FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION DECISIONS

FINDINGS AND ORDERS, NOVEMBER 1, 1941, TO JUNE 30, 1942

IN THE MATTER OF

MILWAUKEE JEWISH KOSHER DELICATESSEN ASSOCIATION ET AL.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3908. Complaint, Mar. 22, 1940¹—Decision, Nov. 4, 1941

Where a corporate association made up of five individuals who operated the only five delicatessen stores in the city of Milwaukee specializing in kosher products and who had, for a number of years, consistently dealt, as had their predecessors, in the "Wilno" or "Kosher Zion" brands of kosher meat products, or both, for which there had been developed such a demand that the success of a delicatessen store was substantially dependent upon its ability to handle one or both of said brands, purchased by said individuals from the two Chicago producers thereof or from their Milwaukee factory representative or distributor thereof, respectively;

Following the opening by one B of a retail delicatessen store specializing in kosher products, and said B's custom of keeping his store open seven days each week, including Fridays when the other five were closed, and of announcing, through signs, generally lower prices than those of his competitors, to whom such practices were objectionable; said B's failure to accede to suggestions from the aforesaid distributor that he heed complaints about his low prices and remove the signs, and his further refusal to become a member of the Association in question, upon finding that to do so would require his Friday closing and abandonment of his price signs; in pursuance of a common course of action and mutual understanding, with intent of lessening competition in said products and hindering sale thereof, as below set forth—

(a) Took measures to hinder, obstruct and prevent said B from purchasing aforesaid kosher and kosher style meats or allied products from said seller-manufacturers thereof; and

Where said two concerns, manufacturer-sellers of the aforesaid "Wilno" and "Kosher Zion" brand products, and their respective factory representative and distributor in said city, following unsuccessful efforts to persuade him to change his said practices in accordance with the wishes of said five delicatessen store owners—

34 F. T. C.

- (b) Refused to accept further orders from B for aforesaid products, essential to the conduct of his business, and further sought to prevent him from securing such products indirectly, through efforts to locate his sources of supply; with the result that B, unable to purchase from either of said concerns products in question through usual direct contacts, eventually abandoned purchase thereof from wagon jobbers in Chicago, as too expensive and otherwise unsatisfactory in choice and quality of products thereby obtainable;

With effect of unduly restraining and restricting interstate commerce in kosher meats and depriving the purchasing public in city aforesaid of the benefits of free and open competition in the distribution of such products:

Held, That such acts, agreements, understandings, and practices constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce.

Before Mr. Edward E. Reardon, trial examiner.

Mr. Lynn C. Paulson for the Commission.

Mr. A. V. Hiken, of Milwaukee, Wis., for Milwaukee Jewish Kosher Delicatessen Ass'n and its members.

PAR. 3. More than 1 year prior to 1940, respondents entered into an understanding, combination, agreement, and conspiracy, and thereafter have carried out and are continuing to carry out said understanding, combination, agreement, and conspiracy, to suppress, restrain, hinder, and lessen competition in the sale of kosher meat products in commerce between the several States of the United States and the State of Wisconsin; to control the sale and distribution of kosher meat products in the city of Milwaukee, Wis.; to stabilize the price at which kosher meat products are sold at retail in the city of Milwaukee, Wis.; to prevent and hinder individuals, firms, and corporations from operating establishments for the sale of kosher meat products at retail in competition with the establishments operated for such sale by these respondents; and to suppress, hinder, restrain, and eliminate competition in the retail sale of kosher meat products in said city of Milwaukee, Wis.

Pursuant to this understanding, combination, agreement, and conspiracy, and in furtherance of it, said respondents have performed and done, and are now performing and doing, the following acts and things:

(1) Established and maintained retail prices for kosher meat products in the city of Milwaukee, Wis.; (2) prevented the sale in the city of Milwaukee of kosher meat products manufactured in the State of Illinois and the several States of the United States other than the State of Wisconsin, and prevented distribution and shipment of kosher meat products manufactured in the several States of the United States other than the State of Wisconsin in and into the city of Milwaukee, Wis., in commerce; (3) prevented one or more individuals who operate a place of business for the sale and distribution of kosher meat products at retail in the city of Milwaukee, Wis., from obtaining supplies that are in demand by the purchasing public of the said city of Milwaukee, to wit, "Wilno," "Kosher-Zion," and "Sinai" brands of kosher meats, which said brands of kosher meats are available to respondent delicatessen and grocery store operators; (4) prevented one or more individuals engaged in the retail sale and distribution of kosher meat products in the city of Milwaukee from obtaining certain brands of kosher meat products well-known to the purchasing public of the city of Milwaukee and available to the respondent delicatessen and grocery store operators, and from obtaining said well-known brands of kosher meat products at prices and under conditions at which said well-known brands are available to the respondent retailers; (5) used other diverse methods and practices to fix retail prices for kosher meat products in the city of Milwaukee and to prevent individuals, firms, and corporations other than the respondents from purchasing kosher meat products from manufacturers and distributors thereof located outside the State of Wisconsin, and from selling and distributing kosher meat products in said city of Milwaukee.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on October 4, 1939, issued and subsequently served its complaint upon respondents Milwaukee Jewish Kosher Delicatessen Association, a corporation, Joseph Plotkin, Aaron Guten, Carl Guten, R. Cohen, and M. Guten, members of said respondent Milwaukee Jewish Kosher Delicatessen Association. After the filing of answers and the taking of testimony in support of and in opposition to said complaint, the Commission on March 22, 1940, issued and subsequently served its amended and supplemental complaint upon the aforesaid corporate respondent and the aforesaid individual respondents, individually and as members of the corporate respondent; and upon Vienna Sausage Co., a corporation, and Wilno Kosher Sausage Co., a subsidiary corporation, Jules Ladany and William Ladany, individually and as officers of Vienna Sausage Co. and Wilno Kosher Sausage Co.; David Berg & Co. and Irving Bisk and Philip Bisk, individually and as officers of David Berg & Co.; Sinai Kosher Sausage Factory and Jacob Levin, individually and as an officer of Sinai Kosher Sausage Factory; David Kurman, M. Zurkoff, and Louis Gross; Independent Neighborhood Grocers Alliance, a corporation, and its officers, J. I. Weiss, president, Louis Zbar, secretary, and Louis Berson, treasurer. By stipulation the amended and supplemental complaint was amended to include as a respondent Kosher Zion Sausage Co., a corporation. Respondents stipulated that the testimony and evidence taken pursuant to the original complaint be made a part of the record of the proceedings pursuant to the supplemental and amended complaint.

After the issuance of the said amended and supplemental complaint and the filing of answers by respondents, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by an attorney for the Commission and in opposition thereto by attorneys for respondents before an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the amended and supplemental complaint, the answers thereto, testimony and other evidence, report of the trial examiner and exceptions thereto, briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto, and oral arguments by counsel; and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

Respondent, Philip Bisk, an individual, is an officer of respondents David Berg & Co. and Kasher Zion Sausage Co. and is active in the direction and management of the business of said corporations.

Respondent, Sinai Kasher Sausage Factory, is a corporation of unknown domicile having its office and principal place of business at 3351-59 South Halsted Street, Chicago, Ill.

Respondent, Jacob Levin, an individual, is an officer of respondent Sinai Kasher Sausage Factory and is active in the direction and management of the business of said corporation.

Respondent, David Kurman, an individual, is the factory representative of respondent Wilno Kasher Sausage Co. in Milwaukee, Wis., and has his office and place of business at 342 North Walnut Street in that city.

Respondent, Max Zurkoff (referred to in the complaint as M. Zurkoff), an individual, has his office and place of business at 1128 West Walnut Street, Milwaukee, Wis., and is distributor in that city for the products of Sinai Kasher Sausage Factory.

Respondent, Louis Gross, an individual, has his office and principal place of business at 1531 West North Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., and is the distributor in that city for the products of the Kasher Zion Sausage Co.

Respondent, Independent Neighborhood Grocers Alliance, is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Wisconsin, having its office and principal place of business at 710 West Walnut Street, Milwaukee, Wis.

Respondent, Joseph I. Weiss (referred to in the complaint as J. I. Weiss), an individual, is a member and president of respondent Independent Neighborhood Grocers Alliance.

Respondent, Louis Zbar, an individual, is a member and secretary of respondent Independent Neighborhood Grocers Alliance.

Respondent, Louis Berson, an individual, is a member and treasurer of respondent Independent Neighborhood Grocers Alliance.

PAR. 2. Respondents Vienna Sausage Co. and its subsidiary Wilno Kasher Sausage Co., David Berg & Co. and its subsidiary Kasher Zion Sausage Co., and Sinai Kasher Sausage Factory, all of Chicago, Ill., are engaged in the production, sale, and distribution of kosher and/or kosher style meat products of many kinds and in the course and conduct of their respective businesses sell, and cause such products to be sold, to purchasers located in many States of the United States other than the State of Illinois, and cause such products, when sold, to be transported through and into other States.

PAR. 3. For many years there have been only five delicatessen stores in Milwaukee, Wis., specializing in kosher products; that is, products sanctioned by Jewish dietary law. These stores are operated by respondents Joseph Plotkin, Rubin Cohen, Aaron Guten, Carl Guten, and Meyer Guten, the last three named being brothers. On at least two occasions in recent years others have unsuccessfully attempted to operate delicatessen stores specializing in kosher products in competition with the respondents. The five operators of delicatessen stores named as respondents in this proceeding formed an association in about 1935 which they caused to be incorporated under the name "Milwaukee Jewish Kosher Delicatessen Association." Meetings of this association were held from time to time for the purpose of discussing and acting upon matters of interest to its members.

Kosher products are also sold at retail in Milwaukee by numerous grocers, but such stores carry limited lines of such products and the delicatessen stores depend largely upon meat products for their revenue. For a number of years the five delicatessen store operators named and their predecessors in business consistently dealt in the "Wilno" and/or "Kosher Zion" brands of meat products and there has been developed in Milwaukee among consumers of kosher and kosher style meat products a consumer preference and demand for these brands of products to the extent that the success of a delicatessen store is in substantial part dependent upon the ability of the operator thereof to purchase and have available for sale to customers one or both of these brands of meat products. The "Wilno" brand is produced and distributed by the Wilno Kosher Sausage Co., and the "Kosher Zion" brand is produced and distributed by Kosher Zion Sausage Co. There are other producers of competing products who sell in the Milwaukee market but the two named are the most important factors in the Milwaukee kosher meat products trade. The next in importance in that market is probably the Sinai Kosher Sausage Factory.

PAR. 4. The "Wilno" brand products are represented in Milwaukee by respondent David Kurman, a former delicatessen store operator. He is factory representative there for respondent Wilno Kosher Sausage Co., and to a limited extent calls upon customers of that concern, accepts orders for its products which he transmits to his principal, and attends to the adjustment of any disputes which arise between his principal and its customers. In most instances, however, purchasers of "Wilno" products in Milwaukee mail or telephone their orders to the factory in Chicago. In all cases shipments of "Wilno" products are made from the factory direct to the purchaser in Milwaukee and Kurman receives a commission on all such sales in Milwaukee regardless of whether or not the order was sent through him.

The "Kosher Zion" brand products are distributed in Milwaukee exclusively by Louis Gross, a brother-in-law of the three Guten brothers. Gross is a jobber and regularly solicits orders for "Kosher Zion" products from retailers in Milwaukee. Large orders for such products are filled by the shipment from the factory in Chicago direct to the purchaser in Milwaukee but smaller orders and emergency orders are filled by delivery from a stock of "Kosher Zion" products which Gross maintains.

The products of Sinai Kosher Sausage Factory are distributed in Milwaukee by Max Zurkoff, a jobber, who handles the "Sinai" brand products and numerous other commodities.

PAR. 5. In 1936 Carl Bach entered the retail delicatessen business in Milwaukee by opening a store at 923 West Walnut Street specializing in kosher delicatessen products such as pepper meat, corned beef, and numerous types of sausage and cold meats. At the time Bach opened his store he obtained his supplies of meats and meat products principally from Louis Gross, and to a minor extent from Max Zurkoff. In order to promote his newly established business Bach kept his store open 7 days each week and from time to time placed signs in the window of and inside his store announcing the prices at which various products were offered for sale to the public. Bach gradually became more important from a competitive standpoint. His practice of keeping his store open on Friday when the other five stores were closed and of announcing his prices (which were generally lower than those of his competitors) was objectionable to his competitors. Louis Gross advised Bach that he had received complaints from his other customers about the price signs which Bach maintained and about his prices being too low, and unless the signs were removed Gross might have to discontinue selling to him. Bach did not accede to this suggestion and after further remonstrances Gross refused to make any more sales to Bach.

Bach was invited by Joseph Plotkin to a meeting of the Milwaukee Jewish Kosher Delicatessen Association, which meeting was attended by the members of that association; namely, Plotkin, Cohen, and the three Gutens. At this meeting Bach was asked to become a member of the association on condition that he close his store on the day they had agreed upon; namely, Friday. Objections were then made by members of the association to the prices at which Bach sold certain of his products, including corned beef, wieners, and salami, and he was accused of "chiseling." Members of the association came to the conclusion that $1.25 for corned beef, 40 cents a pound for salami, and 38 cents a pound for wieners were the proper prices for those products. Bach was then selling wieners at 35 cents a pound, salami at 38 cents, and corned beef at 85 cents, which he considered fair prices affording him a reasonable profit. Understanding that if he joined he would have to assent to the Friday closing and abandon his price signs, Bach declined to become a member of the association.

PAR. 6. Having been unable to persuade David Kurman, the factory representative for "Wilno" products to accept orders from him, and Louis Gross, the distributor for "Kosher Zion" products having refused to make any further sales to him because of the objections of the members of the Milwaukee Jewish Kosher Delicatessen Association to his price signs and his refusal to close on Fridays, Bach began making trips to Chicago in his automobile and there purchasing and bringing home with him the brands of delicatessen meats which he wanted but could not purchase in Milwaukee. Bach continued these trips to Chicago at intervals of 1 or 2 weeks for several months, making purchases principally from the factories producing "Wilno" and "Kosher Zion" products. Finally, on the occasion of one of these visits to the salesroom of the "Wilno" plant in Chicago for the purpose of purchasing meats, he was called into the office of that concern, where Jules Ladany stated that he had learned Bach's identity and that objections had come to him from members of the Milwaukee Jewish Delicatessen Association to his making sales to Bach. Ladany advised him to get together with Plotkin, the Gutens, and the other delicatessen operators in Milwaukee, and stated that he would be willing to come to Milwaukee and arrange a meeting between Bach and the other delicatessen operators. Some time thereafter Jules Ladany and David Kurman called at Bach's store in Milwaukee and discussed with him the closing of his store on Friday and the removal of the price signs. After Bach declined to accede to suggestions concerning Friday closing and holding his prices to the level of the prices of other delicatessen operators, Ladany and Kurman left, advising Bach that they would discuss the matter with the other delicatessen dealers in Milwaukee and advise him. Nothing further was heard from these parties by Bach, and when he attempted to make further purchases from the "Wilno" plant in Chicago he was informed by the person there who had formerly served him that Ladany had ordered that no further sales be made to Bach, and thereafter Bach was unable to purchase "Wilno" products at the factory in Chicago.

During at least a part of the time that Bach purchased "Wilno" products from the plant in Chicago he also purchased "Kosher Zion" products from the plant of that concern in Chicago, and he had the same experience at that source of supply as he had at the "Wilno" plant. An officer of the concern producing "Kosher Zion" products talked to Bach on the occasion of one of his calls at the salesroom of the plant for the purpose of purchasing and advised him to get together with the other delicatessen operators in Milwaukee with respect to Friday closings and maintaining prices. Subsequently Bach was unable to make further purchases at the "Kosher Zion" plant.

For some time after Bach was unable to purchase from either the "Wilno" or "Kosher Zion" plants he secured the products of those concerns by purchasing from wagon jobbers of these products in Chicago by stopping them on the street and there purchasing supplies from them. At about this time Jules Ladany of the Vienna Sausage Co. and the Wilno Kosher Sausage Co. wrote to Aaron Guten under date of November 25, 1938, stating in part:

I want to further advise you about this other situation and I want you to believe me, that I do not sell this fellow directly, nor do we know from whom he is buying our product indirectly, and further than that, we are not encouraging this man to buy our products either directly or indirectly at this time. While I will be very happy to cooperate with you fellows toward trying to straighten out the situation, I certainly must have your cooperation in getting you to locate the source of his supplies, so that I can handle it from this end. You can understand that, being in Chicago, I am not able to find from whom he is buying—that will have to come from you in Milwaukee. However, I trust that the matter will be ultimately straightened out to everybody's satisfaction.

Subsequently, on December 6, 1938, Jules Ladany wrote Aaron Guten in part as follows:

I want you to know that we made several attempts to obtain the information which we discussed in Chicago a week ago Friday, but were unsuccessful in doing so; consequently I do not know what can be done relative to the matter at hand unless the desired information comes from someone in Milwaukee.

We still feel as we do about this situation; namely, that we want to be cooperative and if you fellows will take it upon yourselves to learn all the facts necessary, so that we can then handle the situation in Chicago, we will be only too happy to do it. As it stands today, we can do nothing about it, because we do not know where to start from.

If I feel a little better tomorrow or Thursday I may come to Milwaukee to see if we can check further in this situation. If I am not able to do this, would like to have you drop me a line and send me that information that I seek.

P. S. Copies of this letter are being forwarded to the other people in Milwaukee.

Similar letters were written on the same day by Jules Ladany to Carl Guten, Meyer Guten, and Joseph Plotkin.

Bach finally in large measure discontinued purchasing "Wilno" and "Kosher Zion" products from wagon jobbers in Chicago because their prices were higher than factory prices and because he was unable to secure a satisfactory choice of products of the quality desired.

As a result of continued pressure from competitors of Bach, Max Zurkoff, distributor of the products of Sinai Kosher Sausage Factory, refused to sell to Bach for a short period of time, possibly 2 weeks, but thereafter resumed selling to him. Bach, however, never purchased substantial quantities of "Sinai" products and for trade reasons was not particularly interested in this brand. There was no occasion for the Sinai Kosher Sausage Factory to refuse to sell to Bach and there was no such refusal. Respondent Jacob Levin of that company talked to Ladany and Bisk about the situation in which Bach was involved in Milwaukee but the record does not show that he took any action with respect thereto.

Some of the members of the Milwaukee Jewish Kosher Delicatessen Association were also members of the Independent Neighborhood Grocers Alliance. Apparently at the instigation of these common members the latter association cooperated with the former to a limited extent and for a short time with respect to the situation in which Bach was involved. The record does not indicate, however, that this cooperation was of material consequence.

PAR. 7. A number of the respondents have attempted explanations of their conduct on various grounds. For example, David Kurman testified that his refusal to accept orders for "Wilno" products from Bach was due to the fact that there were already enough outlets for "Wilno" products in Milwaukee and he did not desire to establish any more. Nevertheless, subsequently a member of the Plotkin family opened a new delicatessen store and was able to secure "Wilno" products without any difficulty. On direct examination Irving Bisk indicated only the vaguest knowledge of any difficulties Bach may have had in purchasing delicatessen meats and said that his company never refused to sell to Bach as far as he knew. He testified that he had never attended any meetings of the Milwaukee Jewish Kosher Delicatessen Association. A Commission attorney testified that he interviewed Irving Bisk prior to the issuance of the complaint in this proceeding and that Bisk stated to him that he had attended two or three meetings of that association. In subsequent testimony Bisk continued his denial of ever having attended a meeting of the Milwaukee Jewish Kosher Delicatessen Association and suggested that confusion may have arisen with respect to this because he may have said that he had talked to Plotkin, the Gutens, or Cohen at various times, and he further testified that he did not even know of the existence of the Milwaukee Jewish Kosher Delicatessen Association until the occasion of his interview with the Commission attorney. In this connection, the following is an extract from a letter written by Aaron Guten, secretary of the Milwaukee Jewish Kosher Delicatessen Association to Jules Ladany on October 14, 1937, prior to the date the Commission's attorney first visited Irving Bisk:

Our association has incurred some debts which have to be paid. When you were in Milwaukee last, we discussed said matter with you, and you agreed to pay 50 percent of said costs and the Kosher Zion Sausage Co. was to pay the 50 percent.

The testimony contains other contradictions, including blanket denials by certain of the respondents, but upon the whole record the Commission concludes that for many years the five members of the Milwaukee Jewish Kosher Delicatessen Association have in substance dominated that portion of the delicatessen business of Milwaukee specializing in kosher products; have worked with the Ladanys and the Bisks, concentrating in the distribution of the "Wilno" and "Kosher Zion" meat products so that they have become, and are, the most important products to the retail kosher delicatessen trade in Milwaukee; and, when unable to coerce Bach into joining with them, have attempted with the agreement, aid, cooperation, and assistance of the Ladanys, the Bisks, Kurman, and Gross to drive Bach out of business in the manner heretofore stated. The said understanding and agreements have had the tendency and effect of unduly restraining and restricting interstate commerce in kosher meats and of depriving the purchasing public in Milwaukee of the benefits of free and open competition in the distribution of kosher meats.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts, agreements, understandings, and practices constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint and amended and supplemental complaint of the Commission, the answers thereto, testimony and other evidence, report of the trial examiner and exceptions thereto, briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto, and oral arguments of counsel, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that certain of said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That respondents Milwaukee Jewish Kosher Delicatessen Association, a corporation, and Joseph Plotkin, Aaron Guten, Carl Guten, Rubin Cohen, and Meyer Guten, individually and as members of said association; Wilno Kosher Sausage Co., a corporation, and Jules Ladany and William Ladany, individually and as officers of said corporation; Kosher Zion Sausage Co., a corporation, and Irving Bisk and Philip Bisk, individually and as officers of said corporation; David Kurman, an individual; and Louis Gross, an individual; their representatives, agents, and employees; or any two or more of such respondents or their representatives, agents, and employees, either with or without the cooperation of others not parties hereto, do forthwith cease and desist from following a common course of action pursuant to any mutual understanding, combination, agreement, or conspiracy for the purpose or with the effect, directly or indirectly, of lessening competition in the course of trade in kosher and/or kosher style meat and allied products, or hindering, restraining, or preventing sales of any such products in the course of commerce to purchasers or would-be purchasers by the following methods, or any of them:

1. Hindering, obstructing, or preventing Carl Bach, or any other would-be purchaser in Milwaukee, Wis., from purchasing kosher and/or kosher style meats or allied products from manufacturers or other sellers outside the State of Wisconsin.

2. Hindering, obstructing, or preventing any manufacturer or other seller outside the State of Wisconsin from selling kosher and/or kosher style meats or allied products to Carl Bach or any other would-be purchaser in Milwaukee, Wis.

3. Requesting, advocating, or urging any course of action prohibited in paragraphs 1 and 2 hereof.

It is further ordered, For the reasons appearing in the findings as to the facts in this matter, that the complaint herein be, and the same hereby is, dismissed as to respondents Vienna Sausage Co., a corporation; David Berg & Co., a corporation; Sinai Kosher Sausage Factory, a corporation; Jacob Levin, individually and as an officer of Sinai Kosher Sausage Factory; Max Zurkoff, an individual; Independent Neighborhood Grocers Alliance, a corporation, and its officers, Joseph I. Weiss, Louis Zbar, and Louis Berson.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
 OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 4029. Complaint, Feb. 9, 1940—Decision, Nov. 4, 1941

(a) Supplied its customers with assortments of said merchandise together with Bingo sets, by means of which such merchandise was sold and distributed to the consuming public in a manner involving the operation of a game of chance, gift enterprise or lottery scheme under a plan providing that a player securing, by chance, necessary numbers, as drawn by game's operator, to call "Bingo" became entitled to receive as prize one of said articles, value of which exceeded cost of participation to players; and thereby

Supplied to and placed in the hands of others means of conducting lotteries in the sale of its merchandise, in accordance with aforesaid sales plan or method, involving game of chance to procure article of merchandise at much less than normal price thereof, contrary to established public policy of the United States Government, and in competition with many who, unwilling to use such or other method contrary to public policy, refrain therefrom;

(b) Sold and distributed devices commonly known as push cards and punchboards separate and apart from any other merchandise in interstate commerce including (1) push cards and punchboards with the legends or instructions printed on the face thereof explaining the manner in which they were to be used in the sale of various specified articles of merchandise, and that purchasers punching disks in the cards and thereby revealing certain lucky numbers received articles of merchandise without additional cost at prices much less than the normal retail price, and that others received nothing for their money other than the privilege of making a punch; and (2) similar devices for similar purposes bearing no instructions or legends thereon but having blank spaces provided therefor on which purchasers placed instructions of the same import as those printed on the aforesaid devices; and intended to be, and used only by ultimate purchasers thereof for distribution of other merchandise by lot or chance as above set forth;

packed and assembled assortments comprised of various articles of such merchandise, together with such cards and boards, and retail dealer buyers of such assortments, either as direct or indirect purchasers, and retailers who made up their own assortments, exposed same to purchasing public and sold or distributed such articles through use of said push cards or punchboards and in accordance with sales plans as above described; involving game of chance or sale of a chance to procure articles in question at prices much less than normal retail price thereof, and teaching and encouraging gambling among members of public, all to the injury thereof, and contrary to an established public policy of the United States Government, and in violation of criminal laws;

(2) Many members of purchasing public, because of element of chance involved in sale and distribution of said merchandise by means of said push cards and punchboards, and many retailers, were thereby induced to deal or trade with manufacturers, wholesalers, and jobbers selling and distributing their merchandise, together with said devices, in competition with many who, faced with alternative of descending to use of said cards and boards or other similar devices which they were under a powerful moral compulsion not to use, or suffer loss of substantial trade, did not thus sell and distribute their products, because of element of chance or lottery features therein involved, and because practices thus involved were contrary to public policy of United States; and refrained from supplying to or placing in hands of others such cards, boards or any other similar devices for such use; whereby substantial trade was unfairly diverted from said competitors to those purchasing and using its said devices; and

(3) It supplied thereby to and placed in the hands of others, through such sale or distribution of said push cards and punchboards, means of conducting lotteries, games of chance, or gift enterprises in the sale or distribution of merchandise to members of public, and means and instrumentalities for engaging in unfair methods of competition and unfair acts and practices:

Held, (1) That such acts and practices in selling and distributing assortments of merchandise, together with said "Bingo" sets, as above set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair acts and practices therein; and (2) That its acts and practices in selling and distributing said push card and punchboard devices, separate and apart from any other merchandise, to dealers for use in sale and distribution of their products, under circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of public and constituted unfair acts and practices in commerce.

Mr. L. P. Allen, Jr. and Mr. J. V. Mishou for the Commission.
Levin & Marshall, of Omaha, Nebr., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

individually and trading as Excel Merchandise & Novelty Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the interest of the public, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Max A. Wasserman, is an individual trading as Excel Merchandise & Novelty Co., with his principal office and place of business located at 1316 Farnam Street, Omaha, Nebr. Respondent is now and for some time last past has been engaged in the sale and distribution of sauce pans, dripolators, coffee percolators, pillows, smoking stands, electric table lamps, fountain pens, ash trays, and other articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent causes and has caused said merchandise when sold to be transported from his aforesaid place of business in Omaha, Nebr., to purchasers thereof, at their respective points of location, in the various States of the United States other than the State of Nebraska and in the District of Columbia. There is now and for some time last past has been a course of trade by respondent in said merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business respondent is and has been in competition with other individuals, and with partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of said business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, the respondent in selling and distributing his said merchandise has supplied his customers with assortments of said merchandise together with certain paraphernalia known as Bingo sets, by means of which said merchandise is sold and distributed to the consuming public in a manner which involves the operation of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. One of said Bingo sets consists of a tally sheet, containing 75 numbers; a number of Bingo cards on each of which appear 25 numbers arranged in a square, which numbers correspond to the numbers on the tally sheet; and a number of small wooden squares on each of which appears a number. Each of said Bingo cards has a different group of numbers thereon, and 1 of said cards appears substantially as follows:

By means of said Bingo set, said merchandise is distributed to the purchasing public in substantially the following manner: Respondent's customer, or someone designated by such customer, acts as an operator in the sale or distribution of said merchandise. The operator of the Bingo set places in the hands of each participant one of the said Bingo cards, and each participant pays the operator a designated sum of money for the privilege of participating in the distribution of each of said articles of merchandise. The operator then places the said wooden squares in a container and so mixes them that the numbers thereon are concealed until one of said wooden squares is withdrawn from the container by the operator. In the center of the participant's Bingo card is a square marked "Free" and each participant places a marker thereon before the aforesaid drawing of said numbers is begun. The operator then proceeds with the drawing of numbers from the aforesaid mixing container and calls out the number appearing on each wooden square as said square is withdrawn from said container and the person on whose card such number appears places one of said markers over such number. This same procedure is followed until one of the participants has succeeded in marking five numbers on said card, which numbers form a straight line across the card, either horizontally, vertically or diagonally. The sequence or distribution of the numbers which control the placing of the markers is determined wholly by chance. Upon marking the last of said five numbers the participant calls out the word "Bingo." The marked numbers are called out by the operator who checks the same with the numbers on said tally sheet, and if such numbers have been correctly marked the participant is entitled to and receives one of said articles of merchandise as a prize. The other participants receive nothing for their money. This same procedure is repeated until all of said articles of merchandise or prizes have been distributed. The articles of merchandise therein vary but each of said articles of merchandise is of greater value than the amount paid by each participant for participation in the distribution of said merchandise as above described. The said articles of merchandise are thus distributed to the purchasing public wholly by lot or chance.

Respondent has sold and distributed various Bingo sets and other devices for use in the sale and distribution of his merchandise to the consuming public by lot or chance, but the principle of operation in connection with each of said Bingo sets or devices is similar to the one hereinabove described, varying only in detail.

PAR. 3. The persons who have purchased respondent's said assortments of merchandise, together with said Bingo sets, either directly or indirectly, have used said Bingo sets in selling and distributing respondent's merchandise in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan or method. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of his merchandise in accordance with the sales plan or method hereinabove described. The use by respondent of said sales plan or method in the sale and distribution of his merchandise and the sale of said merchandise by and through the use thereof, and by the aid of said sales plan or method is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of criminal laws.

PAR. 4. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above alleged, involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure an article of merchandise at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms and corporations who sell or distribute merchandise in competition with the respondent, as above alleged, are unwilling to adopt and use said sales plan or method or any sales plan or method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other sales plan or method that is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of his merchandise, and by the element of chance involved therein, and have been and are induced to buy and sell respondent's merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or equivalent sales plans or methods. The use of said sales plan or method by respondent because of said game of chance has the tendency and capacity to and does unfairly divert trade in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia to respondent from his said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent sales plans or methods.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as hereinabove alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Max A. Wasserman, is an individual trading as Excel Merchandise & Novelty Co., with his principal office and place of business located at 1316 Farnam Street, Omaha, Nebr. Respondent is now, and for some time last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of devices commonly known as push cards and punchboards to dealers in various other articles of merchandise, in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondent causes and has caused said devices, when sold, to be transported from his aforesaid place of business in Omaha, Nebr., to purchasers thereof, at their respective points of location, in various States of the United States other than the State of Nebraska and in the District of Columbia. There is now and has been for some time last past a course of trade by said respondent in such push cards and punchboards, in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and distributes, and has sold and distributed, to dealers push cards and punchboards so prepared and arranged as to involve games of chance, gift enterprises or lottery schemes when used in making sales of merchandise to the consuming public. Respondent sells and distributes and has sold and distributed, many kinds of said push cards and punchboards, but all of said push cards and punchboards involve the same chance or lottery features, when used in connection with the sale or distribution of merchandise and vary only in detail.

Many of said push cards and punchboards have printed on the faces thereof certain legends or instructions that explain the manner in which said devices are to be used or may be used in the sale or distribution of various specified articles of merchandise. The prices of the sales on push cards and punchboards vary in accordance with the individual device. Each purchaser is entitled to one punch or push from the device, for the amount of money paid, and when a push or punch is made a disc or printed slip is separated from the push card or punchboard and a number is disclosed. The numbers are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until a selection has been made and the push or punch completed. Certain specified numbers entitle purchasers to designated articles of merchandise. Persons securing lucky or winning numbers receive articles of merchandise without additional cost at prices which are much less than the normal retail price of said articles of merchandise. Persons not obtaining one of the lucky or winning numbers receive nothing for their money other than the privilege of making a push or punch from said card or board. The articles of merchandise are thus distributed to the consuming or purchasing public wholly by lot or chance.

Others of said push card and punchboard devices have no instructions or legends thereon but have blank spaces provided therefor. On those push cards and punchboards the purchasers thereof place instructions or legends which have the same import and meaning as the instructions or legends placed by the respondents on said push card and punchboard devices first hereinabove described. The only use to be made of said push card and punchboard devices, and the only manner in which they are used by the ultimate purchasers thereof, is in combination with other merchandise so as to enable said ultimate purchasers to sell or distribute said other merchandise by means of lot or chance as hereinabove alleged.

PAR. 3. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell and distribute, and have sold and distributed, candy, cigarettes, and other articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, purchase and have purchased respondent's said push card and punchboard devices and pack and assemble, and have packed an assembled, assortments comprised of various articles of merchandise, together with said push card and punchboard devices. Retail dealers who have purchased said assortments, either directly or indirectly, or retail dealers who have purchased said devices direct from respondent and made up their own assortments, have exposed the same to the purchasing public and have sold or distributed said articles of merchandise by means of said push cards and punchboards in accordance with the sales plans as described in paragraph 2 hereof. Because of the element of chance involved in connection with the sale and distribution of said merchandise by means of said push cards and punchboards, many members of the purchasing public have been induced to trade or deal with retail dealers selling or distributing said merchandise by means thereof. As a result thereof, many retail dealers have been induced to deal with or trade with manufacturers, wholesale dealers and jobbers who sell and distribute said merchandise, together with said devices. Said persons, firms and corporations have many competitors who sell or distribute like or similar articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Said competitors are faced with the alternative of descending to the use of said push card and punchboard devices, or other similar devices, which they are under a powerful moral compulsion not to use in connection with the sale or distribution of their merchandise, or to suffer the loss of substantial trade. Said competitors do not sell or distribute their merchandise by means of push cards and punchboard devices, or similar devices, because of the element of chance or lottery features involved therein, and because such practices are contrary to the public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of criminal laws, and such competitors refrain from supplying to, or placing in the hands of, others push card and punchboard devices, or any other similar devices, which are to be used, or which may be used in connection with the sale or distribution of the merchandise of such competitors to the general public by means of a lottery, game of chance or gift enterprise. As a result thereof, substantial trade in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia has been unfairly diverted to said persons, firms and corporations from said competitors, who do not sell or use said devices.

