V. Herron, trading as Charles V. Herron Co., to said respondents Ryon Grain Co. and McLaughlin, Ward & Co. upon sales of beans made by said respondents Ryon Grain Co. and McLaughlin, Ward & Co. to said Charles V. Herron, trading as Charles V. Herron Co.

Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and substitute answers filed thereto, and the Commission having fully considered the same and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes the following findings as to the facts and conclusion:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. That respondent Charles V. Herron is an individual doing business under the firm name and style of Charles V. Herron Co., a sole proprietorship, and has his principal office and place of business at 101 North Governor Street, Evansville, Ind., and that he has been, prior to and since June 19, 1936, engaged in the buying and selling of beans for his own account and is also engaged in the business of, and acting as, broker in the sale of foodstuffs, grocery products, canned goods and allied commodities. That respondent buys, sells, and distributes said commodities in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, causing said commodities to be shipped and transported to him from the various places of business of those from whom respondent purchases said commodities located in States other than the State of Indiana, and sells and distributes the commodities so purchased for his own account in commerce, and ships and transports said commodities, pursuant to said sales, to his customers located in the States of Kentucky, Illinois, and Indiana.

PAR. 2. That respondent Ryon Grain Co. is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Michigan and has its principal office and place of business located at 428 Mutual Building, Lansing, Mich., and has been and is engaged in the business of selling and distributing grain and beans in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, causing said grain and beans to be shipped and transported from its said place of business in Lansing, Mich., to purchasers thereof located in the various States of the United States for use and resale within said States.

PAR. 3. That respondent McLaughlin, Ward & Co. is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Michigan with its principal office and place of business at 200 East Pearl Street, Jackson, Mich., and has been and is engaged in the sale and distribution of beans and other foodstuffs and allied commodities in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, causing said beans, foodstuffs, and allied commodities to be shipped and transported from its place of business in Jackson, Mich., to purchasers thereof, located in the various States of the United States, for use and resale within said States.

PAR. 4. That in the course and conduct of his business as aforesaid, since June 19, 1936, respondent Charles V. Herron, trading as Charles V. Herron Co., has been making purchases of beans in commerce from said seller respondents Ryon Grain Co. and McLaughlin, Ward & Co., which said beans are shipped or caused to be shipped by said seller respondents from the State of Michigan into the State of Indiana and that in the course of making said purchases in commerce, for his own account, of said beans from the said seller respondents, Ryon Grain Co. and McLaughlin, Ward & Co., said respondent Charles V. Herron, trading as Charles V. Herron Co., has been, since June 19, 1936, receiving and accepting from said seller respondents, Ryon Grain Co. and McLaughlin, Ward & Co., an allowance of 6 cents per bag of beans in lieu of brokerage upon said purchases in commerce from said seller respondents and said seller respondents, Ryon Grain Co. and McLaughlin, Ward & Co., have been, since June 19, 1936, making and granting to respondent Charles V. Herron, trading as Charles V. Herron Co., an allowance of 6 cents per bag of beans in lieu of brokerage upon such said purchases in commerce from them by said respondent Charles V. Herron, trading as Charles V. Herron Co.

CONCLUSION

All respondents denied, as hereinabove set forth, that no services were rendered by the respondent Charles V. Herron, trading as Charles V. Herron Co., to the seller respondents Ryon Grain Co. and McLaughlin, Ward & Co., but the Commission, on the basis of the facts above found, concludes as a matter of law that no services were rendered by the respondent Charles V. Herron, trading as Charles V. Herron Co., to the aforesaid seller respondents Ryon Grain Co. and McLaughlin, Ward & Co. in connection with purchases made from them by him for his own account and in his own name (Biddle Purchasing Co. v. Federal Trade Commission, 96 F. (2d) 687, certiorari denied 305 U. S. 634; Oliver Brothers v. Federal Trade Commission, 102 F. (2d) 763; The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. v. Federal Trade Commission, 106 F. (2d) 667, certiorari denied January 2, 1940, 308 U. S. 625.<sup>1</sup>

The Commission further concludes that the respondent, Charles V. Herron, trading as Charles V. Herron Co., has violated the provisions of said subsection (c) of section 2 of said statute by receiving and accepting from said seller respondents, Ryon Grain Co. and McLaughlin, Ward & Co. an allowance of 6 cents per bag of beans in lieu of brokerage upon purchases in commerce from said seller respondents, Ryon Grain Co. and McLaughlin, Ward & Co., by said respondent Charles V. Herron, trading as Charles V. Herron Co.

The Commission also concludes that the respondents, Ryon Grain Co. and McLaughlin, Ward & Co., have violated the provisions of said subsection (c) of section 2 of said statute by making and granting to respondent Charles V. Herron, trading as Charles V. Herron Co., an allowance of 6 cents per bag of beans in lieu of brokerage upon sales of beans by them in commerce to said respondent Charles V. Herron, trading as Charles V. Herron Co.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the substitute answers filed herein by the respondents, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion, which findings and conclusion are hereby made a part hereof, that said respondents have violated a provision of an act of Congress entitled "An Act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies and for other purposes," approved October 15, 1914, as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act, approved June 19, 1936 (U. S. C., title 15, section 13).

It is ordered, That respondent Charles V. Herron, trading as Charles V. Herron Co. or in or under any other trade name, his agents, employees, representatives, successors, or assigns, in connection with the purchase by him of beans in interstate commerce, do forthwith cease and desist from receiving or accepting from respondents, Ryon Grain Co. and McLaughlin, Ward & Co., any commission, brokerage or other compensation or any allowance or discount in lieu thereof upon such purchases of beans by said respondent Charles V. Herron outright and for his own account, whether trading under the name Charles V. Herron Co., or in or under any other name.

It is further ordered, That respondents, Ryon Grain Co. and McLaughlin, Ward & Co., and their successors or assigns, their officers, agents, employees, and representatives, in connection with the sale and distribution of beans in interstate commerce, do forthwith cease and desist from making, granting, or allowing, or causing or permitting to be made, granted, or allowed to respondent Charles V. Herron, trading as Charles V. Herron Co., or in or under any other name, or to any agent, employee or representative of his, any commission, brokerage, or other compensation or allowance or discount in lieu thereof upon sales of beans to the said respondent Charles V. Herron, trading as Charles V. Herron Co. or in or under any other name.

It is further ordered, That the respondents shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF
MILTON S. KRONHEIM & SON, INC., ET AL.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3400. Complaint, May 5, 1938—Decision, Feb. 9, 1940

Where five concerns engaged in sale and shipment of alcoholic beverages at wholesale in commerce in the District of Columbia to licensed retail package stores located throughout said District, for resale to ultimate consumers, and in purchasing such beverages from various distillers, sellers, and selling agencies located without such District, and in causing products thus purchased to be shipped into the District from the various States in which said distillers, etc., were located, and, as thus engaged, in substantial competition with others likewise engaged in the wholesaling of alcoholic beverages in commerce in the District aforesaid;

In carrying out and making effective a system or policy of merchandising, which they adopted, established, and maintained, of setting up specified standard and uniform minimum resale prices, discounts and markups at which their said products should be sold at retail, and in the maintenance of which they solicited and secured active support and cooperation of District Retail Liquor Dealers Association, some 175 members of said Association, and secretary thereof, who was its chief administrative officer—

- (a) Entered into unlawful contracts, agreements, and understandings with retail dealers, directly and through instrumentality of their said retail association, and through said wholesalers' own association, with intent of binding such retailers and wholesalers and their said associations to maintenance of said uniform minimum resale prices, discounts, or markups, and in pursuance of aforesaid contracts, etc., and with purpose and effect of obtaining and maintaining fixed uniform minimum resale prices of such beverages sold to and by various retail liquor dealers in such District, unlawfully combined, confederated, and agreed, among themselves and with retail liquor dealer members of said retail association and other retailers, and with retail association itself, to accept, cooperate in, maintain, and enforce the said fixed uniform minimum resale price maintenance system and policy of their said wholesale association and its members; and

Where said wholesale association and wholesalers, and each of them, pursuant to said policy——

- (b) Entered into agreements and understanding with each other and with their respective retail dealer vendees, and with aforesaid retail association, with intent and effect of maintaining specified standard or uniform minimum resale price, discount, and markup at which such alcoholic beverages were to be sold by said wholesalers and resold by retail dealer members of said retail association and others; and

Where said wholesalers, acting directly and through agency of such wholesale association, in attempting to enforce and enforcing resale of such alcoholic beverages at specified standard or uniform minimum resale prices, etc..

as above described, and through combining and agreeing directly and indirectly with various retailers and with said retail association and its members, to do and cause to be done, as case might be, acts and things below described—

- (c) Reinstated as their customers price-cutting retailers whom they had theretofore refused to sell, upon agreement or understanding therewith and with said retail association that suggested minimum resale prices, etc., would thereafter be maintained, and circulated and threatened to circulate among retailers, wholesalers, and distributors of such products reports or lists of those retailers who had cut prices thereon and reports of those wholesalers who had continued to sell such beverages to price-cutting retailers; and
- (d) Secured and endeavored to secure, through contract, agreement, or understanding, active support and cooperation of each one of their own number and of other liquor wholesalers in such District, and of retail dealer members of said retail association and other retailers in such District, and of retail association itself and its said secretary, in carrying out such minimum resale price policy; and

Where said wholesale association, in furtherance of its objectives—

- (e) Sought and secured active support and cooperation of such retail association, retailer members thereof, and its secretary, whereby, under agreements entered into, said retailers were obligated not to sell products purchased from such wholesalers at prices below those given to them by such wholesalers, and to conform to standards and regulations agreed to by both associations, and wholesalers were obligated not to sell to any members of retail association or other retailers who violated provisions of agreement by cutting prices or otherwise, until retailer member had been restored to good standing by such retail association and nonmembers had complied with both associations' requirements to discontinue price cutting; and

Where such wholesalers and their association—

- (f) Engaged in activities directed to securing support and cooperation of distillers in enforcing and carrying out policies and objectives of both associations respecting price maintenance, and under which representatives of their own and distiller missionary representatives and distiller salesmen shopped and policed retailers and reported to wholesalers and retail association results of such activities, and such distillers' representatives participated in meetings of both associations and actively cooperated in aims and objectives thereof and of their members in enforcing price maintenance policy hereinabove described; and

Where said retail association—

- (g) Took steps against several distilling companies which had lowered their prices without notifying such association or members thereof, with result that situations involved were corrected in practically every such instance, and concerned itself also with activities of dealers outside of District and in nearby Virginia, where well-known brands were being sold below prices obtained by dealer members of local association, with intent to bring about markup price by Virginia seller; and

Where said retail association, acting directly and through agency of its retailer members and said secretary thereof, in concert with association and its members—

Complaint

30 F. T. C.

- (h) Unlawfully combined, conspired, confederated and agreed with each other to fix minimum resale prices and markups at which such liquors were to be sold at retail in said District, and combined, conspired, etc., with said wholesale association and its members to accept, cooperate in and enforce such fixed uniform minimum resale price maintenance system or policy as above described; and

Where such retail association and secretary thereof—

- (i) Agreed with each other and with various retail dealer members that (1) retailers' profits should be increased through fixing and maintaining uniform prices for alcoholic beverages, (2) fixed prices on various brands should be maintained between retailer members, (3) products of those wholesalers who permitted their liquors to be sold to price-cutting retailers should be boycotted and threatened therewith, and that (4) only such wholesale dealers in said District as conformed to resale price maintenance policy, formulated and agreed upon as above, should be supplied with alcoholic beverages by distillers, and that through resolutions and joint action of committees distiller sellers and their distributors should be so informed and requested to conform under penalty of concerted boycotts and threats thereof by retailer members, and that (5) wholesalers in District should be notified not to supply any price-cutting retailers under threatened penalty of forfeiture and boycott; and

Where said wholesalers, their association, and such retail association and members thereof and its secretary, pursuant to and in execution of such unlawful combinations, etc., and with intent and effect of making same effective—

- (f) Performed acts and things by each agreed to be done, and appointed committees and joint committees to confer with respective associations and held joint meetings with each other and, through exertion of improper and unlawful pressure, influence, coercion, boycott, and threats thereof, demanded and received from such distiller sellers and distributors outside District, and from each other, adoption, establishment and maintenance of aforesaid and similar systems or policies of merchandising under which standard uniform minimum resale prices, discounts, and markups were fixed at which alcoholic beverages of various distillers should be and were resold by wholesalers and retailers in commerce in such District; and

Where said retail association's secretary, in furtherance and execution of such combinations, etc.—

- (k) Spied upon retailers and reported price cutting, and demanded of distiller sellers and wholesalers herein that they blacklist price cutters, and, as such secretary and individually, sought to and did enforce such demands with boycott and threats thereof upon wholesalers aforesaid, who refused to cooperate fully in maintaining uniform minimum resale prices; and

Where both associations and their members—

- (l) Directed efforts to stop retail price cutting and to prevent wholesalers from making such price cuts possible through deals, discounts and other schemes, permitting offer by retailers of advertised brands below prices obtained by majority of association members, and participated in one another's meetings and exchanged ideas and appointed committees and joint committees directed to bringing about price maintenance policy advocated by both, with result that definite agreement and understanding was reached between the two and their members whereby retail association and members undertook to continue active surveillance, shopping and policing of retail business and to act promptly to correct price cutting by citing offending members to show cause why they should not be expelled, and wholesale association and members agreed that, upon notification from other of citation or expulsion of any retail dealer, they would refuse him further merchandise pending promise of future conformance and reinstatement as member, or promise of conformance if non-member, and with further result that various retailers branded as price-cutters were thereafter refused supplies by said wholesalers; and

Where said retail association and its members—

- (m) Instituted boycott against wholesaler of whom they had theretofore purchased, for sale to cut price liquor store and thereafter refused to purchase from said offender, with result that wholesaler incurred loss of thousands of dollars and valuable special franchise for sale and distribution of all products made and sold by certain company in said District, and considered as best in trade; and

Where two of said wholesalers—

- (n) Advised all retailers in such District by circular letter that they were, in effect, establishing practice under which they would enter into sub-franchise agreements for sale of their products only with those retailers agreeing to respect minimum suggested resale prices named by them therefor, and secured thereby signatures of some 400 retailers to such agreements, and refused further sales to retailers declining thus to obligate themselves, with result that such refusing retailers were not supplied and, in case of one of their number, was unable, by reason of activities aforesaid, to purchase same even from dealer in other city; and

Where members of such wholesale association, following meetings by committees of both and members thereof—

- (o) Deposited with their secretary, and to be held by him, checks for $1,000 each to bind respective members to their agreement and understanding that knowing sale by wholesale dealer member to price-cutting retailer subjected him to forfeiture of said amount or portion thereof; and

Where said retail association and its secretary, as further means of forcing adherence to agreements and understandings between retailers and wholesalers and their associations—

- (p) Employed well-known detective agency to spy upon certain dealers to ascertain whether wholesalers were shipping to cut price retailers, or those alleged to have been cutting prices, in quantities above those agreed upon by the two associations and members thereof, and at prices other than those agreed upon; and

Where such wholesalers, pursuant to their agreements and understandings with retailers and their association and wholesale association—

- (q) Adopted price and discount schedule aimed and intended further to prevent price cutting, and under which provision was made for 1 percent discount on purchase of one case of advertised standard brand whiskies, 2 percent on three-case purchases, and 3 percent on five-case purchases, with latter, limit to be sold to retailer, and which replaced theretofore discounts ranging from 2 to 15 percent on purchases; and
- (r) Furnished to retailers at all times price lists covering products concerned and disclosing suggested resale price per bottle at which retailers, under contracts, etc., entered into by them and their association with wholesalers and their association, were to resell to consumers; and

Where retail and wholesale associations, members of which, but for matters and things herein set out, would be naturally and normally in competition with each other in price and otherwise, and were in competition with others in sale and distribution of such beverages to retailers or consumers, as case might be, in said District—

- (e) Had many meetings and conferences through their respective attorneys with counsel for Distilled Spirits Institute, comprising all distillers in United States, to secure aid in joint endeavor of such associations and members to fix standard minimum resale prices for such products in such District;

With result that capacity, tendency and effect of said agreements, combinations, conspiracies and undertakings, and acts and things performed thereunder, as above set forth, were—

(a) To unreasonably lessen, restrain, stifle, hamper, and suppress competition in said alcoholic beverages, and to deprive wholesale dealers, distributors and retail dealers, and the purchasing public generally, of the advantages in price, service and other considerations which they would receive and enjoy under conditions of normal and unrestricted or free and fair competition in trade in alcoholic beverage business; and otherwise to operate as a restraint upon and a detriment to the freedom of fair and legitimate competition in commerce; and

(b) To prejudice and injure the public, producers of alcoholic beverages, retail dealers, distributors, wholesalers, and others who do not conform to, or cooperate in, the program of said various wholesale and retail concerns, associations and individual, as above set forth:

Held, That such acts and practices of said various wholesale and retail concerns, associations and individual, under the conditions and circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Complaint

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that each and all of the parties named in the caption hereof, hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondents Milton S. Kronheim & Son, Inc., 3301 K Street, NW.; Marvin & Snead Sales Corporation, 219 G Street, NW.; International Distributing Corporation, 917 E Street, NW.; Washington Wholesale Liquor Corporation, 1119 Twenty-first Street, NW.; and Globe Distributing Co., Inc., 2410 Eighth Place, NE., are corporations separately organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the Code of the District of Columbia, with principal office and place of business at the street addresses respectively stated, in the city of Washington, in said District.

Respondent Philip Horwitz and Leon Samet are partners trading under the name and style Roma Wine & Liquor Co., having their place of business at 1006 Fifth Street, NW., in the city of Washington, in the District of Columbia.

Each of the respondents named in paragraph 1 is now, and for more than 1 year last past, has been engaged in selling in commerce in the District of Columbia, beverages at wholesale to licensed retail package stores located throughout the said District, for resale to the ultimate consumer thereof. Said respondents are hereinafter referred to as "respondent wholesalers." Said respondent wholesalers purchase such alcoholic beverages from various distiller sellers and selling agencies located outside of the District of Columbia and upon such purchases being made, cause the same to be shipped into the District of Columbia from the various States of the United States in which said distiller sellers and selling agencies are located. In the course and conduct of their respective businesses as aforesaid, each of the respondent wholesalers is in substantial competition with other corporations, individuals, and partnerships likewise engaged in the wholesaling of alcoholic beverages in commerce in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. Respondent D. C. Exclusive Retail Liquor Dealers Association is an incorporated trade association of retail liquor dealers, located and doing business in the District of Columbia, said corporation having been organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the Code of the District of Columbia, having its office and principal place of business at Room 829, Woodward Building, in the city of Washington, in said District. Said Association has about 150 members, who operate licensed retail stores selling packaged liquors. It is now, and for more than 1 year last has been engaged in attempting to procure national legislation and local regulations by it deemed to be beneficial to its members; in enforcing observance by its members and others of the price maintenance policies as hereinafter described; with respect to the sales of all alcoholic beverages; and in otherwise promoting the common business interests and joint welfare of its respective members for their mutual profit and advantage. This respondent is hereinafter referred to as the "Retail Association."

Respondent Manuel Davis is now, and for more than 1 year last past, has been secretary of D. C. Exclusive Retail Liquor Dealers Association, and is the chief administrative officer of such Association, Manuel Davis, individually, and in his said executive capacity, actively participated in each act and practice hereinafter alleged against the said Retail Association.

PAR. 3. Respondent Wholesale Liquor Dealers of Washington, Inc., is a corporation organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the Code of the District of Columbia, having its office and principal place of business in the Investment Building, at Fifteenth and K Streets, NW., in the city of Washington, in said District. It was organized in 1935 and has a membership of 14 wholesale liquor dealers, including the respondent wholesalers. It is now, and for more than 1 year last past, has been engaged in attempting to procure national legislation and local regulations by it deemed to be beneficial to its members; in enforcing observance by its members and others of the price maintenance policies as hereinafter described, with respect to the sales of all alcoholic beverages; and in otherwise promoting the common business interests and joint welfare of its respective members for their mutual profit and advantage. This respondent is hereinafter referred to as the "Wholesale Association."

PAR. 4. Respondent wholesalers, in the course and conduct of their respective businesses, in order to stabilize and make uniform the resale prices of the products by them and each of them sold, as aforesaid, adopted, established and have maintained a system or policy of merchandising whereby they and each of them fix specified, standard, and uniform resale prices, discounts and "mark-ups" at which said products should be resold at retail, and have solicited and secured the active support and cooperation of retail dealers and of respondent retail association and Manuel Davis, individually and collectively, in the maintenance of said resale prices, discounts and "mark-ups." In order to carry out and make effective said system or policy, said respondent wholesalers have entered into unlawful agreements and understandings with retail dealers directly and through the instrumentality of both the respondent retail association and the respondent wholesale association, purporting to bind said retail dealers and said respondent wholesalers and said respondent associations to the maintenance of said resale prices, discounts and "mark-ups."

Pursuant to such contracts, understandings and agreements, the respondent wholesalers and each of them, acting separately and through the instrumentality of respondent wholesale association, with the purpose and effect of obtaining and maintaining a fixed, uniform, minimum resale price of alcoholic beverages, sold to and by the various retail dealers in the District of Columbia, have unlawfully combined, confederated and agreed among themselves and with said retail liquor dealers, and with respondent retail association, to accept, cooperate in, maintain and enforce the said fixed, uniform, minimum resale price maintenance system and policy of the said respondent wholesale association and its members, hereinafter fully described.

Pursuant to such policy, the respondent wholesalers and each of them have entered into agreements or understandings with each other and with their respective retail dealer vendees and with the respondent retail association, the purpose and effect of which is to maintain a specified, standard or uniform minimum resale price, discount and "mark-up" at which the said alcoholic beverages are to be sold by respondent wholesalers and at which the said alcoholic beverages are to be resold by the retail dealer members of the respondent retail association.

Further pursuant to such policy, acting directly and through the agency of the said respondent wholesale association, the respondent wholesalers herein named have attempted to enforce the resale of said alcoholic beverages at specified, standard or uniform minimum resale prices, discounts of "mark-ups" by, among others, the following methods or means:

1. By reinstating as their customers price-cutting retail dealers whom they have theretofore refused to sell, upon the agreement or understanding with such retail dealers that the suggested minimum resale prices, discounts or "mark-ups" will thereafter be maintained.
2. By circulating and threatening to circulate among retailers, wholesalers and other distributors of alcoholic beverages reports or lists of those retailers who have cut prices on said products, and reports of those wholesalers who have continued to sell alcoholic beverages to retail dealers who have cut prices on said products to a figure below the minimum resale price so fixed.

3. By combining and agreeing, directly and indirectly with various retailers and with the respondent D. C. Exclusive Retail Liquor Dealers Association, to do and to cause to be done the foregoing acts and things.

4. By securing and endeavoring to secure through contract, agreement and understanding, the active support and cooperation of each respondent wholesaler and of other wholesalers of liquor in the District of Columbia, of retail dealer members of the respondent retail association and of other retail dealers in the District of Columbia, individually and collectively, in carrying out the minimum resale price policy aforesaid.

PAR. 5. Pursuant to the policy and system of merchandising hereinbefore described, respondent Milton S. Kronheim & Son, Inc., circulated the retail trade in the District of Columbia, requesting and soliciting all of that respondent's retail customers to enter into signed agreements to maintain the suggested resale prices of respondent Milton S. Kronheim & Son, Inc., and of approximately 400 retailers located in the city of Washington, District of Columbia, as of February 18, 1938, secured the signatures of approximately 392 of such retailers to these agreements, and said respondent refuses to sell any retailer who will not sign such agreement, known and described by respondent as the "Kronheim Franchise Agreement." In soliciting such agreements, respondent stated in part:

Your signature will entitle you to buy our goods and receive our best cooperation. We will promise you not to sell to anyone else who does not agree to the same conditions under which you, and all others who sign, will operate.

We cannot control any other wholesaler's merchandise, but we will control our own to the limit of the law. Unfortunately, some of the laws designed to protect legitimate business are so constructed that they also permit undue freedom to unethical operators. Right now we operate under definite standards. Our franchises from our distillers impose certain obligations which we cannot maintain without the support of the retailers * * *

WE ARE CLOSING OUR OFFICE TOMORROW AND KEEPING IT CLOSED UNTIL OUR SALESMEN HAVE COVERED EVERY "A" LICENSEE IN WASHINGTON.

Upon the obtaining of the retail dealer vendee's signature to such agreement, respondent Milton S. Kronheim & Son, Inc. issued and delivered to such contracting party a lithographed certificate reading as follows:

An Agreement by which
MILTON S. KRONHEIM & SON, INC. awards Sub-Franchise to

-----
For Better Cooperation between Wholesaler and Retailer in the Maintenance of FAIR PRICES AND FAIR TRADE PRACTICES for the Benefit and Protection of the Public and to Maintain the High Standards of the Wine and Spirits Industry

-----
(Proprietor of Licensee)

MILTON S. KRONHEIM. (S).
(MILTON S. KRONHEIM & SON, INC.)

1938

PAR. 6. Pursuant to the policy and system of merchandising hereinbefore described, respondent Globe Distributing Co., Inc., circularized the retail trade in the District of Columbia, requesting and soliciting all of that respondent's retail customers to enter into written agreements to maintain the suggested resale prices of Globe Distributing Company, Inc., and upon the obtaining of the retail dealer vendee's signature to such agreement, this respondent issued and delivered to such contracting party a lithographed certificate of "sub-franchise" identical (except as to the names of the contracting parties) with that issued by respondent Milton S. Kronheim & Son, Inc., described in paragraph 5 hereof.

PAR. 7. Respondent D. C. Exclusive Retail Liquor Dealers Association, acting directly and through the agency of its retail dealer members, and the respondent Manuel J. Davis, individually and as Secretary of said retail association, and each of them, in concert with said association and its said members have unlawfully combined, confederated and agreed with each other to fix uniform resale prices and "mark-ups" at which said liquors are to be sold at retail in the District of Columbia, and have unlawfully combined, confederated and agreed with respondent wholesale association, its members, and with respondent wholesalers to accept, cooperate in and enforce the same fixed uniform minimum resale price maintenance system and policy as fully described in paragraph 4 hereof. And on their part and the part of each of them, respondent retail association and respondent Manuel J. Davis have agreed with each other and with the various retail dealer members of said retail association in substance and effect as follows:

Complaint

30 F. T. C.

1. That the retail dealers' profits should be increased by fixing and maintaining a uniform price for alcoholic beverages.

2. That fixed prices on various brands should be maintained between the retail dealer members of the said respondent retail association.

3. That the products of those wholesalers, including the respondent wholesalers, who have permitted their liquors to be sold to retail dealers known to engage in price-cutting activities, shall be boycotted and threatened with boycott.

4. That only such wholesale liquor dealers in the District of Columbia as conform to the established resale price maintenance policy formulated and agreed upon as aforesaid should be supplied with alcoholic beverages by the distillers thereof and the distributing agencies of such distillers, and that through resolutions, and joint action of committees appointed for that purpose, the various distiller sellers and their distributors should be so informed and requested to conform to such policy, under penalty of concerted boycott and threats of such boycott by the retail dealer members of said retail association.

5. That wholesalers in the District of Columbia, including respondent wholesalers, should be notified not to supply any price-cutting retailers under threatened penalty of forfeiture and boycott.

PAR. 8. Pursuant to and in execution of the aforesaid unlawful combinations, confederacies, and agreements or understandings, and with the purpose and effect of making them effective, the respondent wholesalers, respondent wholesale associations, the respondent retail association, and Manuel J. Davis, and each of them, executed and performed the acts and things by each of them agreed to be done pursuant thereto; appointed committees and joint committees to confer with the respective respondent associations, and held joint meetings with each other, and by means of exerting improper and unlawful pressure, influence, coercion, boycotts, and threats of boycott, demanded and received from the aforesaid distiller-sellers and distributors outside of the District of Columbia, and from each other, the adoption, establishment and maintenance of the aforesaid and similar systems or policies of merchandising, fixing standard, uniform resale prices, discounts and "mark-ups" at which the said alcoholic beverages of the various distiller-suppliers should be and were resold by wholesalers and retail dealers in commerce in the District of Columbia.

The said Manuel J. Davis, in furtherance and execution of said conspiracies, combinations, confederacies and agreements, did spy upon retailers, report price-cutting and make demands upon distiller-sellers and respondent wholesalers that they "black-list" such price-cutters, and acting individually and on behalf of the respondent D. C. Exclusive Retail Liquor Dealers Association, sought to and did enforce such demand with boycotts, and threats of boycott, both upon the said distiller-sellers and the respondent wholesalers, who refused to maintain the uniform, minimum resale prices agreed upon by the members of the said D. C. Exclusive Retail Liquor Dealers Association.

PAR. 9. Respondents, by the aforesaid agreements, combinations, conspiracies, and by the aforesaid acts and practices by them undertaken and done pursuant to such agreements, hindered, obstructed, and restrained commerce in the District of Columbia and the flow of commerce into the District of Columbia, and the direct effect thereof was to suppress competition among wholesalers and retail dealers in the distribution and sale of liquors in the District of Columbia, and to prevent them from selling said liquors at such lower prices as they might deem adequate and warranted by their respective selling costs, and by trade conditions generally, and to deprive the purchasers of said products of the advantages in price which would otherwise obtain from a natural and unobstructed flow of commerce in said products, tending unduly to hinder and suppress competition in the resale of said products in commerce in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 10. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents and each of them as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice of the public and constitute an unfair method of competition and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce, within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on May 5, A. D., 1938, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondents specifically named in the caption hereof, charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of the said act. After the issuance and service of said complaint and the filing of respondents' answers thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of the complaint were introduced by Floyd O. Collins, Esq., and D. T. Puckett, Esq., attorneys for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by Milton W. King, Esq., Manuel J. Davis, Esq., Norman J. Morrison, Esq., John R. Fitzpatrick, Esq., F. Joseph Donohue, Esq., William E. Furey, Esq., Milford F. Schwartz, Esq., Henry M.

Findings

30 F. T. C.

Siegel, Esq., and Hyman M. Goldstein, Esq., all members of the bar of the District of Columbia, attorneys for the respondents, before John J. Keenan, a trial examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and the said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceedings regularly came on or for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, the answers thereto, the testimony and other evidence, briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto, and the oral arguments of counsel aforesaid. And the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondents Milton S. Kronheim & Son, Inc., 3301 K Street, NW.; Marvin & Snead Sales Corporation, 219 G Street, NW.; International Distributing Corporation, 917 E Street, NW.; Washington Wholesale Liquor Corporation, 1119 Twenty-first Street, NW.; and Globe Distributing Company, Inc., 2410 Eighth Place, NE., are, with the exception of the Globe Distributing Company, Inc., all corporations separately organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the Code of the District of Columbia, with principal offices and places of business at the street addresses as stated above, in the city of Washington, in the District of Columbia. The Globe Distributing Company, Inc. (designated in the complaint as a District of Columbia corporation), was organized and exists under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Maryland.

Respondents Philip Hurwitz (named Phillip Horwitz in the complaint), and Leon Samet are copartners trading under the name and style Roma Wine & Liquor Co., having their place of business at 1006 Fifth Street, NW., in the city of Washington, in the District of Columbia.

Each of the above named respondents is now and for more than a year last past has been engaged in selling and shipping alcoholic beverages at wholesale in commerce in the District of Columbia to licensed retail package stores located throughout the said District for resale to the ultimate consumer thereof. Said respondent wholesalers purchased such alcoholic beverages from various distillers, sellers and selling agencies located outside of the District of Columbia and upon such purchases being made, caused the same to be shipped into the said District from the various States of the United States in which said distillers, sellers and selling agencies are located, to said respondent wholesalers in the District of Columbia.

In the course and conduct of their business as aforesaid, each of the respondent wholesalers is in substantial competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships likewise engaged in the wholesaling of alcoholic beverages in commerce in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. Respondent D. C. Exclusive Retail Liquor Dealers Association, organized in 1935, is an incorporated trade association of retail liquor dealers, incorporated, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the Code of the District of Columbia, having its office and principal place of business at Room 829 Woodward Building, in the city of Washington, in said District. Said Association has approximately 175 members who operate licensed retail liquor stores selling packaged liquors. It is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, engaged in attempting to procure national legislation and other regulations by it deemed to be beneficial to its members; in enforcing observance by its members and others of the price maintenance policies as hereinafter described, with respect to the sale of alcoholic beverages; and in otherwise promoting the common business interests and joint welfare of its respective members for their mutual profit and advantage. The officers for 1938, elected at a meeting held on February 3, 1938, at the Hay-Adams House were:

President, William Stein.

2d Vice President, I. Jacobson.

Secretary, Manuel J. Davis.

Sergeant at Arms, J. Abramson.

Each of the retail liquor dealer members of the D. C. Retail Liquor Dealers Association is now and for more than a year last past has been engaged in the sale of alcoholic beverages at retail in commerce in the District of Columbia to consumers of said liquor. The said retail dealer members purchase large quantities of alcoholic beverages from the respondent wholesalers and others in the District of Columbia, and in addition thereto purchase alcoholic beverages from various distillers, and selling agencies located outside the District of Columbia, upon permits secured from the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board of the said District, and upon such purchases being made, cause the same to be shipped into the District of Columbia from the various States of the United States in which said distillers, sellers, and selling agencies are located. In the course and conduct of their respective businesses as aforesaid, each of the retail dealer members of the D. C. Exclusive Retail Liquor Dealers Association, Inc., is in substantial competition with other firms, corporations, individuals, and partnerships likewise engaged in the sale of alcoholic beverages in commerce in the District of Columbia. This respondent is hereinafter referred to as "Retail Association."

PAR. 3. Respondent Manuel J. Davis, (named in the complaint as Manuel Davis) is now, and since its organization, has been secretary and attorney for the said Retail Association, and the chief administrative officer of same. Said Manuel J. Davis, individually and in his said executive capacity, actively participated in each and every act and practice hereinafter set forth.

PAR. 4. Respondent Wholesale Liquor Dealers of Washington (listed in complaint as "Wholesale Liquor Dealers of Washington, Inc."), is a voluntary mutual association organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the Code of the District of Columbia, having its office and principal place of business in the Investment Building, at Fifteenth and K Streets, NW., in the city of Washington, in said District. It was organized in 1935 and at the time of the issuance of the complaint herein had a membership of 14 wholesale liquor dealers, including respondent wholesalers. It is now, and since its organization has been, engaged in attempting to procure national legislation and local regulations by it deemed to be beneficial to its members; and in enforcing observance by its members and others of the price maintenance policies hereinafter described, with respect to the sale of all alcoholic beverages, and otherwise in promoting the common business interests and joint welfare of its respective members for their mutual profit and advantage. It does not have any regularly elected officers, except a secretary, who, as in the Retail Association, is also attorney for the said Association. This respondent is hereinafter referred to as the "Wholesale Association."

PAR. 5. The respondent wholesale dealers, in the course and conduct of their respective businesses, in order to stabilize and make uniform the minimum resale prices of the products by them and each of them sold, as aforesaid, adopted, established, and have maintained a system or policy of merchandising whereby they and each of them set specified standard and uniform minimum resale prices, discounts and "mark-ups," at which said products should be sold at retail by the retail dealers; and have solicited and secured the active support and cooperation of the Retail Association, the retail dealer members thereof and Manuel J. Davis, individually and collectively, in the maintenance of said minimum resale prices, discounts and "mark-ups."

In order to carry out and make effective the said system or policy, the said respondent wholesale dealers have entered into unlawful contracts, agreements and understandings with retail dealers, directly and through the instrumentality of the respondent Retail Association and the respondent Wholesale Association, for the purpose of binding said retailers and said respondent wholesalers and said respondent Associations to the maintenance of the said uniform, minimum resale prices, discounts, or "mark-ups."

Pursuant to such contracts, understandings and agreements the respondent wholesalers, and each of them, acting separately and through the instrumentality of respondent Wholesale Association, and with the purpose and effect of obtaining and maintaining the said fixed uniform, minimum resale prices of alcoholic beverages, sold to and by the various retail liquor dealers in the District of Columbia, having unlawfully combined, confederated, and agreed among themselves and with the said retail liquor dealer-members of the Retail Association, and with other retail dealers and the Retail Association, to accept, cooperate in, maintain and enforce the said fixed uniform, minimum resale price maintenance system and policy of respondent Wholesale Association and its members.

PAR. 6. The said respondent Wholesale Association and respondent wholesalers, and each of them, pursuant to such policy have entered into agreements and understandings with each other and with their respective retail dealer vendees and with respondent Retail Association, the purpose and effect of which is to maintain a specified standard or uniform, minimum resale price, discount and "mark-up" at which said alcoholic beverages are to be sold by respondent wholesalers, and resold by the retail dealer-members of the respondent Retail Association and others.

Further pursuant to such policy, and acting directly and through the agency of the said respondent Wholesale Association, the respondent wholesalers herein named attempted to and did enforce the resale of the said alcoholic beverages at specified standard or uniform minimum resale prices, discounts or "mark-ups," by, among others, the following methods or means:

(a) By reinstating as their customers price-cutting retail dealers whom they have theretofore refused to sell, upon the agreement or understanding with such retail dealers and the Retail Association, that suggested minimum resale prices, discounts or "mark-ups" will thereafter be maintained.

(b) By circulating and threatening to circulate among retailers, wholesalers, and distributors of alcoholic beverages reports or lists of those retail dealers who have cut prices on said products, and reports of those wholesalers who have continued to sell alcoholic beverages to retail dealers who have cut prices on said products to a figure below the minimum resale price so fixed.

(c) By combining and agreeing, directly and indirectly, with various retailers and with respondent Retail Association and its members to do, and to cause to be done, the foregoing acts and things.

(d) By securing and endeavoring to secure through contract, agreement or understanding, the active support and cooperation of each respondent wholesaler and of other wholesalers of liquor in the District of Columbia; of retail dealer-members of the respondent Retail Association and other retail dealers in the District of Columbia, of the Retail Association, and of Manuel J. Davis, individually and as secretary of said Association, and all individually and collectively, in carrying out the minimum resale price policy aforesaid.

PAR. 7. The respondent Wholesale Association, in furtherance of its objectives, sought and secured the active support and cooperation of the respondent Retail Association, the retail dealer-members of said Association, and Manuel J. Davis, individually and as secretary of said Association, whereby agreements were entered into by the terms of which it was agreed that the said retail dealers would not sell their products purchased from respondent wholesalers at prices below the prices given to said retailers by the said respondent wholesalers; that they would conform to standards and regulations agreed to by both Associations; that the wholesale liquor dealers would not sell to any members of the Retail Association or other retail dealers who violate the provisions of the agreement by cutting prices or otherwise until such retail dealer-member is restored to good standing by said Retail Association, and others not members of the Association have complied with the requirements of both Associations to discontinue price cutting.

The respondent wholesalers and respondent Wholesale Association were active in securing the support and cooperation of the distillers in the enforcing and carrying out of the policies and objectives of both Associations respecting price maintenance.

PAR. 8. Representatives of the respondent wholesale dealers and distiller missionary representatives (men employed by the various distilling companies to visit the retail and wholesale trade throughout the United States as good-will representatives who distribute advertising matter and window displays; check all sales and prices obtained for their products by wholesale and retail dealers; adjust differences and complaints, and generally do whatever may be necessary to keep the various dealers favorably disposed toward their products), and salesmen of said distillers shopped and policed the retail dealers, reporting to the respondent wholesale dealers and Retail Association the results of their activities. Said distillers' representatives participated in meetings of both Associations and actively cooperated in the aims and objects of said Associations and members thereof to enforce the price maintenance policy hereinbefore mentioned.

PAR. 9. The respondent Wholesale and Retail Association members constitute a large and important part of the wholesale and retail distributors of alcoholic beverages in the District of Columbia; and such members constitute a group so powerful and influential in the trade as to be able to substantially control and influence the flow of trade and commerce in alcoholic beverages into and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 10. From the inception or organization of the Retail and Wholesale Associations, the said Associations and the dealer-members thereof directed their efforts to bringing about price maintenance. The Retail Association was particularly active, and as early as October 1935, took active steps against several distilling companies, because said companies lowered their prices without notifying the said Association or its members.

Davis, upon direction of the Association, addressed the following letter to the Schenley Products Corporation:

D. C. EXCLUSIVE RETAIL LIQUOR DEALERS ASSOCIATION
829-831 WOODWARD BUILDING
WASHINGTON, D. C.

NOVEMBER 19, 1935.

Mr. LOU ROSENSTEIL,
20 W. 40th Street, New York City, N. Y.

DEAR MR. ROSENSTEIL: The D. C. Exclusive Retail Liquor Dealers Association, at a regular meeting, informed me to send you this letter bearing out the following information:

Schenleys Red Label Whiskey, priced at $1.33 per pint was reduced to $1.19 per pint with no notice given of the contemplated change in price but to a few retailers.

The organization, comprised of one hundred and twenty-three (123) retail package stores out of one hundred seventy-five (175), feel that some definite steps should be taken whereby the respective distillers should take cognizance of the fact that such an organization is in being. Heretofore this organization has co-operated with every distillery desiring co-operation from the retailers. In the past such distilleries as Seagram's and National Distillers have informed us of any change in price or policy. This arrangement annured to the ultimate benefit of both parties concerned. We personally believe that there is no reason in the world why a similar agreement can not be worked out between Schenley Products Corporation and the respective retailers throughout the country.

The notice of a contemplated change in price or policy by the distilleries to the retailer would give the retailer a sufficient amount of time within which to dispose of your goods in the event that you intended to reduce the price.

Findings

30 F. T. C.

Under your present policy the retailer receives no notice of any change in policy or of price.

If your distillery had contemplated to repay the respective retailers the difference in prices to the retailer, such a policy would be equally as agreeable to us. That policy or the one that the Penn-Maryland organization used with us prior to bringing their new "Town Tavern" on the market is equally as agreeable to the retailers. The Penn-Maryland Corporation gave us more than 10 days notice that the age of "Penn-Maryland" would be changed, thereby enabling us to dispose of the younger whiskey on our shelves. In the case of "Old Overholt," the retailer was permitted to exchange the old "Old Overholt" for the new.

There is no reason in the world why the retailer should not be able to work out its problem with the Schenley Products Company in the same manner as it has with other distilleries.

When this industry was still in its infancy and when all the price-cutting was going on in this city, this organization stepped to the front and called in all the distilleries' representatives. If I recall correctly, Mr. Dyer represented your organization and you also sent a man down from New York City to represent your Import Corporation. At this meeting we retailers who sell over eighty percent (80%) of the liquor in package form in the District of Columbia went on record to uphold and maintain the suggested retail prices by the distilleries with the thought in view that it would be properly policed and advertised.

Because of that meeting, we in the District of Columbia enjoy a healthier and more stable liquor trade than practically any city in the country. We police our own members and co-operate with the respective distilleries to the utmost extent.

We want you to feel that this organization is one with whom you can co-operate and who is willing to co-operate with your distillery at all times. Such meetings as the one which I mentioned above should be given your utmost consideration for there is no reason in the wide world why such agreements should not exist between the distiller and some one hundred package stores.

The organization desired that I express their regrets as to the manner in which you handled the situation and are willing to meet you on any working basis to remedy the situation.

Yours very truly,

(Sgd) MANUEL J. DAVIS
Manuel J. Davis.

According to the minutes of meetings of said Retail Association, in practically every instance said Association was successful in bringing about a correction of the situations where distillers reduced a price without consulting the Retail Association. The Association also concerned itself with activities of dealers outside the District of Columbia. The Alexandria State Liquor Store, of Alexandria, Va., was selling well-known brands of liquors at prices below those obtained by the dealer-members of the local Association; Davis, upon instruction of the members, contacted various distillers for the purpose of bringing about a marking-up of price by the Virginia State Store.

PAR. 11. Respondent Retail Association, acting directly and through the agency of its retail dealer-members, and the respondent Manuel J. Davis, individually and as secretary of said Retail Association, and each of them, in concert with said Association and its members, have unlawfully combined, conspired, confederated and agreed with each other to fix uniform, minimum resale prices and "mark-ups" at which said liquors were to be sold at retail in the District of Columbia, and have unlawfully combined, conspired, confederated and agreed with respondent Wholesale Association and its members to accept, cooperate in, and enforce the said fixed uniform, minimum resale price maintenance system or policy as described herein. And, on their part, and on the part of each of them, respondent Retail Association and respondent Manuel J. Davis, individually and as secretary of said Association, have agreed with each other and with the various retail dealer-members of said Retail Association in substance and effect as follows:

1. That the retail dealers' profits should be increased by fixing and maintaining a uniform price for alcoholic beverages.

2. That fixed prices on various brands should be maintained between the retail dealer members of the said respondent Retail Association.

3. That the products of those wholesalers, including the respondent wholesalers, who have permitted their liquors to be sold to retail dealers known to be engaged in price-cutting activities, shall be boycotted and threatened with boycott.

4. That only such wholesale liquor dealers in the District of Columbia as conform to the established resale price maintenance policy formulated and agreed upon as aforesaid should be supplied with alcoholic beverages by the distillers, and that through resolutions, and joint action of committees appointed for that purpose, the various distiller sellers and their distributors should be so informed and requested to conform to such policy, under penalty of concerted boycott and threats of boycott by the retail dealer members of said Retail Association.

5. That wholesalers in the District of Columbia, including respondent wholesalers, should be notified not to supply any price-cutting retailers under threatened penalty of forfeiture and boycott.

PAR. 12. Pursuant to and in execution of the aforesaid unlawful combinations, conspiracies, confederacies, agreements or understandings, and with the purpose and effect of making them effective, the respondent wholesalers, respondent Wholesale Association, respondent Retail Association and its members, and Manuel J. Davis, and each of them, executed and performed the acts and things by each of them agreed to be done pursuant thereto; appointed committees and joint committees to confer with the respective respondent Associations, and held joint meetings with each other, and by means of exerting improper and unlawful pressure, influence, coercion, boycotts, and threats of boycotts, demanded and received from the aforesaid distiller-sellers and distributors outside the District of Columbia, and from each other, the adoption, establishment, and maintenance of the aforesaid and similar systems or policies of merchandising, fixing standard, uniform minimum resale prices, discounts and "mark-ups" at which the said alcoholic beverages of various distillers should be and were resold by wholesalers and retail dealers in commerce in the District of Columbia.

The said Manuel J. Davis, in furtherance and execution of said combinations, conspiracies, confederacies, agreements or understandings, did spy upon retailers, report price cutting and make demands upon distiller-sellers and respondent wholesalers that they "black-list" price-cutters, and acting individually and on behalf of respondent Retail Association, sought to and did enforce such demand with boycotts, and threats of boycott, upon the said respondent wholesalers, who refused to cooperate fully in maintaining uniform minimum resale prices.

PAR. 13. The efforts of both Associations, and their members, were intensified during the Christmas holidays of 1937-38, to stop the cutting of prices by retail dealers, and to prevent wholesalers from making it possible for retail dealers to cut prices by making deals with said retail dealers, giving discounts and by other schemes, which so reduced the prices of standard advertised brands of whiskeys as to permit certain retail dealers to sell said whiskeys at prices below those obtained by a majority of the members of the Retail Association. Officers and members of the Retail Association attended meetings of the Wholesale Association; officers and members of the Wholesale Association attended meetings of the Retail Association and at each and all of these meetings the representatives of the two Associations participated in the business being conducted at said meetings, and put forward their various ideas as to how to accomplish the purpose in mind. Committees and joint committees were appointed by each Association to bring about the price maintenance policy advocated by both Associations.

Pursuant thereto, and as a result of the meetings of the committees and joint committees and other activities, there was finally a definite agreement and understanding between the said Associations and the members thereof whereby the Retail Association and members thereof agreed they would continue the active surveillance, shopping, and policing of the retail business, and take prompt steps to correct the cutting of prices by citing price-cutter members of the said Association to show cause why they should not be expelled from membership in the said Association.

The Wholesale Association and its members agreed that upon notification from the Retail Association of the citation or expulsion of any retail dealer from membership, they would refuse further merchandise to such retail dealer until said retail dealer had, upon promise to maintain prices, been reinstated in the Retail Association, or if said price-cutter was not a member, had promised and agreed to maintain the suggested retail prices. Immediately thereafter, Acme Liquor Store, Famous Brands Liquor Store, Slavitt's Liquor Store, and several others were branded as price-cutters.

PAR. 14. The above named and other retail liquor stores, shortly after these activities and agreements, were refused supplies of whiskey by respondent wholesalers. The said refusals dated from on or about December 24, 1937, to January 20, 1938. After refusal by all of the respondent wholesalers, the Acme Liquor Store, under dates of January 5, 6, 7, and 8, 1938, directed registered letters and telegrams to each of the above named respondent wholesalers, ordering certain well-known advertised brands of whiskey, and all of said wholesalers refused to fill said orders because of Acme Liquor Store price-cutting activities. The same course was followed by the wholesaler respondents with respect to other retail dealers, both members and non-members of the Retail Association.

The above mentioned retail stores, and others, were cited by the Retail Association to show cause why they should not be expelled from membership because of violation of Article V of the Constitution and By-Laws, which provides:

A member is subject to being suspended or expelled for not complying with the regulations and purposes adopted by the Association.

The minutes of meetings and record establish that these dealers were charged with price cutting, and the cited members were refused the right of counsel at said hearings. Several of those cited were expelled from membership in the Retail Association. Those who agreed to abide by the price maintenance system were restored to membership, as is evidenced by the following extract from the minutes of the Retail Association meeting of January 20, 1938:

The said committee (here the reference to the special committee) met in the office of the Association Tuesday, January 11, 1938, 10:00 a. m., at which it heard the statements made by Mr. Wilner, Famous Brands Liquor Store. Mr. Wilner admitted the fact that he had cut prices, but attempted to justify his acts by stating that he was meeting competition from several dealers whom he named. To summarize Mr. Wilner's statements and testimony would be to state that Mr. Wilner assured the committee that he was more than willing to abide by the Constitution and By-Laws of the Association and support any resolution that it adopted in the interest of licensees. He was more than willing to maintain suggested prices, and in fact would do so whether the Association caused his suspension from its presence or not. He now felt that the Association was sincere in its efforts to see that suggested prices were maintained, and that they now can call upon him to do his share.

Mr. Wilner further volunteered to remove his electric sign which he had in his window, "We will not knowingly be undersold."

PAR. 15. About this time respondent Globe Distributing Co., Inc. sold liquor to a cut-price liquor store. A boycott was instituted against the said company by the Retail Association and its members, and practically every member of the Retail Association who theretofore had purchased liquors from the Globe Distributing Co., Inc. refused to purchase any merchandise from said company resulting in the loss of many thousands of dollars and also a very valuable special franchise held by the Globe Distributing Co., Inc., as the agent for the sale and distribution of all alcoholic beverages manufactured and sold by the National Distilling Co. in the District of Columbia. (This contract is considered the best in the trade.)

PAR. 16. Soon thereafter, to wit, January 11, 1938, Milton S. Kronheim & Son, Inc., forwarded to every retail dealer in the District of Columbia a circular letter in which, among other things, the following statements were made:

* * * Tomorrow, or as soon as possible, you will be offered a Kronheim franchise agreement. You will be asked to sell our brands on a basis of fair practices and fair prices. Your signature will entitle you to buy our goods and receive our best cooperation. We will promise you not to sell anyone else who does not agree to the same conditions under which you, and all others who sign, will operate.

We cannot control any other wholesaler's merchandise, but we will control our own to the limit of the law. Unfortunately, some of the laws designed to protect legitimate business are so constructed that they also permit undue freedom to unethical operators. Right now we operate under definite standards. Our franchisees from our distillers impose certain obligations which we cannot maintain without the support of the retailers.

Therefore our sub-franchise agreements will be obtainable only by retailers whose business standards enable us to maintain our own standards. This agreement will protect us as wholesalers, you as a retailer and allow the consumer to buy at a fair price. Anything that will accomplish all three points is worthy of your support. Anything that does otherwise should not interest you.

When our salesman calls upon you, please give him your sincere attention, and sign the agreement with the assurance that it means better business for you.

Following this, and bearing the same date, a contract was distributed to all of the retailers in the said District. This contract provided as follows:

You are hereby designated by Milton S. Kronheim & Son, Inc., as distributor in the District of Columbia of our imported and domestic wines and liquors, a list of which is hereto attached, for a term to begin upon the acceptance by you of the terms of this letter, signified by your signature upon the enclosed duplicate copy, and to continue until terminated upon notice by one party to the other.

#2. During the term of this agreement you agree to use your best efforts and all your facilities in actively promoting the sale of our products.

#3. You agree not to advertise or sell our products in any way that violates the spirit or letter of the local A. B. C. Board laws.

#4. You agree to maintain the suggested consumer prices of Milton S. Kronheim & Son, Inc., as given the 12th day of January, subject to change at all times with due notice.

#5. You will at all times carry floor stocks in reasonable amount of the brands of Milton S. Kronheim & Son, Inc., enumerated in the lists submitted to you.

#6. This agreement shall be subject to cancellation by us without notice if your bills are not paid when due and shall be automatically terminated in the event of your bankruptcy, insolvency, receivership or liquidation.

#7. It is further agreed that we shall cooperate with you in every way, with every facility of our organization, in the interest of the public, the liquor industry, and you.

Findings

30 F. T. C.

Approximately 400 retail dealers signed this contract. If a retail dealer refused to sign the said contract or said franchise agreement and contract, he would not be supplied with alcoholic beverages. As an instance of the effect of retailers refusing to sign the franchise agreement, Kronheim's letter of January 25, 1938, to Luther A. Butler, liquor dealer, 1829 Columbia Road, NW., Washington, D. C., is an example. In this letter Kronheim states as follows:

I am very sorry that you have not signed our dealer franchise agreement.

We have always enjoyed doing business with you. You have been one of our valued accounts and it has been for just such accounts as yours our "dealer franchise" was originated. Three hundred eighty-two of the four hundred package stores have signed this agreement. Three hundred eighty-two licensed dealers can't be wrong. Our plan has been received by them with a great deal of enthusiasm. Other plans and other ideas have failed, and this might be the one effective idea to bring order to a disorganized business.

We hope you will give it a little further thought and get on our bandwagon. We need your support and we are most anxious for your business.

I assure you that it is not our purpose to be arbitrary in this matter—but we simply are trying to promote an idea that will insure legitimate profits for you and the rest of our customers.

Respectfully,

MILTON S. KRONHEIM & SON, INC.

(sgd.) BERNARD COHEN.

Butler refused to sign the contract and thereafter could secure no merchandise from Kronheim or others. As a result of which, Butler secured from the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board of the District of Columbia permits to purchase his requirements from without the District. He attempted to secure same from Pierce & Hebnér, of Baltimore, Md. The franchise agreements between the wholesalers and retailers and their respective Association's activities were in some manner brought to the attention of the Baltimore wholesaler who had contacted Kronheim and other wholesale dealers of the District of Columbia, following which, Pierce & Hebnér refused to ship the merchandise for which said Pierce & Hebnér had accepted Butler's check for $548.15. Their refusal was brought to the notice of Butler by their letter of March 28, 1938, as follows:

PIERCE AND HEBNÉR

WINES AND LIQUORS

BALTIMORE, MD.

MAR. 28, 1938.

BUTLER'S BEER & LIQUOR STORE

GENTLEMEN: It is with great regret that I am returning to you the enclosed check and District of Columbia permits #8928 and #8930.

We certainly hope you appreciate the situation, as we would like to take care of this business for you. However, the various developments in the past few days would make it extremely embarrassing if this business were handled as outlined in your letter.

Without going further into the matter the writer is quite sure you will understand the factors which have governed this decision.

With kindest regards, we are,
Sincerely,

PAR. 17. Two days after the issuance of the contracts, circulars and franchise agreements by respondent Milton S. Kronheim & Son, Inc., the Globe Distributing Co., Inc., issued identical circulars, agreements, and franchises, which were signed by approximately the same number of retailers as had signed the Kronheim agreements.

PAR. 18. In addition to the above, and during the time which these latter activities were taking place, and following meetings by committees of both Associations and members thereof, the members of the Wholesale Association, at a meeting in the office of Milford Schwartz, on or about January 8, 1938, each deposited a check for $1,000.00, the money to be held by Mr. Schwartz for the purpose of binding each member to adhere to their agreement and understanding that if a wholesale dealer-member of the Wholesale Association sold knowingly to price-cutting retailers his $1,000.00, or a portion thereof, was subject to forfeiture.

