_Mr. John T. Haslett_ for the Commission.

 Root, Clark, Buckner & Ballantine, of Washington, D. C., for respondent.

Complaint

The Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that the party respondent, named in the caption hereof and hereinafter more particularly designated and described, since June 19, 1936, has violated and is now violating the provisions of section 2 of the Clayton Act as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act, approved June 19, 1936 (U. S. C., title 15, sec 13), hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges with respect thereto as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Lambert Pharmacal Co., is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, with its principal office and place of business located at 2101 Locust Street, St. Louis, Mo. Respondent corporation is now, and has been since June 19, 1936, engaged in the business of manufacturing, offering for sale, selling and distributing "Listerine," an antiseptic mouthwash, and other allied products. Respondent sells and distributes said products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia and as a result of said sales causes said products to be shipped and transported from the place of origin of the shipment to the purchasers thereof who are located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, other than the State of origin of the shipment. There is and has been, at all times mentioned, a continuous current of trade and commerce in the said products across State lines between respondent's factory and the purchasers of said products. Said products are sold and distributed for resale within the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of its business, as aforesaid, respondent is now, and during the time herein mentioned has been, in substantial competition with other corporations, and with individuals, partnerships, and firms engaged in the business of manufacturing, selling, and distributing antiseptic mouthwash and other allied products in commerce.
Complaint

Par. 3. In the course and conduct of its business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent since June 19, 1936, has been and now is allowing certain percentage rebates to certain of its customers who are selected by the respondent, hereinafter designated as favored customers, in addition to regular trade discounts generally allowed to all of the respondent's customers. Such favored customers, to whom the respondent allows such percentage rebates, furnish the respondent with certain advertising, selling or warehousing facilities and place with the respondent a certain minimum order for its said products. Such percentage rebates are paid to said favored customers on their previous month's purchases in consideration for such services. The respondent pays these percentage rebates to its favored customers without making such payments available on proportionately equal terms to all other customers competing with such favored customers in the distribution of respondent's said products.

Said percentage rebates are allowed by the respondent to its favored customers as follows:

(a) The respondent pays to a certain group of the aforesaid customers, wholesalers, handling the respondent's products, in consideration of certain warehousing and selling facilities furnished by such wholesaler, a 10 percent rebate on each month's purchases, such rebate being paid in the form of a check by the respondent during the month subsequent to that in which such purchases are made.

(b) The respondent pays to another group of such aforesaid customers, wholesalers, a 5 percent rebate on each month's purchases paid during the subsequent month, in consideration of such rebate said wholesaler is to furnish warehouse facilities for the respondent's products.

(c) The respondent pays to certain of such aforesaid customers, retailers, a 10 percent rebate on each month's purchases, payable during the subsequent month, in consideration of which the purchasers agree to furnish the respondent with certain advertising facilities and sales services for the respondent's products.

(d) The respondent pays to certain other of such aforesaid customers, retailers, a rebate of 5 percent of each month's purchases payable during the subsequent month, in consideration of certain advertising facilities to be furnished by such retailer for the respondent's products.

In order to be eligible for such rebates paid by the respondent, its said favored wholesale customers must place orders of a minimum of $50 for the respondent's products, to be made in one shipment.
In order to be eligible for such rebates, respondent's said favored retail customers must place orders of a minimum of $36 for the respondent's products, to be made in one shipment.

Paragraph 4. The above-described acts and practices of respondent are in violation of subsection (d) of section 2 of the Clayton Act as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act, approved June 19, 1936 (U. S. C. title 15, sec. 13).

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress entitled "An act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies, and for other purposes," approved October 15, 1914 (the Clayton Act), as amended by section 1 of the act, entitled "An act to amend section 2 of an act entitled 'An act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies, and for other purposes,' approved October 15, 1914, as amended (U. S. C. title 15, sec. 13), and for other purposes," approved June 19, 1936 (the Robinson-Patman Act), the Federal Trade Commission, on March 29, 1939, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon the party respondent named in the caption hereof, charging respondent with violating the provisions of subsection (d) of section 2 of said act as amended. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer, a stipulation was entered into between W. T. Kelley, chief counsel for the Commission, and the respondent, containing a statement of certain facts which it was agreed might be taken as the facts solely for the purpose of this proceeding and authorizing the Commission to proceed upon such statement to make its report, stating its findings as to the facts and its conclusion based thereon, and enter its order disposing of the proceeding without the presentation of argument or the filing of briefs. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, the above-mentioned stipulation of certain facts and the answer, briefs and oral argument of counsel having been waived, and the Commission, having duly considered the same and being now fully advised in the premises, makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

Findings as to the Facts

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Lambert Pharmacal Co., is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Delaware, with its principal office and place of business located at 2117 Franklin Avenue, St. Louis.
PAR. 2. Respondent corporation is now and has been, since June 19, 1936, engaged in the business of manufacturing, offering for sale, selling, and distributing "Listerine Antiseptic," an antiseptic mouthwash, and allied products. Respondent sells and distributes its products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia and, as a result of such sales, causes said products to be shipped and transported from its place of business to purchasers thereof who are located in States of the United States other than the State in which respondent's place of business is located. There is and has been at all times mentioned a continuous course of trade and commerce in the said products across State lines between respondent's factory and the purchasers of said products. The respondent's said products are sold and distributed for use and resale within the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of its business as aforesaid, respondent is now, and during all the time herein mentioned has been, in substantial competition with other corporations and with individuals, partnerships and firms engaged in the business of manufacturing antiseptic mouthwash and other allied products and the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of same in commerce.

PAR. 4. Respondent offers and sells its said products at one list price for each product, from which all customers, both wholesalers and retailers, are allowed by the respondent a 5 percent trade discount and an additional discount of 1 percent for cash, with freight prepaid on all shipments.

The respondent in the course and conduct of its business has granted and allowed compensation to a group of wholesalers in consideration for carrying warehouse stocks and furnishing selling services and facilities. To members of this group the respondent has paid a sum equal to 10 percent of the respondent's net billing prices of the products sold by such members during the previous month.

To another group of wholesalers in consideration for carrying warehouse stocks the respondent has paid a sum equal to 5 percent of the previous month's purchases.

To a group of retailers, in consideration for certain advertising and selling services and facilities, the respondent has paid a sum equal to 10 percent of the previous month's purchases.

To another group of retailers in consideration for services and facilities less extensive than those furnished by 10-percent retailers, the respondent has paid a sum equal to 5 percent of the previous month's purchasers.
Findings

All wholesale customers are required to place minimum orders of $50 and all retail customers minimum orders of $20 regardless of whether they receive the above-mentioned compensation; smaller minimums apply in the case of 10-cent merchandise.

In the course and conduct of its said business, the respondent, in may instances, has contracted for the payment, and has paid and allowed, to some of its wholesale and retail customers, compensation for services and facilities furnished by such customers in connection with the handling, sale, or offering for sale of the commodities purchased by such customers. To other of its wholesale and retail customers, comparatively engaged with the former, the respondent has failed and refused to make available or to pay and allow compensation for the similar and same services and facilities offered to be furnished by such customers in connection with the handling, sale, or offering for sale of such commodities, even though requested so to do by such customers. In so doing the respondent has failed and refused to make the compensation allowed, paid and granted to some of its customers for services or facilities furnished by them in connection with the handling, sale, or offering for sale of the commodities purchased by them from respondent, available to all of its customers competing in the distribution of such commodities on proportionally equal terms.

In the course and conduct of its said business, the respondent has sold its products to various wholesale and retail customers to whom it has paid compensation in an amount equal to 5 percent of the previous month’s purchases for various services and facilities. Some of these customers claim that they were able and willing to furnish services and facilities for which the respondent paid an amount equal to 10 percent of the previous month’s purchases to other of its customers competitively engaged with the former. Some such 5-percent compensation customers have requested the respondent to pay such compensation to them and even though requested, the respondent has refused to pay the 10-percent compensation to such customers.

Par. 5. The aforesaid complaint and the foregoing findings relate to the respondent’s compensation plan in effect at the date of said complaint. While denying in its answer dated May 16, 1939, that the plan complained of was in violation of law, the respondent has since adopted a revision of such plan deemed by the respondent to eliminate questions as to such violation.
CONCLUSION

Under the facts and circumstances as set forth in the foregoing findings as to the facts, the Commission concludes that the respondent, Lambert Pharmacal Co., has granted and allowed compensation to certain of its customers for facilities and services without making such payments available to all other competing customers on proportionally equal terms, in violation of subsection (d) of section 2 of the Clayton Act, as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondent and the stipulation as to the facts entered into between the respondent herein and William T. Kelley, chief counsel for the Commission, which provides, among other things, that without the presentation of argument or other intervening procedure the Commission may issue and serve upon the respondent herein findings as to the facts and conclusion based thereon and an order disposing of the proceedings and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of subsection (d) of section 2 of an Act of Congress approved October 15, 1914, entitled “An act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies and for other purposes,” the Clayton Act, as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Lambert Pharmacal Co., its officers, representatives, agents, and employees cease and desist from:

1. Granting, or allowing compensation to any wholesale customer of the respondent, of an amount equal to 10 percent of the respondent’s net billing prices of the products sold by such customer during the previous month, for services or facilities furnished by or through such customer in connection with the handling, sale, or offering for sale of respondent’s products, unless such payments are made available on proportionally equal terms to all buyers from the respondent who are competitors of such customer.

2. Granting or allowing compensation, of an amount equal to 5 percent of the previous month’s purchases, to any wholesale customer of the respondent, for services or facilities furnished by or through such customer in connection with the handling, sale, or offering for sale of respondent’s products unless such payments are made available on proportionally equal terms to all buyers from the respondent who are competitors of such customer.
3. Granting or allowing compensation, of an amount equal to 10 percent of the previous month's purchases, to any retail customer of the respondent for services or facilities furnished by or through such customer in connection with the handling, sale, or offering for sale of respondent's products unless such payments are made available on proportionally equal terms to all buyers from the respondent who are competitors of such customer.

4. Granting or allowing compensation, of an amount equal to 5 percent of the previous month's purchases, to any retail customer of the respondent for services or facilities furnished by or through such customer in connection with the handling, sale, or offering for sale of respondent's products unless such payments are made available on proportionally equal terms to all buyers from the respondent who are competitors of such customer.

It is further ordered, That the respondent Lambert Pharmacal Co., a corporation, its officers, directors, representatives, agents, and employees, in connection with the sale and distribution of its "Listerine Antiseptic" and allied products, do forthwith cease and desist from granting or allowing to any customer of the respondent any compensation for services or facilities furnished by or through such customer in connection with the handling, sale or offering for sale of respondent's products, unless such payments are made available on proportionally equal terms to all buyers from the respondent who are competitors of such customer.

It is further ordered, That respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.
IN THE MATTER OF IMOGENE SHEPHERD, LTD.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Where a corporation engaged in sale and distribution of its “Baby Skin Oil” and “Baby Skin Oil Soap,” to purchasers at various points in the several other States and in the District of Columbia, in competition, in commerce as aforesaid, with others selling and distributing cosmetics, toiletteries, and similar merchandise, and including many engaged in manufacture and sale or sale thereof who do not employ and maintain below enumerated and described practices, but truthfully represent and vend said products; in advertising its said preparations through newspapers, periodicals and other advertising literature—

(a) Represented that its said oil was “a skin normalizer, not a cosmetic,” which made “any skin more healthy” and restored to adult “soft and silken texture of baby skin,” and that it was “scientifically recognized that modern living and washing routine removes indispensable fatty acids generally known as lipids) from the skin, resulting in deficiency symptoms such as dryness, ruggness of the skin, eczema and acne,” and that such blemishes and skin irregularities were “becoming more commonly known as ‘vitamin F de-ciciency’ in the skin,” and that said oil was “designed to restore to the skin by absorption the normal balance of lipids” and that person associated with the corporate name had, by “brilliant experiments,” “discovered that vitamin F could be reintroduced into the system by absorption by the skin,” and that through use of its said products permanent benefits would result to skin on account of Vitamin E and “Vitamin F” content;

Facts being unsaturated fatty acids or “lipids” contained in human skin are supplied in food and distributed through the body in natural process of metabolism, administration of vitamins or fatty acids topically by massage is impracticable and will not affect condition of skin, any possible existing deficiency in any of the vitamins or fatty acids being corrected by giving needed elements by mouth, no “Vitamin F,” used by it to describe “substances” not chemically identified, but associated with such lipids, is known as such in scientific world or recognized officially by American Medical Association or any other scientific organization, and vitamin E, obtained in abundance in the daily diet, does not, as revealed by any evidence, play any role in normal life and nutrition of human skin, removal of certain fatty substances, which cannot be replaced by topical inunction and are normally secreted by skin, by clothes or in washing will not adversely affect appearance thereof, and, while regular use of its said products may improve appearance of skin as superficial and largely psychological result, “baby skin” cannot be simulated or produced in older person through use thereof, and any beneficial effects therefrom by virtue of emollient and protective action and aid in correction of dryness, are independent of vitamin E and so-called “Vitamin F” content; and
Complaint

(b) Represented, as aforesaid indicated, that its said preparation constituted an effective remedy for "deficiency symptoms such as dryness, roughness of the skin, eczema and acne," and that its said oil was "an amazing discovery" and "the outstanding development in beauty culture of the present day," and that "a healthy woman with a dried-looking skin can reclaim a skin with the freshness and texture of perpetual youth by constant use" of said oil;

Facts being it was not a discovery nor any such development, said products had no therapeutic effect and did not constitute cure or remedy for eczema or acne, result, as case may be, of diet or infection, nor for roughness of skin, result of congenital condition thereof, disease, exposure, faulty diet, and other causes, and, as aforesaid indicated, would not restore to skin of adult appearance and texture of baby skin, affect health and appearance of skin, replace or restore essential lipids and vitamin E, have any beneficial effect in treatment of deficiency symptoms, or contribute to correction and prevention of skin disfigurements, or restore to skin necessary vitamins or fatty acids, or benefit same permanently by reason of addition thereof;

With effect of misleading and deceiving members of purchasing public into belief that said representations were true, and of causing members of such public, as result thereof, to purchase substantial quantities of its products, and of diverting unfairly to it trade of competitors engaged in sale in commerce of products of same kind and nature, truthfully advertised and represented:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

Before Mr. Miles J. Furnas, trial examiner.

Mr. John R. Phillips, Jr., for the Commission.

Pam, Hurd & Reichmann, of Chicago, Ill., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Imogene Shepherd, Ltd., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Imogene Shepherd, Ltd., is a corporation created by, and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, with its principal offices and place of business located at 155 East Ohio Street, Chicago, Ill.

PAR. 2. Respondent is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, engaged in the business of distributing and selling a line of cosmetics, designated by it as "Baby Skin Oil and Soap." Respondent caused said products when sold to be transported from its place of business in the State of Illinois to its customers located in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein, has maintained, a course of trade in said cosmetics sold and distributed by it in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of its business, respondent is in active and substantial competition with other corporations and with partnerships and individuals engaged in the sale and distribution of cosmetics in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of said business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of said cosmetics, respondent by means of advertising circulars and folders, and by means of advertisements inserted in magazines and newspapers circulated between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, has made many representations concerning the character and nature of said cosmetics, and concerning the results obtained from their use. Among said representations made by respondent are the following:

BABY SKIN OIL AND SOAP—Increase Cosmetic Sales with this Marvelous Vitamin F Fair! They'll Normalize Your Customer's Skin and Give her Baby Loveliness! * * * BABY SKIN OIL SOAP is the perfect bland, gentle cleanser.

BABY SKIN OIL Restores Essential Lipids To The Skin. VITAMINS E and F.

OIL AS NATURE'S BABY COSMETIC * * * To the present day, it is important that all applications to the baby's body be oily in nature, and that they be founded on a base of Vitamin F, a lipid naturally contained and needed by the skin. After every bath, this oil should be freely applied and gently rubbed into the baby skin. The oil is quickly absorbed and the skin responds with an improved appearance of freshness and glowing healthfulness envied in the infant skin.

DEFICIENCIES IN THE ADULT SKIN. It is scientifically recognized that modern living and washing routine removes indispensable fatty acids (generally known as lipids) from the skin, resulting in deficiency symptoms, such as dryness and roughness of the skin, eczema, and acne. These blemishes and skin "irregularities" are becoming more commonly known as "vitamin F, deficiency" in the skin * * * Just as the oil mixture is good for the skin of a baby, it is efficacious in restoring a distinguishable measure of baby skin "blush" and freshness to the adolescent and adult skin, by restoring the vital skin lipids.

I am totally unaware of the existence anywhere of a cosmetic chemist who has experimented so widely and so successfully as has Mary Imogene Shepherd in the work of restoring to the skin through cosmetic preparations the needed skin fats, specifically vitamins E and F.

The brilliant work of this research investigator is remaking the cosmetic world, as it should be, on a higher plane of service and efficacy. Through her work with such thoroughly trained scientific collaborators as Linn, McMath, Glennon, Alexander, Sorenson and others, she is contributing directly to the prevention and correction of skin disfigurements through cosmetic usage.
Miss Shepherd's remarks are based on her exhaustive experimentation with laboratory animals and 30,000 human trials extending over the past five years.

(Signed) August J. Pacini, Ph. D.

The beneficial results from the use of Baby Skin Oil come from the absorption of the oil by the skin.

The proper amount will be absorbed automatically and will not clog the pores.

The Big Difference Between Cosmetics and Baby Skin Oil is that cosmetics for most part paint the beauty on the outside, while Baby Skin Oil makes sure your beauty is at least skin deep by making beautiful skin.

Baby Skin Oil Is An Amazing Discovery—It Makes Any Skin More Healthy, and a Healthy Skin is Indeed A Beautiful Skin.

It is the outstanding development in beauty culture of the present day. It is simple, safe (doctors recommend it for the tenderest of baby skins) and resultful.

All of said statements, together with similar statements appearing in respondent's advertising literature, purport to be descriptive of respondent's products, and of their effectiveness in use. In all of its advertising literature and through other means respondent, directly or by inference, through statements and representations herein set out, and other statements of similar import and effect, represents: That its "Baby Skin Oil and Soap" by topical application will be of benefit in restoring any component of the skin in which it may be deficient; that the use of respondent's products will result in permanent beneficial results to the skin because of "Vitamin E" and "Vitamin F" content; that respondent's products will prevent or correct disfigurements, blemishes, dryness and roughness of the skin; that there exists such a vitamin as "Vitamin F," which is generally identified and recognized by the majority of reliable scientific authorities and which contains lipids or unsaturated fatty acids contained and needed by the skin; that its products are of "Vitamin E" and "Vitamin F" content; that its products will "normalize the skin"; that its preparations restore essential or vital lipids or needed skin fats to the skin which restore baby skin loveliness of soft silken texture, and a healthy skin with improved appearance of freshness, glow, and blush; that all applications to a baby's body should be oily, or that they should be founded on a base of "Vitamin F"; that its products are a treatment for, or a remedy for acne, eczema, roughness and dryness, blemishes and other skin irregularities; that they will sink into the tissues, or that they can be rubbed into the skin; that they will penetrate or be absorbed by the skin; that they will not clog the pores; that by the absorption of its "Baby Skin Oil" beauty will be skin deep and make beautiful skin; that its products are not cosmetics; that it will be efficacious in all cases; that its products are the outstanding development of the present day in beauty culture; that they are amazing and are recommended by doctors.
The representations made by respondent with respect to the nature and effect of its products when used are grossly exagergated, false, misleading, and untrue. In truth and in fact, respondent's "Baby Skin Oil and Soap" are cosmetics, and by topical application will not be beneficial in restoring any deficient component to the skin. Use thereof will not have a beneficial result to the skin and it will not prevent nor correct disfigurements, blemishes, dryness, and roughness of the skin. There does not exist a so-called "Vitamin F" which is generally identified and recognized by the majority of reliable scientific authorities, containing lipids or unsaturated fatty acids which are contained in and needed by the skin.
A beneficial effect to the skin will not be derived by using the products of respondent because of "Vitamin E" and "Vitamin F" content.
The use of "Baby Skin Oil and Soap" will not "normalize the skin," and its preparations will not restore essential or vital lipids or needed fats to the skin, restoring baby skin loveliness of soft silken texture and a healthy skin with improved appearance of freshness, bloom, and blush. All applications to a baby's body need not be oily nor founded on a base of "Vitamin F." Its products are not a treatment for, or a remedy for, acne, eczema, roughness and dryness, blemishes, and other skin irregularities. "Baby Skin Oil and Soap" will not penetrate the tissues of the skin and be absorbed, and are likely to clog the pores. The use of "Baby Skin Oil and Soap" will not be efficacious in all cases, and is not the outstanding development in beauty culture of the present day, is not an amazing discovery, and doctors do not generally recommend the use thereof.
The true facts are that the ingredients of respondent's products are not absorbed by or through the skin. While scientific literature contains no reference to a skin vitamin, it is possible that some types of vitamins may be absorbed through the skin. Furthermore, in the ordinary diet of Americans, particularly cosmetic users, there is little likelihood of being any deficiency in either vitamin E or of so-called "Vitamin F." However, if vitamins are absorbed through the skin, they will not beneficially affect the local condition of the skin where applied. Any vitamin deficiency may be more scientifically treated by diet, and by the introduction of vitamins and vitamin concentrates by way of the mouth.
There are, among respondent's competitors, many who manufacture, distribute, and sell cosmetics who do not in any way misrepresent the quality or character of their respective products, or their effectiveness when used.
Each and all of the false and misleading statements and representations made by the respondent in designing or describing its products, and their effectiveness when used, as hereinabove set out, were and are calculated to, and have had and now have, a tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that all of said representations are true. As a direct result of this erroneous and mistaken belief, a number of the consuming public have purchased a substantial volume of respondent's products, with the result that trade has been diverted unfairly to respondent from competitors likewise engaged in the business of distributing and selling cosmetics who truthfully advertise their respective products and the effectiveness thereof when used. As a result thereof, injury has been done, and is now being done, by respondent to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on the 7th day of October 1938, issued, and subsequently served, its complaint in this proceeding charging Imogene Shepherd, Ltd., a corporation, with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce, and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by John R. Phillips, attorney for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by Myron D. Davis, attorney for the respondent, before Miles J. Furnas, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony, and other evidence, briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.
FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Imogene Shepherd, Ltd., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under the laws of the State of Delaware, with its principal office and place of business located in the city of Chicago, State of Illinois. It is now, and for more than 3 years last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of certain products, sold under the names, "Baby Skin Oil" and "Baby Skin Oil Soap," in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent ships said products, when sold, from its said place of business in the State of Illinois to the purchasers thereof located at various points in the several States of the United States other than Illinois and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. Respondent, Imogene Shepherd, Ltd., has been, and is, in competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, with other corporations, and with firms, partnerships and individuals selling and distributing cosmetics, toiletries, and similar merchandise.

Par. 3. In the course and conduct of its said business, in connection with the sale and distribution of said products, respondent, through advertisements in newspapers, magazines, and other advertising literature, makes use of the following typical advertising statements and representations:

- Baby Skin Oil is a skin normalizer, not a cosmetic.
- It makes any skin more healthy.
- Doctors recommend it for the tenderest baby skins.
- It is easy to have the radiant skin of a baby.
- Restores to an adult the soft and silky texture of baby skin.
- It is scientifically recognized that modern living and washing routine removes indispensable fatty acids (generally known as lipids) from the skin, resulting in deficiency symptoms, such as dryness, roughness of the skin, eczema and acne. These blemishes and skin irregularities are becoming more commonly known as "vitamin F deficiency" in the skin. Just as the oil mixture is good for the skin of a baby it is efficacious in restoring a distinguishable measure of baby skin "blush" and freshness to the adolescent and adult skin by restoring the vital skin lipids.
- It is designed to restore to the skin by absorption the normal balance of lipids. Will be absorbed automatically and will not clog the pores.
- By brilliant experiments Miss Shepherd discovered that vitamin F could be re-introduced into the system by absorption by the skin.
- Baby Skin Oil is an amazing discovery.
- It is the outstanding development in beauty culture of the present day.
- Contributing directly to the prevention and correction of skin disfigurements through cosmetic usage.
- A healthy woman with a dried-looking skin can reclaim a skin with the freshness and texture of perpetual youth by constant use of Baby Skin Oil.
Thousands of tests have proven that it restores to your skin vitamin F and other necessary oils.

The above-quoted representations refer to the product Baby Skin Oil.

Baby Skin Oil Soap • • • will keep your skin fresh, young and smooth, in spite of cold and windy weather. • • • It's the first time we've ever heard of a soap actually containing the essential lipids which make us envy the rose-leaf softness of a baby's skin • • • By the use of Baby Skin Oil and Soap permanent benefits will result to the skin on account of the vitamin E and vitamin F content.

The last-quoted statement refers to both of said products.

PAR. 4. All of said statements are representations appearing in respondent's advertising material and literature, purport to be descriptive of the efficacy of respondent's products when used in the care and treatment of the skin, including the treatment of certain diseases, infections, ailments, and conditions occurring in connection therewith, and of the therapeutic properties and effectiveness of said products when used therefor. Through such advertising statements, respondent represents, directly and by inference, that there exists a vitamin recognized and designated as "Vitamin F," which is a necessary element in, or requisite to, the possession of a fresh, healthy, and youthful skin; that said "Vitamin F" can be, and is, introduced into the system by being absorbed through the skin by local inunction or massage, and that respondent's oils and soaps contain this vital element which can be so administered; that the use of respondent's oils and soaps containing said so-called "Vitamin F" will restore the appearance and condition of youth to the skin; that respondent's products are a remedy or cure for, or will prevent, dryness and roughness of the skin, eczema and acne, and that they will restore to the skin those indispensable fatty acids, generally known as "lipids"; deficiency in which results in such symptoms as dryness, roughness of the skin, eczema and acne; that the use of respondent's Baby Skin Oil and Soap will result in permanent benefits to the skin on account of their Vitamin E and "Vitamin F" content; that respondent's Baby Skin Oil is recommended for the tenderest baby skins and will restore to an adult skin the soft and silken texture of baby skin; and that the products of respondent will prevent and correct skin disfigurements, will rejuvenate the texture of the skin, and that said products are amazing discoveries and the outstanding development in present-day beauty culture.

PAR. 5. Based upon the testimony of experts in the fields of medicine, dermatology, pharmacology, and physiology, the Commission finds that the tissues of the human body, among other elements, contain unsaturated fatty acids generally known as lipids. The human skin contains from 3 percent to 5 percent of such lipids. Such
FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION DECISIONS

FINDINGS

31 F. T. C.

Fatty acids are supplied in the food and distributed throughout the body in the natural process of metabolism. Assuming that a deficiency in any one of the vitamins or fatty acids exists, the proper and accepted method of correcting such deficiency is by giving the needed elements by mouth, either in foods or concentrates. Administering vitamins or fatty acids topically by massage is impracticable and will not affect the condition of the skin for the reason that if any material is absorbed at all it will be absorbed into the bloodstream and the action must therefore be systemic.

PAR. 6. The Commission further finds that "Vitamin F" as such is not known in the scientific world; that such an alleged vitamin is not recognized officially by the American Medical Association or by any other scientific association, including the American Society of Physiology, the American Society of Pharmacology and the American Chemical Society. The respondent uses this term to describe what it refers to as "substances" which have not been chemically identified but have been associated with the unsaturated fatty acids generally known as "lipids."

Vitamin E is a fat soluble vitamin found in wheat germ oil, cottonseed oil, cereals, and other foods. It is obtained in abundance in the daily diet and there is no evidence that vitamin E plays any role in the normal life and nutrition of the human skin.

PAR. 7. The Commission further finds that the skin undergoes gradual atrophy with age which is manifested in a gradual breakdown of tissues. This is an inevitable characteristic of advancing age. Other factors causing a dry, rough, or wrinkled skin are sunburn, faulty diet, or skin diseases.

A "baby skin" cannot be simulated or produced in an older person through the use of respondent's products. While the regular use of said products may improve the appearance of the skin, such result is superficial and largely psychological, as no physiological changes result from such use. The skin normally secretes certain fatty substances through the sebaceous glands, and a removal of these fatty substances by cloths or in washing will not adversely affect the appearance of the skin, nor can such fatty substances be replaced by topical inunction.

The Commission finds that, while the application of respondent's oil may act as an emollient and offer some protection to the skin and aid in the correction of dryness, any beneficial effects which may be derived from the use of said products are independent of, and not because of, the vitamin E and the so-called "Vitamin F" content of said product.
Par. 8. The Commission finds that respondent’s oil and soap applied by topical inunction, are not a cure or remedy for acne, eczema, roughness, dryness, blemishes, and other skin irregularities. Eczema may be the result either of faulty diet or of infection. Acne is caused by infection and roughness of the skin, may be due to the congenital condition thereof, or it may be caused by disease, exposure to the elements, faulty diet, and other causes. The application of respondent’s oil would act as an emollient, serve as a protective coat, and make the appearance of the skin a little smoother, temporarily, but it has no therapeutic effect. The use of respondent’s soap would cleanse the skin but any fatty acids or vitamins which may be contained in the soap will be of no material or appreciable benefit to the skin.

Par. 9. The Commission finds that respondent’s product Baby Skin Oil does not have any therapeutic effects or properties and will not affect the health and appearance of the skin; it will not restore to the skin of the adult the appearance and texture of baby skin, nor will it replace or restore the essential lipids and vitamin E. Said product is not a new scientific discovery and will have no beneficial effect in the treatment of deficiency symptoms. It will not contribute to the prevention and correction of skin disfigurements, and will not restore to the skin necessary vitamins such as vitamin E or fatty acids erroneously designated by respondent as vitamin F, and will not benefit the skin permanently by reason of the addition of such substances.

Par. 10. There are among the competitors of respondent, many who are engaged in the manufacture and sale, or the sale of cosmetics, toiletries, and similar merchandise between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, who do not employ and maintain the practices hereinbefore enumerated and described, but who truthfully represent and vend said products.

Par. 11. The use by respondent of the hereinabove enumerated false and misleading representations in connection with the offering for sale and sale of its cosmetics, toiletries, and similar merchandise, has, and has had, the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive members of the consuming public into the belief that said representations are true, and as a result of such belief has caused said members of the consuming public to purchase substantial quantities of respondent’s products.

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent have the capacity and tendency to, and do, divert unfairly to the respondent the trade of competitors engaged in selling in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, products of the same kind and nature as those of respondent, which products are truthfully advertised and represented.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondent, testimony, and other evidence taken before Miles J. Furnas, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, briefs filed by counsel for the Commission and respondent, no request for oral argument having been made, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That respondent, Imogene Shepherd, Ltd., its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of its products now designated “Baby Skin Oil” and “Baby Skin Oil Soap,” or any other preparations composed of substantially the same ingredients, or possessing substantially similar properties, whether sold under the same names or any other names, do forthwith cease and desist from directly or indirectly:

(A) Disseminating or causing to be disseminated any advertisement (a) by means of the United States mails or (b) by any means in commerce, as “commerce” is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, which advertisements represent directly or by inference:

1. That said preparations are a remedy or an effective treatment for dryness, roughness of the skin, eczema, and acne; will prevent and correct skin disfigurements; will rejuvenate the texture of the skin or bring back the appearance of youth to the skin of adults, or restore to adults the soft and silken texture of baby skin.

2. That said products are skin normalizers or that they make the skin more healthy and restore a distinguishable measure of baby skin blush and freshness to the skin by restoring skin lipids.
3. That because of modern living habits or conditions including washing or bathing of the face, indispensable fatty acids are removed from the skin.

4. That its products contain “Vitamin F.”

5. That substantial quantities of vitamin E and the so-called “Vitamin F” can be introduced into and absorbed by the system by means of local application on the skin.

6. That its products are amazing discoveries, or the outstanding development in beauty culture of the present day.

7. That its products will nourish, or cause permanent benefit to, the skin on account of their Vitamin E and so-called “Vitamin F” content; or that they will restore essential lipids to the skin.

(B) Disseminating or causing to be disseminated any advertisement by any means for the purpose of inducing or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase in commerce as “commerce” is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, of any of said products, which advertisements contain any of the representations prohibited in paragraphs (A) (1) to (7), inclusive.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.
Where two corporations engaged in sale and distribution of an electric auxiliary light for use on motor vehicles, through automotive fleet owners, jobbers, and automobile dealers; in describing quality and effectiveness of their said product through circulars, letters, advertisements in newspapers, and other publications of general circulation among the prospective purchasers throughout the United States and in the District of Columbia, and through salesmen traveling through the various States and in said District—

(a) Represented that their said light would penetrate and conquer fog, regardless of density thereof, and that fog close to ground was thin and less dense in all cases, and that said light in all cases cut under and stayed under fog blanket, facts being light in question would not penetrate all fog, regardless of density, nor was all fog thin and less dense close to ground, and it did not cut through all fog so is to give visibility to driver of motor vehicle to which it was attached;

(b) Represented that said light gave adequate illumination in fog, rain, mist, or snow, regardless of density thereof, and afforded user 1,000 feet of visibility ahead under all conditions, facts being it would not give such illumination in fog, etc., regardless of density, nor provide operator with visibility as above represented under all conditions; and

(c) Represented that said light had been purchased and used by the United States Coast Guard, facts being it had not been purchased and used officially by said establishment, unit or organization;

With effect of misleading and deceiving purchasers and prospective purchasers of lights in question, and of causing them erroneously and mistakenly to believe that such statements and representations were true, and, as a result, to purchase substantial quantity of product in question:

Before Mr. Edward E. Reardon, trial examiner.

Mr. Charles S. Cox for the Commission.

Mr. Lewis F. Mason, of Chicago, Ill., for respondents.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Trippe Manufacturing Co., a corporation, and Trippe Sales Co., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Trippe Manufacturing Co., is a corporation organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Illinois and has its offices and principal place of business at 564 West Adams Street, Chicago, Ill. The respondent, Trippe Sales Co., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Illinois and has its offices and principal place of business at 600 West Jackson Boulevard, Chicago, Ill. Both of said respondents have branch offices and places of business at Toronto, Canada, and Halifax, England. Respondents are now and have been for more than 3 years last past, engaged in the business of selling and distributing an electric auxiliary light designed for use on motor vehicles, under the trade name "Trippe Safety Light" and "Trippe Speed Light." The respondents have acted in conjunction and cooperation with each other in carrying out the acts and practices hereinafter alleged.

Par. 2. Respondents sell said product through automotive fleet owners, jobbers, and automobile dealers. Respondents cause said product when sold to be shipped from their aforesaid place of business in the State of Illinois to purchasers located in various States of the United States other than the State of Illinois and in the District of Columbia. Respondents maintain, and at all times mentioned herein have maintained, a course of trade in said product in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 3. In the course and conduct of their said business, respondents are in active and substantial competition with other corporations and individuals, and with partnerships and firms engaged in the sale and distribution of electric auxiliary lights, designed for use on automobiles, in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Among such competitors of respondents there are many who do not misrepresent or make false statements in connection with the sale and distribution of their respective products.

Par. 4. In the course and conduct of their business as aforesaid, for the purpose of inducing the purchase of said product in said commerce, respondents have made many representations with respect to the quality and effectiveness of their said product by means of circulars, letters, and through advertisements inserted in newspapers and other publications, all circulated generally among prospective purchasers throughout the United States and in the District of Columbia, and through salesmen who travel through the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Among and typical of said representations so made by the respondents are the following:

TRIPPE SAFETY LIGHT CONQUERS FOG.

Fog is a blanket of minute water particles—each a tiny mirror. Ordinary lights in fog are unavailing. But, close to the ground, fog is thin and the razor-sharp beam of Trippe Safety Light cuts under and stays under the fog blanket.

Adequate illumination in fog, rain, mist or snow.

The Trippe beam cuts under fog to give visibility.

Using just your dim headlights and Trippe Safety Light you can drive 60 miles an hour at night with ample visibility of at least 1,000 feet ahead.

1,000 feet between you and danger.

Some well known commercial users of Trippe Safety Light—U. S. Coast Guard.

Many other statements of similar import and meaning but not herein set out are likewise used by said respondents.

All of said statements purport to be descriptive of respondents’ product and its effectiveness when used. In the manner aforesaid, respondents directly and indirectly represent that the light rays from said Trippe Safety Light will penetrate and conquer fog regardless of its density; that fog is thin and less dense close to the ground and that the light rays from the Trippe Safety Light will cut under and stay under the fog blanket thereby giving greater visibility; that said Trippe Safety Light will provide adequate illumination in fog, rain, mist, or snow regardless of density, and to the extent of 1,000 feet ahead; that a person using said light will have 1,000 feet distance of visibility between the user and danger; that said Trippe Safety Light has been officially purchased or used by the United States Coast Guard.

Par. 5. In truth and in fact, said statements and representation are false and misleading in that Trippe Safety Light will not penetrate fog, regardless of its density, nor is fog close to the ground thin and less dense; Trippe Safety Light does not cut under and stay under the fog blanket; Trippe Safety Light does not give adequate illumination in fog, rain, mist, or snow regardless of density, nor does it afford the user thereof, 1,000 feet of visibility ahead under all conditions; said Trippe Safety Light has not been officially purchased or used by the United States Coast Guard.

Par. 6. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of said product have had, and now have, the capacity and tendency to, and do, mislead and deceive purchasers of said product into the erroneous and mistaken belief that the aforesaid false, misleading, and deceptive representations and implications are true and tend to cause a substantial number of the purchasing public, because of said erroneous and mistaken belief, to purchase a substantial number of respondent's said product, and thus unfairly to divert trade to the respondents from their competitors in said commerce, as described in paragraph 3 hereof, who do not make any misrepresentations or false statements in the manufacture, sale, and distribution of their respective products. In consequence thereof, injury has been, and is now being done by respondents to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 7. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on the 20th day of February 1940, issued, and subsequently served, its complaint in this proceeding charging respondents Trippe Manufacturing Co., a corporation, and Trippe Sales Co., a corporation, with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce, in violation of the provisions of said act. On March 11, 1940, the respondents filed their answer in this proceeding. Thereafter, at a hearing in this matter in Chicago, Ill., on April 10, 1940, a stipulation was entered into whereby it was stipulated and agreed that a statement of facts read into the record, subject to the approval of the Commission, may be taken as the facts in this proceeding and in lieu of testimony in support of the charges of the complaint, or in opposition thereto, and that said Commission may proceed upon said statement of facts to make its report, stating its findings as to the facts and its conclusion based thereon, and disposing of the proceeding. Thereafter, the Commission having approved said stipulation, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, the answer thereto, and said stipulation as to the facts, and the Commission having duly considered the same and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.
FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Trippe Manufacturing Co., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Illinois and has its office and principal place of business at 564 West Adams Street, Chicago, Ill.

The respondent, Trippe Sales Co., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Illinois and has its office and principal place of business at 600 West Jackson Boulevard, Chicago, Ill.

Both of said respondents have branch offices and places of business in Toronto, Canada, and Halifax, England.

Respondents are now, and have been for more than 3 years last past, engaged in the business of selling and distributing an electric auxiliary light, designed for use on motor vehicles, under the trade names "Trippe Safety Light" and "Trippe Speed Light." The respondents have acted in conjunction and cooperation with each other in carrying out the acts and practices hereinafter set forth.

Paragraph 2. Respondents sell said product through automotive fleet owners, jobbers, and automobile dealers. Respondents cause said product, when sold, to be shipped from their aforesaid places of business in the State of Illinois to purchasers located in various States of the United States other than the State of Illinois and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 3. In the course and conduct of their business as aforesaid, for the purpose of inducing the purchase of said product in said commerce, respondents have made many representations with respect to the quality and effectiveness of their said product, by means of circulars, letters, and through advertisements inserted in newspapers and other publications, all circulated generally among prospective purchasers throughout the United States and in the District of Columbia, and through salesmen who travel through the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Among and typical of said representations so made by the respondents are the following:

TRIPPE SAFETY LIGHT CONQUERS FOG.

Fog is a blanket of minute water particles—each a tiny mirror. Ordinary lights in fog are unavailing BUT, close to the ground, fog is thin and the razor-sharp beam of Trippe Safety Light cuts under and stays under the fog blanket.

Adequate illumination in fog, rain, mist or snow.

The Trippe beam CUTS UNDER fog to give visibility.
Using just your dim headlights and Trippe Safety Light you can drive 60 miles an hour at night with ample visibility of at least 1,000 feet ahead. 1,000 feet between you and danger.

Par. 4. Through the aforesaid statements, and many others of similar import and meaning not set out herein, all of which purport to be descriptive of respondents' said light and its effectiveness in use, respondents represent that said light will penetrate all fog, regardless of its density; that all fog is thin and less dense close to the ground, and that said light cuts through all fog and gives visibility to the driver of the motor vehicle to which said light is attached; that said light gives adequate illumination for visibility in fog, rain, mist, or snow, regardless of density, and affords the operator of the motor vehicle to which said light is attached 1,000 feet of visibility ahead under all conditions; and that said light has been purchased and used by the United States Coast Guard.

In truth and in fact, respondents' said light will not penetrate all fog, regardless of density; all fog is not thin and less dense close to the ground, and said light does not cut through all fog so as to give visibility to the driver of the motor vehicle to which it is attached; said light will not give adequate illumination for visibility in fog, rain, mist, or snow, regardless of density; said light will not provide the operator of the motor vehicle to which it is attached with visibility for a thousand feet ahead under all conditions; and said light has not been purchased and used by the United States Coast Guard officially.

Par. 5. The use by the respondents of the statements and representations hereinabove set out is false, misleading, and deceptive, and has the tendency and capacity to, and does, mislead and deceive purchasers and prospective purchasers of said lights, and to cause them erroneously and mistakenly to believe that said statements and representations are true, and as a result thereof to purchase substantial quantities of said lights.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondents, and a stipulation as to the facts entered into between the respondents herein and W. T. Kelley, Chief Counsel for the Commission, which provides, among other things, that without further hearing or other intervening procedure, the Commission may issue and serve upon the respondents herein findings as to the facts and conclusion based thereon, and an order disposing of the proceeding, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondents, Trippe Manufacturing Co., a corporation, and Trippe Sales Co., a corporation, their officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of their electric auxiliary light designed for use on motor vehicles, now sold under the trade names “Trippe Safety Light” and “Trippe Speed Light,” or any other light of similar construction and power, in commerce, as “commerce” is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from representing:

IN THE MATTER OF

HENRY O. STRIKER, TRADING AS STROMBERG IGNITION COMPANY

Docket 4064. Complaint, Mar. 13, 1940—Decision, Aug. 14, 1940

Where a corporation, and corporate successor to business thereof, had long engaged, under name "Stromberg," in manufacture of carburetors, coils, and various other automobile accessories sold under name aforesaid, to purchasers in the various States and in the District of Columbia, and valuable good will had been built up by said companies in such name as applied to their said products, and particularly those above set forth, and purchasers and prospective purchasers of automobiles and automobile accessories and members of respective trades dealing therein had, through long usage and over long period of time, identified automotive and other mechanical apparatus, devices, and accessories which bore name "Stromberg" as products of said well and favorably known companies; and, long thereafter, individual engaged in manufacture, sale and distribution of automotive device, or so-called "condenser," sold and distributed as spark intensifier for use on all makes of automotive vehicles, in commerce among the various States and in the District of Columbia, to retailers and to agents or representatives of said individual in various States and in said District, for resale to consuming public, and direct to purchasers at various points of location throughout the United States through C. O. D. shipments—

(a) Began use, without authority or consent of said companies, and for purpose of creating demand on part of purchasing public for his said products, of word "Stromberg" as trade name and brand thereof, and continued to make use thereof, and marked and branded therewith his said automotive device, and through statements and representations made by his agents or representatives and through circulars, handbills, and other similar printed or written matter, used and featured said word as such trade and brand name or designation, and in circulars and handbills, and in advertising matter displayed on sides of large trucks and trailers giving purported demonstrations at various places throughout the United States, featured word in question;

With capacity and tendency to confuse, mislead, and deceive purchasers and prospective purchasers into mistaken and erroneous belief that his said device was product of well and favorably known company above referred to, long manufacturer and seller, under said name, as aforesaid set forth, of automotive accessories and devices; and

(b) Represented, through statements and representations relative to said device in circulars and handbills and on boxes or cartons containing same, and on device itself, and in other printed or written matter distributed generally to purchasers and prospective purchasers in various States and in said District, and through matter which he caused to be distributed and disseminated by his said retailers, agents, and representatives, that the product in question was capable of increasing power of motor and eliminated spark plug trouble and saved oil or gasoline, and that users were able to drive an increased number of miles on a change of oil, and that it reduced carbon and made starting easier; and

(c) Represented, as aforesaid, that use of such device would raise voltage and reduce amperage of current used in automobiles, or gasoline motors, and would improve ignition system therein, in keeping with other improvements that had been made by the automotive industry, and that said condensers had, as indicated, beneficial effect;

Facts being it would not increase power of motor, eliminate spark plug trouble or save user oil or gasoline, nor reduce carbon or make starting easier, nor raise voltage and reduce amperage of current used, nor have any beneficial effect at all, and said various statements and representations, as above set out and indicated, were false and misleading; and

(d) Represented that said device had been approved and endorsed by a recognized automotive engineers' association equipped with laboratories for testing and approving, and which did test and approve, various automotive equipment, through setting forth on boxes or cartons containing his said product words "* * * endorsed and approved by the Automotive Engineers Association of America," together with purported "Seal of Approval" consisting of design made up of automobile tire and wheel, with name of association and initial letters thereof printed on design in question, facts being his said product had not been approved or endorsed by recognized automotive association or automotive engineers' association with necessary laboratory equipment to test automotive devices, and which did actually test, attest and approve automotive equipment; and

(e) Represented exaggerated fictitious price as that of said device in so-called "special offer" by him and his retailers, through statement "SPECIAL 30-DAY OFFER, Stromberg Ignition Co., Detroit, Mich. Please mail me one Stromberg Condenser at the special price, $1.50 * * *," facts being price of $1.50 at which said device was offered in so-called "special offer," was in excess of and more than the price at which his said device was generally and customarily sold to purchasing public by retailers, agents, and representatives, and was not in any sense, as indicated, a special price good only for 30 days, nor offer more advantageous than offers generally and customarily made by him to all other purchasers and prospective purchasers;

With result of placing thereby, through means and manner set forth, directly in hands of unscrupulous or uninformed retailers, agents, and representatives means and instrumentality whereby they had been and were enabled to mislead and deceive members of purchasing public in respects above set out, and with effect of misleading and deceiving many members of said public into erroneous and mistaken belief that such false and misleading statements and representations were true, and into purchase of substantial quantities of his said devices as result thereof:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Mr. Robert Mathis, Jr., for the Commission.

Mr. Hall Johnston, of Washington, D. C., for respondent.
Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Henry O. Striker, an individual, trading as Stromberg Ignition Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Henry O. Striker, is an individual trading as Stromberg Ignition Co., and having his principal office and place of business at 7320 Tireman Avenue in the city of Detroit, State of Michigan.

Par. 2. Respondent is now, and has been for more than 6 years last past, engaged in the manufacture, sale, and distribution of an automotive device or attachment designated "Stromberg Condenser" and sometimes designated as "Stromberg Master Condenser," which is sold and distributed as a spark intensifier to be used on all makes of automobiles, tractors, trucks, and gasoline motors. Respondent causes said devices, when sold by him, to be transported from his place of business in the State of Michigan to retail dealers and other purchasers located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said devices sold by him in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. The bulk of respondent’s sales are made to retail dealers, agents, or representatives of respondent located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, who in turn sell said devices to the purchasing public; a large number of respondent’s sales are made by C. O. D. shipments mailed directly to purchasers thereof at their various points of location throughout the United States.

Par. 3. In the course and conduct of his aforesaid business and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of his said automotive devices, respondent has caused various statements and representations relative to said products to be inserted in circulars, handbills, on the boxes or cartons containing said products, on the product itself, and in other printed or written matter, which are distributed generally to purchaser and prospective purchasers situated in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In addition to the written or printed matter disseminated as aforesaid, respondent has caused various statements and representations to be made by his said retail dealers, agents, and representatives for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, the purchase of said products as aforesaid.

Among and typical of the statements and representations used and disseminated by respondent as aforesaid are the following:

Just a few features of the "Stromberg" Master Condenser:

1. Increases Power—Burns more of the gasoline in the cylinder. Burnt gasoline is power. Unburnt gasoline is carbon.

2. Eliminates Sparkplug Trouble—Fires oily or "wet" plugs in oil-pumping cylinders. The blowing or disruptive discharge at the plug points keeps the plugs clean.

3. Saves Oil—Most car owners change oil every 500 miles, because gasoline (unburned) leakage thins the lubricant. The Stromberg Master Condenser burns all the gasoline, stops the leakage completely, so that oil can often be used for 2,500 miles or more.

4. Saves Gasoline, both by burning more of the charge in the cylinder and running on a "leaner" mixture.

5. Reduces Carbon—Carbon is unburnt gasoline—by completely burning all the gasoline in the cylinder there is no waste or carbon left to form on the cylinder or piston heads, gum up the valve and cause other troubles.

6. Makes Easy Starting—Fires both a leaner or a richer mixture than the ordinary ignition system.

7. The Stromberg Condenser accomplishes its purpose by raising the voltage of the current, and at the same time reducing the amperage. It consumes less electricity than is used without it. It creates an impulsive rush of high pressure current which overcomes any resistance offered by carbon or oil on the points of the plug.

Success of the Stromberg Master Condenser.

8. The manufacturers have experts on all parts of the automobile, and each factory must have its new feature each year, while the ignition system, however, has lagged during the same period of time and has been found wanting in many respects until our discovery of the Stromberg Master Condenser which puts the ignition system in keeping with the balance of the automobile improvements for all makes of automobiles, tractors, trucks, and gasoline motors.

10. This is a genuine "Stromberg" product, and gentlemen, when the name Stromberg is on it, whether it be a radio, carburetor, or this merchandise, you do not have to be afraid to buy it because it is good merchandise.

11. You all know what the name "Stromberg" stands for, etc. • • •

12. The Stromberg condenser is endorsed and approved by the Automotive Engineers Association of America.

This last statement, numbered 12, is made on the boxes or cartons containing said products, and immediately above said statement is a purported "Seal of Approval" consisting of a design made up of an automobile tire and wheel with the words "Automotive Engineers Association of America" printed on the tire, and the letters "A. E. A. A." printed between the spokes of said wheel.

Through the use of the aforesaid statements and representations and others of similar import or meaning, not herein set out, the respondent has represented that its said automotive device is capable of increasing the power of the motor; that its use eliminates spark-plug trouble and saves the user various quantities of oil and gasoline; that its users are able to drive up to 2,500 miles or more on a change of oil; that the use of said device reduces carbon and makes easier starting for the motor; that manufacturers of automobiles and gasoline motors have neglected the advancement and development of the ignition systems in automobiles and gasoline motors and that respondent's product puts the ignition system in keeping with the other improvements made in said motors; that the offer made on said order blank as set forth in this paragraph to each purchaser and prospective purchaser is a special 30 day offer which will expire at the end of that time and is more advantageous than the offer generally made to each purchaser and prospective purchaser; that respondent's automotive device is approved and endorsed by a recognized automotive association which is equipped with laboratories for testing and approving, and which does test and approve, various automotive equipment.

Par. 4. The Stromberg Carburetor Co. was a corporation organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Illinois, with its factory and principal place of business in the city of Detroit, State of Michigan. It was, and had been since May 1907, engaged in the manufacture of carburetors, coils, and various other automobile accessories which it sold under the name "Stromberg." In April 1930, the business operated under the name Stromberg Carburetor Co. was taken over by the Bendix Stromberg Carburetor Co., a corporation, which continued the operation of the business and continued to sell said products under the name "Stromberg." Said Bendix Stromberg Carburetor Co. is now engaged in the manufacture of said products and in offering for sale and selling the same to purchasers located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and causes its said products, when sold, to be transported from its place of business located in the city of Detroit, State of Michigan, to the purchasers thereof at their respective points of location throughout the United States. These companies have built up and enjoyed a valuable good will in the name "Stromberg" as applied to said products, particularly with respect to carburetors, coils, and other automobile accessories and devices.

Purchasers and prospective purchasers of automobiles and automobile accessories, as well as members of the respective trades dealing therein, have, through long usage and over a long period of time, identified automotive and other mechanical apparatus, devices and accessories which bear the name "Stromberg" as being the products of the well and favorably known Stromberg Carburetor Co. or the well and favorably known Bendix Stromberg Carburetor Co.

PAR. 5. In the course and conduct of his business as described herein, and for the purpose of creating a demand on the part of the purchasing public for his products, said respondent, without authority or consent of the Stromberg Carburetor Co. or the Bendix Stromberg Carburetor Co., began, at a date long subsequent to the adoption and use by said Bendix Stromberg Carburetor Co. of the word "Stromberg" as a trade name or designation of its products, to use the word "Stromberg" as a trade name or brand for his said product and has continued until the present time to use the same in the manufacture, sale, and distribution of his product. Respondent has caused and now causes said product to be marked and branded with the word "Stromberg," and through statements and representations made by respondent's agents or representatives and in circulars, handbills, and other similar printed or written matter used in soliciting the sale of, and selling, said product among purchasers and prospective purchasers, respondent has used and featured, and now uses and features, the word "Stromberg" as his trade name and as the brand name or designation for said product. In advertising matter which is displayed on the sides of large trucks and trailers which are giving a purported demonstration of respondent's product at various places throughout the United States, and in said circulars and handbills, respondent has caused the word "Stromberg" to be more prominently displayed than the other parts of said advertising.

PAR. 6. The statements and representations as set forth herein, and others of similar import and meaning not herein set out, are false and misleading, for in truth and in fact the automotive devices which the respondent sells and offers for sale as aforesaid will not increase the power of the motor, eliminate spark-plug trouble, or save the user oil or gasoline. Said devices will not reduce carbon or make starting of the motor easier, nor will they raise the voltage and at the same time reduce the amperage of the current. Said devices have no beneficial effect at all on the operation of a gasoline motor, nor do said devices improve the ignition system so that it is in keeping with the other improvements that have been made in the automotive industry.

The price of $1.50 at which said device is offered in said so-called special offer by the respondent and his retail dealers, agents, or representatives to prospective purchasers is not in any sense a special price which is good for only 30 days nor is the offer more advantageous than the offers generally and customarily made by the respondent to all other purchasers and prospective purchasers of said devices, for in truth and in fact the price of $1.50 at which said device is offered for sale in said so-called special offer is in excess of and more than the price at which respondent's said device is generally and customarily sold to the purchasing public by retail dealers, agents and representatives. Respondent's said product has not been, and is not, approved or endorsed by a recognized automotive association or a recognized automotive engineers' association which has the necessary laboratory equipment for testing automotive devices and which does actually test, attest, and approve automotive equipment.

Par. 7. The use by the respondent as hereinabove alleged of the word "Stromberg" as a trade name and brand for his product and in advertising matter relating thereto has had, and now has, the tendency and capacity to confuse, mislead, and deceive purchasers and prospective purchasers into the mistaken and erroneous belief that his product so designated and described is the product of the well and favorably known Bendix Stromberg Carburetor Co., manufacturer of automotive accessories and devices which are sold under the name "Stromberg."

Par. 8. Respondent places directly in the hands of unscrupulous or uninformed retail dealers, agents, and representatives a means and instrumentality whereby said retail dealers, agents, and representatives have been, and are, enabled to mislead and deceive members of the purchasing public in the respects herein mentioned.

Par. 9. The acts and practices of the respondent in using the aforesaid false and misleading statements and representations have had, and now have, the capacity and tendency to, and did and do, mislead and deceive many members of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such false and misleading statements and representations are true, and into the purchase of substantial quantities of respondent's said automotive devices as a result of such erroneous and mistaken belief.

Par. 10. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on the 13th day of March 1940, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon said respondent, Henry O. Striker, an individual, trading as Stromberg Ignition Co., charging him with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On April 2, 1940, the respondent filed his answer in this proceeding. Thereafter, a stipulation was entered into whereby it was stipulated and agreed that a statement of facts signed and executed by the respondent and its counsel, Hall Johnston, and W. T. Kelley, chief counsel of the Federal Trade Commission, subject to the approval of the Commission, may be taken as the facts in this proceeding and in lieu of testimony in support of charges stated in the complaint, or in opposition thereto and that the said Commission may proceed upon said statement of facts to make its report, stating its findings as to the facts and its conclusion based thereon, and enter its order disposing of the proceeding without the presentation of argument or the filing of briefs. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, answer, and stipulation, said stipulation having been approved, accepted, and filed, and the Commission having duly considered the same and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondent, and a stipulation as to the facts entered into between the respondent herein by his attorney, Hall Johnston, and W. T. Kelley, chief counsel for the Commission, which provides, among other things, that, without further evidence or other intervening procedure, the Commission may issue and serve upon the respondent herein findings as to the facts and conclusion based thereon and an order disposing of the proceeding, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Henry O. Striker, an individual, trading as Stromberg Ignition Co., his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of its automotive device designated "'Stromberg' Condenser," and sometimes designated as "'Stromberg' Master Condenser," which has been sold as a spark intensifier for various types of motors, or any other device which functions in a similar manner, in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing that said device is capable of increasing the power of the motor or that its use eliminates spark-plug trouble or saves oil or gasoline to the user thereof; that users of said device are able to drive an increased number of miles on a change of oil or that said device reduces carbon or makes starting of the motor easier.

2. Representing that the use of said device will raise the voltage or reduce the amperage of the current used in automobiles or gasoline motors.

3. Representing that said device will improve the ignition system in gasoline motors in keeping with the other improvements that have been made by the automotive industry.

4. Representing in any manner or by any means that said device will have any beneficial effect at all on the operation of a gasoline motor.

7. Representing that the price at which said device is offered for sale is to be in effect for a limited period of time only, when the price at which said device is offered for sale is that for which the device is customarily and ordinarily sold in the normal course of business.

8. Using the name, "Stromberg," or any other name similar in spelling or phonetic sound, as a trade name for doing business or as a brand name in designating respondent's said product.

Syllabus

IN THE MATTER OF

R. FRANK YANCEY, TRADING AS THE MONARCH CHINA COMPANY

Docket 3410. Complaint, May 7, 1938—Decision, Aug. 15, 1940

Where an individual engaged in offer, sale, and distribution of earthenware products, including dinnerware or, as by him designated, "chinaware," to purchasers in other States and in the District of Columbia, in substantial competition with others engaged in sale in commerce as aforesaid of such products—

(a) Represented, through advertising literature made use of by him in soliciting sale of, and in selling, said products to prospective purchasers, and through sales promotion literature, and agents and traveling salesmen, that offer and sale of assortments of dinnerware sets by him was in nature of a "clearance sale" of accumulated assortments not disposed of in regular course of manufacture and sale, offered at purported special bargain prices by virtue of being accumulated stock not used by manufacturer because of certain defects, but in other respects of high grade;

Facts being so-called "chinaware" was supplied to him by manufacturer in regular course of business and made to his order, and not taken or selected from high-grade stock, and was not offered and sold as "clearance sale," but at prices which did not constitute any special bargain or price advantage, but were those at which he regularly and customarily sold such products in the regular and continuing course of business;

(b) Represented, as aforesaid, that he was the manufacturer of the products offered and sold by him, and that purchase thereof from him constituted direct purchase from manufacturer, eliminating competition and thereby saving purchaser against added cost of expense normally involved in making purchases through distributors and jobbers or any source other than manufacturer, through such statements, among others, as "• • • packed right at the factory and shipped direct to you," "BUY DIRECT, ELIMINATE COMPETITION," etc.;

Facts being he was not, as represented, manufacturer, for purchase of whose products direct, and for dealing with whom, there is preference on part of dealers and purchasing public as securing sellers, in their opinion, superior quality, better prices and other benefits not obtainable through distributor and jobber middlemen, but, on contrary, was distributor or jobber of such products, and purchases of such products from him did not constitute direct purchases from manufacturer and eliminate competition and save purchaser against any cost and expense normally involved in dealing with distributor or jobber; and

(c) Represented, directly and through his representatives, that products offered and sold were of same grade and quality as sample pieces supplied by him to his agents for display in solicitation and sale of his merchandise;

Facts being samples aforesaid were of materially higher grade and quality than sets or so-called "chinaware" sold and delivered to customers after receipt of order from salesman, and products thus supplied were in no way comparable in grade and quality with samples exhibited and displayed to prospective purchasers, but were substantially inferior thereto;

With effect of misleading and deceiving retail dealers and members of purchasing public into mistaken and erroneous belief that such statements and representations were true and, by reason thereof, into purchase of his said products, and of thereby diverting unfairly trade to him from competitors engaged in sale of earthenware and china products in commerce as aforesaid, and who do not misrepresent their business status or character or quality of their said products; to the injury of competition in commerce:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of competitors and the public, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. Edward E. Reardon and Mr. John J. Keenan, trial examiners.

Mr. Jay L. Jackson and Mr. DeWitt T. Puckett for the Commission.

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that R. Frank Yancey, trading as The Monarch China Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, R. Frank Yancey, is an individual trading under the name and style of The Monarch China Co., with his office and principal place of business located at 703 Chestnut Street, city of Greensboro, N. C. For approximately 4 years last past said respondent has been, and now is, engaged in the business of offering for sale, selling, and distributing earthenware products, including dinnerware sets, designated by respondent as chinaware, in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. It has been, and now is, the practice of respondent to cause said products, when sold or ordered, to be shipped and transported from the factories where the same are made to respondent in the State of North Carolina and also direct to purchasers of said products located in various States of the United States other than the State of origin of said shipment, and in and to the District of Columbia.

In the course and conduct of the business aforesaid respondent has been, and now is, in competition with other individuals, firms, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the business of offering for sale, selling, and distributing earthenware and chinaware, including dinnerware, in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of the business aforesaid, it has been, and now is, the practice of respondent to offer his said products and to solicit and sell prospective purchasers and purchasers, through and by means of advertising and sales promotion literature and through and by means of agents and traveling salesmen.

Through and by means of the said literature and oral statements and representations made by respondent, and by his said selling agents, it has been, and now is, the practice of respondent to offer his said products and to solicit and sell prospective purchasers and purchasers, that the assortments of dinnerware sets, or chinaware, offered and sold by respondent, are "Damaged Job Thirds" and "Odds and Ends," and further, that the offer and sale thereof is in the nature of a "Clearance Sale" of accumulated assortments of chinaware sets not used in the regular course of manufacture and sale. Demonstrative of the statements and representations contained in the aforesaid advertising literature, which is distributed by respondent and his agents to purchasers and prospective purchasers, are the following:

You Wonder How We Do It!

SIMPLY THIS: In the Manufacture of High grade China ware a large part of the production comes thru damaged to the extent that the factories are not justified in making the careful selection that is made in selling the better grades in open stock. As this ware is entirely of accidental production and is never purposely made, its cost is added to the better grades and the damaged ware is lumped and sold in Job Lots to keep the stock rooms clear.

BUY DIRECT, ELIMINATE COMPETITION

The aforesaid statements by respondent further imply and represent, and are understood by prospective purchasers to mean, that the offer and sale made by respondent constitutes a special bargain price offer or advantage by virtue of the products being so-called "Odds and Ends" or accumulated stock not used by the manufacturer because of certain defects, but that the same are otherwise of high-grade stock. The said statements further imply and represent that the respondent, doing business under the name The Monarch China Co., is the manufacturer of the products which are offered for sale, and sold, and that the purchase through the said company constitutes a direct purchase, "eliminates competition," and thus saves the purchaser against the added cost or expense normally involved in making so-called indirect purchases through distributors and jobbers.

Par. 3. It has been, and now is, the further practice of respondent to supply his said selling agents with certain sample pieces of earthenware or chinaware stock for display use in the process of soliciting the sale of, and in selling his products to purchasers and prospective purchasers. Said samples, however, are of materially higher grade and quality than the earthenware dinnerware sets or so-called chinaware which respondent in fact sells and delivers to his purchasers. Through use of such samples, respondent represents, both directly and through his representatives, that the products offered for sale, and sold by him, are of the same grade and quality as the samples exhibited. In fact, respondent's products are substantially inferior in grade and quality to the samples exhibited and displayed to prospective purchasers and are in no wise comparable to such samples.

Par. 4. There is a preference on the part of the purchasing public for buying merchandise from, and dealing direct with, the manufacturer of the merchandise being purchased, said members of the purchasing public believing that in so doing they secure merchandise of superior quality and also secure more advantageous prices and other benefits not obtainable when purchasing the same products through middlemen such as distributors and jobbers.

Par. 5. In truth and in fact the foregoing statements and representations are false and misleading in that the earthenware products or dinnerware sets, or so-called chinaware, offered and sold by respondent are not "Damaged Job Thirds," or "Odds and Ends," or sold in the process of a "Clearance Sale," and the offer and sale at the prices quoted by respondent do not constitute any special bargain or price advantage. The prices at which respondent offers said products for sale are in fact the regular, usual, and customary prices at which said products are regularly and customarily sold. The offer and sale thereof at the prices quoted constitute the respondent's regular and continuing course of business. The said products are supplied to respondent by a manufacturer in the regular course of business and are made to respondent's order, and the same are not taken or selected from high grade stock. Respondent, trading as The Monarch China
Co., is not a manufacturer of the products which he offers for sale and sells but on the contrary is a distributor or jobber thereof. Purchases of such products from respondent do not constitute a direct purchase from a manufacturer, eliminates no competition, and does not save the purchaser against any cost or expense normally involved in dealing with a distributor or jobber.

PAR. 6. The aforesaid statements and representations made by the respondent in connection with the offering for sale and sale of his earthenware or so-called chinaware products have had, and now have, the tendency and capacity to, and do, mislead and deceive retailer purchasers and prospective consumer purchasers of such products into the false and erroneous beliefs that said statements and representations, above set out, are true, and into the purchase of respondent's products in and on account of such beliefs induced by respondent's acts and practices, as herein set out. As a result thereof, trade has been diverted unfairly to the respondent from competitors likewise engaged in selling earthenware products or chinaware products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia who do not misrepresent their business status or the character or quality of their respective products. In consequence thereof injury has been done, and is now being done, by respondent to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 7. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on the 7th day of May A. D. 1938, issued and thereafter served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondent, R. Frank Yancey, individually and trading as The Monarch China Co., charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce, in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by Jay L. Jackson, Esq., and DeWitt T. Puckett, Esq., attorneys for the Commission, and in opposition thereto by the respondent, who appeared in his own behalf, before Edward E. Reardon and John J. Keenan, trial examiners of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it. Said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the answer thereto, the testimony and other evidence, and brief in support of the complaint (the respondent not having filed any brief and oral argument not having been requested); and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, R. Frank Yancey, is an individual who is now, and has been for a number of years last past, doing business at 703 Chestnut Street, in Greensboro, N. C., under the trade name and style, “The Monarch China Company.” Respondent is now, and has been for some years, engaged in the business of offering for sale, selling, and distributing, in commerce, earthenware products including dinnerware sets designated by respondent as “china ware.”

Par. 2. For more than 4 years last past respondent has caused the said earthenware products, including dinnerware sets designated by respondent as “china ware,” when sold by him, to be transported from his place of business in the State of North Carolina and from the State of Ohio to purchasers thereof located in States of the United States other than the States of North Carolina and Ohio and in the District of Columbia. There is now, and has been at all times mentioned herein, a course of trade by respondent in said so-called “china ware” in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 3. Respondent is now, and has been at all times mentioned herein, engaged in substantial competition with other persons, and with firms, partnerships, and corporations, also engaged in the sale and distribution of earthenware and chinaware, including dinnerware sets, in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 4. In the course and operation of his business, and for the purpose of inducing individuals, firms, and corporations to purchase his said earthenware products, including dinnerware sets designated by respondent as “china ware,” respondent has made it a practice to solicit the sale of and sell said products to prospective purchasers through and by means of advertising and sales promotion literature, and through and by means of agents and traveling salesmen. By means of said advertising literature and oral statements and representations made by respondent and his representatives, it has been and now is the practice of the respondent to state and represent to prospective purchasers, among other things, that the offer and sale of assortments of dinnerware sets is in the nature of a "clearance sale" of accumulated assortments of chinaware sets not disposed of in the regular course of manufacture and sale.

Par. 5. Among and typical of the statements and representations disseminated as aforesaid by respondent, and which have been distributed by respondent and his agents to purchasers and prospective purchasers, are the following:

YOU WONDER HOW WE DO IT!

SIMPLY THIS: In the Manufacture of High Grade Chinaware a large part of the production comes thru damaged to the extent that the factories are not justified in making the careful selection that is made in selling the better grades in open stock. All of the aforesaid statements and representations by respondent, together with similar statements appearing in respondent's other advertising matter, purport to be descriptive of the merchandise offered for sale by respondent at purported special bargain prices by virtue of the product's being accumulated stock not used by the manufacturer because of certain defects, but otherwise being of high grade stock. The said statements further imply and represent that respondent, doing business under the name "The Monarch China Company," is the manufacturer of the products which are offered for sale and sold by him, and that the purchase of such products from respondent constitutes a direct purchase from the manufacturer, eliminates competition, and thus saves the purchaser against the added cost or expense normally involved in making purchases through distributors and jobbers or through any source other than the manufacturer.

Par. 6. In truth and in fact, all of the aforesaid statements and representations are false and misleading, in that the earthenware products, or so-called "chinaware," offered and sold by respondent are not sold in the process of a "clearance sale," and the offer and sale thereof at the prices quoted by the respondent do not constitute any special bargain or price advantage. The prices at which respondent offers said products for sale are, in fact, the regular, usual, and customary prices at which said products are regularly and customarily sold, and constitute the respondent's regular and continuing course of business. Said products are supplied to respondent by the manufacturer in the regular course of business and are made to respondent's order, and the same are not taken or selected from high grade stock. Respondent is not the manufacturer of the products which he offers for sale and sells, but, on the contrary, is a distributor or jobber thereof. Purchases of such products from the respondent do not constitute and have not constituted direct purchases from the manufacturer, do not eliminate competition and do not save the purchaser against any cost or expense normally involved in dealing with a distributor or jobber.

Par. 7. The respondent, in the course and conduct of his business, supplies his selling agents with sample pieces of earthenware or chinaware stock, for display use in the process of soliciting the sale of and selling respondent's merchandise. Such samples are, in truth and in fact, of materially higher grade and quality than the earthenware dinner sets, or so-called "chinaware" which respondent in fact sells and delivers to his customers after receipt of order from his salesmen. Through the use of such samples, respondent represents, both directly and through his representatives, that the products offered for sale and sold by him are of the same grade and quality as the sample so exhibited. In truth and in fact, respondent’s products are substantially inferior in grade and quality to the samples exhibited and displayed to prospective purchasers by his salesmen and representatives, and are in no way comparable with such samples.

Par. 8. There is a preference on the part of dealers and the purchasing public for buying merchandise from, and for dealing directly with, the manufacturer of the merchandise being purchased, said dealers and members of the purchasing public believing that in so doing they secure merchandise of superior quality, and also secure more advantageous prices and other benefits not obtainable when purchasing such products through middlemen, such as distributors and jobbers.

Par. 9. The aforesaid statements and representations made by respondent in connection with the offering for sale and the sale of his earthenware, or so-called “chinaware” products, has had and now has the tendency and capacity to, and did and does, mislead and deceive retail dealers and members of the purchasing public into the mistaken and erroneous belief that said statements and representations are true, and into the purchase of respondent’s products because of such belief. As a result thereof, trade has been diverted unfairly to the respondent from his competitors engaged in selling earthenware products and chinaware products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, who do not misrepresent their business status or the character or quality of their respective products. In consequence thereof, injury has been done, and is now being done, by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of respondent’s competitors and of the public, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce, within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondent, testimony and other evidence taken before Edward E. Reardon and John J. Keenan, trial examiners of the Commission, theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, and brief of counsel for the Commission, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, R. Frank Yancey, individually and trading as The Monarch China Co., or trading under any other name or names, his agents, representatives, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of earthenware or chinaware, or any other products, in commerce, as “commerce” is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing that respondent is a manufacturer, or that any of the products sold by respondent are manufactured by him.

2. Representing that the prices at which respondent’s products are offered for sale constitute special or reduced or “clearance sale” prices, when such prices are in fact the usual and customary prices at which such products are offered for sale and sold by respondent in the normal and regular course of business.

3. Representing, by the use of purported samples or otherwise, that respondent’s products are of a quality or value different from the actual quality or value of such products.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.

AIR CONDITIONING TEXTILES, INC.

Complaint

IN THE MATTER OF

AIR CONDITIONING TEXTILES, INC.

Where a corporation engaged in sale and distribution of its so-called "Air Conditioning the Human Body" soap to purchasers in various other States, in competition with others also engaged in sale and distribution of soaps designed and used for cleansing the skin, and including many who do not misrepresent properties or efficacy of their respective products—

Represented, through use of term aforesaid, that its said product possessed air-conditioning properties or qualities and reduced body temperature and humidity, and eliminated perspiration objections, and that body breathed through pores of skin, facts being, while menthol synthetic content of product served to impart to skin a slight cooling and soothing sensation, it had no effect on actual temperature of body, which does not breathe through pores as above alleged, and product in question did not air condition the body nor reduce its temperature, nor accomplish the other effects above claimed;

With capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive a portion of the purchasing public, aware of principle of air conditioning as new scientific development advancing and contributing to bodily comfort, but, in case of many, entirely unfamiliar with manner of operation thereof and principle's limitations, into erroneous and mistaken belief that said false representations were true, and that its soap possessed properties claimed and represented, and would accomplish results indicated, and into purchase thereof because of such belief, thus induced, and with result of thereby diverting trade unfairly to it from its competitors in commerce:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

Before Mr. John W. Addison, trial examiner.
Mr. Randolph W. Branch and Mr. B. G. Wilson for the Commission.
Mr. Harry B. Kurzrok, of New York City, for respondent.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Air Conditioning Textiles, Inc., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Air Conditioning Textiles, Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its office and principal place of business at 1441 Broadway, New York City, N. Y.

Par. 2. The respondent has been for 6 years last past engaged in the business of selling and distributing certain toilet preparations including a toilet soap designated variously as “Air Conditioning the Human Body” soap and as “Air Conditioning” soap. Respondent causes the said product, when sold by it, to be transported from its aforesaid place of business in the State of New York to the purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

For 3 years last past respondent herein has maintained a course of trade in said product in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 3. In the course and conduct of its business, respondent has been engaged in competition with other corporations and with partnerships, firms, and individuals also selling and distributing soaps and other products designed and used for the cleansing of the skin, in commerce among and between the various States of the United States.

Among such competitors are many who do not in any manner misrepresent the properties or the efficacy of their respective soaps or other products.

Par. 4. In the course and conduct of its said business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of its said product, respondent has caused advertisements containing false and misleading representations and claims with respect to its said product to be disseminated by means of circulars and other printed and written matter and by the use of labels attached to its said product. Among and typical of the false and misleading representations contained in said advertisements are the following:

Air Conditioning Soaps and Toilet Preparations.

They Definitely Reduce Body Temperature. Reduce Humidity by Evaporation. Eliminates Perspiration Objections.

The use of these preparations is the modern, practical way for “Air Conditioning the Human Body.”

The human body breathes through the pores of the skin.

Respondent’s soap is generally referred to in all of said advertisements and labels as “Air Conditioning Soap.”

Par. 5. Members of the purchasing public have been made conscious of the term “air conditioning” and of the fact that the principle of “air conditioning” is a new scientific development advancing and contributing to bodily comfort but many of them are entirely unfamiliar with the manner of operation of the principle of air conditioning and the limitations thereon. The use of the term “air conditioning” as descriptive of respondent’s soap product, has the tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive purchasers into the mistaken and erroneous beliefs that to some extent the principle of “air conditioning” has in some manner been incorporated into such soap and that, by reason thereof, such soap possesses properties contributing to human comfort which are not possessed by ordinary soaps. While respondent’s soap possesses perfume and menthol in less than 3 percent, it has no properties different from ordinary soap.

Through the use of the statements and representations hereinabove set forth, and others similar thereto not herein set out, all of which purport to be descriptive of respondent’s product and its effectiveness in use, the respondent has represented among other things: That its said product “air conditions the human body”; that said product reduces body temperature, reduces humidity by evaporation and eliminates perspiration objections; and that the human body breathes through the pores of the skin.

Par. 6. The foregoing representations are grossly exaggerated, misleading, and untrue. In truth and in fact respondent’s product will not air condition the human body. It will not reduce body temperature, nor reduce humidity, nor will it eliminate perspiration objections. The human body does not breathe through the pores of the skin. In truth and in fact respondent’s product does not differ in any material respect from other soaps used for ordinary cleansing purposes.

Par. 7. The use by respondent of the foregoing false and misleading representations with respect to its said product has had the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive a portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such false representations are true, and that respondent’s said product possesses the properties claimed and represented, and will accomplish the results indicated and into the purchase of quantities of respondent’s product on account of such beliefs so induced. As a result, trade has been diverted unfairly to the respondent from its competitors, and in consequence thereof, injury has been done and is now being done by respondent to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent’s competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on December 16, 1939, issued and thereafter served its complaint in this proceeding upon Air Conditioning Textiles, Inc., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce, in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of the complaint were introduced by Randolph W. Branch, attorney for the Commission, before John W. Addison, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. No testimony or other evidence was offered by the respondent. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, and brief in support of the complaint, respondent not having filed brief, and on oral argument by counsel for the Commission and by the respondent through its president; and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PÁRÁGRAFO 1. Respondent, Air Conditioning Textiles, Inc., is a corporation organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its office and principal place of business at 1441 Broadway, New York City, N. Y.

PAR. 2. Respondent, from June 1937, to the summer or fall of 1939, was engaged in the business of selling and distributing soap designated by it as "Air Conditioning the Human Body" soap. It caused the said soap, when sold by it, to be transported from its place of business in the State of New York to the purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States. Respondent maintained a course of trade in its said soap in commerce among and between the several States of the United States.
Par. 3. Respondent, in the course and conduct of its business as aforesaid, was engaged in competition with other corporations and with partnerships and individuals also engaged in selling and distributing soaps designed and used for cleansing of the skin, in commerce among and between the several States of the United States. Among these competitors are many who do not misrepresent the properties or the efficacy of their respective products.

Par. 4. Respondent, to promote the sale of its soap in commerce as described above, has represented in its advertising material that its said soap air conditions the human body, that said soap reduces body temperature, reduces humidity by evaporation, eliminates perspiration objections, and that the human body breathes through the pores of the skin.

Par. 5. The Commission finds that there is no basis in fact for these representations. In truth and in fact, respondent’s soap does not air condition the human body, nor does it reduce body temperature. It does not reduce humidity, nor does it eliminate perspiration objections. The human body does not breathe through the pores of the skin.

Par. 6. Members of the purchasing public have been made conscious of the term “air condition”, and of the fact that the principle of “air conditioning” is a new, scientific development advancing and contributing to bodily comfort; but many of them are entirely unfamiliar with the manner of operation of the principle of air conditioning and the limitations thereon. The use of the term “air conditioning” as descriptive of respondent’s soap has the tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive purchasers into the mistaken and erroneous belief that to some extent the principle of air conditioning has in some manner been incorporated into such soap, and that by reason thereof, such soap possesses properties contributing to human comfort which are not possessed by ordinary soaps. Respondent’s soap contains a perfume solution making up three per cent or less of its total content, and two-thirds of this solution is menthol synthetic. The presence of the menthol serves to impart to the skin a slight cooling and soothing sensation, but it has no effect on the actual temperature of the body.

Par. 7. The use by respondent of the foregoing false and misleading representations with respect to its said product has the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive a portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that said false representations are true, and that respondent’s soap possesses the properties claimed and represented and will accomplish the results indicated, and into the purchase of respondent’s product because of such belief so induced. As a result, trade has been diverted unfairly to respondent from its competitors in commerce among and between the several States of the United States.
CONCLUSION

The acts and practices of the respondent as found herein are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent’s competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce, within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondent, testimony and other evidence taken before John W. Addison, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of the complaint, brief filed by counsel for the Commission, and oral argument by B. G. Wilson, counsel for the Commission, and by the president of the respondent corporation, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That respondent, Air Conditioning Textiles, Inc., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of its soap designated as “Air Conditioning the Human Body” soap and as “Air Conditioning” soap, or any other soap composed of substantially similar ingredients or possessing substantially similar properties, whether sold under the same name or under any other name, in commerce, as “commerce” is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Using the term “Air Conditioning” or “Air Conditioning the Human Body,” or any other term of similar import, to designate or describe its said soap, or otherwise representing that said soap possesses air-conditioning properties or qualities.

2. Representing that said soap reduces body temperature or reduces humidity or eliminates perspiration objections.

3. Representing that the human body breathes through the pores of the skin.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.
Where an individual engaged in manufacture, sale, and distribution of desk pads and other office accessories to retail purchasers in the various other States and in the District of Columbia for resale to retail trade and other members of purchasing public, in substantial competition with others engaged in sale and shipment, in commerce as aforesaid, of similar products; in statements and representations in numerous circulars and catalogs circulated generally among prospective purchasers throughout the United States and in said District, and through salesmen traveling through various States and in District aforesaid—

(a) Made representation and statement "Established 1888," notwithstanding fact business was not established in year in question;

(b) Made use of words and legends "Flexhide Calf Finish Leather," "Genuine Top Grain Leather," and "Top Grain Furniture Leather," to describe certain desk pads offered and sold by him, and thereby represented and implied to purchasing public that material from which said products were made was the superior and more costly top grain leather, as understood by general public from word "leather" as meaning top or hairy side of hide, notwithstanding fact he made use of no genuine top grain leather for any of his products aforesaid, but employed therefor mostly splits or first and subsequent cuts under deep buff leather, and, for "Flexhide" pads, leather imitation; and

(c) Made use of legends "Grecian Gold Tooled Border" and "Genuine Gold Tooled Border," to describe his aforesaid products, and represented and implied thereby to purchasing public that the superior and more costly genuine gold leaf was used in process of finishing, embossing, or tooling borders of his said products, notwithstanding fact leaf aforesaid was not employed, but borders thus described were mostly of imitation gold;

With result that retailers were enabled to mislead and deceive purchasing public as to quality of material from which said pads were made and of material with which borders thereof were finished, embossed, or tooled; and

(d) Published and circulated depiction of various styles of pads offered by him which were identical with certain products of competitors, and indicated genuine and expensive gold leaf embossing or tooling in quality, notwithstanding fact he did not sell such products of design depicted, and pictorial representations in question in some instances were of competitor's higher priced and superior type of pad, both as to design and pattern;

With effect of misleading and deceiving purchasing public into mistaken and erroneous belief that aforesaid various representations were true, and of inducing said public, because of such belief, to purchase his said products and thereby divert trade to him from those of his competitors who do not in any manner misrepresent their products or business status:
Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Mr. Charles S. Cox for the Commission.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Louis Hoffman, an individual, trading as L. Hoffman, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 2. Respondent is now, and for more than 4 years last past has been, engaged in manufacturing, selling, and distributing desk pads and other office accessories. Respondent causes said desk pads and other office accessories, when sold by him, to be transported from his said place of business in New York, N. Y., to purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in the various States of the United States other than the State of New York, and in the District of Columbia. Respondent's said desk pads and other office accessories are sold to retailers who in turn resell the same to the retail trade and other members of the purchasing public. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said desk pads and other office accessories in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 3. In the course and conduct of his business as aforesaid, respondent is now, and for more than 4 years last past has been, in substantial competition with other individuals, and with partnerships, firms, and corporations engaged in the sale and shipment of similar products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 4. In the course and conduct of his aforesaid business and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of his said products, respondent has caused numerous circulars and catalogs to be circulated, containing many statements and representations concerning his said products and as to his said business, generally among prospective purchasers throughout the United States and in the District of Columbia, and through salesmen traveling through various States of the United States.
States and in the District of Columbia, has made many statements and representations to the purchasing public concerning his said desk pads and other products, and as to respondent's business status. Among and typical of the representations made by the respondent are the following:

Established 1888.
Flexhide Calf Finish Leather.
Genuine Top Grain Leather.
Top Grain Furniture Leather.
Grecian Gold Tooled Border.
Genuine Gold Tooled Border.

Respondent also in the conduct of his said business publishes and circulates through the means aforesaid, a pictorial presentation of various styles of desk pads offered for sale by respondent to the purchasing public. Some of the said pictorial representations of various styles of desk pads sold and offered for sale by respondent are identical with certain of those of respondent's competitors, and indicate genuine and expensive, gold-leaf embossing or tooling in quality.

Respondent in the conduct of said business, in the manner aforesaid, makes various other statements and representations of similar import and meaning concerning the character and quality of the products sold by him.

PAR. 5. In the manner aforesaid, the respondent represents and has represented that his said business was established in the year 1888. The words "Flexhide Calf Finish Leather," "Genuine Top Grain Leather," and "Genuine Top Grain Furniture Leather" represent and imply to the purchasing public that the material from which said desk pads are made is top grain leather, or as otherwise described, the outside or surface layer of the hide. Top grain leather is superior in quality, durability, and price to split leather. The general public believes the word leather to mean the top or hairy side of the hide. Retailers are enabled by reason of said representations of respondent to mislead and deceive the purchasing public as to the quality of the material with which said desk pads are made. The words "Grecian Gold Tooled Border" and "Genuine Gold Tooled Border" as used in advertising and describing desk pads sold by respondent represent and imply to the purchasing public that genuine gold leaf is used and applied on the border of said product. Gold leaf finish "embossing" or "tooling" is superior in quality, durability, and price to imitation gold and the public generally believes the words "Grecian Gold Tooled Border" or "Genuine Gold Tooled Border" mean that genuine gold leaf is used in the process of finishing, "embossing," or "tooling" the borders of respondent's said desk pads.
By reason of respondent's said representations, retailers are enabled to mislead and deceive the purchasing public as to the quality of gold material with which said desk pads' borders are finished, "embossed or tooled."

Par. 6. In truth and in fact, respondent's business was not established in the year 1888 and respondent does not use genuine top grain leather in any of his said desk pads, and his said desk pads are composed of splits, which are the first and subsequent cuts under the deep buff leather, and artificial leather is used in said desk pads which are described as "Flexide." In most cases, respondent's "Grecian Gold Tooled Border" or "Genuine Gold Tooled Border" are made of imitation gold, and gold leaf is not used in the process. In truth and in fact, respondent does not sell desk pads of the design presented in pictorial presentations for said desk pads, and said pictorial presentations, in some instances, are those of a competitor's higher-priced, superior type of desk pad both in design and pattern.

Par. 7. The aforesaid representations have the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive the purchasing public into the mistaken and erroneous belief that such representations are true; and have the capacity and tendency to, and do, induce the purchasing public, because of such mistaken and erroneous belief, to purchase respondent's products, thereby diverting trade to the respondent from those of his competitors who do not in any manner misrepresent their products or the status of their business.

Par. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on June 19, 1940, issued, and subsequently served, its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent Louis Hoffman, an individual, trading as L. Hoffman, charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On July 12, 1940, the respondent filed his answer, in which answer he admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint.
and the answer thereto, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent Louis Hoffman is an individual, trading as L. Hoffman, with his principal office and place of business at 459 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

Par. 2. Respondent is now, and for more than 4 years last past has been, engaged in manufacturing, selling, and distributing desk pads and other office accessories. Respondent causes said desk pads and other office accessories, when sold by him, to be transported from his said place of business in New York, N. Y., to purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in the various States of the United States other than the State of New York and in the District of Columbia. Respondent's said desk pads and other office accessories are sold to retailers who in turn resell the same to the retail trade and other members of the purchasing public. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said desk pads and other office accessories in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 3. In the course and conduct of his business as aforesaid, respondent is now, and for more than 4 years last past has been, in substantial competition with other individuals, and with partnerships, firms, and corporations engaged in the sale and shipment of similar products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 4. In the course and conduct of his aforesaid business and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of his said products, respondent has caused numerous circulars and catalogs to be circulated, containing many statements and representations concerning his said products and as to his said business, generally among prospective purchasers throughout the United States and in the District of Columbia, and through salesmen traveling through various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, has made many statements and representations to the purchasing public concerning his said desk pads and other products, and as to respondent's business status. Among and typical of the representations made by the respondent in said circulars and catalogs are the following:

Established 1888.
Flexhide Calf Finish Leather.
Genuine Top Grain Leather.
Top Grain Furniture Leather.
Grecian Gold Tooled Border.
Genuine Gold Tooled Border.

Respondent, in the conduct of his said business, also publishes and circulates, through the means aforesaid, a pictorial presentation of various styles of desk pads offered for sale by respondent to the purchasing public. Some of the said pictorial representations of various styles of desk pads sold and offered for sale by respondent are identical with certain of those of respondent's competitors, and indicate genuine and expensive gold-leaf embossing or tooling in quality.

Respondent, in the conduct of his said business, through his salesmen, makes various other statements and representations of similar import and meaning concerning the character and quality of the products sold by him.

Par. 5. In the manner aforesaid, the respondent represents and has represented that his said business was established in the year 1888. The words “Flexhide Calf Finish Leather,” “Genuine Top Grain Leather,” and “Top Grain Furniture Leather” represent and imply to the purchasing public that the material from which said desk pads are made is top grain leather, or as otherwise described, the outside or surface layer of the hide. Top grain leather is superior in quality and durability to, and higher in price than, split leather. The general public believes the word “leather” to mean the top or hairy side of the hide. Retailers are enabled by reason of said representations of respondent to mislead and deceive the purchasing public as to the quality of the material from which said desk pads are made.

The words “Grecian Gold Tooled Border” and “Genuine Gold Tooled Border,” used in advertising and describing desk pads sold by respondent, represent and imply to the purchasing public that genuine gold leaf is used and applied on the border of said product. Gold leaf finish “embossing” or “tooling” is superior in quality and durability to, and higher in price than, imitation gold, and the public generally believes the words “Grecian Gold Tooled Border” or “Genuine Gold Tooled Border” to mean that genuine gold leaf is used in the process of finishing, “embossing,” or “tooling” the borders of respondent’s said desk pads. By reason of respondent’s said representations, retailers are enabled to mislead and deceive the purchasing public as to the quality of material with which the borders of said desk pads are finished, “embossed” or “tooled.”

Par. 6. In truth and in fact, respondent’s business was not established in the year 1888. Respondent does not use genuine top grain leather in any of his said desk pads. Most of his said desk pads are composed of splits, which are the first and subsequent cuts under the deep buff leather. Imitation leather is used in the desk pads which are described as "Flexhide." In most cases, the borders described as "Grecian Gold Tooled Border" or "Genuine Gold Tooled Border" are made of imitation gold, and gold leaf is not used in the process. In truth and in fact, respondent does not sell desk pads of the design presented in pictorial presentations for said desk pads, and said pictorial presentations, in some instances, are those of a competitor's higher priced, superior type of desk pad both in design and pattern.

PAR. 7. The aforesaid representations of respondent have the capacity and tendency to, and do, mislead and deceive the purchasing public into the mistaken and erroneous belief that such representations are true; and have the capacity and tendency to, and do, induce the purchasing public, because of such mistaken and erroneous belief, to purchase respondent's products, thereby diverting trade to the respondent from those of his competitors who do not in any manner misrepresent their products or the status of their business.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and states that he waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Louis Hoffman, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of desk pads and other office accessories in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:
1. Representing that respondent's business was established in the year 1888, or at any other date prior to the time that such business was in fact established.

2. Using the terms “Flexhide Calf Finish Leather,” “Genuine Top Grain Leather,” and “Top Grain Furniture Leather,” or any other terms of similar import and meaning to designate, describe, or refer to desk pads made from the inner split of leather.

3. Using the terms “Flexhide Calf Finish Leather,” “Genuine Top Grain Leather,” and “Top Grain Furniture Leather,” or any other terms of similar import and meaning to designate, describe, or refer to desk pads made in whole or in part from the outer split of leather without revealing that split leather has been used in the manufacture of such desk pads.

4. Representing, through the use of the words “Flexhide,” “Top Grain,” “Leather,” or any other word or words of similar import and meaning, alone or in conjunction with other words, or in any other manner, that desk pads manufactured in whole or in part from the under layer or flesh side of hides, known as split leather, are made from the outside or surface layer of the hide.

5. Using the phrase “Grecian Gold Tooled Border” or “Genuine Gold Tooled Border,” or any other phrase containing the word “gold,” or the word “gold” alone, to designate, describe, or refer to borders of desk pads, which borders are not in fact manufactured from gold leaf.

6. Using pictorial representations of desk pads not offered for sale and sold by respondent as representative of the desk pads offered for sale and sold by respondent.

7. Representing, through the use of statements, pictures, or otherwise, that respondent's desk pads or other office accessories are of a grade, quality, and value greater than that which actually exists.

NATIONAL CONVERTERS INSTITUTE ET AL.

Docket 3897. Complaint, Sept. 19, 1939—Decision, Aug. 28, 1940

Where nine corporations which were engaged in converting for sale transparent cellulose sheets and rolls, such as cellophane, sylphrap, kodapak, protectoid, and other similar transparent materials, and in sale thereof to customers and users throughout the several States of the United States, and which represented, in the aggregate, 90 percent of the output and sale of said products, and were members of a voluntary unincorporated trade association or institute—

(a) Filed with their said Institute, for cellulose sheets and rolls, base price lists and discounts and deviations thereupon not available to the public, and agreed that they would sell said products in the course and conduct of their business at approximately prices stated on price lists, and would maintain such prices and discounts to best of their ability, and exchanged information as to conduct of their businesses by reporting orders received from and invoices issued to customers in sale of products in question through medium of said Institute, as clearing house, and secretary thereof, by whom current price lists submitted by members were checked against price information contained in such orders and invoices, and by whom said information and reports were summarized and weekly bulletin issued to each member showing dollar volume of sales to all participating members and total number of orders taken by all such members, and by whom, in addition to aforesaid summarizing and distribution of such reports, data, and information not available to public, there were issued monthly summary reports showing total volume of sales of all participating members and, to each member, his own proportion in comparison therewith; and

(b) Furnished information, upon request of member, as to instances where other members had sold products at prices and discounts other than those set forth in their respective price lists, in order to maintain net prices and discounts which such member corporations had heretofore agreed to maintain, through setting forth, in instances involved, (1) percentage of filed price over or under price at which sale was made, (2) date of sale, and (3) size of sale; and through supplying further, upon request, and on forms supplied by Institute, detailed information as to sales of products in question;

With the result that such acts and practices hindered and prevented price competition between and among corporations aforesaid in sale of their said products made and converted from cellulose sheets as aforesaid, and had dangerous tendency so to hinder and prevent, and placed in said corporations power and control to enhance prices in question, and tended dangerously to create in them and said Institute and individual, monopoly of said products in commerce involved, and unreasonably restrained interstate commerce therein:
Held, That such acts and practices were all to the prejudice of the public and constituted unfair methods of competition and unfair acts and practices in commerce.

Mr. George W. Williams for the Commission.

distribution of said products to the consumers and users thereof and to create a monopoly in the manufacture and sale of said products in the United States in said member respondents. Pursuant to said agreement, combination, and conspiracy said respondents have respectively and cooperatively performed and are now performing the following acts and practices, to wit:
1. Member respondent corporations through the medium of said respondent Institute and respondent Richard M. McClure, manager thereof, fix uniform prices at which their said products are to be sold, including the discounts therefrom to be allowed to the purchasers thereof.

2. Member respondent corporations publish and issue price lists of said products to the trade and through the medium of said respondent Institute and respondent Richard M. McClure, manager thereof, exchange current price lists of said products in order to establish and maintain uniform net prices at which the respective members will sell said products in various quantities to the purchasers thereof located in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

3. Member respondent corporations, through the medium of respondent Institute and respondent Richard M. McClure, its manager, acting as a clearing house, exchange confidential detailed information daily as to conduct of their said businesses as to orders received from, and invoices issued to, customers in the sale of said products.

4. Said respondent Richard M. McClure, acting as manager of respondent Institute, checks the current price lists of said products submitted by said member respondents to him against the price information contained in orders and invoices received from said member respondents as set forth in subparagraphs (2) and (3) herein; summarizes the reports and issues a weekly bulletin to each member respondent showing—

(a) the dollar volume of sales to all participating member respondents;
(b) the total number of orders taken by all participating member respondents;
(c) the individual member respondent's proportion to the foregoing total;

and also summarizes said reports and issues a monthly report thereon showing—

(1) the total dollar volume of sales of all participating member respondents by geographical location, and to the individual member respondent his proportion in comparison therewith; and
(2) a report showing the total sales broken down by commodities of all members for each commodity carried, and to the individual member respondent his relation thereto.

5. Said member respondent corporations adhere to the uniform prices and discounts as set forth in their said price lists issued and exchanged by them as set forth in subparagraph (2) herein and file with the said respondent Institute reports of deviations from the said price lists and prices and discounts fixed and agreed upon as herein-before set forth, at which their said products are to be sold.

6. Said respondent Richard M. McClure as manager of respondent Institute, upon request of any member respondent, furnishes information as to instances of where other member respondents have sold their said products at prices and discounts other than those set forth in their said respective price lists in the following manner, to wit:

(1) The percentage of the filed price over or under the price at which the sale was made;
(2) the date of the sale; and
(3) the size of the sale.

Par. 6. Said member respondents, as a result of the activities described in paragraph 5 herein, have sold their said products at uniform prices and discounts to their respective customers located in the same geographical area and buying in comparable quantities since September 1930, or so long as they were a member of respondent Institute, except in a few instances where they sold at lower net prices to meet the competition of manufacturers of said products who were not members of said respondent Institute. Approximately 70 percent of the total volume of sales of said products by said member respondents throughout the United States were during the past 3 years and now are sold at prices and discounts and on terms fixed and maintained by said member respondent and set forth and described in paragraph 5 herein.

Par. 7. As a result of said agreement, combination, and conspiracy and the acts and practices performed thereunder and pursuant thereto by said respondents as hereinbefore set forth, the consumers and users of said products, more particularly described in paragraph 1 herein, since September 1930, have been and now are forced and compelled to pay to said member respondents prices for said products which are arbitrarily fixed and maintained at artificial levels and have been and now are deprived, to their detriment, of normal and free competition between and among said member-respondent corporations in the purchase of said products; and due to the dominant position in the industry of the said member respondents, the consumers and users of said products have been unable to purchase their requirements from manufacturers and converters of said products who were not members of said respondent Institute and the said member respondents have been and now are the only adequate sources of supply of said products.

Par. 8. The acts and practices of the said respondents as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public; have a dangerous tendency to hinder and prevent, and have actually hindered and prevented, price competition between and among said member-respondent corporations in the sale of said products manufactured and converted from cellulose sheeting (such as cellophane, sylphrap, kodapak, protectoid and other similar transparent materials) in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act; have placed in said member respondents the power to control and enhance prices of said products; have a dangerous tendency to create in respondents a monopoly in said products in such commerce; have unreasonably restrained such commerce in products manufactured and converted from cellulose sheeting, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on the 19th day of September 1939, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon said respondents, charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. The respondents duly filed their answers in this proceeding. Thereafter, a stipulation was entered into whereby it was stipulated and agreed that a statement of facts signed and executed by the respondents and their counsel and W. T. Kelley, chief counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, subject to the approval of the Commission, may be taken as the facts in this proceeding and in lieu of testimony in support of the charges stated in the complaint, or in opposition thereto, and that the said Commission may proceed upon said statement of facts to make its report, stating its findings as to the facts and its conclusion based thereon and enter its order disposing of the proceeding without the presentation of argument or the filing of briefs. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, answer and stipulation, said stipulation having been approved, accepted and filed, and the Commission having duly considered the same and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, National Converters Institute, hereinafter referred to as “Institute” is a voluntary unincorporated trade association originally organized in September 1930, and reorganized in...
August 1933, and that its principal office and place of business is located at 111 West Washington Street, in the city of Chicago, State of Illinois.

(i) Pioneer Wrapper & Printing Co. is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of California, with its factory, principal office, and place of business located at 837 East Fourth Place in the city of Los Angeles, in said State.

Par. 3. That the following named corporate respondents resigned their respective memberships in said Institute shortly prior to the service of the complaint herein, to wit: Pioneer Wrapper & Printing Co., Nashua Gummed & Coated Paper Co., and Thomas M. Royal & Co.

Par. 4. The respondent Institute was first organized in 1931, with the following members:

Caton Printing Co., Kansas City, Mo.
Edward E. Cox Printer, Inc., Hartford City, Ind.
Milprint Products Corporation, Milwaukee, Wis.
Shellmar Products Co., Chicago, Ill.

Par. 5. Par. 6. Respondent, Richard M. McClure, since August 1935, has been, and now is, secretary-treasurer and manager of the Institute, and has directed its activities, including the conduct of meetings of representatives of members of the Institute, and has collected, compiled, and disseminated statistical information, and has conducted its sales reporting and statistical service.

Par. 7. The membership of respondent Institute has at all times represented approximately 90 percent of the output and sale of said products. The respondents Shellmar Products Co., Millprint Products Corporation, and Traver Paper Corporation do, and since the organization of said Institute have done, approximately 80 percent of the business done by members of said Institute in sheets and rolls.

Par. 8. Corporate respondents, Shellmar Products Co., Milprint Products Corporation, Traver Paper & Manufacturing Co., Dobecmun Co., Dennison Manufacturing Co., Caton Printing Co., Pioneer Wrapper & Printing Co., file, and the corporate respondents, Thomas M. Royal & Co. and Nashua Gummed & Coated Paper Co., during their membership in said Institute, namely, from March 1933 to August 28, 1939, and December 1937, to February 28, 1939, respectively, filed, uniform base price lists and discounts and deviations therefrom of cellulose sheets and rolls with the Institute which are not available to the public, and agree or agreed, as the case may be, among themselves that each respondent will sell said products in the course and conduct of its business, as above defined, at approximately the prices stated on its price list and that they will all maintain said prices and discounts to the best of their ability.

The corporate respondents, Thomas M. Royal & Co. and Nashua Gummed & Coated Paper Co. did not stipulate in the aforesaid stipulation of facts that they, or either of them, agreed between themselves or with the other corporate respondents that each respondent would sell said products in the course of its business at approximately the prices stated on its price list and that all corporate respondents would maintain said prices and discounts to the best of their ability. All of the corporate respondents, except the corporate respondents, Thomas M. Royal & Co. and Nashua Gummed & Coated Paper Co., stipulated in the aforesaid stipulation of facts that all corporate respondents, including the corporate respondents, Thomas M. Royal & Co. and Nashua Gummed & Coated Paper Co., did enter into such agreement. The corporate respondents, Thomas M. Royal & Co. and Nashua Gummed & Coated Paper Co., stipulated in the aforesaid stipulation of facts that they were members of the respondent Institute during the times above-mentioned and participated and cooperated in the activities of said Institute in the manner herein found, and that they sold said products at approximately the prices stated on said price lists. The Commission therefore finds, as hereinafore stated, that the corporate respondents, Thomas M. Royal & Co. and Nashua Gummed & Coated Paper Co., did agree with all other corporate respondents that each respondent would sell said products in the course and conduct of its business at approximately the prices stated on its price list and that they would all maintain said prices and discounts to the best of their ability.

Par. 9. That, through the medium of said Institute and said McClure, as secretary thereof, acting as a clearing house, the said corporate respondents exchange information as to the conduct of their businesses as above described, by reporting orders received from, and invoices issued to, customers in the sale of said products, in commerce, as commerce is above defined, and the said McClure, acting as Manager of respondent Institute checks the current price lists of said products submitted by said member respondents to him against the price information contained in said orders and invoices received. He also summarizes said information and reports in reference to sales, and issues a weekly bulletin to each member of respondent Institute showing—

(a) the dollar volume of sale to all participating member respondents, and

(b) the total number of orders taken by all participating member respondents.

That said reports, data, and information are not available to the public.

Par. 10. The said McClure also summarizes said reports and issues a monthly report thereon showing the total volume of sales of said rolls and sheets of all participating member respondents, and to the individual member respondents, his proportion in comparison therewith.

Par. 11. Said respondent McClure, as manager of said Institute, upon the request of any member respondent, furnishes information as to instances where other members have sold said products at prices and discounts other than those set forth in their respective price lists, in the following manner, to wit:

(a) the percentage of the filed price over or under the price at which the sale was made;

(b) the date of the sale; and

(c) the size of the sale.

Provision is also made for the supplying to members detailed information as to sales of said products upon the request of any member, such information to be made upon forms supplied by the Institute.

Conclusion

The aforesaid acts and practices of said respondents are all to the prejudice of the public, have a dangerous tendency to hinder and prevent and have actually hindered and prevented price competition between and among said member respondents corporations in the sale of said products manufactured and converted from cellulose sheets, such as cellophane, sylphrap, kodapak, protectoid, and other similar transparent materials, in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act; have placed in said member respondents the power and control to enhance prices of said products and have a dangerous tendency to create in respondents a monopoly in such products in such commerce; have unreasonably restrained interstate commerce in such products and constitute unfair methods of competition and unfair acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answers of the respondents, and a stipulation as to the facts entered into between counsel for the respondents herein and W. T. Kelley, chief counsel for the Commission, which provides, among other things, that without further evidence or other intervening procedure, the Commission may issue and serve upon the respondents herein findings as to the facts and conclusion based thereon and an order disposing of the proceeding, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondents, their officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution in commerce among and between the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, of cellulose sheets and rolls or other similar products do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Filing uniform prices and discounts at which their said products are to be sold either directly or through the medium of respondent Institute and respondent Richard M. McClure, or any other agency.

2. Exchanging through the medium of respondent Institute and respondent Richard M. McClure, manager thereof, or any other agency, price lists, containing proposed or future prices and discounts of said products in order to establish net prices at which said respondent corporations will sell said products.

3. Filing with said respondent Institute and respondent Richard M. McClure, or any other agency, deviations in current price lists of said product in order to establish and maintain uniform net prices at which they will sell said products.

4. Agreeing among themselves that they will maintain said proposed future prices and discounts published by them and filed with respondent Institute and respondent Richard M. McClure, or any other agency.

5. Collecting or disseminating information as to instances where respondent corporations have sold their products at prices and discounts other than those set forth in their respective price lists, in order to maintain the net prices and discounts which respondent corporations theretofore agreed to maintain.

It is further ordered, That the respondents shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes,” the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Popper & Klein, a corporation, also trading as Perfektum Products Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has been and is using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as “commerce” is defined in said act, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Popper & Klein, is a corporation, organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York. It trades both under its own corporate name and under the name and style of Perfektum Products Co., with its office and principal place of business located at 300 Fourth Avenue, in the city of New York, State of New York. Since the date of its incorporation, respondent has been, and now is, engaged in the business of selling and distributing, among other things, laboratory supplies of both foreign and domestic manufacture and origin, inclusive of so-called microscope cover glasses, or glass covers, in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. It has caused, and now causes, said products, when sold or ordered, to be shipped and transported from its place of business in the State of New York to the purchasers thereof located in various States of the United States, other than the State of New York and in the District of Columbia. It maintains a course of trade in commerce in said products sold by it between and among the various States of the United States. In the course and conduct of its business, respondent has been, and now is, in competition with other corporations, firms, partnerships, and individuals engaged in the sale and distribution of like products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business, respondent purchases certain so-called microscope glass covers of foreign manufacture which respondent receives packed in small cardboard boxes. It is the practice of the respondent to resell said products to its customers, in some instances, in the same box in which originally packed, but generally the products are packed in a wooden box or container which respondent substitutes for the said cardboard box in which the glasses are originally packed and received by the respondent.

In the foregoing connection, respondent purchases certain microscope glass covers of Japanese manufacture and origin which are imported into the United States from the country of Japan, and which, when received by respondent, are packed in cardboard containers clearly and conspicuously marked with the words "Made in Japan." Thereafter, respondent causes certain of the said glasses to be repacked in wooden boxes to which respondent attaches its labels conspicuously bearing the following:

COVER GLASSES

PerfeKtum Products Co.
New York, N.Y.

In the process of marking the containers to which respondent transfers the glasses of Japanese origin, respondent also causes the word "Japan" to be dimly and lightly ink-stamped in small letters on the bottom of said wooden boxes in such a manner as to make the said word practically illegible and unnoticeable. The ink-stamping of the word "Japan" on the bottom of said containers in the manner herein described, is done in such a manner as to enable unscrupulous dealers and vendors to obliterate or remove said stamp. Said glasses have been, and are, sold and shipped by respondent in commerce as herein described to its customers in the wooden boxes stamped and labeled as aforesaid.

Par. 3. At all times material to this complaint there has been, and now is, among purchasers and users of microscope cover glasses in and throughout the United States, and in the District of Columbia, a substantial and subsisting preference for products of domestic manufacture or origin, as distinguished from products of foreign manufacture or origin.

By virtue of the practice, heretofore and now established, of imprinting and otherwise marking products of foreign origin, and their containers, with the name of the country of their origin, in legible English words, in a conspicuous place, and as required by law, a substantial portion of the buying public has come to rely, and now relies, upon such imprinting or marking, and is influenced thereby, to distinguish and discriminate between competing products of foreign and domestic origin, inclusive of microscope cover glasses, such that said products now offered for sale and sold in the channels of trade and commerce throughout the United States are purchased and accepted as and for, and taken to be, products of domestic manufacture and origin unless the same are imprinted or marked in a manner which informs purchasers that the same are not of domestic origin.

Par. 4. In the course and conduct of repacking and selling, in its own containers, its microscope cover glasses of Japanese origin, the respondent did not, and does not, mark, stamp, brand, or label the containers for said articles in such a manner as to make conspicuous or patent to the eye and attention of purchasers the fact that the said glasses are of foreign origin. On the contrary, the respondent’s method of repacking and selling its glasses of Japanese origin in its own containers has had, and has, the tendency and capacity to create among many purchasers thereof the false and erroneous impression that the said glasses are of domestic origin and not of foreign origin, and into the purchase thereof in reliance upon said beliefs.

Par. 5. Respondent’s method of repacking and labeling the said glasses of Japanese origin, by removing the words “Made in Japan” as originally, clearly, and conspicuously imprinted upon the containers in which the said glasses are imported and received, by labeling the substituted containers conspicuously with the respondent’s trade name and trade-mark, as above set out, and by dimly, lightly, and inconspicuously printing the word “Japan” on the bottom of said containers in such a way as to make said word practically unnoticeable to purchasers, operates to remove and destroy the mark of origin originally imprinted on the containers for said glasses, and to evade, suppress, and otherwise conceal and withhold from purchasers the fact and information that said glasses are of foreign origin and not of domestic manufacture or origin.

The conduct of respondent, as aforesaid, in conspicuously labeling the containers, in which it repacks and sells its glasses of Japanese origin, with its trade name and trade-mark, and New York address, without indicating in an equally conspicuous manner, or without clearly and conspicuously indicating or marking thereon, the country of origin, has had, and has, the tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive purchasers and prospective purchasers of microscope cover glasses into the false and erroneous beliefs that the said glasses so encased and labeled are of domestic origin and not of foreign origin, and to cause many purchasers of microscope cover glasses to buy, deal in, and accept respondent's microscope cover glasses of Japanese origin in lieu and in place of glasses of domestic origin made or sold by competitors of respondent. In consequence thereof, trade is unfairly diverted to respondent from its said competitors who do not in any way misrepresent their respective products.

PAR. 6. Respondent's method of repacking, labeling, and imprinting containers for its glasses of Japanese origin, all as aforesaid, places in the hands of jobbers and retail sellers who deal in the said products of respondent, a means wherewith they mislead and deceive purchasers of microscope cover glasses into the false and erroneous belief that the said glasses are of domestic origin and not of foreign origin and thus into the purchase thereof.

PAR. 7. The above acts, conduct, and things done by respondent are to the injury and prejudice of the public and respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition, in commerce within the intent and meaning of section 5 of an act of Congress, entitled "An act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," approved September 26, 1914.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on December 28, 1937, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, Popper & Klein, Inc., charging respondent, trading under its corporate name, and also trading as Perfektum Products Co., with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act. On January 17, 1938, respondent filed its answer to the complaint. After the service of the complaint and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of allegations of said complaint were introduced by Jay L. Jackson, attorney for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by Mr. I. A. Popper, President of the respondent corporation, before Edward E. Reardon, Esq., theretofore designated an examiner by the Commission, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission upon the complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, and brief in support of the complaint, respondent having filed no brief and not having requested oral argument, and the Commission having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Popper & Klein, Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its principal office and place of business now located at 300 Fourth Avenue (formerly located at 110 East 23d Street) in the City of New York, State of New York. Said corporation was incorporated in December of 1936 as successor of the business theretofore conducted by the president of the respondent corporation under the trade names "Popper & Klein" and "Perfektum Products Company."

Since the date of its incorporation, respondent has traded, and is now trading under its corporate name and under the name Perfektum Products Co., and under said names has been, and now is, engaged in the business of offering for sale, selling, and distributing microscope cover glasses and other laboratory supplies in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and has caused, and causes, said products, when sold or ordered, to be shipped and transported from its place of business in the State of New York to purchasers thereof located in various States of the United States other than the State of New York, and in the District of Columbia.

In the course and conduct of its said business respondent has been and now is in competition with other corporations, firms, partnerships and individuals engaged in the sale and distribution of microscope cover glasses and laboratory supplies in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business it has been and is the practice of respondent to purchase certain microscope cover glasses of foreign origin and to resell the same to respondent's customers, in some instances in the same cardboard boxes in which originally packed and imported, but generally in wooden boxes or containers hereinafter described which respondent substitutes for the cardboard boxes in which said glasses are originally packed and imported into the United States and received by the respondent. In this connection, respondent has purchased microscope cover glasses of Japanese manufacture which were imported into the United States from the country of Japan, and which, when received by respondent, were packed in cardboard containers clearly and conspicuously marked with the words "Made in Japan." Thereafter, respondent caused certain of said glasses to be repacked in wooden boxes, to which respondent attached its labels conspicuously bearing the following:

<table>
<tr>
<th>PERFECTUM MICROSCOPE COVER GLASSES</th>
<th>POSITIVELY NON-CORROSIVE</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Perfektum Products Co., New York, N.Y.</td>
<td></td>
</tr> </tbody>

In the process of marking the containers to which respondent transferred and repacked the aforesaid cover glasses of Japanese origin, respondent also caused the word "Japan" to be dimly and lightly ink-stamped in small letters on the bottom of the said wooden boxes or containers but said word was and is disassociated and far removed from the aforesaid labeling or imprinting bearing respondent’s New York address so as to be not noticed.

Since the complaint in this proceeding was issued and served upon the respondent, the respondent, under the trade name, Perfektum Products Co., has sold microscope cover glasses imported from Japan, in wooden boxes on the bottom of which are the words stamped in ink in legible type:

CONTENTS MADE IN JAPAN

Par. 3. In the further course and conduct of its aforesaid business it has been the practice of respondent to offer for sale, sell, and distribute microscope cover glasses in boxes or containers labeled or imprinted, among other things, with the words and letters "Made in U.S.A." The said cover glasses were purchased by respondent from a source in the United States which merely cut the same from sheets or strips of glass imported from a foreign country, the said glass being ready for cutting upon importation.