PAR. 4. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public through the use of, or by means of, such devices in the manner above alleged, involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure articles of merchandise at prices much less than the normal retail price thereof, and teaches and encourages gambling among members of the public, all to the injury of the public. The use of said sales plans or methods in the sale of merchandise, and the sale of merchandise by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plans or methods, is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the government of the United States, and in violation of criminal laws, and constitutes unfair methods of competition in commerce, and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

The sale or distribution of said push card and punchboard devices by the respondent, as hereinabove alleged, supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries, games of chance, or gift enterprises in the sale or distribution of merchandise. The respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of said persons, firms and corporations the means of, and the instrumentalities for, engaging in unfair methods of competition in commerce, and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as hereinabove alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on February 9, 1940, issued and thereafter served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, Max A. Wasserman, individually and trading as Excel Merchandise & Novelty Co., charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said Act. Subsequently, the respondent filed an answer to the Commission's complaint admitting all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearings as to the said facts. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and answer thereto, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom :

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Max A. Wasserman, is an individual trading as Excel Merchandise & Novelty Co., with his principal office and place of business located at 1316 Farnam Street, Omaha, Nebr. Respondent is now and for some time last past has been engaged in the sale and distribution of sauce pans, dripolators, coffee percolators, pillows, smoking stands, electric table lamps, fountain pens, ashtrays, and other articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent causes and has caused said merchandise when sold to be transported from his aforesaid place of business in Omaha, Nebr., to purchasers thereof, at their respective points of location, in the various States of the United States other than the State of Nebraska and in the District of Columbia. There is now and for some time last past has been a course of trade by respondent in said merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business respondent is and has been in competition with other individuals, and with partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of said business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, the respondent in selling and distributing his said merchandise has supplied his customers with assortments of said merchandise together with certain paraphernalia known as Bingo sets, by means of which said merchandise is sold and distributed to the consuming public in a manner which involves the operation of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. One of said Bingo sets consists of a tally sheet, containing 75 numbers; a number of Bingo cards on each of which appear 25 numbers arranged in a square, which numbers correspond to the numbers on the tally sheet; and a number of small wooden squares on each of which appears a number. Each of said Bingo cards has a different group of numbers thereon, and one of said cards appears substantially as follows:

By means of said Bingo set, said merchandise is distributed to the purchasing public in substantially the following manner: Respondent's customer, or someone designated by such customer, acts as an operator in the sale or distribution of said merchandise. The operator of the Bingo set places in the hands of each participant one of the said Bingo cards, and each participant pays the operator a designated sum of money for the privilege of participating in the distribution of each of said articles of merchandise. The operator then places the said wooden squares in a container and so mixes them that the numbers thereon are concealed until one of said wooden squares is withdrawn from the container by the operator. In the center of the participant's Bingo card is a square marked "Free" and each participant places a marker thereon before the aforesaid drawing of said numbers is begun. The operator then proceeds with the drawing of numbers from the aforesaid mixing container and calls out the number appearing on each wooden square as said square is withdrawn from said container, and the person on whose card such number appears places one of said markers over such number. This same procedure is followed until one of the participants has succeeded in marking five numbers on said card, which numbers form a straight line across the card, either horizontally, vertically, or diagonally. The sequence or distribution of the numbers which control the placing of the markers is determined wholly by chance. Upon marking the last of said five numbers the participant calls out the word "Bingo." The marked numbers are called out by the operator who checks the same with the numbers on said tally sheet, and if such numbers have been correctly marked the participant is entitled to and receives one of said articles of merchandise as a prize. The other participants receive nothing for their money. This same procedure is repeated until all of said articles of merchandise or prizes have been distributed. The articles of merchandise therein vary but each of said articles of merchandise is of greater value than the amount paid by each participant for participation in the distribution of said merchandise as above described. The said articles of merchandise are thus distributed to the purchasing public wholly by lot or chance.

Respondent has sold and distributed various Bingo sets and other devices for use in the sale and distribution of his merchandise to the consuming public by lot or chance, but the principle of operation in connection with each of said Bingo sets or devices is similar to the one hereinabove described, varying only in detail.

PAR. 3. The persons who have purchased respondent's said assortments of merchandise, together with said Bingo sets, either directly or indirectly, have used said Bingo sets in selling and distributing respondent's merchandise in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan or method. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of his merchandise in accordance with the sales plan or method hereinabove described. The use by respondent of said sales plan or method in the sale and distribution of his merchandise and the sale of said merchandise by and through the use thereof, and by the aid of said sales plan or method is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of criminal laws.

Findings

34 F. T. C.

PAR. 4. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above found, involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure an article of merchandise at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell or distribute merchandise in competition with the respondent, as above found, are unwilling to adopt and use said sales plan or method or any sales plan or method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other sales plan or method that is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of his merchandise, and by the element of chance involved therein, and have been and are induced to buy and sell respondent's merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or equivalent sales plans or methods. The use of said sales plan or method by respondent because of said game of chance has the tendency and capacity to and does unfairly divert trade in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia to respondent from his said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent sales plans or methods.

PAR. 5. In the course and conduct of his business, the respondent is now, and for some time last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of devices commonly known as push cards and punchboards separate and apart from any other merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondent causes and has caused said devices, when sold, to be transported from his aforesaid place of business in Omaha, Nebr., to purchasers thereof, at their respective points of location, in various States of the United States other than the State of Nebraska and in the District of Columbia. There is now and has been for some time last past a course of trade by said respondent in such push cards and punchboards, in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 6. In the course and conduct of his business, as described in paragraph 5 hereof, respondent sells and distributes, and has sold and distributed, to dealers push cards and punchboards so prepared and arranged as to involve games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes when used in making sales of merchandise to the consuming public. Respondent sells and distributes and has sold and distributed, many kinds of said push cards and punchboards, but all of said push cards and punchboards involve the same chance or lottery features, when used in connection with the sale or distribution of merchandise and vary only in detail.

Many of said push cards and punchboards have printed on the faces thereof certain legends or instructions that explain the manner in which said devices are to be used or may be used in the sale or distribution of various specified articles of merchandise. The prices of the sales on push cards and punchboards vary in accordance with the individual device. Each purchaser is entitled to one punch or push from the device, for the amount of money paid, and when a push or punch is made a disc or printed slip is separated from the push card or punchboard and a number is disclosed. The numbers are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until a selection has been made and the push or punch completed. Certain specified numbers entitle purchasers to designated articles of merchandise. Persons securing lucky or winning numbers receive articles of merchandise without additional cost at prices which are much less than the normal retail price of said articles of merchandise. Persons not obtaining one of the lucky or winning numbers receive nothing for their money other than the privilege of making a push or punch from said card or board. The articles of merchandise are thus distributed to the consuming or purchasing public wholly by lot or chance.

Others of said push card and punchboard devices have no instructions or legends thereon but have blank spaces provided therefor. On those push cards and punchboards the purchasers thereof place instructions or legends which have the same import and meaning as the instructions or legends placed by the respondent on said push card and punchboard devices first hereinabove described. The only use to be made of said push card and punchboard devices, and the only manner in which they are used by the ultimate purchasers thereof, is in combination with other merchandise so as to enable said ultimate purchasers to sell or distribute said other merchandise by means of lot or chance as hereinabove found.

PAR. 7. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell and distribute, and have sold and distributed, candy, cigarettes, and other articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, purchase and have purchased respondent's said push card and punchboard devices and pack and assemble, and have packed and assembled, assortments comprised of various articles of merchandise, together with said push card and punchboard devices. Retail dealers who have purchased said assortments, either directly or indirectly, or retail dealers who have purchased said devices direct from respondent and made up their own assortments, have exposed the same to the purchasing public and have sold or distributed said articles of merchandise by means of said push cards and punchboards in accordance with the sales plans as described in paragraph 6 hereof. Because of the element of chance involved in connection with the sale and distribution of said merchandise by means of said push cards and punchboards, many members of the purchasing public have been induced to trade or deal with retail dealers selling or distributing said merchandise by means thereof. As a result thereof, many retail dealers have been induced to deal with or trade with manufacturers, wholesale dealers, and jobbers who sell and distribute said merchandise, together with said devices. Said persons, firms and corporations have many competitors who sell or distribute like or similar articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Said competitors are faced with the alternative of descending to the use of said push card and punchboard devices, or other similar devices, which they are under a powerful moral compulsion not to use in connection with the sale or distribution of their merchandise, or to suffer the loss of substantial trade. Said competitors do not sell or distribute their merchandise by means of push cards and punchboard devices, or similar devices, because of the element of chance or lottery features involved therein, and because such practices are contrary to the public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of criminal laws, and such competitors refrain from supplying to, or placing in the hands of, others push card and punchboard devices, or any other similar devices, which are to be used, or which may be used, in connection with the sale or distribution of the merchandise of such competitors to the general public by means of a lottery, game of chance, or gift enterprise. As a result thereof, substantial trade in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia has been unfairly diverted from said competitors who do not sell or use said devices to persons, firms, and corporations who purchase and use said devices of the respondent.

PAR. 8. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public through the use of, or by means of, such devices in the manner above found, involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure articles of merchandise at prices much less than the normal retail price thereof, and teaches and encourages gambling among members of the public, all to the injury of the public. The use of said sales plans or methods in the sale of merchandise, and the sale of merchandise by and through the use thereof, and by the aid of said sales plans or methods, is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States, and in violation of criminal laws, and constitutes unfair methods of competition in commerce, and unfair acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

The sale or distribution of said push card and punchboard devices by the respondent, as hereinabove found, supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries, games of chance, or gift enterprises in the sale or distribution of merchandise. The respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of said persons, firms, and corporations the means of, and the instrumentalities for, engaging in unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent in selling and distributing his said assortments of merchandise, together with Bingo sets, as hereinabove found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and the aforesaid acts and practices of respondent in selling and distributing said push card and punchboard devices separate and apart from any other merchandise to dealers for use in the sale and distribution of said dealers' merchandise, as hereinabove found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

3. Supplying to or placing in the hands of others Bingo sets, punchboards, push or pull cards or other devices, either with assortments of merchandise or separately, by which said Bingo sets, punchboards, push or pull cards or other devices are to be used or may be used in selling or distributing said merchandise to the public by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

IN THE MATTER OF
SALT PRODUCERS' ASSOCIATION ET AL

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 4320. Complaint, Sept. 18, 1940—Decision, Nov. 10, 1941

Where a salt producers' association; twenty salt producers, members thereof with one exception, manufacturing, selling, and distributing a large percentage of all the salt produced in the United States, and in active and substantial competition with each other and with other members of the industry prior to and but for the practices below described; and a corporation which they employed for the purposes below set forth, together with its president and treasurer—

Entered into and carried out certain agreements, combinations, and conspiracies with intent and effect of restraining, monopolizing, and suppressing and eliminating competition in the interstate sale of salt; and pursuant thereto and in furtherance thereof—

- (a) Concertedly fixed and maintained uniform prices, terms, and conditions in the sale of salt; set up a system of price zones throughout the United States and agreed to and did cooperate in the maintenance of delivered prices which they fixed and established within each of such zones;
- (b) Agreed to and did exchange price lists and information for use in fixing delivered zone prices, discounts, and terms and conditions of sale;
- (c) Agreed to and did curtail production of salt; and
- (d) Agreed to and did file invoices and other reports with said association to secure enforcement of such agreements; and

Where said association, pursuant to such understandings, etc.,—

- (e) Collected from and distributed among such producers and other participants in said agreements useful statistics, lists showing the current delivered prices, terms, and conditions of sale, names of dealers and distributors to be allowed special discounts, and other information; and

Where corporation above referred to, employed by producers herein from about November 1935 to about August 1939, and its president and treasurer;

Following their preliminary survey of the business concerned and distribution among producers herein of composite figures (and to each separate producer, corresponding figures pertaining to it alone) covering volume of sales and average yield f. o. b. plant for delivered price zones established, plant capacity, marketing expense, and financial returns; report of its conclusion that there was a large excess productive capacity, that composite net earnings were small in relation to investment, that composite figure of sales expenses was inordinate in relation to prices received, and that such conditions were caused by efforts of each participant to obtain an increased portion of the total volume of business without due regard to net return and sales expense; and advice that the consequences of continuance of such practice would inevitably be an inadequate return upon investment to the individual participant, and excessive and uneconomic marketing costs;

- (f) Collected and disseminated aforesaid business figures monthly with sales figures reduced to common denominator terms for the several grades of salt involved; prepared and distributed to participants a composite annual financial statement; at monthly meetings of the association explained current statistics prepared by them and submitted charts indicating current volume and net dollar realization for the various zones, along with opinion as to the trend of demand and the volume of consumption to be expected; sent a separate monthly chart to each participant showing relation of his current volume to total expected demand, in comparison with relation of his prior volume to past total volume; audited participants' statistical data at their offices advising each individual management that, in sale of a homogenous product such as salt, they could increase their normal volume relationship only by taking some of another producer's volume at lowered prices which would inevitably be met by other participants, with result of further reducing return upon investment; and urged any participating management producing at a greater rate than its past production to consider the injurious consequences to it if it continued to produce at such higher ratio; and

Where said producer members, incident to aforesaid surveys and program; as stated—

(g) Cooperatively reported and submitted the intimate details of their businesses the analysis of experts jointly employed, and obtained from them a harmonized estimate of current and future market conditions, and thereby, and through use of other methods as above set forth, acted in concert to preserve a static condition of their respective businesses with regard to production, sales, and delivered prices, and to maintain price zones within which they made effective such prices from their widely separated producing plants; and

Where aforesaid non-member participant—

(h) Cooperated with the members of said association in carrying out the agreements, combinations and conspiracies herein set forth;

With the result that the normal conflict of contending competitive forces engendered by an honest desire for gain was thereby restrained and suppressed, and that competition in price and otherwise to which the public had long looked for protection was destroyed, and with the effect of unduly restricting and restraining the sale of salt in trade in commerce; of eliminating competition as aforesaid; and of substantially enhancing prices to the consuming public and maintaining prices at artificial levels, and otherwise depriving the public of the benefits that would flow from normal competition:

Held, That the acts and practices above described, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice of the public, had a dangerous tendency to and did actually hinder and prevent price competition between and among said producers in the sale of salt in commerce, placed in them the power to control and enhance prices, created in them a monopoly in the sale of salt in commerce, unreasonably restrained such commerce, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Thereafter this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, substitute answers and answers and statements of admitted facts; and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

Respondent, American Salt Corporation, is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Delaware, with its principal office and place of business in the New York Life Building, Kansas City, Mo.

Respondent, Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, Inc. (the corporate name of which was Stevenson Corporation until about August 6, 1940, and which was referred to in the complaint under its said former name) is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under the laws of the State of New York, having its principal place of business at 19 West Forty-fourth Street, New York, N. Y. The individual respondents Charles R. Stevenson, T. M. Harrison, C. H. Ferris, N. M. Perris, A. H. Dyer, R. E. Case, F. L. Sweetser, W. R. Guthrie, A. P. Nonweiler, S. M. Hudson, R. R. Bliss, L. B. Platt, Howard Marvin, and D. M. Metzger (referred to in the complaint as members of a partnership trading under the name Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison) are, with the exception of Charles R. Stevenson and

D. M. Metzger, employees of respondent Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, Inc., the said Charles R. Stevenson and D. M. Metzger being, respectively, president and treasurer of said corporation. Respondent E. G. Ackerman (referred to in the complaint as a member of said partnership) was an employee of Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, Inc., until about December 31, 1940, at which time he terminated his connection with said corporation.

PAR. 2. The respondents, Avery Salt Co., Barton Salt Co., The Carey Salt Co., Cayuga Rock Salt Co., Colonial Salt Co., Detroit Rock Salt Co., Diamond Crystal Salt Co., Inc., International Salt Co., Jefferson Island Salt Co., Inc., Hardy Salt Co., Morton Salt Co., Myles Salt Co., Ltd., Mulkey Salt Co., Ohio Salt Co., Ruggles & Rademaker Salt Co., Saginaw Salt Products Co., Union Salt Co., Watkins Salt Co., Worcester Salt Co., and American Salt Corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent producers, in the course and conduct of their business manufacture, sell, and distribute a large percentage of all the salt produced in the United States. Said producers sell their products to wholesalers, dealers, and consumers located at various points throughout the United States and when sales are made, and as a part thereof, regularly have shipped, and do ship, said products to the purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in the several States of the United States other than in the States of origin of the shipments. Said respondent producers maintain a current of trade in commerce in said products between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. Prior to the adoption of the practices hereinafter described said respondent producers were in active and substantial competition with each other and with other members of the industry in making, and seeking to make, sales of their products in trade in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. But for the practices hereinafter described such active and substantial competition would have continued until the present and said respondent producers would now be in active and substantial competition with each other and with other members of the industry. Beginning about October 1935 all the respondents except T. M. Harrison, C. H. Ferris, N. M. Perris, E. G. Ackerman, A. H. Dyer, R. E. Case, F. L. Sweetser, W. R. Guthrie, A. P. Nonweiler, S. M. Hudson, R. R. Bliss, L. B. Platt, and Howard Marvin entered into, and thereafter carried out, certain understandings, agreements, combinations, and conspiracies for the purpose and with the effect of restricting, restraining, monopolizing, suppressing, and eliminating competition in the sale of salt in trade in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. Pursuant to said understandings, agreements, combinations, and conspiracies, and in furtherance thereof, said respondent producers, with the active cooperation of respondents, Salt Producers Association, Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, Inc., Charles R. Stevenson, and D. M. Metzger, have done and performed the following acts and things:

1. Said respondent producers agreed to fix and maintain, and have fixed and maintained, uniform prices and terms and conditions in the sale of salt.

2. Said respondent producers have agreed to establish, and have established, a system of zones throughout the United States to aid in the establishment and fixing of delivered prices of salt within each of such zones.

3. Said respondent producers have agreed to cooperate, and have cooperated, in the maintenance of the various delivered prices determined for particular zones.

4. Said respondent producers have agreed to exchange, and have exchanged, through the medium of said respondent association, price lists in order to establish the delivered prices at which salt is to be sold within the various zones.

5. Said respondent producers have agreed to exchange, and have exchanged, information to be used in connection with the fixing of delivered prices within the various zones, discounts, and terms, and conditions in the sale of salt.

6. Said respondent producers have agreed to curtail, and have curtailed, the production of salt, and for the purpose of securing enforcement of the agreement to curtail production respondent dealers have filed, and do file, with said respondent association invoices and other reports.

7. Said respondent association collects from and distributes among the respondent producers and other participants in said agreements statistical information used and useful in carrying out said agreements, and distributes from time to time among said respondent producers and other members of the industry participating in said agreements lists showing the current delivered prices, terms, and conditions of sale, names of dealers and distributors to be allowed special discounts, and other information used and useful in carrying out said agreements.

8. Respondent, Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, Inc., was employed by said respondent producers from about November 1935 to about August 1939. As an employee of respondent producers Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, Inc., and Charles R. Stevenson and D. M. Metzger, as president and treasurer thereof, respectively, in the course and conduct of their business as aforesaid, have actively participated in directing, recommending, and supervising the foregoing acts and things done by said respondent producers in furtherance of said understandings, agreements, combinations, and conspiracies. In that connection they were employed by each of the respondent producers in November 1935, to make a survey of all the business of the production, sale, and distribution of salt which had been conducted by said respondent producers during the previous period of four years and ten months. Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, Inc., through said survey developed figures for various kinds of salt covering production, sales (both by volume and dollar realization), plant capacities, marketing expenses, and financial returns. There were established in the United States certain marketing territories or delivered price zones and the survey developed for each of the years covered by it, among other things, the volume of salt sold in each of said territories or zones and the average yield f. o. b. plant from said sales. Figures obtained from the respondent producers were combined in the survey to make composite figures. Each of said respondent producers was furnished these composite figures, together with its own individual figures, for each of the years covered by the survey, but no respondent participating in the survey was given any figures of any other respondent.

The survey further covered a study of the plant capacity to manufacture salt of each of the respondents participating in the survey, which likewise was combined into a composite figure, a study of marketing expenses combined into a composite figure, and a compilation of the financial returns likewise combined into a composite figure. Each respondent participating in the survey was given his plant capacity as compared with the total capacity of all of the respondents, his marketing expenses as compared with the composite marketing expense figure, and his financial return as compared with the composite financial return figure. No respondent was given the figures of any other respondent participating in the survey with respect to the plant capacity, the marketing expenses, or the financial return of any other respondent.

Said survey was completed in April 1936 and was presented to the individual respondent producers at a meeting in Chicago, Ill., in that month. At said meeting the facts developed by said survey were discussed by representatives of Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, Inc., and it was pointed out that the composite figures developed by said survey indicated two things: First, that there was a large excess of capacity to produce salt over the demand therefor, and that the composite net earnings of the respondents participating in the survey were small in relation to the investment in plants and properties; and, second, that the composite figure of sales expenses was inordinate in relation to the sales price received for the product. The representatives of Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, Inc., further expressed the view that the conditions disclosed by these composite figures were caused by unremitting efforts of each individual respondent participating in the survey to obtain for himself an increased portion of the total volume of business obtainable without due regard to the net return on sales of the product and without due consideration to the sales expense involved.

For a period of some 30 days after said meeting in Chicago, representatives of Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, Inc., visited the offices of the respondents who had participated in said survey and discussed with officials of said respondents the details of said survey as applied to the individual business of said respondents. On said visits representatives of Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, Inc., advised the individual managements of the respondents participating in said survey that if each said individual management should continue in the endeavor to secure a volume of business entirely disproportionate to that obtained in the past and as indicated by the survey, the consequences of such action would inevitably be an inadequate return to the individual respondent upon investment and excessive and uneconomic cost of marketing the product, and that it was the opinion of Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, Inc., that these were the fundamental economic truths developed by the survey.

After this work was completed another meeting of representatives of the respondent producers was held with representatives of Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, Inc., and at this meeting said respondent producers employed Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, Inc., to collect monthly from each participating respondent its business figures for each marketing territory or zone covering production, sales (both by volume and dollar realization), and marketing expenses, and to disseminate to each participating respondent composite figures of production, sales (both by volume and dollar realization), and marketing expenses, and likewise to set out against such composite figures for each participating respondent its own individual figures. As the figures were to deal with several classes or grades of salt differing substantially in value, all figures covering sales were to be reduced to common denominator terms. It was also understood that Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, Inc., would collect annually financial statements from those of the participating respondents who were willing to furnish the same and from these figures would prepare a composite financial statement which would be distributed to those of the respondents who gave their individual financial statements. It was understood further that Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, Inc., would from time to time send its representatives to the offices of the participating respondents to audit the figures submitted to it by said participating respondents so that there could be an assurance of the accuracy of all figures collected and disseminated by Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, Inc. No participating respondent was to be given, nor was any such respondent actually given, the individual figures of any other participating respondent with respect to production, sales (both by volume and dollar realization), marketing expenses, or financial figures.

The respondent Salt Producers Association held meetings of its members monthly, and after the employment of Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, Inc., by said respondent producers one or more representatives of Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, Inc., attended these meetings. At these meetings such representative or representatives explained the current statistics prepared and submitted charts indicating for various delivered price zones current volume and net dollar realization, and at times indicated their opinions of the trend of demand for salt and the volume of consumption to be expected in the various marketing territories or delivered price zones, and sent a separate chart each month to each participating respondent showing its current volume and the relation thereof to the total expected demand in comparison with its actual prior volume and the actual past total volume.

From time to time Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, Inc., sent representatives to the offices of the participating respondents to audit the statistical data submitted to Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, Inc., and to impress upon the management of each individual participating respondent the necessity of considering the consequences to each individual business of any substantial variance from its ratio of actual past production as shown by the survey. The managements of the participating respondents were told by these representatives of Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, Inc., that they could increase their normal volume relationship with respect to current business only by taking some of another producer's volume; that in the sale of a homogenous product such as salt any attempt to secure such increased volume could only be made by lowering price; that if lower prices were offered by one participating respondent they would inevitably be met by other participating respondents, so that the final result would not be to obtain any substantial increased volume of business but merely to lower the entire price structure and thus further to reduce the return upon investment. When current statistical data disclosed that one of the participating respondents was producing at a rate substantially greater than its past production as disclosed by the survey, a representative of Stevenson, Jordan & Harrison, Inc., urged such respondent's management to consider the injurious consequences to the company if it continued to produce at this higher ratio and did not relate its production to the volume relationship between its past production and the total production as disclosed by the survey figures.

The surveys and program as above described were made and carried out in every particular. Respondent members thereby cooperatively reported and submitted the intimate details of their respective businesses for the analysis of experts and interpreters jointly employed and obtained from them a harmonized estimate of current and future market conditions. Respondent members thereby, and through the use of the other methods set forth in paragraphs 3 and 4 of these findings, have acted in concert and in cooperation to preserve a static condition of their respective businesses with regard to production, sales, and delivered prices and in the maintenance of price zones within which they made effective the same delivered prices from their respective and widely separated producing plants. The normal conflict of contending competitive forces engendered by an honest desire for gain was thereby restrained and suppressed. By the substitution of such concerted action for such conflict respondents destroyed that competition in price, and otherwise, to which the public has long looked for protection.

9. The respondent, American Salt Corporation, is not, and has not been at any time mentioned herein, a member of respondent Salt Producers Association, but has cooperated and acted in concert with the members of respondent association in carrying out the agreements, combination, and conspiracies herein found.

PAR. 5. Each of the respondents herein except T. M. Harrison, C. H. Ferris, N. M. Perris, E. G. Ackerman, A. H. Dyer, R. E. Case, F. L. Sweetser, W. R. Guthrie, A. P. Nonweiler, S. M. Hudson, R. R. Bliss, L. B. Platt, and Howard Marvin, at the times herein mentioned acted in concert with one or more of the other respondents in doing and performing the acts and things hereinabove found in furtherance of said understandings, agreements, combination, and conspiracies.

PAR. 6. The aforesaid understandings, agreements, combinations, and conspiracies, and the things done thereunder and pursuant thereto, and in furtherance thereof, as hereinabove found, have had, and do have, the effect of unduly restricting and restraining the sale of said salt in trade in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia; of substantially enhancing prices to the consuming public and maintaining prices at artificial levels and otherwise depriving the public of the benefits that would flow from normal competition between and among the respondents in said commerce, and of eliminating competition between and among said respondents.

CONCLUSION

The acts and practices of the respondents as herein found are all to the prejudice of the public, have a dangerous tendency to, and have, actually hindered and prevented price competition between and among respondents in the sale of salt in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, have placed in respondents the power to control and enhance prices, have created in the respondents a monopoly in the sale of salt in such commerce, have unreasonably restrained such commerce in salt, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND MODIFIED ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914, AND OF SEC. 3 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED OCT. 15, 1914

Docket 3152. Complaint, June 15, 1937—Decision, Nov. 12, 1941

Where a corporate automobile manufacturer, products of which, including parts and accessories made through several subsidiaries, constituted a substantial portion of all those made and sold in the United States, and which operated through five motorcar divisions, named to correspond with the cars made by it; and a sales corporation to and through which it competitively sold such automobile parts, etc., and which (1) supervised its dealers through a large field organization, (2) entered into agreements or "franchises" with them, under which dealer undertook not to sell or use second-hand parts or any not made or authorized by manufacturer, seller had right to check dealer's stock of parts, and dealer, if it thought such stock insufficient, was obligated to order immediately such parts as it might recommend; and (3) construed dealer's obligation to stock only "genuine parts" as covering, in addition to items for repair and replacement, its various accessories also—

In carrying on not as incident to their sale of automobiles, but as substantial portion of their entire business, to the promotion of which they directed numerous activities, sale of "parts" and accessories, which included a great variety of items theretofore sold in competition with the independent jobber and identical therewith, such as ball bearings, battery cables, brake linings, and numerous others; embraced many made by independent manufacturers for aforesaid manufacturer, differing from said manufacturers' similar items, sold through such jobbers, only in their sale, by said sales corporation, under its own identification, as "genuine"; and included many others which were made by many reputable manufacturers and were of like quality and design; or which, not necessary to the car's mechanical operation, had no bearing upon its performance and good-will—

- (a) Adopted a program of acts and practices which were designed to and did intimidate and coerce its dealers and compelled them to purchase parts and accessories solely from said selling corporation, and prohibited purchases from outside sources except in cases of emergency when the "genuine" part or accessory was not available in the warehouse of manufacturer in question; and as a part of said various acts and practices—
- (1) Made its indeterminate dealer franchises a means of coercion and intimidation through its practice of renewing or canceling such franchises at the annual meetings called by the zone managers for their respective districts, at which time each dealer, following personal interviews with representatives of the parts and accessories and other departments, and final interview with the zone manager, as condition to renewal, was required to secure the approval of each and agree with said manager on his prospective requirements;

- (2) Coerced, through threat of cancelation implicit in aforesaid practice, dealers into the purchase of parts and accessories beyond their requirements, and, under its plan designed to limit dealer's purchases of parts and accessories to those sold by it, delivered, in many cases, automobiles equipped with various accessories which he had not ordered; shipped to him, with or without cars and without prior order therefor, accessories; and, in many cases, made shipments of parts and accessories, treating as orders therefor, dealer's required projection of future needs;
- (3) Made use of its monthly parts order plan—under which dealer's last monthly order was compared with the present one—to intimidate, coerce and compel dealers to buy parts and accessories;
- (4) Made use of its monthly inspection of the dealers' stocks and establishments to coerce them into purchasing its parts and accessories only, through threatening, directly and by implication, upon discovery of parts and accessories other than those supplied by it, that unless practice was discontinued, recalcitrants' contracts would be canceled; furthering such threats through arrangements for interviews with respective zone managers, in whom, as was known, rested power to recommend cancelation; and
- (5) In some cases delayed new car shipments to dealers who had refused to handle only parts and accessories sold by it, and in certain cases canceled dealers' contracts after controversy over use of parts and accessories, though, ostensibly, upon other grounds;

With the result that independent jobbers who, as competitors, sold the products of independent manufacturers, including numerous items identical with those sold by two corporations in question, and embracing many sold also by said corporations under their own identification as "genuine" replacement parts, and many others not necessary to the car's mechanical operation and having no bearing upon its performance or good-will, were thereafter unable to sell in substantial quantities to dealers such parts and accessories as heaters, radios, antifreeze solutions, spark plugs, and many others; dealers of said sales corporation were intimidated, coerced and compelled to purchase accessories and supplies only from it; substantial trade was diverted to corporations in question from their competitors engaged in the manufacture and interstate sale and distribution of automobile accessories and supplies; competing manufacturers were deprived of a market for their products; and there was a tendency unduly to hinder competition and create a monopoly in said first named corporation in automobile accessories and supplies:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and said corporations' competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in violation of section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act; and

Where aforesaid corporations—

- (b) Entered into agreements or "franchises" with dealers handling their respective lines of automobiles, parts and accessories and sold their parts on the condition, agreement or understanding that the purchaser would not sell or use parts other than those acquired from them, without limitation to parts' necessity to car's mechanical operation and lack of availability, in like quality and design, from other sources;

With the tendency to create a monopoly in replacement parts used on said manufacturer's cars; of removing as customers of independent manufacturers and jobbers some 14,000 dealers in cars in question, and all associate dealers and selected independent garages who, under plan pushed by them, had agreed to purchase only parts supplied by dealers of said corporations, estimated for one division alone as amounting to about 15,000 in 1936:

Held, That such acts and practices of said corporations in selling replacement parts on the condition, agreement or understanding that purchaser should not use or deal in those of a competitor had the effect of substantially lessening competition, tended to create a monopoly in products in question and constituted a violation of section 3 of the Clayton Act, as amended.

Pursuant to the provisions of an act of Congress approved September 26, 1914, entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that General Motors Corporation and General Motors Sales Corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondents, have been and now are using unfair methods of competition in commerce as "commerce" is defined in said act, and it appearing to said Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be to the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, General Motors Corporation, is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Delaware with its general office and place of business in the city of Detroit, State of Michigan. It is now, and for more than three years last past has been, engaged in the manufacture of automobiles, automobile accessories, automobile parts, and automobile supplies, and in the sale thereof, by and through subsidiaries to automobile retail dealers located throughout the several States of the United States, the territories thereof, and in the District of Columbia, causing said products when sold to be transported from the places of manufacture in various States of the United States to the purchasers thereof located in States other than the place of manufacture thereof, and there is now and has been for more than three years last past, a constant current of trade and commerce in said products between and among the various States of the United States, the territories thereof, and in the District of Columbia.

The said respondent, General Motors Corporation, in the sale of automobiles and automobile parts, through its said subsidiaries to automobile retail dealers, as aforesaid, has entered into and now has contracts or franchises with said automobile dealers for the resale of said products, which said franchises constitute a major asset of said dealers. The number of automobile dealers having such franchises has constituted for more than 3 years last past, and now constitutes, a substantial proportion of all the automobile dealers in the United States.

The number of automobiles manufactured by said respondent and sold through its said subsidiaries as hereinbefore and as hereinafter described, for more than 3 years last past has constituted, and now constitutes, a substantial proportion of all the automobiles manufactured and sold in the United States. The total volume of automobile parts, automobile accessories, and automobile supplies sold by said respondent through its said subsidiaries as hereinbefore and as hereinafter described, has for more than 3 years last past constituted, and now constitutes, a substantial proportion of all the automobile parts, automobile accessories and automobile supplies manufactured and sold in the United States.