PAR. 19. As a further means of forcing adherence to the agreements and understandings between the retailers and the wholesalers and their Associations, the Burns Detective Agency was employed by the Retail Association and Manuel J. Davis, to spy upon certain dealers for the purpose of ascertaining whether wholesalers were shipping to cut-price retail dealers or those alleged to have been cutting prices, in quantities above that which had been agreed upon by the two associations and members thereof, and at prices other than agreed-upon prices. When Davis was called upon for a copy of the agreement between his Association and the Burns Detective Agency, he at first stated that he had no agreement, and later admitted that there were some memoranda, but that he or his Association never retained any such matter in the files. This was after denial by Davis that the said spying by the Detective Agency was for the purpose of checking on price cutters. The evidence, however, discloses the purpose of this spying, as is shown by Commission's Exhibit 41-A, a copy of the work journal of the Burns Detective Agency concerning this employment deal, dated December 22, 1937, upon which the following statement is found:

Client desires us to check the liquor deliveries to four retail stores for three days. This check is to cover ten hours time a day and client desires the number of cases, brands, and identity of the house or firm making the delivery.

PAR. 20. Beginning on or about December 24, 1937, the respondent wholesale dealers, pursuant to their agreements and understandings with the retail dealers and Retail Association and Wholesale Association, adopted a price and discount schedule aimed and intended to further prevent any price cutting. This agreement provided for the allowance of 1 percent discount on the purchase of one case of advertised standard brand whiskeys, 2 percent on three-case purchases, and 3 percent on five-case purchases. The limit to be sold the retail dealer was five cases. These discounts replaced discounts ranging from 2 percent to 15 percent theretofore allowed on purchases.

PAR. 21. At all times, the wholesale dealers furnished to the retail dealers certain price lists covering spirits, wines, and liquors, disclosing the per case price, and the wholesalers suggested resale price per bottle, the latter being the price at which the retailer, under the contracts, agreements and understandings entered into by them and their Association with the wholesalers and the Wholesale Association, was to resell to consumers.

PAR. 22. The Retail Association and the Wholesale Association, through their attorneys Manuel J. Davis and Milford Schwartz, had many meetings and conferences with the counsel for the Distilled Spirits Institute—an organization composed of all of the distillers in the United States—for the purpose of securing aid in the joint endeavor of their Associations and members to fix standard, minimum resale prices for alcoholic beverages in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 23. In the course and conduct of their respective businesses, respondent wholesale dealers, but for the matters and things herein set out, would be naturally and normally in competition with each other, in price and otherwise, and they are in competition with other individuals, partnerships and corporations also engaged in the sale and distribution in commerce of alcoholic beverages to retail dealers in the District of Columbia.

In the course and conduct of their respective businesses, the members of the respondent Retail Association, but for the matters and things herein set out, would be naturally and normally in competition with each other, in price and otherwise, and they are in competition with other individuals, partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution in commerce of alcoholic beverages to the consumers thereof in said District.

PAR. 24. The capacity and tendency and effect of said agreements, combinations, conspiracies and undertakings, and the acts and practices performed thereunder by the said respondents, as herein set forth, have been, and now are:

(a) To unreasonably lessen, restrain, stifle hamper, and suppress competition in said alcoholic beverages, and to deprive wholesale dealers, distributors and retail dealers, and the purchasing public generally, of the advantages in price, service and other considerations which they would receive and enjoy under conditions of normal and unrestricted or free and fair competition in trade in alcoholic beverage business; and otherwise to operate as a restraint upon and a detriment to the freedom of fair and legitimate competition in commerce.

(b) To prejudice and injure the public producers of alcoholic beverages, retail dealers, distributors, wholesalers, and others who do not conform to, or cooperate in, the program of respondents.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents herein, under the conditions and circumstances set forth in the foregoing findings of facts are all to the prejudice of the public and respondents' competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answers of respondents, testimony and other evidence taken before John J. Keenan, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint, and in opposition thereto, briefs filed herein and oral arguments by Floyd O. Collins and DeWitt T. Puckett counsel for the Commission, and by Milton W. King, counsel for the respondents Manuel J. Davis, and D. C. Exclusive Retail Liquor Dealers Association. Norman J. Morrison, counsel for the respondent International Distributing Corporation, John R. Fitzpatrick, counsel for the respondent Washington Wholesale Liquor Corporation, F. Furey, counsel for respondent Marvin & Snead Sales Corporation, Milford Schwartz, counsel for respondent Wholesale Liquor Dealers of Washington, Henry M. Seigal, counsel for respondents Philip Hurwitz and Leon Samet, individually and as copartners trading under the name and style Roma Wine and Liquor Co., Hyman M. Goldstein, counsel for respondent Globe Distributing Co., Inc., and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent wholesalers, Milton S. Kronheim & Son, Inc., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, Marvin & Snead Sales Corporation, a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, International Distributing Corporation, a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents and employees, Globe Distributing Company, Inc., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents and employees, Philip Hurwitz and Leon Samet, individually, and as partners trading under the name and style Roma Wine & Liquor Co., their representatives, agents, and employees, Washington Wholesale Liquor Corporation, a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, and the respondent Wholesale Liquor Dealers of Washington, an unincorporated association of wholesale liquor dealers, its members, officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the sale and offering for sale of whiskies, wines, and other alcoholic beverages in the District of Columbia, and in connection with the shipment of whiskies, wines and other alcoholic beverages into the District of Columbia for resale therein, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Entering into or enforcing the provisions of any contract, agreement or understanding, verbal or written, with any retail dealer, jobber or wholesaler, distiller or other distributor of alcoholic beverages, the purpose or effect of which is to maintain a specified standard or uniform minimum resale price discount or "mark-up" at which whiskies, wines or other alcoholic beverages are to be sold by such retail dealers, jobbers, wholesalers or distributors.

2. Enforcing or attempting to enforce the maintenance of standard or uniform minimum resale prices, discounts or "mark-ups" by any of the following methods or means:

- (a) Collectively refusing to sell or threatening to refuse to sell whiskies, wines or other alcoholic beverages to price cutting retail dealers.

- (b) Reinstating as their customers price cutting retail dealers, whom they have therefore refused to sell, upon an agreement or understanding with such retail dealers that such suggested minimum resale prices, discounts or "mark-ups" will thereafter be maintained.

- (c) Circulating and threatening to circulate among retail dealers, wholesalers and other distributors of whiskies, wines and alcoholic beverages reports or lists of those retail dealers who have cut prices on said products and reports of wholesalers who have given discounts greater than those agreed upon and reports of those wholesalers who have continued to sell alcoholic beverages to retail dealers who have cut prices on said products to a price below the minimum resale price so fixed.

(d) Combining and agreeing directly or indirectly with distillers, retail dealers or with the D. C. Exclusive Retail Liquor Dealers Association to do or cause to be done any of the foregoing acts or things.

(e) Securing and endeavoring to secure through contracts, agreements or understandings the active support and cooperation of respondent wholesalers or other wholesale liquor dealers or distillers or of respondent D. C. Exclusive Retail Liquor Dealers Association or retail dealer members of said respondent Association or of respondent Manuel J. Davis, or of other retail dealers in the District of Columbia individually or collectively in carrying out the minimum resale price policy aforesaid.

It is further ordered, That the respondents D. C. Exclusive Retail Liquor Dealers Association, a corporation, its members, officers, agents, servants, or employees, and Manuel J. Davis, individually and as secretary of said D. C. Exclusive Retail Liquor Dealers Association, in connection with the sale and offering for sale of whiskies, wines and other alcoholic beverages in the District of Columbia and in connection with the shipment of whiskies, wines and other alcoholic beverages into the District of Columbia for resale therein do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Entering into or enforcing the provisions of any contract, understanding or agreement, either verbal or written, with any retail dealer, jobber, distiller, wholesaler, or other distributor of alcoholic beverages in the District of Columbia, the purpose and effect of which is to maintain a specified standard or uniform minimum resale price, discount or "mark-up" at which said alcoholic beverages are to be re-sold by such retail dealers, jobbers, wholesalers or other distributors.

2. Enforcing or attempting to enforce the maintenance of standard or uniform minimum resale prices, discounts or "mark-ups" by any of the following methods or means:

- (a) Boycotting or threatening to boycott any wholesaler, distiller, jobber, retail dealer or other distributor of alcoholic beverages for selling such merchandise to retail dealers known to engage in price cutting activities.

- (b) Notifying or threatening to notify the wholesalers in the District of Columbia, including respondent wholesalers, not to sup-

IN THE MATTER OF
AFFILIATED PRODUCTS, INC.COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914*Docket 3734. Complaint, Mar. 9, 1939—Decision, Feb. 14, 1940*

Where corporation engaged as business successor in selling and distributing under various names, including names "Edna Wallace Hopper's Special Restorative Cream" and "Edna Wallace Hopper's White Youth Pack (Clay)," cosmetics to customers in other States, in active and substantial competition with others engaged in sale and distribution of cosmetics in such commerce and including many who do not misrepresent the character or effectiveness of their said products; in (1) advertisements which it disseminated through newspapers and periodicals of general circulation in and through the various States and through broadcasts from radio stations of extra-state audience, and which, prepared, placed and contracted for by its business predecessor and running or in press on date of its acquisition of business it continued and employed for a time, and in (2) advertisements which it thereafter disseminated through radio continuities, street and sub-way car cards and retail store window displays—

- (a) Made use of word "restorative" in designating and referring to its said Edna Wallace Hopper's Special Restorative Cream and represented, as case might be, directly or by implication that its said product was a discovery of a great French scientist or famous beauty expert which would rejuvenate the skin and restore the oils of youth and a youthful appearance to skin discolored by the natural consequences of age and would make user's face appear ten years younger than it was and keep skin young and prevent and erase wrinkles and age lines, facts being said cream was not such a discovery but was made from a formula developed by a cosmetician and graduate chemist, and would not rejuvenate skin or accomplish other results claimed therefor as above set forth; and
- (b) Represented and implied that its said Edna Wallace Hopper's White Youth Pack (Clay) was of French origin and a preparation which would cause the blood to nourish and revive the skin, and would remove blackheads and eliminate enlarged pores, facts being said White Youth Pack was not of French origin and would not cause blood to nourish and revive skin, and, while it might loosen and aid in removal of blackheads, would not itself thus remove such defects nor eliminate enlarged pores;

With effect of misleading and deceiving substantial portions of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that such false statements, representations and advertisements were true, and with result as consequence thereof that number of consuming public purchased substantial volume of its product and trade in commerce was diverted unfairly to it from those competitors who truthfully advertise their respective products and effectiveness thereof; to the injury of competition in commerce:

Mr. Simon Michelet, of Washington, D. C., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that the Affiliated Products, Inc., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as the respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Affiliated Products, Inc., is a corporation created and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Illinois, with its office and principal place of business located at 257 Cornelison Avenue, Jersey City, N. J.

PAR. 2. Respondent, on January 8, 1936, purchased the business formerly conducted by Edna Wallace Hopper Inc., including its physical assets, good will and trade marks and since January 8, 1936, has been engaged in the sale and distribution of a line of cosmetics under various names, among which are "Edna Wallace Hopper's Special Restorative Cream" and "Edna Wallace Hopper's White Youth Pack (Clay)." The respondent causes said products when sold to be transported from its place of business in the State of New Jersey to its customers located in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondent maintains and at all times mentioned herein has maintained a course of trade in said cosmetics in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of its business respondent is in active and substantial competition with other corporations and with partnerships and individuals engaged in the sale and distribution of cosmetics in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business the respondent has disseminated and is now disseminating and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of false advertisements concerning its said products by the United States mails, by insertion in newspapers and periodicals having a general circulation and also in circulars and other printed or written matter, all of which are distributed in commerce among and between the various States of the United States; and by continuities broadcast from radio stations which have sufficient power to and do convey the programs emanating therefrom to listeners located in various States of the United States other than the State in which said broadcasts originate and by other means in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, for the purpose of inducing and which are likely to induce directly or indirectly the purchase of its said products; and has disseminated and is now disseminating and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of false advertisements concerning its said products by various means for the purpose of inducing and which are likely to induce directly or indirectly the purchase of its said products in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act. Among and typical of false statements and representations contained in said advertisements concerning Edna Wallace Hopper's Special Restorative Cream, disseminated and caused to be disseminated as aforesaid, are the following:

HERE'S WAY TO LOOK HALF YOUR AGE

I am past sixty, says Edna Wallace Hopper, yet boys scarcely above college age often try to flirt with me. I've been booked from one theatre to the other as "The one woman in the world who never grew old." People can't believe I'm over thirty. At a grandmother's age, I still enjoy all the thrills of youth.

Now let me tell you how I do it. Follow it and I promise if you're 50, you'll look 40. If you're 40, you'll look 30. And if you're 30, you'll gain back the skin of eighteen. Women I've given it to, call it a miracle—say it takes 10 years from the face in 10 minutes.

It is the discovery of a Famous French Scientist, who startled the cosmetic world by discovering that the Oils of Youth could be artificially re-supplied to the skin of fading women. He found that after 25, most women were deficient in certain youth oils. Oils that kept the skin free of age lines and wrinkles. And then, by a notable scientific discovery, he found a way to re-supply the skin daily with these oils.

This method puts those oils back in your skin every day. Without them you are old. With them you are young—alluring, charming.

* * * * *

Your skin will absorb every bit of it—literally drink in the youth oils it contains. It's one of the most amazing demonstrations in scientific youth restoration known. Lines and hollow places soon go. You look years younger after the first treatment. Youth and allure come back. At over 60—I am living proof.

* * * * *

It was developed by one of the most celebrated beauty scientists, Dr. Bonaventura Pacini, whose cosmetic creations have contributed so much to the beauty of women the world over. This particular method of skin lubrication Dr. Pacini calls Edna Wallace Hopper's Special Restorative Cream. * * *

Among and typical of the false statements and representations contained in said advertisements concerning Edna Wallace Hopper's White Youth Pack (Clay) disseminated and caused to be disseminated as aforesaid, are the following:

HERE'S WAY TO REDUCE ENLARGED PORES QUICKLY

Relieve Blackheads, Too

A method that's amazingly effective, and will leave your skin clear, glowing . . . even in a close-up.

Countless young women are asking how to relieve blackheads and reduce large pores.

The answer is, "Purge the pores." Use a laxative on your skin just as you would a laxative on your system. Maybe most of you didn't know you could do this. You're surprised such a thing can be done. But it can. And very simply and quickly.

You use Edna Wallace Hopper's White Youth Pack (Clay). The very same kind of a pack that women in Paris through the beauty salons to get because of the way it transforms their skin.

Hopper's White Youth Pack quickens the circulation, brings the blood surging to the skin to nourish and revive it. Old dead skin is removed, giving you a new velcety complexion . . . vitally alive and healthy.

You'll be thrilled at the new smoothness and lovely texture of your skin. Dirt and impurities which clog the pores are drawn out of all the hidden places where blemishes usually start. Blackheads are loosened and after a few treatments even the most stubborn ones are easily removed. Enlarged pores are reduced to normal.

* * * * *

It's a special White Youth Pack called Edna Wallace Hopper's White Youth Pack. And, it does what famous beauty scientists agree must be done to loosen blackheads and help reduce enlarged pores. For it cleanses the pores. Taking OUT of the skin the things that should not be there . . . the very accumulations that clog the pores and that cause so many imperfections and unattractive complexions.

* * * * *

And after even one treatment you'll be amazed to see how it loosens blackheads so they are easily removed and how wonderfully it treats enlarged pores.

PAR. 5. Through the use of the word "Restorative" as part of the name of its preparation and the use of the statements and representations hereinabove set forth, and others similar thereto not specifically set out herein, all of which purport to be descriptive of respondent's preparations and their effectiveness in use, respondent has represented and does now represent, directly and indirectly, that its preparation "Edna Wallace Hopper's Special Restorative Cream" is a discovery of a great French scientist or a famous beauty expert which will rejuvenate the skin and restore the oils of youth and youthful appearance to skins disfigured by the natural consequences of age; that it will take 10 years off the user's face and that it will keep the skin young and will prevent or erase wrinkles and age lines. By the same means respondent represents that its preparation "Edna Wallace Hopper's White Youth Pack (Clay)" is a preparation of French origin which will cause the blood to nourish and revive the skin, and that it will remove blackheads and enlarged pores.

PAR. 6. The aforesaid representations and claims used and designated by the respondent, as hereinabove described, are grossly exaggerated, misleading, and untrue. In truth and in fact, respondent's preparation "Edna Wallace Hopper's Special Restorative Cream" is not a discovery of a great French scientist or a famous beauty expert, and will not rejuvenate the skin, restore the oils of youth or youthful appearance to skins disfigured by the natural consequences of age. Its use will not take 10 years, or any number of years, off the user's face. Said preparation will not keep the skin young and will not prevent or erase wrinkles and age lines.

Respondent's preparation "Edna Wallace Hopper's White Youth Pack (Clay)" is not of French origin and will not cause the blood to nourish and revive the skin. This preparation will not remove blackheads and enlarged pores.

PAR. 7. The use by the respondent of the foregoing false, deceptive, and misleading statements, representations and advertisements in designating and describing its said products and their effectiveness when used, as hereinbefore alleged, has had and now has a tendency and capacity to and does mislead and deceive a substantial number of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such false statements, representations and advertisements are true. As a result of such erroneous and mistaken belief, a number of the consuming public have purchased a substantial volume of respondent's said products with the result that trade in said commerce has been diverted unfairly to the respondent from its competitors who truthfully advertise their respective products and the effectiveness thereof when used, and thereby injury has been done and is now being done by respondent to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on March 9, 1939, issued its complaint in this proceeding and thereafter served the same upon the respondent, Affiliated Products, Inc., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On April 17, 1939, the respondent filed its answer in this proceeding. Thereafter, a stipulation was entered into whereby it was stipulated and agreed that a statement of facts signed and executed by the respondent by its counsel, Simon Michelet, and W. T. Kelley, Chief Counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, subject to the approval of the Commission, might be taken as the facts in this proceeding and in lieu of testimony in support of the charges stated in the complaint or in opposition thereto and that the said Commission might proceed upon said statement of facts to make its report stating its findings as to the facts and its conclusion based thereon and enter its order disposing of the proceeding without the presentation of argument or the filing of briefs. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, answer and stipulation. Said stipulation having been approved, accepted and filed, and the Commission having duly considered the same and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes its findings as to the facts and conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Affiliated Products, Inc., is a corporation, created and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Illinois with its office and principal place of business located at 257 Cornelison Avenue, Jersey City, N. J.

Respondent, since April 13, 1936, has been engaged in the sale and distribution of cosmetics under various names, among which are "Edna Wallace Hopper's Special Restorative Cream" and "Edna Wallace Hopper's White Youth Pack (Clay)." The respondent causes said products when sold to be transported from its place of business in the State of New Jersey to its customers located in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains and at all times mentioned herein has maintained a course of trade in said cosmetics in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

On or about the 13th day of April, 1936, respondent acquired said business, including the assets, trade-marks and good will appurtenant thereto, from its predecessors through an outright purchase and for a substantial consideration. Respondent has and had no connection, directly or indirectly, before, on or after the date of said acquisition with respondent's said predecessors.

In the course and conduct of its business respondent is in actual and substantial competition with other corporations and with partnerships and individuals engaged in the sale and distribution of cosmetics in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, many of whom do not misrepresent the character or effectiveness in use of their respective products.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business it has been and is the practice of the respondent to solicit purchasers for its cosmetics including "Edna Wallace Hopper's Restorative Cream" and "Edna Wallace Hopper's White Youth Pack (Clay)," and to offer said products for sale and sell them by means of advertisements in newspapers and magazines of general circulation in and through the various States of the United States, and by means of radio continuities broadcast from radio stations which have sufficient power to, and do, convey the programs emanating therefrom to listeners located in various States of the United States other than the State in which said broadcasts originate. Prior to the date of acquisition of said business by respondent, respondent's predecessors solicited purchasers of said cosmetics by similar methods. At the time of the acquisition of said business by respondent, respondent's predecessors had prepared, contracted for and placed certain advertising copy for said cosmetics which was running or in press on said date. Among and typical of statements and representations contained in said advertisements concerning "Edna Wallace Hopper's Restorative Cream" disseminated and caused to be disseminated by respondent's predecessors, are the following:

HERE'S WAY TO LOOK HALF YOUR AGE

I am past sixty, says Edna Wallace Hopper, yet boys scarcely above college age often try to flirt with me. It was developed by one of the most celebrated beauty scientists, Dr. Bonaventura Pacini, whose cosmetic creations have contributed so much to the beauty of women the world over. This particular method of skin lubrication Dr. Pacini calls Edna Wallace Hopper's Special Restorative Cream. . .

Advertisements containing the above and similar statements and representations continued to appear for a few months during the remainder of 1936, and were employed and sponsored by respondent, subsequent to the acquisition of said business by respondent, said advertising having been placed and contracted for prior to the date of said acquisition. No advertising containing said statements has been used by respondent since December 1936, and since February 1937, the only advertising disseminated by respondent has been in the form of radio continuities, street and subway car cards and retail store window displays. Among and typical of statements and representations contained in said advertisements concerning "Edna Wallace Hopper's Special Restorative Cream", disseminated and caused to be disseminated by respondent since its acquisition of said business as aforesaid are the following:

Not only Helen Trent but women the world over are making their life from thirty-five on, glamorous and romantic. And if you are over thirty-five and have that sinking feeling which comes to every woman when she sees that her skin is losing freshness, looks tired and drawn, here's the message this program brings: If you want to keep yourself lovely-looking . . . you must have a beautiful skin—a skin of romance!

And there is a way for every woman to have a more beautiful skin. So, if your skin is drawn, fagged or tired looking, you'll be delighted to know about it.

It is one of the most important of all the marvelous contributions to creating beauty science that the well-known beauty scientist, Dr. Bonaventura Pacini, has made. It is called Edna Wallace Hopper's Special Restorative Cream. And, is based on a most effective method of skin lubrication.

You use it daily to oil, lubricate and freshen your skin. Apply it just as you would cold cream but don't remove it immediately. Let it remain on your skin for at least ten minutes. Feel the pleasant sensation the delicate lubricating oils have on the skin. And, when you remove it, you'll be delighted with the way your skin looks, glowing, fresh and radiant. And it will feel firmer * * * softer * * *.

The years from thirty-five onwards are often a new romantic age, for women who have the irresistible appeal of the "skin of romance." You can get Edna Wallace Hopper's Special Restorative Cream at all cosmetic counters and at a price every woman can afford.

If that dreaded "faded" look is beginning to rob you of charm and appeal * * * that look that comes when your skin is drawn or tired * * * begin today to use Edna Wallace Hopper's Special Restorative Cream. It is an amazing method of skin lubrication and you use it daily to oil, lubricate and freshen your skin. Your skin will have a glow, a radiance that gives to any woman or girl a loveliness beyond words. That brings compliments and may perhaps bring the things you long for most * * * romance, happiness * * * success.

Among and typical of the statements and representations contained in said advertisements concerning "Edna Wallace Hopper's White Youth Pack (Clay)" disseminated and caused to be disseminated by respondent as aforesaid are the following:

PAR. 3. Through the use of the statements and representations hereinabove set forth and others similar thereto not specifically set out herein, used in connection with respondent's product, Edna Wallace Hopper's Special Restorative Cream, and the use of the word "Restorative" in said trade name, all of which purport to be descriptive of respondent's said preparation, Edna Wallace Hopper's Special Restorative Cream, and its effectiveness in use, respondent has represented and is now representing, directly and by inference, that its said preparation, Edna Wallace Hopper's Special Restorative Cream, is a discovery of a great French scientist or a famous beauty expert which will rejuvenate the skin and restore the oils of youth and a youthful appearance to skin disfigured by the natural consequences of age; that it will make the user's face appear ten years younger than it is; and that it will keep the skin young and will prevent and erase wrinkles and age lines.

Through the use of the statements and representations hereinabove set forth and others similar thereto not specifically set out herein, used in connection with respondent's preparation, Edna Wallace Hopper's White Youth Pack (Clay), all of which purport to be descriptive of said preparation and its effectiveness in use, respondent represents and implies that said preparation is of French origin; that it will cause the blood to nourish and revive the skin; and that said preparation will remove blackheads and eliminate enlarged pores.

PAR. 4. In truth and in fact, respondent's preparation now designated Edna Wallace Hopper's Special Restorative Cream is not the discovery of a great French scientist but is made from a formula developed by Dr. A. B. Pacini, a cosmetician and graduate chemist. Said product will not rejuvenate the skin nor will it restore the oils of youth or restore a youthful appearance to skin disfigured by the natural consequences of age. It will not make the user's face appear ten or any other number of years younger, nor will it keep the skin young or erase wrinkles or age lines.

Respondent's preparation designated Edna Wallace Hopper's White Youth Pack (Clay) is not of French origin, and it will not cause the blood to nourish and revive the skin, and, while this preparation may loosen and aid in the removal of blackheads, it will not itself remove blackheads, nor will it eliminate enlarged pores.

PAR. 5. The acts and practices of the respondent as above set out in using the word "Restorative" in the trade name of said preparation, now designated Edna Wallace Hopper's Special Restorative Cream, and in using the false, deceptive and misleading statements, representations and advertisements in describing both of its said preparations and their effectiveness when used, as hereinabove set forth, has had and now has a tendency and capacity to and does mislead and deceive a substantial number of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such false statements, representations and advertisements are true. As a result of such erroneous and mistaken belief a number of the consuming public has purchased a substantial volume of respondent's said products with the result that trade in said commerce has been diverted unfairly to the respondent from its competitors who truthfully advertise their respective products and the effectiveness thereof when used, and thereby injury has been done and is now being done by respondent to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein found are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondent and a stipulation as to the facts entered into between the respondent herein and W. T. Kelley, Chief Counsel for the Commission, which provides among other things, that without further evidence or other intervening procedure, the Commission may issue and serve upon the respondent herein findings as to the facts and conclusion based thereon and an order disposing of the proceeding, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Affiliated Products, Inc., its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of cosmetics in commerce as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from disseminating or causing to be disseminated any advertisements by means of the United States mails, or in commerce as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act by any means for the purpose of inducing, or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of cosmetics now designated by the names Edna Wallace Hopper's Special Restorative Cream and Edna Wallace Hop-

Where twelve corporations engaged in manufacture and sale of more than 50 percent of all the steel office furniture made in the United States, and consisting of filing cabinets, sections, book, index and transfer cases, and desks and tables, and storage cabinets and wardrobes, and certain other units or products, and in price competition with one another in sale in interstate commerce of their said products, and members of their unincorporated institute which, during period involved, (1) collected, compiled and made available to members and public monthly statistical compilations and tabulations of total wholesale value of industry's shipments for month preceding and existing future delivery contracts, (2) conducted industry tests to encourage standardization and interchangeability, (3) disseminated such information as Federal and State legislation and Governmental rulings of interest, (4) collected from members and others published price lists and distributed among members requesting same such lists, and (5) encouraged members and industry to comply with Commission's Trade Practice Conference Rules, and with and through which "institute" below-described agreements were entered into and carried out—

- (a) Agreed among themselves to and, in some instances, did fix and maintain identical delivered prices, uniform discounts, terms and conditions in sale of products in question;
- (b) Agreed to and, in some instances, did induce or cause dealers and customers purchasing such products for resale to maintain resale prices fixed by said manufacturing companies, and to join and form local dealer associations having such objectives; and
- (c) Agreed to and many times did abide by and not deviate from identical delivered prices and uniform discounts and terms and conditions of sale filed by them with institute aforesaid;

With result that price competition theretofore existing among them was substantially suppressed by such activities, and with effect of hindering and preventing such competition in sale of said products in commerce throughout the United States, and with dangerous tendency so to do;

Held, That such acts and practices of said manufacturing companies in entering into and carrying out such agreements, and in doing acts and things done thereunder, pursuant thereto and in furtherance thereof, were all to the prejudice of the public, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Mr. Edward L. Smith for the Commission.

Mr. William M. Phipps, of Norfolk, Va., for Norfolk Stationery Co., Inc. and Hampton Roads Paper Co., and along with Mr. Clyde H. Jacob, of Norfolk, Va., for Frank B. Hodgson.

Mr. Thomas F. Patton, of Cleveland, Ohio, for Bentson Manufacturing Co., and, separately for The Berger Manufacturing Co.

AMENDED COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of an act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that the parties described in the caption hereof, hereinafter referred to as respondents, have been and are using unfair methods of competition in commerce as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be to the public interest, hereby issues its amended complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent Steel Office Furniture Institute, hereinafter referred to as the respondent institute, is a voluntary incorporated association of firms engaged in the manufacture, sale, and distribution of steel office furniture and equipment. Its principal office is in Room 604 Chester Avenue, and Ninth Street Bldg., in the city of Cleveland, Ohio. Respondent institute was organized in 1935 by certain of the member respondents hereinafter described, as a trade association for the promotion of the interests of its members, and it has, since its organization so acted.

The activities of said member respondents hereinafter described were carried out through, and under the supervision of, said respondent institute. Approximately 85 percent of all the steel office furniture and equipment sold in the United States is produced and sold by the members of respondent institute.

PAR. 2. Respondent Art Metal Construction Co., Inc., is a corporation with its principal office and place of business in Jamestown, N. Y.

Respondent Bentson Manufacturing Co. is a corporation with its principal office and place of business in Aurora, Ill.

Respondent Berger Manufacturing Co.<sup>2</sup> is a corporation with its principal office and place of business in Canton, Ohio.

Respondent Browne-Morse Co. is a corporation with its principal office and place of business in Muskegon, Mich.

Respondent Corry-Jamestown Manufacturing Corporation is a corporation with its principal office and place of business in Corry, Pa.

Respondent General Fire Proofing Co. is a corporation with its principal office and place of business in Youngstown, Ohio.

Respondent The Globe-Wernicke Co. is a corporation with its principal office and place of business in Norwood, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Respondent Invincible Metal Furniture Co. is a corporation with its principal office and place of business in Manitowoc, Wis.

Respondent Metal Office Furniture Co. is a corporation with its principal office and place of business in Grand Rapids, Mich.

Respondent Remington-Rand, Inc. is a corporation with its principal office and place of business in Buffalo, N. Y.

Respondent The Shaw-Walker Co. is a corporation with its principal office and place of business in Manitowoc, Wis.

Respondent Victor Safe and Equipment Co., Inc., is a corporation with its principal office and place of business in North Tonawanda, N. Y.

<sup>2</sup> Commission on August 3, 1938, granted motion to dismiss complaint as to The Berger Manufacturing Co. by the following order:

This matter coming on to be heard before the Commission on the motion of Thomas F. Patton, attorney for respondent, The Berger Manufacturing Company, that the complaint herein be dismissed as to said respondent for the reason that respondent corporation was dissolved on or about November 1, 1937, and the Commission having duly considered said motion and the record herein, and being now fully advised in the premises;

It is ordered, That the said motion be, and the same is hereby, granted and that the complaint herein be, and the same is hereby dismissed as to respondent, The Berger Manufacturing Company.

Complaint

30 F. T. C.

Respondent The Yawman & Erbe Manufacturing Co. is a corporation with its principal office and place of business in Rochester, N. Y.

Respondent Columbia Steel Equipment Co. is a corporation with its principal office in Philadelphia, Pa.

All of the respondents named and described in this paragraph are members of the respondent institute except Columbia Steel Equipment Co., and are all engaged in the manufacture, sale and distribution of steel office furniture and equipment. Each of said member respondents sells and distributes its said products to wholesalers, retailers, and others purchasers in the United States, and causes said products when sold to be transported from its principal place of business, as hereinbefore set out, into and through the several States of the United States, and the District of Columbia, to such purchasers located at various points in the several States of the United States, other than in the State of the origin of such shipments, and in the District of Columbia. Remington-Rand, Inc., is also a member of the respondent association hereinafter described.

Before the adoption of the practices hereinafter alleged, these member respondents were in active and substantial price competition with each other and with other members of the industry, in making and seeking to make sales of their said products in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and but for the facts hereinafter alleged such active and substantial price competition would have continued to the present time and said member respondents would now be in active and substantial price competition with each other in said commerce. Said member respondents maintain a constant current of trade and commerce in said products between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

These member respondents manufacture and sell approximately 85 percent of the steel office furniture and equipment manufactured and sold in the United States and they occupy such a dominant and powerful position in the industry as to enable them, through the respondent institute, to dictate, dominate, and control the practices and policies of the industry as a whole.

PAR. 3. Respondent Tidewater Office Equipment Dealer's Association is an unincorporated association composed of corporations, partnerships and individuals engaged in the sale and distribution, among other things, of office furniture, equipment and supplies, with its office in the city of Norfolk, Va. Said respondent will hereinafter be referred to on occasion as respondent association. Respondent association was formed in 1936 by the respondents named in paragraph 4 hereof and other corporations and individuals located in the city of Norfolk, Va., for the purpose of practicing and promoting the interests of said members and protecting the interests of the respondents named in paragraph 2 hereof. The activities of the members of respondent association hereinafter set out were carried out through and under the supervision of, said respondent association.

PAR. 4. Respondent Norfolk Stationery Co., Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Virginia, with its principal office and place of business in the city of Norfolk, Va.

Respondent Hampton Roads Paper Co. is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Virginia, with its principal office and place of business in the city of Norfolk, Va.

Respondent Emmerson's, Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Virginia, with its principal office and place of business in the city of Norfolk, Va.

Respondent Frank B. Hodgson is an individual trading as Frank B. Hodgson Office Furniture with his office and place of business in the city of Norfolk, Va.

Respondent George Andrew Carnegie is an individual trading as Carnegie Office Appliance Co., with his office and place of business in the city of Norfolk, Va.

The respondents in this paragraph named are now, or have been, members of the respondent association and will hereinafter, on occasion, be referred to as respondent association members.

The membership of said respondent association varies from time to time as the result of the dropping out of old and the addition of new members, and they constitute a class so numerous and fluctuating that it is impracticable at any given time to name as parties respondent and bring before the Commission each and all of said members without manifest inconvenience and delay, and the respondent association members named are made parties respondent individually and separately, and as representatives of each and all other members as a class.

Members of said respondent association are all engaged in the sale and distribution of office furniture, equipment, and supplies and they purchase from some one or more of the respondent members of respondent institute, or act as agents for some one or more of said respondent members of respondent institute in the sale of, some of the products sold and distributed by said member respondents of said respondent institute.

Members of said respondent association, in the course and conduct of their said businesses in the purchase and sale of said products, are engaged in trade and commerce between, among, in, and with the several States of the United States and in and with the District of Columbia. Said members cause said products, when sold by them, to be shipped from points in various States of the United States other than Virginia to the purchasers thereof located in the State of Virginia, and, on occasion, from their respective places of business in the State of Virginia to purchasers located in States of the United States other than the State of Virginia and in the District of Columbia. Said members maintain a constant current of trade and commerce in said products between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Before the adoption of the practices hereinafter alleged, said members were in active and substantial price competition with each other, and with others engaged in the same business, in making and seeking to make sales of their said products in said commerce between, among, in, and with the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and but for the facts hereinafter alleged such active and substantial competition would have continued to the present time and said members would now be in active and substantial price competition with each other in said commerce.

PAR. 5. On or about June 15, 1935, and on divers days and dates thereafter, said member respondents of said respondent institute entered into and thereafter carried out understandings, agreements, combinations, and conspiracies, hereinafter, at times, referred to as an undertaking, for the purpose and with the effect of restricting, restraining, and monopolizing, and suppressing and eliminating price competition in, the sale of steel office furniture and equipment in trade and commerce between, among, in and with the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and for the purpose and with the effect of restricting, restraining, suppressing, and eliminating price competition in the sale of such products between jobbers, retailers and others in said commerce purchasing such products for resale.

PAR. 6. Pursuant to said understandings, agreements, combinations, and conspiracies, said member respondents of said respondent institute and said respondent institute have done and performed, and still do and perform, the following acts and things:

1. Said member respondents agreed to fix and maintain and do fix and maintain, identical delivered prices for said products;
2. Said member respondents agreed to fix and maintain, and do fix and maintain, minimum delivered prices for said products;

3. Said member respondents agreed to fix and maintain, and do fix and maintain, uniform maximum discounts which are allowed in the sale of said products;

4. Said member respondents agreed to fix and maintain, and do fix and maintain, uniform terms and conditions, including but without limitation, maximum discounts, brokerage fees, freight and other allowances, in the sale of said products;

5. Said member respondents have caused, through coercion and other means, their agents and customers purchasing for resale to form and join local associations having for their objective the maintenance of the resale prices fixed by said member respondents;

6. Said member respondents agreed to require, and do require agents and wholesalers, retailers and others purchasing said products for resale, to maintain the resale prices on said products fixed by said members. To secure the cooperation of agents and of wholesalers, retailers, and others purchasing said products for resale, in maintaining the resale prices fixed by said member respondents, said member respondents, acting through respondent institute, have formed, and caused to be formed, local associations of such agents and purchasers for resale, at various and sundry points throughout the United States; and they have induced and coerced members of said local associations of agents and purchasers for resale, and the members of other local associations of agents and purchasers for resale, theretofore in existence, and into entering into and thereafter carrying out understandings, agreement, combinations and conspiracies to maintain the resale prices fixed by said member respondents in furtherance of said undertaking. The respondent association Tidewater Office Equipment Dealers' Association, is typical of the type of association formed and used by said member respondents and the respondent institute in inducing and coercing agents and purchasers for resale to maintain the resale prices fixed by said member respondents in furtherance of said undertaking.

7. Each of the respondent members agreed to file and does file with the respondent institute a schedule of the delivered prices, including discounts and the terms and conditions of all sales at which said member will and does sell said products.

8. Each said respondent member agreed that it would not deviate from the delivered prices, discounts and terms and conditions of sale stated in its delivered prices filed with the respondent institute.

9. The respondent institute collects from and disseminates among the member respondents information as to delivered prices, discounts and terms and conditions of sale, and other information used and useful in carrying out said undertaking. Said respondent members and the respondent institute have adopted and agreed upon detailed rules and regulations designed and intended to prevent deviation on the part of respondent members from the delivered prices, discounts and terms and conditions of sale announced by such members.

10. Said respondents have adopted and used and are using other methods and means designed to carry out said undertaking.

PAR. 7. Each of said member respondents of said respondent institute acted in concert and cooperation with one or more of the other member respondents and with the respondent institute in doing and performing the acts and things hereinabove alleged in furtherance of said undertaking, and in concert and cooperation with the members of the respondent association in the doing of the acts and things hereinafter alleged.

PAR. 8. On or about June 4, 1936, and on divers days and dates thereafter, said respondent association members and the other members of the respondent association entered into and thereafter carried out understandings, agreements, combinations and conspiracies for the purpose and with the effect of restricting, restraining, and monopolizing, and suppressing and eliminating price competition between and among said members in, the sale of steel office furniture and equipment and other office supplies in trade and commerce between, among, in and with the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 9. Pursuant to such agreements, combinations, and conspiracies, said respondent association members and said respondent association have done, performed, and still do and perform, the following acts and things:

1. Said respondent association members agreed to fix and maintain, and do fix and maintain, uniform resale prices for said products.

2. Said respondent association members agreed to fix and maintain, and do fix and maintain, minimum resale prices for said products.

3. Said respondent association members agreed to fix and maintain, and do fix and maintain uniform maximum discounts which are allowed in the sale of said products.

4. Said respondent association members agreed to fix and maintain, and do fix and maintain, uniform terms and conditions in the sale of said products.

5. Said respondent association members agreed to submit and do submit identical bids to agencies of municipal, county, State, and Federal Governments, when bids are requested by such agencies on said products.

6. Said respondent association members agreed to adopt and maintain, and have adopted and maintained, the resale prices and discounts fixed and established by the member respondents of said respondent institute, described in paragraph 2 hereof.

7. Said respondent association members induced the respondents described in paragraph 2 hereof to refuse to sell steel office furniture and equipment to certain dealer competitors of said respondent association members who had refused to participate in and become parties to said understandings, agreements, combinations and conspiracies to fix and maintain resale prices and maintain discounts and terms and conditions of sale as above alleged, thereby interfering with the source of supply of said non-cooperating competitors in an effort to compel them to become participants in such understandings, agreements, combinations and conspiracies.

8. Said respondent association members agreed and did attempt, by threats, coercion and persuasion, and through other means, to induce competitors who were not parties to said understandings, agreements, combinations and conspiracies to cooperate with them in carrying out the same.

PAR. 10. Respondent members of said respondent institute and said respondent association members and the Columbia Steel Equipment Company cooperated with each other in carrying out and making effective the understandings, agreements, combinations, and conspiracies hereinabove alleged.

PAR. 11. Said understandings, agreements, combinations, and conspiracies between and among said member respondents of said respondent institute and between and among said respondent association members and Columbia Steel Equipment Co., and the things done thereunder and pursuant thereto, and in furtherance thereof, including the cooperation between the members of the respondent institute and the members of the respondent association, as hereinabove alleged, have had and do have the effect of unduly and unlawfully restricting and restraining the sale of steel office furniture and equipment and other office supplies in trade and commerce between, among, in, and with the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia; of unduly and unlawfully restricting and restraining trade in said products in said commerce; of substantially enhancing prices to the consuming public and maintaining prices at artificial levels and otherwise depriving the public of the benefits that would flow from normal competition between and among the respondent members of said respondent institute and between and among said respondent association members; of eliminating price competition, with the tendency and capacity of creating a monopoly, in the sale of said products in said commerce. Said understandings, agreements, combinations, and conspiracies and the things done thereunder and pursuant thereto, and in furtherance thereof, as herein alleged, constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of an Act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled, "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on the 9th day of March 1938, issued and served its amended complaint in this proceeding upon said respondents, The Steel Office Furniture Institute, Remington Rand, Inc., Browne-Morse Co., Columbia Steel Equipment Co., The General Fireproofing Co., Art Metal Construction Co., Bentson Manufacturing Co., Corry-Jamestown Manufacturing Corporation, The Globe-Wernicke Co., Invincible Metal Furniture Co., Metal Office Furniture Co., The Shaw-Walker Co., Victor Safe & Equipment Co., Inc., Yawman and Erbe Manufacturing Co., Tidewater Office Equipment Dealers' Association, Norfolk Stationery Co., Inc., Hampton Roads Paper Co., Emmerson's, Inc., Frank B. Hodgson, trading as Frank B. Hodgson Office Furniture, and George Andrew Carnegie, trading as Carnegie Office Appliance Co., charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. Thereafter, each of the respondents, except Emmerson's, Inc., filed its answer in this proceeding. Thereafter, under date of January 15, 1940, a stipulation was entered into whereby it was stipulated and agreed that a statement signed and executed by the respondents, The Steel Office Furniture Institute, Remington Rand, Inc., Browne-Morse Co., The General Fireproofing Co., Art Metal Construction Co., Bentson Manufacturing Co., Corry-Jamestown Manufacturing Corporation, The Globe-Wernicke Co., Invincible Metal Furniture Co., Metal Office Furniture Co., The Shaw-Walker Co., Victor Safe & Equipment Co., Inc., and Yawman and Erbe Manufacturing Co., by their counsel, and W. T. Kelley, Chief Counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, subject to the approval of the Commission, solely for the purpose of this proceeding, the enforcement of review thereof in the Circuit Court of Appeals, and for any review in the Supreme Court of the United States, or for any other court proceeding in enforcement of the order to be entered herein or to recover any penalty for violation thereof which may be brought or instituted pursuant to authority contained in the Federal Trade Commission Act as amended, and approved

March 21, 1938, and for no other purpose, that the Commission can adduce the evidence as hereinafter set forth in the following Statement, which is to be taken and considered as a part of the record herein the same, and with the same effect as if said evidence had been adduced at hearings in the usual course, in lieu of testimony in support of the charges stated in the complaint, and that said respondents waive their rights to adduce evidence in opposition thereto and do not contest this proceeding; and that the said Commission may proceed upon said statement to make its report stating its findings as to the facts (including inferences which it may draw therefrom), and its conclusion based thereon, and enter its order disposing of this proceeding without the presentation of argument or the filing of briefs. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said amended complaint, said answers and stipulation, said stipulation having been approved, accepted and filed, and the Commission having duly considered the same and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, The Steel Office Furniture Institute, hereinafter referred to as the Institute, during the period from about June 15, 1935, to and including March 9, 1938, hereinafter referred to as the period specified in the amended complaint, was an unincorporated association of manufacturers of steel office furniture industry products, hereinafter referred to as industry products, which consist of Steel vertical filing cabinets.

Steel horizontal sections and half-sections, and book-cases.

Steel Hi-line and book-shelf units.

Steel card index cases.

Steel transfer cases.

Steel desks and tables.

Steel storage cabinets and wardrobes.

The Institute was formed on or about April 10, 1931, by some of the respondents named in paragraph 2 and others, and has been active since its formation except for the period from November 4, 1933 to June 5, 1935. During its existence, including the period specified in the amended complaint, the Institute performed the following functions:

a. Collected and compiled statistical information which it made available to its members and the public. This information during the period specified in the amended complaint consisted of

1. a compilation each month of the total wholesale value of shipments of industry products for the previous month,
2. a monthly tabulation of existing future delivery contracts.

b. Conducted tests of industry products to encourage standardization and interchangeability of product.

c. Disseminated among its members information of interest to them such as federal and State legislation, and rulings of governmental bodies.

d. Collected from its members and other members of the industry the published price lists of industry products and distributed such price lists among such members of the industry as had requested the same.

e. Encouraged its members and the industry to comply with the Trade Practice Conference Rules approved by the Federal Trade Commission for this industry.

f. Miscellaneous temporary activities.

PAR. 2. Respondent Art Metal Construction Co. is a corporation with its principal office and place of business in Jamestown, N. Y.

Respondent Bentson Manufacturing Co. is a corporation with its principal office and place of business in Aurora, Ill.

Respondent Browne-Morse Co. is a corporation with its principal office and place of business in Muskegon, Mich.

Respondent Corry-Jamestown Manufacturing Corporation is a corporation with its principal office and place of business in Corry, Pa.

Respondent The General Fireproofing Co. is a corporation with its principal office and place of business in Youngstown, Ohio.

Respondent The Globe-Wernicke Co. is a corporation with its principal office and place of business in Norwood, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Respondent Invincible Metal Furniture Co. is a corporation with its principal office and place of business in Manitowoc, Wis.

Respondent Metal Office Furniture Co. is a corporation with its principal office and place of business in Grand Rapids, Mich.

Respondent Remington Rand, Inc., is a corporation with its principal office and place of business in Buffalo, N. Y.

Respondent The Shaw-Walker Co. is a corporation with its principal office and place of business in Muskegon, Mich.

Respondent Victor Safe & Equipment Co., Inc., is a corporation with its principal office and place of business in North Tonawanda, N. Y.

Respondent Yawman and Erbe Manufacturing Co. is a corporation with its principal office and place of business in Rochester, N. Y.

The above-named respondents, hereinafter referred to as respondent manufacturing companies, during the period specified in the amended complaint, were each engaged in the manufacture and sale of some or all of the said industry products, and had caused some of said products to be sold and shipped in interstate commerce, and, each of said respondents was a member of the Institute during all or a portion of said period. Said respondent manufacturing companies prior to the said period specified in the amended complaint were in price competition with each other in making sales of their said products in interstate commerce, and said competition has been substantially suppressed by the activities hereinafter set forth. Said respondent manufacturing companies manufacture and sell more than 50 percent of all of the said industry products manufactured and sold throughout the United States.

PAR. 3. Respondent manufacturing companies, during the said period specified in the amended complaint, agreed among themselves to fix and maintain identical delivered prices, uniform discounts and uniform terms and conditions in the sale of said industry products, and pursuant to such agreement, in certain instances, did fix and maintain said prices, discounts, and terms.

PAR. 4. Respondent manufacturing companies, during the period specified in the amended complaint, agreed among themselves to induce or cause, and pursuant to such agreement in some instances, did induce or cause their dealers and customers purchasing said industry products for resale to maintain resale prices fixed by said respondent manufacturing companies and to join and form local associations of dealers having for an objective the maintenance of said resale prices.

PAR. 5. Respondent manufacturing companies, during the period specified in the amended complaint, agreed among themselves to abide by and not to deviate from the identical delivered prices, uniform discounts and uniform terms and conditions of sale filed by said respondent manufacturing companies with the Institute, and pursuant to such agreement many times did abide by and not deviate from said prices, discounts, and terms in the sale of said industry products.

PAR. 6. The agreements hereinabove described in paragraphs 3, 4, and 5 were entered into and carried out through and by means of the Institute.

Order

30 F. T. C.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the said respondent manufacturing companies in entering into and carrying out such agreements, and in doing the acts and things done thereunder, pursuant thereto and in furtherance thereof, are all to the prejudice of the public, and have a dangerous tendency to and have hindered and prevented price competition between and among the said respondent manufacturing companies in the sale of said industry products in commerce throughout the United States, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the amended complaint of the Commission, the separate answers of the respondents, and a stipulation dated January 15, 1940, entered into between certain of the respondents herein by their attorneys and W. T. Kelley, Chief Counsel for the Commission, which stipulation has been approved by the Commission, and which provides, among other things, that without other evidence and without intervening procedure, the Commission may issue and serve upon the respondents herein findings as to the facts and conclusion based thereon and an order disposing of the proceeding, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that certain of said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondents, The Steel Office Furniture Institute, Remington Rand, Inc., Browne-Morse Co., The General Fireproofing Co., Art Metal Construction Co., Bentson Manufacturing Co., Corry-Jamestown Manufacturing Corporation, The Globe-Wernicke Co., Invincible Metal Furniture Co., Metal Office Furniture Co., The Shaw-Walker Co., Victor Safe & Equipment Co., Inc., and Yawman and Erbe Manufacturing Co., their officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, or through the respondent The Steel Office Furniture Institute, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of steel vertical filing cabinets; steel horizontal sections and half-sections, and bookcases; steel hi-line and bookshelf units; steel card index cases; steel transfer cases; steel desks and tables; steel storage cabinets and wardrobes in interstate commerce or in the District of Columbia, do forthwith cease and desist from doing any of the following acts and things:

1. Agreeing, combining or conspiring among themselves to fix and maintain identical delivered prices, uniform discounts and terms and conditions of sale;

2. Agreeing among themselves to induce and, pursuant to such agreement, inducing their dealers and customers, or the dealers and customers of any of them to join or form local associations having for their objective the maintenance of resale prices.

3. Agreeing among themselves to require and, pursuant to such agreement, requiring their dealers and customers purchasing for resale to maintain resale prices fixed by the manufacturing company respondents.

4. Agreeing among themselves to abide by and not to deviate from prices, discounts, terms, and conditions of sale filed by respondent manufacturing companies with respondent Institute, and pursuant to such agreement, abiding by and not deviating from such prices, discounts, and terms of sale.

5. Filing prices with the respondent Institute for the purpose or having the effect of fixing and maintaining such prices arrived at by agreement among themselves.

6. Disseminating prices filed with the respondent Institute among said respondents for the purpose of fixing said prices by agreements among themselves.

It is further ordered, That respondents and each of them shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report or reports in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

It is further ordered, That this proceeding be and the same hereby is dismissed as to Columbia Steel Equipment Co. and Tidewater Office Equipment Dealers' Association and its former respondent members without prejudice to the right of the Commission should the facts so warrant to reopen the same and resume prosecution of the complaint in accordance with its regular procedure insofar as Columbia Steel Equipment Co. and Tidewater Office Equipment Dealers' Association and its former respondent members are concerned.

IN THE MATTER OF

CHESTER L. THOMAS, TRADING AS THOMAS QUILT FACTORIES

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3375. Complaint, Apr. 9, 1938—Decision, Feb. 23, 1940

Where an individual engaged in manufacture, sale, and distribution of quilts, bed pads, and similar products, to purchasers in various States and in the District of Columbia; in advertisements of his said quilts by mail, newspapers, advertising folders, pamphlets, circulars, letters and other literature published and circulated to purchasers and prospective purchasers throughout the United States, and through agents personally soliciting orders—

Represented that his Thomas Feather-Quilts usually retailed at $37.50, and that quoted price of $18.75 was introductory and special, limited as to time, and one-half of customary selling price therefor, and that quilts in question were of a value of $37.50, specially offered as aforesaid, through such statements as "Save 50%. Introductory Half Price Offer * * * During the next 5 days you and your friends may reserve the right to purchase two famous Thomas Feather-Quilts for the usual price of one! * * *" and "'Factory irregular' Thomas Feather-Quilt only $20.00 (or two for $37.50) * * * Identical in every way to the first quality * * * originally retailed for $37.50 * * * YOU SAVE OVER $17.50 PER QUILT * * *, and "Hurry! Save one-half Regular Retail Price by mailing This Card AT ONCE. This special offer is Limited * * * During the next few days only * * * Our extremely low price will be discontinued after this sale! So don't wait. Beat the price rise," and others of similar tenor, facts being said price of $18.75 was neither reduced, special nor introductory, nor limited as to time, but customary one at which said quilts were sold by him in usual and regular course of business at all times;

With effect of misleading and deceiving substantial portion of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that all said representations were true, and with result, as consequence thereof, that number of consuming public purchased substantial volume of his said products and trade was diverted unfairly to him from competitors engaged in sale and distribution of said and similar goods:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice of the public and competitors, and constituted an unfair method of competition.

Before Mr. Miles J. Furnas and Mr. Randolph Preston, trial examiners.

Mr. Carrel F. Rhodes for the Commission.

Mr. J. Frederick Schneider, of Denver, Colo., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Chester L. Thomas, individually, and trading as Thomas Quilt Factories, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Chester L. Thomas, is an individual operating and doing business under the trade name, Thomas Quilt Factories, with his principal office and place of business located at 1040 Acoma Street, Denver, Colo.

PAR. 2. Respondent, Chester L. Thomas, has been for more than 1 year last past, and is now, engaged in the business of manufacturing, advertising, selling, and distributing quilts under the name of Thomas Feather-Quilts. Said respondent now causes, and for more than 1 year last past has caused, his said products to be sold by agents and through various advertising mediums. He has caused the same, when sold, to be transported from his principal place of business in Denver, Colo., to purchasers thereof located at points in the various States of the United States other than the aforesaid State of Colorado and in the District of Columbia.

There is now, and has been for more than 1 year last past, a course of trade in said quilts so sold and distributed by respondent in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

In the course and conduct of his said business respondent is now, and has been, in competition with other individuals, partnerships, and corporations likewise engaged in the business of selling and distributing quilts and other similar products intended and used for the same purpose for which respondent's said quilts are used in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of the business set out and described in paragraphs 1 and 2 hereof, respondent, for the purpose of inducing the purchase of the commodities offered for sale by him, has circulated to purchasers and prospective customers throughout the United States, by mail, newspaper advertisements, advertising folders, pamphlets, circulars, letters, and other literature, and through agents personally soliciting orders, false and misleading statements concern-

The aforesaid statements and representations, together with other similar statements and representations not herein set out in full, purport to be descriptive of respondent's various products and also serve as representations on the part of the respondent to members of the purchasing public that said Thomas Feather-Quilts were designed by specialists and are recommended by doctors and other specialists; that $37.50 is the usual, regular and customary retail price for Thomas

Feather-Quilts; that the quoted price of $18.75 is an introductory or other special price limited as to time and is one-half of the usual, regular, and customary selling price therefor; and that the so-called factory irregular quilts sold at $20 or two for $37.50 are identical in every way to the first-quality Thomas Feather-Quilts having a usual, regular, and customary selling price of $37.50 each.

PAR. 4. In truth and in fact, the statements and representations hereinabove set out are deceptive, false, and misleading. Respondent's quilts are not designed and recommended by doctors or other specialists. Said quilts have never had the usual, regular, and customary retail sales price of $37.50. The purported introductory or other special reduced price is not in fact a reduced introductory price or a specially reduced price for a limited period of time. The prices quoted as alleged introductory or other special prices and having an alleged limited period of time are in fact the usual, regular, and customary retail selling price of said quilts at all times, and respondent has regularly and customarily sold said quilts to all purchasers for a period of several years at such prices. The so-called factory irregulars sold at $20 or two for $37.50 are not identical in quality to the Thomas Feather-Quilts alleged to be ordinarily and customarily retailed for $37.50 each.