Par. 4. All of the glass used in the making of microscope cover glasses is produced in strips or sheets. The only effect produced by the cutting of microscope cover glasses from the strips or sheets is to obtain cover glasses in the various sizes convenient to use in microscopical examinations. The glass cut from sheets or strips of imported glass is not changed in any way except as to size by the operation of cutting the glass. Such operation does not constitute a manufacturing process. The glass cut from the strips or sheets is packaged in boxes containing one-half ounce quantities, one size to a package, the sizes, in disk, square or rectangular form, ranging from about the size of a dime to larger sizes.

Par. 5. At all times material to this proceeding there have been, and now are, throughout the United States and in the District of Columbia, purchasers and users of laboratory supplies, including microscope cover glasses, who have a substantial preference for products having a domestic origin as distinguished from foreign manufacture or origin. At all times material to this proceeding there have been and now are, throughout the United States and the District of Columbia, a further substantial number of purchasers and users of microscope cover glasses who have a substantial preference for microscope cover glasses which are wholly of foreign origin, as distinguished from glasses cut by producers in the United States.

By virtue of the long-established practice of imprinting and otherwise marking products of foreign origin, or their containers, with the name of the country of their origin, including the containers for microscope cover glasses of foreign origin, in legible English words, in a conspicuous place and as required by law, a substantial number of purchasers and users of such products in and throughout the United States have come to rely upon such imprinting or marking, and are influenced thereby, to distinguish and discriminate between competing products, inclusive of microscope cover glasses of foreign and domestic origin. Said products are purchased and accepted as and for, and taken to be, products of domestic manufacture or origin, unless the same are imprinted or marked in a manner which informs purchasers that the same are not of domestic origin.

Par. 6. The offering for sale, and selling, by respondent of microscope cover glasses of Japanese origin, repacked in wooden boxes or containers bearing the trade name and New York address of respondent, and labeled and marked as described in paragraph 2 above, has had, and has, the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive purchasers and prospective purchasers and users of microscope cover glasses into the mistaken and erroneous belief that the said microscope cover glasses are made in the United States and are of domestic origin and not of foreign origin, and into the purchase of said glasses in reliance upon such erroneous and mistaken belief. The same thereby has had, and has, the capacity and tendency to unfairly divert trade in commerce among and between the various States of the United States in microscope cover glasses to respondent from its competitors.

Par. 7. The offering for sale, and selling, by respondent of microscope cover glasses packed in boxes or containers bearing the words "Made in U. S. A.," which glasses have been cut from microscope cover glass produced in and imported from a foreign country, has had, and has, the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive purchasers and prospective purchasers and users of microscope cover glasses into the erroneous and false belief that the said microscope cover glasses were wholly made in the United States and are wholly of domestic origin, and into the purchase of said glasses in reliance upon such erroneous and mistaken belief. The same thereby has had, and has, the capacity and tendency to, and does, unfairly divert trade in commerce among and between the various States of the United States in microscope cover glasses to respondent from its competitors.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein found, are each and all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondent, testimony and other evidence taken before Edward E. Reardon, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, brief in support of the allegations of the complaint (respondent not having filed brief and oral argument not having been requested), and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Popper & Klein, Inc., trading under its own name and as Perfektum Products Co., or under any other name or names, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of microscope cover glasses in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Using the term "Made in U. S. A.," or any other term or terms indicative of American manufacture, to describe or refer to microscope cover glasses of foreign origin.

2. Causing imported microscope cover glasses to be removed from the containers in which said merchandise was imported into the United States, and on which are brands or marks indicating the foreign origin or manufacture of such merchandise, and to be placed in containers which do not bear legible brands or marks fully informing prospective purchasers of said merchandise of the foreign origin thereof.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.
IN THE MATTER OF
J. C. WINTER & COMPANY, INC.

Docket 3563. Complaint, Aug. 30, 1938—Decision, Sept. 5, 1940

Where a corporation engaged in manufacture of various brands of cigars, including 5 cent cigars and 2 for 5 cent cigars, and in sale and distribution thereof to jobbers and retailers throughout the United States, in direct and substantial competition with various others likewise engaged in sale and distribution in commerce of such products—

(a) Retained, displayed, and used, in brands, descriptions, and labels of machine-made cigars, depictions theretofore made use of for discontinued hand-made product, which displayed workman at table cutting tobacco leaves, with leaves at right and finished product at left, and words "R. J. Allen's" and "Hand Made," notwithstanding fact its said products were no longer, as understood from said words by purchasing public and as preferred by substantial part thereof, made entirely by hand, but were machine-made products; and

(b) Set forth and made use of such words and legends in brands, labels, and descriptions of cigars made and sold by it, as "R. J. Allen's," "5¢ cigar now 2 for 5¢," and "5¢ 2 for 5¢—R. J. Allen's," and displayed on containers of its 2 for 5 cent cigars, trade-mark depictions of workman, as above described, and such matter included therein as "Sumatra Wrapper" and "Havana Filler," notwithstanding fact products in question were not of same composition and quality as the original "R. J. Allen's" 5 cent cigar, as long known and understood as hand-made product with Havana filler and Sumatra wrapper, but were no longer made as aforesaid set forth, but of Pennsylvania filler and Connecticut binder of damaged and "flood" tobacco, with wrapper of Ohio, Connecticut, Florida, or Philippine tobacco, and it did not make use of same quality of tobacco in its 2 for 5 cent cigars as in its 5-cent product, and said 2 for 5 cent "R. J. Allen's" cigars, packaged and branded as aforesaid, were not of the quality and grade of the 5-cent "R. J. Allen's" cigar, as well known to purchasing and consuming public and sold by it for number of years prior to acts and practices above set forth, but were composed of inferior and less desirable tobacco, both as to filler, binder and wrapper;

With effect of misleading and deceiving consuming public, and causing it to purchase cigars, labeled, described, and designated as aforesaid, as hand-made, and manufactured with intent of being sold at retail for 5 cents each, or at price in excess of that actually asked, and as sold recently for such price, and as of same grade and quality as the "R. J. Allen's" cigars which formerly retailed for 5 cents, and with result, on account of such mistaken and erroneous beliefs, thus induced, that substantial portion of purchasing public was induced to buy such "R. J. Allen's" cigars from it, and trade thereby was diverted unfairly to it from competitors who truthfully represent quality and character of their products; to the injury of competition in commerce:
Complaint

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. John L. Hornor, trial examiner.
Mr. Marshall Morgan for the Commission.
Mr. John Walsh and Mr. Louis A. Spiess, of Washington, D. C., for respondent.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that J. C. Winter & Co., Inc., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, the Commission hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, J. C. Winter & Co., Inc., whose principal office and place of business is located on South Pine Street, in Red Lion, Pa., was incorporated under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania in 1929. Respondent company is now, and for some years last past has been, engaged in the business of manufacturing various brands of cigars and selling and distributing the same to jobbers and retailers throughout the United States. The said cigars are manufactured by respondent at Red Lion, Pa., as aforesaid, where they are packed, branded, and labeled by respondent for sale and distribution to the purchasing public of the United States. In consummating such sales and in distributing such products, respondent causes the cigars so sold to be transported and delivered from its place of business in Red Lion, in the State of Pennsylvania, through and into various other States of the United States to the respective purchasers thereof at their respective points of location. In the course and conduct of its said business, the respondent has been, and is now engaged in direct and substantial competition with various corporations, partnerships, and individuals likewise engaged in the sale and distribution of cigars, and offering such products for sale in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and within the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. The outer leaf or wrapper of a cigar comprises about 5 percent of the entire cigar, while the filler and binder, constituting 95 percent of a cigar, are the controlling factors in its size, strength, and flavor. The filler controls primarily the designed length, thickness, and shape of the cigar as rolled into a binder or binder wrapper of desired size. The filler of the cheapest grades of cigars such as "2 for 5's," is composed principally of what is known as "scrap," the same being clippings from cigars in the process of manufacture.

Par. 3. The words "Hand Made" when applied to cigars, now mean, and over a long period of years have meant, to dealers and to the purchasing public alike, that such cigars are made entirely by hand. There is a preference on the part of a large portion of the purchasing public, and of the tobacco trade, for cigars which are hand-made.

Par. 4. In the course and conduct of its said business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent obtains orders for cigars through salesmen and solicitors and by mail.

The said cigars manufactured, sold, and distributed by respondent in interstate commerce, as set forth in paragraph 1 herein, are, and for several years last past have been, sold and distributed by respondent in large and substantial quantities under the brand name, among others, of "R. J. Allen's." The containers for such cigars are the usual and customary cigar boxes or cigar containers of 50 and 100 cigars each. A label, consisting of a paper band is attached to each cigar.

On the outside lid of a container formerly, and until recently, used by respondent appeared a pictorial representation of an operator sitting at a table cutting tobacco leaf with a knife, cigar leaf at his right, finished cigars piled at his left. Above this representation was the word "R. J. Allen's," and immediately below the words "Hand Made." This label in more detail appeared on the inside of the lid in attractive colors, the pictorial representation of the workman making cigars being accompanied in two places by the words in conspicuous type "Hand Made." Included in the design on the inside of the lid were representations also of packages labeled respectively "Sumatra Wrapper" and "Havana Filler." There also appeared on the inside lid of this container the expression "Now 2 for 5¢," printed in large conspicuous type.

Subsequently, in branding, describing, and labeling machine made cigars, respondent adopted and used, and still uses, the same pictorial representation which had theretofore been employed by it to designate or indicate, and which had been associated by the trade and consuming public with advertising employed by respondent to indicate, a hand-made cigar, that is, the pictorial representation of an operator sitting at a table cutting tobacco and making cigars by hand. While retaining and using the aforesaid pictorial representation, respondent superimposed over the former wording beneath the picture a long red sticker or strip bearing among others the wording:

"New Shape"
"Perfecto" and such further legends as

"2 for 5¢—R. J. Allen's—2 for 5¢"

In the upper left hand corner of the inside lid in conspicuous type, easily legible, appears the following:

the first expression "5¢" having lines drawn through it and appearing immediately above and in juxtaposition to the expression "2 for 5¢."

Prior to the year 1932, respondent company did manufacture the "R. J. Allen's" brand of cigar in various shapes and sizes and of a grade to retail at 5 cents each. Said cigars were made both by hand and by machine. In the early part of the year 1932, however, such changes were made in the wrapper and filler of said cigar as to permit of its retailing at 2 for 5 cents, the wrapper and filler being made entirely of domestic tobacco and of grades that would permit said respondent to manufacture said cigars so that they could be sold to retailers at 1¼ cents each and the retailer could in turn retail them at 2½ cents each or 2 for 5 cents.

For some 2 years after said reduction in price was made, and as recently as October 1935, respondent employed labels on containers in connection with the interstate sale and shipment of said cigars on which, among others the following language appeared:

"Now 2 for 5¢"

Said labeling indicated that said cigars had recently been reduced in price, when such was not the fact, the cigars having been manufactured for the purpose and with the expectation of retailing at 2 for 5 cents.

Respondent, about October 1935, began, and continued to employ, labeling on the containers of its "R. J. Allen's" brand of cigars, manufactured as stated, for the purpose and expectation of being sold at 2 for 5 cents, reading as follows:

"3 2 for 5¢"

Par. 5. In truth and in fact many of respondent's said cigars, sold and distributed by it in commerce as aforesaid, and packed and shipped in containers bearing as a part of their label the pictorial representation of a workman making cigars by hand, were not made by hand, but by machinery, and respondent's said cigars labeled respectively, and successively, on containers as "5¢ Cigar now 2 for 5¢"; and "Now 2 for 5¢"; or "5¢ 2 for 5¢", have not been sold currently or at any time for 5¢ but on the contrary were, and are, manufactured for the purpose and with the expectation of being sold at the price actually specified, namely, 2 for 5 cents, and are, and have been, made of material which would permit of the sale of such cigars at this price.

Par. 6. The use by respondent on containers of the pictorial representation of a workman or operator making cigars by hand, which said pictorial representation had theretofore been employed by respondent to indicate hand-made cigars, and the use by respondent of the words, expressions, or legends, "Now 2 for 5¢"; "5¢ Now 2 for 5¢"; and "5¢ 2 for 5¢", has misled and deceived, and still misleads and deceives, said wholesale and retail dealers and the consuming public, and has caused them to purchase the cigars of respondent in the belief that said cigars, so labeled, described, and designated were manufactured for the purpose and with the intent of being sold at 5 cents each, or at a price in excess of that actually asked for them, and had been sold currently for such price. As a result of such false and misleading representations on the part of the respondent, the consuming public is being, and has been, injured, and trade is being diverted to respondent from said hereinbefore mentioned competitors. Thereby injury is done, and has been done, by respondent to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and within the District of Columbia, and there is, and has been, placed in the hands of respondent's dealers and distributors an instrument by means of which they mislead and deceive, and have misled and deceived, the purchasing public.

Par. 7. The acts and things above alleged to have been done, and the false representations alleged to have been made by respondent, are to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.
by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto, and the oral arguments of counsel aforesaid; and the Commission, having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent, J. C. Winter & Co., Inc., whose principal office and place of business is located on South Pine Street in Red Lion, Pa., was incorporated under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania in 1929. Respondent is now, and for some years last past has been, engaged in the business of manufacturing various brands of cigars and selling and distributing the same to jobbers and retailers throughout the United States. The said cigars are manufactured by respondent at Red Lion, Pa., where they are packed, branded, and labeled by the respondent for sale and distribution to the purchasing public of the United States. In consummating such sales and in distributing such products, respondent causes the cigars so sold to be transported and delivered from its place of business in Red Lion, Pa., through and into the various other States of the United States to prospective purchasers thereof at their respective points of location. In the course and conduct of its said business, the respondent has been, and is now, engaged in direct and substantial competition with various corporations, partnerships, and individuals likewise engaged in the sale and distribution of cigars, and offering such products for sale in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and within the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 2. Respondent, in the regular course of business, prior to the year 1932, was selling and distributing large and substantial quantities of its cigars under the brand name "R. J. Allen's," packed in the usual and customary cigar boxes or containers of 50 or 100 cigars each. Said cigars were manufactured of a size and grade to retail at 5 cents each. On or about February 1, 1932, respondent changed the retail selling price of the "R. J. Allen's" brand of cigar from 5 cents to 2 for 5 cents.

On the outside lid of the containers, formerly used by respondent in the sale of 2 for 5 cents "R. J. Allen's" cigars, appeared a pictorial representation of a workman sitting at a table cutting tobacco leaves with a knife, cigar leaves at his right, finished cigars piled at his left. Above this representation was the following: “R. J. Allen’s,” and immediately below were the words “Hand Made.” This representation in more detail appeared on the inside of the lid in attractive colors pictorially, of a workman making cigars, and was accompanied in two places by the words, in conspicuous type, “Hand Made.” Included in the design on the inside of the lid were the representations also of packages labeled respectively “Sumatra Wrapper” and “Havana Filler.” There also appeared on the inside lid of this container the expression “Now 2 for 5¢,” printed in large conspicuous type, and on the outside end of the box the representation “R. J. Allen’s,” “5¢ cigar now 2 for 5¢.” Subsequently, in branding, describing, and labeling machine-made cigars, respondent adopted and used, and still uses, the same pictorial representations of an operator sitting at a table cutting tobacco and making cigars by hand. While retaining and using this aforesaid pictorial representation, respondent superimposed over the former wording, beneath the picture, a long red sticker or strip bearing among others the wording “New Shape Perfecto,” and such other statements as “2 for 5¢—R. J. Allen’s—2 for 5¢,” and in the upper left hand corner on the inside lid in conspicuous type appears the following:

the first expression 5 cents having a line drawn through it and appearing immediately above in juxtaposition to the expression “2 for 5¢.”

Par. 3. Originally the “R. J. Allen’s” cigar was composed of Havana filler and Sumatra wrapper and was sold at retail for 5 cents each. It was known in the trade and to the public as a “Hand Made” cigar. Later the respondent used only domestic tobacco in the manufacture of the “R. J. Allen’s” cigar, the filler then being composed of tobacco originating in Pennsylvania, the binder being of tobacco originating in Connecticut, and the wrapper being composed of tobacco from Ohio, Connecticut, Florida, or the Philippine Islands.

Respondent, as stated, on or about February 1, 1932, reduced the price of his cigar branded “R. J. Allen’s,” and also made changes in the types of tobacco used in the filler and wrapper of the cigar, and manufactured this cigar to be resold thereafter by the cigar dealer at the retail price of 2 for 5 cents. The tobacco used by the respondent in the 2 for 5 cent “R. J. Allen’s” cigar is not of the same quality and grade as that used in the 5-cent “R. J. Allen’s” cigar but is inferior thereto. After respondent began to manufacture the "R. J. Allen's" cigar to retail at 2 for 5 cents, the tobacco used in the manufacture of this cigar included tobacco damaged in harvesting and for this reason rejected by the manufacturers of cigars obtaining a higher price than 2 for 5 cents. This damaged tobacco was inferior in quality to the tobacco used by the respondent in the manufacture of the "R. J. Allen's" cigar which had sold for resale to the purchasing public at 5 cents. Other of the tobacco used in the "R. J. Allen's" cigar manufactured to retail at 2 for 5 cents was what is known in the trade as "flood" tobacco. In this instance, the tobacco had been badly damaged by water in the Connecticut floods of 1936.

The expression "flood tobacco" was quite common in Red Lion after the flood which occurred in March 1936 in New England States and more particularly in Connecticut, at which time substantial quantities of tobacco located in Connecticut were badly damaged by said flood. There were many tobacco warehouses located along the river front at Hartford, Conn., during the 1936 flood and the water at that point backed up many feet into these warehouses, in some instances as far up as the second and third story. This "flood tobacco" was brought to Red Lion in truckloads by the manufacturers of cigars. The respondent had tobacco stored in Hartford, Conn., since 1930, for use in the manufacture of its cigars manufactured to retail at 5 cents. After the flood of 1936, during which tobacco stored at Hartford, Conn., by the respondent was damaged by the flood, some of this "flood tobacco" was used by the respondent in the manufacture of its 2 for 5 cent cigar. Some of this "flood tobacco" brought into respondent's factory for use in the 2 for 5 cent cigars was offensive in appearance and had a bad odor. Only the best of this tobacco was used in the manufacture of cigars. That, according to the testimony, which did not seem fit for production was thrown into the garbage. All workmen were instructed to throw out that which "wasn't fit," and these instructions were observed.

Par. 4. The trade-mark for the "R. J. Allen's" cigar was applied for at the United States Patent Office on December 30, 1932, and was formally registered at the Patent Office on May 9, 1933. This application set forth a drawing of the trade-mark consisting of a design containing a representation of a workman seated at a bench engaged in making cigars, boxes of cigars appearing to the right and the left. Above the head of the workman, in heavy black type, appears the legend "R. J. Allen's." Immediately below the hands of the workman, in prominent type, appear the words "Hand Made." Below and to the right of the workman appears the representation of a package marked "Sumatra Wrapper," and below and to the left of the workman the representation of another package marked "Havana Filler." In the statement made in applying for this trade-mark appears the following:

• • • This trade-mark has been continuously used and applied to said goods in applicant's business since November 1, 1922. • • •

The Commission finds that the words "Hand Made" when applied to cigars now mean, and over a long period of years have meant, to the purchasing public that cigars so designated and described are made entirely by hand, and there exists a preference on the part of a substantial portion of the purchasing public for cigars which are hand made.

This trade-mark has been used by the respondent in labeling cigars that did not contain Havana tobacco nor Sumatra wrapper and which were not hand-made. The Commission finds that prior to May, 1935, the "R. J. Allen's" cigar was manufactured by hand and subsequent to that date it has been manufactured by machine, and this machine-made cigar has been sold and distributed by the respondent under the label "Hand Made."

PAR. 5. For a number of years the respondent has manufactured both a 5 cent and a 2 for 5 cent cigar. The Commission finds that there is now, and always has been, a difference in the quality and type of tobacco used in its 5 cent and its 2 for 5 cent cigars. The tobacco used in the 5 cent cigar is greatly superior to that used in the 2 for 5 cent cigars.

The Commission further finds that the 2 for 5 cent "R. J. Allen’s" cigar packaged in the boxes marked and branded as aforesaid is not, and was not, of the quality and grade of the 5-cent "R. J. Allen’s" cigar that was well known to the purchasing and consuming public and which had been sold by the respondent as hereinabove set out for a number of years, but was composed of tobacco, both as to filler and binder and wrapper, that was inferior to and less desirable than the tobaccos used in the manufacture of the "R. J. Allen’s" 5-cent cigar. Respondent has not made and sold a 5-cent "R. J. Allen’s" cigar since about February 1, 1932.

PAR. 6. The Commission finds that respondent's price labeling "5¢ cigar now 2 for 5¢" and "5¢ 2 for 5¢" has conveyed, and does convey, the definite meaning to the consumer of cigars that "R. J. Allen's" 2 for 5 cent cigar is composed of the same quality, grade, and the same type of tobacco as that in the cigar branded "R. J. Allen's" manufactured and sold by respondent for resale to the consuming public at 5 cents each.
PAR. 7. The use by respondent on the containers of the pictorial representation of a workman or operator making cigars by hand, which said pictorial representation had theretofore been used by respondent to indicate "Hand Made" cigars, and the use by the respondent of the words, expressions or labels:

"Now 2 for 5¢," and
"5¢ Cigar Now 2 for 5¢;"

and of the words, expression or label:

"3¢ 2 for 5¢;"

have misled and deceived, and still mislead and deceive, the consuming public and have caused it to purchase the cigars of respondent in the belief that said cigars so labeled, described, and designated were "Hand Made"; were manufactured for the purpose and with the intent of being sold at retail at 5 cents each, or at a price in excess of that actually asked for them; had been sold recently for such price; and were of the same grade and quality as the "R. J. Allen's" cigars formerly retailing at 5 cents each. On account of such mistaken and erroneous beliefs, hereinabove set forth, a substantial portion of the purchasing public has been induced to purchase "R. J. Allen's" cigars from respondent, and thereby trade has been unfairly diverted to respondent from competitors who truthfully represent the quality and character of their products. In consequence thereof, injury has been done, and is now being done, by respondent to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, J. C. Winter and Co., Inc., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of cigars in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Using the words "hand-made" alone or in conjunction with any other words or expression of similar import and meaning to describe or to designate, or in any way to refer to, cigars which are not made by hand.

2. Using the legends or expressions, "5¢ cigar Now 2 for 5¢," or "5¢ 2 for 5¢," or "Now 2 for 5¢," or any other terms of similar import and meaning to designate, describe, or refer to the brand of cigars now sold under the brand name "R. J. Allen's."

3. Using the legends or expressions, "5¢ cigar Now 2 for 5¢," or "5¢ 2 for 5¢," or any other term indicating a reduction in price, to designate, describe, or refer to any brand of cigars, unless the brand of cigars so designated, described, or referred to has recently sold for the price stated and the cigars sold under the brand name are of the identical grade, type, and quality of those sold under the brand name when the indicated higher price was in effect.

4. Using the legend or expression, "Now 2 for 5¢," or any other term indicating a reduction in price, to designate, describe, or refer to any brand of cigars, unless the brand of cigars so designated, described, or referred to has recently sold at a price greater than the price indicated and the cigars sold under the brand name are of the identical grade, type, and quality of those sold under the brand name when the higher price was in effect.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION

Docket 3662. Complaint, Dec. 10, 1938—Decision, Sept. 5, 1940

Where an individual engaged in sale of pen and pencil sets, billfolds, silverware, candid cameras, and various other articles, to purchasers in various other States and in the District of Columbia; in soliciting and in selling and distributing various articles dealt in by him—

Made use of game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme, under or pursuant to which he distributed or caused to be distributed to representatives and prospective representatives, advertising letters, order blanks, and push cards, for use in sale and distribution of his said products by operators of such cards, in accordance with scheme by which person selecting from various feminine names beneath said card's disks name corresponding to that concealed under card's master seal received candid camera or article of merchandise being thus disposed of, and person securing certain number received combination pen and pencil, and under which amount, if any, paid for chance was dependent upon number secured by chance in accordance with disk selected, and operator was compensated also by receipt of article of merchandise in question being thus disposed of; and

Supplied thereby to and placed in the hands of others means of conducting lotteries in the sale of his merchandise in accordance with aforesaid sales plan or method, or one similar thereto and varying therefrom in detail only, involving distribution to purchasing public, wholly by lot or chance, of articles in question, and game of chance or sale of a chance to procure an article of merchandise at price much less than normal retail price thereof, contrary to an established public policy of the United States Government and in violation of the criminal laws, and in competition with many who are unwilling to adopt and use said or any method involving game of chance or sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other method contrary to public policy, and who refrain therefrom;

With result that many persons were attracted by said sales plan or method employed by him in sale and distribution of his merchandise and by element of chance involved therein, and were thereby induced to buy and sell his products in preference to merchandise offered and sold by competitors who do not use same or equivalent method, and with effect, through use of such method and because of said game of chance, of unfairly diverting trade to him from his competitors aforesaid who do not use such or equivalent method; to the substantial injury of competition in commerce;

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.
Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Benjamin Jaffe, individually and trading as National Premium Co. and King Sales Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the interest of the public, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Benjamin Jaffe, is an individual trading as National Premium Co. and King Sales Co. with his principal office and place of business located at 411 South Wells Street, Chicago, Ill. Respondent is now, and for some time last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of pen and pencil sets, billfolds, silverware, blankets, candid cameras, clocks, bedspreads, luggage, bathroom scales, toaster tray sets, coffee makers, aluminum sets, shirts, princess slips, binoculars, and other articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent causes, and has caused, said products when sold to be transported from his aforesaid place of business in Illinois to purchasers thereof in the various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia at their respective points of location. There is now, and has been for some time last past, a course of trade by respondent in such merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of such business, respondent is, and has been, in competition with other individuals and with partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent in soliciting the sale of and in selling and distributing his merchandise in commerce, as herein described, furnishes and has furnished, various devices and plans of merchandising which involve the operation of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes by which said merchandise is sold and distributed to the ultimate consumers thereof wholly by lot or chance. The method or sales plan adopted and used by respondent was and is substantially as follows:

Respondent distributes and has distributed to the purchasing public through the United States mails and otherwise certain literature and instructions including, among other things, push cards, order blanks, illustrations of his said products, and circulars explaining respondent's plan of selling said merchandise and of allotting it as premiums or prizes to the operators of said push cards. One of respondent's push cards bears 48 feminine names with ruled columns on the reverse side thereof for writing in the name of the customer opposite the feminine name selected. Said push card has 48 small, partially perforated disks on the face of which is printed the word "push." Concealed within each disk is a number which is disclosed when the disk is pushed or separated from the card. The push card also has a large master seal, and concealed within the master seal is one of the feminine names appearing on the reverse side of said card. The push card bears legends or instructions as follows:

Sales of respondent's products by means of said push cards are made in accordance with the above-described legends and instructions. Said prizes or premiums are allotted to the customers or purchasers in accordance with the above legends and instructions. The said articles of merchandise are thus distributed to the purchasing public wholly by lot or chance.

Respondent furnishes and has furnished various push cards accompanied by said order blanks, instructions, and other printed matter for use in the sale and distribution of his merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. The sales plan or method involved in connection with the sale of all of said merchandise by means of said push card is the same as those hereinabove described, varying only in detail.

Par. 3. The persons to whom respondent furnishes the said push cards use the same in purchasing, selling, and distributing respondent's merchandise, in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan. Respondent thus supplies to, and places in the hands of, others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of his merchandise in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said sales plan or method in the sale of his merchandise and the sale of said merchandise by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plan or method is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws.

Par. 4. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above alleged involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure an article of merchandise at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations, who sell or distribute merchandise in competition with the respondent as above alleged, are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other method that is contrary to public policy and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of his merchandise and the element of chance involved therein, and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or an equivalent method. The use of said method by respondent, because of said game of chance, has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade to respondent from his said competitors who do not use the same or an equivalent method, and as a result thereof substantial injury is being, and has been, done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 5. By prices set out in his circular letters and other printed matter which are published, issued, and circulated through the United States mails to his customers and prospective customers in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, respondent represents and has represented to customers and prospective customers that said products have values greatly in excess of the normal retail selling prices and in excess of the actual values thereof.

Representative of such representations made by the respondent in the circular letters and printed matter aforesaid, regarding the value of the commodities thus offered by him for sale are the following:

In truth and in fact the products set out above do not have the values represented by respondent, but the pen and pencil set cost him only 25 cents each; the billfolds cost him only 25 cents each; the silverware is purchased by him for $1.77; the blankets for $1.65; the bedspreads for $2.85; the cameras for $2.30; the clocks for $1.65; the luggage for $1.55; bathroom scales for $1.30; the toaster tray sets for $1.94; coffee makers for $1.25; the aluminum sets for $2.29; the shirts from $8.50 to $10.75 per dozen; the binoculars for 88 cents.

The prices set out in said circular letters and other printed matter as aforesaid are greatly in excess of the normal retail selling price of said products and are in excess of the true and actual values thereof and in no sense represent either the true value or normal selling price.
of the products so advertised, but are greatly in excess of the price at which the same are sold or intended to be sold in the usual course of trade.

As a result of respondent's representations, members of the purchasing public are, and have been, led to erroneously and mistakenly believe that the actual value and selling price of respondent's products are the prices set out in the aforesaid circular letters and the printed matter, when in fact, the prices so set out are fictitious and in no sense represent the normal selling price or actual value of the products referred to.

Par. 6. The use by respondent of the representations set forth herein has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive, and has misled and deceived, a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that such representations are true and into the purchase of substantial quantities of said respondent's products as a result of such erroneous belief. There are, among the competitors of the respondent as mentioned in paragraph 1 hereof, manufacturers and distributors of like and similar products who do not misrepresent the price at which their products are sold. By the representations aforesaid, trade is unfairly diverted to respondent from such competitors, and, as a result thereof, substantial injury is being done, and has been done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 7. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on December 10, 1938, issued and thereafter served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent Benjamin Jaffe, individually and trading as National Premium Co. and King Sales Co., charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. Respondent filed no answer to said complaint. Thereafter testimony and other evidence in support of said complaint were introduced by L. P. Allen, Jr., attorney for the Commission (no testimony or other evidence having been offered by the firm of Nash and Donnelly, counsel for the respondent) before Miles J. Furnas, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, testimony, and other evidence, briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto and the oral arguments of counsel for the Commission and counsel for the respondent, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. The Commission finds that respondent, Benjamin Jaffe, is an individual trading under the names "National Premium Company" and "King Sales Company," with his principal office and place of business located at 418 South Wells Street, Chicago, Ill. Respondent is now, and for some time last past has been, engaged in the sale of pen and pencil sets, billfolds, silverware, blankets, candid cameras, clocks, bed spreads, luggage, bathroom scales, tray sets, coffeemakers, aluminum sets, shirts, princess slips, binoculars, and other articles of merchandise, in commerce between and among various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of his said business, respondent causes and has caused said products, when sold, to be shipped or transported from his aforesaid place of business in the State of Illinois, to purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, at their respective points of location. In the course and conduct of said business, respondent is and has been in competition with other individuals and with partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of similar articles of merchandise in commerce between and among various States of the United States.

PAR. 2. The Commission further finds that, in the course and conduct of his business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and distributes said articles of merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. Said respondent distributes, or causes to be distributed, to representatives and prospective representatives, a certain advertising letter, an order blank, and a device commonly known as a push card. Said respondent's merchandise is and has been distributed to the purchasing public in the following manner:

Said respondent furnishes to members of the general public an advertising letter, and order blank, together with a device commonly known as a "push card." Said push card contains on its face a number of detachable discs which may be pushed or otherwise separated from the card, thus disclosing a number which is concealed within or under the disk. Immediately beneath each of said disks there appears a feminine name. The push card also bears a large, removable "master seal" which covers and conceals one of the feminine names shown under the detachable disks, the name under the master seal not being revealed until all the pushes have been sold. The feminine names appearing under the disks are listed on the reverse side of the card, with a space opposite each for recording the name of the purchaser. The letter and order blank accompanying the push card bear instructions and statements which inform the recipient, or distributor, of the method by which the articles of merchandise listed and described are to be distributed to the purchasing public. The said push cards bear legends, inscriptions and instructions as follows:

Persons Selecting Name Under Seal Receives This

Cinex

No. 33 Receives Combination Pen and Pencil
Nos. 1 to 29 pay what you draw
Numbers over 29 pay only 29¢, no higher
Nos. 6-8-10-12-30 are free

Write your name on reverse side opposite name selected

The Commission finds said respondent furnishes and has furnished his representatives with additional printed instructions or suggestions for using said push cards, which are as follows:

SUGGESTIONS FOR USING CARD

This card consists of 48 girls' names; over each girl's name is a concealed number. This number represents the amount each person pushing out the numbers is to pay.

The concealed numbers under the small seals range from No. 1 upward, but the customer pays only 1¢ to 29¢ per drawing according to the number drawn, NO HIGHER. Any number over 29 pays only 29¢.

Be sure and write names of persons pushing out numbers on the line opposite the number they have selected on back of the card.

After all the numbers have been pushed and collections made, the large RED SEAL is pushed out, and the person holding the name corresponding to the one SHOWN ON THE LARGE RED SEAL IS AWARDED FREE, ONE CANDID CAMERA.

Persons selecting number 33 receive a Combination Pen and Pencil.

The person selling the card receives ABSOLUTELY FREE, ONE CANDID CAMERA for their efforts put forth in selling the card. You will have lots of fun getting folks to push out the names on the card. Show it to your fellow employees, friends, relatives and acquaintances. Whenever there is a party or gathering at your home or your friends' homes bring out your card.

Upon receipt of the order accompanied by Cashier's Check or Postal Money Order for $10.95, we will then ship two candid cameras and one combination pen and pencil. If you wish, we will ship C. O. D. and pay all charges except C. O. D. Fees.

Sales of respondent's products by means of said push cards are made in accordance with the above-described legends and instructions. Said prizes or premiums are allotted to customers or purchasers in accordance with the above legends and instructions. The said articles of merchandise are thus distributed to the purchasing public wholly by lot or chance. Respondent furnishes and has furnished various push cards, accompanied by order blanks and instructions for their use in the sale and distribution of his merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. The sales plan or method involved in connection with the sale of all of said respondent's merchandise by means of said push card, or similar method, is the same as that hereinabove described, varying only in detail.

PAR. 3. The Commission finds that persons to whom respondent furnishes the said push cards use the same in purchasing, selling, and distributing respondent's merchandise in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of his merchandise in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said sales plan or method in the sale of his merchandise, and the sale of said merchandise by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plan or method, is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal law.

PAR. 4. The Commission finds that the sale of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above found involves a game of chance, or the sale of a chance, to procure an article of merchandise at a price less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell or distribute merchandise in competition with the respondent, as above found, are unwilling to adopt and use said method, or any method involving a game of chance, or the sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other method that is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of his merchandise and the element of chance involved therein, and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by competitors of respondent who do not use the same or equivalent methods. The use of said method by respondent, because of said game of chance, has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade to respondent from his said competitors who do not use the same or any equivalent method, and as a result thereof, substantial injury has been and is being done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among various States of the United States.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce, within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

It is ordered, That the respondent Benjamin Jaffe, individually and trading as National Premium Co. and King Sales Co., or trading under any other name or names, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of pen and pencil sets, billfolds, silverware, blankets, candid cameras, clocks, bedspreads, luggage, bathroom scales, tray sets, coffee makers, aluminum sets, shirts, princess slips, binoculars, or any other merchandise in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Supplying to or placing in the hands of others push or pull cards, punchboards, or other devices, which said push or pull cards, punchboards, or other devices, are to be used or may be used in selling or distributing said articles of merchandise or any other merchandise, to the general public by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

2. Mailing, shipping, or transporting to agents or distributors, or to members of the public, push or pull cards, punchboards, or other devices, so prepared and printed that sales of said merchandise, or any other merchandise, are to be made, or may be made, to the general public by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

3. Selling or otherwise disposing of any merchandise by the use of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.

With tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive substantial portion of purchasing public into mistaken and erroneous belief that he was manufacturer of such hosiery and, by reason thereof, into purchase of substantial quantity of his said product:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Before Mr. John W. Addison, trial examiner.
Mr. L. E. Creel, Jr. for the Commission.
Mr. Charles P. Bloome, of Philadelphia, Pa., for respondent.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Benjamin Gould, trading as Piccadilly Hosiery Mills and Piccadilly Hosiery Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Benjamin Gould, is an individual doing business under the trade names of Piccadilly Hosiery Mills and Piccadilly Hosiery Co., with his principal office and place of business located at 1019–1021 Arch Street, in the city of Philadelphia, State of Pennsylvania. Respondent is now, and for some time last past has been engaged in the business of selling and distributing hosiery in commerce between and among various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent causes, and has caused, said hosiery, when sold, to be shipped from his aforesaid place of business in the State of Pennsylvania, to purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in various States of the United States, other than the State of Pennsylvania, and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of his business, as aforesaid, respondent, in soliciting the sale of and in selling his hosiery as above described, has caused letterheads, invoices, and other printed matter relative to said hosiery to be distributed in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, to customers and prospective customers located in States other than Pennsylvania. Certain of said printed matter includes the following statement:

Piccadilly Hosiery Mills
1019-1021 Arch Street
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania

The use by respondent of the word "Mills" in his trade name and in the manner above described serves as a representation by respondent that he is the manufacturer of the hosiery which he sells and distributes.

Par. 3. In truth and in fact, respondent does not own and operate or control the plant or factory wherein the hosiery which he sells and distributes is manufactured but respondent has filled and now fills orders for such articles of merchandise with hosiery which is made or manufactured in a plant or factory which he does not own, operate, or control.

Par. 4. There is now, and has been during all the times mentioned herein, a preference on the part of a substantial portion of the purchasing and consuming public and dealers for dealing directly with a manufacturer of hosiery in the belief that more reliance can be placed on a manufacturer with reference to carrying out contracts, and that lower prices, elimination of middlemen's profits, superior products, or other advantages can thereby be obtained.

Par. 5. The use by the respondent of the word "Mills," as hereinabove alleged, has had, and now has, the tendency and capacity to, and does, mislead and deceive purchasers and prospective purchasers into the mistaken and erroneous belief that the respondent is the manufacturer of said hosiery and into the purchase of substantial quantities of respondent's hosiery because of such mistaken and erroneous belief.
Par. 6. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on April 26, 1939, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent Benjamin Gould, an individual trading as Piccadilly Hosiery Mills and as Piccadilly Hosiery Co., charging him with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of the complaint were introduced by L. E. Creel, Jr., attorney for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by Charles P. Bloome, attorney in fact for respondent, before John W. Addison, trial examiner of the Commission by it theretofore duly designated, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, brief in support of the complaint, respondent not having filed brief, and on oral argument by counsel; and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

Findings as to the Facts

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Benjamin Gould, is an individual doing business under the trade name of Piccadilly Hosiery Co., with his principal office and place of business located at 1019-1021 Arch Street in the city of Philadelphia, Pa. From January 12, 1938 until April 5, 1938, respondent operated his business under the trade name of Piccadilly Hosiery Mills. On that date he abandoned the use of the trade name Piccadilly Hosiery Mills and substituted therefor the name Piccadilly Hosiery Co.

Paragraph 2. Respondent at all times since he began business in January 1938 has been engaged in the business of selling and distributing hosiery in commerce between and among various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent causes and has caused such hosiery, when sold, to be shipped from his place of business in the State of Pennsylvania to purchasers thereof located at their respective points of location in various States of the United States other than the State of Pennsylvania and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 3. In the course and conduct of his business as aforesaid, respondent in soliciting the sale of and selling hosiery as above described has caused letterheads, invoices, and other printed matter relative to such hosiery to be distributed to customers and prospective customers. Certain of such printed matter used from January 12, 1938 until April 5, 1938, included the following statement:

Piccadilly Hosiery Mills, 1019-1021 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania

Par. 4. The Commission finds that the use by the respondent of the word "Mills" in his trade name as aforesaid constituted a representation that respondent was the manufacturer of the hosiery sold by him; that respondent owned or operated a mill where said hosiery was made.

Such representation by the respondent was false and misleading.
The respondent has not at any time manufactured any of the hosiery sold by him. He has not at any time owned, operated, or controlled a mill wherein his said hosiery was made. Respondent obtains, and at all times mentioned herein has obtained his hosiery from other parties.

Par. 5. The Commission further finds that there is now and has been during all the times mentioned herein a preference on the part of a substantial portion of the purchasing and consuming public and dealers for dealing directly with the manufacturer of hosiery, such preference being due in part to a belief that thereby lower prices, elimination of middleman's profits, superior products, and other advantages can be obtained.

Par. 6. The use by respondent of said false and misleading representation had the tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the mistaken and erroneous belief that respondent was the manufacturer of said hosiery and into the purchase of substantial quantities of respondent's hosiery because of such mistaken and erroneous belief.

CONCLUSION

The acts and practices of respondent as found herein are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the
This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission on the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondent, testimony and other evidence taken before John W. Addison, an examiner of the Commission, theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, brief filed herein by counsel for the Commission and oral arguments by L. E. Creel, Jr., counsel for the Commission, and by Charles P. Bloome, on behalf of the respondent, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Benjamin Gould, individually and trading as Piccadilly Hosiery Mills and as Piccadilly Hosiery Co., or trading under any other name or names, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of hosiery in commerce, as “commerce” is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

Using the word “mill” or “mills” as a part of his trade name, or otherwise representing that he is a manufacturer.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall within 60 days after service upon him of this order file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.

ROBERT A. JOHNSTON COMPANY

Docket 4104. Complaint, Apr. 23, 1940—Decision, Sept. 5, 1940

Where a corporation engaged in manufacture of candy, and in sale and distribution of certain assortments thereof which were so packed and assembled as to involve use of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme when sold and distributed to consumers thereof, and one of which included number of boxes or packages of candy and additional article of merchandise, together with punchboard for use in distribution of such packages to consumers under a plan, and in accordance with board's explanatory legend, by which 5-cent purchaser of chance received, in accordance with particular number secured by chance, as case might be, basket of candy, specified box thereof, 2-pound box or 1-pound box, or 25-cent package, and in accordance with which, further, last five punches in each section into which board was divided were free, person selecting last number on board received additional article of merchandise, and persons who did not punch numbers designated as above indicated, received nothing for their money—

Sold such assortments, along with said punchboards, to dealer and retailer purchasers, by latter of whom, as direct or indirect buyers thereof, assortments in question were exposed and sold to purchasing public in accordance with such sales plans or methods, and thereby supplied to and placed in the hands of others means of conducting lotteries in sale and distribution of its candy in accordance with plans or methods above set forth, involving game of chance or sale of a chance to procure package or box of candy at price much less than normal retail price thereof, contrary to an established public policy of the United States Government and in violation of criminal laws, and in competition with many who are unwilling to adopt and use said or any sales plans or methods involving game of chance or sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other plans or methods contrary to public policy, and refrain therefrom;

With result that many dealers in and ultimate purchasers of said or like or similar candy were attracted by sales plans or methods employed by it in sale and distribution of its said products and element of chance involved therein, and were thereby induced to buy its merchandise in preference to that offered and sold by competitors aforesaid, who did not and do not use same or equivalent sales plans or methods, and with effect, through use of said plans or methods and because of said games of chance, of unfairly diverting trade from its said competitors who did not use such or equivalent plans or methods; to the substantial injury of competition in commerce:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

Mr. D. C. Daniel for the Commission.

Mr. Ira Milton Jones, of Milwaukee, Wis., for respondent.
Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Robert A. Johnston Co., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Robert A. Johnston Co. is a corporation organized and doing business under the laws of the State of Wisconsin, with its principal office and place of business located at 4023 West National Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis. Respondent maintains a branch office at 437 Eleventh Avenue, New York, N. Y. Respondent is now and for more than 1 year last past has been engaged in the manufacture of candy and in the sale and distribution thereof to dealers. Respondent causes and has caused said candy, when sold, to be shipped or transported from its aforesaid places of business in the States of Wisconsin and New York to purchasers thereof in the various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia at their respective points of location. There is now and for more than 1 year last past has been a course of trade by said respondent in such candy in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of its business, respondent is and has been in competition with other corporations and with individuals and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of candy in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its business as alleged in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and has sold certain assortments of said candy so packed and assembled as to involve the use of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme when said candy is sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. One of said assortments consists of a number of boxes or packages of candy, and an additional article of merchandise, together with a device commonly called a punchboard. Said packages of candy are distributed to the consumers thereof by means of said punchboard in substantially the following manner: Sales are 5 cents each. Said punchboard is divided into sections and each section contains a number of small sealed tubes in each of which is concealed a slip of paper with a number printed thereon. The board bears statements or legends informing purchasers and prospective purchasers that the person selecting a certain designated number, receives a basket of candy; that persons selecting certain other designated numbers, each receive a specified box of candy; that persons selecting other designated numbers each receive a 2-pound box of candy; that persons selecting certain other designated numbers each receive a 1-pound box of candy; that persons selecting certain other designated numbers each receive a 25-cent package of candy; that the last five punches in every section of said board are free; that the person selecting the last number on the said board receives said additional article of merchandise. Persons who do not punch said designated numbers receive nothing for their money. The said numbers are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until said slips of paper have been punched or removed from said board. The facts as to which of said packages or boxes of candy a purchaser is to receive, if any, and whether such package is without cost are thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

The respondent sells and distributes and has sold and distributed various assortments of said candy, together with punchboards and push cards, but all of said assortments of candy are sold and distributed to the consuming public by means of sales plans or methods similar to the one hereinabove described, varying only in detail.

PAR. 3. Retail dealers who purchase respondent’s said assortments of candy, either directly or indirectly, expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the aforesaid sales plans or methods. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale and distribution of its candy in accordance with the sales plans or methods hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said sales plans or methods in the sale of its candy, and the sale of said candy by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plans or methods is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of criminal laws.

PAR. 4. The sales of candy to the purchasing public in the manner above alleged, involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure a package or box of candy at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell or distribute merchandise in competition with respondent, as above alleged, are unwilling to adopt and use said sales plans or methods or any sales plans or methods involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other sales plans or methods that are contrary to public policy and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many dealers in and ultimate purchasers of said candy or like or similar candy, are attracted by said sales plans or methods employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of its candy, and the element of chance involved therein and are thereby induced to buy respondent’s merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or equivalent sales plans or methods. The use of said sales plans or methods by respondent because of said game of chance, has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade to respondent from its said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent sales plans or methods, and as a result thereof, substantial injury is being and has been done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent’s competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on April 23, 1940, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, Robert A. Johnston Co., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. Respondent filed no answer in this proceeding. Thereafter, a stipulation was entered into whereby it was stipulated and agreed that a statement of the facts filed and executed by Ira Milton Jones, counsel for respondent, and W. T. Kelley, chief counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, may be taken as the facts in this proceeding and in lieu of testimony, and that respondent waived all hearings and other intervening procedure. Thereafter this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint and stipulation, said stipulation having been approved, accepted and filed, and the Commission having duly considered the same and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.
FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Robert A. Johnston Co. is a corporation organized and doing business under the laws of the State of Wisconsin, with its principal office and place of business located at 4023 West National Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis. Respondent maintains a branch office at 437 Eleventh Avenue, New York, N. Y. Respondent is now and for more than 1 year last past has been engaged in the manufacture of candy and in the sale and distribution thereof to dealers. Respondent causes and has caused said candy, when sold, to be shipped or transported from its aforesaid places of business in the States of Wisconsin and New York to purchasers thereof in the various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia at their respective points of location. There is now and for more than 1 year last past has been a course of trade by said respondent in such candy in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of its business, respondent is and has been in competition with other corporations and with individuals and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of candy in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent has sold certain assortments of said candy so packed and assembled as to involve the use of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme when said candy is sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. One of said assortments consisted of a number of boxes or packages of candy, and an additional article of merchandise, together with a device commonly called a punchboard. Said packages of candy were distributed to the consumers thereof by means of said punchboard in substantially the following manner: Sales were 5 cents each. Said punchboard was divided into sections and each section contained a number of small sealed tubes in each of which was concealed a slip of paper with a number printed thereon. The board contained statements or legends informing purchasers and prospective purchasers that the person selecting a certain designated number, received a basket of candy; that persons selecting certain other designated numbers, each received a specified box of candy; that persons selecting other designated numbers each received a 2-pound box of candy; that persons selecting certain other designated numbers each received a 1-pound box of candy; that persons selecting certain other designated numbers each received a 25-cent package of candy; that the last five punches in every section of said board were free; that the person selecting the last number on the said board received said additional article of merchandise. Persons who did not punch said designated numbers received nothing for their money. The said numbers were effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until said slips of paper had been punched or removed from said board. The facts as to which of said packages or boxes of candy a purchaser was to receive, if any, and whether such package was without cost were thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

Par. 3. Retail dealers who purchased respondent's said assortments of candy, either directly or indirectly, exposed and sold the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the aforesaid sales plans or methods. Respondent thus supplied to and placed in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale and distribution of its candy in accordance with the sales plans or methods hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said sales plans or methods in the sale of its candy, and the sale of said candy by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plans or methods was and is a practice of a sort which was and is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of criminal laws.

Par. 4. The sales of candy to the purchasing public in the manner above found involved a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure a package or box of candy at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who have sold or distributed merchandise in competition with respondent, as above found, were and are unwilling to adopt and use said sales plans or methods or any sales plans or methods involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other sales plans or methods that are contrary to public policy and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many dealers in and ultimate purchasers of said candy or like or similar candy, were attracted by said sales plans or methods employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of its candy, and the element of chance involved therein and were thereby induced to buy respondent's merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who did not and do not use the same or equivalent sales plans or methods. The use of said sales plans or methods by respondent because of said game of chance, had a tendency and capacity to, and did, unfairly divert trade to respondent from its said competitors who did not use the same or equivalent sales plans or methods, and as a result thereof, substantial injury has been done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.
Order

PAR. 5. Respondent discontinued the sale of lottery assortments of candy as hereinabove found on or about December 1, 1939, upon receipt of inquiry from the Federal Trade Commission as to the acts and practices being engaged in by respondent.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

It is ordered, That the respondent, Robert A. Johnston Company, a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of candy or any other merchandise in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Selling or distributing any merchandise so packed and assembled that sales of said merchandise to the general public are to be made or may be made by means of a lottery, gaming device, or gift enterprise.

2. Supplying to or placing in the hands of others any merchandise, together with push or pull cards, punchboards, or any other devices, which said push or pull cards, punchboards or other devices are to be used or may be used in selling or distributing said merchandise to the general public by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

3. Supplying to or placing in the hands of others push or pull cards, punchboards or other devices either with assortments of merchandise or separately, which said push or pull cards, punchboards or other devices are to be used or may be used in selling or distributing said merchandise to the general public by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.
4. Selling or otherwise distributing any merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall within 60 days after service upon it of this order file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF

CANADIAN FUR TRAPPERS CORPORATION, AND DANIEL DORNFIELD, JACOB DORNFIELD, AND MORRIS DORNFIELD

Docket 3424. Complaint, May 13, 1938—Decision, Sept. 16, 1940

Where a corporation and two individuals, who were, and had been since its incorporation, officers thereof, and who participated in controlling and directing its policies and practices, engaged in sale and distribution of furs and fur products to purchasers in other States and in the District of Columbia, in substantial competition with others likewise engaged in sale and distribution of such products in commerce as aforesaid, including those selling and distributing their products in commerce who do not in any manner misrepresent their status or nature, or character of their business, or geographical origin of their products, and who do not represent that they are trappers or manufacturing furriers when such is not the case, and do not misrepresent in any manner the nature, character or quality of products sold or offered by them—

(a) Adopted and used as corporate and trade name, name including words “Canadian Fur Trappers,” and carried on their business thereunder continuously in soliciting sale of and selling their said products in commerce as aforesaid, and displayed said name on letterheads, billheads, cards, invoices, and labels, and in newspaper and radio advertising, and featured in certain of their said advertisements word “Canadian” and also words “Fur Trappers,” with abbreviation “Corp.” in small and inconspicuous type, and displayed in certain advertising matter large seal or emblem simulating Royal Coat of Arms of Great Britain, together with word “Canadian” in conspicuous letters and words “Fur Trappers,” less conspicuously and, in very fine print, word “Corp.”; notwithstanding fact concerned in question was not a Canadian corporation, but a domestic one, and had no connection or association with any organization, group, or interest composed or representing Canadian fur trappers or trappers of fur-bearing animals, and was not engaged in business of fur trapping or otherwise taking or capturing such animals, and furs of Canadian origin dealt in by them did not exceed from 25 percent to 35 percent of such products in which, as a whole, they dealt;

With effect of deceiving and misleading prospective purchasers and purchasers of their said products into the belief that corporation in question was a Canadian one, owned, controlled, and operated by Canadian fur trappers, and that products offered and sold by them were furs and fur products which they had made or manufactured from peltries of animals actually shot, trapped, or killed, or otherwise caught and taken by them in Canada, and were offered and sold to public by them without any intervention of middleman, as preferred by substantial portion of purchasing public, and of deceiving and misleading purchasers into erroneous belief, through such simulation of Royal Coat of Arms, that it was organization or association of trappers of fur-bearing animals in Canada, fur of which, and of animals in other northern countries, is widely believed among purchasers and prospective purchasers to be superior to that of animals living in milder, more temperate climate, and that they were engaged in business of dealing primarily in furs and fur products produced in said country and were trappers of fur-bearing animals and actually shot, killed, trapped, or otherwise caught or took such animals in Canada, and that furs and fur products offered and sold by them were such products, made by them from peltries of animals so shot, etc., by them; and

(b) Described or represented certain of said corporation's products in newspaper advertisements as "Hudson Seal," "Mendoza Beaver," "Beaverette," and "American Broadtail," and represented thereby that garments in question were made from peltries of seal, beaver or baby lambs of Karakul breed of sheep, respectively, facts being product offered and sold by them as "Hudson Seal" was made from peltries of muskrats, "Mendoza Beaver," and "Beaverette" products were made from peltries of rabbits, so dressed and dyed as to resemble fur products made from peltries of seal and beaver, respectively, and "American Broadtail" products were made from peltries of lambs other than baby lambs of Karakul breed of sheep, so dressed and dyed as to resemble such peltries, and products in question were not, as represented as aforesaid, made from the superior peltries, as recognized by public, of seal, muskrat, or baby lambs of Karakul breed;

With effect of misleading and deceiving purchasers and prospective purchasers of their aforesaid furs and fur products into erroneous belief that they were actually made from peltries of seal, in case of so-called "Hudson Seal," beaver in case of "Mendoza Beaver" and "Beaverette," and baby lamb of Karakul breed of sheep in case of "American Broadtail," and with result, by reason of such mistaken and erroneous beliefs, engendered as above set forth, that substantial portion of purchasing public was induced to buy furs and fur products from them, and trade was thereby unfairly diverted to them from competitors who truthfully represent quality and character of their products, source thereof and nature of their business; to the injury of competition in commerce:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. Edward E. Reardon, Mr. Miles J. Furnas, and Mr. John L. Hornor, trial examiners.

Mr. Joseph O. Fehr for the Commission.

Mr. Harry S. Hall and Goldstein & Goldstein, of New York City, for respondents.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Canadian Fur Trappers Corporation, a corporation, and Daniel Dornfeld, Jacob Dornfeld, and Morris Dornfeld, as individuals, and as officers of said corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent Canadian Fur Trappers Corporation is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under the laws of the State of New York, with its principal place of business located at 156 West Thirty-fourth Street, in the city of New York, in the State of New York. Respondents Daniel Dornfeld, Jacob Dornfeld, and Morris Dornfeld, are officers of said corporation, and individually and as such officers participated and participate in the control and direction of the policies and activities of said corporation and in the acts and practices hereinafter alleged. Respondents also maintain and operate retail establishments in the city of Buffalo, in the State of New York, and in the city of Newark, in the State of New Jersey. They are now, and have been for several years heretofore, engaged in the business of selling and distributing to members of the purchasing public, among other items of merchandise, fur products.

Respondents cause said fur products to be transported from their respective places of business in New York and in New Jersey to purchasers thereof located at points in States of the United States other than the State from which such fur products are shipped and in the District of Columbia. They maintain, and for a period of more than one year last past have maintained, a course of trade and commerce in said fur products, between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 2. Respondents have been and are engaged in substantial competition in the sale and distribution of said fur products with other corporations and with firms, partnerships, and individuals likewise engaged in the business of selling and distributing fur products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 3. In the course and conduct of their business as hereinbefore described, said respondents adopted as and for their corporate and trade name the words "Canadian Fur Trappers Corporation," under which to carry on their business, which corporate and trade name they have used continuously for several years last past, and are now using, in soliciting the sale of and selling their fur products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondents have caused and cause their said corporate and trade name, “Canadian Fur Trappers Corporation,” to appear on their letterheads, billheads, cards, invoices, labels, newspaper advertising matter, and in radio advertising, having interstate distribution.

In certain newspaper advertisements in which said corporate name is used, respondents display the word “Canadian” in very large and conspicuous type. The words “Fur Trappers” also appear in large and conspicuous type, but somewhat smaller than the size type used in printing the word “Canadian,” and directly thereunder. In relatively small and inconspicuous type under the word “Canadian” and following the words “Fur Trappers” appears the abbreviation “Corp.”

In certain of said advertising matter respondents have caused to be displayed a large seal or emblem simulating the Royal Coat of Arms of Great Britain, on which is printed in large and conspicuous letters the word “Canadian,” under which the words “Fur Trappers” appear in smaller but conspicuous letters.

In certain other newspaper advertising matter, radio broadcasts, and in various other ways, respondents have made misleading representations and statements concerning their business status of which the following is representative:

CANADIAN

FUR TRAPPERS

In said newspaper advertisements in which said statements and representations are used respondents display the word “Canadian” in very large and conspicuous type. The words “Fur Trappers” appear also in large and conspicuous type, but somewhat smaller than the size type used in printing the word “Canadian,” and directly thereunder.

Par. 4. The corporate name “Canadian Fur Trappers Corporation,” alone or together with the statements appearing in respondents’ advertising matter as hereinabove set forth, purports to be descriptive of the business status and character, manner of acquisition, manufacture, and sale of the products offered for sale and sold by respondents. By the use of said corporate name “Canadian Fur Trappers Corporation” or by the use of the words “Canadian Fur Trappers” independently or on or in connection with an emblem, seal or coat of arms simulating the Royal Coat of Arms of Great Britain in their advertising matter, as hereinabove set forth, or otherwise, respondents represent and imply, and the public has been and is led to believe:

1. That respondent Canadian Fur Trappers Corporation is a Canadian corporation.
2. That said corporation is owned, operated, or controlled by Canadians.
3. That respondents are engaged in the business of offering for sale and selling primarily Canadian fur products.

4. That respondents are an organization, association, or business house composed of Canadian fur trappers.

5. That respondents are trappers of fur-bearing animals.

6. That respondents actually shoot, kill, trap, or otherwise catch or take such fur-bearing animals in Canada.

7. That the fur products offered for sale and sold by respondents are the fur products made or manufactured by them from the animals so shot, killed, trapped, or otherwise caught or taken by them.

8. That said fur products are offered for sale and sold to the public by respondents as trappers without the intervention of any middleman.

Par. 5. There has been and is a preference on the part of a substantial portion of the purchasing public for dealing direct with the manufacturer or producer of the merchandise which it buys. Such preference is brought about by the belief on the part of said members of the purchasing public that in dealing direct with the manufacturer or producer they can secure better prices, superior merchandise, and other advantages which cannot be secured when merchandise is purchased after having gone through the hands of middlemen.

There has been and is a widespread belief among purchasers and prospective purchasers of fur products that the fur of animals in Canada and in other northern countries and parts of the world is superior to that of animals living in milder or more temperate climates, and such persons have had and have a preference for the fur products of animals from such northern countries and parts of the world because of such belief in the superiorit of the fur products from such animals over the fur products from animals obtained from more temperate climates.

Par. 6. Fur products made from the peltries of the seal are properly and commonly designated as Seal or Alaska Sealskin. Fur products made from the peltries of the beaver are properly and commonly designated as Beaver, and fur products made from the peltries of baby lambs of the Karakul breed of sheep are properly and commonly designated as Broadtail.

Fur products made from the peltries of seal and beaver are superior to fur products made from the peltries of muskrat and rabbits. Fur products made from the peltries of baby lambs of the Karakul breed of sheep are superior to fur products made from the peltries of baby lambs of other breeds of sheep. There is a preference on the part of a substantial portion of the purchasing public for fur products made from genuine peltries of the particular fur-bearing animals herein-above referred to, because of their superior quality, and said genuine fur products demand and bring substantially greater prices than fur products made from the peltries of muskrat, rabbits, or other breeds of lambs used to stimulate the genuine fur products.

Par. 7. In the course and conduct of its business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of its fur products by members of the purchasing public, respondents have, from time to time, inserted advertisements in newspapers having an interstate circulation and have made use of other advertising media, including radio broadcasts, designed and intended to influence purchasers of said fur products.

In said advertisements, respondents have caused certain of their fur products to be represented as Seal, Hudson Seal, Mendoza Beaver, or Beaverette. Said designations purport to be descriptive of respondents' fur products and serve as representations that said garments are made from the peltries of seal or of beaver.

In said advertisements, respondents have caused certain of their fur products to be represented as "American Broadtail." Said designation purports to be descriptive of respondents' fur products and serves as a representation that said fur products are made from the peltries of baby lambs of the Karakul breed of sheep.

Par. 8. (a) In truth and in fact, the representations and implications made by respondents as hereinabove set forth in paragraphs 3 and 4 are and were and each of them was and is false and misleading, for the following reasons:

1. Respondent Canadian Fur Trappers Corporation is not a Canadian corporation.

2. Said corporation is not owned, operated, or controlled by Canadians.

3. Respondents are not engaged in the business of offering for sale and selling primarily Canadian fur products.

4. Respondents are not an organization, association or business house composed of Canadian fur trappers.

5. Respondents are not trappers of fur-bearing animals.

6. Respondents do not actually shoot, kill, trap or otherwise catch or take fur-bearing animals in Canada.

7. The fur products offered for sale and sold by respondents are not made or manufactured by them from peltries of animals shot, killed, trapped, or otherwise caught or taken by them in Canada or elsewhere.

8. Respondents do not make or manufacture the fur products which they offer for sale and sell to the public.

9. Respondents are retail merchants offering for sale and selling to the public fur products made or manufactured by others.
(b) In truth and in fact, fur products offered for sale and sold by respondents bearing the designations Seal and Hudson Seal are made from the peltries of rabbit and muskrat, respectively, and fur products offered for sale and sold by respondents bearing the designations Mendoza Beaver, Beaver, and Beaverette are made from the peltries of rabbits, so dressed and dyed as to resemble fur products made from the peltries of beaver. Said muskrat and rabbit peltries are inferior to the peltries of the beaver and the seal in pliability and durability and in the lustre of the fur.

In truth and in fact, the fur products offered for sale and sold by respondents bearing the designation “American Broadtail” are made from the peltries of lambs other than baby lambs of the Karakul breed of sheep. Said fur products are so dressed and dyed as to resemble the peltries of baby lambs of the Karakul breed of sheep. Said peltries are inferior and less acceptable to the buying public than the peltries of baby lambs of the Karakul breed of sheep.

In truth and in fact, the fur products offered for sale and sold by respondents bearing designations descriptive of other fur-bearing animals are made from peltries other than the peltries of the animals so designated. Said fur products are so dressed and dyed as to resemble peltries from superior fur-bearing animals but are inferior in pliability and durability of the leather and in wearing quality and luster of the fur.

Par. 9. There are now and have been competitors of respondents selling and distributing fur products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia who do not in any manner misrepresent their status or the nature or character of their business or the geographical origin of their products and who do not represent that they are trappers or manufacturing furriers when such is not the fact and who do not misrepresent in any manner the nature, character or quality of the products sold or offered for sale by them.

Par. 10. The use by respondents in their corporate and trade name, or otherwise, of the words “Canadian Fur Trappers Corporation” had and has a capacity and tendency to, and did and does, deceive and mislead prospective purchasers and purchasers of their fur products into the belief that Canadian Fur Trappers Corporation is a Canadian corporation, owned, controlled, and operated by Canadian fur trappers, and that the products offered for sale and sold by respondents are the fur products which they have manufactured from animals actually shot, killed, trapped, or otherwise caught or taken by them in Canada.
The use by respondents of the words "Canadian Fur Trappers" in their trade name or in their advertising matter as aforesaid, or the use by respondents of an emblem, seal, or coat of arms simulating the Royal Coat of Arms of Great Britain, on which the words "Canadian Fur Trappers" appear, had and has the capacity and tendency to, and did and does, deceive and mislead prospective purchasers and purchasers of their fur products into the erroneous belief that respondents are an organization or association of trappers of fur-bearing animals in Canada; that it is owned, controlled, and operated by Canadians; that it is engaged in the business of dealing primarily in fur products produced in Canada; that its members are trappers of fur-bearing animals; that its members actually shoot, kill, trap, or otherwise catch or take such fur-bearing animals in Canada; and that the fur products offered for sale and sold by respondents are the fur products made or manufactured by them from the animals so shot, killed, trapped, or otherwise caught or taken by them and are offered for sale and sold to the public by them without the intervention of any middleman; and that said fur products are actually made from the peltries of seal, beaver, or baby lamb of the Karakul-breed of sheep.

On account of such mistaken and erroneous beliefs hereinabove set forth, a substantial portion of the purchasing public has been induced to purchase fur products from respondents and thereby trade has been unfairly diverted to respondents from competitors named in paragraphs 2 and 9 hereof. As a result thereof, substantial injury has been and now is being done by respondents to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 11. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondents’ competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on May 13, 1938, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondents, Canadian Fur Trappers Corporation, a corporation, and Daniel Dornfeld, Jacob Dornfeld, and Morris Dornfeld, as individuals and as officers of said corporation, charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the filing of answer and amended answer to said complaint by the re-
Findings

Respondents, testimony, and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by Joseph C. Fehr, attorney for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of said complaint by Goldstein & Goldstein, attorneys for respondents, before trial examiners of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it. Said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Subsequently a stipulation of facts was entered into between counsel for the respondents and W. T. Kelley, the Commission's chief counsel, subject to the Commission's approval. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint and said amended answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, including said stipulation as to the facts, briefs in support of the complaint, and in opposition thereto, and the oral arguments of counsel aforesaid; and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

Findings as to the Facts

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Canadian Fur Trappers Corporation, is a corporation, organized in 1922, existing and doing business under the laws of the State of New York, with its office and principal place of business located at 156 West Thirty-fourth Street, in the city of New York, State of New York. The office of president of said corporate respondent has been vacant for several years but one Samuel Dornfeld and one Harry Dornfeld are vice presidents and respondent Morris Dornfeld and respondent Jacob Dornfeld are secretary and treasurer, respectively, of said corporate respondent. Respondent Daniel Dornfeld is not an official of said corporate respondent, but has from time to time been employed by it. The aforementioned officers have held their respective offices since the incorporation of respondent corporation in 1922. During this time the corporate respondent, Canadian Fur Trappers Corporation and its aforesaid officers have also maintained and operated retail establishments in Buffalo, N. Y., and in Newark, and Paterson, N. J.

Paragraph 2. In the course and conduct of their business said respondents are now, and have been for more than 5 years last past, engaged in the business of selling and distributing to members of the purchasing public, along other items of merchandise, furs and fur products, and cause said furs and fur products, when sold, to be transported from their respective places of business in New York and New Jersey to purchasers thereof located at points in States of the United States other than said States of New York and New Jersey and in the District of Columbia. Said respondents maintain, and for many years have maintained, a course of trade and commerce in said furs and fur products, between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. The aforesaid individual respondent officers, together with Samuel Dornfeld and Harry Dornfeld, control and direct the policies and practices of Canadian Fur Trappers Corporation, the corporate respondent herein.

Par. 3. Respondents have been, and are, engaged in substantial competition in the sale and distribution of said furs and fur products with other corporations, and with firms, partnerships, and individuals likewise engaged in the business of selling and distributing furs and fur products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 4. In the course and conduct of their business, said respondents adopted as and for their corporate and trade name the words "Canadian Fur Trappers Corporation," under which they carry on their business, which said corporate and trade name they have used, continuously in soliciting the sale of and selling their furs and fur products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondents have caused and cause their said corporate and trade name "Canadian Fur Trappers Corporation," to appear on letterheads, bill heads, cards and invoices, labels, and in newspaper and radio advertising. In certain newspaper advertisements in which said corporate and trade name is used, respondents display the word "Canadian" in very large and conspicuous type. The words "Fur Trappers" also appear in large and conspicuous type, but somewhat smaller than the size type used in printing the word "Canadian," and directly thereunder. In relatively small and inconspicuous type under the word "Canadian" and following the words "Fur Trappers" appears the abbreviation "Corp." In certain of said advertising matter respondents have caused to be displayed a large seal or emblem simulating the Royal Coat of Arms of Great Britain, on which is printed in large and conspicuous letters the word "Canadian" under which the words "Fur Trappers" appear in smaller but conspicuous letters and below the words "Fur Trappers," in very fine print, is the word "Corp." In its newspaper advertisements respondents have caused certain of their fur products to be represented as "Hudson Seal," "Mendoza Beaver," "Beaverette," and "American Broadtail." "Hudson Seal" is the trade name for dyed muskrat, and "Mendoza Beaver" and "Beaverette" are trade names for dyed coney or rabbit. "American Broadtail" is a trade name for processed lamb. Said trade names purport to be descriptive of respondents fur products and, unless modified by the use of the true name of the fur, such as "Hudson Seal—Dyed Muskrat," "Mendoza Beaver—Dyed Coney," "Beaverette—Dyed Coney," or "American Broadtail—Processed Lamb," serve as representations that said garments are made from the peltries of seal, beaver or of the peltries of baby lambs of the Karakul breed of sheep, respectively.

Par. 5. The respondent, Canadian Fur Trappers Corporation, is not a Canadian corporation, nor does it have any connection or association with any organization, group, or interest composed of or representing Canadian fur trappers or trappers of fur-bearing animals. Said respondent company is in fact an American corporation, wholly American owned, controlled, and operated. Respondent does not trap and is not engaged in the business of trapping or otherwise taking or capturing fur-bearing animals. While many of the fur products offered for sale and sold by respondents are not made or manufactured from peltries of fur-bearing animals shot, killed, trapped, or otherwise caught or taken in Canada, a substantial percentage of the furs and fur garments sold by respondents, that is to say, from 25 to 35 percent thereof, are made from peltries of fur-bearing animals shot, killed, trapped, or otherwise caught or taken in Canada. Respondents are, in fact, retail merchants offering for sale and selling to the public furs and fur products made or manufactured for them by others.

Par. 6. The fur products offered for sale and sold by respondents, bearing the designations "Hudson Seal" is made from the peltries of muskrats, and "Mendoza Beaver" and "Beaverette" are made from the peltries of rabbits, so dressed and dyed as to resemble the fur products made from the peltries of seal and beaver respectively. The fur products offered for sale and sold by respondents bearing the designation "American Broadtail" are made from the peltries of lambs other than baby lambs of the Karakul breed of sheep and are so dressed and dyed as to resemble the peltries of baby lambs of the Karakul breed of sheep.

Par. 7. Fur products made from the peltries of seal are properly and commonly designated as "Seal" or "Alaska Sealskin." Fur products made from the peltries of beaver are properly and commonly designated as "Beaver," and fur products made from the peltries of baby lambs of the Karakul breed of sheep are properly and commonly designated as "Broadtail." Fur products made from the peltries of seal are superior to fur products made from the peltries of muskrat and are so recognized by the purchasing public. Fur products made from the peltries of beaver are superior to fur products made from the peltries of rabbits and are so recognized by the public. Fur products made from the peltries of baby lambs of the Karakul breed of sheep are superior to fur products made from the peltries of baby lambs of other breeds of sheep, and this fact is recognized by the purchasing public.

Par. 8. There has been and is a preference on the part of a substantial portion of the purchasing public for dealing direct with the manufacturer or producers of the merchandise which it buys and there has been and is a widespread belief among purchasers and prospective purchasers of fur products that the fur of animals in Canada and in other northern countries and parts of the world is superior to that of animals living in milder or more temperate climates.

Par. 9. There are now and have been competitors of respondents selling and distributing fur products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia who do not in any manner misrepresent their status or the nature or character of their business or the geographic origin of their products and who do not represent that they are trappers or manufacturing furriers when such is not the fact, and who do not misrepresent in any manner the nature, character or quality of the products sold or offered for sale by them.

Par. 10. The use by the respondents in their corporate and trade name of the words “Canadian Fur Trappers Corporation” had, and has, the capacity and tendency to, and did and does, deceive and mislead prospective purchasers and purchasers of their furs and fur products into the belief that the Canadian Fur Trappers Corporation is a Canadian corporation, owned, controlled, and operated by Canadian fur trappers, and that the products offered for sale and sold by respondents are furs and fur products which they have made or manufactured from the peltries of animals actually shot, killed, trapped, or otherwise caught or taken by them in Canada and are offered for sale and sold to the public by them without the intervention of any middleman.

The use by respondents of the emblem, seal or coat of arms simulating the Royal Coat of Arms of Great Britain, on which the words “Canadian Fur Trappers Corporation” appear, had, and has, the capacity and tendency to, and did and does, deceive and mislead prospective purchasers and purchasers of their fur products into the erroneous belief that respondents are an organization or association of trappers of fur-bearing animals in Canada; that they are engaged in the business of dealing primarily in furs and fur products produced in Canada; that they are trappers of fur-bearing animals; that they actually shoot, kill, trap, or otherwise catch or take such fur-bearing animals in Canada; that the furs and fur products offered for sale and sold by them are furs and fur products made or manufactured by them from the peltries of animals so shot, killed, trapped, or otherwise caught or taken by them.

Respondents' acts and practices in representing and describing their furs and fur products manufactured of muskrat as "Hudson Seal," rabbit peltries as "Mendoza Beaver" and "Beaverette," and peltries of ordinary lambs or sheep as "American Broadtail," have had, and now have the capacity and tendency to, and do, mislead and deceive purchasers and prospective purchasers of such furs and fur products into the erroneous and mistaken belief that said furs and fur products are actually made from the peltries of seal in the case of "Hudson Seal," beaver in the case of "Mendoza Beaver" and "Beaverette," and baby lamb of the Karakul breed of sheep in the case of "American Broadtail."

PAR. 11. On account of such mistaken and erroneous beliefs engendered as hereinabove set forth, a substantial portion of the purchasing public has been induced to purchase furs and fur products from the respondents, and thereby trade has been unfairly diverted to respondents from competitors who truthfully represent the quality and character of their products, the source of their products, and the nature of their business. In consequence thereof, injury has been done, and now is being done, by respondents to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents, as herein found, are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

It is ordered, That the respondent, Canadian Fur Trappers Corporation, a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees.

1. Using the word “trappers” or the words “fur trappers,” either independently or in connection or conjunction with any other word or words, as descriptive of their said business.

2. It is further ordered, That the respondents shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order; and

It is further ordered, That complaint hereby be and the same hereby is, dismissed as to the respondent Daniel Dornfeld.

EMPIRE STYLE DESIGNERS LEAGUE, INC. ET AL.

Docket 4136. Complaint, May 21, 1940—Decision, Sept. 17, 1940

Where a corporation, members of which were engaged in the creation of styles and the designing and making of patterns for women's fur coats and in the grading and copying of such patterns, and in the sale and distribution thereof in commerce, and which was formed with intent and effect of serving as clearing house for such members who acted in cooperation with it in matters as below indicated, and said members, who constituted dominant factors in business in question, and represented 75 percent of the output and sale of the products involved, and who, but for matters and things below set forth, would be naturally and normally in competition with each other, and with others in the business of producing patterns and gradings, and copies thereof, and in the sale thereof to customers throughout the several States and in the District of Columbia—

Entered into and carried out, as case might be, agreement, combination, and conspiracy with each other and with others including said corporation first referred to, to hinder and suppress competition in interstate sale and distribution of products in question and to create monopoly in themselves in the manufacture and sale thereof; and in pursuance of such agreement, combination and conspiracy,

(1) Collectively and cooperatively arranged for and fixed uniform prices at which their said products were to be sold;

(2) Collectively and cooperatively published, or caused to be published, said price lists in newspapers, periodicals, and circulars of general circulation, in various States and in the District of Columbia; and

(3) Collectively and cooperatively adhered to such uniform prices at which their said products were to be sold as set forth in their price lists issued, exchanged and published as above described;

With the result that they sold at fixed and uniform prices to their respective customers, in the various States and in the District of Columbia, their said products and thus delivered same, and their customers and users thereof were forced and compelled to pay them prices in accordance with such arbitrarily fixed and maintained artificial price levels for products in question and were deprived, to their detriment, of normal and free competition between and among said members in the purchase of products in question, price competition between and among themselves in the sale of such articles was hindered and prevented, and power was placed in them to control and enhance prices thereof, and with tendency unduly to create in themselves monopoly in sale of patterns and in gradings and copies thereof, and with effect of unreasonably restraining commerce therein:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice of the public and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce, and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and substitute answer, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Said member respondents, in the course and conduct of their respective businesses, as hereinbefore described, but for the matters and things hereinafter set forth, would be naturally and normally in competition with each other and/or in competition with other individuals, copartners, and corporations also engaged in the business of producing patterns and gradings and copies thereof, and in the sale thereof to customers located throughout the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. IN THE MATTER OF

BENTON ANNOUNCEMENTS, INC.

Docket 3425. Complaint, May 13, 1938—Decision, Sept. 18, 1940

Where a corporation engaged in printing stationery for social and business purposes, including invitations, calling cards, letterheads, envelopes, and similar products, and in sale and distribution thereof to purchasers in other States and in the District of Columbia, in competition with others engaged in similar sale and distribution of stationery products for social and business purposes, and including those who produce and sell genuine engraved stationery products and truthfully advertise themselves as engravers and their products as engraving, and others who sell non-engraved stationery products and do not thus represent themselves; in circulars and other advertising matter such as letters of solicitation, price lists, sample books of wedding announcements, cards, and other social forms circulated throughout the United States to customers and prospective customers, including prospective brides and bridegrooms—

Represented itself as an engraver and its products as engraved and genuine plate engraving, through use of such words and statements as "You may have the finest plate engraved wedding stationery at half the usual cost," "Genuine plate engraving," "Compare this price with other fine engravers," "It is a pleasure indeed to send you these truly fine samples of engraving art, etc.," "The most economical method devised for producing genuine plate engraving";

Facts being its stationery was produced by printing on printing press with printing thereafter "bumped up" or embossed by use of plate, engraved by pantograph method, and it did not print from plate through inking same and printing therefrom as done by genuine engravers, but used same only for embossing or raising printed letters above plane of paper, plate was used dry and not inked for each impression as essential to true engraving process, involving taking of impression on blank paper from inked plate in one operation, and its said products could not properly be represented or described as engraving or engraved stationery, cost of which greatly exceeds that of producing stationery otherwise comparable, by process employed by it or any printing process, and was not such engraving as long understood from words "engraving" or "engraved," used in connection with business or social stationery, by trade and consuming public as meaning such products containing letters, etc., raised from general plane of the stationery surface through use under pressure of specially engraved, cut or carved metal plates, used as above indicated, and for which genuine engraved stationery substantial portion of purchasing public has decided preference over stationery produced by it or any similar process;

With effect of misleading and deceiving substantial portion of purchasing public into erroneous belief that it owned or operated an engraving company and was in the business of producing and selling engraved or plate engraved stationery, with letters, words, and designs contained thereon engraved or plate engraved, as result of process described above, and with result, as direct consequence of such mistaken and erroneous belief, induced by such acts, advertisements, and representations, that substantial number of consuming public purchased substantial volume of its said stationery products, and trade was unfairly diverted to it from its competitors aforesaid who do not misrepresent their business status, character, and nature of their products or process by which produced, to the injury of its competitors and that of public:

Held, That such acts and practices under the circumstances set forth are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Benton Announcements, Inc., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as the respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Benton Announcements, Inc., is a corporation organized and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, and having its principal office and place of business at 16 East Tupper Street, in the city of Buffalo and State of New York. Respondent is now, and has been for more than a year last past, engaged in the business of printing, by a special process, stationery for social and business purposes, including invitations, announcements, calling cards, letterheads, envelopes, and similar products, and in selling said products in commerce as herein set out.

Paragraph 2. Said respondent, being engaged in business as aforesaid, causes said stationery so printed, when sold, to be transported from its principal office and place of business in the State of New York to the purchasers thereof located in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. There is now, and has been at all times mentioned herein, a course of trade and commerce in said stationery so printed or produced and sold by respondent, between and among the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 3. In the course and conduct of its said business, respondent is now, and has been in substantial competition with other corporations, and with firms, partnerships, and individuals likewise engaged in printing stationery for social and business purposes and in selling such stationery in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and also with individuals, partnerships, firms, and corporations engaged in producing engraved stationery for social and business purposes and in selling such stationery in commerce between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. In the course of the operation of said business, and for the purpose of inducing individuals, firms, and corporations to purchase said stationery products, respondent has printed and circulated throughout the several States to customers and prospective customers a circular containing, among others, the following statements:

You May Have the Finest Plate Engraved Wedding Stationery at Half the Usual Cost.

Genuine plate engraving • • • for as little as $7.95 for one hundred • • • Complete Including Engraving of the Plate.

Compare this price with that of other fine engravers.

The enclosed card which is to be signed and returned by the prospective customer contains the following: "Please send the Benton Specimen Portfolio of Plate Engraved Wedding Invitations and Announcements by return mail."

After the respondent receives a request for the Benton Specimen Portfolio, it mails to the prospective customer a sample book of its products together with prices, and an order blank for use by the prospective customer. All orders thus received are filled by respondent and the stationery delivered by mail to the customer prepaid or on a C. O. D. basis. The order blank used by respondent contains the heading, "Benton Announcements, Inc., Engravers and Embossers."

All of said statements, together with similar statements, purport to be descriptive of respondent's business and the products manufactured and sold by it. In all of its circulars, pamphlets, order forms, and advertising literature, respondent refers to the product manufactured by it as being "genuine plate engraving" and holds itself out to the public as being an "engraver."

PAR. 5. Respondent, in the course of its business, as described in paragraphs 1 to 4, inclusive, prints invitations, announcements, calling cards, letterheads, envelopes, and social and business stationery by a process which is designated by it as "plate engraving," although such process is not the process used in producing genuinely engraved stationery. Respondent does not own or operate an "engraving" company, and respondent is not engaged in the business of "engraving."

The letters, words, or designs upon stationery products manufactured, offered for sale, and sold by respondent, in the manner aforesaid, are not the result of "engraving" according to the trade and public understanding of the term.

Par. 6. The word "engraving" as it is used in the graphic arts, may be applied either to an engraved intaglio plate upon which letters, words, or designs have been incised or cut, or to impressions made from such a plate. Such plates are cut or incised by hand, by machine, by etching with acid, by a transfer from other engravings, and by other means, but in all cases the letters, words, or designs so to be produced upon stationery are cut below the surface of the plate. To make impressions from such plate, the ink is applied to the plate, then the plate is wiped so that the ink remains only in the lines cut below the surface. The inked plate is then put upon a piece of stationery or article to be engraved, and pressure is applied sufficient to force the surface of the stationery into the lines cut in the plate, causing the ink in such lines to adhere to the paper on which the impression is to be made.

Par. 7. The words "engraving" and "engraved," when used in connection with, or descriptive of, business or social stationery, mean, and the trade and consuming public understand, and for many years have understood them to mean, that the stationery products so being referred to or described contain letters, words, or designs which are raised from the general plane of the stationery surface, and are in relief, and are the result of the application thereto, under pressure, of inked metal plates which have been specially engraved, cut or carved for, and are used in, the production of such stationery by the process more particularly described herein in paragraph 6.

Par. 8. The cost of genuine engraved stationery exceeds the cost of stationery of like stock, grade, or character produced by the process employed by the respondent, as set out herein, or produced by any printing process, and a substantial portion of the purchasing public has indicated, and has, a decided preference for engraved stationery over stationery produced by respondent's process or any similar process.

Par. 9. The use by respondent of the words "engraving," "plate engraved," "plate engraving," or "engravers," as set out in paragraph 4 hereof, either in describing its product or designating its business, in offering for sale, or selling, its stationery products, was and is calculated to, and had, and now has, the tendency and capacity to, and did, and now does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous beliefs that respondent owns or operates an "engraving" company; that respondent is in the business of producing and selling "engraved" or "plate engraved" sta-stationery; and that the letters, words, or designs contained upon the said stationery offered for sale, and sold, by respondent were, and are, "engraved" or "plate engraved," and are the result of the engraving process described in paragraph 6.

Par. 10. There are among respondent's competitors many who produce "engraved" stationery products for business and social purposes, and who sell such "engraved" stationery products in commerce as herein described, properly represents and described as "engraved" stationery. There are others among respondent's competitors who produce stationery products for business and social purposes, and who sell such stationery products in commerce as herein described, but who do not manufacture or sell "engraved" stationery products, and who do not, by any means or in any manner, hold themselves out, or represent themselves to be, manufacturers of, or dealers in, "engraved" stationery products.

Par. 11. As a direct consequence of the aforesaid mistaken and erroneous beliefs, induced by the acts, advertisements, and representations of respondent as hereinabove detailed, a number of the consuming public has purchased a volume of respondent's stationery products, with the result that trade has been unfairly diverted to respondent from its aforesaid competitors who do not misrepresent their business status, the character and nature of their respective products, or the processes by which they are produced. In consequence thereof injury has been done, and is now being done, by respondent to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 12. The aforesaid acts, practices, and representations of the respondent as herein alleged, have been, and are, all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors as aforesaid, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

and Carlton A. Fisher, Esq., attorneys for the respondent, before John J. Keenan, an examiner of the Commission therefore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission upon said complaint, the answer thereto, briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto, and oral argument of counsel aforesaid. The Commission having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. The respondent Benton Announcements, Inc., is a corporation duly organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its office and principal place of business located at 16 East Tupper Street, Buffalo, N. Y. Said respondent is now engaged, and for more than 3 years has been engaged, in the business of printing stationery for social and business purposes, including invitations, calling cards, letterheads, envelopes, and similar products, and in the sale and distribution thereof in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent causes said stationery so printed, when sold, to be transported from its principal office and place of business in the State of New York to the purchasers thereof located in States of the United States other than the State of New York, and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of its said business, respondent has regularly advertised, solicited the sale of, and has sold its products through the use of circulars and other advertising matter which respondent has printed and circulated throughout the United States to customers and prospective customers. In contacting the public and its prospective customers, the respondent gathered from various newspapers and other publications the names of prospective brides and bridegrooms to whom it forwarded its literature through the United States mails. This literature consisted of letters of solicitation, price lists, sample books of wedding announcements, cards, other social forms. Among business people its efforts were confined to business forms, letterheads, envelopes, etc. Among and typical of the statements and representations made by the respondent in said letters, circulars, and literature, are the following:

208516m—41—vol. 81——59
Findings 31 F. T. C.

Genuine plate engraving * * * for as little as $7.95. For One Hundred * * * complete including engraving of the plate.

Compare this price with that of other fine engravers.

The above statements are contained in the original letter forwarded to prospective customers, which letter, while containing the name and address of the respondent, is signed, Mavis Dee, indicating that a Miss Dee is an authority on social forms and requirements. There is no such person as Mavis Dee in the employ of the respondent. The name is fictitious. With said letter is enclosed a card and self-addressed envelope for reply requesting sample of respondent's products.

In other letters and literature forwarded to prospective customers the following statements are made:

• • • It is a pleasure indeed to send you these truly fine examples of engraving art,—invitations and announcements by Benton.
• • • First and foremost, make certain that those offered are genuine plate engraved.

And you will find everything that wedding stationery should be,—genuine plate engraving, of course,—but more than that, superb engraving by Benton's exclusive craftsmanship method.

Then when you look at Benton prices, you will receive your most pleasant surprise. For Benton engraving, despite its obvious quality, is by far the most reasonably priced genuine plate work obtainable anywhere.

Benton craftsmen have evolved the most economic method devised for producing genuine plate engraving.

All of the said statements, together with similar statements appearing in respondent's other advertising matter, purport to be descriptive of respondent's business and the sales methods used in disposing of the products manufactured and sold by it. In the various catalogs, letters, and other literature distributed by respondent, there appear numerous statements wherein the respondent refers to the process by which it prints letters, words, and designs on stationery as a process of engraving and refers to the products manufactured by it as being genuine plate engraving and to the respondent as an engraver.

PAR. 3. The word "engraving," as it is used in the graphic arts, may be applied either to an engraved intaglio plate upon which letters, words, or designs have been incised or cut or to the impressions made from such a plate. Such plates are cut or incised by hand, by machine, by etching with acid, by a transfer from other engraving, and by other means, but in all cases the letters, words, or designs so to be produced upon stationery are cut below the surface of the plate. To make impressions from such a plate, the ink is applied to the plate, then the plate is wiped so that the ink remains only in the lines cut below the surface. The inked plate is then put upon a piece of stationery or article to be engraved, and pressure is applied sufficient to force the surface of the stationery into the lines cut in the plate, causing the ink in such lines to adhere to the paper on which the impression is to be made.

Par. 4. The words "engraving" and "engraved," when used in connection with, or descriptive of, business or social stationery, mean, and the trade and consuming public understand, and for many years have understood them to mean, that the stationery products so being referred to or described contain letters, words, or designs which are raised from the general plane of the stationery surface, and are in relief, and are the result of the application, under pressure, of metal plates which have been specially engraved, cut or carved for, and are used in, the production of such stationery by the process more particularly described in the foregoing paragraph.

Par. 5. The cost of producing genuine engraved stationery greatly exceeds the cost of producing stationery of like stock, grade, or character produced by the process employed by respondent, as set out herein, or produced by any printing process, and a substantial portion of the purchasing public has indicated, and has, a decided preference for engraved stationery over stationery produced by respondent's process or any similar process.

Par. 6. The use by the respondent of the words "engraving," "plate engraved," "plate engraving," or "engravers," either in describing its products or designating its business, in offering for sale and selling its stationery products, had, and now has, the tendency and capacity to, and did, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous beliefs that respondent owns or operates an "engraving" company; that respondent is in the business of producing and selling "engraved" or "plate engraved" stationery; and that the letters, words, or designs contained upon the said stationery offered for sale, and sold, by respondent, were and are, "engraved" or "plate engraved," and are the result of the engraving process described in paragraph 3 hereof.

Par. 7. In truth and in fact, all of the statements and representations made by respondent are false and misleading. The respondent is not an engraver and the stationery offered for sale and sold by it is not engraved stationery, but is, in truth and in fact, a printed product.
Respondent's stationery is produced by printing on a printing press, and after it is printed it is allowed to dry for a day, and then the printing is "bumped up" or embossed by the use of a plate. The plate is engraved by the pantograph method, principally an acid etch, and an engraving tool is used only for touching up imperfections. The respondent does not print from the plate, by inking the plate and printing therefrom in the manner employed by genuine engravers, but the plate is used only for embossing or raising the printed letters above the plane of the paper. The plate is used dry, and is not inked for each impression as is the practice of engravers. It is absolutely essential to the true engraving process that the plate be inked and the impression taken on a blank paper from the inked plate in one operation. Respondent's products are not produced in this manner, and cannot properly be represented or described as "engraving," but rather as "raised printing."
Findings

PAR. 8. In the conduct of its business as hereinbefore set out, respondent is in competition with various persons, partnerships, and corporations who are engaged in the sale and distribution of stationery products for social and business purposes. Said competitors cause said products, when sold, to be transported from their respective places of business to the purchasers thereof located in the various States of the United States other than the State of the origin of such shipments and located in the District of Columbia. Among such competitors in commerce between and among the several States and in the District of Columbia are those who produce and sell genuine engraved stationery products and truthfully describe themselves as engravers and their products as engraving. There are others who sell non-engraved stationery products who do not represent that they are engravers or that their products are engraving.

PAR. 9. The acts and practices of the respondent as above set out, in designating, describing, and referring to itself as an "engraver" and to its stationery products as "engraving," "engraved," or "genuine plate engraving" have the capacity and tendency to, and do, mislead and deceive a substantial number of the purchasing public into the mistaken belief that respondent is an engraver and that its stationery products are produced by the genuine engraving process known to the trade and public generally.

As a direct consequence of the aforesaid mistaken and erroneous beliefs induced by the acts, advertisements, and representations of respondent as hereinbefore set out, a substantial number of the consuming public has purchased a substantial volume of respondent's stationery products, with the result that trade has been unfairly diverted to respondent from its aforesaid competitors who do not misrepresent their business status, the character and nature of their respective products, or the process by which they are produced. As a result thereof, trade in said commerce has been, and is, unfairly diverted to the respondent from its competitors in said commerce to their injury, and to the injury of the public.
The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

It is ordered, That the respondent, Benton Announcements, Inc., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of stationery products in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Using the words "engraved," "engraving," or "engravers," either alone or in conjunction with any other word or words, to designate, describe, or refer to stationery products on which the lettering, inscriptions, or designs have been printed from inked type faces, electrotypes, or similar devices, and which lettering, inscriptions, or designs have been given a raised letter effect by an embossing process wherein the plates used have not been previously inked so as to make an inked impression on the paper stock at the time the embossing impression is made.

2. Using the words "engraved," "engraving," or "engravers," either alone or in conjunction with any other word or words, to designate, describe, or refer to stationery products, or the nature or character of respondent's business, unless and until the respondent produces the stationery products so designated, described, or referred to by a process which consists essentially in the application of blank stationery to an inked intaglio plate under pressure sufficient to force the surface of the stationery into the letters or designs, which are cut or incised on the plate, so that the ink in such plate adheres to the stationery to form letters, words, characters, or designs which are in relief and raised from the general plane of the surface of the stationery.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after the service of this order, file with the Federal Trade Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

Docket 3963. Complaint, Dec. 7, 1939—Decision, Sept. 18, 1940

Where two individuals engaged in the manufacture, sale, and distribution of their Kant-Slip Belt Dressing to purchasers in various other states and in the District of Columbia—

With effect of misleading and deceiving substantial portion of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that such statements, representations, and claims were true and causing substantial portion of such public, because of such belief, to purchase their said product:

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Samuel Benelsohn and L. Benensohn, individuals, trading as Kant-Slip Manufacturing Co., hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondents, Samuel Benensohn and L. Benensohn are individuals trading and doing business under the name of Kant-Slip Manufacturing Co., with their principal place of business located at 451 East Sixty-third Street, Chicago, Ill.
Complaint 31 F. T. C.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of their aforesaid business, respondents Samuel Benensohn and L. Benensohn are now, and for more than 1 year last past have been engaged in the manufacture, sale, and distribution of a belt dressing known as "Kant-Slip Belt Dressing." Respondents cause their product, when sold by them, to be transported from their aforesaid place of business in the State of Illinois to the purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondents maintain and at all times mentioned herein have maintained a course of trade in said belt dressing in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 3. In the course and conduct of their said business and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of their said belt dressing, said respondents have made and now make, by means of circulars, pamphlets, folders, and other written or printed matter distributed and caused to be distributed to prospective purchasers, many representations and statements concerning the nature and quality of their said belt dressing and the results that may be expected from the use thereof. Among and typical of such representations and statements made by respondents are the following:

Kant-Slip Dressing is a positive preservative! Prolongs the life of leather, canvas and fiber belts making and keeping the belt soft and pliable. Water and oil proof.

Par. 4. Through the use of the representations herein above set forth and others similar thereto not specifically herein set out, all of which purport to be descriptive of the preservative and beneficial effects of the use of respondents' product, the respondents have represented and do now represent that their said product is a positive preservative for leather, canvas, and fiber belts and that its use will prolong the life of leather, canvas, and fiber belts and that it will make and keep belts made of said materials soft and pliable.

The aforesaid representations are grossly exaggerated, misleading, and untrue. In truth and in fact, respondents' belt dressing is not a preservative for leather, canvas, or fiber belts. The use of said product will not prolong the life of leather, canvas, or fiber belts, and its use will not make said belts soft or pliable. Said product consists principally of rosin and denatured alcohol, neither of which is a preservative, and in fact the use of said product on leather belts has a solvent action on the oils and greases in the leather and tends to remove them and causes the leather to become dry and brittle.

Par. 5. The use by the respondents of the foregoing false, deceptive, and misleading statements, representations, and claims with respect to their said product, disseminated as aforesaid, has had, and now has, the tendency and capacity to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such statements, representations, and claims are true and causes, and has caused, a substantial portion of the purchasing public, because of such erroneous and mistaken belief, to purchase respondents' product.

PAR. 6. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on December 7, 1939, issued and on December 8, 1939, served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondents Samuel Benensohn and L. Benensohn, individuals, trading and doing business under the name of Kant-Slip Manufacturing Co., charging them with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of the said act. The respondent, Samuel Benensohn, on December 26, 1939, filed his answer in this proceeding. No answer was filed on behalf of L. Benensohn. Thereafter it was stipulated and agreed between Irvin J. Siegel, counsel for the respondents, and S. Brogdyne Teu, II, trial attorney for the Commission, that a statement of facts read into the record at a hearing held in Chicago, Ill., June 7, 1940, might be taken as the facts in this proceeding in lieu of testimony in support of the charges of the complaint or in opposition thereto. Thereafter this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, answer, and stipulation, and the Commission having duly considered the same and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPh 1. Respondents Samuel Benensohn and L. Benensohn are individuals trading and doing business under the name of Kant-Slip Manufacturing Co., with their principal place of business located at 451 East Sixty-third Street, Chicago, Ill.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of their aforesaid business respondents are now and for more than 1 year last past have been engaged in the manufacture, sale, and distribution of a belt dressing known as “Kant-Slip Belt Dressing.” Respondents cause their product when sold by them to be transported from their aforesaid place of business in the State of Illinois to the purchasers thereof located in various States of the United States other than the State of Illinois, and in the District of Columbia. Respondents maintain and at all times mentioned herein have maintained a course of trade in said belt dressing in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 3. In the course and conduct of their said business and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of their said belt dressing, said respondents have made and now make, by means of circulars, pamphlets, folders, and other written or printed matter, distributed and caused to be distributed to prospective purchasers, many representations and statements concerning the nature and quality of their said belt dressing and the results that may be expected from the use thereof. Among and typical of such representations and statements so made by respondents are the following:

Kant-Slip Dressing is a positive preservative! Prolongs the life of leather, canvas and fiber belts making and keeping the belt soft and pliable. Water and oil proof.

Par. 4. Through the use of the representations hereinabove set forth and others similar thereto not specifically herein set out, all of which purport to be descriptive of the preservative and beneficial effects of the use of respondents’ product, the respondents have represented, and do now represent, that their said product is a positive preservative for leather, canvas, and fiber belts and that its use will prolong the life of leather, canvas, and fiber belts and that it will make and keep belts made of said materials soft and pliable.

The aforesaid representations are not true. Respondents’ belt dressing is not a preservative for leather, canvas, or fiber belts. The use of said product will not prolong the life of leather, canvas, or fiber belts, and its use will not make said belts soft or pliable. Said product consists principally of resin and denatured alcohol, neither of which is a preservative, and in fact the use of said product on leather belts has a solvent action on the oils and greases in the leather and tends to remove them and cause the leather to become dry and brittle.

Par. 5. The use by the respondents of the foregoing statements, representations, and claims with respect to their said product, has had, and now has, the tendency and capacity to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such statements, representations, and

SEKOV CORPORATION, EDWIN H. VOKES, AND HAZEL RUTH VOKES

Docket 4061. Complaint, Mar. 12, 1940—Decision, Sept. 18, 1940

Where two individuals and a corporation, of which they were the sole stockholders and which they actively managed and business of which they controlled, engaged in sale and distribution of drug preparation advertised and known as “Sekov Reducer” and as “Sekov,” and offered and sold as treatment for obesity; in advertisements which, prior to issuance of temporary restraining order by United States District Court, they disseminated and caused to be disseminated concerning their said preparation through newspapers and periodicals having general circulation, through the mails and otherwise, and which were intended and likely to induce purchase thereof—

(a) Represented that their said product constituted a scientific treatment for obesity which guarded the health of the user and acted entirely on a corrective principle, facts being, it was not such a treatment when administered without thorough medical examination and scientific care and observation, constituted treatment for obesity only when used by persons suffering from hypothyroidism, would be improper and ineffective in cases in which condition was due to dysfunctioning of the pituitary gland and to excess intake of food, and did not guard health of user or act on corrective principle due to effect of intake of thyroid on rate of metabolism and, on the contrary, might be dangerous and injurious to health and life of user unless extent of process was carefully coordinated to exact needs of persons suffering from hypothyroidism;

(b) Represented that, unlike harsh methods of reducing, it did not contain cathartics or dangerous drugs and did not reduce by merely tearing down fatty cells, facts being use thereof was harsh or strenuous method of reducing for reasons set forth, it did contain cathartics and dangerous drugs in presence therein of rhubarb, cascaria sagrada, aloin, and bile salts, tendency of which is to dehydrate body tissues, and contained furthermore, dangerous drug, extract of thyroid; and

(c) Represented that said preparation was made for reaching the glands, whose faulty function is cause of most overweight, and that it regulated action of glands gently and gradually and took off fat without weakening the body, and was especially prepared to be effective in reducing practically all cases of overweight, and reduced by normalizing body, facts being, it was not made for reaching or nourishing glands whose faulty function is cause of most overweight, only gland substances therein were whole ovarian and pituitary substances and thyroid substance, effect of which latter is to supply thyroxin to system but not to rejuvenate thyroid gland, and it did not regulate action of glands gently and gradually, or at all, and, while use thereof might result in taking off fat by accelerating rate of metabolism, it might seriously weaken body and organs thereof, including heart, and it was not effective in reducing practically all cases of overweight for reason of limitations, as above described, or drug, extract of thyroid and fact that most overweight is caused by excessive intake of food, and it would not accomplish reduction of weight or fat by normalizing body; and

(d) Failed to reveal in their advertisements that preparation contained, as aforesaid, dangerous drug extract of thyroid, and to reveal facts material in light of such representations or material with respect to consequences which might result from use of commodity under conditions prescribed in advertisements or under such conditions as are customary or usual;

With effect of misleading and deceiving portion of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that such false statements, claims and representations and advertisements were true, and that said preparation was a safe, scientific, and effective treatment for obesity, and of inducing or being likely to induce, directly or indirectly, purchase thereof by public:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice of the public, and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Mr. Gerard A. Rault for the Commission.

Mr. Harold E. Prudhon, of Los Angeles, Calif., for respondents.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Edwin H. Paragraph 1. Respondents, Edwin H. Vokes and Hazel Ruth Vokes, are individuals trading as Sekov Reducing Studios with their office and principal place of business located at 6404 Hollywood Boulevard, Hollywood, Calif. Grateful users of Sekov say that as their weight lessens, their pep and energy returns, they feel better than ever before. This is because Sekov acts entirely on a corrective principle. Complaint

Par. 2. The aforesaid statements, claims, and representations used and disseminated by the respondents in the manner above described are grossly exaggerated, misleading, and untrue.

In truth and in fact said preparation advertised and known as "Sekov's Reducer" and as "Sekov" is not a scientific treatment for obesity when administered without a thorough medical examination and without scientific care and observation, and constitutes a treatment for obesity only when used by persons suffering from hypothyroidism. Obesity may be due to several causes, including the dysfunctioning of the pituitary gland and to excess intake of food, in which cases the use of said preparation will be improper and ineffective. Said preparation does not guard the health of the user and does not act on a corrective principle for the reason that the effect of the intake of thyroid accelerates the rate of metabolism whereby the tissues, especially fatty tissues, are burned more rapidly than is normal, and such a process is dangerous and may be injurious to the health and life of the user unless the extent of such process is carefully coordinated to the exact needs of the person suffering from hypothyroidism. The use of said preparation is a harsh or strenuous method of reducing for the reasons herein set forth. Said preparation does contain cathartics and dangerous drugs in that Capsule No. 1 of said preparation contains rhubarb, cascara sagrada, aloin and bile salts, all of which are cathartics, and all of which tend to dehydrate the body tissues. In addition said preparation contains the dangerous drug, extract of thyroid. Said preparation is not made for reaching the glands or nourishing the glands whose faulty function is the cause of most overweight. The only gland substances in said preparation are whole ovarian substance, whole pituitary substance and thyroid substance, all of which are inert when taken by mouth except thyroid substance, and the effect of thyroid gland substance is to supply thyroxin to the system but not to rejuvenate the thyroid gland. Said preparation does not regulate the action of the glands gently and gradually or at all. The use of said preparation, although it may result in taking off fat by accelerating the rate of metabolism, may seriously weaken the body and the organs of the body, including the heart. Said preparation is not effective in reducing practically all cases of overweight for the reason that the drug extract of thyroid is effective only in the treatment of obesity in cases in which the patient is suffering from hypothyroidism. Most overweight is caused by excessive intake of food. Said preparation does not accomplish reduction of weight or fat by normalizing the body.
Furthermore, said statements, claims, and representations constitute false advertisements in that they fail to reveal that said preparation contains a dangerous drug, extract of thyroid, and fail to reveal facts material in the light of such representations or material with respect to consequences which may result from the use of said commodity under the conditions prescribed in said advertisements or under such conditions which are customary or usual.

Par. 4. The use by the respondents of the foregoing false, deceptive, and misleading statements, claims, representations, and advertisements, disseminated as aforesaid, with respect to respondents' preparation, has had and now has the capacity and tendency to and does mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such false statements, claims, representations, and advertisements are true and that said preparation is a safe, scientific, and effective treatment for obesity, and induces or is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase by the public of respondents' said preparation.

Par. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts or practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on the 12th day of March A. D. 1940, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondents, Sekov Corporation, a corporation, and Edwin H. Vokes and Hazel Ruth Vokes, as officers of said corporation, and as individuals trading as Sekov Reducing Studios, charging them with unfair and deceptive acts or practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On May 1, 1940, the respondents filed their answer in this proceeding. Thereafter, a stipulation was entered into whereby it was stipulated and agreed that a statement of facts signed and executed by Harold E. Prudhon, counsel for said respondents, and W. T. Kelley, chief counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, subject to the approval of the Commission, may be taken as the facts in this proceeding and in lieu of testimony in support of the charges stated in the complaint, or in opposition thereto, and that said Commission may proceed upon said statement of facts to make its report, stating its findings as to the facts and its conclusion based thereon and enter its order disposing of the proceeding without the presentation of argument or the filing of briefs. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, answer and stipulation, said stipulation having been approved, accepted, and filed, and the Commission having duly considered the same and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

Docket 4156. Complaint, June 4, 1940—Decision, Sept. 18, 1940

Where a corporation engaged in sale and distribution of candy and confectionery products, including certain assortments which were sold, packed, and assembled so as to involve use of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes when sold and distributed to consumers thereof and which included (1) various containers, candy, a suitcase, and a punchboard for use in sale and distribution of such containers, candy, and other merchandise to the consuming public under a plan and in accordance with said board's explanatory legend by which amount, if any, paid for chances and ranging from 1 to 5 cents was determined by kind of number punched, and by which certain specified numbers from the 400 concealed on board entitled purchasers to receive bars of candy, purchaser of last punch on board received suitcase, and purchasers failing to secure such specified numbers or make last punch received nothing for money paid other than privilege of making punch; and (2) various other similar assortments of merchandise along with punchboards involving lot or chance feature and varying in detail only from that above described—

With the result that many persons were attracted by its said sales plan or method employed by it in the sale and distribution of its merchandise, and element of chance involved therein, and were thereby induced to buy and sell same in preference to that offered and sold by its said competitors who do not use such or equivalent method, and with effect, through use of said method and because of such game of chance, of unfairly diverting trade in commerce to it from its competitors aforesaid, who do not use such method:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

Mr. L. P. Allen, Jr., for the Commission.
Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that W. C. Allen Candy Co., Inc., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the interest of the public, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent W. C. Allen Candy Co., Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Oregon, with its principal office and place of business located at 1028 East Burnside Street, Portland, Oreg. Respondent is now, and for more than 10 years last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of candy and confectionery in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent causes and has caused said candy and confectionery, when sold, to be transported from its place of business as aforesaid to purchasers thereof, at their respective points of location, in the various States of the United States other than the State of Oregon, and in the District of Columbia. There is now, and has been for more than 10 years last past, a course of trade by said respondent in such merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business, the respondent is and has been in competition with other corporations and individuals and with partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 2. In the course and conduct of its business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and has sold to wholesalers, jobbers, and retail dealers assortments of merchandise so packed or assembled as to involve the use of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes when sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. One of said assortments is hereinafter described for the purpose of showing the method used by respondent and is as follows:

This assortment consists of various containers, candy, and a suitcase, together with the device commonly called and known as a punchboard. Said containers, candy, and other merchandise are sold and distributed to the consuming public by means of said punchboard in the following manner: There are 400 numbers concealed in said board, which bears the statement that players punching numbers ending in 0 pay nothing; those punching numbers ending 1 pay 1 cent per punch; those punching numbers ending in 2 pay 2 cents, and so on. Those punching numbers ending in from 5 to 9 pay only 5 cents each. The board also bears a statement informing purchasers or prospective purchasers that certain specified numbers entitle the purchasers thereof to receive boats of candy, and the purchaser of the last punch on the board receives a suitcase. A purchaser who does not punch one of the specified numbers receives nothing for his money other than the privilege of punching a number from the board. All of the numbers are effectively concealed from purchasers or prospective purchasers until the punch is selected and made, and the number punched or separated from the board. The said candy and merchandise are thus distributed to purchasers of punches from the board wholly by lot or chance.

Respondent sells and distributes and has sold and distributed, various assortments of merchandise along with punchboards involving a lot or chance feature, but such assortments are similar to the one hereinabove described and vary only in detail.

Par. 3. Retail dealers who purchase respondent’s said merchandise, directly or indirectly, expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the sales plan aforesaid. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of its merchandise in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said method in the sale of its merchandise and the sale of said merchandise by and through the use thereof, and by the aid of said method, is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws.

Par. 4. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above alleged involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure candy or other merchandise at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell or distribute merchandise in competition with the respondent, as above alleged, are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any method that is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of its merchandise and the element of chance involved therein, and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent’s merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent, who do not use the same or an equivalent method. The use of said method by respondent, because of said game of chance, has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, to respondent from its said competitors who do not use the same or an equivalent method. As a result thereof, substantial injury is being and has been done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on June 4, 1940, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, W. C. Allen Candy Co., Inc., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer, the Commission by order entered herein, granted respondent's motion for permission to withdraw said answer and to substitute therefor an answer admitting all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, which substitute answer was duly filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and substitute answer, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

Findings as to the Facts

Paragraph 1. Respondent W. C. Allen Candy Co., Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Oregon, with its principal office and place of business located at 1028 East Burnside Street, Portland, Oreg. Respondent is now, and for more than 10 years last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of candy and confectionery products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent causes and has caused said candy and confectionery products, when sold, to be transported from its place of business as aforesaid to purchasers thereof, at their respective points of location, in the various States of the United States other than the State of Oregon, and in the District of Columbia. There is now, and has been for more than 10 years last past, a course of trade by said respondent in such merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business, the respondent is and has been in competition with other corporations and with individuals and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and has sold to wholesalers, jobbers, and retail dealers assortments of merchandise so packed or assembled as to involve the use of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes when sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. One of said assortments is hereinafter described for the purpose of showing the method used by respondent and is as follows:

This assortment consists of various containers, candy, and a suitcase, together with the device commonly called and known as a punchboard. Said containers, candy, and other merchandise are sold and distributed to the consuming public by means of said punchboard in the following manner: There are 400 numbers concealed in said board, which bears the statement that players punching numbers ending in 0 pay nothing; those punching numbers ending in 1 pay 1 cent per punch; those punching numbers ending in 2 pay 2 cents, and so on. Those punching numbers ending in from 5 to 9 pay only 5 cents each. The board also bears a statement informing purchasers or prospective purchasers that certain specified numbers entitle the purchasers thereof to receive boats of candy, and the purchaser of the last punch on the board receives a suitcase. A purchaser who does not punch one of the specified numbers receives nothing for his money other than the privilege of punching a number from the board. All of the numbers are effectively concealed from purchasers or prospective purchasers until the punch is selected and made, and the number punched or separated from the board. The said candy and merchandise are thus distributed to purchasers of punches from the board wholly by lot or chance.

Par. 3. Retail dealers who purchase respondent's said merchandise, directly or indirectly, expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the sales plan aforesaid. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of its merchandise in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said method in the sale of its merchandise and the sale of said merchandise by and through the use thereof, and by the aid of said method, is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws.

Par. 4. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above found involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure candy or other merchandise at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell or distribute merchandise in competition with the respondent, as above found, are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any method that is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of its merchandise and the element of chance involved therein, and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent, who do not use the same or an equivalent method. The use of said method by respondent, because of said game of chance, has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, to respondent from its said competitors who do not use the same or an equivalent method.

On August 15, 1940, the respondents filed their answer, in which answer they admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts. In said answer, however, the respondents alleged that they had, since February 1940, ceased advertising the medicinal preparation involved herein. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and the answer thereto, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

In truth and in fact, respondents’ said preparation is not a competent or effective treatment for delayed menstruation. Said preparation is not safe or harmless, as it contains the drugs apiool green, ergotin, oil of savin, and aloin, in quantities sufficient to cause serious and irreparable injury to health if used under the conditions prescribed in said advertisements or under such conditions as are customary or usual.

The use by the respondent of the aforesaid false, misleading, and deceptive statements and representations with respect to their said preparation, disseminated as aforesaid, has the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such statements, representations, and advertisements are true, and that such preparation is a safe, competent, and effective treatment for delayed menstruation, and to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase by the public of respondents’ said preparation.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of the respondents, in which answer respondents admit all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and state that they waive all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondents, Louis Cohen, Sol (Saul) Cohen, and Maryvyn Cohen, individually, and trading as Cohen’s Cut Rate Drug Store, and as Cohen Drug Co., and as Cohen’s, or trading under any other name or names, their agents, representatives, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of their medicinal preparation designated as “Soluble Gelatine Capsules No. 5, Apiol and Ergotin Compound,” and as “Lady Lydia Capsules,” or any other medicinal preparation composed of substantially similar ingredients or possessing substantially similar properties, whether sold under the same name or under any other name or names, do forthwith cease and desist from directly or indirectly:

2. Disseminating or causing to be disseminated any advertisement by any means for the purpose of inducing, or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, of said preparation, which advertisements contain any of the representations prohibited in paragraph 1 hereof, or which fail to reveal that the use of said preparation may result in serious and irreparable injury to the health of the user.

IN THE MATTER OF QUEEN CITY CANDY COMPANY, INC.