In the course and conduct of its said business, as hereinbefore and as hereinafter described, said respondent, General Motors Corporation, has been for more than 3 years last past, and now is, in substantial competition in the sale of automobiles, automobile parts, automobile accessories, and automobile supplies, in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, the territories thereof, and in the District of Columbia, with other corporations and with persons, firms, and partnerships.

PAR. 2. For more than 3 years prior to October 23, 1936, or thereabouts, the sales of automobiles, parts, accessories, and supplies manufactured by said General Motors Corporation were made through and by subsidiary corporations, among which were Chevrolet Motor Co., Buick Motor Co., Pontiac Motor Co., Olds Motor Works, and Cadillac Motor Car Co., at whose respective factories said General Motors Corporation manufactured the automobiles sold by such subsidiary corporations and at whose respective factories said General Motors Corporation also manufactured automobile parts, accessories and supplies for use in and on automobiles sold by said General Motors Corporation through the aforesaid subsidiaries. For more than 3 years prior to October 23, 1936, respondent General Motors Corporation also sold as described in paragraph 1 hereof, automobile parts, automobile accessories, and automobile supplies through another subsidiary, General Motors Parts Corporation, a Delaware corporation, with its principal office and place of business located in the city of Detroit, State of Michigan; and for more than 3 years prior to October 23, 1936, respondent General Motors Corporation also sold as described in paragraph 1 hereof, automobile parts, automobile accessories, and automobile supplies through said General Motors Parts Corporation, such parts, accessories, and supplies having been manufactured by other corporations subsidiary to respondent General Motors Corporation, and by persons, firms, partnerships, and corporations associated and affiliated, by contractual relationship or otherwise, with said respondent General Motors Corporation or one or more of its subsidiaries.

PAR. 3. On October 23, 1936, or thereabouts, the aforesaid subsidiaries Chevrolet Motor Co., Buick Motor Co., Pontiac Motor Co., Olds Motor Works, Cadillac Motor Car Co., and General Motors Parts Corporation, were dissolved and all of their assets acquired by respondent General Motors Corporation, which upon such acquisitions organized as a wholly owned and controlled subsidiary respondent General Motors Sales Corporation, a Delaware corporation with its principal office in Detroit, Mich., which since its organization on October 23, 1936, or thereabouts, has conducted and still conducts the business theretofore conducted by said Chevrolet Motor Co., Buick Motor Co., Pontiac Motor Co., Olds Motor Works, Cadillac Motor Car Co., and General Motors Parts Corporation.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of their businesses hereinbefore described, said respondent General Motors Corporation and said Chevrolet Motor Co., Buick Motor Co., Pontiac Motor Co., Olds Motor Works, Cadillac Motor Car Co., and General Motors Parts Corporation, for more than 3 years prior to October 23, 1936, or thereabouts, by intimidation, oppression, and coercion compelled dealers in makes of automobiles manufactured by said General Motors Corporation, against their will, to purchase accessories and supplies for use on such automobiles only from said Chevrolet Motor Co., Buick Motor Co., Pontiac Motor Co., Olds Motor Works, Cadillac Motor Car Co., or General Motors Parts Corporation, or from other corporations, or from persons, firms, or partnerships associated or affiliated with said General Motors Corporation, said Chevrolet Motor Co., Buick Motor Co., Pontiac Motor Co., Olds Motor Works, or Cadillac Motor Car Co., or said General Motors Parts Corporation. As a part of such intimidation, oppression, coercion, and compulsion, said Chevrolet Motor Co., Buick Motor Co., Pontiac Motor Co., Olds Motor Works, and Cadillac Motor Car Co., during said period shipped to such dealers automobiles equipped with accessories not ordered by such dealers and shipped accessories and supplies (not attached to automobiles) not ordered by such dealers and threatened such dealers with cancellation of their franchises for selling such automobiles, unless they accepted and paid for such accessories and supplies not ordered by them, and as a part of such intimidation, oppression, coercion, and compulsion, because of the refusal of certain of their dealers to accept unordered accessories and supplies, canceled their respective franchises with such dealers.

PAR. 5. Said respondent, General Motors Corporation, and its subsidiaries, General Motors Parts Corporation, Chevrolet Motor Co., Buick Motor Co., Pontiac Motor Co., Olds Motor Works, and Cadillac Motor Car Co., by the use of the practices and methods described in paragraph 4 hereof, for more than 3 years prior to October 23, 1936, or thereabouts, diverted substantial trade from manufacturers of automobile accessories and automobile supplies engaged in competition with the corporations named in this paragraph, and with persons, firms, and partnerships associated or affiliated with said corporations, in the sale of said products between and among the various States and territories of the United States and the District of Columbia; and deprived said competitors of a market for the sale of said products manufactured and sold by said competitors as aforesaid; and, did substantial injury to substantial competition and tended unduly to hinder competition and to create a monopoly in General Motors Corporation in commerce, in automobile accessories and automobile supplies, between and among the various States and territories of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 6. In the course and conduct of their business hereinbefore described, said respondent, General Motors Corporation, and said respondent, General Motor Sales Corporation, since October 23, 1936, or thereabouts, by intimidation, oppression, and coercion have compelled dealers in makes of automobiles manufactured by said General Motors Corporation, against their will, to purchase accessories and supplies for use on such automobiles only from said General Motors Sales Corporation or from corporations or from persons, firms and partnerships associated or affiliated with said General Motors Corporation or said General Motors Sales Corporation. As a part of such intimidation, oppression, coercion, and compulsion, said General Motors Sales Corporation, since October 23, 1936, or thereabouts, has shipped to such dealers, automobiles equipped with accessories not ordered by such dealers, and has shipped accessories and supplies (not attached to automobiles) not ordered by such dealers, and has threatened such dealers with cancellation of their franchises for selling such automobiles, unless they accepted and paid for such accessories and supplies not ordered by them, and as a part of such intimidation, oppression, coercion, and compulsion, because of the refusal of certain of their dealers to accept unordered accessories and supplies, have cancelled their respective franchises with such dealers.

PAR. 7. Said respondents, General Motors Corporation and General Motors Sales Corporation by the use of the practices and methods described in paragraph 6 hereof, at all times since October 23, 1936, or thereabouts, have diverted and are now diverting substantial trade from manufacturers of automobile accessories and supplies, engaged, in competition with said respondents, in the sale of said products between and among the various States and territories of the United States and in the District of Columbia; and, have deprived and are now depriving said competing manufacturers of a market for the sale of said products manufactured and sold by said competing manufacturers as aforesaid; and, said respondents have done and are now doing substantial injury to substantial competition, and have tended, and are now tending, unduly, to hinder competition and to create a monopoly in General Motors Corporation in commerce, in automobile accessories and automobile supplies, between and among the various States and territories of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 8. The above alleged acts and practices of respondents General Motors Corporation and General Motors Sales Corporation are all to the injury and prejudice of the public and said respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition within the intent and meaning of section 5 of an act entitled "An Act to create a Federal Trade Commission, to define its powers and duties, and for other purposes," approved September 26, 1914.

The Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that General Motors Corporation and General Motors Sales Corporation, hereinafter called respondents, have violated and are now violating the provisions of section 3 of the act of Congress entitled "An Act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies, and for other purposes," approved October 15, 1914 (the Clayton Act), hereby issues this its complaint against said respondents and states its charges with respect thereto as follows, to-wit:

PARAGRAPH 1. For its charges under this paragraph of this count, said Commission relies upon the matters and things set out in paragraph 1 of count 1 of this complaint to the same extent and as though the allegations of said paragraph 1 of said count 1 were set out in full herein, and said paragraph 1 of said count 1 is incorporated herein by reference and made a part of the allegations of this count.

PAR. 2. For its charges under this paragraph of this count, said Commission relies upon the matters and things set out in paragraph 2 of count 1 of this complaint to the same extent and as though the allegations of said paragraph 2 of said count 1 were set out in full herein, and said paragraph 2 of said count 1 is incorporated herein by reference and made a part of the allegations of this count.

PAR. 3. For its charges under this paragraph of this count, said Commission relies upon the matters and things set out in paragraph 3 of count 1 of this complaint to the same extent and as though the allegations of said paragraph 3 of said count 1 were set out in full herein, and said paragraph 3 of said count 1 is incorporated herein by reference and made a part of the allegations of this count.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of its business described in paragraphs 1 and 2 of count 1 of this complaint, respondent, General Motors Corporation, and the aforesaid Chevrolet Motor Co., Buick Motor Co., Pontiac Motor Co., Olds Motor Works, Cadillac Motor Car Co., and General Motors Parts Corporation, in the course of commerce between and among the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia as described in said paragraphs 1 and 2 of said count 1 of this complaint, for more than 3 years prior to October 23, 1936, or thereabouts, made sales and contracts for the sale of automobile parts on the condition, agreement, and understanding that the purchasers thereof should not deal in the automobile parts of a competitor or competitors of said respondent, General Motors Corporation, and the aforesaid Chevrolet Motor Co., Buick Motor Co., Pontiac Motor Co., Olds Motor Works, Cadillac Motor Car Co., and General Motors Parts Corporation, the effect of which said sales and contracts for sale upon such condition, agreement, and understanding may have been to substantially lessen competition or tend to create a monopoly in respondent General Motors Corporation, said Chevrolet Motor Co., Buick Motor Co., Pontiac Motor Co., Olds Motor Works, Cadillac Motor Car Co., and said General Motors Parts Corporation, in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia in automobile parts.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid acts of said respondent, General Motors Corporation, and of the aforesaid Chevrolet Motor Co., Buick Motor Co., Pontiac Motor Co., Olds Motor Works, Cadillac Motor Car Co., and said General Motors Parts Corporation constituted a violation of the provisions of section 3 of the hereinabove mentioned act of PAR. 7. The aforesaid acts of said respondents, General Motors Corporation and General Motors Sales Corporation, constitute a violation of the provisions of section 3 of the hereinabove mentioned act of Congress entitled "An Act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies, and for other purposes," approved October 15, 1914 (the Clayton Act).

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and pursuant to the provisions of an act of Congress entitled, "An act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies, and for other purposes," approved October 15, 1914, commonly known as the Clayton Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on June 15, 1937, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondents, General Motors Corporation, a corporation, and General Motors Sales Corporation, a corporation, charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said Federal Trade Commission Act, and also charging them with violation of the provisions of section 3 of said act of Congress entitled, "An act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies, and for other purposes." After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondents' answers thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by Everett

F. Haycraft, attorney for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by Albert M. Levert, attorney for the respondents, before John L. Hornor and W. W. Sheppard, trial examiners of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Approximately 30,000 pages of testimony were taken before Trial Examiner John L. Hornor, including approximately 11,000 pages of Commission's case in chief. The remaining 8,000 pages of testimony were taken before Trial Examiner W. W. Sheppard. A report upon the entire evidence was submitted by Trial Examiner W. W. Sheppard without objection of counsel for the respondents. Trial Examiner John L. Hornor did not submit a report upon the evidence taken before him or join in the report upon the evidence submitted by Trial Examiner W. W. Sheppard. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, answers thereto, testimony and other evidence, report of Trial Examiner W. W. Sheppard upon the evidence, and exceptions filed thereto by counsel for the Commission, briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto, and oral arguments of counsel; and the Commission having duly considered the matter and having given detailed consideration to the testimony and other evidence, as well as the report of Trial Examiner W. W. Sheppard upon the evidence, and exceptions filed thereto, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, General Motors Corporation, is a Delaware corporation, with its general office and place of business in the city of Detroit, State of Michigan, and is now, and for several years last past has been, engaged in the manufacture of automobiles under trade names of "Cadillac," "LaSalle," "Buick," "Oldsmobile," "Pontiac," and "Chevrolet," and replacement parts, accessories, and supplies for said automobiles under the trade names of "Cadillac," "LaSalle," "Buick," "Oldsmobile," "Pontiac," "Chevrolet," and "G. M.," which said products have been, since on or about October 23, 1936, sold through and by respondent General Motors Sales Corporation, a Delaware corporation, to dealers located throughout the several States of the United States, and in the District of Columbia, and such products, when so sold, have been, and are now being, transported and shipped from the factories of said respondent General Motors Corporation to said dealers located in States other than the State in which said products have been, and are being manufactured. Said respondent General Motors Sales Corporation is a wholly owned subsidiary of respondent General Motors Corporation.

Respondents maintain, and at all times mentioned herein, have maintained a course of trade in said automobiles, replacement parts, accessories, and supplies in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of their said business, respondents are now, and for more than 3 years last past have been, engaged in substantial competition in the sale of automobiles, automobile parts, accessories, and supplies, with other corporations and with persons, firms, and copartnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of similar products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. Prior to October 23, 1936, the respondent General Motors Corporation sold its said automobiles, replacement parts, automobile accessories, and supplies manufactured as aforesaid, through and by the following subsidiary corporations, which were operated as divisions of General Motors Corporation, namely, Cadillac Motor Car Co., Buick Motor Co., Olds Motor Works, Pontiac Motor Co., and Chevrolet Motor Co., and also through its subsidiary, the General Motors Parts Corporation, a Delaware corporation, with its principal office and place of business located in the city of Detroit, State of Michigan.

PAR. 4. On or about November 30, 1936, the said Cadillac Motor Car Co., Buick Motor Co., Olds Motor Works, Pontiac Motor Co., Chevrolet Motor Co., and General Motors Parts Corporation were dissolved and their assets acquired by said respondent General Motors Corporation, and the business of selling automobiles, parts, accessories, and supplies theretofore conducted by said corporations was thereafter conducted by said respondent General Motors Sales Corporation.

PAR. 5. Respondent General Motors Corporation, since November 30, 1936, has conducted its operations through five motorcar divisions, namely, Chevrolet Motor Division, Pontiac Motor Division, Olds Motor Works Division, Buick Motor Division, and Cadillac Motor Car Division. Said respondent General Motors Corporation sells the automobiles, replacement parts, accessories, and supplies manufactured by it in its various divisions to General Motors Sales Corporation. Respondent General Motors Sales Corporation is also divided into motorcar divisions corresponding to the various manufacturing divisions of respondent General Motors Corporation.

PAR. 6 Respondent General Motors Sales Corporation, in the sale of automobiles, parts, accessories, and supplies to automobile dealers, maintains its principal or central office in the General Motors Building, city of Detroit, State of Michigan, and maintains regional and zone offices throughout the several States of the United States and employs parts and accessories salesmen, who contact dealers handling cars manufactured by the respondent General Motors Corporation. In this respect said respondent General Motors Sales Corporation operates through separate divisions for each respective make of car sold by it.

PAR. 7 Dealers who are selected by the respondent General Motors Sales Corporation are required to meet certain standards, particularly of a financial nature, dependent upon the locality of the dealer and the territory granted. In addition, said respondent maintains a degree of supervision over such dealers, for which purpose a large field organization is maintained. This field organization may be illustrated by the Chevrolet organization as of June 30, 1937, which is typical. The general sales manager was at the head of the Chevrolet Division of General Motors Sales Corporation, and under him were two assistant general sales managers. Under these were 9 regional managers, each of whom was in charge of a region comprising 3 or more States. Under each regional manager were approximately 47 zone managers, each in charge of a zone comprising a part of one or more States. Under each zone manager were field representatives or district managers, each of whom was assigned to a specific territory, usually a county or other small subdivision. These field representatives made frequent calls on dealers, inquired as to business and economic conditions, offered advice and suggestions, made periodic audits, collected data, and, in general, obtained detailed information concerning dealers' business operations. The distribution of parts and accessories in the respective regions above described was supervised by regional parts and accessories managers. Each zone in turn had a parts and accessories manager, who supervised the distribution of parts and accessories to Chevrolet dealers located in their respective zones. Working under these zone parts and accessories managers were 146 zone parts and accessories salesmen contacting the Chevrolet dealers at regular intervals, usually monthly, promoting the sale of parts and accessories to Chevrolet dealers.

PAR. 8. General instructions are issued in the form of bulletins, circulars, and manuals by parts and accessories managers of the respective divisions of the respondent General Motors Sales Corporation to their respective zone officials, and through them and by them to salesmen for the respective divisions, as to the methods and practices to be employed by said salesmen in the sale of said replacement parts, accessories, and supplies sold to the respective dealers located throughout the United States. In addition, oral instructions are given to salesmen by these respective division and zone officials at meetings of said officials and salesmen held from time to time at central, regional, and zone offices.

PAR. 9. One of the most important duties imposed upon the replacement parts and accessories salesmen employed by respondent General Motors Sales Corporation is to see that the respective dealers handle and keep in stock only "genuine" General Motors parts and accessories, which, in practice, means to the dealer, a part or accessory manufactured by or at the instance of General Motors Corporation and sold and distributed by the various divisions of General Motors Sales Corporation. These parts and accessories are identified by either the division trade-mark, the General Motors trade-mark, or sealed parts packages bearing General Motors identification. In practice, as indicated by accessory catalogs and accessory order pads, the term "accessory" is used to include all items other than parts, and covers various items which might otherwise be considered as supplies, such as cleaner, polishing cloth, dressing, polish, etc.

PAR. 10. There are several subsidiaries of General Motors Corporation engaged in the manufacture of parts and accessories. Among these are Delco-Remy Corporation, New Departure Manufacturing Company, A. C. Spark Plug Co., Packard Electric Co., Delco Products Corporation, and Delco Appliance Corporation. The parts and accessories manufactured by these several subsidiaries are sold and distributed by the respondent General Motors Sales Corporation to General Motors dealers. In addition, there was organized a wholly owned subsidiary of General Motors Corporation known as United Motors Service, Inc., which is also engaged in the sale and distribution of parts and accessories, manufactured by these various subsidiaries, through and by means of distributors and jobbers located throughout the United States. It is estimated that there are approximately 3,000 jobbers of United Motors Service, Inc., handling either all or part of United Motors Service line. There are certain items of the United Motors Service line, manufactured by subsidiaries of General Motors Corporation, which are not handled by some of the divisions of the General Motors Sales Corporation. As to such items, the dealer is supplied either direct by the United Motors Service, Inc., or permitted to purchase such items from authorized jobbers of United Motors Service, Inc. The United Motors Service, Inc., does not carry the entire line of General Motors parts, but, instead, confines itself chiefly to accessories manufactured by the various subsidiaries of General Motors Corporation. While there is evidence in the record that some dealers have from time to time purchased certain items from jobbers of the United Motors Service, Inc., this practice is not encouraged, and even jobbers of the United Motors Service line have had difficulty in selling parts and accessories to General Motors dealers. Furthermore, objections have been made, from time to time, by replacement parts and accessories salesmen of respondent General Motors Sales Corporation, particularly in the Chevrolet Division, to dealers using and stocking accessories and supplies purchased from authorized United Motors Service dealers for the alleged reason that such items did not constitute "genuine" parts or accessories.

PAR. 11. For the purpose of increasing the sale of parts, the respondent General Motors Sales Corporation induces its dealers to become wholesalers or distributors of "genuine" parts among various garages in the vicinity where the dealer is located. The dealer selects several representative garages, designated as "Selected Independents," who have no car sales agreements with any other automobile manufacturer and who will agree to use only "genuine" parts in the repair of General Motors cars. Such selected independent garages are then issued discount cards entitling them to purchase parts from the dealer at a discount of 25 percent, and, in addition, such garages are loaned a "Genuine Parts" sign and furnished other service of an informative and advertising nature by the division zone office. The nature of this arrangement and the allowance of this discount to independent dealers appears in Pontiac's District Managers Training Course, in which it is stated as follows:

Many dealers do not appreciate that Pontiac's net prices on competitive parts are much lower in almost every instance than the jobber's parts. To grant these long discounts Pontiac must insist that dealers purchase all of their parts from Pontiac.

PAR. 12. In order to promote the sale of parts, a distinction has been made between "fast-moving" and "slow-moving" parts. For example, in its "Operating Manual" for the "genuine parts" department for the year 1934, issued by the Chevrolet Motor Co., it was estimated that there were approximately 15,500 parts listed in Chevrolet master parts catalogs, of which only 841 parts, or approximately 6 percent, come within the classification of "fast-moving parts." Since the "fast-moving" parts are the only ones which can be profitably stocked and handled, it is recommended by respondent General Motors Sales Corporation that the dealer stock only such "fast-moving" parts and carry a very limited supply of the "slow-moving" parts. For the purpose of facilitating the stocking and handling of the "fast-moving" parts a "balanced parts stock plan" has been developed, which consists of steel bins and a supply of parts which have been carefully selected by the parts department. The dealer, in addition, carries a monthly parts inventory control record and orders parts each month as his supply is depleted.

PAR. 13. A plan somewhat similar to the balanced parts system is used in connection with accessories, except that the dealer, instead of carrying an inventory control record, follows an accessories projection system, which is operated in the same manner as used by the dealer in ordering new cars, whereby each month the dealer estimates the quantity of accessories he will sell during the next 30 days. Such estimates or projections are usually made with the sales representative and are based upon the estimated quantity of accessories in proportion to the sale of new cars.

PAR. 14. The respondent General Motors Sales Corporation enters into agreements popularly known as "franchises" with automobile dealers handling its respective lines of automobiles, parts, and accessories, which said agreements set forth the terms and conditions under which sales of automobiles, parts, and accessories are made to the respective dealers. Under these agreements or franchises, respondent General Motors Sales Corporation grants to the dealers the right to sell motor vehicles, chassis, parts, and accessories in certain defined territory described in an appendix thereto which is made a part of the franchise or agreement. The dealers accept these franchises and agree to make all sales in accordance therewith.

In the appendix to said franchise agreements (except those with dealers located in the State of Texas) the following clause is set forth with respect to the sale of "genuine new Chevrolet parts":

Dealer agrees that he will not sell, offer for sale, or use, in the repair of Chevrolet motor vehicles and chassis, second-hand or used parts, or any part or parts not manufactured by or authorized by the Chevrolet Motor Division, General Motors Sales Corporation.

A similar clause likewise appears in the franchise agreements executed by the other divisions of General Motors Sales Corporation, namely, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, and Buick.

PAR. 15. In the appendix to the agreement between respondent General Motors Sales Corporation and their respective dealers located in the State of Texas, a clause differing from that appearing in its usual contracts is set forth with respect to the sale of "genuine new parts," of which the following statement appearing in the contract of the Chevrolet Motor Division is an example:

Dealer agrees that he will not sell, offer for sale, or use, in the repair of Chevrolet motor vehicles and chassis, as genuine new Chevrolet parts, any part or parts not manufactured by or authorized by the Chevrolet Motor Company.

PAR. 16. The agreements or franchises entered into between General Motors Sales Corporation through its various divisions and its respective dealers contain no date of termination but provide that the contract can be canceled by the General Motor Sales Corporation by giving three months' written notice and the payment of certain damages to cover loss of rent for the premises. The dealer may cancel the contract by giving 1 month's written notice of intention to terminate.

PAR. 17. In addition to the clauses above described, the agreements or franchises entered into between respondent General Motors Sales Corporation and its respective dealers contain the following clause with respect to inspection of repair part stocks of the dealers:

Seller shall have the right at any reasonable time in business hours to inspect and check over dealer's stock of repair and replacement parts, and if, in seller's judgment, a sufficient quantity of parts for repair and replacement purposes are not then in dealer's stock, dealer hereby agrees to immediately order such parts as may be recommended by seller.

PAR. 18. In the enforcement of the above provisions of the contract with respect to dealers' selling and using only "genuine" parts and with respect to checking dealers' repair and replacement parts, it was customary for representatives of respondent General Motors Sales Corporation to consider the obligation to purchase only "genuine" parts as extending to and covering various accessories sold by said respondent. Such representatives, in soliciting business from dealers and in checking dealers' supplies to determine necessity of purchasing additional items, have led the dealers to believe that under the terms and conditions of the agreement or franchise the dealer was required to purchase accessories, as well as repair and replacement parts, and, as a result, dealers did purchase accessories, as well as parts, because of such belief.

PAR. 19. The distinction between parts and accessories has been somewhat confusing even to the officials of respondents' various divisions. For example, B. M. Smarr, a witness called by the respondents, stated that he had been in the employ of General Motors Corporation for approximately 19 or 20 years and was supervisor of parts pricing and compiling of parts sales statistics, and determined the parts necessary to be serviced by Chevrolet to give complete service coverage on Chevrolet cars. In his testimony this witness stated:

We were a long time finding out what we were going to call parts and what we were going to call accessories. We finally licked that by letting one fellow take care of them all. * * * Sorry to say that was me. I was obliged to put a part number on them. So, if it was an accessory I put a number on it and if it was not an accessory I wouldn't put the number on.

PAR. 20. As new models of cars were developed, many items previously considered as accessories became standard equipment and, as such, came within the classification of parts. There are, consequently, a large number of so-called parts which have no connection with the mechanical operation of the automobile, many of which were formerly accessories and became parts solely because of their inclusion in standard equipment. For example, such items as the following appear in parts catalogs issued by the respondent General Motors Sales Corporation: floor mats, rear-view mirrors, ornamental radiator caps, ash receivers, windshield wipers, sunshades, sun visors, arm rests, etc. The following items, considered at one time as accessories, became parts of the Chevrolet car between the years 1925 and 1936: bumpers, wire wheels, thermostats, wind wings, trunks, spring covers, rear-view mirrors, gasoline gauges, safety glass, air cleaners, metal tire covers, sun visors, vacuum windshield wipers, pedal pads, shock absorbers, arm rests, stop lights, heat indicators, tire locks, and ash receivers.

PAR. 21. The sale of parts and accessories is not incidental to the sale of automobiles or the maintaining of the good will toward the automobiles manufactured and sold by the respondents, but, instead, constitutes a substantial portion of the business transacted by the respondents. The Chevrolet Motor Division distributed to its various zone managers and salesmen, a manual entitled, "Distribution of Automotive Replacement Parts Yesterday and Today," which appears in the record as Commission's Exhibit No. 111. In this manual it was estimated that in 1936 there were ten competitors to one Chevrolet dealer engaged in the sale and distribution of parts and accessories but that by reason of promotional activities adopted by the Chevrolet Division, these competitive odds were overcome, and, during the year 1936, the Chevrolet Division was successful in obtaining 38.5 percent of the estimated potential parts business. As stated in this exhibit, "Chevrolet Motor Division has spent more money than any other manufacturer in the industry, in the development of service, parts, and accessories sales for Chevrolet dealers."

PAR. 22. With reference to accessories, the above exhibit contains the following statements:

PAR. 23. Various activities of a promotional nature have been adopted by respondent General Motors Sales Corporation for the purpose of stimulating the sale of parts and accessories, among which are the following, which have been listed in the above exhibit No. 111:

- (1) Annual review, inventory, check-up, and training meeting for dealers and their parts managers.
- (2) Parts managers training course.
- (3) Monthly group meetings.
- (4) Independent garagemen's meeting, conducted by Chevrolet dealers and assisted by Chevrolet field personnel.
- (5) Parts mart magazine for dealers' parts managers.
- (6) Chevrolet dealer's news, featuring training and promotional ideas applying to parts and service activities.
- (7) Monthly film service on parts and accessories retail merchandising.
- (8) Monthly store arrangement and trim service.
- (9) The establishment of 145 parts and accessories representatives to assist dealers in the balancing of their parts and accessories stocks, who are trained to promote parts and accessories retail sales for dealers to move merchandise from their shelves in accordance with agreed monthly programs set up by the zone offices.

(10) Monthly inventory control pads supplied to dealers.

(11) Additional 3 percent discount and free freight on certain parts and accessories monthly orders.

(12) Lot net prices on 388 highly competitive items to meet competition.

(13) Parts packaging program in which 1500 items are distributed in sales-producing containers.

(14) The establishment of the broadest and most effective parts distributing system in the industry.

(15) Fifteen thousand selected independent garages signed up for wholesale discount and supplied with parts list material, without cost to them.

(16) Independent garage bin at special price.

(17) Parts advertising in national trade magazines.

(18) Government parts contract "provides mandatory purchases of genuine Chevrolet parts".

(19) Radio service.

(20) Modern parts store program designed for the merchandising of parts and accessories.

(21) Accessories display service.

(22) Special merchandise displays, such as individual counter cards, etc.

(23) Cash prizes to members of dealers' organizations for unusual selling records and performance.

PAR. 24. In the course of its dealings with dealers, the respondent General Motors Sales Corporation adopted acts and practices which were designed to, and did, intimidate such dealers, and which coerced and compelled them to purchase parts and accessories solely from the respondent General Motors Sales Corporation and prohibited purchases from outside sources except in cases of emergency when the "genuine" part or accessory was not available in General Motors' warehouse. There are approximately 14,000 General Motors dealerships, exclusive of associate dealers, located throughout the country, the status of each of which is determined by a franchise agreement which is subject to annual renewal and to cancellation on very short notice, without cause. Although every dealer is an independent businessman, the supervision and control exercised by General Motors Sales Corporation over his business operations is almost as complete as if the dealer were an agent in all respects. Every dealer acquires a substantial investment in buildings, cars, parts, and accessories, and builds up goodwill in a community. Consequently, a canceled dealership leaves the respondents with one less retail outlet, which can be readily replaced, but leaves the disfranchised dealer without a business and burdened with his substantial investment, in the liquidation of which he is likely to sustain a heavy loss.

PAR. 25. Although the original franchise or agreement made with the dealer runs for an indefinite period of time, it is customary to renew such contracts the latter part of each year for the ensuing year. In this connection it is customary for the zone manager to call meetings of the dealers in each of the districts, at which all dealers attend. After a sales talk, usually by the zone manager, the dealers present are required to attend a series of personal interviews with representatives of various departments of General Motors Sales Corporation, such as the parts and accessories departments, with a final interview with the zone manager, at which time the requirements for the coming year are reviewed, as arrived at in interviews with the various departments, including the parts and accessories department. The dealer is required to secure the approval of each of these representatives and to agree with the zone manager on the subject of car requirements before the franchise agreement is renewed. Such arrangement carries with it an implied threat of cancelation unless satisfactory arrangements are made with the parts and accessories managers, as well as the zone manager, and, to this extent, a number of dealers have been coerced into the purchase of parts and accessories over and above their requirements because of such implied threat of cancelation of the contract.

PAR. 26. As a further means of coercion and compulsion in order to prevent dealers from purchasing parts and accessories from outside sources, the respondent General Motors Sales Corporation has, in many cases, delivered automobiles equipped with various accessories which were not ordered by the dealer, and has shipped accessories to the dealers, with or without cars, without prior order therefor. In addition thereto, it was customary for said respondent to require the dealers to project future requirements in parts and accessories, and in many cases the said respondent thereafter treated such projections as orders and made shipments thereon. The entire plan was so designed as to prevent a dealer from making any purchases from jobbers or other manufacturers and to eliminate all parts and accessories other than those sold and distributed by the respondent General Motors Sales Corporation.

PAR. 27. The following statements which appear in Pontiac's District Managers Training Course are examples of instructions given to district managers by the respondent General Motors Sales Corporation to force the purchase of accessories by dealers:

Check over the dealer's copy of first two current months dealer shipping specifications against last groups agreed upon last month's projection.

Then if dealer has failed to specify as agreed upon, try and sell him on stepping up his group orders on the last shipping specifications (due in zone on 5th of current month) to balance his original order with you.

When dealers fail to order the "C" and "W" groups on their specification sheets as agreed upon, car distributors should automatically include these groups on the dealers' specifications, up to the percentage originally agreed upon by the dealer and district manager. (The "C" and "W" groups referred to in the above quotation appear previously in said training course as "Group C, electric clock" and "Group W, ash receiver, cigar lighter, visor vanity mirror, gear shift bail.")

PAR. 28. Among the forms of intimidation and coercion used by the respondent General Motors Sales Corporation to compel dealers to buy parts and accessories from said respondent are the monthly parts order plan, the monthly inspection of bins, accessories, and establishments of dealers, and inspection of dealers' stock of repair and replacement parts under terms of the franchise agreement authorizing representative of said respondent to make such inspection and authorizing such representative to require the purchase of additional parts as may be considered necessary, which have enabled the said respondent to coerce dealers into purchasing respondent's parts and accessories and to prohibit purchases from outside sources. The requirement that only "genuine" parts be handled by the dealer and the use of identifying tags and markers permit and enable the representatives of said respondent, when checking the dealers' parts, to object to the presence in dealers' supply room of various materials not furnished and supplied by said respondent.

The real purpose of such inspections and the use of monthly parts order plan is typified by Commission's exhibit 59, which is District Managers Training Course and consists of instruction to district managers on parts and accessories. It contains a program of operation of a plan between district managers and their dealers "in developing the greatest potential volume and profit on parts and accessories for their dealers and for Pontiac." In this exhibit there appears the following illustration of methods to be used in soliciting the dealers' monthly parts orders and to get the dealers to send in their orders on due dates:

Checking the dealer's purchases. On each dealer contact, check the last monthly order paid with the present one to see dealer is ordering his parts on 60-day basis. Check his parts bins to see if any outside purchases are being made, and why. Cover outside purchases invoices with parts man and see that future purchases of outside material do not include any parts or accessories supplied by Pontiac.

PAR. 29. In cases where inspections have been made by representatives of the respondent, and parts and accessories other than those supplied by the respondents were found on the dealer's premises, threats have been made, both directly and by implication, that unless the practice on the part of the dealer was discontinued and only parts and accessories supplied by the respondent General Motors Sales Corporation carried in stock, the dealer's contract would be canceled. Such implied threats were further made by the representative or district manager arranging for an interview with the zone manager for the purpose of discussing the dealer's practices, the dealer knowing that the zone manager has the power to recommend the cancellation of his contract. In some cases where a dealer has refused to handle only parts and accessories sold and distributed by the respondent General Motors Sales Corporation, there has been a delay in a shipment of new cars to such dealers. There is also in the record evidence of cancellation of certain contracts after a controversy over the use of parts and accessories has occurred, but which cancellations were ostensibly based upon other grounds.