PAR. 5. The use by the respondent of the aforesaid deceptive, misleading, and false representations has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive members of the purchasing public into the mistaken and erroneous belief that said representations are true and that respondent's products have the qualities, values, and prices represented, and into the purchase of respondent's quilts in and on account of such erroneous and mistaken beliefs induced as aforesaid. As a result thereof, trade is diverted unfairly to respondent from competitors likewise engaged in selling quilts and other similar products intended and used for the same purposes in commerce among and between the various States of the United States who do not misrepresent the nature, value, quality, or prices of their respective products. As a consequence thereof injury has been done and is now being done by respondent to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 6. The above alleged acts and practices of respondent are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on the 9th day of April 1938, issued its complaint and caused same to be served upon the respondent, Chester L. Thomas, individually, and trading as Thomas Quilt Factories, charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of the complaint and in opposition thereto, were introduced before examiners of the Commission, theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, brief in support of the complaint and brief in opposition thereto, oral argument not having been requested, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, Chester L. Thomas, is an individual, operating under the trade name Thomas Quilt Factories, with his office and principal place of business in Denver, Colo. The respondent is engaged in the manufacture, sale, and distribution of quilts, bed pads, and similar products. Respondent causes said products, when sold, to be transported by express and otherwise from his place of business in Denver, Colo. to purchasers thereof, some located in the State of Colorado and others located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. There is now and has been for some time last past a course of trade in commerce by said respondent, in said products, between and among various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business, the respondent is in competition with other individuals, firms, and corporations also engaged in the sale and distribution of quilts, bed pads, and similar products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his business, and in the distribution of his products, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent, for the purpose of inducing the purchase of the commodities

PAR. 3. The statements and representations to the effect that the Thomas Feather-Quilts usually, regularly and customarily retail for $37.50 and that the quoted price of $18.75 is an introductory or other special price, limited as to time, and is one-half of the usual, regular, and customary selling price therefor, combined with inferences drawn therefrom, serve as representations that the quilts are of a value of $37.50 and that $18.75 is an introductory or special price limited as to time and is one-half the usual, regular, and customary price of said products.

PAR. 4. Respondent does not sell his said quilts for $37.50 but the price of said quilts is only $18.75. Said price of $18.75 is not a reduced price or a special or introductory price and is not limited as to time but is the customary price at which such quilts are sold by respondent in the usual and regular course of business at all times.

PAR. 5. Each and all of the foregoing false and misleading statements and representations made by the respondent in describing the said products as hereinbefore set out in paragraphs 2 and 3 were, and are calculated to, and have had and now have, the tendency and capacity to, and do, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that all of said representations are true. As the result of this erroneous belief, a number of the consuming public have purchased a substantial volume of respondent's said products with the result that trade has been diverted unfairly to respondent from competitors engaged in the business of selling and distributing quilts, and similar products.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein found are all to the prejudice of the public, and of competitors of respondent, and constitute an unfair method of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, answer of the respondent, testimony and other evidence taken before examiners of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, briefs filed herein by Carrel F. Rhodes, counsel for the Commission, and by J. Frederick Schneider, counsel for the respondent, oral argument not having been requested, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Chester L. Thomas, trading as Thomas Quilt Factories, or trading under any other name or names, his agents, representatives, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of quilts or other bed covering in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing as the customary or regular prices or values of quilts or other bed covering prices and values which are in excess of the prices at which such products are regularly and customarily sold by respondent in the normal and usual course of business.

2. Representing that the prices at which respondent offers for sale and sells his products constitute a discount to the purchaser, or that such prices are special or reduced, or introductory prices, or that such prices are applicable for a limited time only, when in fact such prices are the usual and customary prices at which respondent sells such products in the normal and usual course of business.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.

"CURL-O-WAVE COMPANY"

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3524. Complaint, Aug. 4, 1938—Decision, Feb. 23, 1940

Where two individuals engage in manufacture, sale, and distribution of hair curling preparation under designation "Curl-O-Wave," to purchasers in various other States and in the District of Columbia, in competition with others engaged in sale and distribution of such preparations in commerce as aforesaid, and including many who distribute and sell such hair curling fluids and do not in any way misrepresent quality and character of their products or effectiveness thereof; in advertising circulars and folders, and in advertisements in magazines and newspapers circulated generally throughout the United States—

Represented that their said product was odorless and beneficial to hair, and that use thereof made straightest hair naturally curly, and would transform obstinate hair into dainty curls and improve hair texture, and constituted a new discovery, and was not an ordinary curling fluid, facts being it was such ordinary curling fluid, and various representations otherwise made by them were grossly exaggerated, misleading and untrue, and it would not accomplish results and did not have qualities claimed therefor;

With tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive substantial portion of purchasing public into erroneous belief that said representations were true, and with result, as direct consequence thereof, that number of consuming public purchased substantial volume of their preparation and trade was diverted unfairly to them from competitors also engaged in distribution and sale of such preparations in commerce, and who truthfully advertise their products and effectiveness thereof:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Mr. James J. Cooper, pro se.

COMPLAINT<sup>1</sup>

individual, trading as "Curl-O-Wave Company," hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, J. W. Cooper, is an individual trading as "Curl-O-Wave Company," with his office and principal place of business located at 201 North Wells Street, in the city of Chicago, State of Illinois. Said respondent is engaged in the manufacture, sale and distribution of a hair-curling preparation designated "Curl-O-Wave."

Respondent causes its product, when sold, to be transported from his place of business in Chicago, in the State of Illinois, to the purchasers thereof located in the States of the United States other than the State of Illinois and in the District of Columbia.

Respondent now maintains, and for more than 6 years last past has maintained, a course of trade in the aforesaid hair curling preparation so distributed and sold by him in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his said business, the respondent is now, and has been for more than 6 years last past, in competition with other individuals and with corporations, firms, and partnerships engaged in the business of selling and distributing hair-curling preparations in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of said business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of said preparation, respondent has made, by means of advertising circulars and folders, and by means of advertisements inserted in magazines and newspapers circulated generally throughout the United States, many representations concerning the character and nature of said preparation, and concerning the results obtained from its use. Among said representations made by respondent are the following:

Curls—the straightest hair can be made naturally curly with Curl-O-Wave.

Free booklet and sample. Send 10¢ to cover mailing.

A few pleasant moments with the new Curl-O-Wave transforms the most obstinate straight hair into soft dainty curls.

Curl-O-Wave is greaseless, odorless and absolutely safe—its beneficial ingredients are actually good for the hair.

A new simple method of waving with Curl-O-Wave transforms lifeless scraggly hair into beautiful soft curls.

Curl-O-Wave is absolutely harmless and is actually good for the hair, keeps it soft and manageable—You'll be amazed at the Magic of Curl-O-Wave.

Complaint

30 F. T. C.

Curl-O-Wave makes the most obstinate straight hair wave into alluring curls which will last from one to three weeks.

It is now within one's power to acquire brilliant natural waves. Curl-O-Wave will give a soft, fluffy, billowy texture no matter how obstinate and straight the hair may be.

Curl-O-Wave is not an ordinary curling fluid.

Curl-O-Wave Company made a discovery which makes natural curls a possibility for everyone.

It is only by keeping the hair waved that it will gradually become naturally curly.

All of said statements, together with similar statements appearing in respondent's advertising literature, purport to be descriptive of respondent's product and of its effectiveness in use. In all of its advertising literature, and through other means, respondent, directly or by inference, through statements and representations herein set out, and other statements of similar import and effect, represents: That his preparation will make the straightest hair naturally curly; that it transforms obstinate straight hair into dainty curls; that it is greaseless, odorless, beneficial, and harmless; that it is not an ordinary curling fluid, but a new discovery; that it will improve the texture of the hair; and that the cost of mailing respondent's booklet and sample is 10 cents.

PAR. 4. The representations made by respondent with respect to the nature and effect of his preparation when used are grossly exaggerated, false, misleading, and untrue. In truth and in fact "Curl-O-Wave" is not greaseless or odorless. It is not beneficial to the hair or harmless. It will not make the straightest hair naturally curly, and it will not transform obstinate hair into dainty curls. It is not a new discovery, but it is an ordinary curling fluid and will not improve the texture of the hair. The cost of mailing respondent's booklet and sample is less than 10 cents.

The true fact is that the frequent application of respondent's preparation may be dangerous and injurious, rather than harmless and beneficial, for the reason that it contains ingredients and intermediate products of such ingredients which, under some conditions, are poisonous.

PAR. 5. There are among respondent's competitors many who distribute and sell cosmetics who do not in any way misrepresent the quality or character of their respective products of their effectiveness when used.

PAR. 6. Each and all of the false and misleading statements and representations made by the respondent in advertising his hair-curling preparation and its effectiveness when used, as hereinabove set out, were, and are calculated to, and have had, and now have a tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that said representations are true. As a direct result of this erroneous and mistaken belief, a number of the consuming public have purchased a substantial volume of respondent's preparation, with the result that trade has been diverted unfairly to respondent from competitors likewise engaged in the business of distributing and selling hair-curling preparations, and who truthfully advertise their respective products and the effectiveness thereof when used. As a result thereof, injury has been done, and is now being done, by respondent to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR 7. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce, within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on August 4, 1938, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, J. W. Cooper, charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. Thereafter, respondent, J. W. Cooper, filed his answer and subsequently, as a result of a stipulation entered into upon the record, James J. Cooper was made a party respondent and adopted the answer of J. W. Cooper as his answer. Subsequently the Commission, by order, approved such action. Testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of the complaint were introduced by DeWitt T. Puckett, attorney for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by James J. Cooper, pro se, before W. W. Sheppard, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and other evidence and brief in support of the allegations of the complaint, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondents, J. W. Cooper, and James J. Cooper, are individuals trading as "Curl-O-Wave Company," with their office and principal place of business located at 201 North Wells Street, in the city of Chicago, in the State of Illinois. Said respondents are engaged in the manufacture, sale and distribution of a hair-curling preparation designated "Curl-O-Wave." Respondents cause said product, when sold, to be transported from their place of business in Chicago, Ill., to purchasers thereof located in the various States of the United States other than the State of Illinois, and in the District of Columbia. Respondents now maintain, and for more than 6 years last past have maintained, a course of trade in the aforementioned hair-curling preparation, so distributed and sold by them in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, and in the District of Columbia.

In the course and conduct of their business respondents are now, and have been at all times mentioned herein, in competition with other individuals and with corporations and partnerships engaged in the business of selling and distributing hair-curling preparations in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of said business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of said hair-curling preparation designated "Curl-O-Wave," respondents have made, by means of advertising circulars and folders, and by means of advertisements inserted in magazines and newspapers, circulated generally throughout the United States, many representations concerning the character and nature of said preparation and concerning the results obtained from its use. Among said representations made by respondents are the following:

Curls—the straightest hair can be made naturally curly with Curl-O-Wave. Free booklet and sample. Send 10¢ to cover mailing.

A few pleasant moments with the new Curl-O-Wave transforms the most obstinate straight hair into soft dainty curls.

Curl-O-Wave is greaseless, odorless and absolutely safe—its beneficial ingredients are actually good for the hair.

A new simple method of waving with Curl-O-Wave transforms lifeless scraggly hair into beautiful soft curls.

Curl-O-Wave is absolutely harmless and is actually good for the hair, keeps it soft and manageable—You'll be amazed at the Magic of Curl-O-Wave.

Curl-O-Wave makes the most obstinate straight hair wave into alluring curls which will last from one to three weeks.

It is now within one's power to acquire brilliant natural waves. Curl-O-Wave will give a soft, fluffy, billowy texture no matter how obstinate and straight the hair may be.

Findings

Curl-O-Wave is not an ordinary curling fluid.

Curl-O-Wave Company made a discovery which makes natural curls a possibility for everyone.

It is only by keeping the hair waved that it will gradually become naturally curly.

PAR. 3. All of said statements, together with similar statements appearing in respondents' advertising literature, purport to be descriptive of respondents' product, and of its effectiveness in use. In all of respondent's advertising literature and through other means, the respondents represent that said preparation (Curl-O-Wave) will make the straightest hair naturally curly; that said preparation transforms obstinate, straight hair into dainty curls; that it is greaseless, odorless, beneficial and harmless; that Curl-O-Wave is not an ordinary curling fluid, but is a new discovery; and that it will improve the texture of the hair.

The representations made by respondents with respect to the nature and effect of their preparation, when used, are grossly exaggerated, misleading, and untrue. In truth and in fact "Curl-O-Wave" is not odorless and it is not beneficial to the hair. It will not make the straightest hair naturally curly, and it will not transform obstinate hair into dainty curls. It is not a new discovery, but it is an ordinary curling fluid. The use of said product will not improve the texture of the hair.

PAR. 4. There are among respondents' competitors many who distribute and sell hair-curling fluids who do not in any way misrepresent the quality and character of their respective products or their effectiveness when used.

PAR. 5. The Commission finds that the aforesaid false and misleading statements and representations made by the respondents in advertising their hair curling preparation and its effectiveness when used, are calculated to, and have had, and now have, a tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that said representations are true. As a direct result of this erroneous and mistaken belief, a number of the consuming public have purchased a substantial volume of respondents' preparation, with the result that trade has been diverted unfairly to respondents from their competitors who are also engaged in the business of distributing and selling hair curling preparations in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and who truthfully advertise their respective products and the effectiveness thereof when used.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondents, J. W. Cooper and James J. Cooper, and upon the testimony and other evidence taken before W. W. Sheppard, a trial examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of the complaint and in opposition thereto, and upon brief filed herein by John R. Phillips, Jr., counsel for the Commission, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondents, J. W. Cooper and James J. Cooper, individually and trading as Curl-O-Wave Company or trading under any other name or names, their agents, servants, representatives, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of a hair-curling preparation now designated as "Curl-O-Wave," or of any hair-curling preparation possessing similar properties whether sold under the same name or any other name, in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing that respondents' preparation is odorless or that such preparation is beneficial to the hair;

2. Representing that the use of respondents' preparation will make the straightest hair naturally curly, or that such preparation will transform obstinate hair into dainty curls, or that such preparation is a new discovery or is anything other than an ordinary hair-curling fluid, or that the use of such preparation will improve the texture of the hair.

It is further ordered, That the respondents shall, within 60 days after the service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Buford & Owens College, a corporation, and Gussie Buford, Mary Owens Boone Wellingham, and George Buford, as individuals and officers of Buford & Owens College, hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Buford & Owens College is a corporation, organized and existing under the laws of the State of Oklahoma, with its office and principal place of business at 812 North East Third Street in Oklahoma City, Okla. Gussie Buford, Mary Owens Boone Wellingham, and George Buford are, respectively, president, vice-president, and secretary of said corporate respondent, and have their office at the same address as said Buford & Owens College.

Respondents, Gussie Buford, Mary Owens Boone Wellingham, and George Buford, as individuals and as officers of said corporate respondent, formulate, control, and direct the policies, acts, and practices thereof. Respondents act together and in cooperation with each other in doing the acts and things hereinafter alleged.

PAR. 2. Respondents are now and for more than 1 year last past have been engaged in the sale and distribution of certain hair and scalp preparations known as Buford & Owens preparations and more specifically described as Buford & Owens Hair Oil, Buford & Owens Pressing Oil, Buford & Owens Special Oil, and Buford & Owens Shampoo. In the course and conduct of their business the respondents cause said preparations when sold to be transported from their place of business in the State of Oklahoma to purchasers thereof located in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. At all times mentioned herein respondents have maintained a course of trade in said preparations, sold and distributed by them in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of the aforesaid business the respondents have disseminated, and are now disseminating, and have caused, and are now causing, the dissemination of false advertisements concerning said preparations by United States mails, by insertion in a newspaper having a general circulation, and also in circulars, all of which are distributed in commerce among and between the various States of the United States; and by other means in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of their said preparations; and have disseminated, and are now disseminating, and have caused, and are now causing, the dissemination of false advertisements concerning their said preparations, by various means, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of their said preparations in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act. Among, and typical of, the false statements and representations contained in said advertisements, disseminated and caused to be disseminated as aforesaid, are the following:

Buford & Owens College, makers of wonderful B. & O. Hair Oil—Shampoo.

We wish to call your attention to the wonderful uses and results obtained by using our wonderful B. & O. Hair Oil.

As a Dandruff Remover it cannot be beaten.

As a Hair Grower it cannot be excelled and has no equal.

It stops the hair from falling out, cures many cases of scalp diseases, and causes stubborn hair to grow.

We grow your hair.

We recommend and guarantee it to grow any person's hair under any climate.

Don't forget to use B. & O. Hair Oil and obtain these results.

We recommend this special treatment for customers who cannot attend our College.

The B. & O. Preparations have stood the test as a hair grower, dandruff remover.

By the use of B. & O. Shampoo you get a genuine treatment for dandruff. Promote the growth of the hair and aids in preventing it from falling out.

PAR. 4. Through the use of the statements hereinabove set forth and others similar thereto not specifically set out herein, all of which purport to be descriptive of the remedial, curative, or therapeutic properties of respondents' preparations, respondents have represented and do now represent directly and indirectly that their preparations are a cure or remedy for dandruff, falling hair, scalp diseases, and that said preparations will promote the growth of hair.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid representations and claims used and disseminated by the respondents as hereinabove described are grossly exaggerated, misleading, and untrue. In truth and in fact respondents' preparations are not a cure or remedy for dandruff, falling hair or scalp diseases and do not constitute a competent treatment therefor. Respondents' preparations are of no value in promoting the growth of hair or preventing hair from falling out.

PAR. 6. In addition to the false and misleading statements hereinabove set forth the respondents represent that they are conducting an institution of higher learning by use of the word "college" in the corporate name.

In truth and in fact said corporate respondent is not a college as commonly understood by the public and is not an institution of higher learning empowered to confer degrees, with a faculty of learned instructors in the various branches of learning, including the liberal arts and sciences.

PAR. 7. The use by the respondents of the foregoing false, deceptive and misleading statements, representations, and advertisements disseminated as aforesaid with respect to said preparations has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to and does mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such false statements, representations, and advertisements are true and causes a portion of the purchasing public because of said erroneous and mistaken belief to purchase respondents' said preparations.

PAR. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on May 12, 1939, issued, and on May 15, 1939, served, its complaint in this proceeding upon respondents Buford & Owens College, a corporation, and Gussie Buford, Mary Owens Boone Wellingham and George Buford, individually, and as officers of Buford & Owens College, charging them with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondents' answer, the Commission, by order entered herein, granted respondents' motion for permission to withdraw said answer and to substitute therefor an answer admitting all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, which substitute answer was duly filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and substitute answer; and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Buford & Owens College is a corporation, organized and existing under the laws of the State of Oklahoma, with its office and principal place of business at 812 North East Third Street in Oklahoma City, Okla. Gussie Buford, Mary Owens Boone Wellingham, and George Buford are, respectively, president, vice-president, and secretary of said corporate respondent, and have their office at the same address as said Buford & Owens College.

Respondents, Gussie Buford, Mary Owens Boone Wellingham, and George Buford, as individuals and as officers of said corporate respondent, formulate, control, and direct the policies, acts, and practices thereof. Respondents act together and in cooperation with each other in doing the acts and things hereinafter alleged.

PAR. 2. Respondents are now and for more than 1 year last past have been engaged in the sale and distribution of certain hair and scalp preparations known as Buford & Owens preparations and more specifically described as Buford & Owens Hair Oil, Buford & Owens Pressing Oil, Buford & Owens Special Oil and Buford & Owens Shampoo. In the course and conduct of their business the respondents cause said preparations when sold to be transported from their place of business in the State of Oklahoma to purchasers thereof located in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. At all times mentioned herein respondents have maintained a course of trade in said preparations sold and distributed by them in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of the aforesaid business the respondents have disseminated and are now disseminating, and have caused, and are now causing, the dissemination of false advertisements concerning said preparations by United States mails, by insertion in a newspaper having a general circulation, and also in circulars, all of which are distributed in commerce among and between the various States of the United States; and by other means in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of their said preparations; and have disseminated, and are now disseminating, and have caused, and are now causing, the dissemination of false advertisements concerning their said preparations, by various means, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of their said preparations in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act. Among, and typical of, the false statements and representations contained in said advertisements, disseminated and caused to be disseminated, as aforesaid, are the following:

Buford & Owens College, makers of wonderful B. & O. Hair Oil—Shampoo.

We wish to call your attention to the wonderful uses and results obtained by using our wonderful B. & O. Hair Oil.

PAR. 4. Through the use of the statements hereinabove set forth and others similar thereto not specifically set out herein, all of which purport to be descriptive of the remedial, curative, or therapeutic properties of respondents' preparations, respondents have represented and do now represent, directly and indirectly, that their preparations are a cure or remedy for dandruff, falling hair, scalp diseases, and that said preparations will promote the growth of hair.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid representations and claims used and disseminated by the respondents as hereinabove described are grossly exaggerated, misleading and untrue. In truth and in fact respondents' preparations are not a cure or remedy for dandruff, falling hair or scalp diseases and do not constitute a competent treatment therefor. Respondents preparations are of no value in promoting the growth of hair or preventing hair from falling out.

PAR. 6. In addition to the false and misleading statements hereinabove set forth the respondents represent that they are conducting an institution of higher learning by use of the word "college" in the corporate name.

In truth and in fact said corporate respondent is not a college as commonly understood by the public and is not an institution of higher learning empowered to confer degrees, with a faculty of learned instructors in the various branches of learning, including the liberal arts and sciences.

PAR. 7. The use by the respondents of the foregoing false, deceptive, and misleading statements, representations, and advertisements disseminated as aforesaid with respect to said preparations has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to and does mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such false statements, representations, and advertisements are true and causes a portion of the purchasing public because of said erroneous and mistaken belief to purchase respondents' said preparations.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the substitute answer of respondents, in which answer respondents admit all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and state that they waive all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts; and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That respondents Buford & Owens College, a corporation, and its officers and Gussie Buford, Mary Owens Boone Wellingham, and George Buford, individually, and as officers of Buford & Owens College, and respondents' representatives, agents, and employers, directly or through any corporate or other device, do forthwith cease and desist from disseminating or causing to be disseminated any advertisement by means of the United States mails or in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, by any means, for the purpose of inducing or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of respondents' cosmetic preparations now designated by the names of "Buford & Owens Hair Oil," "Buford & Owens Pressing Oil," "Buford & Owens Special Oil," and "Buford & Owens Shampoo," or any other cosmetic preparations composed of substantially similar ingredients or possessing substantially similar therapeutic properties, whether sold under the same names or under any other name or names, or disseminating or causing to be disseminated, any advertisement by any means for the purpose of inducing, or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, of said cosmetic preparations which said advertisements represent, directly or through implication:

W. T. WAGNER'S SONS COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3932. Complaint, Oct. 19, 1939—Decision, Feb. 23, 1940

Where a corporation engaged in manufacture of soda water and other soft drinks and in sale and distribution thereof to purchasers in various other states, in offer and advertisement of its "Wagner English Club Soda" in newspapers and other publications of general circulation throughout various States—

Represented directly or by implication that its product aforesaid was imported from England or made of ingredients imported therefrom and that only soda water there made had properties possessed by said product, through use of word "English" in designation thereof and through such depictions as head of one of British Buckingham guards, large bottle labeled "Wagner English Club Soda," Westminster Clock or Big Ben, and head of London policeman in characteristic helmet, together with such accompanying statements as "British as the Buckingham Guards" and "* * * like the sodas served in regimental clubs," "* * * distinctively British in the added leisure it gives to drinking * * *," "Pour Wagner's in your glass and discover what every Englishman knows: It's the soda that makes or mars the drink," "Wagner English Club Soda guards the liveliness of your drink * * * just as Big Ben, brooding over the House of Parliament, guards the hours for wayfaring Londoners," "* * * has the true British quality of holding life and flavor in a drink," and featured in advertisements aforesaid "Wagner The English Club Soda";

Notwithstanding fact neither product in question nor ingredients thereof were made in and imported from England, such as preferred by substantial number of members of purchasing public in the United States, but product aforesaid was made in United States from domestic ingredients and did not have any properties possessed by soda water made in England not possessed by other such water made in United States from domestic ingredients;

With effect of misleading and deceiving substantial number of members of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that such false and misleading statements and representations were true and, by reason thereof, into purchase of substantial quantities of its said product;

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth were, all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that W. T. Wagner's Sons Co., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as the respondent, has violated and is now violating the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, W. T. Wagner's Sons Co., is a corporation, organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Ohio, and having its office and principal place of business located at 1920-26 Race Street in the city of Cincinnati, State of Ohio, and a branch office and place of business in the city of Dayton, State of Ohio. Respondent is now, and has been for several years last past, engaged in the business of manufacturing soda water and other soft drinks and in the sale and distribution thereof in commerce between and among various States of the United States. Respondent causes said products when sold to be transported from its aforesaid places of business to the purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in various States of the United States other than the State of Ohio. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said soda water and other soft drinks in commerce between and among various States of the United States.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of one of two cargoes, respondent has caused said product to be branded "Wagner English Club Soda" and has caused various statements and representations, including pictorial representations relative to said product, to be inserted in advertisements in newspapers and other publications having a general circulation throughout various States of the United States. Among and typical of said statements and representations relative to said product "Wagner English Club Soda" are the following:

A large picture showing the head of one of the British Buckingham guards and also a large bottle labeled "Wagner English Club Soda." On said picture is the following printing: "BRITISH AS THE BUCKINGHAM GUARDS." Beneath said picture is the following:

In this advertisement there also appears a large bottle labeled "Wagner English Club Soda."

In large conspicuous letters on each of the above advertisements appear the words "WAGNER THE ENGLISH CLUB SODA."

The above quotations and advertisements are not exclusive, but are merely illustrative of the type and character of the representations used by respondent in advertising its product "Wagner English Club Soda."

PAR. 3. Through the use of the aforesaid statements and representations by respondent and others of similar import or meaning not herein set out, including the use of the word "English" in the designation of said product, the respondent represents directly or by implication that said "Wagner English Club Soda" is imported from England, or that it is made of ingredients imported from England, and that only soda waters made in England have the properties possessed by "Wagner English Club Soda."

PAR. 4. The aforesaid statements and representations by respondent are false and misleading. Respondent's "Wagner English Club Soda" is not manufactured in England and imported into the United States. The ingredients of said soda water are not imported from England. Said soda water is made in the United States from domestic ingredients. Said soda water does not have any properties possessed by soda waters made in England which are not possessed by other soda waters made in the United States from domestic ingredients.

PAR. 5. There is a substantial number of members of the purchasing public in the United States who have a preference for soda waters made in England or made from ingredients imported from England.

PAR. 6. The use by respondent of the aforesaid false and misleading statements and representations had and has the tendency and capacity to, and did and does, mislead and deceive a substantial number of members of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that the aforesaid false and misleading statements and representations are true and into the purchase of substantial quantities of respondent's said "Wagner English Club Soda" because of said erroneous and mistaken belief.

PAR. 7. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on October 19, 1939, issued and on October 20, 1939, served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondent, W. T. Wagner's Sons Co., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On October 26, 1939, the respondent filed its answer, in which answer it admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and stated that prior to the issuance of said complaint it had discontinued the statements, representations, and advertisements set forth in said complaint and that it would not in the future make such statements or representations. Thereafter, the respondent having waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint and the answer thereto, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and now being fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, W. T. Wagner's Sons Co., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Ohio, and having its office and principal place of business located at 1920-26 Race Street in the city of Cincinnati, State of Ohio, and a branch office and place of business in the city of Dayton,

State of Ohio. Respondent is now, and has been for several years last past, engaged in the business of manufacturing soda water and other soft drinks and in the sale and distribution thereof in commerce between and among various States of the United States. Respondent causes said products, when sold, to be transported from its aforesaid places of business to the purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in various States of the United States other than the State of Ohio. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in soda water and other soft drinks in commerce between and among various States of the United States.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of one of its products, respondent caused said product to be branded "Wagner English Club Soda" and caused various statements and representations, including pictorial representations relative to said product, to be inserted in advertisements in newspapers and other publications having a general circulation throughout various States of the United States. Among and typical of said statements and representations relative to said product, "Wagner English Club Soda" are the following:

A large picture showing the head of one of the British Buckingham guards and also a large bottle labeled "Wagner English Club Soda". On said picture is the following printing: "BRITISH AS THE BUCKINGHAM GUARDS." Beneath said picture is the following:

In this advertisement there also appears a large bottle labeled "Wagner English Club Soda."

In large conspicuous letters on each of the above advertisements appear the words "WAGNER THE ENGLISH CLUB SODA."

The above quotations and advertisements are not exclusive, but are merely illustrative of the type and character of the representations used by respondent in advertising its product "Wagner English Club Soda".

PAR. 3. Through the use of the aforesaid statements and representations by respondent and others of similar import or meaning not herein set out, including the use of the word "English" in the designation of said product, the respondent represented directly or by implication that said "Wagner English Club Soda" was imported from England, or that it was made of ingredients imported from England, and that only soda waters made in England had the properties possessed by "Wagner English Club Soda."

PAR. 4. The aforesaid statements and representations by respondent were false and misleading. Respondent's "Wagner English Club Soda" was not and is not manufactured in England and imported into the United States. The ingredients of said soda water were not and are not imported from England. Said soda water was made and is made in the United States from domestic ingredients. Said soda water did not and does not have any properties possessed by soda waters made in England which were not and are not possessed by other soda waters made in the United States from domestic ingredients.

PAR. 5. There is a substantial number of members of the purchasing public in the United States who have a preference for soda waters made in England or made from ingredients imported from England.

PAR. 6. The use by respondent of the aforesaid false and misleading statements and representations had the tendency and capacity to, and did, mislead and deceive a substantial number of members of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that the aforesaid false and misleading statements and representations were true and into the purchase of substantial quantities of respondent's said "Wagner English Club Soda" because of said erroneous and mistaken belief.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and the respondent, having waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, W. T. Wagner's Sons Co., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of its soda water in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. The use of the word "English" to designate or describe its soda water.

2. Representing, directly or by implication, that its soda water is imported from England, or that such soda water is made of ingredients imported from England.

3. Representing, directly or by implication, that only soda waters made in England have the properties possessed by its soda water.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

I. SEKINE COMPANY, INC.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3624. Complaint, Oct. 7, 1938—Decision, Feb. 24, 1940

Where a corporation engaged in manufacturing or assembling and preparing for trade toothbrushes through boring and inserting in imported handles, imported bristles, and in selling and distributing its said toothbrushes to customers in other States and in District of Columbia, in active and substantial competition with others engaged in sale and distribution of toothbrushes and hand brushes in commerce as aforesaid—

Obliterated words or legends "Japan" or "Made in Japan." set forth on bristle head of such handles in harmony with practice and requirement in protection of consuming public of marking imported articles conspicuously and as legibly, indelibly and permanently as nature thereof will permit so as to indicate to ultimate purchaser name of country of origin, by bristles' insertion in holes bored in handles aforesaid at precise location of such marks of origin, and stamped elsewhere in conspicuous place on handle of finally assembled commodity in bold gold lettering words "This Brush Is Made in U. S. A."; notwithstanding fact toothbrushes in question were not wholly there made but facts were as above set out and representations thus made by it with respect to character, origin and nature of manufacture of its said products were false, misleading and untrue;

With effect of misleading and deceiving purchasers or prospective purchasers of said toothbrushes through use of aforesaid sales methods whereby identification mark was obliterated or concealed in final fabrication of finished article and words aforesaid were placed thereon, into erroneous belief that said products had been made wholly from materials produced in United States, and as products there made were such as were decidedly preferred and purchased by substantial portion of purchasing public as American-made and superior to similar articles made in foreign countries, and with result that trade was thereby diverted to it from others likewise engaged in manufacture, distribution and sale of toothbrushes and who truthfully represent their products, including character and origin thereof; to injury of competition in commerce:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce.

Before Mr. Robert S. Hall, trial examiner.

Mr. John R. Phillips, Jr., for the Commission.

Mr. James W. Bevans, of New York City, for respondent.

Complaint

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that I. Sekine Co., Inc., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. I. Sekine Co., Inc., is a corporation created and existing under the laws of the State of New York with its principal offices and place of business located at 232 Madison Avenue in the city of New York, State of New York, and with its factory located at 2400-2442 Stoddard Place in the city of Baltimore, State of Maryland.

PAR. 2. Respondent is now, and for more than 2 years last past has been, engaged in the business of manufacturing, selling, and distributing tooth brushes and hand brushes.

Respondent causes said tooth brushes and hand brushes, when sold, to be transported from its place of business in the State of New York and from its factory in the State of Maryland to its customers located in States of the United States other than the State of New York and Maryland and in the District of Columbia.

Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said tooth brushes and handbrushes sold and distributed by it in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of its business, respondent is in actual and substantial competition with other corporations, and with firms, partnerships, and individuals engaged in the sale and distribution of tooth brushes and hand brushes in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of said business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of said tooth brushes, respondent has caused to be marked or stamped, in plain and legible gold letters, on the handles thereof, the words or legend "This Brush is Made in U. S. A." The handles of said tooth brushes were, and have been, imported from Japan and have had, and still have, the word "Japan" stamped or marked upon them in such a place and manner that the subsequent insertion of bristles into the handles thereof, by the respondent, thus completing the manufacture of the toothbrushes, effectively obscures and obliterates from the vision of purchasers of such tooth brushes the word "Japan." This obscuration and obliteration has been made and is done to a degree by which the word "Japan" is discernible and discoverable only through the use of a magnifying glass or through the removal of the bristles.

PAR. 5. The representations made by respondent with respect to the character, origin, nature, and manufacture of its tooth brushes, are grossly exaggerated, false, misleading, and untrue. In truth and in fact, the tooth brushes of respondent are not in whole "Made in U. S. A.," the handles thereof having been made and manufactured in Japan.

A substantial number of purchasers and users of tooth brushes have an active preference for merchandise of this nature manufactured wholly in the United States.

PAR. 6. There are, among respondent's competitors, many who manufacture, distribute, and sell tooth brushes, who do not in any way misrepresent the character, origin, and manufacture of their respective tooth brushes.

PAR. 7. Each and all of the false and misleading statements and representations made by respondent in designating its tooth brushes to be "Made in U. S. A.," as hereinabove set out, were, and are, calculated to, and have had, and now have, the tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that all of said representations are true and that said tooth brushes are "Made in U. S. A." and of and from materials wholly having their origin and manufacture in the United States of America, and into the purchase of a substantial volume of respondent's tooth brushes on account of said belief so induced, with the result that trade has been diverted unfairly to respondent from competitors likewise engaged in the business of manufacturing, distributing, and selling tooth brushes who truthfully represent the origin and manufacture of said products. As a consequence thereof, injury has been done, and is now being done, by respondent to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on the 7th day of October 1938, issued and thereafter served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, I. Sekine Co., Inc., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer thereto testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by John R. Phillips, Jr., attorney for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by James W. Bevans, attorney for the respondent, before Robert S. Hall, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, and briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto, oral argument not having been requested; and the Commission, having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, I. Sekine Co., Inc., is a corporation created and existing under the laws of the State of New York with its principal offices and place of business located at 232 Madison Avenue, in the city of New York, State of New York, and with its factory located at 2400-2442 Stoddard Place, in the city of Baltimore, State of Maryland.

PAR. 2. Respondent is now, and for more than 2 years last past has been, engaged in the business of manufacturing, selling, and distributing tooth brushes and hand brushes. Respondent causes said tooth brushes and hand brushes, when sold, to be transported from its place of business in the State of New York and from its factory in the State of Maryland to its customers located in States of the United States other than the States of New York and Maryland, and in the District of Columbia. At all times mentioned herein respondent has maintained a course of trade in said tooth brushes and hand brushes sold and distributed by it in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of its business, respondent is in actual and substantial competition with other corporations, and with firms, partnerships, and individuals engaged in the sale and distribution of tooth brushes and hand brushes in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. Respondent's manufacturing plant is located in Baltimore, Md., where its products, including tooth brushes, are assembled and prepared for the trade. The principal component parts or material used in the manufacture of tooth brushes are handles and bristles, and both handles and bristles so used by respondent in the manufacture of its said products are imported. The handles used by respondent are imported from Japan. Said handles when received by respondent as imported are marked or branded "Japan" or "Made in Japan" on the inside of the bristle head. In the process of preparing the commodity for sale respondent thereafter causes holes to be bored in the handle in the precise location where such marks denoting Japanese origin appear, and therein at such place or location are inserted the bristles for the said tooth brushes. The words "Japan" or "Made in Japan" are thus and thereby obscured and obliterated by the insertion in the handle of the brush of the bristles as aforesaid, and this process so employed by respondent in producing the commodity serves to hide or conceal from the ordinary purchaser of the tooth brush the fact that the handle thereof was imported from Japan. When the commodity is finally assembled the words "This brush is made in U. S. A." are stamped in bold gold lettering in a conspicuous place elsewhere on the handle of the brush.

PAR. 5. In truth and in fact the representations made by respondent with respect to the character, origin, and nature of manufacture of its tooth brushes are and were false, misleading, and untrue. The said tooth brushes of respondent are not wholly "Made in U. S. A.," the handles thereof, an important component part of said brushes, having been made in Japan and appear so stamped until said mark of identity is obliterated and concealed by respondent, and said original marking indicating foreign origin is superseded by the new and wholly deceptive legend reading "Made in U. S. A."

PAR. 6. A substantial portion of the purchasing public has, and has indicated, a decided preference for products, including tooth brushes, which are manufactured in the United States. There is, in fact, a substantial portion of the purchasing public which desires to purchase exclusively American made merchandise because of their belief in its superior quality over similar articles manufactured in foreign countries and thereafter imported into the United States.

PAR. 7. There obtains in the United States as a protection to the consuming public, the practice and requirement of marking imported articles in a conspicuous place as legibly, indelibly, and permanently as the nature of the article will permit so as to indicate to the ultimate purchaser thereof the name of the country of the origin of the article. The use by respondent of sales methods whereby tooth brushes made from imported handles from which the identification mark of the country of origin has been obliterated or concealed in the final fabrication of the finished article, and the placing thereon of the words "Made in U. S. A." has, and has had, the capacity to mislead and deceive, and does mislead and deceive purchasers or prospective purchasers of said tooth brushes into the erroneous belief that said tooth brushes have been manufactured wholly from materials produced in the United States. As a consequence of the aforesaid acts and practices of respondent trade has been diverted to respondent from other individuals, firms, partnerships, and corporations likewise engaged in the business of manufacturing, distributing, and selling tooth brushes, who truthfully represent their products, including the character and origin thereof. As a result of the acts and practices of respondent as aforesaid, injury has been done by respondent to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondent, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint, and in opposition thereto taken before Robert S. Hall, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and briefs filed herein, oral argument not having been requested, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, I. Sekine Co., Inc., a corporation, its officers, agents, employees, and representatives, directly or through any corporate device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of tooth brushes in commerce as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Using the words "This brush is made in U. S. A." or any words of similar import or meaning on tooth brushes made from imported handles, or on the containers in which they are packaged, or in any other manner in connection with such brushes.

2. Representing, directly or by implication, through the use of the words "This brush is made in U. S. A.", or any other words of similar import or meaning, or by the unnecessary obliteration or concealment of the word or words indicating the foreign origin of the handles of such brushes in processing said handles, or in any other manner, that tooth brushes made from imported handles are of domestic manufacture.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3837. Complaint, June 28, 1939—Decision, Feb. 24, 1940

Where a corporation and three individuals who were general officers thereof and as such managed, controlled, and dominated its affairs and activities, and fourth individual who acted as general manager thereof, engaged in manufacture of hats from felt and other materials obtained from old, worn, and previously used hats or products and in so treating and processing through cleaning, steaming, ironing, and shaping and fitting with new trimmings, sweat bands and size labels, old, worn, and used felt hat bodies purchased by them that they had the appearance of new hats made from felts which had never been worn—

Sold said hats with appearance aforesaid and with no label, marking or designation stamped thereon to indicate to purchasing public that they were in fact made from old, worn, and used bodies cleaned and renovated as above set forth, to jobber, wholesaler, and retailer dealers by whom as direct or indirect purchasers from it said hats were resold to purchasing public without disclosing facts aforesaid, and failed through use of words "Made Over Hat" immediately preceding such terms as "DeLuxe Quality" or other similar terms and names embossed on sweat bands of hats in question to disclose to purchasers that articles concerned were in fact made from old, worn, and previously used hat bodies as distinguished from products made from shop worn hat bodies never worn or used, as made in many instances by manufacturers through similar process employed with new but shop worn hats reclaimed by them from merchants' shelves;

With effect of misleading and deceiving substantial number of wholesale dealers, jobbers, retailers, and members of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken beliefs that said products were made from either new and unused materials or from new but shop worn hat bodies which had never been worn or used and into purchase of substantial numbers of said hats because of such mistaken beliefs:

Held, that such acts and practices under the circumstances set forth were all to the prejudice of the public and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Economy Men's Hat Co., Inc., a corporation, and Rosalind Nissenbaum and Lena Nissenbaum, individually and as officers of Economy Men's Hat Co., Inc., a corporation, and Samuel Gilman, an individual, hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues this complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Economy Men's Hat Co., Inc., is now and has been at all times mentioned herein, a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its office and principal place of business located at 5 Elizabeth Street, in the city and State of New York. Respondents, Rosalind Nissenbaum and Lena Nissenbaum, are individuals and are president, and secretary and treasurer, respectively, of respondent Economy Men's Hat Co., Inc., and as such manage, control, and dominate its corporate affairs and activities. Respondent, Samuel Gilman, is an individual and is employed by and acts as general manager for respondent corporation. All of said respondents have their office and principal place of business at 5 Elizabeth Street, in the city and State of New York. Respondents are now, and for more than 1 year last past have been, engaged in the business of manufacturing hats from felts and other materials obtained from old, worn, and previously used hats, and of selling the same to retailers, jobbers, and wholesalers located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondents cause, and at all times herein mentioned have caused, such hats to be transported from their place of business in the city and State of New York to the aforesaid purchasers thereof, at their respective points of location in various States of the United States other than the State of New York and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of said business, described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondents buy old, worn, and previously used felt hats. The old, worn, and used felt-hat bodies are cleaned, steamed, ironed, and shaped by respondents and then fitted with new trimmings, sweat bands, size labels, and sold by respondents to retailers who, in turn sell said products to the purchasing public.

PAR. 3. The aforesaid old, worn, and previously used hat bodies, after having been made by respondents into hats with new trimmings, sweat bands, size labels, as described in paragraph 2 hereof, have the appearance of new hats manufactured from felts which have never been worn, and said hats are sold by respondents to retailers, and to jobbers and wholesale dealers without any label, marking, or designation stamped thereon to indicate to the purchasing public that said hats are in fact manufactured from old, worn, and previously used felt-hat bodies, which have been cleaned and renovated by respondents. Said hats are also sold to jobbers and wholesale dealers and are resold by said jobbers and wholesale dealers to retail dealers, who sell them to the purchasing public without disclosing the fact that said hats are manufactured from felts, previously worn and then cleaned and renovated, and under such circumstances as to indicate that they are in fact new hats.

In the course of the operation of their business respondents use the words "De Luxe Quality" and other similar words or names in designating said merchandise. Respondents cause said words or similar words or names to be embossed on sweat bands which are attached to said hats. Immediately preceding the words "De Luxe Quality" or other similar terms and names used by respondents in designating said hats respondents have cause to be embossed the words "Made Over Hat."

It is the practice of various manufacturers of hats to manufacture finished hats from previously used felt-hat bodies, and from new felt-hat bodies, obtained from new but shop-worn hats, as well as from newly manufactured felt. Shop-worn hats are new hats which are reclaimed from merchants' shelves by said hat manufacturers, and which have never been worn or used. Said shop-worn hats are cleaned, steamed, and renovated by said hat manufacturers in the same manner as hats made from old, worn, and previously used felt-hat bodies.

By the use of the words "Made Over Hat" in the manner aforesaid, respondents fail to disclose to purchasers that said hats are made from old, worn, and previously used hat bodies, as distinguished from hats made from shop-worn hat bodies which have never been worn or used.

PAR. 4. The use by respondents of the acts and practices, above set forth, has the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial number of wholesale dealers, jobbers, retail dealers, and members of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken beliefs that said hats are manufactured from either new and unused materials, or are made from new but shop-worn hat bodies which have never been worn or used, and into the purchase of a substantial number of said hats because of such erroneous and mistaken beliefs.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on the 28th day of June, A. D. 1939, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon said respondents, Economy Men's Hat Co., Inc., a corporation, and Rosalind Nissenbaum, Lena Nissenbaum, Nat Gilman (herein erroneously designated as Samuel Gilman), individually and as officers of Economy Men's Hat Co., Inc., a corporation, charging them with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On August 15, 1939, the respondents by their attorney, Max Bergman, Esq., filed their answer in this proceeding. Thereafter, a stipulation was entered into whereby it was stipulated and agreed that a statement of facts signed and executed by the respondents' counsel, Max Bergman, Esq., and W. T. Kelley, chief counsel for the Commission, subject to the approval of the Commission, may be taken as the facts in this proceeding and in lieu of testimony in support of the charges stated in the complaint, or in opposition thereto, and that the said Commission may proceed upon said statement of facts to make its report, stating its findings as to the facts and its conclusion based thereon and enter its order disposing of the proceeding without the presentation of argument or the filing of briefs. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, answer, and stipulation, said stipulation having been approved, accepted, and filed, and the Commission having duly considered the same and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Economy Men's Hat Co., Inc., is now and has been at all times mentioned herein, a corporation organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its office and principal place of business located at 5 Elizabeth Street, in the city and State of New York. Respondents, Rosalind Nissenbaum and Lena Nissenbaum, are individuals and are president, and secretary and treasurer, respectively, of respondent Economy Men's Hat Co., Inc., and as such manage, control, and dominate its corporate affairs and activities. Respondent Nat Gilman, herein erroneously designated as Samuel Gilman, is an individual and is employed by and acts as general manager for respondent corporation. All of said respondents have their office and principal place of business at 5 Elizabeth Street, in the city and State of New York. Respondents are now, and for more than 1 year last past have been, engaged in the business of manufacturing hats from felts and other materials obtained from old, worn, and previously used hats, and of selling the same to retailers, jobbers, and wholesalers located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondents cause, and at all times herein mentioned have caused, such hats to be transported from their place of business in the city and State of New York to the aforesaid purchasers thereof, at their respective points of location in various States of the United States other than the State of New York and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of said business, described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondents buy old, worn, and previously used felt hats. The old, worn, and used felt hat bodies are cleaned, steamed, ironed and shaped by respondents and then fitted with new trimmings, sweat bands, size labels, and sold by respondents to retailers who, in turn sell said products to the purchasing public.

PAR. 3. The aforesaid old, worn, and previously used hat bodies, after having been made by respondents into hats with new trimmings, sweat bands, size labels, as described in paragraph 2 hereof, have the appearance of new hats manufactured from felts which have never been worn, and said hats are sold by respondents to retailers, and to jobbers and wholesale dealers without any label, marking or designation stamped thereon to indicate to the purchasing public that said hats are in fact manufactured from old, worn, and previously used felt hat bodies, which have been cleaned and renovated by respondents. Said hats are also sold to jobbers and wholesale dealers and are resold by said jobbers and wholesale dealers to retail dealers, who sell them to the purchasing public without disclosing the fact that said hats are manufactured from felts, previously worn and then cleaned and renovated, and under such circumstances as to indicate that they are in fact new hats.

In the course of the operation of their business respondents use the words "De Luxe Quality" and other similar words or names in designating said merchandise. Respondents cause said words or similar words or names to be embossed on sweat bands which are attached to said hats. Immediately preceding the words "De Luxe Quality" or other similar terms and names used by respondents in designating said hats respondents have caused to be embossed the words "Made Over Hat."

It is the practice of various manufacturers of hats to manufacture finished hats from previously used felt-hat bodies, and from new felt-hat bodies, obtained from new but shop-worn hats, as well as from newly manufactured felt. Shop-worn hats are new hats which are reclaimed from merchants' shelves by said hat manufacturers, and which have never been worn or used. Said shop-worn hats are cleaned, steamed, and renovated by said hat manufacturers in the same manner as hats made from old, worn, and previously used felt-hat bodies.

By the use of the words "Made Over Hat" in the manner aforesaid, respondents fail to disclose to purchasers that said hats are made from old, worn, and previously used hat bodies, as distinguished from hats made from shop-worn hat bodies which have never been worn or used.

PAR. 4. The use by respondents of the acts and practices, above set forth, has the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial number of wholesale dealers, jobbers, retail dealers, and members of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken beliefs that said hats are manufactured from either new and unused materials, or are made from new but shop-worn hat bodies which have never been worn or used, and into the purchase of a substantial number of said hats because of such erroneous and mistaken beliefs.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents as herein found are all to the prejudice of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondents, and a stipulation as to the facts entered into between counsel for the respondents herein, Max Bergman, Esq., and W. T. Kelley, chief counsel for the Commission, which provides, among other things, that without further evidence or other intervening procedure the Commission may issue and serve upon the respondents herein findings as to the facts and conclusion based thereon and an order disposing of the proceeding, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent Economy Men's Hat Co., Inc., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, and respondents Rosalind Nissenbaum, Lena Nissenbaum and Nat Gilman, (herein erroneously designated as Samuel Gilman), individually and as officers of said corporation, their representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of hats in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing that hats composed in whole or in part of used or second-hand materials are new or are composed of new materials by failure to stamp on the sweat bands thereof, in conspicuous and legible terms which cannot be removed or obliterated without mutilating the sweat bands, a statement that said products are composed of second-hand or used materials, provided that if sweat bands are not affixed to said hats then such stamping must appear on the bodies of such hats in conspicuous or legible terms which cannot be removed or obliterated without mutilating said bodies;

2. Representing in any manner that hats made in whole or in part from old, used or second-hand materials are new or are composed of new materials.

It is further ordered, That respondents shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF RATHJEN BROS., INC.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3909. Complaint, Oct. 4, 1939—Decision, Feb. 29, 1940

Where a corporation engaged as rectifier and wholesaler of whiskies, gins, rum, brandy, and liquors in sale of its said merchandise to purchasers in the several other states and in the District of Columbia, in competition with others engaged in manufacture and distillation of whiskies, gins, and other alcoholic beverages who truthfully use word "distilling" or words of similar import or meaning as part of their corporate or trade name or on their stationery, labels and other advertising matter and with those engaged as wholesalers and distributors of such products who do not thus use said word or words—

Represented through use of word "distilling" in trade name employed by it on labels and letterheads that it was a distiller and that the whiskies, gins, and other alcoholic beverages offered by it and by it described by such statements as "Waldens Royal Toddy * * * manufactured by United States Distilling Company, etc.," "Waldens No. 100 Liqueur * * * Made by United States Distilling Company, etc.," "Old Braddock Brand * * * Bottled by United States Distilling Company," were by it made through process of distillation from mash, wort, or wash;

Notwithstanding fact it did not distill said various products sold and distributed by it as aforesaid nor operate or control any places where alcoholic beverages are manufactured by process of original and continuous distillation from mash, wort or wash, through continuous closed pipes and vessels until manufacture is complete, as long definitely understood from word "distilling" used in connection with liquor industry and products thereof in wholesale and retail trade and by ultimate purchasing public, and it was not a distiller, for the purchase of the alcoholic liquors of which, direct, there is a preference on the part of a substantial portion of purchasing public as affording, in its belief, elimination of middleman's profit and other advantages;

With effect of misleading and deceiving members of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that it was distiller of the whiskies, gins, and other alcoholic beverages sold and distributed by it, and into the purchase of substantial quantities of said product because of such erroneous and mistaken belief, and with result that trade and commerce was diverted unfairly to it from its said competitors who do not falsely represent themselves as distillers of their respective products; to the substantial injury of competition in commerce:

Held, That such acts and practices were all to the prejudice of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

Mr. Clark Nichols for the Commission.

Sefton & Quattrin, of San Francisco, Calif., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Rathjen Bros., Inc., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent Rathjen Bros., Inc., is a corporation organized and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of California and having its office and principal place of business at 135 Berry Street in the city of San Francisco, State of California. Respondent is now, and has been for several years last past, engaged in the business of a rectifier and wholesaler of whisky, gin, rum, brandy, and liqueurs, which it sells under the trade name of United States Distilling Co. Respondent causes said products, when sold by it, to be transported from its place of business in the State of California to the purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in various States of the United States other than the State of California and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in commerce in said products among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business, respondent is now, and has been during all the times mentioned herein, in substantial competition with other corporations and with firms, individuals and partnerships engaged in the manufacture by distillation of whiskies, gin, rum, and other alcoholic beverages from mash, wort, or wash, and in the sale and distribution thereof in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business, respondent is now, and has been during all the times mentioned herein, in substantial competition with other corporations and with individuals, firms, and partnerships engaged in the business of rectifying, blending, and bottling whiskies, gins, and other alcoholic beverages and in the sale and distribution thereof in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business, respondent is now, and has been during all the times mentioned herein, in substantial competition with other corporations and with individuals, firms, and partnerships engaged in the business

PAR. 4. Through the use of the aforesaid statements and representations, including the use of the word "distilling" in respondent's trade name United States Distilling Company, and other statements and representations of similar import or meaning not herein set out, the respondent represents that it is a distiller and that said whiskies, gins, and other alcoholic beverages were manufactured by respondent through the process of distillation from mash, wort, or wash. In truth and in fact, respondent is not a distiller and does not distil the said whiskies, gins, and other alcoholic beverages sold and distributed by it as aforesaid. Respondent does not operate or control any place or places where alcoholic beverages are manufactured by a process of original and continuous distillation from mash, wort, and wash.

PAR. 5. The word "distilling" when used in connection with the liquor industry and with the products thereof has had, and now has, a definite significance in meaning to the minds of wholesalers and retailers in such industry and to the ultimate purchasing public, to wit, the manufacturing of alcoholic liquors by an original and continuous distillation from mash, wort or wash, through continuous closed pipes and vessels until the manufacture thereof is complete, and a substantial portion of the purchasing public prefers to buy alcoholic liquors direct from the distilleries thereof in the belief that elimination of the middleman's profit and various other advantages may be obtained thereby.

PAR. 6. There are among the competitors of respondent described in paragraph 2 hereof, corporations, firms, and individuals who manufacture and distill from mash, wort, or wash as aforesaid, whiskies, gins, and other alcoholic beverages and who truthfully use the word "distilling" or other words of similar import or meaning as a part of their corporate or trade names or on their stationery, labels, or other printed matter. There are also among such competitors corporations, firms, and individuals engaged in the business of rectifying, blending, bottling, and selling whiskies, gins, and other alcoholic beverages and who do not use the word "distilling" or words of similar import or meaning as a part of their corporate or trade names or on their stationery, labels, or other advertising matter. There are also among such competitors of respondent, corporations, firms, and individuals engaged in business as wholesalers and distributors of whiskies, gins, and other alcoholic beverages and who do not use the word "distilling" or words of similar import or meaning as part of their corporate or trade names or on their stationery, labels, or other advertising matter.

PAR. 7. The use by the respondent of the aforesaid false and misleading statements and representations has the tendency and capacity to, and does, mislead and deceive members of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that respondent is the distiller of the whiskies, gins, and other alcoholic beverages which it sells and distributes and into the purchase of substantial quantities of said products because of said erroneous and mistaken belief. As a direct result thereof, trade in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia has been diverted unfairly to the respondent from its said competitors who do not falsely represent that they are the distillers of their respective products. In consequence thereof, substantial injury is being and has been done by respondent to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on the 4th day of October 1939, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondent, Rathjen Bros., Inc., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing by respondent of its answer dated November 15, 1939, the Commission, by order entered herein, granted respondent's motion for permission to withdraw said answer and to substitute therefor an answer admitting all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, which substitute answer was duly filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and substitute answer, and the Commission having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings, as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, Rathjen Bros., Inc., is a corporation organized and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of California and having its office and principal place of business at 135 Berry Street in the city of San Francisco in the State of California. Respondent is now and has been for several years last past engaged in the business of a rectifier and wholesaler of whiskies, gins, rum, brandy, and liquors, a portion of which it sells under the trade name of United States Distilling Co.