Docket 4220. Complaint, Aug. 6, 1940—Decision, Sept. 18, 1940

Where a corporation engaged in manufacture of candy and in sale and distribution of certain assortments thereof which were so packed and assembled as to involve the use of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme when sold and distributed to consumers thereof, and which included (1) number of candy bars, together with push card for use in sale and distribution thereof to purchasers under a plan by which persons pushing by chance certain numbers received bar without cost, and others paid 1, 2, or 3 cents in accordance with number thus secured; and (2) various other similar assortments involving lottery or chance feature and varying only in detail from that described above—

Sold such assortments to dealer and retail-purchasers by whom, as direct or indirect buyers, they were exposed and sold to purchasing public in accordance with aforesaid plans or methods, and thereby supplied to and placed in the hands of others means of conducting lotteries in sale and distribution of candy in accordance with sales plans or methods above set forth, involving game of chance or sale of a chance to procure bar without cost or at price much less than normal retail price thereof, contrary to an established public policy of the United States Government and in violation of the criminal laws, and in competition with many who are unwilling to adopt and use said or any sales plans or methods involving game of chance or sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other sales plans or methods contrary to public policy, and refrain therefrom;

With result that many dealers in and ultimate consumers of said candy were attracted by such plans or methods employed by it in sale and distribution of its candy and element of chance involved therein, and were thereby induced to buy its said products in preference to candy offered and sold by said competitors who do not use such or equivalent sales plans or methods, and with result, through use of such sales plans or methods and because of said game of chance, of unfairly diverting trade to it from its said competitors who do not use such plans or methods; to the substantial injury of competition in commerce:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

Mr. D. C. Daniel for the Commission.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Queen City Candy
Complaint

Co., Inc., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Queen City Candy Co., Inc., is a corporation organized and doing business under the laws of the State of North Carolina, with its principal office and place of business located at 531 Bruns Avenue, Charlotte, N. C. Respondent is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, engaged in the manufacture of candy and in the sale and distribution thereof to dealers. Respondent causes, and has caused, said candy, when sold, to be shipped or transported from its aforesaid place of business in the State of North Carolina to purchasers thereof in various other States of the United States at their respective points of location. There is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, a course of trade by said respondent in such candy, in commerce, between and among various States of the United States. In the course and conduct of its business, respondent is, and has been, in competition with other corporations and with individuals and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of candy in commerce between and among various States of the United States.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of its business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and has sold certain assortments of candy so packed and assembled as to involve the use of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme, when said candy is sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. One of said assortments consists of a number of bars of candy together with a device commonly called a push card. Said bars of candy are distributed to the consumers thereof by means of said push card in substantially the following manner.

The push card contains a number of partially perforated disks, and on the face of each of said disks is printed the word "push." Within each of said disks is printed either the letter "o" or number 1, 2, or 3, and the persons pushing the disk containing the letter "o" each receive a bar of said candy without cost, and the persons pushing the disks containing either number 1, 2, or 3 pay in cents the amount appearing on the disks pushed. The said numbers printed within the said disks are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until selections have been made and the disks separated or removed from said card. Whether a customer receives a bar of candy without cost or is required to pay

The respondent manufactures, sells, and distributes various assortments of candy involving a lottery or chance feature, but such assortments and the methods of sale and distribution thereof are similar to the one herein described and vary only in detail.

Par. 3. Retail dealers who purchase respondent's said assortments of candy either directly or indirectly expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the aforesaid sales plans or methods. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale and distribution of its candy in accordance with the sales plans or methods hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said sales plans or methods in the sale of its candy, and the sale of said candy by and through the use thereof, and by the aid of said sales plans or methods is a practice of the sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws.

Par. 4. The sale of candy to the purchasing public in the manner above alleged involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure a bar of candy without cost or at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell or distribute merchandise in competition with respondent, as above alleged, are unwilling to adopt and use said sales plans or methods of any sales plans or methods involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other sales plans or methods that are contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many dealers in, and ultimate consumers of, said candy are attracted by said sales plans or methods employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of its candy, and the element of chance involved therein, and are thereby induced to buy respondent's candy in preference to candy offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or equivalent sales plans or methods. The use of said sales plan or methods by respondent because of said game of chance has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade to respondent from its said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent sales plans or methods and as a result thereof substantial injury is being, and has been, done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among various States of the United States.

Par. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on August 6, 1940, issued and on August 7, 1940, served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, Queen City Candy Co., Inc., charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer, the Commission by order entered herein granted respondent's motion for permission to withdraw said answer and to substitute therefor an answer admitting all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, which substitute answer was duly filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and substitute answer, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

C. Respondent is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, engaged in the manufacture of candy and in the sale and distribution thereof to dealers. Respondent causes, and has caused, said candy, when sold, to be shipped or transported from its aforesaid place of business in the State of North Carolina to purchasers thereof in various other States of the United States at their respective points of location. There is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, a course of trade by said respondent in such candy, in commerce, between and among various States of the United States. In the course and conduct of its business, respondent is, and has been, in competition with other corporations and with individuals and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of candy in commerce between and among various States of the United States.
PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and has sold certain assortments of candy so packed and assembled as to involve the use of a game of chance, gift enterprise or lottery scheme, when said candy is sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. One of said assortments consists of a number of bars of candy together with a device commonly called a push card. Said bars of candy are distributed to the consumers thereof by means of said push card in substantially the following manner:

The push card contains a number of partially perforated disks, and on the face of each of said disks is printed the word "push." Within each of said disks is printed either the letter "o", or number 1, 2, or 3, and the persons pushing the disks containing the letter "o" each receive a bar of said candy without cost, and the persons pushing the disks containing either number 1, 2, or 3 pay in cents the amount appearing on the disk pushed. The said numbers printed within the said disks are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until selections have been made and the disks separated or removed from said card. Whether a customer receives a bar of candy without cost or is required to pay 1 cent, 2 cents, or 3 cents therefor is thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

The respondent manufactures, sells and distributes various assortments of candy involving a lottery or chance feature, but such assortments and the methods of sale and distribution thereof are similar to the one herein described and vary only in detail.

PAR. 3. Retail dealers who purchase respondent's said assortments of candy, either directly or indirectly, expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the aforesaid sales plans or methods. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale and distribution of its candy in accordance with the sales plans or methods hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said sales plans or methods in the sale of its candy, and the sale of said candy by and through the use thereof, and by the aid of said sales plans or methods is a practice of the sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws.

PAR. 4. The sale of candy to the purchasing public in the manner above described involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure a bar of candy without cost or at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell or distribute merchandise in competition with respondent, as above described, are unwilling to adopt and use said sales plans or methods or any sales plans or methods involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other sales plans or methods that are contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many dealers in, and ultimate consumers of, said candy are attracted by said sales plans or methods employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of its candy, and the element of chance involved therein, and are thereby induced to buy respondent's candy in preference to candy offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or equivalent sales plans or methods. The use of said sales plans or methods by respondent because of said game of chance has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade to respondent from its said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent sales plans or methods and as a result thereof substantial injury is being, and has been, done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among various States of the United States.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the substitute answer of respondent, in which substitute answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and states that it waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Queen City Candy Co., Inc., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of candy or any other merchandise in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Selling or distributing candy or any other merchandise so packed and assembled that sales of said candy or other merchandise are to be made, or may be made, by means of a lottery, gaming device, or gift enterprise.

2. Supplying to or placing in the hands of others assortments of candy or other merchandise together with push or pull cards, punchboards or other lottery devices, which said push or pull cards, punchboards or other lottery devices are to be used or may be used in selling or distributing said candy or any other merchandise to the public.

3. Supplying to or placing in the hands of others push or pull cards, punchboards or other lottery devices either with assortments of candy or other merchandise or separately, which said push or pull cards, punchboards or other lottery devices are to be used or may be used in selling or distributing such candy or other merchandise to the public.

4. Selling or otherwise distributing any merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall within 60 days after service upon it of this order file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

HILLS BROTHERS COMPANY, ET AL.

Docket 4105. Complaint, Apr. 25, 1940—Decision, Sept. 19, 1940

Where a domestic corporation engaged in importing into the United States dates grown in the Kingdom of Iraq, and in sale and distribution thereof in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia; an individual, doing business as English private company, with principal office and place of business in London, engaged in purchasing dates in said Kingdom or country and in importing them into United States and reselling and distributing them in the various States and in said District as aforesaid; and a domestic concern engaged in selling and distributing said products to purchasers thereof in the several States and in District in question; and as thus variously engaged in competition, prior to 1939, with others in England and the United States who purchased dates from growers in said Kingdom, source for 4 or 5 years past of some 83 percent of said product sold and consumed in the United States, and caused to be shipped to the United States and sold and distributed therein such dates in competition, as aforesaid, with said corporation, individual and concern, and their agents—

Reached, in year aforesaid, and carried out understanding with English owners of exclusive right to purchase, and to grant permission to purchase, all dates grown in said Kingdom of Iraq packed in boxes, whereby they were granted exclusive permission to purchase and pack for importation into the United States and Canada dates of 1939 crop grown in Iraq and packed in boxes, and whereby it was further understood that said English owners of such exclusive rights would not permit greater quantities of dates in question to be exported from Iraq to United States and Canada than the average quantity that had been thus exported in previous 5-year period;

With result that during year in question others, some of whom had formerly obtained dates grown in said kingdom for importation into United States, and sale and distribution therein, met with refusal of said English owners, on attempts to obtain such dates, to grant necessary permission and rights, and were unable to obtain said product there grown and packed in boxes for importation into the United States, and competition in interstate trade in commerce in products in question was substantially lessened, and competition between and among said companies or concerns and individual, and between and among them and their competitors, in sale of dates in commerce, was lessened and restrained, power to control prices was placed in them, and monopoly in sale of dates in commerce created in them, and such commerce was unreasonably restrained:

Held, That such acts, practices and methods, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice of the public, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that the respondents named in the caption hereof have been and are using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as commerce is defined in said act; and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent Hills Bros. Co. is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the corporate laws of the State of New York, with its principal office and place of business at 110 Washington Street, New York City in said State.

Respondent Joseph Essaye is an individual serving as a traveling representative and agent for respondent T. A. Suren, proprietor of E. Suren, in the United States, and has his principal office and place of business with respondents, Steinhardter & Nordlinger, at 99 Hudson Street, New York, when in the United States.

Respondents Lester Nordlinger and Hund Steinhardter are copartners doing business and trading under the name of Steinhardter & Nordlinger, with their principal office and place of business at 99 Hudson Street, New York City, New York State. They are agents and factory representatives in the United States for respondent T. A. Suren, proprietor of E. Suren.

Complaint

Respondent W. A. West is an individual, traveling agent and factory representative in the United States for respondent United Africa Co., Ltd., and makes his United States headquarters with respondent Balfour, Guthrie & Co., Ltd., at 67 Wall Street, New York, New York State.

Respondent Balfour, Guthrie & Co., Ltd., is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware. It has its principal office and place of business at 67 Wall Street, New York City, New York, and acts as representative and sales agent of the said respondent United Africa Company, Ltd., and its subsidiary, African & Eastern Near East, Ltd., of Basrah, Iraq, and sells dates to respondent Persian Gulf Products Co., which is wholly owned and controlled by the said United Africa Co., Ltd., as hereinafter described.

Respondent Persian Gulf Products Co. is a Delaware corporation having its principal office and place of business at 67 Wall Street, New York City. It occupies the same office as respondent Balfour, Guthrie & Co., Ltd., and its officers are also officers of respondent Balfour, Guthrie & Co., Ltd. It is a wholly owned subsidiary of the Lebanon Trading Co., Ltd., Freetown, West Africa, which is in turn owned and controlled by respondent United Africa Co., Ltd.

Respondent Andrew Weir, an individual, is proprietor of Andrew Weir & Co., an English private company with his principal office and place of business at 21 Bury Street, St. Mary Axe, London E. C. 3, England.

Par. 2. For more than 3 years last past a part of the commerce of the United States has consisted in the sale and transportation of dates grown in the Kingdom of Iraq and imported into the United States and in the sale and shipment of such dates through and into the several States of the United States and the District of Columbia, and there is now and has been for more than 3 years last past a constant current of trade and commerce in such dates between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondents, during all the time referred to in this complaint, have been and now are engaged in said trade and commerce in dates and but for the matters and things hereinafter set out, would be naturally and normally in competition with each other and with other firms, partnerships, and corporations, in the business of importing dates into the United States and in the sale and distribution thereof in said trade and commerce in the United States.

For the past 4 or 5 years approximately 83 percent of the dates sold and consumed in the United States were grown in the Kingdom of Iraq, which produces about 80 percent of the world's supply of dates, most of the remainder being produced in the Kingdom of Iran (Persia) and in the State of California in the United States. The quantity of dates annually imported and sold in the United States each year for the past few years has varied from, to wit, 700,000 to 900,000 cases, averaging in weight about 70 pounds per case. Of this quantity, respondent Hills Bros. Co. has imported and sold annually approximately 200,000 cases, or 14,000,000 pounds, and respondents T. A. Suren, proprietor of E. Suren, and United Africa Co., Ltd., have imported and sold most of the remainder.

Growers of dates in the Kingdom of Iraq until the year 1939 customarily sold their dates to respondents and to competitors of respondents, who resold and shipped such dates to wholesalers, brokers, and packers located in various parts of the world, including the United States.

In the early part of the year 1939 the Kingdom of Iraq entered into an agreement with the respondent Andrew Weir, proprietor of Andrew Weir & Co. of London, England, which provided, among other things, that said respondent should have the exclusive right to purchase all dates grown in the Kingdom of Iraq for export therefrom, and that said respondent in turn should buy and export a specific quantity of dates at specified prices from the growers thereof in the Kingdom of Iraq and that this agreement should run for a period of 5 years.

Par. 3. Respondent T. A. Suren, proprietor of E. Suren, in the course and conduct of his said business, imports into the United States dates grown in the Kingdom of Iraq and sells and distributes or causes to be sold and distributed, substantial quantities of such dates each year to purchasers thereof located in the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia through respondents Steinhardter & Nordlinger and through the assistance of its agent, respondent Joseph Essaye, who spends a portion of his time in the United States each year in connection with the date business of his said principal.

Respondent United Africa Co., Ltd., in the course and conduct of its said business, imports into the United States dates grown in the Kingdom of Iraq, and sells and distributes, or causes to be sold and distributed, substantial quantities of said dates each year to purchasers thereof located in the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, through its representatives and sales agents, respondents Balfour, Guthrie & Co., Ltd., Persian Gulf Products Co., and W. A. West.

Respondent Hills Brothers Co., in the course and conduct of its said business, imports into the United States dates grown in the Complaint

Kingdom of Iraq, and sells and distributes, or causes to be sold and distributed, substantial quantities of said dates, under the trade name of "Dromedary," each year to various packers, wholesalers, distributors, and retailers located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. On or about May 15, 1939, said respondents, in the course and conduct of their said businesses as hereinbefore set forth, entered into and thereafter carried out an understanding, agreement and conspiracy for the purpose of restricting, restraining and monopolizing, and suppressing competition in the sale of dates in trade and commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Pursuant to said understanding, agreement, and conspiracy, and in furtherance thereof, the said respondents have done, performed, and still do and perform, the following acts and things:

1. Respondent Andrew Weir, proprietor of Andrew Weir & Co., sells dates grown in the Kingdom of Iraq, exclusively, to T. A. Suren, proprietor of E. Suren, United Africa Co., Ltd., and Hills Brothers Co., for import into the United States and resale and distribution therein, and refrains from selling such dates to other persons, firms, and corporations for import into the United States; and respondents T. A. Suren, proprietor of E. Suren, United Africa Co., Ltd., and Hills Bros. Co., purchase from respondent Andrew Weir, proprietor of Andrew Weir & Co., a specified quantity of dates at specified prices for import into the United States and for sale and distribution therein as aforesaid.

2. Respondents have established, fixed, and maintained, and are continuing to establish, fix, and maintain, prices at which they will sell dates grown in the Kingdom of Iraq to the wholesale and retail trade and the consuming public in the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

3. Respondents refuse to import dates grown in the Kingdom of Iran (Persia) into the United States and refuse to sell said dates to the wholesale and retail trade and the consuming public in the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 5. Since, to wit, May 15, 1939, respondents Hills Bros. Co., United Africa Co., Ltd., and T. A. Suren, proprietor of E. Suren, have concertedly, through mutual understanding or agreement, refused and now refuse to purchase dates grown in the Kingdom of Iraq from respondent Andrew Weir, proprietor of Andrew Weir & Co., for import and resale in the United States except upon condition that Andrew Weir, proprietor of Andrew Weir & Co., will not sell dates to any other persons, firms, or corporations for import, resale, and distribution in the United States.
Findings

PAR. 6. The said understandings, agreements, combinations, and conspiracies and the doing and performing of the acts and things in the manner set forth in the preceding paragraphs hereof, tend to have, have had, and now have the effect of unduly and unlawfully restricting and restraining the sale of dates grown in the Kingdoms of Iraq and Iran in trade and commerce between, among, and in the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia; of preventing, hindering, and restraining other persons, firms, corporations, and partnerships than the respondents engaged in trade and commerce in dates in the United States, in the conduct of their respective businesses; of substantially enhancing prices of dates grown in the Kingdom of Iraq to the consuming public of the United States; of eliminating, lessening, suppressing and restraining competition in trade and commerce in the United States in dates between and amongst the respondents; and of creating a monopoly in the marketing of said dates in the United States in the hands of respondents.

The respondents by their own acts, and the acts of their agents and representatives here and elsewhere, have brought about within the United States results forbidden by the laws of the United States. There is no longer any competition in trade and commerce in dates grown in the Kingdom of Iraq in the United States, and prices are fixed at arbitrary levels.

PAR. 7. The acts and practices and methods of competition of the respondents, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice of the public; have a dangerous tendency to and have actually hindered and prevented competition in the sale of dates in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act; have placed in respondents the power to control and enhance prices; have created in the respondents a monopoly in the sale of dates in such commerce; have unreasonably restrained such commerce in dates, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on the 25th day of April 1940, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon said respondents named in the caption hereof, charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in violation of the provisions of said act. On August 2, 1940, respondents Hund Steinhardtner and Lester Nordlinger, copartners trading as Steinhardtner & Nordlinger, through their attorney, Henry C. Heppen, filed their answer. A stipulation was en-entered into, signed and executed by all of the respondents except Andrew Weir and Hund Steinhardter and Lester Nordlinger, and W. T. Kelley, chief counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, subject to the approval of the Commission, whereby it was stipulated and agreed that the statement of facts contained therein may be taken as the facts in this proceeding and in lieu of testimony in support of the charges stated in the complaint, or in opposition thereto, and that the said Commission may proceed upon said statement of facts to make its report, stating its findings as to the facts and its conclusion based thereon, and enter its order disposing of the proceeding without the presentation of further testimony, argument, filing of briefs, or other intervening procedure. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, said answer of respondents Hund Steinhardter and Lester Nordlinger, and the said stipulation, said stipulation having been approved, accepted and filed, and the Commission having duly considered the same and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. (a) Respondent, The Hills Bros. Co., is erroneously named in the complaint in this proceeding as Hills Bros. Co. It is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the corporate laws of the State of New York with its principal office and place of business at 110 Washington Street, New York City, N. Y. Said respondent, The Hills Bros. Co., in the course and conduct of its business, imports into the United States dates grown in the Kingdom of Iraq, and sells and distributes the same in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and has been for several years and is now engaged in interstate commerce in the United States in dates.

(b) Respondent, T. A. Suren, is named in the complaint and described as being an individual, proprietor of E. Suren, an English private company. T. A. Suren is unknown to the parties to this stipulation. E. Suren is an individual doing business as E. Suren, an English private company, with his principal office and place of business in Billiter Square Buildings, Billiter Square, London, E. C. 3, England. Said E. Suren has stipulated and agreed that he may be taken as having been duly named in the complaint in this proceeding and as having received due and proper notice thereof as though he had been named and served in the regular manner. In the course and conduct of his business, the said E. Suren is engaged in purchasing dates in the country of Iraq, importing them into the United States and reselling and distributing them in the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia, and is now and for several years has been engaged in interstate commerce in the United States.

(c) Respondent Joseph Essaye is an individual. He is, and for several years last past has been, engaged as an agent and representative for E. Suren, referred to in subparagraph (b) of this paragraph, assisting the said E. Suren in the conduct of his business aforesaid of importing dates into the United States and reselling them in the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia.

(d) Respondents Hund Steinhardter and Lester Nordlinger are copartners trading as Steinhardter & Nordlinger, with their principal office and place of business at 99 Hudson Street, New York, N. Y. They effect sales of dates on behalf of E. Suren for a selling commission. They were not parties to the understanding described hereinafter in paragraph 3.

(e) Respondent, The United Africa Co., Ltd., referred to in said complaint as United Africa Co., Ltd., is an English corporation with its principal office and place of business at Unilever House, London, England. It does not buy or sell dates in the United States nor does it do or transact business in the United States. African & Eastern (Near East), Ltd., is an English corporation with its principal office and place of business at London, England, and it has stipulated and agreed that it may be taken as having been named in the complaint in this proceeding and as having received notice of the complaint and of these proceedings as though it had been named and served. In the course and conduct of its business, it purchases dates in the country of Iraq and causes them to be exported to the United States.

(f) Respondent, Balfour Guthrie & Co., Ltd., is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware. It has an office and place of business at 67 Wall Street, New York City, N. Y. In the course and conduct of its business, it effects sales of dates on behalf of respondent African & Eastern (Near East), Ltd., to respondent Persian Gulf Products, Inc., for a selling commission. It was not a party to, nor privy with, the understanding hereinafter described in paragraph 3.

(g) Respondent Persian Gulf Products, Inc., is named in the complaint in this proceeding as Persian Gulf Products Co. It is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware and having an office and place of business at 67 Wall Street, New York, N. Y. Said respondent, Persian Gulf Products, Inc., is regularly engaged in selling and distributing dates to purchasers thereof located in the several States of the United States and the District of Columbia.

(h) Alexander Weir, described in the complaint in this proceeding as Andrew Weir, an individual, proprietor of Andrew Weir & Co., an English private company, is a partner in the partnership of Andrew Weir & Co., an English copartnership with its principal office and place of business at 21 Bury Street, St. Mary Axe, London, E. C. 3, England.

(i) Respondent, W. A. West, is an individual. He is engaged as an employee of African & Eastern (Near East), Ltd., referred to in subparagraph (e) of this paragraph, assisting the said African & Eastern (Near East), Ltd., in the conduct of the latter's business aforesaid, and he is now agent and United States representative of the United Africa Co., Ltd.

Par. 2. (a) For the past 4 or 5 years, approximately 83 percent of the dates sold and consumed in the United States were grown in the Kingdom of Iraq. Most of the remainder were grown in the Kingdom of Iran, Persia, or in the State of California. The quantity of dates from all countries annually imported into and sold in the United States for the past few years has varied from 700,000 to 900,000 cases, averaging in weight about 700 pounds per case.

(b) For several years prior to the year 1939, other firms, corporations, partnerships, and/or individuals than the respondents, some located in England and some in the United States, regularly engaged in trade and commerce in the United States in dates grown in the Kingdom of Iraq and in the course and conduct of their respective business, purchased dates from growers thereof in the Kingdom of Iraq and caused them to be shipped to the United States and sold and distributed therein in commerce in the United States in competition with the respondents and the dates imported and resold in commerce in the United States by respondents and their agents.

(c) In the early part of the year 1939, the Kingdom of Iraq entered into an agreement with the respondent Andrew Weir & Co., referred to in paragraph 1, subsection (h) hereof, which provided, among other things, that said respondent, Andrew Weir & Co., should have the exclusive right to purchase and to grant permits to purchase, all dates grown in the Kingdom of Iraq, packed in boxes, and that said respondent, in turn, should buy specified quantities of such dates at specified prices from the growers thereof in the Kingdom of Iraq, and that the agreement should run for a period of 5 years. The exclusive rights of Andrew Weir & Co. to purchase dates grown in Iraq for exportation, packed in boxes, were rights lawfully obtained by it under the laws of the Kingdom of Iraq.
PAR. 3. (a) On or about May 15, 1939, an understanding was reached among respondents Andrew Weir & Co., E. Suren, African & Eastern (Near East), Ltd., and The Hills Bros. Co., whereby it was understood that Andrew Weir & Co. would grant permission to said E. Suren, African and Eastern (Near East), Ltd., and The Hills Bros. Co., their agents and representatives, to purchase and pack for importation into the United States and Canada dates of the 1939 crop grown in Iraq and packed in boxes, and refrain from granting permission to any other individual, firm, corporation, and/or partnership to purchase and pack for importation into the United States and Canada dates of the 1939 date crop grown in the country of Iraq and packed in boxes, and whereby it was further understood that Andrew Weir & Co. would not permit a greater quantity of such dates to be exported from Iraq to the United States and Canada than, to wit, the average annual quantity that had been exported to the United States and Canada from Iraq in the previous 5 year period.

(b) The said understanding was carried out: Respondents E. Suren, African & Eastern (Near East), Ltd., and The Hills Bros. Co., thereafter, pursuant to the said understanding, severally contracted to and did purchase from growers for importation into the United States and Canada specified quantities of dates of the 1939 crop grown in Iraq and packed in boxes; during 1939 other firms, corporations, partnerships, and/or individuals than the said parties respondent, some of whom had formerly obtained dates grown in Iraq for importation into the United States and sale and distribution therein, attempted to obtain dates grown in Iraq and packed in boxes, for export to the United States, but met with the refusal of Andrew Weir & Co. to grant them the necessary permission and rights, and were unable to obtain dates grown in Iraq and packed in boxes, for importation into the United States.

PAR. 4. The understanding and the doing and performing of the acts and use of the methods set forth in the preceding paragraphs 2 and 3 hereof, had and have the capacity and tendency to and did substantially lessen competition in interstate trade and commerce in dates in the United States.

The acts, practices, and methods of respondents as herein found are all to the prejudice of the public; have a dangerous tendency to and have actually lessened and restrained competition between and among respondents and between and among respondents and their competitors in the sale of dates in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act; have placed in respondents the power to control prices; have created in the respondents a monopoly in the sale of dates in such commerce; have unreasonably restrained such commerce in dates, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondents Hund Steinhardter and Lester Nordlinger, copartners trading as Steinhardter and Nordlinger, and a stipulation as to the facts entered into between certain of the respondents herein and W. T. Kelley, chief counsel for the Commission, which provides, among other things, that without further evidence or other intervening procedure, the Commission may issue and serve upon the said respondents, findings as to the facts and conclusion based thereon, and an order disposing of the proceeding, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that certain of the respondents named therein have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That respondents The Hills Bros. Co., E. Suren and Persian Gulf Products, Inc., their officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of dates, do forthwith cease and desist from entering into, participating in, carrying out, or being party to any plan, arrangement, understanding, or agreement to:

1. Limit, restrain, lessen, or hinder competition in trade and commerce in dates between and among the States of the United States and/or between and among the United States and foreign countries, or to monopolize the sale and distribution of dates in such trade and commerce; or

2. Curtail or limit the number of persons, partnerships, corporations, and/or individuals engaging in the importation of dates into the United States; or

3. Hinder the persons, partnerships, corporations, and/or individuals engaged in the importation of dates into the United States in the conduct of their respective businesses either by cutting off sources of supply or by any other similar means; or

4. Limit or restrict date importations into the United States or fix or determine the quantity or quantities of dates that may be imported into the United States annually from Iraq or any foreign country.

It is further ordered, That the complaint herein be, and the same hereby is, dismissed as to respondents Joseph Essaye, Hund Steinhardter and Lester Nordlinger, copartners, trading as Steinhardter & Nordlinger, The United Africa Co., Ltd., African & Eastern (Near East), Ltd., W. A. West, Balfour, Guthrie & Co., Ltd., and Alexander Weir.

It is further ordered, That the respondents The Hills Bros. Co., E. Suren, and Persian Gulf Products, Inc., shall within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF

AMERICAN DRUG AND CHEMICAL COMPANY

Docket 4200. Complaint, July 26, 1940—Decision, Sept. 19, 1940

Where a corporation engaged in sale and distribution of various drug products, including certain preparations designated and advertised by it as Ardanol, Chloro-Zol and Germ-I-Tabs, to purchasers in various other States and in the District of Columbia; in advertisements which it disseminated and caused to be disseminated concerning its said products in periodicals and trade journals and circulars, leaflets, folders, pamphlets, booklets, and other advertising literature, through the mails and through various other means in commerce and otherwise, and which were intended and likely to induce purchase thereof;

(a) Represented directly and by implication that its said Ardanol was a cure or remedy for sterility in both sexes and would restore fertility of the generative organs, and was a reliable preventive of abortion, facts being, said product was not such a cure or remedy and possessed no value as such a preventive, and would not restore or beneficially effect fertility of organs;

(b) Represented that its said products Chloro-Zol and Germ-I-Tabs constituted competent and effective antiseptics and germicides, and could be used as a basis to compound a reliable and effective douche for all needs and purposes in personal feminine hygiene, facts being, while products in question possessed antiseptic properties of a low toxicity, they were not competent or effective antiseptics or germicides and, whether used separately or together, did not constitute reliable or effective means of feminine hygiene;

(c) Represented that its said Chloro-Zol constituted a competent and effective treatment for bromidrosis, tetter, Cuban itch, itching between the toes, blisters on the feet, irritations of the skin, acne, boils, halitosis, and body odors, facts being said Chloro-Zol did not constitute competent or effective treatment for aforesaid ailments and conditions;

With effect of misleading and deceiving a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such statements and representations were true and, because of such belief, into purchase of its said product:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices.

Mr. R. P. Bellinger for the Commission.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that American Drug and Chemical Co., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, American Drug & Chemical Co., is a corporation, organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Minnesota, with its principal place of business located at 420 South Sixth Street, Minneapolis, Minn.

Paragraph 2. Respondent is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, engaged in the business of selling and distributing various drug products. Among the drug products sold and distributed by respondent are certain preparations designated and advertised as Ardanol, Chloro-Zol and Germ-I-Tabs.

Respondent causes said products, when sold, to be transported from its place of business in the State of Minnesota to purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 3. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business, the respondent has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of false advertisements concerning its said products, by the United States mails and by various other means in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of said product; and respondent has also disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing, the dissemination of false advertisements concerning its said products, by various means, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of its said products in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act. Among and typical of the false, misleading, and deceptive statements and representations contained in said false advertisements, disseminated and caused to be disseminated as hereinabove set forth, by the United States mails, by advertisements in magazines and trade journals, and by circulars, leaflets, folders, pamphlets, booklets, and other advertising literature, are the following:
1. As to Ardanol:

For Vitamin E Deficiency

ARDANOL
Wheat Germ Oil Medicinal

During recent years, it has been repeatedly demonstrated that a deficiency of Vitamin E in the diet is the cause of degenerative changes in the reproductive organs of both sexes. In the males, they undergo irreparable damage to the germinal epithelium of the testes. While the sex glands of the female may be apparently unaffected, the vitamin deficiency is the cause of the death of the foetus with subsequent abortion or reabsorption.

According to present knowledge, the principal function of Vitamin E is the prevention of certain types of sterility and infertility. Leading authorities have stated that in the male the gradual loss of reproductive power due to Vitamin E deficiency leads to complete and incurable sterility, but that fertility can be maintained if treatment with Vitamin E is started while a few normal tubules remain in the testes. Also, that female sterility due to Vitamin E deficiency is not incurable, since only temporary tissues are damaged.

2. As to Chloro-Zol:

CHLORO-ZOL is a synthetic chlorine carrying chemical. It is a most powerful antiseptic and germicide, having approximately 50 times the germicidal power of pure phenol (carbolic acid) yet being virtually non-poisonous and non-irritating.

Some suggested uses for CHLORO-ZOL:

Sterilization work
Prevention and treatment of infection
Open wounds and sores
Bromidrosis, tetter, Cuban itch, itching between the toes, blisters on the feet Irritation of the skin. Acne, Boils, Sore Throat, Halitosis. Treatment of abscesses after extraction of teeth.
Feminine Personal hygiene Body deodorant.

FEMININE HYGIENE

When the douche is desired, use a solution made by emptying the contents of one CHLORO-ZOL Capsule in one or two quarts of warm water. Stronger solutions may be used if desirable. The above strength, however, is the one usually prescribed by physicians and is very effective in destroying many objectionable germs.

CHLORO-ZOL SUPERIOR TO MANY COMPOUNDS

CHLORO-ZOL has many advantages over carbolic acid, cresol, bichloride of mercury, and similar poisonous compounds used in feminine hygiene. CHLORO-ZOL does not burn, harden or dry the tissues and membranes. In fact, it provides an efficient germicide that is harmless, and its action is especially beneficial upon the delicate membranes and tissues of the vaginal tract. It is also a very effective deodorant.
Complaint

3. As to Germ-I-Tabs:

Always recommend Germ-I-Tabs • • • for the treatment and prevention of wound infection, feminine hygiene, personal deodorant or wherever an effective germicide and antiseptic may be required.

The enlightened and fastidious woman of today knows the importance of the douche as part of the feminine toilet. The convenience and economy of Germ-I-Tabs in personal feminine hygiene appeal to the modern woman. Most women know HOW to take care of themselves in this respect but they so frequently employ the wrong compounds, using poisonous caustic solutions.

PAR. 4. Through the use of the statements and representations hereinabove set forth, and others similar thereto, not specifically set out herein, the respondent represents and has represented, directly and by implication, that its product designated as Ardanol is a cure or remedy for sterility in both sexes and will restore fertility of the generative organs, and is a reliable preventive of abortion; that its product designated as Chloro-Zol and Germ-I-Tabs constitute competent and effective antiseptics and germicides; that said product Chloro-Zol constitutes a competent and effective treatment for bromidrosis, tetter, Cuban itch, itching between the toes, blisters on the feet, irritations of the skin, acne, boils, halitosis, and body odors; that the products Chloro-Zol and Germ-I-Tabs can be used as the basis to compound a reliable and effective douche for all needs and purposes in personal feminine hygiene.

PAR. 5. The foregoing statements and representations used and disseminated by the respondent as herein set forth are grossly exaggerated, false, misleading, and deceptive. In truth and in fact, respondent's product Ardanol is not a cure or remedy for sterility in either of the sexes, nor does it possess any value as a preventive of abortion. The use of such product will not restore or beneficially affect the fertility of the generative organs. While said products Chloro-Zol and Germ-I-Tabs possess antiseptic properties of a low toxicity, they are not competent or effective antiseptics or germicides. Said product Chloro-Zol does not constitute a competent or effective treatment for bromidrosis, tetter, Cuban itch, itching between the toes, blisters on the feet, irritations of the skin, acne, boils, halitosis, or body odors. The products Chloro-Zol and Germ-I-Tabs, whether used separately or together, do not constitute a reliable or effective means of feminine hygiene.

PAR. 6. The use by the respondent of the aforesaid false, exaggerated, misleading, and deceptive statements and representations with respect to respondent's said products, disseminated as aforesaid, has had and now has the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that said statements and representations are true, and into the purchase of respondent's said products because of such erroneous and mistaken belief.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on July 26, 1940, issued and on July 29, 1940, served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, American Drug and Chemical Co., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On August 27, 1940, the respondent filed its answer, in which answer it admitted all of the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and the answer thereto, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

In the Matter of

Fresh Grown Preserve Corporation, Sun Distributing Company, Inc., Rite Packing Corporation, Murray Greenberg, and Leo Greenberg

Complaint, Findings, and Order in Regard to the Alleged Violation of Sec. 5 of an Act of Congress Approved Sept. 26, 1914

Where corporation engaged in manufacture, sale, and distribution of various kinds of preserved products, two companies engaged in sale and distribution of such products made by said corporation, and two individuals who, as officers, directors and principal stockholders, controlled and directed the business activities, sales policies and practices of the three companies aforesaid, and in active and substantial competition in sale of their said products in commerce among the various States and in the District of Columbia with others engaged in the sale and distribution of fruit preserves in commerce, as above set forth—

(a) Represented their said products as preserves or pure fruit preserves through labels and in price lists and invoices, and in salesmen's representations also thus designated and described their said products;

Facts being products in question were not preserves or pure preserves within the meaning and popular acceptation of such words as understood by trade and purchasing public as product prepared from a mixture of clean, sound fruit with sugar in proportion of at least 45 pounds of fruit to 55 pounds of sugar cooked to appropriate consistency, but contained, as analyzed over extended periods, substantially small proportions of fruit, and were imitation or substandard products so made that in appearance they simulated unadulterated preserves made as above set forth to the extent that difference in fruit content between imitation and genuine products could not be discerned by visual inspection;

(b) Represented in their said labels that certain fruits had been used in the manufacture of the contents of the jars and containers;

Facts being sample of product labeled "Pure Grape Preserves" disclosed approximately 25 percent apple tissue as component part of fruit content thereof, blackberry and raspberry preserves were disclosed, as sampled, to consist of fruit content of fruit pumice, and fruit portions of their said products were not composed entirely of specified fruit represented, but contained instead, in part, mixture of fruits or products other than that specified by them as being in or comprising their products in question;

With result that they obtained, through use of lesser amount of fruit resulting in saving in cost thereof and greater percentage of yield, advantage over competitors who did not resort to such practice sufficient to force those using standard formula to sell below actual cost in order to meet aforesaid saving, and with effect of misleading and deceiving trade and wholesale and retail dealers and consuming public into mistaken and erroneous belief that said products had fruit content of at least 45 pounds of fruit to each 55 pounds of sugar, and that fruit portion of completed product was composed entirely of specific fruit represented, and with result, as direct consequence of such belief, that number of such dealers and members of the purchasing public bought their products and trade was diverted unfairly to them, and their competitors, engaged in selling fruit preserves in commerce as aforesaid, and who truthfully advertised their respective products, and means and instrumentality were placed, directly through such acts and practices, in hands of unscrupulous or uninformed dealers at wholesale and retail whereby they had been and were enabled to deceive and mislead members of purchasing public:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Fresh Grown Preserve Corporation, a corporation, Sun Distributing Co., Inc., a corporation, Rite Packing Corporation, a corporation, and the following-named persons: Murray Greenberg and Leo Greenberg, individually and as officers and directors of said Fresh Grown Preserve Corporation, Sun Distributing Co., Inc., and Rite Packing Corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of said act and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Fresh Grown Preserve Corporation is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York with its principal office and place of business located at 32 Thirty-third Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., and is engaged in the manufacture, sale, and distribution of various kinds of fruit preserves.

Respondent, Sun Distributing Co., Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York with its principal office and place of business located at 32 Thirty-third Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., and is engaged in the sale and distribution of various kinds of fruit preserves which are manufactured by Fresh Grown Preserve Corporation.

Respondent, Rite Packing Corporation is a corporation organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York with its principal office and place of business located at 32 Thirty-third Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., and is engaged in the sale and distribution of various kinds of fruit preserves which are manufactured by Fresh Grown Preserve Corporation.

Respondent, Murray Greenberg, an individual residing at 4901-14th Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., is, and during all the times hereinafter mentioned has been, president of Fresh Grown Preserve Corporation and an officer, director, and part owner of the Fresh Grown Preserve Corporation, Sun Distributing Co., Inc., and Rite Packing Corporation, and, together with the respondent, Leo Greenberg, controls and directs the business activities, sales policies and practices of said respondent corporations.

Respondent, Leo Greenberg, an individual residing at 1947 Ocean Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., is, and during all the times hereinafter mentioned has been, vice president of Fresh Grown Preserve Corporation and an officer, director, and part owner of Fresh Grown Preserve Corporation, Sun Distributing Co., Inc., and Rite Packing Corporation, and, together with the respondent, Murray Greenberg, controls and directs the business activities, sales policies, and practices of said respondent corporations.

Said respondents have all acted in concert and in cooperation with each other in performing the acts and practices hereinafter alleged.

Par. 2. Said respondents are now and have been, for more than 4 years last past, engaged in the business of selling and distributing various kinds of fruit preserves to wholesale grocers, retail grocers, and bakeries located in various States of the United States and cause their said products, when sold by them, to be transported from their factory in the State of New York to the purchasers thereof located in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondents maintain, and at all times herein mentioned have maintained, a course of trade in said products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 3. In the course and conduct of their business, respondents are in active and substantial competition with other corporations and with individuals and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of fruit preserves in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 4. In the course and conduct of their business the respondents have represented and are now representing their products as being "pure" fruit preserves by means of labels, tags, and markers attached to the jars and containers in which their products are packed and distributed, which designate and describe said products as "pure preserves." Such labels also name the fruits which the respondents represent have been used in the manufacture of the contents of such jars and containers.

Par. 5. In the course and conduct of their business and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of their products the respondents have, and do now, distribute to wholesale and retail grocers located in various States of the United States advertising material and sales literature by means of which the respondents represent that their products are composed of certain specified fruits and are "Pure Preserves."

Par. 6. In truth and in fact the products of respondents so denominated, described, and represented have not been, and are not, "Preserves" or "Pure Preserves" within the meaning and popular acceptation of such words.

The expressions "Preserves" and "Fruit Preserves" signify, mean, and are known and understood by the trade and purchasing public, to be a product prepared from the mixture of clean sound fruit with sugar, in the proportion of at least 45 pounds of fruit to each 55 pounds of sugar and cooked to an appropriate consistency.

The products of the respondents do not in fact contain a fruit content in proportion of at least 45 pounds of fruit to each 55 pounds of sugar, but instead said products have an average fruit content deficiency of 48 percent, in that the fruit content in respondents' products averages approximately 22 pounds of fruit to each 55 pounds of sugar.

In addition, the fruit portion of respondents' completed products are not composed entirely of the specific fruit represented, but instead said products contain in part a mixture of other fruits or products less expensive than that specified by respondents as being in and comprising their products, and which the respondents do not disclose in designating and advertising their products.

Par. 7. The use by respondents of the false and misleading representations to the effect that their aforesaid products are "Pure Preserves" had, and has, a tendency and capacity to, and does, mislead and deceive the trade, including wholesale and retail dealers, and the consuming public into the mistaken and erroneous belief that said products have been made from at least 45 pounds of fruit to each 55 pounds of sugar and that the fruit portion of the completed product is composed entirely of the specific fruit represented. As a direct result of this belief, a number of wholesale and retail dealers and members of the consuming public have purchased respondents' products with the effect that trade has been diverted unfairly to respondents from their competitors, likewise engaged in the business of distributing and selling fruit preserves in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, who truthfully advertise their respective products.

By such acts and practices, respondents have placed directly into the hands of unscrupulous or uninformed dealers, wholesale and retail, a means and instrumentality whereby said dealers have been and are enabled to deceive and mislead members of the purchasing public.

As a consequence thereof, injury has been done and is now being done by respondents to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents as herein alleged all are to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on December 30, 1938, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondents, Fresh Grown Preserve Corporation, a corporation; Sun Distributing Co., Inc., a corporation; Rite Packing Corporation, a corporation; and Murray Greenberg and Leo Greenberg, individuals, charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondents' answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by Earl J. Kolb, attorney for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by Louis Halle, attorney for the respondent, before Robert S. Hall, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto, and the oral arguments of counsel aforesaid; and the Commission having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.
Findings

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. The respondent, Fresh Grown Preserve Corporation, is a New York corporation engaged in the manufacture and in the sale and distribution of various kinds of preserve products.

The Sun Distributing Co., Inc., and Rite Packing Corporation are New York corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of preserve products manufactured by the respondent Fresh Grown Preserve Corporation.

The respondent Murray Greenberg is president of the Fresh Grown Preserve Corporation and is an officer and director of Sun Distributing Co., Inc., and Rite Packing Corporation.

The respondent Leo Greenberg is vice president of Fresh Grown Preserve Corporation and is an officer, director and stockholder of Sun Distributing Co., Inc., and Rite Packing Corporation.

The individual respondents, Murray Greenberg and Leo Greenberg, as officers, directors, and principal stockholders, control and direct the business activities, sales policies and practices of the Fresh Grown Preserve Corporation, Sun Distributing Co., Inc., and Rite Packing Corporation.

Par. 2. The respondents, for more than 4 years last past, have been engaged in the sale and distribution of various kinds of preserve products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States. Respondents maintain, and at all times mentioned herein have maintained, a course of trade in said products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 3. In the course and conduct of their business, respondents are in active and substantial competition with other corporations and with individuals and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of fruit preserves in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 4. The respondent Fresh Grown Preserve Corporation uses the brand “Nature’s Own.” The Sun Distributing Co., Inc., uses the brand “Top Notch”; and the Rite Packing Corporation the brand “Mardi Gras” in designating their respective products.

Par. 5. In the course and conduct of their business the respondents represent their products as being fruit preserves or “pure” fruit preserves by means of labels, tags, and markers attached to the jars and containers in which their products are packed and distributed, which designate and describe said products as “Pure Preserves.” Such labels also name the fruits which the respondents represent have been used in the manufacture of the contents of such jars and containers. Typical examples of such labels, are the following:

NATURE'S OWN

Brand

PURE STRAWBERRY PRESERVES

Contents 24 oz. Net

Fresh Grown Preserve Corporation

TOP NOTCH

Contents 4 lbs. Net

Brooklyn, N. Y.

MARDI GRAS

Brand

Brooklyn, N. Y.

PAR. 6. For the purpose of inducing the purchase of their various products, the respondents have from time to time issued price lists, which are distributed to their various customers, by means of which the respondents represented their products as being preserves or pure preserves, by describing and designating such products as “Pure Preserves,” on such price lists. In addition to such price lists, the respondents also described and designated their products as pure preserves and as preserves on invoices to customers and in representations made by salesmen.

PAR. 7. The Commission finds that the products of the respondents so designated, described, and represented as preserves or as pure preserves, are not preserves or pure preserves within the meaning and popular acceptation of such words.

A preserve as understood by the trade and purchasing public is a product prepared from a mixture of clean sound fruit with sugar in the proportion of at least 45 pounds of fruit to 55 pounds of sugar, cooked to an appropriate consistency. This formula is the commercial adaptation of the ordinary cook book formula of a “cup of fruit to a cup of sugar.” There is no difference in the fruit and sugar content of preserves labeled or designated “Pure Preserves” and “Preserves.”
Findings

The minimum formula used by manufacturers as the standard for "Preserves" and "Pure Preserves" is a fruit content of 45 pounds of fruit to 55 pounds of sugar, cooked to a consistency of approximately 68 percent water soluble solids. A preserve product made from a fruit content of less than 45 pounds of fruit to 55 pounds of sugar is known and designated as "Imitation Preserves."

PAR. 8. The Federal Trade Commission purchased in the open market 7 samples of respondents' products, consisting of 40 2-pound jars which were analyzed by the Food and Drug Administration at Washington, D.C., and, in addition, 35 samples of respondents' products were purchased in the open market and analyzed by an independent firm of chemists. These purchases were made over a period of approximately 18 months. The Commission finds that all the samples so purchased and analyzed, with the exception of one sample labeled "grape preserves," had a fruit content of less than the minimum formula of 45 pounds of fruit to 55 pounds of sugar. The average fruit content of the respective products analyzed was as follows:

Fifteen samples, Strawberry Preserves, average 27 pounds of fruit to 55 pounds of sugar.

Thirteen samples, Raspberry Preserves, average 22 pounds of fruit to 55 pounds of sugar.

Three samples, Peach Preserves, average 24 pounds of fruit to 55 pounds of sugar.

Two samples, Apricot Preserves, average 20 pounds of fruit to 55 pounds of sugar.

Three samples, Pineapple Preserves, average 30 pounds of fruit to 55 pounds of sugar.

One sample, Loganberry Preserves, average 23 pounds of fruit to 55 pounds of sugar.

Four samples, Blackberry Preserves, average 19 pounds of fruit to 55 pounds of sugar.

The Commission further finds that the fruit portions of respondents' products are not composed entirely of the specified fruit represented, but instead said products contain in part a mixture of fruits or products other than that specified by respondents as being in or comprising their products.

In designating or advertising their products, the respondents do not disclose the substitution of fruits or materials other than those specified as being in or comprising their products. A microanalysis of a sample of grape preserves purchased in the open market by the Federal Trade Commission discloses that this product contained approximately 25 percent apple tissue as a component part of the fruit content, the product itself being labeled "Pure Grape Preserves."

The Commission further finds in the case of the samples of blackberry and raspberry preserves that the fruit content of these products consisted of fruit pomace which is composed of pulp and seeds after the juice had been extracted or pressed out.

The Commission further finds that the products sold and distributed by the respondents were imitation or substandard preserves and that such products were so made that in appearance they simulated an unadulterated preserve made from the formula of 45 pounds fruit to 55 pounds sugar to the extent that the difference in fruit content between the imitation and the genuine products could not be discerned by visual inspection.

PAR. 9. The Commission finds that in the process of manufacturing or cooking 45 pounds fruit and 55 pounds sugar to a consistency of approximately 68 percent water soluble solids, the evaporation caused by this cooking process reduces the actual yield of a finished preserve to approximately 87 1/2 pounds. When a smaller proportion of fruit is used to 55 pounds of sugar, the percentage of soluble solids would be greater, so that in order to reduce the mixture to a consistency of approximately 68 percent water soluble solids, it would be necessary to add water.

Based upon the standard formula of 45 pounds fruit to 55 pounds sugar, or a total of 100 pounds, the approximate percentage of yield for various formulas of fruit content to 55 pounds sugar would be as follows:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Percent yield</th>
<th>Pound yield</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>45 pounds fruit to 55 pounds sugar</td>
<td>87 1/2</td>
<tr>
<td>40 pounds fruit to 55 pounds sugar</td>
<td>91</td>
<tr>
<td>35 pounds fruit to 55 pounds sugar</td>
<td>95</td>
<tr>
<td>30 pounds fruit to 55 pounds sugar</td>
<td>100</td>
<tr>
<td>25 pounds fruit to 55 pounds sugar</td>
<td>105</td>
<tr>
<td>20 pounds fruit to 55 pounds sugar</td>
<td>112</td>
</tr>

The Commission further finds that the use of a fruit content in the manufacture of preserves of less than the minimum formula of 45 pounds fruit to 55 pounds sugar resulted in a substantial saving in costs to the respondents. As an example, the use by the respondents of a fruit content of 27 pounds strawberry, 19 pounds blackberry, and 22 pounds raspberry to 55 pounds sugar as shown by the average analyses of respondents' products would result in a saving in costs of approximately 50 cents on a case of strawberry preserves consisting of 1 dozen 2-pound jars, 37 cents on a case of blackberry preserves consisting of 1 dozen 2-pound jars, and 50 cents on a case of raspberry preserves consisting of 1 dozen 2-pound jars.
Based upon the testimony of manufacturers and chemists, the Commission finds that the respondents by reason of the use of a lesser amount of fruit resulting in both a saving in cost of fruit and a greater percentage of yield, obtained an advantage in competition over competitors who did not resort to such practice. The Commission further finds that this saving is sufficient to force competitors using the standard formula of 45 pounds fruit to 55 pounds sugar to sell below his actual cost in order to meet this saving in cost.

Par. 10. The use by respondents of the foregoing false and misleading representations to the effect that their products are pure preserves or preserves has a tendency and capacity to, and does, mislead and deceive the trade, including wholesale and retail dealers, and the consuming public into the mistaken and erroneous belief that said products have a fruit content of at least 45 pounds of fruit to each 55 pounds of sugar and that the fruit portion of the completed product is composed entirely of the specific fruit represented. As a direct result of this belief, a number of wholesale and retail dealers and members of the consuming public have purchased respondents' products with the effect that trade has been diverted unfairly to respondents from their competitors, also engaged in the business of distributing and selling fruit preserves in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, who truthfully advertise their respective products. By such acts and practices, respondents have placed directly into the hands of unscrupulous or uninformed dealers, wholesale and retail, a means and instrumentality whereby said dealers have been and are enabled to deceive and mislead members of the purchasing public.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondents, Fresh Grown Preserve Corporation, a corporation; Sun Distributing Co., Inc., a corporation; Rite Packing Corporation, a corporation, and their respective officers, agents, and representatives; and Murray Greenberg and Leo Greenberg, individuals, and their representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of preserve products in commerce, as “commerce” is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Using the terms “preserves” or “pure preserves” on labels, tags, markers, or in advertising material, or in any other manner, to in any way designate, describe, or refer to preserve products which are not prepared from a mixture of clean, sound fruit with sugar in the proportion of at least 45 pounds of fruit to 55 pounds of sugar cooked to an appropriate consistency.

2. Representing, in any manner, whatsoever, that a product which contains a fruit content in a proportion of less than 45 pounds of clean, sound fruit to 55 pounds of sugar is a pure preserve or a preserve, or is anything other than an imitation or substandard preserve.

3. Representing, in any manner whatsoever, that respondent’s products are composed of certain specified fruits when in fact, such products contain a mixture of fruits other than those represented.

It is further ordered, That the respondents shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF

LAWRENCE L. KELLER, TRADING UNDER THE NAME UNITED SOAP COMPANY

Docket 4184. Complaint, July 12, 1940—Decision, Sept. 20, 1940

Where an individual engaged under trade name in manufacture of soap and in sale thereof from city concerned to purchasers in other States and in District of Columbia; in purportedly describing said product and makers and source of origin thereof on boxes or containers in which same was sold and distributed to the purchasing public throughout various States—

(a) Represented that said soap was made by different concerns with offices in different cities including, as the case might be, Los Angeles, New York, San Francisco, Seattle, Cincinnati, and London and Paris, and was imported and consisted of different varieties and qualities, through such statements as "HAWAIIAN ROSE • • • Hawaiian Rose Products, Los Angeles, Calif.," "HOT SPRINGS MINERAL SOAP • • • Union Soap Company, Importers, New York—Los Angeles—San Francisco," "MARVOLA CREME SOAP Made for Union Soap Co., Cincinnati, Seattle, San Francisco," and "CREME BOUQUET • • • Made for Sani Soap Co., Inc., New York, London, Paris," and use of such words and designations as "Vitamized" and "Medicinal," facts being his said product was all made from same formula and sold under different names as above indicated, he had no other place of business than that in aforesaid city, and none of his said soap was vitamized or medicated, with result that ultimate consumer was led to believe that business conducted by him was a large substantial one and that soaps concerned were made at various points as above indicated, and many of consuming public were led to believe that said product had been vitamized or medicated in some manner so as to render same more beneficial than ordinary soaps;

(b) Represented that said soaps were of high quality and had actual retail value and selling price of 75¢ each, through words and figures "Combination Price 75¢," "Price 75¢," and "75¢," on box tops of product in question, with result consumer was led to believe that soap and washing powder, which was sold by peddlers or canvassers who paid approximately 5 cents therefore, for price, usually, of 25 cents to ultimate consumer in house-to-house canvass, was led to believe that he was securing soap and washing powder at a price much less than usual, regular and customary price therefor, which was not 75 cents but much smaller sum;

With effect of deceiving and misleading substantial portion of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that all of said false and mistaken representations were true and with tendency and capacity so to do and to induce substantial portion of such public to buy said products because of such belief as above set forth:
Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Mr. John M. Russell for the Commission.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Lawrence L. Keller, an individual, trading under the name United Soap Company, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. The respondent, Lawrence L. Keller, is an individual trading under the name United Soap Co., having his office and principal place of business located at 4726 Ballard Avenue, Seattle, Wash. He is now, and for several years last past has been, engaged in the business of manufacturing and selling soap under the brand names "Hot Springs Mineral Soap," "Hawaiian Rose," "Velvette," and other similar names. He changes each of the names under which he sells said soap after the demand for the soap under a given name has declined. All of said soap, regardless of the name under which it is sold, is made from the same formula.

Respondent causes said product, when sold, to be transported from his said place of business in the State of Washington to purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in various States of the United States other than in the State of Washington and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in commerce in said soap among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of his said business, in connection with the promotion of the sale and sale of his said soap in said commerce and as an inducement for the purchase thereof, by members of the purchasing public, respondent has caused, and is now causing, advertisements to be printed on the tops of the boxes in which his said product is sold and distributed to the purchasing public throughout the various States of the United States, containing many false and misleading statements and representations respecting the nature and location of his business, and the retail price at which his said product is customarily sold. Among and typical of the statements and representations contained in said false advertisements, used and disseminated as aforesaid, are the following:

Par. 3. By the use of the statements and representations hereinabove set forth and others similar thereto not specifically set out herein, respondent represents, directly and indirectly, to customers and prospective customers that said Hawaiian Rose soap is manufactured and sold by a company named Hawaiian Rose Products of Los Angeles, Calif.; that said Hot Springs Mineral soap is "vitamized" and imported by the Union Soap Co., importers having offices in New York, N. Y., and Los Angeles and San Francisco, Calif.; that said Velvette soap is manufactured and sold by Velvette Products, a company in Seattle, Wash.; that said Marvola Creme soap is made for and sold by the United Soap Co. which has offices in Seattle, Wash.; Cincinnati, Ohio; and San Francisco, Calif.; that said Creme Boquet soap is made for Sani Soap Co., Inc., which has offices in New York, N. Y.; London, England; and Paris, France; that said Creme Savon soap is a medicated soap manufactured and sold by the Wilson Soap Co. of San Francisco, Calif.; and that said Mentha soap is manufactured and sold by the United Soap Co. of Seattle, Wash.

By the words and figures "Combination Price 75¢," "Price 75¢" and "75¢" on said box tops, the respondent represents that the said boxes of soap have an actual retail value or retail selling price of 75 cents each, that such price is the usual and customary retail selling price thereof and that said soaps are of high quality.

PAR. 4. The statements and representations so made and used by the respondent in connection with the sale of his product are false and misleading. In truth and in fact, all the names of said companies are fictitious and are used by the respondent to mislead and deceive the purchasing public as to the origin and value of his said product. None of respondent’s said soap is imported, or manufactured anywhere except in respondent’s said place of business in Seattle, Wash., and he has no factory or office in any other place, and none of respondent’s soap is "vitamized" or medicated.

The price of said soap of 75 cents printed by respondent on said boxes of soap in no sense represents the actual value or retail selling price per box thereof, but is wholly fictitious and greatly in excess of the actual value and selling price thereof. Said price is far in excess of the price for which said soap is customarily sold in the normal and regular course of business. Said boxes of soap are never sold or offered for sale at said price nor are they intended to be sold at such price. Said soap is not high quality toilet soap but is inferior in grade and quality and is regularly sold by the respondent to peddlers and canvassers for 20 cents per basket of four boxes of soap and four boxes of washing powder or at the rate of 6¼ cents per box. These peddlers or canvassers in turn sell and distribute the soap and washing powder to ultimate consumers by house-to-house canvass, usually for 25 cents for a box of soap and a package of washing powder. The soap and the washing powder are not ordinarily and customarily sold to the ultimate customer for 75 cents but for a sum much less than 75 cents, and the ultimate consumer is thereby led to believe that he is securing the soap and the washing powder at a price much less than the usual, regular, and customary price for the soap.

The use by the respondent of the various fictitious names and addresses as hereinabove alleged leads the ultimate consumer to believe that the business conducted by the respondent is a large, substantial one and that the soaps are made or manufactured at the various points indicated, including London, England, and Paris, France. Many members of the consuming public are led to believe that the soap so marked has been "vitamized" or medicated in some manner so as to render it more beneficial than ordinary soaps.

Par. 5. The use by the respondent of the foregoing false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations, disseminated as aforesaid, has had, and now has, a tendency and capacity to, and does, deceive and mislead a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that all of such false statements and representations are true and to induce a substantial portion of the purchasing public to purchase respondent's said products because of such erroneous and mistaken belief engendered as above set forth.

Par. 6. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission issued, and thereafter, on the 30th day of July 1940, served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, Lawrence L. Keller, an individual, trading under the name, United Soap Co., charging him with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices, in commerce, in violation of the provisions of said act. On the 12th day of August 1940, the respondent filed his answer, in which answer he admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waived all hearing as to said facts. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, and the answer thereto, and the Commission, having duly considered the same and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

Findings

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. The respondent, Lawrence L. Keller, is an individual trading under the name United Soap Co., having his office and principal place of business located at 4726 Ballard Avenue, Seattle, Wash.

He is now, and for several years last past has been, engaged in the business of manufacturing and selling soap under the brand names "Hot Springs Mineral Soap," "Hawaiian Rose," "Velvette," and other similar names. He changes each of the names under which he sells said soap after the demand for the soap under a given name has declined. All of said soap, regardless of the name under which it is sold, is made from the same formula.

Respondent causes said product, when sold, to be transported from his said place of business in the State of Washington to purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in various States of the United States other than the State of Washington and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said soap in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of his said business, in connection with the promotion of the sale of his said soap in said commerce and as an inducement for the purchase thereof by members of the purchasing public, respondent has caused, and is now causing, advertisements to be printed on the tops of the boxes in which his said product is sold and distributed to the purchasing public throughout the various States of the United States, which contain many false and misleading statements and representations respecting the nature and location of his business, the retail price at which his said product is customarily sold and the grade and quality of said product. Among and typical of the statements and representations so made and used are the following:

Par. 3. By the use of the statements and representations hereinabove set forth and others similar thereto not specifically set out herein, respondent represents, directly and indirectly, to customers and prospective customers that said Hawaiian Rose soap is manufactured and sold by a company named Hawaiian Rose Products of Los Angeles, Calif.; that said Hot Springs Mineral Soap is "vitamized" and imported by the Union Soap Co., importers having offices in New York, N. Y., and Los Angeles and San Francisco, Calif.; that said Velvette soap is manufactured and sold by Velvette Products, a company in Seattle, Wash.; that said Marvola Creme soap is made for and sold by the United Soap Co. which has offices in Seattle, Wash.; Cincinnati, Ohio; and San Francisco, Calif.; that said Creme Boquet soap is made for San! Soap Co., Inc., which has offices in New York, N. Y.; London, England; and Paris, France; that said Creme Savon soap is a medicated soap manufactured and sold by the Wilson Soap Co. of San Francisco, Calif.; and that said
Mentha soap is manufactured and sold by the United Soap Co. of Seattle, Wash. By the words and figures "Combination Price 75¢," "Price 75¢," and "75¢" on said box tops, the respondent represents that the said boxes of soap have an actual retail value or retail selling price of 75 cents each, that such price is the usual and customary retail selling price thereof and that said soaps are of high quality.

Par. 4. The statements and representations so made and used by the respondent in connection with the sale of his product are false and misleading. In truth and in fact, all the names of said companies are fictitious and are used by the respondent to mislead and deceive the purchasing public as to the origin and value of his said product. None of respondent's said soap is imported, or manufactured anywhere except in respondent's said place of business in Seattle, Wash., and he has no factory or office in any other place, and none of respondent's soap is "vitamized" or medicated.

The price of said soap of 75 cents printed by respondent on said boxes of soap in no sense represents the actual value or retail selling price per box thereof, but is wholly fictitious and greatly in excess of the actual value and selling price thereof. Said price is far in excess of the price for which said soap is customarily sold in the normal and regular course of business. Said boxes of soap are never sold or offered for sale at said price nor are they intended to be sold at such price. Said soap is not high quality toilet soap but is inferior in grade and quality and is regularly sold by the respondent to peddlers and canvassers for approximately 5 cents per box of soap and a box of washing powder. These peddlers or canvassers in turn sell and distribute the soap and washing powder to ultimate consumers by house-to-house canvass, usually for 25 cents for a box of soap and a package of washing powder. The soap and the washing powder are not ordinarily and customarily sold to the ultimate consumer for 75 cents but for a sum much less than 75 cents, and the ultimate consumer is thereby led to believe that he is securing the soap and the washing powder at a price much less than the usual, regular, and customary price for the soap.

The use by the respondent of the various fictitious names and addresses, as hereinabove set forth, leads the ultimate consumer to believe that the business conducted by the respondent is a large, substantial one, and that the soaps are made or manufactured at the various points indicated, including London, England, and Paris, France. Many members of the consuming public are led to believe that the soap so marked has been "vitamized" or medicated in some manner so as to render it more beneficial than ordinary soaps.
PAR. 5. The use by the respondent of the foregoing false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations, disseminated as aforesaid, has had, and now has, a tendency and capacity to, and does, deceive and mislead a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that all of such false statements and representations are true, and to induce a substantial portion of the purchasing public to purchase said products because of such erroneous and mistaken belief engendered as above set forth.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and states that he waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Lawrence L. Keller, an individual, trading under the name United Soap Co., or trading under any other name or names, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of toilet soap in commerce, as “commerce” is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing, through the use of fictitious names and addresses, or through the use of different brand or trade names, or in any manner, that respondent sells more than one grade or quality of soap, or that said soap is imported or that it is manufactured at any place other than at respondent’s place of business in the city of Seattle, State of Washington.

2. Representing that respondent operates a place of business or that he has an office at any place other than in the city of Seattle, State of Washington.
3. Representing that said soap is "vitamized" or medicated in any way, or that said soap has any medicinal or curative value, or that it is in any manner more beneficial than any ordinary toilet soap.

4. Representing that said soap retails for, or has a retail value of, any price in excess of the usual and customary price at which said soap is sold to ultimate users.

5. Representing that the usual and customary retail price of said soap is in excess of 25 cents per box.

6. Representing that said soap is a high quality toilet soap, or that it is anything other than ordinary toilet soap.

7. Representing, through the use of fictitious names and addresses, or in any other manner, that respondent produces large and substantial quantities of soap.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.

OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3762. Complaint, Apr. 14, 1939—Decision, Sept. 24, 1940

Where name "Remington" was the name or part of the name of a number of corporations transacting and doing business in the United States, which were and had been well and favorably known to the purchasing public and were and had been long established in various industries, and was used by some of them as a trade name, mark, or brand for their products, and there was a preference among the purchasing public for products made and sold by the well and favorably known and long established concerns whose identity was connected with said name "Remington" and whose products were well and favorably known for quality, workmanship, and performance, and products bearing the names, marks, and brands adopted and used by said concerns had long been recognized by the purchasing public as being of superior quality, workmanship, and performance; and thereafter (1) corporation engaged in manufacture and sale of radio sets and radio parts bearing said name and sold exclusively by it to dealer operator engaged in sale through its fifty-two stores in seven states of radios, radio tubes and other radio parts, and (2) second manufacturers, engaged in manufacture and sale of such products, including automobile radios, on which it placed, at request of said dealer operator, name "Remington" and which, as thus named, it sold exclusively to said dealer operator, in furtherance of a scheme engaged in by them in cooperation with each other and with said dealer operator to deceive the public and compete unfairly with other distributors engaged in sale in commerce of radios, radio tubes and other radio parts—
 (a) Adopted and used in cooperation with each other and with said dealer operator, name "Remington" to identify and designate radios sold by them to such operator for resale to purchasing public, without authority or consent of any of aforesaid corporations which had used word "Remington" in their corporate names or as trade or brand names, and with intent and effect of deceiving purchasing public into belief that their said radios were made or sold by one of said long established concerns using said name as trade name, mark or brand; and

Where said dealer operator, to carry into effect aforesaid scheme and with intent of inducing purchase of its said radios, radio tubes and other radio parts—
 (b) Featured name "Remington" as brand name or mark of its said radios, radio tubes, and other radio parts in advertisements in catalogs and newspapers published and circulated among prospective customers throughout the United States and the District of Columbia and distributed by mail and otherwise; and Caused name “Remington,” as identification thereof, to be placed upon the dials and name plates fixed and attached to said radios;
With effect of deceiving and misleading members of purchasing public into the belief that their said radios, radio tubes, and other radio parts, marked and branded as aforesaid, were products of well known and long established concerns which rightfully used name “Remington,” and of placing in the hands of dealers and others instrumentality and means whereby innocent as well as unscrupulous dealers or others reselling or otherwise disposing of such radios might also deceive and mislead purchasers into the belief that their radios, radio tubes, and other radio parts were products of one of well known concerns above referred to, and, as a result of erroneous belief aforesaid, of inducing public to purchase their said product in preference to radios of competitors and of thereby diverting trade to themselves from competitors, including those engaged, as aforesaid, in sale and distribution of such products in commerce and who do not misbrand or misrepresent their said products; to the substantial injury of competitors and the public:

Mr. Daniel R. Forbes and Mr. James O. Wrightson, Jr., of Washington, D.C., and Mr. Edward A. Kelly, of Philadelphia, Pa., for Pep Boys—Manny, Moe, and Jack, Inc.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Automatic Radio Manufacturing Co., Inc., Galvin Manufacturing Corporation, Ferguson Radio and Television Co., Inc., and Pep Boys—Manny, Moe, and Jack, Inc., hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent Automatic Radio Manufacturing Co., Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Massachusetts, with its offices and principal place of business located at 159 Brookline Avenue, Boston, Mass. Respondent Automatic Radio Manufacturing Co., Inc., is engaged in the manufacture of radio sets, radio parts, and like products at its said place of business in Boston, Mass., and in the sale and distribution thereof to dealers and members of the purchasing public located in the United States and in foreign countries.

Respondent Galvin Manufacturing Corporation is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Massachusetts with its offices and principal place of business located at 4545 Augusta Street, Chicago, Ill. Respondent Galvin Manufacturing Corporation is engaged in the manufacture of radio sets, radio parts, and like products at its said place of business in Chicago, Ill., and in the sale and distribution thereof to dealers and members of the purchasing public located in the United States and in foreign countries.

Respondent Ferguson Radio and Television Co., Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York with its offices and principal place of business located at 745 Broadway, New York, N. Y. Respondent Ferguson Radio and Television Co., Inc. is engaged in the manufacture of radio sets, radio parts, and like products at its said place of business in the city of New York, N. Y., and in the sale and distribution thereof to dealers and members of the purchasing public located in the United States and in foreign countries.

The respondents named and described in this paragraph are hereinafter referred to as respondent manufacturers. Said respondent manufacturers cause their respective products, when sold, to be transported from their said places of business, located as aforesaid, to the purchasers of said products at their various points of location in the several States of the United States, in the District of Columbia and in foreign countries.

Par. 2. Respondent Pep Boys—Manny, Moe and Jack, Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, with its office and principal place of business located at Tenth Street and Somerville Avenue, Philadelphia, Pa. Said respondent is engaged in the sale and distribution of a line of automotive accessories including radio sets, radio parts, and like products. It sells and distributes said products through branch stores located in the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. It causes said products, when sold, to be transported from its various stores at their respective points of location to the purchasers of said products, many of whom are located in States other than the State of origin of said shipments. Said respondent conducts stores in the District of Columbia and makes sales of said products from said stores to purchasers located in the District of Columbia and in various States. of the United States and it causes such products, when sold, to be transported from said stores in the District of Columbia to said purchasers at their respective points of location.

Par. 3. All of said respondents now maintain, and for more than 1 year last past have maintained, a course of trade in said products so sold and distributed by them in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, in the District of Columbia and with foreign countries.

In the course and conduct of their said businesses, the respondents are now, and for more than one year last past have been, in competition with other corporations and with individuals and partnerships engaged in the business of manufacturing, selling, and distributing, and in the business of selling and distributing, radio sets, radio parts, and like products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, in the District of Columbia and with foreign countries.

Par. 4. Each of the respondent manufacturers and the respondent Pep Boys—Manny, Moe and Jack, Inc., in cooperation with each other, have been for the several years last past, and are now, engaged in a scheme to deceive the public and to compete unfairly with other distributors of radio sets, radio parts, and like products who are in competition with all of said respondents in commerce among and between the several States of the United States, in the District of Columbia and with foreign countries. In furtherance of said scheme, said respondent manufacturers have cooperated with the respondent Pep Boys—Manny, Moe, and Jack, Inc., by adopting and using as marks or brands to designate radio sets, radio parts, and like products, sold to respondent Pep Boys—Manny, Moe, and Jack, Inc., for distribution to the purchasing public, the names, marks and brands of corporations, partnerships, and individuals well and favorably known to the purchasing public and long established in various industries, which names, marks, and brands were adopted and used, and are now being used, by the respondents without the authority or consent of the legal owners and users thereof, for the purpose and with the effect of deceiving the purchasing public and injuring competitors. Among the names, marks, and brands so adopted and used by the respondents to identify their said radio sets, radio parts, and like products is the name "Remington."

Par. 5. In the course and conduct of their business as aforesaid, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of their said radio sets, radio parts, and like products, respondents have published and have circulated among prospective customers throughout the United States, in the District of Columbia and in foreign countries, advertisements in letters, pamphlets, circulars, and newspapers, distributed by mail and otherwise, in which the name “Remington” is featured as a brand name or mark on radio sets, radio parts, and like products, referred to in said advertisements, and they have placed upon the dials and name plates fixed and attached to said radio sets, radio parts, and like products, to identify said products, the name “Remington.” The radio sets, radio parts, and like products to which reference is made in said advertisements and upon which are placed dials and name plates bearing the word “Remington” are not manufactured and sold by one of the legal owners and users of said name Remington who are well and favorably known to the public and long established in industry, but are manufactured and sold by said respondent manufacturers and sold by the respondent Pep Boys—Manny, Moe and Jack, Inc., as hereinabove alleged.

Par. 6. There is a preference among the purchasing public for products manufactured and sold by well and favorably known and long established concerns whose products are well and favorably known for quality, workmanship, and performance, and the products bearing the names, marks, and brands adopted and used by the respondents as aforesaid, and more especially the products bearing the name “Remington,” have long been recognized by the purchasing public as being of superior quality, workmanship, and performance produced by well and favorably known and long established concerns. Purchasers buy respondents’ said radio sets, radio parts, and like products so marked and branded with the name “Remington” under the mistaken belief that they are buying the products of well known and long established concerns whose reputation for quality, workmanship, and performance they rely upon and to whom such purchasers look for satisfaction in the event of the failure of performance, or defect in quality or workmanship, of the products so purchased. Many purchasers have bought respondents’ aforesaid products under the mistaken and erroneous belief, induced by respondents’ said use of the said name “Remington” in the manner aforesaid, that the products so purchased were the products manufactured and sold by well known and long established legal owners and users of the name Remington, as a mark or brand to designate the products manufactured and sold by them.

Par. 7. There are among the competitors of the respondents herein described other corporations, and individuals and partnerships, engaged in the business of selling and distributing radio sets, radio parts, and like products in commerce among and between the several States of the United States, in the District of Columbia, and in foreign countries, who do not misbrand or falsely represent their said products. Among such competitors are legal owners and users of the name Remington, who use, and have used, said name as a mark or brand to identify products like or similar to those sold and distributed by the respondents.

The products bearing the name Remington, and known and described as Remington products, enjoy a favorable reputation among members of the purchasing public for quality, workmanship, and performance, and the name Remington has a great monetary good-will value to the manufacturers of such products.

Par. 8. The use by the respondents of the name “Remington” in the manner aforesaid as a mark or brand to designate said radio sets, radio parts, and like products is deceptive and misleading, and has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive members of the purchasing public into the mistaken and erroneous belief that respondents’ said products so marked and branded are the products of other well known and long established concerns who use, and have a lawful right to the use of, the name Remington. Said respondent manufacturers and the respondent Pep Boys—Manny, Moe and Jack, Inc., by the said use of the said name “Remington,” have placed in the hands of others who deal in their said products a means and instrumentality whereby unscrupulous sellers may mislead and deceive purchasers into the aforementioned mistaken and erroneous belief. As a result of the mistaken and erroneous belief, induced by the respondents’ said acts, practices, and representations as herein alleged, purchasers have purchased a substantial quantity of respondents’ said products, with the result that trade has been, and is, unfairly diverted to the respondents from their competitors engaged in selling radio sets, radio parts, and like products in commerce among and between the several States of the United States, in the District of Columbia and in foreign countries, who do not misrepresent the nature, character, quality, and sources of their respective products. As a consequence thereof, substantial injury has been done, and is now being done, by the respondents to competitors in said commerce between and among the various States of the United States, in the District of Columbia and in foreign countries.

Par. 9. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents’ competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.
Findings

Thereafter, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of the complaint were introduced by Carrel F. Rhodes, attorney for the Commission, and in opposition thereto by Charles E. Green, attorney for respondent Galvin Manufacturing Corporation, and by Daniel R. Forbes and James O. Wrightson, Jr., attorneys for respondent Pep Boys—Manny, Moe, and Jack, Inc., before Lewis C. Russell, a trial examiner theretofore duly designated by the Commission, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission.

Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the complaint, the answers of respondents, said testimony and other evidence, brief of attorney for the Commission, brief of attorneys for respondent Pep Boys—Manny, Moe, and Jack, Inc., and the Commission having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that the proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

Findings as to the Facts

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Ferguson Radio and Television Co., Inc., was a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, and had its principal office and place of business at 745 Broadway, New York, N. Y. This respondent is no longer engaged in business and has discontinued all corporate activities, its business having been liquidated in a bankruptcy proceeding prior to the issuance of complaint herein.

Paragraph 2. Respondent, Automatic Radio Manufacturing Co., Inc. (hereinafter referred to as Automatic Co.), a Massachusetts corporation, with its principal place of business at 122 Brookline Avenue, Boston, Mass., has been engaged for several years last past in the manufacture and sale of radio sets and radio parts bearing the name "Remington" which were sold exclusively to respondent, Pep Boys—Manny, Moe, and Jack, Inc., and has caused its products, when so sold, to be transported in commerce from Boston, Mass., to respondent, Pep Boys—Manny, Moe, and Jack, Inc., at its branch places of business located in various States other than Massachusetts.

Par. 3. Respondent, Galvin Manufacturing Corporation (hereinafter referred to as Galvin Co.), an Illinois corporation having its principal place of business at 4545 Augusta Boulevard, Chicago, Ill., is engaged, and has been engaged for several years last past, in the manufacture and sale of radios and radio parts, and during said times it sold automobile radios to respondent, Pep Boys—Manny, Moe, and Jack, Inc., bearing the name "Remington," which it placed thereon at the request of respondent, Pep Boys—Manny, Moe, and Jack, Inc. The respondent sold its radios bearing the name "Remington" exclusively to respondent, Pep Boys—Manny, Moe, and Jack, Inc., and caused such radios, when so sold, to be transported in commerce from Chicago, Ill., to respondent, Pep Boys—Manny, Moe, and Jack, Inc., at its branch places of business located in various States other than Illinois.

Par. 4. Respondent, Pep Boys—Manny, Moe, and Jack, Inc., (hereinafter referred to as Pep Boys Co.) is a Pennsylvania corporation with its principal office and place of business at Tenth Street and Somerville Avenue, Philadelphia, Pa., and is now and for a number of years has been engaged in the sale of radios, radio tubes, and other radio parts, through 52 stores operated by it which are located in 7 of the States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Said respondent causes said radios and other products when sold by it to be transported from its various stores to the purchasers thereof located in States other than the State of origin of the shipment and located in the District of Columbia. Many of the radios transported in said commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia had plates affixed thereto carrying the name "Remington" and had been advertised by said respondent under the trade name "Remington." Said radios so distributed in said commerce were manufactured for this respondent by said respondents, Automatic Co. and Galvin Co., as hereinafore set out.

Par. 5. Respondents, Automatic Co., Galvin Co., and Pep Boys Co., now maintain and for more than two years last past have maintained, a course of trade in radios, radio tubes, and other radio parts sold and distributed by them in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

In the course and conduct of their said business, the above respondents are now, and for more than 1 year last past have been, in substantial competition with corporations, firms and individuals engaged in the sale and distribution of radios, radio tubes, and other radio parts in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 6. Each of the respondents named in paragraph 5 hereof has been for several years last past, and is now, in cooperation with the other two respondents, engaged in a scheme to deceive the public and to compete unfairly with other distributors of radios, radio tubes, and other radio parts, who are engaged in the sale of radios, radio tubes, and other radio parts in commerce. In furtherance of said scheme, said respondent manufacturers have cooperated with the respondent, Pep Boys Co., in adopting and using the name "Remington" to identify and designate radios sold by them to respondent, Pep Boys Co., for resale to the purchasing public. The name "Remington" is the name or part of the name of a number of corporations transacting and doing business in the United States which are and have been well and favorably known to the purchasing public and which are and have been long established in various industries. Some of these corporations use the name "Remington" as a trade name, mark, or brand for the products manufactured and sold by them. The trade name, mark, or brand "Remington" was adopted and used and is now being used by said respondents without the authority or consent of any of said corporations which have heretofore used the name "Remington" in their corporate name or as a trade or brand name and for the purpose and with the effect of deceiving the purchasing public into the belief that respondents' radios were made or sold by one of said long-established concerns using the name "Remington" as a trade name, mark, or brand.

Par. 7. In the course and conduct of its business as aforesaid, and to carry into effect the scheme referred to above, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of its said radios, radio tubes, and other radio parts, respondent, Pep Boys Co., has published and circulated among prospective customers throughout the United States and in the District of Columbia advertisements in catalogs and newspapers, distributed by mail and otherwise, in which the name "Remington" is and was featured as a brand name or mark of its radios, radio tubes, and other radio parts, and it has caused the name "Remington" to be placed upon the dials and name plates fixed and attached to said radios, to identify them.
Par. 8. There is a preference among the purchasing public for products manufactured and sold by the well and favorably known and long-established concerns whose identity is connected with the name "Remington," and whose products are well and favorably known for quality, workmanship and performance, and the products bearing the names, marks, and brands adopted and used by such concerns have long been recognized by the purchasing public as being of superior quality, workmanship, and performance.

Par. 9. The use by respondents of the name "Remington" in the manner aforesaid as a mark or brand to designate said radios is deceptive and misleading, and it has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to deceive and mislead, and it has deceived and misled, members of the purchasing public into the belief that the respondents' radios, radio tubes and other radio parts marked and branded "Remington" were the products of well-known and long-established concerns which rightfully use "Remington." The respondent manufacturers and the respondent, Pep Boys Co., by the sale of their radios, radio tubes, and other radio parts with the name "Remington" thereon, have placed in the hands of dealers and others the instrumentality and the means whereby innocent, as well as unscrupulous dealers, or others, who resell or otherwise dispose of the radios, may also deceive and mislead purchasers into the belief that the respondents' radios, radio tubes, and other radio parts were the products of one of the well-known concerns referred to above. As a result of the erroneous belief above described, the public has been induced to purchase respondents' radios, radio tubes and other radio parts in preference to radios sold by competitors, and trade has been, and is, thereby diverted to the respondents from their competitors. As a consequence of the acts and practices of respondents set forth above, substantial injury has been done to competitors and to the public.

Par. 10. There are among the competitors of said respondents herein described corporations, individuals, and partnerships engaged in the business of selling and distributing radios, radio tubes, and other radio parts in commerce among and between the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia who do not misbrand or misrepresent their said products.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondents, Automatic Radio Manufacturing Co., Inc., Galvin Manufacturing Corporation, and Pep Boys—Manny, Moe, and Jack, Inc., testimony and other evidence taken before Lewis C. Russell, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint, and in opposition thereto, briefs filed therein and oral arguments by Carrel F. Mr. Donovan Divet for the Commission.

Modified Order to Cease and Desist

This proceeding coming on for further hearing before the Federal Trade Commission and it appearing that on April 29, 1939, the Commission made its findings as to the facts herein and concluded therefrom that respondent had violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and issued and subsequently served its order to cease and desist; and it further appearing that on May 18, 1940, the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit rendered its opinion and on June 15, 1940, issued its decree modifying the aforesaid order of the Commission in certain particulars and affirming said order in other particulars.

Now therefore, Pursuant to the provisions of subsection (i) of Section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Commission issues this its modified order to cease and desist in conformity with said decree.
It is ordered, That the respondent Century Metalcraft Corporation, a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of kitchen utensils in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing that doctors or hospitals have endorsed and recommended petitioner's utensils unless and until such recommendation and endorsement has been made by doctors who are dietary experts or by hospitals acting by and through their dietary experts.

2. Representing that petitioner manufactures said utensils unless and until it owns and operates or directly and absolutely controls the factory or factories wherein the same are manufactured by it.

3. Circulating or publishing unfair or disparaging statements concerning the business status or the quality of the products of the competitors of the petitioner.

4. Representing that food cooked in granite or aluminum utensils is dangerous to the health of the consumers of such food.

5. Representing by statements or in any other manner that the usefulness, durability or value of the utensils offered for sale and sold under the trade name "Silver Seal", or any other term or terms of similar import or meaning as a trade name for said utensils, is enhanced or affected by reason of silver metal contained in such utensils.

6. Representing that the utensils now designated as "Silver Seal" contain no aluminum or are not aluminum.

7. Representing that the utensils now designated as "Silver Seal" are more durable or more easily cleaned than are aluminum or granite utensils manufactured by competitors; that said utensils will not pit; that the method of cooking made possible by said utensils is new or revolutionary; that the use of food cooked in said utensils will insure improved health; or that said utensils were used generally by the United States Army during the World War.

It is further ordered, That respondent shall within 30 days after the service upon it of this order file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.
WHEREAS a corporation engaged in manufacture of glucose or corn syrup unmixed, and in distribution and sale thereof to, mostly, manufacturers of candy who were competitively engaged in sale to various customers, including chain stores, wholesalers, and retailers in the various States and in the District of Columbia, of said product, in most kinds of which such syrup is used as an ingredient to some extent, and in production of many varieties of which it is one of major raw materials, with cost thereof to candy manufacturer purchasers constituting (1) a substantial part of cost of raw materials used in particular candies, having relatively high syrup content and of total cost of manufacturing extensive line of candies having wide range of syrup contents, and (2) a significant and possibly determinative factor in competitive sale to customers and especially chain store and other large quantity purchasers of many candies containing substantial quantity of syrup ingredient, priced at few cents a pound, and bearing no differentiating name or brand, and in sale of which candy sellers attract customers by selling at small fraction per pound lower than competitor—

(a) Sold its said syrup at certain delivered prices and during certain period to purchasers in cities of Chicago and Danville, Ill., while contemporaneously selling such syrup of like grade and quality to purchasers in various other cities, and in accordance with particular city in which particular customer was located, at higher prices;

(b) Sold its said syrup thereafter to purchasers in City of Chicago at certain delivered prices, while contemporaneously selling such syrup of like grade and quality to purchasers in Danville and in various other cities and in accordance with particular city in which located, at higher prices; and

(c) Sold its said syrup for delivery in containers different in type and smaller in size than tank cars, at higher prices to some purchasers than prices at which it sold such syrup for delivery in same type and size of container to other purchasers;

With result that

(1) It discriminated through said varying prices, differences between which, not justified by it, made more than due allowance for differences in cost of delivery, in price between said purchasers who had paid the various different prices for its said product, and unfavored purchaser manufacturers of candies, containing substantial quantity of such syrup, priced at few cents per pound only, and sold competitively on basis of a small fraction of a cent per pound, and particularly to chain stores and other purchasers of large quantities, as above set forth, were compelled to decrease their profit to extent necessary to absorb higher cost imposed as aforesaid, and, in event of such impairment to any material degree, to make only selective sales at non-comparative prices to customers on basis of service, or some other nonprice basis, and had their volume of sales directly reduced and overhead unit costs increased through resulting unused capacity, with further impairment of profits;

(2) There was consequent tendency to discourage and weaken financially unfavorably discriminated candy manufacturers, and possibility of bringing about their elimination and effective deterrent to establishment of new candy manufacturing enterprises in those areas in which it discriminated, as above set forth, was constituted; and

(3) It conferred upon favored purchasers substantial monetary benefit, giving them substantial competitive advantage, and enabling them to reduce prices of their candy, lower costs, and increase volume and profits; and

With result that effect of discriminations in question and results thereof, as above set forth, had been and might be substantially to lessen competition between favored and unfavorable purchasers and tend to create monopoly in former and injure, destroy, and prevent competition therewith:

Held, That in discriminating in price between different purchasers of glucose, under circumstances set forth, it violated provisions of Sec. 2 (a) of Clayton Act, as amended by Robinson-Patman Act.

Before Mr. John P. Bramhall, trial examiner.
Mr. P. R. Layton and Mr. Frank Hier for the Commission.
Nagel, Kirby, Orrick & Shepley, of St. Louis, Mo., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

The Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that the respondent named in the caption hereof, and hereinafter more particularly designated and described, since June 19, 1936, has violated and is now violating the provisions of Section 2 of the Clayton Act as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act, approved June 19, 1936 (U. S. C. title 15, sec. 13), hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges with respect thereto as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Anheuser-Busch, Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of Missouri with its principal office and place of business at Ninth and Pestalozzi Streets in the city of St. Louis and State of Missouri.

Par. 2. Respondent owns and operates a plant at St. Louis, Mo. This plant has a corn grinding capacity in excess of 10,000 bushels per day, with complete facilities for the finished fabrication of corn products, both for household and industrial use.

Par. 3. For many years respondent has been and is now engaged in the business of manufacturing, selling and distributing in interstate commerce products derived from corn. The principal products derived from corn are (1) starch, both for food and other purposes; (2) glucose or corn syrup; and (3) corn sugar. Starch is first manufactured from the corn, and glucose and grape sugar are made by treat ing the starch with certain acids, the resulting solid product being sugar and the resulting syrup being glucose. Glucose is largely used in the manufacture of candy, jellies, jams, preserves, and the like as well as in the mixing of syrups.

The principal by-products of corn resulting in the corn products business are gluten feed, corn oil, corn-oil cake and corn-oil meal.

Respondent in addition to bulk products, produces branded products.

Par. 4. For many years in the course and conduct of its business, the respondent has been and is now manufacturing the aforesaid commodities at said plant and has sold and shipped and does now sell and ship such commodities in commerce between and among the various States of the United States from the State in which its factory is located across State lines to purchasers thereof located in States other than the State in which respondent's said plant is located in competition with other persons, firms, and corporations engaged in similar lines of commerce.

Par. 5. Since June 19, 1936, and while engaged as aforesaid in commerce among the several States of the United States and the District of Columbia, the respondent has been and is now, in the course of such commerce, discriminating in price between purchasers of said commodities of like grade and quality, which commodities are sold for use, consumption or resale within the several States of the United States and the District of Columbia in that the respondent has been and is now selling such commodities to some purchasers at a higher price than the price at which commodities of like grade and quality are sold by respondent to other purchasers generally competitively engaged with the first mentioned purchasers.

Par. 6. The effect of said discriminations in price made by the respondent, as set forth in paragraph 5 herein, may be substantially to lessen competition in the sale and distribution of corn products between the respondent and its competitors; tend to create a monopoly in the line of commerce in which the respondent is engaged; and to injure, destroy, and prevent competition in the sale and distribution of corn products between the respondent and its competitors.

Par. 7. The effect of said discriminations in price made by the respondent, as set forth in paragraph 5 herein, may be substantially to lessen competition between the buyers of said corn products from respondent receiving said lower discriminatory prices and other buyers from respondent competitively engaged with such favored buyers who do not receive such favorable prices; tend to create a monopoly in the lines of commerce in which buyers from the respondent are engaged; and to injure, destroy, and prevent competi-
Findings

in the lines of commerce in which those who purchase from the respondent are engaged between the said beneficiaries of said discriminatory prices and said buyers who do not and have not received such beneficial prices.

PAR. 8. The aforesaid acts of respondent constitute a violation of the provisions of subsection (a) of Section 2 of the Clayton Act as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act, approved June 19, 1936 (U. S. C. title 15, sec. 13).

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress entitled “An Act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies and for other purposes” approved October 15, 1914, (the Clayton Act) as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act, approved June 19, 1936, (U. S. C. title 15, sec. 13), the Federal Trade Commission on June 1, 1939, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondent, Anheuser-Busch, Inc., a corporation, charging it with discriminating in price between different purchasers of respondent’s various products in violation of subsection (a) of section 2 of said act as amended.

After the issuance and service of said complaint, a motion to dismiss the complaint or make it more definite and certain was filed by respondent, which said motion was denied by order of the Commission on June 30, 1939. Thereafter, on July 21, 1939, and pursuant to an extension of time granted by the Commission, an answer was filed by respondent. Pursuant to written notice to respondent of the time, date, and place, hearings were commenced on May 22, 1940, before John P. Bramhall, an examiner designated by the Commission, at which hearings evidence in support of the charge made in the complaint was introduced by P. R. Layton and Frank Hier, attorneys for the Commission, and other evidence was introduced into the record by stipulation between counsel for the Commission and counsel for respondent. Respondent presented no testimony in opposition to the charge contained in the complaint and waived all intervening procedure, oral arguments, the filing of briefs and further hearings, all of which appears of record herein.

Thereafter this proceeding came on for final disposition by the Commission on said complaint and answer and the record herein and the Commission, having duly considered the same, and being now fully advised in the premises, makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusions drawn therefrom.
FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent Anheuser-Busch, Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of Missouri with its principal office and place of business at Ninth and Pestalozzi Streets, St. Louis, Mo.

PAR. 2. For many years respondent has been and is now engaged in the business of manufacturing, distributing, and selling glucose or corn syrup unmixed. Such syrup is one of the principal products derived in the refining of corn.

PAR. 3. For the purpose of refining corn and the manufacture of such syrup, respondent owns and operates a corn refining plant at St. Louis, Mo. This plant has a corn grinding capacity in excess of 10,000 bushels per day with facilities for the finished fabrication of corn products, including such syrup.

PAR. 4. For many years in the course and conduct of its business respondent has sold and shipped and does now sell and ship such syrup in commerce between and among the several States of the United States, causing such syrup to be sold and shipped from its said plant in St. Louis, Mo., across State lines to purchasers thereof located in other States of the United States in competition with other corporations engaged in similar lines of commerce.

PAR. 5. Most of such purchasers so located purchase such syrup which is of like grade and quality for use in the manufacture of candy. Such purchasers are competitively engaged in the sale of such candy to various customers including chain stores, wholesalers and retailers, all located in the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Such syrup has been sold and delivered by respondent in several types and sizes of containers, at prices per cwt. which increase over the tank car price per cwt. according to the size and type of container as follows:

Par. 6. Between June 19, 1936, and August 1, 1937, respondent has sold such syrup at higher delivered prices per one hundred pounds to purchasers located in certain cities other than Chicago, Ill., and Danville, Ill., than it has sold such syrup in containers of like size and type to purchasers located in Chicago, Ill., and Danville, Ill.; and between September 14, 1937, and the present time, respondent has sold such syrup to purchasers located in Danville, Ill., and to other purchasers located elsewhere outside of Chicago, Ill., at higher prices per one hundred pounds than it has sold such syrup in containers of like size and type to purchasers located in Chicago, Ill.

The higher prices at which such syrup was sold by respondent to such purchasers located in cities other than Chicago, Ill., were not uniformly higher than the prices at which such syrup was concurrently sold by respondent to purchasers located in Chicago, Ill., but such higher prices varied with the geographical location of the cities in which such purchasers were located.

Thus, on the following dates respondent sold such syrup to such purchasers located respectively in each of the following cities at the delivered prices per hundred pounds which are shown opposite said cities for such syrup (43° Baumé), in tank cars, or in other containers, in which latter case, for the purposes of comparison, no differential has been added for the containers:

The differentials shown above as existing between the foregoing prices on August 1, 1936, and on August 1, 1937, were substantially the same during the entire period from June 19, 1936, until after August 1, 1937; and the differentials shown above as existing between the foregoing prices on August 1, 1938, and on August 1, 1939, were substantially the same during the entire period from September 14, 1937, until the present time.

Par. 7. Since June 19, 1936, respondent has also sold such syrup for delivery in containers different in type and smaller in size than tank cars at higher prices to some purchasers than it has sold such syrup for delivery in the same type and size of containers to other purchasers.

Thus, in St. Louis, Mo., respondent sold such syrup delivered in returnable drums to some purchasers at a price of 13 cents per hundredweight over the tank car price in accordance with its pricing policy as set forth in paragraph 5 hereof but respondent concurrently sold such syrup in identical containers to other purchasers in St. Louis at a price of only 4 cents per hundredweight over the tank car price.

Par. 8. By selling such syrup at said different prices as found in paragraphs 6 and 7, the differences between which prices have not been justified by respondent and which differences make more than due allowance for differences in the cost of delivery, it has discriminated in price between such purchasers who have paid the various different prices for such syrup.

Par. 9. The result of said discriminations has been to place the unfavored purchasers paying the greater prices for such syrup under a competitive disadvantage.

Such syrup is used as an ingredient to some extent in the manufacture of most kinds of candy and is one of the major raw materials used in the production of many varieties of candy.

Not only is the quantity of such syrup used significant, but the price paid therefor by such purchasers is a substantial part of the cost of the raw materials used in particular candies having a relatively high syrup content as well as of the total cost of manufacturing an extensive line of candies having a wide range of syrup contents. Said costs of the unfavored of such purchases increase over said costs of such favored purchasers directly as the amount of the discrimination between them increases.

Many candies containing a substantial quantity of such syrup are priced at but a few cents per pound. As to products so priced and bearing no differentiating name or brand, sellers have attracted customers by selling at only a small fraction of a cent per pound lower than a competitor. This has been especially true in selling such candies to chain stores and other purchasers of large quantities to whom such a small difference in price is determinative in placing their business.

Under such circumstances an unfavored purchaser's higher raw material costs are difficult if not impossible to recover by increasing the price of the candy manufactured if such unfavored purchaser hopes to maintain volume sales. The effect on such unfavored purchaser of the higher cost of such syrup is to decrease profit to the extent necessary to absorb the higher direct per unit cost imposed by the higher syrup cost as long as such unfavored purchaser attempts to sell his candy at a competitive price.

Where such absorption causes an impairment of profit to any material degree, it results in such unfavored purchaser making only selective sales at non-competitive prices to customers on the basis of service or some other nonprice basis and directly causes reduced volume of sales resulting in unused capacity and increased overhead unit costs on particular as well as on all products; the consequence again being impairment of profits.

Such impairment of profits tends to discourage and to weaken financially existing unfavored candy manufacturers; may bring about the elimination of such unfavored candy manufacturers from the industry and does prove an effective deterrent to the establishment of new candy manufacturing enterprises in those areas in which respondent discriminates as found above.

A further result of said discriminations has been to confer upon the favored purchasers receiving the benefit of said discriminations a substantial monetary benefit which has given such benefited purchasers a substantial competitive advantage, enabling them to reduce the selling prices of their candy, lower costs, increase volume and increase profits.

The effect of the discriminations found in paragraphs 6, 7, and 8, and the results therefrom as set out hereinabove, has been and may be substantially to lessen competition between the favored and unfavored purchasers, tend to create a monopoly in such favored purchasers and injure, destroy, and prevent competition with such favored purchasers.

CONCLUSION

The Commission concludes that in discriminating in price between different purchasers of glucose as set forth in the above findings of fact, the respondent, Anheuser-Busch, Inc., has violated the provisions of section 2 (a) of the Clayton Act as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondent, the testimony taken and stipulated, and other evidence introduced before John P. Bramhall, a trial examiner of the Commission there­tofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said com­plain, no evidence having been presented in opposition thereto by respondant, and further hearings, oral argument, and the filing of briefs having been waived by the respondent; the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion, which findings and conclusion are hereby made a part hereof, that respondent has violated the provisions of an Act of Congress entitled, "An act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and for other purposes," approved October 15, 1914, as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act, approved June 19, 1936 (title 15, sec. 13, U. S. C. A.).

It is ordered, That respondent, Anheuser-Busch, Inc., its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or indirectly, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of glucose or corn syrup unmixed in interstate commerce and in the District of Columbia do forthwith cease and desist:

1. From discriminating in price between different purchasers of glucose or corn syrup unmixed of like grade and quality either directly or indirectly in the manner and degree as found by the Commission in paragraphs 6 and 7 of the Commission's findings as to the facts and conclusion.

2. From continuing or resuming the discriminations in prices found by the Commission in paragraphs 6 and 7 of the aforesaid findings as to the facts and conclusion.

3. From otherwise discriminating in price in the manner and degree substantially similar to the discriminations found in paragraphs 6 and 7 of the Commission's findings as to the facts and conclusion.

4. From otherwise selling said glucose or corn syrup unmixed to some purchasers thereof at a different price than to other purchasers, the effect whereof may be substantially to lessen competition or tend to create a monopoly in the line of commerce in which customers of the respondent are engaged, or to injure, destroy or prevent competition with any person who either grants or receives the benefit of such discrimination, provided that nothing shall prevent price differences which make only due allowance for differences in the cost of manufacture, sale or delivery resulting from the differing methods or quantities in which such commodities are to such purchasers sold or delivered; and provided further that nothing shall prevent respondent from showing that its lower price to any purchaser or purchasers was made in good faith to meet an equally low price of a competitor.

It is further ordered, That the said respondent, Anheuser-Busch, Inc., shall within 60 days after service upon it of this order file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.
IN THE MATTER OF
CURTIS C. WALKER, TRADING AS DIAMOND CANDY COMPANY

Docket 4224. Complaint, Aug. 1, 1940—Decision, Sept. 26, 1940

Where an individual engaged in manufacture of candy and in sale and distribution of certain assortments thereof which were so packed and assembled as to involve the use of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme when sold and distributed to consumers thereof, and included (1) number of bars of candy, together with push card for use in sale and distribution of such products to purchasing public under plan in accordance with which customer received bar without cost or paid therefor 1, 2, or 3 cents depending upon number secured by chance in accordance with particular disc of card pushed, and (2) various other assortments involving lottery or chance feature and similar in methods of sale and distribution to that above described from which they varied in detail only—

Sold such assortments, along with said push cards to dealer or retailer purchasers, by whom, as such direct or indirect purchasers, assortments in question were displayed and sold to purchasing public in accordance with aforesaid sales plans or methods, and thereby supplied to and placed in the hands of others means of conducting lotteries in the sale and distribution of his candy in accordance with such plans or methods as above set forth, involving game of chance or sale of a chance to procure a bar of candy without cost, or at a price much less than normal retail price thereof, contrary to an established public policy of the United States Government and in violation of the criminal laws, and in competition with many who are unwilling to adopt and use said or any sales plans or methods involving game of chance or sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other sales plans or methods that are contrary to public policy, and refrain therefrom;

With result that many dealers in and ultimate consumers of said candy were attracted to said plans employed by him in the sale and distribution of his said products, and element of chance involved therein and were thereby induced to buy his said candy in preference to that offered and sold by said competitors who do not use such or equivalent sales plans or methods, and with result, through use of such plans or methods and because of said game of chance, of unfairly diverting trade to him from said competitors who do not use same or equivalent sales plans or methods; to the substantial injury of competition:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

Mr. D. C. Daniel for the Commission.
Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Curtis C. Walker, individually and trading as Diamond Candy Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Curtis C. Walker, is an individual trading under the name of Diamond Candy Co., with his principal office and place of business located at 219 North Graham Street, Charlotte, N. C. Respondent is now and for more than 1 year last past has been engaged in the manufacture of candy and in the sale and distribution thereof to dealers. Respondent causes and has caused said candy when sold to be shipped or transported from his aforesaid place of business in the State of North Carolina to purchasers thereof in various other States of the United States at their respective points of location. There is now and for more than 1 year last past has been a course of trade by said respondent in such candy in commerce between and among various States of the United States. In the course and conduct of his business respondent is and has been in competition with other individuals and partnerships, and with corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of candy in commerce between and among various States of the United States.

Paragraph 2. In the course and conduct of his business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and has sold certain assortments of candy so packed and assembled as to involve the use of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme, when said candy is sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. One of said assortments consists of a number of bars of candy, together with a device commonly called a push card. Said bars of candy are distributed to the consumers thereof by means of said push card in substantially the following manner:

The push card contains a number of partially perforated discs, and on the face of each of said discs is printed the word "push." Within each of said discs is printed either the letter "o" or number 1, 2, or 3, and the persons pushing the discs containing the letter "o" each receive a bar of said candy without cost, and the persons pushing the discs containing either number 1, 2, or 3 pay in cents the amount appearing on the disc pushed. The said numbers printed within the said discs are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until selections have been made and the discs separated or removed from said card. Whether a customer receives a bar of candy without cost or is required to pay 1 cent, 2 cents, or 3 cents therefor is thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

The respondent manufactures, sells, and distributes various assortments of candy involving a lottery or chance feature, but such assortments and the methods of sale and distribution thereof are similar to the one herein described and vary only in detail.

Par. 3. Retail dealers who purchase respondent's said assortments of candy either directly or indirectly expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the aforesaid sales plans or methods. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale and distribution of his candy in accordance with the sales plans or methods hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said sales plans or methods in the sale of his candy, and the sale of said candy by and through the use thereof, and by the aid of said sales plans or methods is a practice of the sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws.

Par. 4. The sale of candy to the purchasing public, in the manner above alleged, involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure a bar of candy without cost or at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell or distribute merchandise in competition with respondent, as above alleged, are unwilling to adopt and use said sales plans or methods or any sales plans or methods involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other sales plans or methods that are contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many dealers in, and ultimate consumers of, said candy are attracted by said sales plans or methods employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of his candy, and the element of chance involved therein, and are thereby induced to buy respondent's candy in preference to candy offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or equivalent sales plans or methods. The use of said sales plans or methods by respondent because of said game of chance has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade to respondent from his said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent sales plans or methods and as a result thereof substantial injury is being, and has been, done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among various States of the United States.
Par. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on August 7, 1940, issued, and on August 8, 1940, served, its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, Curtis C. Walker, individually and trading as Diamond Candy Co., charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer, the Commission, by order entered herein, granted respondent's request for permission to withdraw said answer and to substitute therefor an answer admitting all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, which substitute answer was duly filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint and substitute answer and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

Findings as to the Facts

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Curtis C. Walker, is an individual trading under the name of Diamond Candy Co., with his principal office and place of business located at 219 North Graham Street, Charlotte, N. C. Respondent is now and for more than 1 year last past has been engaged in the manufacture of candy and in the sale and distribution thereof to dealers. Respondent causes and has caused said candy, when sold, to be shipped or transported from his aforesaid place of business in the State of North Carolina to purchasers thereof in various other States of the United States at their respective points of location. There is now and for more than 1 year last past has been a course of trade by said respondent in such candy, in commerce between and among various States of the United States. In the course and conduct of his business, respondent is and has been in competition with other individuals and with partnerships and cor-corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of candy in commerce between and among various States of the United States.
Findings

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and has sold certain assortments of candy so packed and assembled as to involve the use of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme, when said candy is sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. One of said assortments consists of a number of bars of candy, together with a device commonly called a push card. Said bars of candy are distributed to the consumers thereof by means of said push card in substantially the following manner.

The push card contains a number of partially perforated discs, and on the face of each of said discs is printed the word “push.” Within each of said discs is printed either the letter “o” or number 1, 2, or 3, and the persons pushing the discs containing the letter “o” each receive a bar of said candy without cost, and the persons pushing the discs containing either number 1, 2, or 3 pay in cents the amount appearing on the disc pushed. The said numbers printed within the said discs are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until selection have been made and the discs separated or removed from said card. Whether a customer receives a bar of candy without cost or is required to pay 1 cent, 2 cents, or 3 cents therefore is thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

The respondent manufactures, sells, and distributes various assortments of candy involving a lottery or chance feature, but such assortments and the methods of sale and distribution thereof are similar to the one herein described and vary only in detail.

PAR. 3. Retail dealers who purchase respondent’s said assortments of candy, either directly or indirectly, expose and sell the same to the purchasing public, in accordance with the aforesaid sales plans or methods. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others, the means of conducting lotteries in the sale and distribution of his candy in accordance with the sales plans or methods hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said sales plans or methods in the sale of his candy, and the sale of said candy by and through the use thereof, and by the aid of said sales plans or methods is a practice of the sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws.

PAR. 4. The sale of candy to the purchasing public, in the manner above described, involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure a bar of candy without cost or at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell or distribute merchandise in competition with respondent, as above described are unwilling to adopt and use said sales plans or methods or any sales plans or methods involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other sales plans or methods that are contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many dealers in, and ultimate consumers of, said candy are attracted by said sales plans or methods employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of his candy, and the element of chance involved therein, and are thereby induced to buy respondent's candy in preference to candy offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or equivalent sales plans or methods. The use of said sales plans or methods by respondent because of said game of chance has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade to respondent from his said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent sales plans or methods and as a result thereof, substantial injury is being and has been, done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among various States of the United States.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the substitute answer of respondent, in which substitute answer, respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and states that he waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Curtis C. Walker, individually and trading as Diamond Candy Co., or trading under any other name or names, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of candy or any other merchandise in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:
1. Selling or distributing candy or any other merchandise so packed and assembled that sales of said candy, or any other merchandise, are to be made, or may be made by means of a lottery, gaming device, or gift enterprise.

2. Supplying to, or placing in the hands of others, push or pull cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices, either with assortments of candy, or other merchandise, or separately, which said push or pull cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices are to be used, or may be used in selling or distributing said candy, or other merchandise to the public.

3. Selling, or otherwise distributing any merchandise, by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.
Where a corporation engaged in the manufacture, sale and distribution in commerce among the various States and in the District of Columbia of its medicinal preparations known as Dr. Pierre's Boro-Pheno-Form Vaginal Suppositories and Dr. Pierre's Boro-Pheno-Form Vaginal Creme; in advertisements which it disseminated concerning its said medicinal preparations through the mails, through newspapers and periodicals of general circulation, and through circulars and other printed or written matter distributed in commerce among the various States, and through other means in commerce and otherwise, and which were intended and likely to induce purchase of its said product—

Represented directly or by implication that its said products constituted in all cases competent and effective contraceptives and were competent and effective germicides and possessed substantial therapeutic agents which healed irritated tissues and membranes and had been approved and accepted and were recommended by a substantial number of reputable physicians;

Facts being aforesaid products did not generally or in a majority of cases constitute competent or effective preventives for aforesaid purposes and while they possessed antiseptic ingredients of low toxicity were not competent or effective germicides generally; contained no substantial therapeutic agents or properties which would serve to heal irritated tissues or membranes and had not been approved, accepted, or recommended by any substantial number of reputable physicians;

With tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that said representations were correct and constituted statements of fact, and with result, as direct consequence of such mistaken and erroneous beliefs induced by its said representations, that a number of the purchasing public bought substantial quantities of said Boro-Pheno-Form Vaginal Suppositories and Boro-Pheno-Form Vaginal Creme:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Mr. James L. Baker for the Commission.

Mr. Clinton Robb, of Washington, D. C., for respondent.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Dr. Pierre Chemical Co., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Dr. Pierre Chemical Co. is a corporation created, organized, and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Delaware, with its office and principal place of business at 162 North Franklin Street, Chicago, Ill.

Par. 2. The respondent is now, and for more than 1 year past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of certain medicinal preparations known as Dr. Pierre's Boro-Pheno-Form Vaginal Suppositories, and Dr. Pierre's Boro-Pheno-Form Vaginal Creme.

In the course and conduct of its business, the respondent causes said medicinal preparations, when sold, to be transported from its place of business in the State of Illinois to purchasers thereof located in other States of the United States, and in the District of Columbia.

At all times mentioned herein, respondent has maintained a course of trade in said medicinal preparations sold and distributed by it in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 3. In the course and conduct of the aforesaid business, the respondent has disseminated, and is now disseminating, and has caused, and is now causing, the dissemination of false advertisements concerning its said medicinal preparations by United States mails, by insertions in newspapers and periodicals, having a general circulation, and also in circulars and other printed or written matter, all of which are distributed in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, and by other means in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of its said medicinal preparations; and has disseminated, and is now disseminating, and has caused, and is now causing, the dissemination of false advertisements concerning its said medicinal preparations, by various means for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of its said medicinal preparations in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act. Among and typical of the false representations contained in the advertisements disseminated and caused to be disseminated, as aforesaid, are the following:

The answer: Personal Feminine Hygiene. The original BORO-PHENO-FORM Formula which has been approved and accepted by a substantial number of professional men, was developed by an eminent physician in 1890.

BORO-PHENO-FORM was formulated with a fundamental requirement in mind that a preparation which has no serious harmful effect on delicate tissue can be regarded as sufficient for its purpose; it must have a refreshing, astringent action, be soothing to irritated tissues and odorless.

In every sense of the word BORO-PHENO-FORM affords an accepted method for clean, scientific and convenient practice of Modern Feminine Hygiene.

The coca-butter base in BORO-PHENO-FORM melts rapidly at body heat, releasing the therapeutic agents shortly after the cone is inserted.

The continued use, according to directions, of BORO-PHENO-FORM has always proved a safe procedure.

Here is convincing, * * * Final Proof of BORO-PHENO-FORM's effectiveness. Safe—one dainty suppository is sufficient. No danger of "overdose" or "underdose."

The Answer to Modern Marriage Hygiene: the laboratory staff of the Dr. Pierre Chemical Company has devoted more than a generation to the study of this problem; the definite determination of the therapeutic values of various medicinal ingredients when placed in the vaginal canal; the elimination of caustic and tissue destroying drugs; and the determination of the properties which an efficient Feminine Hygiene agent must possess.

A Feminine Hygiene preparation must do the work expected of it.

But the problem must be looked upon broadly. There are many desirable properties which an efficient Feminine Hygiene agent should and must contain before the formula can be considered therapeutically sound. For more than 45 years BORO-PHENO-FORM cones have been supplying this need.

BORO-PHENO-FORM was formulated with these fundamental requirements in mind. The fact that a preparation has no harmful effect on delicate tissue is not enough. It must have a refreshing, soothing and astringent effect, it must cleanse and deodorize, but leave no tell-tale odor of its own.

Here is a simple, dainty and convenient method of Feminine Hygiene.

IN THE MATTER OF MINNIN SHAPIRO AND JACK WINKLER, TRADING AS A. S. BUTLER & COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION

Docket 4192. Complaint, July 18, 1940—Decision, Sept. 27, 1940

Where two individuals engaged in sale and distribution of second-hand fruit jars which they purchased as such second-hand, old, used, and discarded product, from junk dealers, and which they thereafter caused to be cleaned, and to which they caused to be attached new rubber bands and new caps and to be placed in new cardboard cartons with 12 jars in each, and which products, after being cleaned and packed as aforesaid had appearance of new fruit jars never used, and cost of which to them and aforesaid steps was much less than that to manufacturers and wholesalers of manufacturing and packing, or obtaining and packing, new fruit jars, so as to enable them to sell their said product to retailers, and through them to purchasing public, at prices substantially lower than those at which the new product could be sold; and as aforesaid engaged in sale and distribution thereof to purchasers in various other States, in substantial competition with others engaged in sale and distribution in commerce among the various States of fruit jars adapted to and used for same general purposes as their said product—

Sold their said jars, with appearance aforesaid and with no label, marking, or designation on or about them or rubber bands, caps, or cartons, or elsewhere, to indicate that they were in fact old, second-hand, used, and discarded products, to retailers who resold to public without disclosing fact that said jars were used or old, second-hand or discarded;

With effect of misleading and deceiving retailers and members of purchasing public, with both of whom it is common belief and understanding that fruit jars having appearance of being new and unused and bearing no marking indicating that they are not new and unused, are in fact new jars never previously made use of, into erroneous and mistaken belief that said products were new and unused fruit jars, and into purchase of substantial quantities thereof, and of thereby unfairly diverting trade to them from competitors, many of whom do not engage in such practices; to the substantial injury of competition:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

Mr. Donovan R. Divet for the Commission.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Minnin Shapiro and Jack Winkler, individually, and trading as A. S. Butler & Co., hereinafter referred to as the respondents, have violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. The respondents, Minnie Shapiro and Jack Winkler, are individuals trading under the name of A. S. Butler & Co., and having their principal place of business at 667 North Clark Street in the city of Chicago and State of Illinois. Respondents are now and for more than 3 years last past have been engaged in the sale and distribution in commerce between and among the various States of the United States of second-hand fruit jars. Respondents cause and have caused their said products, when sold, to be transported from their aforesaid place of business in the State of Illinois to the purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States.