PAR. 30. The volume of sales of "genuine" Chevrolet parts to Chevrolet dealers by the Chevrolet Division of General Motors Corporation and the Chevrolet Motor Car Co. Division of General Motors Sales Corporation for the years 1929 through 1936 was as follows:

PAR. 34. One of the classes of competitors to General Motors Sales Corporation in the parts and accessories field is the independent jobber. Prior to 1930 the number of independent jobbers was estimated at approximately 6,000. These jobbers supplied merchandise to independent garages and car dealers and assisted them with technical knowledge and mechanical facilities. They formerly handled supplies, tools, equipment, specialties, accessories, and a fair line of replacement parts. During the depression years competition in the manufacture of automobiles forced car manufacturers to include, as standard equipment, many items which were formerly sold as accessories. As car manufacturers began to include accessories as standard equipment, the independent jobbers had to find ways and means of replacing this lost business and during the depression years 1930-1933 substantially increased their sales in tools, service equipment, and replacement parts. In order to do this, many jobbers opened and established a number of branches located near their customers, enabling them to intensify their merchandising activities in concentrated areas and to give better service to their parts customers.

PAR. 35. The independent jobbers sell the products of independent replacement part manufacturers, some of whom manufacture for the car manufacturer, including respondent General Motors Corporation, as follows: Ball bearings, battery cables, brake linings, clutch disks and facings, coils, cylinder-head gaskets, fan belts, head lamps, radio hose, king pin replacement units, lamp bulbs, mufflers, piston rings, piston pins, pistons and piston-pin assemblies, spark plugs, spark plug wire sets, valve springs, and many other items.

PAR. 36. Many of such items which are manufactured by independent manufacturers for General Motors Corporation and used by General Motors Sales Corporation as "genuine" replacement parts are identical in quality and design with those sold by these same manufacturers to independent jobbers, the only difference between such parts and those sold by General Motors as "genuine" parts being the stamp placed on the outside of the package by the manufacturer who packages such parts for General Motors Sales Corporation. Other replacement parts handled by independent jobbers as well as General Motors Sales Corporation which are identical, are AC spark plugs, Stromberg and Carter carburetors, piston rings, hydraulic brakes, wheels, and the Borg-Warner clutch. There are also many reputable manufacturers who manufacture parts of like quality and design to those parts manufactured by General Motors Corporation or sold by General Motors Sales Corporation.

PAR. 37. Subsequent to 1933, independent jobbers handling replacement parts and accessories for General Motors cars have been unable to sell such merchandise in substantial quantities to General Motors dealers for use on General Motors cars, being told by parts men of such dealers that they are supposed to buy only "genuine" parts and accessories in packages that bear General Motors trademark and are recommended for General Motors cars. Parts and accessories which independent jobbers have been unable to sell to General Motors dealers for the reasons specified above, are heaters, radios, anti-freeze solutions, spark plugs (both AC and Champion), cylinder-head gaskets, manifold gaskets, brake linings, cigar lighters, brake fluid, pistons, piston rings, valves, bearings, ignition parts, gear-shift balls, batteries, ignition cables, spark-plug wires, carburetors, carburetor parts, chemicals and polishes, axles, radiator cleaners, fan belts, clutches, and gears.

PAR. 38. When a General Motors dealer sells a car to a purchaser, there goes with such car a warranty or guaranty by the General Motors Corporation warranting such motor vehicle, including original equipment placed thereon by the manufacturer, except tires, to be free from defects in material or workmanship under normal use and service. The obligation under this warranty is limited to making good at its factory any part or parts within 90 days after delivery of such vehicle to the original purchaser, or before such vehicle has been driven 4,000 miles, whichever event shall first occur. This warranty does not apply to cars which have been repaired or altered outside of an authorized General Motors service station, which, in the judgment of the manufacturer, affects its stability and reliability, or which car has been subjected to misuse, negligence, or accident. The respondents have introduced evidence to the effect that in order to maintain the good will of its various divisions and protect its guaranty it is necessary to maintain supervision over the parts used and sold by its individual dealers. However, all of the parts which come within the restrictive provision of the contract, set out in paragraph 14 hereof, are not necessary to the mechanical operation of the car, and the performance, or lack of performance, of such parts would have no bearing upon either the warranty issued or the good will of the division of General Motors selling a car. Furthermore, there are a large number of parts which are supplied by manufacturers to jobbers which are identical in material and construction with parts furnished by these same manufacturers to General Motors Corporation.

PAR. 39. The number of automobiles manufactured by the respondent General Motors Corporation and sold through its subsidiary, respondent General Motors Sales Corporation, has constituted, and now constitutes, a substantial portion of all the automobiles manufactured and sold in the United States. The General Motors cars in operation constitute approximately 36 percent of all cars and trucks in operation. For the year 1936 there was a total of 25,378,655 cars and trucks in operation in the United States. Of this number, there were 1,129,779 Buicks, 702,671 Oldsmobiles, 1,013,857 Pontiacs, and 6,455,872 Chevrolets, or a total of 9,302,179 General Motors cars, exclusive of Cadillac, in operation in the United States. The total volume of automobile parts and automobile accessories and supplies sold by the respondent General Motors Corporation through its subsidiary, respondent General Motors Sales Corporation, has constituted, and now constitutes, a substantial proportion of all the automobile parts and automobile accessories and supplies manufactured and sold in the United States. For example, during the year 1936, the respondent General Motors Sales Corporation sold $42,117,295 in parts and $39,869,243 in accessories and supplies, exclusive of parts and accessories sold by the Cadillac Division and exclusive of parts and accessories sold by the United Motors Service, Inc. Such sales constitute a substantial portion of the sales of parts and accessories in the United States, and, when limited to parts and accessories for General Motors automobiles, constitute a substantial portion of the parts and accessories sold and used on General Motors automobiles.

PAR. 40. The use by the respondent General Motors Sales Corporation of the acts and practices hereinabove described, has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to, and does, intimidate General Motors dealers and coerce and compel them to purchase accessories and supplies only from the respondent General Motors Sales Corporation, with the result that substantial trade has been diverted to the respondents from their competitors who are engaged in the manufacture and in the sale and distribution of automobile accessories and supplies in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia; and has deprived, and is now depriving, said competing manufacturers of a market for the sale of said products manufactured and sold by said competing manufacturers, as aforesaid; and has had, and now has, a tendency to unduly hinder competition and to create a monopoly in General Motors Corporation in commerce in automobile accessories and supplies between and among the various States of the United States, and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 41. The Commission further finds that the use by the respondents of the acts and practices hereinabove described, of selling parts on the condition, agreement, or understanding that the purchaser thereof shall not sell or use parts of a competitor, has had, and now has, the effect of substantially lessening competition; and has had, and now has, a tendency to create a monopoly in replacement parts used on General Motors cars. By means of the provision in the contract that General Motors dealers will not sell, offer for sale, or use, parts not manufactured by or authorized by the General Motors Sales Corporation, practically all dealers in General Motors cars, to the number of approximately 14,000, have been removed as customers and prospective customers of independent manufacturers and jobbers; and there have likewise been removed as customers and prospective customers of such manufacturers and jobbers, all associate dealers and selected independent garages who have agreed to purchase only parts supplied by General Motors dealers, and which garages are estimated as being approximately 15,000 for the Chevrolet Division alone in the year 1936.

PAR. 42. On the completion of the testimony taken in this case, the respondents made a motion before the trial examiner to strike the testimony of certain witnesses. This motion was sustained in part and the testimony of certain witnesses stricken from the record. An appeal from this ruling of the trial examiner was taken by the attorney for the Commission and is now pending before the Commission. The testimony stricken by the trial examiner on this motion is more or less cumulative and not necessary to the decision in this case, and it is, accordingly, not necessary for the Commission to pass upon this motion or consider this testimony in making its findings.

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of said respondents' competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act; and the acts and practices of the respondents in selling replacement parts on the condition, agreement, or understanding that the purchaser thereof shall not use or deal in replacement parts of a competitor, has the effect of substantially lessening competition and a tendency to create a monopoly in replacement parts used on General Motors cars, and constitutes a violation of section 3 of the act of the Congress of the United States entitled, "An Act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies, and for other purposes," commonly known as the Clayton Act.

and W. W. Sheppard, trial examiners of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of the complaint and in opposition thereto, report of Trial Examiner W. W. Sheppard upon the evidence and exceptions filed thereto, briefs filed in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto, and oral arguments of counsel; and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and have violated the provisions of that certain act of the Congress of the United States entitled, "An Act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies, and for other purposes," approved October 15, 1914, commonly known as the Clayton Act, and the Commission having issued its order herein to cease and desist on November 12, 1941, and the respondent having filed with the Commission on June 11, 1942, its request for modification of said order:

It is ordered, That the respondents, General Motors Corporation, a corporation, and General Motors Sales Corporation, a corporation, and their respective officers, agents, representatives, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of automobile accessories, automobile supplies, and other similar products in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

(1) Requiring automobile dealers in connection with contracts or franchises or selling agreements with said automobile dealers for the sale of new motor vehicles, by means of intimidation or coercion, to purchase or deal in accessories or supplies sold and distributed by the respondents, or by any one designated by them, for use in and on automobiles sold by the respondents.

(2) Canceling, or directly or by implication threatening the cancellation of, any contract or franchise or selling agreement with automobile retail dealers for the sale of new motor vehicles, because of the failure or refusal of such dealers to purchase or deal in accessories or supplies for use in and on automobiles manufactured or sold by the respondents, sold and distributed by the respondents, or by any one designated by the respondents.

(3) Canceling, or directly or by implication threatening the cancellation of, any contract or franchise or selling agreement with automobile retail dealers for the sale of new motor vehicles, for purchasing or dealing in accessories or supplies for use in and on automobiles sold by the respondents, not obtained from respondents or from other sources designated by the respondents.

(4) Shipping accessories or supplies for use in and on automobiles sold by the respondents without prior orders therefor, or canceling, or directly or by implication threatening the cancellation of any automobile retail dealer contract or franchise or selling agreement for the sale of new motor vehicles, because of a failure or refusal to accept accessories or supplies for use in and on automobiles sold by the respondents shipped without prior order.

(5) Refusing or threatening to refuse, to deliver automobiles to automobile retail dealers in connection with contracts or franchises with said automobile retail dealers for the sale of new motor vehicles because of a failure or refusal of such dealers to purchase or deal in accessories or supplies for use in and on automobiles sold and distributed by the respondents, or by any one designated by them.

(6) The use of any system or practice, plan, or method of doing business, for the purpose, or having the effect, of coercing or intimidating automobile retail dealers who have contracts or selling agreements or franchises of the respondents for the sale of new motor vehicles into purchasing or dealing in accessories or supplies manufactured or supplied by the respondents, or by any one designated by them, for use in and on automobiles sold by the respondents.

It is further ordered, That the respondents, General Motors Corporation, a corporation, and General Motors Sales Corporation, a corporation, and their respective officers, agents, representatives, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with any franchise or agreement for the sale of automobiles or in connection with the sale, or making of any contract for the sale of, automobile parts in commerce as "commerce" is defined in that act of Congress entitled, "An Act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies, and for other purposes," approved October 15, 1914, commonly known as the Clayton Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

Said respondents, and each of them in this paragraph named, are, and for more than 1 year last past, have been engaged in the business of selling commodities, particularly foodstuffs, groceries, and allied products, to numerous and divers wholesalers, jobbers, merchants, and dealers, including the buyer respondents hereinabove, in paragraph 4 hereof, named, and which buyers are usually located in States other than the States in which said sellers are respectively located.

Said respondent sellers are fairly typical and representative members of a large group or class of manufacturers, processors, importers, and producers engaged in the common practice of selling a substantial portion of their commodities in interstate commerce to the said buyer respondents, who use the purchasing services of respondent United Buyers Corporation. Said group or class of sellers comprises a large number, to wit: approximately 150 of such manufacturers, processors, importers, and producers, too numerous to be individually named herein as respondents or to be brought before the Commission in this proceeding without manifest inconvenience and delay, but each of whom has been and is engaged in practices similar to those hereinafter charged against those sellers herein specifically named as parties respondent. The respondents in this paragraph named are hereinafter designated and referred to as "respondent sellers."

PAR. 6. Respondent United Buyers Corporation is now, and since the time of its incorporation and organization on or about March 27, 1931, has been, engaged in the business of providing market information and purchasing services for approximately 46 wholesale grocery concerns located in the several States of the United States, 6 of whom are specifically named and described herein as respondent buyers. Each respondent buyer owns 5 shares of stock in United Buyers Corporation, which shares are debited upon the corporate books pursuant to the understanding and agreement that such shares will be paid for out of accrued benefits and thereafter become the property of the member stockholder and listed as an added asset to its business. Five of the above-mentioned 6 respondent buyers are directly represented on the board of directors of United Buyers Corporation.

In the course and conduct of its business aforesaid, said respondent receives orders to purchase commodities, particularly groceries and foodstuffs, from its various member stockholders or shareholders, consisting of the wholesale grocery houses and jobbers aforesaid, and transmits such orders to and executes the same with the aforesaid respondent sellers located in States of the United States other than the State in which such respondent buyers are located. As a result of the transmission of said orders by such buyers to respondent United Buyers Corporation, the execution of same by said respondent at the instance and request of said buyers, and the acceptance of said orders by said sellers, or one or more of them, goods, wares, and merchandise, particularly foodstuffs, are in the case of each order and in a continuous succession of such orders, sold or delivered by one or more of the said sellers to one or more of the said buyers. By such means and in the manner aforesaid, respondent United Buyers Corporation, acting for and in behalf of the said buyer respondents, and each of the other respondents, acting individually and in their respective capacities as set forth in the caption hereof, cause the above named seller respondents to ship the said commodities, foodstuffs, groceries, and allied products from the State in which such merchandise was located at the time of sale into and through various other States of the United States directly to the said buyer respondents in the States of their respective locations as aforesaid. In the operations and activities referred to, respondents and each of them, are engaged in interstate commerce, in practices which contemplate and result in the transportation of commodities in interstate commerce, and in making purchases which directly affect and bring about such commerce.

The estimated volume of purchases for the year 1936 for the United Buyers Corporation was approximately $4,250,000, said purchases being made from the seller respondents. The estimated operating expense for the said year of the United Buyers Corporation was $90,000. In all of said transactions, respondent, United Buyers Corporation, and the other respondents herein named as officers and members of the board of directors of said United Buyers Corporation, and each of them, were in fact acting in behalf of and for the said respondent buyers.

In connection with its aforesaid purchasing service for its various share-holding members, United Buyers Corporation has caused to be organized various local groups of independent retail grocery stores who become affiliated, and cooperate with said respondent, and in many instances use respondent's name on their stores in approximately fourteen States of the United States, in the sale and distribution of foodstuffs and other commodities purchased from the respondent sellers herein named, and said United Buyers Corporation pursues a practice and policy of serving the various wholesale grocery concerns constituting its membership and shareholders through a trained staff of field men who attempt to, and do, increase the sales of such wholesalers to such retailers by instructing and assisting the said retailers in the use of combined advertising, uniform display posters, suggested store rearrangements, and various and sundry centralized sales plans, and in various other ways.

Prior to an amendment to its charter about July 24, 1936, United Buyers Corporation issued to each of its share-holding members aforesaid, a "Participating Certificate" reading as follows:

No. -----	UNITED BUYERS CORPORATION	$100.00
	Participating Certificate
	Nontransferable

This is to certify that -----, hereinafter designated "Member," has paid $100.00 to the United Buyers Corporation (U. B. C.), and

C. as any such statement or intimation might cause cancellation of special allowances secured by the U. B. C.

It is mutually agreed that either the MEMBER or the U. B. C. shall have the right to cancel this agreement upon 30 days written notice. If cancelled by either party within 1 year, the U. B. C. agrees to pay back to the holder of this certificate $100.00 upon the surrender of same to the U. B. C.

The interest of shareholder represented by this certificate is subordinate and subject to any and all indebtednesses of the stockholder of the corporation and shall not be transferable until such indebtedness shall be paid and is expressly subject to bylaw No. 55 of said corporation which bylaw provides the terms under which stock of the corporation may be called in and cancelled.

The directors shall have power to declare and pay dividends on the shares of the capital stock of the corporation out of the new assets in excess of capital or out of the net profits as permitted by law, but no dividend shall be paid on the shares of the capital stock of the corporation in any year in excess of six dollars ($6.00) per share. Reasonable reserves as determined by the board of directors may be set aside from year to year. After setting aside such reserves and paying any such dividends as may be declared by the board of directors in any year, the remainder of the net assets in excess of capital or the net profits, available for dividends, shall be distributed by the board of directors to the members of the corporation on a patronage basis in proportion to their purchases, sales or services from, to or through this corporation.

PAR. 7. In the course and conduct of the commerce hereinabove described, the respondent sellers herein named pay or grant, and have paid or granted, to respondent, United Buyers Corporation, and respondent, United Buyers Corporation and the individual respondents herein named in their individual capacities, and as corporate officers and members of the board of directors of the United Buyers Corporation, and each of them, while acting in fact as intermediary for and on behalf of the respondent buyers in the transmittal and execution of the aforesaid buying orders, does receive and has received and accepted commissions, brokerage fees and other compensations and allowances or discounts in lieu thereof, varying from 1 to 10 percent of the quoted sale price agreed upon between buyer and seller, on the foodstuffs, groceries, and allied products so purchased, depending upon the nature of the products involved. Under the circumstances as hereinabove set out, no services connected with the transactions of sale and purchase of the merchandise sold to the said respondent buyers on which such brokerage fees, commissions, compensations, or discounts, or allowances in lieu thereof, were and are being paid to the said United Buyers Corporation, either have been or are being rendered to the sellers by respondent, United Buyers Corporation. Furthermore, such fees, commissions, and allowances or discounts so paid and received are passed on to the respondent buyers in the form of dividends upon the aforesaid shares of stock and in the form of patronage dividends, in accordance with the provisions of the aforesaid stock certificate agreement, in the form of services rendered by United Buyers Corporation to the retail customers of said respondent buyers as aforesaid, and in the operating maintenance and overhead expenses of the United Buyers Corporation.

PAR. 8. The payment by respondent sellers of commissions, brokerage fees, and other compensations or allowances and discounts in lieu thereof to the United Buyers Corporation, and the acts and practices of the individual respondents, acting in their individual capacities and as officers and members of the board of directors, and as representatives of the member stockholders and shareholders in the United Buyers Corporation in promoting such receipt, and the receipt and the ultimate acceptance of the ensuing benefits therefrom by the respondent buyers, all in the manner and form hereinabove set forth, are in violation of the provisions of section 2, subsection (c) of the act described in the preamble hereof. The receipt and acceptances of said brokerage fees, commissions, and other compensations in lieu thereof by the United Buyers Corporation, and the transmission and payment of same by said respondent to its member shareholders or stockholders constituting the group or class of respondent buyers, in the manner and form hereinabove set forth, are likewise in violation of the terms of said statute.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Clayton Act, approved October 15, 1914 (38 Stat. 730), as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act, approved June 19, 1936 (49 Stat. 1526; 15th U. S. C., sec. 13), the Federal Trade Commission, on August 31, 1937, issued and thereafter served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondents named in the caption hereof, charging them with violation of the provisions of section 2 (c) of the Clayton Act, as amended. After the issuance and service of the complaint, and the filing of respondents' answers, testimony and other evidence was introduced in support of the allegations of the complaint by the attorneys of the Commission, and in opposition thereto by the attorney for respondents, before duly appointed trial examiners of the Commission designated by it to serve in this proceeding, and said testimony and other evidence was duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission.

Thereafter, stipulations were entered into, signed and executed by or on behalf of each of the respondents, and by counsel for the Commission, whereby it was stipulated and agreed, subject to the approval of the Commission, that this matter be submitted to the Commission for final decision, upon the pleadings, testimony and other evidence, and that upon such pleadings, testimony and other evidence the Commission, without intervening procedure, might proceed to make, enter and serve its findings as to the facts, conclusion and order—further hearings as to the facts, report of the trial examiners, briefs and argument of counsel being expressly waived. This stipulation was approved by the Commission, and this proceeding thereafter regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the complaint, the answers thereto, the testimony and other evidence; and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

Inderrieden Co., is an Illinois corporation, having its principal office and place of business at 514 West Erie Street, Chicago, Ill. These respondents are hereinafter referred to as seller respondents.

Since June 19, 1936, and for some time prior thereto, each seller respondent, in competition with other manufacturers and sellers, has been engaged in the business of manufacturing and selling grocery and allied products to various wholesale grocers, including stockholders of UBC, and in the course and conduct of their business, each seller respondent has sold and shipped commodities in interstate commerce to various stockholders of UBC, and to competitors of such stockholders.

The seller respondents named herein are fairly typical and representative of a group of more than 300 manufacturers and sellers who, since June 19, 1936, have sold and shipped in interstate commerce to the stockholders of UBC and to competitors of such stockholders substantial quantities of grocery and allied products.

PAR. 6. UBC was incorporated on March 27, 1931, with an authorized capital stock of 1,000 shares, without par value, of which a minimum of approximately 235 shares had been issued and were outstanding during the period between the period June 19, 1936, and May 21, 1941. UBC's charter of incorporation, as amended July 24, 1936, contained among other provisions the following:

The nature of the business, or objects or purposes to be transacted, promoted or carried on, are:

(a) To function on a cooperative basis for the mutual benefit of its stockholders and to promote the general welfare of its members and to provide better and more economical methods of handling and buying merchandise for its stockholders.

(b) To register, require (sic) and use trade-marks and other emblems to distinguish its merchandise, and to act cooperatively and collectively in handling the products and problems of its stockholders and members.

(c) To act as agents for persons, firms and corporations in the buying of all kinds of merchandise, and especially in the buying of food and agricultural products, groceries, paper products, woodenware and hardware.

The charter as amended, also provides:

The directors shall have power to declare any pay dividends on the shares of the capital stock of the corporation * * * but no dividend shall be paid * * * in any year in excess of Six Dollars ($6.00) per share. * * * After setting aside such reserves and paying any such dividends as may be declared by the board of directors in any year, the remainder of the net assets in excess of capital, or the net profits available for dividends, shall be distributed by the board of directors to the members of the corporation on a patronage basis in proportion to their purchases or sales or services from, to or through this corporation.

This last quoted provision is incorporated in the stock certificates issued by UBC.

Each stockholder is entitled to one vote for each share of stock held by him, with the right to cumulate his votes in the election of directors. The bylaws of UBC vest the power of managing its property and business in its board of directors, elected by the stockholders. UBC's officers are elected and employed, and may be removed and discharged at will, by its board of directors, which has at all times actively exercised the power to direct and control the affairs of the corporation.

Prior to May 21, 1941, each stockholder in UBC owned five shares of UBC stock, purchased from the corporation at an agreed valuation of $100 per share. This stock was not paid for in cash, the account of each stockholder being debited for the cost of the stock, and all dividends declared and payable thereon being credited to the stockholders' accounts, rather than paid in cash, until the stock had been paid for in full. Dividends thereafter declared were paid to the stockholders in cash.

Between June 19, 1936, and May 21, 1941, UBC had from 40 to 51 active stockholders, located in 18 States of the United States. Each of said stockholders during such time was engaged in the wholesale grocery business in competition with other wholesale grocery concerns, and each purchased in interstate commerce and caused to be shipped to it across State lines, for resale by it to its customers, substantial quantities of grocery and allied products. In no city did UBC have more than 1 stockholder. In general, UBC's stockholders were located in different and noncompeting territories and, with few exceptions, were not engaged in competition with each other.

PAR. 7. From the date of its organization until May 21, 1941, UBC functioned as a cooperative buying organization, owned, controlled, and operated by and for the benefit of its stockholders. Its purposes and objectives have been to purchase commodities for its stockholders, as their purchasing agent, at the best prices obtainable, and to promote the interests and improve the competitive position of its stockholders by rendering to them numerous other services.

The participating certificates of membership originally issued by UBC provided, among other things, that UBC agreed "to act as purchasing agent for the member * * * and to combine the member's requirements so as to secure the largest possible brokerage or commissions." These certificates were canceled in February, 1934, and stock certificates then and thereafter were issued in lieu thereof; but UBC continued to operate and function as the purchasing agent of the stockholders.

In soliciting prospective stockholders for UBC, both before and after June 19, 1936, UBC representatives told them that UBC was a cooperative buying organization, owned, controlled and operated by and for the benefit of its stockholders; that by combining the purchasing power of its stockholders UBC acquired tremendous purchasing power, which enabled it to obtain for its stockholders better prices than they alone could obtain, and discounts and allowances which they alone could not obtain. Sellers with whom UBC negotiated arrangements under which it received brokerage on its stockholders' purchases were told that UBC was a buying organization for a group of well established wholesale grocers of enormous buying power, who preferred to purchase commodities from sellers who paid brokerage to UBC on their purchases, and that if the sellers would agree to pay UBC brokerage on its stockholders' purchases, UBC could and would favor the sellers with a substantial amount of attractive business.

Both before, and for a considerable time after, June 19, 1936, UBC's most widely used label, the "U BE SEE" label, bore the legend, "United Buyers Expert Service Effects Economies," the initial letters of which spell the name of the label. This label also carried the statement that "The U BE SEE label brings to you through your independent grocer tasty foods at a minimum price. This is made possible through the United Buyers Corporation's enormous group purchasing power, which covers the United States from coast to coast." Some UBC letterheads used after June 19, 1936, referred to UBC as "A Cooperative Association," and in its annual audits for 1936 and 1937, prepared in January of 1937 and 1938, respectively, UBC is referred to as the "agent in the buying of merchandise, especially foods and groceries" for its stockholders. In its 1936, 1937 and 1938 Federal income tax returns, UBC's occupation is described as "wholesale grocers' agent."

PAR. 8. Pursuant to the purposes and objectives of UBC, as stated in the preceding paragraph, from the time of its organization until May 21, 1941, UBC:

1. Acted for and in behalf of its stockholders, as their agent and subject to their direct control, in locating and purchasing commodities for them.
2. Bargained with sellers to secure commodities for its stockholders at the lowest possible prices.
3. Secured quantity discounts and advertising allowances from sellers for its stockholders.
4. Furnished its stockholders with regular and frequent market reports and advice.
5. Supplied its stockholders with information, plans, and suggestions, and, from time to time, with the services of trained field men, to increase their sales, better the appearance of their retail customers' stores, prepare advertising copy and otherwise improve its stockholders' merchandising methods.
6. Devised, developed and promoted labels owned by UBC, under which, in preference to manufacturers' and sellers' own labels, stockholders were encouraged to, and many did, purchase and resell commodities.

7. Encouraged and assisted stockholders to organize and operate voluntary chains of affiliated and cooperating, but independently owned, retail stores which favored their sponsoring stockholder, in purchasing the commodities sold by such stores at retail most of such stores being known as "U BE SEE Food Stores," and having a uniform store front appearance.

8. Arranged for sellers to pay it brokerage or commissions upon its stockholders' purchases, which said brokerage or commissions were expended and disbursed by UBC for the benefit of its stockholders in paying its operating expenses, furnishing its stockholders with various services, and making to them cash payments in substantial amounts.

All stockholders of UBC were entitled to all available UBC services without charge. The extent to which stockholders were furnished with the services of field men, however, and the amount of cash payments made by UBC to its stockholders, were directly related to and determined by the amount of UBC's income upon each respective stockholder's purchases through UBC. Prior to June 19, 1936, cash payments made by UBC to its stockholders were paid as patronage dividends declared by UBC's board of directors. No patronage dividends have been declared or paid by UBC from brokerage or commissions received by it upon purchases made by its stockholders since June 19, 1936, but cash payments to its stockholders have been made by it, though not as patronage dividends, from brokerage and commissions received upon purchases made by its stockholders in interstate commerce between June 19, 1936, and May 21, 1941.

PAR. 9. The quantity of business done by UBC on behalf of its stockholders was substantial, its purchases of commodities for them during its 1936 fiscal year amounting to more than $4,250,000; during 1937 to more than $4,900,000; and during 1938 to more than $3,895,000. UBC's gross income from brokerage and commissions during these three years was approximately $121,000, $123,000, and $104,000, respectively. A substantial amount of UBC's income was derived from brokerage paid to it upon purchases made by it for its stockholders in interstate commerce, and requiring the shipment of goods to be made by sellers to its stockholders across State lines.

Daily, UBC receives and executes a large number of orders on behalf of its stockholders, a typical transaction being handled as follows:

Having received from UBC a market letter, bulletin, or other quotation, respecting the availability of commodities, a stockholder will transmit to UBC for execution, an order therefor. This may be done by mail, or by telephone or telegram, the stockholder being privileged to reverse telephone and telegraph charges on his communications to UBC. UBC then places the stockholder's order with a seller, endeavoring to purchase the designated commodities for the stockholder, as his agent, at the lowest price obtainable. If the price offered by UBC is acceptable to the seller, the latter confirms the sale to UBC by notifying it of his acceptance of the order, and UBC in turn notifies the stockholder. The seller then ships and bills the commodities to the stockholder, from whom he receives payment therefor, and in due course pays UBC a brokerage or commission upon the sale. Occasionally such commodities, although shipped to the stockholder, are billed to and paid by UBC, which is reimbursed by the stockholder. Stockholders frequently request UBC to search the market in an effort to obtain and purchase commodities for them at stated prices, and UBC endeavors to comply with such requests. Pursuant to directions given by UBC to its stockholders, in an effort to increase its brokerage income, such stockholders frequently give or transmit orders to sellers direct, or, less frequently but in many instances, purchase commodities from sellers' brokers and insist that brokerage be paid to UBC by the sellers on such orders. In many cases sellers have complied with this insistence, and in some cases they have paid brokerage to UBC as well as to their own brokers on sales made through the latter to UBC stockholders. UBC records all purchases made by its stockholders through it, or upon which it is paid brokerage, and sends to its stockholders monthly an itemized statement of such purchases. This statement does not show UBC's earnings on its stockholders' purchases, but a record of such earnings with respect to each stockholder is made and kept by UBC.

PAR. 10. During the period between June 19, 1936, and May 21, 1941, in all transactions of purchase and sale to which a UBC stockholder was a party and in which UBC participated, UBC was the purchasing agent and representative of the stockholder, and acted in fact for and in behalf of, and under the direct control of such stockholder. UBC was not, in any such transactions, the agent or representative of any sellers from whom UBC stockholders purchased commodities, nor did it represent or act for or in behalf of, or under the control of any such sellers. All services rendered by UBC in such transactions were intended to be, and in fact were, rendered to its stockholders, and UBC neither rendered nor intended to render to sellers any selling services, or any other services of any kind whatever; such benefits as sellers received from UBC's activities were merely incidental to the services rendered by UBC to its stockholders.

PAR. 11. With the exception of respondent Angelus Campfire Co., which has paid no brokerage or commissions to UBC, each seller respondent, and approximately 300 other sellers and manufacturers, transmitted and paid to UBC within the period from June 19, 1936, to May 21, 1941, and UBC accepted and received from them, brokerage fees and commissions in substantial amounts upon the sale within that period of commodities purchased in interstate commerce by UBC stockholders.

PAR. 12. Within the period from June 19, 1936, to May 21, 1941, each buyer respondent and every other stockholder of UBC made substantial purchases, through UBC, of commodities in interstate commerce upon which brokerage fees and commissions were paid to UBC by the sellers of such commodities, and in services or in money, UBC, within said period, transmitted or paid to each buyer respondent and UBC stockholder, and each buyer respondent and UBC stockholder accepted and received from UBC substantial amounts of such brokerage fees and commissions.

PAR. 13. On May 21, 1941, all the issued and outstanding capital stock in UBC then owned by the buyer respondents and other UBC stockholders was sold by them to James H. Black, W. W. Caldwell, S. E. Nordlund, H. W. Jones and T. N. Fulton, employees of UBC, who had not theretofore owned any of its capital stock. These employees now own absolutely and unconditionally all the issued and outstanding capital stock of UBC, and constitute its board of directors. Its officers are J. H. Black, president; W. W. Caldwell, vice president, and S. E. Nordlund, secretary-treasurer. No stockholder in UBC prior to May 21, 1941, and no person or firm engaged in the wholesale grocery business, now owns any stock or interest in UBC, or is an officer or member of the board of directors of UBC.

CONCLUSION •

The Commission concludes that UBC in the transactions set out was acting for and in behalf of its buyer-stockholders, and that:

(1) The payment of brokerage by the seller-respondent and other sellers to UBC upon its stockholders' purchases of commodities in interstate commerce subsequent to June, 1936.

(2) The receipt of such brokerage by UBC and the transmission thereof to its stockholders in services and in money.