Findings

PAR. 2. The respondent, in the conduct of such business, has caused said merchandise when sold to be shipped to purchasers thereof located at various points in the several States of the United States other than the State from which said shipments are made, and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of such business the respondent is and has been in competition with other persons and with corporations, firms, and partnerships, engaged in the manufacture and distillation of whiskies, gins, and other alcoholic beverages and who truthfully use the word "distilling" or words of similar import or meaning as a part of their corporate or trade names or on their stationery, labels, and other advertising matter. There are also among such competitors of respondent, corporations, firms, and individuals engaged in business as wholesalers and distributors of whiskies, gins, and other alcoholic beverages and who do not use the word "distilling," or words of similar import or meaning as part of their corporate or trade names or on their stationery, labels, or other advertising matter.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business and in furtherance of the sale of said products, the respondent has made on its labels and its letterheads representations which would lead the purchasing public to believe that the respondent distills the whiskies, gins, and other alcoholic beverages which it sells. Among and typical of said statements and representations are the following:

WALDENS Royal Toddy,

PAR. 5. Through the use of the aforesaid statements and representations, including the use of the word "Distilling" in respondent's trade name, United States Distilling Company, and other statements and representations of similar import or meaning not herein set out, the respondent represents that it is a distiller and that said whiskies, gins, and other alcoholic beverages were manufactured by respondent through the process of distillation from mash, wort, or wash. Respondent is not a distiller and does not distil the said whiskies, gins, and other alcoholic beverages sold and distributed by it as aforesaid. The respondent does not operate or control any place or places where alcoholic beverages are manufactured by a process of original and continuous distillation from mash, wort, and wash. The word "Distilling," when used in connection with the liquor industry and with the products thereof, has had and now has a definite significance in meaning to the minds of wholesalers and retailers in such industry and to the ultimate purchasing public, viz, the manufacturing of alcoholic liquors by an original and continuous distillation from mash, wort, or wash, through continuous closed pipes and vessels until the manufacture thereof is complete. A substantial portion of the purchasing public prefers to buy alcoholic liquors direct from the distillers thereof in the belief that the elimination of the middleman's profit and various other advantages may be obtained thereby.

PAR. 6. The use by the respondent of the aforesaid false and misleading statements and representations has the tendency and capacity to and does mislead and deceive members of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that respondent is the distiller of the whiskies, gins, and other alcoholic beverages which it sells and distributes and into the purchase of substantial quantities of said products because of said erroneous and mistaken belief. As a direct result thereof, trade in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia has been diverted unfairly to respondent from its said competitors who do not falsely represent that they are distillers of their respective products. In consequence thereof substantial injury is being and has been done by respondent to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent Rathjen Bros., Inc., a corporation, are all to the prejudice of the public and to respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of the respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and states that it waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Rathjen Bros., Inc., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of whiskies, gins, and other alcoholic beverages in interstate commerce or in the District of Columbia do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Using the word "Distilling" on the labels of any of its products, on its letterheads, or any other form of advertising matter, or in its corporate or trade name, or any other word or words of similar import or meaning, unless and until it is actually engaged in the manufacture of such alcoholic beverages by an original and continuous distillation from mash, wort, or wash, through continuous closed pipes and vessels until the manufacture thereof is complete.

2. Representing, through the use of the word "Distilling" on its stationery, advertising, or on the labels attached to the bottles in which it sells and ships said products, or in any way by a word or words of like import, (a) that respondent is a distiller of the said whiskies, gins, or other alcoholic beverages; or (b) that the said whiskies, gins, or other alcoholic beverages were manufactured by it through a process of distillation; or (c) that respondent owns, operates, or controls a place or places where such products are manufactured by a process of original and continuous distillation from mash, wort, or wash through continuous closed pipes and vessels until the manufacture thereof is complete, unless and until respondent actually owns, operates, or controls such a place or places.

Order

30 F. T. C.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3684. Complaint, Jan. 6, 1939—Decision, Mar. 1, 1940

Where a corporation and two individuals, partners and former incorporators and shareholders thereof, and successors to business thereof, engaged, with studios in several cities, in mail order photography and in sale and distribution of photographs in commerce among the various States, and in causing their said product, when sold, to be transported from their finishing office and principal place of business to purchasers in various other States, in substantial competition with others also engaged in sale of photographs in commerce as aforesaid;

In carrying on their aforesaid business under practice by which (1) they sent advance agent or crew manager to various towns in proposed itinerary to distribute to various local merchants, for distribution free of charge to latter's customers, free coupons giving such customers opportunity to acquire photographs of themselves for 59 cents or 69 cents, as case might be, upon presentation of coupon on specified date and place, at which time and place employee photographer and assistant photographed those presenting coupon and paying amount called for, (2) negatives were shipped by photographer to their said place of business and developed, and (3) proofs were mailed to employee-salesman or "proof-passer", who made appointments with customer for selection of proof desired and attempted to sell each as many photographs additional as possible, (4) coloring of photograph was done at said office and finishing studio, and (5) advance agent and "proof-passer" salesman were compensated on commission basis wholly and in accordance with sittings and photographs sold—

- (a) Represented and described as "hand painted" or "paintings" colored or tinted photographs or photographic enlargements thus offered and called for, and applied thereto such terms as "portraits in oil colors," "oil portraits," "gold tone oil paintings," and "oil colored portraits," facts being products in question were not paintings or, in ordinarily accepted meaning, or likeness, image, or scene depicted with paints and without photographic aid, nor portrait or picture of person drawn from life, nor likeness or oil painting done by hand with brushes in plastic oil colors on canvas or other material without such aid, but photographic enlargements of small negatives, tinted or colored by cotton or paper swab and smearing of transparent oils over uncolored original; and
- (b) Represented that so-called "portraits" or "paintings" offered and described in coupons distributed as above set forth, had value of $5.00 and were offered for 59 cents or 69 cents, as case might be, together with certificate represented as being worth $4.41, and entitling holder to one of their regular "$5.00 Oil Portraits," facts being said tinted enlargements did not have any such value, were not reasonably worth more than 59 cents or 69 cents paid therefor by customer, products in question were usually and customarily sold for said amounts, and advertising coupons did not have value of $4.41 or any such sum, but were solely device to induce customer to have photograph taken, and latter received no financial or other advantage by use of coupon, and offer in question was not at reduced or special price, and coupon did not represent aforesaid or any other amount or special trade concession on part of local merchants;

With tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive members of purchasing public concerning nature, quality, and value of photographs sold and distributed by them, and with effect of thereby inducing substantial portion of such public to purchase said products under erroneous and mistaken beliefs that same were high-grade oil portraits or paintings and that distinct financial advantage would be obtained by use of coupons distributed by them, and with result, as consequence of such erroneous and mistaken beliefs, that trade was diverted unfairly from their competitors engaged also in sale and distribution of tinted or colored photographs or photographic enlargements in commerce as aforesaid, and who do not employ and maintain sales methods and practices such as used by them, but truthfully represent their products and quality thereof:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

Mr. Merle P. Lyon for the Commission.

Mr. Leo A. Reuther, of Breckenridge, Minn., for respondents.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Universal Studios, Inc., a corporation, Harry I. Smith, Sanders R. Smith, and Lorraine H. Smith, copartners, trading as Universal Studios, hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, the Commission hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Universal Studios, Inc., is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Minnesota, with its principal office and place of business located at 187 East Seventh Street, St. Paul, Minn. Respondents Harry I. Smith, Sanders R. Smith, and Lorraine H. Smith, are copartners trading under the name and style of Universal Studios, with their principal office and place of business located at 187 East Seventh Street, St. Paul, Minn.

The above-named individual respondents were and are officers and principal stockholders of the above-named corporate respondent, and in active charge and control of its activities. The false and deceptive sales practices and representations carried on by it as hereinafter alleged have been or are now also being carried on by the above-named individual respondents doing business as a partnership.

PAR. 2. Said respondents are now and for some time last past have been engaged in the business of mail-order photography, and in the sale and distribution of photographs and photographic products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondents sell said products through the medium of salesmen and agents appointed by them to customers located in States other than the State of Minnesota. Respondents cause said photographs and photographic products when sold to be transported from their place of business in St. Paul, Minn., to the respective purchasers thereof located in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of their said business, respondents have been, and are now, engaged in direct and substantial competition with various corporations, partnerships, firms, and individuals likewise engaged in the sale in commerce, between and among the various States of the United States, of photographs and photographic products, and likewise with corporations, partnerships, firms, and individuals engaged in the sale of genuine original paintings and portraits, in commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

PAR. 4. A painting, in its ordinarily accepted meaning, is a likeness, image, or scene depicted with paints without the aid of photography. A portrait, in its ordinarily accepted meaning, is a picture of a person drawn from life, especially a picture or representation of a face; a likeness, particularly in oil. An oil painting is a painting done by hand with brushes in plastic oil colors on canvas, or other material, without the aid of photography.

PAR. 5. In the course and conduct of their said business, respondents cause agents and representatives employed by them to visit the homes of prospective customers in the cities, towns, and rural communities of the various States of the United States. These agents and representatives ordinarily travel in groups or "crews" from town to town, each crew consisting of four persons, one of whom ordinarily travels in advance, making arrangements with local merchants to attract customers by the distribution to prospective customers of coupons or "certificates" as more particularly hereinafter set forth. The advance agent is followed by a photographer and a helper who take the photographs, and later a fourth member of the crew calls on the customers and exhibits the proofs and takes orders for the pic-

PAR. 6. Through the use of the statements and representations hereinabove set forth and other representations similar thereto not specifically set out herein, the respondents represent that they are making a special "Christmas Offer" or an offer at a reduced or special price whereby the prospective purchaser by use of a special coupon can obtain a picture variously represented as "an oil painting," "a portrait in oil colors," "a gold tone painting," or "an oil colored portrait" of the "value of $5.00" or "a big value" for the sum of 59¢ or 69¢. The respondents further represent that said coupon distributed by them or under their direction is worth to the holder thereof the sum of $4.41 and represents a special trade concession on the part of certain local merchants.

PAR. 7. In truth and in fact the pictures sold and distributed by the respondents by the method hereinabove set forth were not and are not of a "$5.00 value" or a "big value" and $5.00 was not and is not the regular price charged therefor. The offer made by the respondents was not and is not a special Christmas offer or an offer at a reduced or special price, but instead 59¢ and 69¢ were and are the usual, ordinary and customary selling prices of such pictures in the respective 7x10 and 8x10 sizes. Furthermore, the coupon or certificate was not and is not worth $4.41 or any other amount and does not represent a special trade concession on the part of certain local merchants.

In truth and in fact the pictures sold by respondents through the sales methods hereinabove described were not and are not "oil paintings," "portraits in oil colors," "gold tone oil paintings," and "oil portraits," or "oil colored portraits," but were and are merely tinted or colored photographs. Such tinted or colored photographs are not portraits, paintings, oil portraits, or oil paintings in the commonly accepted uses of said terms.

PAR. 8. There are among the competitors of respondents corporations, partnerships, firms and individuals who are engaged in the sale of tinted or colored photographs or photographic enlargements in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia who do not employ and maintain sales methods and practices such as are used by the respondents, but who truthfully represent their products and honestly vend the same. There are also among the competitors of respondents corporations, partnerships, firms, and individuals engaged in the business or profession of painting genuine oil portraits and paintings who truthfully represent their products as being portraits or paintings.

PAR. 9. The use by the respondents of the aforesaid false and misleading representations and practices in the sale and offering for sale of purported oil portraits and paintings which are in fact merely tinted or colored photographs or photographic enlargements, has had, and now has, the tendency and capacity to deceive, and has deceived and now does deceive, the public concerning the nature, quality, and value of their products sold as hereinbefore described, and has thereby induced, and is inducing, the public to purchase said products under the erroneous belief that the same were and are high grade quality oil portraits or paintings of exceptional merit and value. The use of the so-called "certificates," and the representations contained therein, have had, and have, the tendency and capacity to deceive, and have deceived the public into the erroneous belief that they have thus received a distinct financial advantage and will thereby be entitled to receive a valuable oil painting or portrait upon payment of a trifling sum of money, at a reduced or special price, or as a Christmas offer, or as a trade concession to certain local merchants in the locality where the customers reside, when such is not the fact. The use by the respondents of the false and deceptive representations and trade practices hereinbefore set forth tends to, and does, unfairly divert trade from competitors, and thereby substantial injury has been, and is now being, done by respondents to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 10. The aforesaid acts and practices employed by respondents as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on the 6th day of January 1939, issued its complaint and thereafter caused the same to be served upon the respondents, Universal Studios, Inc., a corporation, and upon Harry I. Smith, Sandar R. Smith, and Lorraine H. Smith, copartners trading as Universal Studios, charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondents' answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of the said complaint were introduced by Merle P. Lyon, attorney for the Commission, before A. F. Thomas, a trial examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and in opposition to the allegations of said complaint by Leo A. Reuther, attorney for the respondents, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceedings regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, and brief in support of the complaint, and the Commission having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Harry I. Smith, has been a photographer since 1913, and in 1925 formed a partnership with respondent Sander R. Smith, his brother, and engaged in the business of photography under the trade name, Universal Studios. This partnership continued until January 1937 when respondent Universal Studios, Inc. was incorporated under the laws of the State of Minnesota, Harry I. Smith, Sander R. Smith and Lorraine H. Smith being the incorporators and shareholders thereof, with its office and principal place of business located at 187 East Seventh Street, St. Paul, Minn. Lorraine H. Smith held only two shares of the capital stock of the corporation, and took no active part in the control and management of its business. Said corporation was dissolved on April 25, 1938, since which date the business has been conducted as a partnership consisting of Harry I. Smith and Sander R. Smith, under the trade name of Universal Studios, in which partnership Lorraine H. Smith has no financial or other interest. Said respondents, with the exception of Lorraine H. Smith, were, during the times hereinbefore mentioned, engaged in the business of mail order photography, and in the sale and distribution of photographs in commerce among and between the various States of the United States. At the present time the respondents Harry I. Smith and Sander R. Smith, trading as Universal Studios, maintain studios in the cities of Flint and Holland, in the State of Michigan, and in the city of Minneapolis, in the State of Minnesota, and also maintain their principal office and finishing studio in the city of St. Paul, in the State of Minnesota. Said respondents, and also the respondent Universal Studios, Inc., a corporation during the period of its corporate existence, now cause and have caused their photographs, when sold, to be transported from their finishing office and principal place of business in St. Paul, Minn., to purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States. Respondents maintain and at all times mentioned herein have maintained a course of trade in said photographs in commerce between and among the various States of the United States. Said respondents, during the times hereinbefore mentioned have been, and the respondents Harry I. Smith and Sander R. Smith are now, in substantial competition with other corporations, persons, firms, and partnerships also engaged in the sale of photographs in commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of their business, the respondents would send an advance agent or crew manager to various towns in a proposed itinerary, to distribute coupons free to various local merchants. Said coupons were redistributed by said merchants free of charge to their own customers, giving said customers an opportunity to acquire photographs of themselves represented variously as "portraits in oil colors," "oil portraits," "gold tone oil paintings," and "oil colored portraits" for only 59 cents or 69 cents, as the case might be, upon presentation of said coupon at a specified date and place. The said coupons were represented as having a value of "$4.41," and the "oil colored portraits" or "gold tone paintings" to be secured through the medium of said coupons were represented as having a "$5.00 Value". Upon the coupons was designated the place, usually some hotel in the town, and the date, usually two or three weeks in the future, at which time and place the holder of the coupon might present himself for a sitting. A photographer and assistant employed by said respondents on a salaried basis would engage a room at the specified time and place and take photographs of all persons presenting the coupon and paying the 59 cents or 69 cents called for by the coupon. The negatives taken at such sittings were then shipped by the photographer to the respondents' place of business in St. Paul, Minnesota, where they were developed and proofs made. Said proofs were then mailed to another salesman employed by the respondents, called a "proof-passer," who made appointments with the customers to select the proof desired. After the proof was selected by the customer, the coloring of the photograph was done at the St. Paul office of the respondent by persons employed for that purpose. The "proof-passer" attempted to sell as many additional photographs as possible to each customer. The salesmen, both advance agent and proof-passer, worked wholly on a commission basis, and their compensation depended upon the number of sittings and the number of additional photographs sold.

The gross volume of business done by respondents during the year 1937 was about $150,000 and during the year 1938 was between $170,000 and $180,000. The business methods hereinbefore detailed were continued during the years 1937 and 1938, but most of the traveling crews were dismissed on or about December 1, 1938, and since that date said respondents only have one crew operating.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of their business, as described in paragraph 2, the respondents, Universal Studios, Inc., a corporation, and Harry I. Smith and Sander R. Smith, trading as Universal Studios

This Certificate is worth $4.41.

PAR. 4. Through the use of the statements and representations hereinabove set forth, and other representations similar thereto not specifically set out herein, the respondents represent that they are making an offer at a reduced or special price whereby the prospective purchaser, by use of a special coupon, can obtain a picture variously represented as "an oil painting," "a portrait in oil colors," "a gold tone painting," or "an oil colored portrait" of the "value of $5.00" for the sum of 59 cents or 69 cents. The respondents further represent that said coupons distributed by them and under their direction are worth to the holders thereof the sum of $4.41 and represent a special trade concession on the part of certain local merchants.

PAR. 5. The Commission finds that pictures sold by the respondents through the sales method hereinabove described were not and are not "oil paintings," "portraits in oil colors," "gold tone oil paintings," or "oil colored portraits," but were and are merely tinted or colored photographs or photographic enlargements.

The photographs sold by the respondents in the manner hereinabove set forth are photographic enlargements of small negatives which are tinted or colored by the use of a cotton or paper swab and the smearing of transparent oils over the original uncolored photographic enlargement.

A painting, in its ordinarily accepted meaning, is a likeness, image, or scene depicted with paints without the aid of photography. A portrait, in its ordinarily accepted meaning, is a picture of a person drawn from life, especially a picture or representation of a face; a likeness, particularly in oil. An oil painting is a painting done by hand with brushes in plastic oil colors on canvas, or other material, without the aid of photography.

PAR. 6. The Commission further finds that the tinted or colored photographs sold and distributed by the respondents in the manner hereinabove set forth do not have a "$5.00 Value" and are not reasonably worth more than the 59 cents or 69 cents paid for them by the customer. The advertising coupon does not have a value of $4.41 or any similar amount since the regular price for which the respondents' colored photographs are usually and customarily sold is not more than the 59 cents or 69 cents paid for them. The advertising coupon is solely a device for inducing the customer to have his photograph taken and the customer does not receive any financial or other advantage by the use of said coupon. Said coupons are merely for the purpose of getting the customer into the studio to give respondents an opportunity to sell him additional photographs. The offer made by the respondents was not an offer at a reduced or special price and the coupon or certificate distributed by the respondents was not and is not worth $4.41 or any other amount, and does not represent a special trade concession on the part of certain local merchants.

PAR. 7. The use by the respondents of the aforesaid false and misleading representations and practices in the sale and offering for sale of their tinted and colored photographs has had and now has a tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive members of the purchasing public concerning the nature, quality and value of the photographs sold and distributed by the respondents and has thereby induced a substantial portion of the purchasing public to purchase said photographs under the erroneous and mistaken belief that the same were and are high-grade oil portraits or paintings and that a distinct financial advantage would be obtained by the use of the coupons distributed by the respondents. As a result of such erroneous and mistaken belief trade has been diverted unfairly from respondents' competitors who are also engaged in the sale and distribution of tinted or colored photographs and photographic enlargements in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia and who do not employ and maintain sales methods and practices such as those used by the respondents but who truthfully represent their products and the quality thereof.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents, with the exception of Lorraine H. Smith, as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondents, testimony and other evidence taken before A. F. Thomas, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, and the brief of counsel for the Commission in support of the complaint, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that respondents, with the exception of Lorraine H. Smith, have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondents, Universal Studios, Inc., a corporation, and its officers, and Harry I. Smith and Sander R. Smith, individually and as copartners trading as Universal Studios, or trading under any other name, and their respective salesmen, employees, and agents, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, of colored or tinted photographs or enlargements having a photographic base, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing directly or in any manner, that colored or tinted photographs or photographic enlargements are handpainted or are paintings.

2. Using the terms "gold tone oil painting," "oil portrait," "portrait in oil colors" or "oil colored portrait," either alone or in conjunction with any other terms or words in any way to designate, describe or refer to colored or tinted photographs or photographic enlargements or other pictures produced from a photographic base or impression.

3. Representing, as the customary or regular prices or values for such pictures, prices and values which are in fact fictitious and greatly in excess of the prices at which such pictures are customarily offered for sale and sold by respondents in the normal course of business.

Order

30 F. T. C.

4. Representing that any articles of merchandise customarily and regularly sold in connection with the use of any purported certificate or other similar device have any value in excess of the actual money price required to be paid.

5. Representing that any coupon or similar device has any monetary value in the purchase of an article which is customarily or regularly sold by the respondents with such coupon or similar device at the price required to be paid.

It is further ordered, That each of the said respondents, Universal Studios, Inc., a corporation, Harry I. Smith and Sander R. Smith, shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

It is further ordered, That the case be closed as to the respondent Lorraine H. Smith without prejudice to the right of the Commission to reopen and resume prosecution thereof in the event developments so warrant.

IN THE MATTER OF
STANDARD CONTAINER MANUFACTURERS ASSOCIA-TION, INC. ET AL.COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 28, 1914*Docket 3289. Complaint, Jan. 3, 1938—Decision, Mar. 5, 1940*

Where some twenty-six concerns composed of corporations, firms, and individuals, engaged in manufacture, sale, and distribution or in sale and distribution of wooden fruit and vegetable containers used in packing fruits and vegetables for transportation from the producers thereof to ultimate consumers, with principal offices and places of business in Georgia and Florida, and who, (1) shipped their products from their respective places of business to customers in other States and in Florida, as case might be, for use by producer purchasers in trade areas in question, in which were grown substantial percentage of fruits and vegetables produced in the United States, in preparing their products for transportation to markets in various States where products in question, thus containered, were distributed to wholesalers and retailers and others for ultimate distribution to the consuming public, and who, (2) with one exception, were or had been members of Association created by members for the promotion and protection of their interests, and who, (3) long prior to and but for acts and practices below set forth, were in active and substantial competition with each other in sale and distribution of products in aforesaid trade area consisting of southeastern portion of the United States and more particularly of Georgia and Florida, and with manufacturers of like products located in various other States, and (4) in case of Florida members sold greater portion of such products sold in said States and controlled and dominated wooden container industry therein and also practice of industry as a whole in such State—

- (a) Entered into and carried out understandings, agreements, combinations, and conspiracies, intent and effect of which were to restrict, restrain and monopolize and suppress and eliminate competition in the sale of unpatented wooden fruit and vegetable containers in trade and commerce among the several States and to which the said Association and three individuals, who were general officers thereof, and, with others, served as board of directors thereof, became parties, and in the carrying out of which they participated; and, in furtherance of such combinations and conspiracies
- (1) Entered into understandings and agreements to fix and maintain uniform and minimum prices, including uniform maximum discounts, brokerage fees, freight allowances and time limitation of contracts, and through medium of their said Association and two of said individuals, i. e., the president and secretary and directors thereof, and, acting in conformity with said understandings and agreements, did thus fix uniform and minimum prices, including maximum discounts, brokerage fees, and time limitations of contracts in sale of wooden fruit and vegetable containers and parts thereof;
- (2) Entered into understandings and agreements to curtail and did curtail production and sale of certain wooden fruit and vegetable containers and parts thereof; and

- (3) Entered into understandings and agreements to secure enforcement through meeting of their said Association and said individuals, of such understandings and agreements to curtail production and sale of such products and whereby designated member and their said president would and did ascertain production figures of some other designated member and file reports as to such member's compliance with understandings and agreements to curtail production and sale during period involved; and

Where said Association by means of understandings and agreements entered into by and between its members—

- (b) Caused its Secretary from time to time to issue and distribute among members of the Association and manufacturers and distributors price list designated "Fair Market Value" and setting forth in detail terms and conditions of sale of various types of wooden fruit and vegetable containers as agreed upon by members; and which lists, changed from time to time in accordance with instructions secured from the Association President and other representatives, were issued and distributed to show changes aforesaid by said Association Secretary; and
- (c) Caused through understandings and agreements of members production to be curtailed in manufacture of products in question and parts thereof and directed that no citrus fruit crates during period involved were to be fabricated, sold or shipped for use in Florida except for current use, and that none were to be sold or offered for sale at less than the present prevailing prices; and
- (d) Provided means whereby compliance with understandings to fix prices and curtail production by members could be investigated and effective corrective methods administered in enforcing adherence to understandings and agreements; and

Where said members and said individual Association president, in cases when there were violations or alleged violations of provisions of understandings and agreements entered into by and between such members;

- (e) Caused to be investigated such alleged violations and threatened, intimidated and coerced violator, and thereby induced such violator to cancel orders and conform to such understandings and agreements with which, but for such threats, intimidations and coercion, he would not have complied; and

Where said individual, Association president, designated and appointed and duly authorized as their representative by said Association and said members to determine, after consultation of members and others, prices at which said wooden fruit and vegetable containers, and parts thereof, were to be sold, acting as such duly authorized agent—

- (f) Met from time to time with other duly authorized representatives of said members and determined current prices at which products in question were to be sold, and caused to be transmitted by telegram, mail and other means, to all members and to others in industry who were not members, fixed and established current prices, terms, and conditions at which were to be sold said wooden fruit and vegetable containers, and parts thereof; and

Where said individual, further authorized and delegated as their agent to investigate activities of members regarding compliance with understandings, agreements, and question and to enforce and secure same—

- (g) Did investigate, enforce and secure adherence of members and non-members to prices, terms, and conditions of sale fixed and established by said members Association and individuals aforesaid; and

Where said Association and members or former members, as case might be,

- (h) Voted said individual substantial compensation as compensation for performing duties above set forth and additional sum to cover portion of expense account during period involved and made regular contribution to assist in defraying expenses in connection with his said work; and

Where said Association, acting through its said Secretary and its said president, as officers and agents thereof, and in accordance with understanding and agreements entered into by and between the members and with intent of carrying out such understandings and agreements—

- (i) Collected from and disseminated among members statistical information used and useful in enforcing compliance with said understandings and agreements made and entered into at such meetings held from time to time of members generally or various members interested in particular container or type of container, and at which prices and terms and conditions of sale were discussed and agreed upon, and transmitted to said secretary either directly or through said president for dissemination among members generally;

With the result that such understandings, agreements, combinations and conspiracies and things done thereunder and pursuant thereto and in furtherance thereof, and in which said various members, association and individuals acted in concert and in cooperation with one or more of the others, had the effect of unduly and unlawfully restricting and restraining sale of said wooden fruit and vegetable containers, and parts thereof, in trade in commerce in the several States, and of unduly and unlawfully restricting and restraining such trade in commerce in said products and of substantially enhancing prices to consuming public and maintaining same at artificial levels and otherwise depriving public of benefits that would flow from normal competition among and between such members and of eliminating competition, with tendency and capacity of creating monopoly in sale of said products in commerce as aforesaid:

Held, That such understandings, agreements, combinations and conspiracies and things done thereunder and pursuant thereto and in furtherance thereof, as above set forth, constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. E. J. Hornibrook and Mr. John L. Hornor, trial examiners.

Mr. Edw. W. Thomerson and Mr. Richard P. Whiteley for the Commission.

Treadwell & Treadwell, of Arcadia, Fla., Mr. F. C. Hillyer, of Jacksonville, Fla. and Mr. R. Granville Curry, of Washington, D. C., for respondents in general, excepting Keysville Lumber Co. and Roux Crate and Box Co., who were represented by Raney & Raney, of Tampa, Fla.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that the association, the individuals, and the corporations, hereinafter described and named as respondents, have been, and are now, using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act; and it appearing to the said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect, as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Standard Container Manufacturers' Association, Inc., hereinafter referred to as respondent association, is a nonprofit corporation, organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Florida. Its offices and place of business are at 301 Hildebrant Building, Jacksonville, Fla.

Respondent association was organized, and for the past several years has acted, as a trade association for the promotion and protection of the interests of the respondents hereinafter described as being members of said respondent association. Said members are engaged in the manufacture and sale of one or more of the various types of wooden containers used in packaging fruits and vegetables for transportation from the producers of said fruits and vegetables to ultimate consumers. These containers are described and designated as crates, baskets, boxes, hampers, lugs, cups, trays, cartons, and by various and sundry other names commonly used in the industry in referring to wooden containers, and the parts thereof, for the packaging of fruits and vegetables.

PAR. 2. Respondent, Adkins Manufacturing Co., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Florida, with its principal office and place of business at Gainesville, Fla.

It is further ordered, That L. B. Walling, Hugh Walling, and Frieda Walling be, and they hereby are, substituted as parties respondent in lieu and in stead of Walling Crate Co., a corporation.

State of Florida, with its principal office and place of business at Leesburg, Fla.

Respondent, Frank R. Pounds Crate Co., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Florida, with its principal office and place of business at 314 North Garland Street, Orlando, Fla.

Respondent, Lake Crate & Lumber Co., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Florida, with its principal office and place of business at Mount Dora, Fla.

Respondent, Osceola Crate Mills, Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Delaware, with its principal office and place of business at Kissimmee, Fla.

Respondent, Zachary Veneer Co., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Florida, with its principal office and place of business at Sanford, Fla. It also owns and operates a mill at Palatka, Fla.

Respondent, Montbrook Crate Co., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Florida, with its principal office and place of business at Baldwin, Fla.

Respondent, Southern Container Co., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Florida, with its principal office and place of business at Commodore's Point, Jacksonville, Fla.

Respondent, Cummer Sons Cypress Co., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Florida, with its principal office and place of business at 1616 Barnett National Bank Building, Jacksonville, Fla. It also owns and operates manufacturing plants at Lacooshee and Otter Creek, Fla.

Respondent, Zack Russ, is an individual, trading and doing business under the firm name Russ Crate Co., with his principal office and place of business at Coleman, Fla.

Respondent, Stephen O. Shinholzer, is an individual, with his principal office and place of business at Sanford, Fla.

All of the respondents named in this paragraph, except respondent, Hector Supply Co., are now, or have been during the time mentioned herein, members of the respondent association. These respondents will hereinafter on occasion be referred to as member respondents. These member respondents are engaged in the manufacture, sale, and distribution, or in the sale and distribution, of some one or more of the wooden fruit and vegetable containers described in paragraph 1 hereof, and said member respondents cause such containers, when sold, to be transported from their respective places of business, as aforesaid, in the States of Georgia and Florida, as the case may be, to the purchasers of said containers at their respective locations in the various States of the United States. Many purchasers of said containers are located in States other than the State of the origin of the shipment of said containers by said member respondents.

Before the adoption of the practices hereinafter alleged, these member respondents were in active and substantial competition with each other, and with other members of the industry, some of whom have been members of the respondent association and others of whom have not been members of the respondent association, in making and seeking to make sales of their said products in commerce between and among the several States of the United States, and, but for the facts hereinafter alleged such active and substantial competition would have continued to the present time and the said member respondents would now be in active and substantial competition with each other and with members of the industry not presently members of the respondent association in such commerce.

The trade area in which the member respondents sell and distribute their said products covers the southeastern portion of the United States, including the States of Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia, and New Jersey. Within the trade area of said member respondents there is produced a substantial percentage of the fruits and vegetables produced in the United States. The wooden containers sold and distributed by the member respondents are used by the producers of fruits and vegetables in this area in preparing said products for transportation to markets located in various States of the United States, where said fruits and vegetables in said containers are distributed to wholesalers, retailers, and others for ultimate distribution to the consuming public.

The wooden containers sold by the member respondents in the trade area hereinabove described, constitute substantially all of said products sold in said trade area, and especially so in the States of Georgia and Florida. Said member respondents control and dominate the wooden container industry in the trade area above described, and especially so in the States of Georgia and Florida, and they control the practices of the industry as a whole in said trade area.

PAR. 3. Respondent James B. Adkins is president of the member respondent Adkins Manufacturing Company, and is president and chief executive officer of the respondent association. He is located in Gainesville, Fla.

Respondent Charles P. Chazal is an employee of the member respondent Ocala Manufacturing, Ice & Packing Co., Inc., and is the vice-president of the respondent association. He is located in Ocala, Fla.

Respondent Russell W. Bennett is secretary, treasurer, and general manager of the respondent association, and is the individual through whom the information hereinafter mentioned is gathered and disseminated. He is located at 301 Hilderbrant Building, Jacksonville, Fla.

These three respondents, and other individuals not named herein as respondents, serve as a board of directors for the respondent association and in that capacity, and in the respective capacities hereinabove named, they control and direct the policies and practices of said respondent association.

PAR. 4. Prior to July 15, 1935, the member respondents caused the organization of the respondent association for the promotion and protection of the interests of said member respondents. On or about July 15, 1935, and on divers days and dates thereafter, said member respondents entered into and thereafter carried out understandings, agreements, combinations and conspiracies, hereinafter, at times, referred to as an undertaking, for the purpose and with the effect of restricting, restraining, and monopolizing, and suppressing and eliminating competition in, the sale of wooden fruit and vegetable containers in trade and commerce between, among, in and with the several States of the United States.

PAR. 5. Pursuant to said understandings, agreements, combinations, and conspiracies, and in furtherance thereof, said member respondents have done and performed, and still do and perform, the following acts and things:

1. Said member respondents agreed to fix and maintain, and have fixed and maintained, uniform prices in the sale of said wooden fruit and vegetable containers, and the parts thereof.

2. Said member respondents agreed to fix and maintain, and have fixed and maintained, minimum prices in the sale of said wooden fruit and vegetable containers, and the parts thereof.

3. Said member respondents agreed to fix and maintain, and have fixed and maintained, uniform terms and conditions, including, but without limitation, maximum discounts, brokerage fees, freight and other allowances, and time limitations of contracts, in the sale of said wooden fruit and vegetable containers, and the parts thereof.

4. Said member respondents agreed to curtail, and have curtailed, the production of said wooden fruit and vegetable containers, and the parts thereof, and for the purpose of securing the enforcement of the agreement to curtail production, each member respondent checks upon the production of some other designated member and files reports as to the compliance of such designated member with the agreement to curtail production during the period when such curtailment is in effect.

5. Said member respondents have threatened, coerced, and intimidated members and nonmembers of the respondent association and induced such members and nonmembers to become parties to and thereafter carry out said undertaking, when, but for the threats, coercion, and intimidation, such members and nonmembers would not have become parties to and carried out said undertaking.

6. Said respondent James B. Adkins from time to time meets with duly authorized representatives of said member respondents and determines the prices at which said wooden fruit and vegetable containers, and the parts thereof, are to be sold, and from time to time, by telegraphic messages and other means of communication, transmits to all of the member respondents, and to others in the industry who are not members of the respondent association, the current prices and terms and conditions at which said wooden fruit and vegetable containers, and the parts thereof, are to be sold.

7. Said member respondents have designated and appointed said respondent James B. Adkins, and he has so acted, as the person to whom is delegated the duty of determining, after consultation with member respondents and others, the prices to be charged for the products of the industry, and as the person to secure the adherence of the member respondents and nonmembers to the prices, terms and conditions of sales, etc., so fixed and established.

8. Said respondent association, through the respondents Russell W. Bennett and James B. Adkins, collects from, and disseminates among, member respondents and other participants in said undertaking, statistical information used and useful in carrying out said undertaking, and it distributes from time to time among said member respondents and nonmembers participating in said undertaking, detailed lists showing the current prices, terms and conditions of sale, and other information used and useful in carrying out said undertaking.

9. Said member respondents have used, and are now using, other methods and means designed to suppress and prevent competition and restrict and restrain the sale of said wooden fruit and vegetable containers, and the parts thereof, in said commerce.

PAR. 6. Each of said respondents acted in concert and in cooperation with one or more of the other respondents in doing and performing the acts and things hereinabove alleged in furtherance of said understandings, agreements, combinations, and conspiracies.

PAR. 7. Said understandings, agreements, combinations, and conspiracies, and the things done thereunder and pursuant thereto, and in furtherance thereof, as hereinabove alleged, have had and do have the effect of unduly and unlawfully restricting and restraining the sale of said wooden fruit and vegetable containers, and the parts thereof, in trade and commerce between, among, in and with the several States of the United States; of unduly and unlawfully restricting and restraining trade and commerce in said wooden fruit and vegetable containers, and the parts thereof, in said commerce; of substantially enhancing prices to the consuming public and maintaining prices at artificial levels and otherwise depriving the public of the benefits that would flow from normal competition among and between the member respondents in said commerce; of eliminating competition, with the tendency and capacity of creating a monopoly in the sale of said wooden fruit and vegetable containers, and the parts thereof, in said commerce. Said understandings, agreements, combinations and conspiracies, and the things done thereunder and pursuant thereto, and in furtherance thereof, as above alleged, constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of an Act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," and are to the prejudice of the public.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on January 3, 1938, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondents Standard Container Manufacturers' Association, Inc., a corporation, and its members; James B. Adkins, Charles P. Chazal, Russell W. Bennett, individually and as president, vice-president, and secretary, treasurer, and manager, respectively, and as members of the board of directors of Standard Container Manufacturers' Association, Inc.; Adkins Manufacturing Co., a corporation; Consumers Lumber & Veneer Co., a corporation; Elberta Crate & Box Co., a corporation; Georgia Veneer & Package Co., a corporation; Georgia Crate & Basket Co., a corporation; The Greenville Veneer & Crate Co., a corporation; Keysville Lumber Co., a corporation; Walton E. Nants and R. A. Nants, trading as Nants Manufacturing Co.; Nocatee-Manatee Crate Co., a corporation; Ocala Manufacturing, Ice & Packing Co., Inc., a corporation; The Pierpont Manufacturing Co., a corporation; Roux Crate & Lumber Co., Inc., a corporation; Shollar Crate & Box Co.,

Inc., a corporation; Southern Crate & Veneer Co., a corporation; Southern Veneer Co., a corporation; Walling Crate Co., a corporation; Frank R. Pounds Crate Co., a corporation; Lake Crate & Lumber Co., a corporation; Osceola Crate Mills, Inc., a corporation; Zachary Veneer Co., a corporation; Montbrook Crate Co., a corporation; Southern Container Co., a corporation; Cummer Sons Cypress Co., a corporation; Hector Supply Co., a corporation; Zack Russ, an individual, trading as Russ Crate Co.; Stephen O. Shinholzer, an individual, charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On June 24, 1938, it issued its order amending complaint and substituting parties, serving its amended complaint on a copartnership, composed of L. B. Walling, Hugh Walling, and Frieda Walling, trading as Walling Crate Co., in the place and stead of Walling Crate Co., a corporation, which had been dissolved. On June 25, 1938, it issued its order amending complaint and substituting the parties R. C. Balfour, Jr., and J. V. Hawthorne, copartners, trading as Georgia Crate & Basket Co., in the place and stead of respondent Georgia Crate & Basket Co., a corporation, which had been dissolved. After the issuance of said complaint and said amended complaints and the filing of respondents' answers thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by Edw. W. Thomerson and Richard P. Whiteley, attorneys for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by F. C. Hillyer and J. H. Treadwell, attorneys for all respondents except Keysville Lumber Co., a corporation, and Roux Crate & Lumber Co., Inc., a corporation, and George P. Raney, attorney for respondent Keysville Lumber Co., a corporation, and Roux Crate & Lumber Co., Inc., a corporation, before E. J. Hornibrook and John L. Hornor, examiners of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint and said amended complaints, the answers thereto, testimony and other evidence, brief in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto, and the oral argument of counsel Edw. W. Thomerson for the Commission and F. C. Hillyer for respondents, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Standard Container Manufacturers' Association, Inc., is a nonprofit corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Florida, with its office and principal place of business at 301 Hildebrant Building, Jacksonville, Fla., and since prior to July 15, 1935, has acted as a trade association for the promotion and protection of the interests of the respondents hereinafter described as members of said respondent association, which said members are engaged in the manufacture and sale of one or more of the various types of wooden containers used in packaging fruits and vegetables for transportation from the producers of said fruits and vegetables to ultimate consumers. These containers are described and designated as crates, baskets, boxes, hampers, lugs, cups, trays, and by various and sundry other names commonly used in the industry in referring to wooden containers, and the parts thereof for packaging of fruits and vegetables in preparing such products for transportation to markets in various States. Some of the member respondents hereinafter described manufacture patented wooden containers which are not involved in this proceeding.

PAR. 2. Respondent, James B. Adkins, is president of the member respondent, Adkins Manufacturing Co., and was president and chief executive officer of the Standard Container Manufacturers' Association, Inc., from December 18, 1935, to January 1939, being succeeded by C. P. Chazal as president thereof. He is located in Gainesville, Fla.

Respondent, Charles P. Chazal, an employee of the member respondent Ocala Manufacturing, Ice & Packing Co., Inc., was the vice-president of the respondent Standard Container Manufacturers' Association, Inc., until January 1939. At that time he was elected president of said Association, succeeding J. B. Adkins in that office. He is located in Ocala, Fla.

Respondent, Russell W. Bennett, is secretary, treasurer, and general manager of the respondent Standard Container Manufacturers' Association, Inc., and is the individual through whom the information relating to the activities of the respondent Standard Container Manufacturers' Association, Inc., was gathered and disseminated. He is located at 301 Hildebrant Building, Jacksonville, Fla.

The three above-named respondents will hereinafter be referred to on occasion as the individual respondents.

PAR. 3. Respondent, Adkins Manufacturing Co., is a corporation organized and existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Florida, with its principal office and place of business at Gainesville, Fla.

Respondent, Consumers Lumber & Veneer Co., is a corporation organized and existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Florida, with its principal office and place of business at Apopka, Fla.

Respondent, Keysville Lumber Co., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Florida, with its principal office and place of business at Keysville, Fla.

Respondents, Walton E. Nants and R. A. Nants, are individuals, trading and doing business under the firm Nants Manufacturing Co., with their principal office and place of business at Live Oak, Fla.

Respondent, Nocatee-Manatee Crate Co., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Florida, with its principal office and place of business at Nocatee, Fla. It also owns and operates a mill at Manatee, Fla.

Respondent, Ocala Manufacturing, Ice & Packing Co., Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Florida, with its principal office and place of business at Ocala, Fla.

Respondent, The Pierpont Manufacturing Co., is a corporation, organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Georgia, with its principal office and place of business at Savannah, Ga.

Respondent, Roux Crate & Lumber Co., Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Florida, with its principal office and place of business at Bartow, Fla.

Respondent, Shollar Crate & Box Co., Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Georgia, with its principal office and place of business at Shamrock, Fla.

Respondent, Southern Crate and Veneer Co., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Georgia, with its principal office and place of business at Macon, Ga.

Respondent, Southern Veneer Company, is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Florida, with its principal office and place of business at Palatka, Fla.

Respondents, L. B. Walling, Hugh Walling and Frieda Walling, are copartners doing business as Walling Crate Company, with their principal office and place of business at Leesburg, Fla.

Respondent, Frank R. Pounds Crate Company, is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Florida, with its principal office and place of business at 314 North Garland Street, Orlando, Fla.

Respondent, Lake Crate and Lumber Co., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Florida, with its principal office and place of business at Mount Dora, Fla.

Respondent, Zachary Veneer Company, is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Florida, with its principal office and place of business at Sanford, Fla. It also owns and operates a mill at Palatka, Fla.

Respondent, Osceola Crate Mills, Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Delaware with its principal office and place of business at Kissimmee, Fla.

Respondent, Montbrook Crate Co., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Florida, with its principal office and place of business at Baldwin, Fla.

Respondent, Southern Container Company, is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Florida, with its principal office and place of business at Commodore's Point, Jacksonville, Fla.

Respondent, Cummer Sons Cypress Company, is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Florida, with its principal office and place of business at 1616 Barnett National Bank Building, Jacksonville, Fla. It also owns and operates manufacturing plants at Lacoochee and Otter Creek, Fla.

Respondent, Zack Russ, is an individual, trading and doing business under the firm name Russ Crate Company, with his principal office and place of business at Coleman, Fla.

Respondent, Stephen O. Shinholzer, is an individual with his principal office and place of business at Sanford, Fla.

The respondents named in this paragraph will hereinafter on occasion be described and referred to as member respondents. All of the member respondents named above, except respondent Hector Supply Co., are now, or have been at some time since July 15, 1935, members of the respondent Standard Container Manufacturers' Association, Inc. All of the member respondents are engaged in the manufacture, sale, and distribution, or in the sale and distribution, of some one or more of the wooden fruit and vegetable containers described above.

PAR. 4. In the regular course of business the respondents Keyville Lumber Co., Nocatee-Manatee Crate Co., Hector Supply Co., Russ Crate Co., Ocala Manufacturing, Ice & Packing Co., Inc., Consumers Lumber & Veneer Co., Elberta Crate & Box Co., The Pierpont Manufacturing Co., Sholler Crate & Box Co., Inc., Georgia Veneer & Package Co., Nants Manufacturing Co., Southern Crate & Veneer Co., Southern Container Co., Cummer Sons Cypress Co., and Adkins Manufacturing Co., upon receipt of orders, shipped their products from their respective places of business in the States in which they are located to customers located in States of the United States other than the State of origin of such shipments. Respondents, Southern Veneer Co., R. C. Balfour, Jr., and J. V. Hawthorne, copartners, doing business as Georgia Crate & Basket Co., Greenville Veneer & Crate Co., Roux Crate & Lumber Co., Inc., L. B. Walling, Hugh Walling, and Frieda Walling, copartners, doing business as Walling Crate Co., Frank R. Pounds Crate Co., Lake Crate & Lumber Co., Osceola Crate Mills, Inc., Zachary Veneer Co., Montbrook Crate Co., and Stephen O. Shinholzer, upon receipt of orders, shipped their products from their places of business in Florida to customers located in the State of Florida.

PAR. 5. All of the member respondents of respondent Standard Container Manufacturers' Association, Inc., before the adoption of the practices hereinafter set forth, and for long periods of time prior thereto, were in active and substantial competition with each other in the sale and distribution of said products in the trade area in which they operate, namely, in the southeastern portion of the United States, and more particularly in the States of Georgia and Florida, and with manufacturers of like products located in various other States of the United States. Such active and substantial competition would have continued to the present time and said member respondents would now be in active and substantial competition with each other but for the understandings, agreements, combinations and conspiracies hereinafter set forth. Within the trade area of said member respondents there is produced a substantial percentage of the fruits and vegetables produced in the United States. The wooden containers sold and distributed by the member respondents are used by the producers of fruits and vegetables in this area in preparing said products for transportation to markets located in various States of the United States, where said fruits and vegetables in said containers are distributed to wholesalers, retailers, and others for ultimate distribution to the consuming public. The wooden containers sold by the member respondents in the State of Florida constitute the greater portion of said products sold in said State and said member respondents control and dominate the wooden container industry therein, and they control the practices of the industry as a whole in said State.

PAR. 6. Respondents, James B. Adkins, Charles P. Chazal, and Russell W. Bennett, hold and have held their respective positions in respondent Standard Container Manufacturers' Association, Inc., as set forth above and they and other individuals serve as a Board of Directors for the respondent Standard Container Manufacturers' Association, Inc.

PAR. 7. Prior to July 15, 1935, the member respondents caused the organization of the respondent association for the promotion and protection of the interests of said member respondents. Beginning about July 15, 1935, and at various times thereafter, said member respondents entered into and thereafter carried out understandings, agreements, combinations and conspiracies for the purpose and with the effect of restricting, restraining and monopolizing, and suppressing and eliminating competition in, the sale of nonpatented wooden fruit and vegetable containers in trade and commerce between, among, in and with the several States of the United States. Respondent association and said individual respondents became parties to, and participated in, the carrying out of said understandings, agreements, combinations, and conspiracies.

PAR. 8. In furtherance of said combinations and conspiracies, respondents have done and performed, among others, the acts and things hereinafter set out in this paragraph.

Said member respondents entered into understandings and agreements to fix and maintain uniform and minimum prices including uniform maximum discounts, brokerage fees, freight allowances, and time limitation of contracts; and acting in conformity with said understandings and agreements did fix and maintain, through the medium of respondent association and respondents Adkins and Bennett, uniform and minimum prices including maximum discounts, brokerage fees, freight allowances and time limitation of contracts in sale of wooden fruit and vegetable containers and parts thereof. Said member respondents entered into understandings and agreements to curtail, and did curtail, the production and sale of certain wooden fruit and vegetable containers and parts thereof, and entered into understandings and agreements for the purpose of securing enforcement, through the medium of respondent association and respondents Adkins and Bennett, of said understandings and agreements to curtail the production and sale thereof whereby a said designated member respondent and respondent James B. Adkins would and did ascertain the production figures of some other designated member respondent and file, and they did file, reports as to the compliance of such designated member respondent with the said understandings and agreements to curtail production and sale during the period when such curtailment was in effect.

Said respondent association, through understandings and agreements, entered into by and between its members, caused its secretary, Russell W. Bennett from time to time to issue and distribute among members of the respondent association and manufacturers and distributors price lists designated "Fair Market Value" setting forth in detail the terms and conditions of sales of various types of wooden fruit and vegetable containers agreed upon by the member respondents. Typical of the lists circulated by respondent, Russell W. Bennett, is the following:

Findings

Manufacturers Wholesale

FAIR MARKET VALUES

Effective December 6, 1936

Terms and Conditions of sale:

No orders will be accepted for future delivery at a stipulated price.

Quotations are for immediate acceptance and prompt shipment, including delivery at public carrier rates to points in Florida consuming territory in straight or mixed carlot volume.

Unless otherwise specified, prices are for standard specifications and dimensions.

Each shipment constitutes a closed transaction. Invoices are not subject to rebate or refund other than shown thereon, except in case of proven shortage or sub-standard quality.

Terms may not exceed thirty days at net price except on citrus fruit crates shipped prior to January 1, each year, on which terms may not exceed sixty days at net price.

Discounts:

2%—10 days, cash discount, is applicable to all sales.

No discount may be given to any buyer of citrus fruit boxes or crates, or parts thereof, other than 2% discount for cash within ten days.

Vegetable crates in carlot minimum quantities, only when sold to established dealers, are subject to a maximum trade discount of 5% on gross of invoice.

For discounts on baskets and hampers see current listing.

Extra Charges:

Two prints will be furnished without extra charge on citrus fruit crates. If not printed, deduct one-quarter ( $\frac{1}{4}\text{¢}$ ) cent for each impression not furnished. Boxes shipped without printing shall be so specifically designated on invoice.

Extra prints on citrus fruit crates and all prints on other packages will be charged for at the rate of one-quarter ( $\frac{1}{4}\text{¢}$ ) cent each impression.

One-half ( $\frac{1}{2}\text{¢}$ ) cent per package will be charged for dyed or printed cleats, except basket and hamper prices may include one or more colored hoops without extra charge. Printing is extra.

(The above statement is followed by a detailed listing of the prices of various types of wooden containers and the parts thereof.)

Changes were made in these lists in accordance with instructions secured from respondent Adkins and other representatives of the member respondents, and respondent Russell W. Bennett issued and distributed from time to time among member respondents lists showing these changes. Respondent association caused, through understandings and agreements of member respondents, production to be curtailed by its members in the manufacture of wooden fruit and vegetable containers and parts thereof and directed that no citrus fruit crates were to be fabricated, sold or shipped for use in the State of Florida between June 15 and August 15, 1936, except for current use and that none were to be sold or offered for sale at less than the then present prevailing prices. Respondent association provided a means whereby compliance with the understandings and agreements to fix prices and curtail production by its members could be investigated, ascertained and corrective measures administered in enforcing and securing adherence to the understandings and agreements.

When there were violations or alleged violations of the provisions of the understandings and agreements entered into by and between the respondent members of the said association, member respondents and respondent James B. Adkins caused the alleged violations to be investigated and threatened, intimidated and coerced the violator, thereby induced said violator to cancel orders and conform to said understandings and agreements when but for such threats, intimidations and coercion such member would not have conformed to such understandings and agreements.

Respondent, James B. Adkins, was designated and appointed and duly authorized as their representative by said respondent association and said respondent members, to determine, after consultation with member respondents and others, the prices at which said wooden fruit and vegetable containers and parts thereof were to be sold. Acting as such duly authorized agent, respondent Adkins from time to time met with the other duly authorized representatives of said member respondents and determined the current prices at which said products were to be sold and caused to be transmitted by telegram, mail and by other means to all member respondents, and to others in the industry who were not members of respondent association, the fixed and established current prices, terms and conditions at which said wooden fruit and vegetable containers and parts thereof were to be sold. Typical of the communications from respondent Adkins to the member respondents and others in the industry is a telegram dated December 6, 1936, which is as follows:

Gainesville, Florida,
December 6, 1936.

Nocatee Crate Company,

J. B. Adkins

Many other telegrams relating to prices, terms and conditions of sale and curtailment of production were sent to member respondents by respondent Adkins. Respondent Adkins was further authorized and delegated as the agent of respondents to investigate the activities of respondent members regarding compliance with said understandings and agreements and to enforce and secure, and respondent Adkins did investigate, enforce and secure, the adherence of the member respondents and nonmember respondent to the prices, terms and conditions of sale so fixed and established by respondents.

As compensation for performing the duties herein described, respondent Adkins was voted by respondent association the sum of $500 per month beginning January 1, 1936, and an additional sum of $250 per month to cover a portion of his expense account during the period of time he so acted. Some of the member respondents who did not retain their membership in the respondent association during all of the time respondent Adkins was president of the respondent association made regular contributions to assist in defraying expenses in connection with the work of respondent Adkins.

Respondent association, through respondents Russell W. Bennett and James B. Adkins, as officers and agents of said respondent association, and in accordance with the understandings and agreements entered into by and between said respondent members, and for the purpose of carryig out said understandings and agreements, collected from and disseminated among the member respondents statistical information used and useful in enforcing compliance with said understandings and agreemets. The aforesaid understandings and agreements by and between the member respondents were made and entered into at meetings held from time to time during the period from about July 15, 1935 to the date of the issuance of the complaint herein, at general meetings of the member respondents and at meetings by various of the member respondents interested in a particular container or type of container, such as peach baskets, tomato lugs or celery crates, where prices and terms and conditions of sale were discussed and agreed upon. Information as to the prices and terms and conditions of sale determined at these meetings was transmitted to respondent Bennett, either directly or through respondent Adkins, for dissemination among the member respondents generally.

PAR. 9. Each of said respondents acted in concert and in cooperation with one or more of the other respondents in doing and performing the acts and things hereinabove set forth in furtherance of said understandings, agreements, combinations and conspiracies.

PAR. 10. Said understandings, agreements, combinations and conspiracies, and the things done thereunder and pursuant thereto, and in furtherance thereof, as hereinabove set forth, have had, and do have, the effect of unduly and unlawfully restricting and restraining the sale of said wooden fruit and vegetable containers, and the parts thereof, in trade and commerce between, among, in and with the several States of the United States; of unduly and unlawfully restricting and restraining trade and commerce in said wooden fruit and vegetable containers, and the parts thereof, in said commerce; of substantially enhancing prices to the consuming public and maintaining prices at artificial levels and otherwise depriving the public of the benefits that would flow from normal competition among and between the member respondents in said commerce; of eliminating competition, with the tendency and capacity of creating a monopoly in the sale of said wooden fruit and vegetable containers, and the parts thereof, in said commerce.