Paragraph 2. During the time above mentioned other individuals, and firms and corporations, in various States of the United States have been and are now engaged in the sale and distribution, in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, of fruit jars adapted to and used for the same general purposes as respondents' said fruit jars. Respondents have been, during the time aforesaid, and now are, in substantial competition with such other individuals, and with such firms and corporations.

Paragraph 3. In the course and conduct of their aforesaid business, respondents buy second-hand, old, used, and discarded fruit jars from junk dealers which said fruit jars they cause to be cleaned and to which they cause to be attached new rubber bands and new caps. After the said second-hand fruit jars have been cleaned and the rubber bands and caps have been so attached as aforesaid, respondents cause said second-hand fruit jars to be placed in new cardboard cartons with 12 jars in each carton.

Paragraph 4. The aforesaid second-hand, old, used, and discarded fruit jars, after being cleaned and packed as aforesaid, have the appearance of new fruit jars which have never been used, and are sold by respondents to retail dealers without any label, marking, or designation on or about said jars, rubber bands, caps or cartons, or elsewhere, to indicate that they are in fact old, second-hand, used and discarded fruit jars. Such retail dealers resell said jars to the public without disclosing the fact that said jars are used, old, second-hand, and discarded.

The cost to respondents of obtaining, cleaning, refitting, and packing said second-hand fruit jars is much less than the cost to manufacturers and wholesale dealers of manufacturing and packing or of obtaining and packing new fruit jars, and respondents are thereby able to sell said second-hand fruit jars to retailers, and through them to the purchasing public, at prices which are substantially lower than the prices at which new jars can be sold.

Par. 5. It is the common belief and understanding among retail dealers and the purchasing public that fruit jars having the appearance of being new and unused, and bearing no marking indicating that they are not new and unused, are in fact new fruit jars which have never been used previously. Retail dealers and members of the purchasing public, when buying fruit jars having the appearance of being new and unused, and without any marking indicating the contrary, expect to receive, and understand that they are receiving, new and unused fruit jars, and not second-hand, old, used, and discarded fruit jars which have been cleaned and refitted as aforesaid.

Par. 6. The practice of the respondents in failing to disclose that their said fruit jars have been previously used has the tendency and capacity to, and does, mislead and deceive retail dealers and members of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such fruit jars are new and unused fruit jars, and into the purchase of substantial quantities of such jars. As a result, trade has been unfairly diverted to respondents from their competitors, many of whom do not engage in the practices herein set forth. In consequence, substantial injury has been done and is now being done by respondents to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

Par. 7. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on the 18th day of July 1940, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondents Minnin Shapiro and Jack Winkler, individually and trading as A. S. Butler & Co., charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On the 28th day of August 1940, each of the respondents filed a separate answer in which answers respondents admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and the answers thereto, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondents, Minnin Shapiro and Jack Winkler, are individuals trading under the name of A. S. Butler & Co., and having their principal place of business at 667 North Clark Street in the city of Chicago and State of Illinois. Respondents are now and for more than 3 years last past have been engaged in the sale and distribution in commerce between and among the various States of the United States of second-hand fruit jars. Respondents cause and have caused their said products, when sold, to be transported from their aforesaid place of business in the State of Illinois to the purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States.

PAR. 2. During the time above mentioned other individuals, and firms and corporations, in various States of the United States, have been and are now engaged in the sale and distribution in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, of fruit jars adapted to and used for the same general purposes as respondents' said fruit jars. Respondents have been, during the time aforesaid, and now are, in substantial competition with such other individuals, and with such firms and corporations.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of their aforesaid business, respondents buy second-hand, old, used, and discarded fruit jars from junk dealers, which said fruit jars they cause to be cleaned and to which they cause to be attached new rubber bands and new caps. After the said second-hand fruit jars have been cleaned and the rubber bands and caps have been so attached as aforesaid, respondents cause said second-hand fruit jars to be placed in new cardboard cartons with 12 jars in each carton.

PAR. 4. The aforesaid second-hand, old, used, and discarded fruit jars, after being cleaned and packed as aforesaid, have the appearance of new fruit jars which have never been used, and are sold by respondents to retail dealers without any label, marking, or designation on or about said jars, rubber bands, caps, or cartons, or elsewhere, to indicate that they are in fact old, second-hand, used, and discarded.
fruit jars. Such retail dealers resell said jars to the public without disclosing the fact that said jars are used, old, second-hand, and discarded.

The cost to respondents of obtaining, cleaning, refitting, and packing said second-hand fruit jars is much less than the cost to manufacturers and wholesale dealers of manufacturing and packing or of obtaining and packing new fruit jars, and respondents are thereby able to sell said second-hand fruit jars to retailers, and through them to the purchasing public, at prices which are substantially lower than the prices at which new jars can be sold.

Par. 5. It is the common belief and understanding among retail dealers and the purchasing public that fruit jars having the appearance of being new and unused, and bearing no marking indicating that they are not new and unused, are in fact, new fruit jars which have never been used previously. Retail dealers and members of the purchasing public, when buying fruit jars having the appearance of being new and unused, and without any marking indicating the contrary, expect to receive, and understand that they are receiving, new and unused fruit jars, and not second-hand, old, used, and discarded fruit jars which have been cleaned and refitted as aforesaid.

Par. 6. The practice of the respondents in failing to disclose that their said fruit jars have been previously used has the tendency and capacity to, and does, mislead and deceive retail dealers and members of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such fruit jars are new and unused fruit jars, and into the purchase of substantial quantities of such jars. As a result, trade has been unfairly diverted to respondents from their competitors, many of whom do not engage in the practices herein set forth. In consequence, substantial injury has been done and is now being done by respondents to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answers of the respondents, in which answers respondents admit all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and state that they waive all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondents, Minnin Shapiro and Jack Winkler, individually, and trading as A. S. Butler & Company, or trading under any other name or names, their representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of second-hand or used fruit jars in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

Selling or distributing used or second-hand fruit jars, unless there is firmly attached to each of such jars, and to each carton or container in which such jars are packed, a conspicuous label or other marking clearly disclosing that such jars are used or second-hand jars.

It is further ordered, That the respondents shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

Docket 4071. Complaint, Mar. 23, 1940—Decision, Oct. 1, 1940

Where three corporations which were engaged in purchase, as sole source of supply for the controlling and parent corporations, of Swiss and Limburger cheese in the Monroe area of the State of Wisconsin, source of substantially more than half of all such cheese produced in the United States, and in transporting, grading, inspecting, sorting, curing, selling, and distributing such products, and which, as dealer-purchasers of the output of some 200 of the 250 chiefly farmer-owned cheese factories in said area, constituted, along with such other relatively small dealer-purchasers in market in question, sole marketing mediums or outlets through which such factories could offer and dispose of their said product, and, prior to and but for acts and practices below set forth, in competition with one another in purchase in said area of said product for processing, packing, inspection, grading, sorting, and curing for subsequent sale to and through their principals, without State largely, and sale and distribution by latter in competition with one another, except as hindered by acts and practices herein;

Acting in response to situation first arising out of low price prevailing for cheeses in question and producers' dissatisfaction therewith, and intervention of State Department of Agriculture and suggestion for periodical meetings of dealer-purchasers and producers in area in question, and directed to securing for latter fair price for their said product—

Entered into and thereafter carried out an understanding, agreement, and combination with intent and effect of restricting and restraining competition in purchase of Swiss and Limburger cheese made and produced by such factories in said area, and, through such restricted and restrained competition, of suppressing and eliminating competition in sale of such cheese in trade and commerce between and among the several States and in the District of Columbia; and in pursuance of said agreement, etc., and acting for and in behalf of themselves and their said respective principals and parent companies—

(1) Agreed to and did hold monthly meetings sponsored by and under the supervision of the Department of Agriculture of said State, and over which representative of said department presided, to afford, in response to conferences called by said department and attended by its representatives and those of producers and dealers, and resulting interchange and discussion, opportunity for attempt to reach agreement as to fair prices to be paid by the dealers for cheese produced and made in factories in question, and agreed to and did there fix, along with other representatives of other dealers and those of producers in said area, prices which would be and were paid to cheese factories therein for the Swiss and Limburger cheese which they produced and made;

(2) Acted, during such meetings and in furtherance of aforesaid understanding, agreement, and combination, and along with representatives of other dealers in said area, as a unit in offering representatives of the factories the prices which they, the dealers, would pay on cheese produced and made by such factories;

(3) Held, as aforesaid indicated, and prior to such meetings, separate meetings among themselves at which they agreed upon the initial price which they would offer at such meetings with representatives of the producers;

(4) Held, also, separate meetings among themselves in the course of their said meetings with representatives of producers, at which they agreed to and did set upper limits as to the prices which they would agree to pay the cheese factories at their meetings with the producers' representatives; and

(5) Acceded in very few instances at such meetings to request of producers' representatives for increased prices for their Swiss and Limburger cheeses, but, in such instances, required such representatives either to accept the lower prices offered by the dealers' representatives for said products produced by factories in question in said Monroe area, or to receive same prices therefor as were paid by dealers for said cheese for preceding month;

With result that capacity, tendency, and effect of such understanding, agreement, and combination, and acts, practices, and things done pursuant thereto by said dealer-purchasers and their principals and parent companies, were to materially affect and influence prices at which Swiss and Limburger cheese were sold in commerce as aforesaid, influence at least in part prices at which some other dairy products were sold and distributed in such commerce, unreasonably lessen, eliminate, restrict, and hinder competition in purchase of said cheeses produced and made by cheese factories in Monroe area, and unreasonably lessen and restrict competition in resale thereof to purchasers in the several States and in said District:

Held, That such acts and practices of said subsidiary dealer-purchasers and their principals and parent companies, for which they acted as aforesaid, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice of the public and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Mr. Fletcher G. Cohn for the Commission.

Nicholson, Snyder, Chadwell & Fagerburg, of Chicago, Ill., for Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co. and Kraft-Phenix Cheese Corp.

Mr. Robert S. Gordon and Mr. W. L. Keitt, of New York City, for National Dairy Products Corp.

Milbank, Tweed & Hope, of New York City, for The Borden Co.

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co., Kraft-Phenix Cheese Corp., National Dairy Products Corp., The Borden Co., J. S. Hoffman & Co., and Triangle Cheese Co., hereinafter referred to as respondents, have been, and are now using unfair methods of competition in commerce as "commerce" is defined by said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co. is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Wisconsin, with its principal office and place of business located in Monroe, Wis. In the course of its business, it is engaged in the buying, and then the selling and distributing of Swiss, Brick, Limburger, and Munster cheese (hereinafter referred to as "foreign type cheese"), which are manufactured in cheese factories located in the State of Wisconsin.

Respondent Kraft-Phenix Cheese Corp. is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Illinois, with its principal office and place of business located at 500 Peshtigo Court, Chicago, Ill. It owns all the stock, except the qualifying shares, in respondent Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co., and directs and controls the business policies of its said subsidiary, Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co.

Respondent National Dairy Products Corp. is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware with its principal office and place of business located at 120 Broadway, New York, N. Y. It has as one of its solely owned subsidiaries, respondent Kraft-Phenix Cheese Corp., and directs and controls the business policies of said subsidiary.

Respondent The Borden Co., is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of New Jersey, with its principal office and place of business being located at 350 Madison Avenue, New York, N. Y. As part of its business it operates a division known as Carl Marty & Co., which division is located in Monroe, Wis., and is engaged in the business of buying and then selling and distributing foreign types of cheese, which are manufactured in the State of Wisconsin.

Respondent J. S. Hoffman & Co. is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Illinois, with its principal office and place of business being located at 320 West Illinois Street, Chicago, Ill. It is a dealer in American and foreign type cheese; it owns all the stock in respondent Triangle Cheese Co., and directs and controls the business policies of said respondent.

Respondent Triangle Cheese Co. is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Wisconsin, with its principal office and place of business being located in Monroe, Wis. It buys foreign types of cheese manufactured in Wisconsin, which cheese is then sold and distributed by its parent corporation, respondent J. S. Hoffman & Co.

Par. 2. Of the four varieties of foreign type cheese, Swiss and Brick constitute the bulk of the production. Approximately two-thirds of all the Swiss cheese produced in the United States is made in the State of Wisconsin, with approximately 90 percent of that amount being produced in an area comprising four southern counties of Wisconsin, i.e., Green, Lafayette, Dane, and Iowa, with the city of Monroe located in Green County, Wis., being the center of this foreign type cheese area (said area is hereinafter referred to as the "Monroe area"). There are located in said Monroe area approximately 250 factories making Swiss cheese, 90 percent of which are owned by the farmers in this locality on a cooperative basis, with the farmers generally being patrons of the factories in which they are interested. The manager of each factory is styled the cheese maker. About one-third of the factories operate on a year-round basis with the rest operating only during the flush season, shutting down during the winter months.

The average cheese factory handles a comparatively small amount of cheese; it has no facilities for storing cheese for an appreciable length of time; and it has little, if any, financial reserve.

The owners of a given cheese factory—generally the farmer patron, choose one of their number as a business representative who sells the cheese produced at the factory to the dealers in cheese, which dealers are either located, or have representatives, in the Monroe area. There is no marketing agency for the selling of the cheese produced by the factories other than through these cheese dealers.

Par. 3. Until 1921, there were many cheese dealers who were actively competing for the output of the various cheese factories in the Monroe area. However, in the last 15 years, there has been a gradual consolidation, of these cheese dealers and a centralized control in the sale of the output of the various factories.

In 1911, the first merger of any consequence of dealers in the Monroe area took place, when seven independent cheese dealers, located in said area, merged and organized the Badger Cheese Co., a Wisconsin corporation. In 1920, Kraft Cheese Co. bought 51 percent of the stock in this concern and in 1925 became the full owner. In 1926, Phenix Cheese Co. began operating in the Monroe area but shortly thereafter the Kraft and Phenix interests merged as the respondent Kraft-Phenix Cheese Corp. In 1928 this respondent bought the stock and assets of the Brodhead Cheese & Cold Storage Co., which was an active cheese dealer in the Monroe area, and formed a new corporation, respondent Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co., which was a merger of the Badger Cheese Co., which had been an active cheese buyer in the Monroe area and the aforementioned Brodhead Cheese & Cold Storage Co. Respondent Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co. is one of the largest, if not the largest, buyer of foreign type cheese in the United States. In 1929, respondent Kraft-Phenix Cheese Corp. secured the business of Charles Zweifel Co., Brodhead, Wis., which was then one of the largest cheese dealers in the Monroe area.

In 1938, Carl Marty & Co. of Monroe, Wis., a large cheese buyer of foreign type cheese in the Monroe area, purchased the assets and good will of a partnership known as Ackerman & Abplanalp, which was the third largest buyer of foreign type cheese in the Monroe area. Then on January 1, 1939, respondent The Borden Co., which theretofore had not been represented in this territory, purchased the stock and assets of the said Carl Marty & Co., which next to respondent Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co., was the largest cheese dealer in the Monroe area. Thus, respondents Kraft-Phenix Cheese Corp., acting for and on behalf of respondent National Dairy Products Corp., of which it is a subsidiary, and respondent The Borden Co., have gradually, by means of mergers and purchases eliminated practically all of the independent cheese dealers in the Monroe area.

Approximately 75 percent of the foreign type cheese produced in Wisconsin is purchased by the respondents, all dealers in this type of cheese, said purchases being made either directly by said respondents, or through their subsidiaries. None of the dealers in foreign type of cheese own any factories, but they purchase the output of certain cheese factories; out of the approximately 250 cheese factories making foreign types of cheese in the aforementioned Monroe area, respondent Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co., acting for and on behalf of respondents, Kraft-Phenix Cheese Corp. and National Dairy Products Corp., buys the annual output of from 40 to 60 of the cheese factories in said area; respondent The Borden Co., through its division, Carl Marty & Co., buys on an average the annual output of 75 of these factories; and respondents, J. S. Hoffman & Co., with its subsidiary, Triangle Cheese Co., annually purchase the output of approximately 60 of these factories. Consequently the respondents herein purchase the annual output of approximately 200 of the 250 cheese factories located in the Monroe area.

Par. 4. All the respondents, either directly or through their subsidiaries, assemble the foreign types of cheese, which they purchase from the cheese factories in the Monroe area, at their various warehouses located in the State of Wisconsin, and in the course and conduct of their business, they, or their subsidiaries, which they control and direct, ship, or cause to be shipped, said cheese from these warehouses located in the State of Wisconsin, to purchasers of the cheese located in States of the United States other than the State of Wisconsin, and in the District of Columbia. The said cheese, which respondents purchase from the cheese factories in the Monroe area, does not come to rest in the State of Wisconsin, but is sold and distributed either directly or indirectly, by the respondents or their subsidiaries, in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and the purchasers of said cheese by the respondents or their subsidiaries, from the cheese factories in the State of Wisconsin are an integral part of the interstate trade in commerce of said cheese. Respondents have maintained, and still do maintain, a course of trade, in foreign types of cheese, in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 5. Respondents are in competition with one another in the purchase of foreign types of cheese from the cheese factories which manufacture same in the aforementioned Monroe area, and in the sale of said cheese in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, except insofar as said competition has been hindered, lessened, restrained, or restricted or potential competition among them forestalled by the unfair practices and methods hereinafter set forth.

Par. 6. The prices at which respondents, acting directly or through their subsidiaries, sell and distribute the aforesaid foreign types of cheese in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, are fixed and determined by, and dependent upon, the prices at which the respondents purchase said cheese from the cheese factories in the aforementioned Monroe area.

Par. 7. In 1938, respondents, Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co., acting for itself and also for and on behalf of respondents, Kraft-Phenix Cheese Corp. and National Dairy Products Corp., J. S. Hoffman & Co., acting both for itself and its subsidiary, Triangle Cheese Co., and Carl Marty & Co., acting for and on behalf of respondent The Borden Co., which through its later purchase of the said Carl Marty & Co., did ratify and affirm the actions of the said Carl Marty & Co., entered into, and thereafter carried out, an understanding, agreement, combination, and conspiracy, for the purpose and with the intent and effect of restricting and restraining competition in the purchase of foreign types of cheese, and of monopolizing, and suppressing and eliminating competition in the sale of such cheese in trade and commerce, between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 8. Pursuant to this understanding, agreement, combination, and conspiracy, entered into by and between the respondents, and in furtherance thereof, said respondents, among other acts and things did:

1. Agree to fix, and did fix the prices which they would pay to the cheese factories in the Monroe area for the foreign types of cheese produced by said factories.

2. Agree to holding monthly meetings in conjunction with representatives of the cheese factories in the Monroe area, at which they and said representatives of the cheese factories, would fix the prices to be paid to the cheese factories in the Monroe area for foreign types of cheese produced by said factories.

3. Hold, and since October 27, 1938, have held, such monthly meetings, at which the prices to be paid, and which were paid, for said cheese moving into the warehouses of said respondents were fixed, determined, and established.

4. Have their representatives hold separate meetings among themselves prior to the meeting of said representatives with the representatives of the cheese factories; at these meetings among the representatives of the respondents, the said representatives set the upper limits as to prices they would agree to pay to the cheese factories in their meetings with the representatives of said cheese factories.

Par. 9. Each of the respondents, at the times mentioned herein, acted in concert with one or more of the other representatives in doing and performing the acts and things hereinabove alleged in furtherance of the understanding, agreement, combination, and conspiracy hereinbefore set forth.

Par. 10. The capacity, tendency, and effect of said understanding, agreement, combination, and conspiracy and the acts and things done by the respondents pursuant thereto, are, and have been:

1. To control the prices at which foreign types of cheese are sold in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia.
Findings

2. To determine, at least in part, the prices at which dairy products, other than foreign types of cheese, are sold and distributed in said commerce.

3. To monopolize in the the respondents the entire supply of foreign types of cheese, which are purchased by the respondents for the purpose of selling and distributing the same in said commerce.

4. To unreasonably lessen, eliminate, restrict, stifle, hinder, and suppress competition in the purchase of foreign types of cheese from the cheese factories in the aforementioned Monroe area.

5. To unreasonably lessen, eliminate, restrict, stifle, hinder, and suppress competition in the resale of the foreign types of cheese, purchased by the respondents from the cheese factories in the Monroe area, to the purchasers thereof located in the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 11. The understanding, agreement, combination, and conspiracy of the respondents, and the acts and things done by said respondents, thereunder and pursuant thereto, as above alleged, are all to the prejudice of the public, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on the 23d day of March 1940, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondents named in the caption hereof, charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. Answers were filed by all of the respondents to this complaint. Thereafter, a stipulation was entered into whereby it was stipulated and agreed that a statement of facts signed and executed by all of the respondents herein and W. T. Kelley, chief counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, subject to the approval of the Commission, may be taken as the facts of this proceeding and in lieu of testimony in support of the charges stated in the complaint, or in opposition thereto, and that the said Commission may proceed upon said statement of facts to make its report, stating its findings as to the facts and its conclusion based thereon, and enter its order disposing of the proceeding without the presentation of argument, the filing of briefs, or the filing of a report upon the evidence by a trial examiner. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, answers, and stipulation, said stipulation having been approved, accepted, and filed, and the Commission having duly considered the same and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

paragraph 1. Respondent, Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co. is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Wisconsin, with its principal office and place of business located in Monroe, Wis. In the course of its business, it is engaged in buying, transporting, grading, inspecting, sorting, curing, selling, and distributing Swiss and Limburger cheese manufactured in cheese factories in the State of Wisconsin.

Respondent Kraft-Phenix Cheese Corporation is now named Kraft Cheese Co., and will be so designated hereinafter. It is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, with its principal office and place of business located at 500 Peshtigo Court, Chicago, Ill. It owns all of the stock, except the qualifying shares, in the respondent Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co., which respondent, in purchasing Swiss and Limburger cheese manufactured in the Monroe area in the State of Wisconsin, which area is hereinafter defined in paragraph 3, acts as the sole source of supply of said cheese for respondent Kraft Cheese Co., a substantial amount of the cheese thus purchased by respondent Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co. being sold and distributed by respondent Kraft Cheese Co. Respondent Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co., in purchasing said Swiss and Limburger cheese manufactured in the Monroe area of the State of Wisconsin, acts as the agent for the respondent Kraft Cheese Co., so that respondent Kraft Cheese Co. is legally responsible for the acts and practices of said respondent Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co., as hereinafter found, in purchasing said cheese.

Respondent The Borden Co. is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of New Jersey, with its principal office and place of business located at 350 Madison Avenue, New York, N. Y., and as part of its business, it operates a division known as Lakeshire-Marty Division of the Borden Co. (referred to in the complaint as Carl Marty & Co.), located in Monroe, Wis. In the course of its business it is engaged in buying, transporting, grading, inspecting, sorting, curing, selling, and distributing Swiss and Limburger cheese manufactured in cheese factories located in the State of Wisconsin.

Respondent J. S. Hoffman Co. (referred to in the complaint as J. S. Hoffman & Co.), is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Illinois, with its principal office and place of business located at 322 West Illinois Street, Chicago, Ill.; it owns all the stock in respondent Triangle Cheese Co.

Respondent Triangle Cheese Co. (referred to in the complaint as Triangle Cheese Co.), is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Wisconsin, with its office and principal place of business located in Monroe, Wis. Said respondent is engaged in the business of buying, transporting, grading, inspecting, sorting, curing, and selling the Swiss and Limburger cheese manufactured in the cheese factories of the State of Wisconsin, and in the purchasing of said cheese, acts as the sole source of supply of same for respondent J. S. Hoffman Co.; all of said cheese, thus purchased by respondent Triangle Cheese Co., being sold and distributed by respondent J. S. Hoffman Co. On or about June 1, 1940, respondent Triangle Cheese Co. ceased purchasing Limburger cheese.

Respondent Triangle Cheese Co., in purchasing said Swiss and Limburger cheese manufactured by the factories in the Monroe area of the State of Wisconsin, acts as the agent for respondent J. S. Hoffman Co., so that said respondent J. S. Hoffman Co. is legally responsible for the acts and practices of respondent Triangle Cheese Co. as hereinafter found, in purchasing said cheese.

Respondent National Dairy Products Corporation is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, with its principal office and place of business located at 75 East Forty-fifth Street, New York, N. Y. It has as one of its solely owned subsidiaries respondent Kraft Cheese Co.

Par. 2. Respondent National Dairy Products Corporation did not, directly or indirectly, engage in any of the acts or practices of the other respondents named in the caption herein as hereinafter found.

Par. 3. Approximately two-thirds of all the Swiss cheese produced in the United States is made in the State of Wisconsin, with approximately 90 percent of the amount being produced in an area comprising four southern counties of Wisconsin, i.e., Green, Lafayette, Dane, and Iowa, with the city of Monroe, located in Green County, Wis., being the center of the area producing these cheeses, which area is referred to in this stipulation as the "Monroe area."

There are located in said Monroe area approximately 250 factories making and producing Swiss cheese, 90 percent of which are owned by the farmers in this locality on a cooperative basis, with the farmers generally being patrons of the factories in which they are interested. There is selected by said patrons, a manager of each factory, who is styled the cheese-maker. About one-third of the factories operate on a year-round basis, with the rest operating only during the flush season and shutting down during the winter months. The average cheese factory handles a comparatively small amount of cheese; it has no facilities for storing cheese for any appreciable length of time; and it has little, if any, financial reserve.

The owners of a given cheese factory—generally the farmer patrons—choose one of their number as a business representative who sells the cheese produced at the factory to dealers in cheese, which dealers are either located, or have representatives, in the Monroe area.

Approximately 60 percent of the Limburger cheese produced in the United States is manufactured by cheese factories in the Monroe area, and the greater proportion of said cheese is purchased by respondents, Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co. and The Borden Co.; prior to or on about June 1, 1940, respondent Triangle Cheese Co. likewise purchased Limburger cheese in this area.

Each cheese factory makes but one type of cheese.

There is no marketing agency for either the Swiss or the Limburger cheese manufactured and produced by the factories of the Monroe area, other than through dealers in said cheese.

Par. 4. In the year 1911, seven independent cheese dealers located in the Monroe area, organized the Badger Cheese Co., a Wisconsin corporation. In the year 1924, Kraft Cheese Co., a predecessor of the respondent Kraft-Phenix Cheese Corporation, bought 51 percent of the common stock of said Badger Cheese Co., and became the full owner of the common stock in 1928. The preferred stock of the Badger Cheese Co. remained outstanding in the hands of the general public until 1932, when it was retired. In the year 1926, Phenix Cheese Co. began operating in the Monroe area. In the year 1928, there was a merger of Kraft Cheese Co. and Phenix Cheese Co., resulting in the organization of a predecessor corporation of the respondent Kraft-Phenix Cheese Corporation. In the year 1928, said predecessor of respondent Kraft-Phenix Cheese Corporation purchased the capital stock of Brodhead Cheese & Cold Storage Co., which was then an active cheese dealer in the Monroe area. Some of the assets of the Brodhead Cheese & Cold Storage Co. were acquired by the Badger Cheese Co. from the predecessor of respondent Kraft-Phenix Cheese Corporation, and in 1929, the name of Badger Cheese Co. was changed to the present name of the respondent Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co. The latter-named respondent is one of the largest buyers of foreign type cheese in the United States. Subsequently respondent Kraft-Phenix Cheese Corporation changed its name Kraft Cheese Co.
In 1938, Carl Marty & Co., of Monroe, Wis., a large cheese dealer in foreign type cheese in the Monroe area, purchased the assets and good will of a partnership known as Ackerman & Abplanalp, which was one of the larger buyers of foreign type cheese in the Monroe area. On or about January 1, 1939, respondent The Borden Co., which theretofore had not been represented in the Monroe area, acquired the business of Carl Marty & Co., which business, since January 1, 1939, respondent The Borden Co. has operated as a part of the Lakeshire-Marty Division of The Borden Co.

Approximately 75 percent of the Swiss and Limburger cheese manufactured and produced in Wisconsin is purchased by the respondents Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co., The Borden Co. and Triangle Cheese Co., all dealers in these types of cheese, but since January 1, 1940, Triangle Cheese Co. has discontinued purchasing Limburger cheese.

None of the dealers in Swiss and Limburger cheese, including the aforementioned respondents, own any factories, but they purchase the output of certain cheese factories; out of approximately 250 cheese factories in the Monroe area the respondent Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co. buys the annual output of from 40 to 60 of said factories; respondent The Borden Co., through its Division, Lakeshire-Marty Co., buys, on an average, the annual output of 75 of these factories; and the respondent Triangle Cheese Co. annually purchases the output of approximately 60 of these factories. Consequently, these respondents purchase the annual output of approximately 200 of the 250 Swiss cheese factories located in the Monroe area. The purchases of Swiss and Limburger cheese, manufactured and produced in this area, by the remaining dealers in the Monroe area, are relatively small.

Par. 5. In the last 15 years there has been a gradual consolidation of the dealers in Swiss and Limburger in the Monroe area, with the resultant effect that approximately 80 percent of the Swiss cheese factories and a majority of the Limburger cheese factories located in the Monroe area have sold their output of such cheese to respondents Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co., The Borden Co., or Triangle Cheese Co.

Par. 6. Each of the respondents, Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co., The Borden Co., and Triangle Cheese Co., assemble the Swiss and Limburger cheese which they purchase from the cheese factories, which produce and manufacture said cheeses in the Monroe area, at the respective plants of said respondents located in the State of Wisconsin. It is there graded, reinspected, sorted, and thereafter dealt with in the manner hereinafter described.
Findings

Limburger cheese is held at the factory, where it is manufactured and produced, for some 12 to 14 days after manufacture, although there is no State law requiring this to be done with respect to Limburger cheese. The cheese is manufactured in 1- and 2-pound blocks. At the end of the customary holding period, at which time the cheese is purchased by said respondents, it is wrapped at the factory in a parchment, manila, and foil wrapper, and packed tightly in large wooden boxes containing from 1 to 200 blocks of cheese, and after being so packed, is transported to said respondents' plants. The manila or wax paper is used because of the necessity of curing the cheese after wrapping in an anaerobic seal in order to secure the proper Limburger flavor and consistency. After receipt in said respondents' plants, the cheese ordinarily is held at suitable temperatures for a period required for it to reach the flavor and consistency of the more desirable grade of said cheese. The combination of temperature controls and anaerobic seal serves to promote bacteriological action, changing the character but not the content of the product. With reference to Swiss cheese, the laws of the State of Wisconsin require it to be held on curing shelves in the factories for 6 weeks in the summer and 8 weeks in the winter after manufacture. At the end of the holding period, the cheese is graded by State graders at the factories and placed in skids furnished by the respondents Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co., The Borden Co., and Triangle Cheese Co. in which it is transported from the factory to the various plants of said respondents in Wisconsin. There the cheese is again inspected, graded, and sorted according to the moisture content, grade, and condition of the cheese. The weak-bodied cheese is sorted out, and that which will improve with further curing is set aside in said respondents' plants in Wisconsin, in curing rooms for that purpose, where the eye development and flavor improve, but the texture and composition remain unchanged. The cheese is placed in the curing rooms of said respondents' plants, of varying temperatures according to the condition of the body and the size of the eyes of the cheese.

The best grade of Swiss cheese is that of a firm body, not too high in moisture content, and with fully developed eyes. Cheese of this classification is placed in curing rooms at said respondents' plants at a relatively cool temperature which arrests further development of the eyes, and causes improvement in the Swiss cheese flavor, but does not alter the texture or content thereof. The Swiss cheese which has a firm body, but relatively small eyes, is placed in curing rooms at higher temperatures according to the body and size of the eyes. This permits further eye development, along with the improvement of the flavor, but does not alter the texture or content of the cheese.
The occasional wheel of Swiss cheese with poor body and high moisture content, is subjected to a firming process by being placed in a cool temperature room for a short period, but the texture and content of the cheese is not changed.

All of the cheese held at said respondents' plants is graded, stenciled with the grade in accordance with State requirements, and is placed in tubs containing three or four wheels each, which is necessary for shipment, the cheese not being stenciled or tubbed in the factories.

More than 90 percent of the Limburger and Swiss cheese purchased by said respondents is sold by them directly, or through affiliated companies, to be shipped, and is shipped, to points outside of the State of Wisconsin. It is known by said respondents, at the time they acquire the cheese from the factories, that this substantial percentage will ultimately be shipped out of the State. No shipments of cheese are made by said respondents from their plants in Wisconsin, except as the result of sales made upon orders received by said respondents. Purchases are not made by said respondents for the purpose of filling previous orders, but in the usual course of the business of said respondents, the orders received by said respondents will require shipment of at least 90 percent of said cheese to points outside the State of Wisconsin, which fact is known by said respondents at the time of said purchases.

Par. 7. Respondents Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co., Kraft-Cheese Co. (referred to in the complaint as Kraft-Phenix Cheese Corporation), The Borden Co., J. S. Hoffman Co. (referred to in the complaint as J. S. Hoffman & Co.), and Triangle Cheese Co., in the manner and by the methods hereinbefore found, have maintained, and still do maintain, a course of trade in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, of the Swiss and Limburger cheese, which was, and is, purchased by them either directly or indirectly, from the cheese factories in the Monroe area which manufacture and produce said cheese.

Respondents, Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co., The Borden Co., and Triangle Cheese Co. were and are, in competition with one another, in the purchase of Swiss and Limburger cheese from the cheese factories which manufacture and produce same in the Monroe area (however, since on or about June 1, 1940, respondent Triangle Cheese Co. has ceased to purchase Limburger cheese manufactured and produced in said factories) and respondents The Borden Co., Kraft Cheese Co. (referred to in the complaint as Kraft-Phenix Cheese Corporation), acting directly or through its subsidiary, respondent Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co., and respondent J. S. Hoffman Co. (referred to in the complaint as J. S. Hoffman & Co.), acting directly or through its subsidiary, Triangle Cheese Co., are in competition with each other in the sale and distribution of said Swiss and Limburger cheese, manufactured and produced by the factories in the Monroe area, in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, except insofar as said competitions have been hindered, lessened, restrained, or restricted, or potential competitions among them forestalled, by the unfair practices and methods herein-after found.

Par. 8. The prices at which respondents Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co., Kraft Cheese Co. (referred to in the complaint, as Kraft-Phoenix Cheese Corporation), The Borden Co., J. S. Hoffman Co. (referred to in the complaint as J. S. Hoffman & Co.), and Triangle Cheese Co. sell and distribute the Swiss and Limburger Cheese, manufactured and produced in the cheese factories in the Monroe area, in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, are materially affected and influenced by the prices at which the respondents, Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co., The Borden Co., and Triangle Cheese Co. purchase said cheese from said cheese factories in the aforementioned Monroe area.

Par. 9. In August 1938, as more fully set forth in paragraph 10 hereof, respondents Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co., acting both for itself, and also for and on behalf of respondent Kraft Cheese Co. (referred to in the complaint as Kraft-Phoenix Cheese Corporation), J. S. Hoffman Co. (referred to in the complaint as J. S. Hoffman & Co.), acting both for itself and for and on behalf of respondent Triangle Cheese Co., and Carl Marty & Co., acting for and on behalf of respondent The Borden Co., which through its later purchase of the said Carl Marty & Co., did ratify and affirm the actions of the said Carl Marty & Co., entered into, and thereafter carried out, an understanding, agreement, and combination, for the purpose, and with the intent and effect of restricting and restraining competition in the purchase of the Swiss and Limburger cheese manufactured and produced by the factories in the Monroe area, and through such restricted and restrained competition, of suppressing and eliminating competition in the sale of such cheese in trade and commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 10. In August 1938, prices for Swiss and Limburger cheese were unusually low, resulting in the producers of same becoming very dissatisfied. Under these circumstances, an appeal was made by the producers, that is, the farmers who produce the milk used in the factories for the manufacture of such cheese, to the department of agriculture of the State of Wisconsin, for relief. Conferences were called by the said department of agriculture, and attended by representatives of the department, of the producers and of the dealers, at which the representatives of the producers suggested that monthly meetings be held under the sponsorship of the department of agriculture of the State of Wisconsin, between representatives of the cheese factories and of the dealers, at which an attempt would be made to reach an agreement as to fair prices to be paid by the dealers for cheese produced and manufactured in the factories. The request was acquiesced in by representatives of the dealers. Beginning in October 1938, the respondents, Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co., and Triangle Cheese Co., together with other cheese dealers in the Monroe area, began attending such meetings; then in February 1939, respondent, The Borden Co., which acquired the business of Carl Marty & Co. on or about January 1, 1939, joined said dealers in sending a representative to such meetings. These meetings were sponsored by, and were held under the supervision of, the department of agriculture of the State of Wisconsin, and a representative of said department attended and presided over all such meetings. The meetings were open to the attendance of Swiss and Limburger dealers and producers in Wisconsin and were attended by many of them. At these meetings, the representatives of the respondents, Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co., The Borden Co., and Triangle Cheese Co., and of the other Swiss and Limburger dealers and the representatives of the producers, interchanged market information, discussed and agreed upon the prices to be paid for Swiss and Limburger cheese at the factories according to the grade. These prices were then generally charged by the producers and paid by the dealers in the Monroe area, including respondents Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co., The Borden Co., and Triangle Cheese Co., for the current month’s Swiss and Limburger cheese.

PAR. 11. Pursuant to the agreement, understanding, and combination, hereinbefore found in paragraph 9, and as a part thereof, the said respondents Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co., acting both for itself and also for and on behalf of respondent Kraft Cheese Co. (referred to in the complaint as Kraft-Phenix Cheese Corporation), the Borden Co. and Triangle Cheese Co., acting both for itself and also for and on behalf of respondent J. S. Hoffman Co. (referred to in the complaint as J. S. Hoffman & Co.), did agree to hold and did hold, the monthly meetings, hereinbefore found in paragraph 10, and in said meetings, said respondents did agree to fix, and did fix, along with the representatives of the other dealers and those of the producers in the Monroe area, the prices which would be paid, and were paid, to the cheese factories in said area, for the Swiss and Limburger cheese produced and manufactured by said factories; also during said meetings, in furtherance of the aforefound understanding, agreement and combination, the representatives of respondents Badger-Brodhead
Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co., The Borden Co., and Triangle Cheese Co., with the representatives of the other dealers in the Monroe area, acted as a unit in offering to the representatives of the factories the prices which the dealers would pay for the cheese produced and manufactured by said factories; and furthermore, said representatives of the aforementioned respondents and those of the other dealers in the Monroe area, did, prior to their meetings with the representatives of the producers, hold separate meetings among themselves at which they agreed upon the initial prices they would offer at these meetings with the representatives of the producers, and during their meetings with said representatives of the producers, did also hold separate meetings among themselves to which they agreed to set, and did set, the upper limits as to the prices they would agree to pay the cheese factories at their meetings with the representatives of the producers; likewise, at the said meetings with the representatives of the producers, which meetings were held in the manner heretofore found in paragraph 10 the representatives of the cheese dealers, including the representatives of the respondents Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co., The Borden Co., and Triangle Cheese Co., in very few instances acceded to the request of the representatives of the producers for increased prices for Swiss and Limburger cheese, said representatives of the producers, in most instances, being required to either accept the lower prices offered by the representatives of the dealers for the Swiss and Limburger cheese produced by the cheese factories in the Monroe area, or else receive the same prices for said cheese as were paid by the dealers for said cheese for the preceding month.

PAR. 12. The capacity, tendency, and effect of the understanding, agreement, and combination hereinbefore found in paragraph 9, and the acts, practices, and things done by the respondents Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co., Kraft Cheese Co. (referred to in the complaint as Kraft-Phenix Cheese Corporation), The Borden Co., J. S. Hoffman Co. (referred to in the complaint as J. S. Hoffman & Co.), and Triangle Cheese Co. pursuant thereto, as hertofore found in paragraphs 10 and 11, have been, and are, to materially affect and influence the prices at which Swiss and Limburger cheese are sold in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, to influence, at least in part, the prices at which some other dairy products are sold and distributed in said commerce; to unreasonably lessen, eliminate, restrict, and hinder competition in the purchase of said Swiss and Limburger cheese produced and manufactured by the cheese factories in the Monroe area; and to unreasonably lessen and restrict competition in the resale of said cheese to the purchasers thereof located in the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.
CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents, Badger-Brodhead Cheese Co., Kraft Cheese Co. (referred to in the complaint as Kraft-Phenix Cheese Corporation, the Borden Co., J. S. Hoffman Co. (referred to in the complaint as J. S. Hoffman & Co.), and Triangle Cheese Co., as hereinbefore found, are all to the prejudice of the public and constitute unfair methods of competition within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

CHARLES D. BROWN, TRADING AS MICHIGAN MERCHANDISING COMPANY

Docket 4217. Complaint, Aug. 5, 1940—Decision, Oct. 1, 1940

Where an individual engaged in sale and distribution of small electric water heaters to purchasers in various other States, and maintaining course of trade therein in commerce between the various States and in District of Columbia—

(a) Made such representations, in the "Help Wanted" columns of newspapers, as "Man to look after deliveries. $25 salary and share in profits. References required. Give phone if possible. Must have $100 cash to pay for first consignment of goods. Box—"

(b) Represented, through persons employed by him to contact prospective distributors responding to such advertisements, and to induce them to sign contracts for purchase of heaters, that services required of distributors were only to make deliveries of and collections for such products, and that no selling was required of them, and that he would establish, directly or through such representatives, required number of dealers to handle heaters on consignment basis without any sales effort on part of distributor

(c) Represented that said initial payment of $100 required of each distributor was in nature, or in lieu, of a temporary bond and would be refunded to distributor as soon as list of dealers had been secured and approved by him or his representatives, and that such procurement and approval was merely routine procedure requiring not more than 10 days, and that he would pay to distributor weekly salary of $25, commencing on day he signed contract, plus commission of 50 cents per heater for every one over two sold each week by each established dealer in distributor's territory;

Facts being contracts were so drawn as to make impossible of fulfillment conditions upon which refunds of initial payments were to be made by him, and no refund had ever been made, no salary or commission was ever paid by him to any so-called distributor, and no quota of dealers had ever been established by him or his representatives which met number required to be established to enable distributor to be entitled to refund of money paid and eligible to salary and commissions, aforesaid initial payment of $100 was not in nature, or in lieu, of temporary bond, but applied by him as payment for 48 of said heaters, and his various representations were all false and fraudulent, and business conducted by him was fraudulent scheme to extract money from persons in need of employment through false representation as above indicated, and under which so-called distributor became mere purchaser of said heaters, without any adequate outlets for disposal thereof or established dealers to handle same; and

Facts being said heater was not manufactured by such company or guaranteed forever, had never been sold at price of $5.95, which was not introductory price, but wholly fictitious and greatly in excess of regular retail price of $2.25, and customer was required to pay 60 cents for repairs to or replacement of parts for such heaters;

With intent and effect of inducing many members of purchasing public to sign contracts for purchase of large numbers of such heaters and of inducing payment therefor by so-called distributors, and with result that members of public, as consequence of such false and misleading representations, plans, and methods, and believing in and relying on truth of such representations, were induced to and did buy large numbers of such heaters under erroneous and mistaken belief that they were to become distributors and not purchasers thereof, and were to receive salary plus commission on sales by dealers secured by him:

 Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Mr. Merle P. Lyon for the Commission.
inserted advertisements in the "Help Wanted" sections of newspapers. The following advertisement is typical of those so used:

Man to look after deliveries.
$25 salary and share in profits.
References required. Give phone if possible. Must have $100 cash to pay for first consignment of goods. Box —.

Said advertisements are false, misleading, and deceptive to members of the public seeking the employment mentioned in said advertisements. The business as conducted by respondent was, and is, a fraudulent scheme to extract money from persons in need of employment by falsely representing to them the character of the work to be performed, the purpose of an initial payment of $100 by the applicant for work, the terms of employment, the salary to be paid, the price for which said heater is regularly sold, the extent and nature of the guaranty on said heaters, and other matters in connection with the sale of said heaters, as hereinafter alleged.

The respondent employs representatives to contact prospective distributors who respond to the newspaper advertisements as hereinbefore set out. Said representatives, with the cooperation of the respondent, have made numerous misrepresentations to prospective distributors to induce them to sign contracts for the purchase of heaters. Among and typical of such misrepresentations are the following:

1. That the services required of the distributors are only to make deliveries of and collections for said heaters, and that no selling is required of said distributors.

2. That respondent will establish directly or through such representatives the required number of dealers to handle respondent's heaters on a consignment basis without any sales effort on the part of the distributor.

3. That the initial payment of $100 required of each distributor is in the nature of or in lieu of a temporary bond and will be refunded to the distributor as soon as the list of dealers has been secured and approved by respondent or his representative, and that the procurement and approval of such dealers is merely a routine procedure requiring not more than 10 days.

4. That respondent will pay to the distributor a weekly salary of $25, commencing on the day he signs the contract, plus a commission of 50 cents per heater for every heater over two sold each week by each established dealer in the distributor's territory.

Par. 4. In truth and in fact, all of the representations hereinbefore set out are false and fraudulent, and are designed and intended to, and do, induce many members of the purchasing public to sign contracts for the purchase of large numbers of respondent's heaters and to induce payment therefor by the so-called "distributor." Said contracts are so drawn as to make impossible of fulfillment the conditions upon which refunds of initial payments are to be made by the respondent, and in fact no refunds have ever been made by respondent. No salary or commission has ever been paid by respondent to any so-called "distributor." No quota of dealers has ever been established by respondent or his representatives which met the number to be established to enable the so-called "distributor" to be entitled to the refund of the money paid and eligible to salary and commissions. The initial payment of $100 was not in the nature of or in lieu of a temporary bond, but is applied by respondent as payment for 48 of said electric water heaters. Under the scheme as operated by respondent and his representatives, the so-called "distributor" becomes a mere purchaser of said heaters without any adequate outlets for disposal of the same or established dealers to handle them.

Par. 5. The electric water heater sold and distributed by respondent through the fraudulent and deceptive sales methods hereinbefore set out bears a label reading as follows:

In truth and in fact, said heater is not manufactured or guaranteed by the Jenner Manufacturing Co. It is not guaranteed forever, and has never been sold at a price of $5.95. The price of $5.95 is not an introductory price, but a wholly fictitious one, greatly in excess of the regular retail price of $2.25. The customer is required to pay 60 cents for repairs to, or replacement of parts for, said heaters.

Par. 6. As a result of respondent's false and misleading representations, plans, and methods, as above set out, members of the public, believing and relying upon the truth of said representations, have been induced to buy, and have bought, large numbers of respondent's said heaters.

Par. 7. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on August 5, 1940, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent,
Charles D. Brown, charging him with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On September 7, 1940, the respondent filed his answer, in which answer he admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and the answer thereto, and the Commission having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. The respondent, Charles D. Brown, is an individual trading under the firm name and style of Michigan Merchandising Co., with his principal place of business at 31 Allison Street, Pontiac, Mich. He is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, engaged in the business of selling and distributing a small electric water heater, called “Wonder Electric Water Heater.” Respondent claims that this heater is useful in heating small quantities of water and other liquids.

Paragraph 2. Respondent causes said heaters, when sold, to be transported from his place of business in the State of Michigan to purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States. Respondent maintains a course of trade in said heaters in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 3. In the course and conduct of his said business and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of said heaters, respondent has inserted advertisements in the “Help Wanted” sections of newspapers. The following advertisement is typical of those so used:

Man to look after deliveries.
$25 salary and share in profits.
References required. Give phone if possible. Must have $100 cash to pay for first consignment of goods. Box —.

Said advertisements are false, misleading, and deceptive to members of the public seeking the employment mentioned in said advertisements. The business as conducted by respondent was, and is, a fraudulent scheme to extract money from persons in need of employment by falsely representing to them the character of the work to be performed, the purpose of an initial payment of $100 by the applicant for work, the terms of employment, the salary to be paid, the price for which said heater is regularly sold, the extent and nature of the guaranty on said heaters, and other matters in connection with the sale of said heaters, as hereinafter set out.

The respondent employs representatives to contact prospective distributors who respond to the newspaper advertisements as hereinbefore set out. Said representatives, with the cooperation of the respondent, have made numerous misrepresentations to prospective distributors to induce them to sign contracts for the purchase of heaters. Among and typical of such misrepresentations are the following:

1. That the services required of the distributors are only to make deliveries of and collection for said heaters, and that no selling is required of said distributors;

2. That respondent will establish directly or through such representatives the required number of dealers to handle respondent’s heaters on a consignment basis without any sales effort on the part of the distributor;

3. That the initial payment of $100 required of each distributor is in the nature of or in lieu of a temporary bond and will be refunded to the distributor as soon as the list of dealers has been secured and approved by respondent or his representative, and that the procurement and approval of such dealers is merely a routine procedure requiring not more than 10 days;

4. That respondent will pay to the distributor a weekly salary of $25, commencing on the day he signs the contract, plus a commission of 50 cents per heater for every heater over two sold each week by each established dealer in the distributor’s territory.

Par. 4. In truth and in fact, all of the representations hereinbefore set out are false and fraudulent, and are designed and intended to, and do, induce many members of the purchasing public to sign contracts for the purchase of large numbers of respondent’s heaters and to induce payment therefor by the so-called “distributor.” Said contracts are so drawn as to make impossible of fulfillment the conditions upon which refunds of initial payments are to be made by the respondent, and in fact no refunds have ever been made by respondent. No salary or commission has ever been paid by respondent to any so-called “distributor.” No quota of dealers has ever been established by respondent or his representatives which met the number required to be established to enable the so-called “distributor” to be entitled to the refund of the money paid and eligible to salary and commissions. The initial payment of $100 is not in the nature of or in lieu of a temporary bond, but is applied by respondent as payment for 48 of said electric water heaters. Under the scheme as operated by respondent and his representatives, the so-called "distributor" becomes a mere purchaser of said heaters without any adequate outlets for disposal of the same or established dealers to handle them.

PAR. 5. The electric water heater sold and distributed by respondent through the fraudulent and deceptive sales methods hereinbefore set out bears a label reading as follows:

Wonder Electric Water Heater—

In truth and in fact, said heater is not manufactured or guaranteed by the Jenner Manufacturing Co. It is not guaranteed forever, and has never been sold at a price of $5.95. The price of $5.95 is not an introductory price, but a wholly fictitious one, greatly in excess of the regular retail price of $2.25. The customer is required to pay 60 cents for repairs to, or replacement of parts for, said heaters.

PAR. 6. As a result of respondent's false and misleading representations, plans, and methods, as above set out, members of the public, believing and relying upon the truth of said representations, have been induced to buy, and have bought, large numbers of respondent's said heaters under the erroneous and mistaken belief that they were to become distributors and not purchasers of said heaters and were to receive a salary plus a commission on sales by dealers secured by the respondent.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and states that he waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Charles D. Brown, his agents, representatives, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of electric water heaters in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from representing:

1. That the only services required of distributors are to make deliveries of, and collections for, said electric water heaters or that no selling is required of said distributors.

2. That dealers in any number have been or will be established by the respondent or by his field agents in any city or territory, when no such dealers have been established, and the establishment of such dealers is not contemplated.

3. That the initial payment required of each distributor is in the nature of, or in lieu of, a temporary bond, and that it will be refunded.

4. That the initial payment required of distributors represents anything other than the payment for a certain number of respondent's heaters.

5. That respondent will pay to the distributor a weekly salary of $25 or any other amount either with or without commissions.

6. That respondent's heater is manufactured and guaranteed by the Jenner Manufacturing Co. or that it is guaranteed forever.

7. That the price at which respondent's heater is customarily offered for sale is an introductory price, or a special price, or is anything other than the regular retail price at which said heater is sold.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.
IN THE MATTER OF

ADOLPH KASTOR & BROS., INC.

Docket 3466. Complaint, June 21, 1938—Decision, Oct. 3, 1940

Where a partnership and its corporate successor, representing substantially same ownership and operation, long engaged in manufacture of various articles of cutlery and in sale thereof, including knives below described, to purchasers in other States and in the District of Columbia, in substantial competition with others engaged in sale and distribution of pocket knives and outdoor knives in commerce as aforesaid, and including many, over long period of years involved, who have not been and are not entitled to mark, advertise, or otherwise represent their knives as approved or sponsored by the Boy Scouts of America and do not thus mark, etc., their said products, and others engaged in similar sale and distribution of such articles who have been and are entitled thus to mark, etc., their said knives as having been thus approved, and have truthfully marked, advertised, and represented them as such—

Marked, on handle of said knives sold by it as aforesaid, words “Scout Knife,” and on sheath knives “Sportsman’s Knife,” and prepared and packed for sale said products in paper box on which appeared words “Scouting Set,” together with picture of boys in the familiar Boy Scout uniform, tent, outdoor fire, and designs similar to the trefoil or fleur-de-lis emblem of said organization or movement, and marked and advertised for many years knives made and sold by it, which simulated knives adopted and approved by Boy Scout executives, with and through use of words “Boy Scout,” “Boy Scouts of America,” “Scouts,” “Scouting,” “Standard Scout,” with or without, as case might be, emblems, or simulation thereof, of aforesaid organization, and pictures of boys in Scout uniforms and scenes of outdoor activity suggesting Boy Scouts and their activities, and thereby presented, directly and through implication, to members of purchasing public, that its said products were standard equipment authorized and approved by Boy Scouts of America;

Notwithstanding fact applications by it to organization in question for right to manufacture approved knife thereof and identified as such, considered on their merits, had been rejected, its said products were inferior to those of other manufacturers given approval over the course of the years as possessing the requisite qualities with respect to suitability, safety, and others deemed important and essential, after receipt of suggestions and submission of models and holding of conferences, and notwithstanding repeated protests by organization in question over its practice, as above indicated, in selling its said knives under such words and emblems and at lower prices than the genuine, more useful and superior, duly approved organization products, and notwithstanding repeated promises, not observed, to cease and desist such practices;

With result that, through such marketing and advertising, it enabled and caused retailers to represent and sell its said product as a part of the equipment approved and sponsored by organization in question, and with effect of misleading and deceiving substantial portion of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that its said knives were thus approved and sponsored by said famous and esteemed organization, and of inducing a substantial number thereof, because of such belief, to purchase its said product in preference to those of its said competitors, and of thereby diverting trade in commerce unfairly to it from them; to their injury and that of the public:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Mr. Joseph C. Fehr for the Commission.
Weil, Gotshal & Manges, of New York City, for respondent.
Hughes, Richards, Hubbard & Ewing, of New York City, for Boy Scouts of America (amicus curiae).

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Adolph Kastor & Bros., Inc., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Adolph Kastor & Bros., Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its principal office and place of business located at 245 Fifth Avenue, in the city of New York, in the State of New York. Respondent is now, and for some time past has been, engaged in manufacturing, offering for sale, and selling various articles of cutlery. Among other things, respondent sells a pocket knife designated as a “Scout Knife,” and a sheath knife designated as a “Sportsman’s Knife,” which said articles are manufactured for it by another concern.

When said knives are sold, respondent ships and transports same from its place of business in the State of New York to the purchasers thereof located in States of the United States other than the State of New York, and in the District of Columbia. There has been for some time past, and still is, a course of trade in said knives so distributed and sold by respondent in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, and in the District of Columbia.
PAR. 2. Respondent is now, and for some time past has been, engaged in substantial competition with other corporations, and with firms, partnerships, and individuals engaged in the sale and distribution of like and similar products, or products designed for similar usage, in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. Among the manufacturers and sellers of like and similar articles of merchandise referred to in paragraph 2 hereof, are manufacturers and sellers who are and have been making and selling pocket knives, sheath knives, and other products offered for sale and sold to the members of the organization known as "Boy Scouts of America" under the authority and sanction of said organization. Said organization was incorporated in 1910 as a nonprofit corporation, and it has ever since maintained uniformity and high standards of performance in various outdoor crafts requiring centralized supervision of equipment, and has sponsored, authorized, and approved the manufacture and sale of a large number of articles used by its members. Among other articles sponsored by the Boy Scouts of America, and used by its members, is the standard Boy Scout pocket knife, which is regarded as essential in the activities of the members of said organization. The Boy Scouts of America adopted, and for many years have used a distinctive trefoil fleur-de-lis design as their official emblem. Certain manufacturers, sellers and distributors have been authorized to use said organization's distinctive fleur-de-lis emblem in describing and marketing their articles of merchandise, including said pocket knife, and such articles have long been distinguished by reason of the use of such emblem as being products officially approved and sanctioned by the organization.

The business of the sale of such articles of merchandise constitutes and has constituted a very substantial part of the entire business in the sale of pocket knives, sheath knives, and other articles of merchandise authorized and sponsored by the Boy Scouts of America, throughout the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. In soliciting the sale of and in selling its products, and for the purpose of creating a demand upon the part of the purchasing public for said products, the respondent now causes, and for some time past has caused, its pocket knife and sheath knife to be placed in paper boxes on which appear and have appeared the words "Scouting Set," with pictorial representations of scouts in uniform, tents, and fire, and two decorations simulating the official Boy Scout trefoil badge commonly called fleur-de-lis. Respondent sold and now sells said "Scouting Set," containing a pocket knife, on the handle of which is stamped the words "Scout Knife," and a sheath knife, on the blade of which is stamped the words "Sportman's Knife," in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 5. Through the use of the foregoing statements and others similar thereto, but not set out herein in detail, respondent represents, directly and through implication, to members of the purchasing public solicited to purchase their said products that certain of said knives described as "Scout Knife" and "Sportman's Knife," and the so-called "Scout Set" are official standard equipment authorized and sponsored by the Boy Scouts of America.

Respondent's so-called "Scouting Set" cartons and the pocket knife and sheath knife contained therein, by reason of the pictorial representations, together with the pseudo fleur-de-lis emblem and the words "Scout Knife" stamped on the handle of the pocket knife, are designed to deceive and mislead purchasers and prospective purchasers into the purchase of said products in the mistaken belief, thus induced, that said products are approved, endorsed, and sponsored by the Boy Scouts of America.

PAR. 6. In truth and in fact, the representations and implications made by respondent as hereinabove set forth in paragraphs 4 and 5, are false, misleading, and deceptive. Neither the so-called "Scout Knife," "Sportman's Knife," nor the "Scouting Set" as a whole is official equipment of the organization universally known and recognized throughout the United States as "Boy Scouts of America." The respondent is not, and has not been, authorized or sanctioned by said Boy Scouts of America, to represent, designate, or otherwise refer to its said products, either specifically or by implication, as official equipment approved by said organization.

PAR. 7. There are, among the competitors of respondent referred to in paragraphs 2 and 3 hereof, manufacturers, sellers, and distributors of pocket knives and sheath knives who truthfully advertise and represent them as standard articles of merchandise properly authorized and sanctioned by the Boy Scouts of America for use by its members. There are also among the competitors of respondent many manufacturers, sellers, and distributors of pocket knives and sheath knives who are not sanctioned or authorized by the Boy Scouts of America, and who do not advertise said products in such a manner as to deceive and mislead purchasers and prospective purchasers into the mistaken belief that said articles are manufactured and sold as standard equipment authorized, sponsored and approved by the Boy Scouts of America, for use by its members.
Par. 8. Each and all of the misleading and deceptive statements and representations made by the respondent herein by means of advertisements, emblems, picture designs, branding, and in other ways, in connection with the offering for sale and selling of its products known as "Scout Knife" and "Scouting Sets," were and are calculated to, and had, and now have a capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive, and do mislead and deceive, a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that said representations are true. Further, as a direct consequence of such mistaken and erroneous beliefs, induced by the representations thus made by the respondent, aforesaid, a number of the purchasing public purchase a substantial volume of said products with the result that trade has been diverted unfairly from those competitors referred to in paragraph 7 hereof who truthfully advertise their products. As a result thereof, injury has been and is now being done by the respondent herein to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 9. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on June 21, 1938, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondent Adolph Kastor & Bros., Inc., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by Joseph C. Fehr, attorney for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by Sylvan Gotshal, attorney for the respondent, before John L. Hornor, a trial examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto and the oral arguments of counsel aforesaid; and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Adolph Kastor & Bros., Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its principal office and place of business in the city and State of New York. Respondent is successor to Adolph Kastor & Bros., a partnership organized prior to 1890. Substantially the same individuals have owned and operated the partnership and corporation since the inception of the business and the partnership and corporation are treated as one in this findings as to the facts. The term "respondent," when hereinafter used, shall include the predecessor of respondent corporation unless otherwise stated.

Par. 2. Respondent is now, and for some time in the past has been, engaged in manufacturing, offering for sale, and selling various articles of cutlery, among other items the knives hereinafter described, which, when sold, are and have been shipped from its said place of business to the purchasers thereof located in States of the United States other than the State of New York, and in the District of Columbia. For some time past respondent has carried on, and at present continues to carry on, a course of trade in such knives in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 3. Respondent is now, and for some time past has been, engaged in substantial competition with corporations, firms, partnerships, and individuals engaged in the sale and distribution of pocket knives and outdoor knives in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 4. Among the knives recently sold by respondent in commerce as aforesaid, were pocket knives marked on the handle "Scout Knife" and sheath knives marked "Sportsman's Knife." These knives were prepared for sale by packing in a paper box on which appeared the words "Scouting Set," together with pictures of boys in the familiar Boy Scout uniform, a tent, an outdoor fire, and two designs similar to the trefoil or fleur-de-lis emblem of the Boy Scouts of America.

Par. 5. The Boy Scout movement started in England about the year 1906 as "Scouting For Boys." About 1909 the movement was brought to this country, first developing as a large number of groups, more or less independent of one another, but in February 1910, all were merged into the "Boy Scouts of America," on that date incorporated in the District of Columbia, with an expressed purpose to teach boys discipline, patriotism, courage, habits of observation, self-control, and ability to care for themselves in all exigencies of life. Later, June 15, 1916, the “Boy Scouts of America” was incorporated by Act of Congress, under which the new corporation succeeded to the right to use all emblems, badges, descriptive or designating marks, words or phrases then or theretofore used by the Boy Scouts of America, with the proviso that nothing in the act should interfere or conflict with established or vested rights. The purpose of the organization was expressed in the act as being to promote the ability of boys to do things for themselves and others, to train them in scoutcraft and to teach them patriotism, courage, self-reliance, and kindred virtues. From the beginning of the movement, even before the incorporation of the Boy Scouts of America, the words “Scout” and “Scouting” had acquired a secondary meaning as applying to the Boy Scout movement.

Immediately upon the advent of the movement in the United States it received wide and favorable publicity in the form of newspaper and magazine articles, public addresses and distribution of both English and American published handbooks and other books and pamphlets. Membership in the Boy Scouts of America grew rapidly. The first year of its incorporation, 1910, the membership increased from 5,000 to 300,000, and up to the present its membership has totaled some 8,900,000 since its organization in 1910. Its present membership is more than 1,200,000. Surveys have shown that three out of every four boys in the United States desire to belong to the organization.

PAR. 6. An important part of the Boy Scout program was to consist and has consisted of outdoor activities; hence one of the first concerns of the Boy Scout executives was to insure to the boys suitable and safe equipment and supplies for such activities. Early in 1910 consideration was given to a suitable and safe pocket knife, suggestions were invited and received from outdoorsmen and manufacturers, suggested models submitted by manufacturers, conferences held, specifications for a satisfactory knife evolved, and bids from manufacturers were invited for manufacture of the knife in quantity, with license to mark and identify the knife as the standard knife. Early in 1911 a contract was awarded. Since that time the Boy Scouts of America has maintained supervision by contracting from time to time with manufacturers for the production of the approved knife, with license to the contractees to mark the knife so as to identify it as the approved knife and it has been continuously so marked, and has been referred to universally as a “Scout” knife. It has been available for purchase throughout the nation through various outlets. Respondent has from time to time made application to the Boy Scouts of America for the right to manufacture the approved knife and identify it as such, which applications have been considered on their merits and rejected.

Par. 7. Respondent participated in the aforementioned conferences in 1910, submitted three models of knife and submitted a bid for the manufacture of the adopted knife, but its bid was not accepted.

Immediately after its bid was rejected in 1910, respondent began to manufacture and put on the market and to distribute widely, a knife similar in appearance to the adopted knife, with the words “Boy Scout” etched into the blade. Prior to that time there was and had been no pocket knife on the market marked with the word “Scout.” Since 1910 and up to the present, respondent from time to time, over the protest of the Boy Scout executives, has manufactured and sold pocket knives, simulating the adopted knife, and has marked and advertised them in various ways, by the use of the words “Boy Scout,” “Boy Scouts of America,” “Scout,” “Scouting,” “Standard Scout,” with and without emblems, or simulation of emblems, of the Boy Scouts of America, and with and without pictures of boys in scout uniform and scenes of outdoor activity suggesting the Boy Scouts of America and their activities. As early as May 1912, the Boy Scouts of America lodged such a protest with respondent and at various times respondent has agreed to cease such practices but has failed to live up to its promises. The knives so marked and advertised by respondent have been and are inferior in quality and usefulness to the adopted boy scout knife, and are offered for sale and sold at lower prices. Such marking and advertising has enabled and has caused retail dealers to represent and sell them as a part of the equipment approved and sponsored by the Boy Scouts of America.

Par. 8. Through the use of the aforesaid practices, words, statements, and representations, respondent represents and has represented, directly and through implication, to members of the purchasing public that its knives marked as “Scout” knives, and advertised by use of the words “Scout,” “Scouting,” “Standard Scout,” and the use of scenes and emblems, or simulation of emblems, identified in the public mind with the Boy Scouts of America and their activities, all as in paragraph 7 hereof described, that its knives are standard equipment authorized and approved by the Boy Scouts of America.

Par. 9. The representations and implications aforesaid made by respondent are false, misleading, and deceptive. The knives so marked and advertised by respondent are not and have never been authorized by the Boy Scouts of America as standard equipment nor has respondent been licensed by the Boy Scouts of America to represent, designate, or otherwise refer to its knives as such approved equipment.

PAR. 10. During all the time since 1910, many persons, firms, and corporations in the United States have been engaged in the selling of pocket knives and outdoor knives in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, many of whom have not been and are not entitled to mark, advertise, or otherwise represent their knives as approved or sponsored by the Boy Scouts of America, and such persons, firms, and corporations do not and have not so marked, advertised, or otherwise represented their knives; and others of such persons, firms, and corporations, engaged in the sale and distribution of pocket knives and outdoor knives in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and the District of Columbia, have been and are entitled to mark, advertise, and represent their pocket knives and outdoor knives as having been approved by the Boy Scouts of America and have truthfully marked, advertised, and represented them as such. With all of these persons, firms, and corporations the respondent has been and is in substantial competition in the sale of the knives referred to in paragraphs 4 and 7 hereof in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 11. The false, misleading, and deceptive practices as hereinabove set forth have had and now have the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive, and do mislead and deceive, a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that respondent's said knives are authorized, sponsored, or approved by the Boy Scouts of America and do induce a substantial number of the purchasing public, because of said erroneous belief, to purchase respondent's said knives in preference to those of its said competitors, mentioned in paragraphs 3 and 10 hereof, and thereby trade in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia has been unfairly diverted to the respondent from its competitors in said commerce, to their injury and to the injury of the public.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, Adolph Kastor & Bros., Inc., as herein found are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Marking or labeling said knives, or the containers or coverings in which they are enclosed, or display cards to which they are attached or on which they are displayed, with the words "Scout" or "Boy Scout" or "Scouting," or with any emblem or symbol adopted and used by the Boy Scouts of America to designate or symbolize that organization or the activities of its members; or

THE HOUSE OF CRANE

Before Mr. Miles J. Furnas, trial examiner.

Mr. D. C. Daniel for the Commission.

Mr. Thomas D. Stevenson, of Indianapolis, Ind., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that The House of Crane, a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, The House of Crane, is a corporation organized and doing business under the laws of the State of Indiana, with its principal office and place of business located at 124 South Meridian Street, Indianapolis, Ind. Respondent is now and for more than 1 year last past has been engaged in the sale and distribution of cigars, tobacco products, candy, and other articles of merchandise to dealers. Respondent causes and has caused its said merchandise, when sold, to be shipped or transported from its aforesaid place of business in the State of Indiana to purchasers thereof in the various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia at their respective points of location. There is now and for more than 1 year last past has been a course of trade by said respondent in such merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of its business respondent is and has been in competition with other corporations and with individuals and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 2. In the course and conduct of its business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and has sold to dealers certain assortments of its merchandise so packed and assembled as to involve the use of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme when said merchandise is sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. One of said assortments consists of a number of pieces of candy and additional articles of merchandise, together with a device commonly known as a punchboard. Said boxes of candy and other articles of merchandise are distributed to the consuming public by means of said punchboard in the following manner:
The punchboard is divided into sections and each section contains a number of small tubes in each of which has been placed a slip of paper with a number appearing thereon. The board bears statements or legends informing purchasers and prospective purchasers that persons punching numbers ending in 1, 2, 3, and 4 pay 1 cent, 2 cents, 3 cents, and 4 cents respectively. Purchasers punching numbers ending in 5, 6, 7, 8, and 9 pay 5 cents, and all numbers ending in 0 are free. Each of said numbers is effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until said number has been punched and removed from the board. Each person selecting a designated number is entitled to and receives one of said boxes of candy. The person selecting another designated number is entitled to and receives, one of said additional articles of merchandise. Each person selecting the last number in each of the first 11 of said sections is entitled to and receives one of said boxes of candy. The person selecting the last number on said board is entitled to and receives one of said boxes of candy and one of said other articles of merchandise. A person who does not qualify by obtaining one of said designated numbers receives nothing for his money. The retail value of each of said boxes of candy and other articles of merchandise is greater than any of the amounts above designated. The facts as to which of said articles of merchandise a purchaser is to receive, if any, with the exception of the last sale in said first 11 sections and the last sale on the board, and the sum, if any, to be paid therefor are thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

The respondent sells and distributes various assortments of its merchandise together with push card and punchboard devices by the sales plans or methods used in connection with the sale and distribution of each of said assortments, similar to the ones hereinabove described, varying only in detail.

Par. 3. Retail dealers who purchase respondent's said assortments of merchandise expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the aforesaid sales plans or methods. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of its products in accordance with the sales plans or methods hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said plans or methods in the sale of its merchandise and the sale of said merchandise by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plans or methods is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws.

Par. 4. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public by the sales plans or methods as hereinabove alleged involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure articles of merchandise at prices much less than the normal retail prices thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell and distribute merchandise in competition with respondent as above alleged are unwilling to adopt and use said methods or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other method contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plans or methods employed in connection with the sale and distribution of respondent's merchandise and by the element of chance involved therein and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's merchandise in preference to like or similar merchandise of said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or equivalent methods. The use of said sales plans or methods by respondent because of said game of chance has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade to respondent from its said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent sales plans or methods and as a result thereof substantial injury is being and has been done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on April 3, 1940, issued and thereafter served its complaint in this proceeding upon said respondent, The House of Crane, a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On May 15, 1940, the respondent filed its answer in this proceeding. Thereafter, a stipulation in lieu of testimony in support of certain of the allegations in the complaint was entered into by and between counsel for the Commission and counsel for the respondent before Miles J. Furnas, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it (respondent having offered no proof in opposition to the allegations of the complaint) and said stipulation was recorded in the record of this proceeding, which record was filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, answer, and stipulation (the respondent having waived all intervening procedure), and the Commission having duly considered the same and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, The House of Crane, is a corporation organized and doing business under the laws of the State of Indiana, with its principal office and place of business located at 124 South Meridian Street, Indianapolis, Ind. Respondent is now and for more than 1 year last past has been engaged in the sale and distribution of cigars, tobacco products, candy, and other articles of merchandise to dealers. Respondent causes and has caused its said merchandise, when sold, to be shipped or transported from its aforesaid place of business in the State of Indiana to purchasers thereof in the various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia at their respective points of location. There is now and for more than 1 year last past has been a course of trade by said respondent in such merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of its business respondent is and has been in competition with other corporations and with individuals and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and has sold to dealers certain assortments of its merchandise and devices commonly known as push cards and punchboards which were and are to be used in the sale and distribution of said merchandise to the purchasing public. One of said assortments consists of a number of pieces of candy and additional articles of merchandise, together with a punchboard. Said boxes of candy and other articles of merchandise are distributed to the consuming public by means of said punchboard in the following manner:

The punchboard is divided into sections and each section contains a number of small tubes in each of which has been placed a slip of paper with a number appearing thereon. The board bears statements or legends informing purchasers and prospective purchasers that persons punching numbers ending in 1, 2, 3, and 4 pay 1 cent, 2 cents, 3 cents, and 4 cents respectively. Purchasers punching numbers ending in 5, 6, 7, 8, and 9 pay 5 cents, and all numbers ending in 0 are free. Each of said numbers is effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until said number has been punched and removed from the board. Each person selecting a designated number is entitled to and receives one of said boxes of candy. The person selecting another designated number is entitled to and receives one of said additional articles of merchandise. Each person selecting the last number in each of the first 11 of said sections is entitled to and receives one of said boxes of candy. The person selecting the last number on said board is entitled to and receives one of said boxes of candy and one of said other articles of merchandise. A person who does not qualify by obtaining one of said designated number receives nothing for his money. The retail value of each of said boxes of candy and other articles of merchandise is greater than any of the amounts above designated. The facts as to which of said articles of merchandise a purchaser is to receive, if any, with the exception of the last sale in said first 11 sections and the last sale on the board, and the sum, if any, to be paid therefor are thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

The respondent sells and distributes various assortments of its merchandise together with push card and punchboard devices, but the sales plans or methods used in connection with the sale and distribution of each of said assortments are similar to the ones hereinabove described, varying only in detail.

Par. 3. Retail dealers who purchase respondent’s said assortments of merchandise expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the aforesaid sales plans or methods. Respondent thus supplies to, and places in the hands of, others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of its products in accordance with the sales plans or methods hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said plans or methods in the sale of its merchandise and the sale of said merchandise by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plans or methods is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws.

Par. 4. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public by the sales plans or methods as hereinabove described involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure articles of merchandise at prices much less than the normal retail prices thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell and distribute merchandise in competition with respondent as above described are unwilling to adopt and use said methods or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other method contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plans or methods employed in connection with the sale and distribution of respondent's merchandise and by the element of chance involved therein and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's merchandise in preference to like or similar merchandise of said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or equivalent methods. The use of said sales plans or methods by respondent because of said game of chance has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade to respondent from its said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent sales plans or methods and as a result thereof substantial injury is being and has been done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

It is ordered, That the respondent, The House of Crane, a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of candy or other merchandise in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:
1. Selling or distributing candy or any other merchandise so packed and assembled that sales of said candy, or any other merchandise, are to be made, or may be made by means of a lottery, gaming device, or gift enterprise.

2. Supplying to, or placing in the hands of others, push or pull cards, punchboards or other lottery devices, either with assortments of candy, or other merchandise, or separately, which said push or pull cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices are to be used, or may be used in selling or distributing said candy, or other merchandise to the public.

3. Selling, or otherwise distributing any merchandise, by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall within 60 days after service upon it of this order file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

INTERWOVEN STOCKING COMPANY

Docket 4179. Complaint, July 11, 1940—Decision, Oct. 4, 1940

Where a corporation engaged in manufacture of men's hosiery of various designs and patterns, and in sale and distribution thereof from its factories in Maryland, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, and West Virginia, to purchasers in various other States and in the District of Columbia, and including department stores and retailers by whom said product was in turn resold to purchasing public—

Caused certain of its said hosiery to be marked, stamped, branded, or labeled "Made on Machinery Imported From England Genuine 6X3 Ribbed" and "Made on Machinery Imported From England Entirely Hand Embroidered," with words "Imported From England" stamped in large conspicuous type inside oval in such manner that words "Imported From" appeared immediately above, and were read in conjunction with, word "England," and with words "Made on Machinery" appearing inside top rim of such oval, so as to be capable of indicating merely that product in question was made by machinery, or thus made and "imported from England," and, in some instances, superimposed above such oval, the figure or simulation of the English crown, with words "Trade Mark" thereunder, and words, under oval, "Genuine 6X3 Ribbed," and in other instances placed underneath oval words "Entirely Hand Embroidered," notwithstanding fact hosiery thus marked, labeled and branded was not imported from England, but was domestically made on machinery which was imported therefrom;

With effect of creating false and erroneous impression on part of purchasing public that products thus branded or labeled were machine-made and imported from said country, in which, only, originally, 6X3 hose were manufactured, and of misleading and deceiving purchasers and prospective purchasers of its said product into erroneous and mistaken belief that such false, misleading, and deceptive representations and implications were true, and that said men's hosiery was made or manufactured in England, for which, especially, along with other hosiery made in foreign countries, there has long been marked preference by substantial part of consuming public in United States, and of causing substantial number of purchasing public, because of such mistaken and erroneous belief thus engendered, to purchase substantial number of its said product:

Held, that such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice of the public and competitors and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Mr. Charles S. Cox for the Commission.

Mr. J. E. Hutchinson, Jr., of Washington, D. C., and Mr. Louis Prevost Whitaker, of New York City, for respondent.
Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Interwoven Stocking Co., a corporation, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Par. 1. Respondent, Interwoven Stocking Co., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New Jersey with its office and principal place of business located at New Brunswick, N. J., and owns, controls, or operates factories in the States of Maryland, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, and West Virginia.

Par. 2. Respondent is now, and for more than five years last past has been, engaged in manufacturing, selling, and distributing men's hosiery of various designs and patterns. Respondent causes said men's hosiery when sold by it to be transported from its factories located in the States of Maryland, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, and West Virginia to purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in the various states of the United States other than the States of Maryland, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, and West Virginia, and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 3. Respondent's said hosiery is sold to department stores and retailers who in turn resell the same to the purchasing public. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said men's hosiery in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 4. In the course and conduct of its business as aforesaid, the respondent causes certain of its hosiery to be marked, stamped, branded, or labeled as follows:

MADE ON MACHINERY
IMPORTED FROM ENGLAND
GENUINE 6 X 3 RIBBED

MADE ON MACHINERY
IMPORTED FROM ENGLAND
ENTIRELY HAND EMBROIDERED

The words "Imported from England" are stamped in large conspicuous type inside an oval in such a manner that the words "Imported from" appear immediately above and are read in conjunction with the word "England," and the words "Made on Machinery" appearing inside the top rim of said oval can be read in such a sense as to indicate merely that the hose were made by machinery, or were made by machinery and are "Imported from England." In some instances respondent has superimposed above said oval the figure or simulation of the English Crown with the words "Trade Mark" appearing thereunder and just above said oval, while underneath said oval appear the words "Genuine 6x3 Ribbed."

In other instances, respondent has placed the words "Entirely Hand Embroidered" underneath said oval.

Par. 5. The effect of the aforesaid branding, labeling, stamping, or printing is to create the false and erroneous impression on part of the purchasing public that the products so branded or labeled are machine-made and were and are imported from England. The presence of the English Crown superimposed above the oval portion of the stamping or printing followed by the words "Genuine 6x3 Ribbed" thereunder further implies that the hose were "Imported from England" but "Made on Machinery." Originally 6x3 ribbed hose were made only in England, although later machinery therefor was imported into the United States from England and other countries, and American machinery was later devised for the manufacture of 6x3 ribbed hose. The use of the word "Genuine" before "6x3 Ribbed" gives the further impression and effect that said hose are imported from England, inasmuch as England was originally the only source through which a "6x3 Ribbed" hose could be obtained.

Par. 6. For many years a substantial part of the consuming public of the United States has had, and still has, a marked preference for men's hosiery which are manufactured in foreign countries, especially in England, and then imported into the United States.

Par. 7. In truth and in fact, respondent's said hosiery so marked, labeled, and branded is not imported from England but is domestically manufactured on machinery which was imported from England.

Par. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent in connection with the manufacture, offering for sale, sale, and distribution of said men's hosiery as set forth in paragraphs 4 and 5 hereof have had, and now have, a capacity and tendency to, and do, mislead and deceive purchasers and prospective purchasers of respondent's said products into the erroneous and mistaken belief that the aforesaid false, misleading, and deceptive representations and implications are true and that said products are made or manufactured in England, and cause a substantial number of the purchasing public because of said mistaken and erroneous belief so engendered to purchase a substantial number of respondent's said hosiery.
PAR. 9. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on July 11, 1940, issued, and on July 12, 1940, served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, Interwoven Stocking Co., charging it with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer, the Commission, by order entered herein, granted respondent's motion for permission to withdraw said answer and to substitute therefor an answer admitting all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, which substitute answer was duly filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and substitute answer, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Interwoven Stocking Co., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New Jersey with its office and principal place of business located at New Brunswick, N. J., and owns, controls, or operates factories in the States of Maryland, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, and West Virginia.

PAR. 2. Respondent is now, and for more than 5 years last past, has been engaged in manufacturing, selling, and distributing men's hosiery of various designs and patterns. Respondent causes said men's hosiery when sold by it to be transported from its factories located in the States of Maryland, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, and West Virginia to purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in the various States of the United States other than the States of Maryland, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, and West Virginia, and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. Respondent's said hosiery is sold to department stores and retailers who in turn resell the same to the purchasing public. Re-respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said men’s hosiery in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 4. In the course and conduct of its business as aforesaid, the respondent causes certain of its hosiery to be marked, stamped, branded, or labeled as follows:

MADE ON MACHINERY
IMPORTED FROM ENGLAND
GENUINE 6 X 3 RIBBED

MADE ON MACHINERY
IMPORTED FROM ENGLAND
ENTIRELY HAND EMBROIDERED

The words “Imported from England” are stamped in large conspicuous type inside an oval in such a manner that the words “Imported from” appear immediately above and are read in conjunction with the word “England,” and the words “Made on Machinery” appearing inside the top rim of said oval can be read in such a sense as to indicate merely that the hose were made by machinery, or were made by machinery and are “Imported from England.” In some instances respondent has superimposed above said oval the figure or simulation of the English Crown, with the words “Trade Mark” appearing thereunder and just above said oval, while underneath said oval appears the words “Genuine 6 x 3 Ribbed.”

In other instances, respondent has placed the words “Entirely Hand Embroidered” underneath said oval.

Par. 5. The effect of the aforesaid branding, labeling, stamping, or printing is to create the false and erroneous impression on part of the purchasing public that the products so branded or labeled are machine-made and were and are imported from England. The presence of the English Crown superimposed above the oval portion of the stamping or printing followed by the words “Genuine 6 x 3 Ribbed” thereunder further implies that the hose were “Imported from England” but “Made on Machinery.” Originally 6 x 3 ribbed hose were made only in England although later machinery therefor was imported into the United States from England and other countries, and American machinery was later devised for the manufacture of 6 x 3 ribbed hose. The use of the word “Genuine” before “6 x 3 Ribbed” gives the further impression and effect that said hose are imported from England, inasmuch as England was originally the only source through which a “6 x 3 Ribbed” hose could be obtained.
Par. 6. For many years a substantial part of the consuming public of the United States has had, and still has, a marked preference for men's hosiery which are manufactured in foreign countries, especially in England, and then imported into the United States.

Par. 7. In truth and in fact, respondent's said hosiery so marked, labeled, and branded is not imported from England but is domestically manufactured on machinery which was imported from England.

Par. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent in connection with the manufacture, offering for sale, sale, and distribution of said men's hosiery as set forth in paragraphs 4 and 5 hereof have had, and now have, a capacity and tendency to, and do, mislead and deceive purchasers and prospective purchasers of respondent's said products into the erroneous and mistaken belief that the aforesaid false, misleading, and deceptive representations and implications are true, and that said products are made or manufactured in England and cause a substantial number of the purchasing public, because of said mistaken and erroneous belief so engendered, to purchase a substantial number of respondent's said hosiery.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and states that it waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent Interwoven Stocking Co., its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or indirectly, through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of hosiery in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:
1. Using the term "Imported from England," except as provided in prohibition 2 hereof, either alone or in connection with any other term indicative of English or other foreign manufacture, to describe hosiery manufactured in the United States.

2. Using the term "Made on Machinery Imported from England," in any way to describe or refer to hosiery made in the United States on machinery imported from England, unless the words "Made on Machinery" appear in immediate connection with the words "Imported from England" in letters and type of equal prominence and conspicuousness.

3. Using a facsimile of the English crown, or any other symbol indicative of England, alone or in connection with the words, "Genuine 6 x 3 Ribbed," or in any other manner so as to import or imply that hosiery manufactured in the United States is imported from England.

4. Representing, in any manner, that hosiery made in the United States is imported from England or any other foreign country.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.
Where a corporation engaged in sale and distribution of coffee, including certain assortments thereof which were so packed and assembled as to involve use of a lottery scheme when sold and distributed to the consumers thereof, and which included (1) 100 1-pound packages of said product and 25-piece set of dishes, together with advertising poster or card for use in sale and distribution of product and dishes under a plan in accordance with which that purchaser of pound of coffee whose name was placed on card opposite number corresponding to number concealed under card's seal received, without additional cost, such 25-piece set of dishes, and others not successful in so doing secured only coffee purchased by them; and (2) various other assortments of coffee involving lot or chance feature and sales plans or methods which were similar to that above described and from which they varied in detail only—

Sold said assortments to dealer or retailer purchasers, by whom, as direct or indirect buyers thereof, same were exposed and sold to purchasing public in accordance with such sales plans, involving game of chance or sale of a chance to procure set of dishes without cost, and thereby supplied to and placed in the hands of others means of conducting lotteries in sale of its said merchandise in accordance with such sales plans or methods, contrary to an established public policy of the United States Government and in violation of criminal laws, and in competition with many who sell and distribute coffee and are unwilling to adopt and use said or any method involving use of a game of chance or sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other method contrary to public policy, and refrain therefrom;

With the result that many persons were attracted by its said methods and by element of chance involved in sale of coffee as above described, and were thereby induced to buy and sell its product in preference to that offered and sold by said competitors who do not use same or equivalent method, and with effect, through use of such methods and because of said game of chance, of unfairly diverting trade to it from its competitors aforesaid, who do not use such or equivalent methods; to the substantial injury of competition in commerce:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce, and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

Mr. D. C. Daniel for the Commission.
Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Jordan Stevens Co., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Jordan Stevens Co., is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, with its principal office and place of business located at 200 Third Avenue, North, Minneapolis, Minn. Respondent is now, and for more than 2 years last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of coffee to dealers located in various States of the United States. It causes and has caused said coffee, when sold, to be shipped or transported from its aforesaid place of business in the State of Minnesota to purchasers thereof in various other States of the United States at their respective points of location. There is now, and for more than 2 years last past has been, a course of trade by said respondent in such coffee in commerce between and among the various States of the United States. In the course and conduct of said business, respondent is and has been in competition with other corporations and with individuals and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

Para. 2. In the course and conduct of its business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and has sold certain assortments of said coffee, so packed and assembled as to involve the use of a lottery scheme when said coffee is sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. One of said assortments was, and is, sold and distributed to the purchasing public in the following manner: This assortment consists of 100 1-pound packages of coffee and a 25-piece set of dishes, together with an advertising poster or card. Said card has space provided for the recording of 100 names, and the name of the purchaser of each pound of said coffee is recorded on the said card. The card contains a seal and concealed under said seal is a number corresponding to one of said numbers appearing elsewhere on said card. When the 100 pounds of coffee have been sold, the seal is removed and the number thereunder is disclosed. The person whose name is recorded opposite the number corresponding to the number under the seal is entitled to and receives, without additional cost, the said 25-piece set of dishes. The number under said seal is concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until the 100 pounds of coffee have been sold and all of the names recorded on said card. Persons who are not successful in securing the set of dishes secure only the coffee purchased by them. The said set of dishes is thus distributed wholly by lot or chance. Respondent sells and distributes, and has sold and distributed, various assortments of coffee involving a lot or chance feature, but the sales plans or methods employed in connection with each of said assortments are similar to the one hereinabove described, varying only in detail.

Par. 3. Retail dealers who purchase respondent's said assortments of coffee, directly or indirectly, expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the aforesaid sales plans. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others a means of conducting lotteries in the sale of its merchandise in accordance with the sales plans or methods hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said methods in the sale of its coffee and the sale of said coffee by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said methods is a practice of the sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of criminal laws.

Par. 4. The sale of coffee to the purchasing public in the manner above alleged involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure a set of dishes without cost. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell and distribute coffee in competition with the respondent, as above alleged, are unwilling to adopt and use said methods or any method involving the use of a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other method which is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by respondent's said methods and by the element of chance involved in the sale of coffee in the manner above alleged and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's coffee in preference to coffee offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or equivalent methods. The use of said methods by the respondent because of said game of chance has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade to respondent from its competitors who do not use the same or equivalent methods in commerce between and among the various States of the United States. As a result thereof, substantial injury is being and has been done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among various States of the United States.

Par. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of re-
Respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on August 27, 1940, issued and on August 29, 1940, served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, Jordan Stevens Co., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce, and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. Subsequently, the respondent filed its answer in which it admitted all of the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts. Thereafter this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and answer, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Jordan Stevens Co., is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, with its principal office and place of business located at 200 Third Avenue, North, Minneapolis, Minn. Respondent is now, and for more than 2 years last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of coffee to dealers located in various States of the United States. It causes and has caused said coffee, when sold, to be shipped or transported from its aforesaid place of business in the State of Minnesota to purchasers thereof in various other States of the United States at their respective points of location. There is now, and for more than 2 years last past has been, a course of trade by said respondent in such coffee in commerce between and among the various States of the United States. In the course and conduct of said business, respondent is, and has been, in competition with other corporations and with individuals and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of its business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells, and has sold, certain assortments of said coffee so packed and assembled as to involve the use of a lottery scheme when said coffee is sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. One of said assortments was, and is, sold and distributed to the purchasing public in the following manner: This assortment consists of 100 1-pound packages of coffee and a 25-piece set of dishes, together with an advertising poster or card. Said card has space provided for the recording of 100 names, and the name of the purchaser of each pound of said coffee is recorded on the said card. The card contains a seal and concealed under said seal is a number corresponding to one of said numbers appearing elsewhere on said card. When the 100 pounds of coffee have been sold, the seal is removed and the number thereunder is disclosed. The person whose name is recorded opposite the number corresponding to the number under the seal is entitled to and receives, without additional cost, the said 25-piece set of dishes. The number under said seal is concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until the 100 pounds of coffee have been sold and all of the names recorded on said card. Persons who are not successful in securing the set of dishes secure only the coffee purchased by them. The said set of dishes is thus distributed wholly by lot or chance. Respondent sells and distributes, and has sold and distributed, various assortments of coffee involving a lot or chance feature, but the sales plans or methods employed in connection with each of said assortments are similar to the one hereinabove described, varying only in detail.

Par. 3. Retail dealers who purchase respondent's said assortments of coffee, directly or indirectly, expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the aforesaid sales plans. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others a means of conducting lotteries in the sale of its merchandise in accordance with the sales plans or methods hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said methods in the sale of its coffee and the sale of said coffee by and through the use thereof, and by the aid of said methods, is a practice of the sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of criminal laws.

Par. 4. The sale of coffee to the purchasing public in the manner above described involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure a set of dishes without cost. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell and distribute coffee in competition with the respondent, as above alleged, are unwilling to adopt and use said methods or any method involving the use of a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other method which is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by respondent's said methods. and by the element of chance involved in the sale of coffee in the manner above described and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's coffee in preference to coffee offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or equivalent methods. The use of said methods by the respondent because of said game of chance has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade to respondent from its competitors who do not use the same or equivalent methods in commerce between and among the various States of the United States. As a result thereof, substantial injury is being and has been done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among various States of the United States.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and states that it waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to the said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Jordan Stevens Co., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of coffee or other merchandise in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Selling or distributing coffee or any other merchandise so packed and assembled that sales of said coffee or other merchandise are to be made or may be made by means of a lottery, gaming device, or gift enterprise.

2. Supplying to or placing in the hands of others push or pull cards, punchboards or other lottery devices, either with assortments of coffee or other merchandise, or separately, which said push or pull cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices are to be used or may be used in selling or distributing said coffee or other merchandise to the public.

3. Selling or otherwise distributing any merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.
RALPH CORN UNDERWEAR, INC.

Docket 4017. Complaint, Feb. 5, 1940—Decision, Oct. 8, 1940

Where a corporation engaged in sale and distribution of women's wearing apparel, including slips, gowns, and pajamas, to retailer purchasers in the various States and in the District of Columbia; in making various representations concerning character and quality of its said garments, including fiber and material of which made, and as to character of business conducted by it, through descriptive circulars distributed through the mails and otherwise, and by labels attached to such garments, and by use of letterheads used in correspondence with purchasers and prospective purchasers of its products—

(a) Made use, as typical of such representations as to material or fiber, of words "satin" and "crepe," and also of word "silk," through such statements in its circulars, distributed as above set forth, as " Satin and Pigment Crepe Slips, Gowns and Man-Tailored Pajamas," "Pigment Back Silk Satin Slip," "Pigment Crepe Heavy Quality Satin Striped Gown," and "Multifilament Crepe Gowns," notwithstanding fact none of said garments sold by it were made entirely of silk, product of cocoon of silkworm, as long associated in minds of public with words "satin" and "crepe," unqualified, and used in connection with descriptions or designations of women's clothing, with materials made of product of silkworm, and as descriptive of fabrics of products thereof, long held in great public esteem and confidence for their preeminent qualities, and by reason thereof decidedly preferred on part of purchasing public, but were made of rayon, or other material and rayon, which, when so manufactured as to simulate silk has appearance and feel thereof, and is by purchasing public practically indistinguishable therefrom, and is, therefore, readily believed to be and accepted by purchasing public as being silk as aforesaid; and

(b) Represented itself, as aforesaid, as manufacturer of garments sold and distributed by it, through use in its advertising material and on its letterheads of words "Manufacturers of Silk Undergarments," facts being garments in question were designed, patterned, and cut by its employees on its own premises from piece goods, trimmings, and other necessary materials purchased by it on open market, with such materials then sewed by independent sewing concerns under contract with it, and finished garments returned to it for distribution to trade, and it was not manufacturer and did not own, operate, or control any manufacturing plant;

With capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive substantial portion of members of purchasing public into erroneous belief that items of wearing apparel advertised by it as above set forth were made entirely of silk, and into purchase of substantial volume thereof on account of such belief, and with result, through designation of itself as manufacturer of silk garments, of influencing purchasers to deal with its as manufacturer, for dealing with whom directly there has long been preference on part of substantial portion of consuming public and trade as thereby bringing lower prices, elimination of middlemen's profits, superior products and other advantages, in preference to dealing with distributors of similar products who are not manufacturers thereof:

_Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce._

_Mr. J. W. Brookfield, Jr., for the Commission.
Mr. Milton Zuckerman, of New York City, for respondent._

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Ralph Corn Underwear, Inc., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, the Commission hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

_PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Ralph Corn Underwear, Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its office and principal place of business located at 36 East Thirty-first Street, New York City, N. Y. Respondent is now, and during the year last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of women's wearing apparel, including slips, gowns, and pajamas. Respondent sells its products to retail dealers located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and causes said products, when sold by it, to be transported from its place of business in the city of New York to purchasers at their respective points of location in various States of the United States, other than the State of New York, and in the District of Columbia.

Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

_PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business, by means of descriptive circulars distributed through the United States mails, and otherwise, by labels attached to said garments, and by the use of letterheads used in correspondence with purchasers and prospective purchasers of its products, respondent has made various false representations concerning the character and quality of its said garments, including the fiber and material of which the same are made._
Complaint 31 F. T. C.

Among and typical of the false representations made by respondent as to the material or fiber of which respondent's products are made are the following statements contained in its circulars and distributed as above stated:

Ralph Corn Underwear, Inc., the king of Satins, Satin and Pigment Crepe Slips, Gowns, and Man-tailored Pajamas.

Pigment Back Silk Satin Slip.

Pigment Crepe Heavy Quality Satin Striped Gown.

Multifilament Crepe Gowns.

Respondent has also used in its advertising material and on its letterheads the words "Manufacturers of Silk Undergarments." Through the use of the foregoing representations and other representations of similar import not specifically set out herein the respondent represents that its said products are made entirely of silk, the product of the cocoon of the silkworm.

Par. 3. The foregoing representations are grossly exaggerated, false, and misleading. In truth and in fact, none of the garments sold by respondent are made entirely of silk, the product of the cocoon of the silkworm, but the same, on the contrary, are made of rayon or other material that is not silk, or of a mixture of rayon and silk.

Par. 4. The word "silk" for many years last past has had, and still has in the minds of the purchasing and consuming public generally, a definite and specific meaning, to wit, the product of the cocoon of the silkworm. Silk products for many years have held, and still hold, great public esteem and confidence for their preeminent qualities, and because of such reputation there is a decided preference on the part of the purchasing public for such products. Silk fibers have long been woven into fabrics and certain descriptive terms have been applied to such fabrics. Among such are the words "satin" and "crepe." The words "satin" and "crepe," when used alone or unaccompanied by the name of a specific fabric or fiber, in connection with the description or designation of women's clothing, have been for a long time, and still are, associated in the minds of the public with materials made of the product of the cocoon of the silkworm, and such words when used as aforesaid, are considered as being descriptive of silk fabrics. The word "rayon" is the name of a chemically manufactured fiber or fabric which may be manufactured so as to simulate silk, and when so manufactured it has the appearance and feel of silk and is by the purchasing public practically indistinguishable from silk. By reason of these qualities rayon, when manufactured to simulate silk and not designated as rayon, is readily believed and accepted by the purchasing public as being silk, the product of the cocoon of the silkworm.
PAR. 5. Respondent, through the use of the word "Manufacturers," as aforesaid, has represented itself as the manufacturer of the garments sold and distributed by it. In truth and in fact, respondent does not manufacture any of the garments sold and distributed by it, but buys the material on the open market and has such garments manufactured by other parties.

PAR. 6. There has long been a preference on the part of a substantial portion of the consuming public and the trade for dealing directly with the manufacturer in the belief that lower prices, elimination of middlemen's profits, superior products and other advantages can thereby be obtained.

PAR. 7. The use by the respondent of the false and misleading representations set forth herein has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the members of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that such representations are true and into the purchase of a substantial volume of respondent's products on account of such belief so induced.

PAR. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on February 5, 1940, issued its complaint against respondent, Ralph Corn Underwear, Inc., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On February 20, 1940, the respondent filed its answer in this proceeding. Thereafter a stipulation was entered into whereby it was stipulated and agreed that a statement of facts signed and executed by the respondent and its counsel, Milton Zuckerman, and W. T. Kelley, chief counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, subject to the approval of the Commission, may be made a part of the record herein, and may be taken as the facts in this proceeding, and in lieu of testimony in support of the charges stated in the complaint or in opposition thereto, and that the Commission may proceed upon such statement of facts to make its report, stating its findings as to the facts (including inferences which it may draw from the said stipulated facts), and its conclusion based thereon, and enter an order disposing of the proceeding, reserving to the respondent the right to submit brief or oral argument or both with respect to respondent's claim to be a manufacturer. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, answer, and stipulation, said stipulation having been approved, accepted, and filed, and briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto, oral argument not having been requested; and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.
Findings

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Ralph Corn Underwear, Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its office and principal place of business located at 36 East Thirty-first Street, New York City, N. Y. Respondent is now, and during the year last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of women's wearing apparel, including slips, gowns, and pajamas. Respondent sells its products to retail dealers located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and causes said products, when sold by it, to be transported from its place of business in the city of New York to purchasers at their respective points of location in various States of the United States, other than the State of New York, and in the District of Columbia.

Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 2. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business, by means of descriptive circulars distributed through the United States mails, and otherwise, by labels attached to said garments, and by the use of letterheads used in correspondence with purchasers and prospective purchasers of its products, respondent has made various representations concerning the character and quality of its said garments, including the fiber and material of which the same are made, and as to the character of business conducted by respondent.

Among and typical of the representations made by respondent as to the material or fiber of which respondent's products are made are the following statements contained in its circulars and distributed as above stated:

Ralph Corn Underwear, Inc., the king of Satins, Satin and Pigment Crepe Slips, Gowns, and Man-Tailored Pajamas.
Pigment Back Silk Satin Slip.
Pigment Crepe Heavy Quality Satin Striped Gown.
Multifilament Crepe Gowns.
Par. 3. The word "silk" for many years last past has had, and still has, in the minds of the purchasing and consuming public generally, a definite and specific meaning; to wit, the product of the cocoon of the silkworm. Silk products for many years have held, and still hold, great public esteem and confidence for their preeminent qualities, and because of such reputation there is a decided preference on the part of the purchasing public for such products. Silk fibers have long been woven into fabrics and certain descriptive terms have been applied to such fabrics. Among such are the words "satin" and "crepe." The words "satin" and "crepe," when used alone or unaccompanied by the name of a specific fabric or fiber, in connection with the description or designation of women's clothing, have been for a long time, and still are, associated in the minds of the public with materials made of the product of the cocoon of the silkworm, and such words, when used as aforesaid, are considered as being descriptive of silk fabrics. The word "rayon" is the name of a chemically manufactured fiber or fabric which may be manufactured so as to simulate silk, and when so manufactured it has the appearance and feel of silk and is by the purchasing public practically indistinguishable from silk. By reason of these qualities, rayon, when manufactured to simulate silk and not designated as rayon, is readily believed to be, and is accepted by the purchasing public as being silk, the product of the cocoon of the silkworm.

Par. 4. In truth and in fact, none of the garments sold by respondent are made entirely of silk, the product of the cocoon of the silkworm, but the same, on the contrary, are made of rayon or other material that is not silk, or a mixture of rayon and silk.

Par. 5. Respondent has further used in its advertising material and on its letterheads the words "Manufacturers of Silk Undergarments." Respondent through the use of the word "Manufacturers," as aforesaid, has represented itself as the manufacturer of the garments sold and distributed by it.

The method of manufacture of the garments sold and distributed by respondent is as follows:

Respondent purchases on the open market piece goods, trimmings, and the other necessary materials from which its garments are made. The garments are designed, patterned, and cut by respondent's employees on its own premises and the materials are then sewed by independent sewing contractors under contract with the respondent, and the finished garments are then returned to respondent for distribution to the trade.
The Commission finds that this method does not constitute respondent a manufacturer. The Commission further finds that respondent does not own, operate, or control any manufacturing plant.

PAR. 6. There has long been a preference on the part of a substantial portion of the consuming public and the trade for dealing directly with the manufacturer in the belief that lower prices, elimination of middlemen's profits, superior products, and other advantages can thereby be obtained.

PAR. 7. The use by the respondent of the representations set forth herein has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the members of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that the items of wearing apparel, advertised by the respondent in the manner set forth in paragraph 2 hereof, are made entirely of silk and into the purchase of a substantial volume of respondent's wearing apparel on account of such belief.

The respondent's designation of itself as a manufacturer of silk undergarments has also influenced purchasers to deal with respondent in preference to dealing with distributors of similar products who are not manufacturers of such products.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondent and a stipulation as to the facts entered into between the respondent herein and W. T. Kelley, chief counsel for the Commission, which provides, among other things, that the facts as stated therein may be made a part of the record herein and may be taken as the facts in this proceeding and in lieu of testimony in support of the charges stated in the complaint or in opposition thereto, and that the Commission may proceed upon said statement of facts to make its report stating its findings as to the facts (including inferences which it may draw from the said stipulated facts), and its conclusion based thereon, and enter an order disposing of the proceeding and briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto; and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Ralph Corn Underwear, Inc., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of women's wearing apparel in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Using the unqualified terms "satin" or "crepe" or any other descriptive terms indicative of silk, to describe or designate any garment or fabric which is not composed wholly of silk, the product of the cocoon of the silkworm; provided, however, that when said terms are used truthfully to designate or describe the type of weave, construction, or finish, such terms shall be qualified by using in immediate connection or conjunction therewith, in letters of at least equal size and conspicuousness, a word or words clearly and accurately naming or describing the fibers or materials from which such products are made.

2. Using the unqualified term "silk" or any other term of similar import or meaning, to describe or designate any garment or fabric which is not composed wholly of silk, the product of the cocoon of the silkworm; provided, however, that in the case of a garment or fabric composed in part of silk and in part of materials other than silk, such term or similar terms may be used as descriptive of the silk content, when such term or terms are immediately accompanied by a word or words of equal conspicuousness accurately describing and designating such other materials in the order of their predominance by weight, beginning with the largest single constituent.

3. Advertising, offering for sale, or selling garments or fabrics composed in whole or in part of rayon, without clearly disclosing the fact that such garments or fabrics are composed of rayon, and when such garments or fabrics are composed in part of rayon and in part of other fibers or materials, such fibers or materials, including the rayon, shall be named in the order of their predominance by weight, beginning with the largest single constituent.

4. Using the word "Manufacturer" or "Manufacturers" to designate or describe respondent's business, or otherwise representing that respondent is a manufacturer or that respondent manufactures the products sold by it.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF

SIEGEL-KAHN COMPANY, INC., DOING BUSINESS UNDER THAT NAME AND AS MANSFIRE MILLS AND SNUGINTUCKS MILLS

Docket 4204. Complaint, July 30, 1940—Decision, Oct. 9, 1940

Where a corporation engaged in sale and distribution of women's undergarments to purchasers in various other States and in the District of Columbia, and, in course and conduct of its said business, in practice of representing falsely constituent fibers or materials of which its products were made, through legends appearing on labels attached thereto, and by other means—

(a) Represented, as typical of such false representations, that certain of its products designated "Snugintucks" contained, as case might be, 30 percent wool and 15 percent wool, through statements "8 Ply crotch Snugintucks 30% pure wool," and "8 Ply crotch Snugintucks 15% pure wool," facts being neither of said products contained percentage of wool specified, but actual fiber content thereof was 88 percent cotton, 9 percent rayon and 3 percent wool;

(b) Represented, as aforesaid, that its products designated "Dr. Ames Treat Yourself Woolywarms Multi-Ply Crotch, 30% Pure Wool" and "Dr. Ames Treat Yourself Woolywarms Multi-Ply Crotch, 15% Pure Wool" contained 30 percent and 15 percent wool, respectively, facts being product represented as containing 30 percent wool was composed of 85 percent cotton and only 15 percent wool, while product represented as containing 15 percent wool contained 90 percent cotton and only 10 percent wool;

(c) Represented, through use of word "Woolywarms" in designating its product "Dr. Ames Treat Yourself Woolywarms Multi-Ply Crotch, Full Combed," unaccompanied by any specific designation of fiber content thereof, that said product contained substantial percentage of wool, facts being it contained no wool whatsoever, but was composed entirely of cotton;

(d) Sold and distributed undergarments composed in part of rayon, without disclosing such garments' content of such chemically manufactured fiber or fabric, which, when so made as to simulate wool, has appearance and feel thereof and is by purchasing public practically indistinguishable from wool, or fleece or hair obtained from sheep, as long definitely understood in minds of purchasing public from word "wool," fabrics of which have established reputation for possessing superior cold resisting and wearing, as well as other superior qualities over those made of rayon, and to which purchasers and prospective purchasers of undergarments, therefore, decidedly prefer same;

(e) Represented, through use of word "Mills" in trade names employed by it, and by other means, that it owned and operated a mill or mills where its products were made, and that it was manufacturer thereof, facts being it purchased all its products from others, did not own or operate any mills, and was not a manufacturer of products, for dealing directly with whom, rather than with wholesalers, jobbers or other dealers, there is preference on part of substantial portion of purchasing public, by reason, in part, of belief that by so dealing lower prices and other advantages may be obtained; and

(f) Represented, through use of term “Dr. Ames” in connection with certain of its products, as aforesaid, that such products were designed, recommended or approved by a physician, facts being none of them had been thus designed, recommended or approved;

With effect of misleading and deceiving substantial portion of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that its said products possessed certain qualities and characteristics which they did not in fact possess, and with result, as consequence of such erroneous and mistaken belief, engendered as above set forth, that such public was induced to, and did, purchase substantial quantities of its said products:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Mr. Donovan R. Divet for the Commission.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Siegel-Kahn Co., Inc., a corporation doing business under that name and as Manshire Mills and as Snugintucks Mills, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. The respondent, Siegel-Kahn Co., Inc., is a corporation organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its office and principal place of business at 93 Worth Street in the city of New York, State of New York. Respondent trades under its corporate name and also under the names Manshire Mills and Snugintucks Mills.

Par. 2. Respondent is now and for more than one year last past has been engaged in the business of selling and distributing women's undergarments. Respondent causes its said products, when sold to be transported from its place of business in the State of New York, or from the places of business of the concerns from which it purchases said products, to purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in its said products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 3. In the course and conduct of its business the respondent has engaged in the practice of falsely representing the constituent fibers...
Complaint

or materials of which its products are made, such representations being made by means of legends appearing on labels attached to its products, and by other means. Among and typical of such false representations are the following:

8 Ply crotch Snugintucks 30% pure wool.
8 Ply crotch Snugintucks 15% pure wool.
Dr. Ames Treat Yourself Woolywarms Multi-Ply Crotch 30% Pure Wool.
Dr. Ames Treat Yourself Woolywarms Multi-Ply Crotch, 15% Pure Wool.
Dr. Ames Treat Yourself Woolywarms Multi-Play Crotch, Full Combed.

Par. 4. Through the use of the foregoing representations and others of similar import not specifically set out herein the respondent represents that certain of its products designated “Snugintucks” contain 30 percent and 15 percent wool, respectively. In truth and in fact, neither of said products contains the specified percentage of wool, the actual fiber content of each of said products being 88 percent cotton, 9 percent rayon, and 3 percent wool.

Respondent further represents, in the manner aforesaid, that its products designated “Dr. Ames Treat Yourself Woolywarms Multi-Ply Crotch, 30% Pure Wool” and “Dr. Ames Treat Yourself Woolywarms Multi-Ply Crotch, 15% Pure Wool” contain 30 percent wool and 15 percent wool, respectively. In truth and in fact the product represented as containing 30 percent wool is composed of 85 percent cotton and only 15 percent wool, while the product represented as containing 15 percent wool contains 90 percent cotton and only 10 percent wool.

Through the use of the word “Woolywarms” in designating its said product “Dr. Ames Treat Yourself Woolywarms Multi-Ply Crotch, Full Combed,” unaccompanied by any specific designation of the fiber content of said product, the respondent represents that said product contains a substantial percentage of wool. In truth and in fact, such product contains no wool whatsoever, but is composed entirely of cotton.

Par. 5. A further practice on the part of the respondent is the sale and distribution of undergarments composed in part of rayon, without disclosing the rayon content of such garments. Rayon is a chemically manufactured fiber or fabric which may be so manufactured as to simulate wool, and when so manufactured it has the appearance and feel of wool and is by the purchasing public practically indistinguishable therefrom.

The word “Wool” for many years last past has had and now has in the minds of the purchasing public a definite and specific meaning, to wit: fleece or hair obtained from sheep. Fabrics made of wool have established a reputation for possessing superior cold-resisting and wearing qualities, as well as other superior qualities, over fabrics.
made of rayon. Because of such reputation, purchasers and prospective purchasers of undergarments have a decided preference for wool fabrics over fabrics composed of rayon.

Par. 6. The respondent has also represented, through the use of the word "Mills" in its trade names Manshire Mills and Snugintucks Mills, and by other means, that it owns or operates a mill or mills where its products are manufactured and that it is the manufacturer of such products. In truth and in fact, the respondent does not own, or operate, any mill, nor does it manufacture any of its products. The respondent purchases all of its products from other parties.

Par. 7. The use by the respondent of the word "Mills" in its trade names as aforesaid constitutes within itself a false and misleading representation that the respondent owns or operates a mill or mills in connection with its said business, and that it manufactures its said products.

Par. 8. There is a preference on the part of a substantial portion of the purchasing public for dealing directly with the manufacturer of products rather than with wholesalers, jobbers, or other dealers, such preference being due in part to a belief on the part of the public that by dealing directly with the manufacturer lower prices and other advantages may be obtained.

Par. 9. Through the use of the term "Dr. Ames" in connection with certain of its products as aforesaid the respondent also represents that such products are designed, recommended or approved by a physician. In truth and in fact, none of respondent's products have been designed, recommended or approved by any physician.

Par. 10. The acts and practices of the respondent as herein set forth have the tendency and capacity to, and do, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that respondent's products possess certain qualities and characteristics which they do not in fact possess, and as a result of such erroneous and mistaken belief, engendered as herein set forth, the purchasing public has been induced to, and has, purchased substantial quantities of respondent's products.

Par. 11. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on July 30, 1940, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent
Seigel-Kahn Co., Inc., a corporation, doing business under that name and as Manshire Mills and as Snugintucks Mills, charging it with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On September 9, 1940, the respondent filed its answer, in which answer it admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and the answer thereto, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. The respondent, Seigel-Kahn Co., Inc., a corporation, organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its office and principal place of business at 93 Worth Street in the city of New York, State of New York. Respondent trades under its corporate name and also under the names Manshire Mills and Snugintucks Mills.

Paragraph 2. Respondent is now and for more than 1 year last past has been engaged in the business of selling and distributing women’s undergarments. Respondent causes its said products, when sold, to be transported from its place of business in the State of New York, or from the place of business of the concerns from which it purchases said products, to purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in its said products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 3. In the course and conduct of its business the respondent has engaged in the practice of falsely representing the constituent fibers or materials of which its products are made, such representations being made by means of legends appearing on labels attached to its products, and by other means. Among and typical of such false representations are the following:

8 Ply crotch Snugintucks 30% pure wool.
8 Ply crotch Snugintucks 15% pure wool.
Dr. Ames Treat Yourself Woolywarms Multi-Ply Crotch 30% Pure Wool.
Dr. Ames Treat Yourself Woolywarms Multi-Ply Crotch, 15% Pure Wool.
Dr. Ames Treat Yourself Woolywarms Multi-Ply Crotch, Full Combed.
Findings

PAR. 4. Through the use of the foregoing representations and others of similar import not specifically set out herein, the respondent represents that certain of its products designated “Snugintucks” contain 30 percent and 15 percent wool, respectively. In truth and in fact, neither of said products contains the specified percentage of wool, the actual fiber content of each of said products being 88 percent cotton, 9 percent rayon, and 3 percent wool.

Respondent further represents, in the manner aforesaid, that its products designated “Dr. Ames Treat Yourself Woolywarms Multi-Ply Crotch, 30% Pure Wool” and “Dr. Ames Treat Yourself Woolywarm Multi-Ply Crotch, 15% Pure Wool” contain 30 percent and 15 percent wool, respectively. In truth and in fact, the product represented as containing 30 percent wool is composed of 85 percent cotton and only 15 percent wool, while the product represented as containing 15 percent wool contains 90 percent cotton and only 10 percent wool.

Through the use of the word “Woolywarms” in designating its said product “Dr. Ames Treat Yourself Woolywarms Multi-Ply Crotch, Full Combed,” unaccompanied by any specific designation of the fiber content of said product, the respondent represents that said product contains a substantial percentage of wool. In truth and in fact, such product contains no wool whatsoever but is composed entirely of cotton.