IN THE MATTER OF

FERD T. HOPKINS, TRADING AS D. WATSON & COMPANY
AND AS COLONNADE ADVERTISING AGENCY.COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914*Docket 4527. Complaint, June 30, 1941—Decision, Nov. 13, 1941*

Where an individual engaged in the interstate sale and distribution of "Dr. J. Lariviere's Vegetable Compound," by means of advertisements in newspapers and other advertising literature, directly and by implication—Represented that his said product constituted a treatment for painful and irregular menstruation; use of which would strengthen the system and organs and build up physical resistance to restlessness, nervousness, cramps, headaches, fainting spells, and other distressing symptoms or ailments accompanying the menstruation period or which might be due to female "functional disorders"; and that restlessness, nervousness, and moody spells in young women are indicative of or symptoms of "dangerous periods" imperiling health;

The facts being that it did not constitute such a treatment and use thereof would not accomplish results as above claimed, and restlessness, nervousness, and moody spells in young women are not indicative of, nor symptoms of "dangerous periods" imperiling "health";

With the effect of misleading and deceiving a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the mistaken belief that such representations were true, and of inducing it, because of such belief, to purchase his said preparation:
Held, That such acts and practices, as above set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Mr. William L. Taggart for the Commission.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that John Shapiro, individually and trading as Federal Sales Company, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the interest of the public, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, John Shapiro, is an individual trading as Federal Sales Co., with its principal office and place of business located at 150-35 Thirty-fourth Avenue, Flushing, Long Island, N. Y. Respondent is now and for more than one year last past has been engaged in the sale and distribution of candy and confectionery products to wholesale dealers, jobbers, and retail dealers. Respondent causes and has caused said products, when sold, to be shipped from manufacturers in the State of New York to purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in the various States of the United States other than New York and in the District of Columbia. There is now and has been for more than one year last past a course of trade by respondent in such candy in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business respondent is and has been in competition with other individuals and with partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of candy in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and has sold to wholesale dealers, jobbers, and retail dealers certain assortments of candy and other articles of merchandise so packed and assembled as to involve the use of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes when sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. One of said assortments is hereinafter described for the purpose of showing the method used by respondents and is as follows:

This assortment consists of 150 pieces of caramel candy of uniform size and shape, together with 12 common lead pencils and 8 pencil sets. The said pencil sets contain a ruler, a pencil, and a pen holder. Seven of said caramels are red, 12 are chocolate and the remainder, 131, are vanilla. The said caramels are individually wrapped and the color of each is effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until a purchase had been made and the wrapper removed therefrom. All of the caramels retail at the price of 1 cent each. Purchasers procuring 1 of the said chocolate caramels are entitled to and receive, without additional cost, 1 of the said pencils. Purchasers procuring one of the said red caramels are entitled to and receive, without additional cost, one of the said pencil sets. The purchaser of the last caramel in said assortment is entitled to and receives, without additional cost, 1 of the said pencil sets. The said pencils and pencil sets are thus distributed to the purchasing and consuming public wholly by lot or chance.

Respondent sells and distributes and has sold and distributed various assortments of candy and other articles of merchandise involving a lot or chance feature, but such assortments are similar to the one hereinabove described and vary only in detail.

PAR. 3. Retail dealers who directly or indirectly purchase respondent's said candy and other articles of merchandise expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the sales plan aforesaid. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of his products in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said sales plan or method in the sale of his products and the sale of said products by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plan or method is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws.

PAR. 4. The sale of candy and other articles of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above alleged involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure an article of merchandise at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell or distribute candy and other articles of merchandise in competition with the respondent, as above alleged, are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other method that is contrary to public policy and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of his candy and other articles of merchandise and the element of chance involved therein and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's said products in preference to products offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or equivalent methods. The use of said method by respondent because of said game of chance has a tendency and a capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia to respondent from his said competitors, who do not use the same or equivalent methods, and as a result thereof substantial injury is being done and has been done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on August 27, 1940, issued and thereafter served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondent, John Shapiro, individually and trading as Federal Sales Co., charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint (no answer thereto being filed by respondent), testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of the complaint were introduced by J. V. Mishou, attorney for the Commission, before Andrew B. Duvall, a trial examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it (no testimony or other evidence being offered by respondent), and such testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the complaint, testimony and other evidence, report of the trial examiner upon the evidence, and brief in support of the complaint (respondent not having filed brief and oral argument not having been requested); and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent John Shapiro, is an individual trading as Federal Sales Co., with his office and place of business located at 150-35 Thirty-fourth Avenue, Flushing, Long Island, N. Y. Respondent is now, and for more than 3 years last past, has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of candy to wholesale dealers and jobbers.

PAR. 2. Respondent causes and has caused his products, when sold, to be shipped from manufacturers in the State of New York and in other States to purchasers thereof located in various States of the United States other than the States in which such shipments originate. Respondent maintains, and for more than 3 years last past, has maintained, a course of trade in his candy in commerce among and between the various States of the United States.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of his business respondent is, and at all times mentioned herein has been, in substantial competition with other individuals and with corporations and firms engaged in the sale and distribution of candy in commerce among and between the various States of the United States.

PAR. 4. Respondent is not a manufacturer and does not manufacture any of the candy which he sells. He is a middleman, representing certain manufacturers of candy and selling the products of such manufacturers to wholesalers and jobbers on a commission basis. Upon obtaining an order for candy respondent transmits such order to the particular manufacturer whose product is desired and the manufacturer ships the candy to the purchaser. Respondent receives for his services in procuring the order a designated percentage of the purchase price of the candy. Not only does respondent personally solicit orders, but he has a number of salesmen employed who assist him in soliciting orders. While most of the respondent's sales are made to purchasers located in the New England States and other States in the eastern portion of the United States, some of his sales have been made to purchasers located in the State of California and in various other States throughout the United States.

PAR. 5. In the course and conduct of his business respondent has sold certain assortments of candy and other merchandise so packed and assembled as to involve the use of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes when such candy and other merchandise was sold and distributed to the consuming public. One of these assortments was made up as follows:

This assortment consisted of 150 pieces of caramel candy of uniform size and shape, together with 12 lead pencils and 8 pencil sets. The pencil sets contained a ruler, a pencil, and a pen-holder. Seven of the pieces of candy were red, 12 were chocolate, and the remaining 131 pieces were vanilla or white in color. The pieces of candy were individually or separately wrapped, and the color of the various pieces was effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until a purchase had been made and the wrapper removed from the candy. All of the pieces of candy sold at retail for 1 cent each. Purchasers who happened to obtain one of the chocolate caramels were entitled to and received without additional cost one of the lead pencils. Purchasers who happened to obtain 1 of the red caramels were entitled to and received without additional cost 1 of the pencil sets. The purchaser of the last caramel or piece of candy in the assortment was entitled to and received without additional cost 1 of the pencil sets. The pencils and pencil sets were thus distributed to the purchasing public wholly by lot or chance.

The sale of this particular assortment was discontinued by respondent sometime during the year 1939. Prior to that time respondent sold and distributed certain other assortments of candy which involved lot or chance features similar in all material respects to the plan described above.

PAR. 6. Retail dealers who purchased respondent's assortments of candy and other merchandise from wholesalers and jobbers exposed and sold such candy and other merchandise to the purchasing public in accordance with the sales plan herein described. Respondent thus supplied to and placed in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of his products. The use by respondent of such sales plan or method and the sale of respondent's products to the purchasing public by and through the use of such sales plan or method is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States.

PAR. 7. Many of the persons, firms, and corporations who sell and distribute candy in competition with respondent are and have been unwilling to adopt and use the sales plan or method used by respondent in the sale and distribution of his candy, or any other sales plan or method involving the use of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme, and such competitors refrain therefrom. The use by respondent of such game of chance or lottery scheme has the tendency and capacity to divert unfairly to respondent from his said competitors substantial trade in commerce among and between the various States of the United States.

CONCLUSION

The acts and practices of the respondent as herein found are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission (no answer having been filed by respondent), testimony and other evidence taken before Andrew B. Duvall, trial examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of the complaint (no testimony or other evidence being offered in opposition thereto), report of the trial examiner upon the evidence, and brief in support of the complaint (no brief having been filed by respondent and oral argument not having been requested); and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that the respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, John Shapiro, individually and trading as Federal Sales Co., or trading under any other name, his representatives, agents and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of candy or any other merchandise in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Selling or distributing candy or any other merchandise so packed and assembled that sales of such candy or other merchandise to the public are to be made or may be made by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

2. Supplying to or placing in the hands of others for ultimate sale to the public, assortments of candy composed of individually wrapped pieces of candy of uniform size and shape but of different colors, such colors being effectively concealed, together with articles of merchandise which are to be or may be given as prizes to purchasers procuring pieces of said candy of a particular color.

3. Supplying to or placing in the hands of others any device which is to be used or may be used in the sale or distribution of respondent's candy or other merchandise to the public by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

4. Selling or otherwise disposing of any merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 4417. Complaint, Dec. 14, 1940—Decision, Nov. 14, 1941

Where an individual engaged in competitive interstate sale and distribution of billfolds, cameras, cosmetics, fountain pens, jewelry, smoking pipes, wearing apparel, and other articles, including assortments thereof which consisted of a large carton enclosing 80 or 81 small boxes, each holding an article of merchandise costing said individual from less than 1 to 6 cents each, and customarily retailing for from 2 to 25 cents each; with front of said carton constituting a pull card for use in sale and distribution of said small boxes under a plan by which the ultimate purchaser, for the 10 cents paid, secured that box, number of which corresponded to that secured by chance from card, and depicting thereon articles usually retailing at more than 10 cents each, purportedly contained therein,—

Sold such assortments, through brokers, to distributors or wholesalers, retail purchasers from whom exposed and sold them to the purchasing public in accordance with aforesaid sales plan, involving a game of chance, in that the facts as to which of a number of different articles purchaser would receive and whether or not the article secured was of less or greater value than the purchase price, were determined wholly by lot or chance, notwithstanding legend "Box may be opened and contents examined before purchasing," printed at the bottom of one side of the large carton in type so small and inconspicuously placed as to be visible and legible only upon the most minute examination, and which, it was evident, was not intended to, and did not, come to the attention of the purchasing public; said dealer thereby supplying to and placing in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of merchandise in accordance with aforesaid plan or method, in competition with others who, unwilling to adopt and use such or other sales method contrary to public policy, refrain therefrom;

With the result that many dealers in and ultimate consumers of such merchandise were attracted by said sales plan and the element of chance involved therein, and were thereby induced to buy his said merchandise in preference to that of his said competitors, and with effect of unfairly diverting trade to him from them; to the substantial injury of competition in commerce;

Held, That such acts and practices were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair acts and practices therein.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Ewen Cameron, individually, and trading as Merchandise Sales Syndicate, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the interest of the public hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Ewen Cameron, is an individual trading under the name of Merchandise Sales Syndicate, with his principal office and place of business located at 2738 North Sheffield Avenue, Chicago, Ill. Respondent is now and for more than three years last past has been engaged in the sale and distribution of smoking pipes, jewelry, fountain pens, billfolds, knives, cosmetics, cameras, wearing apparel, and other articles of merchandise to dealers. Respondent causes, and has caused, said merchandise when sold to be transported from his aforesaid place of business in the State of Illinois to purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. There is now and for more than three years last past has been a course of trade by said respondent in such merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of his business respondent is, and has been, in competition with other individuals and with partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and has sold to dealers certain assortments of said merchandise so packed and assembled as to involve the use of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme when said merchandise is sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. One of said assortments is, and has been, sold and distributed to the purchasing public in substantially the following manner:

This assortment consists of a large cardboard carton in which is contained a number of smaller cartons, each of which smaller cartons contains an article of merchandise and on the end of each of said smaller cartons there appears a number. One end of said large carton is so constructed as to constitute a device commonly known as a pull card. Such pull card contains a number of partially perforated pull tabs and on the reverse side of each of said tabs there appears a number which corresponds to the number appearing on the end of one of said smaller cartons. Sales are 10 cents each and each purchaser pulls one of said tabs from the pull card. The purchaser is entitled to and receives the smaller carton bearing the number which corresponds to the number appearing on the reverse side of the tab pulled by such purchaser. The numbers on the reverse sides of said tabs are effectively concealed from purchasers and the prospective purchasers until selections have been made and the tabs have been separated or removed from the said card. Many of the said articles of merchandise contained in this assortment have a normal retail value greater than 10 cents. The fact as to which of said articles of merchandise a purchaser is to receive and whether or not he receives an article of merchandise of greater retail value than the amount to be paid therefor are thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

Respondent sells and distributes, and has sold and distributed, various assortments of his merchandise, together with devices for use in the sale or distribution of such merchandise, to the purchasing public by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme but the sales plans or methods employed in connection with each of said assortments are substantially the same as the sales plans or methods hereinabove described, varying only in detail.

PAR. 3. Retail dealers who purchase respondent's said assortments of merchandise, either directly or indirectly, expose for sale and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the aforesaid sales plans or methods. Respondent thus supplies to, and places in the hands of, others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale and distribution of his merchandise in accordance with the sales plans or methods hereinabove described. The use by respondent of said sales plans or method in the sale of his merchandise, and the sale of said merchandise by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plans or methods, is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of criminal laws.

PAR. 4. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above alleged involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure an article of merchandise at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell and distribute merchandise in competition with respondent, as above alleged, are unwilling to adopt and use said sales plans or methods or any sales plans or methods involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other sales plans or methods that are contrary to public policy and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many dealers in and ultimate consumers of said merchandise are attracted by said sales plans or methods employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of his merchandise and the element of chance involved therein and are thereby induced to buy respondent's merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or equivalent sales plans or methods. The use of said sales plans or methods by respondent because of said game of chance has a tendency and capacity to and does unfairly divert trade to respondent from his said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent sales plans or methods and as a result thereof substantial injury is being and has been done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act the Federal Trade Commission on December 14, 1940, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent Ewen Cameron, individually and trading as Merchandise Sales Syndicate, charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of the complaint were introduced by an attorney for the Commission and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by attorneys for the respondent before an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, report of the trial examiner and exceptions thereto, briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto, and oral arguments of counsel; and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Ewen Cameron, is an individual trading under the name Merchandise Sales Syndicate, with his principal office and place of business located at 2738 North Sheffield Avenue, Chicago, Ill. Respondent is now and has been since about 1936, engaged in the sale and distribution of billfolds, cameras, cosmetics, fountain pens, jewelry, smoking pipes, wearing apparel, and other articles of merchandise.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his business as aforesaid respondent causes, and has caused, said merchandise, when sold, to be transported from his place of business in the State of Illinois to purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. There is now, and for several years last past has been, a course of trade by said respondent in such merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. Respondent sells and distributes assortments of merchandise consisting of novelties and notions such as those mentioned in paragraph 1 hereof. He sells his assortments of merchandise through brokers to distributors or wholesale dealers who resell to retail dealers who, in turn, sell to consumers. During the approximately 4 years in which he has been engaged in his present business his volume of sales has increased from about $20,000 the first year to about $70,000 in the last year. The contents of the assortments of merchandise sold vary somewhat from time to time, but the method of sale of all such assortments is substantially the same and is as follows: The assortment consists of a large carton containing a number of small boxes in each of which is packed an article of merchandise. The front of the large carton is so constructed as to constitute a device commonly known as a pull card. This pull card has a number of partially perforated pull tabs and on the back of each such tab a number appears which corresponds to a number appearing on one of the smaller boxes contained in the large carton. Sales are 10 cents each, and a purchaser detaches one of the partially perforated tabs from the pull card and receives the small box bearing the number corresponding to the number appearing on the reverse side of the tab pulled by such purchaser. This number on the reverse side of the tab is effectively concealed from view until the tab is separated and removed from the pull card.

Each assortment of merchandise usually consists of 80 or 81 articles, and in case the assortments have 81 articles the purchaser who pulls the last of the 80 tabs on the pull card receives, in addition to the article of merchandise called for by the number on the reverse side of that tab, one additional article of merchandise without further charge. Respondent occasionally purchases job lots of merchandise and the individual items packed in assortments vary according to the merchandise he has available at any given time. The cost to respondent of the individual articles in said assortments also varies from time to time. As of July 1940 the cost of the individual items in one such assortment ranged from slightly less than 1 cent each to 6 cents each. The usual and customary retail prices of the articles included in assortments sold by the respondent range from 2 or 3 cents each to approximately 25 cents each.

PAR. 4. Retail dealers who purchase respondent's assortments of merchandise expose for sale and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan or method.

Respondent testified that any purchaser is free to examine the merchandise drawn and decline to accept and pay for it if he so desires, and that the retail dealer is informed that unsold merchandise may be returned. However, the only notice to the purchasing public is the legend "Box may be opened and contents examined before purchasing" printed at the bottom of one side of the large carton in type so small and so inconspicuously placed as to be visible and legible only upon the most careful and minute examination. The conclusion is drawn from the size and placing of this notice that it is not intended to, and does not, come to the attention of the purchasing public.

The large carton has on its front beside the pull card pictures of articles of merchandise which usually and customarily retail at more than 10 cents each and which are purportedly contained in the assortment. Among the articles so pictured are a pipe, a necktie, a billfold, a razor, and a cigarette lighter. These pictorial representations have the capacity and tendency, when taken in connection with the method of sale used, to create in the minds of members of the purchasing public the belief that among the articles of merchandise in the assortment there are some of a value greater than 10 cents.

The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public in the aforesaid manner involves a game of chance in that the fact as to which of a number of different articles of merchandise the purchaser will receive, and whether or not he receives an article of merchandise of less or greater value than the purchase price, is determined wholly by lot or chance. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of merchandise in accordance with the aforesaid plan or method.

PAR. 5. In the conduct of his business respondent is in competition with other sellers of like articles of merchandise who do not use, and are unwilling to adopt and use, any sales plan or method involving a game of chance or any other sales plan or method contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many dealers in and ultimate consumers of such merchandise are attracted by the sales plan or method employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of his merchandise and the element of chance involved therein, and are thereby induced to buy respondent's merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or equivalent sales plans or methods. The use of said sales plan or method by respondent, because of said game of chance, has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade to respondent from competitors who do not use the same or equivalent methods of sale, and as a result thereof substantial injury is being done, and has been done, by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States and in the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondent, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto taken before an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, report of the trial examiner and exceptions thereto, briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto, and oral arguments of counsel, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act:

1. Selling or distributing novelties, or any merchandise, so packed or assembled that sales of such novelties or other merchandise to the public are to be made, or may be made, by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

Supplying to or placing in the hands of others push- or pull-cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices, either with assortments of novelties or other merchandise or separately, which said push- or pull-cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices are to be used, or may be used, in selling or distributing said novelties or other merchandise to the public.

3. Selling or otherwise disposing of any novelties or other merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF

MINERAL WELLS CRYSTAL PRODUCERS, INC.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 28, 1914

Docket 4512. Complaint, May 29, 1941—Decision, Nov. 14, 1941

Where a corporation engaged in the processing and in the competitive interstate sale and distribution of mineral crystals for the treatment of certain ailments; in statements and legends on leaflets, letterheads, billheads, sales invoices, display cards and other advertising material, and on the labels and outer wrappings of the product's containers, directly or by implication—

(a) Represented through inclusion of words "Mineral Wells" as a part of its corporate name and through such use of them in aforesaid statements as "Mineral Wells Crystals," "Made in Mineral Wells, Tex.," and "Made from Texas mineral water," that its mineral crystals were produced exclusively from mineral water obtained in its natural state from the earth at or in the vicinity of Mineral Wells, Tex.;

The facts being its said product was not processed from mineral water thus obtained at or in the vicinity of said city,—which for a long period had been well and favorably known for its mineral water containing certain constituents, and name of which had long been associated by a substantial portion of the purchasing public with the wells located in its vicinity—and was not made directly from any natural mineral water, but was prepared through mixing ordinary water from the mains of aforesaid city with commercial chemicals purchased by said corporation from chemical companies obtaining their raw materials hundreds of miles distant, and thereafter heating and processing the solution; and

(b) Represented that its said product had been endorsed or tested as to quality and fitness by some governmental, scientific or other recognized agency empowered and qualified to certify as to the attributes thereof, through use of such words and legends as "CERTIFIED Mineral Wells Crystals," "Use Certified Mineral Crystals," and "Certified Mineral Crystals";

The facts being its said product was not properly described as "Certified" inasmuch as it had never been endorsed or tested as to quality or fitness by any recognized agency whatever;

With effect of misleading and deceiving a substantial portion of the purchasing public as to its product and the place of origin thereof, and of thereby inducing it to purchase substantial quantities of said product whereby trade was diverted unfairly to it from its competitors, including many who do not misrepresent their products or the places of origin thereof; to the substantial injury of competition in commerce:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce.

Mr. J. V. Buffington for the Commission.

Mr. A. E. Brooks, of Fort Worth, Tex., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Mineral Wells Crystal Producers, Inc., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PAR. 5. Through the use of the aforesaid representations, and others of similar import not specifically set out herein, the respondent represents and has represented, directly or through inference that its mineral crystals are produced exclusively from mineral water obtained in its natural state from the earth at or in the vicinity of Mineral Wells, Tex., and that said product has been endorsed or attested as to quality and fitness by some governmental, scientific or other recognized agency empowered and qualified to certify as to the attributes of said product.

PAR. 6. Such representations on the part of the respondent are false and misleading. The preparation of said product, on the contrary, consists of mixing ordinary water from the city water mains of Mineral Wells, Tex., with commercial chemicals purchased by respondent from one or more chemical companies operating and obtaining their raw materials hundreds of miles from the city of Mineral Wells, Tex., heating the solution thus obtained until it reaches a proper gravity, and then cooling the concentrate in refrigerated compartments. In consequence, trade has been diverted unfairly to respondent from its competitors, with the result that substantial injury has been done, and is being done, by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 11. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on May 29, 1941, issued, and on June 2, 1941, served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, Mineral Wells Crystal Producers, Inc., charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. filing of respondent's answer, the Commission, by order entered herein, granted respondent's motion for permission to withdraw said answer and to substitute therefor an answer admitting all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, which substitute answer was duly filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and substitute answer, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondent

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Charles Campbell Buttenfield, Sr., an individual, trading as Dean Cabot, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Charles Campbell Buttenfield, Sr., is an individual trading as Dean Cabot, with his office and principal place of business at 227 North Homewood Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa., from which address he transacts business under the above trade name.

PAR. 2. The respondent is now, and for more than one year last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of a certain medicinal preparation designated as Caboteks.

In the course and conduct of his business, the respondent causes said medicinal preparation when sold to be transported from his place of business in the State of Pennsylvania to purchasers thereof located in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said medicinal preparation in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of his aforesaid business, the respondent has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning his said product by the United States mails and by various other means in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act; and respondent has also disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning his said product, by various means, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of his said product in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Among and typical of the false, misleading, and deceptive statements and representations contained in said false advertisements, disseminated and caused to be disseminated as hereinabove set forth, by the United States mails and by advertisements in newspapers and other advertising literature, are the following:

Women—Use my medicine containing that exclusive, necessary, additional ingredient, making it the most reliable. Churchill 2219. Dean Cabot, Homewood, Pittsburgh.

Women—Prove to yourselves which medicine is reliable by trying other medicines first, then trying Caboteks. Dean Cabot, Churchill 2219.

Medicine for Women, Dean Cabot, Churchill 2219.

PAR. 4. By the use of the representations hereinabove set forth and other representations similar thereto not specifically set forth herein, the respondent represents and has represented, directly and by implication, that his medicinal preparation, designated as Caboteks, is a cure or remedy for delayed menstruation and is a competent and effective treatment therefor, and that said preparation is safe for use.

PAR. 5. The foregoing representations are grossly exaggerated, false, and misleading. In truth and in fact, the medicinal preparation sold and distributed by the respondent as aforesaid, designated as Caboteks, is not a cure or remedy for delayed menstruation and is not a competent or effective treatment therefor. Moreover, said preparation is not safe for use, as it contains the drugs ergotin, apiol green, oil savin, and quinine sulphate.

The aforesaid drugs are present in the said medicinal preparation in quantities sufficient to cause serious and irreparable injury to health if said preparation is used under the conditions prescribed in said advertisements or under such conditions as are customary or usual.

Such use of said medicinal preparation may result in gastrointestinal disturbances such as catharsis, nausea, and vomiting, with pelvic congestion, inflammation and congestion of the uterus leading to excessive uterine hemorrhage, and in those cases where this preparation is used to interfere with the normal course of pregnancy, such use may result in uterine infection with extension to other pelvic and abdominal structures, and to the bloodstream, causing a condition known as septicemia or blood poisoning.

The use of said preparation as aforesaid may also produce a severe circulatory condition by the constriction of the blood vessels and contraction of the involuntary muscles, tending to produce abortion in some instances, often with violent poisonous effects upon the human system. Such use as aforesaid may also produce severe toxic conditions such as hemorrhagic diarrhea, and in some instances producing a gangrenous condition in the lower limbs or other serious or irreparable injury to health.

PAR. 6. The advertisements disseminated by the respondent as aforesaid constitute false advertisements for the further reason that they fail to reveal facts material in the light of the representations contained therein, and fail to reveal that the use of said preparation under the conditions prescribed in said advertisements, or under such conditions as are customary or usual, may cause gastrointestinal disturbances and excessive congestion and hemorrhage of the pelvic organs, and in the case of pregnancy, may cause uterine infection and blood poisoning.

PAR. 7. The use by the respondent of the foregoing false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations with respect to his preparation, disseminated as aforesaid, has had and now has, the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such statements, representations and advertisements are true, and to induce a portion of the purchasing public, because of such erroneous and mistaken belief, to purchase respondent's medicinal preparation.

PAR. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on April 26, 1941, issued, and on April 28, 1941, served, its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent Charles Campbell Battenfield, Sr., an individual trading as Dean Cabot, charging him with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance and service of said complaint and filing of respondent's answer, the Commission, by order entered herein, granted respondent's motion for permission to withdraw said answer and to substitute therefor an answer admitting all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, which substitute answer was duly filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and substitute answer, and the Commission having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its finding as to the facts and conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Charles Campbell Battenfield, Sr., is an individual trading as Dean Cabot, with his office and principal place of business at 227 North Homewood Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa., from which address he transacts business under the above trade name.

PAR. 2. The respondent is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of a certain medicinal preparation designated as Caboteks, which is intended for use in the treatment of disease in women and intended to affect a function of the female body, and thus constitutes a "drug" as that term is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act.

In the course and conduct of his business, the respondent causes said medicinal preparation when sold to be transported from his place of business in the State of Pennsylvania to purchasers thereof located in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said medicinal preparation in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. Among and typical of the false, misleading and deceptive statements and representations contained in said false advertisements, disseminated and caused to be disseminated as hereinabove set forth, by the United States mails and by advertisements in newspapers and other advertising literature, are the following:

Women—Use my medicine containing that exclusive, necessary, additional ingredient, making it the most reliable. Churchill 2219. Dean Cabot, Homewood, Pittsburgh.

Women—Prove to yourselves which medicine is reliable by trying other medicines first, then trying Caboteks. Dean Cabot, Churchill 2219. Medicine for Women, Dean Cabot, Churchill 2219.

PAR. 4. By the use of the representations hereinabove set forth and other representations similar thereto not specifically set forth herein, the respondent represents and has represented, directly and by implication, that his medicinal preparation, designated as Caboteks, is a cure or remedy for delayed menstruation and is a competent and effective treatment therefor, and that said preparation is safe for use.

PAR. 5. The foregoing representations are grossly exaggerated, false and misleading. In truth and in fact, the medicinal preparation sold and distributed by the respondent as aforesaid, designated as Caboteks, is not a cure or remedy for delayed menstruation and is not a competent or effective treatment therefor. Moreover, said preparation is not safe for use, as it contains the drugs ergotin, apiol green, oil savin, and quinine sulphate.

The aforesaid drugs are present in the said medicinal preparation in quantities sufficient to cause serious and irreparable injury to health if said preparation is used under the conditions prescribed in said advertisements or under such conditions as are customary or usual.

Such use of said medicinal preparation may result in gastrointestinal disturbances such as catharsis, nausea, and vomiting, with pelvic congestion, inflammation and congestion of the uterus, leading to excessive uterine hemorrhage, and in those cases where this preparation is used to interfere with the normal course of pregnancy, such use may result in uterine infection with extension to other pelvic and abdominal structures, and to the bloodstream, causing a condition known as septicemia or blood poisoning.

The use of said preparation as aforesaid may also produce a severe circulatory condition by the constriction of the blood vessels and the contraction of the involuntary muscles, tending to produce abortion in some instances, often with violent poisonous effects upon the human system. Such use as aforesaid may also produce severe toxic conditions such as hemorrhagic diarrhea, and in some instances producing a gangrenous condition in the lower limbs or other serious or irreparable injury to health.

PAR. 6. The advertisements disseminated by the respondent as aforesaid constitute false advertisements for the further reason that they fail to reveal facts material in the light of the representations contained therein, and fail to reveal that the use of said preparation under the conditions prescribed in said advertisements, or under such conditions as are customary or usual, may cause gastrointestinal disturbances and excessive congestion and hemorrhage of the pelvic organs, and in the case of pregnancy, may cause uterine infection and blood poisoning.

PAR. 7. The use by the respondent of the foregoing false, deceptive and misleading statements and representations with respect to his preparation, disseminated as aforesaid, has had and now has, the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such statements, representations and advertisements are true, and to induce a portion of the purchasing public, because of such erroneous and mistaken belief, to purchase respondent's medicinal preparation.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission on the complaint of the Commission and the answer of the respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and states that he waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent Charles Campbell Buttenfield, Sr., an individual trading as Dean Cabot, or trading under any other name, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, or distribution of his medicinal preparation known as "Caboteks," or any other preparation of substantially similar composition or possessing substantially similar properties, whether sold under the same name or in any other name, do forthwith cease and desist from directly or indirectly:

1. Disseminating, or causing to be disseminated, any advertisement (a) by means of the United States mail, or (b) by any means in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, which advertisement represents, directly or through inference, that said preparation constitutes a competent or effective treatment, cure, or remedy for delayed menstruation, or is a competent or effective treatment therefor, or that said preparation is safe for use; or which advertisement fails to reveal that the use of such preparation may cause gastrointestinal disturbances and congestion and hemorrhage of the pelvic organs, and in a case of pregnancy may cause uterine infection and blood poisoning, and other dangerous effects.

2. tions prohibited in paragraph 1 hereof, or which advertisement fails to reveal the dangerous consequences which may result from the use of said preparation as required in said paragraph 1 hereof.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within ten days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission an interim report in writing stating whether he intends to comply with this order, and, if so, the manner and form in which he intends to comply; and that within sixty days after service upon him of this order, respondent shall file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.

Complaint

IN THE MATTER OF

CLARA STANTON, TRADING AS CLARA STANTON, DRUGGIST TO WOMEN

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 4327. Complaint, Oct. 2, 1940—Decision, Nov. 18, 1941

Where an individual engaged in interstate sale and distribution of her "Anti-Fat Tablets"; by advertisements in newspapers and periodicals, circulars, pamphlets and other advertising literature and through use of the aforesaid name; directly and by implication—

Represented that her said preparation constituted a cure or remedy for obesity and a competent and effective treatment therefor, and that use thereof would reduce excess fat gradually and safely and prevent obesity;

The facts being that it had no qualities effective in reducing excess fat and its use was of no value in preventing obesity, the various drugs contained therein being present in such minute quantities as to render them practically inert under conditions of use;

With the effect of misleading and deceiving a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the mistaken belief that such representations and implications were true, and of thereby causing it to purchase her product:

Held, That such acts and practices, as above set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Before Mr. William C. Reeves, trial examiner.

Mr. Maurice C. Pearce and Mr. Carrel F. Rhodes for the Commission.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Clara Stanton, an individual, trading as Clara Stanton, Druggist to Women, hereinafter referred to as the respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Clara Stanton, is an individual trading under the name of Clara Stanton, Druggist to Women, and has her principal place of business at 313 Fourteenth Street, Denver, Colo. She is now, and for some time last past has been, engaged in the business of preparing and offering for sale and selling a preparation, containing drugs as defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, designated "Anti-Fat Tablets." Respondent causes said product, when sold by her, to be transported from her place of business in the State of Colorado to purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said product in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of her aforesaid business, the respondent has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning her said product by the United States mails and by various other means in commerce as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, and respondent has also disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning her said product by various means for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of her said product in commerce as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act. Among, and typical of, the false, misleading and deceptive statements and representations contained in said false advertisements, disseminated and caused to be disseminated as hereinabove set forth, by advertisements in newspapers and periodicals, and by circulars, pamphlets and other advertising literature, are the following:

Anti-Fat Tablets—

If you would accentuate your charm and loveliness, stay slim. Clara Stanton's Anti-Fat Tablets have been sold 14 years. No thyroid and no laxatives are used in the formula.

They contain no laxatives, and no harmful ingredients for the normal woman.

I again repeat to the women whose excess weight is caused by usual factors and not unfortunate abnormalities, these Tablets are safe and harmless.

The rate of reduction varies with each individual. How long you may be required to continue the treatment depends upon the amount of weight you wish to reduce; your individual reaction to the treatment; the cooperation which you extend in the way of diet and exercise. In general I can only state that you should continue the treatment until your individual needs have been satisfied. You may continue the treatment for 90 days and if your needs have not entirely been filled, you may again commence the use of Clara Stanton's Anti-Fat Tablets for a similar period after an interval of ten days.

Continued, reasonable use, according to the directions, will ordinarily secure the desired results within 90 days.

Laziness and gluttony will cause obesity in themselves. If indulged in they may offset the losses of weight which are induced by use of Clara Stanton's Anti-Fat Tablets or any other reducing treatment.

Eat reasonably and exercise reasonably while taking Clara Stanton's Anti-Fat Tablets, and let your scales testify to the efficiency of the remedy.

PAR. 3. Through the use of the statements and representations hereinabove set forth and others similar thereto not specifically set out herein and through the use of the name "Anti-Fat Tablets," the respondent represents directly and by implication that her said preparation, "Anti-Fat Tablets," is a cure or remedy for obesity and constitutes a competent and effective treatment therefor, and that the use of said preparation will reduce excess fat gradually and safely and will prevent obesity.

PAR. 4. The aforesaid representations and things, used and disseminated by the respondent as hereinabove described, are grossly exaggerated, misleading and untrue. In truth and in fact "Anti-Fat Tablets" are not a cure or remedy for obesity and have no therapeutic value in the treatment of such condition. Said preparation has no properties which would be effective in reducing excess fat and its use would be of no value in preventing obesity.

Furthermore, said preparation is not safe and harmless by reason of the existence of potassium iodide as an ingredient in said preparation. The use of said preparation containing potassium iodide would be definitely harmful in the event those consuming said preparation had pulmonary tuberculosis in either the active or quiescent state. The indiscriminate use of said preparation by a person suffering from goiter might induce or aggravate toxic manifestations.