CONCLUSION

Said understandings, agreements, combinations and conspiracies, and the things done thereunder and pursuant thereto, and in furtherance thereof, as above set forth, constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission on the complaint issued herein on January 3, 1938, and the answers filed by the respondents, testimony and other evidence taken by E. J. Hornibrook and John L. Hornor, examiners for the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of the complaint and in opposition thereto, briefs filed herein and oral argument by Edw. W. Thomerson, counsel for the Commission, and by F. C. Hillyer, counsel for all of the respondents except Keysville Lumber Co. and Roux Crate & Lumber Co., Inc., and the Commisison having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondents Adkins Manufacturing Co., Consumers Lumber and Veneer Co., Elberta Crate & Box Co., Hector Supply Co., Georgia Veneer & Package Co., R. C. Balfour, Jr., and J. V. Hawthorne, doing business as the Georgia Crate & Basket Co., The Greenville Veneer & Crate Co., Keysville Lumber Co., Walton E. Nants and R. A. duce such members to maintain the prices fixed by, or to curtail production in furtherance of, said understanding, agreement, combination or conspiracy.

5. Filing with the respondent association, Standard Container Manufacturers' Association, Inc., its officers, agents or employees, any report as to the manner and form in which any member of the industry is carrying out any agreement or understanding with reference to prices or production.

6. Reporting to or conferring with respondent James B. Adkins, or any officer, agent or employee of said respondent association, as to the prices at which said products are to be sold or as to the curtailing of the production of any of such products, or as to the failure of any member of the industry to carry out any agreement or understanding on the part of such member of the industry to maintain prices, terms and conditions of sale or to curtail production.

It is further ordered, That the respondent Standard Container Manufacturers' Association, Inc., its officers, agents, and employees, and the respondents James B. Adkins, Charles P. Chazal, and Russell W. Bennett, forthwith cease and desist aiding, abetting, or encouraging, or cooperating with, the respondents hereinabove named in doing any of the acts and things prohibited by this order, and more particularly collecting from or disseminating among said above-named respondents, or any other member of the respondent Standard Container Manufacturers' Association, Inc., or the wooden container industry, any information as to prices, terms, and conditions of sale, or curtailment of production.

It is further ordered, That the respondent James B. Adkins cease and desist threatening, coercing or, in any wise, intimidating members of the industry in an attempt to induce such members to become a party to such an understanding, agreement, combination, or conspiracy, or to maintain prices, terms and conditions of sale or to curtail production in furtherance of any such understanding, agreement, combination or conspiracy.

It is further ordered, That the respondents shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

Docket 3961. Complaint, Dec. 2, 1939—Decision, Mar. 7, 1940

Where two partners engaged in sale and distribution of furs, fur coats and other fur products to purchasers in various other States and in the District of Columbia; in soliciting the sale of and in selling and distributing their said merchandise—

(a) Furnished various devices and plans of merchandising which involved operation of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes by which merchandise in question was sold and distributed to ultimate consumer thereof wholly by lot or chance, and involved distribution to purchasing public of certain literature and instructions, including push cards, order blanks, illustrations of goods and articles concerned, and circulars explaining their said plan of selling such merchandise and of allotting it as premiums or prizes to operators of such push cards under plan in accordance with which and card's explanatory legend, person securing by chance selection from list of feminine names displayed name corresponding with that concealed under card's master seal secured "a beautiful new fur cape," or other article being thus disposed of, and amount paid for chance was dependent upon number secured by chance as concealed under card's various discs, and under other sales plans or methods in connection with which they furnished various devices accompanied by order blanks, instructions and other printed matter for use in sale and distribution of their merchandise by means of game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme similar to plan or method above described and varying therefrom in detail only; and

Supplied thereby to and placed in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of their merchandise in accordance with plan above described, under which facts as to whether purchaser received article or nothing for amount of money paid and amount to be paid were determined wholly by lot or chance, and involving game of chance or sale of chance to procure an article of merchandise at price much less than normal retail price thereof, contrary to an established public policy of the United States Government and in violation of criminal laws, and in competition with many who are unwilling to adopt and use said or any sales plan or method involving game of chance or sale of chance to win something by chance or any other method contrary to public policy and refrain therefrom;

With the result that many persons were attracted by their said sales plan or method employed in sale and distribution of their merchandise and element of chance involved therein, and were thereby induced to buy and sell their said merchandise in preference to that offered and sold by their said competitors who do not use such or equivalent sales plan or method, and with result, through use of such plan or method and because of such game of chance, of unfairly diverting trade in commerce from their competitors aforesaid who do not use such or equivalent sales plan or method, to the substantial injury of competition in commerce.

Complaint

- (b) Represented, through advertisements in magazines, circulars, and other printed or written matter, that the possible and average earnings of their salesmen and representatives in the ordinary course of business was $1,300.00 a week or more, and that an investment of $12.00 would bring such amount, facts being possible average earnings of salesmen and representatives were not such amount, which was not a true representation of average net earnings or profits consistently made by their active, full-time salesmen or representatives in the ordinary course of business and under normal conditions and circumstances, their said salesmen or representatives earn only a small fraction of amount represented and none of them earned or had ever earned said amount, which had never been consistently earned by any representative in ordinary course of business under normal conditions and circumstances, and investment of $12.00 would not bring $1,300.00, and no representative by such investment had earned such profits or any sum other than a very small fraction thereof; and
- (c) Made use in various advertising in periodicals, circulars, and other printed and written matter, and on labels and tags, of such false and misleading references and designations to describe certain women's fur garments dealt in by them and made from rabbit peltries so dressed and dyed as to resemble fur products from peltries of seal, beaver, leopard, ermine, mink, squirrel, sable or caracul sheep, and true zoological names of which they failed to disclose, as "Seal," "Black Seal," "Full Skin Seal," "Pieced Seal," "Pieced Sealine," "Mendoza Beaver," "Pieced Beaver," "Leopardine," "Erminette," "Ermine Coney," "Pieced Marmink," "Striped Minkolette," "Squirrelette," "Cocoa Squirrel," "Dark Sable Coney," "Golden Sable Coney," and "Broad-tail";

With effect of misleading and deceiving substantial portion of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that large earnings and profits could be made by salesmen and representatives selling their products, and that the fur garments designated and described as above set forth were composed in fact of the peltries of seal, beaver, leopard, ermine, mink, squirrel, sable or caracul sheep, preferred on part of purchasing public to peltries made of rabbit because of their superior qualities such as pliability, durability, and luster, and, by reason of such mistaken and erroneous beliefs induced as above set forth, into purchase of substantial quantities of their said products:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth were, all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Maurice Seidel and Charles Seidel, individuals and copartners, trading under the name of M. Seidel & Son, hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the interest of the public, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondents, Maurice Seidel and Charles Seidel, are individuals doing business as copartners under the name of M. Seidel & Son, with their principal office and place of business located at 243 West 30th Street, in the city of New York, in the State of New York. Respondents are now, and for some time last past have been, engaged in the sale and distribution of furs, fur coats, and other fur products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, and in the District of Columbia. Respondents cause and have caused said products, when sold, to be transported from their afore-said place of business in the State of New York to purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in the various States of the United States other than the State of New York, and in the District of Columbia. There is now and has been for some time last past a course of trade by respondents in such products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondents are and have been in competition with other partnerships, and with individuals, firms, and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of their business as hereinabove described, respondents, in soliciting the sale of and in selling and distributing their said merchandise, furnish and have furnished various devices and plans of merchandising which involve the operation of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes by which said merchandise is and has been sold and distributed to the ultimate consumer thereof wholly by lot or chance. The method or sales plan adopted and used by respondents was and is substantially as follows:

Respondents distribute and have distributed to the purchasing public certain literature and instructions, including, among other things, push cards, order blanks, illustrations of their said merchandise, and circulars explaining respondents' said plan of selling said merchandise and of allotting it as premiums or prizes to the operators of said push cards. One of respondents' push cards bears 63 small partially perforated discs, on the face of which is printed the word "push" and immediately below each of said discs is printed a feminine name. Concealed within each disc is a number which is disclosed when the disc is pushed or separated from the card. The push card also has a large master seal and concealed within the master seal is one of the feminine names appearing below said discs. On the reverse side of said push

Sales of respondents' merchandise by means of said push cards are made in accordance with the above-described legends or instructions. Said prizes or premiums are allotted to customers or purchasers in accordance with the above legends or instructions. The facts as to whether a purchaser receives an article of merchandise or nothing for the amount of money paid and the amount to be paid therefor, are thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

Respondents furnish and have furnished various devices accompanied by said order blanks, instructions, and other printed matter for use in the sale and distribution of their merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. The sales plan or method involved in connection with the sale of all of said merchandise by means of said devices is the same as that hereinabove described, varying only in detail.

PAR. 3. The persons to whom respondents furnish the said push cards use the same in purchasing, selling, and distributing respondents' merchandise in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan. Respondents thus supply to and place in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of their merchandise in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove described. The use by respondents of said sales plan or method in the sale of their merchandise and the sale of said merchandise by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plan or method is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of criminal laws.

PAR. 4. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above alleged involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure an article of merchandise at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell or distribute merchandise in competition with the respondents, as above alleged, are unwilling to adopt and use said sales plan or method or any sales plan or method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other method that is contrary to the public policy and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondents in the sale and distribution of their merchandise and the element of chance involved therein and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondents' merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondents who do not use the same or an equivalent sales plan or method. The use of said sales plan or method by respondents because of said game of chance has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia to respondents from their said competitors who do not use the same or an equivalent sales plan or method. As a result thereof, substantial injury is being, and has been, done by respondents to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 5. In the course and conduct of their business, and for the purpose of inducing salesmen or representatives to sell their products by means of the said push cards, respondents represent that the possible and average earnings of salesmen and representatives in the ordinary course of business is $1,300.00 a week or more, and that an investment of $12.00 would bring $1,300.00. Such representations are made by means of advertisements placed in magazines, circulars, and other printed or written matter. Among and typical of the statements and representations so made by the respondents are the following:

You can make for yourself $1300 a week or more.
$12 can bring you $1300.

In truth and in fact, the possible average earnings of salesmen and representatives are not $1,300.00 a week or more, and said sum is not a true representation of the average net earnings or profits consistently made by respondents' active full-time salesmen or representatives in the ordinary course of business and under normal conditions and circumstances. In fact, such salesmen and representatives earn only a small fraction of the amount represented. Furthermore, none of the respondents' representatives have earned or now earn $1,300.00 a week, and said sum so represented has never been consistently earned by any representative in the ordinary course of business and under normal conditions and circumstances. Furthermore, the investment of $12.00 will not bring $1,300.00, nor has any representative of the respondents by such an investment earned profits of $1,300.00 or any sum other than a very small fraction of said amount.

PAR. 6. In the course and conduct of their business as aforesaid, the respondents are engaged in the sale and distribution of women's fur garments made from rabbit peltries which peltries are so dressed and dyed as to resemble fur products made from the peltries of seal, beaver, leopard, ermine, mink, squirrel, sable, or karakul sheep. The respondents fail to disclose the true zoological names of such furs and fur products so sold and distributed by them but instead misrepresent such products by means of misleading and deceptive designations designed to influence purchasers and prospective purchasers of such products. Typical of the false and misleading representations made by the respondents in their various advertising material appearing in magazines, circulars and other printed and written matter, and on labels and tags, is the use of the following terms to designate or describe the furs or fur products sold and distributed by respondents: "Seal," "Black Seal," "Full Skin Seal," "Pieced Seal," "Pieced Sealine," "Mendoza Beaver," "Pieced Beaver," "Leopardine," "Erminette," "Ermine Coney," "Pieced Marmink," "Striped Minkolette," "Squirrelette," "Cocoa Squirrel," "Dark Sable Coney," "Golden Sable Coney," and "Broadtail."

PAR. 7. There is a preference on the part of the purchasing public for fur products made from the peltries of Seal, Beaver, Leopard, Ermine, Mink, Squirrel, Sable, and Karakul Sheep over peltries made from rabbit because of their superior qualities, such as pliability, durability and luster.

PAR. 8. The use by the respondents of the foregoing false and misleading statements and representations has had, and now has, the tendency and capacity to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that large earnings and profits can be made by salesmen and representatives selling respondents' products and that the fur garments designated and described by respondents, as set out in paragraph 6 hereof, are composed in fact of the peltries of Seal, Beaver, Leopard, Ermine, Mink, Squirrel, Sable, or Karakul Sheep, and into the purchase of substantial quantities of respondents' products in and on account of such mistaken and erroneous beliefs induced as aforesaid.

PAR. 9. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on December 2, 1939, issued and thereafter served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondents Maurice Seidel and Charles Seidel, individuals and copartners trading as M. Seidel & Son, charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondents' answer, the Commission, by order entered herein, granted respondents' motion for permission to withdraw said answer and to substitute therefor an answer admitting all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, which substitute answer was duly filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and substitute answer and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondents, Maurice Seidel and Charles Seidel, are individuals doing business as copartners under the name of M. Seidel & Son, with their principal office and place of business located at 243 West 30th Street, in the city of New York, in the State of New York. Respondents are now, and for some time last past have been, engaged in the sale and distribution of furs, fur coats, and other fur products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, and in the District of Columbia. Respondents cause and have caused said products, when sold, to be transported from their aforesaid place of business in the State of New York to purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in the various States of the United States other than the State of New York, and in the District of Columbia. There is now and has been for sometime last past a course of trade by respondents in such products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondents are and have been in competition with other partnerships, and with individuals, firms and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of their business as hereinabove described, respondents, in soliciting the sale of and in selling and distributing their said merchandise, furnish and have furnished various devices and plans of merchandising which involve the operation of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes by which said merchandise is and has been sold and distributed to the ultimate consumer thereof wholly by lot or chance. The method or sales plan adopted and used by respondents was and is substantially as follows:

Respondents distribute and have distributed to the purchasing public certain literature and instructions, including, among other things, push cards, order blanks, illustrations of their said merchandise, and circulars, explaining respondents' said plan of selling said merchandise and of allotting it as premiums or prizes to the operators of said push cards. One of respondents' push cards bears sixty-three small partially perforated discs, on the face of which is printed the word "push" and immediately below each of said discs is printed a feminine name. Concealed within each disc is a number which is disclosed when the disc is pushed or separated from the card. The push card also has a large master seal and concealed within the master seal is one of the feminine names appearing below said discs. On the reverse side of said push card is a place for the recording of the name of each purchaser opposite the name selected. The push card bears legends or instructions as follows:

Sales of respondents' merchandise by means of said push cards are made in accordance with the above described legends or instructions. Said prizes or premiums are allotted to customers or purchasers in accordance with the above legends or instructions. The facts as to whether a purchaser receives an article of merchandise or nothing for the amount of money paid and the amount to be paid therefor, are thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

Respondents furnish and have furnished various devices accompanied by said order blanks, instructions, and other printed matter for use in the sale and distribution of their merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. The sales plan or method involved in connection with the sale of all of said merchandise by means of said devices is the same as that hereinabove described, varying only in detail.

PAR. 3. The persons to whom the respondents furnish the said push cards use the same in purchasing, selling, and distributing respondents' merchandise in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan. Respondents thus supply to and place in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of their merchandise in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove described. The use by respondent of said sales plan or method in the sale of their merchandise and the sale of said merchandise by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plan or method is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of criminal laws.

PAR. 4. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above described involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure an article of merchandise at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell or distribute merchandise in competition with the respondents, as above described, are unwilling to adopt and use said sales plan or method or any sales plan or method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other method that is contrary to the public policy and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondents in the sale and distribution of their merchandise and the element of chance involved therein and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondents' merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondents who do not use the same or an equivalent sales plan or method. The use of said sales plan or method by respondents because of said game of chance has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia to respondents from their said competitors who do not use the same or an equivalent sales plan or method. As a result thereof, substantial injury is being, and has been, done by respondents to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 5. In the course and conduct of their business, and for the purpose of inducing salesmen or representatives to sell their products by means of the said push cards, respondents represent that the possible and average earnings of salesmen and representatives in the ordinary course of business is $1,300.00 a week or more, and that an investment of $12.00 would bring $1,300.00. Such representations are made by means of advertisements placed in magazines, circulars, and other printed or written matter. Among and typical of the statements and representations so made by the respondents are the following:

You can make for yourself $1,300 a week or more.

$12 can bring you $1,300.

In truth and in fact, the possible average earnings of salesmen and representatives are not $1,300 a week or more, and said sum is not a true representation of the average net earnings or profits consistently made by respondents' active full-time salesmen or representatives in the ordinary course of business and under normal conditions and circumstances. In fact, such salesmen and representatives earn only a small fraction of the amount represented. Furthermore, none of the respondents' representatives have earned or now earn $1,300.00 a week, and said sum so represented has never been consistently earned by any representative in the ordinary course of business and under normal conditions and circumstances. Furthermore, the investment of $12.00 will not bring $1,300.00, nor has any representative of the respondents by such an investment earned profits of $1,300.00, or any sum other than a very small fraction of said amount.

PAR. 6. In the course and conduct of their business as aforesaid, the respondents are engaged in the sale and distribution of women's fur garments made from rabbit peltries which peltries are so dressed and dyed as to resemble fur products made from the peltries of seal, beaver, leopard, ermine, mink, squirrel, sable, or karakul sheep. The respondents fail to disclose the true zoological names of such furs and fur products so sold and distributed by them but instead misrepresent such products by means of misleading and deceptive designations designed to influence purchasers and prospective purchasers of such products. ter, and on labels and tags, is the use of the following terms to designate or describe the furs or fur products sold and distributed by respondents: "Seal," "Black Seal," "Full Skin Seal," "Pieced Seal," "Pieced Sealine," "Mendoza Beaver," "Pieced Beaver," "Leopardine," "Erminette," "Ermine Coney," "Pieced Marmink," "Striped Minkollette," "Squirrelette," "Cocoa Squirrel," "Dark Sable Coney," "Golden Sable Coney," and "Broadtail."

PAR. 7. There is a preference on the part of the purchasing public for fur products made from the peltries of Seal, Beaver, Leopard, Ermine, Mink, Squirrel, Sable, and Karakul Sheep over peltries made from rabbit because of their superior qualities, such as pliability, durability, and lustre.

PAR. 8. The use by the respondents of the foregoing false and misleading statements and representations has had, and now has, the tendency and capacity to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that large earnings and profits can be made by salesmen and representatives selling respondents' products and that the fur garments designated and described by respondents, as set out in paragraph 6 hereof, are composed in fact of the peltries of Seal, Beaver, Leopard, Ermine, Mink, Squirrel, Sable, or Karakul Sheep, and into the purchase of substantial quantities of respondents' products in and on account of such mistaken and erroneous beliefs induced as aforesaid.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondents, in which answer respondents admit all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and state that they waive all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondents, Maurice Seidel and Charles Seidel, individually and as copartners, trading under the name of M.

Order

30 F. T. C.

Seidel & Son, their representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of furs, fur garments or other merchandise in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Supplying to, or placing in the hands of, others, push or pull cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices, which said push or pull cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices are to be used, or may be used, in selling and distributing any merchandise by the use thereof.

2. Mailing, shipping, or transporting to agents or distributors, or to members of the public, push or pull cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices, which said push or pull cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices are so prepared and printed that said devices are to be used, or may be used, in selling and distributing any merchandise by the use thereof.

3. Selling, or otherwise disposing of, any merchandise by the use of push or pull cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices.

4. Representing any specified sum of money as possible earnings or profits of agents, salesmen, representatives, or distributors, for any given period of time which is not a true representation of the average net earnings or profits consistently made by their active full-time agents, salesmen, representatives, or distributors in the ordinary course of business under normal conditions and circumstances.

5. Representing any specified sum of money as earnings or profits of any specified agent, salesman, representative, or distributor for any given period of time which has not in fact been consistently earned net by such agent, salesman, representative, or distributor in the ordinary course of business under normal conditions and circumstances.

6. Describing furs or fur garments in any other way than by the use of the true name of the fur as a last word of the description or designation thereof.

7. Describing furs or fur garments wherein the fur has been dyed or processed to simulate another fur without using the true name of the fur as a last word of the description or designation thereof immediately preceded by the word "dyed" or "processed," as the case may be, compounded with the name of the simulated fur.

It is further ordered, That the respondents shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF MORTON SALT COMPANY
MODIFIED CEASE AND DESIST ORDER

Docket 2150. Order, Mar. 8, 1940

Order clarifying and modifying prior cease and desist order, issued on October 17, 1939, 29 F. T. C. 1128, requiring respondent, its officers, etc., in instant proceeding (following Commission's complaint, etc., findings, and order of April 30, 1935, 20 F. T. C. 309, placement of matter in fieri pending decisions in related salt cases, and the making of such decisions therein) to cease and desist from using the words "smoked" or "smoke," etc., to designate, etc., salt offered and sold by it and which had not been directly subjected to action and effect of smoke from burning wood, etc., for curing, preserving, smoking, or flavoring meats, as in said original proceeding required and in cease and desist order below set forth; but subject to permitted use of terms "wood smoke" and "refined condensed smoke" in enumerating or stating ingredients, when salt has been directly subjected to action and effect of smoke of burning wood during process of combustion, etc., as in added proviso below specified.

Before Mr. Robert S. Hall, trial examiner.

Mr. Jay L. Jackson for the Commission.

Mr. H. H. Shelton and Sanders, Gravelle, Whitlock & Howry, of Washington, D. C., and Stearns & Jones, of Chicago, Ill., for respondent.

MODIFIED ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

Whereas, The Commission, on October 17, 1939, issued in this proceeding its order to cease and desist, and

Whereas, It now appears to the Commission desirable to clarify said order to cease and desist in certain respects,

It is therefore ordered, That the order to cease and desist issued in this proceeding on the 17th day of October, A. D., 1939, be modified so that as modified it will read as follows:

This proceeding having been heard upon the complaint issued and served upon respondent, Morton Salt Co., and its answer thereto, testimony, evidence, briefs, and arguments of counsel for the Commission and counsel for respondent, and the Federal Trade Commission having made its report in writing stating its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom that the respondent has been and is violating the provisions of an act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," and the Commission having, on April 30, 1935, entered and issued its order requiring the respondent, Morton Salt Co., its officers, agents, employees, and representatives, in connection with offering for sale or selling salt in interstate commerce or in the District of Columbia, to cease and desist, on brands or labels, and in magazines, trade journals, newspapers or other periodicals, or in house organs, pamphlets, radio broadcasting, or in any other form of advertisement, directly or indirectly, expressly or impliedly, from using the word "smoked" or the word "smoke," or any other word or words signifying smoke, or implying use of smoke, to designate or describe salt offered for sale, or sold, for curing, preserving, smoking, or flavoring meats, unless the salt so described or designated has been or is directly subjected to the action and effect of the smoke from burning wood during its process of combustion sufficiently to acquire from such source alone all of its smoke or smoke effects for use in curing, preserving, smoking, or flavoring meats, and further ordering said respondent to file within 60 days from the service of said order a report in writing setting forth the manner and form of its compliance therewith; and by order duly entered herein on June 28, 1935, having extended the time for filing report of compliance with said order from July 31, 1935, to August 30, 1935; and by order duly entered hereon on June 17, 1936, having stayed said proceeding until final decision by the Commission in the matters of Smoke Products Company, et al., Docket 2783, and Pennsylvania Salt Manufacturing Company, et al., Docket 2784; and by order duly entered hereon on April 21, 1938, having directed that this matter remain in fieri without prejudice to the right of the Commission forthwith to enter such final order as seems just at or after the Commission's final decision in the matters of Dockets 2783 and 2784, and the Commission having made its final decision in the matters of Dockets 2783 and 2784, and having duly entered and issued its findings as to the facts and conclusions and orders to cease and desist in these matters, and having duly considered the record herein;

It is ordered, That respondent, Morton Salt Co., its officers, agents, employees, and representatives in connection with offering for sale, sale or distribution of salt in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from using the word "smoked" or the word "smoke," or any other word or words signifying smoke, or implying use of smoke, to designate or describe salt offered for sale, or sold, for curing, preserving, smoking or flavoring meats, unless the salt so described or designated has been or is directly subjected to the action and effect of the smoke from burning wood during its process of combustion sufficiently to acquire from such source alone all of its smoke or smoke effects for use in curing, preserving, smoking, or flavoring meats.

Nothing in this order shall prohibit the respondent from using the terms "wood smoke" and "refined condensed smoke" in enumerating or stating the ingredients of such salt when such salt has been directly subjected to the action and effect of the smoke of burning wood during its process of combustion and there has been added thereto a refined concentrate resulting from the destructive distillation of wood, and where the application of each of such products is in sufficient quantity to impart to such salt the flavor of smoke.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this modified order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF
MONROE CHEMICAL COMPANY AND MARY T. GOLDMAN
COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3274. Complaint, Nov. 26, 1937—Decision, Mar. 8, 1940

Where a corporation, and a second concern, which acquired controlling interest therein and controlled business policies thereof, engaged, as aforesaid, directly and indirectly, in manufacture and sale of various preparations, including said corporation's "Mary T. Goldman's Gray Hair Color Restorer," to purchasers in various other States and in the District of Columbia, in substantial competition with others engaged in distribution and sale, in commerce as aforesaid, of hair tonics, hair dyes, or other products for treating various conditions of hair and scalp, and for coloring or dyeing gray hair, and including many who distribute and sell such hair tonics and other preparations and who do not in any way misrepresent quality or character or effectiveness thereof; in advertising their said "Color Restorer" in newspapers and periodicals of general circulation and in advertising folders distributed to members of the purchasing public in various States—

- (a) Represented, directly or by implication, that use of product in question would restore original or youthful color to gray, streaked or faded hair and would erase or remove all trace of gray hair, through use of word "restorer" in designation of product in question, and through such statements as "Just comb colorless liquid through hair—youthful color comes—nothing to wash or rub off on clothing," and "Gray Hair Gone," and "We will show you how to bring youthful color in every hair in your head", facts being product in question does not restore original color to gray, faded or streaked hair of user, but acts as dye or stain, color produced by use thereof is artificial and it will not color or restore color to hair as aforesaid, except in the sense that it may dye the same, all trace of such hair is not removed or erased, as repeated applications are required in order to prevent new growth showing gray, faded or streaked above scalp line, and preparation acts, as above set forth, as dye or stain on that portion exposed above such line; and
- (b) Represented that originator of preparation in question was a living person, personally recommending use of such product and personally corresponding with users and prospective users thereof with respect thereto and effectiveness thereof, through displaying, in advertisements and other literature disseminated by them, purported facsimile signature of one Mary T. Goldman, notwithstanding fact individual in question, and originator of formula for producing so-called "restorer," and their predecessor in sale of preparation in question, had long since deceased and was not living at times letter and advertisements concerned were published and used by corporation and concern aforesaid;

Complaint

With effect of misleading and deceiving members of the purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that such false and misleading statements and representations were true, and into purchase of substantial quantity of their said preparations, and with result, as direct consequence of such belief induced by such false statements and representations, that trade was unfairly diverted to them from those likewise engaged in sale and offer of hair preparations and cosmetics and who truthfully advertise and represent their products; to the substantial injury of competition in commerce:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Mr. Robert Mathis, Jr. for the Commission.

Lancaster & Nichols, of Quincy, Ill., for respondents.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that the Monroe Chemical Co. and the Mary T. Goldman Co., hereinafter referred to as respondents, have been and are now using unfair methods of competition in commerce as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, Mary T. Goldman Co., is a corporation, incorporated under the laws of Minnesota on or about February 7, 1927, and having a principal place of business at St. Paul, Minn., at all times since its incorporation.

The respondent, Monroe Chemical Co., is a corporation, incorporated prior to the year 1927, under the laws of Illinois and having its principal place of business at Quincy, Ill., at all times since its incorporation.

PAR. 2. At all times since its incorporation, the respondent, Mary T. Goldman Co., has been engaged in the business of the manufacture and sale of various toilet preparations, including a preparation designated Mary T. Goldman's Gray Hair Color Restorer. In or about August 1929, the respondent, Monroe Chemical Co., bought the capital stock, or a controlling interest therein, of the respondent, Mary T. Goldman Co., and at all times since the said date, has controlled the business policies of the Mary T. Goldman Co. and has operated that company for the manufacture and sale of various preparations, including the preparation called Mary T. Goldman's Gray Hair Color Restorer. The respondents sell and cause others to sell said preparation for the purpose of giving color to the gray or faded hair of the user thereof.

PAR. 3. Said respondents, being engaged in business as aforesaid, cause said Gray Hair Color Restorer, when sold, to be transported from their places of business in the States of Illinois and Minnesota to purchasers thereof located at various points in States other than Illinois and Minnesota and in the District of Columbia. There is now, and has been during all of the time referred to herein, a constant current of trade and commerce in said Gray Hair Color Restorer so manufactured, distributed and sold by the respondents, between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of their business, respondents are now, and have been, in substantial competition with other corporations and with firms and individuals likewise engaged in the business of manufacturing, distributing and selling hair tonics, hair dyes, and various gray hair color restorers, or other products, designed, intended and sold for the purpose of treating various conditions of the hair or scalp and for the purpose of coloring or dyeing gray hair, in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 5. In the course of the operation of said business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of said Gray Hair Color Restorer, respondents have caused advertisements to be inserted in newspapers and magazines of general circulation throughout the United States and have printed and circulated throughout the several States, to customers and prospective customers, through the United States mails and otherwise, advertising folders and literature in which the following statements and representations, among others, are made:

* * * they restore original color in a scientific way which gives perfect results quickly.

Just begin complete restoration of your hair and soon you will be delighted by the beauty of the perfectly restored natural shade.

Besides restoring your hair to its natural color, Mary T. Goldman's makes your hair soft and fluffy.

There is but one scientific hair color restorer and that is Mary T. Goldman's. Watch the gray disappear—the youthful shade return.

Just comb colorless liquid through hair—youthful color comes—nothing to wash or rub off on clothing.

Erase away all trace of gray. * * * Brings warm, youthful color.

Goodbye gray hairs—free test shows way to end them.

We will show you how to bring youthful color to every hair in your head.

Have ever-youthful looking hair.

Faded—streaked—dull strands—all vanish at the touch of this famous clear water-like liquid.

The respondents also cause the name of the product, Mary T. Goldman's Gray Hair Color Restorer, to be conspicuously placed on labels on the bottles in which said product is contained, and on the outside of the cartons, and in all of their pamphlets and other advertising literature above referred to.

All of said statements, together with similar statements appearing in respondents' advertising literature, including the use of the word "Restorer" in the name by which the preparation is designated, purport to be descriptive of respondents' product and its effectiveness in use. In all of their advertising literature, and through other means, respondents represent, through the statements and representations herein set out, and through other statements of similar import and effect, that said preparation designated as Mary T. Goldman's Gray Hair Restorer will (1) restore gray, streaked or faded hair of the user to its original or youthful color; (2) erase or remove all trace of gray hair; and (3) bring warm, youthful color or original color of the user's gray, streaked or faded hair as a result of the use thereof.

Said preparation does not restore the original color or the youthful color to the gray, faded or streaked hair of the user thereof. The preparation acts as a dye or stain and the color produced by its use is artificial. Said preparation will not color or restore color to gray or faded hair except in the sense that it may dye the hair. All trace of gray, faded or streaked hair is not removed or erased in the sense that repeated applications of said preparation will not be required in order to prevent the new growth of hair from showing gray above the scalp line. Youthful color or original color of the user's hair is not restored and does not come as a result of the use thereof, except insofar as the preparation acts as a dye on that portion of the hair already exposed above the scalp line.

PAR. 6. During all of the time referred to herein, the advertisements and other literature referred to have been signed with the name Mary T. Goldman. Such use of the name Mary T. Goldman serves as a representation that Mary T. Goldman was the originator of said preparation and is a living person personally recommending the use of said preparation and personally corresponding with users and prospective users of said preparation with respect to the product and its effectiveness in use.

PAR. 7. Mary T. Goldman was the originator of the formula for producing the preparation referred to above and was the predecessor of the respondents in the business of the sale of the preparation. The said Mary T. Goldman has long since deceased. She was not living at the times the letters and advertisements above mentioned were published and used by the respondents.

PAR. 8. There are among respondents' competitors many who manufacture, distribute, and sell hair tonics, hair dyes, and various gray hair color restorers, or other products, designed, intended and sold for the purpose of treating various conditions of the hair or scalp and for the purpose of coloring or dyeing gray hair, who do not, in any way, misrepresent the quality or character of their respective products or the effectiveness of such products in use.

PAR. 9. Each and all of the false and misleading statements and representations made by the respondents in designating and describing said preparation and the effectiveness thereof for restoring original and natural color to gray, faded or streaked hair, in their advertising literature as hereinabove set out, in offering for sale and selling said preparation, were, and are, calculated to, and have had, and now have, a tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that all of said representations are true. Further, as a direct consequence of such mistaken and erroneous beliefs induced by the representations of the respondents as aforesaid, a number of the consuming public have purchased a substantial volume of respondents' preparation with the result that trade has been unfairly diverted to respondents from competitors likewise engaged in the business of manufacturing, distributing and selling similar preparations, or hair dyes, or other products, designed, intended and sold for the purpose of treating gray, faded or streaked hair and who truthfully advertise their respective products and effectiveness thereof in use. As a result thereof, substantial injury has been, and is now being, done by respondents to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 10. The aforesaid acts, practices, and representations of the respondents are all to the prejudice of the public and respondents' competitors, as hereinabove alleged, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of section 5 of an Act of Congress, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," approved September 26, 1914.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on November 26, 1937, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon said respondents, Monroe Chemical Co., a corporation, and Mary T. Goldman Co., a corporation, charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On December 11, 1937, the respondent Monroe Chemical Co. filed its answer in this proceeding, there being no answer filed on behalf of Mary T. Goldman Co. Thereafter, a stipulation was entered into whereby it was stipulated and agreed that a statement of facts signed and executed by the respondents and W. T. Kelley, Chief Counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, subject to the approval of the Commission, may be taken as the facts in this proceeding and in lieu of testimony in support of the charges stated in the complaint, and in opposition thereto, and that the said Commission may proceed upon said statement of facts to make its report, stating its findings as to the facts and its conclusion based thereon and enter its order disposing of the proceedings without the presentation of argument or the filing of briefs. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, answer and stipulation, said stipulation having been approved, accepted and filed, and the Commission having duly considered the same and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, Mary T. Goldman Co., is a corporation, incorporated under the laws of Minnesota on or about February 7, 1927, and having its principal place of business at St. Paul, Minn.

The respondent, Monroe Chemical Co., is a corporation, incorporated prior to the year 1927, under the laws of Illinois and having its principal place of business at Quincy, Ill.

PAR. 2. At all times since its incorporation, the respondent, Mary T. Goldman Co., has been engaged in the business of the manufacture and sale of various toilet preparations, including a preparation designated "Mary T. Goldman's Gray Hair Color Restorer." In August 1929, the respondent Monroe Chemical Co., bought the capital stock, or a controlling interest therein, of the respondent, Mary T. Goldman Co., and at all times since that date, has controlled the business policies of the Mary T. Goldman Co. and has operated that company for the manufacture and sale of various preparations, including the preparation called "Mary T. Goldman's Gray Hair Color Restorer." Subsequent to the issuance and service of the complaint herein the respondents changed the designation of said preparation to "Mary T. Goldman's Gray Hair Coloring Preparation."

PAR. 3. Respondents cause said preparation, when sold, to be transported from their places of business in the States of Illinois and Minnesota to purchasers thereof located at various points in States other than Illinois and Minnesota and in the District of Columbia. There is now, and has been during all of the time referred to herein, a course of trade and commerce in said preparation by respondents between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of their business, respondents are now, and have been, in substantial competition with other corporations and with firms and individuals also engaged in the business of distributing and selling in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, hair tonics, hair dyes, or other products, designed, intended and sold for the purpose of treating various conditions of the hair or scalp and for the purpose of coloring or dyeing gray hair.

PAR. 5. In the course and conduct of their aforesaid business, the respondents have caused various statements and representations relative to said preparation and its effectiveness in use to be inserted in advertisements in newspapers and magazines having a general circulation throughout the United States and in advertising folders distributed to members of the purchasing public situated in various States of the United States. Among and typical of said statements and representations are the following:

Just comb colorless liquid through hair—youthful color comes—nothing to wash or rub off on clothing.

Erase away all trace of gray. * * * Brings warm, youthful color.

Goodbye gray hairs—free test shows way to end them.

We will show you how to bring youthful color to every hair in your head.

Have ever-youthful looking hair.

Gray Hair Gone.

In addition to the statements and representations set out above, the respondents caused many other statements and representations of similar import or meaning to be published and circulated as described above. Respondents also caused the name of the product, "Mary T. Goldman's Gray Hair Color Restorer" to be conspicuously placed on the labels on bottles in which said product is contained and on the outside of the cartons and in the other pamphlets and advertising literature above referred to.

Prior to the acquisition by the Monroe Chemical Co. of the Mary T. Goldman Co. as hereinabove described, the respondent Mary T. Goldman Co. caused statements to be made in advertisements disseminated as above described containing representations that the use of Mary T. Goldman's Hair Color Restorer restored the natural color to gray hair.

PAR. 6. Through the use of the aforesaid statements and representations, including the use of the word "restorer" in the designation of said preparation, the respondents have represented directly or by implication that the use of said preparation will restore the original or youthful color to gray streaked or faded hair, and will erase or remove all trace of gray hair.

PAR. 7. Said preparation does not restore the original color to the gray, faded or streaked hair of the user thereof. The preparation acts as a dye or stain and the color produced by its use is artificial. Said preparation will not color or restore color to gray or faded or streaked hair except in the sense that it may dye the hair. All trace of gray, faded, or streaked hair is not removed or erased as repeated applications of said preparation are required in order to prevent the new growth of hair from showing gray, faded or streaked above the scalp line. The natural, youthful, original color of the user's hair is not restored and does not come as a result of the use thereof. The preparation acts as a dye or stain on that portion of the hair already exposed above the scalp line.

PAR. 8. The respondents have caused advertisements and other literature referred to above to be disseminated as above described bearing what purports to be the facsimile signature of Mary T. Goldman. Mary T. Goldman was the originator of the formula for producing the Mary T. Goldman Hair Color Restorer and was the predecessor of the respondents in the business and the sale of the preparation. Said Mary T. Goldman has long since deceased. She was not living at the times the letters and advertisements above mentioned were published and used by the respondents. The use by the respondents of what purports to be the facsimile signature of Mary T. Goldman in the manner described above serves as a representation by the respondents that Mary T. Goldman (the originator of said preparation) is a living person personally recommending the use of said preparation and personally corresponding with the users and prospective users of said preparation with respect to the preparation and its effectiveness in use.

PAR. 9. There are among respondents' competitors many who distribute and sell hair tonics, hair dyes, or other products, designed, intended and sold for the purpose of treating various conditions of the hair or scalp and for the purpose of coloring or dyeing gray hair, who do not, in any way, misrepresent the quality or character of their respective products or the effectiveness of such products in use.

PAR. 10. The use by the respondents of the aforesaid false and misleading statements and representations has the tendency and capacity to, and does, mislead and deceive members of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that the aforesaid false and misleading statements and representations are true and into the purchase of a substantial quantity of respondents' preparation. Further, as a direct consequence of the mistaken and erroneous belief induced by the false statements and representations of respondents, as hereinabove enumerated, trade has been unfairly diverted to respondents from corporations, firms and partnerships likewise engaged in the selling and offering for sale of hair preparations and cosmetics, who truthfully advertise and represent their products. As a consequence thereof, substantial injury has been done and is now being done by respondents to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondent Monroe Chemical Co., a corporation, and the stipulation as to the facts entered into between the respondents herein and W. T. Kelley, Chief Counsel for the Commission, which provides, among other things, that without further evidence or intervening procedure, the Commission may issue and serve upon the respondents herein findings as to the facts and conclusion based thereon and an order disposing of the proceeding, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondents Monroe Chemical Co., a corporation and Mary T. Goldman Co., a corporation, their respective officers, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of their cosmetic preparation designated "Mary T. Goldman's Gray Hair Color Restorer" or any other cosmetic preparation composed of substantially similar ingredients or possessing substantially similar therapeutic properties, whether sold under that name or any other name or names, in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing in any manner that said preparation is not a dye, or is other than a dye, or will cause gray or faded or streaked hair to change color without dyeing the hair; or that said preparation will restore the natural, original or youthful color to gray hair; or that said preparation will remove all trace of gray hair in any other manner than as a dye.

2. Representing by any means that Mary T. Goldman is a living person personally recommending said preparation or personally corresponding with the users or prospective users of said preparation.

3. Representing that anything less than repeated applications of said product will change the color of the user's hair; or representing that in the use of said product anything less than repeated applications of said product will cause the user's hair to maintain the color imparted to the hair by said product.

4. Using the word "restorer" or any other word or term of similar import or meaning as part of the brand name for its products.

It is further ordered, That the respondents shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF

C. C. JOHNSON, TRADING AS SUPREME MANUFACTURING COMPANY, CARLYLE SERVICE, MARVO MANUFACTURING COMPANY, AND PEERLESS MANUFACTURING COMPANY.<sup>1</sup>

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3712. Complaint, Feb. 14, 1939—Decision, Mar. 8, 1940

Where an individual engaged in sale and distribution of his Supreme, Marvel, Marvo, or Peerless product, represented as preservative of silk hosiery and lingerie, through direct selling methods and sales persons and representatives who traveled from State to State canvassing cities and towns therein and in District of Columbia, and using in their general house-to-house solicitation of orders stereotyped sales talk furnished by said individual, and, as thus engaged, in substantial competition with others selling and distributing, in commerce among the States and in said District, preparations for treating said products to increase their durability and resistance to snags and runs, and including many who do not misrepresent that they are manufacturers of the products sold and do not misrepresent quality or effectiveness thereof or make other similar false statements in connection with their sale and distribution—

- (a) Represented, through statements on labels affixed to containers of his said product, and through agents' sales talks to prospective customers, that said product would prevent runs and snags in hosiery and lingerie, and rotting or fading thereof, and strengthen heels and toes of silk hosiery substantially, and that through use thereof purchaser could save 50 percent of cost of said various products, facts being use thereof would not save approximately such amount, and product was not permanent and would not strengthen heels and toes of silk hosiery or in other respects accomplish results claimed therefor as aforesaid; and
- (b) Included word "manufacturing" in various trade names made use of by him, notwithstanding fact he was not manufacturer of said product, which was actually made by independent manufacturer, with capacity and tendency thereby to cause purchasing public to believe that he was manufacturer of products sold, and that by purchasing from him direct, as manufacturer, without intervention of middleman, they would, as believed by many members of such public, secure advantages in price, service, and in other particulars not to be had in purchasing from competitors who do not represent themselves as manufacturers of products sold by them;

With effect of misleading and deceiving substantial portion of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that said representations as to efficacy of said product were true, and that he was manufacturer thereof, and of causing substantial portion of said public to purchase his said product in preference to those of his competitors, and of thereby diverting unfairly to him from them trade in commerce as aforesaid:

<sup>1</sup> Original findings and order, 29 F. T. C. 1270, were vacated and set aside Dec. 29, 1939 (see infra page 1386).

Complaint

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

Before Mr. John J. Keenan, trial examiner.

Mr. John R. Phillips, Jr. for the Commission.

Morris, Kix Miller & Baar, of Washington, D. C., and Wright, Rogers & Margolin, of Kansas City, Mo., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that C. C. Johnson, an individual, trading as Supreme Manufacturing Co., Carlyle Service, Marvo Manufacturing Co., and Peerless Manufacturing Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, C. C. Johnson, is an individual, trading and doing business as the Supreme Manufacturing Co., Carlyle Service, Marvo Manufacturing Co., and Peerless Manufacturing Co., with his principal office and place of business located at 1014 City National Bank Building in the city of Omaha, Nebr. Respondent is now and has been for several years last past engaged in the business of selling and distributing a preservative or mending powder for silk hosiery and lingerie under the trade names of Supreme, Marvel, Marvo, and Peerless, in commerce as hereinafter set out.

PAR. 2. Respondent sells said product by direct selling methods and by means of sales persons and representatives who travel from one State to another and canvass all cities and towns within the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia and make a general house-to-house canvass soliciting orders for the respondent's product, said sales persons and representatives using a stereotype sales talk as furnished by the respondent. Respondent causes said product when sold to be shipped from his aforesaid place of business in the State of Nebraska to said purchasers located in various States of the United States other than the State of Nebraska and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains and at all times mentioned herein has maintained a course of trade in said product in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. The respondent is engaged in substantial competition with other individuals, and with partnerships, firms, and corporations, selling and distributing a preparation for treating silk hose and lingerie to increase their durability and their resistance to snags and runs, in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Among said competitors are many who do not misrepresent that they are manufacturers of the products they sell, and who do not misrepresent the quality or effectiveness of their respective products, or make other similar false statements in connection with their sale and distribution.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of his business as aforesaid and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of said product in said commerce respondent has made and is now making representations with respect to his business status and with respect to the quality and effectiveness of his said product by means of statements appearing on labels affixed to containers of said product and by means of sales talks made to prospective customers by agents of respondent. Among and typical of said representations so used and caused to be used by said respondent in the manner aforesaid are and have been the following:

Supreme Manufacturing Company.

Marvo Manufacturing Company.

Peerless Manufacturing Company.

No more runs and snags.

Prevents runs and snags.

No more rotting and fading.

Prevents rotting and fading.

Saves 50% on hosiery and lingerie expense. One treatment good for life of hose. Strengthens heels and toes.

Prevents the runs and snags in your silk hosiery and lingerie * * * strengthens the heel and toe of your hosiery, thereby making them last 4 or 5 times longer * * * this treatment is permanent * * * now this product will cut your hosiery and lingerie expense in half * * * also prevents the silk from rotting, and one treatment is sufficient for the life of the hose.

PAR. 5. All of said statements purport to be descriptive of his business status and of his product and of its effectiveness when used. In said statements and through other means respondent, directly or by inference, through statements and representations herein set out and other statements of similar import and effect, represents that his product prevents runs and snags in said hosiery; that it prevents rotting and fading; that the public generally is saved approximately 50 percent of silk hosiery and lingerie cost; that it strengthens the heels and toes of said hosiery; and that the life of the silk hosiery and lingerie is preserved due to the quality of the respondent's product; and that he manufactures the products he sells. Many consumers are of the opinion that an advantage in price, service, and other particulars is to be secured by purchasing direct from the manufacturer without the intervention of middlemen.

PAR. 6. In truth and in fact these representations thus made are false and misleading in that the respondent does not manufacture said product. Respondent's product will not stop or prevent runs or snags in silk hosiery and lingerie. It does not prevent silk from rotting and fading. It does not save the purchasing public 50 percent on hosiery and lingerie expense. The so-called treatment is not permanent and it does not strengthen the heels and toes of silk hosiery. In truth and in fact said product is manufactured by an independent manufacturer and the respondent purchases the chemical product from such independent manufacturer and distributes the said product under his various trade names as aforesaid.

PAR. 7. Each and all of said false and misleading statements are calculated to and have had and now have the capacity and tendency to and do mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that said representations are true, and to cause and have caused a substantial part of the purchasing public to purchase the products of respondent in preference to the products of his said competitors, and unfairly to divert business from them to respondent. As a result thereof injury has been done and is now being done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 8. The use of the aforesaid acts and practices by the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on February 14, 1939, issued, and on February 16, 1939, served, its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondent, C. C. Johnson, trading as Supreme Manufacturing Co., Carlyle Service, Marvo Manufacturing Co., and Peerless Manufacturing Co., charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer, the Commission, by order entered herein, granted respondent's motion for permission to withdraw said answer and to substitute therefor an answer admitting all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, which substitute answer was duly filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and substitute answer, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom :

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, C. C. Johnson, is an individual, trading and doing business as the Supreme Manufacturing Co., Carlyle Service, Marvo Manufacturing Co., and Peerless Manufacturing Co., with his principal office and place of business located at 1014 City National Bank Building in the city of Omaha, Nebr. Respondent is now, and has been for several years last past, engaged in the sale and distribution of a product represented as a preservative of silk hosiery and lingerie under the trade names Supreme, Marvel, Marvo, and Peerless.

PAR. 2. Respondent sells said product by direct selling methods and by means of salespersons and representatives who travel from one State to another and canvass all cities and towns within the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia and make a general house-to-house canvass soliciting orders for the respondent's product, said salespersons and representatives using a stereotyped sales talk as furnished by the respondent. Respondent causes said product when sold to be shipped from his aforesaid place of business in the State of Nebraska to said purchasers located in various States of the United States other than the State of Nebraska and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains and at all times mentioned herein has maintained a course of trade in said product in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. The respondent is engaged in substantial competition with other individuals, and with partnerships, firms, and corporations, selling and distributing preparations for treating silk hosiery and lingerie to increase their durability and their resistance to snags and runs, in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Among said competitors are many who do not misrepresent that they are manufacturers of the products they sell, and who do not misrepresent the quality or effectiveness of their respective products, or make other similar false statements in connection with their sale and distribution.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of his business as aforesaid and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of said products in said commerce, respondent has made and is now making representations with respect to his business status and with respect to the quality and effectiveness of his said product by means of statements appearing on labels affixed to containers of said product and by means of sales talks made to prospective customers by agents of respondent. Among and typical of said representations so used and caused to be used by said respondent in the manner aforesaid are and have been the following:

Supreme Manufacturing Company.

Marvo Manufacturing Company.

Peerless Manufacturing Company.

No more runs and snags.

Prevents runs and snags.

No more rotting and fading.

Prevents rotting and fading.

Saves 50% on hosiery and lingerie expense. One treatment good for life of hose. Strengthens heels and toes.

Prevents the runs and snags in your silk hosiery and lingerie * * * strengthens the heel and toe of your hosiery, thereby making them last 4 or 5 times longer * * * this treatment is permanent * * * now this product will cut your hosiery and lingerie expense in half * * * also prevents the silk from rotting, and one treatment is sufficient for the life of the hose.

PAR. 5. All of said statements purport to be descriptive of respondent's business status and of his product and of its effectiveness when used. In said statements and through other means respondent, directly and by inference, represents that his product prevents runs and snags in hosiery, that it prevents rotting and fading, that the public generally are saved approximately 50 percent of silk hosiery and lingerie cost, that it strengthens the heels and toes of hosiery, and that the life of the silk hosiery and lingerie is preserved due to the quality of the respondent's product; and that he manufactures the product he sells.

PAR. 6. The aforesaid representations are false and misleading. In truth and in fact, the use of respondent's said product will not prevent or stop runs or snags in silk hosiery or lingerie. Said preparation will not prevent silk from rotting and fading. The use of said product will not save approximately 50 percent of hosiery and lingerie expense. Said product is not permanent and the use of said product does not strengthen the heels and toes of silk hosiery. The respondent is not the manufacturer of said product which is actually manufactured by an independent manufacturer.

PAR. 7. Many members of the purchasing public are of the opinion that an advantage in price, service, or in other respects is to be secured by purchasing direct from the manufacturer of a product without the intervention of middlemen. The use by the respondent of the trade names Supreme Manufacturing Co., Marvo Manufacturing Co., and Peerless Manufacturing Co. in connection with the sale and distribution of said product has the capacity and tendency to cause the purchasing public to believe that respondent is the manufacturer of the product he sells and to believe that by purchasing from respondent they will secure advantages in price, service, and in other particulars not to be had in purchasing from the said competitors of respondent who do not represent that they are manufacturers of the products they sell.

PAR. 8. Each and all of said statements and representations by the respondent have had, and do have, the capacity and tendency to, and do, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken beliefs that said representations as to the efficacy of said product are true, and that the respondent is the manufacturer thereof, and have caused, and do cause, a substantial portion of the purchasing public to purchase the product of the respondent in preference to the products of his competitors. In consequence thereof, trade in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia has been diverted unfairly to the respondent from his said competitors.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been considered by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, and the answer of respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and states that he waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent C. C. Johnson, his agents, servants, representatives and employees acting directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale or distribution in commerce, as defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, of the product for the treatment of hosiery and lingerie now sold and distributed by him under the trade names Supreme, Marvel, Marvo, and Peerless, or any other product composed of substantially the same ingredients or possessing substantially similar properties, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing, directly or by implication, that the use of said product will prevent runs and snags in, or the rotting and fading of, hosiery and lingerie.

2. Representing, directly or by implication, that through the use of said product, the purchaser can save 50 percent of the cost of silk hosiery and lingerie, or any percent approximating 50 percent.

3. Representing, directly or by implication, that the use of said product strengthens the heels and toes of silk hosiery substantially.

4. Using the term "manufacturing" or any other word or term of similar import or meaning as part of any trade or corporate name or otherwise representing that the respondent is the manufacturer of said product, unless and until the respondent actually owns and operates, or directly and absolutely controls, a manufacturing plant wherein said product is actually manufactured by the respondent.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3953. Complaint, Nov. 18, 1939—Decision, Mar. 8, 1940

Where a corporation engaged in manufacture, sale, and distribution of its Lead Head Anchor Shank (roofing) Nails, to purchasers in various other States and in the District of Columbia; in advertising its said product in periodicals and other publications of general circulation among the various States and in catalogs, circulars, price lists, and other printed and written matter distributed among prospective purchasers—

Represented that its said nails had two times the holding power under normal conditions of all other nails ordinarily used for roofing, and four times such power under certain conditions as some other nails used for said purpose, facts being they did not have any holding power approximating such amount, and such statements and representations were grossly exaggerated, misleading, and untrue;

With effect of misleading and deceiving substantial number of members of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that such statements and representations were true, and into purchase of substantial quantities of its said product:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Mr. Donovan R. Divet for the Commission.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that W. H. Maze Co., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, W. H. Maze Co., is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Illinois and having its office and principal place of business at Peru, in the State of Illinois.

Respondent is now and has been for several years last past engaged in the business of manufacturing, selling, and distributing roofing nails known as Maze Lead Head Anchor Shank Nails. Respondent causes said nails, when sold, to be transported from its aforesaid place of business in the State of Illinois to the purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains and at all times mentioned herein has maintained a course of trade in said nails in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business and in furtherance of the sale of its said product, respondent has caused various statements and representations relative to said product to be inserted in periodicals and other publications having a general circulation among and between the various States of the United States and in catalogs, circulars, price lists, and other printed and written matter distributed among prospective purchasers. Among and typical of said representations are the following:

Maze Anchor Lead Heads hold two to four times better—conclusive tests prove it.

Sell Maze—the nails that stay put! Anchor Lead Heads hold two to four times better than ordinary lead head nails—tests prove it!

Through the use of the aforesaid statements and representations, and others of similar import or meaning, not herein set out, the respondent represents that its said Maze Lead Head Anchor Shank Nails have two times the holding power under normal conditions of all other nails ordinarily used for roofing, and four times the holding power under normal conditions of some other nails used for roofing.

PAR. 3. The aforesaid statements and representations by the respondent are grossly exaggerated, misleading, and untrue. In truth and in fact, respondent's said lead head anchor shank nails do not have two times the holding power under normal conditions of all other nails ordinarily used for roofing, nor do they have four times the holding power under normal conditions of any other nails used for roofing, or any holding power approximating such amount.

PAR. 4. The use by the respondent of the aforesaid false and misleading representations has the capacity and tendency to and does mislead and deceive a substantial number of members of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such statements and representations are true and into the purchase of substantial quantities of respondent's said nails.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on November 18, 1939, issued, and on November 22, 1939, served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent W. H. Maze Co., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer, the Commission by order entered herein granted respondent's motion for permission to withdraw said answer and to substitute therefor an answer admitting all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, which substitute answer was duly filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint and substitute answer and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, W. H. Maze Co., is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Illinois and having its office and principal place of business at Peru, in the State of Illinois.

Respondent is now and has been for several years last past engaged in the business of manufacturing, selling, and distributing roofing nails known as Maze Lead Head Anchor Shank Nails. Respondent causes said nails, when sold, to be transported from its aforesaid place of business in the State of Illinois to the purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains and at all times mentioned herein has maintained a course of trade in said nails in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business and in furtherance of the sale of its said product, respondent has caused various statements and representations relative to said product to be inserted in periodicals and other publications having a general circulation among and between the various States of the United States and in catalogs, circulars, price lists, and other printed and written matter distributed among prospective purchasers. Among and typical of said representations are the following:

Maze Anchor Lead Heads hold two to four times better—conclusive tests prove it.

Sell Maze—the nails that stay put! Anchor Lead Heads hold two to four times better than ordinary lead head nails—tests prove it!