PAR. 5. A further practice on the part of the respondent is the sale and distribution of undergarments composed in part of rayon, without disclosing the rayon content of such garments. Rayon is a chemically manufactured fiber or fabric which may be so manufactured as to simulate wool, and when so manufactured it has the appearance and feel of wool and is by the purchasing public practically indistinguishable therefrom.

The word “wool” for many years last past has had and now has in the minds of the purchasing public a definite and specific meaning, to wit: fleece or hair obtained from sheep. Fabrics made of wool have established a reputation for possessing superior cold-resisting and wearing qualities, as well as other superior qualities, over fabrics made of rayon. Because of such reputation, purchasers and prospective purchasers of undergarments have a decided preference for wool fabrics over fabrics composed of rayon.

PAR. 6. The respondent has also represented, through the use of the word “Mills” in its trade names Manshire Mills and Snugintucks Mills and by other means, that it owns or operates a mill or mills where its products are manufactured and that it is the manufacturer of such products. In truth and in fact, the respondent does not own, or operate, any mill, nor does it manufacture any of its products. The respondent purchases all of its products from other parties.

Par. 7. The use by the respondent of the word "Mills" in its trade names as aforesaid constitutes within itself a false and misleading representation that the respondent owns or operates a mill or mills in connection with its said business, and that it manufactures its said products.

Par. 8. There is a preference on the part of a substantial portion of the purchasing public for dealing directly with the manufacturer of products rather than with wholesalers, jobbers, or other dealers, such preference being due in part to a belief on the part of the public that by dealing directly with the manufacturer lower prices and other advantages may be obtained.

Par. 9. Through the use of the term "Dr. Ames" in connection with certain of its products as aforesaid the respondent also represents that such products are designed, recommended or approved by a physician. In truth and in fact, none of respondent's products have been designed, recommended or approved by any physician.

Par. 10. The acts and practices of the respondent as herein set forth have the tendency and capacity to, and do, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that respondent's products possess certain qualities and characteristics which they do not in fact possess, and as a result of such erroneous and mistaken belief engendered as herein set forth, the purchasing public has been induced to, and has, purchased substantial quantities of respondent's products.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of the respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and states that it waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Siegel-Kahn Co., Inc., a corporation, trading under that name and under the names Manshire Mills and Sungintucks Mills, or trading under any other name or names, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of undergarments in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing that respondent's products are composed of fibers or materials other than those of which such products are actually composed.

2. Representing that any garment or fabric contains a stated percentage of wool unless such garment or fabric does in fact contain wool in the proportion stated.

3. Advertising, offering for sale or selling garments or fabrics composed in whole or in part of rayon, without clearly disclosing the fact that such garments or fabrics are composed of rayon, and when such garments or fabrics are composed in part of rayon and in part of other fibers or materials, such fibers or materials, including rayon, shall be named in the order of their predominance by weight, beginning with the largest single constituent.

4. Using the term "Woolywarms" or any other term containing the word "wool" to designate, describe or refer to any garment or fabric which is not composed entirely of wool, provided, however, that such terms may be used to designate or describe any garment or fabric composed of wool and other materials when the true percentage of wool contained therein is clearly and adequately disclosed.

5. Using the word "Doctor" or "Dr." to designate or describe any garment or fabric which has not in fact been designed, recommended or approved by physicians.

6. Using the word "Mills" or "Mill" as a part of respondent's trade name or names, or otherwise representing that respondent owns or operates a mill or that respondent manufactures the products sold by it.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

FRANK SPORS, TRADING AS THE SPORS COMPANY

Docket 4246. Complaint, Aug. 20, 1940—Decision, Oct. 9, 1940

Where an individual engaged in sale and distribution of various drugs, cosmetics, fountain pens, mending tissue, household accessories, and numerous other products, including (1) Super-Pure Laxative Bromide Quinine Tablets, (2) Electro Heat-Kwik water heater, (3) Savarip, for silk and rayon garments, and (4) Elgin Style Pointed (fountain) Pens; in advertisements of his said Bromide Quinine Tablets, which he disseminated and caused to be disseminated through the mails and in newspapers and periodicals and by circulars, leaflets, and other advertising literature, and otherwise, and which were intended and likely to induce purchase of said preparation—

(a) Represented that said tablets constituted a cure or remedy for colds, through such statements as "The Easiest and quickest way to get rid of a cold" and others of similar import; facts being, while said medicinal preparation might afford partial and temporary relief from symptoms of colds, it did not constitute cure or remedy for such ailment or condition; and

Where said individual; in advertisements of said water heater, Savarip and pens, which he caused to be inserted in periodicals and other publications, and in catalogs, circulars, and other printed or written matter distributed among purchasers and prospective purchasers—

(b) Represented that said heater was capable of heating substantial quantities of water, such as required for family laundry and bathing, and that it might be used with entire safety, and heated such quantities more quickly than gas, coal or wood, and had been approved by the Underwriters' Laboratories, facts being it was incapable of heating such quantities for purposes aforesaid, was not entirely safe and might cause severe shock to user coming in contact with any grounded metal object, did not heat substantial quantities more quickly than gas, coal or wood, and, while cord attached to said product might have been approved as aforesaid, the heater had not been;

(c) Represented that said Savarip was of substantial value in prevention of runs, snags, and breaks in silk and rayon hosiery and lingerie and rendered such garments rain-spot proof and prevented shrinkage and fading and prolonged life thereof, facts being it was of no substantial value in prevention of runs, etc., as above claimed, did not accomplish aforesaid results and was of no value in prolonging life of such garments; and

(d) Represented that his said fountain pens were comparable to those retailing for sums up to $5.00 each, and that flow of ink therefrom was unusually even and steady, and that agents and salesmen reselling the same were enabled to make a profit of 300 percent, facts being said products did not compare favorably with pens selling for $5.00, or for any sum approximating such amount, nor compare favorably with those selling for more than $1.00, flow of ink therefrom was not unusually even or steady, and it was not possible for agents or salesmen to make such a profit or one approaching such profit from resale of said products;

With effect of misleading and deceiving substantial number of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that such statements and representations were true, and into purchase of substantial quantities of his said products:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Mr. Donovan R. DiNet for the Commission.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Frank Spors, an individual trading as The Spors Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. The respondent, Frank Spors, is an individual trading as The Spors Co. and has his office and principal place of business at Le Center, in the State of Minnesota.

Respondent is now and for more than 2 years last past has been engaged in the business of selling and distributing various drugs, cosmetics, fountain pens, mending tissue, household accessories and numerous other products, among which are: a medicinal preparation known as Super-Pure Laxative Bromide Quinine Tablets, intended as a cure for colds; a small electric water heater known as Electro Heat-Kwik water heater; a composition intended to strengthen, and prevent runs in, silk and rayon garments, known as Savarip; and fountain pens sometimes described as Elgin Stylo Pointed Pens.

Respondent causes each and all of said products, when sold, to be transported from his aforesaid place of business in the State of Minnesota, to the purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in all of said products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of his aforesaid business the respondent has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning his said product Super-Pure Laxative Bromide Quinine Tablets by the United States mails and by various other means in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of said product; and respondent has also disseminated, and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing, the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning his said product by various means for the purpose of inducing and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of his said product in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act.

In the course and conduct of his aforesaid business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of his products Electro Heat-Kwik water heater, Savarip, and Elgin Stylo Pointed Pen, the respondent has caused various statements and representations relative to said products to be inserted in periodicals and other publications and in catalogs, circulars, and other printed or written matter, all of which are distributed among purchasers and prospective purchasers of said products.

Among and typical of the false, misleading, and deceptive statements and representations contained in said false advertisements with respect to respondent's said medicinal preparation, Super-Pure Laxative Bromide Quinine Tablets, disseminated and caused to be disseminated, as hereinabove set forth, by the United States mails, by advertisements in newspapers and periodicals, and by circulars, leaflets, and other advertising literature, are the following:

Among and typical of the statements and representations concerning said product Electro Heat-Kwik water heater, are the following:

For washing, shaving, bathing, clothing, and dishwashing.

The Electro Heat-Kwik has been found to be safe, sanitary, and quicker acting than either gas, coal or wood.

With this handy new device you get hot water in a jiffy by merely plugging the underwriters approved 8 foot cord to your light socket.

You'll find the Underwriters' Laboratories seal of approval on every Electro Heat-Kwik 8 foot cord.

Among and typical of the statements and representations concerning said product Savarip are the following:

Helps prevent runs. A preparation that helps to prevent and retard runs, snags, and breaks in silk and rayon hosiery or lingerie. Rain spot proof.

Doubles the wear of hosiery and lingerie.

Prevents shrinking and fading.

Among and typical of the statements and representations concerning said product Elgin Stylo Pointed Pens are the following:
Compare with $5 fountain pen performance.
Ink flows as evenly and as steady as an electric current.
Ball on concealed end of point regulates the steady even ink flow—Eliminates blotting and keeps the point ever ready for quick starting.
You can sell it for 99¢ and make a 300% profit.

Par. 3. Through the use of the foregoing statements and representations and others of similar import not specifically set out herein, respondent represents that said medicinal preparation "Super-Pure Laxative Bromide Quinine Tablets" constitutes a cure or remedy for colds. In a similar manner the respondent has represented that said "Electro Heat-Kwik" water heater is capable of heating substantial quantities of water such as are required for family laundry and for baths; that it may be used with entire safety; that it heats substantial quantities of water more quickly than gas, coal or wood and that such device has been approved by the Underwriters' Laboratories. In a similar manner, respondent has represented that the product "Savarip" is of substantial value in the prevention of runs, snags, and breaks in silk and rayon hosiery and lingerie; that it renders such garments rain-spot proof, prevents shrinking and fading and prolongs the life of such garments. In a similar manner respondent has represented that said fountain pens are comparable to fountain pens retailing for sums up to $5.00 each; that the flow of ink from said pens is unusually even and steady; and that agents and salesmen reselling said pens are enabled to make a profit of 300 percent.

Par. 4. The foregoing representations are grossly exaggerated, false, and misleading. While respondent's medicinal preparation may afford partial and temporary relief for the symptoms of colds, it does not constitute a cure or remedy for colds. Said water heater is incapable of heating substantial quantities of water such as are required for family laundering or for bathing purposes. It is not entirely safe, as it may cause severe shock to a user coming in contact with any grounded metal object. It does not heat substantial quantities of water more quickly than gas, coal or wood. While the cord attached to said water heater may have been approved by the Underwriters' Laboratories, said heater has not been so approved.

Respondent's product Savarip is of no substantial value in the prevention of runs, snags or breaks in silk or rayon hosiery or lingerie. It does not render such garments rain-spot proof, nor does it prevent shrinking or fading. It is of no value in prolonging the life of such garments. Respondent's said fountain pens do not compare favorably with fountain pens selling for $5.00 each or for any sum approximating that amount. Such pens do not compare favorably with pens selling for more than $1.00 each. The flow of ink from such pens is not unusually even or steady. It is not possible for agents or salesmen to make a profit of 300 percent, or any profit approaching such figure, from the resale of such pens.

Par. 5. The use by the respondent of the aforesaid false and misleading statements and representations has the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial number of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such statements and representations are true and into the purchase of substantial quantities of respondent's said products.

Par. 6. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on August 20, 1940, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent Frank Spors, an individual trading as the The Spors Co., charging him with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On September 17, 1940, the respondent filed his answer, in which answer he admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint and the answer thereto, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. The respondent, Frank Spors, is an individual trading as The Spors Co. and has his office and principal place of business at Le Center, in the State of Minnesota.

Respondent is now and for more than 2 years last past has been engaged in the business of selling and distributing various drugs, cosmetics, fountain pens, mending tissue, household accessories, and numerous other products, among which are: a medicinal preparation known as Super-Pure Laxative Bromide Quinine Tablets, intended as a cure for colds; a small electric water heater known as Electro Heat-Kwik water heater; a composition intended to strengthen, and prevent runs in, silk and rayon garments known as Savarip; and fountain pens sometimes described as Elgin Stylo Pointed Pens.

Respondent causes each and all of said products, when sold, to be transported from his aforesaid place of business in the State of Minnesota, to the purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in all of said products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of his aforesaid business the respondent has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning his said product Super-Pure Laxative Bromide Quinine Tablets by the United States mails and by various other means in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of said product; and respondent has also disseminated, and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning his said product by various means for the purpose of inducing and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of his said product in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act.

In the course and conduct of his aforesaid business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of his products Electro Heat-Kwik water heater, Savarip, and Elgin Stylo Pointed Pen, the respondent has caused various statements and representations relative to said products to be inserted in periodicals and other publications and in catalogs, circulars, and other printed or written matter, all of which are distributed among purchasers and prospective purchasers of said products.

Among and typical of the false, misleading, and deceptive statements and representations contained in said false advertisements with respect to respondent's said medicinal preparation, Super-Pure Laxative Bromide Quinine Tablets, disseminated and caused to be disseminated, as hereinabove set forth, by the United States mails, by advertisements in newspapers and periodicals, and by circulars, leaflets, and other advertising literature, are the following:

The Easiest and quickest way to get rid of a cold.

Among and typical of the statements and representations concerning said product Electro Heat-Kwik water heater, are the following:

For washing, shaving, bathing, clothing, and dishwashing.

The Electro Heat-Kwik has been found to be safe, sanitary and quicker acting than either gas, coal or wood.
With this handy new device you get hot water in a jiffy by merely plugging the underwriters approved 8 foot cord to your light socket. You'll find the Underwriters' Laboratories seal of approval on every Electro Heat-Kwik 8 foot cord.

Among and typical of the statements and representations concerning said product Savarip are the following:

Helps prevent runs. A preparation that helps to prevent and retard runs, snags, and breaks in silk and rayon hosiery or lingerie. Rain spot proof.

Doubles the wear of hosiery and lingerie.

Prevents shrinking and fading.

Among and typical of the statements and representations concerning said product Elgin Stylo Pointed Pens are the following:

Compare with $5 fountain pen performance.

Ink flows as evenly and as steady as an electric current.

Ball on concealed end of point regulates the steady even ink flow—Eliminates blotting and keeps the point ever ready for quick starting.

You can sell it for 99¢ and make a 300% profit.

Par. 3. Through the use of the foregoing statements and representations and others of similar import not specifically set out herein, respondent represents that said medicinal preparation “Super-Pure Laxative Bromide Quinine Tablets” constitutes a cure or remedy for colds. In a similar manner the respondent has represented that said “Electro Heat-Kwik” water heater is capable of heating substantial quantities of water such as are required for family laundry and for baths; that it may be used with entire safety; that it heats substantial quantities of water more quickly than gas, coal or wood; and that such device has been approved by the Underwriters' Laboratories. In a similar manner, respondent has represented that the product “Savarip” is of substantial value in the prevention of runs, snags, and breaks in silk and rayon hosiery and lingerie; that it renders such garments rain-spot proof, prevents shrinking and fading and prolongs the life of such garments. In a similar manner respondent has represented that said fountain pens are comparable to fountain pens retailing for sums up to $5.00 each; that the flow of ink from said pens is unusually even and steady; and that agents and salesmen reselling said pens are enabled to make a profit of 300 percent.

Par. 4. The foregoing representations are grossly exaggerated, false, and misleading. While respondent's medicinal preparation may afford partial and temporary relief for the symptoms of colds, it does not constitute a cure or remedy for colds. Said water heater is incapable of heating substantial quantities of water such as are required for family laundering or for bathing purposes. It is not entirely safe, as it may cause severe shock to a user coming in contact with any grounded metal object. It does not heat substantial quantities of water more quickly than gas, coal or wood. While the cord attached to said water heater may have been approved by the Underwriters’ Laboratories, said heater has not been so approved.

Respondent’s product Savarip is of no substantial value in the prevention of runs, snags, or breaks in silk or rayon hosiery or lingerie. It does not render such garments rain-spot proof, nor does it prevent shrinking or fading. It is of no value in prolonging the life of such garments. Respondent’s said fountain pens do not compare favorably with fountain pens selling for $5 each or for any sum approximating that amount. Such pens do not compare favorably with pens selling for more than $1 each. The flow of ink from such pens is not unusually even or steady. It is not possible for agents or salesmen to make a profit of 300 percent, or any profit approaching such figure, from the resale of such pens.

PAR. 5. The use by the respondent of the aforesaid false and misleading statements and representations has the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial number of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such statements and representations are true and into the purchase of substantial quantities of respondent’s said products.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Docket 4261. Complaint, Aug. 22, 1940—Decision, Oct. 9, 1940

Where an individual engaged, under names Progressive Medical Co., Progressive Laboratories, Ladies Aid Co., and others, in sale and distribution of certain medicinal preparations designated as Ladies Aid No. 1 H. Y. G. Tablets, Ladies Aid No. 4, Promeco Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets, and Ladies Aid Reducing Tablets; in advertisements of her said products which she disseminated and caused to be disseminated through the United States mails and through circulars, leaflets, pamphlets, and other advertising literature, and otherwise, and which were intended and likely to induce purchase of her said products—

(a) Represented that her said Ladies Aid No. 1 H. Y. G. Tablets constituted a competent vaginal antiseptic and reliable germ destroyer, and was an effective prophylactic against venereal diseases and a dependable contraceptive, facts being her said product was not a competent vaginal antiseptic and reliable germ destroyer, nor effective prophylactic against such diseases, nor dependable contraceptive;

(b) Represented that her said Ladies Aid No. 4 was a competent and effective treatment for leucorrhoea, vaginitis, pruritus vulvae, and cases of fetid discharges, facts being said product was not such a treatment for said conditions, which are only symptoms that arise from vaginal and uterine infections or other pathological conditions, and can only be corrected by eliminating the causes thereof, and at best said preparation could only be useful as an accessory to the treatment of such causes;

(c) Represented that her said Promeco Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets was a new scientific discovery and constituted an effective remedy for every condition for which physicians might prescribe cod liver oil, facts being said product was not a new scientific discovery nor an effective remedy for every such condition; and said Ladies Aid reducing preparation was not safe and harmless, in that two of its ingredients, aloin and phenolphthalein, are irritating cathartics, the repeated use of which would result in watery evacuations of the bowels, and repeated use of said latter drug produces skin eruptions and keratosis in some persons, while such use of former drug may cause colitis with resulting atony of the bowel, and any weight which might be lost as result of taking said preparation would follow solely because of the withdrawal of water from the tissues as a result of harmful excessive purgation; and

(c) Failed to reveal, in her said advertisements, that use of said Ladies Aid Reducing Tablets, under conditions prescribed therein or such conditions as are customary or usual, might result in serious or irreparable injury to health;

With effect of misleading and deceiving substantial portion of purchasing public and advertisements were true, and of inducing a portion of such public, because of such erroneous and mistaken belief, to purchase her said medicinal preparations:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the conditions above set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constituted unfair and

With tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive substantial part of purchasing public into mistaken belief that such representations were true, and with result that, as consequence of such belief thus engendered, substantial part of such public was induced to and did purchase its said products:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice of the public and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Before Mr. John W. Addison, trial examiner.

Mr. S. Brogdyne Teu, II, for the Commission.

Mr. Robert E. Dunne, of Chicago, Ill., for respondent.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that New Method File Grinders, Inc., a corporation, trading as Automobile Body Supply Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, New Method File Grinders Co., Inc., is a corporation organized and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Illinois, and having its principal office and place of business at 5120 South Halsted Street, city of Chicago, State of Illinois. It also trades as Automobile Body Supply Co.
Par. 2. Respondent is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of used, reconditioned, and resharpened files. Respondent causes its said product when sold to be transported from its place of business in the State of Illinois to purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. At all times mentioned herein, respondent has maintained a course of trade in said product in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 3. In the course and conduct of its business, it has been and is the practice of respondent to purchase used or second-hand files from automobile manufacturers, garages, automobile body repair establishments, and from other sources. These files are shipped to the respondent's place of business where they are cleaned, reconditioned, or resharpened, and then resold to the trade.

Par. 4. Respondent solicits business through the medium of advertising matter having a general interstate circulation, and in said advertisements respondent represents to purchasers and prospective purchasers that its said files are water damaged, or have been through a fire and were damaged by water, but are otherwise new and unused.

In truth and in fact, the files represented by the respondent as being water damaged but otherwise new and unused, are files which actually have been used by mechanics or other operators and artisans, and which thereafter have been purchased by the respondent in the normal course and conduct of its business for the purpose of reconditioning and sale.

Par. 5. The practice of the respondent in representing to the purchasing trade that the files offered by it are new, except for water damage, when in truth and in fact said files are not new, water damaged files, but are in fact used files purchased by the respondent in the normal course of its business, has the tendency and capacity to and does mislead and deceive a substantial part of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that respondent's files are new files, water damaged. As a result of such erroneous and mistaken belief engendered as herein set forth, a substantial part of the purchasing public have been induced to purchase, and have purchased, respondent's said product.

Par. 6. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.
Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on February 6, 1940, issued, and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent New Method File Grinders, Inc., charging it with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce, in violation of the provisions of said act. On February 29, 1940, the respondent filed its answer. Thereafter this matter coming on for the taking of testimony, an agreed statements of facts was read into the record whereby it was stipulated and agreed that such statement of facts might be taken as the facts in the case, and in lieu of testimony in support of the charges in the complaint, or in opposition thereto. Respondent thereafter through counsel further agreed to waive the filing of a trial examiner's report upon the evidence, the filing of briefs and all other intervening procedure. Thereafter this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, answer, and agreed statement of facts, and the Commission having duly considered the same and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

Docket 4096. Complaint, Apr. 23, 1940—Decision, Oct. 15, 1940

Where a corporation engaged in sale and distribution of cigars, candy, and various other articles of merchandise, including certain assortments thereof which were so packed and assembled as to involve use of game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme when merchandise in question was sold and distributed to consumers, and included (1) number of cigars and punchboard, to be used in sale and distribution of said cigars under a plan and in accordance with said board's explanatory legend, by which purchaser or customer received for penny paid 1, 3, 5, or 10 cigars in accordance with success or failure in selecting by chance from board designated numbers, person selecting last number in each of sections into which board was divided received one cigar, and those not making such selection or securing one of said designated numbers received nothing, and (2) other assortments with punchboards and push cards for use in sale and distribution of merchandise involved to consuming public by means of sales plans or methods similar to that above described and varying therefrom in detail only;

Sold such assortments, as above set forth, to dealer or retailer purchasers, by whom they were exposed and sold to purchasing public in accordance with aforesaid sales plans or methods, and thereby supplied to and placed in hands of others means of conducting lottery in sale and distribution of their merchandise in accordance with such plans or methods, involving game of chance or sale of a chance to procure article of merchandise at price much less than normal retail price thereof, contrary to an established public policy of the United States Government, and in violation of criminal laws, and in competition with many who are unwilling to adopt and use said or any sales plans or methods involving a game of chance or sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other sales plans or methods that are contrary to public policy, and refrain therefrom;

With result that many dealers in and ultimate purchasers of said or like or similar merchandise were attracted by such sales plans or methods employed by it in the sale and distribution of its merchandise and element of chance involved therein, and were thereby induced to buy such merchandise in preference to that offered and sold by its said competitors who do not use same or equivalent sales plans or methods, and with effect, through use of such plans or methods by it and because of said game of chance, of diverting unfairly trade to it from its competitors aforesaid who do not use same or equivalent sales plans or methods; to the substantial injury of competition in commerce:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.
Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that C. H. Stallman & Son, Inc., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, C. H. Stallman & Son, Inc., is a corporation organized and doing business under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, with its principal office and place of business located at 31 West Philadelphia Street, York, Pa. Respondent is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of cigars, candy, and various other articles of merchandise to dealers. Respondent causes, and has caused, said merchandise, when sold, to be shipped or transported from its aforesaid principal place of business in the State of Pennsylvania to purchasers thereof in the various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia at their respective points of location. There is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, a course of trade by said respondent in such merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of its business, respondent is, and has been, in competition with other corporations and with individuals and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar merchandise in commerce between and among various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 2. In the course and conduct of its business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells, and has sold, to dealers certain assortments of said merchandise so packed and assembled as to involve the use of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme when said merchandise is sold and distributed to the consumer thereof. One of said assortments consists of a number of cigars, together with a device commonly called a punchboard. Sales are 1 cent each. Said punchboard is divided into sections, and each section contains a number or small sealed tube in which a slip of paper with a number printed thereon is concealed. The board bears legends or statements informing purchasers and prospective purchasers that persons selecting certain designated numbers each receive 10 of said cigars; that persons selecting certain other designated numbers each receive 5 cigars; that persons selecting certain other designated numbers each receive 3 cigars; that persons selecting certain other designated numbers each receive 1 cigar; and that the person selecting the last number in each of said sections receives 1 cigar. Persons not successful in selecting one of said designated numbers receive nothing for their money. The said numbers are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until said slips of paper have been punched or removed from said board. The said cigars are thus distributed to the purchasing public wholly by lot or chance.

The respondent sells and distributes, and has sold and distributed, various assortments of said merchandise, together with punchboards and push cards, but all of said assortments of merchandise are sold and distributed to the consuming public by means of sales plans or methods similar to the one hereinabove described, varying only in detail.

Par. 3. Retail dealers who purchase respondent's said assortments of merchandise expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the aforesaid sales plans or methods. Respondent thus supplies to, and places in the hands of, others a means of conducting lotteries in the sale and distribution of its merchandise in accordance with the sales plans or methods hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said sales plans or methods in the sale of its merchandise and the sale of said merchandise by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plans or methods is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of criminal laws.

Par. 4. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above alleged involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure an article of merchandise at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell or distribute merchandise in competition with respondent, as above alleged, are unwilling to adopt and use said sales plans or methods or any sales plans or methods involving a game of chance or a sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other sales plans or methods that are contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many dealers in, and ultimate purchasers of, said merchandise or like or similar merchandise, are attracted by said sales plans or methods employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of its merchandise and the element of chance involved therein and are thereby induced to buy respondent's merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or equivalent sales plans or methods. The use of said sales plans or methods by respondent, because of said game of chance, has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade to respondent from its said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent sales plans or methods and as a result thereof substantial injury is being, and has been, done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on April 23, 1940, issued and thereafter served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent C. H. Stallman & Son, Inc., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On October 1, 1940, the respondent filed its answer in which answer it admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to the facts. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and the answer thereto and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent, C. H. Stallman & Son, Inc., is a corporation organized and doing business under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, with its principal office and place of business located at 31 West Philadelphia Street, York, Pa. Respondent is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of cigars, candy, and various other articles of merchandise to dealers. Respondent causes, and has caused, said merchandise, when sold, to be shipped or transported from its aforesaid principal place of business in the State of Pennsylvania to purchasers thereof.
Findings

in the various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia at their respective points of location. There is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, a course of trade by said respondent in such merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of its business, respondent is, and has been, in competition with other corporations and with individuals and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar merchandise in commerce between and among various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells, and has sold, to dealers certain assortments of said merchandise so packed and assembled as to involve the use of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme when said merchandise is sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. One of said assortments consists of a number of cigars, together with a device commonly called a punchboard. Sales are 1 cent each. Said punchboard is divided into sections, and each section contains a number of small sealed tubes in which a slip of paper with a number printed thereon is concealed. The board bears legends or statements informing purchasers and prospective purchasers that persons selecting certain designated numbers each receive 10 of said cigars; that persons selecting certain other designated numbers each receive 5 cigars; that persons selecting certain other designated numbers each receive 3 cigars; that persons selecting certain other designated numbers each receive 1 cigar; and that the person selecting the last number in each of said section receives 1 cigar. Persons not successful in selecting one of said designated numbers receive nothing for their money. The said numbers are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until said slips of paper have been punched or removed from said board. The said cigars are thus distributed to the purchasing public wholly by lot or chance.

The respondent sells and distributes, and has sold and distributed, various assortments of said merchandise, together with punchboards and push cards, but all of said assortments of merchandise are sold and distributed to the consuming public by means of sales plans or methods similar to the one hereinabove described varying only in detail.

PAR. 3. Retail dealers who purchase respondent's said assortments of merchandise expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the aforesaid sales plans or methods. Respondent thus supplies to, and places in the hands of, others a means of conducting lotteries in the sale and distribution of its merchandise in accordance with the sales plans or methods hereinabove set forth.
The use by respondent of said sales plans or methods in the sale of its merchandise and the sale of said merchandise by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plans or methods is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of criminal laws.

PAR. 4. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above found involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure an article of merchandise at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell or distribute merchandise in competition with respondent, as above found, are unwilling to adopt and use said sales plans or methods or any sales plans or methods involving a game of chance or a sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other sales plans or methods that are contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many dealers in, and ultimate purchasers of, said merchandise or like or similar merchandise, are attracted by said sales plans or methods employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of its merchandise and the element of chance involved therein and are thereby induced to buy respondent's merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or equivalent sales plans or methods. The use of said sales plans or methods by respondent, because of said game of chance, has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade to respondent from its said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent sales plans or methods and as a result thereof substantial injury is being, and has been, done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and states that it waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, C. H. Stallman & Son, Inc., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of cigars, candy, or any other merchandise in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

3. Selling or otherwise distributing any merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

Par. 7. The use by the respondents of the aforesaid false, misleading, and deceptive statements and representations with respect to their said preparation, disseminated as aforesaid, has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such statements, representations, and advertisements are true, and that such preparation is a safe, competent, and effective treatment for delayed menstruation, and to induce directly or indirectly, the purchase by the public of the respondents' said preparation.

Par. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

On August 20, 1940, the respondents filed their answers, in which answers they admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and the answer thereto, and the Commission having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

PAR. 4. Through the use of the statements and representations hereinaabove set forth, and others similar thereto not specifically set out herein, the respondents have represented, directly and by implication,

PAR. 6. In addition to the representations hereinabove set forth, the respondent has also engaged in the dissemination of false advertisements in the manner above set forth, in that said advertisements so disseminated fail to reveal facts material in the light of such representations and fail to reveal that the use of said preparation under the conditions prescribed in said advertisements or under such conditions as are customary or usual, may result in injury to health.

PAR. 7. The use by the respondents of the aforesaid false, misleading, and deceptive statements and representations with respect to their said preparation, disseminated as aforesaid, has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such statements, representations, and advertisements are true, and that such preparation is a safe, competent, and effective treatment for delayed menstruation, and to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase by the public of the respondents' said preparation.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of the respondents, in which answer respondents admit all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and state that they waive all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondents, Lenard Gotlieb and Sarah Gotlieb, individually and trading as Reed's Cut-Rate Store and as Fountain Cut-Rate Stores, or trading under any other name or names, their agents, representatives, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, or distribution of their medicinal preparation designated as "Prescription Female Capsules" and as "Lady Lydia Female Capsules," or any other medicinal preparation composed of substantially similar ingredients or possessing substantially similar properties, whether sold under the same names or under any other name or names, do forthwith cease and desist from directly or indirectly:

WAIN'S LABORATORY, INC.

Docket 4203. Complaint, July 30, 1940—Decision, Oct. 18, 1940

Where a corporation engaged in sale and distribution of its "Ama-Gon" or, as subsequently designated, "Wain's Compound," drug-containing preparation for bronchial asthma and coughs; in advertisements thereof which it disseminated and caused to be disseminated through the mails, newspapers, circulars, and other advertising matter, and in commerce and otherwise, and which were intended or likely to induce purchase of its said product—

(a) Represented, directly and by implication, in its various statements and representations thus made, and which purported to be descriptive of the remedial, curative, and therapeutic properties of said preparation, that it was an effective and competent treatment for bronchial asthma and coughs, and that its use gave immediate or prompt relief from the paroxysms of asthma, and that it was entirely safe and harmless and might be used without danger of ill effects upon health of user;

Facts being such representations were grossly exaggerated, false and misleading, it was not an effective or competent treatment for bronchial asthma or coughs, and had no therapeutic value in treatment of such conditions in excess of furnishing temporary symptomatic relief from paroxysms of asthma and bronchial irritations, and, by virtue of potassium iodide content in quantity present, was not in all cases safe or harmless, but might, in some instances, cause injury to health if taken under conditions prescribed in said advertisements or under such conditions as are customary or usual, and, thus used, might be harmful to those having healed lesions of arrested tuberculosis or goitre; and

(b) Failed to reveal, in its said advertisements disseminated as aforesaid, facts material in the light of its representations and that use thereof, under the conditions prescribed in such advertisements or under such conditions as are customary or usual, might result in injury to health;

With effect of misleading substantial portion of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that all of such false statements and representations were true, and of inducing substantial portion of such public to purchase its said preparation because of such erroneous and mistaken belief engendered as above set forth:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Mr. John M. Russell for the Commission.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Wain's Laboratory, Respondent, Wain's Laboratory, Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of California, having its office and principal place of business at 4687 Hollywood Boulevard, Hollywood, Calif.

PAR. 2. Respondent is now and has been for more than 2 years last past engaged in the business of selling and distributing a certain preparation containing drugs, formerly designated Ama-Gon and now offered for sale and sold under the name "Wain's Compound," recommended for use in the treatment of bronchial asthma and bronchial coughs. Respondent sells its said product to members of the purchasing public situated in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and causes said product when sold by it, to be transported from its place of business in the State of California to the purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in its said product in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business, the respondent has disseminated, and is now disseminating, and has caused, and is now causing, the dissemination of false advertisements concerning its said product by the United States mails, and by various other means in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of its said product; and respondent has also disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused, and is now causing, the dissemination of false advertisements concerning its said product, by various means, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of its said product in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act. Among and typical of the false, misleading, and deceptive statements and representations contained in said false advertisements, disseminated and caused to be disseminated, as hereinbefore set forth, by the United States mails, by advertisements in newspapers, and by circulars and other advertising literature, are the following:

PAR. 4. Through the use of the statements and representations hereinabove set forth, and other similar statements and representations not specifically set out herein, all of which purport to be descriptive of the remedial, curative, and therapeutic properties of respondent's said preparation, respondent directly and by implication represents that said preparation is an effective and competent treatment for bronchial asthma and bronchial coughs; that its use gives immediate or prompt relief from the paroxysms of asthma; that said preparation is entirely safe and harmless and may be used without danger of ill effects upon the health of the user.

PAR. 5. The foregoing representations are grossly exaggerated, false and misleading. In truth and in fact, respondent's preparation is not an effective or competent treatment for bronchial asthma or bronchial coughs, and has no therapeutic value in the treatment of such conditions in excess of furnishing temporary symptomatic relief from the paroxysms of asthma and bronchial irritations.

Said preparation is not in all cases safe or harmless as it contains potassium iodide in quantities sufficient to cause in same instances injury to health if taken under the conditions prescribed in said advertisements or under such conditions as are customary or usual.

The use of said preparation as aforesaid may be harmful to those having healed lesions of arrested tuberculosis or goitre. In arrested cases of tuberculosis the tendency of potassium iodide is to resolve the fibrous tissues about the healed lesions and thereby to reactivate the tuberculous process. The hazard in cases of goitre is the tendency to convert a benign adenoma to a toxic adenoma.

PAR. 6. In addition to the representations hereinabove set forth, the respondent has also engaged in the dissemination of false advertisements in the manner above set forth, in that said advertisements so disseminated fail to reveal facts material in the light of such representations and fail to reveal that the use of said preparation under the conditions prescribed in said advertisements or under such conditions as are customary or usual, may result in injury to health.

PAR. 7. The use by the respondent of the foregoing false, deceptive and misleading statements and representations disseminated as aforesaid, has had, and now has, the tendency and capacity to, and does, mislead a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that all of such false statements and representations are true and to induce a substantial portion of the purchasing public to purchase respondent's said preparation because of such erroneous and mistaken belief engendered as above set forth.

Par. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on July 30, 1940, issued, and on August 3, 1940, served, its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondent, Wain's Laboratory, Inc., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On September 11, 1940, respondent filed its answer, in which answer it admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waived all intervening procedure and further hearings as to said facts. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and answer thereto, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Wain's Laboratory, Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of California, having its office and principal place of business at 4687 Hollywood Boulevard, Hollywood, Calif.

Par. 2. Respondent is now and has been for more than two years last past engaged in the business of selling and distributing a certain preparation containing drugs, formerly designated Ama-Gon and now offered for sale and sold under the name "Wain's Compound," recommended for use in the treatment of bronchial asthma and bronchial coughs. Respondent sells its said product to members of the purchasing public situated in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and causes said product when sold by it, to be transported from its place of business in the State of California to the purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in its said product in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business, the respondent has disseminated, and is now disseminating, and has caused, and is now causing, the dissemination of false advertisements concerning its said product by the United States mails, and by various other means in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Com-mision Act, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of its said product; and respondent has also disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused, and is now causing, the dissemination of false advertisements concerning its said product, by various means, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of its said product in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act. Among and typical of the false, misleading and deceptive statements and representations contained in said false advertisements, disseminated and caused to be disseminated, as here-inbefore set forth, by the United States mails, by advertisements in newspapers, and by circulars and other advertising literature, are the following:

And Bronchial Coughs

it is taken into the blood stream and starts its work. No matter how long you have suffered from torturing attacks of Bronchial Asthma and Bronchial Coughs, we want you to prove the value of Wain's Compound to yourself today.

pound helps you, or your MONEY BACK is GUARANTEED. Sold at all OWL DRUG PAR. 4. Through the use of the statements and representations hereinabove set forth, and other similar statements and representations not specifically set out herein, all of which purport to be descriptive of the remedial, curative, and therapeutic properties of respondent's said preparation, respondent directly and by implication represents that said preparation is an effective and competent treatment for bronchial asthma and bronchial coughs; that its use gives immediate or prompt relief from the paroxysms of asthma; that said preparation is entirely safe and harmless and may be used without danger of ill effects upon the health of the user.

PAR. 5. The foregoing representations are grossly exaggerated, false and misleading. In truth and in fact, respondent's preparation is not an effective or competent treatment for bronchial asthma or bronchial coughs, and has no therapeutic value in the treatment of such conditions in excess of furnishing temporary symptomatic relief from the paroxysms of asthma and bronchial irritations.

Said preparation is not in all cases safe or harmless as it contains potassium iodide in quantities sufficient to cause in some instances injury to health if taken under the conditions prescribed in said advertisements or under such conditions as are customary or usual.

The use of said preparation as aforesaid may be harmful to those having healed lesions of arrested tuberculosis or goitre. In arrested cases of tuberculosis the tendency of potassium iodide is to resolve the fibrous tissues about the healed lesions and thereby to reactivate the tuberculous process. The hazard in cases of goitre is the tendency to convert a benign adenoma to a toxic adenoma.

PAR. 6. In addition to the representations hereinabove set forth, the respondent has also engaged in the dissemination of false advertisements in the manner above set forth, in that said advertisements so disseminated fail to reveal facts material in the light of such representations and fail to reveal that the use of said preparation under the conditions prescribed in said advertisements or under such conditions as are customary or usual, may result in injury to health.

PAR. 7. The use by the respondent of the foregoing false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations disseminated as aforesaid has had, and now has, the tendency and capacity to, and does, mislead a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that all of such false statements and representations are true and to induce a substantial portion of the purchasing public to purchase respondent's said preparation because of such erroneous and mistaken belief engendered as above set forth.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of the respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and states that it waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made it findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Wain's Laboratory, Inc., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, or distribution of its medicinal preparation designated "Wain's Compound," or any other medicinal preparation, composed of substantially similar ingredients, or possessing substantially similar therapeutic properties, whether sold under the same name or under any other name, do forthwith cease and desist from directly or indirectly:

1. Disseminating or causing to be disseminated any advertisement (a) by means of the United States mails or (b) by any means in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, which advertisement represents directly or through inference that said preparation has any therapeutic value in the treatment of bronchial asthma or bronchial coughs, in excess of relief from the paroxysms of asthma and bronchial irritations; that said preparation is in all cases safe or harmless; or which advertisement fails to reveal that said preparation should not be used by those having tuberculosis or goitre (provided, however, that such advertisement need contain only a statement that said preparation should be used only as directed on the label thereof when such label contains a warning to the effect that the preparation should not be used by those having tuberculosis or goitre).

2. Disseminating or causing to be disseminated any advertisement by any means for the purpose of inducing, or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, of said preparation, which advertisement contains any of the representations prohibited in paragraph 1 hereof, or which advertisement fails to reveal that said preparation should not be used by those having tuberculosis or goitre (provided, however, that such advertisement need contain only a statement that said preparation should be used only as directed on the label thereof when such label contains a warning to the effect that the preparation should not be used by those having tuberculosis or goitre).

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall within 10 days after service upon it of this order file with the Commission an interim report in writing stating whether it intends to comply with this order and, if so, the manner and form in which it intends to comply; and that within 60 days after service upon it of this order, said respondent shall file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

Mr. D. C. Daniel and Mr. L. P. Allen, Jr., for the Commission.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Harry Pure, individually and trading as Trading Sales Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent is an individual trading under the name of Trading Sales Co., with his principal office and place of business located at 354 West Thirty-eighth Street, New York City, N. Y. He is now, and for some time last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of manicure sets, electric lamps, leather wallets, pictures, silverware and chinaware, clothing, bedding, clocks, watches, cameras, dolls, tool sets, cosmetics, and other articles of novelty merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent causes and has caused said products, when sold, to be shipped or transported from his place of business in the State of New York to purchasers thereof located in the various States of the United States other than the State of New York, and in the District of Columbia at their respective points of location. There is now, and has been for some time last past, a course of trade by said respondent in such merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business, respondent is in competition with other individuals and with partnerships and corporations likewise engaged in the sale and distribution of similar or like articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and distributes said articles of merchandise by means of a lottery scheme or game of chance. The respondent distributes or causes to be distributed to representatives and prospective representatives certain advertising literature including, among other things, a sales circular. Respondent's merchandise is distributed to the purchasers thereof in the following manner: A portion of said sales circular consists of a list on which are design­ nated a number of items of merchandise and the respective prices thereof. Adjacent to the list is printed and set out a device commonly called a pull card. Said pull card consists of a number of tabs under each of which is concealed the name of an article of merchandise and the price thereof. The name of the article of merchandise and the price thereof are so concealed that the purchasers and prospective purchasers of the tabs or chances are unable to ascertain which article of merchandise they are to receive or the price which they are to pay until after the tab is separated from the card. When a purchaser has detached a tab and learned what article of merchandise he is to receive and the price thereof, his name is written on the list opposite the named article of merchandise. Some of said articles of merchandise have purported and represented retail values and regular prices greater than the prices designated for them, but are distributed to the customer for the price designated on the tab which he pulls. The apparent greater values and higher regular prices of some of said articles of merchandise as compared to the prices the customer will be required to pay in the event he secures said articles, induces members of the purchasing public to purchase the tabs or chances in the hope that they will receive articles of merchandise having greater values and higher regular prices than the designated prices to be paid therefor. The facts as to whether a purchaser of one of said pull card tabs receives an article of greater value than the price designated for same on said
Complaint

31 F. T. C.

When a person or representative operating a pull card has succeeded in selling all of the tabs or chances, collected the amounts called for and remitted the said sums to the respondent, the said respondent thereupon ships to said representative the merchandise sold by means of said card, together with a premium for the representative as compensation for operating the pull card and selling the said merchandise. Said operator delivers the merchandise to the purchasers of tabs from said pull card in accordance with the list filled out when the tabs were detached from the pull card.

Respondent sells and distributes various assortments of said merchandise and furnishes various pull cards for use in the sale and distribution of such merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. Such plan or method varies in detail, but the above described plan or method is illustrative of the principal involved.

Par. 3. The persons to whom respondent furnishes the said pull cards use the same in purchasing, selling, and distributing respondent's merchandise in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of such merchandise in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said method in the sale of his merchandise and the sale of such merchandise by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said method is a practice of the sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and which is in violation of the criminal laws.

Par. 4. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above alleged involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure an article of merchandise at a price much less than the apparent normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell and distribute merchandise in commerce as herein defined in competition with respondent as above alleged are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other method which is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by respondent's said method and by the element of chance involved in the sale of said merchandise in the manner above described, and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors.
of respondent who do not use the same or an equivalent method. The use of said method by respondent, because of said game of chance, has the capacity and tendency to and does unfairly divert trade and custom to respondent from his said competitors and to exclude from the novelty merchandise trade all competitors who are unwilling to and who do not use the same or an equivalent method because the same is unlawful. As a result thereof substantial injury is being and has been done to said competitors of respondent.

PAR. 5. In the course and conduct of his business as hereinabove related, respondent has caused various false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations to appear in his advertising matter as aforesaid, of which the following are examples but are not all-inclusive:

Absolutely Free—Gifts For All—Absolutely Free.
How to Get Your Big Reward Premium Without Any Cost.
Select any gift from this folder that you desire.
It Will be Yours—at absolutely No Cost.
Special Offer—2 Extra Surprise Gifts—Free.
All Shipping Charges are Paid by Us.

The effect of the foregoing false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations of the respondent in selling and offering for sale such items of merchandise as hereinabove referred to is to mislead and deceive a substantial part of the purchasing public in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, by inducing them to mistakenly believe (1) that respondent gives away certain of his said articles of merchandise without cost to his said representatives, and (2) that respondent prepaes all shipping charges on all of his said articles of merchandise.

PAR. 6. In truth and in fact, none of respondent's premiums or so-called gifts are given away “free” or “without cost,” but said premiums or so-called gifts which are represented as being “free” to said representatives are either purchased with labor by them, or the price of said premiums or so-called gifts is included in the price of other articles of merchandise which the representatives must sell or procure the sale of before said premiums or so-called gifts can be procured by them. For a number of premiums or so-called gifts, certain sums of money must be paid by said representatives in addition to the labor performed or services rendered. Respondent does not prepay all of the shipping charges on his said products, but said representatives are required to pay certain specified sums of money as shipping charges on a number of respondent's said articles of merchandise.
Findings

Par. 7. The use by respondent of the false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations set forth herein has had and now has the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive and has misled and deceived a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that such statements and representations are true, and into the purchase of substantial quantities of said respondent's products as the result of such erroneous belief. There are among the competitors of respondent as mentioned in paragraph 1 hereof, manufacturers and distributors of like or similar products who do not make such false, deceptive and misleading statements and representations concerning the method of sale and distribution of their products. By the statements and representations aforesaid, trade is unfairly diverted to respondent from such competitors, and as a result thereof substantial injury is being done and has been done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on May 6, 1938, issued and thereafter served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent Harry Pure, individually and trading as Trading Sales Company, charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by D. C. Daniel and L. P. Allen, Jr., attorneys for the Commission (respondent having offered no proof in opposition to the allegations of the complaint), before Randolph Preston, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, brief in support of the complaint (respondent having filed no brief and oral argument having been waived); and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent Harry Pure is an individual trading under the name of Trading Sales Co., with his principal office and place of business located in New York City, N. Y. Respondent is now, and for more than four years last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of manicure sets, electric lamps, leather wallets, pictures, silverware, chinaware, clothing, bedding, clocks, watches, cameras, dolls, tool chests, cigarette lighters, jewelry, cosmetics, teaspoons, and various other articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent causes, and has caused said products, when sold to be shipped or transported from his aforesaid place of business in the State of New York to purchasers thereof located in the various States of the United States other than the State of New York and in the District of Columbia, at their respective points of location. There is now, and has been for all of the time mentioned hereinabove, a course of trade by said respondent in such merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In so conducting said business, respondent was, and is, in competition with other individuals and with partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar articles of merchandise as those sold and distributed by respondent in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In so conducting his said business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and distributes, and has sold and distributed, said merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. Respondent's said business is, and has been, conducted in substantially the following manner: Respondent distributes and causes to be distributed to representatives or prospective representatives an advertising or sales circular. Said sales circular is used in the sale and distribution of said merchandise in the following manner: On the last or back page of said sales circular there appears picturizations of a number of said articles of merchandise and printed matter descriptive thereof. There also appears on said page a list of 22 articles of merchandise and the prices thereof, with space provided for the recording of the name of each purchaser opposite the name of the article of merchandise purchased. Adjacent to said list there is a device commonly called a pull card. Said pull card consists of a number of small tabs, on the reverse side of each of which there appears the name of an article of merchandise and the price thereof, the prices of said articles of merchandise varying in amounts from 9 cents to 39 cents. Each purchaser separates or pulls one of said tabs from said device. The name of the article of merchandise and the price thereof are so concealed that the purchasers and prospective purchasers are unable to ascertain which article of merchandise they are to receive or the amount of money they are to pay, until after the tabs are separated or pulled from said card. When a purchaser has separated or pulled a tab from the card and learned what article of merchandise he is to receive, his name is written on the list opposite the named article of merchandise. Some of said articles of merchandise have retail values and regular prices greater than the prices so designated for them, while others of said articles of merchandise have retail prices less than the prices designated for them, but they all are distributed to the customers for the prices designated under the tabs that such customers pull. The facts as to which articles of merchandise the purchaser is to receive; and the amount he is required to pay therefor are thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

The said 22 articles of merchandise sell for $7.65, and when the person or representative operating the said pull card has sold all of said 22 articles of merchandise and collected said amount, he may retain $3 for his services and remit the balance of the $7.65 to respondent, and the respondent in turn ships said 22 articles of merchandise to said person or representative, who distributes the same to the individual purchasers thereof; or said person or representative remits the $7.65 to respondent, and respondent ships the said 22 articles of merchandise to said person or representative, together with a premium for said person or representative in payment for services in so selling said articles of merchandise. Such premiums are illustrated and described in respondent's circular, and the person or representative desiring such a premium may make his selection from said premiums.

The respondent has distributed by mail 250,000 of said sales circulars to customers and prospective customers in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. As a result thereof, the respondent has received and filled approximately 16,000 orders for said 22 articles of merchandise.
Immediately above the said pull card device there appears the following:

NOTICE TO PURCHASERS:—On the back of each slip is printed the price of an article. If after deliberation you decide that you want the article, pay the holder of this book the price shown on the slip. If you do not want the article you need not buy it.

The Commission finds that such notice was not called to the attention of, or seen by, the purchasers of said 22 articles of merchandise from said pull tab device and that said 22 articles of merchandise were, in fact, distributed as hereinabove described.

Par. 3. The Commission finds that the persons or representatives to whom respondent has furnished or supplied said pull cards have used the same in purchasing, selling, and distributing respondent's merchandise in accordance with the sales plan or method as described in paragraph 2 hereof. Respondent has thus supplied to, or placed in the hands of, others a means of selling and distributing said merchandise by means of a game of chance or lottery scheme in accordance with said sales plans. The use of said sales plan by respondent in the sale and distribution of his said merchandise, and the sale thereof by the use and aid of said sales plan, is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the government of the United States and in violation of criminal law.

Par. 4. The Commission finds that the sale of said merchandise in the manner described in paragraph 2 hereof involves a game of chance, or a sale of a chance, to procure an article of merchandise at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Respondent has many competitors, who sell and distribute merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, who are unwilling to adopt and use said sales plan or method in the sale of their merchandise, or any other sales plan or method involving a game of chance, or the sale of a chance, to win something by a chance, or any sales plan or method which is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Because of said element of chance involved in said sales plan or method employed by respondent as hereinabove described, many persons have been induced to buy and sell respondent's merchandise in preference to the merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors.

Par. 5. The Commission finds that in conducting his business as hereinabove described, respondent causes, and has caused, various false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations to appear in his said sales circular, which said statements and representations are as follows:

Absolutely Free—Gifts for All—Absolutely Free.
How to Get Your Big Reward Premium Without Any Cost.
Select any gift from this folder that you desire. It Will be Yours—at absolutely No Cost.
Special Offer—2 Extra Surprise Gifts—Free.
All Shipping Charges are Paid By Us.

By such statements and representations the respondent, in offering for sale and selling said articles of merchandise, misleads and de-ceives, and has misled and deceived, a substantial number of the members of the purchasing public into the mistaken belief that respondent gives away certain of his said articles of merchandise without cost to the operators of said pull cards, and further that the respondent pays all shipping charges on all of his said articles of merchandise.

PAR. 6. The Commission finds that, in truth and in fact, none of respondent's said articles of merchandise are given away without cost to said operators or representatives, but that the said operators or representatives, before they receive such articles of merchandise or premiums, must sell, or procure the sale of, 22 designated articles of merchandise and remit the amount procured by the sale of said 22 designated articles of merchandise. Said operator or person who selects respondent's reward premium No. 201, in addition to the sale of said merchandise as hereinabove described, must also remit an additional $1 before said premium can be procured by said operator or person.
The Commission finds that the respondent does not pay all of the shipping charges on all of his merchandise, but, in truth and in fact, the operators or persons who desire respondent's reward premium
No. 201 are required to pay an additional $1 as a shipping charge on said premium before said operator or person will receive the same.

PAR. 7. The Commission finds that said statements and representations are false, deceptive, and misleading and have had, and now have, the tendency and capacity to deceive and mislead a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the mistaken and erroneous belief that said statements and representations are true; and to cause the purchasing public to purchase a substantial quantity of respondent's merchandise as a result thereof. There are many of respondent's competitors who are and have been engaged in the sale and distribution of merchandise like or similar to that sold by re-spendent, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, who do not use such false, misleading and deceptive statements and representations in connection with the sale and distribution of their merchandise.
PAR. 8. As a result of the use of said sales plan described in paragraph 2 hereof, and said statements and representations by respondent, trade is being, and has been, unfairly diverted to respondent from such competitors, and substantial injury is being, and has been, done to said competitors by respondent in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondent, testimony and other evidence taken before Randolph Preston, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint (respondent having offered no proof in opposition thereto), brief filed herein by counsel for the Commission (respondent not having filed brief and oral argument having been waived), and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Harry Pure, individually, and trading as Trading Sales Company, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of manicure sets, electric lamps, leather wallets, pictures, silverware, chinaware, clothing, bedding, clocks, watches, cameras, dolls, tool chests, cigarette lighters, jewelry, cosmetics, teaspoons, or any other articles of merchandise in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Supplying to or placing in the hands of others push or pull cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices which are to be used or may be used in the sale or distribution of said merchandise to the public by the use thereof.

2. Shipping, mailing, or transporting to agents or to distributors, or to members of the public push or pull cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices which are to be used or may be used in the sale or distribution of said merchandise to the public by the use thereof.
3. Selling or otherwise disposing of any merchandise by the use of push or pull cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices.

4. Using the terms "free" or "without any cost" or any other terms of similar import or meaning to describe or refer to merchandise offered as compensation for distributing respondent's merchandise, unless all of the terms and conditions of such offer are clearly and unequivocally stated in equal conspicuousness and in immediate connection or conjunction with the terms "free" or "without any cost" or any other terms of similar import or meaning and there is no deception as to the price, quality, character, or any other feature of such merchandise or as to the services to be performed in connection with obtaining such merchandise.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.
Where an individual engaged in sale and distribution of correspondence courses in which he outlined methods of physical culture, exercise, and instructions as to diet intended to improve health and physical condition of purchasers thereof—

Represented, through statements and claims disseminated in commerce through the mail and advertisements in newspapers and magazines of general circulation and otherwise, directly or by implication, that his courses of instruction would keep everyone in a healthy condition, insuring everyone of big muscles and a huge, robust, powerful body, and would produce health and a perfect functioning of the organisms for all users thereof, and that his book “Puissant Body Building” would show how all users could obtain big muscles and a robust body, and that such courses would enable everyone to become a paragon of strength;

Facts being that, while proper exercise and diet are important factors in building up and preserving health and body strength, they do not constitute all that is necessary to be done to correct ill health or preserve health and strength, and following his instructions as to exercise and diet would not produce health for everyone or keep everyone in a healthy condition, nor insure everyone of big muscles or a huge, robust and powerful body, nor result in the perfect functioning of the human body, his said book would not teach everyone how to obtain such big muscles and powerful body, and his said courses would not enable everyone to become a “paragon of strength”;

With effect of misleading and deceiving substantial portion of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that such false statements, representations, and advertisements were true, and of causing portion of such public, because of such erroneous and mistaken belief, to purchase his said correspondence courses; to the injury of the public in various States and in the District of Columbia:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Mr. Clark Nichols, for the Commission.

Cross & Quinlan, of Philadelphia, Pa., for respondent.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Tommy Loughran, an individual, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent Tommy Loughran is an individual doing business in his own name with his principal office and place of business located at 4 South Fifteenth Street, Philadelphia, Pa. Respondent is now, and has been for several years last past, engaged in the business of preparing and selling correspondence courses which teach methods of building and improving the body physically and improving general health, by use of certain exercises and apparatus and advice about proper food and proper methods of selecting and eating food. Respondent sells such correspondence courses directly to the purchasers thereof by the use of direct advertising through the United States mails and by newspaper and magazine advertising.

In the conduct of his business as aforesaid, respondent has been, and is, engaged in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, by causing his correspondence courses to be mailed from his aforesaid place of business in the State of Pennsylvania to purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in the various States of the United States other than the State of Pennsylvania, and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of his business aforesaid respondent has been and is engaged in preparing courses of instruction wherein he teaches the purchasers thereof in several lessons how to breathe properly, how to use certain apparatus he furnishes with the lessons and how to exercise the different external and internal muscles through different setting up exercises. In several of the lessons he explains the qualities of different foods, advising which classes and kinds of food his students should eat in order to obtain optimum health. He assures his students through the correspondence courses that if they follow his instruction and perform the exercises therein set forth and eat the foods he mentions and recommends, perfect health will be produced and maintained and large muscles and a powerful, robust body will be built; that his object is to spread the gospel of perfect health and puissant body building and that if students and purchasers of his courses follow his teachings they will become paragons of strength.

All of the statements and claims aforesaid are disseminated in commerce as hereinabove described, by use of the United States mails and by advertising in newspapers and magazines of general circulation.
Among and typical of the statements made in said false advertisements disseminated and caused to be disseminated as aforesaid, with reference to such correspondence courses are the following:

You will find my rules for proper living sound, and following them will keep you in health.

Tells how to build a powerful body.

Now do you believe me when I say my big ambition in life is to spread the gospel of perfect health and Puissant Body Building? Where on earth could you expect to get this big, massive body with its perfectly functioning organism for such a ridiculous price as I am passing it out today? I only wish someone had offered it to me.

Do you want big muscles and a huge robust body? My book "Puissant Body Building" is absolutely free.

PAR. 3. Through the use of said statements in said advertising, disseminated as aforesaid, and others similar thereto not herein set out, all of which purport to represent the benefits to the general health and physical condition of the purchasers and users of respondent's correspondence courses, the respondent represents, directly and by implication, that his course of instruction will keep every one in a healthy condition; will insure everyone big muscles, and a huge, robust, powerful body; that his course of study will produce health and perfect functioning of the organism for all users thereof; that his book "Puissant Body Building" will show how all users can obtain big muscles and a robust body; and that his course will enable everyone to become a paragon of strength.

In truth and in fact respondent's course will not produce health for everyone nor keep everyone in a healthy condition. It will not insure everyone big muscles or a huge, robust, and powerful body. It will not produce perfect health and perfect functioning of the organism for all who use it. Respondent's book "Puissant Body Building" will not show everyone how to obtain big muscles and a powerful body, and the course of instruction will not enable everyone to become a paragon of strength. While proper exercise and diet are important factors in building up and preserving health and body strength, they are not the only ones. On account of physiological and other factors, many people, even though following such course of instruction and diet, cannot attain perfect health or perfect functioning of the body organism, nor can they obtain huge, robust or powerful bodies nor are they enabled to have big muscles or a powerful body, nor become paragons of strength.
Par. 4. The use by the respondent of the foregoing deceptive and misleading statements and representations with respect to the beneficial effects of his course of study has had and now has the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such statements, representations and advertisements are true and causes a portion of the purchasing public, because of such erroneous and mistaken belief, to purchase respondent's course of study.

Par. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on December 16, 1939, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, Tommy Loughran, an individual, charging him with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer, the Commission, by order entered herein, granted respondent's request for permission to withdraw said answer and to substitute therefor an answer admitting all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, which substitute answer was duly filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceeding came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and substitute answer, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. The respondent, Tommy Loughran, an individual with his principal place of business at 4 South Fifteenth Street, Philadelphia, Pa., is now, and has been for several years last past, engaged in the sale and distribution of correspondence courses, wherein he outlines methods of physical culture, exercise, and instructions as to diet intended to improve the health and physical condition of purchasers thereof. Respondent causes, and has caused, said correspondence courses, when sold, to be transported from his place of business in Philadelphia, Pa., to the purchasers thereof located at various points in the several States of the United States, other than the State of Pennsylvania, and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said correspondence courses in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of his business as aforesaid, respondent prepares courses of instruction wherein he teaches the purchasers thereof in several lessons how to breathe properly, how to use certain apparatus he furnishes with the lessons, and how to exercise the various external and internal muscles through different exercises. In other lessons he explains the qualities of foods, advising students as to the qualities of foods they should eat in order to obtain optimum health. He assures his students, through said courses, that, if they follow his instructions and perform the exercises therein set forth and eat the foods he mentions and recommends, perfect health will be produced and maintained and large muscles and powerful, robust body will be built; that his object is to spread the gospel of perfect health and puissant body building; and that if students and purchasers of his correspondence courses follow his teaching they will become paragons of strength. All the statements and claims aforesaid are disseminated in commerce as hereinabove described, by use of the United States mail and by advertisements inserted in newspapers and magazines of general circulation. Among and typical of the statements made in said false advertisements, disseminated and caused to be disseminated, as aforesaid, with reference to such correspondence courses are the following:

You will find my rules for proper living sound, and following them you will keep your health.

Tells how to build a powerful body.

Now do you believe me when I say my big ambition is to spread the gospel of perfect health and Puissant Body Building? Where on earth could you expect to get this big, massive body with its perfect functioning organisms for such a ridiculous price as I am passing it out today? I only wish someone had offered it to me.

Do you want big muscles and a huge robust body? My book, "Puissant Body Building" is absolutely free.

Any man who will sacrifice a few dollars he daily wastes on so-called empty pleasures can become a paragon of strength if he will only settle down to do it.

Par. 3. Through the use of said statements in said advertisements, disseminated as aforesaid, the respondent represents directly or by implication that his courses of instruction will keep everyone in a healthy condition; that they will insure everyone of big muscles, and a huge, robust, powerful body; that his courses of study will produce health and a perfect functioning of the organisms for all users thereof; that his book "Puissant Body Building" will show how all users can obtain big muscles and a robust body; and that his courses will enable everyone to become a paragon of strength.

Par. 4. The following of the instructions as to exercise and diet outlined in said correspondence courses prepared by respondent will not produce health for everyone or keep everyone in a healthy condition. Said exercise and diet outlined in said courses will not insure everyone of big muscles or a huge, robust and powerful body, or result in the perfect functioning of the human body. Respondent's said book "Puissant Body Building" will not teach everyone how to obtain big muscles and a powerful body, and said courses of instruction will not enable everyone to become a "paragon of strength." While proper exercise and diet are important factors in building up and preserving health and body strength, they do not constitute all that is necessary to be done to correct ill health or to preserve health and body strength.

Par. 5. The use by the respondent of the foregoing false, deceptive, and misleading statements, representations, and advertisements with respect to the results to be obtained by all those purchasing said correspondence courses and following the instructions therein outlined has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such false statements, representations, and advertisements are true, and causes a portion of the purchasing public, because of such erroneous and mistaken belief, to purchase respondent's said correspondence courses. In consequence thereof, injury has been, and is now being, done by the respondent to the public in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondent in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and states that he waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Tommy Loughran, an individual, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, or distribution of his correspondence courses on health and physical culture, in commerce, as “commerce” is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

Representing, directly or by implication that following the instructions as to exercise and diet outlined in said correspondence courses will produce good health for everyone or keep everyone in a healthy condition; or will insure everyone of “big” muscles or a “huge,” “robust,” and powerful body; or enable one to become a “paragon” of strength.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.
IN THE MATTER OF

CHESTER E. THOMAS, TRADING AS THOMAS BROTHERS

Docket 4151. Complaint, June 4, 1940—Decision, Oct. 21, 1940

Where an individual engaged in manufacture of candy, salted peanuts, and other products, and in sale and distribution of certain assortments of such products which were so packed and assembled as to involve use of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes when sold and distributed to the consumers, and which included (1) plaster of paris toy and 30 bags of salted peanuts of uniform size, shape, and quality, stapled to cardboard sheet for sale and distribution to purchasers under a plan, and in accordance with said sheet's explanatory legend, by which purchaser paid from 1 to 5 cents for bag of peanuts, in accordance with number concealed on card's tabs as disclosed by removal of bag from card and the opening of the tab attached, and under which purchaser of last package or bag received aforesaid toy; (2) box of chocolate candy and number of candy bars of uniform size and shape, together with push card for use in sale and distribution of said candy under a plan, and in accordance with said card's explanatory legend, by which purchaser received, for nickel paid, only one, or additional bars, dependent upon success or failure in securing by chance from card certain designated numbers, and under which purchaser making last punch on card received, without additional cost, said box of candy; and (3) various other assortments of peanuts or candy involving lot or chance feature similar to those respectively above described, from which they varied in detail only—

Sold such assortments to wholesalers, jobbers, and retailers by whom, as direct or indirect retailer-purchasers thereof, assortments in question were exposed and sold to purchasing public in accordance with sales plans aforesaid, and thereby supplied to and placed in the hands of others means of conducting lotteries in the sale of his said products in accordance with such sales plans as above set forth, involving game of chance or sale of a chance to procure bags of peanuts at prices which are much less than normal retail prices thereof, or additional pieces or boxes of candy without additional cost, contrary to an established public policy of the United States Government and in violation of the criminal laws, and in competition with many who are unwilling to adopt and use said or any method involving game of chance or sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other method contrary to public policy, and refrain therefrom;

With result that many persons were attracted by said sales plans or methods employed by him in sale and distribution of his candy and other products and element of chance involved therein, and were thereby induced to buy and sell his said products in preference to those of his competitors above set forth, and with effect, through use of such methods and because of said game of chance, of diverting trade unfairly to him from his said competitors who do not use same or equivalent methods:
Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

Mr. L. P. Allen, Jr., for the Commission.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Chester E. Thomas, individually and trading as Thomas Bros., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the interest of the public, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent Chester E. Thomas is an individual trading as Thomas Bros, with his principal office and place of business located at 20 Northeast Weidler Street, Portland, Oreg. Respondent is now, and for more than 10 years last past has been, engaged in the manufacture and in the sale and distribution of candy, salted peanuts, and other products to wholesale dealers, jobbers, and retail dealers located at points in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. The respondent causes and has caused said products, when sold, to be transported from his place of business in the city of Portland, Oreg., to purchasers thereof, at their respective points of location, in the various States of the United States other than Oregon and in the District of Columbia. There is now, and has been for more than 10 years last past a course of trade by respondent in such products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business respondent is and has been in competition with other individuals and with partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and has sold to wholesale dealers, jobbers, and retail dealers certain assortments of candy and salted peanuts so packed and assembled as to involve the use of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes when sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. Certain of said assortments are hereinafter described for the purpose of showing the methods used by respondent but this list is not all inclusive of the various assortments nor does it include all of the details of the several plans which respondent has been or is using in the sale and distribution of candy and salted peanuts by lot or chance:

(a) One assortment is composed of a plaster of paris toy and 30 bags of salted peanuts of uniform size, shape and quality, the latter being stapled to a sheet of cardboard. Attached at the top of each of said bags of peanuts where the bag is stapled to the board is a small paper tab with a number thereon. The said numbers range from 1 to 5 and the board contains a legend or statement informing purchasers and prospective purchasers that they pay in cents the amount of the number on the said tab. The numbers on the said tabs are concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until a bag of peanuts has been removed from the board and the attached paper tab opened. The purchaser of the last package of peanuts receives the said plaster of paris toy. The said toy is distributed and the price of the bags of peanuts is thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

Respondent sells and distributes and has sold and distributed various assortments of salted peanuts involving a lot or chance feature but such assortments are similar to the one hereinabove described and vary only in detail.

(b) Another of respondent's assortments is as follows: This assortment consists of a box of chocolate candy and a number of bars of candy of uniform size and shape, together with a device commonly called a push card. The said push card has a number of small partially perforated discs on the face of each of which is printed the word "Push." When a disk is pushed or separated from the said card a number is disclosed. The numbers begin with 1 and continue to the number of pushes there are on the card but are not arranged in numerical sequence. The price for pushing one of said disks on said card is 5 cents. The said card contains a legend or instructions informing purchasers and prospective purchasers that each purchaser of a chance on the card receives one of the said bars of candy and that certain designated numbers entitle the purchasers thereof to additional bars of candy without additional cost. The purchaser making the last punch on the card receives the said box of chocolate candy without additional cost. The numbers within the said disks are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until a disk is pushed or separated from the card. The box of candy and additional bars of candy are thus distributed to the purchasing and consuming public wholly by lot or chance.

PAR. 3. Retail dealers who purchase respondent's said products, directly or indirectly, expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the sales plan aforesaid. Respondent thus supplies to, and places in the hands of, others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of his products in accordance with the sales plans hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said sales plans or methods in the sale of his products and the sale of said products by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plans or methods is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws.

PAR. 4. The sale of candy and salted peanuts to the purchasing public by the methods and plans hereinabove set forth involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure bags of peanuts at much less than the normal retail price thereof or additional pieces or boxes of candy without additional cost. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell and distribute candy and other products in competition with respondent, as above alleged, are unwilling to adopt and use said methods or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other method contrary to public policy and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plans or methods employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of his candy and other products and the element of chance involved therein and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's products in preference to products of said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or equivalent methods. The use of said methods by respondent because of said game of chance has a tendency and capacity to and does unfairly divert trade in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia to respondent from his said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent methods. As a result thereof, substantial injury is being done and has been done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on June 4, 1940, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent Chester E. Thomas, individually and trading as Thomas Bros. charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On June 29, 1940, the respondent filed his answer in which answer he admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waived all intervening procedure and a further hearing as to said facts. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and the answer thereto and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent Chester E. Thomas is an individual trading as Thomas Bros. with his principal office and place of business located at 20 Northeast Weidler Street, Portland, Oreg. Respondent is now and for more than 10 years last past has been, engaged in the manufacture and in the sale and distribution of candy, salted peanuts, and other products to wholesale dealers, jobbers, and retail dealers located at points in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. The respondent causes and has caused said products, when sold, to be transported from his place of business in the city of Portland, Oreg., to purchasers thereof, at their respective points of location, in the various States of the United States other than Oregon and in the District of Columbia. There is now, and has been for more than 10 years last past a course of trade by respondent in such products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business respondent is and has been in competition with other individuals and with partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 2. In the course and conduct of his business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and has sold to wholesale dealers, jobbers, and retail dealers certain assortments of candy and salted peanuts so packed and assembled as to involve the use of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes when sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. Certain of said assortments are hereinafter described for the purpose of showing the methods used by respondent but this list is not all inclusive of the various assortments nor does it include all of the details of the several plans which respondent has been or is using in the sale and distribution of candy and salted peanuts by lot or chance:

(a) One assortment is composed of a plaster of paris toy and 30 bags of salted peanuts of uniform size, shape, and quality, the latter being stapled to a sheet of cardboard. Attached at the top of each of said bags of peanuts where the bag is stapled to the board is a small paper tab with a number thereon. The said numbers range from 1 to 5 and the board contains a legend or statement informing purchasers and prospective purchasers that they pay in cents the amount of the number on the said tab. The numbers on the said tabs are concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until a bag of peanuts has been removed from the board and the attached paper tab opened. The purchaser of the last package of peanuts receives the said plaster of paris toy. The said toy is distributed and the price of the bags of peanuts is thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

Respondent sells and distributes and has sold and distributed various assortments of salted peanuts involving a lot or chance feature but such assortments are similar to the one hereinabove described and vary only in detail.

(b) Another of respondent's assortments is as follows: This assortment consists of a box of chocolate candy and a number of bars of candy of uniform size and shape, together with a device commonly called a push card. The said push card has a number of small partially perforated disks on the face of each of which is printed the word "Push". When a disk is pushed or separated from the said card a number is disclosed. The numbers begin with 1 and continue to the number of pushes there are on the card but are not arranged in numerical sequence. The price for pushing one of said disks on said card is 5 cents. The said card contains a legend or instructions informing purchasers and prospective purchasers that each purchaser of a chance on the card receives one of the said bars of candy and that certain designated numbers entitle the purchasers thereof to additional bars of candy without additional cost. The purchaser making the last punch on the card receives the said box of chocolate candy without additional cost. The numbers within the said disks are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until a disk is pushed or separated from the card. The box of candy and additional bars of candy are thus distributed to the purchasing and consuming public wholly by lot or chance.

PAR. 3. Retail dealers who directly or indirectly purchase respondent's said products expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the sales plan aforesaid. Respondent thus supplies to, and places in the hands of, others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of his products in accordance with the sales plans hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said sales plans or methods in the sale of his products and the sale of said products by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plans or methods is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws.

PAR. 4. The sale of candy and salted peanuts to the purchasing public by the methods and plans hereinabove set forth involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure bags of peanuts at prices which are much less than the normal retail price thereof or additional pieces or boxes of candy without additional cost. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell and distribute candy and other products in competition with respondent, as above found, are unwilling to adopt and use said methods or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other method contrary to public policy and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plans or methods employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of his candy and other products and the element of chance involved therein and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's products in preference to products of said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or equivalent methods. The use of said methods by respondent because of said game of chance has a tendency and capacity to and does unfairly divert trade in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia to respondent from his said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent methods.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

Thomas, individually and trading as Thomas Bros., or trading under any other name or names, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of candy or any other merchandise in commerce as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Louis Talesnick, individually and trading as Hoosier Candy Sales Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the interest of the public, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Par. 1. Respondent, Louis Talesnick, is an individual trading as Hoosier Candy Sales Co., with his principal office and place of business located at 426 South Meridian Street, Indianapolis, Ind. The respondent is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of candy and other confectionery products to wholesale dealers, jobbers, and retail dealers. Respondent causes and has caused said products, when sold, to be transported from his aforesaid place of business in the State of Indiana to purchasers thereof, at their respective points of location in the various States of the United States other than Indiana and in the District of Columbia. There is now, and has been for more than 1 year last past, a course of trade by respondent in such products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of his business respondent is and has been in competition with other individuals and with partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of his business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and has sold to wholesale dealers, jobbers, and retail dealers certain assortments of candy so packed and assembled as to involve the use of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes when sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. One of said assortments is hereinafter described for the purpose of showing the method used by respondent and is as follows:

This assortment consists of approximately 200 pieces of candy of uniform size and shape, together with a device commonly called a push card. The push card has 150 partially perforated disks on the face of each of which is printed the word "Push." Concealed within the said disks are numbers. If the number punched from the said card corresponds with any of the numbers set out in the legend at the top of the card the purchaser thereof is entitled to, and receives, additional pieces of candy without additional cost. Sales are 1 cent each and those not securing a winning number receive one piece of candy. The numbers within the said disks are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until a selection has been made and the disk pushed or separated from the card. The additional pieces of candy are thus distributed to purchasers of punches on the said card wholly by lot or chance.

The respondent furnishes and has furnished various other push cards for use in the sale and distribution of his candy by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. Such other cards are similar to the one hereinabove described and vary only in detail.

Par. 3. Retail dealers who directly or indirectly purchase respondent's said candy expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the sales plan aforesaid. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of his products in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said sales plan or method in the sale of his candy and the sale of said candy by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plan or method is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws.

Par. 4. The sale of candy to the purchasing public by the method and plan hereinabove set forth involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure additional pieces of candy without additional cost. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell and distribute candy in competition with respondent, as above alleged, are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other method contrary to public policy and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of his candy and in the element of chance involved therein and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's candy in preference to candy of said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent methods. The use of said method by respondent because of said game of chance has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia to respondent from his said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent methods, and as a result thereof substantial injury is being, and has been done, by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce, and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.
Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on July 31, 1940, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, Louis Talesnick, individually and trading as Hoosier Candy Sales Co., charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On September 5, 1940, the respondent filed his answer, in which answer he admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waived all intervening procedure and a further hearing as to said facts. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and the answer thereto, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Louis Talesnick, is an individual trading as Hoosier Candy Sales Co., with his principal office and place of business located at 426 South Meridian Street, Indianapolis, Ind. The respondent is now and for more than 1 year last past has been engaged in the sale and distribution of candy and other confectionery products to wholesale dealers, jobbers, and retail dealers. Respondent causes and has caused said products, when sold, to be transported from his aforesaid place of business in the State of Indiana to purchasers thereof, at their respective points of location, in the various States of the United States other than Indiana and in the District of Columbia. There is now, and has been for more than 1 year last past, a course of trade by respondent in such products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of his business respondent is and has been in competition with other individuals and with partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 2. In the course and conduct of his business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and has sold to wholesale dealers, jobbers, and retail dealers certain assortments of candy so packed and assembled as to involve the use of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes when sold and distributed to the consumers thereof.
One of said assortments is hereinafter described for the purpose of showing the method used by respondent and is as follows:

This assortment consists of approximately 200 pieces of candy of uniform size and shape, together with a device commonly called a push card. The push card has 150 partially perforated disks on the face of each of which is printed the word "Push." Concealed within the said disks are numbers. If the number punched from the said card corresponds with any of the numbers set out in the legend at the top of the card the purchaser thereof is entitled to, and receives, additional pieces of candy without additional cost. Sales are 1 cent each and those not securing a winning number receive one piece of candy. The numbers within the said disks are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until a selection has been made and the disk pushed or separated from the card. The additional pieces of candy are thus distributed to purchasers of punches on the said card wholly by lot or chance.

Par. 3. Retail dealers who directly or indirectly purchase respondent's said candy expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the sales plan aforesaid. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of his products in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said sales plan or method in the sale of his candy and the sale of said candy by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plan or method is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws.

Par. 4. The sale of candy to the purchasing public by the method and plan hereinabove set forth involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure additional pieces of candy without additional cost. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell and distribute candy in competition with respondent, as above found, are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other method contrary to public policy and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of his candy and in the element of chance involved therein and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's candy in preference to candy of said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent methods. The use of said method by respondent because of said game of chance has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia to respondent from his said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent methods, and as a result thereof substantial injury is being and has been done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and states that he waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said fact, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent Louis Talesnick, individually and trading as Hoosier Candy Sales Co., or trading under any other name or names, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of candy or any other merchandise in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Selling and distributing candy or any merchandise so packed and assembled that sales of such candy or other merchandise to the general public are to be made, or may be made, by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

2. Supplying to or placing in the hands of others push or pull cards, punchboards or other lottery devices, either with assortments of merchandise or separately, which said push or pull cards, punchboards or other lottery devices are to be used, or may be used, in selling or distributing such candy or other merchandise to the public.
3. Selling or otherwise disposing of any merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.

Mr. D. C. Daniel, for the Commission.
Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Trinidad Creamery Co., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Trinidad Creamery Co., is a corporation organized and doing business under the laws of the State of Colorado, with its principal office and place of business located at 328 Commercial Street, Trinidad, Colo. Respondent is now and for more than 1 year last past has been engaged in the processing of butter and in the sale and distribution thereof to dealers located in various States of the United States. It causes and has caused said butter, when sold, to be shipped or transported from its aforesaid place of business in the State of Colorado to purchasers thereof in various other States of the United States at their respective points of location. There is now and for more than 1 year last past has been a course of trade by said respondent in such butter in commerce between and among various States of the United States. In the course and conduct of said business respondent is and has been in competition with other corporations and with individuals and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar merchandise in commerce between and among various States of the United States.

Paragraph 2. In the course and conduct of its business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and has sold to dealers packages of its said butter, which said packages are so packed as to involve the use of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme when said butter is sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. Said packages of butter are sold and distributed to the purchasing public in substantially the following manner:

The name of said butter is "Colorado Gold Butter," and said butter is sold in 1-pound individually wrapped packages at designated prices. In each of said packages is placed a coupon bearing, among other things, one of the letters contained in said name. Persons successful in purchasing packages of said butter containing coupons bearing the necessary letters for the spelling of said name may submit said letters, together with 25 cents in stamps, to respondent, and in turn therefor will receive their choice of a number of listed articles of merchandise without further cost from respondent. Each of said listed articles of merchandise has a retail value greater than 25 cents.
The said letters on said coupons are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until the said packages of butter have been purchased, unwrapped, and said coupons removed therefrom. Said listed articles of merchandise are thus distributed to the purchasing public wholly by lot or chance.

Respondent in the sale and distribution of its butter has employed various sales plans or methods involving the use of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes, but all of said sales plans or methods were similar to the one hereinabove described, varying only in detail.

Par. 3. Retail dealers who purchase respondent's butter directly or indirectly expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the aforesaid sales plans. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others a means of conducting lotteries in the sale of its butter in accordance with the sales plans or methods hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said methods in the sale of its butter and the sale of such butter by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said methods is a practice of the sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of criminal laws.

Par. 4. The sale of butter to the purchasing public in the manner above alleged, involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure an additional article of merchandise at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell and distribute butter in competition with respondent as above alleged are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving the use of a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other method that is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by respondent's said methods and by the element of chance involved in the sale of said butter in the manner above alleged, and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's butter in preference to butter offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or equivalent methods. The use of said methods by the respondent because of said game of chance has the tendency and capacity to and does unfairly divert trade to respondent from its competitors who do not use the same or equivalent sales plans or methods in commerce between and among various States of the United States. At a result thereof, substantial injury is being and has been done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among various States of the United States.

Par. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on August 21, 1940, issued and thereafter served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, Trinidad Creamery Co., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce, and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On October 1, 1940, the respondent filed its answer, in which answer it admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and the answer thereto, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Trinidad Creamery Co., is a corporation organized and doing business under the laws of the State of Colorado, with its principal office and place of business located at 328 Commercial Street, Trinidad, Colo. Respondent is now and for more than one year last past has been engaged in the processing of butter and in the sale and distribution thereof to dealers located in various States of the United States. It causes and has caused said butter, when sold, to be shipped or transported from its aforesaid place of business in the State of Colorado to purchasers thereof in various other States of the United States at their respective points of location. There is now and for more than 1 year last past has been a course of trade by said respondent in such butter in commerce between and among various States of the United States. In the course and conduct of said business respondent is and has been in competition with other corporations and with individuals and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar merchandise in commerce between and among various States of the United States.

Paragraph 2. In the course and conduct of its business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and has sold to dealers packages of its said butter, which said packages are so packed as to involve the use of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme when said butter is sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. Said packages of butter are sold and distributed to the purchasing public in substantially the following manner:

The name of said butter is "Colorado Gold Butter," and said butter is sold in 1 pound individually wrapped packages at designated prices. In each of said packages is placed a coupon bearing, among other things, one of the letters contained in said name. Persons successful in purchasing packages of said butter containing coupons bearing the necessary letters for the spelling of said name may submit said letters, together with 25 cents in stamps, to respondent, and in turn therefor will receive their choice of a number of listed articles of merchandise without further cost from respondent. Each of said listed articles of merchandise has a retail value greater than 25 cents. The said letters on said coupons are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until the said packages of butter have been purchased, unwrapped, and said coupons removed therefrom. Said listed articles of merchandise are thus distributed to the purchasing public wholly by lot or chance.

Respondent in the sale and distribution of its butter has employed various sales plans or methods involving the use of games of chance, gift enterprises or lottery schemes, but all of said sales plans or methods were similar to the one hereinabove described, varying only in detail.

PAR. 3. Retail dealers who purchase respondent's butter directly or indirectly expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the aforesaid sales plans. Respondent thus supplies to, and places in the hands of, others a means of conducting lotteries in the sale of its butter in accordance with the sales plans or methods hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said methods in the sale of its butter and the sale of such butter by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said methods is a practice of the sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of criminal laws.

PAR. 4. The sale of butter to the purchasing public in the manner above found involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure an additional article of merchandise at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell and distribute butter in competition with respondent as above found are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving the use of a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other method that is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by respondent's said methods and by the element of chance involved in the sale of said butter in the manner above found, and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's butter in preference to butter offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or equivalent methods. The use of said methods by the respondent because of said game of chance has the tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade to respondent from its competitors who do not use the same or equivalent sales plans or methods in commerce between and among various States of the United States. As a result thereof, substantial injury is being, and has been done by, respondent to competition in commerce between and among various States of the United States.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and states that it waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Trinidad Creamery Co., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of butter or any other merchandise in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Selling or distributing butter or any other merchandise so packed and assembled that sales of said butter or other merchandise are to be made or may be made by means of a lottery, gaming device, or gift enterprise.
2. Supplying to or placing in the hands of others packages of butter containing coupons which said coupons are to be used or may be used in the distribution of other butter to the public by means of a lottery, game of chance, or gift enterprise.

3. Supplying to or placing in the hands of others any merchandise, together with any device or separately, which said device is to be or may be used in the distribution of merchandise to the public by means of a lottery, game of chance, or gift enterprise.

4. Selling or otherwise distributing merchandise by means of a lottery, game of chance, or gift enterprise.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

ROBERT R. RAYNOR, TRADING AS SOUTHERN SALES COMPANY

Docket 4297. Complaint, Aug. 30, 1940—Decision, Oct. 21, 1940

Where an individual engaged in manufacture of candy, and in sale and distribution of certain assortments thereof which were so packed and assembled as to involve use of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes when sold and distributed to consumers thereof, and which included (1) 37 candy bars of uniform size and shape, together with push card for use in sale and distribution of said candy under a plan in accordance with which purchaser paid from 1 to 5 cents for candy in question, in accordance with particular number secured by chance from card, and person pushing last disk received extra bar without additional cost, and (2) assortments with various other push cards for use in sale and distribution of his said product by means of game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme similar to that above described and varying therefrom in detail only—

Sold such assortments to wholesalers, jobbers, and retailers, by whom, as direct or indirect purchasers thereof, assortments in question were exposed and sold to purchasing public in accordance with sales plan aforesaid, and thereby supplied to and placed in the hands of others means of conducting lotteries in the sale of his said products, in accordance with such plan involving game of chance or sale of a chance to procure candy bars at prices much less than normal retail prices thereof, or additional bars without additional cost, contrary to an established public policy of the United States Government and in violation of the criminal laws, and in competition with many who are unwilling to adopt and use said or any method involving game of chance or sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other method contrary to public policy, and refrain therefrom;

With the result that many persons were attracted by said sales plan or method employed by him in sale and distribution of his said candy and by element of chance involved therein, and were thereby induced to buy and sell his said product in preference to that of competitors who do not use same or equivalent methods, and with effect, through use of such method, and because of said game of chance, of unfairly diverting trade to him from his said competitors who do not use same or equivalent methods:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

Mr. L. P. Allen, Jr., for the Commission.

Mr. J. W. Wilson, of Dunn, N. C., for respondent.
Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Robert R. Raynor, individually and trading as Southern Sales Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the interest of the public, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent Robert R. Raynor is an individual trading as Southern Sales Co., with his office and principal place of business located at Dunn, N. C. Respondent is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, engaged in the manufacture and in the sale and distribution of candy to wholesale dealers, jobbers, and retail dealers. Respondent causes, and has caused, said products when sold to be transported from his place of business in the city of Dunn, N. C., to purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in various States of the United States other than North Carolina. There is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, a course of trade by respondent in said candy in commerce between and among various States of the United States. In the course and conduct of said business respondent is and has been in competition with other individuals, and with partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of candy in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 2. In the course and conduct of its business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and has sold to wholesale dealers, jobbers, and retail dealers certain assortments of candy so packed and assembled as to involve the use of games or chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes when sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. One of said assortments is hereinafter described for the purpose of showing the method used by respondent, and is as follows:

This assortment is composed of 37 bars of candy of uniform size and shape, together with a device commonly called a push card. The said push card has 36 partially perforated disks, on the face of which is printed the word "Push." Concealed within the said disks are numbers ranging from 1 to 5, inclusive. When the disks are pushed or separated from the card a number is disclosed. Purchasers punching numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 pay 1 cent, 2 cents, 3 cents, 4 cents, and 5 cents, respectively. The purchaser pushing the last disk on the said card receives an extra bar of candy without additional cost. The numbers are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until the disks are pushed or separated from the card. The prices of said bars of candy are thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

Par. 3. Retail dealers who, directly or indirectly, purchase respondent's said candy expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the sales plan aforesaid. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of his products in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said sales plan or method in the sale of his candy, and the sale of said candy by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plan or method, is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws.

Par. 4. The sale of candy to the purchasing public by the method or plan hereinabove set forth involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure bars of candy at prices much less than the normal retail price thereof or additional bars of candy without additional cost. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell and distribute candy in competition with respondent, as above alleged, are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other method contrary to public policy and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of his candy and in the element of chance involved therein, and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's candy in preference to candy of said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or equivalent methods. The use of said method by respondent because of said game of chance has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade in commerce between and among various States of the United States to respondent from his said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent methods, and as a result thereof substantial injury is being and has been done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among various States of the United States.

Par. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on August 30, 1940, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent Robert R. Raynor, individually and trading as Southern Sales Co., charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On September 11, 1940, the respondent filed his answer, in which answer he admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint. The respondent has waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and the answer thereto, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Robert R. Raynor, is an individual trading as Southern Sales Co., with his office and principal place of business located at Dunn, N. C. Respondent is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, engaged in the manufacture and in the sale and distribution of candy to wholesale dealers, jobbers, and retail dealers. Respondent causes, and has caused, said products when sold to be transported from his place of business in the city of Dunn, N. C., to purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in various States of the United States other than North Carolina. There is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, a course of trade by respondent in said candy in commerce between and among various States of the United States. In the course and conduct of said business respondent is and has been in competition with other individuals, and with partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of candy in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and has sold to wholesale dealers, jobbers, and retail dealers certain assortments of candy so packed and assembled as to involve the use of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes when sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. One of said assortments is hereinafter described for the purpose of showing the method used by respondent, and is as follows:

This assortment is composed of 37 bars of candy of uniform size and shape, together with a device commonly called a push card. The said push card has 36 partially perforated disks, on the face of which is printed the word "Push." Concealed within the said disks are numbers ranging from 1 to 5, inclusive. When the disks are pushed or separated from the card a number is disclosed. Purchasers punching numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 pay 1 cent, 2 cents, 3 cents, 4 cents, and 5 cents, respectively. The purchaser pushing the last disk on the said card receives an extra bar of candy without additional cost. The numbers are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until the disks are pushed or separated from the card. The prices of said bars of candy are thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

The respondent furnishes, and has furnished, various push cards for use in the sale and distribution of his candy by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. Such cards are similar to the one herein described and vary only in detail.

Par. 3. Retail dealers who, directly or indirectly, purchase respondent's said candy expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the sales plan aforesaid. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of his products in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said sales plan or method in the sale of his candy, and the sale of said candy by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plan or method, is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws.

Par. 4. The sale of candy to the purchasing public by the method or plan hereinabove set forth involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure bars of candy at prices much less than the normal retail price thereof or additional bars of candy without additional cost. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell and distribute candy in competition with respondent, as above found, are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other method contrary to public policy and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of his candy and in the element of chance involved therein, and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's candy in preference to candy of said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or equivalent methods. The use of said method by respondent because of said game of chance has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade in commerce between and among various States of the United States to respondent from his said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent methods.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and states that he waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said fact, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent Robert R. Raynor, individually and trading as Southern Sales Co., or trading under any other name or names, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of candy or any other merchandise in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Selling and distributing candy or any merchandise so packed and assembled that sales of such candy or other merchandise to the general public are to be made, or may be made, by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

2. Supplying to or placing in the hands of others push or pull cards, punchboards or other lottery devices, either with assortments of merchandise or separately, which said push or pull cards, punchboards or other lottery devices are to be used, or may be used, in selling or distributing such candy or other merchandise to the public.

3. Selling or otherwise disposing of any merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon him of this order file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.
IN THE MATTER OF THE FAIRFACTS COMPANY

Where a corporation engaged in sale and distribution of recessed china bathroom accessories and related products, to various contractors, retailers, and purchasers located in other States, in competition with others engaged in manufacture, sale, and distribution of similar products in commerce among the various States, and including those who manufacture such accessories and products and truthfully represent themselves as so doing to purchasing public—

Represented itself as a manufacturer, and displayed such designation on all of its stationery, billheads, invoices, and other printed matter, and in classified telephone directory advertising described itself as "Manufacturers," notwithstanding fact it did not own and operate or directly and absolutely control any pottery or plant wherein such products were produced or made, and it was not such a manufacturer, from whom a substantial portion of buyers of such accessories and related products, including contractors and retail dealers who purchase such bathroom fixtures, prefer to buy, rather than from jobbers or wholesalers, due to fact that standard grade of fixtures may not be had from jobbers or nonmanufacturing sellers, and commodity advertised, when not made by such jobbers or dealers, may not be obtainable therefrom in event of breakage;

With effect of misleading and deceiving retailers into erroneous and mistaken belief that products offered and sold by it were by it made, or that it was a manufacturer and not a seller and distributor of recessed china bathroom accessories and related products made by some other concern, and with result that some of aforesaid dealers and purchasers, who prefer to buy from such manufacturers, as above set forth, products in question, purchased same of it, representing itself, as aforesaid, as manufacturer, believing it to be maker of products sold and distributed by it, and substantial volume of commodity in question was purchased of it by consuming public, and trade was diverted unfairly to it from those engaged in sale of such accessories and related products who manufacture same and truthfully represent themselves as such manufacturers; to the substantial injury of competition in commerce:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. Robert S. Hall and Mr. John W. Addison, trial examiners.

Mr. Morton Nesmith, for the Commission.
Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that the Fairfacts Co., a corporation, has been or is using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. That respondent, the Fairfacts Co., is a corporation organized under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its principal office and place of business located in the city of Trenton, N. J. Said respondent is engaged in the sale and transportation of recessed china bathroom accessories between and among the different States of the United States. The respondent, in the course and conduct of its business, as aforesaid, has caused and still causes the articles in which it deals to be transported from its said place of business in the State of New Jersey into and through the other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia to various contractors, retailers, and purchasers. Said respondent is in competition with other individuals, partnerships, and corporations engaged in the manufacture, sale, and transportation of china bathroom accessories and recessed china bathroom accessories in commerce between and among the different States of the United States.

Paragraph 2. That the respondent, in the course and conduct of its business, as aforesaid, stated and represented in its price lists, catalogs, advertisements, and advertising matter circulated in interstate commerce among customers and prospective customers, that it was a manufacturer of china bathroom accessories. Said representations made by respondent are false and misleading and have the tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive the purchasers of respondent's products into the belief that when purchasing from respondent they are dealing with the manufacturer of the products purchased and thereby are gaining an advantage by saving the middleman's profits. The said false representations also have the capacity and tendency unfairly to divert and do divert trade to the respondent from its competitors.

Paragraph 3. In truth and in fact, respondent, the Fairfacts Co., is not a manufacturer of china bathroom accessories or recessed china bathroom accessories, nor does it own, operate, or control any factory wherein the products which it sells and distributes in interstate commerce, as aforesaid, are made, manufactured, or fabricated.
Findings

PAR. 4. There are among the competitors of the respondent many persons, firms, and corporations who manufacture china bathroom accessories and recessed china bathroom accessories, and sell and distribute the same in interstate commerce and who truthfully hold themselves out as manufacturers; there are also among the competitors of the respondent many persons, firms, and corporations who do not manufacture china bathroom accessories and recessed china bathroom accessories, but who purchase said products from certain manufacturers and resell same in interstate commerce, which last-named distributors and wholesalers do not hold themselves out as manufacturers. Both of said classes of competitors sell their products in interstate commerce.

PAR. 5. The above alleged acts and things done by the respondent are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and of the competitors of respondent and constitute unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce within the intent and meaning of Section 5 of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," approved September 26, 1914.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on the 13th day of March 1935, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, The Fairfacts Co., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair methods in competition in commerce. After the issuance of said complaint (the respondent filed no answer thereto), testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by Morton Nesmith, attorney for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by W. L. Hart, vice president of the respondent corporation, before Robert S. Hall and John W. Addison, examiners of the Commission, theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the complaint, testimony and other evidence, brief in support of the complaint (respondent not having filed brief, and oral argument not having been requested), and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.
Findings

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent, The Fairfacts Company, is a New York corporation with its principal office and place of business located in Trenton, N. J. It is engaged in the sale and distribution of recessed china bathroom accessories and related products. In the course and conduct of its business, respondent has caused recessed china bathroom accessories and related products to be transported from its place of business in New Jersey into and through the other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia to various contractors, retailers, and purchasers located in States other than New Jersey. It is in competition with individuals, partnerships, and other corporations, engaged in the manufacture, sale, and distribution of similar products in commerce, among and between the various States of the United States.

Par. 2. The respondent, The Fairfacts Co., has represented itself to be a manufacturer as far back as May 1939, and the designation "manufacturer" appeared on all of its stationery, bill heads, invoices, and other printed matter, as far back as May 1929. Typical of the advertisement used by the respondent in a classified telephone directory the following appears in large, bold black type:

BATHROOM ACCESSORIES—CHINA—MANUFACTURES

Fairfacts Company, The, 2324 W. 14th Street.

Prior to the issuance of the complaint herein, the respondent The Fairfacts Co. was not a manufacturer of recessed china bathroom accessories and related products, nor did it own and operate or directly and absolutely control any pottery or plant wherein such products were produced or manufactured.

Par. 3. There are competitors of the respondent who sell and distribute in commerce among and between the various States of the United States recessed china bathroom accessories and related products which they manufacture and who truthfully represent to the purchasing public that they manufacture said products.

Par. 4. A substantial portion of the purchasers of recessed china bathroom accessories and related products, including contractors and retail dealers who purchase fixtures incident to bathrooms such as the respondent sells and transports in commerce as herein described, prefer to purchase from manufacturers of such commodities rather than to purchase from jobbers or wholesalers, because when such purchases may be made from jobbers or sellers who are not manufacturers, a standard grade of fixtures may not be had, and such jobbers or dealers who are not the manufacturers of the articles advertised might not be able to supply such purchasers and dealers the commodity in the event of breakage. Some of such dealers and purchasers have purchased the products sold and distributed by respondent, representing itself to be the manufacturer as stated herein, believing the respondent to be the manufacturer of the products sold and distributed.

Par. 5. The use by the respondent of the acts and practices set forth herein has the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive retail dealers and members of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that the products offered for sale and sold by the respondent are manufactured by the respondent or that the respondent is a manufacturer and not a seller and distributor of recessed china bathroom accessories and related products manufactured by some other corporation, firm or person.

Par. 6. It is further found that as the direct consequence of the erroneous and mistaken belief induced by respondent in advertising and representing itself to be the manufacturer of the commodity sold and distributed, a substantial volume is purchased by the consuming public and trade has been diverted unfairly to respondent from corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships also engaged in the business of selling recessed china bathroom accessories and related products, who manufacture such products and who truthfully represent that they are the manufacturers thereof. As a result thereof, substantial injury has been done by respondent to competition in commerce between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondents' competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, testimony and other evidence taken before Robert S. Hall and John W. Addison, examiners of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, brief filed by Morton Nesmith for the Commission (the respondent not having filed brief, and oral argument not having been requested), and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, The Fairfacts Co., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of bathroom fixtures in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

Representing, through the use of the word "manufacturers" or through the use of any word or terms of similar import or meaning, or through any means or device or in any manner, that respondent is the manufacturer of the products sold by it, unless and until respondent actually owns and operates, or directly and absolutely controls a manufacturing plant wherein said products are manufactured by it.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, forward to the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.
Where a corporation engaged in the manufacture of candy, and in sale an distribution of certain assortments thereof which were so packed and as seemed as to involve the use of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes when sold and distributed to consumers thereof, and which included (1) number of bars of uniform size and shape, together with push card for use in sale and distribution of said candy under a plan, in accordance with which purchasers paid for such bars amounts ranging from 1 to 5 cents, in accordance with their success or failure in securing by chance certain numbers concealed in card, and (2) assortments with various other push cards for use in sale and distribution of its said candy by means of game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme, similar to that above described and varying therefrom in detail only—Sold such assortments to wholesalers, jobbers, and retailers, by whom, as direct or indirect retailer-purchasers thereof, assortments in question were exposed and sold to purchasing public in accordance with sales plans aforesaid, and thereby supplied to and placed in the hands of others means of conducting lotteries in the sale of its products in accordance with such plans, involving game of chance or sale of a chance to procure bars of candy at prices much less than normal retail price thereof, contrary to an established public policy of the United States Government and in violation of the criminal laws, and in competition with many who are unwilling to adopt and use said or any method involving game of chance or sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other method contrary to public policy, and refrain therefrom;
With the result that many persons were attracted by said sales plan or method employed by it in sale and distribution of its candy and element of chance involved therein, and were thereby induced to buy and sell its said candy in preference to that of competitors who do not use same or equivalent methods, and with effect, through use of such method and because of said game of chance, of unfairly diverting trade to it from its said competitors who do not use same or equivalent methods:
Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

Mr. L. P. Allen, Jr., for the Commission.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Dixie Candy Co., Inc., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the interest of the public, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Dixie Candy Co., Inc., is a corporation, organized and existing under the laws of the State of North Carolina with its principal office and place of business located at 732 East Seventh Street, Charlotte, N. C. Respondent is now and for more than 1 year last past has been engaged in the manufacture and in the sale and distribution of candy to wholesale dealers, jobbers, and retail dealers. Respondent causes and has caused said products when sold to be transported from its place of business in the city of Charlotte, N. C., to purchasers thereof, at their respective points of location, in various States of the United States other than North Carolina. There is now and for more than 1 year last past, has been a course of trade by respondent in said candy in said commerce between and among various States of the United States. In the course and conduct of its said business respondent is and has been in competition with other corporations and with partnerships and individuals engaged in the sale and distribution of candy in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and has sold to wholesale dealers, jobbers, and retail dealers certain assortments of candy so packed and assembled as to involve the use of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes when sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. One of said assortments is hereinafter described for the purpose of showing the method used by respondent, and is as follows:

This assortment is composed of a number of bars of candy of uniform size and shape, together with a device commonly called a push card. The said push card has 40 partially perforated disks, on the face of which is printed the word "Push." Concealed within the said disks are numbers ranging from 1 to 5, inclusive. When the disks are pushed or separated from the card a number is disclosed.
Purchasers punching numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 pay 1 cent, 2 cents, 3 cents, 4 cents, and 5 cents, respectively. The numbers are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until the disks are pushed or separated from the card. The prices of said bars of candy are thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

Par. 3. Retail dealers who directly or indirectly purchase respondent's said candy, expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the sales plan aforesaid. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of its products in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said sales plan or method in the sale of its candy and the sale of said candy by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plan or method is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws.

Par. 4. The sale of candy to the purchasing public by the method or plan hereinabove set forth involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure bars of candy at prices much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell and distribute candy in competition with respondents, as above alleged, are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other method contrary to public policy and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of its candy and in the element of chance involved therein and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's candy in preference to candy of said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or equivalent methods. The use of said method by respondent because of said game of chance has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade in commerce between and among various States of the United States to respondent from its said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent methods, and as a result thereof substantial injury is being and has been done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among various States of the United States.

Par. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.
Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on August 22, 1940, issued and on August 23, 1940, served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, Dixie Candy Co., Inc., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts or practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer, the Commission, by order entered herein, granted respondent's request for permission to withdraw said answer and to substitute in lieu thereof an answer admitting all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, which substitute answer was duly filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint and substitute answer and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Dixie Candy Co., Inc., is a corporation, organized and existing under the laws of the State of North Carolina with its principal office and place of business located at 732 East Seventh Street, Charlotte, N. C. Respondent is now and for more than 1 year last past has been engaged in the manufacture and in the sale and distribution of candy to wholesale dealers, jobbers, and retail dealers. Respondent causes and has caused said products when sold to be transported from its place of business in the city of Charlotte, N. C., to purchasers thereof, at their respective points of location, in various States of the United States other than North Carolina. There is now and for more than 1 year last past has been a course of trade by respondent in said candy in said commerce between and among various States of the United States. In the course and conduct of its said business respondent is and has been in competition with other corporations and with partnerships and individuals engaged in the sale and distribution of candy in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.
Findings

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and has sold to wholesale dealers, jobbers, and retail dealers certain assortments of candy so packed and assembled as to involve the use of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes when sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. One of said assortments is hereinafter described for the purpose of showing the method used by respondent, and is as follows:

This assortment is composed of a number of bars of candy of uniform size and shape, together with a device commonly called a push card. The said push card has 40 partially perforated disks, on the face of which is printed the word "Push." Concealed within the said disks are numbers ranging from 1 to 5, inclusive. When the disks are pushed or separated from the card a number is disclosed. Purchasers punching numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 pay 1 cent, 2 cents, 3 cents, 4 cents, and 5 cents, respectively. The numbers are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until the disks are pushed or separated from the card. The prices of said bars of candy are thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

The respondent furnishes, and has furnished, various push cards for use in the sale and distribution of its candy by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. Such cards are similar to the one herein described and vary only in detail.

PAR. 3. Retail dealers who directly or indirectly purchase respondent's said candy, expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the sales plan aforesaid. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of its products in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said sales plan or method in the sale of its candy and the sale of said candy by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plan or method is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws.

PAR. 4. The sale of candy to the purchasing public by the method or plan hereinabove set forth involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure bars of candy at prices much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell and distribute candy in competition with respondent, as above found, are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other method contrary to public policy and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of its candy and in the element of chance involved therein and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's candy in preference to candy of said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or equivalent methods. The use of said method by respondent because of said game of chance has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade in commerce between and among various States of the United States to respondent from its said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent methods.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the

Par. 4. Through the use of the statements and representations hereinabove set forth, and others similar thereto not specifically set out herein, the respondent has represented, directly and by implication, that his preparation designated as "Clito," also designated as "Clito Emmenagogue Capsules," is a competent and effective treatment for delayed menstruation and that said preparation is safe and harmless, and that the preparation designated as "Rayo De Sol" is a competent and efficient cure for cataracts, cloudiness of vision, or film carnosity, ulcers, and inflammation of the eyes and possesses therapeutic value in the treatment of such conditions.

Par. 5. The aforesaid statements and representations used and disseminated by the respondent as hereinabove set forth are grossly exaggerated, false, and misleading. In truth and in fact, respondent's preparation designated as "Clito Emmenagogue Capsules" is not a competent or efficient treatment for delayed menstruation. Moreover, said preparation is not safe or harmless, in that it contains the drugs, apiol, ext. cotton root bark, ext. viburnum prunifolium, ext.
pulsatilla, ext. sumbul and ext. helonias, in quantities sufficient to ditions as are customary or usual.

Such use of said preparation may result in gastro-intestinal disturbances, catharsis, nausea and vomiting, with pelvic congestion, congestion of the uterus, leading to excessive uterine hemorrhage, and in those cases where said preparation is used to interfere with the normal course of pregnancy, such use may result in uterine infection with extension to other pelvic and abdominal structures and even to the blood stream, causing the condition known as septicemia or blood poisoning.

Such use of said preparation may also produce a severe circulatory condition by the congestion of the blood vessels, contraction of the involuntary muscles, often with poisonous effect upon the human system, and tending to cause abortion in some instances, and may result in severe toxic conditions such as hemorrhagic diarrhea and in some instances producing a gangrenous condition of the lower limbs, resulting either in possible loss of limbs or in other serious and irreparable injury to health.

In truth and in fact, respondent's preparation "Rayo de Sol" is not a competent and efficient cure for cataracts, cloudiness of vision, or film carnosity, ulcers, and inflammation of the eyes and said preparation has no value in the treatment of such conditions.

PAR. 6. In addition to the representations hereinabove set forth, the respondent has also engaged in the dissemination of false advertisements in the manner above set forth, in that said advertisements of the preparation designated as "Clito Emmenagogue Capsules," failed to reveal facts material in the light of such representations and failed to reveal that the use of such preparation under the conditions prescribed in such advertisements or under such conditions as are customary or usual, may result in serious and irreparable injury to health.

PAR. 7. The use by the respondent of the aforesaid false, misleading, and deceptive statements and representations with respect to his said preparations, disseminated as aforesaid, has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that said statements, representations, and advertisements are true, and that the preparation designated as "Clito Emmenagogue Capsules," is a safe, competent, and effective treatment for delayed menstruation, and that the preparation designated as "Rayo De Sol" is a competent and efficient treatment and cure for cataracts, cloudiness of vision, or film carnosity, ulcers, and inflammation of the eyes, and to induce purchase by the public of the respondent's said preparations.

Par. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on August 23, 1940, issued, and on August 28, 1940, served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, Rene P. Balditt, an individual trading as Clito Co., charging him with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On September 10, 1940, the respondent filed his answer, in which answer he admitted all of the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and the answer thereto, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

Findings as to the Facts

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Rene P. Balditt, is an individual trading and doing business as Clito Co., with his principal office and place of business located at 325 North Frio Street, San Antonio, Tex.

Findings

Para. 4. Through the use of the statements and representations hereinabove set forth, and others similar thereto not specifically set out herein, the respondent has represented, directly and by implication, that his preparation designated as “Clito,” also designated as “Clito Emmenagogue Capsules” is a competent and effective treatment for delayed menstruation and that said preparation is safe and harmless, and that the preparation designated as “Rayo De Sol” is a competent and efficient cure for cataracts, cloudiness of vision, or film carnosity, ulcers, and inflammation of the eyes and possesses therapeutic value in the treatment of such conditions.

Para. 5. The aforesaid statements and representations used and disseminated by the respondent as hereinabove set forth are grossly exaggerated, false, and misleading. In truth and in fact, respondent’s preparation designated as “Clito Emmenagogue Capsules” is not a competent or efficient treatment for delayed menstruation. Moreover, said preparation is not safe or harmless, in that it contains the drugs, apiol, ext. cotton root bark, ext. viburnum prunifolium, ext. pulsatilla, ext. sumbul, and ext. helonias, in quantities sufficient to cause serious and irreparable injury to health, if used under the conditions described in said advertisements or under such conditions as are customary or usual.

Such use of said preparation may result in gastro-intestinal disturbances, catharsis, nausea and vomiting, with pelvic congestion, congestion of the uterus, leading to excessive uterine hemorrhage, and in those cases where said preparation is used to interfere with the normal course of pregnancy, such use may result in uterine infection with extension to other pelvic and abdominal structures and even to the blood stream, causing the condition known as septicemia or blood poisoning.

Such use of said preparation may also produce a severe circulatory condition by the congestion of the blood vessels, contraction of the involuntary muscles, often with poisonous effect upon the human system, and tending to cause abortion in some instances, and may result in severe toxis conditions, such as hemorrhagic diarrhea and in some instances producing a gangrenous condition of the lower limbs, resulting either in possible loss of limbs or in other serious and irreparable injury to health.

In truth and in fact, respondent’s preparation “Rayo De Sol” is not a competent and efficient cure for cataracts, cloudiness of vision, or film carnosity, ulcers, and inflammation of the eyes and said preparation has no value in the treatment of such conditions.

Para. 6. In addition to the representations hereinabove set forth, the respondent has also engaged in the dissemination of false ad-

Advertisements in the manner above set forth, in that said advertisements of the preparation designated as "Clito Emmenagogue Capsules," failed to reveal facts material in the light of such representations and failed to reveal that the use of such preparation under the conditions prescribed in such advertisements or under such conditions as are customary or usual, may result in serious and irreparable injury to health.

PAR. 7. The use by the respondent of the aforesaid false, misleading, and deceptive statements and representations with respect to his said preparations, disseminated as aforesaid, has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that said statements, representations, and advertisements are true, and that the preparation designated as "Clito Emmenagogue Capsules," is a safe, competent, and effective treatment for delayed menstruation, and that the preparation designated as "Rayo De Sol" is a competent and efficient treatment and cure for cataracts, cloudiness of vision, or film carnosity, ulcers, and inflammation of the eyes, and to induce purchase by the public of the respondent's said preparations.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of the respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and states that he waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Rene P. Balditt, an individual, trading as Clito Co., or trading under any other name or names, his agents, representatives, servants, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale or distribution of his drug preparations advertised under the name "Clito," and designated respectively as "Clito Emmenagogue Capsules" and as "Rayo De Sol," or of any other preparations composed of substantially similar ingredients or possessing substantially the same properties, whether sold under the same names or under any other name or names, do forthwith cease and desist from, directly or indirectly:

1. Disseminating or causing to be disseminated any advertisement (a) by means of United States mails, or (b) by any means in commerce, as “commerce” is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, which advertisement represents, directly or through inference, that said preparation, designated as “Clito Emmenagogue Capsules,” is a safe, competent, or effective treatment for delayed menstruation; or which advertisement represents, directly or through inference, that said preparation, designated as “Rayo De Sol,” is a cure or remedy for cataracts, cloudiness of vision, film carnosity, ulcers, and inflammation of the eyes, or has any value in the treatment of such conditions; or which advertisement of “Clito Emmenagogue Capsules” fails to reveal that the use of said preparation may cause gastrointestinal disturbances and excessive congestion and hemorrhage of the pelvic organs, and in case of pregnancy, may cause uterine infection and blood poisoning.

2. Disseminating or causing to be disseminated any advertisement by any means for the purpose of inducing, or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase in commerce, as “commerce” is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, of said preparations, “Clito Emmenagogue Capsules” and “Rayo De Sol,” which advertisement contains any of the representations prohibited in paragraph 1 hereof, or which advertisement of “Clito Emmenagogue Capsules” fails to reveal that the use of said preparation may cause gastrointestinal disturbances and excessive congestion and hemorrhage of the pelvic organs, and in case of pregnancy may cause uterine infection and blood poisoning.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 10 days after service upon him of this order file with the Commission an interim report in writing, stating whether he intends to comply with this order and if so, the manner and form in which he intends to comply; and that within 60 days after service upon him of this order said respondent shall file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.