PAR. 5. Furthermore, the advertisements disseminated by the respondent as aforesaid constitute false advertisements for the reason that they fail to reveal facts material in the light of representations contained therein, and fail to reveal that the use of said preparation under the conditions prescribed in said advertisements or under such conditions as are customary or usual may result in serious and irreparable injury to health in that said advertisements do not contain any cautionary statement to the effect that said preparation should not be used by persons suffering from goiter of pulmonary tuberculosis in either the active or quiescent state.

PAR. 6. The use by the respondent of the name "Anti-Fat Tablets" and the use of the foregoing false and misleading representations respecting her said product has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to and does mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the mistaken and erroneous belief that such representations and implications are true, and cause a substantial portion of the purchasing public, because of such mistaken and erroneous belief, to purchase said product.

PAR. 7. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on October 2, A. D., 1940, issued and subsequently served its complaint on the respondent, Clara Stanton, an individual, trading as Clara Stanton, Druggist to Women, charging her with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by Carrel F. Rhodes, attorney for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by Joseph A. Myers, attorney for the respondent, before William C. Reeves, a trial examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, report of the trial examiner upon the evidence, brief in support of the complaint, and letter of the respondent of October 14, 1941, which has been filed and considered as a brief in opposition to the complaint, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said preparation in commerce among and between the various States of the United States.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of her aforesaid business, the respondent has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning her said preparation, by the United States mails and by various other means in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, and respondent has also disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning her said preparation by various means, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of her said preparation in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act. Among and typical of the false, misleading, and deceptive statements and representations contained in said false advertisements, disseminated and caused to be disseminated as hereinabove set forth, by advertisements in newspapers and periodicals, and by circulars, pamphlets and other advertising literature, are the following:

Conclusion

34 F. T. C.

PAR. 4. Respondent's preparation, "Anti-Fat Tablets," is made in accordance with the following formula:

Po. Ext. Pokeberries,	1/8 gr.
Fl. Ext. Bladder Wrack,	1/2 min.

PAR. 5. Respondent's preparation, "Anti-Fat Tablets," is not a cure or remedy for obesity and has no therapeutic value in the treatment of such condition. This preparation has no properties which are effective in reducing excess fat, and its use is of no value in preventing obesity. PAR. 6. The use by the respondent of the name "Anti-Fat Tablets" to designate and describe her preparation, and the use of the foregoing false and misleading representations regarding her said preparation have had, and now have, the capacity and tendency to, and do, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the mistaken and erroneous belief that such representations and implications are true, and cause a substantial portion of the purchasing public, because of such mistaken and erroneous belief, to purchase said preparation.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Order

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

It is ordered, That the respondent, Clara Stanton, an individual, trading as Clara Stanton, Druggist to Women, or trading under any other name, her representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale or distribution of her medicinal preparation known as "Anti-Fat Tablets," or any other preparation of substantially similar composition or possessing substantially similar properties, whether sold under the same name or under any other name, do forthwith cease and desist from directly or indirectly:

Furnished various devices and plans of merchandising which involved the operation of games of chance, gift enterprises or lottery schemes in the sale and distribution thereof to the ultimate consumer, a typical scheme involving use of a pushcard with 100 perforated disks concealing numbers and bearing names and pictures of motion picture actors and actresses, under a plan pursuant to which the person selecting the picture concealing the number corresponding with that under the card's master seal, received choice of several articles of merchandise illustrated in the advertising folder, of which the pushcard formed a part, certain numbers and the last punch entitled customers to choice of "Junior Gifts," and the amount paid for chance or the obtaining of a free chance was dependent upon the number secured; and thereby

Supplied to and placed in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of their merchandise in accordance with such plan, under which fact as to whether a purchaser received an article or nothing, and the amount, if any, to be paid for any merchandise received, were determined solely by lot or chance; contrary to an established public policy of the United States Government and in competition with many who, unwilling to use method involving chance or contrary to public policy, refrain therefrom; With the result that many persons were attracted by said sales plan and the element of chance involved therein, and were thereby induced to buy and sell such products in preference to those of said competitors; and with tendency and capacity unfairly to divert therefrom to themselves substantial trade in commerce:

In the course and conduct of their business as described hereinabove, respondents in soliciting the sale of and in selling and distributing their merchandise, in accordance with their promotional sales plan, furnish and have furnished various devices and plans of merchandising which involve the operation of games of chance, gift enterprises or lottery schemes when said merchandise is sold and distributed to the ultimate consumers thereof. One of the methods or sales plans adopted and used by respondents is substantially as follows:

Respondents contact religious, charitable and fraternal organizations located at various points throughout the United States, and offer to conduct bazaars for such organizations, the proceeds from which are to be divided on a basis theretofore agreed upon between the respondents and the organization. Thereafter respondents place in the hands of members of such organization devices commonly known as push cards to be used and which are used in the sale of respondents' merchandise to the general public. One of the push cards furnished by respondents in connection with their merchandising plan is described as follows:

Said push card bears the names and pictures of 100 moving-picture actors and actresses, each picture covering a partially perforated disk. Concealed within each disk is a number which is disclosed only when the disk is pushed or separated from the card. The advertising booklet or brochure of which the push card is a part, contains blank spaces numbered from 1 to 100 for the purpose of filling in the names of purchasers of the disks or "pushes." Purchasers of pushes from said card pay the number of cents represented by the number pushed from the card, except that those pushing numbers in excess of 20 pay only 20 cents, and 5 of the pushes on the card are free. The push card also bears a large "Master Seal" within which is concealed 1 of the numbers appearing under the small disks. The person selecting the moving picture actor or actress whose number corresponds with the number under the master seal receives his choice of several articles of respondents' merchandise, illustrated in the advertising folder or brochure.

Sale of respondents' merchandise by means of said push cards are made in accordance with the above described legend or instruction. Said "prizes" or premiums are allotted to customers or purchasers in accordance with said legend or instructions. Whether a purchaser receives an article of merchandise or nothing for the amount of money paid, and the amount to be paid for any merchandise received, are thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

Respondents, in connection with their sales promotion schemes have furnished various other push cards for use in the sale and distribution of their merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise or lottery scheme. The sales plans or methods involved in the sale of all of said merchandise by means of other push cards are essentially the same as that hereinabove described, varying only in detail.

PAR. 4. The persons to whom respondents furnish and have furnished their said push cards use the same in purchasing, selling and distributing respondents' merchandise in accordance with the aforesaid sales plans. Respondents thus supply to and place in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of their merchandise in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondents of said sales plans or methods in the sale of their merchandise and the sale of said merchandise by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plans or methods, is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States.

PAR. 5. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above alleged, involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure one of the said articles of merchandise without cost or at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms and corporations who sell or distribute merchandise in competition with respondents, as above alleged, are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other method that is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondents in the sale and distribution of their merchandise and by the element of chance involved therein, and thereby are induced to buy and sell respondents' merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or an equivalent method. The use of said method by respondents, because of said game of chance, has a tendency and capacity to unfairly divert substantial trade in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia to respondents from their said competitors who do not use the same or an equivalent method.

PAR. 6. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on April 19, 1941, issued and thereafter served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondents Thrift Sales Corporation, a corporation, trading as Finance Service System, and as Church Extension Bureau, and Gustave Heiss, individually and as an officer of the Thrift Sales Corporation, charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of the complaint, testimony and other evidence in support thereof were introduced by attorneys for the Commission before a duly appointed trial examiner of the Commission designated by it to serve in this proceeding. Thereafter a stipulation was entered into whereby it was stipulated and agreed that a statement of facts signed and executed by the counsel for the respondents on behalf of the respondents and W. T. Kelley, chief counsel for the Commission, subject to the approval of the Commission, might be taken as the facts in this proceeding and in lieu of testimony in support of the charges stated in the complaint or in opposition thereto and that the Commission may proceed upon said statement of facts to make its report stating its findings as to the facts (including inferences which may be drawn from said stipulated facts) and its conclusion based thereon, and enter its order disposing of the proceeding as to them without the presentation of further testimony, argument, filing of briefs or other intervening procedure. Counsel for the respondents also expressly waived the filing of a report upon the evidence by the trial examiner.

Furnished various devices and plans by which such merchandise was sold and distributed to the ultimate consumer wholly by lot or chance, distributing to the purchasing public pushcards, circulars explaining its plan of selling said merchandise, and allotting it as premiums or prizes to operators of push-cards and to the purchasing public; a typical scheme involving a plan, pursuant to which a person selecting the one of 32 feminine names corresponding with that under the card's master seal received a camera, the person selecting the name concealing a designated number received a souvenir thermometer, and the amount paid by a customer for chance was dependent upon the particular number secured; and thereby

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Concord Distributing Co., Inc., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the interest of the public, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Concord Distributing Co., Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of New York, with its principal office and place of business located at 603 Sixth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Respondent is now, and for more than 1 year last past, has been engaged in the sale and distribution of cameras, souvenir thermometers, clocks, tableware sets, dressing table sets, electric lamps, and other articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent causes and has caused said products, when sold, to be transported from its aforesaid place of business in the State of New York to purchasers thereof, at their respective points of location, in various States of the United States other than the State of New York, and in the District of Columbia. There is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been a course of trade by respondent in such merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business, respondent is and has been in competition with other corporations and with individuals and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent, in soliciting the sale of and in selling and distributing its merchandise, furnishes and has furnished various devices and plans of merchandising which involve the operation of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes by which said merchandise is sold and distributed to the ultimate consumers thereof wholly by lot or chance. The method or sales plan adopted and used by respondent was and is substantially as follows:

Respondent distributes, and has distributed, to the purchasing public certain literature and instructions, including among other things push cards, order blanks, illustrations of its said merchandise, and circulars explaining respondent's plan of selling merchandise and of allotting it as premiums or prizes to the operators of said push cards and to the purchasing public. Sales of respondent's merchandise by means of said push card are made in accordance with the above-described legend or instructions. Said prizes or premiums are allotted to the customers or purchasers in accordance with the above legend or instructions. The fact as to whether a purchaser receives an article of merchandise or nothing for the amount of money paid and which of said articles of merchandise the purchaser is to receive, if any, is thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

Respondent furnishes and has furnished various other push cards accompanied by said order blanks, instructions, and other printed matter for use in the sale and distribution of its merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. The sales plan or method involved in connection with the sale of all of said merchandise by means of said push cards is the same as that hereinabove described, varying only in detail.

Many persons, firms, and corporations, who sell and distribute merchandise in competition with the respondent, as above alleged, are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other method that is contrary to public policy and such competitors refrain therefrom. The use of said method by respondent, because of said game of chance, has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia to respondent from its said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent methods, and as a result thereof substantial injury is being, and has been, done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

IN THE MATTER OF

THE WHOLESALE DRY GOODS INSTITUTE, INC., ITS OFFICERS, DIRECTORS AND MEMBERS

Docket 8751. Complaint, Mar. 31, 1939—Decision, Nov. 24, 1941

Where a corporate association of dry goods wholesalers representing 80 to 85 percent of the total volume of said business in the United States; most important activity of which had to do with the sales policies and practices of manufacturers as they affected the competitive position of its members, and "differential committee" of which, in its 1930 report referring to the "universal dissatisfaction of wholesalers with prevalent mill selling practices," recommended the adoption by any manufacturer of a selling policy which would not discriminate in favor of one type of retail outlet, to the detriment of another, and that where some of a manufacturer's retail outlets were supplied direct from his own warehouse and others were supplied indirectly through wholesalers, a system of wholesaler's price differentials be established so as to enable recognized distributors to sell the manufacturer's product on a parity with the price charged by him when dealing with retailers direct, and that each wholesaler, before placing an order, ascertain the selling policy of the manufacturer;

Emphasizing the advantage of acting together and the need for full support by every wholesaler and as a means of bringing about the desired changes in the sales policies of manufacturers—

- (a) Compiled and issued to its members its "Mill Selling Policy Reports," which rated each manufacturer upon the basis of his sales policy as it affected wholesalers, classifying as "A" a concern selling only through wholesalers as defined by it, as "A—" a concern selling regular products and/or patterns through wholesalers only, though making contract goods under buyers' specifications and labels for national chains and mail order houses, and so on down through "K,"—"X," and "No"; and, as a practice, advised each manufacturer of his assigned rating and that it would be assumed to be correct unless the Institute was advised to the contrary; and

Where, following the suspension of said selling policy reports during the life of the wholesale dry goods trade code under the National Industrial Recovery Act, and resumption thereof following abolishment of such code, said Institute and its members—

- (b) Supplemented said selling policy reports by the preparation and distribution to its members and to rated manufacturers of a directory entitled "Wholesalers of Dry Goods and Kindred Lines," in which it excluded from its definition of a wholesaler buying offices or syndicates representing retailers, their stock-carrying affiliates, chain store central offices or warehouses, drop shippers, brokers, commission merchants, selling agents, job lot dealers, and second-hand dealers;
- (c) Advised the reader in the introductory matter that "A" rating indicated that the manufacturer confined his distribution exclusively to wholesalers

"and therefore gives complete cooperation, while rating 'K' indicates that the manufacturer gives no cooperation to wholesalers at all," and quoted the Joint Committee for the Advancement of Manufacturer-Wholesaler Relations' suggestion to manufacturers that they confine their branded merchandise or patterns to regular distributors and protect their customers by keeping it out of chains, mail order houses, premium houses and syndicate buying groups, and use utmost care in selection of distributors;

- (d) Listed wholesaler-members in heavy type, followed by names of officials and full statement of lines of merchandise distributed, all enclosed in a box, while listing wholesalers but nonmembers by firm name only in ordinary type, with abbreviations indicating the lines of merchandise handled; thus clearly distinguishing members from others and supplying more detailed information with respect to the former;

With intent and effect of creating a preferred class of buyers of those listed in said directory and of informing manufacturers of buyers to whom they might sell without incurring the disfavor of the Institute and its members and, conversely, that sales to any wholesaler not thus listed might result in their being given an unfavorable classification by the Institute, so preventing or tending to prevent their making sales to Institute members;

- (e) Made its own definition of a wholesaler—gauged by which there were many concerns in the United States in active competition with wholesalers listed in said directory which were not eligible for membership or listing, though selling to retailers buying for resale—the measure for determining whether concerns applying for membership or for listing in such directory should have their applications granted; and
- (f) Made it a practice, upon application for membership or listing, to secure information as to applicant's operations from commercial agencies and from Institute members or others listed in aforesaid directory who were in competition with the applicant, and in numerous instances refused membership or listing to concerns listed as wholesalers by commercial agencies such as Dun & Bradstreet, but operations of which did not conform to its said definition; and

Where said Institute, recognizing that the coercive effect of said mill selling policy reports in determining manufacturers' sales policies would be increased in proportion as the members refused to purchase from those classified as non-cooperative—and its officers, committees and membership—

- (g) Exerted collective pressure upon members to buy only from manufacturers classified as having satisfactory sales policies, through urging, at meetings, that such ratings be regularly used for the intended purpose, among other things, advocating that manufacturers be made "rating conscious," that instances where ratings failed correctly to describe a manufacturer's sales method be promptly reported to the Institute, that all orders be checked against ratings to insure most advantageous placing of business, and that "an occasional pat on the back" be given to earnestly cooperating and favored manufacturers, and through exercising pressure upon individual members; and, as respects most of the members, did confine their purchases, so far as practicable, to manufacturers rated as having favorable sales policies; and

Where said Institute—

- (h) Made it a practice and policy to encourage its members to report to it any instance where a manufacturer made a sale which appeared to be contrary to his assigned rating, and in such instance communicated with the manufacturer, making no change in his rating if it appeared that questioned sales were inadvertent and would be discontinued, but, in event no satisfactory adjustment was reached, changing the rating to conform to the new information and advising its members thereof;

Effect of which plan was to coerce manufacturers in the selection of their customers, both in individual instances and as a matter of general sales policy, as evidenced by revision upward in most cases of manufacturer ratings and refusal of manufacturers to accept or continue as customers concerns buying for resale to retailers but not listed in said directory, and, where sales were not actually prevented, as was frequent, that manufacturer's price was increased above that granted by the manufacturer to concerns listed in the directory, through refusal to grant customary wholesaler's discount:

Capacity, tendency, and effect of which understandings, acts, and practices were to coerce and restrict manufacturers of dry goods, notions, and allied lines in the selection of customers; to prevent dealers including competitors of Institute members from purchasing their supplies of such goods from manufacturers; to prevent dealers competitive with said members and dealers selling at retail from buying at prices as favorable as those granted to members and others listed in said directory thereby increasing the prices to them and to the consuming public; to place in the hands of the Institute, its officers and members, control over the business practices of manufacturers and distributors of such products and the power so to harass and restrain the operations of those not conforming to their wishes as substantially to exclude them from the industry; and to hinder and prevent competition in the sale and distribution of dry goods, notions and allied lines of merchandise:

Held, That aforesaid understandings, agreements, combination and conspiracy, and the acts and practices performed thereunder or in connection therewith, under the conditions and circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce.

Before Mr. Charles F. Diggs and Mr. John L. Hornor, trial examiners.

Mr. Reuben J. Martin for the Commission.

Mr. Karl Michelet and Mr. Simon Michelet, of Washington, D. C., and Mr. Leland K. Neeves, of Chicago, Ill., for The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., its officers, directors and various members.

PAR. 2. The aforesaid members of said respondent, The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., consisting of approximately 135 individuals, copartnerships, and corporations, are located in various States of the United States. Most of said members are engaged in the business of selling and distributing at wholesale, dry goods, notions and kindred lines of merchandise to retail dealers located in States other than the State in which said respective members are located, causing said products when so sold to be transported from their respective places of business to the purchasers thereof, and there has been, and now is, a course of interstate trade and commerce in said products between the members of said respondents, The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., and retail dealers in said products located throughout the several States of the United States.

Said respondent members of said respondent, The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., are now, and have been during all of the times mentioned herein, in free, active and substantial competition with other members of the industry in making, and seeking to make, sales of their said products in said commerce, and prior to the adoption of the practices hereinafter alleged these respondent members were in free, active, and substantial competition with each other in making, and seeking to make, sales of their said products in said commerce, and but for the facts hereinafter alleged such free, active, and substantial competition would have continued and said respondent members would now be in free, active and substantial competition with each other.

PAR. 3. Respondent members of said respondent, The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., acting in cooperation with each other and through and in cooperation with said respondent, The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., and its officers and directors, and each of them, during the period of time, to wit, from April 1928, to the date of this complaint, have entered into an understanding, agreement, combination, and conspiracy among themselves and with and through said respondent, The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., its officers and directors, to hinder and suppress competition in the interstate sale and distribution of dry goods, notions and kindred lines of merchandise to retailers; to restrain interstate trade in said dry goods, notions and kindred lines of merchandise; to hinder and suppress competition between and among manufacturers of said dry goods, notions, and kindred lines of merchandise in the interstate sale and distribution of their said products to retailers; and to create a monopoly in the interstate sale and distribution of said dry goods, notions, and kindred lines of merchandise in the said members of said respondent, The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc. Pursuant to said understanding, agreement, combination, and conspiracy and in furtherance thereof, the respondents have acted in concert and in cooperation with each other in doing the following acts and things:

(a) The respondent, The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., has prepared and distributed a directory containing the names of approximately 1,400 individuals, copartners, and corporations, which said respondent considers meet with the definition of a wholesaler as defined by said respondent, The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc. Members of said respondent, The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., listed therein are designated by a star opposite their respective names.

(b) Said respondent, The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., from time to time has compiled, and compiles, a list of manufacturers of dry goods, notions, and kindred lines of merchandise in which said list or compilation all of the manufacturers are classified or graded according to their respective sales policies. The highest grade or classification is grade A, and in this classification are placed those manufacturers who confine their sales to wholesalers. The lowest classification is group K, and in this classification are placed those manufacturers who sell not only to wholesalers but chain stores, syndicates, and retail stores without maintaining any differential in price. Said list of manufacturers is distributed by said respondent, The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., among its said members. Said list is from time to time revised and the manufacturers listed therein reclassified according to their current selling policies, and the members of said respondent, The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., are so notified.

(c) Said respondent, The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., has coerced and compelled, and now coerces and compels, manufacturers of dry goods, notions, and kindred lines of merchandise to confine sales of their respective products to those persons, copartners, and corporations who are members of said respondent, The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., or who conform to the definition of "wholesalers" as defined by said respondent. The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., under penalty (for failure so to do) of reclassifying such manufacturers and placing them in a lower classification in its list of manufacturers and of notifying its members of said reclassification.

(d) Said respondent, The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., has coerced and compelled, and now coerces and compels, its said members to refrain from purchasing their respective requirements of dry goods, notions, and kindred lines of merchandise from those manufacturers who do not so confine their sales to wholesalers as defined by said respondent, The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc.

PAR. 4. The results of said understanding, agreement, combination, and conspiracy, and the acts and things done thereunder and pursuant thereto by said respondents, as hereinbefore set forth, have been and now are: (a) To prevent and hinder manufacturers of dry goods, notions and kindred lines of merchandise from selling their products in interstate commerce to dealers therein who, but for the existence of said understanding, agreement, combination, and conspiracy would purchase said products; (b) to prevent retail dealers in dry goods, notions, and kindred lines of merchandise from purchasing their requirements of said products in interstate commerce from the manufacturers thereof; (c) to force many dealers to discontinue the sale of said products because of their inability to maintain a supply thereof at reasonable prices; (d) to substantially increase the price of dry goods, notions, and kindred lines of merchandise to the manufacturers, retail dealers, and to the consuming public; and (e) to place in the hands of the respondent, The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., control over the business practices of the manufacturers and distributors of dry goods, notions, and kindred lines of merchandise and the power to exclude from the industry those manufacturers and distributors who do not conform to the rules, regulations, and definitions established by said respondent, The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., and thus tend to create a monopoly in the said respondent members of The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc.

PAR. 5. The acts and practices of the said respondents, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice of competitors of said respondents and of the public; have a dangerous tendency to and have actually hindered and prevented competition in the sale of dry goods, notions and kindred lines of merchandise in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act; have unreasonably restrained such commerce in dry goods, notions, and kindred lines of merchandise, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on March 31, 1939, issued and subsequently served its complaint upon respondent The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., a corporation; upon its officers and directors, individually and as such officers and directors of said Institute; and upon certain members of said Institute, individually and as representatives of all members of the Institute, as a class, charging them with unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of answers by certain of the respondents, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by an attorney for the Commission and in opposition thereto by attorneys for respondents before examiners of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the answers thereto, testimony and other evidence, report of the trial examiner and exceptions thereto, briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto, renewed motion to reverse the rulings of the trial examiners on evidence and supplement to said motion, and oral argument by counsel; and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

Respondents Reed Brothers, Inc., A. B. Frank Co., and Fitts-Smith Dry Goods Co., although not now members of The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., were members of and active in such Institute during much of the time mentioned in the complaint herein.

Respondents W. W. Couch Co., Inc., Harris, Davis & Co., Inc., Schwartz Brothers & Co., Inc., and F. B. Thomas & Co., Inc., were not members of The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., in 1939 or in 1935. E. & M. Hirschler Co., Inc., and Smith, Taylor Co., Inc., named as respondents, have been out of business for a number of years. Respondent J. S. Reeves & Co., Inc., has not been a member of said Institute since 1932.

The volume of business done by respondent members of The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., represents 80 to 85 percent of the total volume of wholesaling done by general dry goods wholesalers and such membership constitutes a substantial, important, and influential part of the entire business of distributing dry goods, notions, and allied lines of merchandise to retailers in the United States.

PAR. 2. Most of the respondent members of said Institute are engaged in the sale and shipment of merchandise from their places of business to customers located in States of the United States other than the State in which their own business is located. In addition, many of the respondent members cause shipments to be made directly from manufacturers from whom they purchase to their customers located in States of the United States other than the State of origin of such shipments. There has been, and is now, a course of trade in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, in said merchandise between respondent members and retail dealers.

PAR. 3. The most important activity of The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., and its members from the time of its organization to the present has to do with the sales policies and practices of manufacturers as they affect the competitive position of members of the Institute. This was manifested in the creation by the Institute of a "differential committee" which reported to the Institute in January 1930. In its report this committee referred to the "universal dissatisfaction of wholesalers with prevalent mill selling practices" and the "imperative need for clearing up the reasons for this discontent," and stated that the acuteness of the situation is reflected by correspondence with wholesale houses much of which shows a bitterness "which for the welfare of the industry should be eliminated." It stated in part:-

For example, one of the leading southwestern distributors writes:

The matter of mill selling policies and differentials for wholesalers must be settled in a definite way very soon. The manufacturer should finally, for all time, decide to sell his product either direct or through the wholesaler—one or the other. I cannot conceive how any factory can expect to get a full distribution of its product unless it uses the great distributing avenue, which is the wholesaler. Manufacturers must sooner or later realize that their best friend and greatest source of profit can be made through the wholesaler better than any other way, and it does seem to me that there is every reason why these two great branches of distribution should get together and cooperate in what is best for both.

A wholesaler in the Middle West expresses himself in this vein:

It is certainly both murder and suicide—murder to the wholesaler and suicide for the mills, to continue the present practice of filling up the legitimate, well-functioning wholesalers, and then supplying, willy nilly, merchandise bootleggers all over America.

We have no quarrel at all with the mill or manufacturer who chooses to set up his own distributing machinery, but we are firmly of the opinion that wholesale dry goods distributors should give positive preference to the mills who announce an intention to work with wholesalers as long as wholesalers work with them.

Another distributor, whose operations are more general, writes thus:

Labor agitators talk a lot about "class consciousness." That's what we wholesalers should learn.

Our worst competition is not from other wholesalers. It is coming direct from the mills.

We wholesalers are fools if we keep on buying from mills that expect us to distribute their products—then turn right around and attempt to sell the same goods to our customers.

I, for one, am ready to stand on one side or the other of the line and ask or dare the mills to do the same thing. We people have got to choose sides, and I am ready to choose my side right now.

The differential committee recommended as a means of eliminating the practices which were considered harmful to the membership of the Institute:

1. That each manufacturer, having the legal right to "choose his customers," do so, and after having chosen the outlets through which he hopes to effect the distribution of his product, then shape his selling policy so as to place these outlets on a parity in their competition with each other.

2. That any manufacturer who chooses to distribute through more than one type of retail outlet, clearly define the types of outlets through which he proposes to work for his distribution, and then adopt a selling policy which will not discriminate in favor of one type and to the detriment of another type.

3. That where some of a manufacturer's retail outlets are supplied direct from his own warehouse, and others are supplied indirectly through wholesalers, that a system of wholesalers' price differentials be established based on the known costs of selling and distribution, which will enable recognized distributors to sell the manufacturer's product on a parity with the price charged by the manufacturer when dealing with retailers direct.

4. That each manufacturer set up the conditions under which his differentials will be allowed and that these conditions be made publicly known to his industry.

5. That in order to avoid confusion in the minds of retailers, manufacturers publish list prices instead of net prices to wholesalers, and that wholesalers' differentials be allowed from said list prices.

6. That in order to aid each individual retailer in the preservation of his individuality, through individualizing the products he distributes, each wholesaler, in handling branded goods, endeavor to avoid selling to his independent retail customers the identical brands sold in his trade territory by chain or syndicate stores.

7. That each wholesaler, before placing an order for any product, ascertain the selling policy of the manufacturer in order to predetermine whether or not such policy discriminates against any type of retail outlet through which that manufacturer proposes to distribute his product.

The intent and plan of the institute and its members are further indicated by the following extracts from statements published and distributed from time to time setting forth such purposes and the benefits to be derived therefrom by members:

It is widely recognized that nowhere in business is there a greater need for the solution of distribution difficulties than in the textile field. It is recognized also that, essentially, this need arises out of a far-reaching maladjustment of production and consumption.

Production consistently outstrips consumption. Distribution, standing between and serving both producers and consumers, has been seriously disturbed, and we are confronted by a huge distributive problem which seems too complex to be solved by any single group, certainly too complex to be solved permanently by any single producer or distributor.

For some years, this chronic lack of adjustment between production and consumption has affected wholesalers. Undoubtedly, it is one of the most pervasive forces underlying the spontaneous and almost inevitable movement to organize the wholesale dry goods trade on a national scale. New stresses imposed upon distributors, particularly in the past decade, have created new problems. These have become universal and they are now to receive the constructive attention of an inclusive national organization.

* * * * *

At the beginning of its program, the Wholesale Dry Goods Institute has for its immediate objects:

Improvement of trade practices within the wholesale field.

Better trade relations between wholesalers and other elements of the textile industry.

Study of wholesale merchandising methods and adaptation to new economic conditions.

Development of practical aid for retail customers.

Analysis of operating costs and proper allocation of sales effort.

This is a bare statement of the activities, all or each of which may involve fairly long programs. In every instance, the goal is a stabilization of wholesale trade conditions generally and the creation of more profitable business for each wholesaler who is a member of the institute.

In another publication, respondent The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., explained its advantages to its members in part, as follows:

The program of the institute warrants the full support of every wholesaler of dry goods and kindred lines. To obtain the best results, the cooperation of every wholesaler is essential. This means specialty as well as general wholesalers. Whether a wholesaler deals in a general line, or specializes in a few, is unimportant. What is important is that the trade be banded together solidly in a single organization for a common purpose.

In addition to a few of the benefits described, membership in the institute offers:

1. For a nominal membership fee, a wholesaler enjoys the benefit of an organization costing thousands of dollars a year to operate.

2. As a member, a wholesaler has the benefit of the judgment and counsel, of the board of directors—comprised of outstanding men in the wholesale trade—serving without compensation of any kind but, in fact, paying dues on the same basis as all members.

3. An individual member of the institute has the support of all members, as a group. It must be recognized that a stand taken, or a principle established by the institute (representing the trade) carries weight; whereas a position taken by an individual house may be disregarded.

4. Each member receives the benefit of the services of the special committees, comprised of the best men in the trade, who donate their time and efforts to the interest of wholesaling.

PAR. 4. As a means of bringing about the changes in the sales policies of manufacturers desired by The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., and its members in order to improve their competitive position, the institute began in 1930 to compile and issue to its members reports on the selling policies of manufacturers of dry goods, notions, and allied lines who sell in whole or in part to wholesalers. These reports are frequently referred to as "Mill Selling Policy Reports" and classify or rate each manufacturer listed upon the basis of his sales policy as it affects wholesalers. The information upon which such classification or rating is made is ordinarily secured through a questionnaire sent to manufacturers. It is stated in these questionnaires that "The information here requested regarding your selling policy will not be published, but will be held in strict confidence and will be used only as a basis for the institute's reports to members on mill selling policies." The questionnaire includes the following questions:

1. Are your goods offered or sold to wholesalers? (If answer is "No," it will not be necessary to reply to subsequent questions.)

2. Chain Stores.

Are your goods offered to chain stores?

If so, are sales limited to national chains?

If sales to chain stores are not limited to "national chains," on what basis are they sold, in comparison to prices charged to wholesalers?

Are sales to chains confined to special contract goods, made under the buyer's specifications and labels, or do you sell them your regular standard products the same as are sold to wholesalers?

Do you have any objection to supplying to the Wholesale Dry Goods Institute the names of the chain stores to whom you propose to sell?

3. Retail Stores.

Will your goods be offered to retail stores?

Are they limited to stores of the metropolitan type?

If so, will there be any limitation upon the list of retail stores you will sell?

If your list of retail stores is to be limited, approximately how many retail stores will be included in your list?

Do you have any objection to supplying to the Wholesale Dry Goods Institute the names of the retail stores to whom you propose to sell direct?

On what basis will such retail stores be sold?

At prices approximately the same as to wholesalers?

On a higher basis than wholesalers?

If sold on a higher basis, what will be the approximate amount of the wholesaler's price differential?

4. Resident Buying Offices.

Will your goods be offered to resident buying offices representing retail stores, or to the stock-carrying affiliates of resident buying offices?

If so, will there be any limitation upon the list of resident buying offices you will sell?

If your list of resident buying offices is to be limited, approximately how many resident buying offices will be included in your list?

Do you have any objection to supplying to the Wholesale Dry Goods Institute the names of the resident buying offices to whom you propose to sell direct?

On what basis will such resident buying offices be sold?

At prices approximately the same as to wholesalers?

On a higher basis than to wholesalers?

If sold on a higher basis, what will be the approximate amount of the wholesaler's price differential?

5. Method of Selling.

State whether sales are made through your own selling organization or through mill agents, commission merchants, or otherwise.

If you sell to or through agents or commission merchants please list names and addresses of such agents.

In addition to such information as may be secured by the questionnaire method, information as to manufacturers' sales policies is solicited and received by the Institute from its members. Such information is sought concerning the sales and pricing policies of all manufacturers who sell all or any part of their output to dry goods wholesalers.

PAR. 5. When the information secured by the means stated concerning the sales policy of a manufacturer has been considered by a committee of The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., a rating is assigned to such manufacture. A manufacturer of a number of different products may be given the same or a different rating on each of his products, depending upon his sales practices in the distribution of each product. The rating or ratings so assigned are designated by one or more of the following symbols: A, A minus, B, C, D, K, X, and No. The meaning of these symbols is as follows:

A sells to or distributes only through wholesalers. (The term wholesaler has the meaning given to it by the Institute in its definition as subsequently quoted.

A minus sells regular products and/or patterns through wholesalers only, but manufacturers special contract goods, under buyer's specifications and labels, for national chains and mail order houses.

B sells regular products and/or patterns only to wholesalers and large metropolitan department stores, but allows a reasonable differential to wholesalers. Also may manufacture special contract goods, under buyer's specifications and labels, for national chains and mail order houses.

C sells regular products and/or patterns through channels (which may include any of all of the following: Independent stores, large and small; buying offices or syndicates representing retailers, their stock carrying affiliates; chain store central offices or warehouses; drop shippers; brokers; commission merchants, selling agents; job lot dealers and second hand dealers) other than wholesalers, but allows a reasonable differential to wholesalers. Also may manufacture special contract goods, under buyer's specifications and labels, for National chains and mail order houses.