Through the use of the aforesaid statements and representations, and others of similar import or meaning, not herein set out, the respondent represents that its said Maze Lead Head Anchor Shank Nails have two times the holding power under normal conditions of all other nails ordinarily used for roofing, and four times the holding power under normal conditions of some other nails used for roofing.

PAR. 3. The aforesaid statements and representations by the respondent are grossly exaggerated, misleading and untrue. In truth and in fact, respondent's said lead head anchor shank nails do not have two times the holding power under normal conditions of all other nails ordinarily used for roofing, nor do they have four times the holding power under normal conditions of any other nails used for roofing, or any holding power approximating such amount.

PAR. 4. The use by the respondent of the aforesaid false and misleading representations has the capacity and tendency to and does mislead and deceive a substantial number of members of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such statements and representations are true and into the purchase of substantial quantities of respondent's said nails.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondent in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and states that it waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Order

30 F. T. C.

It is ordered, That respondent, W. H. Maze Co., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of its roofing nails in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing that its said roofing nails have two to four times the holding power of other roofing nails.

2. Representing that its said roofing nails have any designated holding power in excess of that possessed by other roofing nails, when such is not the fact.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall within 60 days after the service upon it of this order file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

Docket 3933. Complaint, Oct. 19, 1939—Decision, Mar. 9, 1940

Where an individual engaged in sale and distribution of "The Grape Cure" or, as formerly titled, "The Grape Cure (How I Cured Myself of Cancer)," to purchasers in other States and in the District of Columbia, in substantial competition with others engaged in sale and distribution of books pertaining to matters of health in commerce among the various States and in said District; in advertisements which she disseminated respecting said book and method or system of treatment outlined therein among prospective purchasers through the mails and through newspapers and periodicals of general circulation—

Represented, directly and by implication, that system or method of treatment outlined in such book constituted cure or remedy for, or competent or effective treatment for, constipation, cancer, heart and kidney trouble, rheumatism and other ailments and conditions therein set forth, and that grapes dissolved and were solvent of mucous, through statements to foregoing effect and such statements as that most diseases originated in intestines and were caused by poisons due to uneliminated waste, and that those who developed malignant growths in most cases had been suffering from constipation which system or method of treatment in question prevented, and that salt, inorganic drugs and patent medicines caused cancer, and that poisons resulted from using aluminum vessels, and that system or method in question would restore one's health;

Facts being most of diseases, ailments and conditions mentioned do not originate in intestines and are not caused by poisons, as above set forth, grapes do not have above effect or qualities, only in rare instances is there any connection between constipation and development of malignant growths, and other representations and statements as above made were false, and system or method of treatment in question did not constitute cure or remedy or competent or effective treatment for said various ailments and conditions set forth, and would not restore one's health;

With effect of misleading and deceiving substantial number of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that such false and misleading statements, representations and implications were true, and into purchase of substantial number of said books by reason of such belief, and with result that trade in commerce was thereby diverted unfairly to her from her competitors who do not falsely represent their books; to the injury of competition in commerce:

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Jessie F. Springer, an individual trading under the name of Harmony Centre, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Jessie F. Springer, is an individual, doing business under the name and style of Harmony Centre, with her office and principal place of business at 604 West 112th Street in the city of New York, State of New York. Respondent is now and has been for several years last past engaged in the business of selling and distributing a book written by one Johanna Brandt, now entitled "The Grape Crue," but which was formerly entitled "The Grape Cure (How I Cured Myself of Cancer)." Respondent causes said books, which contain a method or system of treatment, when sold, to be transported from her aforesaid place of business in the State of New York to the purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said books in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. Respondent is now, and has been during all the times mentioned herein, in substantial competition with corporations, firms, partnerships, and individuals also engaged in the business of selling and distributing books pertaining to matters of health in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. The book, "The Grape Cure," which was formerly advertised and distributed under the title "The Grape Cure (How I Cured Myself of Cancer)," purportedly tells how its author, Johanna Brandt, cured herself of cancer through the use of the method or system of treatment narrated in said book which is based on the use of grapes as a foundation therefor. Such method or system of treatment, it is claimed by the respondent, will cure or rid one of cancer and practically all other diseases, ailments, and conditions which may be present in or afflict the human body.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of her business as aforesaid, the respondent has disseminated, and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of false, misleading, and deceptive statements and representations concerning said book, "The Grape Cure," or "The Grape Cure (How I Cured Myself of Cancer)," and the method or system of treatment outlined therein, through advertisements distributed among prospective purchasers through the United States mails and by inserting such advertisements in newspapers and periodicals having a general circulation.

Among and typical of the false statements, representations, and implications contained in said advertising, disseminated and caused to be disseminated as aforesaid, are the following:

(a) That "most diseases originate in the intestines and are caused by poisons due to uneliminated waste";

(b) That the system or method of treatment outlined in said book is a competent treatment or an effective remedy for constipation, cancer, heart trouble, kidney trouble, bladder trouble, angina pectoris, sinus trouble, goiter, stomach ulcers, rheumatism, asthma, gall stones, tuberculosis;

(c) That said system or method of treatment will "cure", or "rid" one of, or enable one to "overcome," constipation, cancer, heart trouble, kidney trouble, bladder trouble, angina pectoris, sinus trouble, goiter, stomach ulcers, rheumatism, asthma, gall stones, tuberculosis;

(d) That grapes dissolve or are a solvent of mucus;

(e) That "those who develop malignant growths in most cases have been suffering from constipation," and that said system or method of treatment prevents constipation;

(f) That salt, inorganic drugs, and patent medicines cause cancer;

(g) That poisons result from using aluminum vessels;

(h) That the system or method of treatment outlined in said book will "restore" one's health.

Through the use of the aforesaid statements, advertisements, and representations, and others of similar import and meaning not herein set out, respondent has represented, and now represents, directly and by implication, that by purchasing said book and following the system or method of treatment narrated or outlined therein the purchaser can secure an effective and efficient treatment, remedy, or cure for the diseases, ailments, afflictions and conditions mentioned in said advertising matter as hereinabove set forth.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid representations and implications by respondent are false, misleading, and deceptive, for the use of grapes in the manner prescribed in said book, "The Grape Cure," or the following of the system or method of treatment outlined therein, is not an efficient or effective treatment, remedy, or cure for the diseases, ailments, and conditions above named, or any of them. In truth and in fact,

Findings

most of the diseases, ailments, and conditions mentioned by the respondent in said false advertisements do not originate in the intestines and are not caused by poisons due to uneliminated waste. Grapes do not dissolve, and are not a solvent of, mucus. Except in rare instances there is no connection between constipation and the development of malignant growths. Salt, inorganic drugs, and patent medicines do not cause cancer, and poisons do not result from the use of aluminum vessels. Said system or method of treatment outlined in said book is not a competent treatment or an effective remedy for and will not "cure," "rid" one of, or enable one to "overcome" constipation, cancer, heart trouble, kidney trouble, bladder trouble, angina pectoris, sinus trouble, goiter, stomach ulcers, rheumatism, asthma, gall stones, or tuberculosis, and it will not "restore" one's health.

PAR. 6. The acts, practices, and methods of the respondent as above alleged have the capacity and tendency to, and do, mislead and deceive a substantial number of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that the aforesaid false and misleading statements, representations, and implications are true, and into the purchase of a substantial number of respondent's said books because of said erroneous and mistaken belief. As a direct result thereof, trade in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia has been diverted unfairly to the respondent from her competitors who do not falsely represent their books. In consequence thereof, injury is being, and has been, done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 7. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on October 19, 1939, issued and on October 20, 1939, served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, Jessie F. Springer, an individual trading under the name of Harmony Centre, charging her with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer, the Commission, by order entered herein, granted respondent's motion for permission to withdraw said answer and to substitute therefor an answer admitting all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, which substitute answer was duly filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and substitute answer, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Jessie F. Springer, is an individual, doing business under the name and style of Harmony Centre, with her office and principal place of business at 604 West 112th Street in the city of New York, State of New York. Respondent is now, and has been for several years last past, engaged in the business of selling and distributing a book written by one Johanna Brandt, now entitled "The Grape Cure," but which was formerly entitled "The Grape Cure (How I Cured Myself of Cancer)." Respondent causes said books, which contain a method or system of treatment, when sold, to be transported from her aforesaid place of business in the State of New York to the purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said books in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. Respondent is now, and has been during all the times mentioned herein, in substantial competition with corporations, firms, partnerships, and individuals also engaged in the business of selling and distributing books pertaining to matters of health in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. The book, "The Grape Cure," which was formerly advertised and distributed under the title "The Grape Cure (How I Cured Myself of Cancer)," purportedly tells how its author, Johanna Brandt, cured herself of cancer through the use of the method or system of treatment narrated in said book which is based on the use of grapes as a foundation therefor. Such method or system of treatment, it is claimed by the respondent, will cure or rid one of cancer and practically all other diseases, ailments, and conditions which may be present in or afflict the human body.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of her business as aforesaid, the respondent has disseminated, and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false, misleading, and deceptive statements and representations concerning said book, "The Grape Cure," or "The Grape Cure (How I Cured Myself of Cancer)," and the method or system of treatment outlined therein, through advertisements distributed among prospective purchasers through the United States mails and by inserting such advertisements in newspapers and periodicals having a general circulation.

Among and typical of the false statements, representations, and implications contained in said advertising, disseminated and caused to be disseminated as aforesaid, are the following:

(a) That "most diseases originate in the intestines and are caused by poisons due to uneliminated waste.

(b) That the system or method of treatment outlined in said book is a competent treatment or an effective remedy for constipation, cancer, heart trouble, kidney trouble, bladder trouble, angina pectoris, sinus trouble, goiter, stomach ulcers, rheumatism, asthma, gall stones, tuberculosis.

(c) That said system or method of treatment will "cure," or "rid" one of, or enable one to "overcome," constipation, cancer, heart trouble, kidney trouble, bladder trouble, angina pectoris, sinus trouble, goiter, stomach ulcers, rheumatism, asthma, gall stones, tuberculosis.

(d) That grapes dissolve or are a solvent of mucus.

(e) That "those who develop malignant growths in most cases have been suffering from constipation," and that said system or method of treatment prevents constipation.

(f) That salt, inorganic drugs, and patent medicines cause cancer.

(g) That poisons result from using aluminum vessels.

(h) That the system or method of treatment outlined in said book will "restore" one's health.

Through the use of the aforesaid statements, advertisements, and representations, and others of similar import and meaning not herein set out, respondent has represented, and now represents, directly and by implication, that by purchasing said book and following the system or method of treatment narrated or outlined therein the purchaser can secure an effective and efficient treatment, remedy or cure for the diseases, ailments, afflictions and conditions mentioned in said advertising matter as hereinabove set forth.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid representations and implications by respondent are false, misleading, and deceptive, for the use of grapes in the manner prescribed in said book, "The Grape Cure," or the following of the system or method of treatment outlined therein, is not an efficient or effective treatment, remedy, or cure for the diseases, ailments, and conditions above named, or any of them. In truth and in fact, most of the diseases, ailments, and conditions mentioned by the respondent in said false advertisements do not originate in the intestines and are not caused by poisons due to uneliminated waste. Grapes do not dissolve, and are not a solvent of, mucus. Except in rare instances there is no connection between constipation and the development of malignant growths. Salts, inorganic drugs, and patent medicines do not cause cancer, and poisons do not result from the use of aluminum vessels. Said system or method of treatment outlined in said book is not a competent treatment or an effective remedy for and will not "cure," "rid" one of, or enable one to "overcome" constipation, cancer, heart trouble, kidney trouble, bladder trouble, angina pectoris, sinus trouble, goiter, stomach ulcers, rheumatism, asthma, gall stones, or tuberculosis, and it will not "restore" one's health.

PAR. 6. The acts, practices, and methods of the respondent as herein found have the capacity and tendency to, and do, mislead and deceive a substantial number of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that the aforesaid false and misleading statements, representations, and implications are true, and into the purchase of a substantial number of respondent's said books because of said erroneous and mistaken belief. As a direct result thereof, trade in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia has been diverted unfairly to the respondent from her competitors who do not falsely represent their books. In consequence thereof, injury is being, and has been, done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 28, 1914

Docket 3950. Complaint, Nov. 14, 1939—Decision, Mar. 9, 1940

Where a corporation engaged in sale and distribution of its "Concentra" preparation as concentrated food product for obesity and as tonic, to purchasers in various other States and in the District of Columbia; in advertisements thereof which it disseminated through the mails, circulars and other printed or written matter distributed in commerce, and otherwise, and which were intended and likely to induce purchase of its said product—

- (a) Represented, directly or indirectly, that said "Concentra" food or preparation was a highly concentrated food, safe for use, and of which child at one time could take "several dozen capsules" with "no ill effects," and that said product, with addition of liquids, would constitute balanced diet and replace ordinary diet, facts being preparation in question was not a food but, by virtue of high content of rhubarb present therein, in fact a drug, from continued use of which, as recommended, serious injury to health might result, and did not constitute a balanced diet or have sufficient nutritive value to replace ordinary diet, and was not safe for use by either adults or children;
- (b) Represented that said product would supply deficiencies to the body and correct organic elements and cause natural elimination, and that use thereof would correct both underweight and overweight and restore and develop healthy normal figure and remove or eliminate poisons from body, by reason of action of rhubarb, and poisons from kidneys by reason of action of gravel root, facts being it would not supply deficiencies as aforesaid, nor correct organic elements nor accomplish other results above claimed therefor; and
- (c) Failed to reveal, in advertisements disseminated by it as aforesaid, to purchasers and prospective purchasers, that, under conditions prescribed in said advertisements or such conditions as are customary or usual, serious injury to health might be caused by use of said "Concentra," continued use of which over long period of time, as recommended by it, would, by reason of high percentage of rhubarb therein contained, cause excessive purgation and resulting serious injury, as aforesaid;

With effect of misleading and deceiving substantial portion of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that such false statements, representations, and advertisements were true, and of inducing purchase by public of its preparation aforesaid:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Mr. J. W. Brookfield, Jr. for the Commission.

Mr. Charles L. Schwartz, of Chicago, Ill., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Jean Ferrell, Inc., a corporation hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Jean Ferrell, Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Illinois, with its principal office and place of business located at 112-114 East Walton Street, Chicago, Ill. Respondent, during the year last past, has been and still is engaged in the sale and distribution of a preparation known as "Concentra" which is offered for sale and sold as a concentrated food product for use as a treatment for obesity and as a tonic. In the course and conduct of its business, respondent causes said preparation, "Concentra," when sold to be transported from its place of business in the State of Illinois to the purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times herein mentioned, has maintained, a course of trade in commerce in said product among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business, the respondent has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning its said preparation "Concentra" by United States mails, in circulars and other printed or written matter, all of which are distributed in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, and by other means in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of its said preparation, and has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning its said preparation by various means, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of its said preparation in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act. Among and typical of the false statements and representations contained in said advertisements, disseminated and caused to be disseminated, as aforesaid, are the following:

The normalizing period, from one to three months, according to the condition of the body, will compel the user of CONCENTRA FOOD to frequent eliminations from bowels and kidneys with resultant cramps and curious symptoms of the body. BE NOT DISTURBED during the normalizing period. CONCENTRA FOOD is a PURE FOOD. Several dozen capsules taken by a child at one time causes no ill effects. The greater the disturbance in the body the more CONCENTRA FOOD one should take. Never cut down on CONCENTRA FOOD because of disturbance during the normalizing period.

Take nothing for bodily ailments while on CONCENTRA FOOD.

4 capsules are found to be equal to the solids of one meal.

The RHUBARB corrects the elimination of poisons from the body. If there is poison in our body, then the rhubarb may act as a physic, but after the elimination of this poison it brings about a normal daily action. It is not what we eat that causes incorrect balance of our body, but what we do not eliminate properly.

The GRAVEL ROOT is a cleanser for the kidneys, thereby eliminating poisons accumulated in the kidneys, just as the rhubarb does for the alimentary tract.

CONCENTRA FOOD. Concentra Food is as the name implies, a highly concentrated, dehydrated food. This food is in capsule form and contains rhubarb, soya bean meal, Irish sea moss, gravel root and dehydrated cranberries.

There are 16 elements in the body: oxygen, carbon, hydrogen, calcium, nitrogen, phosphorous, chlorin, sulphur, fluorin, potassium, iodine, iron, magnesia, silicon manganese and sodium. These 16 elements must be furnished to the body in organic form through foods, for it is only through foods that the body is built and rebuilt. If there is an over-supply or a deficiency of these elements in the body, then that body is either too fat or too thin and needs correcting.

Concentra Food answers these requirements perfectly as a highly concentrated balanced dietetic aid for the furnishing of the corrective organic elements.

CONCENTRA FOOD aids the correcting of body elements. It will in time balance the diet by adding the deficient organic elements and vitamins, starting the elimination of gases, poisons, toxins and water deposits. Through the perfect balanced nutrition and proper elimination a natural, normal figure is developed and health is expressed in the hair, eyes, skin and voice.

As the system begins absorbing CONCENTRA the need for larger amounts of solid food at the evening meal will gradually decrease.

It is very important that plenty of liquids be consumed each day as the body is made up of more than 80% liquids.

PAR. 3. Through the use of the statements hereinabove set forth and others similar thereto not specifically set out herein, all of which purport to be descriptive of the remedial, curative, or therapeutic properties of respondent's preparation, respondent has represented and does now represent, directly and indirectly, that Concentra Food is a highly concentrated food, safe for use, which, with the addition of liquids, will constitute a balanced diet and replace the ordinary diet; that this preparation will supply deficiencies to the human body and correct organic elements and cause natural elimination; that the use of this preparation will correct both underweight and overweight and restore and develop a healthy, normal figure; that it will remove or eliminate poisons from the body by reason of the action of rhubarb and will eliminate poisons from the kidneys by reason of the action of gravel root.

PAR. 4. The aforesaid representations and claims used and disseminated by the respondent as hereinabove described are grossly exaggerated, misleading, and untrue. Concentra Food is not a food but by reason of the high content of rhubarb present in this preparation it is in fact a drug. It is not safe for use by either adults or children but instead serious injury to health may result from its continued use, as recommended by respondent. This preparation will not constitute a balanced diet and does not have sufficient nutritive value to replace the ordinary diet. This preparation will not supply deficiencies to the human body, correct organic elements, or cause natural elimination. The use of this preparation will not correct either overweight or underweight and will not restore or develop a healthy, normal figure. Respondent's preparation will not remove or eliminate poisons from the body or kidneys.

PAR. 5. In addition to the false and misleading statements hereinabove set forth the respondent is also engaged in the dissemination of false advertisements as aforesaid in that the respondent fails to reveal to purchasers and prospective purchasers that the use of said Concentra Food under the conditions prescribed in said advertisements or such conditions as are customary or usual may in some cases cause serious injury to health.

By reason of the presence of a high percentage of rhubarb in respondent's preparation, the continued use of this preparation over a long period of time, as recommended by the respondent would cause excessive purgation and result in serious injury to health.

PAR. 6. The use by respondent of the foregoing false, deceptive, and misleading statements, representations, and advertisements, disseminated as aforesaid, with respect to said preparation, has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such false statements, representations, and advertisements are true, and induces the purchase by the public of respondent's preparation "Concentra."

PAR. 7. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on November 14, 1939, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent Jean Ferrell, Inc., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On December 5, 1939, the respondent filed its answer in which answer it admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and the answer thereto and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interests of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Jean Ferrell, Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Illinois, with its principal office and place of business located at 112-114 East Walton Street, Chicago, Ill. Respondent, during the year last past, has been and still is engaged in the sale and distribution of a preparation known as "Concentra" which is offered for sale and sold as a concentrated food product for use as a treatment for obesity and as a tonic. In the course and conduct of its business, respondent causes said preparation, "Concentra," when sold to be transported from its place of business in the State of Illinois to the purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times herein mentioned, has maintained, a course of trade in commerce in said product among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business, the respondent has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning its said preparation "Concentra" by United States mails, in circulars and other printed or written matter, all of which are distributed in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, and by other means in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of its said preparation, and has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning its said preparation by various means, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of its said preparation in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act. Among and typical of the false statements and representations contained in said advertisements, disseminated and caused to be disseminated, as aforesaid, are the following:

The normalizing period, from one to three months, according to the condition of the body, will compel the user of CONCENTRA FOOD to frequent eliminations from bowels and kidneys with resultant cramps and curious symptoms of the body. BE NOT DISTURBED during the normalizing period. CONCENTRA FOOD is a PURE FOOD. Several dozen capsules taken by a child at one time causes no ill effect. The greater the disturbance in the body the more CONCENTRA FOOD one should take. Never cut down on CONCENTRA FOOD because of disturbance during the normalizing period.

Take nothing for bodily ailments while on CONCENTRA FOOD.

4 capsules are found to be equal to the solids of one meal.

The RHUBARB corrects the elimination of poisons from the body. If there is poison in our body, then the rhubarb may act as a physic, but after the elimination of this poison it brings about a normal daily action. It is not what we eat that causes incorrect balance of our body, but what we do not eliminate properly.

The GRAVEL ROOT is a cleanser for the kidneys, thereby eliminating poisons accumulated in the kidneys, just as the rhubarb does for the alimentary tract.

CONCENTRA FOOD. Concentra Food is as the name implies, a highly concentrated, dehydrated food. This food is in capsule form and contains rhubarb, soya bean meal, Irish sea moss, gravel root, and dehydrated cranberries.

There are 16 elements in the body: oxygen, carbon, hydrogen, calcium, nitrogen, phosphorous, chlorine, sulphur, fluorin, potassium, iodine, iron, magnesia, silican manganese and sodium. These 16 elements must be furnished to the body in organic form through foods, for it is only through foods that the body is built and rebuilt. If there is an over-supply or a deficiency of these elements in the body, then that body is either too fat or too thin and needs correcting.

Concentra Food answers these requirements perfectly as a highly concentrated balanced dietetic aid for the furnishing of the corrective organic elements.

CONCENTRA FOOD aids the correcting of body elements. It will in time balance the diet by adding the deficit organic elements and vitamins, starting the elimination of gases, poisons, toxins and water deposits. Through the perfect balanced nutrition and proper elimination a natural, normal figure is developed and health is expressed in the hair, eyes, skin and voice.

As the system begins absorbing CONCENTRA the need for larger amounts of solid food at the evening meal will gradually decrease.

It is very important that plenty of liquids be consumed each day as the body is made up of more than 80% liquids.

PAR. 3. Through the use of the statements hereinabove set forth and other similar thereto not specifically set out herein, all of which purport to be descriptive of the remedial, curative, or therapeutic properties of respondent's preparation, respondent has represented and does now represent, directly or indirectly, that Concentra Food is a highly concentrated food, safe for use, which, with the addition of liquids, will constitute a balanced diet and replace the ordinary diet; that this preparation will supply deficiencies to the human body and correct organic elements and cause natural elimination; that the use of this preparation will correct both underweight and overweight and restore and develop a healthy, normal figure; that it will remove or eliminate poisons from the body by reason of the action of rhubarb and will eliminate poisons from the kidneys by reason of the action of gravel root.

PAR. 4. The aforesaid representations and claims used and disseminated by the respondent as hereinabove described are grossly exaggerated, misleading, and untrue. Concentra Food is not a food but by reason of the high content of rhubarb present in this preparation it is in fact a drug. It is not safe for use by either adults or children but instead serious injury to health may result from its continued use, as recommended by respondent. This preparation will not constitute a balanced diet and does not have sufficient nutritive value to replace the ordinary diet. This preparation will not supply deficiencies to the human body, correct organic elements or cause natural elimination. The use of this preparation will not correct either overweight or underweight and will not restore or develop a healthy, normal figure. Respondent's preparation will not remove or eliminate poisons from the body or kidneys.

PAR. 5. In addition to the false and misleading statements hereinabove set forth the respondent is also engaged in the dissemination of false advertisements as aforesaid in that the respondent fails to reveal to purchasers and prospective purchasers that the use of said Concentra Food under the condition prescribed in said advertisements or such conditions as are customary or usual may in some cases cause serious injury to health.

By reason of the presence of a high percentage of rhubarb in respondent's preparation, the continued use of this preparation over a long period of time, as recommended by the respondent would cause excessive purgation and result in serious injury to health.

PAR. 6. The use by respondent of the foregoing false, deceptive, and misleading statements, representations, and advertisements, disseminated as aforesaid, with respect to said preparation, has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such false statements, representations, and advertisements are true, and induce the purchase by the public of respondent's preparation "Concentra."

Order

30 F. T. C.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and states that it waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to the said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Jean Ferrell, Inc., a corporation, its officers, agents, representatives, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, do forthwith cease and desist from:

Disseminating or causing to be disseminated any advertisement by means of the United States mails or in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, by any means, for the purpose of inducing or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of a preparation containing drugs now designated by the name of "Concentra," or any other preparation composed of substantially similar ingredients or possessing substantially similar properties, whether sold under the same name or any other name, or disseminating or causing to be disseminated any advertisements by any means for the purpose of inducing or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, of said preparation, which advertisements represent, directly or through implication, that said preparation "Concentra" is a food or a concentrated food; that with or without the addition of liquids it will constitute a balanced diet, or replace the ordinary diet; that it will supply deficiencies to the human body; that it will correct organic elements; that it will cause "natural" elimination; that its use will correct underweight and overweight; that it will restore or develop a healthy or normal figure; that it will remove or eliminate poisons from the body and kidneys or that its use is safe; or which advertisements fail to reveal that the continued use of said preparation over a long period of time would cause excessive purgation and result in serious injury to health of the user.

Order

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall within 10 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission an interim report in writing stating whether it intends to comply with this order, and if so, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it intends to comply, and that within 60 days after the service upon it of this order, said respondent shall file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF CLAYTON L. WARDELL, TRADING AS WARDELL PIANO COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3967. Complaint, Dec. 9, 1939—Decision, Mar. 9, 1940

Where an individual engaged in sale and distribution of musical instruments, including pianos, to purchasers in various other States and in the District of Columbia, in substantial competition with others engaged in sale and distribution of such products in commerce as aforesaid; in statements concerning character and price of his pianos disseminated among prospective purchasers through newspaper advertisements, postcards sent through the mails, and other printed and written matter, and through his agents or representatives—

Represented, directly and indirectly, that his said products were pianos which, having been previously sold on deferred payment plan and repossessed from original purchasers because of failure to meet payments due thereon, were offered for resale at prices representing only unpaid payments due, and prices substantially less than those at which said pianos would ordinarily be sold by him in customary and normal course of business, through such typical statements as “* * * Rather than reship to the factory, we would like to sell these to responsible parties for the balance due * * *,” and to do so would “accept terms of $6 and $8 per month”;

Facts being many pianos thus offered for sale by him were not products previously sold and repossessed as aforesaid, but were taken from his regular stock, and prices thereof were not in any sense sacrifice prices and did not represent any balance due thereon by former purchasers, but were usual prices at which such products were customarily offered for sale and sold by him in regular and normal course of business;

With effect of misleading and deceiving purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that such statements and representations were true, and of causing substantial portion thereof, because of such beliefs, to purchase his said pianos in preference to products of those competitors aforesaid, who do not falsely represent that prices quoted by them are lower than their usual or customary prices:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Mr. Jesse D. Kash for the Commission.

Gill & Gill, of Sioux City, Ia., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Clayton L. Wardell, an individual trading as Wardell Piano Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Clayton L. Wardell is an individual trading and doing business under the name of Wardell Piano Co., with his principal place of business located at 909 Pierce Street, Sioux City, Iowa.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his aforesaid business, respondent has been engaged for more than 1 year last past in the sale and distribution of musical instruments, including pianos. Respondent causes his products, when sold by him to be transported from his aforesaid place of business in the State of Iowa to the purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondent maintains, and has at all times mentioned herein, maintained a course of trade in said musical products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of his said business, respondent is now and has been for some time last past engaged in substantial competition with other individuals and with firms and corporations also engaged in the business of selling and distributing in commerce, among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, musical instruments, including pianos.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of his said business and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of his pianos the respondent makes representations concerning the character and price of his said pianos, which representations are disseminated among prospective purchasers by means of newspaper advertisements, by post cards sent through the United States mails, by other printed and written material and orally through respondent's agents and representatives. Among and typical of such representations are the following:

We have in your vicinity two small sized Baldwin-made pianos—one a small apartment Baby Grand and the other a handsome small Bungalow Upright—Rather than reship to the factory, we would like to sell these to responsible parties for the balance due. In order to do this we will accept terms of $6 and $8 per month.

Would you be interested in one of these instruments? If not, have you a friend or relative who would be?

Just drop a line to the address below. We will advise you where these pianos can be seen and the amount of balance due.

Complaint

30 F. T. C.

Through the use of the representations and statements hereinabove set forth, and others similar thereto not specifically herein set out, all of which purport to be descriptive of the make, kind, character, and prices of his said pianos, the respondent has represented and does now represent, directly or indirectly, that said pianos are instruments which, having been previously sold on a deferred payment plan, have been repossessed by respondent from the original purchaser because of the failure of such purchaser to meet the payments due thereon; that said pianos are being offered by respondent for resale at prices which represent only the unpaid balances due thereon; and that such prices are sacrifice prices and are substantially less than the prices at which such pianos would ordinarily be sold by respondent in the customary and normal course of business.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid representations are grossly exaggerated, false, and misleading. In truth and in fact many of the pianos offered for sale by respondent as aforesaid are not pianos which have been previously sold by respondent and repossessed from such original purchasers, but are pianos taken from respondent's regular stock. The prices at which respondent offers said pianos for sale are in no sense sacrifice prices and do not represent any balance due thereon by former purchasers but are in fact the usual prices at which such pianos are customarily offered for sale by respondent in the regular and normal course of business.

PAR. 6. The use by the respondent of the aforesaid false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations, with respect to his said pianos, has had and now has the tendency and capacity to, and does mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such statements and representations are true, and causes and has caused a substantial portion of the purchasing public, because of such erroneous and mistaken belief, to purchase respondent's said pianos.

PAR. 7. Among the competitors of respondent as referred to in paragraph 3 herein are many who do not falsely represent the make, kind, character, and prices of their pianos.

PAR. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on December 9, 1939, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent Clayton L. Wardell, an individual trading as Wardell Piano Co., charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On January 5, 1940, the respondent filed his answer in which answer he admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and the answer thereto, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, Clayton L. Wardell, is an individual, trading and doing business under the name of Wardell Piano Co., with his principal place of business located at 909 Pierce Street, Sioux City, Iowa.

PAR. 2. Respondent is now, and has been for more than 1 year last past, engaged in the sale and distribution of musical instruments, including pianos. Respondent causes his products when sold by him to be transported from his aforesaid place of business in the State of Iowa to the purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondent maintains and at all times mentioned herein has maintained a course of trade in said musical instruments in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of his said business, respondent is now, and has been for some time last past, engaged in substantial competition with other individuals and with firms and corporations also engaged in the business of selling and distributing musical instruments, including pianos, in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Findings

30 F. T. C.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of his said business and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of his pianos the respondent has made and makes representations concerning the character and price of his said pianos which representations are disseminated among prospective purchasers by means of newspaper advertisements, by postcards sent through the United States mails, by other printed and written matter and orally through respondent's agents and representatives.

Among and typical of such representations are the following:

We have in your vicinity two small sized Baldwin Made Pianos—one a Small Apartment Baby Grand and the other a Handsome Small Bungalow Upright—Rather than reship to the factory, we would like to sell these to responsible parties for the balance due. In order to do this we will accept terms of $6 and $8 per month.

Just drop a line to the address below. We will advise you where these pianos can be seen and the amount of balance due.

Wardell Piano Co.

Baldwin Factory Distributors * * *

The Commission finds that through the use of the representations and statements hereinabove set forth, and others similar thereto not herein set out the respondent has represented and does now represent, directly or indirectly that his said pianos are instruments which having been previously sold on a deferred payment plan have been repossessed by the respondent from the original purchasers thereof because of the failure of such purchasers to meet the payments due thereon; that said pianos are being offered by respondent for resale at prices which represent only the unpaid payments due thereon and which are substantially less than the prices at which such pianos would ordinarily be sold by respondent in the customary and normal course of business.

PAR. 5. The Commission finds that the aforesaid representations are grossly exaggerated, false, and misleading. In truth and in fact many of the pianos offered for sale by respondent as aforesaid are not pianos which have been previously sold by respondent and repossessed from such original purchasers but are pianos taken from respondent's regular stock. The prices at which respondent offers said pianos for sale are not in any sense sacrifice prices and do not represent any balance due thereon by former purchasers but are in fact the usual prices at which such pianos are customarily offered for sale and sold by respondent in the regular and normal course of business.

PAR. 6. The use by respondent of the aforesaid false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations with regard to the said pianos have had and now have the tendency and capacity to, and do, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such statements and representations are true, and cause and have caused a substantial portion of the purchasing public because of such erroneous and mistaken beliefs to purchase respondent's said pianos in preference to the pianos of those competitors of respondent referred to in paragraph 3 hereof, who do not falsely represent that prices quoted by them are lower than their usual or customary prices.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein set forth are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondent, in which answer the respondent admits all of the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and states that he waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to the facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Clayton L. Wardell, trading as Wardell Piano Co., or trading under any other name or names, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of pianos in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing that the prices at which respondent offers for sale and sells his products constitute a discount to the purchaser, or that such prices are special or reduced prices, or that such prices represent only an unpaid balance due on such products by the original purchaser, when, in fact, such prices are the usual and customary prices at which respondent sells such products in the normal and usual course of business.

Order

30 F. T. C.

2. Representing as the customary or regular prices or values of respondent's products prices and values which are in excess of the prices at which such products are regularly and customarily sold by respondent in the normal and usual course of business.

3. Representing that pianos have been repossessed from the purchasers thereof when such pianos have not in fact been so repossessed.

It is further ordered, That respondent shall within 60 days after service upon him of this order file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF
ARMY AND NAVY TRADING COMPANY

MODIFIED CEASE AND DESIST ORDER

Docket 2285. Order, Mar. 13, 1940

Modified order, pursuant to provisions of Section 5 (i) of Federal Trade Commission Act, in proceeding in question, in which (1) original order issued on November 26, 1935, 21 F. T. C. 541, and in which (2) Court of Appeals for District of Columbia, on January 4, 1937, in Federal Trade Commission v. Army and Navy Trading Co., 88 F. (2d) 776, 24 F. T. C. 1601, rendered its opinion and issued its order modifying Commission's order in certain particulars and affirming same in certain particulars—

Requiring, in view of said facts and further fact that more than two years have elapsed since original order with proviso permitting, for said period, certain use of words "Formerly Army and Navy Trading Company," that respondent corporation cease and desist from using, in connection with its corporate name, words "Army and Navy" or either of them, and from advertising, as below in detail set forth, and subject to provisions therein stated, words "Army or Navy" as descriptive of or in connection with their merchandise.

MODIFIED ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding coming on for further hearing before the Federal Trade Commission and it appearing that on November 26, 1935, the Commission made its findings as to the facts herein and concluded therefrom that respondent had violated the provisions of Section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act and issued and subsequently served its order to cease and desist; and it further appearing that on January 4, 1937, the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia rendered its opinion and issued its order modifying the aforesaid order of the Commission in certain particulars and affirming said order in other particulars; and it still further appearing that the aforesaid order to cease and desist issued by the Commission contained a proviso that for a period of 2 years from the date of the service thereof, the respondent was permitted to use in connection with such corporate or trade name as it might assume the words "Formerly Army and Navy Trading Company," and that more than 2 years have elapsed since the date of the service of the Commission's order to cease and desist.

Now, therefore, Pursuant to the provisions of subsection (i) of section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Commission issues this its modified order to cease and desist in conformity with the said Court order:

It is now ordered, That the respondent Army and Navy Trading Company, in connection with the conduct of its mercantile establishment within the District of Columbia, cease and desist from:

1. Using in connection with its corporate name the words "Army and Navy" or either of them.

2. Advertising or causing to be advertised by means of radio broadcasts or in any circulars, trade journals, daily newspapers, or other periodicals the words "Army or Navy," or either of them, as descriptive of, or in connection with, any merchandise offered for sale or sold to the public, unless in fact such merchandise was actually procured, directly or indirectly, from the War or Navy departments of the United States; provided, however, that the words "Army and Navy," or either of them, may be used as descriptive of particular lots of merchandise made for the War or Navy departments, or according to Army and Navy specifications, if the origin and character of the particular lot of merchandise and its exact relationship to the Army or Navy is accurately specified and stated in type equally as conspicuous as the words "Army and Navy" and in immediate conjunction therewith.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 30 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF ## AMERICAN VENEER PACKAGE ASSOCIATION, INC., EASTERN PACKAGE ASSOCIATION, SOUTHERN PACKAGE ASSOCIATION, INC., THE STEVENSON CORPORATION, AND CHARLES R. STEVENSON ET AL.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3556. Complaint, Aug. 25, 1938—Decision, Mar. 15, 1940

Where three local trade groups and members, manufacturers of veneer containers, in the formation of which, in the latter part of 1935 and the early part of 1936, American Veneer Package Association, with membership comprising many of the larger or more important members of the industry, cooperated and assisted for the more effective self-regulation of the industry, and which three local trade groups included (1) Georgia Association, composed of larger and principal manufacturers of veneer containers in said and southern States, (2) Eastern Package Association, made up of manufacturers of veneer containers in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, and contiguous territory, and (3) North and South Carolina Veneer Association, made up of principal manufacturers making and selling veneer containers in said States; by and with the active assistance and cooperation of said American Association and its officers, and acting within and for their respective territories—

- (a) Discussed, at open meetings, and agreed upon, prices, conditions, terms of sale and discounts, and entered into and executed contracts and agreements which resulted in the fixing of such prices, etc., relative to the sale and distribution of veneer containers used in packaging fruits and vegetables, and, in certain cases, made f. o. b. prices and delivered prices same, and revised prices of one group, so as to be in harmony with those of another, and in certain situations to meet condition brought about by shipments from State of Texas into territory involved of products in question at substantially lower prices as result of high price level fixed, and following effort to induce Texas manufacturers to protect prices filed and agreed upon by particular trade group here involved, and in such general connection and among other things, took measures designed to meet price-disrupting factor involved in sale of No. 2 baskets;
- (b) Executed written membership contracts between the various members and their respective associations which set forth terms and conditions of sale and charges for various items and dealer discounts, and which defined as dealer one who sold product and guaranteed and collected account but did not haul or warehouse and for whom manufacturer made delivery, and distributor or jobber as one who sold product and guaranteed and collected account and in addition thereto warehoused and delivered product, and which limited discount of former to 5 percent, and provided for latter additional 5 percent; and
- (c) Voted on lists submitted by various manufacturing members of persons or firms submitted to manufacturer's respective association as entitled, in his opinion, to dealer or distributor discounts, and placed on dealer-distributor list for each association only such names as thus approved, and agreed that only those appearing on such lists were entitled to such discounts, and, after vote, compiled and distributed, through respective secretaries, master lists of such approved dealers and distributors, with many originally submitted for such lists by respective members rejected by vote of members' competitors; and

- (d) Employed, in case of some, representatives to investigate complaints of sales made below agreed prices and granting of discounts to persons and firms not on dealer lists, and to determine compliance with agreed prices and the allowing of proper discounts to dealers and distributors, and, at meetings, made complaints of sales below prices agreed on subject of discussion; and

Where said American Veneer Package Association and its officers—

- (e) Took an active part in promoting said membership contracts in various localities and acted as medium for exchange of information between members of such various groups and as a general bureau for such exchange;
- (f) Sought to ascertain Texas manufacturer responsible for supplying or shipping baskets at lower prices into trade territory involved, as above set forth, setting forth that "we cannot let one or two manufacturers dictate the situation in other territories," and that any information addressee could supply with respect to the matter would be appreciated; and
- (g) Took an active part, through secretary common to both organizations, in the matter of submission of lists of those entitled to various discounts, and aided, in such and other trade territory, the revision, making and dissemination of agreed schedules and prices and price schedules, not distributed generally either to customers or members of trade, but for member use exclusively; and

Where a corporation, together with numerous individuals doing business as partners, and engaged under firm name in business management and business engineering, following the explanation of their "live and let live" plan by representative before convention of aforesaid American Veneer Package Association and before meeting of aforesaid North and South Carolina Veneer Package Association, and their resulting employment to conduct survey of entire veneer package industry, and the making of such surveys in Eastern Package Association, North and South Carolina Association and Georgia Association territories, and in New York, the East, Midwest, West, and Texas, as below set forth, and division of territories into zones, secretaries of which said various zones were employees of such business management and engineering firm—

- (h) Persuaded manufacturers, acting through such secretaries and representatives, to hold their production within their normal position as indicated by above surveys, which covered, for particular zones, production and sale of bushel and half-bushel baskets and other containers and dollar value thereof for period involved, and incident to which they furnished each member, in respective territory where survey was conducted, statistical report showing his normal volume relationship over two-year period involved as compared to total volume of sales in territory, and further incident to which monthly reports were furnished showing volume of sales of each member as compared to total volume, and attempted to impress on manufacturers in various zones necessity for not exceeding their so-called normal positions, telling members that they, the members, could increase their volume relationship only by taking some of another manufacturer's volume;

- (i) Obtained assurances from many members, as aforesaid, that they, the members, would curtail their production so that it would remain somewhat within its so-called normal volume, and contacted manufacturer found at any time to be exceeding to any great extent his normal production through zone secretary or representative, and requested such manufacturer to curtail production, and obtained promises wherever possible from manufacturers who, in the various zones, expected said firm's operation to stabilize and increase prices, that they would reduce production so that their normal volume would not greatly exceed that shown in original survey; and

Where said various manufacturers concerned, engaged in manufacture and sale of aforesaid containers for fruit and vegetables, and members, as case might be, of different associations and groups concerned, and located within different geographical zones created by said business management firm, i. e.—

(1) Zone C, or territory of Southern Package Association, result of consolidation of aforesaid Georgia and North and South Carolina Associations;

(2) Zone B, or territory of Eastern Package Association, covering Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey, and certain specified counties in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and North Carolina;

(3) Zone A, or territory of Northeastern Package Association, embracing all of New England, New York State, various counties in Pennsylvania and West Virginia, formed early in 1937 by said business management firm and followed its survey in territory as above indicated;

(4) Zone E, or territory of Midwest Package Association, including veneer package manufacturers in Michigan, Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee, Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Missouri, Ohio, and western part of West Virginia (with Ohio and western part of West Virginia considered jointly as part of Zone A), and in which there had been no organization or association until formation of such Midwest group under supervision of said management firm and survey in territory in question; and

(5) Zone D, or territory of Texas group in which similar survey was conducted, and which included all States west of Mississippi and east of Rocky Mountains in which were located veneer package manufacturers and customers, and activities of which were similar to those of other groups and zone organizations, as above described, and involved intent and effect of establishing non-competitive prices and stabilizing relative volumes of business done by various members—

- (j) Divided the territory in which their producing plants were located, and into which their products were shipped, into geographical zones or areas composed as above indicated, and with definite exact boundary lines, and filed, after conference and discussion among the producers in the respective zones and effective therein, zone prices for delivery at all points throughout a particular zone and for all producers therein, without regard to fact that cost of delivery varied substantially between respective producing points and any given place of delivery, and including in such prices, filed with their respective zone secretaries, both current and future prices which, as applicable within each zone, were identical, but which, as to prices of different zones, differed, and which prices or price lists, distributed to members of zone in which they were filed by zone secretary, were also filed by various zone secretaries with American Veneer Package Association, and by latter, through its secretary, distributed to member manufacturers in all zones who were interested in making sales to zones in which filed prices were effective, and which price lists and statistical information were, as general practice, neither published nor furnished to customers of trade, but were for confidential use of members only;

- (k) Continued, generally, practices hereinbefore set forth and indicated, preceding employment of said business management firm and surveys thereof, and including the making of membership agreements setting forth prices, terms, etc., and price discussions and understandings at meetings, and the submission of those thought eligible for dealer or distributor discounts, and the making therefrom of master lists for distribution among members and guidance thereof in granting of discounts, and also filed with various secretaries and employees of said business management firm their invoices, or submitted to inspection thereof by such secretaries and employees, and took measures directed against disruption of price levels, such as deferring, controlling, or withholding production in anticipation of small demand and crop shortages, or through purchase of containers to prevent their offer in organization territory by cut-price manufacturer, and through steps directed at controlling sale of No. 2 baskets as price-disrupting factor, and, in certain territory, agreed, as price maintenance measure, to follow, in lieu of general filing of price lists, lists filed by certain company or concern; and

Where said business engineering firm, through its representatives—

- (l) Checked invoices of members of various zones and contacted any member thus found to have made sales below filed prices, either in his zone or in another, or to have quoted discount to others than those appearing on dealer-distributor lists, and sought to persuade such member or members to discontinue making such below-price sales in his own or in outside zones, and to discontinue money discounts to others than those who appeared on such distributor lists, or in excess of those provided for, and emphasized control or curtailment of production as essential step in direction of price maintenance or increase, and sought to and did bring about such production control or curtailment; and

Where members of the aforesaid various group or zone associations—

- (m) Agreed that they would not ship into adjoining zone without conforming to prices prevalent in zone of vendee, and protected in accordance with understanding of members of the various associations, the prices filed in the different zones and cooperated in the maintenance thereof; and

Where said various zones and their representatives, following said business management concern's becoming business manager thereof—

- (n) Cooperated more closely between and among themselves, with their secretaries, who were employees of said business management firm and the managing directors of each zone and under general supervision of an official of said firm, receiving from members filed prices and distributing same to other secretaries and to secretary of aforesaid American Veneer

Package Association, and with and through invited attendance of representatives of the different zones at meetings of other zone associations, the holding of joint association meetings, and attendance at different zone meetings of aforesaid official of said business management firm, who was general zone supervisor, and report by him of progress of other zones, and discussion of price and dealer lists of other zones at different zone meetings; and

Where secretary of said American Veneer Package Association—

(o) Collaborated with the various secretaries in general distribution of prices to all members of all zones, with members instructed, when selling in other zones, to obtain information from their zone secretary as to whether proposed vendee was dealer or distributor, with intent of protecting prices and discounts prevalent in various zones;

With result that said understandings, agreements, combinations and conspiracies, and things done thereunder and pursuant thereto and in furtherance thereof, had a dangerous tendency to, and actually did, hinder and prevent price competition between and among member concerns of said various associations in sale of veneer fruit and vegetable containers and parts thereof in commerce, and placed in said various concerns, associations, etc., as hereinabove set forth, power to control and enhance prices and unreasonably restrain commerce in said products and parts thereof:

Held, That said understandings, agreements, combinations and conspiracies, and things done thereunder and pursuant thereto and in furtherance thereof, as above set forth, were all to the prejudice of the public and constituted unfair methods of competition.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that the corporations, associations, firms, and individuals hereinafter described and named as respondents, have been, and are now, using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act; and it appearing to the said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent American Veneer Package Association, Inc., is a nonprofit corporation, organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Delaware and having its principal office at 804 Seventeenth Street, NW., Washington, D. C. It was organized, and, for the past several years, has acted, as a trade association for the promotion and protection of the interests of its members who are engaged in the manufacture and sale of one or more of various types of veneer containers used in packaging fruits and vegetables for transportation from the producers of said fruits and vegetables to ultimate consumers. These containers are described and designated as baskets, tubs, crates, hampers, lugs, boxes, cartons, and by various and sundry other names commonly used in the industry in referring to veneer containers, and the parts thereof, for the packaging of fruits and vegetables.

The respondent officers of said respondent corporation are as follows:

President, Frank M. Harrison, % F. W. Harrison & Company, Painesville, Ohio;

Vice-president, George Talbot, Jr., % Evansville Container Company, Evansville, Indiana;

Vice-president, R. O. Fletcher, % Acme Veneer Package Company, Orchard Park, New York;

Treasurer, Willis W. Hargroves, % Planters Manufacturing Company, Portsmouth, Virginia;

Secretary-manager, Robert W. Davis, 804 17th Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

PAR. 2. Respondent Eastern Package Association is an unincorporated trade association having its headquarters or executive offices at 133 South 36th Street, Philadelphia, Pa. Its membership consists of certain persons, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the manufacture and sale of one or more of the various types of veneer containers described in paragraph 1 hereof, and having places of business in the States of New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia, eastern Pennsylvania, and eastern West Virginia. In 1936, Edwin P. Brown and Robert W. Davis served as chairman and secretary, respectively, of said respondent association, and said officers were succeeded, in 1937, by Frederick W. Masie and Ross R. Guthrie. The respondent members of said respondent association are as follows:

Berryville Basket Co., Berryville, Va.

M. J. Dilks, W. B. Pepper and Leslie K. Chance, partners, doing business under the firm name of M. J. Dilks & Co., Dividing Creek, N. J.

William W. Dilks & Son, Inc., Swedesboro, N. J.

Farmco Package Co., Norfolk, Va.

Virginia Cooperage Co., Inc., Cloverdale, Va.

PAR. 3. Respondent Southern Package Association, Inc., is a corporation, organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Georgia, and having its offices and principal place of business at 1617 First National Bank Building, Charlotte, N. C. The said respondent corporation was formerly known as Georgia Basket Association; on or about June 1937, after the said Georgia Basket Association included in its membership the members of the North and South Carolina Veneer Package Association, an unincorporated group of veneer package manufacturers, the name of Georgia Basket Association was changed to Southern Package Association, Inc. The respondent officers of said respondent corporation are as follows:

Chairman, Herbert J. Linder, Adams Run, S. C.

Vice president, Walter E. Morgan, Americus, Ga.

Secretary, Norman G. Asbury, Charlotte, N. C.

Treasurer, D. E. Shuman, Allendale, S. C.

Schwarz Basket & Box Co., Topeka, Kans.
Paducah Box & Basket Co., Paducah, Ky.
Harrison Manufacturing Co., Shelby, Mich.
Pierce-Williams Co., Jonesboro, Ark.
Strawberry Crate Co., Portland, Tenn.

PAR. 7. The members of the respondent associations and organizations, as described in paragraphs 2, 3, 5, and 6, and hereinafter referred to as member respondents, in the course and conduct of their business, manufacture, sell, and distribute a large percentage (probably 90 percent) of all the veneer containers, described in paragraph 1 hereof, used in the packaging of fruit and vegetables in the various States of the United States east of the Rocky Mountains. The said member respondents sell their said products to wholesalers, dealers, and consumers located at various points throughout the United States, and, when sales are made and as a part thereof, regularly have shipped, and do ship, said products to the purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in the several States of the United States, other than in the States of the origin of such shipments. Said member respondents maintain a constant current of trade and commerce in said products between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Prior to the adoption of the practices hereinafter described, said member respondents were in active and substantial competition with each other, and with other members of the industry, in making and seeking to make sales of their products in trade and commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia; but for the practices hereinafter described such active and substantial competition would have continued until the present and said member respondents would now be in active and substantial competition with each other and with other members of the industry.

PAR. 8. Beginning about July 1935, and continuing until about the early part of the year 1937, the member respondents, as set forth in paragraphs 2 and 3 hereof, as members of the respondent Eastern Package Association, North and South Carolina Veneer Package Association, and Georgia Basket Association and in cooperation with the respondent American Veneer Package Association, Inc., entered into understandings, agreements, combinations, and conspiracies; and in the early part of the year 1937, at which time the respondents Northeastern Veneer Package Association and Midwest Package Association were organized, all the respondents entered into understandings, agreements, combinations, and conspiracies; said understandings, agreements, combinations, and conspiracies were entered into, and thereafter carried out, for the purpose and with the effect of restricting, restraining and monopolizing, and suppressing and eliminating competition in, the sale of veneer fruit and vegetable containers in trade and commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 9. Pursuant to said understandings, agreements, combinations, and conspiracies and in furtherance thereof, said member respondents, with the active cooperation of the other respondents named herein, have done and performed, and still do and perform, the following acts and things:

1. Said member respondents agreed to exchange and have exchanged, through the medium of said respondent organizations, price lists in order to establish the prices at which veneer fruit and vegetable containers, and the parts thereof, were to be sold.

2. Said member respondents agreed to fix and maintain, and have fixed and maintained, uniform prices, terms, and conditions in the sale of veneer fruit and vegetable containers and the parts thereof.

3. Said member respondents have agreed to exchange, and have exchanged, information to be used in connection with the fixing of prices, discounts, terms, and conditions of sale of veneer fruit and vegetable containers and the parts thereof.

4. Said member respondents have agreed to establish, and have established, a system of zones throughout the United States to aid in the establishment and the fixing of prices of veneer fruit and vegetable containers, and parts thereof.

5. Said member respondents have agreed to cooperate, and have cooperated, in the maintenance of the various prices determined for particular zones.

6. Said member respondents have agreed to curtail, and have curtailed, the production of veneer fruit and vegetable containers and the parts thereof, and for the purpose of securing the enforcement of the agreements to curtail production, member respondents have filed, and do file, with their respective respondent organizations invoices and other reports.

7. Said member respondents have agreed to compile and distribute, and have compiled and distributed, lists of recognized dealers and distributors for the purpose and with the effect of exclusively confining, to or through the medium of such recognized dealers and jobbers, the sale and distribution of veneer fruit and vegetable containers and the parts thereof.

8. Said respondent organizations, through the respondent officers, collect from, and distribute among, member respondents and other participants in said undertaking, statistical information used and useful in carrying out said undertaking, and they distribute from time to time among said member respondents and nonmembers participating in said undertaking, lists showing the current prices, terms, and conditions of sale, dealers and distributors to be allowed special discounts, and other information used and useful in carrying out said undertaking.

9. Said member respondents have used, and are now using, other methods and means designed to suppress and prevent competition and restrict and restrain the sale of veneer fruit and vegetable containers, and the parts thereof, in said commerce.

PAR. 10. Each of the said respondents at the times herein mentioned acted in concert with one or more of the other respondents in doing and performing the acts and things hereinabove alleged in furtherance of said understandings, agreements, combinations, and conspiracies.

PAR. 11. Said understandings, agreements, combinations, and conspiracies and the things done thereunder and pursuant thereto, and in furtherance thereof, as hereinbefore alleged, have had, and do have, the effect of unduly and unlawfully restricting and restraining the sale of said veneer fruit and vegetable containers, and the parts thereof, in trade and commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia; of unduly and unlawfully restricting and restraining trade and commerce in said veneer fruit and vegetable containers, and the parts thereof, in said commerce; of substantially enhancing prices to the consuming public and maintaining prices at artificial levels and otherwise depriving the public of the benefits that would flow from normal competition among and between the member respondents in said commerce; and of eliminating competition, with the tendency and capacity of creating a monopoly in the sale of said veneer fruit and vegetable containers, and the parts thereof, in said commerce. Said understandings, agreements, combinations, and conspiracies, and the things done thereunder and pursuant thereto, and in furtherance thereof, as above alleged, constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on August 25, 1938, issued its complaint against the respondents named in the above caption and caused such complaint to be served as required by law, charging the respondents with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On July 24, 1939, the Commission accepted, approved, and entered of record a stipulation in behalf of all the respondent associations, their officers (excepting 5 respondent secretaries), and their members, excepting 14 respondent members, whereby it was stipulated and agreed that a statement of facts, signed and executed in behalf of the aforesaid respondents by their counsel, George P. Lamb, and W. T. Kelley, Chief Counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, may be taken as the facts in this proceeding and in lieu of testimony in support of the charges stated in the complaint, or in opposition thereto and that the Commission may proceed upon such statement of facts, in reference to said respondents, to make its report stating its findings as to the facts and its conclusion based thereon and enter its order disposing of the proceeding without the presentation of argument or the filing of briefs. On July 13, 1939, the Commission entered of record "Statement of Admitted Facts" signed by counsel William W. Corlett for the respondents named in paragraph four of the said complaint, said respondents being members of a firm doing business under the name of Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, engaged in business management and business engineering. On August 16, 1939, the respondent Evansville Container Co., not a party to said stipulation, filed its answer, in which it admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts. On September 20, 1939, the Commission, by orders entered herein, granted the motions of respondents Swisshelm Veneer Co. and Newton Box & Basket Co., Inc., not parties to said stipulation, for permission to withdraw their original answers and to substitute therefor answers admitting all material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearings as to said facts, which substitute answers were duly filed in the office of the Commission. On October 16, 1939, copies of said stipulation as to the facts and statement of admitted facts were introduced in support of the allegations of said complaint and four affidavits were introduced in opposition to the allegations of the complaint in behalf of respondents Pierpont Manufacturing Co., Adkins Manufacturing Co., Georgia Veneer & Package Co., and Southern Crate & Veneer Co. before John L. Hornor, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, the said evidence was duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Testimony or other evidence was not introduced at said hearing on behalf of the other respondents. On October 25, 1939, the Commission granted the motion of counsel for respondents Georgia Veneer & Package Co. and the Southern Crate & Veneer Co., to expunge the names of these respondents from the said stipulation because the said names had been inserted therein through misunderstanding. Further hearings were held on November 20, 1939, and December 1, 1939, at which hearings respondents, Ross R. Guthrie and Robert W. Davis testified that the statements contained in the said stipulation as to the facts were true statements of fact to the best of their knowledge. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the answers thereto and the entire record, including stipulation as to the facts, statement of admitted facts, affidavits, oral testimony, and briefs in support of the respondents named paragraph 4 of the complaint, to wit, Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, and in opposition thereto, other respondents not having filed briefs and oral arguments not having been requested by any of the respondents; and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. (a) Respondent American Veneer Package Association, Inc., is a nonprofit corporation, organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Delaware and having its principal office at 804 Seventeenth Street, NW., Washington, D. C. It was organized, and, for the past several years, has acted, as a trade association for the promotion and protection of the interests of its members who are engaged in the manufacture and sale of one or more of various types of veneer containers used in packaging fruits and vegetables for transportation from the producers of said fruits and vegetables to ultimate consumers. These containers are described and designated as baskets, tubs, crates, hampers, lugs, and by various and sundry other names commonly used in the industry in referring to veneer containers, and the parts thereof, for the packaging of fruits and vegetables.