Docket 1897. Complaint, Oct. 13, 1939—Decision, Nov. 1, 1940

Where a corporation and an individual, who was its president and had long managed, controlled, and dominated its affairs and activities, engaged in manufacture of hats from hat bodies and other materials obtained from old, worn, and previously used hats purchased by them, and in cleaning, steaming, ironing, and shaping said articles, and fitting same with new trimmings, sweat bands, and size labels, so that, after having been thus processed and treated, said products had appearance of new hats made from hat bodies which had never been used or worn—

Sold said hats, with appearance aforesaid, and with no marking or designation stamped thereon to indicate to purchasing public that they were in fact made from old, worn, and previously used hat bodies and other materials, cleaned and renovated by them as above set forth, and with no designation in billing or invoicing thereof to disclose kind or type of materials from which made, to jobbers, wholesalers, and retailers who resold to purchasing public said articles, without disclosure of fact that they were made of old hat bodies which had been previously worn and then cleaned and renovated, and under such circumstances that purchasers were led to believe that they were in fact new products made from new materials, and failed, through use of phrase "Made Over Hat" immediately following words "None Better Jay Bee $5 Special" and other similar names or words made use of in designating their merchandise and embossed on sweat bands attached to articles in question, to disclose to purchasers that products in question were made from old, worn, and previously used bodies, as distinguished from products made from shopworn hat bodies never used, by hat manufacturers in accordance with practically same process as they employed in manufacture of hats from old, worn, and previously used hat bodies;

With effect of misleading and deceiving substantial number of wholesale dealers, jobbers, retailers, and members of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that said products were made from either new and unused materials or from new, but shop-worn bodies, and into purchase of a substantial number thereof because of such belief, and with result, as direct consequence of such belief induced by them, that number of consuming public purchased substantial volume of their products, nature of which, as not made entirely from new materials, would not be disclosed by hat purchaser's casual examination, and trade was diverted unfairly to them from those engaged in sale of hats made from old, worn, and previously used hat bodies and other materials, and manufacturers who make hats from new materials; to the substantial injury of competition in commerce:

AMENDED AND SUPPLEMENTAL COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Maf Hat Works, Inc., a corporation, trading under its own name and also trading as New System Hat Manufacturing Company, and Alex Milder, individually and as an officer of Maf Hat Works, Inc., hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its amended and supplemental complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent Maf Hat Works, Inc., is now and has been at all times mentioned herein a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York. Respondent Alex Milder is an individual and is president of respondent Maf Hat Works, Inc., and has been such president continuously since on or about June 1931, and as such officer manages, controls, and dominates its corporate affairs and activities with reference to the unfair methods of competition and unfair and deceptive acts and practices herein alleged. Respondent Maf Hat Works, Inc., a corporation, trading under its own name and also trading as New System Hat Manufacturing Co., and respondent Alex Milder, individually and as an officer of Maf Hat Works, Inc., are now, and for more than 7 years last past and during said time have been, engaged in the business of manufacturing hats and caps from hat bodies and other materials obtained from old, worn, and previously used hats and of selling same to retailers, jobbers, and wholesalers, located in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Said respondents have their office and principal place of business at 102 Murray Street in the city of Newark, State of New Jersey. Respondents maintain, and at all times mentioned herein have maintained, a course of trade in said hats and caps, as described above, in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondents cause and at all times herein mentioned have caused such hats and caps to be transported from their place of business in the city of Newark, State of New Jersey, to the purchasers thereof, at their respective points of location in various States of the United States other than the State of New Jersey and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of their said business respondents are, and have been at all times referred to herein, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships, also engaged in the sale and distribution in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia of hats and caps manufactured from old, worn, and previously used hat bodies and other materials, and manufacturers who make hats and caps from new materials.

Par. 3. In the course and conduct of said business, as herein described, respondents buy old, worn, and previously used hat bodies. The old, worn, and previously used hat bodies are cleaned, steamed, ironed, and shaped by respondents and in some instances fitted with new trimmings, sweat bands, size labels, and then sold by respondents to retailers, jobbers, and wholesalers, who in turn sell said products to the purchasing public.

Par. 4. The aforesaid old, worn, and previously used hat bodies after having been made by respondents into hats and caps with new trimmings, sweat bands and size labels, as described herein, have the appearance of new hats and caps manufactured from hat bodies which have never been used or worn, and said hats and caps are sold by respondents to wholesalers, to jobbers and to retail dealers without any marking or designation stamped thereon to indicate to the purchasing public that said hats and caps are in fact manufactured from old, worn, and previously used hat bodies and other materials which have been cleaned and renovated by respondents. Said hats and caps are sold to jobbers and wholesale dealers, and are resold by said jobbers and wholesale dealers to retail dealers who sell them to the purchasing public without disclosing the fact that said hats and caps are manufactured from old hat bodies which have previously been worn and then cleaned and renovated and under such circumstances as to indicate that they are in fact new hats and caps.

In the course of the operation of their business respondents use the words "None Better Jay Bee $5.00 Special" and other similar words or names in designating said merchandise. Respondents cause said words or similar words or names to be embossed on sweat bands which are attached to said hats and caps. Immediately following the words "None Better Jay Bee $5.00 Special" or other similar terms and names used by respondents in designating said hats and caps, respondents have cause to be embossed the words "Made Over."

It is the practice of various manufacturers of hats and caps to manufacture finished hats and caps from previously used hat bodies and from new felt hat bodies obtained from new but shop-worn hats, as well as from newly manufactured materials. Shop-worn hats are new hats which are reclaimed from merchants' shelves by said hat and cap manufacturers and which have never been used or worn. Said shop-worn hats are cleaned, steamed, and renovated by said hat manufacturers in the same manner as hats made from old, worn, and previously used hat bodies.

By the use of the words "Made Over" in the manner aforesaid, and the failure to use words or wording clearly indicating that said hats and caps are made from old, worn, and previously used hat bodies, respondents fail to disclose to purchasers that said hats and caps are made from old, worn, and previously used hat bodies and other materials as distinguished from shop-worn hat bodies which have never been worn or used.

Par. 5. The use by respondents of the acts and practices as above set forth has the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial number of wholesale dealers, jobbers, retail dealers, and members of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken beliefs that said hats and caps are manufactured from either new and unused materials or are made from new but shop-worn hat bodies, and into the purchase of a substantial number of said hats and caps because of such erroneous and mistaken beliefs.

Par. 6. Further, as a direct consequence of the erroneous and mistaken beliefs induced by respondents, a number of the consuming public purchased, and now purchases, a substantial volume of respondents' products, and trade has been diverted unfairly to respondents from corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships also engaged in the business of selling hats and caps manufactured from old, worn, and previously used hat bodies and other materials, and manufacturers who manufacture hats and caps from new materials, and who truthfully advertise their products. As a result thereof, substantial injury has been done and is now being done by respondents to competition in commerce between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 7. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice of the public and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on the 13th day of October 1939, issued and subsequently served its amended and supplemental complaint in this proceeding upon respondents, Maf Hat Works, Inc., a corporation trading under its own name and also trading as New System Hat Manufacturing Co., and Alex Milder, individually and as an officer of Maf Hat Works, Inc., charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said amended and supplemental complaint and the filing of respondents' answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said amended and supplemental complaint were introduced by Robert Mathis, Jr., Attorney for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the amended and supplemental complaint by Alex Milder, appearing for the respondents, before Robert S. Hall, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said amended and supplemental complaint, the answer thereto, testimony, and other evidence, brief in support of the complaint (respondents not having filed brief and oral argument not having been requested); and the Commission, having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent Maf Hat Works, Inc., is now, and has been at all times mentioned herein, a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York. Respondent Alex Milder is an individual and is president of respondent corporation, Maf Hat Works, Inc., and has been such president continuously since on or about June 1931 and as such officer manages, controls, and dominates its corporate affairs and activities.
MAF HAT WORKS, INC., ETC., ET AL. 1231

Findings

Respondents, Maf Hat Works, Inc., trading under its own name and also trading as New System Hat Manufacturing Co., and Alex Milder, individually and as president of Maf Hat Works, Inc., are now and for more than 7 years last past, have been continuously engaged in the business of manufacturing hats from hat bodies and other materials obtained from old, worn, and previously used hats and of selling same to retailers, jobbers, and wholesalers located in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Said respondents have their office and principal place of business at 102 Murray Street in the city of Newark, State of New Jersey. Respondents maintain, and at all times mentioned herein have maintained, a course of trade in said hats in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, and in the District of Columbia.

Respondents cause, and for the past 7 years have caused, such hats to be transported from their place of business in the city of Newark, State of New Jersey, to the purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in various States of the United States other than the State of New Jersey, and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of said business respondents are, and have been at all times referred to herein, in competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships also engaged in the sale and distribution in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, and in the District of Columbia, of hats manufactured from old, worn, and previously used hat bodies, and other material, and manufacturers who make hats from new materials. In the course and conduct of said business as described herein, respondents buy old, worn, and previously used hat bodies, which are then cleaned, steamed, ironed, and shaped by respondents; and in some instances fitted with new trimmings, sweat bands, size labels, and then sold by respondents to retailers, jobbers, and wholesalers, who in turn sell said products to the purchasing public.

Par. 3. The aforesaid old, worn, and previously used hat bodies, after having been made by respondents into hats with new trimmings, sweat bands and size labels, have the appearance of new hats manufactured from hat bodies which have never been used or worn, and said hats are sold by respondents to wholesalers, to jobbers, and to retail dealers without any marking or designation stamped thereon to indicate to the purchasing public that said hats are in fact manufactured from old, worn, and previously used hat bodies and other materials which have been cleaned and renovated by respondents. In billing and invoicing purchasers for said hats, respondents do not use any designation to disclose to said purchasers the kind or type of materials from which said hats have been made but, instead, use various numbers in describing said products. Therefore, said hats are sold to jobbers and wholesale dealers and are resold by said jobbers and wholesale dealers to retail dealers, who sell them to the purchasing public without making any disclosure of the fact that said hats are manufactured from old hat bodies which have been previously worn and then cleaned and renovated, and under such circumstances that purchasers are led to believe that they are in fact new hats manufactured from new materials.

In the course of the operation of their said business, respondents have used the words "None Better Jay Bee $5 Special," and other similar names or words in designating said merchandise. Respondents cause said words or similar words or names to be embossed on the sweat bands which are attached to said hats. Immediately following the words "None Better Jay Bee $5 Special" or other similar terms and names used by respondents in designating said hats, respondents have embossed the words "Made Over Hat," and in a large portion of the respondents' hats which are manufactured from used hats, no marking appears other than the words "Made Over Hat."

It is the practice of various manufacturers of hats to manufacture finished hats from previously used hat bodies and from new felt hat bodies obtained from new but shop-worn hats, as well as from newly manufactured materials. A shopworn hat is one that is discolored or badly used in window display or badly handled inside the store so that it is not salable again, or it also might be a hat that came through with a mark or defacement on the surface of the felt or any part of it. It is an unsalable hat. Said shop-worn hats are cleaned, steamed, and renovated by said hat manufacturers in practically the same manner as hats from old, worn, and previously used hat bodies.

By the use of the words "Made Over Hat" in the manner as described herein and the failure to use words or wording clearly indicating that said hats are made from old, worn, and previously used hat bodies, respondents fail to disclose to purchasers that said hats are made from old, worn, and previously used hat bodies and other materials, as distinguished from shop-worn hat bodies which have never been used.

PAR. 4. The use by respondents of the acts and practices set forth herein has the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial number of wholesale dealers, jobbers, retail dealers, and members of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that said hats are manufactured from either new and unused materials or are made from new but shop-worn hat bodies, and into the purchase of a substantial number of said hats because of such erroneous and mistaken belief. The casual examination, such as the purchaser makes when buying a hat, would not disclose to such purchaser that respondents’ products are not made entirely from new materials.

Par. 5. It is further found that as a direct consequence of the erroneous and mistaken belief induced by respondents, a number of the consuming public purchased, and now purchases, a substantial volume of respondents’ products, and trade has been diverted unfairly to respondents from corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships also engaged in the business of selling hats manufactured from old, worn, and previously used hat bodies and other materials, and manufacturers who manufacture hats from new materials. As a result thereof, substantial injury has been done by respondents to competition in commerce between the various States of the United States, and in the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the amended and supplemental complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondents, testimony, and other evidence taken before Robert S. Hall, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, brief filed by counsel for the Commission (respondents not having filed brief, and oral argument not having been requested), and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act. It is ordered, That respondent, Maf Hat Works, Inc., a corporation, trading under its own name and also trading as New System Hat Manufacturing Co., or trading under any other name or names, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, and respondent Alex Milder, individually and as an officer of said corporation, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of hats in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing that hats composed in whole or in part of used or second-hand materials are new or are composed of new materials by failure to stamp on the sweat bands thereof, in conspicuous and legible terms which cannot be removed or obliterated without mutilating the sweat bands, a statement that said products are composed of second-hand or used materials, provided that if sweat bands are not affixed to such hats then such stamping must appear on the bodies of such hats in conspicuous and legible terms which cannot be removed or obliterated without mutilating said bodies.

2. Representing in any manner that hats made in whole or in part from old, used or second-hand materials are new or are composed of new materials.

It is further ordered, That respondents shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.
BASIC FOODS, INC., AND CURTIS HOWE SPRINGER

Docket 2844. Complaint, June 16, 1936—Decision, Nov. 1, 1940

Where a corporation and an individual, who was president thereof and in control of its business and of the advertising and sale of its product, respectively engaged in manufacture, sale, and distribution, or sale, of certain so-called herb, drug, and health preparations, including their “Dr. Springer’s Antediluvian Tea” and “Dr. Springer’s Re-Hib” proprietary products, to dealers for resale and to members of public in various other States and in District of Columbia, in substantial competition with others engaged in sale in commerce among the several States and in said District, of various products sold and distributed for some of the same purposes for which they offered and sold their products, and including among said competitors many who do not misrepresent the nature or character of the products sold by them, or the efficacy thereof in the treatment of diseases or ailments—

(g) Represented through use of abbreviation “Dr.” in names of their aforesaid products and advertisements thereof in newspapers and periodicals circulated in various States and in said District, and broadcasts and through other statements made orally to the public in advertising the same, that individual in question was a physician or doctor of medicine, licensed to practice by duly constituted authority empowered to issue licenses for such practice, and that products in question were made under direct supervision and with approval of a regularly qualified and duly licensed physician or doctor of medicine, and were, therefore, of substantial therapeutic value and efficacy in the treatment of various diseases, ailments, or symptoms mentioned by them in their advertising; Notwithstanding fact individual in question was not a physician or doctor of medicine or licensed to practice same by any such authority empowered to issue licenses therefor, and products in question were not preparations made under direct supervision and with approval of regularly qualified and duly licensed physician or doctor of medicine;

(b) Represented, in their said advertising, that most human aches and pains are due to congestion of the glands and organs of the body, and due to constipation and overacid conditions;

Facts being most such aches and pains are not due to such congestion or constipation or overacid conditions;

(c) Represented, as aforesaid, that their said products were beneficially effective for the glands and organs of the body by removing poisons therefrom, and that products in question were respectively beneficial, effective and safe therapeutic remedies for majority of human aches and pains, and for treatment, among other ailments, of kidney trouble, diseased tonsils, stiff and aching joints, swollen feet, heartburn, insomnia, and nervousness;
Facts being—

(1) Said "Dr. Springer's Antediluvian Tea" has no beneficial, curative, or remedial value for any malady or diseased condition of body, possesses no therapeutic value for treatment of kidney trouble, diseased tonsils, stiff and aching joints, swollen feet, heartburn, insomnia, nervousness, or any other conditions of body, except to extent that constipation or impaired elimination, as symptom of disease or ailment, may be relieved by administration of mild laxative, and anyone drinking five or six glasses of water daily would derive substantially same effect as from use of said tea according to directions on containers, while use in large quantities, or as recommended, might have deleterious effects upon those suffering from any of a number of conditions of which constipation is symptom, and might result in rupture of intestine if taken by those suffering from ulcer thereof; and,

(2) Said "Dr. Springer's Re-Hib," in which were included, in addition to certain known digestants, number of substances commonly used in neutralization of stomach acids, has no beneficial, curative or remedial value for any condition or malady of body and possesses no therapeutic value in treatment of any such condition or malady, except to extent that same is caused by hyperacidity of stomach, which may be relieved by administration of such a product as a palliative or acid neutralizer, and to extent that digestion may be aided by administration of said product as a digestant, while habitual use of substances of type of which said product was composed, for relief of pain after eating, as recommended, would, in some cases, tend to prevent making of definite diagnosis of cause of such pain and delay treatment for diseases or ailments characterized by pain after eating, would have tendency to be injurious, in certain cases, and use thereof would not, as represented, be effective treatment or remedy for all cases of so-called "heartburn" or "insomnia"; and

(d) Represented, in their said advertising, that they, in their desire to cooperate with existing laws and regulations, had submitted and were submitting packages of their said products, together with all advertising literature relating thereto, to the Administration in Washington, and to all Federal agencies having any interest therein, offering to make any changes in the products or the literature that the Administration would suggest; with intent and effect of representing falsely to public that their said products had been approved by Federal governmental agencies as sold and distributed by them in conformity with existing laws and regulations applicable thereto;

Notwithstanding fact their said products had not been inspected, supervised, and approved by competent governmental authorities having jurisdiction over food and drugs and the advertising matter relating thereto, and their said advertising literature had not been thus approved;

With effect of engendering in minds of a substantial number of purchasing public erroneous belief that said statements, representations, and claims were true, that said individual possessed qualifications implied by use of abbreviation "Dr.," that their said products possessed therapeutic value claimed and would accomplish results indicated, and that said products and advertising had been approved by competent governmental authorities, and of causing substantial portion of said public, because of such erroneous and mistaken belief, to purchase substantial quantities of their said products, and with result that trade was diverted unfairly to them from their competitors, engaged as above set forth, and who truthfully advertise the nature, character, effectiveness, and therapeutic value of their respective products:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Mr. Jay L. Jackson, for the Commission.

Mr. Leland W. Walker, of Somerset, Pa., for respondents.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Basic Foods, Inc., and Curtis Howe Springer, hereinafter referred to as respondents, have been and now are using unfair methods of competition in commerce as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Basic Foods, Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, with its principal place of business and address located at Somerset, in the State of Pennsylvania. Said respondent is now and for more than 1 year last past has been engaged in manufacturing, offering for sale, selling, and distributing prepared food, herb, drug, and health products, more specifically known and designated as "Dr. Springer's Antediluvian Tea" and "Dr. Springer's Re-Hib," in commerce among and between various States of the United States, and in the District of Columbia, and has caused and now causes said products, when sold or ordered, to be shipped and transported from the State of origin thereof to various States of the United States other than the State of origin of said shipments, and to the District of Columbia, in the course and conduct of which said corporate respondent has been and now is in competition with corporations, firms, partnerships, and individuals engaged in selling and distributing products for like purposes and in like commerce as that of said respondent.

Respondent, Curtis Howe Springer, is an individual, president of respondent, Basic Foods, Inc., and an agent and employee thereof, with his principal place of business and address located at Somerset, in the State of Pennsylvania, and as such is now and at all times material to this complaint has been engaged in and with the business of said corporate respondent and in and with the organization of said corporation and with the advertising, promotion, offering for sale, sale, and distribution of its said products in commerce, all as aforesaid.

Par. 2. Respondents have sold and now sell the said "Antediluvian Tea" and "Re-Hib" in interstate commerce, as set forth in paragraph 1 above, by use of the mails, interstate carriers, and other channels of interstate commerce, by means of radio broadcasting, oral statements, newspapers, magazines, pamphlets, periodicals, labels, and other forms of printed matter and advertising literature which have had and have a circulation in and through the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia and which have been and are circulated and distributed by respondents to customers and prospective customers in and through the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, in the course and conduct of which respondents, Basic Foods, Inc., and Curtis Howe Springer, individually and together, have made and now make false and misleading statements and representations, all to the injury of the public and to the injury of competitors of respondent, Basic Foods, Inc.

Par. 3. The word "Doctor," or its abbreviation "Dr." when used in connection with the advertising and sale of drugs, medicines, and products having to do with human health and with the treatment of disease, sickness, or human ailments, either as a part of the trade name of said products or as a title and prefix before the proper name of any person publicly advising, prescribing, or sponsoring the use of such products, for many years has been and now is understood by the purchasing and consuming public in general to mean and signify, and does mean and signify, that such products have the approval of competent medical authority in the form of a doctor, physician, or practitioner of medicine who has been and is duly licensed by some competent and recognized governmental authority to practice medicine in some form, either general or specialized, and that the said word refers to a person under whose name, advice, prescription, or auspices the said products are offered and sold and that said person is one who is, or has been a doctor, physician, or practitioner of medicine and as such is duly licensed by some competent and recognized governmental authority to practice medicine in some form, either general or specialized.

Par. 4. In the course and conduct of said corporate respondent's business, as aforesaid, respondents did and do advertise, offer for sale, sell, and distribute the said tea and Re-Hib products by causing the words and trade name "Dr. Springer's" to be labeled and to appear thereon and in combination with the words and name "Antediluvian Tea” and “Re-Hib,” and otherwise caused and cause said products to be advertised, offered for sale, sold, and distributed as and for products known and described as “Dr. Springer’s Antediluvian Tea” and “Dr. Springer’s Re-Hib” and as products advised, prescribed, and sponsored by one Dr. Springer, thereby falsely and misleadingly representing said products as having the approval of competent medical authority and as being products sold under the name, advice, prescription, or auspices of one who is, or has been, a doctor, physician, or practitioner of medicine and as such is duly licensed by some competent and recognized governmental authority to practice medicine in some form, either general or specialized; that said person is one known as “Dr. Springer,” and that said person is, or has been, a doctor, physician, or practitioner of medicine and as such is duly licensed by some competent and recognized governmental authority to practice medicine in some form, either general or specialized; whereas, in truth and in fact, the said products are not sold under the name, advice, prescription, or auspices of one who is, or has been, a doctor, physician, or practitioner of medicine and as such duly licensed by any competent and recognized governmental authority to practice medicine in any form, either general or specialized, and whereas further, the said person referred to as “Dr. Springer” is not and has not been a doctor, physician, or practitioner of medicine and is not duly licensed by any competent and recognized governmental authority to practice medicine in any form, either general or specialized.

Par. 5. In the course and conduct of the business of said corporate respondent, all as aforesaid, respondents, individually and together, did and do falsely and misleadingly represent and disseminate facts and information relative to the conditions, symptoms, and causes of human aches, pains, ailments, and disease, and relative to cures, correctives, and remedies therefor, and in connection therewith did and do falsely and misleadingly advertise, state, imply, and represent, among other things, that most human aches and pains are due to congestion of the glands and organs of the body; that the majority of human aches and pains are due to constipation and to digestive systems suffering from an over-acid condition; that the majority of human beings suffer from constipation and an over-acid condition and are in need of correctives or remedies therefor; that the said “Dr. Springer’s Antediluvian Tea” acts beneficially and effectively upon the glands and organs of the body, removes poison or poisons from the body, and is a beneficial and effective therapeutic remedy or corrective for the majority of human aches and pains, for gas, aches, and pains due to congestion of the glands and organs of the body, for congestion of the glands and organs of the body, and for kidney troubles, diseased tonsils, stiff and aching joints, swollen feet, so-called "heartburn," inability to sleep or rest at night, and nervousness; whereas, in truth and in fact, most human aches and pains are not due to congestion of the glands and organs of the body and not to constipation or to digestive systems suffering from an over-acid condition; the majority of human beings do not suffer from constipation and an over-acid condition and are not in need of correctives or remedies therefor; the said "Antediluvian Tea" is primarily a laxative or purgative, does not act beneficially and effectively upon the glands and organs of the body, does not and cannot remove poison or poisons from the body, and is not a beneficial and effective therapeutic remedy or corrective for the majority of human aches and pains, for gas, aches, and pains due to congestion of the glands and organs of the body, for congestion of the glands and organs of the body, or for kidney troubles, diseased tonsils, stiff and aching joints, swollen feet, heartburn, inability to sleep or rest at night, or for nervousness.

Respondents, individually and together, further did and do falsely and misleadingly advertise, state, imply, and represent, that an over-acid condition of the stomach and of the digestive system is common to and suffered by most human beings; that the said "Re-Hib" is a beneficial and effective therapeutic remedy or corrective for all cases of over-acidity, for so-called "heartburn," for all gas pains of the stomach, and for inability to sleep or rest at night; that said product is a beneficial drug compound for the majority of human beings, will enable one to overcome gas of the stomach of whatever cause, to eat heavy foods without suffering stomach pains, and that the same contains digestants of a quality and quantity sufficient to aid and enable the digestion of all foods which a person or persons may find difficult to digest; whereas, in truth and in fact, most human beings do not suffer from over-acidity; the said "Re-Hib" is not a beneficial and effective therapeutic remedy or corrective for all cases of over-acidity, or for heartburn, all gas pains of the stomach, or for inability to sleep or rest at night; that said product is not a beneficial drug compound for the majority of or any substantial percentage of human beings and should not be taken except upon doctor's prescription following diagnosis of the condition and needs of the person taking the same; the said product will not enable one to overcome gas of the stomach of whatever cause, or in all cases to eat heavy foods without suffering stomach pains, and said product does not contain digestants of a quality and quantity sufficient to aid and enable the digestion of all foods which a person or persons may find difficult to digest.
Respondents, individually and together, further did and do advertise, state; imply, and represent that respondents submitted and were submitting packages of both of the aforesaid products, together with bulletins and all literature relative thereto, to the administration in Washington, offering to make any changes they would suggest, in respondents' desire to cooperate, should any statements on labels or in the said literature be found to be contrary to existing laws and regulations, thereby falsely and misleadingly implying and representing that the said products and the labels, advertising statements, and literature relative thereto were and are being submitted to all Federal agencies having an interest therein and any regulatory jurisdiction over the same, and that the same were and are being approved by Federal governmental agencies as being in conformity with existing laws and regulations; whereas, in truth and in fact, it is not the present function of any Federal governmental agency, as related to products of said corporate respondent, to approve or censure the same or the advertising statements and literature relative thereto, in advance of or concurrent with the shipment and distribution thereof in the channels of interstate commerce, and said products, labels, advertising statements, and literature were not and are not being submitted to all Federal agencies having an interest therein and regulatory jurisdiction thereover, and the same were not and are not being approved by Federal governmental agencies as being in conformity with existing laws and regulations.

Par. 6. The aforesaid false and misleading statements, implications, and representations as set out in paragraphs 4 and 5 above, have had and have, and each of them has had and has, the tendency and capacity to confuse, mislead, and deceive the purchasing and consuming public into the false and erroneous belief that the said statements, implications, and representations are, and each of them is, true, and into the purchase and consumption of the said products of respondent, Basic Foods, Inc., in the place and stead of competing products of said respondent's competitors, which said competitors offer and sell for like purposes and uses as those for which said corporate respondent offers and sells its products, and thereby to divert trade to said corporate respondent from its competitors in interstate commerce who do not offer for sale and sell their products by means of false and misleading statements, implications, or representations.

Par. 7. The above acts, conduct, and things done by respondents are to the injury and prejudice of the public and to competitors of respondent, Basic Foods, Inc., in interstate commerce within the meaning and intent of section 5 of an act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes."
Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on the 16th day of June 1936, issued its complaint in this proceeding and caused the complaint to be served upon the respondents, Basic Foods, Inc., and Curtis Howe Springer, charging the respondents with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. The respondents did not make answer to the complaint.

Thereafter, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of the complaint were introduced by Jay L. Jackson, attorney for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by Curtis Howe Springer, pro se, and as president of respondent Basic Foods, Inc., before Edward E. Reardon and John L. Hornor, trial examiners of the Commission, theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the complaint, testimony and other evidence, and brief in support of the complaint, respondent not having filed brief and oral argument not having been requested, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and the conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent Basic Foods, Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, with its principal place of business at Somerset, Pa. It is now, and since more than 1 year prior to June 16, 1936, has been, engaged in the manufacture and in the sale and distribution in commerce of certain so-called herb, drug, and health products, including the proprietary products "Dr. Springer's Antediluvian Tea," and "Dr. Springer's Re-Hib."

PAR. 2. Respondent Curtis Howe Springer is and at all times referred to above has been the president of respondent Basic Foods, Inc., with his principal place of business at Somerset, Pa., and at all of said times he has been in control of the business of Basic Foods, Inc., and of the advertising and sale of its products.

PAR. 3. The respondents, during the times referred to above, have sold the products of respondent Basic Foods, Inc., to dealers for resale and to members of the public located in various States of the United States other than Pennsylvania, and in the District of Columbia, and they have caused said products, including "Dr. Springer's Antediluvian Tea" and "Dr. Springer's Re-Hib," when so sold, to be transported, in commerce, from the place of business of respondent Basic Foods, Inc., in Somerset, Pa., to the purchasers thereof located in the other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

In the course and conduct of their business, as aforesaid, the respondents have been in substantial competition with corporations, firms, and individuals engaged in the sale, in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, of various products sold and distributed for some of the same purposes of use for which the respondents have offered for sale and sold the products of respondent Basic Foods, Inc. There are many among said competitors of respondents who do not misrepresent the nature or character of the products sold by them, or the efficacy of their products when used in the treatment of diseases or human ailments.

Par. 4. The word "Doctor" and the abbreviation "Dr.," when used in connection with the name of an individual engaged in the treatment of human ailments, or used in connection with the name of an individual engaged in the sale of drugs or products sold for the treatment of human ailments, are understood by the public to mean that the individual so described is one who has been duly qualified and licensed to practice medicine by some governmental or other duly authorized agency.

Par. 5. During all the times referred to above, and in order to further the sale of their products designated "Dr. Springer's Antediluvian Tea" and "Dr. Springer's Re-Hib," the respondents have caused advertisements thereof to be published in newspapers, magazines, and periodicals which have been circulated among the public in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and to be broadcast by means of the radio, and they have also caused other statements to be made orally to the public advertising said products.

Through the use of the abbreviation "Dr." in the names of said products and in the advertisements thereof, the respondents have represented that the respondent Curtis Howe Springer is a physician or doctor of medicine, licensed to practice medicine by a duly constituted authority empowered to issue licenses for the practice of medicine, and that the products called "Dr. Springer's Antediluvian Tea" and "Dr. Springer's Re-Hib" are preparations made under the direct supervision of, and with the approval of, a regularly qualified and duly licensed physician or doctor of medicine, and are therefore of substantial therapeutic value and efficacy in the treatment of the various diseases, ailments, or symptoms mentioned by respondents in their advertising.
In the course and conduct of respondents' advertising, as aforesaid, respondents, among other things, further stated, implied, and represented that most human aches and pains are due to congestion of the glands and organs of the body and due to constipation and overacid conditions, and that their products, "Dr. Springer's Antediluvian Tea" and "Dr. Springer's Re-Hib," are beneficially effective for the glands and organs of the body by removing poisons from the body, and that these products, respectively, are beneficial, effective, and safe therapeutic remedies for the majority of human aches and pains and for the treatment, among other ailments, of kidney trouble, diseased tonsils, stiff and aching joints, swollen feet, heartburn, insomnia, and nervousness.

The respondents have further represented in the advertising matter mentioned above that they, in their desire to cooperate with existing laws and regulations, had submitted and were submitting packages of the products "Dr. Springer's Antediluvian Tea" and "Dr. Springer's Re-Hib," together with all the advertising literature relating thereto, to the Administration in Washington and to all Federal agencies having any interest therein, offering to make any changes in the products or the literature that the Administration would suggest, with the intent on the part of the respondents, and with the effect, of falsely representing to the public that respondents' products have been approved by Federal governmental agencies as products being sold and distributed by respondents in conformity with existing laws and regulations applicable thereto.

As a matter of fact, respondent Curtis Howe Springer is not a physician or doctor of medicine, or licensed to practice medicine by any duly constituted authority empowered to issue licenses for the practice of medicine, and the products of respondents, "Dr. Springer's Antediluvian Tea" and "Dr. Springer's Re-Hib," are not preparations made under the direct supervision of, and with the approval of, a regularly qualified and duly licensed physician or doctor of medicine. Most human aches and pains are not due to congestion of the glands and organs of the body or to constipation or overacid conditions.

Respondents' preparation, called "Dr. Springer's Antediluvian Tea," has no beneficial, curative, or remedial value for any malady or diseased condition of the human body, and possesses no therapeutic value for use in the treatment of kidney trouble, diseased tonsils, stiff and aching joints, swollen feet, heartburn, insomnia, nervousness, or the treatment of any other condition of the human body except to the extent that constipation, or impaired elimination, as a symptom of disease, or as an ailment, may be relieved by the administration of a mild laxative. Any person using five or six glasses of drinking water daily would derive substantially the same effect from the water as would be obtained from the use of respondents' "Antediluvian Tea" according to the directions printed on the packages or cartons thereof. The use of "Dr. Springer's Antediluvian Tea" in large quantities, or as recommended by respondents, might have deleterious effects upon persons suffering from any of a number of pathological conditions of which constipation is a symptom. If so taken by a person suffering from an ulcer in the intestines, the use of "Antediluvian Tea" might result in rupture of the intestine, a condition which presents an immediate surgical emergency associated with a high mortality rate.

Respondent's preparation called "Dr. Springer's Re-Hib" contains, in addition to certain substances known as digestants, a number of substances commonly used in the neutralization of acids of the stomach. It has no beneficial, curative, or remedial value for any condition or malady of the human body, and possesses no therapeutic value in the treatment of any condition or malady of the human body except to the extent that such condition or malady is caused by hyperacidity of the stomach which may be relieved by the administration of such product as a palliative or acid neutralizer, and except to the extent that the digestion of foods may be aided by the administration of said product as a digestant. The habitual use of substances of the type of which "Re-Hib" is composed, for the relief of pain after eating, as recommended by respondents, in some cases would tend to prevent the making of a definite diagnosis of the cause of such pain and would delay treatment for diseases or ailments characterized by pain after eating. In the case of a person suffering from gastro-intestinal-tract lesion, for example, the use of such a product would have a tendency to be injurious. The use of said product would not, as represented by respondents, be an effective treatment or remedy for all cases of so-called "heartburn" or "insomnia."

Par. 10. Respondents' products "Dr. Springer's Antediluvian Tea" and "Dr. Springer's Re-Hib" have not been inspected, supervised, and approved by competent governmental authorities having jurisdiction over food and drugs and the advertising matter relating thereto, and respondents' advertising literature has not been so approved.

Par. 11. The use by the respondents of the foregoing statements, representations and claims, disseminated as aforesaid, has had and now has the capacity and tendency to and does engender in the minds of a substantial number of the purchasing public the erroneous belief that said statements, representations and claims are true; that respondent Curtis Howe Springer possesses the qualifications implied by the use of the abbreviation "Dr."; that respondents' products possess the therapeutic value claimed and will accomplish the results indicated, and that respondents' products and advertising have been approved by competent governmental authorities, and has caused and causes a substantial portion of the purchasing public situated in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, because of such erroneous and mistaken belief, to purchase substantial quantities of respondents' products. As a result, trade is and has been diverted unfairly to the respondents from their competitors who are likewise engaged in the sale and distribution in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia of similar medicinal preparations or other preparations intended for similar usage who truthfully advertise the nature, character, effectiveness, and therapeutic value of their respective products.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, testimony and other evidence taken before Edward E. Reardon and John L. Hornor, examiners of the Commission, theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of the complaint and in opposition thereto, and brief of counsel for the Commission, (respondents having filed no answer to the complaint and no brief in opposition to the allegations of the complaint, and no request for oral argument having been made) and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondents, Basic Foods, Inc., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, and Curtis Howe Springer, an individual, his representative, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale or distribution of medicinal preparations now designated as "Dr. Springer's Antediluvian Tea" and "Dr. Springer's Re-Hib", or any other medicinal preparation or preparations containing substantially similar ingredients or possessing substantially similar therapeutic properties, whether sold or distributed under the same name or names or under any other name or names, in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Using the word "Doctor" or any abbreviation thereof, to designate, identify or refer to any person or product when the person so designated is not, or has not been, a physician or practitioner of medicine, duly licensed as such to practice medicine by a recognized governmental authority, and when the product so designated or identified is not the product or prescription of, and approved or sponsored by, such a physician or practitioner of medicine.

2. Representing that the majority of human aches and pains are due to congestion of the glands and organs of the body, or to constipation or over-acid conditions.

3. Representing that the preparations called "Dr. Springer's Antediluvian Tea" and "Dr. Springer's Re-Hib," or any products of like or substantially similar composition, may be beneficially or safely taken by all persons.

4. Representing that the preparation called "Dr. Springer's Antediluvian Tea," or any product of like or substantially similar composition, has any beneficial, curative or remedial value for any malady or diseased condition of the human body; or possesses any therapeutic value in the treatment of kidney trouble, diseased tonsils, stiff and aching joints, swollen feet, heartburn, insomnia, nervousness, or in the treatment of any other condition of the human body except to the extent the symptoms thereof may be relieved by the administration of a mild laxative.

5. Representing that the preparation called "Dr. Springer's Re-Hib," or any product of like or substantially similar composition, has any beneficial, curative or remedial value for any condition or malady of the human body, or possesses any therapeutic value in the treatment of any condition or malady of the human body except to the extent that such condition or malady is caused by hyperacidity of the stomach which may be relieved by the administration of said product as a palliative or acid neutralizer, and except to the extent that the digestion of foods may be aided by the administration of said product as a digestant.

6. Representing that any of respondents' products are approved by any governmental agency.

It is further ordered, That the respondents shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Ideal Candy Novelties Co., Inc., a corporation, and Abramiam Aronoff and Rose Aronoff, individually and as officers of Ideal Candy Novelties Co., Inc., hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of said act and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent Ideal Candy Novelties Co., Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of New York with its principal office and place of business located at 770 Coney Island Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. Respondent Abraham Aronoff, an individual, is president of the corporate respondent. Respondent Rose Aronoff, an individual, is vice president and secretary of the corporate respondent. Both of the individual respondents have their offices at the same address as corporate respondent. Respondents Abraham Aronoff and Rose Aronoff, formulate, control, and direct the acts, practices and policies of the corporate respondent. Said respondents act together and in cooperation with each other in doing the acts and things hereinafter alleged. Respondents are now, and for more than 1 year last past have been, engaged in the sale and distribution of candy and other articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondents cause and have caused said products, when sold, to be transported from their aforesaid place of business in the State of New York to purchasers thereof, at their respective points of location, in the various States of the United States other than New York and in the District of Columbia. There is now, and has been for more than 1 year last past, a course of trade by said respondents in such products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business respondents are and have been in competition with other corporations and individuals and with partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of their business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondents sell and have sold to brokers, wholesale dealers, jobbers, and retail dealers certain assortments of candy and other articles of merchandise so packed and assembled as to involve the use of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes when sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. One of said assortments is hereinafter described for the purpose of showing the method used by respondents and is as follows:

This assortment consists of 150 pieces of caramel candy of uniform size and shape, together with 14 common lead pencils and 8 pencil sets. The said pencil sets contain a ruler, a pencil and a penholder. Seven of the said caramels are red, 14 are chocolate and the remainder, 129, are vanilla. The said caramels are individually wrapped and the color of each is effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until a purchase has been made and the wrapper removed therefrom. All of the caramels retail at the price of 1 cent each. Purchasers procuring 1 of the said chocolate caramels are entitled to and receive, without additional cost, 1 of the said pencils. Purchasers procuring 1 of the said red caramels are entitled to and receive, without additional cost, 1 of the said pencil sets. The purchaser of the last caramel in said assortment is entitled to and receives, without additional cost, 1 of the said pencil sets. The said pencils and pencil sets are thus distributed to the purchasing and consuming public wholly by lot or chance.

Par. 3. Retail dealers who purchase respondents' said candy and other articles of merchandise, directly or indirectly, expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the sales plan aforesaid. Respondents thus supply to and place in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of their products in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondents of said sales plan or method in the sale of their products and the sale of said products by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plan or method is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws.
Par. 4. The sale of candy and other articles of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above alleged involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure an article of merchandise at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell or distribute candy and other articles of merchandise in competition with the respondents, as above alleged, are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other method that is contrary to public policy and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondents in the sale and distribution of their candy and other articles of merchandise and the element of chance involved therein and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondents said products in preference to products offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondents who do not use the same or equivalent methods. The use of said method by respondents because of said game of chance has a tendency and a capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia to respondents from their said competitors, who do not use the same or equivalent method, and as a result thereof substantial injury is being and has been done by respondents to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on April 8, 1940, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondents Ideal Candy Novelties Co., Inc., a corporation, and Abraham Aronoff and Rose Aronoff, individually and as officers of Ideal Candy Novelties Co., Inc., charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On October 2, 1940, the respondents filed their answer in which answer they admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts.
Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and answer thereto, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent Ideal Candy Novelties Co., Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of New York with its principal office and place of business located at 770 Coney Island Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. Respondent Abraham Aronoff, an individual, is president of the corporate respondent. Respondent Rose Aronoff, an individual, is vice-president and secretary of the corporate respondent. Both of the individual respondents have their offices at the same address as corporate respondent. Respondents Abraham Aronoff and Rose Aronoff, formulate, control, and direct the acts, practices, and policies of the corporate respondent. Said respondents act together and in cooperation with each other in doing the acts and things hereinafter set forth. Respondents are now and for more than 1 year last past have been, engaged in the sale and distribution of candy and other articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondents cause and have caused said products, when sold, to be transported from their aforesaid place of business in the State of New York to purchasers thereof, at their respective points of location, in the various States of the United States other than New York and in the District of Columbia. There is now, and has been for more than 1 year last past, a course of trade by said respondents in such products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business respondents are and have been in competition with other corporations and individuals and with partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of their business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondents sell and have sold to brokers, wholesale dealers, jobbers, and retail dealers certain assortments of candy and other articles of merchandise so packed and assembled as to involve the use of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes when sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. One of said assortments is hereinafter described for the purpose of showing the method used by respondents and is as follows:

This assortment consists of 150 pieces of caramel candy of uniform size and shape, together with 14 common lead pencils and 8 pencil sets. The said pencil sets contain a ruler, a pencil and a pencil holder. Seven of the said caramels are red, 14 are chocolate and the remainder, 129, are vanilla. The said caramels are individually wrapped and the color of each is effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until a purchase has been made and the wrapper removed therefrom. All of the caramels retail at the price of 1 cent each. Purchasers procuring 1 of the said chocolate caramels are entitled to and receive, without additional cost, 1 of the said pencils. Purchasers procuring 1 of the said red caramels are entitled to and receive without additional cost, 1 of the said pencil sets. The purchaser of the last caramel in said assortment is entitled to and receives, without additional cost, 1 of the said pencil sets. The said pencils and pencil sets are thus distributed to the purchasing and consuming public wholly by lot or chance.

Respondents sell and distribute and have sold and distributed various assortments of candy and other articles of merchandise involving a lot or chance feature but such assortments are similar to the one hereinabove described and vary only in detail.

PAR. 3. Retail dealers who directly or indirectly purchase respondents' said candy and other articles of merchandise expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the sales plan aforesaid. Respondents thus supply to and place in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of their products in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondents of said sales plan or method in the sale of their products and the sale of said products by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plan or method is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws.

PAR. 4. The sale of candy and other articles of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above found involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure an article of merchandise at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell or distribute candy and other articles of merchandise in competition with the respondents, as above found, are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other method that is contrary to the public policy and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondents in the sale and distribution of their candy and other articles of merchandise and the element of chance involved therein and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondents' said products in preference to products offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondents who do not use the same or equivalent methods. The use of said method by respondents, because of said game of chance, has a tendency and a capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia to respondents from their said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent method.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondents, in which answer respondents admit all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and state that they waive all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent Ideal Candy Novelties Co., Inc., a corporation, its officers, Abraham Aronoff and Rose Aronoff, individually, and as officers of Ideal Candy Novelties Co., Inc., its and their respective representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering, for sale, sale and distribution of candy or any other merchandise in commerce as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from—

1. Selling and distributing candy or any merchandise so packed and assembled that sales of such candy or other merchandise to the public are to be made, or may be made, by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

2. Supplying to or placing in the hands of others, assortments of candy or other merchandise or any lottery devices, which are to be used, or which may be used, to conduct a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme in the sale or distribution of said candy or other merchandise to the public.

3. Supplying to or placing in the hands of others for sale to the public, packages or assortments of candy composed of individually wrapped pieces of candy of uniform size and shape and of different colors, together with articles of merchandise or larger pieces of candy which are to be, or may be, given as prizes to the purchasers procuring pieces of said candy of a particular color.

4. Selling or otherwise disposing of any merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

JACOB SCHACHNOW, TRADING AS MODERN HAT WORKS

Docket 2041. Complaint, Aug. 10, 1939—Decision, Nov. 2, 1940

Where an individual engaged in manufacture of men's and boys' hats from felts obtained from old, worn, and previously used hat bodies purchased by him, through cleaning, steaming, ironing, blocking, and fitting with new trimmings, sweat bands, and size labels and, in some instances, new linings, such bodies—

Sold, to jobbers and wholesalers by whose retailer vendees they were sold to purchasing public, his said hats, thus processed, a portion of which had appearance of new hats never worn or used, with no label, marking or designation thereon to indicate to purchasing public that said hats were in fact made from old, worn and previously used bodies which had been dry cleaned and renovated by him, and with no designation in invoicing and billing purchasers to indicate or disclose that his said products were in fact made from old, worn, and previously used bodies, and failed, through use of phrase "Made Over," embossed on hats' sweat bands, immediately under words "Personality Hats" or similar matter, to disclose to members of purchasing public that said hats were made as aforesaid from old, worn, and previously used bodies, rather than shopworn, hat bodies or from new materials which had never been used or worn, as made by manufacturers from new but shopworn, discolored, or otherwise unsalable new hats with much the same process employed in manufacture of such products from old, worn, and previously used hat bodies;

With effect of misleading and deceiving substantial number of wholesalers, jobbers, retailers, and members of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that his said products were made from new and unused materials or from new or shopworn bodies which had never been worn or used, and into purchase of a substantial number of his said hats, nature of which was not made entirely from new materials would not be disclosed by hat purchaser's casual examination, because of aforesaid erroneous and mistaken belief:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Before Mr. Robert S. Hall, trial examiner.

Mr. Robert Mathis, Jr., for the Commission.

AMENDMENT AND SUPPLEMENTAL COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Jacob Schachnow,

1 Amended and supplemental.
an individual trading as Modern Hat Works, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its amended and supplemental complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Jacob Schachnow, is an individual trading as Modern Hat Works, with his office and principal place of business located at 313 Third Street, Jersey City, N. J. Respondent is now and for more than 1 year last past has been, engaged in the business of manufacturing hats from felts and other materials obtained from old, worn, and previously used hats, and of selling the same to jobbers, wholesale dealers, and retailers in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent causes and at all times herein mentioned has caused such hats to be transported from his place of business in the city of Jersey City, State of New Jersey, to the aforesaid purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in various States of the United States other than the State of New Jersey and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of said business described in paragraph 1 hereof, the respondent buys old, worn, and used hats. The old, worn, and used hat bodies are cleaned, steamed, ironed, and shaped by respondent and then, in some cases, fitted with new trimmings, sweat bands, and size labels and sold by respondent to retailers, jobbers, and wholesale dealers who, in turn, sell such products to the purchasing public.

PAR. 3. The aforesaid old, worn, and previously used hat bodies, after having been made over by respondent into hats with new trimmings, sweat bands, and size labels, as described in paragraph 2 hereof, have the appearance of new hats, manufactured from hat bodies or materials which have never been worn or used, and said hats are sold by respondent to retailers, and to jobbers and wholesalers without any label, marking, or designation stamped thereon to indicate to the purchasing public that said hats are in fact manufactured from old, worn, and previously used hat bodies which have been cleaned and renovated by respondent. Said hats are also sold to jobbers and wholesale dealers and are resold by said jobbers and wholesale dealers to retail dealers who sell them to the purchasing public without disclosing the fact that said hats are manufactured from hat bodies which have been previously worn and then cleaned and renovated, and under such circumstances as to indicate that they are in fact new hats.

In the course and operation of his business the respondent uses the words "Excello, John Dee," "Personality Hats" and other similar words or names in designating said merchandise. Respondent causes said words or other similar words or names to be stamped or embossed on sweat bands which are attached to said hats. Immediately under the words "Excello, John Dee" and "Personality Hats" or other similar terms and names used by respondent in designating said hats, respondent has caused to be stamped or embossed the words "Made Over in U. S. A. Reg." and the words "Made Over."

It is the practice of various manufacturers of hats to manufacture finished hats from previously used hat bodies, and from new hat bodies obtained from new but shop-worn hats, as well as from newly manufactured materials. Shop-worn hats are new hats which have been reclaimed from merchants' shelves by said hat manufacturers and which have never been worn or used. Said shop-worn hats are cleaned, steamed, and renovated by such hat manufacturers in the same manner as hats made from old, worn and previously used hat bodies.

By the use of the words "Made Over U. S. A. Reg." and the words "Made Over" in the manner aforesaid and the failure to use words or wording clearly indicating that said hats are made from old, worn, and previously used hat bodies, respondent fails to disclose to purchasers that said hats are made from old, worn, and previously used hat bodies, as distinguished from hats made from shop-worn hat bodies or newly manufactured materials which have never been worn or used.

Par. 4. The use by the respondent of the acts and practices, above set forth, has the tendency and capacity to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial number of wholesale dealers, jobbers, and retail dealers and members of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that the said hats are manufactured from new and unused materials or are made from new but shop-worn hat bodies which have never been worn or used, and into the purchase of a substantial number of said hats because of such erroneous and mistaken belief.

Par. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of said respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on the 10th day of August 1939, issued and subsequently served its amended and supplemental complaint in this proceeding upon respondent Jacob Schachnow, an individual, trading as Modern Hat Works, charging him with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint, testimony, and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by Robert Mathis, Jr., attorney for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of said complaint by Joseph Schachnow, appearing for the respondent, before Robert S. Hall, a trial examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, testimony, and other evidence, brief in support of the complaint (respondent not having filed brief, and oral argument not having been requested); and the Commission having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent Jacob Schachnow is an individual trading as Modern Hat Works with his office and principal place of business located at 313 Third Street in the city of Jersey City, State of New Jersey. Respondent is now and has been continuously since the 6th day of June 1932, engaged in the business of manufacturing men's and boy's hats from felts obtained from old, worn, and previously used hat bodies, and of selling the same to purchasers in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent causes such hats, when sold, to be transported from his place of business in the city of Jersey City, State of New Jersey, to the aforesaid purchasers at their respective points of location in various States of the United States other than the State of New Jersey and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of his business the respondent buys old, worn, and previously used hat bodies which he cleans, steams, irons, and blocks, and then fits with new trimmings, sweat bands, and size labels, and, in some instances, with new linings. Said hats are then sold by respondent to jobbers and wholesale dealers who in turn sell them to retailers, and said retailers sell such hats to the purchasing public.

Par. 3. Said hats are sold by the respondent, as aforesaid, without any label, marking, or designation thereon to indicate to the purchasing public that said hats are in fact manufactured from old, worn, and previously used hat bodies which have been dry-cleaned and renovated by respondent. A portion of respondent’s products have the appearance of new hats which have never been worn or used.
Findings

Par. 4. In the course and conduct of his business the respondent uses the words “Personality Hats” and other similar words and names in designating said merchandise. Respondent causes said words or other similar words to be stamped or embossed on sweat bands which are attached to said hats. Immediately under the words “Personality Hats” or other similar terms and names used by respondent in designating said hats, respondent has caused to be stamped or embossed the words “Made Over.”

Par. 5. The Commission finds that the practice of respondent in stamping or embossing his said hats with the words “Made Over” does not disclose to members of the purchasing public that said hats are manufactured from old, worn, and previously used hat bodies rather than from shopworn hat bodies or from new materials which have never been used or worn. The casual examination such as a purchaser makes when buying a hat does not disclose to such purchaser that respondent’s products are made from materials which are not new.

In invoicing and billing purchasers of his products, respondent does not indicate or disclose that his products are in fact made from old, worn, and previously used hat bodies. On such invoices and bills respondent’s products are designated by certain numbers only.

Par. 6. Shopworn hats are new hats which are discolored or which have been used in window displays to the extent that they are not in salable condition or which have marks or defacements thereon. Shopworn hats are cleaned and renovated in much the same manner as hats made from old, worn, and previously used hat bodies. It is the practice of various manufacturers of hats to manufacture hats from previously used hat bodies and from new hat bodies obtained from new but shopworn hats, as well as from newly manufactured materials.

Par. 7. The use by the respondent of the acts and practices above set forth has the tendency and capacity to and does mislead and deceive a substantial number of wholesale dealers, jobbers, and retail dealers and members of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that said hats are manufactured from new and unused materials or are made from new or shopworn hat bodies which have never been worn or used, and into the purchase of a substantial number of respondent’s hats because of such erroneous and mistaken belief.
MODERN HAT WORKS

Order

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the amended and supplemental complaint of the Commission, testimony and other evidence taken before Robert S. Hall, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, brief filed by counsel for the Commission (respondent not having filed brief and oral argument not having been requested), and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Jacob Schachnow, individually, and trading as Modern Hat Works, or trading under any other name or names, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of hats in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing that hats composed in whole or in part of used or second-hand materials, are new or are composed of new materials by failure to stamp on the sweat bands thereof, in conspicuous and legible terms which cannot be removed or obliterated without mutilating the sweat bands, a statement that said products are composed of second-hand or used materials, provided that if sweat bands are not affixed to such hats then such stamping must appear on the bodies of such hats in conspicuous and legible terms which cannot be removed or obliterated without mutilating said bodies.

2. Representing in any manner that hats made in whole or in part from old, used, or second-hand materials are new or are composed of new materials.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.
IN THE MATTER OF

ALBERT T. CHERRY, DOING BUSINESS AS A. T. CHERRY COMPANY AND AS ATCO SOAP COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3416. Complaint, May 11, 1938—Decision, Nov. 2, 1940

Where an individual engaged in sale and distribution of soap and soap powder to purchasers in various States and in the District of Columbia, in active and substantial competition with others engaged in sale and distribution of such products in commerce as aforesaid;

In selling his said products to house-to-house canvassers for resale in so-called "Combination Deals" in case lots of 48 cartons of soap to the case and at prices ranging from $2.30 to $3.00 a case, together with boxes of soap powder with trade name, usually, but without price mark, on each, for sale in combination with such soap, in case lots of 100 boxes to the case, at $1.75 per case—

Offered and sold said soap in 3-cake cardboard cartons on which were printed brand name of soap and statement "Combination Deal 75¢," or some equivalent words, for sale, as aforesaid, in combination deals as made up by individual canvassers and as sometimes suggested by him, and including, as typical, two cartons of soap, four boxes of powder, costing wholesale about 18 cents, and consisting, in other instances, of three boxes of powder and three cartons of soap, and in still others of one box and one carton of each, respectively;

Notwithstanding fact price of 75 cents indicated on said cartons or such other amount as might be indicated thereon, did not represent the price at which such carton was generally and customarily offered and sold at retail, and such prices were wholly fictitious and in no sense represented actual retail selling price of soap concerned, but were greatly in excess thereof; and

Supplied thereby to and placed in the hands of house-to-house canvassers, means whereby purchasing and consuming public might be misled and deceived as to regular retail price and value of his said soap products, in accordance with general public understanding of custom of marking or stamping actual retail prices on various commodities, and into purchase by it of substantial volume of merchandise in reliance upon such custom to extent of accepting prices thus marked as indicating quality and fair market price of such commodities thus price-marked;

With result that such acts and practices, in marking such cartons of soap containing three cakes with legend "Combination Deal 75¢," or some other equivalent statement indicating price for three bars of said product, led many members of purchasing public erroneously and mistakenly to belief that regular and customary retail price of soap concerned was 75 cents per box of three cakes, or amount indicated thereon, and of causing them to purchase substantial quantity of his said soap because of such belief, and with effect that trade in commerce was diverted to him from his competitors who do not use deceptive and misleading representations in connection with sale and distribution of their products:
Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. Edward E. Reardon, Mr. Randolph Preston, Mr. Arthur F. Thomas, and Mr. Lewis C. Russell, trial examiners.

Mr. Alden S. Bradley, Mr. S. Brogdyne Teu, II, and Mr. Dewitt T. Puckett, for the Commission.

Holland & Holland, of Dayton, Ohio, for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Albert T. Cherry, an individual doing business as A. T. Cherry Co., and as Atco Soap Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, Albert T. Cherry, is an individual doing business as A. T. Cherry Co., and as Atco Soap Co., at 289 Linden Avenue, Dayton, Ohio. He is engaged in the sale and distribution of soap and soap products.

Respondent now causes, and for several years last past has caused, his soap and soap products, when sold by him, to be shipped from his said place of business in Dayton, Ohio, to the purchasers thereof, located in the various States of the United States other than Ohio, and in the District of Columbia. There is now, and has been at all times mentioned herein, a course of trade in said soap so sold and distributed in commerce by the respondent between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondent is, and for several years last past has been, in substantial competition with other individuals, and with partnerships and corporations, engaged in the sale and distribution of soap and soap products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. Some of the soap which respondent offers for sale and sells, as aforesaid, is put up in cartons, 3 cakes to the carton, and sold by house-to-house canvassers. The said cartons bear fictitious price marks. Representative of the fictitious price marks borne by said cartons are the following: "Combination Deal, 75¢" and "Cherry's Original Skin Balm Facial Soap, 75¢." Various other fictitious representations with respect to the retail price of the soap appear on the cartons.

Par. 3. The aforesaid fictitious price marks serve as representations on the part of respondent to purchasers and prospective purchasers that respondent's said soap has actual values or retail selling prices closely approximating such fictitious price marks and far in excess of the actual values or retail selling prices of said soap.

In fact, the prices marked on the respondent's cartons, as aforesaid, in no sense represent the actual values or retail selling prices of the products so marked but are fictitious and are greatly in excess of the actual values or the true retail selling prices thereof. The said fictitious prices are intended by the respondent to be far in excess of the prices actually charged the ultimate customer purchasing such soap in the usual course of trade.

Par. 4. The public generally understands the custom of marking or stamping the actual retail price or value on various commodities, and has been led to, and does, place its confidence in the price markings so stamped on the commodities and the representations thereby made as to the quality and price of such products to the extent that it purchases a substantial volume of merchandise in reliance on this aforesaid custom. As a result of respondent's representations, aforesaid, members of the purchasing public are led to erroneously and mistakenly believe that the actual values and selling prices of respondent's soap are the prices stamped or marked thereon when, in fact, the prices so stamped or marked on said cartons are fictitious and in no sense represent the actual retail selling prices or true values of said soap.

Par. 5. The use by respondent of the representations set forth herein, has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive, and has misled and deceived, a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that such representations are true and into the purchase of substantial quantities of respondent's soap as a result of such erroneous belief.

There are among the competitors of respondent as mentioned in paragraph 1 hereof, distributors of soap who do not misrepresent the values of their soap or the prices at which their soap is offered for sale and sold. By the representations aforesaid, trade is diverted unfairly to respondent from such competitors and as a result thereof, injury is being, and has been, done by respondent to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 6. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on May 11, 1938, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, Albert T. Cherry, an individual, doing business as A. T. Cherry Co. and as Atco Soap Co., charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint, the respondent having filed no answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by Alden S. Bradley, S. B. Teu, and D. T. Puckett, attorneys for the Commission, before trial examiners of the Commission, before trial examiners of the Commission, theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Respondent did not offer any evidence, file a brief, or request oral argument, though he was represented at some of the hearings by George F. Holland, Esq. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, testimony and other evidence, and brief in support of the complaint, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. The respondent, Albert T. Cherry, is an individual doing business as A. T. Cherry Co. and as Atco Soap Co. at 2200 Northwestern Avenue, Dayton, Ohio. Respondent is now, and has been for more than 3 years last past, engaged in the sale and distribution of soap and soap powder.

Respondent ships his products, when sold, from his place of business in Dayton, Ohio, to the purchasers thereof located in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. During all of the time mentioned herein, respondent has maintained a course of trade in said product in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondent is in active and substantial competition with other individuals and with corporations and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of soap and soap powder in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. The respondent's soap is offered for sale and sold in cardboard cartons, three cakes to the carton. On each carton is printed the brand name of the soap and the statement "Combination Deal 75¢" or some equivalent statement. The soap is sold by the respondent in case lots, 48 cartons to the case, at prices ranging from $2.30 to $3.00 a case. Respondent also sells soap powder to be sold in combination with his soap. The powder is offered for sale and sold in cardboard boxes which usually bear a trade name but do not bear price marks. The boxes of soap powder are sold by respondent in case lots, 100 boxes to the case. The price per case is $1.75.

Par. 3. The respondent sells his products to house-to-house canvassers, who sell said products in so-called "Combination Deals." A typical "deal" consists of two cartons of soap and four boxes of powder, the wholesale cost of which is approximately 18¢. In some instances "deals" consist of three boxes of powder and three cartons of soap; in others, one box of powder and one carton of soap. The respondent does not make up the deals but sometimes suggests to canvassers how they should be made up. Although each carton contains the statement "Combination Deal 75¢," or some equivalent statement, the "deals" are not uniform as to content or as to price, but each canvasser determines for himself the kind and number of articles to go into each "deal" and the price at which it is to be sold.

In truth and in fact, the price of 75¢ indicated on said cartons containing three bars of soap, or the other amount indicated thereon, does not represent the price at which said carton of soap is generally and customarily offered for sale and sold at retail. Said prices are wholly fictitious and in no sense represent the actual retail selling price of said soap but are greatly in excess thereof. The respondent thus supplies to, and places in the hands of, house-to-house canvassers the means whereby the purchasing and consuming public may be misled and deceived as to the regular retail price and the value of respondent's said soap products.

Par. 4. The public generally understands the custom of marking or stamping actual retail prices on various commodities and relies upon such custom to the extent of accepting the prices so marked as indicating the quality and the fair market price of the commodity so price marked, and purchases a substantial volume of merchandise in reliance on said custom.

Par. 5. The acts and practices of respondent in marking said cartons of soap containing three cakes of soap "Combination Deal 75¢," or some other equivalent statement indicating a price for three bars of soap, have led, and lead, many members of the purchasing public erroneously and mistakenly to believe that the regular and customary retail price of said soap is 75¢ per box of three cakes, or the amount indicated thereon, and have caused them to purchase a substantial quantity of respondent's said soap because of this erroneous and mistaken belief. As the result thereof, trade in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia has been diverted to respondent from his competitors who do not use deceptive and misleading representations in connection with the sale and distribution of their products.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, testimony and other evidence taken before trial examiners of the Commission, theretofore duly designated by it, and brief filed herein in support of the allegations of the complaint (no brief having been filed by respondent and oral argument not having been requested), and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Albert T. Cherry, an individual, trading and doing business as A. T. Cherry Co. or as Atco Soap Co., or trading under any other name, his agents, employees, and representatives, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of soap or soap products in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Using the expression "Combination Deal 75¢" or the price mark "75¢," or any other expression or price marks indicating a price, on the container in which soap or soap products are sold, unless the quantity of soap or soap products enclosed in said container is regularly and customarily offered for sale or sold at 75 cents, or the sum indicated.

2. Representing as the customary or regular retail prices for soap or soap products prices which are in fact fictitious and in excess of the prices at which said products are regularly and customarily offered for sale and sold in the normal course of business.

3. Supplying to, or placing in the hands of, house-to-house canvassers or others purchasing for resale any soap or soap products price marked or branded in violation of paragraphs 1 and 2 of this order.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF

JOSEPH SALADOFF, TRADING AS RELIABLE SALES SERVICE COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3535. Complaint, Aug. 15, 1938—Decision, Nov. 2, 1940

Where an individual engaged in sale and distribution, to retail merchants at points in the various States and in the District of Columbia, of sales promotion cards which were so designed and arranged as to involve use of a lottery scheme or gift enterprise when used by such merchants in promoting and increasing sales of their merchandise to consuming public, and included, as illustrative of various groups of such cards manufactured and distributed by him, and involving same lottery scheme or gift enterprise and varying in detail only from those described, cards (1) arranged for punching out $5 or $10 in trade, as case might be, and having concealed under card's "secret panel" legends entitling chance holder, upon the punching out of the total amount of trade called for and as set forth by card's explanatory notice and in accordance with particular legend as thus secured by chance, to amounts in trade ranging from 20 cents to $5, and (2) so packed and assembled by said individual that his customers knew amount of award stated under such panels—

Sold, together with various display posters and advertisements furnished for use of such retail merchants in distributing and using same, said cards to such merchants, by whom they were distributed, as suggested by such individual or otherwise, to their customers and prospective customers upon the making of purchases thereby, and by whom awards, as shown under such "secret panels," were honored through the opening thereof when numbers had been duly punched and customer became entitled to and received from merchant goods in amount shown by legend, without additional cost, and by whom, through use of such cards, their merchandise was sold and distributed by means of game of chance, gift enterprise or lottery scheme; and

Supplied thereby to and placed in the hands of others means of conducting lotteries in the sale and distribution of their said products, contrary to an established public policy of the United States Government and in competition with many who make and sell various sales promotion cards, trade cards, premium cards, coupons and trading stamps for use by retail merchants in promoting or increasing the sale of their merchandise, and who are unwilling to offer or sell their said products so designed and arranged, as above set forth or otherwise, as to involve game of chance, gift enterprise or lottery scheme when used in connection with sale or distribution of merchandise by retailers, and who refrain therefrom;

With result that, because of element of chance involved in sale and distribution of merchandise by retailers thereof through his said cards, many members of consuming public were induced to deal with or purchase merchandise from such merchants using his said cards in preference to such merchants using products of aforesaid competitors, and many retailers were thereby induced to purchase his said cards in preference to products of such competitors who do not use such methods in designing and arranging their said products, and with further result, through his practice of so packing and assembling, as above set forth, his cards that customers knew amount of awards stated under "secret panels," that such customers were thus enabled to perpetrate a fraud on members of purchasing public in distribution thereto of cards in question, and substantial trade, as consequence of his said practices as above set forth, was unfairly diverted to him from his competitors aforesaid who do not engage therein:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. Randolph Preston, trial examiner.

Mr. P. O. Kolinski and Mr. D. C. Daniel, for the Commission.

Levi, Spooner & Quarles, of Milwaukee, Wis., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Joseph Saladoff, an individual, trading as Reliable Sales Service Co., hereinafter designated as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Joseph Saladoff, is an individual doing business under the trade name of Reliable Sales Service Co., with his principal office and place of business located at 510 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa. The respondent is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of sales promotion cards to retail merchants located at points in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and causes, and has caused, his said products, when sold, to be transported from his principal place of business in the city of Philadelphia, State of Pennsylvania, to purchasers thereof in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia at their respective places of business. There is now, and has been for more than 1 year last past, a course of trade by said respondent in said sales promotion cards in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business, respondent is in competition with other individuals, with partnerships and corporations engaged in the manufacture of sales promotion cards, trade cards, premium cards, coupons and trading stamps, and in the sale and distribution thereof in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.
PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells, and has sold, cards so designed and arranged as to involve the use of a lottery scheme or gift enterprise when used by retail merchants in promoting and increasing sales of their merchandise to the consuming public.

The respondent manufactures and distributes several groups of sales promotion cards, but they all involve the same lottery scheme or gift enterprise, and vary only in detail. The sales promotion cards in one such group are herein described for the purpose of showing arrangement, design, and principals involved. On the front, such cards are as follows:

The secret panel referred to on said card is partially perforated to indicate where it may be opened, but until said panel is opened, the legend thereunder is effectively concealed from the holder of said card. The said legends under the secret panels vary in amounts from 20 cents to $5.00. The legend under the secret panel is effectively concealed until the panel has been opened, and the amount which the holder of said card will receive in trade is thus determined wholly by lot or chance. On the reverse, or back, of the said sales promotion cards is the following language:

is fully punched, present same to us intact. We will then open the SECRET PANEL. You will receive the award printed thereon ABSOLUTELY FREE. SHOULD YOU OPEN THIS SECRET PANEL, THIS CARD BECOMES VOID. BUY ALL YOUR NEEDS FROM US—YOU MAY BE A BIG WINNER.

Other cards manufactured and distributed by the respondent provide for recording the sale of $10 worth of merchandise by the members arranged around the border of said cards, and provide for the winning of amounts up to $10 by the legends under the secret panel.

Respondent furnishes the retail merchants with various display posters and advertisements to be used by said retail merchants in distributing and using said cards.

Par. 3. The retail merchants to whom respondent sells assortment of said sales promotion cards distribute the same to their customers and prospective customers, and honor the awards as shown under the secret panel of said cards. One method advocated, or suggested by respondent and used by a substantial number of retail merchant customers, is as follows: The cards are distributed free to customers and prospective customers of said retail merchants and when purchases are made, punches corresponding to the amount of said purchases are made around the margin of said card. When all the numbers around the margin of said card are punched, the secret panel is opened and the customer is entitled to merchandise from said merchant in the amount shown by the legend under the said secret panel free of charge.

Par. 4. There are in competition with respondent various manufacturers and distributors of sales promotion cards, premium cards, price concession cards, coupons and trading stamps which, when used by retail merchants do not involve a lottery scheme or gift enterprise. By reason of the lottery scheme or gift enterprise connected with the distribution and use of the respondent's said cards, many retail merchants are induced to purchase respondent's said cards in preference to devices manufactured and distributed by respondent's competitors, and trade is thus unfairly diverted to respondent from his said competitors.

Par. 5. The consuming public is induced to deal with, or purchase merchandise from, retail merchants using respondent's cards in preference to retail merchants using the devices of respondent's competitors, because of the lottery scheme or gift enterprise connected with respondent's said cards. By reason thereof, retail merchants are induced to purchase respondent's said cards in preference to devices of respondent's competitors and trade is thus unfairly diverted to respondent from his said competitors.

Par. 6. The use by respondent of the said method in designing and arranging his said cards is a practice of the sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of criminal laws.
Many persons, firms, and corporations who make and sell various cards or devices for promoting or increasing the sales of retail merchants are unwilling to offer for sale, or sell, cards or devices so designed and arranged as above alleged, or otherwise designed and arranged, so as to involve a game of chance, lottery scheme, or gift enterprise, and such competitors refrain therefrom.

Par. 7. The respondent, in shipping the said cards to his customers, assorts and packs them so that such customers know the amount of the awards stated under the secret panel; thus the retail merchants to whom respondent sells his cards are enabled to perpetrate a fraud on their customers. This practice has the capacity and tendency to induce, and it does induce, retail merchants to purchase respondent’s said cards in preference to cards or devices of respondent’s competitors.

Par. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent’s competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on August 15, 1938, issued and thereafter served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent Joseph Saladoff, an individual, trading as Reliable Sales Service Co., charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent’s answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint was introduced by P. C. Kolinski and D. C. Daniel, attorneys for the Commission (respondent having offered no proof in opposition to the allegations of the complaint) before Randolph Preston, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it and said testimony and other evidence was duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, brief in support of the complaint (respondent having filed no brief and oral argument not having been requested); and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.
Findings 31 F. T. C.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Joseph Saladoff, is an individual doing business under the trade name of Reliable Sales Service Co., with his principal office and place of business located at 510 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa. The respondent is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of sales promotion cards to retail merchants located at points in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and causes, and has caused, his said products, when sold, to be transported from his principal place of business in the city of Philadelphia, State of Pennsylvania, to purchasers thereof in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia at their respective places of business. There is now, and has been for more than 1 year last past, a course of trade by said respondent in said sales promotion cards in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business, respondent is in competition with other individuals, with partnerships and corporations engaged in the manufacture of sales promotion cards, trade cards, premium cards, coupons and trading stamps, and in the sale and distribution thereof in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 2. In the course and conduct of his business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells, and has sold, cards so designed and arranged as to involve the use of a lottery scheme or gift enterprise when used by retail merchants in promoting and increasing sales of their merchandise to the consuming public.

The respondent manufactures and distributes several groups of sales promotion cards, but they all involve the same lottery scheme or gift enterprise, and vary only in detail. The sales promotion cards in one such group are herein described for the purpose of showing arrangement, design, and principle involved. On the front, such cards are as follows:

Findings

Under the "secret panel" is the following:

The secret panel referred to on said card is partially perforated to indicate where it may be opened and the legend under said secret panel is effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until the panel has been opened or removed from said card. The legends under the secret panels vary in amount from 20 cents to $5.00. The amount which the individual holder of said cards will receive in trade is thus determined wholly by lot or chance. On the reverse side, or back, of the said sales promotion cards is the following language:

NO BLANKS—AWARDS UP TO $5.00

These awards are given in appreciation of your patronage. When this card is fully punched, present same to us intact. We will then open the SECRET PANEL. —MERCHANT'S ADVERTISEMENT—RELIABLE SALES SERVICE—510 ARCH STREET—PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Other cards manufactured and distributed by the respondent provide for recording the sale of $10 worth of merchandise by the numbers arranged around the border of said cards, and provide for the winning of amounts up to $10 by the legends under the secret panel.

Respondent furnishes the retail merchants with various display posters and advertisements to be used by said retail merchants in distributing and using said cards.

Par. 3. The Commission finds that the retail merchants to whom respondent sells assortments of said sales promotion cards distribute the same to their customers and prospective customers, and honor the awards as shown under the secret panels of said cards as aforesaid. One method advocated, or suggested by respondent and used by a substantial number of retail merchant customers, is as follows: The cards are distributed free to customers and prospective customers of said retail merchants and when purchases are made, punches corresponding to the amount of said purchases are made around the margin of said card. When all the numbers around the margin of said card are punched, the secret panel is opened and the customer is entitled to and receives merchandise from said merchant in the... amount shown by the legend under the said secret panel without additional cost.

Par. 4. The Commission finds that the sale and distribution of merchandise by retail merchants by means of respondent’s said sales promotion cards, as herein found, constitute the sale and distribution of merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. Respondent thus supplies to, and places in the hands of, others a means of conducting lotteries in the sale and distribution of their merchandise. The sale of such cards by the respondent, as herein found, and the said use thereof by respondent’s said customers are practices which are contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States.

Par. 5. The Commission finds that there are in competition with respondent, as hereinafore described, many persons, firms, and corporations who make and sell various sales promotion cards, trade cards, premium cards, coupons and trading stamps for use by retail merchants in promoting or increasing the sales of the merchandise of said retail merchants and that such competitors are unwilling to offer for sale or sell their said products so designed and arranged, as above found, or otherwise designed and arranged so as to involve a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme when used in connection with the sale or distribution of merchandise by retail dealers and such competitors refrain therefrom.

Par. 6. The Commission finds that, because of the element of chance involved in the sale and distribution of merchandise by retail dealers by means of respondent’s said cards, many members of the consuming public have been, and are being induced to deal with, or purchase merchandise from, retail merchants using respondent’s said cards in preference to retail merchants using said products of respondent’s said competitors. As a result thereof, many retail merchants are, and have been, induced to purchase respondent’s said cards in preference to said products of respondent’s said competitors who do not use such methods in designing and arranging their said products.

Par. 7. Respondent so packs and assembles his said cards that his customers know the amount of the awards stated under the said secret panels and such customers are thus enabled to perpetrate a fraud on the members of the purchasing public in the distribution thereto of said cards.

Par. 8. As a result of the practices of respondent as hereinafore found, substantial trade is being and has been unfairly diverted to respondent from his said competitors who do not engage in such practices.
CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent’s competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondent, testimony and other evidence taken before Randolph Preston, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint (respondent having offered no proof in opposition thereto), brief filed herein by counsel for the Commission (respondent having filed no brief and oral argument having been waived), and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Joseph Saladoff, an individual trading as Reliable Sales Service Company, his representatives, agents and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of sales promotion cards, or any other merchandise, in commerce as “commerce” is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Selling or distributing sales promotion cards, or any other articles of merchandise, so designed and arranged that their use by retail merchants constitutes, or may constitute, the operation of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

2. Supplying to, or placing in the hands of others sales promotion cards or sales promotion plans or schemes, or any other articles of merchandise, which are used, or which may be used, without alteration or rearrangement thereof, to conduct a lottery, game of chance, or gift enterprise when distributed to the consuming public.

3. Furnishing or supplying to dealers display posters or circulars or other advertising literature bearing legends or statements informing the public as to the manner in which sales promotion cards or other lottery devices are to be or may be distributed and used.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.
Where a corporation engaged in the manufacture, sale, and distribution of rug cushions, primary purpose of which is to prolong life of rugs under which placed and to deaden noise in rooms where used, and types of which cushions, as made by it, included those made entirely of hair except as below set forth, and others made of hair and jute with burlap base, or of approximately 95 percent hair with strands of jute with burlap center, or jute with interwoven strands of burlap; and its corporate subsidiary engaged in sale and distribution of its said products—

(a) Represented, in the course and conduct of their said business of selling, to purchasers in various States and in the District of Columbia, various types of rug products made by said manufacturer, by means of advertisements published and disseminated through magazines, trade journals, pamphlets, and in other printed matter distributed among prospective purchasers in the various States and in the District of Columbia, that rug cushions composed of materials other than hair would not serve the customary and ordinary purposes for which they were intended and used, and would cause rugs under which used to wear out sooner than would be the case if no cushions were used, through such statements as "Before you buy a rug cushion—ask what it's made of! And be wary of rug pads not made of all hair, because only too often these 'bargain pads' pack down in hard lumps that actually make rugs wear out sooner," and "Jute is a vegetable fibre and is no more to be compared with hair than a straw mattress with a hair mattress. Jute (often dyed to look like hair) is extensively used on so-called 'cheap' rug pads. Don't be misled—insist on getting an all-hair cushion," and others of similar tenor:

Facts being that any cushioning material, even paper, will serve some useful purpose as a rug cushion, jute and jute and hair mixed pads will prolong life of rugs under which placed and otherwise serve purposes for which intended and used, and such pads or cushions, under normal use in ordinary circumstances, will not become lumpy or cause rugs to wear out sooner than would be the case if no cushion were used; and

(b) Represented, for a time, that their "Ozite" cushions were composed entirely of hair, through label, later changed to disclose inclusion in cushion in question of reinforcing burlap center, reading "Ozite Rug Cushion is made of all hair," and through depiction of said label in its advertising matter:

Facts being while primary purpose of burlap or jute strip, as included by it, is to serve as necessary reinforcement to hold intact cushion composed of hair, such strip does have some cushioning effect, and to designate such a pad as "All Hair," without disclosing presence therein of said strip of burlap or jute, is not accurate description of product in question and is confusing to purchasers who do not understand technical problems involved in the manufacturing and handling of pads composed of hair;
Complaint

With effect of misleading and deceiving substantial portion of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that such false and misleading statements and representations were true, and into purchase of substantial quantities of their said "Ozite" cushions as result of such erroneous and mistaken belief: Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Before Mr. Lewis C. Russell, trial examiner.
Mr. DeWitt T. Puckett, for the Commission.
Mr. Leo Mann of Lines, Spooner & Quarles, of Milwaukee, Wisc., for respondents.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that American Hair & Felt Co., a corporation, and Clinton Carpet Co., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, American Hair & Felt Co., a corporation doing business under the laws of Delaware, with its main office in the Merchandise Mart, 222 West North Bank Drive, Chicago, Ill., is now and has been for several years last past engaged in the manufacture, sale, and distribution of various commodities made from animal hair and jute including underlays or cushions for rugs and carpets.

Respondent, Clinton Carpet Co., a corporation doing business under the laws of Delaware, with its main office in the Merchandise Mart, 222 West North Bank Drive, Chicago, Ill., is now and has been for several years last past engaged in the sale and distribution of rug and carpet underlays or cushions manufactured by respondent, American Hair & Felt Co. Respondent, Clinton Carpet Co., is a subsidiary of respondent, American Hair & Felt Co.

Respondents now cause, and for more than 1 year last past have caused, their said cushions or underlays, when sold by them, to be shipped from their said places of business in Chicago, Ill., to the purchasers thereof located in the various States of the United States other than Illinois and in the District of Columbia. Respondents maintain, and at all times mentioned herein have maintained, a course of trade in said cushions or underlays in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.
Complaint

PAR. 2. The respondents manufacture and sell, as aforesaid, various types of rug underlays or cushions, among which is a product known and designated as “Ozite.”

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of their business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, the respondents have disseminated and caused to be disseminated, false, misleading, and disparaging statements and claims relative to the qualities and characteristics of rug underlays or cushions not composed solely of hair. Said false and disparaging representations and claims have appeared in magazines, trade journals, pamphlets, booklets, and other printed matter distributed in commerce among and between the various States of the United States. Among and typical of the said claims and representations are the following:

Before you buy a rug cushion—ask what it’s made of! And be wary of rug pads not made of all hair, because only too often these “bargain pads” pack down in hard lumps that actually make rugs wear out sooner.

Jute is a vegetable fibre and is no more to be compared with hair than a straw mattress with a hair mattress. Jute (often dyed to look like hair) is extensively used in so-called “cheap” rug pads. Don’t be misled—insist on getting an all hair cushion.

Rug pads cheapened with jute are costly “bargains”. When they pack down into hard lumps they wear out sooner!

There is no substitute * * * because nothing less than Genuine Circle Tread Ozite quality is “good enough” to do the job!

Age or dry air causes jute to disintegrate into a fine powder in a short time while moist air makes it pack into a hard mass. Thus jute pads pack down and form lumps, and actually make rugs wear out sooner!

The aforesaid statements and claims and others of similar import but not herein set out serve as representations on the part of respondents that rug cushions or underlays not composed wholly of hair will not withstand the customary and ordinary usage or treatment to which said cushions are subjected; that they will become lumpy; that they will disintegrate in dry air and are ruined by moist air; that they will cause a rug to wear out sooner than would be the case if no cushion at all were used under such rug.

PAR. 4. In truth and in fact, jute or jute mixed rug cushions satisfactorily meet the needs and uses for which they are customarily sold. They will not pack down or become lumpy enough to impair their efficiency. They will not disintegrate in dry air or become ruined by moist air. They will not cause a rug to wear out sooner than would be the case if no cushion at all were used.

PAR. 5. In addition to the dissemination of disparaging statements, the respondents have represented, in their various advertising as above described that their product known as “Ozite” is composed entirely of hair. Typical of this representation, respondents attach to said product a label which reads as follows:

OZITE
Rug Cushion
Made of ALL HAIR

A picture of such label also appears in respondents' various advertising material.

In truth and in fact said product known and designated as "Oazite" is not composed entirely of hair but instead is composed of two layers of hair between which has been placed a layer of burlap or jute cord, a vegetable fiber. This "Ozite" product is so made that the existence of a layer of burlap, or jute cord between said layers of hair, is not readily discernible to the purchaser.

Par. 6. The use by respondents of the false, misleading, and disparaging statements and claims set forth and referred to herein, including the representations concerning the product known as "Ozite," has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive, and has misled and deceived a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that such representations and claims are true, and to cause them to purchase substantial quantities of said products, as a result of such erroneous belief.

Par. 7. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on June 16, 1939, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding charging respondents, American Hair & Felt Co., a corporation, and Clinton Carpet Co., a corporation, with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondents' answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by DeWitt T. Puckett, attorney for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by Leo Mann, attorney for the respondents, before Lewis C. Russell, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto (oral argument not having been requested); and the Commission having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. The respondent, American Hair & Felt Co., is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Delaware with its principal office and place of business at 222 West North Bank Drive, Chicago, Ill. It is now, and has been for several years last past, engaged in the manufacture and in the sale and distribution of rug cushions.

The respondent, Clinton Carpet Co., is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Delaware with its principal office and place of business at 222 West North Bank Drive, Chicago, Ill. It is now, and has been for several years last past, engaged in the sale and distribution or rug cushions manufactured by respondent American Hair & Felt Co. Respondent Clinton Carpet Co. is a subsidiary of respondent American Hair & Felt Co.

The respondents cause their products, when sold, to be shipped from their aforesaid places of business in Chicago, Ill., to purchasers thereof located in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. During all of the time mentioned herein, respondents have maintained a course of trade in said cushions in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. Respondent American Hair & Felt Co. manufactures, and both of respondents sell, four types of rug cushions, namely: (1) A cushion composed entirely of hair, except for a layer of burlap in the center which gives the cushion tensile strength and holds it together. This cushion is sold by respondents under the trade name "Ozite." (2) A combination of mixed hair and jute cushion with a burlap base. (3) A cushion consisting of approximately 95 percent hair, the balance being strands of jute. This cushion also contains a burlap center. (4) A cushion composed of jute with interwoven strands of burlap.

Jute is a vegetable fiber product and burlap is a loosely woven fabric made from jute cord.
Par. 3. The primary purpose of rug cushions is to prolong the life of rugs under which they are placed and to deaden noise in the rooms where they are used. A cushion, being resilient, prolongs the life of a rug under which it is used by absorbing the pressure to the rug caused by footsteps or such objects as furniture. Any cushioning material that possesses resilience will serve this purpose to some extent.

Par. 4. During the time mentioned above and in the course and conduct of their business as aforesaid, the respondents, in promoting the sale of their “Ozite” cushion, caused to be published and disseminated, through magazines, trade journals, pamphlets, and in other printed matter distributed among prospective purchasers of rug cushions located in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, various advertisements, of which the following are typical:

Before you buy a rug cushion—ask what it’s made of! And be wary of rug pads not made of ALL HAIR, because only too often these “bargain pads” pack down in hard lumps that actually make rugs wear out sooner.

Jute is a vegetable fibre and is no more to be compared with hair than a straw mattress with a hair mattress. Jute (often dyed to look like hair) is extensively used in so-called “cheap” rug pads. Don’t be misled—insist on getting an ALL-HAIR CUSHION.

“Rug pads cheapened with jute are costly “bargains.” When they pack down into hard lumps they wear out sooner!

There is no substitute . . . because nothing less than Genuine Circle Thread Ozite quality is “good enough” to do the job!

Age or dry air causes jute to disintegrate into a fine powder in a short time while moist air makes it pack into a hard mass. Thus jute pads pack down and form lumps, and actually make rugs wear out sooner!

The labels formerly used by respondents in connection with the sale of their “Ozite” cushions read as follows:

OZITE
Rug Cushion is made of
ALL HAIR

A picture of said label also appeared in the aforesaid advertising matter. Said labels have been changed to read:

OZITE
Rug Cushion is made of
ALL HAIR
Reinforced with a patented
Adhesive Burlap Center
Par. 5. By the use of the representations set out herein, respondents have represented that rug cushions composed of materials other than hair will not serve the customary and ordinary purposes for which they are intended and used, and that they will cause the rugs under which they are used to wear out sooner than would be the case if no cushion were used. They have also represented that their "Ozite" cushions are composed entirely of hair.

Par. 6. The Commission finds that any cushioning material, even paper, will serve some useful purpose as a rug cushion and that jute and jute and hair mixed pads will prolong the life of rugs under which they are placed and otherwise serve the purposes for which they are intended and used. The Commission further finds that under normal use and ordinary circumstances jute and jute and hair mixed cushions will not become lumpy or cause rugs to wear out sooner than would be the case if no cushion were used. The Commission also finds that respondents' rug cushions sold under the trade name "Ozite" and advertised as "All Hair" cushions are not, in fact, composed entirely of hair, inasmuch as they contain a burlap or jute reinforcing center. Respondents' labels in current use in connection with the sale of their "Ozite" cushions contain a statement disclosing the presence of burlap. The purpose of the respondents in using a burlap or jute center in said "Ozite" pads is to hold together and reinforce the hair from which the pad is principally composed. The use of some such reinforcement is necessary to hold a cushion composed of hair intact, largely in handling. While the primary purpose of the burlap or jute strip is to serve as reinforcement, it does have some cushioning effect, and to designate such a pad as "All Hair" without disclosing the presence of the reinforcing strip of burlap or jute, as respondents formerly did, is not an accurate description of such pad and is confusing to purchasers who do not understand the technical problems involved in the manufacturing and handling of pads composed of hair.

Par. 7. The use by respondents of the foregoing false and misleading statements and representations, disseminated as aforesaid, has the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive, and has misled and deceived, a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such representations are true and into the purchase of substantial quantities of respondents' "Ozite" cushions as a result of such erroneous and mistaken belief.
The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondents, testimony and other evidence taken before Lewis C. Russell, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, briefs filed herein by DeWitt T. Puckett, counsel for the Commission, and by Leo Mann, counsel for the respondents (oral argument not having been requested), and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondents, American Hair & Felt Co., a corporation, and Clinton Carpet Co., a corporation, their officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of rug cushions in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing that jute, or jute and hair, rug cushions will cause rugs to wear out sooner than if no cushion whatever is used; or that only cushions made of hair are useful as rug cushions; or that jute, or jute and hair, rug cushions will not serve the usual and ordinary purposes for which rug cushions are intended and used.

2. Using the term "All Hair" or any other term of similar import or meaning to designate, describe or refer to the rug cushion now sold by respondents under the name "Ozite," whether sold under that name or any other trade name, unless there appears in immediate connection or conjunction with such a term a complete and equally conspicuous statement disclosing the presence in said cushion of a reinforcing center of burlap or jute.

It is further ordered, That the respondents shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.
Where an individual who (1) was president, secretary-treasurer and director of, and owner of a large majority of the stock in a corporation engaged in a general wholesale merchandise business, and which placed orders for a substantial portion of the goods, wares, and merchandise, and particularly food stuffs, required in the ordinary conduct of its business with sellers located mostly in other States, and (2) was co-owner in a brokerage firm in the same city with another to whom, as his employee in various enterprises owned and controlled by him, he paid as compensation for services rendered a substantial amount of the brokerage fees and commissions received by said firm, through which said corporate wholesaler made its purchases aforesaid from sellers in other States mostly—

Accepted and received, through said brokerage firm, as brokerage fees or commissions, certain percentages paid by such sellers on purchases made through firm in question by corporate wholesaler aforesaid, and in which transactions said individual was agent and acted in fact for and in behalf of aforesaid corporate wholesaler:

Held, That in accepting and receiving certain percentages of the sales prices upon purchases of commodities of said corporate wholesaler, in interstate commerce as aforesaid set forth, as brokerage fees or commissions, said individual, in his individual capacity and while trading as member of such brokerage firm, violated provisions of section 2 (c) of Clayton Act, as amended by Robinson-Patman Act.

Mr. J. T. Haslett, for the Commission.
Mr. Duncan Graham, of Vidalia, Ga., for respondent.

IN THE MATTER OF
R. F. BEMPORAD & COMPANY, INC.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 4238. Complaint, Aug. 15, 1940—Decision, Nov. 2, 1940

Where a corporation engaged in importing, distributing, and selling rugs to various wholesale and retail dealer-purchasers in various other States and in the District of Columbia, in substantial competition with others likewise engaged in sale and distribution of rugs in commerce as aforesaid, and including many who do not misrepresent the nature of their product or the place or method of manufacture thereof, and do not furnish their dealer-customers with means and instrumentalities for deceiving the public—

(a) Made use of names of Chinese cities “Hong Kong” and “Canton,” and of words connoting China, or “Kina,” to describe, designate and refer to certain of its rugs in invoices and circulars addressed to dealers and in connection with sale of such rugs thereto, and in labels attached to said products and plainly discernible to members of purchasing public upon said rugs’ display for resale by retailers thereof;

Notwithstanding fact said “Hong Kong” and “Canton” rugs were not made in China, but in Italy and Belgium, respectively, and of cotton and on power looms, and they did not have the structure or all the characteristics of the true Chinese Oriental rugs, and individual threads were not knotted in distinctive manner of such rugs, and they were made from different materials and were not true Chinese Oriental rugs, as long understood by substantial portion of purchasing public as meaning rugs made in China by hand in the same manner and possessing the same qualities and character-stics as the Oriental rugs, and, as such, long held in great public esteem because of their texture, beauty, durability, and other qualities;

With effect of inducing misleading and erroneous belief that said rugs, thus designated, which so closely resembled Chinese Oriental rugs in appearance that a large portion of the purchasing public was unable to distinguish such “Hong Kong” and “Canton” rugs from true Chinese Orientals, were made in China by hand and were in all respects, including materials, true Chinese Oriental rugs, and with result that said products were readily accepted as being genuine Chinese Oriental rugs, for which there is decided preference on part of many of purchasing public;

(b) Made use of words “Mahah” and “Kirma,” and of word “Orienta,” which, respectively, simulated Oriental rug names “Mahal” and “Kirman” and word “Oriental,” and of name of Oriental city “Bagdad,” to describe, designate, and refer to certain of its rugs in invoices and circulars addressed to dealers, and, in connection with sale of said products thereto, and in labels attached to said rugs and plainly discernible to members of purchasing public upon said rugs' display and resale by retailers thereof;

Notwithstanding fact said “Kirma” and “Mahah” rugs were not in fact true Oriental “Kirman” and “Mahal” rugs, and said “Orienta” and “Bagdad” rugs were not made in the Orient by hand and in all respects, including materials, true Oriental rugs, but said “Mahah” and “Bagdad” products were made in Italy, and said "Kirma" and "Orienta" rugs in Belgium, of cotton and on power looms, and aforesaid various products were not true Oriental rugs, as long understood by substantial portion of purchasing public as meaning rugs made in the Orient or, more particularly, in certain parts of southwestern Asia, and usually designated by names indicative of Oriental origin and manufacture, and made by hand, of pleasing texture and original and beautiful design, and having a pile of wool or silk and wool, the threads of which are individually knotted in a special manner, and said rugs did not have the structure or all of the characteristics of the true Orientals and were not made of the same materials;

With effect of inducing misleading and erroneous belief that said various rugs, which so closely resembled in appearance true Orientals that a large portion of purchasing public was unable to distinguish same therefrom, were in fact, in case of said "Kirma" and "Mahah" products, true Oriental "Kirman" and "Mahal" rugs, and that said "Orienta" and "Bagdad" products were made in the Orient by hand and were in all respects, including materials, true Oriental rugs, and with result, as aforesaid, that said rugs were readily accepted as being genuine Oriental rugs, for which there is a decided preference on the part of many of the purchasing public;

(c) Represented and implied, in circulars which it furnished to dealers and prospective dealers, that certain of its rugs were reproductions and copies of true Oriental and Chinese Oriental rugs, through such typical statements as "Faithful reproductions of exquisite Orientals," and "An Oriental reproduction that reproduces everything but the price";

Notwithstanding fact products in question were not exact copies or reproductions of true Orientals in structure, material, or method of manufacture, but merely simulated same in appearance;

(d) Represented, directly and by implication, as aforesaid, that certain of its said rugs were reproductions and copies, except as to material, of true Oriental rugs, through such typical statements as "Amazing cotton reproductions" and "All virgin cotton Oriental reproductions";

Notwithstanding fact products in question did not have the structure or characteristics of the true Oriental rugs, even disregarding differences in materials; and

(c) Described and designated certain of its hooked rugs by names "Boston" and "Old Cabin," and made use of such names to refer thereto in invoices and circulars and in labels bearing one or the other of said names and securely attached to rugs in question so as to be plainly discernible to members of the purchasing public upon said rugs' display for resale by retailers thereof;

Notwithstanding fact products in question were not hooked rugs such as made in this country since early in its colonial history, constituting one of the earliest forms of artistic expression of the early settlers, and always and still generally regarded as a distinctive American product and as definitely connoted by aforesaid names, were not made in the United States, but in Europe;

With effect, through use of such designations and representations in connection with offer and sale of its said rugs, of misleading purchasers and prospective purchasers thereof into erroneous and mistaken belief that such representations and designations were true and correct, and of inducing them to purchase said rugs by reason thereof, and with further effect of placing in hands of

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that R. F. Bemporad & Co., Inc., a corporation, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 2. Respondent is now, and has been for more than 1 year last past, engaged in the business of importing, distributing, and selling rugs. In the course and conduct of its business respondent sells said rugs to various wholesale and retail dealers, and causes them, when sold, to be transported from its aforesaid place of business in the State of New York to purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said rugs in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 3. In the course and conduct of its said business, respondent is now, and has been at all times mentioned herein, in substantial competition with other corporations and with firms, partnerships, and individuals likewise engaged in the sale and distribution of rugs in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Among such competitors are many who do not misrepresent the nature of their product or the place or method of manufacture thereof, and who do not furnish their dealer-customers with means or instrumentalities for deceiving the public.

Par. 4. A substantial portion of the purchasing and consuming public understand, and for many years has understood, Oriental rugs, to be rugs made in the Orient, or more particularly in certain parts of southwestern Asia, by hand, of pleasing texture and original and beautiful design and having a pile of wool or silk and wool, the threads of which are individually knotted in a special manner. Such rugs are usually designated by names which are indicative of the Orient and Oriental origin and manufacture. A substantial portion of the purchasing and consuming public understands, and for many years has understood, Chinese Oriental rugs to be rugs made in China, by hand, in the same manner and possessing the same qualities and characteristics as the Oriental rug. Both Oriental and Chinese Oriental rugs have been for many years, and still are, held in great public esteem because of their texture, beauty, durability, and other qualities, and by reason thereof, there is a decided preference on the part of many of the purchasing public for such rugs.

Par. 5. In the course and conduct of its business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of its said rugs, respondent has engaged in the practice of describing and designating certain of its rugs, which closely resemble Chinese Oriental rugs in appearance, by the names of “Hong Kong” and “Canton,” which are cities in China, and by the name of “Kina” which connotes China. The use of said names has the tendency and capacity to, and does, induce the mistaken and erroneous belief that the rugs so designated are made in China, by hand, and are in all respects, including materials, true Chinese Oriental rugs.

In like manner said respondent has engaged in the practice of describing and designating certain of its rugs which closely resemble Oriental rugs in appearance by the names of “Mahah,” “Kirma,” “Orienta,” and “Bagdad.” There are true Oriental rugs known as “Mahal,” and “Kirman.” Bagdad is a city in the Orient, and the words “Orienta,” “Mahah,” and “Kirma” simulate, respectively, the words “Oriental,” “Mahal,” and “Kirman.”

The use by respondent of the said designations has the tendency and capacity to, and does, induce the mistaken and erroneous belief that respondent’s “Kirma” and “Mahah” rugs are in fact true Oriental “Kirman” and “Mahal” rugs, and that respondents “Orienta” and “Bagdad” rugs are made in the Orient, by hand, and are in all respects, including materials, true Oriental rugs.
Respondent has used said names to designate said rugs in invoices and circulars addressed to dealers, and in otherwise referring to the same in the sale thereof to dealers. To certain of said rugs are firmly attached labels upon which one or another of said names appears, which are plainly discernible to members of the purchasing public when such rugs are displayed for sale by retail dealers.

Par. 6. In truth and in fact respondent's said "Hong Kong," "Mahah," and "Bagdad" rugs are made in Italy, and the "Canton," "Kurma" and "Oriental" rugs in Belgium, of cotton, and on power looms. The "Hong Kong" and "Canton" rugs do not have the structure or all the characteristics of the true Chinese Oriental rug, the individual threads are not knotted in the distinctive manner of the true Chinese rug, and they are made from different materials. Respondent's "Mahah" and "Kurma" rugs are not true Oriental "Mahal" or "Kirman" rugs and neither they nor respondent's "Bagdad" and "Orienta" rugs have the structure or all of the characteristics of the true Oriental rugs nor are they made from the same materials. A large portion of the purchasing public is unable, so close is the resemblance in appearance, to distinguish respondent's "Hong Kong" and "Canton" rugs from true Chinese Orientals or respondent's "Mahah," "Kurma," "Bagdad" and "Orienta" rugs from true Orientals, and in consequence respondent's said rugs are readily accepted as being genuine Chinese Oriental or Oriental rugs.

Par. 7. In the course and conduct of its business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of said rugs, respondent has engaged in the practice of furnishing to dealers and prospective dealers in its said rugs, circulars containing many misleading statements which represent and imply that certain of the said rugs are reproductions and copies of true Oriental and Chinese Oriental rugs. Among and typical of such statements are the following:

Faithful reproductions of exquisite Orientals.
An Oriental reproduction that reproduces everything but the price.

In truth and in fact said rugs are not exact copies or reproductions of true Orientals in structure, material, or method of manufacture, but merely simulate them in appearance.

In like manner respondent has represented, directly and by implication, that certain of the said rugs are reproductions and copies, except as to material, of true Oriental rugs. Among and typical of such statements are the following:

Amazing cotton reproductions.
All virgin cotton Oriental reproductions.
In truth and in fact the said rugs do not have the structure or characteristics of the true Oriental rug, even though differences in material are disregarded.

Par. 8. The manufacture of hooked rugs has been carried on in this country since early in its colonial history, and was one of the earliest forms of artistic expression of the early settlers. Hooked rugs always have been, and still are, generally regarded as being a distinctly American product.

Par. 9. In the course and conduct of its business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of certain of its rugs, respondent has engaged in the practice of describing and designating certain of its hooked rugs by the names “Boston” and “Old Cabin.” Such names carry so definite an American connotation as to have the tendency and capacity to induce the mistaken and erroneous belief that the rugs so designated were made in the United States. Respondent used said names to designate said rugs in invoices and in circulars distributed to dealers and prospective dealers. Respondent also caused labels bearing one or the other of the said names to be securely attached to the said rugs so as to be plainly discernible to members of the purchasing public when such rugs are displayed for sale by retail dealers.

In truth and in fact the rugs designated as “Old Cabin” and “Boston” were made in Europe.

Par. 10. The use by respondent of the designations and representations, as set forth herein, in connection with the offering for sale and sale of its said rugs, has had, and now has, the tendency and capacity to, and does, mislead purchasers and prospective purchasers thereof into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such representations and designations are true and correct, and to induce them to purchase said rugs on account thereof. Respondent’s said acts and practices have the effect of placing in the hands of retail dealers, who purchase said rugs and resell the same to the purchasing public, means and instrumentalities of misleading and deceiving the public in the particulars aforesaid.

As a result of respondent’s said acts and practices, trade has been unfairly diverted to respondent from its competitors engaged in the sale in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, of rugs of various kinds, including genuine Oriental, Chinese Oriental, and domestic rugs, who truthfully represent their products as set forth in paragraph 3 hereof. In consequence thereof, injury has been and is now being done by respondent to competition in commerce among and between various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Findings 31 F. T. C.

Par. 11. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on August 15, 1940, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondent, R. F. Bemporad & Co., Inc., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On September 5, 1940, the respondent filed its answer, in which answer it admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waived hearing on the allegations of fact set forth in the complaint. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and the answer thereto, and the Commission having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the fact and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Par. 2. Respondent is now, and has been for more than 1 year last past, engaged in the business of importing, distributing, and selling rugs. In the course and conduct of its business respondent sells said rugs to various wholesale and retail dealers, and causes them, when sold, to be transported from its aforesaid place of business in the State of New York to purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said rugs in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 3. In the course and conduct of its said business, respondent is now, and has been at all times mentioned herein, in substantial competition with other corporations and with firms, partnerships, and individuals likewise engaged in the sale and distribution of rugs in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Among such competitors are many who do not misrepresent the nature of their product or the place or method of manufacture thereof, and who do not furnish their dealer-customers with means or instrumentalities for deceiving the public.

Par. 4. A substantial portion of the purchasing and consuming public understands, and for many years has understood, Oriental rugs to be rugs made in the Orient, or more particularly in certain parts of southwestern Asia by hand, of pleasing texture and original and beautiful design, and having a pile of wool or silk and wool, the threads of which are individually knotted in a special manner. Such rugs are usually designated by names which are indicative of the Orient and Oriental origin and manufacture. A substantial portion of the purchasing and consuming public understands, and for many years has understood, Chinese Oriental rugs to be rugs made in China, by hand, in the same manner and possessing the same qualities and characteristics as the Oriental rug. Both Oriental and Chinese Oriental rugs have been for many years, and still are, held in great public esteem because of their texture, beauty, durability, and other qualities, and by reason thereof, there is a decided preference on the part of many of the purchasing public for such rugs.

Par. 5. In the course and conduct of its business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of its said rugs, respondent has engaged in the practice of describing and designating certain of its rugs, which closely resemble Chinese Oriental rugs in appearance, by the names of "Hong Kong" and "Canton," which are cities in China, and by the name of "Kina" which connotes China. The use of said names has the tendency and capacity to, and does, induce the mistaken and erroneous belief that the rugs so designated are made in China, by hand, and are in all respects, including materials, true Chinese Oriental rugs.

In like manner said respondent has engaged in the practice of describing and designating certain of its rugs which closely resemble Oriental rugs in appearance by the names of "Mahah," "Kirma," "Orienta," and "Bagdad." There are true Oriental rugs known as "Mahal," and "Kirman." Bagdad is a city in the Orient, and the words "Orienta," "Mahah," and "Kirma" simulate respectively, the words "Oriental," "Mahal," and "Kirman."

The use by respondent of the said designations has the tendency and capacity to, and does, induce the mistaken and erroneous belief that respondent's "Kirma" and "Mahah" rugs are in fact true Oriental "Kirman" and "Mahal" rugs, and that respondent's "Orienta" and “Bagdad” rugs are made in the Orient, by hand, and are in all respects, including materials, true Oriental rugs.

Respondent has used said names to designate said rugs in invoices and circulars addressed to dealers, and in otherwise referring to the same in the sale thereof to dealers. To certain of said rugs are firmly attached labels upon which one or another of said names appears, which are plainly discernible to members of the purchasing public when such rugs are displayed for sale by retail dealers.

Par. 6. In truth and in fact respondent’s said “Hong Kong,” “Mahah,” and “Bagdad” rugs are made in Italy, and the “Canton,” “Kirma,” and “Orienta” rugs in Belgium, of cotton, and on power looms. The “Hong Kong” and “Canton” rugs do not have the structure or all the characteristics of the true Chinese Oriental rug, the individual threads are not knotted in the distinctive manner of the true Chinese rug, and they are made from different materials. Respondent’s “Mahah” and “Kirma” rugs are not true Oriental “Mahal” or “Kirman” rugs and neither they nor respondent’s “Bagdad” and “Orienta” rugs have the structure or all of the characteristics of the true Oriental rugs nor are they made from the same materials. A large portion of the purchasing public is unable, so close is the resemblance in appearance, to distinguish respondent’s “Hong Kong” and “Canton” rugs from true Chinese Orientals or respondent’s “Mahah,” “Kirma,” “Bagdad” and “Orienta” rugs from true Orientals, and in consequence respondent’s said rugs are readily accepted as being genuine Chinese Oriental or Oriental rugs.

Par. 7. In the course and conduct of its business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of said rugs, respondent has engaged in the practice of furnishing to dealers and prospective dealers in its said rugs, circulars containing many misleading statements which represent and imply that certain of the said rugs are reproductions and copies of true Oriental and Chinese Oriental rugs. Among and typical of such statements are the following:

Faithful reproductions of exquisite Orientals.

An Oriental reproduction that reproduces everything but the price.

In truth and in fact said rugs are not exact copies or reproductions of true Orientals in structure, material, or method of manufacture, but merely simulate them in appearance.

In like manner respondent has represented, directly and by implication, that certain of the said rugs are reproductions and copies, except as to material, of true Oriental rugs. Among and typical of such statements are the following:

Amazing cotton reproductions.

All virgin cotton Oriental reproductions.
Findings

In truth and in fact the said rugs do not have the structure or characteristics of the true Oriental rug, even though differences in material are disregarded.

Par. 8. The manufacture of hooked rugs has been carried on in this country since early in its colonial history, and was one of the earliest forms of artistic expression of the early settlers. Hooked rugs always have been, and still are, generally regarded as being a distinctively American product.

Par. 9. In the course and conduct of its business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of certain of its rugs, respondent has engaged in the practice of describing and designating certain of its hooked rugs by the names "Boston" and "Old Cabin." Such names carry so definite an American connotation as to have the tendency and capacity to induce the mistaken and erroneous belief that the rugs so designated were made in the United States. Respondent used said names to designate said rugs in invoices and in circulars distributed to dealers and prospective dealers. Respondent also caused labels bearing one or the other of the said names to be securely attached to the said rugs so as to be plainly discernible to members of the purchasing public when such rugs are displayed for sale by retail dealers.

In truth and in fact the rugs designated as "Old Cabin" and "Boston" were made in Europe.

Par. 10. The use by respondent of the designations and representations, as set forth herein, in connection with the offering for sale and sale of its said rugs, has had, and now has, the tendency and capacity to, and does, mislead purchasers and prospective purchasers thereof into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such representations and designations are true and correct, and to induce them to purchase said rugs on account thereof. Respondent's said acts and practices have the effect of placing in the hands of retail dealers, who purchase said rugs and resell the same to the purchasing public, means and instrumentalities of misleading and deceiving the public in the particulars aforesaid.

As a result of respondent's said acts and practices, trade has been unfairly diverted to respondent from its competitors engaged in the sale in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, of rugs of various kinds, including genuine Oriental, Chinese Oriental, and domestic rugs, who truthfully represent their products as set forth in paragraph 3 hereof. In consequence thereof, injury has been, and is now being done by respondent to competition in commerce among and between various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.
The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of the respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waives hearing on the allegations of fact set forth in the complaint, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, R. F. Bemporad & Co., Inc., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of rugs and other merchandise in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Using the words "Hong Kong," "Canton," "Kina," or other names indicative of Chinese origin as descriptive of rugs which are not in fact made in China and which do not possess all the essential characteristics and structure of Chinese Oriental rugs.

2. Using the words "Mahah," "Kirma," "Orienta," "Bagdad," or names indicative of the Orient, as descriptive of rugs which are not in fact made in the Orient and which do not possess all the essential characteristics and structure of Oriental rugs.

3. Using the word "Reproduction," or any similar word which imports that the article to which such word is applied is a replica or duplicate of an original, as descriptive of rugs which are not in fact reproductions of the type named, to wit, true counterparts or reconstructions thereof in all respects, including material.

4. Using the words "Old Cabin," "Boston," or other distinctively American names, as descriptive of rugs which are not in fact made in the United States.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

MANCHESTER SILVER CO. ET AL. 1305

Syllabus

IN THE MATTER OF

MANCHESTER SILVER COMPANY, AND FRANK S. TRUMBULL, FRANZ S. TIDERMAN AND EDWARD B. PALMER, INDIVIDUALLY AND AS OFFICERS THEREOF

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 28, 1914

Docket 4133. Complaint, May 11, 1940—Decision, Nov. 6, 1940

Where a corporation and three individuals, who were president, vice president, and secretary thereof, and directed and controlled its advertising policies and business activities and practices, engaged in manufacture and in sale and distribution of sterling silver flatware to wholesale and retail dealers, including retail department stores, and to jobbers and other purchasers in various States and in the District of Columbia, in competition with others likewise engaged in sale and distribution of such products, and including many in such commerce who do not in any manner misrepresent their goods or matters pertaining thereto, and in long issuing, in the conduct of their business, and circulating among retailers, wholesalers, and jobbers, their "Pink List," purporting to show usual and regular retail prices or values of their said silverware, and in selling to such vendees at specified discounts from said list, in accordance with prices of which many retailers had offered and sold their said silver flatware and which had, for many years, been used by retailers and, more particularly, large department stores, in conducting special sales of their said products, and to show so-called regular prices thereof as compared with those at which their said silver flatware products were being sold, and amounting, in some instances, in the case of such "Sales Prices," to as much as 33 percent off such "Pink List" prices:

In pursuance and furtherance of a plan devised by them for use by retailers to increase and promote the sale of their said products at such special sales through use of price list which they designated as the "Blue List," and which had words "Wholesale List" printed thereon, and which set forth prices which were substantially higher for identical articles than those shown on the "Pink List," long used by them in conducting their said business, and which did not represent or reflect either the wholesale or retail prices or values of products listed therein, but were wholly fictitious and greatly in excess of prices at which such products were regularly and customarily offered for sale and sold—

(a) Issued and supplied to retailers, for use in conducting so-called special sales of their said flat silverware products, said "Blue List" as above described, and suggested and recommended that retailers make use thereof in promoting special sales of said flatware and display and give said "Blue List" to purchasing and consuming public and cause advertisements quoting said list to be inserted in newspapers in connection with so-called half-price and comparative price sales, and that such dealers represent to purchasing and consuming public that prices shown on said list were the normal prices at which said silver flatware was regularly and customarily sold; and
(b) Granted to certain large retail dealers special discounts in order to induce them to become parties to and participate in their said plan of using such "Blue List" and so-called special or comparative price sales of their said silver flatware products, and induced many retailers to participate in such plan and to purchase large quantities of their said ware and to display and distribute said "Blue List" to consuming and purchasing public, and to cause advertisements setting forth prices shown therein as regular list prices to be inserted in newspapers in advertising such special or comparative price sales of products in question, and including, as typical, such newspaper advertisements, thus inserted by purchasers of said silverware for resale, as "SALE! LIMITED TIME ONLY SOLID STERLING SILVER—½ OFF LIST PRICES. Not in Years Has Manchester Sterling Been Offered In Indianapolis at Any Such Startling Reduction! • • • Just Think! You can actually own this famous solid sterling silver and pay only 50% of the maker's long established regular list prices! • • • 26-Pc. Set Sterling—Regular Factory List Price $78.60. Sales Price $38.75 • • • ," etc.;

Facts being that, as aforesaid indicated, prices stated in said "Blue List" did not represent any real, list or expected prices for said silver flatware, but were wholly fictitious and fantastically exaggerated, and designed to create a false opinion on the part of the consuming and purchasing public as to true list prices and values of their said silver flatware, and prices paid by wholesalers, retailers, and purchasing and consuming public, regardless of list used, were substantially the same and they had not increased prices of their said products to extent indicated in comparing regular "Pink List" and "Blue List" of fictitious prices;

With result that said fictitious prices shown on such "Blue List" created false opinion on part of consuming and purchasing public as to true list prices and values of their said silverware and use of such prices, thus shown, enabled dealers to represent that purchasers at retail were securing up to as much as 50 percent off the regular list price of said flatware, instead of the 33 percent disclosed by use of their "Pink List" or real price list in retailers' conduct of special or comparative price sales, and with further result, through their said acts and practices in compiling and circulating and distributing said "Blue List" among retailers and other purchasers for resale, of placing in hands of such various purchasers means and instrumentality by which purchasing and consuming public was misled and deceived, and with effect, as result of their said acts and practices, of falsely representing and advertising their products as aforesaid, that substantial portion of purchasing public was misled and deceived into erroneous and mistaken belief that said representations and advertisements were true, and that prices shown in said "Blue List" represented the regular and customary prices of said products, and substantial number of members of said public, because of such erroneous and mistaken belief, were caused to purchase their said silver flatware, and trade was thereby unfairly diverted to them from their competitors in commerce as aforesaid who truthfully represent their products; to their injury and that of public:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.
Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Manchester Silver Co., a corporation, and Frank S. Trumbull, Franz S. Tiderman, and Edward B. Palmer, individually and as officers of Manchester Silver Co., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Manchester Silver Co., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Rhode Island, and respondents Frank S. Trumbull, Franz S. Tiderman, and Edward B. Palmer, are president, vice president, and secretary, respectively thereof. The individual respondents, both in their individual and official capacities, direct and control the advertising policies and business activities and practices of said corporate respondent, and all of said respondents have cooperated each with the other and have acted in concert in doing the acts and things hereinafter alleged. The principal office and place of business of all of the respondents is located at 49 Pavilion Avenue, in the city of Providence, State of Rhode Island.

Par. 2. Respondent, Manchester Silver Co., is now and has been for many years last past engaged in the business of manufacturing, selling, and distributing sterling silver flatware. Respondents sell said silver flatware to wholesale and retail dealers, including retail department stores, and to jobbers and other purchasers thereof situated in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and respondents cause said silver flatware, when sold, to be transported from the aforesaid place of business in the State of Rhode Island to the purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondents maintain, and at all times mentioned herein have maintained, a course of trade in said silver flatware in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.
In the course and conduct of their said business in commerce, as aforesaid, respondents are in competition with corporations, individuals, and partnerships likewise engaged in the sale and distribution of sterling silver flatware. Among said competitors in said commerce are many who do not in any manner misrepresent their products or matters pertaining thereto.