D sells regular products and/or patterns to wholesalers, and/or large metropolitan stores, National chains and mail order houses, and allows no differential to wholesalers.

K sells regular products and/or patterns through channels other than wholesalers, at substantially the same price as to wholesalers.

X this rating describes the manufacturer who, after announcing one policy, has been found to practice another.

"No" has declined to give any information concerning selling policy.

After a rating has been determined upon for a manufacturer, it is the practice of the Institute to advise the manufacturer concerned by letter, the usual form of which is:

This is to advise you that our-----committee has assigned rating -----to your good concern, as indicative of your selling policy. (See card enclosed.)

Unless we hear from you to the contrary by-----we shall assume this rating to be correct.

PAR. 6. The preparation and use of the mill selling policy reports referred to above were suspended during the life of the code promulgated for the "Wholesale Dry Goods Trade" under the National Industrial Recovery Act, apparently because of certain provisions contained in this code. However, after that code was struck down, the preparation and use of the mill selling policy reports were resumed by The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., and its members and supplemented by the preparation and use of a directory of wholesalers in the form of a volume entitled "Wholesale of Dry Goods and Kindred Lines." Copies of this directory are distributed by the Institute to its members and to manufacturers rated by the Institute. The number of wholesalers so listed varies from time to time the most recent issue containing the names of approximately 1,150 concerns. The list is described in part as:

A list of firms whose operations, after careful investigation and a consideration of the facts available, are believed to conform to the definition of a wholesaler employed by the Wholesale Dry Goods Institute for its several and individual purposes.

While every effort has been made to insure the correctness of this list, it is realized that some inaccuracies are unavoidable—(some names may have been omitted which should be included, others included which should be omitted)—but such errors will be corrected in later revisions of this list.

The definition of a "wholesaler," referred to in the directory and regularly used by the Institute in determining who is entitled to be listed in the directory, is as follows:

A "wholesaler" is a person, firm or corporation—

(1) That is organized primarily to sell goods to and render service to retailers generally, and is not primarily interested in securing for a single retailer, or a limited group of retailers, price advantages which are not to be made available to other retailers.

(2) That transacts business in sufficient volume to handle goods in wholesale quantities and sells through salesmen, advertising and/or sales promotion devices;

(3) That carries at all times at its principal place of business a representative stock of the goods it sells, and from which it can fill the orders of its customers;

(4) That extends credit to its customers and carries its own accounts.

This definition excludes (a) buying offices or syndicates representing retailers; (b) their stock carrying affiliates; (c) chain store central offices or warehouses; (d) drop shippers; (e) brokers; (f) commission merchants; (g) selling agents; (h) job lot dealers; (i) second hand dealers.

The introductory statements appearing in this directory of wholesalers include the following:

The ratings run from A to K; A indicating that the manufacturer confines his distribution exclusively to wholesalers, and therefore gives complete cooperation, while rating K indicates that the manufacturer gives no cooperation to wholesalers at all.

This is an interesting experiment in the establishment of a means for voluntary cooperative action. If the experiment is completely successful, it will clarify what has been a confused and complicated marketing situation which in the past has resulted in grave injustices and discriminations against certain types of retail buyers and, likewise, has caused much dissatisfaction to both sellers and buyers in the textile field. From the results so far observed, it seems clearly indicated that a high degree of success will be attained.

Among other recommendations quoted in the directory of wholesalers is one in which the Joint Committee for the Advancement of Manufacturer-Wholesaler Relations suggests to manufacturers that they:

Adopt a selling policy that will give protection to wholesale distributors, and enable them to meet competition at a reasonable profit to themselves and their customers.

Confine their branded merchandise and/or patterns to regular distributors and protect their customers by keeping it out of chains, mail order houses, Premium houses and syndicate buying groups.

Use utmost care in the selection of distributors, avoiding those whose practices tend to disrupt the ordinary distributive process. (Note definition of wholesaler employed by the Wholesale Dry Goods Institute for its several and individual purposes.)

In the directory of wholesalers members of the Institute are listed by firm name appearing in heavy type, followed by the names of officials of the member and a full statement of the lines of merchandise distributed by such member, all enclosed in a box. Other concerns listed as wholesalers but who are not members of the Institute are listed by firm name only, which name appears in ordinary type with abbreviations indicating the lines of merchandise handled. Members of the Institute are thus clearly distinguished from others listed and more detailed information supplied with respect to them.

PAR. 7. When a concern applies for membership in The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., or for listing in its directory of wholesalers, the measure used for determining whether it should be admitted to membership or to listing is the previously quoted definition of a "wholesaler" established by the Institute. There are many concerns in the United States who are actively engaged in competition with members of the Institute and with wholesalers listed in the Institute's directory of wholesalers in the sale and distribution of like goods, but which do not conform to the definition of a "wholesaler" as fixed by the Institute and, therefore, are not eligible for membership in the Institute or listing in its directory of wholesalers. Such concerns are, nevertheless, engaged in whole or in part in selling dry goods, notions, and kindred products to retailers buying for resale to the consuming public.

When a concern applies for membership in the Institute or for listing in its directory of wholesalers, it is the practice of the Institute to secure information as to its operations from commercial agencies such as Dun & Bradstreet and by addressing inquiries to members of the Institute or others listed in its directory of wholesalers who are competitively located with respect to the applicant. An instance of this procedure is shown by an application by one Louis Cohen of Ladysmith, Wis., for membership. The Institute wrote a number of competitors of Cohen stating:

We have a request from Louis Cohen, Ladysmith, Wis., asking that his name be included in the list of dry goods wholesalers published by the Wholesale Dry Goods Institute.

Will you please advise us, if in your judgment, the operations of this concern conform to the definition of a wholesaler employed by the Wholesale Dry Goods Institute in its reports to its members.

An instance of a reply to the above inquiry appears in a letter of February 21, 1936, from Lebeis Hosiery Co.:

Replying to your letter requesting advice on Louis Cohen, Ladysmith, Wis.

We have known Mr. Cohen for quite some time, and we never regarded his store as a wholesale establishment. In our judgment, he is a long jump from being any kind of a wholesaler.

Another of the replies received was from Butler Brothers of Chicago, Ill., which on February 22, 1936, advised the Institute:

Referring to your letter of February 19, we do not consider Louis Cohen, of Ladysmith, Wisconsin, a wholesaler although the agency report shows him as wholesaler and retailer, and he himself claims that the wholesale end of his business represents about 60 percent of his total volume.

In a statement he made he showed total employees for both wholesale and retail, seven, and stated that he had one salesman selling direct from the truck on the road. This statement showed accounts receivable of $15,231, and he claimed that $8,197 were wholesale accounts, and $7,034 retail. His inventory was only $64,000, with only 2 turns for the year, which included merchandise in another retail store at Rhinelander, which is considered a branch of Ladysmith. He gave his sales as $143,000, for the year.

I don't think he should be added to our list.

Cohen was not admitted to membership or listing as a wholesaler.

In numerous other instances concerns which are listed as wholesalers by commercial agencies such as Dun & Bradstreet have been refused membership in the Institute or listing in its directory of wholesalers on the ground that their operations did not conform to the Institute's definition of a wholesaler.

The purpose and effort of the publication of this directory of wholesalers and its circulation among manufacturers by the Institute is to create a preferred class of buyers consisting of those concerns listed in the directory and to inform manufacturers of the identity of buyers to whom they might sell without incurring the disfavor of the Institute and its members, and, conversely, to inform such manufacturers that sales to any wholesaler not so listed might result in their being given an unfavorable classification by the Institute, the effect of which might be to prevent or tend to prevent their making sales to members of the Institute.

PAR. 8. The preparation and distribution by The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., to its members of the "Mill Selling Policy Reports" classifying and rating manufacturers in the manner stated in and of itself has a coercive effect upon manufacturers in determining their sales policies. The Institute recognized that this coercive effect would be increased in proportion as its members refused to purchase from manufacturers classified as noncooperative by the institute, and concentrated their purchases among those manufacturers having a rating or classification considered satisfactory by the institute. The institute, its officers, committees, and membership took joint action from time to time to increase the coercive effect of the ratings made of manufacturers by exerting collective pressure upon members to consistently use the reports for the purpose intended; that is, to buy only from those classified, as having sales policies satisfactory to the institute. For example, at a meeting of the board of directors of the institute in May 1935 it was voted, among other things:

To suggest to members of the Institute that before placing orders they enquire of manufacturers as to the rating they enjoy with the Institute.

An instance of collective consideration and action by the membership appears in connection with a report to the 1935 convention of The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute by its then director general, who stated in part:

What your attitude is, what your recommendations or instructions to your buyers may be, will largely influence the effectiveness of this entire Institute campaign. And when I conclude this report, I would like to get from you an indication of what you think about this thing. I would like to have all who believe that you should instruct your buyers to watch these reports and give preference to those manufacturers who have adopted what it appears to you to be a fair selling policy, I would like all of you who favor that and think it proper, to raise your hands. (All hands were raised.)

Officials of the institute from time to time urged upon members that the list of manufacturers' ratings be regularly used for the purpose intended, and exerted the pressure of the Institute and collective pressure of its membership upon members to that end. An instance of this continuing policy appears in an address at the annual convention of the Institute in January 1939 by the executive secretary of the Institute in the course of which he stated in part:

For the benefit of manufacturers, I reiterate that the reports are merely the means of reflecting to members of the Institute the selling policies practiced by those manufacturers to whom they look for their merchandise requirements. No action of the Institute should be construed as intending to influence a manufacturer's selling policy.

Unquestionably, the value and effectiveness of these reports will be greatly enhanced if wholesalers will increase their support to the program, which they can do:

(a) By helping to make manufacturers "rating conscious." Frequent reference to the rating reports when conferring with manufacturers, or their representatives, will impress them with the importance of their rating with the Institute, and the importance of giving protection to wholesalers if their business is to be enjoyed.

(b) By reporting to the Institute promptly any instance detected where the rating assigned fails to correctly describe a manufacturer's method of selling. The ratings must be correct to be of value.

(c) By carefully checking all orders against ratings, to insure the placing of business most advantageously.

(d) By giving an occasional "pat on the back," to manufacturers making an earnest effort to cooperate with wholesalers. Do not hesitate to tell a manufacturer that you are placing your business with him because of his policy of protecting wholesalers, as reflected by his rating with the Institute.

An instance of pressure by the Institute upon an individual member is indicated in an exchange of correspondence between the executive secretary of the Institute and the Richmond Dry Goods Co. On May 16, 1938, in a letter from the executive secretary of the institute to a member of the executive committee of the Institute representing the Richmond Dry Goods Co. reference was made to a conversation had with a representative of a manufacturer, as follows:

During the conversation Mr. Tansill stated frankly that it was his intention to thoroughly review their selling policy, and felt that such review would indicate that no other course was open to him than to return to selling the retail trade. He asked me to tell him how he could do otherwise, when wholesalers failed to support manufacturers cooperating with wholesalers, and cited the specific instance of Richmond Dry Goods Co. forsaking the Pepperell line, not for the line of another manufacturer giving wholesale protection, but for the line of a manufacturer selling promiscuously to the retail trade—without protecting the wholesaler—and rated "K" by the Institute.

Of course, it is not within the province of the institute to dictate either how a manufacturer is to sell, or how its members are to buy. However, it is reasonable to assume that, in their own interests, wholesalers will favor those manufacturers giving them the greatest degree of protection. I realize that these are abnormal times, but wholesalers will defeat their own ends if they accept temporary advantages to the detriment of the long term program.

In replying to the above letter the Richmond Dry Goods Co., Inc., stated in part:

I am still highly appreciative of the mill selling policies and I will greatly appreciate it if you will let me know the concern that Mr. Tansill referred to, as I did not know that any of our departments were dealing with a concern rated K by the institute. If you have not the name, please drop by and see Mr. Tansill on your way up or down and tell him that I am interested in knowing the name of the manufacturer that he refers to. You can also tell him that I need it for a constructive purpose and I will look into the situation completely.

The executive secretary of the institute secured the information desired from Mr. Tansill and furnished it to the Richmond Dry Goods Co., which thereafter made a full report to the executive secretary of the institute, after which the executive secretary wrote under date of May 31, 1938, to the Richmond Dry Goods Co. in part as follows:

While I can thoroughly appreciate your position in handling Chatham blankets, the fact that you are doing so does have an adverse effect on better rated manufacturers, and on the program of the institute. As you know, a manufacturer's rating is based on his national policy, and the admitted policy of Chatham leaves no doubt as to the K rating assigned. I am sure there are numerous other instances where a manufacturer would be entitled to a better rating in certain territories, but the general policy does not warrant it. No doubt there are manufacturers, selling promiscuously in your territory, whose merchandise you would refuse to handle for this reason, but who are, in other territories, protecting the wholesaler to a degree equal to that accorded you by Chatham.

This subject is one difficult to discuss by letter, and so I shall defer further comment until I may have the pleasure of discussing it personally with you. Any discussion, however, whether by letter or verbally, necessarily must be of an informal and unofficial nature. As you already know, the institute would be in violation of the law if it attempted to dictate either the selling policies of manufacturers, or the buying policies of its members.

Most of the members of the institute do, in fact, confine their purchases so far as practicable to manufacturers rated by the institute as having sales policies favorable to wholesalers as that term is defined by the institute. Instances of this policy on the part of members of the institute and the limitations upon it are indicated by testimony in the record.

An official of Goodall-Brown Dry Goods Co., a member of the institute, was questioned concerning the purpose and use made of the rating book furnished by the institute to its members showing the selling policies of manufacturers, and testified in part:

Q. What is the purpose of that?

A. Based on the first law of nature, of self-defense. It is an organization of members to give them the information on the selling policies of the manufacturers. If we bought goods from a manufacturer, who sold our customers, we would be committing suicide, more or less. In other words, the information given as to the sales policies of the manufacturers, which is voluntary on their part, it puts us in position, as a member of The Dry Goods Institute, to protect our customers and to buy from people who are trying to work with the wholesaler as a medium of distribution.

* * * * *

Q. Do you limit your purchases to those manufacturers who have an A rating, or to those manufacturers who, if they do sell the department stores, charge a differential which will protect you?

A. No, we don't limit them. There might be cases when you would have to buy from the other fellow.

An official of Williams-Richardson Co., Ltd., a member of the institute, testified that he was familiar with the system of rating manufacturers in use by the institute, and said:

Q. In your business, the conduct of your business, what type of manufacturer do you do business with? Do you buy from the manufacturer with the high ratings?

A. We always buy from the manufacturer with the best rating.

An official of Leff Brothers Dry Goods & Notion Co., a member of the institute, testified in part:

Q. In buying the merchandise which you offer for sale do you make use of that booklet which is "Commission's Exhibit No. 53" to inform yourself of the ratings of manufacturers?

A. At times I do; yes. It all depends. Occasionally I try to govern myself by it, because it is to my interest to.

Q. Do you try, wherever possible, to buy from the manufacturer who has an A rating in preference to the others?

A. Most of the times I do. Now, getting back to the same question that you asked me a while ago with the Spool Cotton Co. and the American Thread Co., at times I have to buy hosiery listed there. They are out of the A class but I am forced to buy it to complete my lines.

An official of John H. Hibbin Dry Goods Co., a member of the institute was questioned concerning the use of the information furnished by the institute showing ratings of manufacturers and what instructions the buyers of that company were given concerning the use of such information, and said:

A. My recollection is that the only information—or the only instructions that I have ever given any of them was that—to be careful in their purchases and to try and buy from people who had not, by their selling policies,—who would not be, by their selling policies, direct competitors of ours.

PAR. 9. The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., made it a practice and policy to encourage its members to report to it any instance where a manufacturer made a sale or sales which appeared to be contrary to the rating assigned to such manufacturer by the institute, as for example, a sale by a manufacturer listed as A or A— to a concern not listed in the institute's directory of wholesalers. When any instance is reported to the institute of a manufacturer making a sale or sales not within the scope of the rating assigned him, a letter is sent to such manufacturer, usually in the following form:

In its reports on mill selling policies, our _____ committee has assigned rating A— to your good concern, as representing your selling policy. This rating indicates that your product is being sold to wholesalers only with special contract goods, made under buyer's specifications and labels, for national chains and mail order houses.

It has been reported to us that this rating is incorrect for the reason that your product is being offered to the _____ department store, of _____

According to the best information available to us, the operations of this concern do not conform to the definition of a wholesaler as employed by the Wholesale Dry Goods Institute for its various purposes.

We would be pleased to have your comment on the above.

Upon receipt of such inquiry from the institute, if the manufacturer replied that the sales questioned were inadvertent or without knowledge as to the business of the purchaser and would be discontinued, the institute advised the manufacturer in the following form:

We are very glad to have your letter of _____ in which you state that you have found, upon investigation, that the operations of _____, of _____, do not conform to the definition of a wholesaler as employed by the Wholesale Dry Goods Institute.

In view of your statement to the effect that sales to this concern will be discontinued, no change will be made in your A— rating.

Thanking you for the promptness with which you have handled this matter, and appreciating your interest in distribution through the wholesaler, we are, * * *

In the event no satisfactory adjustment is reached with a manufacturer reported to have made sales outside the scope of his institute rating, the rating of such manufacturer is changed to conform to the new information and the institute advises its members of such change in rating.

PAR. 10. The aforesaid plan of The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., as carried out, did in fact have the effects planned, and did, and does, coerce manufacturers in the selection of their customers in individual instances and as a matter of general sales policy. This coercive effect on general sales policy is indicated by the fact that most revisions of manufacturers' ratings have been upward on the rating scale established by the institute; that is, a change from a previous rating to one indicating more favorable treatment of wholesalers as defined by the institute. Testimony in the record is indicative of the active desire on the part of manufacturers concerned to secure and retain ratings considered satisfactory by the institute. For example:

A representative of a manufacturer in testifying concerning the policy of his company of refusing to sell to concerns not listed by the institute as wholesalers, said in part:

Q. Is the reason that you cooperate with the Wholesale Dry Goods Institute the fact that you do not wish your rating changed?

A. Quite naturally we would like to protect our rating.

A representative of another manufacturer, in testifying concerning the relations of his company with the institute and its members, said:

Q. Do you think that if the institute were to give you a rating lower than an A rating, and such a rating as would indicate that you didn't confine your sales to jobbers, that the result would be you would lose business among the jobbers, and among the members of the Wholesale Dry Goods Institute?

A. Yes.

In the course of his testimony the sales manager of one of the largest manufacturers of knitted goods, in connection with the discontinuance of sales to certain purchasers and the relation of his company to the institute, said:

Q. Did Mr. Garrison tell you, or intimate to you, that if you continued to make sales to Wayne Leeson & Sons, the Wholesale Dry Goods Institute would change your rating?

A. I don't recall. Our attitude with the Wholesale Dry Goods Institute was one—it was this way: where we were selling eighty percent of our production to wholesalers, we were naturally eager to keep in the status of having a high rating.

Q. In other words, would it affect your business with the wholesalers if the Wholesale Dry Goods Institute lowered your rating?

A. I don't know.

The coercive effect upon manufacturers in the selection of individual customers and their refusal to accept or continue as customers concerns buying for resale to retail dealers, but not listed in the Institute's directory of wholesalers, is indicated by the following examples:

On October 27, 1939, the Perry Knitting Co. wrote to Louis Cohen, of Ladysmith, Wis.:

We have before us your recent letter requesting samples of our line.

As previously advised from time to time, we are not in a position to quote you or submit samples to you until such time as we have advice through the Wholesale Dry Goods Institute that your operations are such that they can be classified as that of a wholesaler.

If you have been advised by the Wholesale Dry Goods Institute that your operations have now been classified as a jobber or wholesaler, please advise.

On January 31, 1939, George E. Ready of Greensboro, N. C., wrote to the Chicopee Sales Corporation for a price quotation on tobacco muslin, to which inquiry the Chicopee Sales Corporation replied on February 1, 1939:

Thank you for your letter of January 31 asking for prices on tobacco muslin.

Sometime ago our mill set up a program of cooperation with the established wholesale dry goods trade, through the Wholesale Dry Goods Institute at 40 Worth Street, New York. We sell only to wholesalers on these goods who are on their approved list.

As we do not find you listed with them, and if you are doing a regular wholesaling business, we suggest you write them at New York for approval. At that time, we shall be very glad to get in touch with you further.

Mr. Ready replied to this letter under date of February 6, 1939, stating that he could not understand why he should be required to join an organization to make it possible for him to carry on business; that he was established in his line, recognized by other manufacturers, and listed in Dun & Bradstreet. He concluded by saying, "I do not anticipate joining the Wholesale Dry Goods Institute but I will thank you to quote me prices on tobacco muslin, and as the season is on for the sale of this I will appreciate your reply by return mail." On the same date Chicopee Sales Corporation replied to Mr. Ready as follows:

Thank you for your letter of February 6, from which it appears that we did not make ourselves entirely clear in writing you on the first.

In setting up our program of cooperating with the Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, we do not attempt to get anyone to join the Institute as a requirement for selling. We feel that they are much better posted than we are on the type of firms doing a legitimate wholesaling business and use their information as a guide, though many of the people we sell in the jobbing field are not members of the Institute while approved by them.

We feel sure you will have no objection to writing them on the matter if you are doing a legitimate wholesaling business, and as soon as they let us know that they have approved your name, we shall be glad to quote you.

In 1937 several competitors of William J. Dykstra of Grand Rapids, Mich., raised with manufacturers from which that concern purchased; and with The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, a question as to the right of Dykstra to buy on the basis of being a wholesaler. The Institute wrote a number of manufacturers in the manner indicated by the following letter of October 29, 1939, to the Standard Textile Products Co.:

In its Reports on Mill Selling Policies, our Committee has assigned rating A— to your good concern, as indicative of your selling policy.

Some question has arisen regarding the accuracy of this rating, as our attention has been called to the fact that your products are being sold to William J. Dykstra Co., Grand Rapids, Mich.

From the information available to us, the operations of this concern do not conform to the definition of a wholesaler as that term is employed by the Wholesale Dry Goods Institute for its various purposes.

Will you kindly let us hear from you concerning this, so that we may keep our ratings as accurate as possible.

The Standard Textile Products Co. replied to this letter under date of November 3, 1937, stating in part:

We have been selling the William J. Dykstra Co. of Grand Rapids, Michigan during the past several months. The reports from our representative and other information which we have been able to obtain on this concern specify that they are wholesale distributors of dry goods and notions. The Dun & Bradstreet reference book also lists this company as "wholesale dry goods."

Naturally, we are not familiar with the details of the operations of their business and if you can give us any information as to what way they do not conform with the definition of a wholesaler, term employed by Dry Goods Institute, we shall be glad to have our representative go to Grand Rapids and adjust the matter for us.

We, of course, would not want to do anything that might affect our present rating with your institute.

Another concern, Standard Coated Products Corporation, questioned with regard to its sales to William J. Dykstra Co., on April 7, 1938, wrote to Dykstra as follows:

We delayed acknowledging your letter of March 24 until we could communicate with our representative, Mr. Wright. As we understand him, he has gone thoroughly into the distribution question with you. It is unfortunate that this had to come up and we wish to assure you that we were not at all anxious to discontinue soliciting your business.

We sincerely hope that this may be rectified in the near future, and we will again enjoy the privilege of executing orders for you.

At the time a preliminary investigation was being made by the Commission in the present matter Standard Coated Products Corporation called upon its sales representative, Mr. James R. Wright, for full information as to what statements he had made to Dykstra as to why sales to him were discontinued. To this inquiry Mr. Wright replied on July 11, 1938:

In reply to your letter of July 7, the only reason why I told Dr. Dykstra we could not sell him was the fact that I was advised by your office that the Wholesale Dry Goods Institute threatened to take our "A" rating away from us if we continued to sell him. I think Mr. Dykstra will bear me out. Personally, I like Mr. Dykstra very much and it really was not easy to tell a swell fellow like he is, that he could not buy from us any more. As far as I am concerned, if you give me the word, I will be glad to open his account up again if you feel that it is not going to hurt us with the Wholesale Dry Goods Institute.

After all, I do not pay very much attention to the yips made by other customers. If you listen to them very much, they would not want you to sell to anybody except themselves.

Under date of November 8, 1937, in response to an inquiry concerning William J. Dykstra Co., of Grand Rapids, Mich., The Wholesale Dry Goods Institutes wrote the J. V. Pilcher Manufacturing Co., of Louisville, Ky., advising in part:

From the above you will see that the method of operation of this concern does not conform with the definition of a "wholesaler" employed by the Wholesale Dry Goods Institute for its various purposes.

The J. V. Pilcher Manufacturing Co. replied to this letter under date of November 11, 1937, stating to the Institute:

We thank you for your letter of November 8 in regard to Dykstra Dry Goods Co.

We will look further into this matter with an idea of discontinuing selling them direct.

A number of manufacturers did in fact discontinue selling to Dykstra.

In 1936 The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute wrote to a number of competitors of Abe Rubel & Co., of Corinth, Miss., a typical instance being a letter of July 2, 1936, to William R. Moore Dry Goods Co., of Memphis, Tenn., which inquiry reads:

A question has been raised regarding the status of A. Rubel & Co., Corinth, Miss.

Will you please advise me, if, in your opinion, their operations conform to the definition of a wholesaler as that term is employed by the Wholesale Dry Goods Institute.

Under date of July 7 the William R. Moore Dry Goods Co. replied to the Institute:

With further reference to your letter of July 2, regarding A. Rubel & Co., Corinth, Miss. This firm's principal business is that of retailing. They have a small wholesale department and travel two men, one of them is an old man, more or less of a pensioner, and the other is a kinsman. They sell only to small merchants, and fill orders both from their retail and wholesale departments.

Therefore, the firm should not be classed as a wholesaler as this term is employed by your institute.

In May 1939 Abe Rubel & Co. sought unsuccessfully to buy tobacco cloth from a number of manufacturers or their agents, and on June 5, 1939, wrote to The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., in part:

This firm is not now or never has been in a position so that they would have to beg for anything, but we feel that you should know that we have been in the wholesale game of dry goods and its kindred lines since 1868; that we have 15,000 square feet of floor space devoted entirely to wholesale; that since the time of our organization our men have been on the road traveling twelve months a year.

This was followed by another letter to the institute under date of June 12th reading as follows:

As long as we were with the Old Southern Dry Goods Institute and the time while we were a member of your institution, we were never questioned by anyone on any subject, and now since we are no longer a member of your institution, through some pressure on your part we have been denied purchasing canvas and tobacco cloth from several of the commission houses, which is nothing more than a slap by you in our face.

We are just as much in the jobbing game in proportion to Carson Pirie & Co., of Chicago, Marshall Field of Chicago, or any other jobbing concern with retail outlet.

The writer, knowing most of you in person and having been in the market for the past 40 years, cannot understand any such action on your part against us. We feel that we are certainly due some explanation and when next in your city are going to demand one.

On June 15, 1939, the executive secretary of The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., replied to Abe Rubel & Company:

This will acknowledge your letter of June 12.

Please be assured that the Institute has no disposition to do you an injustice. If it has erred in its decision—with respect to recognizing your good concern as operating in conformance of its definition of a wholesaler—then we most certainly want to correct the mistake.

Please do call at the office when you are again in New York, so that we may frankly discuss this matter.

Abe Rubel & Co. on June 17, 1939, replied to the institute:

Referring to your kind letter of the fifteenth, will state that on account of the action of your institution we have been able to purchase from Kendall, Southeastern, and others, tobacco cloth. We have purchased this material for over 50 years.

I trust that you will communicate with Stevens, Woodward, Baldwin, and Kendall, also Southeastern and have this matter straightened out.

The executive secretary of the institute on June 19, 1939, replied to Abe Rubel & Co. in part:

Acknowledging your letter of June 17, I wish it were as easy as you suggest to "have this matter straightened out."

Let me remind you that the institute does not attempt to dictate, or even influence the selling policy of any manufacturer. Its program provides merely for supplying its membership with information concerning the selling practices employed by those manufacturers to whom they look for their merchandise requirements.

Your inability to purchase tobacco cloth from Kendall Mills, Southeastern Cottons, Woodward, Baldwin, and others, is due to the individual action of each, and not because of the institute.

It is true, of course, that if a manufacturer sells to concerns other than those considered to be operating in accordance with the institute's definition of a wholesaler, then a different rating is applicable than when sales are confined to concerns meeting the definition.

Under date of March 21, 1939, Davis & Catterall, manufacturers of textile products, wrote the U. R. M. Wholesale Dry Goods, Inc., of Spokane, Wash., in part as follows:

The writer has just returned from the offices of the Wholesale Dry Goods Institute where he has spent a good part of the day discussing your organization with them, but unfortunately could not change them from their original opinion that you do not conform to their ideas as a wholesaler.

* * * * *

Just so long as the institute do not list you, we must decline to offer you our line due to the reason that they in turn rate us on the accounts that we sell and as we today have an A rating with the institute and jobbing trade, we, naturally, cannot take any chances in jeopardizing our position. We feel certain that you will understand this.

We realize that you will have no difficulty in procuring another source of prints, but it is the writer's suggestion you make your peace with the institute as I believe you will find more and more of the better producers of merchandise affiliating themselves with that organization, and it is very possible that you may have this annoyance with your other sources of supply.

We, of course, do not like to lose you as a customer and hope that you will understand why we must take the position that we do. It is our sincere wish that you will not be prejudiced against our organization. We again offer our services in any way to straighten out this matter with the institution. We most certainly would like to see you get a square deal.

In numerous other instances various concerns were prevented from buying and manufacturers prevented from selling to them, by reason of the aforesaid practices of The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc. In some instances where sales to such concerns were not actually prevented, the price to such concerns was increased above that granted by manufacturers to concerns listed in the Institute's directory of wholesalers. Such increases represented the refusal of manufacturers to grant their customary wholesaler's discount to buyers not recognized by the Institute as wholesalers, thus forcing such buyers to pay higher prices if they continued their purchases.

PAR. 11. The capacity, tendency, and effect of the understandings, agreements, combination, and conspiracy, and the acts and practices performed thereunder and in connection therewith by respondents, has been, and is, to coerce, restrain, and restrict manufacturers of dry goods, notion, and allied lines in the selection of customers to whom they will sell; to prevent dealers in dry goods, notions, and allied lines, including competitors of respondent members of The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., from purchasing their supplies of such goods from manufacturers thereof; to prevent dealers competitive with respondent members of The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., and dealers selling at retail, from buying at prices as favorable as those granted to members and others listed in said institute's directory of wholesalers, thereby increasing the prices to such purchasers and to the consuming public; to place in the hands of respondents control over the business practices of manufacturers and distributors of dry goods, notions, and allied lines of merchandise and the power to so hinder, harass, and restrain the operations of manufacturers and distributors who do not conform to respondents' wishes as to exclude, or substantially exclude, them from the industry; and to hinder and prevent competition in the sale and distribution of dry goods, notions, and allied lines of merchandise.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid mutual understandings, agreements, combination, and conspiracy, and the acts and practices performed thereunder or in connection therewith by said respondents under the conditions and circumstances set forth are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

support of the complaint and in opposition thereto, renewed motion to reverse the rulings of the trial examiners on evidence and supplement to said motion, and oral arguments of counsel, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That respondent The Wholesale Dry Goods Institute, Inc., a membership corporation, its officers and directors, individually and as such officers or directors, its members individually and as such members, or any group of such respondents, their agents, representatives, and employees, either with or without the cooperation of others not parties hereto, do forthwith cease and desist from following a common course of action pursuant to or in connection with any mutual understanding, agreement, combination, or conspiracy, for the purpose and with the effect, directly, or indirectly, of establishing or seeking to establish respondents, or any of them, as a preferred class of buyers, or of inducing, coercing, or restraining manufacturers or their agents in the determination of their sales and pricing policies or the selection of their customers, or otherwise hindering, restraining, or lessening competition in the sale and distribution of dry goods, notions, or other merchandise in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act:

1. By preparing, maintaining, and circulating any list of buyers considered or recognized by respondents as "wholesalers," or any similar list of preferred buyers.

2. By preparing, maintaining, and circulating any list of manufacturers or their agents classified or rated in a manner which designates those whose sales policies are considered satisfactory to respondents and those whose sales policies are less satisfactory or not satisfactory to respondents.

3. By ceasing or threatening to cease to deal, or dealing or threatening to deal less extensively than otherwise, with any manufacturer or his agents on the ground or for the reason that such manufacturer sells to buyers not considered or recognized by respondents as "wholesalers," or sells to retailers, or does not grant a more favorable price to respondents and others considered or recognized by them as "wholesalers" than to other buyers.

4. By advocating and urging said common course of action outlined in paragraph 3 hereof in publications or letters, at meetings of respondents or groups or committees of respondents, or in any other manner.

5. By making threats, express or implied, to any manufacturer or his agents for the purpose or with the effect of inducing, persuading, constraining, or coercing such manufacturer or his agents to refuse to sell, cease selling, or charge a higher price, to any buyer or prospective buyer.

It is further ordered, That the respondents shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

It is further ordered, That for the reasons set out in paragraph 1 of the findings as to the facts in this proceeding the complaint herein be, and it is, hereby dismissed as to respondents W. W. Couch Co., Inc.; Harris, Davis & Co., Inc.; Schwartz Brothers & Co., Inc.; F. B. Thomas & Co., Inc., E. & M. Hirschler Co., Inc.; Smith, Taylor Co., Inc.; and J. S. Reeves & Co., Inc.

It is further ordered, That respondents' motion to reverse certain rulings of the trial examiners on the evidence, which motion was denied without prejudice to respondents' right to renew same and which was duly renewed, and respondents' motion supplementing said renewed motion be, and the same hereby are, denied.