(b) The respondent officers of said respondent corporation for the year 1937 were as follows:

President, Frank M. Harrison, c/o F. W. Harrison & Company, Painesville, Ohio.

Vice-president, George Talbot, Jr., c/o Evansville Container Company, Evansville, Indiana.

Vice-president, R. O. Fletcher, c/o Acme Veneer Package Company, Orchard Park, New York.

Treasurer, Willis W. Hargroves, c/o Planters Manufacturing Company, Inc., Portsmouth, Va.

Secretary-Manager, Robert W. Davis, 804 17th Street, NW., Washington, D. C.

PAR. 2. Respondent Eastern Package Association is an unincorporated trade association having its headquarters or executive offices at 133 South 36th Street, Philadelphia, Pa. Its membership consists of certain persons, partnerships and corporations engaged in the manufacture and sale of one or more of the various types of veneer containers described in paragraph one hereof, and having places of business in the States of New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia, eastern Pennsylvania, and eastern West Virginia. In 1936, Edwin P. Brown and Robert W. Davis served as chairman and secretary, respectively, of said respondent association; in 1937 respondent Frederick W. Masie began to serve as chairman of said association. The respondent members of said respondent association are as follows:

Berryville Basket Co., Inc., Berryville, Va.

M. J. Dilks, W. B. Pepper and Leslie K. Chance, partners, doing business under the firm name of M. J. Dilks & Co., Dividing Creek, N. J.

William W. Dilks & Son, Inc., Swedesboro, N. J.

Farmco Package Corporation, Norfolk, Va.

Louis P. Finger, trading as Finger Bros., Franklinville, N. J.

Goldman, Package Manufacturing Co., a corporation, Glassboro, N. J.

Jersey Package Co., a corporation, Bridgeton, N. J.

Marvil Package Co., a corporation, Laurel, Del.

Planters Manufacturing Co., Inc., Portsmouth, Va.

Ramsey Package Corporation, Driver, Va.

Riverside Manufacturing Co., a corporation, Murfreesboro, N. C.

Virginia Cooperage Co., Inc., Cloverdale, Va.

PAR. 3. (a) Respondent Southern Package Association, Inc., is a corporation, organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Georgia, and having its offices and principal place of business at 1617 First National Bank Building, Charlotte, N. C. The said respondent corporation was formerly known as Georgia Basket Association; on or about June 1937, after the said Georgia Basket Association included in its membership the members of the North and South Carolina Veneer Package Association, an unincorporated group of veneer package manufacturers, the name of Georgia Basket Association was changed to Southern Package Association, Inc. The respondent officers of said respondent corporation, for the year 1937, were as follows:

Chairman, Herbert J. Linder, Adams Run, S. C.

Vice-president, Walter E. Morgan, Americus, Ga.

Secretary, Norman G. Asbury, Charlotte, N. C.

Treasurer, D. E. Shuman, Allendale, S. C.

(b) The respondent members of said respondent corporation are certain persons, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the manufacture and sale of one or more of the various types of veneer containers described in paragraph one hereof, and having places of business in the States of North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, and various other States; said respondent members are as follows:

W. E. Anderson and T. H. Whisanant, partners, doing business under the firm name of Greene Lumber & Crate Company, Williston, S. C.

Leigh Banana Case Co., a corporation, 1421 South Aberdeen Street, Chicago, Ill.

B. E. Martin, Mount Olive, N. C.

Patten Package Co., Inc., Calypaso, N. C.

Farmco Package Corporation, Norfolk, Va.

Planters Manufacturing Co., Inc., Portsmouth, Va.

Adkins Manufacturing Co., a corporation, Gainesville, Fla.

Georgia Veneer & Package Company, a corporation, Brunswick, Ga.

Pierpont Manufacturing Co., a corporation, Savannah, Ga.

Marvil Package Co., a corporation, Laurel, Del.

Evansville Container Co., a corporation, Evansville, Ind.

Hollywood-Beaufort Package Corporation, Norfolk, Va.

Walter A. Corbett and Mary Doe Corbett, partners, doing business under the firm name of Corbett Package Company, Wilmington, N. C.

Mount Olive Manufacturing Co., a corporation, Mount Olive, N. C.

Riverside Manufacturing Co., a corporation, Murfreesboro, N. C.

Alabama Basket Co., Inc., Eufaula, Ala.

Dayton Veneer & Lumber Mills, a corporation, Dayton, Tenn.

John D. Gunn and John M. Gunn, partners, doing business under the firm name of The Peerless Basket Co., Cuthbert, Ga.

Southern Crate & Veneer Co., a corporation, Macon, Ga.

Edgerton Manufacturing Co., a corporation, Plymouth, Ind.

PAR. 4. Respondents, The Stevenson Corporation, organized, existing, and doing business under the laws of the State of New York, and Charles R. Stevenson, T. M. Harrison, C. H. Ferris, N. M. Perris, E. G. Ackerman, A. H. Dyer, R. E. Case, F. L. Sweetser, W. R. Guthrie, A. P. Nonweiler, S. M. Hudson, R. R. Bliss, L. P. Platt, Howard Marvin, and D. M. Metzger, are partners doing business under the firm name of Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, with a prinprincipal place of business at 19 West 44th Street, New York, N. Y. The said respondents are engaged in business management and business engineering.

PAR. 5. (a) Respondent Northeastern Veneer Package Association is an unincorporated trade association having its offices and principal place of business at 517 Terminal Building, 65 Broad Street, Rochester, N. Y. The respondent officers of said respondent association, for the year 1937, were:

President, B. H. Droman; vice-president, T. W. Windnagle; secretary-treasurer, George A. Cooper.

(b) The respondent members of said respondent association are certain persons, partnerships and corporations engaged in the manufacture and sale of one or more of the various types of veneer containers described in paragraph 1 hereof, and having places of business in the New England States, New York and western Pennsylvania. The said respondent members of said respondent association are as follows:

Acme Veneer Package Co., Inc., Orchard Park, N. Y.

John Bacon, Inc., Gasport, N. Y.

Guile & Windnagle, Inc., Penn Yan, N. Y.

Webster Basket Co., Inc., Webster, N. Y.

Ellicottville Basket Co., Inc., Ellicottville, N. Y.

Attica Package Co., Inc., Attica, N. Y.

Barden & Robeson Co., a corporation, Penn Yan, N. Y.

Sodus Basket Co., Sodus, N. Y.

Bellaire & Schroeder, Inc., Hamburg, N. Y.

Madison County Basket Co., a corporation, Hamilton, N. Y.

PAR. 6. (a) Respondent Midwest Package Association is an unincorporated trade association having its offices and principal place of business at 130 East Washington Street, Indianapolis, Ind. The respondent officers of said respondent association, for the year 1937, were:

President, George H. Talbot, Sr.; vice-president, S. C. Bulliet; secretary-treasurer, J. L. Giacomino.

(b) The respondent members of said respondent association are certain persons, partnerships and corporations engaged in the manufacture and sale of one or more of the various types of veneer containers described in paragraph 1 hereof, and having places of business in the States of Kentucky, Tennessee, Indiana, Illinois, and various other States in the Midwest. Said respondent members of said respondent associations are as follows:

Berrien County Package Co., a corporation, Benton Harbor, Mich.

Burlington Basket Co., a corporation, Burlington, Iowa.

PAR. 7. (a) The members of the respondent associations and organizations, as described in paragraphs 2, 3, 5, and 6, and hereinafter referred to as member respondents, in the course and conduct of their business, manufacture, sell, and distribute approximately 75% of all the veneer containers, described in paragraph 1 hereof, with the possible exception of wire-bound and sawed crates, used in the packaging of fruit and vegetables in the various territories covered by the said respondent associations, respectively. The said member respondents sell their said products to wholesalers, dealers, and consumers located at various points throughout the United States, and, when sales are made and as a part thereof, regularly have shipped, and do ship, said products to the purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in the several States of the United States, other than in the States of the origin of such shipments. Said member respondents maintain a constant current of trade and commerce in said products between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

(b) Prior to the adoption of the practices hereinafter described, said member respondents were in active and substantial competition with each other, and with other members of the industry, in making and seeking to make sales of their products in trade and commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia; but for the practices hereinafter described such active and substantial competition would have continued until the present and said member respondents would now be in active and substantial competition with each other and with other members of the industry.

PAR. 8. The respondent American Veneer Package Association, Inc., which was incorporated in 1934, included in its membership many of the larger or more important members of the industry. In 1937, the membership consisted of 81 manufacturers of veneer packages located throughout the eastern United States and 10 associate members, who were suppliers of raw material to the veneer package manufacturing industry. Thirty-five of the veneer manufacturing members are listed as members of one of the groups designated by respondents Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, which will be further set out later in these findings.

PAR. 9. In the latter part of 1935 and the early part of 1936, respondent American Veneer Package Association, Inc., for the more effective self-regulation of the industry, cooperated and assisted in the formation of several local grade groups. Principal among such groups were:

(a) The Georgia Basket Association, composed of the larger and principal manufacturers of the veneer containers in Georgia and southern States; the said Association was chartered a corporation under the laws of the State of Georgia on April 29, 1936. It operated under the name of the Georgia Basket Association until June 28, 1937, at which time its name was changed to the Southern Package Association, Inc.

(b) Eastern Package Association, made up of manufacturers of veneer containers located in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, and contiguous territory; said Association was organized as an unincorporated association during January 1936.

(c) North and South Carolina Veneer Package Association was made up of the principal manufacturers making and selling veneer containers in North and South Carolina. The said Association was an unincorporated group of package manufacturers organized in 1936. This Association operated under the name North and South Carolina Package Association until the early part of 1937, when its membership became a part of the membership of the Georgia Basket Association.

PAR. 10. The Georgia Basket Association, Eastern Package Association, and North and South Carolina Veneer Package Association, by and with the active assistance and cooperation of the respondent American Veneer Package Association, Inc., and its officers, entered into and executed contracts and agreements which resulted in the fixing of prices, conditions and terms of sale and discounts relative to the sale and distribution of veneer containers used in packaging fruits and vegetables. At open meetings of these Associations, prices, conditions and terms of sale and discounts were discussed and agreed upon. Written membership contracts, between the members and their respective Associations, were executed. The respondent American Veneer Package Association, Inc., and its officers were active in promoting said membership contracts in these various localities. The said American Veneer Package Association, Inc., acted as a medium for the exchange of information between members of its said various groups, and continued to act in the capacity of a general bureau for the said exchange of information throughout 1936.

PAR. 11. The membership contracts contained definitions of a dealer and a distributor. A dealer was defined as one who sold the product, guaranteed and collected the account, but did not haul or warehouse, and for whom the manufacturer made the delivery. It was provided that dealer's discounts should not exceed 5 percent, and where carload shipments were made, an additional unloading allowance was granted in the amount of 1 cent per dozen on half bushel containers or 2 cents per dozen on bushels. A distributor or jobber was defined as one who sold the product, guaranteed and collected the account, and, in addition thereto, warehoused and delivered the product. A distributor or jobber received 5 percent in addition to the 5 percent discount allowed to dealers.

PAR. 12. Each manufacturing member of the various groups submitted a list of the persons or firms, to his respective Association, which he thought were entitled to the dealer or distributor discounts. The list submitted by each member was voted on by the membership of his respective Association at meetings thereof. Only such names as were approved were placed on the dealer and distributor list for each Association, and it was agreed among all members that only those names appearing on the dealer and distributor list were entitled to the dealer and distributor discounts. A master list of dealers and distributors was compiled after a vote had been taken on each name to appear thereon. These master lists for the respective groups were distributed to the members of the respondent Associations by the respective secretaries. Many of the persons and firms proposed for the dealer and distributor lists by the members were rejected by vote of the competitors of such members. Complaints were made by some respondent manufacturers as to the method of determining these lists. One such complaint referred to the "rather arbitrary and high-handed manner" of the Georgia Basket Association in making up its list.

Georgia Basket Association

PAR. 13. (a) Early in 1936, before membership contracts were executed, veneer manufacturers in Georgia and the southern States held meetings for the purpose of forming an association. Prices for veneer containers were discussed at these meetings.

(b) The membership contracts, executed on April 13, 1936, set forth in full the terms and conditions of sale, the charges for extras such as printing and coloring, and discounts to be allowed. The signatories to said membership contracts included:

Adkins Manufacturing Co., a corporation, Gainesville, Fla.

Evansville Container Co., a corporation, Evansville, Ind.

Dayton Veneer & Lumber Mills, a corporation, Dayton, Tenn.

Southern Crate & Veneer Co., a corporation, Macon, Ga.

Farmco Package Corporation, Norfolk, Va.

John D. Gunn and John M. Gunn, partners, doing business under the firm name of The Peerless Basket Co., Cuthbert, Ga.

Planters Manufacturing Co., Inc., Portsmouth, Va.

Alabama Basket Co., Inc., Eufaula, Ala.

Leigh Banana Case Co., a corporation, Chicago, Ill.

Riverside Manufacturing Co., a corporation, Murfreesboro, N. C.

Walter A. Corbett and Mary Doe Corbett, partners, doing business under the firm name of Corbett Package Co., Wilmington, N. C.

Georgia Veneer & Package Co., a corporation, Brunswick, Ga.

(c) At a meeting of the members of the Georgia Basket Association held in Atlanta, Ga., on April 13, 1936, prices were discussed and adopted subject to a dealer's discount of 5 percent and a distributor's discount of 5 percent, with an additional discount of 5 percent on all baskets unloaded and handled through the distributor's warehouse; and discounts to apply only to those on the approved Georgia and Florida dealer and distributor list, the said prices to remain in effect until June 4, 1936. These prices were sufficiently high that basket manufacturers in Texas began shipping into the Georgia territory and made sales at $1.65 per dozen delivered for the same type of baskets on which the Georgia Basket Association had established a price of $1.85 per dozen. This action on the part of the Texas manufacturers forced the members of the Georgia Basket Association to file new prices. A committee representing the Georgia Basket Association went to Texas to persuade Texas manufacturers to protect the prices filed and agreed upon by members of the Georgia Basket Association. The Texas manufacturers refused to protect these prices. The American Veneer

Package Association, Inc., was interested in determining what Texas manufacturers caused the price break in Georgia. Robert W. Davis, Secretary of the American Veneer Package Association, Inc., in a communication dated July 14, 1936, addressed to the respondent Dayton Veneer & Lumber Mills, stated in part as follows:

* * * I would be interested to know what company in Texas furnished these baskets. * * *

We cannot let one or two manufacturers in Texas dictate the situation in other territories. Any information you can give me on the above would be appreciated.

(d) At a meeting of the Georgia Basket Association held in Atlanta, Ga., on June 4 and 5, 1936, and participated in by W. A. Corbett, president of the American Veneer Package Association, Inc., prices were again adopted and agreed upon; for example, $1.65 per dozen on Bushel Tubs with Crown Covers, $1.50 per dozen on Bent Bottoms, $1.30 per dozen on Round Half Bushels, $1.35 per dozen on Board Bottom Half Bushels. These prices were delivered prices and said prices prevailed until the end of the 1936 season.

(e) On May 19, 1936, the Georgia Basket Association approved a list of distributors and jobbers. The first paragraph of said list read:

Distributors or Jobbers (Those entitled to maximum discount of 5% with an additional discount of 5% on all baskets unloaded into their warehouse and delivered by them to growers or shippers).

Then followed a list of the names entitled to the discounts stated.

North and South Carolina Veneer Package Association

PAR. 14. (a) The membership agreements of the North and South Carolina Veneer Package Association were executed on April 2, 1936. Said agreements contained a complete statement covering the terms and conditions of sale of fruit and vegetable veneer containers. The functions of a dealer and distributor were set forth and the discounts allowed each. Among the signatories to the North and South Carolina agreement were the following:

W. E. Anderson and T. H. Whisanant, partners, doing business under the firm name of Greene Lumber & Crate Co., Williston, S. C.

B. E. Martin, Mount Olive, N. C.

Planters Manufacturing Co., Inc., Portsmouth, Va.

Marvil Package Co., a corporation, Laurel, Del.

Walter A. Corbett and Mary Doe Corbett, partners, doing business under the firm name of Corbett Package Co., Wilmington, N. C.

Alabama Basket Co., Inc., Eufaula, Ala.

Dayton Veneer & Lumber Mills, a corporation, Dayton, Tenn.

Southern Crate & Veneer Co., a corporation, Macon, Ga.

Leigh Banana Case Co., a corporation, 1421 South Aberdeen Street, Chicago, Ill.

Patten Package Co., Inc., Calypaso, N. C.

Farmco Package Corporation, Norfolk, Va.

Adkins Manufacturing Co., a corporation, Gainesville, Fla.

Hollywood-Beaufort Package Corporation, Norfolk, Va.

Mount Olive Manufacturing Company, a corporation, Mount Olive, N. C.

Riverside Manufacturing Co., a corporation, Murfreesboro, N. C.

John D. Gunn and John M. Gunn, partners, doing business under the firm name of The Peerless Basket Co., Cuthbert, Ga.

(b) At a meeting of said Association held in March 1936, prices for hampers, lettuce and pepper crates, and tomato lugs were agreed upon. Effective April 1, 1936, through July, the fixed price on Export Tubs with Crown Covers was $1.65 per dozen in the territory designated in the membership agreement; that is, North and South Carolina, excepting Surry and Wilkes Counties. At a meeting held on May 12, 1936, the price on cantaloupe crates was agreed upon.

(c) The North and South Carolina Veneer Package Association, at a meeting held at Florence, S. C., on June 23, 1936, discussed, and agreed upon, prices for hampers, round bushels, improved three hoop, and bent bottoms and tubs for both flat and Crown covers. The details of this meeting were mailed to all members of said Association by Robert W. Davis, Secretary of American Veneer Package Association, Inc. It was agreed at this meeting that the f. o. b. factory price was to be the same as the delivered prices throughout the zone.

(d) At another meeting of said Association held in January 1937, attended by practically 100 percent of the membership, prices for hampers were revised in line with prices prevailing in Georgia and Florida as fixed by the Georgia Basket Association. At a meeting held in February 1937, prices for bushel and half bushel tubs were fixed to correspond with prices established by the Eastern Package Association but without the additional charge for the side loops which are recognized as standard in this territory.

(e) The membership agreements of said Association defined the functions of dealer and distributor and designated the discounts to be allowed to each of them. The discounts to dealers was 5 percent and that to jobbers or distributors was 5 percent and 5 percent. Each member of the Association submitted a list of persons or firms which he thought were entitled to the dealer or distributor discount. Before being placed on the master list, each of these persons or firms was voted on by the members of the Association. All members agreed to allow only those firms appearing on the master dealer and distributor list the respective discounts designated for that classification of buyers.

(f) On April 10, 1936, a list of dealers and distributors which had been approved by the North and South Carolina Veneer Package Association was distributed to its members.

(g) The following resolution was adopted at a meeting of the Association held on September 10, 1936:

A resolution was offered and adopted requiring proposed names for consideration as to classification on the Distributor-Dealer list to be in the Secretary's office at least one week before the meeting, so that the Secretary may be allowed time to send the bulletins to each signatory member of the Association, listing proposed names, and requesting that each manufacturer be prepared to vote on the names.

(h) All members agreed that they would stamp all off-grade or No. 2 baskets so that they could be easily identified. It was further agreed that the total amount of No. 2 baskets sold during any season should not under any circumstances exceed 5 percent of the total production of the factory selling same.

(i) The said Association employed representatives to investigate complaints of sales made below the agreed prices and the granting of discounts to persons and firms who were not on the dealer lists.

Eastern Package Association, 1936

PAR. 15. (a) At a meeting of the Eastern Package Association held on January 27, 28 and 29, 1936, prices, terms and conditions of sale of bushel and half bushel baskets were discussed and agreed upon. It was agreed that the f. o. b. factory price was to be the same as the delivered price throughout the territory. The charges for extras such as the various types of covers, loops, printings, etc., were agreed upon. Dealers and distributors were defined at this meeting.

(b) On January 29, 1936, the following bulletin was addressed to the members of the Eastern Package Association by Robert W. Davis, secretary (also secretary of American Veneer Package Association, Inc.):

At the meeting held in Washington, D. C. January 27, 28 and 29, it was agreed that each manufacturer should furnish without delay the following lists:

1. List of dealers including large consumers who are entitled to the 5 percent discount.
2. List of Distributors and Jobbers who are entitled to the 5 percent and 5 percent discount.
3. List of cooperative associations which should go on the dealers list and be entitled to the 5 percent discount.

4. List of cooperative associations which should go on the Distributor-Jobber list and who are entitled to the 5 percent and 5 percent discount.

These lists are to include for the present all of the above for the following states: Entire states of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware and Virginia, the eastern part of West Virginia and the apple growing section of North Carolina, which is Surry and Wilkes counties.

It was agreed that these lists should be in the hands of the Washington office not later than February 6, 1936. It is extremely important that each and every manufacturer cooperate in this important task. If lists are not received in time, it may be necessary to change the date of the next meeting, which has been called for February 13, 1936, at the Raleigh Hotel, Washington, D. C.

Lists will be kept absolutely confidential by the Secretary's office until the time of the next meeting, when there will be a discussion of a master list from all manufacturers.

(c) The membership agreement of said Association, executed on February 24, 1936, fixed all the terms and conditions of sale covering bushel and half bushel tubs. Among the signatories to the Eastern Package Association Agreement were the following:

Berryville Basket Co., Inc., Berryville, Va.

William W. Dilks & Son, Inc., Swedesboro, N. J.

Farmco Package Corporation, Norfolk, Va.

Goldman Package Manufacturing Company, a corporation, Glassboro, N. J.

Marvil Package Co., a corporation, Laurel, Del.

Ramsey Package Corporation, Driver, Va.

Riverside Manufacturing Co., Murfreesboro, N. C.

M. J. Dilks, W. B. Pepper and Leslie K. Chance, partners, doing business under the firm name of M. J. Dilks & Co., Dividing Creek, N. J.

Louis P. Finger, trading as Finger Bros., Franklinville, N. J.

Jersey Package Co., a corporation, Bridgeton, N. J.

Planters Manufacturing Co., Inc., Portsmouth, Va.

Virginia Cooperage Co., Inc., Cloverdale, Va.

(d) All the above members on March 1, 1936, issued price schedules showing identical prices of $1.50 per dozen for Export Bushel Tub with Crown covers. It was understood among them that manufacturers in the North and South Carolina Veneer Package Association would cooperate with the members of the Eastern Package Association in maintaining these prices.

(e) On June 3 and 4, 1936, at a meeting of the Eastern Package Association, the price on Export Bushel Tub with Crown covers was increased to $1.60 per dozen.

(f) The price schedules were not distributed generally, either to customers or to the members of the trade, but were for the exclusive use of the members of the Association.

(g) The Association employed representatives to check on the sales, by the members, to determine compliance with the agreed prices and also to determine that the proper discounts were made to dealers and distributors. Complaints of sales made below the agreed prices were discussed at Association meetings.

(h) The sale of No. 2 baskets presented a method by which manufacturers could make sales below their agreed prices. This was a subject of discussion at some of the meetings of the Association and certain steps were taken to eliminate the sale of such baskets.

(i) At a meeting of August 21, 1936, it was decided that the manufacturers should pay 10¢ a dozen to the Association on the sale of all off-grade or No. 2 baskets.

Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison

PAR. 16. (a) Frederick W. Masie, a representative of Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, at the meeting of the Eastern Package Association on November 19, 1936, explained the "live and let live" plan of Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison. F. W. Masie further outlined the plan before the 1936 convention of the American Veneer Package Association, Inc., and before a meeting of the North and South Carolina Veneer Package Association. On F. W. Masie's proposal, Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison was employed to conduct a survey of the entire veneer package industry. The first survey was conducted in the territory covered by the Eastern Package Association, and shortly thereafter a similar survey was conducted in the territory covered by the North and South Carolina Veneer Package Association and the Georgia Basket Association. Shortly thereafter, a further survey was conducted in western New York, the Midwest and Texas. Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison divided the territory into zones known as A, B, C, D, and E (these zones will be described later).

(b) These surveys conducted by Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison in the various territories covered the production and sales of bushel and half bushel baskets and the dollar value thereof, of members in the respective territories for the years 1935 and 1936. The survey for Zones A and C also covered shipments on certain additional types of containers such as hampers, tomato lugs, crates, etc. When the original survey was completed, a statistical report was furnished to each member in the respective territory where the survey was conducted, showing the manufacturers' normal volume relationship over the two-years' period as compared to the total volume of sales in the territory. After this, monthly reports were furnished showing the volume of sales of each member as compared to the total volume. The compensation paid Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison for the service performed amounted to $1,000 monthly from each association.

(c) It was the practice of the various zone secretaries, who were employees of Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, to persuade manufacturers to hold their production within their normal position as inlicated by the survey above described. F. W. Masie and the zone secretaries have attempted to impress on manufacturers in various zones the necessity for not exceeding their so-called normal positions. The members were told that they could increase their volume relationship only by taking some of another manufacturer's volume. In many instances the zone secretaries and F. W. Masie obtained assurances from members that they would curtail their production so that it would remain somewhat within its so-called normal volume. At any time it was found that a manufacturer was exceeding to any great extent his normal production, he was contacted by the zone secretary or by F. W. Masie and requested to curtail his production, and wherever possible, promises were obtained from such manufacturers that they would reduce their production so that their normal volume would not greatly exceed that shown in the original survey. Manufacturers in the various zones expected the operations of Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison to stabilize and increase prices.

(d) The principal method employed by the several manufacturing respondents, under the guidance of respondents Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, for the purpose and with the effect of restricting price competition, was to divide the territory in which their producing plants were located and into which their products were shipped, into zones. These zones were geographic areas, each composed of more than one State and/or parts of States and with definite, exact boundary lines. Effective within each of these zones prices were filed by the producers with the zone secretary after conference and discussion among the producers in the respective zones. The filed prices were the same for delivery at all points throughout a particular zone and for all producers therein, without regard to the fact that costs of delivery varied substantially between the respective producing points and any given place of delivery. Transportation rates and costs, from respondents' shipping points in a particular zone to given destinations within the same zone, varied substantially.

(e) The members of the various zones filed both current and future prices with their respective zone secretaries. These prices were distributed to the members of the zone in which they were filed by the zone secretary thereof. The prices were also filed by the various zone secretaries with American Veneer Package Association, Inc., the secretary of which Association distributed the prices to member manufacturers in all the zones who were interested in making sales to the zone in which the filed prices were effective. The prices filed as applicable within each zone were identical, but the prices of various zones differed. In some instances there were deviations from filed prices. As a general practice, neither the filed price lists nor the statistical information were published or furnished to customers of the trade. Such information and price lists were filed for the confidential use of members only.

(f) Representatives of Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison checked the invoices of the members of various zones and if, as a result of said checking, a member was found to have made sales below filed prices either in his own zone or in another or if he was found to have quoted a discount to others than those appearing on the dealer and distributor list, such member or members were contacted by representatives of Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison. An attempt was made to persuade such member or members to discontinue making sales at prices below those filed for his own zone and to discontinue making sales outside his or their zone at prices below those filed by members operating in outside zones and also to discontinue money discounts to others than those who appeared on distributors' lists.

Southern Package Association, Inc.

PAR. 17. (a) Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison conducted a survey of the business of the members of the North and South Carolina Veneer Package Association and Georgia Basket Association in the early part of 1937. The survey covered the sales of the members for 1935 and 1936. After the survey was completed, a statistical report was furnished to each member disclosing his volume relationship as against the total volume sold in the territory where he operated. The purpose and intent of determining the normal volume relationship of each member was to stabilize prices.

(b) After the survey had been completed by Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, the members of the Georgia Basket Association voted to include the members of the North and South Carolina Veneer Package Association in its membership. The name of Georgia Basket Association was formally changed to the Southern Package Association, Inc., on June 28, 1937. The 1936 membership contracts of both Associations were continued and extended through 1937. The prices established by agreement and in force in the early part of 1937 were left undisturbed and continued in force until subsequently changed. The established dealer and distributor list also continued in effect until the mechanics of its composition were subsequently changed. The territory covered by the Southern Package Association, Inc., was known as Zone C, and included South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, and North Carolina, excepting the counties of Surry and Wilkes. The secretary of said Association was Norman G. Asbury, an employee of Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison.

(c) Prior to the formal adoption of the name Southern Package Association, Inc., meetings were held at which prices to be filed were discussed. On May 3, May 8 and June 15, 1937, several members of said Association filed identical prices, to wit, 15½¢ each, on Export Bushel Tubs with Crown Covers.

(d) On May 13, 1937, H. J. Linder, president of Southern Package Association, Inc., addressed a communication to a member, which is in part as follows:

I am sorry that I have failed to advise you sooner the results of our May 3 meeting in Augusta. However, the matter of most importance was covered in the price filing sent out from Atlanta, copy of which we feel sure you must have.

* * * * *

The levels proposed at this meeting were the best that could be worked out of several conflicting conditions. You will note the reduction of 1¢ on tomato lugs. This was heartbreaking to me but it was absolutely necessary. * * *

(e) The secretary of the Association was able at all times to determine the exact amount sold by each member and the prices, terms and conditions of sale prevailing with each, as all members filed their invoices with the secretary of the Association or allowed him to check the invoice records at their respective offices.

(f) On June 8, 1937, Secretary Norman G. Asbury addressed a bulletin to all members of the Association, the last paragraph of which is as follows:

When filing lists outside of your normal membership zone, be sure that list does in no way run counter to the accepted practice as followed in the territory in question.

(g) At meetings of said Association held on August 20, and October 4 and 5, 1937, identical price lists were filed by several of the members of said Association. None of the price lists filed was distributed either to the customers or the trade. They were for the use of, and distributed to, members only.

(h) The 1937 Georgia peach crop was approximately 30 percent of normal. Secretary Norman G. Asbury advised members of this condition and further warned them to refrain from producing more than 30 percent of their normal volume. As a result of the efforts of Secretary Asbury, the factories of the members did not start operating during the 1937 season until April of that year. Generally, factory operations begin in February. Secretary Asbury further attempted to persuade the members to sell only to their regular customers.

(i) Each member submitted a list of those persons or firms which he felt were entitled to the dealer or distributor discount. The lists submitted by the various members were compiled into a master list, which was distributed to all members. It was understood that all members would allow discounts only to those persons or firms appearing on the dealer and distributor list. On June 8, 1937, Secretary Asbury addressed a bulletin to all members, in part as follows:

You have been supplied with a complete list of customers in your zone who are to be allowed a dealer's discount.

If in quoting in any of the other zones you are in doubt as to whether or not a customer is a listed dealer, please contact your secretary for information.

We are having the cooperation of other zones in this regard, and it is to be desired that we reciprocate in kind.

(j) The statistical information and the dealer and distributor list were discussed in Association meetings. Such information was filed for the use of members only. It was not distributed to the trade or to competing nonmembers.

(k) The membership of the Southern Package Association, Inc., on November 5, 1937, consisted of the following:

W. E. Anderson and T. H. Whisanant, partners, doing business under the firm name of Greene Lumber & Crate Co., Williston, S. C.

Leigh Banana Case Co., 1421 South Aberdeen Street, Chicago, Ill., a corporation.

B. E. Martin, Mount Olive, N. C.

Patten Package Co., Inc., Calypaso, N. C.

Farmco Package Corporation, Norfolk, Va.

Planters Manufacturing Company, Inc., Portsmouth, Va.

Adkins Manufacturing Co., Gainesville, Fla., a corporation.

Georgia Veneer & Package Co., a corporation, Brunswick, Ga.

Pierpont Manufacturing Co., a corporation, Savannah, Ga.

Marvil Package Co., Laurel, Del., a corporation.

Hollywood-Beaufort Package Corporation, Norfolk, Va.

Walter A. Corbett and Mary Doe Corbett, partners, doing business under the firm name of Corbett Package Co., Wilmington, N. C.

Mount Olive Manufacturing Co., a corporation, Mount Olive, N. C.

Riverside Manufacturing Co., Murfreesboro, N. C., a corporation.

Alabama Basket Co., Inc., Eufaula, Ala.

Dayton Veneer & Lumber Mills, Dayton, Tenn., a corporation.

John D. Gunn and John M. Gunn, partners, doing business under the firm name of The Peerless Basket Co., Cuthbert, Ga.

Southern Crate & Veneer Co., Macon, Ga., a corporation.

Edgerton Manufacturing Co., Plymouth, Ind., a corporation.

Evansville Container Co., Evansville, Ind., a corporation.

Eastern Package Association, 1937

PAR. 18. (a) During the latter part of 1936 and in January 1937, Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison conducted a survey of the membership of the Eastern Package Association. The survey was conducted for the purpose of determining the volume relationship of each member as compared to the total volume sold during the years 1935 and 1936 and covered only the sale of bushel and half bushel baskets. When the original survey was completed, Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison furnished statistical information to members of the Association which indicated their normal position in the industry in the territory in which they operated, and which territory was designated as Zone B, which included Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey, the counties of the State of Pennsylvania east of and including the counties of Tioga, Lycoming, Union, Mifflin, Cambria, Somerset; the counties of the State of West Virginia east of and including the counties of Monongalia, Taylor, Preston, Tucker, Randolph, Webster, Braxton, Clay, Nicholas, Fayette, Boone, Logan, Wyoming, and McDowell; and the counties of Wilkes and Surry in the State of North Carolina.

(b) After the original survey was completed, monthly reports were compiled by N. G. Cameron of the firm of Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, showing the percentage to the total volume produced by each member in a particular month. All members submitted copies of the invoices to N. G. Cameron, from which he prepared these statistics. Neither the result of the original survey nor any of the monthly statistical reports were published or distributed to the trade. These were for the individual use of each participating company. This information was discussed at meetings of the Association.

(c) The membership agreements of Eastern Package Association continued in effect until amendments and revisions were adopted on July 1, 1937. The first filing of prices in this territory occurred on January 15, 1937, at which time a price of $1.75 per dozen for Export Bushel Tubs with Crown Covers was filed by 14 members of the Association. Practically all of these lists were effective from January 15 to May 1, 1937.

(d) At a meeting held on January 14, 1937, it was agreed that all companies would file their unfilled orders with the Secretary of the Association, or N. G. Cameron, who was preparing statistics; said Cameron, in a letter to the secretary dated March 24, 1937, stated in part:

In this way we shall be able to recognize prior commitments on future invoices which may appear to be out of line.

The secretary of the Association, in his response on March 25, 1937, enclosed "a list of the unfilled orders which the members of the Eastern Package Association reported * * * as of January 15".

(e) At practically all of the meetings held, prices were discussed and each member knew the prices which the others were expected to file.

All members filed the same prices, and these prices were generally maintained.

(f) In August, 1937, Willis E. Hargroves, president of the respondent member Planters Manufacturing Co., Inc., purchased 12,000 dozen baskets from an Alabama manufacturer to prevent these baskets from being shipped and sold in Zone B at prices below those prevailing in said zone.

(g) Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison continually checked on the sales of members. N. G. Cameron of said firm, who compiled the statistics of this Association, at all times had access to the invoices which disclosed the prices and discounts at which sales were made. F. W. Masie and N. G. Cameron, both respectively of the firm of Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, investigated complaints that other than the regular prices and discounts were allowed. Houston-White Co. and George A. Bounds & Co., two nonmember manufacturers in this territory, at times allowed larger discounts than the agreed discounts of the Association members. This caused some Association members, on occasion, to lower the agreed prices. Considerable effort was made to have both of these companies become members. On November 1, 1937, F. W. Masie wrote a letter to Houston-White Co., which is in part as follows:

It is practically impossible to accomplish the desired result unless we have all important members of the industry, striving toward a common goal.

Volume has been satisfactory this year and all members have enjoyed a reasonable share; however, we must look forward to the likely possibility of short crops next season, in some areas, and guard against the natural desire for volume at the expense of a demoralized level which is inevitable unless some restraint is practiced. How best to arrive at a solution to this problem may only be reached in formulating a definite program.

We need every industry member to assist in this respect to lend his support and enter into the discussions now under way.

(h) Each member submitted a list of the names which he thought should be entitled to the trade discounts usually allowed to dealers and distributors. Such names were compiled into a master list and were submitted to the members of the Association. They were not distributed to the trade or published. Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison checked all sales to determine whether or not dealer or distributor discounts were allowed to any firm whose name did not appear on the list. For example, N. G. Cameron, on June 9, 1937, addressed a letter to a member of the Association, which is in part as follows:

In summarizing your invoices for the May report, I observed several sales were made to Gerson & McCormick, Bridgeton, New Jersey, at a 5 percent discount.

Inasmuch as this customer does not appear on the list of dealers entitled to this discount, I should appreciate knowing the facts surrounding this case.

(i) The members of the Eastern Package Association, as of February 28, 1938, were as follows:

Berryville Basket Co., Inc., Berryville, Va.

M. J. Dilks, W. B. Pepper and Leslie K. Chance, partners, doing business under the firm name of M. J. Dilks & Co., Dividing Creek, N. J.

William W. Dilks & Son, Inc., Swedesboro, N. J., a corporation.

Farmco Package Corporation, Norfolk, Va.

Louis P. Finger, trading as Finger Bros., Franklinville, N. J.

Goldman Package Manufacturing Co., a corporation, Glassboro, N. J.

Jersey Package Co., Bridgeton, N. J., a corporation.

Marvil Package Co., Laurel, Del., a corporation.

Planters Manufacturing Co., Inc., Portsmouth, Va.

Ramsey Package Corporation, Driver, Va.

Riverside Manufacturing Co., a corporation, Murfreesboro, N. C.

Virginia Cooperaage Co., Inc., Cloverdale, Va.

(H. R. Linsbury & Sons resigned in December, 1937.)

Northeastern Veneer Package Association

PAR. 19. (a) Early in 1937 Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison conducted a survey of veneer package manufacturers in the territory known as Zone A, which included all of the New England States, the State of New York, the following counties in the State of Pennsylvania west of and including Potter, Clinton, Centre, Indiana, Clearfield, Westmoreland, and Fayette; the counties in the State of West Virginia west of, but not including, the counties of Monogalia, Taylor, Preston, Tucker, Randolph, Webster, Braxton, Clay, Nicholas, Fayette, Boone, Logan, Wyoming, and McDowell; and the State of Ohio. The State of Ohio and the western part of West Virginia were also considered jointly as a part of Zone E. There was no association or organization of the veneer package manufacturers in this territory until the formation of the Northeastern Veneer Package Association early in 1937 by Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison. The Secretary and Treasurer of said Association was George A. Cooper, an employee of Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison. The first meeting of said Association was held on February 3, 1937.

(b) The survey conducted by Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison covered the sale of bushel and half bushel tubs, hampers, tomato lugs, and other additional types of containers, during the years 1934, 1935 and 1936. Upon completion of the survey, each member was furnished with a statistical report showing his relative percentage of volume as against the total volume sold in the territory. These percentages were accepted by the members as normal and treated as such. Following this a monthly report was submitted to the membership disclosing to each his relative position. Statistical information furnished to the membership of the Association by Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison was compiled from invoices submitted by members to the secretary. Such statistics as were received by members were for their confidential use only, and were not published or distributed to the trade. Secretary Cooper and F. W. Masie attempted to persuade members of said Association to maintain their so-called normal volume of production, or at least to refrain from exceeding it.

(c) Both current and future prices were filed by different members of the Association. Price lists filed covered the same territory and contained identical terms and conditions of sale. Not all members filed prices with the Association, and such price lists as were filed were not distributed to the trade or published, but were used for distribution to members only, except where the American Veneer Package Association, Inc., distributed such lists to members of other associations in the other zones. It was understood among the members that they would follow the filed prices of the firm doing the filing. F. W. Masie in a letter to Secretary Cooper dated April 20, 1937, in part stated as follows:

With regard to Trade Practice Rules, I have inquired into this, and the suggestion is that if your Group wishes to use the rules as outlined under date of February fifteenth, that some Company in connection with the publication and announcement of their price schedule cover as a part of their present set-up, all of these details. Then if the rest of the members feel disposed to follow leadership for the purpose of a stabilized market, they can observe the terms as set forth in the published list.

This part of the original agreement used by Zone "B" has been divorced from their Constitution and By-Laws, and will, undoubtedly, be set up in the near future in the form of a handbook on Trade Practice or usages in the industry.

(d) On April 26, 1937, F. W. Masie addressed another letter to Secretary G. A. Cooper, which reads in part as follows:

With regard to filed schedule of prices Zone A members it is important that the territory covered by Zone A members be shown on his schedule. In the future, will you kindly see that this matter is covered?

(e) The members of said Association submitted a list of the names of the persons or firms which were considered a dealer or distributor. From all lists submitted, a master list was compiled. It was understood that all members were to allow discounts only to those names appearing on the dealer and distributor list.

(f) The members of the Association agreed to refrain from producing, or at least to curtail the production of, No. 2 baskets.

(g) The membership in this Association as of March 2, 1938, consisted of the following firms:

- Acme Veneer Package Co., Inc., Orchard Park, N. Y.
- John Bacon, Inc., Gasport, N. Y.
- Guile & Windnagle, Inc., Penn Yan, N. Y.
- Webster Basket Co., Inc., Webster, N. Y.
- Ellicottville Basket Co., Inc., Ellicottville, N. Y.
- Attica Package Co., Inc., Attica, N. Y.
- Barden & Robeson Co., Penn Yan, N. Y., a corporation.
- Sodus Basket Co., Sodus, N. Y.
- Bellaire & Schroeder, Inc., Hamburg, N. Y.
- Madison County Basket Co., Hamilton, N. Y., a corporation.

Midwest Package Association

PAR. 20. (a) Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison conducted a similar survey of veneer package manufacturers in what was designated as Zone E, which included the States of Michigan, Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee, Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Missouri, Ohio, and the western part of West Virginia. The State of Ohio and the western part of West Virginia were also considered jointly as a part of Zone A. There was no organization or association of veneer package manufacturers in this territory until the formation of the Midwest Package Association under the supervision of Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison.

(b) The members of said Association on March 2, 1938, consisted of the following:

- Berrien County Package Co., a corporation, Benton Harbor, Mich.
- Burlington Basket Co., a corporation, Burlington, Iowa.
- Edgerton Manufacturing Company, a corporation, Plymouth, Ind.
- B. C. Jarrell & Co., Inc., Humboldt, Tenn.
- Swisshelm Veneer Co., a corporation, Mound City, Ill.
- Frank L. Deaner & Sons, Sodus, Mich.
- New Albany Box & Basket Co., a corporation, New Albany, Ind.
- Ottawa Basket Co., a corporation, Oak Harbor, Ohio.
- Roberts-Liggett Co., a corporation, Metropolis, Ill.
- Bloomington Basket Co., Inc., Bloomington, Ind.
- H. A. DuBois & Sons Co., Inc., Cobden, Ill.
- Evansville Container Co., a corporation, Evansville, Ind.
- Newton Box & Basket Co., Inc., Newton, Ill.
- H. A. Schwarz, an individual doing business under the firm name of Schwarz Basket & Box Co., Topeka, Kans.
- Paducah Box & Basket Co., a corporation, Paducah, Ky.

Harrison Manufacturing Co., a corporation, Shelby, Mich.
Pierce-Williams Co., a corporation, Jonesboro, Ark.
Strawberry Crate Co., Inc., Portland, Tenn.

The secretary of said Association was J. L. Giacomino, an employee of Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison.

(c) Members of said Association filed current and future prices with the Secretary. There were three divisions of the territory known as Zone E for price filing purposes, as price lists were filed for these respective territories. For example, on July 31, 1937, a price of 12½¢ each was filed on three-hoop round bottom baskets with Star covers in one territory, while a price of 13¼¢ was filed for another territory. The prices filed for use within each territory were identical and the terms and conditions of sale were the same.

(d) Prices were discussed in Association meetings and each member knew the prices which others expected to file. It was understood that members would abide by the filed price until a new price was filed. The prices filed were for the exclusive use of members only and were not published or distributed to the trade except that copies of said filed prices were forwarded by the secretary to the secretaries of the other zone associations, who in turn distributed the said prices to members of their respective associations.

(e) The members of this group, when they employed Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, intended that prices should be stabilized and increased. A member manufacturer on February 1, 1937, wrote to F. W. Masie of Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison in part as follows:

We are not interested in the bushel basket business until the price can be increased to say 50% over the present market.

F. W. Masie's reply dated February 5, 1937, is in part as follows:

I do not know whether you are familiar with the progress we are making in organizing the bushel basket manufacturers and so, assuming that you are not, I am pleased to give you a brief resume of our activities since the first of the year.

Early in January we were authorized to make a survey of the Eastern Package Association and also employed as Business Managers to guide and direct the activities of this group. A short time later similar authorization was secured from the manufacturers located in New York state and a group was set up, covering the western part of the state of Pennsylvania and the New England states.

Last week it was my pleasure to meet with the manufacturers in Texas and they were favorably inclined toward our plan.

At the present time, we are endeavoring to have a meeting with the Kentucky-Tennessee manufacturers and also a meeting with the so-called Midwest group.

Next Thursday, I shall attend a meeting of the North and South Carolina manufacturers, who have extended me an invitation to outline our plan.

It is realized we have quite a job on our hands in organizing this industry, which for the past several years has been in rather chaotic condition. We are, nevertheless, hopeful of the ultimate outcome which will result in stabilization and a reasonable price for bushel baskets.

(f) F. W. Masie and Secretary Giacomino contacted members to persuade them the only way to stabilize prices was to control volume. The success of the efforts of Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison is noted in a letter of F. W. Masie to Secretary Giacomino, dated June 30, 1937, which is in part as follows:

* * * There has already developed a degree of stability and the prices which manufacturers on the whole are receiving should represent a reasonable profit at these volumes.

* * * If we can finally convince the industry that volume alone is not the answer, we will then have solved their problem, but until we accomplish this there will be many headaches.

(g) Dealers and distributors were classified by the members of the Association and the names of such were placed on a master list. On April 14, 1937, F. W. Masie, in a communication to Secretary Giacomino, stated in part as follows:

The best manner in which to handle the dealer question, after the "kinks" have been ironed out, is to have each member file a full list of the dealers they sell and have it attached to their filed prices. In this manner they state, in effect, these, and only these dealers, are the ones we allow a discount of 7% and before a name is allowed by this manufacturer he must advise of the additional name. Your Group should have a distinct classification for dealers—a classification that covers the services a dealer will render to entitle him to a discount. The fewer names on the list the better. Dealers present quite a problem in the Eastern Zones.

(h) Secretary J. L. Giacomino checked the invoices of the members to determine compliance with the filed prices and to see that the proper discounts were made only to those on the dealer and distributor lists.

(i) Reports of the sales of No. 2 baskets were made by the members to the secretary. A bulletin of the secretary, dated May 19, 1937, stated in part as follows:

Any member whose sales of (2) baskets * * * exceeds 1% of his total monthly volume shall have his name brought before the meeting and his percentage announced.

Zone "D"—Texas Group

PAR. 21. Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison conducted a similar survey of veneer package manufacturers in what was designated as Zone D, which included all the States west of the Mississippi and east of the Rocky Mountains, in which veneer package manufacturers and customers were located. The headquarters of this group were located in Texarkana, Texas. Its activities were similar to those of the other groups and zone organizations as heretofore described and involved the purpose and effect of establishing non-competitive prices and stabilizing the relative volumes of business done by the various members.

Inter-Zone Group Cooperation

PAR. 22. (a) It was understood that members of the various zone associations would protect the prices filed in the different zones. Members of the various zone associations did cooperate in the maintenance of these prices. Members agreed that they would not ship into an adjoining zone without conforming to the prices prevalent in the zone of the vendee.

(b) After Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison became the business managers of the various zones, a closer cooperation existed between and among the respective zones. The zone secretaries, who were employees of Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, and the managing directors of each respective zone, under the general supervision of F. W. Masie, an official of Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, received the filed prices from the members and distributed them to the other secretaries, respectively, and to the secretary of the American Veneer Package Association, Inc. The secretary of the American Veneer Package Association, Inc., collaborated with the various secretaries in a general distribution of prices to all members of all zones. Members were instructed when selling in other zones to obtain information from their zone secretary as to whether the proposed vendee was a dealer or distributor. The purpose was to protect the prices and discounts prevalent in the various zones. In the interest of furthering inter-zone relations, representatives of the different zones were invited to attend and did attend the meetings of other zone Associations; joint meetings of some of the zone Associations were held; F. W. Masie, the general supervisor of all the various zones, attended the different zone meetings and reported the progress of the other zones; price lists and dealer lists of other zones were discussed at the different zone meetings.

PAR. 23. The record contains affidavits from each of the following respondents: Pierpont Manufacturing Co., Adkins Manufacturing Co., Georgia Veneer and Package Co. and Southern Crate and Veneer Co. Said affidavits deny that said four respondents were parties to the alleged combination and conspiracy. The record contains evidence that the said four respondents in 1936 and 1937 were members of respondent associations and engaged in the practices complained of. The said four respondents are respondents in Docket No. 3289, Standard Container Manufacturers' Association, Inc., et al., which involves similar charges as in the instant matter and in which the Commission issued its cease and desist order on March 5, 1940.<sup>1</sup> Although the record in the instant case supports the allegations of the complaint with respect to said respondents, it does not appear necessary to subject the said respondents to the order issued in the instant matter as they are bound by a similar order issued in said Docket No. 3289.

Order

PAR. 24. It appears that respondent Ross R. Guthrie was not associated with the respondents herein except when in 1937 he was acting in a clerical capacity as secretary of respondent Eastern Package Association, which association was then operating under the control of respondent Chairman Frederick W. Masie, who was a representative of respondents Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison.

CONCLUSION

Said understandings, agreements, combinations, and conspiracies, and the things done thereunder and pursuant thereto, and in furtherance thereof, as above set forth, are all to the prejudice of the public, have a dangerous tendency to and have actually hindered and prevented price competition between and among the member respondents of the respondent associations in the sale of veneer fruit and vegetable containers and the parts thereof in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act; have placed in the respondents the power to control and enhance prices; have unreasonably restrained such commerce in veneer fruit and vegetable containers and the parts thereof and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

through misunderstanding); statement of admitted facts signed by counsel for the respondents designated under the firm name of Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison; the answers of respondents Evansville Container Co., Swisshelm Veneer Co. and Newton Box & Basket Co., Inc., in which answers the said three respondents admit all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and state that they waive all intervening procedure and further hearing as to the said facts; other evidence taken before John L. Hornor, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designaed by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint and affidavits in opposition thereto with respect to respondents Pierpont Manufacturing Co., Adkins Manufacturing Co., Georgia Veneer & Package Co. and Southern Crate & Veneer Co.; and briefs filed herein in support of, and in answer to, said respondents Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison; other respondents not having filed briefs and oral arguments not having been requested by any of the respondents, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondents:

1. American Veneer Package Association, Inc., and its officers as follows: president, Frank M. Harrison; vice-president, George Talbot, Jr.; vice-president, R. O. Fletcher; treasurer, Willis W. Hargroves; secretary-manager, Robert W. Davis; (2) Eastern Package Association, its chairman, Frederick W. Masie; and its members as follows: Berryville Basket Co., Inc., M. J. Dilks, W. B. Pepper and Leslie K. Chance, partners, doing business under the firm name of M. J. Dilks & Co., William W. Dilks & Son, Inc., Farmco Package Corporation, Louis P. Finger, trading as Finger Bros., Goldman Package Manufacturing Co., a corporation, Jersey Package Co., a corporation, Marvil Package Co., a corporation, Planters Manufacturing Co., Inc., Ramsey Package Corporation, Riverside Manufacturing Co., a corporation; Virginia Cooperage Co., Inc.; (3) Southern Package Association, Inc., its officers as follows: Chairman, Herbert J. Linder; vice-president, Walter E. Morgan; secretary, Norman G. Asbury; treasurer, D. E. Shuman; and its members as follows: W. E. Anderson and T. H. Whisanant, partners, doing business under the firm name of Greene Lumber & Crate Co.; Leigh Banana Case Co., a corporation, B. E. Martin, Patten Package Co., Inc., Farmco Package Corporation, Planters Manufacturing Co., Inc., Marvil Package Co., a corporation, Evansville Container Co., a corporation, Hollywood-Beaufort Package Corporation; Walter A. ## AMERICAN DISTRIBUTORS, INC., UNITED ADVERTISING COMPANIES, INC., AND JOHN H. MORGAN, DOING BUSINESS AS CHAMPION PRODUCTS COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3918. Complaint, Oct. 7, 1939—Decision, Mar. 15, 1940

- Where an individual engaged in sale and distribution of medicinal preparation which he designated as "Vita-Perles" and which was claimed by him to contain Vitamins A, B-1, D, G, and E, and corporation which he caused to be organized and of which he was president, and which, following such organization, continued to carry on, as theretofore conducted by him, sale and distribution of said product, in commerce among the various States, to purchasers in other States and in the District of Columbia; and a concern which acted as their advertising agent and participated in preparation and dissemination of advertising matter as below set forth; in advertisements which they disseminated concerning said "Vita-Perles" through the mails, through newspapers and periodicals of general circulation and through circulars and other printed matter distributed in commerce among the various States and in other ways, and which were intended and likely to induce purchase of such medicinal preparation—
- (a) Represented that said product might be obtained and tested "without risking a single penny," facts being it could not be obtained and tested in fashion proposed by them without any risk of money;
  - (b) Represented that backache, headache, loss of appetite and energy, faulty vision, reduced resistance to infection, premature evidence of advancing age, and various other ailments and conditions, were caused by vitamin deficiency, and that such conditions would be relieved or corrected by use of preparation in question, and that those who were thin, pale and sickly would, by the use thereof, acquire additional weight, improved complexion, increased resistance to colds and infection, and improved appetite, and become less nervous, facts being ailments, conditions and symptoms specified and indicated were not positive or usual indications of deficiency in Vitamins A, B-1, D, G, or E, usual adult diet in United States furnishes supply of such vitamins adequate for ordinary health, energy, development and resistance to disease, and product in question, except in cases of actual deficiency in one or more of the vitamins contained by it, and existence of which can be determined only by physicians after consideration of many factors, including objective symptoms as one only, is of no therapeutic, preventive or tonic value;
  - (c) Represented that impairment or premature loss of sexual desire, vigor or potency in the male was due to a vitamin deficiency, and would be restored or improved by use of said preparation, and that its use would increase the general strength and energy, facts being such impairment, whether premature or otherwise, is not due to deficiency of Vitamin E or any other vitamin, and will not be restored, improved or remedied by use of said "Vita-Perles" or vitamin referred to; and

- (d) Represented that said preparation would affect women's ability successfully to conceive or bear children, facts being such inability to conceive is not due to deficiency of vitamins as aforesaid set forth, and will not be restored, improved or remedied by use of "Vita-Perles" or of Vitamin E, and women's inability to bear children successfully after conception is usually due to pathological conditions and anatomical abnormalities and not to deficiency in vitamins generally or specific deficiency in vitamin E and will not be remedied or corrected by "Vita-Perles," except in cases of rare occurrence where such inability is due to deficiency of vitamin E of degree no greater than is susceptible of replacement by the vitamin E content of "Vita-Perles";

With effect of misleading and deceiving substantial portion of purchasing public, through use of such false, deceptive, and misleading statements, representations and claims disseminated as aforesaid with respect to product in question and causes of ailments and conditions of the body for which said preparation was recommended by them, into erroneous and mistaken belief that such false statements, representations, and claims were true and that said preparation possessed properties claimed and represented and would accomplish results indicated, and of causing substantial portion of such public, because of such belief, to purchase substantial quantities of preparation aforesaid:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Mr. Randolph W. Branch for the Commission.