Para. 3. For many years respondents have issued and circulated, and now issue and circulate, among retail dealers, wholesalers, and jobbers a price list known as the "Pink List." This list purports to show the usual and regular retail prices or values of respondents' said silver flatware. Sales have been and are made to retailers, wholesalers, and jobbers at specified discounts from said "Pink List." Many retail dealers have offered for sale and sold respondents' said silver flatware at the prices shown on said "Pink List," and for many years retail dealers, and more particularly large department stores, have used said "Pink List" in conducting special sales of respondents' said products, the "Pink List" being used by such retailers to show the so-called regular prices of said products were being sold. The "Sales Prices" in some instances were as much as 33 percent off the "Pink List" prices.

Para. 4. Respondents, on or about January 1, 1939, devised a plan for use by retailers to increase and promote the sale of their said products at said special sales, pursuant to and in accordance with which they issued and supplied to retailers and wholesalers for use in conducting so-called special sales of respondents' said products, a price list referred to as the "Blue List," which has the words "Wholesale List" printed thereon. The prices shown in said "Blue List" for identical articles of silver flatware, are substantially higher than the prices shown in the "Pink List" which has long been used by the respondents in the conduct of said business. The prices shown on the "Blue List" do not represent or reflect either the wholesale or retail prices or values of the products listed therein, but are wholly fictitious and are greatly in excess of the prices at which such products are regularly and customarily offered for sale and sold. Respondents, as alleged, supply said "Blue List" to wholesalers and retailers and suggest and recommend that retail dealers use this list in promoting "Special Sales" of said silver flatware, and that they display and give said "Blue List" to the purchasing and consuming public, and cause advertisements quoting said "Blue List" to be inserted in newspapers in connection with so-called half-price and comparative price sales, and that said dealers represent to the purchasing and consuming public that the prices shown on said "Blue List" are the normal prices at which said silver flatware is regularly and customarily sold. In furtherance of said plan, respondents grant to certain large retail dealers special discounts in order to induce such retailers to become parties to and participate in respondents' plan of using said "Blue List" in so-called special or comparative price sales of respondents' said products. Respondents have induced many retailers to participate in said plan and to purchase large quantities of said silver flatware and to display and distribute said "Blue List" to the consuming and purchasing public, and to cause advertisements, setting forth the prices shown in said "Blue List" as regular list prices, to be inserted in newspapers in advertising said special or comparative price sales of respondents' said products. Among and typical of the advertisements and representations inserted in newspapers by purchasers of respondents' silverware for resale, is the following:

The prices stated in said "Blue List" do not represent any real, list, or expected prices for said silver flatware, but are wholly fictitious and fantastically exaggerated, and are designed to and do create a false opinion on the part of the consuming and purchasing public as to the true list prices and values of respondents' silver flatware.

The use of the fictitious prices shown on the "Blue List" enable dealers to represent that purchasers at retail are securing up to as much as 50 percent off the regular list price of respondent's said silver flatware, whereas when the "Pink List," that is, the real price list of the respondents, is used, retailers in conducting special or comparative price sales are unable to represent that the purchasers are securing discounts off the list price in excess of 33 percent. public, regardless of the list that is used, are substantially the same and respondents have not increased the prices of their said products to the extent indicated in comparing the regular "Pink List" and the "Blue List" containing the fictitious prices.

PAR. 5. The acts and practices of the respondents in compiling said "Blue List" and in circulating and distributing it among retailers and other purchasers for resale place in their hands a means and instrumentality by which the purchasing and consuming public is mislead and deceived.

PAR. 6. The acts and practices of the respondents in falsely representing and advertising their products in the manner above alleged, have the tendency and capacity to and do mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that said representations and advertisements are true, and that the prices shown in said "Blue List" represent the regular and customary prices of said products, and have caused a substantial number of members of the purchasing public, because of said erroneous and mistaken belief, to purchase respondents' said silver flatware, and as a result thereof trade has been and is unfairly diverted to respondents from their competitors in said commerce, who truthfully represent their products to their injury and to the injury of the public.

PAR. 7. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and respondents' competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on the 11th day of May 1940, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondents, Manchester Silver Co., a corporation, and Frank S. Trumbull, Franz S. Tiderman, and Edward B. Palmer, individually and as officers of Manchester Silver Co., charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On May 28, 1940, the respondents filed their answers in this proceeding. Thereafter, a stipulation was entered into whereby it was stipulated and agreed that a statement of facts, signed and executed by the respondents and W. T. Kelley, chief counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, subject to the approval of the Commission, may be taken as the facts in this proceeding and in lieu of testimony in support of the charges as stated in the complaint, or in opposition thereto, and that the said Commission may proceed upon the said statement of facts to make its report, stating its findings as to the facts and its conclusion based thereon and enter its order disposing of the proceeding without the filing of a report upon the evidence by the trial examinger, the presentation of arguments or the filing of briefs. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Com-mmission on said complaint, answer and stipulation, said stipulation having been approved, accepted and filed, and the Commission having duly considered the same and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

for many years last past engaged in the business of manufacturing, selling, and distributing sterling silver flatware. Respondents sell said silver flatware to wholesale and retail dealers, including retail department stores, and to jobbers and other purchasers thereof situated in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and respondents cause said silver flatware, when sold, to be transported from the aforesaid place of business in the State of Rhode Island to the purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondents maintain, and at all times mentioned herein have maintained, a course of trade in said silver flatware in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.
In the course and conduct of their said business in commerce, as aforesaid, respondents are in competition with corporations, individuals, and partnerships likewise engaged in the sale and distribution of sterling silver flatware. Among said competitors in said commerce are many who do not in any manner misrepresent their products or matters pertaining thereto.

Par. 3. For many years respondents have issued and circulated, and now issue and circulate, among retail dealers, wholesalers, and jobbers a price list known as the “Pink List.” This list purports to show the usual and regular retail prices or values of respondents’ said silver flatware. Sales have been and are made to retailers, wholesalers, and jobbers at specified discounts from said “Pink List.” Many retail dealers have offered for sale and sold respondents’ said silver flatware at the prices shown on said “Pink List,” and for many years retail dealers, and more particularly large department stores, have used said “Pink List” in conducting special sales of respondents’ said products, the “Pink List” being used by such retailers to show the so-called regular prices of said products as compared with the prices at which said products were being sold. The “Sales Prices” in some instances were as much as 33 percent off the “Pink List” prices.

Par. 4. Respondents, on or about January 1, 1939, devised a plan for use by retailers to increase and promote the sale of their said products at said special sales, pursuant to and in accordance with which they issued and supplied to retailers and wholesalers for use in conducting so-called special sales of respondents’ said products a price list referred to as the “Blue List,” which has the words “Wholesale List” printed thereon. The prices shown in said “Blue List” for identical articles of silver flatware, are substantially higher than the prices shown in the “Pink List” which has long been used by the respondents in the conduct of said business. The prices shown on the “Blue List” do not represent or reflect either the wholesale or retail prices or values of the products listed therein, but are wholly fictitious and are greatly in excess of the prices at which such products are regularly and customarily offered for sale and sold. Respondents, as alleged, supply said “Blue List” to wholesalers and retailers and suggest and recommend that retail dealers use this list in promoting “Special Sales” of said silver flatware, and that they display and give said “Blue List” to the purchasing and consuming public, and cause advertisements quoting said “Blue List” to be inserted in newspapers in connection with so-called half-price and comparative price sales, and that said dealers represent to the purchasing and consuming public that the prices shown on said “Blue List” are the normal prices at which said silver flatware is regularly and customarily sold. In furtherance of said plan, respondents grant to certain large retail dealers special discounts in order to induce such retailers to become parties to and participate in respondents' plan of using said "Blue List" in so-called special or comparative price sales of respondents' said products. Respondents have induced many retailers to participate in said plan and to purchase large quantities of said silver flatware and to display and distribute said "Blue List" to the consuming and purchasing public, and to cause advertisements, setting forth the prices shown in said "Blue List" as regular list prices, to be inserted in newspapers in advertising said special or comparative price sales of respondents' said products. Among and typical of the advertisements and representations inserted in newspapers by purchasers of respondents' silverware for resale, is the following:

The prices stated in said "Blue List" do not represent any real, list, or expected prices for said silver flatware, but are wholly fictitious and fantastically exaggerated, and are designed to and do create a false opinion on the part of the consuming and purchasing public as to the true list prices and values of respondents' silver flatware.

The use of the fictitious prices shown on the "Blue List" enables dealers to represent that purchasers at retail are securing up to as much as 50 percent off the regular list price of respondents' said silver flatware, whereas when the "Pink List," that is, the real price list of the respondents, is used, retailers in conducting special or comparative price sales are unable to represent that the purchasers are securing discounts off the list price in excess of 33 percent. The prices paid by wholesalers, retailers, and the purchasing and consuming public, regardless of the list that is used, are substantially the same and respondents have not increased the prices of their said products to the extent indicated in comparing the regular "Pink List" and the "Blue List" containing the fictitious prices.

Par. 5. The acts and practices of the respondents in compiling said "Blue List" and in circulating and distributing it among retailers and other purchasers for resale place in their hands a means and instrumentality by which the purchasing and consuming public is misled and deceived.

Par. 6. The acts and practices of the respondents in falsely representing and advertising their products, in the manner above set forth, have the tendency and capacity to, and do, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that said representations and advertisements are true, and that the prices shown in said "Blue List" represent the regular and customary prices of said products, and have caused a substantial number of members of the purchasing public, because of said erroneous and mistaken belief, to purchase respondents' said silver flatware, and as a result thereof trade has been and is unfairly diverted to respondents from their competitors in said commerce who truthfully represent their products to their injury and to the injury of the public.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondents and a stipulation as to the facts entered into between the respondents herein and W. T. Kelley, chief counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, which provides, among other things, that without further evidence or other intervening procedure the Commission may issue and serve upon the respondents herein findings as to the facts and conclusion based thereon and an order to cease and desist disposing of the proceeding, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that the said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondents, Manchester Silver Co., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, and Frank S. Trumbull, Franz S. Tiderman, and Edward B. Palmer, their representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of sterling silver flatware, in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing as the customary or regular retail prices for such products prices which are in fact fictitious and in excess of the prices at which said products are regularly and customarily offered for sale and sold.

2. Using, or supplying to wholesalers, retailers, and others purchasing said silverware for resale for use, in connection with the sale of said silverware, purported wholesale, retail, or other price lists, when such lists contain fictitious prices which are in excess of the price at which said silverware is regularly and customarily offered for sale and sold.

3. Representing that the regular price of any article of said silverware is in excess of the price at which such article is customarily offered for sale and sold.

4. Using, or supplying to wholesalers, retailers, and others purchasing such silverware for resale for use, in connection with special sales of said silverware, any price list which does not correctly set forth the true price at which said silverware is customarily offered for sale and sold.

It is further ordered, That the respondents shall within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.
IN THE MATTER OF

AMERICAN LEAD PENCIL COMPANY, EAGLE PENCIL COMPANY, INC., JOSEPH DIXON CRUCIBLE COMPANY, EBERHARD FABER PENCIL COMPANY, INC., WELDON ROBERTS RUBBER COMPANY, AND A. W. FABER, INC.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 28, 1914

Docket 4170. Complaint, June 24, 1940—Decision, Nov. 6, 1940

Where six corporations engaged in the manufacture of rubber typewriter erasers and, for a number of years last past, in their corporate capacity and through various agents, in sale and distribution in commerce among the various States and in the District of Columbia, to purchasers in said States and District, of such erasers which, together with many other products made, sold and distributed by them, were used extensively throughout the United States by the general public and by corporations and business concerns and by the United States and States Governments and municipalities, and purchase of which by many firms, corporations, and others, including Federal and States Governments and municipalities, or agents thereof, and because of substantial quantity used, was through invitation for bids and selection, on such basis, of industry member from whom particular purchase was made, and who, for more than 5 years last past, constituted substantially all the manufacturers of such erasers and, prior to acts and practices below set forth, were in active and substantial competition with each other and with other members of the industry—

Entered into and engaged in an agreement, combination, and understanding to suppress price competition and to eliminate competition between themselves, restrain interstate trade, drive out competitors, and monopolize such trade; and in pursuance thereof and for the purpose of carrying out said combination, etc., and in the making of public bids—

(1) Agreed to and did fix and maintain prices at which said products were sold, and uniform terms and conditions governing selling thereof; and

(2) Agreed to and did submit, directly and through certain agents, uniform and identical bids on such products when requests for such bids were made;

With result that effect of such combination, understanding and agreement, and acts and practices of said corporations as above set forth, were to monopolize business of manufacturing and selling rubber typewriter erasers in them, and to unreasonably lessen, eliminate, and restrain and hamper and suppress competition in manufacture and sale of said products in interstate commerce, and to deprive purchasing and consuming public of advantages of price, service, and other considerations which they would receive and enjoy under conditions of normal and unobstructed, or free and fair competition in said industry, and otherwise to operate as a restraint of trade and a detriment to the freedom of fair and legitimate competition in said trade, and to obstruct the natural flow of trade into the channels of commerce:
Held, That such acts and practices of said corporation, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice of the public, had a dangerous tendency to hinder and prevent price competition, and did actually hinder and prevent such competition between and among such corporations in sale of rubber typewriter erasers in commerce, and placed in themselves power to control and enhance prices, and created in them monopoly in the sale of such products in commerce, and unreasonably restrained such commerce in said products, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce.

With result that many were attracted by its said methods and by element of chance involved therein, and were thereby induced to buy and sell its said merchandise in preference to that of competitors who do not use same or equivalent method, and with result, because of said game of chance, of unfairly diverting trade to it from its said competitors who do not use same or equivalent sales plans or methods; to the substantial injury of competition in commerce:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

Before Mr. Miles J. Furnas, trial examiner.

Mr. D. C. Daniel, for the Commission.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Joseph Hagn Co., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Joseph Hagn Co., is a corporation organized and doing business under the laws of the State of Illinois with its principal place of business located at 217 West Madison Street, Chicago, Ill. Respondent is now, and for some time last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of jewelry, clocks, wearing apparel, knives, and various other articles of merchandise, to dealers located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. It causes and has caused said products when sold to be shipped or transported from its aforesaid place of business in the State of Illinois to purchasers thereof in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, at their respective points of location. There is now and for some time last past has been a course of trade by said respondent in such merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of its business, respondent is in competition with other corporations and with individuals and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.
Par. 2. In the course and conduct of its business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and has sold to dealers certain assortments of said merchandise so packed and assembled as to involve the use of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme when said merchandise is sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. One of said assortments is sold and distributed to the purchasing public in the following manner: This assortment consists of a clock and a device commonly called a punchboard. Said board contains a number of small sealed tubes, each of which tube contains a small slip of paper with a number thereon. Sales are 5 cents each. The board bears statements or legends informing purchasers and prospective purchasers that the purchaser punching the number 100 is entitled to and receives the clock. A purchaser who does not qualify by obtaining the number calling for the clock receives nothing for his money. The numbers are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until a punch has been made and the number punched separated or removed from said board. The said clock is thus distributed to the purchasing public wholly by lot or chance.

Another of respondent's assortments is sold and distributed to the purchasing public as follows: This assortment consists of a number of pocket knives, together with a device commonly called a push card. The push card contains a number of partially perforated discs and immediately above each of said discs there appears a feminine name. Sales are from 1 cent to 39 cents, inclusive. On the reverse side of each of said discs there appears a number. Each purchaser is entitled to one of said knives and the amount to be paid therefor is determined by the number appearing on the reverse side of the disc pushed by the purchaser. The purchaser pays in cents the amount of the number pushed. The numbers are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until a disc has been selected by the purchaser and such disc separated or removed from the card. Each of said knives has a retail value greater than some of the amounts to be paid therefor. The amount which a purchaser pays for one of said knives is thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

Another of said assortments is sold and distributed to the purchasing public in the following manner: This assortment consists of a large cardboard carton in which are contained a number of smaller cartons, each of which smaller cartons contains an article of merchandise and on the end of each of said smaller cartons there appears a number. One end of said large carton is so constructed as to constitute a device commonly known as a pull card. Such pull card contains a number of partially perforated pull tabs and on the reverse side of each of said tabs there appears a number which corresponds to the number appearing on the end of one of said smaller cartons. Sales are 10 cents each, and each purchaser pulls one of said tabs from the pull card. The purchaser is entitled to and receives the smaller carton bearing the number which corresponded to the number appearing on the reverse side of the tab pulled by such purchaser. The numbers on the reverse sides of said tabs are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until a selection has been made and the tab has been separated or removed from the said card. Many of the said articles of merchandise contained in this assortment are worth more than the amounts to be paid therefor. The said articles of merchandise are thus distributed to the purchasing public wholly by lot or chance.

Respondent sells and distributes various assortments of its merchandise and sells and furnishes various push and pull card, punchboards and other devices for use in the distribution of such merchandise to the purchasing public by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. The sales plans or methods employed in connection with each of said assortments are substantially the same as the sales plans or methods hereinabove described and vary only in detail.

PAR. 3. The dealers to whom respondent sells or furnishes said punchboard, push and pull cards and other devices, use the same in selling and distributing respondent’s merchandise in accordance with the aforesaid sales plans or methods. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of its merchandise in accordance with the sales plans or methods hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said methods in the sale of its merchandise and the sale of such merchandise by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said methods is a practice of the sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of criminal laws.

PAR. 4. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above alleged involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure an article of merchandise at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell or distribute merchandise in competition with the respondent, as above alleged, are unwilling to adopt and use said methods or any methods involving the use of a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other method that is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by respondent’s said methods and by the element of chance in the sale of said merchandise, in the manner above alleged, and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent’s merchandise in preference to the merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or an equivalent method. The use of said method by the respondent because of said game of chance has the tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia to respondent from its said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent sales plans or methods. As a result thereof, substantial injury is being and has been done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on the 23d day of January 1940, issued and thereafter served its complaint in this proceeding upon said respondent, Joseph Hagn Co., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in violation of the provisions of said act. On February 15, 1940, the respondent filed its answer in this proceeding. Thereafter, a stipulation was entered into by and between respondent and counsel for the Commission whereby it was stipulated and agreed that a statement of facts stipulated on the record were the facts in this case. Respondent by letters waived the filing of briefs by counsel for the Commission and respondent and also waived oral argument before the Commission. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, answer, and stipulation, and the Commission having duly considered the same and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Joseph Hagn Co., is a corporation organized and doing business under the laws of the State of Illinois with its principal place of business located at 217 West Madison Street, Chicago, Ill. Respondent is now, and for some time last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of jewelry, clocks, wearing apparel, knives, and various other articles of merchandise, to dealers located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. It causes and has caused said products when sold to be shipped or transported from its aforesaid place of business in the State of Illinois to purchasers thereof in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, at their respective points of location. There is now and for some time last past has been a course of trade by said respondent in such merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of its business, respondent is in competition with other corporations and with individuals and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of its business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and has sold to dealers certain assortments of said merchandise so packed and assembled as to involve the use of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme when said merchandise is sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. One of said assortments is sold and distributed to the purchasing public in the following manner: This assortment consists of a clock and a device commonly called a punch board. Said board contains a number of small sealed tubes, each of which tubes contains a small slip of paper with a number thereon. Sales are 5 cents each. The board bears statements or legends informing purchasers and prospective purchasers that the purchaser punching the number 100 is entitled to and receives the clock. A purchaser who does not qualify by obtaining the number calling for the clock receives nothing for his money. The numbers are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until a punch has been made and the number punched separated or removed from said board. The said clock is thus distributed to the purchasing public wholly by lot or chance.

Another of respondent's assortments is sold and distributed to the purchasing public as follows: This assortment consists of a number of pocket knives, together with a device commonly called a push card. The push card contains a number of partially perforated discs and immediately above each of said discs there appears a feminine name. Sales are from 1 cent to 39 cents, inclusive. On the reverse side of each of said discs there appears a number. Each purchaser is entitled to one of said knives and the amount to be paid therefor is determined by the number appearing on the reverse side of the disc pushed by the purchaser. The purchaser pays in cents the amount of the number pushed. The numbers are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until a disc has been selected by the purchaser and such disc separated or removed from the card. Each of said knives has a retail value greater than some of the amounts to be paid therefor. The amount which a purchaser pays for one of said knives is thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

Another of said assortments is sold and distributed to the purchasing public in the following manner: This assortment consists of a large cardboard carton in which are contained a number of smaller cartons, each of which smaller cartons contains an article of merchandise and on the end of each of said smaller cartons there appears a number. One end of said large carton is so constructed as to constitute a device commonly known as a pull card. Such pull card contains a number of partially perforated pull tabs and on the reverse side of each of said tabs there appears a number which corresponds to the number appearing on the end of one of said smaller cartons. Sales are 10 cents each, and each purchaser pulls one of said tabs from the pull card. The purchaser is entitled to and receives the smaller carton bearing the number which corresponded to the number appearing on the reverse side of the tab pulled by such purchaser. The numbers on the reverse sides of said tabs are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until a selection has been made and the tab has been separated or removed from the said card. Many of the said articles of merchandise contained in this assortment are worth more than the amounts to be paid therefor. The said articles of merchandise are thus distributed to the purchasing public wholly by lot or chance.

Respondent sells and distributes various assortments of its merchandise and sells and furnishes various push and pull cards, punchboards and other devices for use in the distribution of such merchandise to the purchasing public by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. The sales plans or methods employed in connection with each of said assortments are substantially the same as the sales plans or methods hereinabove described varying only in detail.

Par. 3. The dealers to whom respondent sells or furnishes said punchboards, push and pull cards and other devices, use the same in selling and distributing respondent’s merchandise in accordance with the aforesaid sales plans or methods. Respondent thus supplies to, and places in the hands of, others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale and distribution of its merchandise in accordance with the sales plans or methods hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said methods in the sale of its merchandise and the sale of such merchandise by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said methods is a practice of the sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of criminal laws.

PAR. 4. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above described involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure an article of merchandise at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell or distribute merchandise in competition with the respondent, as above found, are unwilling to adopt and use said methods or any methods involving the use of a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other method that is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by respondent's said methods and by the element of chance in the sale of said merchandise, in the manner above described, and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's merchandise in preference to the merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or an equivalent method. The use of said method by the respondent because of said game of chance has the tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade, in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, to respondent from its said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent sales plans or methods. As a result thereof, substantial injury is being and has been done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondent and a stipulation as to the facts entered into by and between respondent and counsel for the Commission, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Joseph Hagn Co., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of jewelry, clocks, wearing apparel, knives, or any other merchandise in commerce as “commerce” is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

3. Selling or otherwise disposing of any merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

ROBERT J. THOMPSON COMPANY

Docket 4027. Complaint, Feb. 8, 1940—Decision, Nov. 12, 1940

Where a corporation engaged, from its principal place of business in Philadelphia, in sale and distribution of suits, overcoats and other articles of merchandise, to members of purchasing public in State of New Jersey, in competition with others engaged in sale and distribution of like or similar merchandise in commerce among the various States and in the District of Columbia—

Sold and distributed its said products to members of purchasing and consuming public by means of a sales plan or method which involved operation of game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme, and under which it solicited members of purchasing public in said State to purchase, by contract, men's clothing, thereafter to be made by it at its said place of business and shipped therefrom, and under which some of such members thus contacted, and as selected wholly by lot or chance, did not pay full contract price for such clothing thus contracted for, but paid less than contract price; and

Made use thereby, in so selling and distributing its said merchandise in accordance with aforesaid sales plan involving game of chance or sale of a chance to procure article of merchandise at price much less than normal retail price thereof, of lottery scheme or plan as above set forth, contrary to an established public policy of the United States Government and in violation of criminal laws, and in competition with many who sell and distribute merchandise and do not use said or any method involving use of a game of chance or sale of a chance to win something by chance, and refrain therefrom;

With result that trade was thereby diverted unfairly in commerce to it from its competitors aforesaid, who did not use same or equivalent methods:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

Before Mr. John W. Addison, trial examiner.
Mr. L. P. Allen, Jr., for the Commission.
Mr. Maurice S. Levy and Mr. David S. Malis, of Philadelphia, Pa., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Robert J. Thompson Co., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Robert J. Thompson Co., is a corporation organized and doing business under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, with its principal office and place of business located at 1216 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa. Respondent is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of suits, overcoats and other articles of merchandise to members of the purchasing public located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. It causes and has caused said merchandise, when sold, to be shipped or transported from its aforesaid place of business in the State of Pennsylvania to purchasers thereof in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia at their respective points of location. There is now and for more than 1 year last past has been a course of trade by respondent in such merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of its business, respondent is and has been in competition with other corporations and with individuals and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of its business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent is now and has been selling and distributing said merchandise to members of the purchasing public by means of sales plans or methods which involve the operation of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. One of said sales plans or methods is substantially as follows:

Members of the purchasing public are solicited by respondent's representatives to purchase a suit of clothes or overcoat under a so-called Club plan. Respondent supplies each purchaser participating in said plan with a contract of purchase. Said contract provides for the sale by respondent, to such purchaser, of a suit of clothes or overcoat for the sum of $40., which said amount is to be paid as follows: One dollar when said contract is delivered and one dollar in advance each week thereafter until the full amount of the contract has been paid. There is space provided on said contract for the recording of the weekly payments. Each of said contracts has printed thereon a "ledger" number. Purchasers are informed by respondent's representatives that should said number correspond with the last three figures included in the total number of shares of stock sold on the Philadelphia, Pa., Stock Exchange for the preceding week, provided all of said purchaser's weekly payments had been made up to date, then such purchaser would be entitled to and would receive a suit or overcoat without additional cost. Purchasers whose contracts do not bear numbers corresponding with the Stock Exchange number, as above alleged, prior to the payment of the full amount of their contracts, are required to pay forty dollars for their suits or overcoats. All of said suits and overcoats have normal retail values of forty dollars. The amount which the ultimate consumer pays for one of said suits or overcoats is thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

Respondent uses and has used various sales plans which involve the operation of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes in connection with the sale and distribution of its merchandise to the consuming public, but said sales plans are similar to the one hereinafore described, varying only in detail.

Par. 3. Respondent has sold and distributed its merchandise to members of the consuming public in accordance with the aforesaid sales plans or methods. In so selling and distributing its merchandise, respondent has conducted lotteries in accordance with the sales plans or methods hereinafore set forth. The use by respondent of said sales plans or methods in the sale of its merchandise and the sale of such merchandise by and through the use thereof, and by the aid of said methods, is a practice of the sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of criminal laws.

Par. 4. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public, in the manner above alleged, involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure an article of merchandise at a price less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell or distribute merchandise in competition with the respondent, as above alleged, are unwilling to adopt and use said methods or any methods involving use of a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other method that is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by respondent's said methods and by the element of chance involved in the sale of said merchandise in the manner above alleged and are thereby induced and persuaded to buy respondent's merchandise in preference to the merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or equivalent methods. The use of said methods by the respondent, because of said game of chance, has the tendency and capacity to and does unfairly divert trade in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia to respondent from its said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent sales plans or methods. As a result thereof substantial injury is being and has been done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on the 8th day of February 1940, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondent, Robert J. Thompson Co., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On February 26, 1940, the respondent filed its answer in this proceeding. Thereafter, a stipulation was entered into whereby it was stipulated and agreed that a statement of facts signed and executed by David S. Malis, counsel for the respondent, and W. T. Kelley, chief counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, subject to the approval of the Commission, may be taken as the facts in this proceeding and in lieu of testimony in support of the charges stated in the complaint or in opposition thereto, and that the said Commission may proceed upon said statement of facts to make its report stating its findings as to the facts and its conclusion based thereon and enter its order disposing of the proceeding without the presentation of argument or the filing of briefs. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, answer and stipulation, said stipulation having been approved, accepted and filed, and the Commission, having duly considered the same and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Robert J. Thompson Co., is a corporation organized and doing business under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, with its principal office and place of business located at 1216 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa. Respondent, for some time prior to the filing of the complaint in this matter, engaged in the sale and distribution of suits, overcoats and other articles of merchandise to members of the purchasing public located in the State of New Jersey. It caused said merchandise, when sold, to be shipped or transported from its aforesaid place of business in the State of Pennsylvania to purchasers thereof in the State of New Jersey, at their respective points of location. There was, for some time prior to the filing of the complaint in this matter, a course of trade by respondent in such merchandise in commerce between the States of Pennsylvania and New Jersey. In the course and conduct of its business, respondent has been in competition with other corporations, and with individuals and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of its business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent has been selling and distributing said merchandise to members of the purchasing public by means of a sales plan or method which involved the operation of a game of chance, gift enterprise or lottery scheme. The sales plan or method was substantially as follows:

Members of the purchasing public in the State of New Jersey were solicited by respondent's representatives to purchase by contract men's clothing thereafter to be manufactured by respondent at its place of business in Philadelphia, Pa. Some of the aforesaid members of the purchasing public so contacted did not pay the full contract price for the article of men's clothing contracted to be purchased but paid less than the contract price for the said articles of clothing. The persons who were entitled to receive and who did receive the articles of men's clothing for less than the full contract price were selected wholly by lot or chance. The said articles of men's clothing so sold and distributed were shipped by common carriers from respondent's aforesaid place of business in Philadelphia, Pa., to the said customers of respondent wherever located in the State of New Jersey.

Par. 3. Respondent has sold and distributed its merchandise to members of the consuming public in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan or method. In so selling and distributing its merchandise, respondent has conducted lotteries in accordance with the sales plan or method hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of the said sales plan or method in the sale of its merchandise and the sale of such merchandise by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said method is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States, and in violation of criminal laws.

Par. 4. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above found involves a game of chance or in the sale of a chance to procure an article or merchandise at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations, who sell or distribute merchandise in competition with respondent, as above found, do not use said method or any method involving the use of a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance, and such competitors refrain therefrom. The use of said method by respondent because of said game of chance had a tendency and capacity to and did unfairly divert trade, in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, to respondent from its said competitors who did not use the same or equivalent methods.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondent and a stipulation as to the facts entered into between counsel for the respondent and W. T. Kelley, chief counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, which provides, among other things, that without further evidence or other intervening procedure the Commission may issue and serve upon the respondent herein findings as to the facts and conclusion based thereon and an order disposing of the proceeding, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Robert J. Thompson Co., its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of suits, overcoats or any other merchandise in commerce as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:
1. Supplying to or placing in the hands of others any merchandise, together with a sales plan or method involving the use of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme by which said merchandise is to be, or may be, sold to the purchasing public.

2. Selling or otherwise disposing of any merchandise by the use of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF

JUNIOR LEAGUE LINGERIE, INC.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 4124. Complaint, May 1, 1940—Decision, Nov. 12, 1940

Where there had existed for well over 30 years, in various cities and towns throughout the United States, organizations of young women which, known as Junior Leagues, were benevolent, nonprofit organizations devoted to charitable purposes and improvement of social conditions in their respective communities, and which sponsored various benevolent activities, including financial assistance of hospitals and other charitable enterprises and, in order to obtain funds with which to carry on their activities, frequently engaged in various money-raising functions such as operation of gift shops, rummage sales, and tearooms and the conducting of fashion shows, often in cooperation with local merchants, and where there had long been incorporated an association known as the Association of The Junior Leagues of America, Inc., purpose of which was to unite in a central organization all the Junior Leagues throughout the United States, Canada, and Mexico, and which had come to have approximately 130 local or members leagues with total membership of some 35,000, and published and sold to public, as well as to members of various local organizations, its “Junior League Magazine” with numerous articles and suggestions with respect to women’s apparel and current fashions and styles therein, and name “Junior League” had come, for many years last past, to be associated in minds of substantial portion of purchasing public with aforesaid organizations to such an extent that use of such name to designate or describe articles of merchandise, particularly women’s apparel, served as representation to public, and caused public to believe, that articles so designated were sponsored or approved by said Junior League; and thereafter, a corporation engaged in sale and distribution of women’s apparel, including slips and other lingerie, to purchasers thereof in various other States and in the District of Columbia—

(a) Represented, through inclusion and use of words “Junior League” as part of its corporate name, that it had some connection with said organization, and that its said products were sponsored or approved thereby; and

(b) Represented that its said products were thus sponsored or approved, through tags and labels attached thereto and through invoices, letters, circulars, and other advertising material distributed among prospective purchasers and otherwise, and including, as typical of such false and misleading representations, use of legends “Junior League Distinctive Lingerie” and “Junior League Buds,” which it caused to appear on labels attached to certain of its slips and other such products, and statement “This garment is unconditionally guaranteed by the makers of Junior League Lingerie,” which it placed on tags attached to aforesaid slips; and

(c) Supplied to dealers purchasing its products, newspaper mats, and other advertising material with which to promote sale thereof, and in all of which words “Junior League” were prominently and conspicuously displayed;
Nothwithstanding fact none of its said products were sponsored or approved by Junior League, and it was not connected in any way with such organization, and had no authority therefrom to use said organization's name to designate its products, and representations aforesaid were misleading and deceptive;

With effect of misleading and deceiving substantial portion of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that its said products were sponsored or approved by the Junior League, and with result, as consequence of such erroneous and mistaken belief, that such public was induced to and did purchase substantial quantities of its products, and with further effect of placing in hands of uninformed and unscrupulous dealers means and instrumentalities whereby they were enabled to mislead and deceive members of purchasing public:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Before Mr. Robert S. Hall, trial examiner.
Mr. James L. Fort and Mr. L. E. Creel, Jr., for the Commission.
Mr. Martin Selig, of New York City, for respondent.

lent, nonprofit organizations devoted to charitable purposes and the improvement of social conditions in their respective communities. They sponsor various benevolent activities, including the financial assistance of hospitals and other charitable enterprises. In order to obtain funds with which to carry on their activities the Junior Leagues frequently engage in various money-raising activities, such as the operation of gift shops, rummage sales, and tearooms. Also prominent among such activities is the conducting of fashion shows, many of which are conducted in cooperation with local merchants.

In the year 1921 there was incorporated under the laws of the State of New York an association known as the Association of the Junior Leagues of America, Inc., which had and has as its purpose the uniting in a central organization of all of the Junior Leagues throughout the United States, Canada, and Mexico. This central organization now comprises approximately 130 local or member leagues, with a total membership of approximately 27,000. As a part of its activities the said association publishes a periodical known as the "Junior League Magazine" which is sold to the public, as well as to the members of the various local organizations. This magazine contains numerous articles and suggestions with respect to women's apparel and with respect to current fashions and styles in such apparel.

The name "Junior League" is now and for many years last past has been associated in the minds of a substantial portion of the purchasing public with the aforesaid organizations to such an extent that the use of such name to designate or describe articles of merchandise, particularly women's apparel, serves as a representation to the public, and causes the public to believe, that the articles so designated are sponsored or approved by the Junior League. Such name, when associated with women's apparel, connotes to such portion of the purchasing public superior quality and distinctive and preeminent style and fashion.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of its business as described herein the respondent has falsely represented that its products are sponsored or approved by the Junior League, such representations being made by means of tags and labels attached to its products, by invoices, by letters, circulars, and other advertising material distributed among prospective purchasers, and by other means. Among and typical of such false and misleading representations are the legends "Junior League Distinctive Lingerie," and "Junior League Buds," which the respondent causes to appear on labels attached to certain of its slips and other lingerie, and the statement, "This garment is unconditionally guaranteed by the makers of Junior League Lingerie," which the respondent places on tags attached to such slips.

The respondent also supplies to dealers purchasing its products newspaper mats and other advertising material with which to promote the sale of such products. In all of such advertising material the words "Junior League" are prominently and conspicuously displayed.

In truth and in fact, none of the respondent's products are sponsored or approved by the Junior League. Respondent is not connected in any way with such organization and has no authority from such organization to use its name to designate respondent's products.

Par. 4. The use by the respondent of the words "Junior League" as a part of its corporate name constitutes within itself a false and misleading representation that respondent is connected with the Junior League and that respondent's products are sponsored or approved by such organization.

Par. 5. The use by the respondent of the acts and practices herein referred to has the tendency and capacity to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that respondent's products are sponsored or approved by the Junior League, and as a result of such erroneous and mistaken belief the purchasing public has been induced to, and has, purchased substantial quantities of respondent's products.

Par. 6. By the means herein set forth the respondent has also placed directly in the hands of uninformed or unscrupulous dealers a means and instrumentality whereby such dealers have been and are enabled to mislead and deceive members of the purchasing public.

Par. 7. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on the 1st day of May 1940, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon Junior League Lingerie, Inc., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, testimony, and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by James L. Fort and L. E. Creel, attorneys for the Commission, and in opposition thereto by Martin Selig, attorney for the respondent, before Robert S. Hall, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, answer, testimony, and other evidence, and brief in support of the complaint (respondent not having filed brief, and oral argument not having been requested), and the Commission having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Par. 1. Respondent, Junior League Lingerie, Inc., is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of New York, with its principal office and place of business located at 152 Madison Avenue, New York City, State of New York. Respondent is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of women's apparel, including slips and other lingerie.

Par. 2. Respondent causes its products, when sold, to be transported from its place of business in the State of New York, to the purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains and at all times mentioned herein has maintained a course of trade in its said products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 3. Since the year 1901 there have existed in various cities and towns throughout the United States organizations of young women known as Junior Leagues. Such organizations are benevolent, non-profit organizations devoted to charitable purposes and the improvement of social conditions in their respective communities. They sponsor various benevolent activities, including the financial assistance of hospitals and other charitable enterprises. In order to obtain funds with which to carry on their activities the Junior Leagues frequently engage in various money-raising activities, such as the operation of gift shops, rummage sales, and tearooms. Also prominent among such activities is the conducting of fashion shows, many of which are conducted in cooperation with local merchants.

In the year 1921 there was incorporated under the laws of the State of New York an association known as the Association of The Junior Leagues of America, Inc., which had and has as its purpose the uniting in a central organization of all of the Junior Leagues throughout the United States, Canada and Mexico. This central organization now comprises approximately 130 local or member leagues, with a total membership of approximately 35,000. As a part of its activities, the said association publishes a periodical known as the "Junior League Magazine" which is sold to the public, as well as to the members of the various local organizations. This magazine contains numerous articles and suggestions with respect to women's apparel and with respect to current fashions and styles in such apparel.

PAR. 4. The Commission finds that the name "Junior League" is now and for many years last past has been associated in the minds of a substantial portion of the purchasing public with the aforesaid organizations to such an extent that the use of such name to designate or describe articles of merchandise, particularly women's apparel, serves as a representation to the public, and causes the public to believe, that the articles so designated are sponsored or approved by the Junior League.

PAR. 5. In the course and conduct of its business as described herein, the respondent has represented that its products are sponsored or approved by the Junior League, such representations being made by means of tags and labels attached to its products, by invoices, by letters, circulars, and other advertising material distributed among prospective purchasers, and by other means. Among and typical of such false and misleading representations are the legends, "Junior League Distinctive Lingerie" and "Junior League Buds," which the respondent causes to appear on labels attached to certain of its slips and other lingerie, and the statement, "This garment is unconditionally guaranteed by the makers of Junior League Lingerie," which the respondent places on tags attached to such slips. The respondent also supplies to dealers purchasing its products newspaper mats and other advertising material with which to promote the sale of such products. In all of such advertising material the words "Junior League" are prominently and conspicuously displayed.

The use by the respondent of the words "Junior League" as a part of its corporate name constitutes an additional representation that respondent has some connection with the Junior League and that respondent's products are sponsored or approved by the Junior League.

PAR. 6. The Commission finds that these representations are misleading and deceptive. In truth and in fact, none of the respondent's products are sponsored or approved by the Junior League. Respondent is not connected in any way with such organization and has no authority from such organization to use its name to designate respondent's products.
PAR. 7. The Commission further finds that the use by the respondent of the acts and practices herein referred to has the tendency and capacity to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that respondent's products are sponsored or approved by the Junior League, and as a result of such erroneous and mistaken belief the purchasing public has been induced to purchase, and has purchased, substantial quantities of respondent's products. The acts and practices of respondent serve also to place in the hand of uninformed and unscrupulous dealers means and instrumentalities whereby such dealers are enabled to mislead and deceive members of the purchasing public.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondent, testimony, and other evidence taken before Robert S. Hall, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, brief filed herein by counsel for the Commission (no brief having been filed on behalf of the respondent, and oral argument not having been requested), and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Junior League Lingerie, Inc., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of women's apparel in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Using the words "Junior League," or any other word or words of similar import or meaning, in respondent's corporate name, or otherwise representing that respondent is connected in any way with the organization known as the Junior League.

2. Using the words "Junior League," or any other word or words of similar import or meaning, to designate, describe, or refer to respondent's products, or otherwise representing that respondent's products are sponsored or approved by the organization known as the Junior League.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall within 60 days after service upon it of this order file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

ELY & WALKER DRY GOODS COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 4216. Complaint, Aug. 5, 1940—Decision, Nov. 12, 1940

Where a corporation engaged in sale and distribution of men's clothing in commerce among the various States—

(a) Advertised in two periodicals, in connection with offer, sale and distribution of certain men's robes, in commerce, as aforesaid, said products as "Camel Suede Robe," and featured said words in large display type across the top of the page, and set forth, near the bottom thereof, in comparatively small type and, except as otherwise indicated, "Constructed of North American Brushed Rayon. • • • Soft rich colors have been specially dyed for the CAMEL SUEDE ROBE, of Natural Tan, Dubonnet Wine, • • • YOU MUST SEE THE CAMEL SUEDE ROBE • • •," and displayed, between featured words "CAMEL SUEDE ROBE" and aforesaid explanatory matter, several relatively large depictions of men attired in such robes, with result of thus widely separating the two; and

(b) Permanently attached, during period concerned, to robes aforesaid, yellow labels reading "CAMEL SUEDE Tailored by COUTTELEIGH" and bearing illustrations of a camel with a background of palm trees and pyramids;

Notwithstanding fact robes aforesaid, thus labeled and described, were not composed in any part of the hair or wool of the camel, as might be implied by designation "Camel Suede," and were not garments thus made from hair or wool of the camel, believed generally by many dealers and retailers and members of general purchasing public to be more desirable than those made from any other materials for similar uses, and for which, when thus made in whole or in predominant part, there is a preference, consequently, on part of substantial number of purchasing and consuming public, but were made of rayon, which, when so manufactured as to simulate hair or wool of camel, has appearance and feel thereof and is, by purchasing and consuming public, without rayon designation, practically indistinguishable therefrom, and, under such circumstances, may be considered and accepted by some dealers and retailers and purchasing and consuming public as being such hair or wool; and

(c) Attached, by means of sewing, to above described yellow label, small black cloth tabs or labels with single word "Rayon" in white, and also, to guard of belt of said robes, paper string ticket bearing words, on one side, "Brushed Rayon," and on the other, "To be dry cleaned";

With result, through method of attaching by sewing aforesaid black cloth tab or label, and of attaching by string aforesaid label and ticket to belt of said robes, of supplying means of misleading and deceiving prospective purchasers, dealers in and retailers of said robes by means of fact that such labels and paper string tickets were capable of being easily removed through cutting or tearing, leaving on garment only aforesaid illustrated label "Camel Suede, Tailored by Courtleigh," and with capacity and tendency, through its said acts and practices in using such statements in advertisements and on labels in connection with offer, etc., of said robes, to mislead and deceive purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that robes so advertised and labeled were in fact composed of hair or wool of the camel, and to cause substantial portion of such public to purchase said robes from it as result of such erroneous and mistaken belief:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of public, and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Mr. George W. Williams, for the Commission.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that the Ely & Walker Dry Goods Co., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. The Ely & Walker Dry Goods Co. is a corporation, organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Missouri, with its office and principal place of business at 1520 Washington Avenue, St. Louis, Mo. It is now, and for a number of years last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of men's clothing in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act. It causes its products, when sold, to be shipped from its said place of business in the State of Missouri to purchasers in various other States and in the District of Columbia.

Para. 2. In the course and conduct of its business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution in commerce of certain of its men's robes, has published advertisements in trade magazines or journals, which advertisements feature the words in large display type, an inch high and running out to a foot in length, across the top of the page. Towards the bottom of the page in comparatively small type, except as otherwise exhibited, appears the following:

Constructed of North American Brushed Rayon. It has that soft velvety touch that is immediately captivating. Styled with a drop stitch stripe and piped with contrast cord trimming, it is indeed a charming picture. Soft rich colors have been specially dyed for the CAMEL SUEDE ROBE, of Natural Tan, Dubonnet Wine, Seafoam Green, Myrtle Green, Navy Blue and Teal Blue. YOU MUST SEE THE CAMEL SUEDE ROBE—it's different.
Between the featured words “Camel Suede Robe” and the above mentioned explanatory matter are several relatively large pictorial representations of men attired in said robes, which widely separate the featured words and the explanatory matter.

To said robes respondent has permanently attached yellow labels or bands reading as follows:

Camel Suede
Tailored by Courtleigh

which said labels bear illustrations of a camel with background of palm trees and pyramids. Small black tabs with a single word “Rayon” are separately attached to the above described labels or bands.

By means of such advertisements featuring the words “Camel Suede Robe”, and through the use of the labels or bands marked “Camel Suede” and bearing illustrations of a camel, respondent has represented and represents that its said men’s robes were and are made of camel’s hair or camel’s wool, or are made of predominant part of camel’s hair or camel’s wool.

As a matter of fact, the robes thus labeled and described were not, and are not, composed in any part of the hair of the camel, as implied by the designation “Camel Suede,” but were, and are, made wholly of rayon.

Par. 3. Garments made from camel’s hair or camel’s wool are generally believed by many retail dealers and members of the general purchasing public to be more desirable than garments made from any other material for similar usage. Garments made from genuine camel’s hair or camel’s wool are light in weight and are warm, and possess other qualities which make them more desirable than other similar garments not made from camel’s hair or camel’s wool. Consequently, there is a preference on the part of a substantial number of the purchasing public for garments that are made of camel’s hair or camel’s wool, or are made in predominant part of camel’s hair or camel’s wool.

Rayon is a chemically manufactured fiber or fabric which may be manufactured so as to simulate wool, such as camel’s hair or camel’s wool, and, when so manufactured, it has the appearance and feel of such hair or wool, and is by the purchasing public practically indistinguishable therefrom. By reason of these qualities, rayon, when manufactured to simulate camel’s hair or camel’s wool, and not designated as rayon, is readily believed and accepted by dealers and the purchasing public as being wool.
Findings

PAR. 4. The false and misleading statements set out and referred to in paragraph 2 hereof, were, and are, calculated to, have had, and have, a tendency and capacity to deceive and mislead dealers and consumers into the erroneous and mistaken belief that said robes labeled and advertised as “Camel Suede Robes” are in fact made of camel’s hair or camel’s wool. Through the use of the illustrative label “CAMEL SUEDE Tailored by Courtleigh,” to which is attached the easily removed small tab bearing the word “Rayon,” respondent places in the hands of dealers the means of misleading and deceiving the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that said robes were, and are, composed of camel’s hair or camel’s wool.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce, within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on the 5th day of August 1940, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon said respondent, Ely & Walker Dry Goods Co., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On the 22d day of August 1940, the respondent filed its answer in this proceeding. Thereafter, a stipulation was entered into whereby it was stipulated and agreed that a statement of facts signed and executed by the respondent and W. T. Kelley, chief counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, subject to the approval of the Commission, may be taken as the facts in this proceeding and in lieu of testimony in support of the charges stated in the complaint, or in opposition thereto, and that the said Commission may proceed upon said statement of facts to make its report, stating its finding as to the facts and its conclusion based thereon and enter its order disposing of the proceeding without the presentation of argument or the filing of briefs. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, answer, and stipulation, said stipulation having been approved, accepted, and filed, and the Commission, having duly considered the same, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.
Findings

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. The respondent, Ely & Walker Dry Goods Co., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Missouri, with its office and principal place of business at 1520 Washington Avenue, St. Louis, Mo. It is now, and for a number of years last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of men's clothing in commerce between and among the various States of the United States. It causes said clothing, when sold, to be transported from its said place of business in the State of Missouri to the purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of its business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, and within the past 3 years, respondent, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of men's robes made of rayon in said commerce, advertised said robes in two magazines as "Camel Suede Robe," which said words were featured in large display type 1 inch in height, the legend running out to a foot in length across the top of the page. Near the bottom of the page in comparatively small type, except as otherwise indicated, appeared the following:

constructed of North American Brushed Rayon. It has that soft velvety touch that is immediately captivating. Styled with a drop stitch stripe and piped with contrast cord trimming, it is indeed a charming picture. Soft rich colors have been specially dyed for the CAMEL SUEDE ROBE, of Natural Tan, Dubonnet Wine, Seafoam Green, Myrtle Green, Navy Blue and Teal Blue. YOU MUST SEE THE CAMEL SUEDE ROBE—it's different."

In between the featured words "CAMEL SUEDE ROBE" and the above-mentioned explanatory matter are several relatively large pictorial representations of men attired in said robes, thus widely separating the said featured words and the explanatory matter.

Also, in the course and conduct of its said business and during the time aforesaid, respondent had permanently attached to said robes yellow labels reading as follows:

CAMEL SUEDE

and bearing illustrations of a camel with a background of palm trees and pyramids. Small black-cloth tabs or labels with the single word "Rayon" in white were attached, by means of sewing, to the above-described yellow label.

Respondent also attached to the guard of the belt of said robes a paper string ticket bearing the words "Brushed Rayon" on one side of the ticket and the words "To be dry cleaned" on the reverse side of said ticket. The said robes, thus labeled and described, were not composed in any part of the hair or wool of the camel, as might be implied by the designation "Camel Suede," but were made wholly of rayon. By reason of the method of attaching, which was by sewing the small black-cloth tab or label to the said yellow cloth label, and of attaching to the guard of the belt of said robes with a string said label and ticket, means of misleading and deceiving prospective purchasers were supplied to dealers in, and retailers of, said robes, for said rayon label and paper string ticket were capable of being easily removed by cutting or tearing, leaving on the garment only the illustrative label "Camel Suede, Tailored by Courtleigh."

Par. 3. Garments made from the hair or wool of the camel are generally believed by many dealers and retailers and members of the general purchasing public to be more desirable than garments made from any other materials for similar uses. Consequently, there is a preference on the part of a substantial number of the purchasing and consuming public for garments that are in truth and in fact made of the hair or wool of the camel, or at least made up in predominant part of the hair or wool of the camel.

Rayon is a chemically manufactured fiber or fabric which may be manufactured so as to simulate wool, such as camel's hair or camel's wool, and when so manufactured it has the appearance and feel of such hair or wool, and is, by the purchasing and consuming public, practically indistinguishable from such hair or wool unless designated as rayon. By reason of these qualities, rayon, when manufactured to simulate the hair or wool of the camel, and not designated as rayon, may be considered and accepted by some dealers and retailers and the purchasing and consuming public as being such hair or wool.

Par. 4. The acts and practices of the respondent in using the statements contained in said advertisements, and the statements on the labels attached to said robes, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of said robes, as hereinabove set out, have had, and have, a tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that the robes so advertised and labeled were, and are, in fact, composed of the hair or wool of the camel, and to cause a substantial portion of the purchasing public to purchase said robes from respondent as the result of this erroneous and mistaken belief. After the institution of the Commission's investigation of this matter and prior to the issuance of the complaint herein, respondent ceased using the type of advertising and labeling hereinabove described.
CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of the respondent, and a stipulation as to the facts entered into between the respondent and W. T. Kelley, chief counsel for the Commission, which provides, among other things, that, without further evidence or other intervening procedure, the Commission may issue and serve upon the respondent findings as to the facts and conclusion based thereon and an order disposing of the proceeding, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Ely & Walker Dry Goods Company, a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of men’s robes or other garments, in commerce, as “commerce” is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing that respondent’s garments are composed of fabrics or materials other than those of which such garments are actually composed.

2. Advertising garments composed in whole or in part of rayon without clearly disclosing the fact that such garments are composed of rayon, and, when such garments are composed in part of rayon and in part of other fibers or material, such fibers or material including the rayon shall be named in the order of their predominance by weight, beginning with the largest single constituent.

3. Using the word “camel,” or pictorial representations of a camel with a background of palm trees and pyramids, in advertisements, on labels, tags, or otherwise, or any other words or representations of like import or meaning to designate or describe any garment which is composed entirely of materials other than the hair or wool of the camel.

4. Labeling and tagging garments in such a manner as to enable dealers and retailers easily and readily to remove part of the fiber or material identification matter, leaving matter which would inform or indicate to the purchasing public that such garments are composed of fibers or materials of which they are not in fact composed.

5. Using the term “Camel Suede Robe” or the term “Camel Suede,” alone or in connection with a picturization of a camel with a background of palm trees and pyramids, or any other term, words or scene indicating or implying that the material from which such garments are made contains the hair or wool of the camel, to designate, describe or refer to robes or other garments composed of rayon and which do not contain the hair or wool of the camel.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of his business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and distributes said articles of merchandise by means of a lottery scheme or game of chance. The respondent distributes or causes to be distributed to representatives and prospective representatives certain advertising literature including, among other things, a sales circular. Respondent's merchandise is distributed to the purchasers thereof in the following manner: A portion of said sales circular consists of a list on which are designated a number of items of merchandise and the respective prices thereof. Adjacent to the list is printed and set out a device commonly called a pull card. Said pull card consists of a number of tabs under each of which is concealed the name of an article of merchandise and the price thereof. The name of the article of merchandise and the price thereof are so concealed that the purchasers and prospective purchasers of the tabs or chances are unable to ascertain which article of merchandise they are to receive or the price which they are to pay until after the tab is separated from the card. When a purchaser has detached a tab and learned what article of merchandise he is to receive and the price thereof, his name is written on the list opposite the named article of merchandise. Some of said articles of merchandise have purported and represented retail values and regular prices greater than the prices designated for them, but are distributed to the customer for the price designated on the tab which he pulls. The apparent greater values and higher regular prices of some of said articles of merchandise as compared to the prices the customer will be required to pay in the event he secures said articles, induces members of the purchasing public to purchase the tabs or chances in the hope that they will receive articles of merchandise having greater values and higher regular prices than the designated prices to be paid therefor. The facts as to whether a purchaser of one of said pull card tabs receives an article of greater value than the price designated for same on said tab, which of said articles of merchandise a purchaser is to receive, and the amount of money which a purchaser is required to pay, are determined wholly by lot or chance.

When a person or representative operating a pull card has succeeded in selling all of the tabs or chances, collected the amounts called for and remitted the said sums to the respondent, the said respondent thereupon ships to said representative the merchandise sold by means of said card, together with a premium for the representative as compensation for operating the pull card and selling the said merchandise. Said operator delivers the merchandise to the purchasers of tabs from said pull card in accordance with the list filled out when the tabs were detached from the pull card.

Respondent sells and distributes various assortments of said merchandise and furnishes various pull cards for use in the sale and distribution of such merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. Such plan or method varies in detail, but the above described plan or method is illustrative of the principle involved.

Par. 3. The persons to whom respondent furnishes the said pull cards use the same in purchasing, selling and distributing respondent's merchandise in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of such merchandise in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said method in the sale of his merchandise and the sale of such merchandise by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said method is a practice of the sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and which is in violation of the criminal laws.

Par. 4. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above alleged involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure an article of merchandise at a price much less than the apparent normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell and distribute merchandise in commerce as herein defined in competition with respondent as above alleged are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other method which is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by respondent's said method and by the element of chance involved in the sale of said merchandise in the manner above described, and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's merchandise in pref-
Complaint

REFERENCE to merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or an equivalent method. The use of said method by respondent, because of said game of chance, has the capacity and tendency to and does unfairly divert trade and custom to respondent from his said competitors and to exclude from the novelty merchandise trade all competitors who are unwilling to and who do not use the same or an equivalent method because the same is unlawful. As a result thereof substantial injury is being and has been done to said competitors of respondent.

PAR. 5. In the course and conduct of his business as hereinabove related, respondent has caused various false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations to appear in his advertising matter as aforesaid, of which the following are examples but are not all-inclusive:

Gifts for all no cost to you.
Beautiful useful household gifts at Absolutely no cost.
Gold Star Novelty Co. Registered under U. S. Laws.

The effect of the foregoing false, deceptive and misleading statements and representations of the respondent in selling and offering for sale such items of merchandise as hereinabove referred to is to mislead and deceive a substantial part of the purchasing public in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, by inducing them to mistakenly believe that respondent gives away certain of his said articles of merchandise without cost to his said representatives, and that his said business has been registered with some department of the United States Government.

PAR. 6. In truth and in fact, respondent's said business is not registered with any department of the United States Government, and none of respondent's premiums or so-called gifts are given away "without cost," but said premiums or so-called gifts which are represented as being "without cost" to said representatives are either purchased with labor by them, or the price of said premiums or so-called gifts is included in the price of other articles of merchandise which the representatives must sell or procure the sale of before said premiums or so-called gifts can be procured by them.

PAR. 7. The use by respondent of the false, deceptive and misleading statements and representations set forth herein has had and now has the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive and has misled and deceived a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that such statements and representations are true, and into the purchase of substantial quantities of said respondent's products as the result of such erroneous belief. There are among the competitors of respondent as mentioned in paragraph 1 hereof, manuufacturers and distributors of like or similar products who do not make such false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations concerning the method of sale and distribution of their products. By the statements and representations aforesaid, trade is unfairly diverted to respondent from such competitors, and as a result thereof substantial injury is being done and has been done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commisson Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on May 27, 1938, issued and thereafter served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent Louis Farben, individually and trading as Gold Star Novelty House, charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint /respondent having filed no answer thereto), testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by D. C. Daniel, P. C. Kolinski, and L. P. Allen, Jr., attorneys for the Commission (respondent having offered no proof in opposition to the allegations of the complaint), before Randolph Preston, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, testimony and other evidence, brief in support of the complaint (respondent having filed no brief and oral argument having been waived); and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent is an individual who was trading under the name of Gold Star Novelty House, with his principal office and place of business located at 1140 Broadway, New York City, N. Y.
He was from on or about September 1937 until on or about September 1938 engaged in the sale and distribution of manicure sets, electric lamps, leather wallets, pictures, silverware and chinaware, clocks, watches, cameras, dolls, cosmetics and other articles of novelty merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. During said time respondent caused said products, when sold, to be shipped or transported from his place of business in the State of New York to purchasers thereof located in the various States of the United States other than the State of New York, and in the District of Columbia. There was during the time aforesaid a course of trade by said respondent in such merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business, respondent was in competition with other concerns engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In so conducting and carrying on said business as described in paragraph 1 hereof respondent has sold various of his said articles of merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise or lottery scheme. Respondent distributed and caused to be distributed sales circulars to representatives and prospective representatives. Said articles of merchandise were sold and distributed by means of said sales circulars in substantially the following manner:

On the last page of said sales circular there appear picturizations of a number of said articles of merchandise and printed matter descriptive thereof. There also appears on said page a list of 22 articles of merchandise and the prices thereof, with space provided for the recording of the name of each purchaser opposite the name of the article of merchandise purchased. Adjacent to said list, there is a device commonly called a pull card. Said pull card consists of a number of small tabs, on the reverse side of each of which there appears the name of an article of merchandise and the price thereof. The prices of said articles of merchandise vary in amounts from 9 cents to 39 cents. Each purchaser separates or pulls one of said tabs from said device. The name of the article of merchandise and the price thereof are so concealed that purchasers and prospective purchasers are unable to ascertain which article of merchandise they are to receive or the amount of money which they are to pay until after the tabs are separated or pulled from said card. When a purchaser has separated or pulled a tab from the card and learned what article of merchandise he is to receive, his name is written on the list opposite the named article of merchandise. Some of said articles of merchandise have retail values and regular prices greater than the prices so des-IGNATED for them, but all of said articles of merchandise are distributed to the customers for the prices designated under the tabs selected and pulled from said card by such customers. Which article of merchandise the purchaser is to receive, and the amount of money he is to pay, are thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

The said 22 articles of merchandise retail for $7.65 and when the person or representative operating one of said pull cards has sold all of said 22 articles of merchandise and collected said amount, he may retain $3 for his services and remit the balance of the $7.65 to respondent, and the respondent will, in turn, send said 22 articles of merchandise to said person or representative, who distributes the same to the individual purchasers thereof; or said person or representative remits the $7.65 to respondent and respondent sends the said 22 articles of merchandise to said person or representative, together with a premium for said person or representative in payment for said services in so selling and distributing said 22 articles of merchandise. Such premiums are illustrated and described in respondent's said circulars and the person or representative desiring one of such premiums may make his selection from said premiums.

The respondent has distributed by mail a substantial number of said sales circulars to customers and prospective customers located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia and as a result thereof has received and filled a substantial number of orders for said 22 articles of merchandise.

Immediately above the said pull card device there appears the following:

NOTICE TO PURCHASERS

On the back of each slip is printed the price of an article. If after deliberation you decide that you want to buy the article, pay the holder of this folder the price shown on slip. If you do not want the article you need not buy it.

The Commission finds that regardless of such notice, the said 22 articles of merchandise were, in fact, distributed by means of said sales circulars as hereinabove described.

Par. 3. The Commission finds that the persons or representatives to whom respondent has furnished or supplied said sales circulars containing said pull cards have used the same in purchasing, selling, and distributing respondent's said 22 articles of merchandise in accordance with the sales plan or method as described in paragraph 2 hereof. Respondent has thus supplied to and placed in the hands of others a means of selling and distributing said merchandise by means of a game of chance or lottery scheme in accordance with said sales plan. The sale and distribution of said merchandise by respondent by the sales plan as aforesaid is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of criminal laws.

Par. 4. The Commission finds that the sale of said merchandise in the manner described in paragraph 2 hereof constitutes a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure an article of merchandise at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Respondent has competitors who sell and distribute like or similar merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia who are unwilling to and do not use said sales plan or method in the sale of their merchandise, or any other sales plan or method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any sales plan or method which is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Because of said element of chance involved in said sales plan or method employed by respondent as hereinabove described, many persons have been induced to buy and sell respondent’s merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors.

Par. 5. The Commission finds that in so conducting its business as hereinabove described, respondent has caused false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations to appear in its said sales circulars, some of which statements and representations are as follows:

Gifts for all at no cost to you.
Beautiful, useful household gifts at absolutely no cost.
Gold Star Novelty Co., registered under U. S. laws.

The Commission finds that such statements and representations of respondent used in connection with the sale and offering for sale of respondent’s said articles of merchandise, as hereinabove described, are false, deceptive, and misleading, and have a tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive a substantial number of the members of the purchasing public in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia and to induce them to mistakenly and erroneously believe that respondent gives away some of his said articles of merchandise without cost to his representatives and that said business is registered under the laws of the United States.

Par. 6. The Commission finds that respondent did not give away any of his merchandise or premiums without cost to his said representatives but that such representatives were required to first sell or procure the sale of said 22 articles of merchandise before they received one of said premiums; and that respondent’s said business was not registered under the laws of the United States.
Order

The Commission finds that as a result of the use of said statements and representations, a substantial number of the members of the purchasing public were misled and deceived into the mistaken and erroneous belief that said statements and representations were true, and were induced to purchase substantial quantities of respondent's said merchandise as a result thereof. Respondent has competitors as hereinabove found who sell and distribute merchandise like or similar to that sold by respondent but who do not make such false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations concerning their said merchandise.

As a result of the use of said sales plan or method described in paragraph 2 hereof and the use of said false, deceptive and misleading statements and representations by said respondent, as aforesaid, trade has been unfairly diverted to respondent from such competitors who do not engage in such practices and substantial injury has been done to said competitors by respondent in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission (respondent having filed no answer thereto), testimony and other evidence taken before Randolph Preston, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint (respondent having offered no proof in opposition thereto), brief filed herein by counsel for the Commission (respondent not having filed brief and oral argument having been waived); and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Louis Farben, individually and trading as Gold Star Novelty House, his representatives, agents and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device in connection with the offering for sale, sale or distribution of manicure sets, electric lamps, leather wallets, pictures, silverware and chinaware, cosmetics, jewelry, comb and brush sets, razor blades or any other arti-

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Eastern Premium House, Inc., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Eastern Premium House, Inc., is a corporation organized and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its principal office and place of business located at 830 Broadway, New York, N. Y. Respondent is now, and for some time last past has been engaged in the sale and distribution of clocks, watches, dolls, chinaware, aluminum ware, jewelry, cosmetics, cigarette cases and lighters, flashlights, kitchenware, bedding, clothing, tableware, lamps, dresser sets, smoking stands, and other articles of merchandise, in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent causes and has caused said products when sold to be shipped or transported from its place of business aforesaid, to purchasers thereof located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia at their respective points of location. There is now, and has been for some time last past, a course of trade by said respondent in such merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business, respondent is and has been in competition with other corporations and with individuals and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of similar or like articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of its business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and distributes, and has sold and distributed, said articles of merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. The respondent distributes or causes to be distributed to representatives and prospective representatives certain advertising literature including a sales circular. Respondent's merchandise is and has been distributed to the purchasing public in the following manner:

A portion of said sales circular consists of a list on which there are designated a number of items of merchandise and the prices thereof. Adjacent to the list is printed and set out a device commonly called a pull card. Said pull card consists of a number of tabs, under each of which is concealed the name of an article of merchandise and the price thereof. The name of the article of merchandise and the price thereof are so concealed that purchasers or prospective purchasers of the tabs or chances are unable to ascertain which article of merchandise they are to receive or the price which they are to pay until after the tab is separated from the card. When a purchaser has detached a tab and learned what article of merchandise he is to receive and the price thereof, his name is written on the list opposite the named article of merchandise. Some of said articles of merchandise have purported and represented retail values and regular prices greater than the prices designated for them, but are distributed to the consumer for the price designated on the tab which he pulls. The apparent greater values and regular prices of some of said articles of merchandise, as compared to the price the prospective purchaser will be required to pay in the event he secures one of said articles, induces members of the purchasing public to purchase the tabs or chances in the hope that they will receive articles of merchandise of far greater value than the designated prices to be paid for same. The fact as to whether a purchaser of one of said pull card tabs receives an article which has greater value and a higher regular price than the price designated for same on such tab, which of said articles of merchandise a purchaser is to receive, and the amount of money which a purchaser is required to pay, are determined wholly by lot or chance.

When the person or representative operating the pull card has succeeded in selling all of the tabs or chances, collected the amounts called for, and remitted the said sums to the respondent, said respondent thereupon ships to said representative the merchandise designated on said card, together with a premium for the representative as compensation for operating the pull card and selling the said merchandise. Said operator delivers the merchandise to the purchasers of tabs from said pull card in accordance with the list filled out when the tabs were detached from the pull card.

Respondent sells and distributes and has sold and distributed various assortments of said merchandise and furnishes and has furnished various pull cards for use in the sale and distribution of said merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. Such plan or method varies in detail but the above described plan or method is illustrative of the principle involved.

Par. 3. The persons to whom respondent furnishes and has furnished the said pull cards use and have used the same in purchasing, selling, and distributing respondent's merchandise in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of its merchandise in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said method in the sale of its merchandise and the sales of such merchandise by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said method is a practice of the sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of criminal laws.

Par. 4. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above alleged involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure an article of merchandise at a price much less than the apparent normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell or distribute merchandise in competition with the respondent, as above alleged, are unwilling to adopt and use said method, or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any method which is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by respondent's said method and by the element of chance involved in the sale of such merchandise in the manner above described, and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or an equivalent method. The use of said method by respondent, because of said game of chance, has the capacity and tendency to, and does, unfairly divert trade and custom to respondent from its said competitors who do not use the same or an equivalent method.

Par. 5. In the course and conduct of its business as hereinabove related, respondent causes and has caused various false, deceptive, and misleading statements to appear in its advertising matter as aforesaid, of which the following are examples, but are not all-inclusive:

Gifts for all.
Valuable Surprise Gifts Free.
Big value rewards at no cost to you.
Gifts or cash yours absolutely without cost.
Select your gift—Costs you nothing.
We pay all shipping charges right to your door.

The effect of the foregoing false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations of the respondent in selling and offering for sale such articles of merchandise as hereinabove referred to, is to mislead and deceive a substantial part of the purchasing public in the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia by inducing them to mistakenly believe that respondent gives away certain of its said articles of merchandise without cost to its representatives, and that said respondent prepays all shipping charges on all of its said articles of merchandise.

Par. 6. In truth and in fact, none of respondent's so-called premiums or gifts are given away "free" or "without cost," but said so-called premiums or gifts which are represented as being "free" or "without cost" to said representatives are either purchased with labor by said representatives or the prices thereof are included in the prices of other articles of merchandise which said representatives must sell or procure the sale of before said so-called premiums or gifts can be procured by them. For a number of so-called premiums or gifts certain sums of money must be paid by said representatives in addition to the labor performed or services rendered. Respondent does not pay the shipping charges on all of its said products, but said representatives are required to pay certain specified sums of money as shipping charges on a number of respondent's said articles of merchandise.

Par. 7. The use by respondent of the false, deceptive and misleading statements and representations aforesaid, has had and now has the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive and has misled a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that such statements and representations are true, and into the purchase of substantial quantities of said respondent's products as a result of such erroneous belief. There are, among the competitors of respondent, as mentioned in paragraph 1 hereof, manufacturers and distributors of like and similar products who do not make such false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations concerning their products. By the statements and representations aforesaid, trade is unfairly diverted to respondent from such competitors, and as a result thereof substantial injury is being done, and has been done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on July 21, 1938, issued and thereafter served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, Eastern Premium House, Inc., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by D. C. Daniel, P. C. Kolinski, and L. P. Allen, Jr., attorneys for the Commission (respondent having offered no proof in opposition to the allegations of the complaint), before Randolph Preston, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, brief in support of the complaint (respondent having filed no brief and oral argument having been waived); and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Eastern Premium House, Inc., is a corporation organized and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its principal office and place of business located in New York, N. Y. Respondent is now, and for more than 4 years last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of clocks, watches, dolls, chinaware, aluminum ware, jewelry, cosmetics, cigarette cases and lighters, flashlights, kitchenware, bedding, clothing, tableware, lamps, dresser sets, smoking stands, knives, watches, binoculars, and other articles of merchandise, in commerce between and among the various States of the United States. Respondent causes and has caused said products when sold to be shipped or transported from its place of business aforesaid to purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in the various States of the United States. There is now, and has been for more than 4 years last past, a course of trade by said respondent in such merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States. In the course and conduct of said business, respondent is and has been in competition with other corporations and with individuals and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of similar or like articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

Par. 2. In so conducting its business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent has sold and distributed articles of its said merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. Respondent has distributed and caused to be distributed certain advertising literature, including sales circulars, to representatives and prospective representatives located in the various States of the United States. The plan used in the sale and distribution of respondent’s merchandise to the purchasing public by means of said sales circulars is substantially as follows:

On the last page of said sales circular there appear picturizations of a number of said articles of merchandise and printed matter descriptive thereof. There also appears on said page a list of 22 articles of merchandise and the prices thereof, with space provided for the recording of the name of each purchaser opposite the name of the article of merchandise purchased. Adjacent to said list, there is a device commonly called a “pull card.” Said pull card consists of a number of small tabs, on the reverse side of each of which there appears the name of an article of merchandise and the price thereof. The prices of said articles of merchandise vary in amounts from 9 cents to 39 cents. Each purchaser separates or pulls one of said tabs from said device. The name of the article of merchandise and the price thereof are so concealed that purchasers and prospective purchasers are unable to ascertain which article of merchandise they are to receive or the amount of money which they are to pay until after the tabs are separated or pulled from said card. When a purchaser has separated or pulled a tab from the card and learned what article of merchandise he is to receive, his name is written on the list opposite the named article of merchandise. Some of said articles of merchandise have retail values and regular prices greater than the prices so designated for them, but all of said articles of merchandise are distributed to the customers for the prices designated under the tabs selected and pulled from said card by such customers. Which article of merchandise the purchaser is to receive, and the amount of money he is to pay, are thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

The said 22 articles of merchandise retail for $7.65 and when the person or representative operating one of said pull cards has sold all of said 22 articles of merchandise and collected said amount, he may retain $3 for his services and remit the balance of the $7.65 to respondent, and the respondent will, in turn, send said 22 articles of merchandise to said person or representative, who distributes the same to the individual purchasers thereof; or said person or representative remits the $7.65 to respondent and respondent sends the said 22 articles of merchandise to said person or representative, together with a premium for said person or representative in payment for said services in so selling and distributing said 22 articles of merchandise. Such premiums are illustrated and described in respondent’s said circulars and the person or representative desiring one of such premiums may make his selection from said premiums.

The respondent has distributed by mail a substantial number of said sales circulars to customers and prospective customers located in the various States of the United States and as a result thereof has received and filled a substantial number of orders for said 22 articles of merchandise.

Immediately above the said pull card device there appears the following:

NOTICE TO PURCHASERS—

On the back of each slip is printed the price of an article. If after deliberation you decide that you want to buy the article, pay the holder of this folder the price shown on slip. If you do not want the article you need not buy it.

The Commission finds that regardless of such notice, the said 22 articles of merchandise were, in fact, distributed by means of said sales circulars as hereinabove described.

PAR. 3. The Commission finds that the persons or representatives to whom respondent has furnished or supplied said sales circulars containing said pull cards have used the same in purchasing, selling, and distributing respondent’s said 22 articles of merchandise in accordance with the sales plan or method as described in paragraph 2 hereof. Respondent has thus supplied to and placed in the hands of others a means of selling and distributing said merchandise by means of a game of chance or lottery scheme in accordance with said sales plan. The sale and distribution of said merchandise by respondent by the sales plan as aforesaid is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of criminal laws.

Par. 4. The Commission finds that the sale of said merchandise in the manner described in paragraph 2 hereof constitutes a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure an article of merchandise at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Respondent has competitors who sell and distribute like or similar merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States who are unwilling to and do not use said sales plan or method in the sale of their merchandise, or any other sales plan or method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any sales plan or method which is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Because of said element of chance involved in said sales plan or method employed by respondent as hereinabove described, many persons have been induced to buy and sell respondent’s merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors.

Par. 5. The Commission finds that in so conducting its business as hereinabove described, respondent has caused false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations to appear in its said sales circulars, some of which said statements and representations are as follows:

- Gifts for all.
- Valuable Surprise Gifts Free.
- Big value rewards at no cost to you.
- Gifts or cash yours absolutely without cost.
- Select your gift—Costs you nothing.

The Commission finds that such statements and representations of respondent used in connection with the sale and offering for sale of respondent’s said articles of merchandise, as hereinabove described, are false, deceptive, and misleading, and have a tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive a substantial number of the members of the purchasing public in the various States of the United States and to induce them to mistakenly and erroneously believe that respondent gives away some of its said articles of merchandise without cost to its representatives.
EASTERN PREMIUM HOUSE, INC. 1377

PAR. 6. The Commission finds that in truth and in fact, the respondent does not give away any of its merchandise or premiums without cost to its representatives, but that such representatives must first sell or procure the sale of said 22 articles of merchandise before they are entitled to, and receive, one of said premiums. In connection with some of said premiums the representative must pay certain sums of money in addition to the selling of said 22 articles of merchandise.

PAR. 7. The Commission finds that the use of such false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations by respondent has misled and deceived a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the mistaken and erroneous belief that such statements and representations were true and into the purchase of substantial quantities of respondent's said merchandise as a result thereof. Respondent has competitors as mentioned in paragraph 1 hereof who sell and distribute products like or similar to these sold by respondent, but who do not make such false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations concerning their products.

PAR. 8. As a result of the use of said sales plan or method described in paragraph 2 hereof and the use of said false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations by respondent, as aforesaid, trade is being, and has been, unfairly diverted to respondent from such competitors and substantial injury is being, and has been, done to said competitors by respondent in commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondent, testimony and other evidence taken before Randolph Preston, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint (respondent having offered no proof in opposition thereto), brief filed herein by counsel for the Commission (respondent not having filed brief and oral argument having been waived), and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Eastern Premium House, Inc., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of clocks, watches, dolls, chinaware, aluminum ware, jewelry, cosmetics, cigarette cases and lighters, flashlights, kitchenware, bedding, clothing, tableware, lamps, dresser sets, smoking stands, knives, watches, binoculars, or any other merchandise in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Supplying to or placing in the hands of others push or pull cards, punchboards, or other devices which are to be used or may be used in the sale or distribution of said merchandise to the public by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

2. Shipping, mailing, or transporting to agents or to distributors, or to members of the public push or pull cards, punchboards or other devices which are to be used or may be used in the sale or distribution of said merchandise to the public by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

3. Selling or otherwise disposing of any merchandise by the use of push or pull cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices.

4. Using the terms "free" or "without cost" or any other terms of similar import or meaning to describe or refer to merchandise offered as compensation for distributing respondent's merchandise, unless all of the terms and conditions of such offer are clearly and unequivocally stated in equal conspicuousness and in immediate connection or conjunction with the terms "free" or "without cost" or any other terms of similar import or meaning and there is no deception as to the price, quality, character or any other feature of such merchandise or as to the services to be performed in connection with obtaining such merchandise.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.
IN THE MATTER OF

JOSEPH SALADOFF AND SARA SALADOFF, INDIVIDUALLY, AND TRADING AS NOVELTY PREMIUM COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3505. Complaint, July 21, 1938—Decision, Nov. 18, 1940

Where two individuals engaged as owner and as general manager and sales manager of business in sale of candy, watches, clocks, guns, baby buggies, quilts, aluminum ware, and other articles of merchandise to purchasers in various other States and in the District of Columbia, in competition with others engaged in sale and distribution of like and similar articles of merchandise—

(a) Sold and distributed their said merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme, pursuant to which they distributed and caused to be distributed to representatives, advertising or sales circulars, catalogues, and other advertising literature, and including (1) pull card upon one of such circulars for use in sale and distribution of 22 boxes of candy, ranging from 9 cents to 39 cents, under a plan by which particular box of candy and price to be paid therefor were determined by lot or chance by particular tab of card selected, and (2) other circulars with pull cards involving sales plans similar to that described and varying therefrom in detail only, and under which various plans operator was compensated by choice of remitting merchandise thus sold and receiving premiums selected by him from advertising literature of said individuals, or of deducting from amount thus received, and prior to remission thereof, designated cash premium; and

Supplied thereby to and placed in hands of others means of selling and distributing their said candy through game of chance or lottery scheme, in accordance with sales plan as aforesaid, by persons or representatives to whom they furnished and supplied said pull card devices and who made use thereof by purchasing, selling, and distributing such candy in accordance with such sales plan or method, as above described, involving game of chance or sale of chance to procure box of candy at price much less than usual retail price, and notwithstanding "Notice to Purchasers" on or above said card advising reader that it was his privilege to buy box of chocolates at price therefor printed on back of each slip by paying holder such price, and which notice, when called to attention of purchasers, did not result in refusal to take candy purchased by them in manner above indicated, contrary to an established public policy of the United States Government and in violation of criminal law, and in competition with many who are unwilling to adopt and use said or any other sales plan or method in the sale of their merchandise involving any game of chance or sale of a chance to win something of value by chance, or any sales plan or method contrary to public policy, and refrain therefrom:
Complaint 31 F. T. C.

With result that many persons, because of such element of chance involved in said sales plan or method as employed by such individuals, as above described, were induced to buy and sell their said candy in preference to that offered and sold by their competitors aforesaid, and trade, as result of use of such sales plan or method, was unfairly diverted to them from their competitors aforesaid, to their substantial injury in commerce; and

(b) Made use of such false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations in their said sales circulars and other advertising matter as "Free Gifts For All" and "Beautiful household gifts at absolutely no cost" and "We pay all shipping charges";

Facts being that none of their said articles, advertised as being free or without cost, were thus given away to their said operators or representatives, but said persons, before they received articles or premiums in question, had to sell or procure sale of aforesaid designated boxes of candy and remit amount procured by sale thereof, as above set forth, and, in case of selection of certain of said individuals' so-called premiums, were required to pay designated sum of money therefor, and said individuals did not pay all shipping charges, but operator or representative in certain instances was required to remit extra dollar to cover such charges in case of certain premiums;

With tendency and capacity to deceive and mislead substantial portion of purchasing public into mistaken and erroneous belief that such statements and representations were true and thereby cause public to purchase substantial quantity of their said merchandise as result thereof, and with result, through use of such statements and representations by said individuals, that trade was diverted unfairly to them from their competitors, many of whom, engaged in sale and distribution of candy or merchandise similar to that sold by said individuals, do not use such false, misleading, and deceptive statements and representations in connection with sale and distribution of their products; to their substantial injury in commerce:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce.

Before Mr. Randolph Preston, trial examiner.

Mr. D. C. Daniel, Mr. P. C. Kolinski, and Mr. L. P. Allen, Jr., for the Commission.

Mr. Joseph Keough of Levi, Mandel & Miller, of Philadelphia, Pa., for respondents.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Joseph Salado£ and S. Salado£, individually, and trading as Novelty Premium Co., hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:
Para. 1. Respondents, Joseph Saladof and S. Saladof, are copartners trading under the name of Novelty Premium Co., with their principal office and place of business located at 510 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa. Respondents are now, and for some time last past have been, engaged in the sale and distribution of watches, clocks, guns, bedspreads, chinaware, silverware, dresser sets, cosmetics, baby buggies, quilts, aluminum ware, dolls, candy, and other articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondents cause and have caused said products when sold to be shipped or transported from their place of business aforesaid to purchasers thereof in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, at their respective points of location. There is now, and has been for some time last past, a course of trade by said respondents in such merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business respondents are and have been in competition with other individuals and with partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of candy and novelty merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Para. 2. In the course and conduct of their business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondents sell and distribute and have sold and distributed said candy by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. Respondents advertise in newspapers of general circulation and distribute or cause to be distributed to representatives and prospective representatives certain advertising literature including a sales circular. Respondents' merchandise is distributed to the purchasing public in the following manner:

A portion of said sales circular consists of a list on which there are designated a number of boxes of candy and the prices thereof. Adjacent to the list is printed and set out a device commonly called a pull card. Said pull card consists of a number of tabs, under each of which is concealed the name of a box of candy and the price thereof. The name of the box of candy and the price thereof are so concealed that purchasers or prospective purchasers of the tabs or chances are unable to ascertain which box of candy they are to receive or the price which they are to pay until after the tab is separated from the card. When a purchaser has detached a tab and learned what box of candy he is to receive and the price thereof, his name is written on the list opposite the named box of candy. Some of said boxes of candy have purported and represented retail values and regular prices greater than the prices designated for them, but are distributed to the consumer for the price designated on the tab which he buys. The apparent greater values and regular prices of some of said articles of merchandise as compared to the price the prospective purchase would be required to pay in the event he secures one of said boxes of candy induces the members of the purchasing public to purchase the tabs or chances in the hope that they will receive boxes of candy of far greater values than the designated prices to be paid for same. The facts as to whether a purchaser of one of said pull card tabs receives a box of candy which has greater value and a higher regular price than the price designated for same on such tab, which of said boxes of candy a purchaser is to receive and the amount of money which a purchaser is required to pay are determined wholly by lot or chance.

When the person or representative operating the above card has succeeded in selling all of the tabs or chances, collected the amounts called for and remitted the said sums to the respondents, the said respondents thereupon ship to said representative the boxes of candy designated on said card, together with a premium for the representative as compensation for operating the pull card and selling the said merchandise. Said operator delivers the boxes of candy to the purchasers of tabs from said pull card in accordance with the list filled out when the tabs were detached from the pull card.

Respondents sell and distribute and have sold and distributed various assortments of boxes of candy and furnish and have furnished various pull cards for use in the sale and distribution of such boxes of candy by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. Respondents' sales plan or method varies in detail, but the above described plan or method is illustrative of the principle involved.

Par. 3. The persons to whom respondents furnish and have furnished the said pull cards use and have used the same in purchasing, selling, and distributing respondents' merchandise in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan. Respondents thus supply to and place in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of their candy in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondents of said method in the sale of their candy and the sale of such candy by and through the use thereof, and by the aid of said methods is a practice of the sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States, and in violation of criminal laws.

Par. 4. The sale of candy to the purchasing public in the manner above alleged involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure a box of candy at a price much less than the apparent normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell and distribute candy in competition with the respondents as above alleged are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any other method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any method which is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by respondents' said method and by the element of chance involved in the sale of such candy in the manner above described and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondents' candy in preference to candy offered for sale and sold by competitors of respondents who do not use the same or an equivalent method. The use of said method by respondent, because of said game of chance, has the tendency and capacity to and does unfairly divert trade and custom to respondents from their said competitors who do not use the same or an equivalent method.

Par. 5. In the course and conduct of their business as hereinabove related, respondents cause and have caused various false, deceptive, and misleading statements or representations to appear in their advertising matter as aforesaid, of which the following are examples, but are not all-inclusive:

Free gifts for all.
How to get your free gifts.
Beautiful, useful household gifts at absolutely no cost.
How to get your gifts without cost to you.
Amazingly high values in guaranteed premiums and assorted chocolates, also cash at absolutely no cost.
All shipping charges are paid by us.

The effect of the foregoing false, deceptive, and misleading statements or representations of the respondents in selling and offering for sale such items of merchandise as hereinabove referred to is to mislead and deceive a substantial part of the purchasing public in the several States of the United States and the District of Columbia by inducing them to mistakenly believe that respondents give away certain of their said articles of merchandise without cost to their said representatives; that respondents' so-called premiums and candy are of high grade and superior quality; and that respondents prepaid all charges on all of their said articles of merchandise.

Par. 6. In truth and in fact, none of respondents' so-called premiums or gifts are given away "free" or "without cost," but said so-called premiums or gifts which are represented as being "free" or "without cost" to said representatives are either purchased with labor by them or the prices of said so-called premiums or gifts are included in the prices of other articles of merchandise which representatives must sell or procure the sale of before said so-called premiums or gifts.
can be procured by them. For a number of said so-called premiums or gifts certain sums of money must be paid by said representatives in addition to the labor performed or services rendered. Respondents' so-called premiums and candy are not of a high grade and superior quality, but on the contrary are of a very cheap, low grade, and inferior quality. Respondents do not pay all shipping charges on their said products, but said representatives are required to pay certain specified sums of money as shipping charges on a number of respondents' said articles of merchandise.

PAR. 7. The use by respondents of the false, deceptive, and misleading statements or representations set forth herein has had and now has the tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive, and has misled and deceived a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that such statements or representations are true, and into the purchase of substantial quantities of said respondents' products as a result of such erroneous belief. There are among the competitors of respondents, as mentioned in paragraph 2 hereof, manufacturers and distributors of like and similar products who do not make such false, deceptive, and misleading statements or representations concerning their products. By the statements or representations aforesaid, trade is unfairly diverted to respondents from such competitors and as a result thereof substantial injury is being, and has been, done by respondents to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondents' competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce, within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on the 21st day of July 1938, issued and thereafter served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondents Joseph Saladoff and Sara Saladoff (named in the complaint as Joseph Saladof and S. Saladof), individually, and trading as the Novelty Premium Co., charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondents' answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of the complaint were introduced by D. C. Daniel, P. C.
Findings

Kolinski, and L. P. Allen, Jr., attorneys for the Commission, before Randolph Preston, a trial examiner of the Commission, theretofore duly designated by it. Joseph Keough appeared as counsel for the respondents. Said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter the proceeding came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony in support thereof, and brief in support of the complaint (respondents having filed no brief), and oral argument having been waived, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Par. 1. Respondents Joseph Saladoff and his wife Sara Saladoff (named in the complaint as Joseph Saladoff and S. Saladof), are individuals doing business under the name of the Novelty Premium Co. with their principal place of business located at 510 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa. Said business is owned by respondent Sara Saladoff and is operated and conducted by Joseph Saladoff, who is general manager and sales manager thereof. Respondents are now, and for 10 years last past have been, engaged in the sale of candy, watches, clocks, guns, baby buggies, quilts, aluminum ware, and other articles of merchandise in commerce between and among various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondents cause, and have caused, said products, when sold, to be shipped or transported from their place of business aforesaid to purchasers thereof located in various States of the United States other than the State of Pennsylvania and in the District of Columbia at their respective points of location. There is now, and has been for more than 10 years last past, a course of trade by said respondents in such merchandise in commerce between and among various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In so conducting said business respondents were, and are, in competition with other individuals and with partnerships, firms, and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of like and similar articles of merchandise as those sold by respondents, in commerce between and among various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In so conducting their said business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondents sell and distribute, and have sold and distributed, said merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. Respondents' said business is, and has been, conducted in substantially the following manner: Respondents distribute, and have distributed, and cause, and have caused, to be distributed to representatives advertising or sales circulars, catalogs, and other advertising literature. One of the said circulars has been used in the sale and distribution of articles of said merchandise in substantially the following manner: Upon said circular there is a device commonly known as a pull card. Said pull card contains a number of partially perforated tabs, on the reverse side of each of which there appears the name of the box of candy the purchaser is to receive and the price thereof. The prices of said boxes of candy range from 9 cents to 39 cents each. The total amount collected from the sale of said 22 boxes of candy is $7.67. Each purchaser separates or pulls one of the said tabs from said device. The prices and the names of the boxes of candy are so concealed that the purchasers and prospective purchasers are unable to ascertain which boxes of candy they are to receive or the amounts they are to pay until after said tabs are separated or pulled from said card. After a tab is pulled the name of the purchaser is written in a blank space reserved therefor opposite said device. Many of said boxes of candy have greater retail values than the amounts to be paid therefor. Which of said boxes of candy a purchaser is to receive and the sum of money to be paid by him are thus determined wholly by chance. On another of respondents' said sales circulars the prices of the boxes of candy sold thereby vary from 9 cents to 44 cents, but the sale plan used in connection therewith is the same as the one hereinafore described, varying only in detail.

When the person or representative operating the said card or device has sold all of the said boxes of candy in the manner described and collected the amounts charged therefor, he may either remit the whole amount to respondents who thereupon will ship to him the boxes of candy thus sold together with the premium he has selected from the advertising literature of the respondents as compensation for his services, or said representative may first deduct a designated cash premium as compensation for selling said boxes of candy in lieu of such premium and remit the balance to respondents. Said person or representative, in turn, distributes said boxes of candy to the individual purchasers thereof. The premiums heretofore referred to are illustrated and described in respondents' said circulars or catalogs, and the person or representative desiring such premium may make his selection therefrom.

NOTICE TO PURCHASERS

On the back of each slip is printed the price of a box of chocolates. If after deliberation you decide that you want to buy the box of chocolates pay the holder of this folder the price shown on the slip. If you do not want the box of chocolates you need not buy.

The Commission finds that such notice was not always called to the attention of the purchasers and that when called to their attention none of them refused to take the candy purchased by them in the manner aforesaid on account of said notice.

Par. 3. The Commission finds that the persons or representatives to whom respondents have furnished and supplied said pull card devices have used same in purchasing, selling, and distributing respondents’ candy in accordance with sales plan or method as described in paragraph 2 hereof. Respondents have thus supplied to, and placed in the hands of, other persons a means of selling and distributing said candy by means of a game of chance or lottery scheme in accordance with said sales plan as aforesaid. The use of said sales plan by respondents in the sale and distribution of their merchandise is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal law.

Par. 4. The Commission finds that the sale of said candy in the manner described in paragraph 2 hereof involves a game of chance or sale of chance to procure a box of candy at a price much less than the usual retail price. Respondents have many competitors who sell and distribute like or similar merchandise in commerce between and among various States of the United States and the District of Columbia who are, and have been, unwilling to adopt and use said sales plan or method in the sale of their merchandise or any other sales plan or method involving any game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something of value by chance or any sales plan or method which is contrary to public policy and such competitors refrain therefrom. Because of said element of chance involved in the said sales plan or method as employed by respondents, as hereinbefore described, many persons have been induced to buy and sell respondents’ candy in preference to that offered for sale and sold by respondents’ said competitors.

Par. 5. The Commission finds that in conducting their said business, as hereinabove described, respondents cause, and have caused, various false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations to appear in their said sales circulars and other advertising matter which said statements and representations are in part as follows:

Free gifts for all.
How to get your gifts free.
We pay all shipping charges.
Everything for your home.
Findings 31 F. T. C.

Beautiful household gifts at absolutely no cost.
Amazingly high values in guaranteed premiums and assorted chocolates—also cash—at absolutely no cost.
All shipping charges are paid by us.

By such statements and representations the respondents in offering for sale and selling said articles of merchandise mislead, and have misled, deceive, and have deceived, a substantial number of the members of the purchasing public into the mistaken belief that respondents give away certain of their said articles of merchandise without cost to the operators of said pull cards or devices and, further, that the said respondents pay all shipping charges on all of their said articles of merchandise thus advertised as being free.

Par. 6. The Commission finds that, in truth and in fact, none of the respondent's said articles so advertised as being free or without cost are given away without cost to said operators or representatives but that the said operators or representatives, before they receive such articles of merchandise or premiums, must sell or procure the sale of the aforesaid designated boxes of candy and remit the amount procured by the sale thereof as aforesaid, and in addition thereto persons selecting some of respondents' so-called premiums are also required to pay a designated sum of money therefor. Respondents do not pay all shipping charges, for in certain instances the said operator or representative must remit an extra dollar to cover shipping charges of certain premiums.

Par. 7. The Commission finds that said statements and representations are false, deceptive, and misleading and have, and now have, the tendency and capacity to deceive and mislead a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the mistaken and erroneous belief that said statements and representations are true, and to cause the public thereby to purchase a substantial quantity of respondents' merchandise as the result thereof. There are, and have been, many of respondents' competitors who are, and have been, engaged in the sale and distribution of candy or merchandise similar to that sold by respondents who do not use such false and misleading and deceptive statements and representations in connection with the sale and distribution of their products.

Par. 8. As a result of the use of said sales plan or method herein-before described, and of said statements and representations made by respondents, trade is being, and has been, unfairly diverted to respondents from their said competitors and substantial injury is being, and has been, done to said competitors by respondents in commerce between and among various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.
CONCLUSION

The acts and practices of the respondents, as hereinabove found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondents, testimony, and other evidence taken before Randolph Preston, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint (respondents having offered no proof in opposition thereto), brief filed herein by counsel for the Commission (respondents not having filed brief and oral argument having been waived), and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondents Joseph Saladoff and Sara Saladoff, individually and trading as Novelty Premium Co., or trading under any other name or names, their representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of candy, watches, clocks, guns, baby buggies, quilts, aluminum ware, or any other articles of merchandise in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Supplying to or placing in the hands of others push or pull cards, punchboards or other devices which are to be used, or may be used, in the sale and distribution of said merchandise to the public by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme;

2. AVERY SALT COMPANY

MODIFIED CEASE AND DESIST ORDER

Docket 2248. Order, Nov. 19, 1940

Modified order, pursuant to provisions of section 5 (1) of Federal Trade Commission Act, in proceeding in question, in which prior order of October 17, 1939, 29 F. T. MODIFIED ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding coming on for further hearing before the Federal Trade Commission and it appearing that on November 28, 1936, the Commission made its findings as to the facts herein and concluded therefrom that respondent had violated the provisions of Section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act and on October 17, 1939, issued and subsequently served its order to cease and desist; and it further appearing that on March 23, 1940, the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit rendered its decree modifying the aforesaid order of the Commission in certain particulars and affirming said order in other particulars and directed the Commission to modify its said order to cease and desist in accordance with said decree.

Using the word "smoke," or any other word or words signifying smoke, or implying use of smoke, to designate or describe salt offered for sale, or sold, for curing, preserving, smoking, or flavoring meats, unless the salt so described or designated has been or is directly subjected to the action and effect of the smoke from burning wood during the process and course of its combustion sufficiently to acquire from such source alone all of its smoke or smoke effects for use in curing, preserving, smoking, or flavoring meats; provided that nothing in this order shall prohibit the respondent from using the terms "condensed smoke" or "liquid smoke" in enumerating or stating the ingredients of such salt when there has been added thereto a refined concentrate resulting from the destructive distillation of wood, and where the application of such product is in sufficient quantity to impart to such salt the flavor of smoke;

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 30 days after service upon it of this modified order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with the order.
Where a corporation engaged in manufacture, offer and sale of various articles of cutlery to purchasers in various other States and in the District of Columbia—

Labeled, marked, and designated as "Case Scout" one of its aforesaid products, notwithstanding fact knife in question was not one of those long made or distributed under supervision of the Boy Scouts of America, nor approved, indorsed or sponsored by that organization, and uniformly referred to as "Scout Knife" and marked in some form or manner with words "Scout" or "Boy Scout," with or without other marks and insignia identifying it as a part of the standard equipment of the Boy Scouts of America, and as such, uniformly referred to by use of such words as "Boy Scout," "Scout" and "Scouting," and thus long understood as identifying and referring to such equipment and activities of organization in question;

With capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive purchasing public into belief that its said knife had been approved, indorsed or sponsored by said organization and was a part of the standard equipment thereof, for the purchase of which, as products sponsored or approved by such organization, there is a marked preference on the part of substantial portion of purchasing public, over products which are not thus sponsored or approved, and with tendency and capacity to cause said public, as result of such belief, to purchase substantial quantities of its said product:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Mr. Joseph C. Fehr, for the Commission.

Nash & Mutzabaugh, of Bradford, Pa., for respondent.

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that W. R. Case & Sons Cutlery Co., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:
Paragraph 1. Respondent, W. R. Case & Sons Cutlery Co., is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, with its principal office and place of business located in the city of Bradford, in the State of Pennsylvania.

Par. 2. Respondent is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, engaged in manufacturing, offering for sale, and selling various articles of cutlery, among other things, a pocket knife designated and marked as a "case scout" knife. Respondent causes its said products, when sold to be transported from its place of business in the State of Pennsylvania to the purchasers thereof located in States of the United States other than the State of Pennsylvania and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 3. In 1910 an organization known as the Boy Scouts of America was incorporated under the laws governing the District of Columbia, and later was reincorporated by special Act of Congress. Its purpose was, in general, to organize the boys of the United States and teach them discipline, patriotism, courage, habits of observation, self-control, and ability to care for themselves in all exigencies of life.

In furtherance of this purpose and both to attract the boys of the Nation to the movement and to insure safe, adequate, and adaptable equipment, the organization adopted, and has since maintained, the policy of devising and planning a great many articles of equipment and supervising their manufacture and distribution through licensing and otherwise authorizing those with whom it would enter into arrangements for such manufacture and distribution.

From the beginning the equipment so approved and sponsored has been designated and marked, and the activities of the boy members of the organization have been uniformly referred to, by use of the words "Boy Scouts," "Scout," and "Scouting," so that these words have long ago acquired a secondary meaning as referring to the equipment and activities of the Boy Scouts of America.

Among the articles of equipment so devised and whose production and distribution is so supervised is a pocket knife of a design and of material and workmanship suitable for the outdoor activities of the boy members of the organization. This knife has been uniformly referred to as a "Scout Knife," has been marked in some form or manner with the words "Scout" or "Boy Scout," with or without other marks and insignia identifying it as a part of the standard equipment of the Boy Scouts of America.
Par. 4. The knife manufactured and sold by respondent, as alleged and described in paragraph 2 hereof, has been and is of such general design and appearance as, when marked or labeled by the use of the words “CASE scout” or “Boy Scout” or any other marks or insignia characteristic of, or identifying it with, the Boy Scouts of America, would have, has had and has, the capacity and tendency to induce the purchasing public to believe that respondent’s said knife has been and is approved, endorsed or sponsored by the Boy Scouts of America and is a part of the standard equipment of that organization; and to cause, and has caused, a substantial part of the public to purchase respondent’s said knife because of such belief.

Par. 5. In truth and in fact, respondent’s said knife has not been and is not manufactured or distributed under the supervision of the Boy Scouts of America, has not been and is not approved, endorsed or sponsored by that organization, nor is it a part of its standard equipment.

Par. 6. There is a marked preference on the part of a substantial portion of the purchasing public for products which are sponsored or approved by the Boy Scouts of America over products which are not so sponsored or approved.

Par. 7. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and inquiry of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on the 26th day of April 1940, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, W. R. Case & Sons Cutlery Co., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On May 18, 1940, the respondent filed its answer in this proceeding. Thereafter, a stipulation was entered into whereby it was stipulated and agreed that a statement of facts signed and executed for the respondent by its counsel, F. M. Nash, and by W. T. Kelley, chief counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, subject to the approval of the Commission, may be taken as to the facts in this proceeding and in lieu of testimony in support of the charges stated in the complaint, or in opposition thereto, and that the said Commission may proceed upon said statement of facts to make its report, stating its findings as to the facts and its conclusion based thereon and enter its order disposing of the proceeding without the presentation of argument or the filing of briefs. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, answer and stipulation, such stipulation having been approved, accepted, and filed, and the Commission having duly considered the same and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent, W. R. Case & Sons Cutlery Co., is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, with its principal office and place of business located in the city of Bradford, in the State of Pennsylvania.

Paragraph 2. Respondent is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, engaged in manufacturing, offering for sale, and selling various articles of cutlery, including, among other things, a pocket knife designated and marked as a "Case Scout" knife. Respondent causes its said products, when sold, to be transported from its place of business in the State of Pennsylvania to the purchasers thereof located in States of the United States other than the State of Pennsylvania and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 3. In 1910 an organization known as the Boy Scouts of America was incorporated under the laws governing the District of Columbia, and later was reincorporated by special act of Congress. Its purpose was in general, to organize the boys of the United States and teach them discipline, patriotism, courage, habits of observation, self-control, and ability to care for themselves in all exigencies of life.

In furtherance of this purpose and both to attract the boys of the Nation to the movement and to insure safe, adequate, and adaptable equipment, the organization adopted, and has since maintained, the policy of devising and planning a great many articles of equipment and supervising their manufacture and distribution through licensing and otherwise authorizing those with whom it would enter into arrangements for such manufacture and distribution.

From the beginning the equipment so approved and sponsored has been designated and marked, and the activities of the boy members of the organization have been uniformly referred to, by use of the words "Boy Scout," "Scout," and "Scouting," so that these words have long ago acquired a secondary meaning as referring to the equipment and activities of the Boy Scouts of America.
Order

Among the articles of equipment so devised and whose production and distribution is so supervised is a pocket knife of a design and of material and workmanship suitable for the outdoor activities of the boy members of the organization. This knife has been uniformly referred to as a "Scout Knife," has been marked in some form or manner with the words "Scout" or "Boy Scout," with or without other marks and insignia identifying it as a part of the standard equipment of the Boy Scouts of America.

Par. 4. The knife manufactured and sold by respondent, described in paragraph 2 hereof, and marked or labeled by the use of the words "case scout," has not been so designated since on or about January 1, 1940. Although heretofore not aware of it, respondent now admits, and the Commission finds, that the labeling, marking, and designating of said knife by the use of the words "case scout" has had the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive the purchasing public into the belief that such knife has been and is approved, endorsed, or sponsored by the Boy Scouts of America and is a part of the standard equipment of that organization. The Commission further finds that such practice on the part of respondent has the tendency and capacity to cause the purchasing public to purchase substantial quantities of respondent's product as a result of such belief.

Par. 5. In truth and in fact, respondent's said knife has not been and is not manufactured or distributed under the supervision of the Boy Scouts of America, has not been and is not approved, endorsed or sponsored by that organization, nor is it a part of its standard equipment.

Par. 6. There is a marked preference on the part of a substantial portion of the purchasing public for products which are sponsored or approved by the Boy Scouts of America over products which are not so sponsored or approved.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondent, and a stipulation as to the facts entered into by the respondent herein and W. T. Kelley, chief counsel for the Commission, which provides, among other things that without further evidence or other intervening procedure, the Commission may issue and serve upon the respondent herein findings as to the facts and conclusion based thereon and an order disposing of the proceeding, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, W. R. Case & Sons Cutlery Co., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of knives in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

Using the words "case scout" or "scout" or any other word or words of similar import or meaning, to designate, describe, or refer to respondent's knives, or otherwise representing that said knives are sponsored, endorsed, or approved by the organization known as the Boy Scouts of America, or that said knives form a part of the equipment of the members of said organization.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that I. Ralph Weinstock, an individual, trading as Thyrole Products Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, I. Ralph Weinstock, is an individual trading as Thyrole Products Co., with his office and principal place of business at Thirty-fourth and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia, Pa., from which address he transacts business under the above trade name.

Paragraph 2. The respondent is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of a certain medicinal preparation, designated as O. B. C. Reducing Capsules, otherwise known as O. B. C. Capsules. In the course and conduct of his business the respondent causes said medicinal preparation when sold to be transported from his place of business in the State of Pennsylvania to purchasers thereof located in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

At all times mentioned herein, respondent has maintained a course of trade in said medicinal preparation sold and distributed by him in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Paragraph 3. In the course and conduct of his aforesaid business, the respondent has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning his said product by the United States mails and by various other means in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of said product; and respondent has also disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning his said product, by various means, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of his said product in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act. Among and typical of, the false, misleading and deceptive statements and representations contained in said false advertisements, disseminated and caused to be disseminated, as hereinabove set forth, by United States mails and by advertisements in newspapers, and by circulars, leaflets, pamphlets and other advertising literature, are the following:

DON'T BE FAT

Get rid of excess weight without strict diet or strenuous exercise. If you are overweight due to glandular deficiency, but normally healthy otherwise, you may be reasonably sure of satisfactory results by taking O. B. C. Capsules.

O. B. C. REDUCING CAPSULES

Slenderize this modern easy way without strict diet or exercise. Thousands of grateful users everywhere since 1923.

O. B. C. REDUCING CAPSULES

O. B. C. Capsules promote the combustion of fats, thereby reduce the weight of the body. They are mildly laxative and are taken one before each meal. In this manner gradual and appreciable loss is acquired. The action of O. B. C. can be accelerated by the user eating sparingly of the following foods: Bread, potatoes, milk, butter and sweets. However, this step in diet is not strictly necessary and is recommended for only those persons who are very much overweight. It is the purpose of O. B. C. Capsules to reduce gradually. Gradual reduction as produced by O. B. C. restores vim, vigor, mental alertness and efficiency. Sudden reduction due to extreme diet and exercise is disastrous, causing loss of vitality and weakness. O. B. C. Capsules owe their ever increasing popularity and recommendation to mildness and efficiency of action. They should be taken for six to twelve weeks for best results.

PAR. 4. By the use of the representations hereinabove set forth and other representations similar thereto not specifically set out herein, the respondent represents that his medicinal preparation, designated as O. B. C. Reducing Capsules, otherwise known as O. B. C. Capsules, is a cure or remedy for obesity, and a safe, competent, and effective treatment therefor.

PAR. 5. The foregoing representations are grossly exaggerated, false, and misleading. In truth and in fact, the medicinal preparation sold and distributed by the respondent as aforesaid, designated as O. B. C. Reducing Capsules, otherwise known as O. B. C. Capsules, is not a cure or remedy for obesity and does not constitute a competent or effective treatment therefor. Moreover, said preparation is not safe, in that said preparation contains powdered strychnine alkaloid, powdered extract belladonna, aloin, phenolphthalein, and thyroid, U. S. P.
The aforesaid drugs are present in the said medicinal preparation in quantities sufficient to cause serious and irreparable injury to health if used under the conditions as prescribed in said advertisements or under such conditions as are customary or usual.

Such use of said medicinal preparation may produce headaches, muscular and articular pains, nausea, vomiting, vertigo, insomnia, physical exhaustion, tremor, and tachycardia. The use of said preparation, as aforesaid, may also result in thyroid toxicosis, permanent injury to tissues, organic functions, and the entire body mechanism and irreparable injury to the heart muscle with auricular fibrillation.

In addition to the representations hereinabove set forth, the respondent has also engaged in the dissemination of false advertisements in the manner above set forth in that said advertisements so disseminated fail to reveal that the use of O. B. C. Reducing Capsules, otherwise known as O. B. C. Capsules, under the conditions prescribed in said advertisements or under such conditions as are customary or usual may result in serious and irreparable injury to health.

PAR. 6. The use by the respondent of the foregoing false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations with respect to his preparation, disseminated as aforesaid, has had and now has, the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such statements, representations, and advertisements are true and induces a portion of the purchasing public, because of such erroneous and mistaken belief, to purchase respondent's medicinal preparation.

PAR. 7. The foregoing acts and practices of the respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on June 13, 1940, issued and on June 15, 1940, served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, I. Ralph Weinstock, an individual, trading as Thyrole Products Co., charging him with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On October 29, 1940, the respondent filed his answer, in which answer he admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and the answer thereto, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter, and being fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

O. B. C. REDUCING CAPSULES

O. B. C. REDUCING CAPSULES

O. B. C. Capsules promote the combustion of fats, thereby reduce the weight of the body. They are mildly laxative and are taken one before each meal. In this manner gradual and appreciable loss is acquired. The action of O. B. C. can be accelerated by the user eating sparingly of the following foods: Bread, potatoes, milk, butter and sweets. However, this step in diet is not strictly necessary and is recommended for only those persons who are very much overweight. It is the purpose of O. B. C. Capsules to reduce gradually. Gradual reduction as produced by O. B. C. restores vim, vigor, mental alertness and efficiency. Sudden reduction due to extreme diet and exercise is disastrous, causing loss of vitality and weakness. Such use of said medicinal preparation may produce headaches, muscular and articular pains, nausea, vomiting, vertigo, insomnia, physical exhaustion, tremor, and tachycardia. The use of said preparation, as aforesaid, may also result in thyroid toxicosis, permanent injury to tissues, organic functions, and the entire body mechanism and irreparable injury to the heart muscle with auricular fibrillation.

In addition to the representations hereinabove set forth, the respondent has also engaged in the dissemination of false advertisements... in the manner above set forth in that said advertisements so disseminated fail to reveal that the use of O. B. C. Reducing Capsules, otherwise known as O. B. C. Capsules, under the conditions prescribed in said advertisements or under such conditions as are customary or usual may result in serious and irreparable injury to health.

Par. 6. The use by the respondent of the foregoing false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations with respect to his preparation, disseminated as aforesaid, has had and now has, the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such statements, representations, and advertisements are true and induces a portion of the purchasing public, because of such erroneous and mistaken belief, to purchase respondent's medicinal preparation.

1. Disseminating or causing to be disseminated any advertisement (a) by means of the United States mails or (b) by any means in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, which advertisement represents, directly or through inference, that said medicinal preparation is a cure or remedy or a competent or effective treatment for obesity; that said preparation is safe; or which advertisement fails to reveal that the use of said preparation may cause permanent injury to the heart, thyroid gland, and other vital organs.

2. Disseminating or causing to be disseminated any advertisement by any means for the purpose of inducing or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, of said preparation, which advertisement contains any of the representations prohibited in paragraph 1 hereof, or which fails to reveal that the use of said preparation may cause permanent injury to the heart, thyroid gland, and other vital organs.

IN THE MATTER OF

HOME DIATHERMY COMPANY, INC.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3653. Complaint, Nov. 23, 1938—Decision, Nov. 20, 1940

Where a corporation engaged in sale and distribution of its "Home Diathermy" device for treatment of various diseases, ailments and afflictions, to purchasers in various other States and in the District of Columbia, in substantial competition with others engaged in manufacture, sale, and distribution in commerce among the various States and in said District of similar devices and other products intended for similar usage and treatment of various diseases and conditions for which it recommended its said device; in advertisements thereof which it disseminated and caused to be disseminated through the mails, and in circulars, pamphlets, and other printed or written matter distributed in commerce among the various States and in said District, and through radio broadcasts of extra-State audience, and by other means in commerce and otherwise, and which were intended and likely to induce purchase thereof, and in which it made statements purporting to be descriptive of its said product and effectiveness thereof in safely treating and curing many of the diseases, ailments, afflictions, and disordered conditions of the body and cause of such conditions—

(a) Represented that use of said device, in and of itself, had substantial therapeutic value in treatment of, and constituted a competent and adequate cure or remedy for, arthritis, neuritis, bursitis, sciatica, neuralgia, lumbago, hay fever, asthma, high and low blood pressure, rheumatism, and many other diseases, ailments, afflictions, and disordered conditions, and that use thereof would alleviate most discouraging, painful, and chronic conditions caused by ailments referred to, and increased oxidation, elimination of waste and toxic poisons, and nutrition, and that a person suffering from any of such ailments and conditions might be restored to health and vigor by such use alone, and that said device constituted up-to-date method which alleviated such diseases, ailments, afflictions, and disordered conditions of the body without employment of any other means of treatment;

Facts being that use of its said device, whether of long wave type or of short wave type, more recently sold by it exclusively except on special orders for other, does not constitute a cure or remedy for arthritis, neuritis, bursitis, sciatica, neuralgia, lumbago, hay fever, asthma, high or low blood pressure, or rheumatism, nor have any therapeutic value in the treatment of any of said ailments or of any other disease or condition where acute inflammation, infection, pus formation, arteriosclerosis or conditions in which there is a tendency to hemmorhage, are present; and

(b) Represented that the method of using said device was so simple that it might be used safely in the home by persons without knowledge and training with respect to the diagnosis, analysis, and treatment of diseases, ailments, afflictions, and disordered conditions of the body, and with respect to the technique and methods of the application of diathermy;
Facts being development of diathermy, discovered in 1891, has been conservative in many respects and as to many effects, and, while generally used as an aid in the treatment of many diseases, when used by those with technical and medical training, it is still subject of considerable research work, acute pains may be symptoms of several diseases, and before such device may be safely or effectively used there must be a competent diagnosis determining the nature of the ailment, analysis to determine the stage of the disease, and knowledge whether diathermy is indicated in that ailment or at that stage, person not skilled in application thereof and without ability to diagnose disease or condition existing cannot safely apply different sizes of electrodes on different sized individuals by virtue of danger of electro surgery and burning of the tissues, among other things and even after competent diagnosis and analysis and where there is accurate knowledge of the favorable results which ordinarily follow application of a definite amount of heat, use of said device is dangerous unless user has also proper technique and thorough knowledge of methods of application, and use thereof, if technique is not good, may cause burns or be otherwise detrimental to patient, and it is impracticable and dangerous to apply heat by means of device in question in treatment of any disease or ailment unless, as aforesaid indicated, user is skilled in diagnosis, analysis and methods of treatment of disease, and unsupervised use of device in question in the home, by reason of such use in situations where contra-indicated, or by manner of such use in other cases, or otherwise, may result in serious and irreparable injury to health and even prove fatal;

With effect of misleading and deceiving substantial portion of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that such false, deceptive, and misleading statements, representations, and advertisements were true, and of causing substantial portion of such public, because of such erroneous and mistaken belief, to purchase its device in preference to devices, remedies and preparations of competitors, designed and offered for same or similar purposes, and of diverting trade to it unfairly from competitors likewise engaged in sale and distribution of such products in commerce, and who truthfully advertise the effectiveness and therapeutic value of their respective preparations:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

Before Mr. John P. Bramhall and Mr. Arthur F. Thomas, trial examiners.

Mr. R. A. McOuat, for the Commission.

Mr. Saul L. Harris, of Brooklyn, N. Y., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that the Home Diathermy Co., Inc., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as the respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. The respondent, Home Diathermy Co., Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, and having its office and principal place of business at 1776 Broadway, in the city of New York, State of New York. The respondent is now and has been for more than 2 years last past engaged in the business of selling and distributing a device designated as "Home Diathermy," which is attached to the human body for the purpose of applying heat to afflicted parts thereof.
Respondent sells said device to members of the purchasing public situated in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia and causes the said device, when sold by it, to be transported from its aforesaid place of business in the State of New York to the purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in various States in the United States other than the State of New York and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said device in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. Respondent is now, and at all times mentioned herein has been, in substantial competition with other corporations and with individuals, firms, and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of similar products or other products designed and intended for similar usages in the treatment of various diseases and ill conditions of the human body in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Among the competitors of the respondent in said commerce are many who truthfully advertise the efficacy of their products in treating diseases and ails-ments of the human body.

Par. 3. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business and for the purpose of inducing, directly or indirectly, the purchase of said device, respondent has disseminated and caused to be disseminated false advertisements by the United States mails, by the use of circulars, folders, and other advertising matter disseminated in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and also by use of radio continuities broadcast from radio stations which have power to, and do, convey the programs emanating therefrom to the listeners thereto located in various States of the United States other than the State from which said broadcast originates and in the District of Columbia. Respondent has also disseminated other false advertisements for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia of said device. Among and typical of the representations thus made by the respondent are the following:

It is no longer necessary to continue living a life of pain and agony. When with a Home Diathermy one can have lasting relief, relaxation and peace. By means of Diathermy, a modern scientific discovery, YOU can make your life enjoyable.

What is Diathermy and how does it work? Diathermy is one of the miracles of modern science. The secret is heat. That is what diathermy means, heating through. By means of a gently electric current, diathermy produces a penetrating heat deep down in the blood stream, just as nature does. This equalizes and stimulates the circulation of the blood and lymph, flushing away the waste and toxic poisons that are the direct cause of their pain and agony. The faster the blood moves through the system, so fast are the poisons carried away. Almost immediately after the heat begins to penetrate, the sufferer feels that soothing, healing action deep in the joints, muscles, and tissues. The instant action is so great and wonderful the sufferers say it is miraculous!

It is so easy to apply the diathermy electrodes to any part of the body and to localize the beneficial effects on any organ or set of muscles. The Home Diathermy has been used successfully by sufferers of asthma, hay fever, arthritis, neuritis, bursitis, lumbago, neuralgia, pneumonia, sciatica, bronchitis, rheumatism, and high or low blood pressure.

The role of Diathermy in the field of thermo-electro-therapy is self-evident. By no other means can one penetrate deeper than the skin of mucous membrane; by means of diathermy alone, is it possible to heat internal organs at any depth; to any degree desired.

And this can be done right in your own home—by you, as easily as you can turn on your radio.

Through the use of the statements and representations hereinabove set forth, and others similar thereto not herein set out and picturizations appearing in respondent's advertising, all of which purport to be descriptive of respondent's device and its effectiveness in the treatment of ailments and conditions of the human body and the cause of such ailments and conditions, respondent has represented, directly and by implication, among other things, that the use of such device is a competent and adequate cure or remedy for and has substantial therapeutic value in the treatment of arthritis, neuritis, bursitis, sciatica, neuralgia, lumbago, hay fever, asthma, high and low blood pressure, and rheumatism; that the use of such device will thoroughly alleviate the most discouraging, painful and chronic conditions caused by the aforesaid ailments; that the use of such device dilates the blood vessels, stimulates the blood supply, increases oxidation, increases the elimination of waste and toxic poisons, increases nutrition; that a person suffering from any of the aforesaid ailments and conditions may be restored to health and vigor by the use of such device; and that such device is an up-to-date method which definitely and miraculously alleviates the aforesaid ailments and conditions of the human body.

PAR. 4. The aforesaid representations, used and disseminated by the respondent in the manner above described, are grossly exaggerated, misleading, and untrue and constitute false advertisements, and induce, or are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of respondent's device. The use of such device is not a competent and adequate cure or remedy for, nor does it have substantial therapeutic value in the treatment of, arthritis, neuritis, bursitis, sciatica, neuralgia, lumbago, hay fever, asthma, high and low blood pressure, and rheumatism; the use of such device will not thoroughly alleviate the most discouraging, painful, and chronic conditions caused by the aforesaid ailments of the human body. The use of such device does not dilate or stimulate blood vessels. The use of such device does not stimulate the blood supply and increase oxidation. The use of such device does not eliminate waste and toxic poisons and increase nutrition. A person suffering from the aforesaid ailments and conditions of the human body will not be restored to health and vigor by the use of such device. The therapeutic value of the use of such device is limited to provide temporary relief from certain of the symptoms of distress of some of the aforesaid ailments and conditions of the human body in some cases. In truth and in fact, the use of any diathermy apparatus requires a competent diagnosis and a highly developed technique and a thorough knowledge of the methods of application. The use of respondent's device in the home is impracticable and may be dangerous to persons using such device without the services of persons skilled in the application of electrical currents to the human body.

PAR. 5. The use by respondent of the foregoing false, deceptive, and misleading statements, representations, and advertisements, disseminated as aforesaid, with respect to said device, has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead, and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such false statements, representations, and advertisements are true and that respondent's device will accomplish the results indicated, and causes a substantial portion of the purchasing public, because of said erroneous and mistaken belief, to purchase a substantial number of respondent's devices. As a result, trade has been diverted unfairly to respondent from its competitors in said commerce who truthfully advertise the effectiveness in use of their respective products. In consequence thereof injury has been, and is now being, done by respondent to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 6. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on November 23, 1938, issued, and on November 25, 1938, served, its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, Home Diathermy Co., Inc., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by R. A. McOuat, attorney for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by Saul L. Harris, attorney for the respondent, before John P. Bramhall and Arthur F. Thomas, examiners of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded in the office of the Commission. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto and the oral arguments of counsel aforesaid; and the Commission having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent Home Diathermy Co., Inc., is now and has been at all times herein mentioned a corporation organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York and having its principal place of business at 1780 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

Respondent is now, and for several years last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of a device under the name of "Home Diathermy" recommended by respondent for use in the treatment of various diseases, afflictions, ailments, and disordered conditions of the human body, in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent sells said device to members of the purchasing public situated in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and causes said device, when sold by it, to be transported from its place of business in the State of New York to the purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade, in said device, in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its business as aforesaid, respondent is now and at all times mentioned in the complaint has been in substantial competition with other corporations and with individuals, firms, and partnerships engaged in the manufacture, sale, and distribution in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia of similar devices, and other products, intended for similar usage in the treatment of various diseases and conditions of the human body for which respondent recommends its said device.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business, and for the purpose of inducing, directly or indirectly, the purchase of its said device, respondent has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning its said device by the United States mails, and in circulars, pamphlets, and other printed or written matter, all of which are distributed in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia and by the use of radio continuities broadcast from radio stations in the State of New York, which have power to, and do, convey the programs emanating therefrom to listeners thereto located in the various States of the United States other than the State of New York, and by other means in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, for the purpose of inducing and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of its said device; and has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of false advertisements concerning its said device by various means, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of its said device in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Among and typical of the statements made in said false advertisements, disseminated and caused to be disseminated as aforesaid, with reference to the device sold under the name "Home Diathermy" are the following:

It is no longer necessary to continue living a life of pain and agony. When with a Home Diathermy one can have lasting relief, relaxation and peace. By means of Diathermy, a modern scientific discovery, you can make your life enjoyable.

By means of a gentle electric current, diathermy produces a penetrating heat deep down in the blood stream, just as nature does. This equalizes and stimulates the circulation of the blood and lymph, flushing away the waste and toxic poisons that are the direct cause of their pain and agony. The faster the blood moves through the system, so fast are the poisons carried away. Almost immediately after the heat begins to penetrate, the sufferer feels that soothing, healing action deep in the joints, muscles, and tissues. The instant action is so great and wonderful the sufferers say it is miraculous!

It is so easy to apply the diathermy electrodes to any part of the body and to localize the beneficial effects on any organ or set of muscles. The Home Diathermy has been used successfully by sufferers of asthma, hay fever, arthritis, neuritis, bursitis, lumbago, neuralgia, pneumonia, sciatica, bronchitis, rheumatism, and high or low blood pressure.

And this can be done right in your own home—by you, as easily as you can turn on your radio.

Diathermy has proven to be the most successful in eliminating the stubborn pain and agony of arthritis, high or low blood pressure, sciatica, lumbago, rheumatism, neuritis or asthma. Be logical, do what countless other sufferers did when they heard of Home Diathermy. * * * Do a good deed to your friends and relatives or anyone that you know that is suffering and tell them about this marvelous modern scientific discovery that ends pain without pills, powders or medicines.

As I stand before you telling you these things I can see many, many homes where Home Diathermy has come in and converted a home of pain and agony into a home of health, happiness and laughter. Where Home Diathermy has changed ailing mothers and bedridden fathers—yes, and even sons and daughters into active, joyous, healthy men and women.

Be modern. Why be one of the incurables? Let the Home Diathermy Company show you the right way. * * * And by the way, Diathermy is also effectively used for high and low blood pressure.

And with Home Diathermy you can positively alleviate arthritis, or rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, neuritis, or bursitis.

With the wonderful new Home Short Wave Diathermy, you can alleviate these painful conditions yourself by applying two rubber pads that are so made that they can throw a very deep internal heat into those sore and aching parts in your afflicted body.

Some application and technique. The new features of this Home Short Wave Diathermy is that it is compact and portable and meets the usual requirements in a most simple and easy manner, making it possible for any one to take these treatments on any part of the body that is afflicted by placing the rubber pads above and below the part to be treated. Especially designed for the practical and convenient use in the home. It is adaptable to home use. The remarkable simplicity of operation and the automatic timing device, gives real efficiency. All one need to do is set the time clock and adjust the dial with the heat controlled to a degree of heat that is comfortable. If you are suffering from painful conditions in your tissues, nerves, muscles or joints on any part of the body, as shown in the enclosed photographs use the simplified Home Short Wave Diathermy.

(There are several picturizations of applications of the device to various parts of the body inserted between the last and next quotations from respondent’s advertisement.

Instructively Displayed—
The purpose of these enlarged photographs is for your convenience to show you how simple it is to take these treatments through your wearing apparel or undergarments. When taking a Short Wave, a cloth is applied on the bare skin first, then rubber electrodes are applied. This cloth acts as a spacer.

Instructions—
To take a treatment properly with Short Wave on any particular part of the body, be sure that any metal that is on that particular part of the body is removed. Then place a cloth which will act as a spacer on the bare skin before applying the electrodes. This above method has a two-fold purpose. One is that spacing is necessary. In other words, there must be clothing between the body and the rubber pads. The other is to show how simple it is to apply these rubber pads directly through the clothing, avoiding the necessity of disrobing.

Method—
This method is so simple that it can be used by anyone.

Increases oxidation. Increases elimination of waste and toxic poisons. Increases nutrition.

All of said statements, together with many similar statements appearing in said advertisements disseminated as aforesaid, purport to be descriptive of respondent’s device and its effectiveness in safely treating and curing many of the diseases, ailments, afflictions, and disordered conditions of the human body and the cause of such conditions. In its advertisements, respondent represents through the statements herein set out, and other statements of similar import and effect, that the use of such device, in and of itself, has substantial therapeutic value in the treatment of, and is a competent and adequate cure or remedy for, arthritis, neuritis, bursitis, sciatica, neuralgia, lumbago, hay fever, asthma, high and low blood pressure, rheumatism, and many other diseases, ailments, afflictions, and disordered conditions in the human body; that the method of using such device is so simple that it may be used safely in the home, by persons without knowledge and training with respect to the diagnosis, analysis, and treatment of diseases, ailments, afflictions, and disordered conditions of the human body, and with respect to the technique and methods of the application of diathermy; that the use of such device will alleviate the most discouraging, painful, and chronic conditions caused by said ailments; that the use of said device increases oxidations, increases the elimination of waste and toxic poisons, and increased nutrition; that a person suffering from any of the aforesaid ailments and conditions may be restored to health and vigor by the use of the device alone; and that such device is an up-to-date method which alleviates the aforesaid diseases, ailments, afflictions, and disordered conditions of the human body without employment of any other means of treatment.

Par. 4. The aforesaid statements and representations made by the respondent are false, deceptive, and misleading.

The purpose in diathermy is to relieve certain maladies and certain stages of other maladies known to be benefited by introduction of heat into, or the creation of heat in, the tissues. Respondent's device is designed and intended for that purpose and it is capable of introducing heat into the tissues.

Although diathermy was discovered in 1891, development of its use has been conservative and in many respects and as to many effects, considerable research work is still being done. It has been generally used as an aid in the treatment of many diseases when used by those with technical and medical training.

There are two types of diathermy machines or devices—long wave and short wave. In 1935, respondent began the sale and distribution of a long wave type diathermy machine but since 1937 respondent has sold the short wave type exclusively with the exception of a few long wave machines made to order. In both types, the electric current is oscillated and frequent reversal of polarity occurs. The resistance to change of polarity has the effect of transmitting heat to the body without the shock which ordinarily accompanies an uninterrupted electrical current. In the long wave type the current changes its positive and negative status at approximately 1 million times per second. In the short wave type a reversal of polarity occurs 21 million times per second. With the use of this high frequency, short wave device, the electrical contact does not have to be made with the body as in the case of the long wave machines, since heat can be produced in the tissues without the necessity of making such contact. The size of the electrode makes a difference in the amount of the heat transmitted to the user. The size of the person using the device and the size of the part contacting the electrode also make a difference in the amount of heat transmitted. In the treatment of disease by heat applications it is essential to know how much heat should be administered, and how much is being administered, to each particular part afflicted.

The long wave type has a spark gap which throws a spark between metal fins, capable of igniting inflammable gases, and the metal fins become heated enough to burn flesh coming in contact with them. These metal fins are near the bakelite knob, which is used to regulate the amount of heat. There is danger of touching the fins while manipulating the machine and potential danger in the application of the metal electrodes. If not properly applied, there might be coagulation of the tissues, leaving an ugly scar at the contact point. Covered rubber pads are used on the short wave machine instead of metal electrodes, thus lessening the danger of producing burns.

Respondent's long wave device is incapable of transmitting sufficient heat to be effective in the treatment of some of the aforesaid diseases where diathermy is indicated, but it is capable of producing sufficient heat to coagulate tissue cells.

In the treatment of diathermy of any disease, ailment, affliction, or condition, by either the short or long wave type of device, it is necessary to determine the nature of the malady, the stage to which it has progressed, and to consider the effects of the application of heat in each case or at a particular stage. Some diseases and conditions respond to heat treatment; in others heat causes or may cause an aggravation of pain and serious injury to health. Further, the condition of the afflicted person may change from time to time, and a continuation of the heat treatment may prove ineffective or even dangerous. Diathermy alone is not an effective treatment or cure for any disease, affliction, ailment, or disordered condition.

A person not skilled in the application of diathermy and not having the ability to diagnose the disease or condition existing cannot safely apply the different sizes of electrodes on different-sized individuals. In such case there is a danger of electro surgery, of coagulation, of desiccation or of burning, of the tissue. Even after a competent diagnosis and analysis and where there is accurate knowledge of the favorable results which ordinarily follow application of a definite amount of heat, it is dangerous to use said device unless the user has also the proper technique and a thorough knowledge of the methods of application. If the technique is not good, the use of the device may cause a burn or be otherwise detrimental to the patient.

Diseases are classified with respect to whether acute or chronic. Where there is no sharp line of distinction, it is difficult to determine the exact condition. Acute conditions of some diseases are sometimes present in chronic cases of other diseases. Acute pains may be symptoms of several diseases. In certain cases acute pains may be alleviated by the application, yet it may have harmful effects because of other existing conditions.

Before respondent's device may be safely or effectively used, there must be a competent diagnosis determining the nature of the ailment, an analysis to determine the stage of the disease, and knowledge whether diathermy is indicated in that ailment or at that stage.

Arthritis is an inflammation of the joints. It may be aggravated by diathermy either because of improper technique or lack of knowledge of proper methods of application or because diathermy is not indicated in the particular type or under the particular conditions. In cases where the joint is destroyed, the results of diathermy treatments are nil. More cases of chronic arthritis are treated without diathermy than with it.

Bursitis is an inflammation of the sac between the joints. Its symptoms and treatment follow closely those of neuritis. Neuritis and neuralgia are inflamations of the nerves. If the pain is due to vitamin deficiency, beriberi, alcoholism, angina pectoris, gall bladder disease or ulcers, heat application may result in harm. If neuralgia is caused by an infection, even mild heat will cause considerable aggravation of pain. In some neuralgia and neuritis cases, superficial applications of moist heat are preferred to diathermy.

Sciatica is a pain in the sciatic nerve or in the sciatic area and a type of neuritis. When the sciatic pain is caused by an ulcer or abscess, heat increases the amount of pus and may cause dangerous complications. In certain cases the sciatic nerve is affected by a tumor in the cervix or uterus, by flatfeet, or from other causes. In some of these cases heat treatments are futile. In sciatic neuritis diathermy may often cause definite increase in pain.

Lumbago is a pain in the lumbar region commonly called backache and may be symptomatic of different conditions. It may be due to an abscessed kidney. Heat would increase pus production in the abscess and would aggravate the pain and might cause considerable harm. In cases of pains in the lumbar region caused by a blow, either with or without a fracture of the transverse process, diathermy will aggravate the pain.

Hay fever is an allergic disease and heat treatments are ineffective.

Medical authorities do not agree upon the use of diathermy in the treatment of many of the forms of asthma. Diathermy may be slightly beneficial in a few cases, neutral in some cases, and very dangerous in cardiac cases.

In low blood pressure cases diathermy is ineffective in most instances, and may react very badly in others. In high blood pressure cases it is frequently effective, when no other disease exists; in other cases, it is neutral, and in cardiac cases dangerous.

What to the layman is rheumatism may be arthritis, neuritis, or neuralgia or other nerve disease. Diathermy will not in all cases alleviate the painful chronic conditions caused by the three diseases named above. Diathermy is not used in acute articular rheumatism; it would aggravate the pain.

There are certain forms of disease in which there is a shrinking of the tissues of the arteries, and if coupled with arteriosclerosis and swelling in the foot or inflammation or ulcers on the toe, the application of heat throws more blood into the foot, which may be sufficient to cause the tissues to break down and cause an aggravation of the infection. In cases of this nature even death has resulted from the application of diathermy.

If a person is afflicted with an ailment where otherwise diathermy would be indicated, but also has ulcers of the stomach, diathermy is dangerous. In certain cases an increased motility of the stomach is desired; in others, it has a harmful effect. It is known that diathermy reduces the motility of the stomach and may, under certain circumstances, increase bleeding from stomach ulcers. There is, therefore, potential danger in the effect of diathermy in dilating the blood vessels, increasing the circulation, increasing the bleeding and decreasing the rate at which waste matters are carried off.

Little is known about oxidation. It is not known whether or not increase in circulation of the blood has any appreciable effect on oxidation. Oxidation depends upon salt metabolism. It is probable that diathermy treatments increase the metabolic rate. There are many diseases in which it is undesirable and harmful to increase metabolism. In some cases disease is caused by a high rate of metabolism. The use of diathermy, therefore may be harmful if the user's rate of metabolism is already too high.

Nutrition and the elimination of waste depends mostly upon proper functioning of the intestines. There is a slight elimination through the kidneys and from sweating. When the liver functions properly, poisons are detoxicated. The value of diathermy in cases where an increased elimination of waste and poison and increased nutrition are desirable, is limited to the slight increase in perspiration caused by the heat. Diathermy does not increase sweating more than hot baths or any other application of heat. Its effect on the elimination of wastes and poisons and on nutrition is very slight, if any.

The use of diathermy to create even mild heat will increase pain and aggravate conditions in any case coupled with an inflammatory process due to an infection in the tonsils, nose, teeth, stomach, heart, back, legs, joint and feet. The danger in the use of diathermy devices is greater than in such devices as electric pads, lamps, hot-water bags or mustard plasters, because the heat transmitted to the body in these devices is only superficial. Electric pads penetrate one-tenth to a quarter of an inch. Hot-water bags and other devices have no penetrating power. A mustard plaster dilates superficial blood vessels and draws blood to the surface. Respondent's device, on the other hand, is capable of producing heat within the tissues which may cause certain destructive effects.
To a person not skilled in the treatment of ailments, a certain symptom, such as a pain, may suggest erroneously an ailment in which heat treatments are not desirable. The pain may, in fact, arise from an ailment in which the application would aggravate the ailment and thus prove dangerous.

Circulation varies with individuals. Respondent's device is designed to and does increase circulation. In a normally healthy person, diathermy frequently gives relief from a painful condition caused by decreased circulation. On the other hand, when the circulation is completely or partially stopped in a certain area due to sclerosis of certain of the blood vessels, or when passage of the blood through the hardened portion is difficult, diathermy tremendously aggravates the pain, and creates a dangerous condition. In certain cases of nerve conditions which go with anesthesia, heart disease, gangrene of the leg or foot, necrosis, ulcers, or a bluish leg, injury or death may result from the application of diathermy.

PAR. 5. The Commission further finds that the use of respondent's device of either the long wave type or short wave type, does not constitute a cure or remedy for arthritis, neuritis, bursitis, sciatica, neuralgia, lumbago, hay fever, asthma, high or low blood pressure, rheumatism. The Commission further finds that the use of said device does not have any therapeutic value in the treatment of any of said ailments or any other disease or condition where acute inflammation, infection, pus formations, arteriosclerosis or conditions in which there is a tendency to hemorrhage are present. Furthermore, it is impracticable and dangerous to apply heat by means of respondent's device in the treatment of any disease or ailment unless the user is skilled in the diagnosis, analysis and methods of treatment of disease, and the unsupervised use of this device in the home may result in serious and irreparable injury to the health and may even prove fatal.

PAR. 6. The use by the respondent of the foregoing false, deceptive, and misleading statements, representations, and advertisements with respect to the therapeutic value and effectiveness of its device known as "Home Diathermy" has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such statements, representations, and advertisements are true, and to cause, and it does cause, a substantial portion of the purchasing public, because of such erroneous and mistaken belief, to purchase respondent's device in preference to devices, remedies, and preparations of competitors, designed and offered for the same or similar purposes, which competitors are likewise engaged in the sale and distribution of the same in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, who truthfully advertise the effectiveness and therapeutic value of their respective preparations and devices, and thus unfairly to divert, and it has diverted, trade to respondent from its said competitors.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondent, testimony and other evidence taken before John P. Bramhall and Arthur F. Thomas, examiners of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, briefs filed herein and oral arguments by R. A. McOuat, counsel for the Commission, and by Saul L. Harris, counsel for the respondent, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that the respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Home Diathermy Co., Inc., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale or distribution of a certain device designated as "Home Diathermy" whether of the long wave or short wave type, or any other device of substantially similar construction or possessing substantially similar qualities, whether sold under that name or any other name or names, do forthwith cease and desist from directly or indirectly:

1. Disseminating or causing to be disseminated any advertisement by means of the United States mails, or by any means in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, which

1By order dated January 18, 1941, that part of the order set forth below beginning with the words "or which advertisement fails to reveal", etc., was changed to read as follows, namely:

"or which advertisement fails to conspicuously reveal that the device may be safely used only after a competent medical authority has determined, as a result of diagnosis, that diathermy is indicated and has prescribed the frequency and amount of application of such diathermy treatments and the user has been adequately instructed in the method of operating such device by a trained technician."
advertisement represents, directly or through inference that said device may be easily and safely used in the home, or that the use of said device constitutes a cure or remedy for arthritis, neuritis, bursitis, sciatica, neuralgia, lumbago, hay fever, asthma, high or low blood pressure, or rheumatism or that said device has any therapeutic value in the treatment of any of such diseases and conditions, or has any therapeutic value in the treatment of any other ailment unless such advertisement is specifically limited to those cases of such disorders and ailments where acute inflammation, infection, pus formations, arteriosclerosis, or conditions in which there is a tendency to hemorrhage are not present; or which advertisement fails to reveal that the unsupervised use of this device by persons not skilled in the diagnosis, analysis, and methods of treatment of disease may result in serious and irreparable injury to health.

2. Disseminating or causing to be disseminated any advertisement by any means for the purpose of inducing or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase in commerce, as “commerce” is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, of said device, which advertisement contains any of the representations prohibited in paragraph 1 hereof; or which advertisement fails to reveal that the unsupervised use of the device by persons not skilled in the diagnosis, analysis and methods of treatment of disease may result in serious and irreparable injury to health.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 10 days after service upon it of this order file with the Commission an interim report in writing stating whether it intends to comply with this order, and, if so, the manner and form in which it intends to comply, and that within 60 days after the service upon it of this order said respondent shall file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

Par. 3. Respondent's said hosiery is sold to department stores and retailers who in turn resell the same to the purchasing public. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said men's hosiery in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 7. There is a substantial portion of the purchasing public which prefers to purchase directly from the manufacturer believing that in so doing they secure better prices, superior quality, and other advantages not ordinarily obtainable when such products are purchased through jobbers or other middlemen.

PAR. 8. Said aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent in connection with the advertising and sale of its said hosiery as above referred to had the capacity and tendency to lead prospective purchasers thereof into the mistaken and erroneous belief that the said "Jerks" hose was the original garterless hose, and that the respondent was the manufacturer as well as seller of the "Jerks" hose and owned, operated, or controlled a plant, factory or mill for manufacturing said hose.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3631. Complaint, Oct. 18, 1938—Decision, Nov. 23, 1940

Where an individual, since deceased, ostensibly engaged in business in the city of Milwaukee as a so-called building supply dealers' consultant and adviser, and a number of Milwaukee dealers in building supplies, such as, among others, cement, laths, plaster, clay products, pipe, and sand and gravel, and who (1) did 90 percent of the building supply business in county involved, and in which county 60 percent of such supplies therein, and including, more particularly, plaster, cement, lime, and metal lath, were purchased by said dealers and others engaged in similar business and transported from producers and manufacturers and sellers thereof located outside of the State, and, as a group or class, engaged in manufacture and sale of such supplies, including lime, cement, and other building materials, and in selling and shipping large quantities thereof to purchasers in State of Wisconsin from other States, in substantial competition with one another in such manufacture and sale to dealers in question and to competitors of such dealers, and who (2) engaged in business of buying commodities in question, as above noted, and in selling same to various governmental, State, county, and city purchasing agencies and the general trade, and, except to the extent competition in purchase and sale of such products had been restrained, lessened, injured, and suppressed by plans, understandings, agreements, combinations, and conspiracies below set forth, in substantial competition, in purchase and sale involved, with each other and with other dealers in building material supplies—

With intent of fixing prices, discounts, and conditions of sale for building supplies in county in question, and including sale of such supplies made under city, county and State bids—

(a) Entered into uniform contracts under which dealers employed said individual as consultant in and about the conduct of their respective businesses, relating to sales and trade practices, so that dealer might "be assured of selling its commodities at fair and reasonable prices," and under which dealers agreed to file in writing with such individual all of their respective selling prices for building materials for delivery in county in question, and individual undertook to audit and check all selling prices filed with him as to various costs, and to advise dealer as to correctness thereof, so that it might be assured that its sales should not be made for less than cost, and dealer further undertook to advise such individual of any changes in costs and of advances or reductions in prices of its commodities and to file same with individual not less than 48 hours before quoting such changes in prices to trade, and to sell its commodities only at prices thus filed by it, and to pay such individual certain percentage of gross sales of all its commodities made in county during period of contract; and

Where said individual, acting under and in pursuance of combination and conspiracy in question and aforesaid contracts, which he devised with intent of lessening, restraining, injuring, suppressing, and destroying competition in purchase and sale of building supplies in county in question and other counties in State involved, and of developing in dealers in question monopoly in purchase and sale of material in aforesaid territory—

(b) Mailed back to each of the various dealers involved under such contracts with him, and who filed their respective prices thereunder on various items for building material, prices to each dealer, together with discounts and conditions of sale to which each agreed, and mailed to other dealers in said city, not under contract with him, prices;

(c) Closely watched and investigated sales and bids of all dealers concerned and, in event of dealer refusal to abide by prices thus distributed, contacted out-of-state manufacturer-seller sources of such dealer in effort to prevent latter from obtaining further any requirements of building supplies; and

(d) Claimed to be adviser of various dealers involved and received, as compensation for his activities, one-half of 1 percent of such dealers' monthly gross sales of numerous items of supplies in question; and

Where various dealers involved as aforesaid, in pursuance and in furtherance of contracts and agreements above described, and into which they entered as above set forth—

(e) Established and maintained uniform and minimum prices at which various items of building supplies were sold by them, and uniform terms and conditions attaching to their sales of various items of such supplies;

(f) Interfered with their competitors in said competitors' efforts to purchase and maintain such supplies, and prevented their competitors from purchasing or obtaining same; and

(g) Boycotted and threatened to boycott manufacturers and sellers of building supplies who sold or shipped same either to their competitors or directly to consumers thereof, and, through promises, threats, coercion, intimidations, and otherwise, caused and induced manufacturers and sellers of supplies in question not to sell or ship same to their competitors or directly to consumers, and to boycott such competitors and consumers, and to confine to them, dealers involved, said manufacturers' and sellers' sales and shipments of supplies in question intended for use, consumption, or resale in aforesaid counties, and, through said promises, etc., procured such acts on part of manufacturers and sellers in question;

With result that their competitors were prevented from obtaining building supplies through acts and practices of said individual and dealers involved, prices, discounts and conditions of sale of building materials in county in question, from year involved until recent date, were generally uniform, and bids submitted by dealers concerned to procurement officers of the Federal Government and to purchasing agents for said city were generally uniform, and there was an undue tendency, as a consequence of aforesaid conspiracy, to restrain and suppress competition in sale of building material, and to enhance the prices that would otherwise prevail, and tendency to create in them a monopoly in sale of building material supplies in county involved:
Complaint

 Held, That contract aforesaid, entered into by above individual with dealers concerned, and understandings, agreements, combinations, and conspiracies, and acts and practices engaged in and performed pursuant thereto and in furtherance thereof, were all to the prejudice of the public and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. W. W. Sheppard, trial examiner.

 Mr. Daniel J. Murphy, for the Commission.

 Mr. Maurice A. McCabe and Mr. Walter H. Bender, of Milwaukee, Wis., for all respondents, other than W. H. Pipkorn Co., which was represented by Mr. James T. Drought, of Milwaukee, Wis.

(j) Substantially and artificially increasing and maintaining the prices at which building supplies are sold to purchasers and consumers thereof in Milwaukee County and other counties in the State of Wisconsin and depriving said purchasers and consumers of the benefits of fair, free, and normal competition in the sale of building supplies.

acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on October 18, 1938, issued and thereafter served its complaint upon respondents herein, charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On November 3, 1938, the respondents filed their answer. Thereafter, a stipulation was entered into whereby it was stipulated and agreed that a statement of facts signed and executed by Maurice A. McCabe, Walter H. Bender, and James T. Drought, counsel for the respondents, and Daniel J. Murphy, counsel for the Commission, subject to the approval of the Commission, may be taken as some of the facts in this proceeding and in lieu of testimony in support of some of the charges stated in the complaint. It was further stipulated that the Commission might proceed to hold hearings for the presentation of testimony and other evidence in support of other charges stated in the complaint and the respondents would not introduce any testimony or other evidence in opposition thereto, that the Commission might proceed upon said statement of facts and upon said testimony and other evidence presented at said hearings in support of other allegations of the complaint and make its report stating its findings as to the facts and its conclusion based thereon, and its order disposing of the proceeding without the presentation of argument or the filing of briefs. Thereafter, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of the complaint were introduced by Daniel J. Murphy, attorney for the Commission, before W. W. Sheppard, a trial examiner of the Commission, theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence was duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. No testimony was offered on behalf of the respondents and no attorney for the respondents appeared of record at the hearings.

Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, answer, testimony, and other evidence and the stipulation entered into between counsel for the Commission and counsel representing the respondents, said stipulation having been approved, accepted, and filed, and brief in support of the allegations of the complaint, no brief having been filed by the respondents, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes its findings as to the facts and its conclusions drawn therefrom:
PHIL J. BLIFFERT ET AL.

Respondent J. Druecker Sons' Co. is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Wisconsin and engaged in business as a dealer in building supplies, having its principal office and place of business at 1325 East Capitol Drive, Milwaukee, Wis.

Par. 2. For several years prior to the month of January 1936, and ever since that time, the respondent dealers have been, and are now, engaged in the business of buying and selling commodities commonly known as building supplies, such as, among other commodities, cement, laths, plaster, clay products, pipe, sand, and gravel, and in the course and conduct of their respective businesses, the said respondent dealers have purchased, and are now purchasing, many building supplies which they have caused, and are now causing, to be shipped and transported to them in commerce into the State of Wisconsin from States other than the State of Wisconsin. In the course and conduct of their respective businesses, except to the extent competition in the purchase and sale of building supplies has been restrained, lessened, injured, and suppressed by the plans, understandings, agreements, combinations, and conspiracies hereinafter referred to, respondent dealers have been, and are now, in substantial competition with each other, and with other dealers in building material supplies, in the purchase and sale thereof.

Par. 3. For many years prior to January 1, 1936, and ever since that date, there were and have been, and there are now, many manufacturers and sellers of building material supplies whose respective places of business were, and are now, located outside the State of Wisconsin, and who have been, and are now, engaged in the business of manufacturing and selling building supplies, including lime, cement, and other such building supplies, which they have been, and are now, shipping in commerce between and among the several States of the United States, and who have been, and are now, selling large quantities of such building supplies to purchasers thereof located in the State of Wisconsin, and shipping said building supplies in commerce to such purchasers into the State of Wisconsin from States other than the State of Wisconsin. Said manufacturers and sellers of building supplies in the ordinary and usual course and conduct of their respective businesses are in substantial competition with each other in the manufacture and sale of building material, in the sale thereof for shipment into the State of Wisconsin from States other than the State of Wisconsin, and in the sale thereof to the respondent dealers and to the competitors of respondent dealers for shipment to said respondent dealers and competitors of respondent dealers in commerce into the State of Wisconsin from States other than the State of Wisconsin.

Par. 4. Respondent dealers, herein, did approximately 90 to 100 percent of the building supplies business in Milwaukee County, State of Wisconsin, which total business averaged approximately $5,000,000 annually. Approximately 60 percent of the building supplies sold in Milwaukee County are purchased by respondent dealers and others engaged in similar business and transported from producers and manufacturers thereof located outside of the State of Wisconsin, particularly plaster, cement, lime, and metal laths.

Par. 5. During the early months of 1936, there was a meeting of some 18 dealers in building supplies material in the city of Milwaukee, State of Wisconsin, held in the Association of Commerce Building, Milwaukee, Wis., where talks were made by William Mass and respondent Phil J. Bliffert. At this meeting there were present, either in person or by their representatives, the respondent dealers named in the complaint. Subsequent to said meeting said respondent dealers entered into a contract with respondent Phil J. Bliffert, the contract in substance, providing as follows:

That first party (dealer) hereby employs second party (Bliffert) as consultant in and about the conduct of its business that relates to sales and trade practices so that said first party may be assured of selling its commodities at fair and reasonable prices. That said first party hereby agrees to file in writing with said second party all of its selling prices for building materials for delivery in the County of Milwaukee, Wisconsin. Within 10 days from the date this agreement becomes effective said second party hereby agrees to audit and check all selling prices filed from time to time with him by said first party as to manufacturer’s costs, costs of deliveries, selling costs, and overhead, and to advise said first party as to the correctness of such costs so that said first party may be assured that the sales of its commodities shall not be made for less than cost. Said first party further agrees to advise said second party in writing of any changes in manufacturer’s costs and other costs and of advances or reductions in the selling prices of its commodities and file same with said second party not less than 48 hours before quoting said changes in selling prices to its trade.

Said first party further agrees to sell its commodities only at the prices filed with it by said second party,

Said first party agrees to pay said second party one-half of 1 percent of the gross sales of all of its commodities made in Milwaukee County during the period of this contract.

During the life of said contracts building materials were sold by the respondents to the various Governmental, State, county, and city purchasing agencies and the general trade, excepting certain supplies which were specifically exempted. There were approximately 25 dealers in the Milwaukee area, who originally entered into said contracts with the respondent Phil J. Bliffert. The business of said dealers constituted the great majority of the total volume of business, in building supplies, transacted in the Milwaukee area. Two of said dealers, to wit, N. J. Pipkorn Co. and the Wm. F. Luebke Co., subsequently canceled their contracts.

Par. 6. Respondents Wauwatosa Fuel & Supply Co., W. H. Pipkorn Co., Tews Lime & Cement Co., and the Capitol Building & Supply Co. are the four largest members of the industry in the Milwaukee area.

Par. 7. The evidence is uncontradicted that the purpose of the said contract entered into between respondent Bliffert and other respondent dealers in building material in Milwaukee, Wis., was to fix the prices, discounts, and conditions of sale of building supplies in Milwaukee County, including sales of such supplies made under city, county, and State bids. Each respondent dealer under contract with said respondent Bliffert filed his price on various items of building material with respondent Bliffert, and Bliffert then mailed prices back to each respondent dealer, together with discounts and conditions of sale; each respondent dealer agreed to adhere to the prices, discounts, and terms mailed by the said Bliffert; respondent Bliffert further mailed prices to other dealers in Milwaukee who were not under contract with him. Respondent Bliffert closely watched and investigated the sales and bids of all the respondent dealers; if a dealer refused to abide by the prices distributed by the said Bliffert, the evidence is uncontradicted that manufacturers located outside the State of Wisconsin, from whom such dealer purchased his requirements were contacted by Bliffert in an endeavor to prevent such dealer from further obtaining any requirements of building supplies. Respondent Bliffert claims to be the adviser of the various respondent dealers, and received as compensation one-half of 1 percent of the said respondent dealer's monthly gross sales of numerous items of building supplies for the said respondent Phil J. Bliffert's activities.
Findings

Par. 8. Several of respondent dealers after conducting their business in association and under contract with respondent Bliffert for several months, acting on the advice of counsel canceled their contracts with Bliffert and refused further to abide by the agreed prices distributed by Bliffert. These respondent dealers, prior to the cancelation of their said contract with respondent Bliffert, never had any difficulty in obtaining their requirements of building supplies from the manufacturers thereof. After the cancelation of said contract, manufacturers of said building material refused further to sell and ship their products to said respondent dealers. The record discloses that respondent Bliffert informed said manufacturers they had better not ship building material to said respondent dealers. The Wm. F. Luebke Co., one of the dealers who was under contract with respondent Bliffert, because of its inability to obtain its building material requirements for its business, was forced out of business in the spring of 1939. The Pipkorn Co., another respondent dealer, never experienced any difficulty in obtaining its building supplies requirements while under contract with respondent Bliffert, but when said company canceled its contract with Bliffert, then it was that several manufacturers, located both inside and outside of Wisconsin, from whom the company had purchased its material for many years, refused further to fill orders received from said company, Frank A. Pipkorn, an individual engaged in the building material business under the firm name of “Frank A. Pipkorn Co.,” and doing an average annual business of between $30,000 and $40,000, entered into a contract with respondent Bliffert at the same time as the respondent dealers. This contract was subsequently canceled and several manufacturers located outside and inside of the State of Wisconsin, refused further to sell the company its requirements because of interference by respondents.

The record contains abundant uncontradicted evidence, both oral and documentary that as a result of the contract and agreement entered into between respondent Bliffert and respondent dealers, prices, discounts, and conditions of sale of building material in Milwaukee County, Wis., from 1936 to a recent date, have been generally uniform; that bids of respondent dealers submitted to procurement officers of the Federal Government, and to purchasing agents for the City of Milwaukee, Wis., were generally uniform.

Par. 9. The Commission finds that on or about November 1, 1935, respondent Phil J. Bliffert, with the intention of restraining, lessening, injuring, suppressing and destroying competition in the purchase and sale of building supplies in Milwaukee County, and other counties in the State of Wisconsin, and for the purpose, and with the intention of developing in the respondent dealers a monopoly in the purchase and sale of building material in Milwaukee County, and other counties in the State of Wisconsin, devised and entered into, and executed, together with the respondent dealers, the contract and agreement herein set forth, pursuant to and in furtherance of which the said respondent dealers have engaged in and have performed, and are now engaging in and performing the following acts and practices:

(a) Establishing and maintaining uniform prices at which various items of building supplies are sold by the respondent dealers.

(b) Establishing and maintaining minimum prices at which various items of building supplies are sold by the respondent dealers.

(c) Establishing and maintaining uniform terms and conditions attaching to the sale by the respondent dealers of various items of building supplies.

(d) Interfering with competitors of respondent dealers in the said competitors' efforts to purchase and obtain building supplies.

(e) Preventing competitors of respondent dealers from purchasing or obtaining building supplies.

(f) Boycotting and threatening to boycott manufacturers and sellers of building supplies who sell or ship building supplies either to competitors of respondent dealers or directly to consumers of building supplies.

(g) Causing, inducing and procuring by promises, threats, coercion, intimidation and otherwise, manufacturers and sellers of building supplies:

1. Not to sell or ship building supplies to competitors of respondent dealers or directly to consumers of building supplies.

2. To boycott competitors of respondent dealers and consumers of building supplies.

3. To confine to the respondent dealers the said manufacturers' and sellers' sales and shipments of building supplies intended for use, consumption or resale in Milwaukee County and other counties in the State of Wisconsin.

The Commission further finds that respondent Bliffert by and through the contract made and entered into by the said Bliffert with the other respondent dealers, (1) combined and conspired to restrain and suppress competition in the sale of building supplies by agreeing upon uniform prices, discounts and conditions of sale; (2) that competitors of respondent dealers were prevented from obtaining building supplies by the acts and practices of said respondent Bliffert and respondent dealers; and (3) that the result of said conspiracy tended to unduly restrain and suppress competition in the sale of building mate-
Order and to enhance the prices that would otherwise prevail under normal competition, and tended to create in respondent dealers a monopoly in the sale of building supplies in Milwaukee County, Wis.

CONCLUSION

The above mentioned contract, entered into by respondent Bliffert with the said respondent dealers, and the understandings, agreements, combinations and conspiracies, and the acts and practices engaged in and performed pursuant thereto, and in furtherance thereof, are all to the prejudice of the public and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondents, testimony, and evidence taken before W. W. 1. Establishing and maintaining uniform prices at which the respondent dealers should sell building supplies.
2. Establishing and maintaining minimum prices at which the respondent dealers should sell building supplies.
3. Establishing and maintaining uniform terms and conditions attaching to the sale by the respondent dealers of building supplies.
4. Interfering with competitors of respondent dealers in the said competitors' efforts to purchase and obtain building supplies.

5. Preventing competitors of respondent dealers from purchasing or obtaining building supplies.

6. Boycotting and threatening to boycott manufacturers and sellers of building supplies who sell or ship building supplies to competitors of respondent dealers.

7. Causing, inducing and procuring, by promises, threats, coercion, intimidation, and otherwise, manufacturers and sellers of building supplies:

(a) Not to sell or ship building supplies to competitors of respondent dealers or directly to consumers of building supplies.

(b) To boycott competitors of respondent dealers and consumers of building supplies.

(c) To confine to the respondent dealers the said manufacturers' and sellers' sales and shipments of building supplies intended for use, consumption, or resale in Milwaukee County and other counties in the State of Wisconsin.

It is further ordered, That this proceeding be, and the same hereby is, dismissed as to the respondent, Phil J. Bliffert.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

JOHN DRUCQUER, TRADING AS DRUCQUER & SONS

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 4125. Complaint, May 4, 1940—Decision, Nov. 23, 1940

Where an individual engaged in sale and distribution of blended tobaccos and other tobacco products from his place of business in California to purchasers in other States and in the District of Columbia; in statements and representations relative to source and origin of his products and place of manufacture or blending thereof, which he caused to be printed on labels, wrappers, or coverings of packages in which his products were wrapped when shipped, and which he otherwise published and circulated among purchasers and prospective purchasers in various States—

Represented, directly and by implication, that his tobaccos and tobacco products were made or blended in London, England, and imported into the United States from England, through such statements as "Tobacco manufacturers * * * manufactured by Drucquer & Sons of London, England," and "Drucquer & Sons, late of the Strand and Regent Street, London, England," notwithstanding the fact he did not maintain a factory or place of business in London, and his said products were not such products there made and blended, or tobacco products manufactured and blended in England, such as preferred by many members of the purchasing public, and he did not import his said products from England into the United States, but manufactured or blended same at his place of business in California;

With result that many members of purchasing public were led into erroneous and mistaken belief that he had place of business in London, as above set forth, where he made and blended tobacco products which he imported and sold and distributed in the United States, and substantial number of said public were led to purchase his said products because of such erroneous and mistaken belief, and with capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive substantial portion of such public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that said representations were true, and that he operated place of business in London where such products were manufactured, etc., as above set forth, and with result, as consequence of such belief, that number of members of said public purchased substantial volume of his said products:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Mr. Carrel F. Rhodes, for the Commission.

Mr. Edward A. Martin, of Berkeley, Calif., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that John Drucquer, an individual, trading as Drucquer and Sons, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, John Drucquer, is an individual, with his principal office and place of business located at 2201 Shattuck Avenue, Berkeley, Calif.

Par. 2. Respondent is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, engaged at Berkeley, Calif., in blending tobaccos and in manufacturing cigarettes made of blended tobacco, and in advertising, selling, and distributing said products. Respondent packages said products in cartons, wrappers and containers upon which are placed various pictorial representations, scrolls, words and phrases descriptive of the source, origin, character, and quality of his said products, the blend of tobacco of which they are made and the name and designation of the maker or manufacturer thereof.

Said respondent now sells and ships, and for more than 1 year last past has sold and shipped, his said products, so packaged and marked, directly by mail, parcel post, express, and otherwise, from his principal place of business in Berkeley, Calif., to purchasers thereof at their several points of location in the State of California and in the various other States of the United States, and in the District of Columbia.

There is now, and has been for more than 1 year last past, a course of trade in said products so sold by respondent in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 3. In the course and conduct of the business set out and described in paragraph 2 hereof, the respondent, for the purpose of inducing the purchase of his said cigarettes, tobaccos, and other products offered for sale and sold by him, has caused and now causes his said products to be packed in cartons, wrappers, and containers bearing pictorial representations, words, phrases, and statements concerning the composition, workmanship, and blend of tobacco from which they are made and the origin and place of manufacture of said products so sold by him, principal of which pictorial representations is a picture of a lion rampant holding the cross of St. George in its right forepaw, accompanied by a scroll, upon which is printed, "Per Ardua." Typical of the statements and representations are the following, in large type, easily discernible:

Tobacco Manufacturers
Complaint

Manufactured by Drucquer and Sons of London, England

Drucquer and Sons and in small type, hardly discernible, is printed:

Late of The Strand and Regent Street, London

PAR. 4. In truth and in fact, respondent’s business is not located in London, England, and never was at any time during the period in question here, and the tobacco products and tobacco designated, described, and represented as in paragraph 3 hereof set out, were manufactured, blended, and otherwise processed by respondent at his place of business in Berkeley, Calif.

PAR. 5. A substantial part of the American public have a preference for tobacco products manufactured, and tobaccos blended and otherwise processed in England, by English concerns, over domestically manufactured tobacco products and domestically blended and processed tobacco.

PAR. 6. Such use of the lion and the cross of St. George suggests and simulates the use made of the British Royal Coat of Arms, in which a lion rampant appears, by manufacturers and traders who have been granted such privilege by the British Government or some member of the British Royal Family as a reward for long, faithful or distinguished service to the British Government, or to the Royal Family or some member thereof, which grant gives a prestige to the holder and his products not enjoyed by others.

PAR. 7. The said designations, descriptions, and representations as hereinabove set out and described and the said pictorial representation of a lion rampant, with the cross of St. George so used by respondent, imply and suggest to the purchasing and consuming public, especially to persons of English blood or origin, and to other purchasers having a preference for tobacco blended in England, and cigarettes and like products made of English blended tobacco, that said tobacco and products made therefrom were blended, manufactured or made in England, by Drucquer and Sons of London, England, and imported from England, when such is not the fact; and have had and now have the capacity and tendency to induce, and have induced, a substantial number of the purchasing public to buy respondent’s said product, because of said erroneous beliefs.

PAR. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.
Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on May 4, 1940, issued and on May 8, 1940, served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondent, John Drucquer, an individual, trading as Drucquer & Sons, charging him with unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On May 27, 1940, the respondent filed his answer in this proceeding. Thereafter, a stipulation was entered into whereby it was stipulated and agreed that a statement of facts signed and executed by the respondent's counsel, Edward A. Martin, and W. T. Kelley, chief counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, subject to the approval of the Commission, may be taken as the facts in this proceeding and in lieu of testimony in support of the charges stated in the complaint, or in opposition thereto, and that the said Commission may proceed upon said statement of facts, together with the facts admitted by the answer, to make its report, stating its findings as to the facts and its conclusion based thereon and enter its order disposing of the proceeding without the presentation of argument or the filing of briefs. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, answer, and stipulation, said stipulation having been approved, accepted, and filed, and the Commission having duly considered the same and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

Paragraph 1. Respondent, John Drucquer, is an individual trading and doing business under the name Drucquer & Sons, with his office and principal place of business located in Berkeley, Calif.

Par. 2. Respondent is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, engaged in the business of selling and distributing blended tobaccos and other tobacco products. Respondent causes said products, when sold, to be transported from his place of business in Berkeley, Calif., to purchasers thereof located in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 3. In the course and conduct of his business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of his products, respondent has caused statements and representations relative to the source and origin of his products and the place of manufacture or blending of his tobaccos to be printed on labels placed on the wrappers or covering of packages in which his tobaccos and tobacco products were wrapped when shipped, and has otherwise published and circulated such statements and representations among purchasers and prospective purchasers of such products situated in the various States in the United States and in the District of Columbia. Among and typical of the statements and representations circulated and distributed by respondent are the following:
Findings

Tobacco manufacturers * * * manufactured by Drucquer & Sons of London, England.

The aforesaid statements and representations by respondent, as above set out, purport to be descriptive of the source and origin of respondent's tobaccos and tobacco products and the place of manufacturing and blending same. In the manner and by the means aforesaid, respondent has represented, directly and by implication, that his tobaccos and tobacco products are manufactured or blended in London, England, and imported into the United States from England.

PAR. 4. The aforesaid statements and representations by respondent with respect to the source and origin of his said products and the place of manufacture or blending thereof are false, misleading, and deceptive. In truth and in fact, respondent does not maintain a factory or place of business in London, England, where his tobaccos and tobacco products are made and blended, and he does not import such products from England into the United States. The tobaccos and tobacco products sold by respondent are manufactured or blended by him at his place of business in Berkeley, Calif.

Many members of the purchasing public prefer tobacco products manufactured and blended in England, and the statements and representations used by respondent, as hereinabove set forth, have led many members of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that respondent has a place of business in London, England, where he manufactures and blends tobacco products, which he imports and sells and distributes in the United States, and have led a substantial number of the purchasing public to purchase respondent's said products because of this erroneous and mistaken belief.

PAR. 5. The use by the respondent of the statements and representations above set forth, in offering for sale and selling his products, had, and now has, the tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that said representations are true, and that respondent operates a place of business in London, England, where said tobacco products are manufactured or blended and that said tobaccos are imported from England. As a direct result of this erroneous and mistaken belief, a number of members of the purchasing public have purchased a substantial volume of respondent's products.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondent and stipulation as to the facts entered into by the respondent herein and W. T. Kelley, chief counsel for the Commission, which provides, among other things, that, without further evidence or other intervening procedure, the Commission may issue and serve upon the respondent herein findings as to the facts and conclusion based thereon and an order disposing of the proceeding, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, John Drucquer, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of tobaccos and tobacco products in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

2. Representing, through the use of the statement "Manufactured by Drucquer & Sons of London, England," or any statement indicating English origin, that tobaccos and tobacco products made, manufactured, or blended in the United States are imported from England.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.
IN THE MATTER OF

Docket 4093. Complaint, Apr. 18, 1930—Decision, Nov. 28, 1930

Where numerous individuals and concerns interested and engaged in sale of liquor at wholesale in territory comprising northern part of California and western part of Nevada, and including various corporations engaged, in course and conduct of their respective businesses, in competition with other distillers, importers, and wholesale liquor dealers who were located outside of said States and who, upon sale of their products, shipped and transported same from their places of business located outside such States into States in question to purchasers thereof, and embracing—

I. Individuals and concerns which were members of a wholesale liquor distributors' association (and through which they and those associated with them in industry operated as herein below indicated), with membership of some 69 northern California wholesale liquor dealers operating in aforesaid territory, or so-called "Northern California Territory," and engaged in purchasing, in the course and conduct of their businesses, for sale to local retail liquor dealers and resale by latter to general public, wines, whiskies, and other alcoholic beverages from distillers, importers, and jobbers of such beverages, whose places of business were located outside State of California, and in causing wines and beverages to be shipped and transported from such other States to the places of business of said wholesale liquor dealers in said State, in which there had been, for a number of years last past, number of cooperative buying organizations, small jobbers and wholesale liquor dealers referred to by concerns, individuals, and organizations herein as "irregular" distributors, and engaged in business of buying and selling such beverages at wholesale and, in course and conduct of their said businesses, in purchasing such beverages from distillers, importers, and wholesalers, great majority of whom were located in other States, and products of which, when thus purchased, were shipped from seller's place of business into State of California to aforesaid purchasers, or "irregular" distributors, by whom said beverages, when received, were sold and distributed to retail liquor dealers in State in question and to purchasing public;

II. Certain corporations engaged in distilling and importing alcoholic beverages, which constituted large and important part of the distillers and importers in the United States and in said northern California territory, and a group so large and influential in the trade as to be able to control and influence flow of trade and commerce in said beverages in the United States and within, to and from said trade area, and which had been, and would have still been, in free and active competition with each other and with other distillers and importers of such beverages in said territory, but for unlawful conspiracy, combination, understanding, and agreement herein described; and
III. Certain corporations engaged in sale and distribution of alcoholic beverages at wholesale, which constituted large and important part of the wholesale liquor dealers in said trade area and, as such, a group so large and influential in the trade as to be able to control and influence flow of trade in commerce in such beverages within, to, and from said trade area, and which had been, and would have still been, in free and active competition with each other and with other distillers and importers of such beverages in said territory, but for unlawful conspiracy, combination, understanding, and agreement herein described—

(a) Combined, agreed, and conspired with one another to hinder and prevent aforesaid "irregular" distributors from obtaining such beverages from any source, with intent and effect of hampering, stifling, or suppressing competition in sale thereof at wholesale in aforesaid territory, and acting collectively and through the agency of aforesaid "Wholesale Liquor Distributors" association, and through the agency of their "Liquor Trades' Stabilization Bureau," corporate instrumentality, membership of which was composed of distillers, importers, distributors, and retailers of alcoholic beverages, and including various concerns herein involved, and which was engaged, under direct supervision of its officers and directors, as an enforcing agency for maintenance of wholesale and retail prices, discounts, and mark-ups on alcoholic beverages in territory in question, to effectuate their aforesaid purpose—

1. Refused, and continued to refuse, to sell alcoholic beverages to cooperative buying associations and to small jobbers and wholesale liquor dealers and others, considered by them to be "irregular" distributors;

2. Boycotted and threatened to boycott the products of distillers, importers, and wholesale liquor dealers, who sell to cooperative buying associations and to small jobbers and wholesale liquor dealers, and others considered by them to be "irregular" distributors; and

3. Solicited and obtained in formation with respect to distillers, importers, and wholesale liquor dealers selling to cooperative buying associations, small jobbers, and wholesale liquor dealers and others, considered by them to be "irregular" distributors, and disseminated and threatened to disseminate such information to distillers, importers, and wholesale liquor dealers; and

Where various individuals, members, officers, and directors of said wholesale liquor association, and aforesaid various concerns, including those engaged in sale and distribution of alcoholic beverages at wholesale, the various members of said association, concerns engaged in distilling such beverages, and those engaged in importation thereof, and, as respects those engaged in such distillation and those engaged in such importation, in competition as to price with one another in sale of said beverages between and among various States and its territories, prior to unlawful agreement, combination and conspiracy herein described, and as respects those engaged in sale and distribution of such beverages at wholesale and each and every member of association in question, in competition as to price with one another in sale and distribution of alcoholic beverages in said northern California territory—

(b) Adopted, established, and maintained a system or policy of merchandising whereby they, through agreements and understanding between and among one another, fixed specified standard and uniform prices, discounts, and mark-ups at which said products should be sold, both at wholesale and retail, with intent and effect of eliminating price competition among themselves and in order to stabilize and make uniform prices of products sold by such distillers and importers to wholesale liquor dealers and discounts allowed thereon, and prices of products sold by wholesale liquor dealers and discounts allowed thereon, and to stabilize and make uniform the resale prices of such products by them, and by each of them, sold; and

Where said various concerns engaged in sale of alcoholic beverages at wholesale, and each and every member of association in question, concerns engaged in distilling alcoholic beverages, those engaged in importation thereof, and various individuals, as hereinafter described—

(c) Endeavored and continued to endeavor to enforce, and enforced and continued to enforce, said merchandising policies pursuant to aforesaid policy, agreements, and understandings, and, acting directly and through the agency of said association and for said purpose, among other things—

(1) Notified and continued to notify distillers, importers, and wholesale liquor dealers and retail liquor dealers of the said fixed wholesale and retail prices, discounts, and mark-ups, and of changes therein;

(2) Solicited and obtained information with respect to distillers, importers, wholesale liquor dealers, and retail liquor dealers who did not maintain the fixed resale prices, discounts, and mark-ups and who did not adhere to said merchandising policy, and disseminated and threatened to disseminate such information to distillers, importers, wholesale liquor dealers, and retail liquor dealers who sell alcoholic beverages in said Northern California Territory;

(3) Coerced and intimidated distillers and importers into the adoption of contracts and agreements, designed and intended to maintain the prices, discounts and mark-ups so fixed, and boycotted and threatened to boycott the products of distillers, importers, wholesale liquor dealers and retail liquor dealers who failed to maintain the prices, discounts, and mark-ups so fixed, and who failed and refused to cooperate in said merchandising policy; and

(4) Organized and maintained aforesaid Liquor Trades' Stabilization Bureau, as above described, with intent of policing the trade and obtaining information with respect to distillers, importers, wholesale liquor dealers, and retail liquor dealers who failed to maintain the prices, discounts, and mark-ups so fixed, and who failed and refused to cooperate in the merchandising policy adopted, and who violated the terms of the price maintenance contracts entered into with retail liquor dealers as herein described;

With result that the capacity, tendency, and effect of said agreement, combination and conspiracy, and acts and practices of said concerns and individuals as above set forth, were to close and curtail various and sundry outlets within the aforesaid Northern California Territory trade area, and other related and connected territory, in the States of California and Nevada, to the direct and immediate sale and shipment of alcoholic beverages by distillers, importers and wholesale liquor dealers located in other States of the United States; and

With further result that capacity, tendency and effect of said combination, agreement and conspiracy was to monopolize in said concerns and individuals business of dealing in and distributing alcoholic beverages in aforesaid territory, to unreasonably lessen, eliminate, restrain, stifle, hamper, and suppress competition in said products in the States of California and Nevada, to deprive the purchasing and consuming public of advantages in price and service which they would receive and enjoy under conditions of normal, unobstructed or free and fair competition of said trade and industry, and to otherwise operate as a restraint upon and detriment to the freedom of fair and legitimate competition in such trade and industry, to obstruct the natural flow of commerce in the channels of interstate trade, and to place an undue burden upon such commerce, and to prejudice and injure the public and other distillers, importers, jobbers, wholesale liquor dealers and buying associations, who were not parties to aforesaid agreement, combination and conspiracy, and who took no part therein:

Held, That such acts and practices of said concerns and individuals, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice of the public, had a tendency to and actually did hinder and prevent price competition between and among them in sale of alcoholic beverages in commerce, and placed in themselves power to control and enhance prices, and created in themselves a monopoly in the sale of alcoholic beverages in commerce aforesaid, and unreasonably restrained, hampered, and burdened such commerce in alcoholic beverages, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Said respondents have been and would now be in free and active competition with one another and with other wholesale liquor dealers in said trade area but for the wrongful and unlawful conspiracy, combination, understanding, and agreement, and unlawful acts and practices herein set out.

Par. 4. In the course and conduct of their said businesses, as aforesaid, the respondent corporations named herein have been and are now in competition with other distillers, importers, and wholesale liquor dealers who are located outside of the States of California and Nevada, and who, upon the sale of their products, ship and transport such products from their places of business located outside of the States of California and Nevada into the States of California and Nevada to the purchasers thereof.

Par. 5. The respondent wholesale liquor dealer members of respondent association, in the course and conduct of their businesses, purchase wines, whiskies, and other alcoholic beverages from distillers, importers, and jobbers of alcoholic beverages whose places of business are located outside of the State of California, and cause such wines, whiskies, and other alcoholic beverages to be shipped and transported from such other States of the United States to the places of business in California of said wholesale liquor dealers, when said products are sold to local retail liquor dealers, who, in turn, sell to the general public.

Par. 6. There are now in California, and have been for a number of years last past, a number of cooperative buying organizations, small jobbers and wholesale liquor dealers, referred to by respondents as "irregular" distributors, engaged in the business of buying and selling alcoholic beverages at wholesale and who, in the course and conduct of their said businesses, purchase alcoholic beverages from distillers, importers, and wholesale liquor dealers, a great majority of whom are located in States of the United States other than the State of California, and when said products are purchased they are shipped from the seller's place of business into the State of California to the purchasers thereof. These so-called "irregular" distributors, when said alcoholic beverages are received by them, sell and distribute the same to retail liquor dealers located in California and to the purchasing public.

Par. 7. The respondents, with the purpose, intent and effect of hampering, stifling, and suppressing competition in the sale of alcoholic beverages at wholesale in the territory aforesaid, have combined, agreed, and conspired with one another to hinder and prevent the aforesaid "irregular" distributors from obtaining alcoholic beverages from any source; the said respondents have acted collectively and through the agency of said respondent association and through the agency of respondent bureau, to effectuate their said purpose. In carrying out said combination, agreement, and conspiracy, respondents collectively, and through the agencies of said association and bureau, have done, and are now doing, among other things, the following:

(a) Have refused, and now refuse, to sell alcoholic beverages to cooperative buying associations and to small jobbers and wholesale liquor dealers and others, considered by respondents to be “irregular” distributors.

(b) Have boycotted and have threatened to boycott the products of distillers, importers, and wholesale liquor dealers, who sell to cooperative buying associations and to small jobbers and wholesale liquor dealers, and others considered by respondents to be “irregular” distributors.

(c) Have solicited and obtained information with respect to distillers, importers, and wholesale liquor dealers selling to cooperative buying associations, small jobbers and wholesale liquor dealers and others, considered by respondents to be “irregular” distributors, and have disseminated and threatened to disseminate such information to distillers, importers, and wholesale liquor dealers.

Par. 8. The respondents engaged in distilling alcoholic beverages and those engaged in the importation of alcoholic beverages were, before the unlawful agreement, combination, and conspiracy herein set out, in competition as to price with one another in the sale of alcoholic beverages between and among the various States of the United States and its territories, and would now be in competition with one another but for said combination, agreement, and conspiracy.

The respondents engaged in the sale and distribution of alcoholic beverages at wholesale, and each and every member of respondent association, were, before the unlawful agreement, combination, and conspiracy herein set out, in competition as to price with one another in the sale and distribution of alcoholic beverages in the said northern California territory.

Par. 9. Some time prior to December 1938, the respondents, engaged in the sale and distribution of alcoholic beverages at wholesale, each and every member of respondent association, respondents engaged in distilling alcoholic beverages and the respondents engaged in the importation of alcoholic beverages, for the purpose and with the effect of eliminating price competition among themselves, and in order to stabilize and make uniform the prices of the products sold by said distillers and importers to the wholesale liquor dealers, and the discounts allowed thereon, and the prices of the products sold by wholesale liquor dealers, and the discounts allowed thereon, and to stabilize and make uniform the resale prices of the products, by them and each of them sold, have adopted, established, and maintained a system or policy of merchandising whereby they, through agreements and understandings between and among one another, fixed and now fix specified standard and uniform prices, discounts and mark-ups at which said products should be sold, both at wholesale and retail.

Pursuant to such policy, agreements, and understandings, while acting directly and through the agency of the respondent association, the respondents engaged in the sale of alcoholic beverages at wholesale, each and every member of respondent association, respondents engaged in distilling alcoholic beverages, the respondents engaged in the importation of alcoholic beverages and each and every individual respondent named herein, have endeavored and now endeavor to enforce and have enforced and are now enforcing said merchandising policy, and to this end, among other things, have done and are now doing the following:

(a) Have notified, and are now notifying, distillers, importers, and wholesale liquor dealers and retail liquor dealers of the said fixed wholesale and retail prices, discounts, and mark-ups.

(b) Have notified, and are now notifying, distillers, importers, wholesale liquor dealers, and retail liquor dealers of changes in the said prices, discounts, and mark-ups.

(c) Have solicited and obtained information with respect to distillers, importers, wholesale liquor dealers, and retail liquor dealers who do not maintain the fixed resale prices, discounts, and mark-ups and who do not adhere to said merchandising policy; and have disseminated and have threatened to disseminate such information to distillers, importers, wholesale liquor dealers, and retail liquor dealers who sell alcoholic beverages in the said northern California territory.

(d) Have coerced and intimidated distillers and importers into the adoption of contracts and agreements, designed and intended to maintain the prices, discounts, and mark-ups so fixed.

(e) Have boycotted and threaten to boycott the products of distillers, importers, wholesale liquor dealers, and retail liquor dealers who have failed to maintain the prices, discounts, and mark-ups so fixed, and who fail and refuse to cooperate in said merchandising policy.

(f) Have organized and maintained the respondent Liquor Trades' Stabilization Bureau, Inc., for the purpose of policing the trade and of obtaining information with respect to distillers, importers, wholesale liquor dealers, and retail liquor dealers who fail to maintain the prices, discounts, and mark-ups so fixed, and who fail and refuse to cooperate in the merchandising policy adopted, and who violate the terms of the price maintenance contracts entered into with retail liquor dealers.

Par. 10. The capacity, tendency, and effect of said agreement, combination, and conspiracy, and the acts and practices of the respondents, as herein set out, are, and have been, to close and curtail various and sundry outlets, within the aforesaid northern California territory trade area, and other related and connected territory, in the States of California and Nevada, to the direct and immediate sale and shipment of alcoholic beverages by distillers, importers, and wholesale liquor dealers, located in other States of the United States. Said combination, agreement, and conspiracy had, and now have the capacity, tendency, and effect to monopolize, in said respondents, the business of dealing in and distributing alcoholic beverages in the aforesaid territory; to unreasonably lessen, eliminate, restrain, stifle, hamper, and suppress competition in said products in the States of California and Nevada; to deprive the purchasing and consuming public of advantages in price and service, which they would receive and enjoy under conditions of normal, unobstructed, or free and fair competition of said trade and industry; and to otherwise operate as a restraint upon and detriment to the freedom of fair and legitimate competition in such trade and industry; to obstruct the natural flow of commerce in the channels of interstate trade, and to place an undue burden upon such commerce; to prejudice and injure the public and other distillers, importers, jobbers, wholesale liquor dealers, and buying associations, who were not parties to the aforesaid agreement, combination, and conspiracy, and who have taken no part therein.

Par. 11. The acts and practices of the respondents, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice of the public, have a tendency to and have actually hindered and prevented price competition between and among respondents, in the sale of alcoholic beverages in commerce, within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and placed in respondents the power to control and enhance prices; have created in the respondents a monopoly in the sale of alcoholic beverages in such commerce; have unreasonably restrained, hampered, and burdened such commerce in alcoholic beverages, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce, within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.
Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on April 18, 1940, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondents named in the caption hereof, charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondents' answers, the Commission, by order entered herein, granted respondents' motion for permission to withdraw said answers and to substitute therefor answers admitting all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, which substitute answers were duly filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and substitute answers, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

PAR. 10. The capacity, tendency, and effect of said agreement, combination, and conspiracy, and the acts and practices of the respondents, as herein found, are, and have been, to close and curtail various and sundry outlets, within the aforesaid northern California territory trade area, and other related and connected territory, in the States of California and Nevada, to the direct and immediate sale and shipment of alcoholic beverages by distillers, importers, and wholesale liquor dealers, located in other States of the United States. Said combination, agreement, and conspiracy had, and now have the capacity, tendency, and effect to monopolize, in said respondents, the business of dealing in and distributing alcoholic beverages in the aforesaid territory; to unreasonably lessen, eliminate, restrain, stifle, hamper, and suppress competition in said products in the States of California and Nevada; to deprive the purchasing and consuming public of advantages in price and service, which they would receive and enjoy under conditions of normal, unobstructed or free and fair competition of said trade and industry, and to otherwise operate as a restraint upon and detriment to the freedom of fair and legitimate competition in such trade and industry; to obstruct the natural flow of commerce in the channels of interstate trade, and to place an undue burden upon such commerce; to prejudice and injure the public and other distillers, importers, jobbers, wholesale liquor dealers, and buying associations, who were not parties to the aforesaid agreement, combination, and conspiracy, and who took no part therein.

CONCLUSION

The acts and practices of the respondents, as herein found, are all to the prejudice of the public, have a tendency to and have actually hindered and prevented price competition between and among respondents, in the sale of alcoholic beverages in commerce, within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and placed in respondents the power to control and enhance prices; have created in the respondents a monopoly in the sale of alcoholic beverages in such commerce; have unreasonably restrained, hampered, and burdened such commerce in alcoholic beverages, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Order

Effect classifies wholesalers, jobbers, or dealers in alcoholic beverages for the purpose and with the effect of preventing or hindering any wholesaler, jobber, or dealer or any class of wholesalers, jobbers, or dealers from obtaining alcoholic beverages for resale, as set forth in paragraphs I and II hereof.

VI. It is further ordered, That the respondent Wholesale Liquor Distributors' Association of Northern California, Inc., and the respondent Liquor Trades' Stabilization Bureau, Inc., their respective officers, agents, servants, and employees, or any of them, do forthwith cease and desist from enforcing or attempting to enforce by any method or means any contract, agreement, or understanding, either verbal or written, among distillers or among importers or among wholesalers, or between one or more distiller and one or more importer, or between one or more distiller and one or more wholesaler, or between one or more importer and one or more wholesaler, or between one or more distiller and one or more importer and one or more wholesaler, the purpose or effect of which is to maintain specified standard or minimum resale prices, discounts, or mark-ups at which alcoholic beverages are to be sold by any distiller or any importer or any wholesaler or any other distributor of alcoholic beverages, as set forth in paragraphs III and IV hereof.

VII. It is further ordered, That nothing in this order is to be construed as prohibiting the respondents from entering into such contracts or agreements relating to the maintenance of resale prices as are not prohibited by the provisions of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, as amended.

VIII. It is further ordered, That the complaint herein be, and the same hereby is, dismissed as to the respondent Sherwood Coffin.

IX. It is further ordered, That the respondents shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission in writing a report setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.
Where a corporation engaged, among other things, in the manufacture, sale, and distribution of its "Blue Jay" corn plasters, bunion and callus plasters, and liquid corn remover, which, when used in accordance with its directions, embodied substantially the same form of treatment and consisted, in case of said plasters, of felt rings attached to adhesive strips and containing disc of medicament with from 41 to 43 percent of salicylic acid in rubber base, and, in case of said liquid, of 13.4 percent solution of said acid, and which were designed, through use of said rings, to surround and protect the growth from outside pressure, with said acid acting upon the cornified tissue and softening same and facilitating eventual removal, and, as thus engaged, in substantial competition with others also engaged in sale and distribution of like and similar products in commerce among the various States and in the District of Columbia; in advertising, at a cost in excess of $100,000 annually, its said "Blue Jay" line of preparations, in which its business ranked with that of the country's largest, in price lists, advertising circulars, and in newspapers and periodicals of general circulation, and through use of the radio, billboards, window displays, and inside-the-store displays—

(a) Represented, directly and by inference, that its said plasters would remove corns completely without danger of infection, and scientifically and easily, in 3 days, and would stop pain immediately, and would cure corn cripples within 3 days, enabling such a person to walk within said period; and constituted new treatment;

(b) Represented that its said liquid would rid the feet of corns and was a safe, scientific treatment therefor, and would permit user, after a period of time, to lift corns out, and would relieve pain immediately, and that corns had roots and its said remedies enabled user to remove them forever, roots and all, and that corn would not grow back; and

(c) Represented that its said bunion and callus plasters would remove calluses without danger of infection, and that its remedies in question were safe and painless and eliminated aforesaid danger;

Facts being its said products do not constitute a cure for growths in question, since such growths will return after temporary removal unless pressure and irritation which caused them in the first instance is eliminated, and corns of long standing will return after temporary removal without further irritation and pressure, growths referred to do not have a root in the ordinary sense of the term, but cone-like apex thereof, thus referred to by it, is actually part of corn formed last, treatment with its said products cannot always be relied upon to remove entirely such cone-like portions projected into the dermis, nor can use of such products be relied upon to stop instantly pain of corns or calluses, since some time is required for pain caused by pressure of growth on sensory nerves of the skin to subside, following application of shield to relieve outside pressure thereon, preparations containing salicylic acid for treating corns have been in use for about 100 years and are recognized as standard method of destroying tissue, and its said products do not constitute new treatment for such growths;

With effect of misleading and deceiving members of purchasing public into erroneous and mistaken belief that aforesaid statements and representations were true, and of inducing, on account of such mistaken and erroneous beliefs, substantial portion of such public to purchase its said "Blue Jay" products, and with effect of diverting trade unfairly to it from competitors who truthfully represent the quality and character of their products; to the injury of competition in commerce:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Before Mr. Arthur F. Thomas, trial examiner.

Mr. George Foulkes and Mr. S. Brogdyne Teu, II, for the Commission.

Rogers, Woodson & Rogers, of Chicago, Ill., for respondent.

Complaint

Pursuant to the provisions of an act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that The Kendall Co., a corporation, trading as Bauer & Black, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has been and is using unfair methods of competition in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in said act of Congress, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, The Kendall Co., trading as Bauer & Black, is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under the laws of the State of Massachusetts with its principal office and place of business located at 80 Federal Street, Boston, Mass. Respondent is now, and has been for some time, engaged in the business of manufacturing, distributing, and selling in commerce, as herein set out, a line of products designated "Blue-Jay Bunion and Callus Plasters," "Blue-Jay Corn Plasters," and "Blue-Jay Liquid Corn Removers."

Par. 2. Said respondent, being engaged in business as aforesaid, causes said products, when sold, to be transported from its plant, which is located at 2500 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill., to purchasers thereof located at various points in States of the United States other than the State from which said shipments were made. Respondent now maintains a course of trade and commerce in said products distributed and sold by it, between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of its business, respondent is now, and has been, in substantial competition with other corporations and with individuals, and firms likewise engaged in the business of distributing and selling similar preparations, or other preparations or products designed and intended for similar usage, in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

In the course and operation of its business and for the purpose of inducing individuals to purchase its line of products, respondent has caused advertisements to be inserted in newspapers and magazines of general circulation throughout the United States, and has printed and circulated throughout the various States to customers and prospective customers advertising folders and other literature. Respondent also advertises its products by means of radio broadcasts. Examples of its aforesaid advertising with respect to its products are herein set out as illustrative of said representations but are not all inclusive.

BLUE-JAY STOPS PAIN INSTANTLY—REMOVES CORN COMPLETELY IN 3 DAYS WITHOUT DANGER OF INFECTION.

To 30,000,000 former corn sufferers the name “Blue-Jay” means foot comfort. It brought them a blessed new sense of relief—added zest for work and play—because it removed their corns safely and scientifically.

Here's how it works: The safe Blue-Jay medication gently undermines the corn. In 3 days the corn lifts out easily—completely. Soft felt pad lifts shoe pressure, stops pain instantly. Pad is held firmly by exclusive Wet-Pruf adhesive tape (waterproof) won't cling to stocking.

A CORN CRIPPLE FOR MONTHS WALKS IN 3 DAYS.

(Visitor): “An operation for a corn? Why, Mrs. Buckley—certainly you've heard of Blue-Jay. It's not an ordinary corn cure—but a scientific remedy that's quick, safe and works wonders.”

Three days later:

(Mother): “Now Billy, all we do is take the pad off, soak your foot and out comes Mister Corn, simple as that”.

(Billy): “Boy, oh Boy, that was easy. Blue-Jay certainly is my best friend.”

“We tried just about every kind of a corn cure, but it took Blue-Jay to do the work. Now I can run and play all I want to”.

Of course this is a unique case.

A CORN MUST COME OUT—ROOT AND ALL.
Your corn is like a tack in your toe! If you just pare the head off, you leave the rest of the corn to grow again—larger, uglier, more painful. Draw it out—swiftly, safely, gently,—with Blue-Jay! For Blue-Jay removes root AND ALL.

There is no danger of infection.
Blue-Jay gently loosens the entire corn—draws it all out.
Get rid of it for good.
No growing back of the same corn over and over again.
Corns keep coming back bigger, uglier unless removed root and all. Wonderful new ROOT-AND-ALL METHOD ENDS CORN FOREVER.
Soak foot ten minutes in hot water. Then the dead callus layer may be lifted off. • • • Very obstinate bunions sometimes require several plasters for complete removal of the callus.

Blue-Jay Plasters offer safe and effective treatment for bunions and Calluses.

35 years ago a famous chemist perfected the formula which makes Blue-Jay Corn Remover safe and scientific.

In all of its advertising literature, radio broadcasts, and testimonials, respondent represents through statements and representations herein set out and through statements of similar import and effect, that:

1. Blue-Jay Corn Plasters:
   (a) Remove corns completely without danger of infection.
   (b) Stop pain immediately.
   (c) Remove corns safely and scientifically and easily in 3 days.
   (d) Cure corns forever and remove completely the roots of corns.
   (e) Are a new way to remove corns.
   (f) Are safe and painless.
   (g) Are effective as a remedy or cure for corns.
   (h) Will cure corn cripples within three days thus enabling one crippled by severe corns to walk within 3 days.

2. Blue-Jay Liquid Corn Remover:
   (a) "Rids" feet of corns.
   (b) Eliminates pain. Is a new and improved liquid treatment for removing corns.
   (c) Is a safe scientific treatment.
   (d) Permits the user, after a period of time, to lift out corns.

3. Blue-Jay Bunion and Callus Pads:
   (a) Relieve pain and remove calluses.
   (b) Are a safe and effective treatment for bunions and calluses.

Par. 4. The aforesaid representations by respondent with respect to the therapeutic properties of its products, and the results obtained by the use thereof, are grossly exaggerated, false, misleading, and untrue. In truth and in fact, Blue-Jay Corn Plasters will not, in all cases, remove corns completely without danger of infection. Said plasters will not stop pain immediately and will not cause the easy removal of all corns within 3 days’ time. Blue-Jay Corn Plasters will not cure corns forever. Corns do not have roots, consequently plasters cannot remove completely the roots of corns. The Blue-Jay Corn Plaster method of removing corns is not a new or recent method. The use of Blue-Jay Corn Plasters is not, in all cases, safe and painless, and is not effective as a cure or remedy for the removal of corns. The use of Blue-Jay plasters will not cure corn cripples within 3 days and will not enable one crippled by severe corns to walk within 3 days.

Blue-Jay Liquid Corn Remover will not “rid” feet of corns and will not in all cases eliminate the pain incident to corns. Blue-Jay Liquid Corn Remover is not a new and improved liquid treatment for removing corns, the same having been in use for a great number of years. It is not always a safe treatment to use. The user of said preparation cannot, after the expiration of a short period of time, lift out corns on which said preparation has been used. Blue-Jay Bunion and Callus Pads will not relieve pain in all cases. Blue-Jay Bunion and Callus Pads are not in all cases a safe and effective treatment for bunions and calluses.

Par. 5. Each and all of the false and misleading statements and representations made by respondent as hereinabove set forth in its advertising in newspapers, magazines, pamphlets, testimonials, and over radio broadcasts in offering for sale and selling its products had, and now has, a tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that all of said representations are true, and into the purchase of a substantial volume of respondent’s products on account of such beliefs. As a result, trade is unfairly diverted to respondent from corporations, firms, and individuals likewise engaged in the business of selling similar preparations, or other preparations or products designed or intended for similar usage, and who truthfully advertise their products. As a consequence thereof substantial injury has been done, and is now being done, by respondent to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 6. The above and foregoing acts, practices, and representations of respondent have been, and are, all to the prejudice of the public and respondent’s competitors, as aforesaid, and have been, and are, unfair methods of competition within the meaning and the intent of section 5 of an act of Congress, approved September 26, 1914, entitled “An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes.”
Findings

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on February 1, 1938, issued and on February 2, 1938, served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondent Kendall Co., a corporation trading as Bauer & Black, charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On February 17, 1938, the respondent filed its answer in this proceeding. After the issuance of said complaint and filing of respondent's answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by George F. Foulkes, attorney for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by James H. Rogers of Rogers, Woodson and Rogers, attorneys for respondent, before A. F. Thomas, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and the said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto and the oral argument of counsel for the Commission and counsel for the respondent; and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

Findings as to the Facts

Paragraph 1. The respondent, Kendall Co., is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Massachusetts. Its principal office and place of business is located in Boston, Mass., at which point respondent is engaged in the manufacture of surgical dressings, textiles, and allied products. Respondent Kendall Co. operates a manufacturing division located in Chicago, Ill., under the trade name Bauer & Black, where it is engaged in the manufacture, sale, and distribution of a number of products for use in the treatment of corns, bunions, and calluses. These products are sold generally under the brand name “Blue Jay” and consist of: (1) Blue Jay Corn Plaster; (2) Blue Jay Bunion and Callus Plasters; and (3) Blue Jay Liquid Corn Remover.

In the conduct of its business, the respondent offers for sale and sells its Blue Jay line of products under the trade name of Bauer & Black in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia to retail dealers located at various points throughout the United States, who purchase said products for resale. When said products are sold, respondent causes them to be transported from its place of business in the State of Illinois to the purchasers thereof located at various points in the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. There has been for some time past and there still is a course of trade in respondent's products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the conduct of its business, respondent is and has been for some time engaged in substantial competition with other corporations, and with partnerships, firms, and individuals, engaged in the sale and distribution of like and similar products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of its business and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of its said Blue Jay line of preparations, respondent has caused various false and misleading statements and representations relative to the character thereof, their therapeutic value, and as to their effectiveness in use, to be made in price lists, advertising circulars, and in advertisements in newspapers and magazines having general circulation in the United States. Respondent also advertises its said products by the use of radio, billboards, window displays, and inside-the-store displays. Respondent spends in excess of $100,000 annually in advertising its Blue Jay products and its business in this line of products ranks with that of the country's largest.

All of said statements, appearing in respondent's advertising material and literature, purport to be descriptive of respondent's preparations for use in the treatment of corns, bunions, and calluses and of the effectiveness of such preparations when so used. Through such false and misleading statements and representations, respondent has represented directly and by inference that its Blue Jay Corn Plasters will remove corns completely without danger of infection; will stop pain immediately; will remove corns scientifically and easily in three days; that said plasters comprise a new way to remove corns, and will cure corn cripples within three days, enabling one crippled with corns to walk within three days; that its Blue Jay Corn Plasters will remove corns completely without danger of infection; will stop pain immediately; will remove corns scientifically and easily in three days; that said plasters comprise a new way to remove corns, and will cure corn cripples within three days, enabling one crippled with corns to walk within three days; that its Blue Jay Corn Remover will rid the feet of corns; is a safe scientific treatment for corns; and will permit the user after a period of time to lift corns out; and relieves pain immediately; that corns have roots and that respondent's aforementioned Blue Jay corn remedies enable the user thereof to remove corns forever, to remove the corn completely, roots and all; that the same corn will not grow back; that respondent's "Root-out-All" method ends corns forever; that its Blue Jay Bunion and Callus Plasters will remove calluses without danger of infection; and that respondent's said remedies are safe, painless, and eliminate the danger of infection.

Par. 4. The skin is composed of several layers. The outer layer or epidermis is composed of a substance called keratin. The keratinized layer is made up of dead cells which the body, in the course of its normal function, casts off daily. The next is known as the inner or transitional layer of the skin. The third and deepest layer of the skin is the dermis, in which are embodied the nerves, blood vessels, and glands of the skin.

The primary cause of corns, bunions, and calluses is irritation from either pressure or friction on the germinating layer of the skin. This irritation causes an enlargement of the blood vessels and an increased supply of blood. This causes, in turn, a proliferation or multiplication of skin cells. Keratin is thus formed in the epidermis faster than it can be sloughed off, resulting in an unusual mass at the point of irritation. When such masses build up on the toes in cone-like forms they are known as corns. Similar masses, flat in shape and occurring principally on the soles of the feet, are known as calluses. Bunions are larger masses of keratin formed usually over the joints of the feet.

Par. 5. The respondent's three products, when used in accordance with directions, embody substantially the same form of treatment. The corn and the bunion and callus plasters consist of felt rings attached to adhesive strips. In the center of the ring is a disc of medicament, containing from 41 to 43 percent of salicylic acid in a rubber base. The user is advised to attach the plasters by means of the adhesive strips so that the corn, callus, or bunion is within the ring.

Respondent's Blue Jay Liquid Corn Remover is a solution containing 13.4 percent of salicylic acid, and with it are supplied felt rings attached to adhesive strips. The user is advised to apply the solution directly to the corn, and to cover the area with the felt ring.

The felt rings are designed to surround the growth and protect it from outside pressure. The salicylic acid is designed to act upon the cornified tissue, softening it and facilitating eventual removal.

Par. 6. Respondent's products do not constitute a cure for corns, calluses, and bunions, since such growths will return again after temporary removal unless the pressure and irritation which caused them in the first instance is eliminated. Corns of long standing usually result in a chronic enlargement of the underlying blood vessels of the skin, and will return again after temporary removal without further irritation and pressure.

Respondent refers to the cone-like apex of corns as a "root," and represents that its products will remove corns, "roots and all." In fact this part of the corn is not a "root" in the ordinary meaning of that term, and is actually the part of the corn which is formed last. Furthermore, treatment with respondent's products cannot always be relied upon to remove entirely the cone-like portions of corns which project into the dermis.

Use of respondent's products cannot be relied upon to stop instantly the pain of corns or calluses. Such pain is caused by the pressure of the growth on the sensory nerves of the skin, and some time is required for pain to subside following application of a shield to relieve outside pressure on the corn.

Par. 7. The respondent has further falsely and misleadingly represented that its products which contain salicylic acid constitute a new way to treat corns, calluses, and bunions. In truth and in fact, the respondent's products do not constitute a new treatment for corns, calluses, and bunions. Preparations containing salicylic acid for treating corns have been in use since as early as 1840, and are recognized as a standard method of destroying or macerating tissue.

Par. 8. The use by the respondent of the above false, misleading, and deceptive statements and representations has the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive members of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such statements and representations are true. On account of such mistaken and erroneous beliefs, a substantial portion of the purchasing public has been induced to purchase said "Blue Jay" products from respondent, and thereby trade has been unfairly diverted to respondent from competitors who truthfully represent the quality and character of their products. In consequence thereof, injury has been done, and is being done, by respondent to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.
ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondent, testimony and other evidence taken before Arthur F. Thomas, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, briefs filed herein, and oral arguments by S. Brogdyne Teu II, counsel for the Commission, and by James H. Rogers, counsel for the respondent, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Kendall Co., a corporation, trading as Bauer & Black or trading under any other name, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of its products designated as Blue Jay Corn Plasters, Blue Jay Bunion and Callus Plasters, and Blue Jay Liquid Corn Remover, or any other products of substantially the same composition and intended for the same use and purposes, sold under any other name or designation, in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing that corns have a root or roots.
2. Representing that respondent's products will prevent the formation or recurrence of corns or calluses.
3. Representing that any of respondent's products constitute a new treatment for corns, calluses or bunions.
4. Representing that respondent's products will instantly stop the pain caused by corns or calluses.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.
Where a corporation engaged in manufacture of glucose or corn syrup unmixed, and in distribution and sale thereof to, mostly, candy manufacturer purchasers in other States, competitively engaged in sale to various customers, including chain stores, wholesalers, and retailers in various States and in the District of Columbia, of said product, in many kinds of which, made by each of such manufacturers, said syrup is one of major raw materials used in production thereof, and in which such syrup accounted for as much as 90 percent, or most of the weight, of some varieties, and for a substantial part of the total cost of manufacturing such candies—

Sold its said syrup at higher delivered prices per hundred pounds to purchasers located in cities other than Chicago than those at which it concurrently sold such product of like grade and quality to purchasers located therein, and at prices which were not uniformly higher than those at which product was being concurrently sold to Chicago purchasers, but which varied with geographical location of other cities in which such purchasers were located;

With result that through said varying prices, differences between which, not justified by it, made more than due allowance for differences in cost of delivery, it discriminated in price between such purchasers who paid such higher and varying prices for said product, and costs of which unfavored purchasers were increased over those of favored purchasers directly as the amount of the discrimination between them and as the syrup content of the candy increased, necessitating substantially lower profits to such purchasers and reduction in margin of profit, and of total profit in event of continued sale by them of their product at prices competitive with those of favored purchasers, and absorption, in such event, of higher syrup costs, and in reduction in total profit at least, through lost profit on diminished sales, in event of increase in price to cover higher syrup cost, with increased overhead from unused plant capacity following higher price and decreased sales volume; and

With result that, by reason of diminished ability of unfavored candy manufacturers paying such higher prices for syrup to compete in any event in sale of their candy with those paying lower prices for their said syrup, effect of such discrimination might be substantially to lessen competition between the favored and unfavored purchasers, to tend to create a monopoly in such favored purchasers, and to injure, destroy, and prevent competition with them:

Held, that in discriminating in price between different purchasers of glucose, under the circumstances set forth, said corporation violated provisions of section 2 (a) of the Clayton Act, as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act.

Mr. Frank Hier and Mr. Philip R. Layton, for the Commission.

Breed, Abbott & Morgan, of New York City, for respondent.
The Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that the respondent named in the caption hereof, and hereinafter more particularly designated and described, since June 19, 1936, has violated and is now violating the provisions of section 2 of the Clayton Act as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act, approved June 19, 1936 (U. S. C., title 15, sec. 13), hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges with respect thereto as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondent, Penick & Ford, Ltd., Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of Delaware with its principal office and place of business at 420 Lexington Avenue in the city of New York and State of New York.

Paragraph 2. Respondent owns and operates a plant at Cedar Rapids, Iowa. This plant has a corn grinding capacity in excess of 34,000 bushels per day, with complete facilities for the finished fabrication of all known corn products, both for household and industrial use.

Paragraph 3. For many years respondent has been and is now engaged in the business of manufacturing, selling, and distributing in interstate commerce products derived from corn. The principal products derived from corn are (1) starch, both for food and other purposes; (2) glucose or corn syrup; and (3) corn sugar. Starch is first manufactured from the corn, and glucose and grape sugar are made by treating the starch with certain acids, the resulting solid product being sugar and the resulting syrup being glucose. Glucose is largely used in the manufacture of candy, jellies, jams, preserves, and the like, as well as in the mixing of syrups.

The principal byproducts of corn resulting in the corn products business are gluten feed, corn oil, corn-oil cake, and corn-oil meal.

Respondent, in addition to bulk products, produces branded products.

Paragraph 4. For many years in the course and conduct of its business, the respondent has been and is now manufacturing the aforesaid commodities at said plant and has sold and shipped and does now sell and ship such commodities in commerce between and among the various States of the United States from the State in which its factory is located across State lines to purchasers thereof located in States other than the State in which respondent's said plant is located in competition with other persons, firms, and corporations engaged in similar lines of commerce.

Paragraph 5. Since June 19, 1936, and while engaged as aforesaid in commerce among the several States of the United States and the District of Columbia, the respondent has been and is now, in the course of such commerce, discriminating in price between purchasers of said commodities of like grade and quality, which commodities are sold for use, consumption, or resale within the several States of the United States and the District of Columbia in that the respondent has been and is now selling such commodities to some purchasers at a higher price than the price at which commodities of like grade and quality are sold by respondent to other purchasers generally competitively engaged with the first mentioned purchasers.

Par. 6. The effect of said discriminations in price made by the respondent, as set forth in paragraph 5 herein, may be substantially to lessen competition in the sale and distribution of corn products between the respondent and its competitors; tend to create a monopoly in the line of commerce in which the respondent is engaged; and to injure, destroy, and prevent competition in the sale and distribution of corn products between the respondent and its competitors.

Par. 7. The effect of said discriminations in price made by the respondent, as set forth in paragraph 5 herein, may be substantially to lessen competition between the buyers of said corn products from respondent receiving said lower discriminatory price and other buyers from respondent competitively engaged with such favored buyers who do not receive such favorable prices; tend to create a monopoly in the lines of commerce in which buyers from the respondent are engaged; and to injure, destroy, and prevent competition in the lines of commerce in which those who purchase from the respondent are engaged between the said beneficiaries of said discriminatory prices and said buyers who do not and have not received such beneficial prices.

Par. 8. The aforesaid acts of respondent constitute a violation of the provisions of subsection (a) of section 2 of the Clayton Act as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act, approved June 19, 1936 (U. S. C., title 15, sec. 13).

Report, Findings as to the Facts, and Order

Pursuant to the provisions of an act of Congress entitled "An act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies and for other purposes," approved October 15, 1914 (the Clayton Act), as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act, approved June 19, 1936 (U. S. C., title 15, sec. 13), the Federal Trade Commission on June 1, 1939, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondent Penick & Ford, Ltd., Inc., a corporation, charging it with discriminating in price between different purchasers of respondent's various products, in violation of subsection (a) of section 2 of said act, as amended.
Thereafter, on July 11, 1939, and pursuant to an extension of time granted by the Commission, an answer was filed by respondent. Thereafter on September 13, 1940, respondent by its counsel, entered into a stipulation as to the facts with W. T. Kelley, chief counsel of the Commission, which stipulation provided that the facts therein set forth were to be made part of the record herein and were to be taken as the facts in this proceeding and in lieu of testimony in support of the charges stated in the complaint or in opposition thereto, and that the Commission might proceed upon said statement of facts to make its report, stating its findings as to the facts and its conclusion based thereon and enter its order disposing of the proceeding without the presentation of argument or the filing of briefs all of which appears of record herein. Thereafter this proceeding regularly came on for final disposition by the Commission on said complaint and answer and the aforesaid stipulation of facts, briefs, and oral arguments of counsel having been waived; and the Commission having duly considered the same and being now fully advised in the premises makes this its findings as to the facts and conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Penick & Ford, Ltd., Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware and has its principal office and place of business at 420 Lexington Avenue in the city of New York and the State of New York.

Par. 2. Respondent has for many years been and is now engaged in the business of manufacturing, distributing, and selling glucose or corn syrup unmixed, which is one of the principal products derived from the refining of corn. For the manufacture of such product, respondent owns and operates a corn refining plant located at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, which has a corn grinding capacity in excess of 34,000 bushels a day with complete facilities for the manufacture of such product.

Par. 3. For many years respondent has been, and is now, manufacturing such glucose or corn syrup unmixed at said plant, and has sold and shipped and does now sell and ship such glucose or corn syrup unmixed in commerce between and among the various States of the United States from the State in which its said factory is located across State lines to purchasers thereof located in States other than the State of manufacture, in competition with other corporations engaged in similar lines of commerce.

Par. 4. Most of such purchasers so located purchase such syrup which is of like grade and quality for use in the manufacture of
Findings

1498 FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION DECISIONS

Such purchasers are competitively engaged in the sale of such candy to various customers including chain stores, wholesalers, and retailers, all located in the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 5. At all times since June 19, 1936, respondent has sold such syrup at higher delivered prices per hundred pounds to purchasers located in certain cities other than Chicago, Ill., than it has sold such syrup to purchasers located in Chicago, Ill.

The prices at which such syrup was sold by respondent to purchasers located in cities other than Chicago, Ill., were not uniformly higher than the prices at which such syrup was concurrently sold to purchasers located in Chicago, Ill., but such higher prices varied with the geographical location of the cities in which such purchasers were located.

Thus, on the following dates, respondent sold such syrup to such purchasers located respectively in each of the following cities at the delivered prices per hundred pounds which are shown opposite said cities for such syrup (43° Baumé):

At all times between the dates above set forth, substantially the same differences in and relationship between and among said prices above illustrated have existed as to such purchasers so located.

Par. 6. By selling such syrup at said different prices as found in paragraph 5 above, the differences between which prices have not been justified by respondent and which differences make more than due allowance for differences in the cost of delivery, it has discriminated in price between such purchasers who have paid the various different prices for such syrup.

Par. 7. Such syrup is one of the major raw materials used in the production of many kinds of candy manufactured by each of such candy manufacturers, accounting for as much as 90 percent or more of the weight of some varieties and for a substantial part of the total cost of manufacturing such candies; and said discriminations in the price of such syrup increase the costs of the unfavored purchaser over the costs of the favored purchasers directly as the amount of the discrimination between them and as the syrup content of the candy increases. By reason of such higher costs, the profits of the unfavored purchasers would be substantially lower than they would be if it were not for the discriminations.

Such effect on profits would result where unfavored purchasers sold candy manufactured by them at prices competitive with the prices of candy manufactured by the favored purchasers. Under such circumstances the volume of sales by the unfavored purchasers would not be affected, but, due to their absorption of the higher syrup costs, their respective margins of profit, as well as total profits, would be reduced below what they would be if it were not for the discrimination.

Similarly, where, in an effort to recover such higher syrup costs, unfavored purchasers sold such candy at prices higher than those charged by favored purchasers, their respective volume of sales would undoubtedly decline commensurate in some degree to the amount by which prices were increased. With such decline in volume of sales would come unused plant capacity and increased per unit overhead costs; and the price of the candy would have to be increased sufficiently, therefore, to cover both the higher syrup costs and higher overhead costs, if the margin of profit available in the absence of discrimination was to be preserved. Even though such margin of profit was not impaired, it would not be realized on the lost sales, and total profit would be diminished to the extent that volume of sales was reduced.

The loss of profits either by absorption of the higher syrup costs or from loss of sales resulting from increasing prices to recover such higher syrup costs would generally diminish the ability of those candy manufacturers paying the higher prices for such syrup to compete in the sale of their products with candy manufacturers paying the lower prices for such syrup.

Therefore, the Commission finds that the discriminations found in paragraphs 5 and 6 may substantially lessen competition between the favored and unfavored purchasers, tend to create a monopoly in such favored purchasers, and injure, destroy, and prevent competition with such favored purchasers.

CONCLUSION

The Commission concludes that in discriminating in price between different purchasers of glucose as set forth in the above findings of fact, the respondent, Penick & Ford, Ltd., Inc., has violated the provisions of section 2 (a) of the Clayton Act as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act.
ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer filed herein by the respondent, Penick & Ford, Ltd., Inc., and the stipulation of facts entered into between the chief counsel for the Commission and counsel for the respondent and filed herein, wherein counsel for respondent states his desire to waive hearings on the charges set forth in the complaint and not to contest the proceeding, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion based upon the stipulation of facts wherein respondent admitted the facts solely for the purpose of this proceeding, which findings and conclusion are hereby made a part hereof, that said respondent violated the provisions of an act of Congress entitled "An act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies and for other purposes" approved October 15, 1914, as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act, approved June 19, 1936 (U. S. C. title 15, section 13).

It is ordered, That respondent, Penick & Ford, Ltd., Inc., a corporation, its officers, directors, representatives, agents, and employees, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of glucose or corn syrup unmixed in interstate commerce to purchasers described in said stipulation of facts, do forthwith cease and desist:

1. From discriminating in price between different purchasers of glucose or corn syrup unmixed of like grade or quality, either directly or indirectly, in the manner and degree as found in paragraph 5 of the Commission's findings as to the facts and conclusion; from continuing or resuming such discriminations in prices as so found by the Commission, and from otherwise discriminating in price in manner and degree substantially similar to such discriminations as so found by the Commission.

2. From otherwise selling said products to some of the aforesaid purchasers thereof at a different price than to other purchasers, the effect whereof may be substantially to lessen competition or tend to create a monopoly in the line of commerce in which customers of the respondent are engaged, or to injure, destroy, or prevent competition with any person who either grants or receives the benefit of such discrimination, provided that nothing shall prevent price differences which make only due allowance for differences in the cost of manufacture, sale or delivery resulting from the differing methods or quantities in which such commodities are to such purchasers sold or delivered; and provided, further, that nothing shall prevent respondent from showing that its lower price to any pur-
Order

Chaser or purchasers was made in good faith to meet an equally low price of a competitor.

It is further ordered, That the said respondent, Penick & Ford, Ltd., Inc., shall, within 60 days after service upon its of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which its has complied with this order.
IN THE MATTER OF

MONTAGUE L. MERRICK AND EDNA H. MERRICK, TRADING AS MERRICK NATIONAL COMPANY AND CHOCOLATE CONFECTIONS COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 4097. Complaint, Apr. 23, 1940—Decision, Nov. 29, 1940

Where two individuals engaged in sale and distribution of candy, including certain assortments which were so packed and assembled as to involve use of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme when sold or distributed to consumers thereof, and which included (1) number of small penny pieces of candy of uniform size and shape, together with number of candy bars to be given as prizes and without additional cost to those securing by chance aforesaid pieces, concealed colored centers of which differed from those of the majority, and also together with a giant candy loaf to be given without additional charge to purchaser of last one of said pieces, (2) number of small penny pieces of candy, number of candy bars, retail value of which exceeded 1 cent, and a larger bar, together with a push card for use in sale and distribution of said candy under a plan, and in accordance with card's explanatory legend, by which those purchasers securing from card's various discs certain numbers received, in addition to one of small penny pieces, one of said candy bars, and purchaser of last small piece was entitled to and received larger bar without additional cost, and (3) various assortments involving lot or chance features in sale and distribution thereof to consuming public similar to methods of sale and distribution above described, and varying therefrom in detail only—

Sold to dealers such assortments and boards, for sale and distribution to consuming public in accordance with aforesaid sales plan or method, involving game of chance or sale of a chance to procure bars of candy at prices much less than normal retail prices thereof, contrary to an established public policy of the United States Government, and in violation of criminal law, and in competition with many who are unwilling to offer and sell candy so packed and assembled, as above described, or otherwise arranged and packed, for sale to purchasing public so as to involve a game of chance or any other method of sale that is contrary to public policy, and refrain therefrom;

With result that many dealers in and ultimate purchasers of candy were attracted by their said method and manner of packing same and by element of chance involved in sale thereof as above set forth, and were thereby induced to purchase such candy, thus packed and sold by them, in preference to that offered and sold by their said competitors who do not use same or equivalent method, and with tendency and capacity, through use of said methods and because of said game of chance, to divert unfairly to themselves substantial trade from their said competitors, exclude from candy trade all competitors who are unwilling to and do not use same or equivalent methods as unlawful, lessen competition in trade in question and create monopoly thereof in themselves and such other distributors of said product as use same or equivalent methods, and deprive purchasing public of benefit of free competition in trade in question, and to eliminate from such trade all actual, and exclude therefrom all potential, competitors who do not use such or equivalent methods, and with result, through use of methods aforesaid, that substantial trade had been and was being unfairly diverted to them from their competitors aforesaid, who refrain from use thereof:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

Before Mr. Miles J. Furnas, trial examiner.
Mr. D. C. Daniel, for the Commission.
Mr. Jerome Jackman and Mr. Donald O. Wright, of Minneapolis, Minn., for respondents.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Montague L. Merrick and Edna H. Merrick, individually, and as copartners trading under the names of Merrick National Co. and Chocolate Confections Co., hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Paragraph 1. Respondents Montague L. Merrick and Edna H. Merrick are individuals trading as copartners under the names of Merrick National Company and Chocolate Confections Co., with their principal office and place of business located at 617 Washington Avenue North, Minneapolis, Minn. Respondents are now, and for more than 1 year last past have been, engaged in the sale and distribution of candy to dealers. Respondents cause and have caused said candy, when sold, to be shipped or transported from their aforesaid principal place of business in the State of Minnesota to purchasers thereof in the various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, at their respective points of location. There is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, a course of trade by said respondents in such candy in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of their business respondents are and have been in competition with other individuals and partnerships and with corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of their business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondents sell and have sold to dealers certain assortments of said candy so packed and assembled as to involve the use of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme when said candy is sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. One of said assortments is sold and distributed to the purchasing public in the following manner: This assortment consists of a number of small pieces of candy of uniform size and shape, a number of bars of candy and a giant loaf of candy. The said bars of candy and said loaf of candy are to be given as prizes to purchasers of certain of said pieces of candy as follows: The majority of said pieces of candy of uniform size and shape in said assortment have centers of a certain color but the minority of said pieces of candy of uniform size and shape have centers of a different color. The said pieces of candy retail at 1 cent each. Purchasers procuring said minority pieces of candy are entitled to and receive, without additional charge, said bars of candy as prizes. The purchaser of the last one of said pieces of candy is entitled to and receives, without additional charge, the said giant loaf of candy. The colors of the centers of said pieces of candy are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until a purchase is made and the said pieces of candy are broken open. The said bars of candy are thus distributed to the purchasing public wholly by lot or chance.

Another of respondents' said assortments of candy consists of a number of small pieces of candy, a number of bars of candy and a larger bar of candy, together with what is commonly known as a push card. This assortment of candy is sold and distributed to the purchasing public in substantially the following manner: Said push card contains a number of partially perforated discs. Printed within each of said discs is a number. Sales are 1 cent each, and each purchaser is entitled to and receives one of said pieces of candy. Each purchaser selects and removes one of said discs from said card. The card bears statements or legends informing purchasers and prospective purchasers that persons selecting certain designated numbers each receive one of the said bars of candy, and the purchaser of the last piece of said small pieces of candy is entitled to and receives the said larger bar of candy without additional cost. The said numbers are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until a selection has been made and the selected disc separated or removed from said card. Each of said bars of candy has a retail value greater than 1 cent. The said bars of candy are thus distributed to the purchasing public by means of said push cards wholly by lot or chance.

The respondents sell and distribute various assortments of candy involving lot or chance features when said assortments are sold and distributed to the consuming public but such assortments, and the methods of sale and distribution thereof, are similar to the ones hereinabove described, varying only in detail.

Par. 3. The sale of said candy to the purchasing public in the manner above alleged involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure bars of candy at prices much less than the normal retail prices thereof. The use by respondents of said methods in the sale of their candy and the sale of such candy by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said methods is a practice of the sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of criminal law. The use by respondents of said methods has a tendency and capacity to hinder competition or to create a monopoly in this, to wit: That the use thereof has a tendency and capacity to exclude from the candy trade competitors who do not adopt and use the same or equivalent methods involving the same, equivalent or similar element of chance or lottery scheme. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell candy in competition with the respondents as above alleged are unwilling to offer for sale and sell candy so packed and assembled as above described or otherwise arranged and packed for sale to the purchasing public so as to involve a game of chance or any other method of sale that is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom.

Par. 4. Many dealers in, and ultimate purchasers of, candy are attracted by respondents' said method and manner of packing said candy and by the element of chance involved in the sale thereof, in the manner above described, and are thereby induced to purchase said candy so packed and sold by respondents in preference to candy offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondents who do not use the same or equivalent methods. The use of said methods by respondents has a tendency and capacity, because of said game of chance, to unfairly divert to respondents trade from their said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent methods; to exclude from said candy trade all competitors who are unwilling to, and who do not, use the same or equivalent methods because the same are unlawful; to lessen competition in said candy trade; to create a monopoly of said candy trade in respondents and such other distributors of candy as use the same or equivalent methods and to deprive the purchasing public of the benefit of free competition in said candy trade. The use of said methods by respondents has a tendency and capacity to eliminate from said candy trade all actual competitors and to exclude therefrom all potential competitors who do not use said methods or equivalent methods.

Par. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on April 23, 1940, issued and thereafter served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondents Montague L. Merrick and Edna H. Merrick, individually and as copartners trading under the names of Merrick National Co. and Chocolate Confections Co., charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in violation of the provisions of said act. On May 15, 1940, the respondents filed their answer in this proceeding. Thereafter a stipulation was entered into by and between counsel for the Commission and counsel for the respondents whereby it was stipulated and agreed that a statement of facts stipulated on the record were the facts in this case. Brief was filed by counsel for the Commission (respondents having waived filing of brief and oral argument before the Commission). Thereafter this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, answer, and stipulation, and the Commission having duly considered the same and being now fully advised in the premises finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

Par. 2. In the course and conduct of their business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondents sell and have sold to dealers certain assortments of saidy candy so packed and assembled as to involve the use of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme when said candy is sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. One of said assortments is sold and distributed to the purchasing public in the following manner: This assortment consists of a number of small pieces of candy of uniform size and shape, a number of bars of candy and a giant loaf of candy. The said bars of candy and said loaf of candy are to be given as prizes to purchasers of certain of said pieces of candy as follows: The majority of said pieces of candy of uniform size and shape in said assortment have centers of a certain color but the minority of said pieces of candy of uniform size and shape have centers of a different color. The said pieces of candy retail at 1 cent each. Purchasers procuring said minority pieces of candy are entitled to and receive, without additional charge, said bars of candy as prizes. The purchaser of the last one of said pieces of candy is entitled to and receives, without additional charge, the said giant loaf of candy. The colors of the centers of said pieces of candy are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until a purchase is made and the said pieces of candy are broken open. The said bars of candy are thus distributed to the purchasing public wholly by lot or chance.

Another of respondents' said assortments of candy consists of a number of small pieces of candy, a number of bars of candy and a larger bar of candy, together with what is commonly known as a push card. This assortment of candy is sold and distributed to the purchasing public in substantially the following manner: Said push card contains a number of partially perforated discs. Printed within each of said discs is a number. Sales are 1 cent each, and each purchaser is entitled to and receives one of said pieces of candy. Each purchaser selects and removes one of said discs from said card. The card bears statements or legends informing purchasers and prospective purchasers that persons selecting certain designated numbers each receive one of the said bars of candy, and the purchaser of the last piece of said small pieces of candy is entitled to and receives the said larger bar of candy without additional cost. The said numbers are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until a selection has been made and the selected disc separated or removed from said card. Each of said bars of candy has a retail value greater than 1 cent. The said bars of candy are thus distributed to the purchasing public by means of said push cards wholly by lot or chance.

The respondents sell and distribute, and have sold and distributed, various assortments of candy involving lot or chance features when said assortments are sold and distributed to the consuming public, but such assortments, and the methods of sale and distribution thereof, are similar to the ones hereinabove described, varying only in detail.

Par. 3. The sale of said candy to the purchasing public in the manner above described involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure bars of candy at prices much less than the normal retail prices thereof. The use by respondents of said methods in the sale of their candy and the sale of such candy by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said methods is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of criminal law. The use by respondents of said methods has a tendency and capacity to hinder competition or to create a monopoly in this, to-wit: That the use thereof has a tendency and capacity to exclude from the candy trade competitors who do not adopt and use the same or equivalent methods involving the same, equivalent or similar element of chance or lottery scheme. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell candy in competition with the respondents as above described are unwilling to offer for sale and sell candy so packed and assembled as above described or otherwise arranged and packed for sale to the purchasing public so as to involve a game of chance or any other method of sale that is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom.

Par. 4. Many dealers in, and ultimate purchasers of, candy are attracted by respondents' said method and manner of packing said candy and by the element of chance involved in the sale thereof, in the manner above found, and are thereby induced to purchase said candy so packed and sold by respondents in preference to candy offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondents who do not use the same or equivalent methods. The use of said methods by respondents has a tendency and capacity, because of said game of chance, to unfairly divert to respondents substantial trade from their said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent methods; to exclude from said candy trade all competitors who are unwilling to, and who do not, use the same or equivalent methods because the same are unlawful; to lessen competition in said candy trade; to create a monopoly of said candy trade in respondents and such other distributors of candy as use the same or equivalent methods and to deprive the purchasing public of the benefit of free competition in said candy trade. The use of said methods by respondents has a tendency and capacity to eliminate from said candy trade all actual competitors and to exclude therefrom all potential competitors who do not use said methods or equivalent methods.

As a result of the use of said methods in the sale of their candy by respondents substantial trade has been and is being unfairly diverted to respondents from their said competitors who refrain from the use of said methods.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents’
competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the

AMENDED AND SUPPLEMENTAL COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Kuhn Remedy Co., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its amended and supplemental complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Par. 1. Respondent, Kuhn Remedy Co., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Illinois, with its office and principal place of business at 1855 North Milwaukee Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Respondent is now and has been for more than 2 years last past engaged in the business of selling and distributing a medicinal preparation, formerly described as "Kuhn's Rheumatic Fever Remedy," now known as "Kuhn's Remedy" and intended as a treatment for various ailments of the human body.

Respondent causes its said preparation, when sold, to be transported from its aforesaid place of business in the State of Illinois to purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said preparation in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Par. 3. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business, the respondent has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning its said product by the United States mails and by various other means in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act; and respondent has also disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning its said product, by various means, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of its said product in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act. Among and typical of the false, misleading, and deceptive statements and representations contained in said false advertisements, disseminated and caused to be disseminated as hereinabove set forth, by the United States mails, by radio continuities, by advertisements in newspapers and periodicals, and by circulars, leaflets, and other advertising literature, are the following:

Kuhn's Remedy • • • You should try to alleviate the pain which causes you so much suffering in joints, muscles and tissues, and avoid the cause if possible, in order to prevent a recurrence of the symptoms. • • • It would be wrong to stop the treatment when a few more bottles of Kuhn's Remedy would have brought complete relief and satisfaction.

B. Anderson of Cuba, N. Y., writes:

It is now 9 years since I got Kuhn's Remedy after being in bed about 9 months • • • After taking the treatment the pains left me and that alone is worth more than every dollar in this world • • •

That is just what Kuhn's Remedy is intended to do, and that is why it should relieve Rheumatic aches and pains or neuralgia. The aches and pains have to go if you want to be free from suffering, so you can work, play and enjoy life. • • •

I WANT TO PROVE THIS TO YOU • • • I don't care how long you have been suffering from these painful conditions.

Kuhn's Remedy is compounded of ingredients that are recognized as being of value in the treatment of Acute Rheumatic-Fever and Gout, • • • for Aches and Pains of Rheumatism and Gout. It is also an aid in reducing temperature, caused by Rheumatic Fever.

Many people have had the pains of rheumatism, neuralgia, gout and lumbago for a long time. This might necessitate taking the medicine for a longer period of time—perhaps several weeks. When you have taken a few bottles of Kuhn's Remedy regularly, we feel confident that you will be happy and satisfied and be able to enjoy the privileges that go with good health.

No disease is more pitiless in the misery and distress it brings to the waning years of life than the various forms of Muscular Aches and Pains. • • • Those still young and middle-aged who are experiencing the touch of this tyrant disease, should lose no time in seeking its relief.