Mr. Henry Junge, of Chicago, Ill., for United Advertising Cos., Inc.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that American Distributors, Inc., a corporation, United Advertising Cos., Inc., a corporation, and John H. Morgan, an individual, doing business as Champion Products Co., hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of said Act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, American Distributors, Inc., is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Indiana and having an office and principal place of business at A Street, Linton, Ind.

Respondent, John H. Morgan, is an individual, who, prior to August 1938, traded and did business under the name of Champion Products Co. and maintained an office and place of business at A Street, Linton, Ind.; he caused the organization of and is the president of American Distributors, Inc.

Respondent, United Advertising Cos., Inc., is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Illinois and having an office and principal place of business at 207 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

PAR. 2. Prior to August 1938, respondent, John H. Morgan, under the name of Champion Products Co., was engaged in the business of selling and distributing a certain medicinal preparation known as "Vita-Perles" and claimed by respondent to contain Vitamins A, B-1, D, G, and E. Respondent sold said preparation to members of the purchasing public situated in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia and caused said preparation when sold to be transported from his aforesaid place of business in the State of Indiana to purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

On August 28, 1938, the respondent, John H. Morgan, caused the American Distributors, Inc., an Indiana corporation, to be organized. Since that time said corporate respondent has been engaged in the sale and distribution of said medicinal preparation, "Vita-Perles," in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and has caused said preparation when sold to be transported from its aforesaid place of business in the State of Indiana to the purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondents maintain and at all times mentioned herein have maintained a course of trade in said medicinal preparation in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondent, United Advertising Cos., Inc., is and has been the advertising agent for the respondents American Distributors, Inc., and John H. Morgan, trading as Champion Products Co., and has participated in the preparation and dissemination of the advertising matter to which reference is hereinafter made.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of the business of respondent Morgan and respondent American Distributors, Inc., the said respondents and respondent United Advertising Cos., Inc., have disseminated and are now disseminating, and have caused and are now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning said medicinal preparation, "Vita-Perles," by United States mails, by insertion in newspapers and periodicals having a general circulation and also in circulars and other printed matter, all of which are distributed in commerce among and between the various States of the United States; and by other means, in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of said medicinal preparation; and have disseminated and are now disseminating, and have caused and are now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning said "Vita-Perles" by various means for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of the said preparation in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Among and typical of the false statements and representations contained in said advertisements, disseminated and caused to be disseminated, as aforesaid, are the following:

Test Vita-Perles Without Risking a Single Penny!

Vita-Perles are based on a scientific formula containing Vitamins A, B-1, D, G and E * * *.

Many medical men contend that the average diet is distressingly lacking in the proper proportion of vitamins.

A Special Message to Those Who Suffer From Such Symptoms As: Backache, Headache, Leg Pains, Loss of Appetite, Loss of Pep, Faulty Vision, Sluggishness, Feeling of Confusion, Lost Nature, Loss of Weight, Early Tooth Decay, Reduced Resistance to Infection, "Old" Before Your Time—Act Now.

* * * Do everything in your power to correct them.

Do you eat enough, yet stay Skinny, Pale, Sickly * * * The new formula, Vita-Perles, contains the vitamins which, when properly assimilated, help put on pounds of firm, healthy flesh, round out those alluring curves, clear complexion, build resistance to colds and infection, etc.

The vitamins contained in Vita-Perles make the difference between high and low resistance to colds, infections, etc., help to increase the appetite, clear skin, reduce nervousness, etc.

The two statements quoted immediately above are accompanied by depictions of well-rounded but lissom female figures.

Want to Gain Weight? 7 Pounds in 7 Days? * * * If you are skinny, weak, pale, run-down because of a lack of replaceable vitamins, we invite you to test the new Vita-Perles at Our Risk.

The statement last quoted is accompanied by a depiction of two female figures, one excessively emaciated, the other full and shapely.

To Men Only

We bring a message of hope to men who suffer from such symptoms as * * * Tired, Worn-Out Feeling, and that Growing "Old" Before Your Time. Many men when they reach middle age begin to feel and look "Old." This is a very distressing condition * * * Accept our liberal offer to test the Amazing Vita-Perles * * *

The statement last quoted is accompanied by a depiction of a male apparently in bad health, spirits, and reduced circumstances, observing with envy a well-dressed young man of abounding vitality accompanying a personable young woman, with the legend: "Don't be 'Worn out,' Take steps to Gain that 'He-Man' Feeling."

TO WOMEN ONLY

It is common knowledge that many happy homes are destroyed, many husbands and wives become restless and discontented because they have been denied the blessings of children * * * Unfortunately, some women find they are of a very nervous nature, in a run-down condition, and in many ways abnormal. These conditions may often be the reason they are not blessed with children. Many physicians contend that Vitamins can be of definite assistance in building up the system to the extent that normal childbirth may result * * *. Every woman was intended for Motherhood, but often some women suffer from functional female disorders which rob her of this normal desire. It is possible that Vitamins can assist you in solving your problems.

The statement last quoted is accompanied by a depiction of a woman holding an infant.

Vitamin "E" (wheat germ oil) is also believed to be of definite aid in correcting certain cases of sterile conditions in women.

Deprived of the joys of a Baby To Love Due To Lack of Replaceable Vitamins, At Last—science has found a reason why many men and women—apparently normal in every respect—have been unable to know the joy and happiness of parenthood. This great discovery brings a thrilling message of hope to many a childless woman * * * This recent scientific discovery * * * is now available to all. The statement last quoted is accompanied by a depiction of an infant.

A Message to Married Couples Who Want Children * * * The discovery of Vitamin E, the anti-sterility vitamin, is of great importance to men and women whose premature deterioration of the reproductive system is due to a lack of sufficient Vitamin E. Unless complete atrophy has already set in there is yet hope for many couples to find full expression of parental instincts * * * Get a three weeks supply of Vita-Perles Today! See what they will do for you!

PAR. 4. Through the use of the statements and representations hereinbefore set forth, and others similar thereto not herein set out, all of which purport to be descriptive of the manner in which the said preparation may be tested, the causes of the ailments and conditions of the human body for which respondents recommend and have recommended the said "Vita-Perles," the preparation itself and its effectiveness in the treatment of certain ailments and conditions, respondents directly and by implication among other things have represented: that one may test "Vita-Perles" without risking any money; that vitamin deficiency is, in both sexes, the cause of back-ache, headache, leg pains, loss of appetite and pep, faulty vision, sluggishness, loss of weight, early tooth decay, reduced resistance to infection, being prematurely "old," constipation, poor digestion, bad breath, and skin irritations; that these conditions will be relieved or corrected by "Vita-Perles"; that by the use of "Vita-Perles" one who is thin, pale, and sickly will gain in firm, healthy flesh, acquire a clear complexion, increased resistance to colds and infections and a better appetite, will become less nervous and will gain in weight as much as 7 pounds in 7 days; that in men premature loss or impairment of sexual desire, vigor or potency is due to a vitamin deficiency and that they will be restored or improved and the general strength and energy increased by the use of "Vita-Perles"; that the inability of women to conceive or bear children is frequently due to vitamin deficiency, and that this deficiency or disability may be removed and normal childbirth accomplished by the use of "Vita-Perles."

PAR. 5. The aforesaid representations used and disseminated by respondents in the manner above described are grossly exaggerated, misleading, and untrue and constitute false advertising. In truth and in fact "Vita-Perles" cannot be obtained and tested in the fashion proposed by the respondents without any risk on the tester's money. The ailments, conditions or symptoms, other than those relating to the sex function, represented by respondents to be due to deficiency in vitamins A, B-1, D, G, or E, are not positive or usual indications of such deficiency. The usual adult diet in the United States furnishes a supply of these vitamins adequate for ordinary health, energy, development, and resistance to disease. Vita-Perles, except in cases of actual deficiency in one or more of the vitamins which they contain, are of no therapeutic, preventative, or tonic value. The existence of a deficiency of vitamins A, B-1, D, G, or E cannot be determined by laymen solely from objective symptoms but only by physicians after a consideration of many factors, of which the objective symptoms are but one. Loss or impairment of sexual desire, vigor, or potency in the male, whether premature or otherwise, and inability of the female to conceive, are not due to a deficiency of vitamin E or any other vitamin and will not be restored, improved, or remedied by the use of Vita-Perles or of vitamin E. Women's inability to bear children successfully after conception is usually due to pathological conditions and anatomical abnormalities and not to a deficiency in vitamins generally or a specific deficiency in vitamin E and will not be remedied or corrected by Vita-Perles, except in cases of rare occurrence where such inability is due to a deficiency of vitamin E of a degree no greater than is susceptible of replacement by the vitamin E content of Vita-Perles.

PAR. 6. The use by respondents of the foregoing false, deceptive, and misleading statements, representations, and claims, disseminated as aforesaid, with respect to the said preparation, the manner in which it may be tested, and the causes of ailments and conditions of the human body for which respondents have recommended "Vita-Perles" has had and now has the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such false statements, representations, and claims are true; that the said preparation possesses the properties claimed and represented, and will accomplish the results indicated, and causes and has caused a substantial portion of the purchasing public, because of such erroneous and mistaken belief, to purchase substantial quantities of the said preparation.

PAR. 7. The aforesaid acts and practices of said respondents, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on October 7, 1939, issued, and on October 9, 1939, served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondents American Distributors, Inc., a corporation, United Advertising Cos., Inc., a corporation, and John H. Morgan, an individual trading and doing business under the name of Champion Products Co., charging them with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On October 21, 1939, respondent, United Advertising Cos., Inc., filed its answer in which answer it admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts. After the filing of the answer of respondents American Distributors, Inc., and John H. Morgan, the Commission by order entered herein granted respondents' motion for permission to withdraw said answer and to substitute therefor an answer admitting all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, which substitute answer was duly filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and the answers thereto, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, American Distributors, Inc., is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Indiana and having an office and principal place of business at Linton, Ind.

Respondent, John H. Morgan, is an individual, who, prior to August 1938, traded and did business under the name of Champion Products Co. and maintained an office and place of business at Linton, Ind.; he caused the organization of and is the president of respondent, American Distributors, Inc.

Respondent United Advertising Cos., Inc., is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Illinois and having an office and principal place of business at 207 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

PAR. 2. Prior to August 1938, respondent, John H. Morgan, trading under the name of Champion Products Co., was engaged in the business of selling and distributing a certain medicinal preparation known as "Vita-Perles" and claimed by respondent to contain Vitamins A, B-1, D, G, and E. Respondent sold said preparation to members of the purchasing public situated in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia and caused said preparation when sold to be transported from his aforesaid place of business in the State of Indiana to purchasers thereof located in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

On August 28, 1938, the respondent, John H. Morgan, caused the American Distributors, Inc., an Indiana corporation, to be organized. Since that time said corporate respondent has been engaged in the sale and distribution of said medicinal preparation, "Vita-Perles," in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and has caused said preparation when sold to be transported from its aforesaid place of business in the State of Indiana to the purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondents maintain and at all times mentioned herein have maintained a course of trade in said medicinal preparation in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondent, United Advertising Cos., Inc., is and has been the advertising agent for the respondents American Distributors, Inc., and John H. Morgan, trading as Champion Products Co., and has participated in the preparation and dissemination of the advertising matter to which reference is herein after made.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of the business of respondent Morgan and respondent American Distributors, Inc., the said respondents and respondent United Advertising Companies, Inc., have disseminated and are now disseminating, and have caused and are now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning said medicinal preparation, "Vita-Perles," by United States Mails, by insertion in newspapers and periodicals having a general circulation and also in circulars and other printed matter, all of which are distributed in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, and by other means, in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of said medicinal preparation; and have disseminated and are now disseminating, and have caused and are now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning said "Vita-Perles" by various means for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of said preparation in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Among and typical of the false statements and representations contained in said advertisements, disseminated and caused to be disseminated, as aforesaid, are the following:

of vitamin E of a degree no greater than is susceptible of replacement by the vitamin E content of Vita-Perles.

PAR. 6. The use by respondents of the foregoing false, deceptive and misleading statements, representations and claims, disseminated as aforesaid, with respect to the said preparation, and the causes of ailments and conditions of the human body for which respondents have recommended "Vita-Perles" has had and now has the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such false statements, representations, and claims are true; that the said preparation possesses the properties claimed and represented, and will accomplish the results indicated, and causes and has caused a substantial portion of the purchasing public, because of such erroneous and mistaken belief, to purchase substantial quantities of the said preparation.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of said respondents as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answers of respondents, in which answers respondents admit all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint to be true, and state that they waive all intervening procedure and further hearing as to the said facts and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondents, American Distributors, Inc., a corporation, United Advertising Cos., Inc., a corporation, and John H. Morgan, an individual, trading and doing business under the name of Champion Products Co. or under any other name or names, their respective agents, officers, employees, and representatives, directly or through any corporate or other device, do forthwith cease and desist from disseminating, or causing to be disseminated, any advertisement by means of the United States mails, or in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, by any means, for the purpose of inducing or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of a certain medicinal preparation containing Vitamins

Order

A, B-1, D, G, and E, and now designated by the name of "Vita-Perles," or any other preparation composed of similar ingredients or possessing substantially similar therapeutic qualities, whether sold under that designation or any other designation, or disseminating or causing to be disseminated, any advertisement by any means for the purpose of inducing or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, of said medicinal preparation, which advertisements represent, directly or through implication, that:

1. Said preparation may be obtained and tested without risking the loss of any money.

2. Backache, headache, leg pains, loss of appetite and energy, faulty vision, sluggishness, loss of weight, early tooth decay, reduced resistance to infection, premature evidence of advancing age, constipation, poor digestion, bad breath, or skin irritations, are caused by a vitamin deficiency or that such conditions will be relieved or corrected by the use of the said preparation.

3. Those who are thin, pale, and sickly will by the use of said preparation acquire additional weight, an improved complexion, an increased resistance to colds and infections, an improved appetite or will become less nervous.

4. The impairment or premature loss of sexual desire, vigor, or potency in the male, is due to a vitamin deficiency, or will be restored or improved by the use of said preparation, or that its use will increase the general strength and energy.

5. Said preparation will affect women's ability to successfully conceive or bear children except in rare cases involving habitual involuntary abortion where inability to successfully bear children after conception may be due to a deficiency of Vitamin E of a degree susceptible of replacement by the Vitamin E content of said preparation.

It is further ordered, That each of the said respondents shall within 60 days after service upon them of this order file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3637. Complaint, Oct. 27, 1938—Decision, Mar. 19, 1940

Where an individual engaged in printing stationery for social and business purposes, including invitations, announcements, calling cards, letterheads, envelopes, and similar products, and in sale of such various stationery to purchasers in State of California and in other States and in the District of Columbia, in substantial competition with others likewise engaged in printing and selling stationery for such purposes in commerce as aforesaid, and in competition particularly with those engaged in business of engraving and selling engraved stationery in commerce for purposes aforesaid, and including many who produce engraved stationery products designed and intended for such purposes and sell said products into and through other States as above set forth, and truthfully represent the same as produced by the engraving process, as known to trade and public generally, and others who sell stationery products for such purposes but do not sell engraved stationery products and do not in any means or manner represent themselves as manufacturers of or dealers in engraved stationery products, and among whom are many who produce stationery by same process as employed by individual aforesaid—

Featured trade name, including words "Process Engraving," in circulars, business cards, letterheads, blotters, stickers, memoranda pads, and other advertising literature circulated among purchasers and prospective purchasers, and in statements of account sent to purchasers in various States displayed trade name aforesaid and featured same in advertisements in newspapers and periodicals circulated among prospective purchasers, and referred in all her various circulars, pamphlets, etc., to process employed by her in producing her products as "engraving," and held herself and company out to public as "engraver" and "process engraver," and her product as "engraving" or "process engraving";

Facts being she did not own or operate an engraving company and was not engaged in business of engraving or producing engraved stationery, and letters, words or designs appearing upon her said products made and sold by her were not the result of engraving process and were not engraved stationery, as preferred by substantial portion of purchasing public over that produced by process such as employed by her, and were not, as aforesaid, result of such much more costly engraving process, as long understood by trade and consuming public as meaning, as applied to business or social stationery, products in which words, letters or designs have been raised from general plane of stationery surface and are in relief, through result of application to stationery, under pressure, of inked metal plates theretofore specially engraved, cut, or incised for and used in production of such stationery by process involving, among other things, the cutting or incising of the plates in various ways so that letters, etc., are below surface of plate, but constituted raised printing accomplished through use of certain ink on printing press and application to resulting printing of certain powder and baking process, with result which so closely resembled, in appearance and feel, genuine engraving as to make two so difficult of ascertainment that in many cases those in trade and familiar with both must use great care to avoid mistake in identifying two;

With tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive substantial portion of purchasing public into erroneous belief that said individual owned or operated engraving company and was engaged in business of producing and selling engraved stationery, and that letters, words or designs contained upon her said stationery were engraved and result of genuine engraving process, as above indicated, and as known to trade and public generally, and to induce number of consuming public, because of such belief, to purchase her said products and thereby unfairly divert trade to her from her competitors in commerce as aforesaid:

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority invested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Ann W. Carter, an individual, trading under the firm name and style of Process Engraving Co., hereinafter referred to as the respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Ann W. Carter, is an individual, trading under the firm name and style of Process Engraving Co., and having her office and place of business at 694 Market Street, San Francisco, Calif. Respondent is now, and has been for more than 2 years last past, engaged in the business of printing stationery for social and business purposes, including invitations, announcements, calling cards, letterheads, envelopes, and names on Christmas cards, and in selling said products in commerce as herein set out.

PAR. 2. Said respondent, being engaged in business as aforesaid, causes said stationery so printed, when sold, to be transported from her office and place of business in the State of California to the purchasers thereof located in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. There is now and has been at all times mentioned herein, a course of trade in said stationery sold by respondent in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of her said business, respondent is now, and has been in substantial competition with other individuals, and with firms, partnerships, and corporations, likewise engaged in printing stationery for social and business purposes and in selling such stationery in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and also with individuals, partnerships, firms, and corporations engaged in producing engraved stationery for social and business purposes and in selling such stationery in commerce between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. In the course of the operation of said business and for the purpose of inducing individuals, firms and corporations to purchase said stationery products, respondent has printed and circulated throughout the several States to customers and prospective customers, circulars, business cards, letterheads, blotters, stickers, memorandum pads, and other advertising literature, emphasizing the name "Process Engraving Company" and referring to the products manufactured by her as "process engraving." Respondent has also published or has caused to be published in newspapers, magazines, periodicals, and pamphlets circulated between and among the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia advertisements containing, among others, the following statements:

Process Engraving Co. Correct business and social stationery.

Christmas Cards—Outstandingly Different—Process Engraving Company. The oldest and original.

Christmas Cards in the modern motif. Make your selection from the largest assortment in San Francisco, and have them process-engraved with your name. Process Engraving Co.

All of said statements, together with similar statements, purport to be descriptive of respondent's business and the products manufactured and sold by her. In all of her circulars, pamphlets, and other advertising literature, respondent holds herself and her company out to the public as an "engraver" or "process engraver" and her product as "engraving" or "process engraving."

PAR. 5. The process used by the respondent in the printing of social and business stationery in commerce as hereinbefore set out is not the process used in producing genuinely engraved stationery. Respondent does not own or operate an "engraving" company, and respondent is not engaged in the business of "engraving." The letters, words, or designs upon stationery products manufactured, offered for sale, and sold by respondent, in the manner aforesaid, are not the result of "engraving" according to the trade and public understanding of the term.

PAR. 6. The word "engraving" as it is used in the graphic arts may be applied either to an engraved intaglio plate upon which letters, words, or designs have been incised or cut, or to impressions made from such a plate. Such plates are cut or incised by hand, by machine, by etching with acid, by a transfer from other engravings, and by other means, but in all cases the letters, words, or designs so to be produced upon stationery are cut below the surface of the plate. To make impressions from such a plate, the ink is applied to the plate, then the plate is wiped so that the ink remains only in the lines cut below the surface. The inked plate is then put upon a piece of stationery or article to be engraved, and pressure is applied sufficient to force the surface of the stationery into the lines cut in the plate, causing the ink in such lines to adhere to the paper on which the impression is to be made.

PAR. 7. The words "engraving" and "engraved" when used in connection with, or descriptive of, business or social stationery, mean, and the trade and consuming public understand, and for many years have understood, them to mean that the stationery products so being referred to or described contain letters, words, or designs which are raised from the general plane of the stationery surface, and are in relief, and are the result of the application thereto, under pressure, of inked metal plates which have been specially engraved, cut, or carved for, and are used in, the production of such stationery by the process more particularly described herein in paragraph 6.

PAR. 8. The process used by the respondent in the manufacture of her stationery products is not the genuine engraving process from inked plates as hereinabove described, but is a thermographic process resulting from the use of a chemical in powdered form applied to type printing while the ink is wet and passed through a baking process whereby the chemical fuses with the wet ink so as to produce a raised-letter effect resembling in appearance or simulating genuine engraving.

PAR. 9. The cost of genuine engraved stationery greatly exceeds the cost of stationery of like stock, grade, or character produced by the process employed by the respondent, as set out in paragraph 8 hereof, or produced by any other printing process, and a substantial portion of the purchasing public has a decided preference for engraved stationery over stationery produced by respondent's process or any similar process.

PAR. 10. The use by the respondent of the words "engraving," "process engraving," "engraved" or "process engraved" and the use by the respondent of the trade name "Process Engraving Company" either in describing her product or designating her business, in offering for sale or selling her stationery products, was and is calculated to, and had, and now has, the tendency and capacity to, and did, and now does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous beliefs that respondent owns or operates an engraving company, that respondent is in the business of producing and selling engraved stationery, and that the letters, words, or designs contained upon the said stationery offered for sale and sold by respondent were and are engraved and are the result of the genuine engraving process described in paragraph 6 hereof.

PAR. 11. There are among respondent's competitors many who produce engraved stationery products for business and social purposes and who sell such engraved stationery products in commerce as herein described, properly represented and described as engraved stationery. There are others among respondent's competitors who produce stationery products for business and social purposes, and who sell such stationery products in commerce as herein described, but who do not manufacture or sell engraved stationery products, and who do not, by any means or in any manner, hold themselves out, or represent themselves to be, manufacturers of, or dealers in, engraved stationery products.

PAR. 12. As a direct consequence of the aforesaid mistaken and erroneous beliefs, induced by the acts, advertisements and representations of respondent as hereinabove detailed, a number of the consuming public has purchased a volume of respondent's stationery products, with the result that trade has been unfairly diverted to respondent from her aforesaid competitors who do not misrepresent their business status, the character and nature of their respective products or the processes by which they are produced. In consequence thereof, injury has been done, and is now being done, by respondent to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 13. The aforesaid acts, practices and representations of the respondent as herein alleged, have been and are, all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors as aforesaid, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on the 27th day of October 1938, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon Ann W. Carter, an individual, trading as Process Engraving Co., charging her with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of the said complaint, and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, testimony and evidence in support of the allegations of this complaint were introduced by DeWitt T. Puckett, attorney for the Commission, before John J. Keenan, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by Walter J. Walsh, Esq., attorney for the respondent; and said testimony and evidence was duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and evidence, briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto; and the Commission having duly considered the same and being fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion to be drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent Ann W. Carter, is an individual who is now, and has been since June 11, 1936, doing business at 694 Market Street, San Francisco, Calif., under the trade name and style Process Engraving Co., and during that period of time has been engaged in the business of printing stationery for social and business purposes, including invitations, announcements, calling cards, letterheads, envelopes, and similar products.

PAR. 2. Since the date of her commencement in business, the respondent has caused the stationery products printed by her, when sold, to be transported from her principal office and place of business in the State of California to the purchasers thereof located in California and in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of her business, respondent now is, and has been, in substantial competition with other individuals and with firms and corporations likewise engaged in the business of printing and selling stationery for social and business purposes in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and is particularly in competition with individuals, firms, and corporations engaged in the business of engraving and selling engraved stationery for social and business purposes in said commerce.

PAR. 4. In the operation of said business and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of said stationery products, respondent has printed and circulated among purchasers and prospective purchasers circulars, business cards, letterheads, blotters, stickers, memoranda pads, and other advertising literature, bearing the trade name "Process Engraving Company" printed thereon in a conspicuous place. Statements of account sent to purchasers located in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia also bear the trade name "Process Engraving Company." The respondent places advertisements in which the trade name "Process Engraving Company" is conspicuous in newspapers, magazines and periodicals circulated among the prospective purchasers. In all of said advertising matter, the products manufactured and sold by the respondent are referred to as "process engraving." Typical of the statements made and used by the respondent in the advertising media above described are the following:

Correct Business and Social Stationery

All of the said statements, together with similar statements not herein set out used by respondent, purport to be descriptive of respondent's business and the products manufactured and sold by her. In all of her various circulars, pamphlets, and other advertising literature, respondent refers to the process by which she produces her products as "engraving." Respondent holds herself and her company out to the public as an "engraver" or "process engraver" and her product as "engraving" or "process engraving."

PAR. 5. The respondent prints invitations, announcements, calling cards, business cards, letterheads, envelopes, Christmas cards, and other social and business stationery by a process in which the letters, words, or designs are type printed on to the stationery by a process whereby after the printing a chemical preparation composed principally of resin is used for the purpose of raising the letters or impressions by what is termed a thermographic process. The printing on the various cards, letterheads, circulars, pamphlets, and other printed matter produced by respondent is first printed with what is known as a special or soft ink on a printing press and while this ink is wet it is dusted with the resin powder and passed through a baking process whereby the chemical fuses with the wet ink in such manner as to produce a raised-letter effect resembling in appearance or simulating genuine engraving. The respondent does not own or operate an "engraving" company and is not engaged in the business of engraving or producing engraved stationery. The letters, words, or designs appearing upon the stationery products manufactured and sold by the respondent are not the result of an engraving process according to the trade and public understanding of the term.

Par. 6. The word "engraving" as it is used in the graphic arts may be applied either to an engraved intaglio plate upon which letters, words, or designs have been incised or cut, or to the impressions made from such a plate. Such plates are cut or incised by hand, by machine, by etching with acid, by a transfer from other engravings, and by other means, but in all cases the letters, words, or designs so to be produced upon stationery are cut below the surface of the plate. To make impressions from such a plate the ink is applied to the plate, then the plate is wiped so that the ink remains only in the lines cut below the surface. The inked plate is then put upon a piece of stationery or article to be engraved, and pressure is applied sufficient to force the surface of the stationery into the lines cut in the plate, causing the ink in such lines to adhere to the paper on which the impression is to be made.

PAR. 7. The words "engraving" and "engraved" when used in connection with, or descriptive of, business or social stationery, mean, and the trade and consuming public understand, and for many years have so understood, them to mean that the stationery products so being referred to or described contain words, letters, or designs which are raised from the general plane of the stationery surface, and are in relief, and are the result of the application thereto, under pressure, of inked metal plates which have been specially engraved, cut or incised for, and are used in, the production of such stationery by the process more particularly described herein in paragraph 6 hereof. Respondent's product is known in the trade as "raised printing" and not as "process engraving" or "engraving." Many members of the purchasing public cannot distinguish the difference between a product made by the process used by the respondent and a product made by the genuine engraving method as described in paragraph 6 hereof. Respondent's said product looks and feels like genuine engraving, and the difference between the two products is so difficult to ascertain that those in the trade, familiar with both products, must, in many instances, use great care to avoid mistakes in identifying the two products.

PAR. 8. The cost of genuine engraved stationery greatly exceeds the cost of stationery of like stock, grade, or character produced by the process employed by the respondent, as set out in paragraph 5 hereof, or produced by any other printing process, and substantial portion of the purchasing public has a decided preference for engraved stationery over stationery produced by respondent's process or any similar process.

PAR. 9. The use by the respondent of the words "engraving," "process engraving," "engraved," or "process engraved," and the use by the respondent of the trade name "Process Engraving Company" either in describing her product or designating her business in offering for sale or selling her stationery products, had, and now has, the tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that respondent owns or operates an engraving company, and that respondent is engaged in the business of producing and selling engraved stationery, and that the letters, words, or designs contained upon the said stationery offered for sale and sold by the respondent were, and are, engraved and are the result of the genuine engraving process described in paragraph 6 hereof.

PAR. 10. There are among respondent's competitors many who produce engraved stationery products which are designed and intended for business and social purposes, and who sell such engraved stationery products, when so produced, and transport them, or cause them to be transported to, into and through other States of the United States, to the purchasers thereof at their respective points of location and who truthfully represent such products to be produced by the engraving process as known to the trade and the public generally. There are among respondent's competitors others who sell in commerce as aforesaid stationery products designed and intended for business and social purposes, but who do not sell engraved stationery products and who do not, by any means or in any manner, represent themselves to be manufacturers of, or dealers in, engraved stationery products, and among these latter there are many who produce stationery by the same process as respondent. The use of the word "engraved" to designate and describe stationery products manufactured by the process used by the respondent as herein described, or the use of the word "engraving" to designate and describe said process, has diverted business from genuine engravers and from producers of stationery by processes similar to that used by the respondent, to the respondent and others who use such words in connection with their business and the distribution of their products.

PAR. 11. The acts and practices of the respondent in using the words "engraving," "engraved," and "engravers," in describing her products and in designating her business in advertisements, catalogs, and other advertising literature, and in her general business correspondence, and in using the word "engraving" in her trade name, have the tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that the respondent owns or operates an engraving company and that respondent is in the business of producing and selling engraved stationery and that the letters, works, or designs contained upon said stationery produced and sold by the respondent were, and are, engraved and are the result of the engraving process as known to the trade and public generally, and to induce a number of the consuming public, because of said erroneous belief, to purchase respondent's said products and thereby unfairly to divert trade to the respondent from her competitors in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The acts and practices of the respondent are each and all to the prejudice of the public and to competitors of respondent and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondent, testimony and other evidence taken before John J. Keenan, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, and the briefs of counsel for the Commission and for the respondent, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts, and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Ann W. Carter, her salesmen, employees, and agents, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution, in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, of stationery products, do forthwith cease and desist from:

Using the words "engraving," "process engraving," or any derivative of the word "engrave," alone or in conjunction or combination with any other word or words in her trade name, advertising literature, circulars, catalogs, business signs, letterheads, or correspondence, to designate or describe the stationery products sold and distributed by respondent, or the nature or character of respondent's business, unless and until the respondent produces the stationery products so designated or described by a process which consists essentially in the application of blank stationery to an inked intaglio plate under pressure sufficient to force the surface of the stationery into the letters or designs, which are cut or incised in the plate, so that the ink in such plate adheres to the stationery to form letters, words, characters or designs which are in relief and raised from the general plane of the surface of the stationery.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after the service upon her of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which she has complied with this order.

OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914*Docket 3668. Complaint, Dec. 17, 1938—Decision, Mar. 19, 1940*

Where a corporation engaged in selling "Liberty Income Tax Record" and other bookkeeping systems to purchasers in other States and in the District of Columbia, in substantial competition with others engaged in sale and distribution of similar products in commerce as aforesaid; in advertisements in newspapers and periodicals, and through statements and depictions in pamphlets, circulars, and letters circulated between and among the various States and in said District—

- (a) Represented to public that it printed, bound and published its books in building depicted by it in such advertisements, with machinery and skilled binders and printers under its control, through setting forth, in some of its said advertising, series of pictures of exterior and interior views of a large building with purported display sign on one wall thereof reading "publishers, printers, binders of blank books and bookkeeping systems," and with pictures of large printing presses with numerous workmen and showing various operations in the printing and binding of its said book, facts being its said products were printed and bound by independent contractors not under its control, its business was transacted by correspondence entirely and was carried on in office and storeroom of building resembling that pictured and described as above set forth, but few persons were employed by it to fill orders for books sold by it, and it was not a printer or binder of record books and bookkeeping systems, from whom, as such, there are purchasers of such products with preference for dealing directly with printer or binder as securing them, in their belief, better prices, superior merchandise, and other advantages not secured in purchasing such products after having gone through hands of middleman; and
- (b) Represented that Federal and State laws required that books of account be kept on its record books, and that its said books had been approved by State and Federal officials and tax authorities, facts being no such law requires keeping of books of account on its said record books or any particular form or book, and while certain State and Federal officials had written it stating that its said book was useful for keeping records for purpose of income taxation, no such official was permitted to approve any tax record book or bookkeeping system, nor had official approved its said product;

With tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive substantial portion of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that all said representations were true, and with result, as consequence thereof, that number of consuming public purchased substantial volume of its said books and trade was thereby diverted unfairly to it from its competitors engaged in sale in commerce of products intended, designed and used for purposes for which it recommended its said book, and who truthfully represent the same:

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Commonwealth Publishing Company, a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, Commonwealth Publishing Co., is a corporation organized and doing business under the laws of the State of Illinois, with its principal office and place of business at 508 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill. For more than two years last past, respondent has been, and still is, engaged in the business of selling a certain record book entitled "Liberty Weekly Income Record." Respondent causes said book, when sold, to be transported from its aforesaid place of business in the city of Chicago and State of Illinois to the purchasers thereof at their respective places of location in States of the United States other than the State of Illinois and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and during all the times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said record books so sold by it in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. Respondent is, and at all times herein mentioned has been, in substantial competition with other corporations and with individuals, firms, and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of similar merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. There has been and is a preference on the part of a substantial portion of the purchasing public for dealing direct with the publisher and printer of the books which it buys. Such preference is brought about by the belief on the part of said members of the purchasing public that in dealing direct with the publisher or printer they can secure better prices, superior merchandise and other advantages which cannot be secured when merchandise is purchased after having gone through the hands of middlemen.

PAR. 4. In the course of its business as hereinabove described and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of its books, respondent has made many statements concerning its status, business methods and record books. Said statements are made by means of advertisements inserted in newspapers and magazines and by means of statements and picturizations in pamphlets, testimonials, letters and in the "Liberty Weekly Income Record," all of which are circulated between and among the various states of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Among many the following are typical examples of said advertisements:

Officially O.K'd by Tax Authorities EVERYWHERE. Positive proofs—By the Hundred—Placed Into Your Hands.

All of said statements, together with similar statements and with picturizations appearing in the respondent's advertising literature, represent that salesmen of respondent's record book can earn from $3.50 to $4.10 profit on each sale and that $50 per day is not unusual even for salesmen beginning work; that hundreds of thousands of persons have purchased "Liberty Weekly Income Tax Records" and that there is an immense established demand for renewals by said purchasers; that State and Federal laws compel every person to keep books of account on respondent's record book; that State and Government officials have officially approved the "Liberty Weekly Income Record" and that respondent is a publisher, printer, and binder of blank books and bookkeeping systems.

PAR. 5. The said representations made by the respondent are grossly exaggerated, misleading, deceptive, and false. Salesmen do not earn the amount set forth in respondent's advertising literature nor any amount comparable therewith. Respondent's record books have not been purchased by hundreds of thousands of people and there is no established demand for renewals. State and Federal laws do not require any person to keep records on the respondent's book. No Government official has ever endorsed the "Liberty Weekly Income Record." Respondent is not a publisher, printer, or binder of record books and bookkeeping systems.

The true facts are that State and Federal laws merely require the payment of a tax on income and leave the method of accounting for income to the taxpayer. Some State and Federal officials have suggested that respondent's book is useful in keeping records for the purpose of income taxation and respondent has caused these comments to appear in its advertising literature in such a manner as to indicate official approval. Respondent causes its books to be printed and bound in plants other than its own.

PAR. 6. There are now and have been competitors of respondent selling and distributing record books in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia who do not in any manner misrepresent their status, their business methods or their record books sold or offered for sale by them.

PAR. 7. The false and misleading representations used by the respondent as set forth herein in connection with the sale of its record books have the capacity and tendency to, and do, mislead and deceive members of the purchasing public into the mistaken and erroneous belief that said representations are true. As a direct consequence of the false, deceptive and misleading representations of the respondent and the erroneous and mistaken belief induced thereby, the purchasing public has purchased a substantial number of record books from the respondent with the result that trade in said commerce has been diverted unfairly to respondent from competitors engaged in the business of selling record books who truthfully advertise and represent the nature of their record books and their status and business methods. As a result thereof, injury has been done and is now being done by the respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on December 17, 1938, issued, and thereafter served, its complaint in the above entitled proceeding upon respondent, Commonwealth Publishing Co., a corporation, charging it with violation of section 5 of the provisions of said act. Respondent entered an appearance and filed an answer to the complaint and thereafter testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by R. A. McQuat, attorney for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by James H. Rogers, of Rogers, Woodson & Rogers, attorneys for respondent, before A. F. Thomas, a trial examiner of the Commission, theretofore duly designated by it. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, Commonwealth Publishing Co., is a corporation organized and doing business under the laws of the State of Illinois, with its principal office and place of business located in Chicago, State of Illinois. For several years last past respondent has been and still is engaged in the business of selling a certain record book entitled "Liberty Income Tax Record" and other bookkeeping systems. Respondent causes said products, when sold, to be transported from its principal place of business in the city of Chicago, State of Illinois, to the purchasers thereof at their respective places of location in States of the United States other than the State of Illinois and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and during all the times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said record books sold by it in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent is now, and has been during the past several years, in substantial competition with other firms, individuals, and corporations also engaged in the business of selling and distributing products similar to those of respondent in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its business as herein described and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of its books, respondent has made many statements concerning its business status and its record books. Said statements are made by means of advertisements inserted in newspapers and magazines and by means of statements and picturizations in pamphlets, circulars, and letters, all of which were circulated between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In some of its advertising the respondent represents by a series of pictures and appropriate printed matter adjoining thereto, exterior and interior views of a large building with a purported display sign appearing on one wall of said building reading as follows:

Publishers, printers, binders of blank books and bookkeeping systems.

On the same page there are pictures of large printing presses with numerous workmen showing various operations in printing and binding of respondent's book.

Following are typical examples of other advertisements of the respondent:

A Helping Hand from Uncle Sam!

Federal and State Tax Laws now command every business to keep Tax Records. None dares risk heavy fines and penalties. Tremendous forced demands. * * * Officially approved. Satisfies legal requirements. * * * New and countless thousands established users eagerly order now to comply with law.

"Gold Mine" now to January 1st, because all retailers start records forced by New Federal and State Tax Laws under severe penalties.

Federal and State Deputy Checking Agents are checking up the records of firms and individuals demanding figures and the use of proper book of records—The Officially Approved Liberty Tax Record Is the Answer!

Now, in addition to heavy penalties for Federal Income Tax Law violations, New State Sales Tax and Income Tax Laws Provide severe fines and even prison sentences. The Liberty Tax Record is the only REAL protection. Officially O. K'D By Tax Authorities Everywhere. Positive proofs—By the Hundred—Placed Into Your Hands.

These picturizations, together with the printed matter adjoining, and also the additional advertising statements herein set out, represent to the public that the respondent prints, binds, and publishes its book in this building with machinery and skilled binders and printers under its control; that Federal and State laws require that books of account be kept on respondent's record books; and that respondent's record books have been approved by Federal and State officials and tax authorities.

PAR. 3. There are purchasers of record books who prefer to deal direct with the printer or binder of such books, because of the belief that they can secure better prices, superior merchandise, and other advantages which cannot be secured when said books are purchased after having gone through the hands of middlemen.

PAR. 4. The Commission finds that respondent's book is printed and bound by printers and binders not under the control of the respondent. Respondent is not a printer or a binder of record books and bookkeeping systems. Respondent employs a few persons to fill orders for books which it sells. These books are printed and bound by independent contractors not under the control of the respondent. All of the business of the respondent is transacted by correspondence. This correspondence and the filling of orders are carried on in an office and storeroom on the ninth floor of a building resembling the building pictured and described as herein set forth.

PAR. 5. The Commission further finds that while certain State and Federal officials have written respondent stating that respondent's book is useful in keeping records for the purpose of income taxation, no State or Federal Government official is permitted to approve any tax record book or bookkeeping system. No State or Federal official has officially approved respondent's book. While State and Federal laws require that certain persons pay an income tax, no Federal or State law required that books of account be kept on respondent's record books or on any particular form or book.

PAR. 6. Each and all of the false and misleading statements and representations made by the respondent in describing the status of its business and product, the tax record book, as hereinabove set out, were, and are, calculated to, and have had the tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that all of said representations are true. As a result of this erroneous belief a number of the consuming public have purchased a substantial volume of respondent's books with the result that trade has been diverted unfairly to respondent from its competitors engaged in the business of selling and distributing in commerce among and between the various States of the United States products intended, designed, and used for the purposes for which respondent recommends its said product, and who truthfully represent their respective products.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondent, testimony and other evidence taken before A. F. Thomas, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, briefs filed herein, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that the respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Commonwealth Publishing Co., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of its record books in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act do forthwith cease and desist from representing that:

1. Federal and State laws require that books of account be kept on respondent's record books.
2. Respondent's record books have been approved by Federal or State officials or taxing authorities.
3. Respondent is a printer or binder of record books and book-keeping systems.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

DARLING & COMPANYCOMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914*Docket 3766. Complaint, Dec. 14, 1939<sup>1</sup>—Decision, Mar. 19, 1940*

Where a corporation which was engaged for more than ten years, directly and through subsidiaries, in purchase of raw materials consisting chiefly of shop fats, bones, suet, and calfskins and hides, and in processing such raw materials and selling and offering for sale finished products therefrom to purchasers in other States, and which, operating chiefly in the eastern and midwestern portions of the United States, was in substantial competition with others similarly engaged in purchase of raw materials in commerce among the various States and in sale of processed calfskins, hides, fertilizer, and products manufactured or rendered from fats, bones, and suet, in commerce as aforesaid, and, by reason of its financial strength, was predominating organization in business in question in territory in which it and its subsidiaries operated; with intent to injure and eliminate competition in purchase of unprocessed hides, calfskins, fats, bones, and suet in said territories—

- (a) Paid, in localities in which it met competition in purchase of raw materials, prices higher than justified by trade conditions, and quoted, in such localities, without intending to pay, prices higher than justified, as aforesaid set forth;
- (b) Enticed, through higher wages and otherwise, drivers covering routes of sources of supply of raw materials of competitors to leave employ of latter and enter into its own employ, with intent of obtaining for itself supply previously obtained by drivers aforesaid for such competitors;
- (c) Held out as independent certain of its subsidiaries; and
- (d) Solicited making of, and did make, loans to butchers in various cities upon agreement that all fats, bones, suet, and other offal from said butchers' shops should be sold exclusively to respondent by such butchers, by whom, pursuant to agreements aforesaid, sales were thereafter refused to its competitors;

With result that said acts and practices actually injured, hindered, and prevented competition in purchase of unprocessed hides, calfskins, fats, bones, and suet in commerce, and had dangerous tendency so to do and to create in it, in territories in question, monopoly in purchase of products aforesaid, and with result of unreasonably restraining commerce in question therein:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice of competitors and public, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

AMENDED COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Darling & Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its amended complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent is a corporation organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Illinois, with its principal office and place of business in Chicago in said State. It is now and for more than 10 years last past has been engaged directly and through subsidiary corporations in the purchase of raw materials consisting chiefly of shop fat, bones and suet, calf skins, and hides, in commerce between and among various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia and in the sale of processed hides and calf skins, fertilizer, and other products rendered from raw materials, in commerce between and among the various states of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent's places of business are chiefly in the Eastern and Mid-western portions of the United States although it sells directly and through subsidiaries generally throughout the United States.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its business said respondent has caused and still causes such raw materials, when purchased by it, to be transported to its various places of business and to the places of business of its subsidiary corporations from the places of purchase in various States of the United States other than the States in which the manufacturing plants of respondent and of its subsidiaries are located, and in the course and conduct of its business said respondent has caused and still causes such processed hides and skins, fertilizer, and products rendered from fat, bones and suet, when sold by it, to be transported from its place of business in Chicago and from the places of business of its various subsidiary corporations, into and through various States of the United States other than the state in which the respondent and its subsidiary corporations have their places of business, to the purchasers in such other States and in the District of Columbia to whom such processed hides and skins, fertilizer, and products rendered from fat, bones, and suet, are sold. Respondent, in the territory in which it manufactures directly and through subsidiaries the products sold by it, is the largest single organization in the industry in which it is engaged, and by reason also of its financial strength is the predominating corporation in such business. In the course and conduct of its business respondent is now and for more than 10 years last past has been in substantial competition with other corporations and with firms, persons, and partnerships engaged in the purchase of raw materials in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and in the sale of processed hides and calf skins, fertilizer, and products rendered from fat, bones and suet, in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. For the purpose and with the intent to eliminate competition in the purchase of unprocessed hides, calf skins, fat, bones, and suet for the purpose and with the intent to restrain and control the supply of processed hides and calf skins, fertilizer, and products rendered from fat, bones, and suet entering into and moving in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and to control the price of processed hides and calf skins, fertilizer, and products rendered from fat, bones, and suet, and for the purpose of injuring and eliminating competition in such commerce the respondent, since 1930, directly and through its subsidiaries has done and is still doing, among other things, the following:

1. It is paying and has paid, in localities in which it meets competition in the purchase of raw materials, prices higher than justified by trade conditions and so high as to be prohibitive to its competitors.

2. It is quoting and has quoted, in localities in which it meets competition in the purchase of raw materials, prices higher than justified by trade conditions and so high as to be prohibitive to its competitors, without intending to pay such prices, but by the quoting thereof making it difficult, if not impossible, for its competitors to buy at prices lower than the prices so quoted.

3. It has enticed and still is enticing by the payment of higher wages and by other means, drivers covering routes of sources of supply of raw materials of its competitors to leave the employ of its competitors, and to enter into the employ of the respondent for the purpose of obtaining for respondent the supply of raw materials previously obtained by such drivers for such competitors.

4. It has held out and is still holding out certain of its subsidiary corporations as being independent of and from the respondent and refraining from notifying the trade and the public that certain of its subsidiaries are controlled and affiliated with respondent.

5. It has agreed and still agrees with certain of its large competitors upon divisions of territory for the purchase of raw materials.

6. For the purpose of forcing certain of its competitors to sell their business to respondent or to go out of business altogether, it has paid and is paying prices for raw materials not justified by trade conditions and so high as to be prohibitive to such competitors.

7. In connection with purchases and intended purchases of raw materials by certain of its competitors, it has disparaged and still disparages the financial standing, financial ability and integrity of such competitors.

8. It has solicited the making of loans by it to butchers in Detroit, Cleveland, and in other cities, upon the agreement of such butchers that they sell all of the fat, bones, suet and other offal from their shops exclusively to respondent, and pursuant to such solicitation has made loans to butchers located in Detroit, Cleveland, and in other cities on such agreements, pursuant to which butchers to whom such loans have been made have refused to sell to competitors of respondent.

PAR. 4. The acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of competitors of respondent and of the public; have a dangerous tendency to and have actually hindered and prevented competition in the purchase of unprocessed hides, calf skins, fat, bones, and suet; have a dangerous tendency to create in respondent a monopoly in the purchase of hides, calf skins, fat, bones, and suet in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act; have unreasonably restrained such commerce in unprocessed hides, calf skins, fat, bones, and suet; have a dangerous tendency to and have actually hindered and prevented competition in the sale of processed hides and calf skins, fertilizer and products rendered from fat, bones, and suet, in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act; have a dangerous tendency to create in respondent a monopoly in processed hides and calf skins, fertilizer, and products rendered from fat, bones, and suet, in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act; have unreasonably restrained such commerce in processed hides and calf skins, fertilizer and products rendered from fat, bones, and suet, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on April 17, 1939, issued, and on April 18, 1939, served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, Darling & Co., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act; and the Commission, on December 14, 1939, issued, and on December 15, 1939, served, its amended complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, Darling & Co., charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said amended complaint and the filing of respondent's answer, the Commission, by order entered herein, granted respondent's motion for permission to withdraw said answer and to substitute therefor an answer admitting all the material allegations of fact set forth in said amended complaint except the allegations of fact set forth in subparagraphs 5 and 7 of paragraph 3 thereof, and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts so admitted, which substitute answer was duly filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said amended complaint and substitute answer, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Darling & Co., is a corporation organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Illinois and has its home office and principal place of business in the city of Chicago in the State of Illinois. Respondent is now, and for more than 10 years last past has been, engaged directly and through subsidiary corporations, in the purchase of raw materials consisting chiefly of shop fats, bones, suet and calfskins and hides, and in processing said raw materials and in selling and offering for sale the finished products from said raw materials. Respondent operates chiefly in the eastern and midwestern portions of the United States.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its business said respondent has caused, and still causes, such raw materials, when purchased by it, to be transported to its various places of business and to the places of business of its subsidiary corporations from the places of purchase in various States of the United States other than the States in which the manufacturing plants of respondent and of its subsidiary corporations are located; and in the course and conduct of its business the respondent has caused, and still causes such processed hides and calfskins and the finished products manufactured or rendered from said raw materials to be transported from its place of business in Chicago, Ill., and from the places of business, of its various subsidiary corporations, into and through various States of the United States other than the States in which the respondent and its various subsidiary corporations have plants and places of business, to the purchasers in such other States to whom such finished products are sold.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of its business the respondent is now, and for more than 10 years last past has been, in substantial competition with other corporations and with partnerships, firms, and persons engaged in the purchase of raw materials in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the sale of processed calfskins, hides, fertilizer and products manufactured or rendered from fats, bones, and suet in commerce among and between the various States of the United States.

PAR. 4. The respondent, by reason of its financial strength, is the predominating organization in such business in the territories in which it and its subsidiary corporations operate, and for the purpose and with the intent to injure and eliminate competition in the purchase of unprocessed hides, calfskins, fats, bones, and suet in the territories in which it and its subsidiaries operate, has done, and is now doing, among other things, the following:

1. It has paid, and is paying, in localities in which it meets competition in the purchase of raw materials, prices higher than justified by trade conditions.

2. It has quoted, and is quoting, in localities in which it meets competition in the purchase of raw materials, prices higher than justified by trade conditions without intending to pay such prices.

3. It has enticed, and is enticing, by the payment of higher wages and by other means, drivers covering routes of sources of supply of raw materials of its competitors to leave the employ of its competitors and to enter into the employ of the respondent for the purpose of obtaining for respondent the supply of raw materials previously obtained by such drivers for such competitors.

4. It has held out, and is still holding out, certain of its subsidiary corporations as being independent of and from respondent.

5. It has solicited the making of loans by it to butchers in Detroit, Mich., Cleveland, Ohio, and in other cities upon the agreement of such butchers that they sell all of the fats, bones, suet and other offal from their shops exclusively to respondent, and pursuant to such solicitation has made loans to butchers located in Detroit, Mich., Cleveland, Ohio, and in other cities on such agreements pursuant to which butchers to whom such loans have been made have refused to sell to competitors of respondent.

CONCLUSION

The acts and practices of the respondent as hereinabove set forth are all to the prejudice of competitors of respondent and of the public; have a dangerous tendency to and have actually injured, hindered and prevented competition in the purchase of unprocessed hides, calfskins, fats, bones, and suet in commerce as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act; have a dangerous tendency to create in respondent in the territories in which it operates a monopoly in the purchase of hides, calfskins, fats, bones, and suet in such commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act; have unreasonably restrained such commerce in unprocessed hides, calfskins, fats, bones, and suet and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the amended complaint of the Commission and the substitute answer of respondent, in which substitute answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said amended complaint, with the exceptions of the facts alleged in subparagraphs numbered 5 and 7 of paragraph 3, and states that it waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts admitted in said substitute answer, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act as alleged in said amended complaint, except as alleged in subparagraphs numbered 5 and 7 of paragraph 3 thereof;

It is ordered, That the respondent, Darling & Co., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporation or otherwise, in connection with the purchase of raw materials such as unprocessed hides, calf skins, fat, bones, and suet in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, with the purpose or effect of eliminating competition in the purchase of said products, do forthwith cease and desist from:

Order

1. Paying, in localities in which it meets competition in the purchase of raw materials, prices higher than justified by trade conditions.

2. Quoting, without intending to pay, in localities in which it meets competition in the purchase of raw materials, prices higher than justified by trade conditions.

3. Enticing, by the payment of higher wages or by any other means, drivers covering routes of sources of supply of raw materials of its competitors, to leave the employ of its competitors and to enter into the employ of the respondent.

4. Holding out any of its subsidiary corporations as being independent of and from the respondent.

5. Soliciting the making of loans by it to butchers in any locality where it purchases raw materials upon an agreement of such butchers that they sell all of the fat, bones, suet and other offals from their shops exclusively to respondent.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that William A. Frew, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, William A. Frew, is an individual with his principal office and place of business located in the city of Paradise, State of Pennsylvania. Respondent is now, and for some time last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of candy, garden seed, watches, blankets, towels, musical instruments, housekeeping sets, bedspreads, flashlights, cameras, tableware, toilet sets, and numerous other articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In carrying on said business, respondent has adopted and used various trade names, among which are Paradise Products Co., Paradise Seed Co., Paradise Candy Co., Paradise Chocolate Co., Square Deal Co., Lancaster County Seed Co., Lancaster Seed Co., Garden Spot Seed Co., Garden Seed Co. of America, and Good Luck Gardens. Respondent causes and has caused said products, when sold, to be shipped or transported from his aforesaid place of business in Pennsylvania, to purchasers thereof in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia at the respective points of location of said customers. There is now, and has been for some time last past, a course of trade by said respondent in such merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business, respondent is and has been in competition with other individuals and with partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and distributes, and has sold and distributed, said products by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. The respondent distributes or causes to be distributed to the general public certain advertising literature, catalogs, and sales circulars. In selling and distributing his merchandise, respondent has made use of various sales plans or methods differing in detail in accordance with the particular merchandise offered for sale, but all involving the same principle.

One of said plans involves the sale of a number of packages or boxes of candy, together with various other articles of merchandise, which other articles of merchandise are to be given as prizes to purchasers of said packages or boxes of candy in the following manner:

The catalog or circular of respondent has on the back cover thereof a number of partially perforated tabs or pulls, each of which has a legend or design. Sales are 20 cents each, and each purchaser of a package or box of candy is entitled to separate one of the said tabs from the catalog or circular, and on the reverse side thereof appears a legend stating the particular prize or the number of the particular prize to which such purchaser is entitled without additional charge. The inside of the back cover of said circular has a legend that a piece of blank paper is to be pasted over, the legend showing the particular prize which is to be distributed, and purchasers and prospective purchasers are thus unable to ascertain which prize they will receive until a purchase has been made and the particular tab separated from the circular or catalog. The person operating the pull card receives his choice of a cash commission or a premium for selling said boxes of candy, together with the prizes offered by respondent in connection therewith. The prizes or other articles of merchandise which ultimate purchasers receive in connection with the purchase of a package or box of candy are thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

Another assortment sold and distributed by respondent consists of a number of articles of merchandise, and such assortment is sold and distributed to the consuming public in the following manner:

A portion of one of said sales circulars consists of a list on which there are designated a number of items of merchandise and the prices thereof. Adjacent to said list is printed and set out a device commonly called a pull card. Said pull card consists of a number of tabs under each of which is concealed the name of one of the articles of merchandise appearing in said list and the price thereof. The name of the article of merchandise and the price thereof are so con-