ALFRED W. WILSON, TRADING AS A. W. WILSON CO.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 4131. Complaint, May 8, 1940—Decision, Nov. 26, 1941

Where an individual engaged in interstate sale and distribution of coin-operated vending machines and candy; by letters, circulars and other advertising material, advertisements in newspapers and other periodicals, and by oral statements of his agents and salesmen—

- (a) Represented that purchasers of such machines would be given exclusive rights to operate them within certain designated territories, that locations for the machines had been or would be, obtained by him prior to the time of delivery to the purchaser, that the machines would be personally installed at the designated locations by his salesmen or agents, and that the amount which purchasers would be required to pay for locations would not exceed certain designated amounts or commissions; the facts being he did not grant such rights, but frequently sold his machines to different purchasers for operation within the same territory and, in view of outright sales thereof, could not control or determine the territories in which the machines would be operated in the future, and he did not obtain locations or make installation, while the amounts his purchasers were required to pay for locations frequently exceeded those represented;
- (b) Represented that such machines would be delivered within a specified time, and that a certain quantity of candy to be dispensed by said machines, would be supplied free by him, when in fact he frequently failed to make delivery within time agreed upon and supplied to purchasers without charge the neither designated, nor any other, amount, of candy;
- (c) Represented that his business was nation-wide in scope, when in fact it was confined principally to States in the western portion of the United States; and
- (d) Represented that net profits of not less than $30 per week were usually and customarily derived by purchasers, and that said machines would be repurchased by him at the original price, less the net earnings, if at the end of 90 days' operation the machines had not earned for the purchaser profits equal to their original price, when in fact purchasers had not been able to earn any amount approximating aforesaid figure, such profits were not possible under usual conditions, and he did not repurchase such machines at the end of 90 days' operation or any other time, even though they might have failed to earn any profit;

With effect of misleading and deceiving a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such representations were true, and of inducing it because of said belief, to purchase substantial quantities of his products:

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Alfred W. Wilson, individually, and trading as the A. W. Wilson Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, Alfred W. Wilson, is an individual, trading and doing business as A. W. Wilson Co., with his office and principal place of business at 11015 Blix Street, North Hollywood, Calif. The respondent is now, and for more than one year last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of coin-operated vending machines and candy in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent causes such vending machines and candy, when sold, to be transported from his principal place of business in the State of California to purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in such products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his business, as aforesaid, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of his products, the respondent has made many false and misleading representations with respect to his vending machines and the profits to be derived from the operation thereof, such representations being made by means of letters, circulars, and other advertising material distributed among prospective purchasers, by advertisements inserted in newspapers and other periodicals, and by oral statements and representations made by respondent's agents and salesmen to prospective purchasers. Among and typical of such false and misleading representations are the following:

1. That the purchasers of such machines would be given exclusive rights to operate the machines within certain designated territories.

2. That locations for the machines had been obtained or would be obtained by respondent prior to the time of delivery of the machine to the purchaser.

3. That the machines would be personally installed at the designated locations by respondent's salesmen or agents.

4. That the amount which purchasers of the machines would be required to pay for locations would not exceed certain designated amounts or commission.

5. That said machines would be delivered within a specified time.

6. That a certain quantity of candy, to be dispensed by said machines, would be supplied free by the respondent prior to or at the time of delivery of said machines.

7. That respondent's business is Nation-wide in its scope;

8. That net profits of not less than $30 per week were usually and the time of delivery of said machines.

9. That said machines would be repurchased by the respondent at the original price, less the net earnings, if at the end of 90 days' operation the machines had not earned for the purchaser profits equal in amount to the original price of the machine.

PAR. 3. The foregoing representations are grossly exaggerated, false, and misleading. In truth and in fact respondent does not grant exclusive territorial rights to the purchasers of his machines, but in many instances has sold his machines to different purchasers for operation within the same territory. Respondent does not obtain locations for the operation of his machines, nor does respondent install such machines for operation. The amounts which purchasers of the machines have been required to pay for locations have in many instances exceeded the amounts or commissions represented by the respondent and his agents. In many instances the respondent has failed to make delivery of the machines within the time agreed upon by the purchaser and the respondent or his representatives.

The respondent has not supplied to the purchasers without charge the designated amount of candy or any other amount of candy. Respondent's business is not Nation-wide in its scope, but is confined principally to States in the western portion of the United States. The purchasers of respondent's machines have not been able, through the operation of such machines, to earn $30 per week or any amount approximating such figure, nor are such profits possible under the usual and normal conditions under which such machines are customarily operated. The respondent does not repurchase such machines from the original purchasers at the end of ninety days' operation or at any other time, even though the machines may have failed to earn any profit for the purchaser.

PAR. 4. The use by the respondent of the foregoing false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations with respect to his products has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such statements and representations are true, and to induce a portion of the purchasing public, because of such erroneous and mistaken belief, to purchase substantial quantities of respondent's products.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on May 8, 1940, issued, and on July 27, 1940, served, its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent Alfred W. Wilson, individually and trading as A. W. Wilson Co., charging him with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer, the Commission, by order entered herein, granted respondent's motion for permission to withdraw said answer and to substitute therefor an answer admitting all of the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, which substitute answer was duly filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and substitute answer, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, Alfred W. Wilson, is an individual, trading and doing business as A. W. Wilson Co., with his office and principal place of business at 11015 Blix Street, North Hollywood, Calif. The respondent is now, and for more than one year last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of coin-operated vending machines and candy in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent causes such vending machines and candy, when sold, to be transported from his principal place of business in the State of California to purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in such products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his business, as aforesaid, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of his products, the respondent has made many false and misleading representations with respect to his vending machines and the profits to be derived from the operation thereof, such representations being made by means of letters, circulars, and other advertising material distributed among prospective purchasers, by advertisements inserted in newspapers and other periodicals, and by oral statements and representations made by respondent's agents and salesmen to prospective purchasers. Among and typical of such false and misleading representations are the following:

1. That the purchasers of such machines would be given exclusive rights to operate the machines within certain designated territories.
2. That locations for the machines had been obtained, or would be obtained, by respondent prior to the time of delivery of the machine to the purchaser.
3. That the machines would be personally installed at the designated locations by respondent's salesmen or agents.
4. That the amount which purchasers of the machines would be required to pay for locations would not exceed certain designated amounts or commissions.
5. That said machines would be delivered within a specified time.
6. That a certain quantity of candy, to be dispensed by said machines, would be supplied free by the respondent prior to or at the time of delivery of said machines.
7. That respondent's business is Nation-wide in its scope.
8. That net profits of not less than $30 per week were usually and customarily derived by purchasers.
9. That said machines would be repurchased by the respondent at the original price, less the net earnings, if at the end of 90 days' operation the machines had not earned for the purchaser profits equal in amount to the original price of the machine.

PAR. 3. The foregoing representations are grossly exaggerated, false, and misleading. In truth and in fact respondent does not grant exclusive territorial rights to the purchasers of his machines, but in many instances has sold his machines to different purchasers for operation within the same territory. Inasmuch as respondent has made, and makes, outright sales of the vending machines, the Commission concludes that it is impossible for him to control or determine the territories in which they will be operated in the future. Respondent does not obtain locations for the operation of his machines, nor does respondent install such machines for operation. The amounts which purchasers of the machines have been required to pay for locations have in many instances exceeded the amounts or commissions represented by the respondent and his agents. In many instances the respondent has failed to make delivery of the machines within the time agreed upon by the purchaser and the respondent or his representatives.

The respondent has not supplied to the purchasers without charge the designated amount of candy or any other amount of candy. Respondent's business is not Nation-wide in its scope, but is confined principally to States in the western portion of the United States. The purchasers of respondent's machines have not been able, through the operation of such machines, to earn $30 per week, or any amount approximating such figure, nor are such profits possible under the usual and normal conditions under which such machines are customarily operated. The respondent does not repurchase such machines from the original purchasers at the end of 90 days' operation, or at any other time, even though the machines may have failed to earn any profit for the purchaser.

PAR. 4. The use by the respondent of the foregoing false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations with respect to his products has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such statements and representations are true, and to induce a portion of the purchasing public, because of such erroneous and mistaken belief, to purchase substantial quantities of respondent's products.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

tions of fact set forth in said complaint and states that he waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act:

It is ordered, That the respondent Alfred W. Wilson, individually and trading as A. W. Wilson Co., or trading under any other name, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of coin-operated vending machines and candies in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from representing, directly or indirectly:

1. That respondent grants to any purchaser an exclusive territory for the operation of vending machines purchased from him.

2. That locations for said vending machines have been obtained, or will be obtained, by respondent prior to delivery of said vending machines to the purchaser, unless said locations actually are obtained.

3. That said vending machines will be installed at designated locations by respondent's salesmen or agents, unless respondent or his agents actually effect such installation.

4. That the amount purchasers of vending machines will be required to pay for locations for such machines is less than is the fact.

5. That said vending machines will be delivered within a specified time, when such is not the fact.

6. That any candy to be dispensed by vending machines purchased from respondent will be furnished.

7. That respondent's business is Nation-wide, or that it is greater in scope or size than is the fact.

8. That each vending machine usually and customarily provides a net profit of not less than $30 per week, or provides a net profit of any other amount in excess of the average, usual, and customary sum or amount actually earned under normal conditions in due course of business.

9. That respondent will, under any stated conditions, repurchase vending machines sold by him unless he does actually repurchase such machines in accordance with the representations made.

It is further ordered, That respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.

OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914*Docket 4181. Complaint, July 11, 1940—Decision, Nov. 26, 1941*

Where an individual engaged in the manufacture or assembly and interstate sale and distribution to wholesalers and large retailers such as chain stores, of "ready-to-wear" reading and sun glasses, which retailed at from 25 cents to $1 a pair for the former and from 10 to 50 cents for the latter; purchasing the frames or parts from domestic manufacturers and importing from Japan 75 percent of the lenses and substantially all of the glasses, which, on importation, were completed products requiring only certain cutting and fitting operations by him, and original labels on each of which, bearing legend "Japan" or "Made in Japan" or other words showing country of origin, were removed either in processing or in final handling before packaging—

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Lucian V. Segal, an individual trading as Segal Optical Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Lucian V. Segal, is an individual trading under the name and style of Segal Optical Co., with his office and principal place of business located at 56 West Twenty-second Street in the city of New York, State of New York. Said respondent is now, and for some time past has been, engaged in the business of selling and distributing lenses and eyeglasses, including reading glasses and sunglasses, in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent has maintained, and maintains, a course of trade in said products in said commerce, and has caused, and now causes, said products, when sold or ordered, to be shipped and transported from his place of business in the State of New York to purchasers, including retailers, resellers, and users thereof, located in various States of the United States other than the State of New York, and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his business, as above described, and in connection with the sale and distribution of his said products in said commerce, respondent has caused certain quantities of lenses for said eyeglasses and sunglasses to be imported from the country of Japan. At the time of importation into the United States, said lenses have been, and are, all labeled or marked with the word or words "Japan" or "Made in Japan," indicating that the country of origin is Japan. After said lenses were and are received by respondent, as so marked, he thereafter caused and causes the said labeling or marking to be removed from said lenses, and thereafter offered and offers for sale, and sold and sells, the same mounted in frames, to the aforesaid purchasers, including dealers, resellers and users thereof, without any label, mark, or words thereon indicating the Japanese or foreign origin of the said lenses.

PAR. 3. By virtue of the practice, heretofore and now established, of imprinting and otherwise labeling or marking products of foreign origin, and their containers, with the name of the country of their origin, in legible English words, in a conspicuous place, and as required by law, a substantial portion of the buying and consuming public has come to rely, and now relies, upon such imprinting, labeling, or marking, and is influenced thereby, to distinguish and discriminate between competing products of foreign and domestic origin, inclusive of eyeglasses and sunglasses having foreign-made or imported lenses. When products composed in whole or substantial part of imported articles are offered for sale and sold in the channels of trade in commerce throughout the United States and its territorial possessions, and in the District of Columbia, they are purchased and accepted as and for, and taken to be, products wholly of domestic manufacture and origin unless the same are imprinted, labeled, or marked in a manner which informs purchasers that the said products, or parts thereof, are of foreign origin, and not of domestic origin.

At all times material to this complaint there has been, and now is, among said members of the buying and consuming public, including purchasers and users of eyeglasses and sunglasses, in and throughout the United States and its territorial possessions, and in the District of Columbia, a substantial and subsisting preference for products which are wholly of domestic manufacture or origin, as distinguished from products of foreign manufacture or origin and from products which are in substantial part made of materials or parts of Japanese or foreign manufacture or origin.

PAR. 4. The practice of respondent, as aforesaid, in offering for sale, selling and distributing his eyeglasses, including reading glasses and sunglasses, made of lenses having Japanese or foreign origin, without any imprinting, labeling, or marking thereof to indicate to purchasers that the said lenses or glasses are of Japanese or foreign origin, has had and has the tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive purchasers and members of the buying and consuming public into the false and erroneous belief that the said glasses, and all the parts thereof, are wholly of domestic manufacture and origin, and into the purchase thereof in the reliance upon such erroneous belief.

The aforesaid practice further places in the hands of retailers and resellers of respondent's said products a means wherewith to mislead and deceive purchasers and members of the buying and consuming public into the false and erroneous belief that the said glasses referred to, and all the parts thereof, are wholly of domestic origin, and thus into the purchase thereof in reliance upon such erroneous belief.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on July 11, 1940, issued and subsequently served its complaint upon respondent Lucian V. Segal, an individual trading as Segal Optical Co., charging him with violation of the provisions of section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by an attorney for the Commission and in opposition thereto by an attorney for the respondent before an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, report of the trial examiner, briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto, and oral argument by counsel; and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent Lucian V. Segal is an individual trading under the name Segal Optical Co. and having his principal office and place of business at 40 West Twenty-fourth Street, New York, N. Y. He is engaged in the manufacture or assembly of spectacles or reading glasses and sunglasses.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his aforesaid business respondent is now, and for a number of years has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of reading glasses and sunglasses and causes his said products, when sold, to be transported from his place of business in New York to purchasers located in various other States of the United States. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States.

PAR. 3. Respondent does not manufacture the various parts of the spectacles or reading glasses and sunglasses sold by him. He purchases the frames or parts thereof from domestic manufacturers; he imports from Japan approximately 75 percent of the lenses for use in assembling reading glasses, and purchases the remainder from domestic manufacturers, and this ratio of imports has continued since 1938; and he has, since 1938, imported from Japan substantially all the glasses used in the sunglasses produced by him. At the time of importation into this country the lenses and glasses of Japanese manufacture are completed products insofar as their optical or protective qualities are concerned. They require only cutting to fit the size of the frames in which they are to be inserted and beveling the edges to secure them in place when they are so fitted, and these cutting and fitting operations are performed by respondent. The only exceptions are the lenses or glasses intended for use in rimless frames, and these are imported in fully finished condition except for boring holes in said lenses or glasses for the attachment of frames, which operation is performed by respondent.

PAR. 4. At the time of entry into this country the lenses and glasses imported by respondent have a label glued or otherwise attached to each lens or glass, which label bears the legend "Japan" or "Made in Japan," or other words showing the country of origin. In the process of cutting, edging, boring, and fitting into frames the lenses and glasses are subjected to handling, wetting, wiping, and cleaning with the result that the labels bearing the name of the country of origin becomes detached or are removed, and in the final handling before packaging any such labels which have not been detached or removed in the process heretofore described are then removed. Thus, when the reading glasses or sunglasses are delivered to purchasers, they bear no marking indicating that the lenses or glasses were imported from Japan or any other foreign country. Respondent's products, customarily referred to in the trade as "ready-to-wear" glasses, are sold to wholesalers and large retailers such as chain stores. The reading glasses are ordinarily sold at retail to members of the purchasing public at from 25 cents to $1 per pair, and the sunglasses are usually retailed to the public at from 10 to 50 cents per pair.

Respondent testified that he does not make any representations to purchasers with respect to the domestic or foreign origin of his products, but if asked about such origin advises the purchaser or prospective purchaser that some of his lenses and glasses are imported from Japan. Until a few months before the issuance of the complaint in this proceeding respondent sold his sunglasses mounted upon cards bearing the legend "Scientifically made by American workmen." Respondent also testified that although he is able to, and does, purchase Japanese lenses and glasses at a lower price than he can purchase similar products of American manufacture, he would prefer to use American products but is unable to do so because he cannot purchase sufficient quantities thereof from domestic manufacturers.

PAR. 5. A substantial portion of the purchasing public has become familiar with the fact that imported articles customarily bear a mark indicating the country of origin and is accustomed, when purchasing, to look for such marks of foreign origin. When no such marking appears upon an article offered for sale, members of the purchasing public assume that it is produced in whole or in major part by domestic manufacturers. There exists among members of the purchasing public, including purchasers of reading glasses and sunglasses, a substantial preference for products of domestic manufacture or origin as compared with those of Japanese or other foreign origin.

The practice of respondent in offering for sale, selling, and distributing reading glasses and sunglasses having lenses or glasses of Japanese origin, without any labeling or marking thereon to indicate to purchasers that said lenses or glasses are of Japanese origin, has the tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive purchasers and members of the purchasing public into the false and erroneous belief that the said reading glasses and sunglasses and all the parts thereof are of domestic manufacture and origin, and into the purchase thereof in reliance upon such erroneous belief. Respondent thus places in the hands of retailers and resellers of his products a means by which to mislead and deceive members of the purchasing public into the said false and erroneous belief.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent are all to the prejudice of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondent, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto taken before an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, report of the trial examiner, briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto, and oral arguments of counsel, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That respondent Lucian V. Segal, an individual trading as Segal Optical Co., or trading under any other name, his agents, representatives, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale,

2. Representing in any manner that lenses or glasses of foreign manufacture, whether or not they are mounted in frames, are of domestic manufacture.

It is further ordered, That respondent shall, within 60 days after the service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.

OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914*Docket 3557. Complaint, Aug. 26, 1938—Decision, Nov. 28, 1941*

Where a corporation dealing exclusively in medical books at wholesale and retail in Chicago and throughout the United States, together with the four publishers from whom it purchased about 60 percent of such books; having in mind the price cutting or allowance of discounts by one W. & F. Co., a Chicago jobbing concern dealing in books of all types and doing a Nation-wide business;

- (a) Entered into agreements and conspiracies among themselves which were intended to and did prevent said W. & F. Co., competitor of aforesaid distributor, from securing medical books at the regular dealer's discount; and
- (b) Refused, pursuant to such agreements, etc., to sell the medical books of the publishers in question at the regular dealer's discount; with purpose and effect of cutting off the supply of such books to said company, and with result that said company, which had received requisitions from the Government for medical books for more than 30 years, was unable to submit bids in response to such requisitions because of its inability to secure most of the books thus called for at the regular dealer's discount; and

Where aforesaid distributor and two of aforesaid publishers of medical books—

- (c) Entered into separate agreements and conspiracies to prevent, and which did prevent a concern which sold new and slightly used medical books in Chicago and throughout the United States, and which was becoming a strong competitive factor in the new book business, from obtaining the medical books of said publishers at the regular dealer's discount; and
- (d) Refused, pursuant to said agreement, etc., to sell such medical books to such concern at the regular dealer's discount, with intent and effect of cutting off said concern's supply thereof, and with result that it was deprived of a substantial portion of its business of selling to hospitals, medical libraries, and government institutions requiring a 10 percent discount:

Tendency and effect of which acts and practices were to lessen competition in the sale and distribution of medical books, published by said publishers, in Chicago and in interstate commerce; to restrain the normal trade in and place a direct burden upon, such commerce from aforesaid publishers' places of business in other States to said concerns in Illinois; to create a monopoly in aforesaid distributor in sale and distribution of such books in said commerce, to injure said concerns, competitors of aforesaid distributor, and unfairly divert business from them to said distributor:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice of the public, had a dangerous tendency to prevent competition and to create a monopoly in the sale and distribution of medical books in interstate commerce, to unduly restrict and restrain the sale and distribution of such books in said commerce, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Said Chicago Medical Book Co. is engaged in substantial competition with other wholesalers and retailers of such books, in the sale and resale of books published by said publisher respondents and other publishers.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of their respective businesses each of said respondents transports books, or causes the same to be transported, from their respective places of business to their customers, purchasers or consignees in other States of the United States; and there is and has been at all times herein mentioned a current of trade and commerce in such books between the States wherein these several respondents are located and various other States of the United States.

PAR. 4. Wilcox & Follett Co. is an Illinois corporation engaged in the business of selling and dealing in books at wholesale and retail, with principal office and place of business in Chicago, Ill., and stores in other cities. Several years ago said Wilcox & Follett Co. commenced to sell and deal in medical books, and in that field became a competitor of respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. In and prior to the year 1936 said Wilcox & Follett Co. purchased medical books in varying quantities from each of the respondents herein. During said year the respondents herein agreed and conspired together, and each with the others, and each of said respondent publishers separately agreed and conspired with respondent Chicago Medical Book Co., thereafter to refuse to sell to said Wilcox & Follett Co. medical books published, respectively, by said respondent publishers. Respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. notified each of said respondent publishers and other publishers of medical books that it would no longer sell to said Wilcox & Follett Co., and warned said publishers that as a result they might receive orders direct from Wilcox & Follett Co. In furtherance of said conspiracies, all of said respondents thereafter have refused to sell medical books to said Wilcox & Follett Co., and said respondent publishers have in many instances referred Wilcox & Follett Co. orders to Chicago Medical Book Co. The purpose and effect of said agreements and conspiracies was and is to cut off from said Wilcox & Follett Co. its supply of medical books published by said respondent publishers, to injure and prevent competition with respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. and to tend to give a monopoly to said respondent in the sale of medical books in Chicago and surrounding territory.

PAR. 5. Samuel Login and William Login are engaged in the business of selling and dealing in medical books as a partnership under the firm name and style of Login Brothers, with principal place of business in Chicago, Ill., and are competitors in such business with respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. During the year 1937 respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. agreed and conspired with respondent J. B. Lippincott Co., and separately, with respondent C. V. Mosby Co., thereafter to refuse to sell medical books to said Login Brothers. During 1937, previous to such agreements and conspiracies, Login Brothers had purchased medical books from time to time from each of said three named respondents. Thereafter, in furtherance of said conspiracies, said three respondents, respectively, refused to make further sales of medical books to said Login Brothers, and said two named publisher respondents notified Login Brothers that orders received were being referred to respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. The purpose and effect of said agreements and conspiracies was and is to cut off from said Login Brothers their supply of medical books published by said two respondent publishers, to injure and prevent competition with respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. and to tend to give a monopoly to said respondent in the sale of such medical books in Chicago and surrounding territory.

PAR. 6. During and subsequent to the year 1936, respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. has from time to time made false representations and complaints to said respondent publishers and other publishers of medical books regarding certain competitors of said Chicago Medical Book Co. in Chicago and the Middle West, including said Login Brothers and said Wilcox & Follett Co. Thereby, and by virtue of its dominant position in the medical book field in Chicago, said respondent has attempted to persuade and induce, and has persuaded and induced, said respondent publishers and other publishers to refuse to sell medical books to its said competitors or to refuse to sell to said competitors at wholesale or dealers' discount. Said competitors are engaged in the sale and transportation of medical books in interstate commerce. Respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. has by this means attempted to monopolize and has conspired with others to monopolize, commence in the purchase and sale of medical books flowing to and from Chicago, Ill., and vicinity.

PAR. 7. The tendency and effect of the acts and practices above complained of is and has been to hinder and lessen competition in the distribution and sale of medical books in the city of Chicago and throughout the United States; to obstruct, restrain and interfere with the normal and natural flow of trade and commerce in such books; and to injure those competitors of respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. against whom said acts and practices are directed by unfairly diverting business and trade from them and depriving them thereof. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents, and each of them, are all to the prejudice of the public, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on August 26, 1938, issued and thereafter served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondents named in the caption hereof, charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition and unfair acts and practices, in commerce, in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondents' answers thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of the complaint were introduced by Fletcher G. Cohn, attorney for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by Carlton L. Fischer and J. Milton Guy, Jr., of the firm of Campbell, Clithero & Fischer, Carroll Wetzell, Benjamin O. Frick, William Kohn, and Boyd L. Spahr, attorneys for respondents, before W. W. Sheppard, a duly appointed trial examiner of the Commission designated by it to serve in this proceeding; and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission.

Thereafter, the proceedings regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, the answers thereto, the testimony and other evidence, the report of the trial examiner and exceptions to said report, and briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto. And the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Chicago Medical Book Co., is a corporation organized in the year 1897, under the laws of the State of Illinois, with its principal place of business and office in Chicago, Ill.

Respondent, W. B. Saunders Co., is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, with its principal office and place of business in Philadelphia, Pa.

Respondent, J. B. Lippincott Co., is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, with its principal office and place of business in Philadelphia, Pa.

Respondent, C. V. Mosby Co., is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Missouri, with its principal office and place of business in St. Louis, Mo.

Respondents, Van Antwerp Lea and Christian Febiger, are co-partners doing business under the firm name Lea & Febiger, with their principal place of business in Philadelphia, Pa. For brevity they will be hereinafter referred to as Lea & Febiger.

PAR. 2. All of the respondents named in paragraph 1 hereof, except Chicago Medical Book Co., are engaged in the business of publishing, offering for sale, and selling medical and other scientific books. The term "medical books" as herein used, refers to books relating to curative or remedial agents in the treatment of ailments and diseases. There are but few publishers of medical books in the United States other than the respondents herein, who publish the majority of all medical books published in the United States.

PAR. 3. Respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. publishes no medical books, but since 1924 has exclusively been engaged in the business of buying, selling, and dealing in such books, both at wholesale and at retail, in Chicago, Ill., and throughout the United States. It publishes a bulletin listing the various medical books it has for sale, which it distributes throughout the United States. Respondent transports, or causes to be transported, such books, when sold by it, to purchasers thereof located in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Said respondent is probably the oldest and largest dealer in medical books in the United States.

Said respondent purchases or receives on consignment from respondent publishers, medical books published by them and shipped to it from their respective places of business located in States other than the State of Illinois. During the years 1935, 1936, and 1937, said respondent purchased from each of said respondent publishers medical books to an amount in excess of $10,000 annually, its purchases from respondent W. B. Saunders Co. being substantially greater than those from the other respondent publishers. Approximately 60 percent of the books sold by said respondent are published by respondent publishers. Edward T. Speakman is president and Chester D. Speakman is secretary and treasurer of said respondent company. Said respondent operates a retail store in Chicago, under the name "Speakman Book Store," which is the retail outlet of said respondent.

Said respondent is engaged in substantial competition with wholesale and retail dealers in the sale, resale, and distribution in Chicago, Ill., and in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, of medical books published by the respondent medical book publishers and other publishers of such books.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of their respective businesses, each of respondent publishers transports or causes to be transported medical books from their respective places of business to their customers, purchasers or consignees located in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and there is, and has been at all times herein mentioned, a current of trade and commerce in such books between the States wherein the several respondent publishers are located and various States of the United States.

PAR. 5. The respondent publishers, in the course and conduct of their respective businesses, have been and are in competition with each other, and with other corporations, partnerships, and individuals in publishing and distributing medical books in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 6. The J. W. Wilcox & Follett Co., hereinafter referred to as Wilcox & Follett, is a corporation organized in 1872, under the laws of the State of Illinois. Its principal place of business has ever since been, and now is, in Chicago, Ill. It is a jobbing concern and deals in books of all types issued by various publishers, and it does a nation wide business. C. W. Follett is its president. There are several divisions of this company—(1) the Follett Book Co., which handles library books and material; (2) the Follett Publishing Co., which publishes text books, and (3) the Clarkson Publishing Co., which handles direct distribution to consumers. It also has two retail outlets in Chicago, Ill., and one each in Minneapolis, Minn.; Ann Arbor, Mich.; and Champaign, Ill. The two Chicago stores obtain their medical books direct from Wilcox & Follett and others.

Among the books dealt in by said Wilcox & Follett are medical books, which it has handled since about 1926. The total sales of this company, including all its divisions, for the year 1936 amounted to approximately $2,000,000—$500,000 of which was in its jobbing line of business. Its sales of medical books during said year did not exceed $10,000. From 1926 until September 1936 its sales of medical books had gradually increased, but in September 1936 its supply of such books was materially curtailed, in the manner hereinafter set forth.

This company has approximately 20 traveling salesmen who call upon dealers, educational institutions, and libraries, in about 30 States of the United States, and sell its books, including medical books, and when sales are made, the books so sold are transported or caused to be transported by said company to the purchasers thereof located in various States of the United States and the District of Columbia.

PAR. 7. Prior to September 1936, the Wilcox & Follett Co. secured its medical books, in the main, from respondent Chicago Medical Book Co.; it also purchased books direct from the respondent medical book publishers, as hereinafter set forth. When Wilcox & Follett made such purchases directly from respondent medical book publishers, as an incident to such purchase and as a part thereof, said respondent medical book publishers would ship or cause to be shipped such medical books so purchased, from their respective places of business in States of the United States other than the State of Illinois, to the said Wilcox & Follett Co. in the State of Illinois.

Wilcox & Follett is in competition with respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. in selling and attempting to sell to the same types of customers in the medical field, in Chicago, Ill., and throughout the United States:

PAR. 8. In 1935, the Wilcox & Follett Co. purchased for its wholesale branch and its two retail stores in Chicago, medical books from Chicago Medical Book Co. in the net amount of $2,586.89. Of this sum $850.22 was for medical books published by respondent publishers in the following amounts: W. B. Saunders Co., $624.36; C. V. Mosby Co., $43.79; J. B. Lippincott Co., $19.98; Lea & Febiger, $162.09.

In 1936, up to September of that year, Wilcox & Follett Co. purchased from respondent Chicago Medical Book Co., medical books of the net value of $1,630.69, of which a total of $891.59 was for books published by respondent medical book publishers in the amounts stated, respectively:

Respondent W. B. Saunders Co.....	$758. 48
Respondent C. V. Mosby Co.....	48. 46
Respondent J. B. Lippincott Co.....	17. 57
Respondents Lea & Febiger.....	67. 08

Thereafter, respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. refused to sell Wilcox & Follett Co. at the regular dealer's discount.

All figures herein representing purchases by Wilcox & Follett Co. and by Login Brothers, unless otherwise indicated are net amounts after discounts have been deducted.

PAR. 9. During the convention of the American National Medical Association held at Kansas City, Mo., in May, 1936, J. LeRoy Smith, a representative of respondent W. B. Saunders Co., met in his hotel room with Edward T. Speakman, president of the respondent Chicago Medical Book Co., John Mosby, of respondent C. V. Mosby Co., and W. D. Wilcox and Harold J. Cowell, representing respondents Lea & Febiger, and three dealers in medical books from New York, Dallas, and New Orleans, respectively. At this meeting the Wilcox & Follett Co. was discussed at length. John Mosby told of his experience with the company in buying a book at a discount and stated that C. V. Mosby Co. was not going to sell it any more books. LeRoy Smith told the meeting that his company was going to allow Chicago Medical Book Co. to handle, as it saw fit, the business of W. B. Saunders Co. with the Wilcox & Follett Co. Edward T. Speakman promised to look into the situation when he returned to Chicago.

PAR. 10. On July 3, 1936, respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. wrote a letter signed by E. T. Speakman and addressed to Charles C. Thomas, a medical book publisher, in which it is stated:

We hope you will pardon our tardy reply to your letter of June 25 regarding the Wilcox & Follett Co. of Chicago. ***

The medical book business for the last 20 or 25 years has been exceptionally clean, with reference to maintenance of publishers' list prices, but about 2 years ago they decided that they would invade the medical book field and extend this pernicious influence. Right away we began to hear of medical books being offered at cut prices, and as distributors for all of the publishers and representing their interests, we called up the Sr. Mr. Follett on the telephone, whom the writer has known for some 30 or 40 years. The promise was made that there would be no cutting of prices of medical books, but from time to time we hear about certain books being sold at a discount, some of it probably fiction, but nevertheless, these reports continue from time to time. Just last fall we had an epidemic of price-cutting on an $8.50 publication of the C. V. Mosby Company of St. Louis, and it became so serious that Mr. John Mosby came up here to Chicago and not being known to them went into their place and ordered a copy of this book, which they said they would get for him, and actually gave him a receipt for a copy less 10 percent.

There is a book room in each of the medical schools in this city and the only reason that a student would go 3 or 4 miles for a book is to get a lower price. The publishers have determined to nip this thing in the bud, as this firm was the subject of considerable conversation at a meeting in Kansas City in May, which the writer attended. These people do not carry or have invested any money in a medical book store, nor could they be classed in any way as medical booksellers. Any firm whose business is predicated on the selling of books at a lower price than his competitor, has no place in the business world, much less in the medical book field. McKenna, Majors and ourselves, including other medical book dealers, are subject to the restrictions made by the medical publishers, relating to the maintenance of list prices, discounts to libraries, State institutions and those legitimately entitled to a discount, while these unregulated dealers, a majority of them, do not carry a penny's worth of stock, are hard to regulate, and there are sufficient outlets now, here and elsewhere, to take care of this business.

To make matters worse, they have recently entered into the Government bidding. Mind you, without carrying stock or even being listed as "regular dealers," State institutions and medical libraries. The only possible way they could get any business from these sources would be by offering a better price, and you know what this means--demoralization and the flight of the profits, as small as they are.

An attempt was made by these people to start a store in Evanston, Ann Arbor, Madison, and Minneapolis. We learned that the dealers in Evanston are so wrought up that they practically ran them out of town and we think that the one in Ann Arbor was finally given up. We are surprised to learn from your letter that they have a Wisconsin office (Madison?). The one in Minneapolis is run under the name of The Minnesota Book Co. and we do not know how active they are. Of course it might be possible that they could buy through these different branches and this brings up quite a complication in the matter because there are some high school and collegiate books published by medical publishers which they are probably entitled to buy. This has been the case with us, as they buy certain physical education and elementary textbooks from us published by Saunders, Blackiston, and other medical publishers.

We really do believe that they should be shut out, and shut out properly, from the medical book business, for even if they charge full price on medical books--yours for instance--they allow a cash discount which none of the medical book sellers allow, and this in itself is quoting a lower price than the regular medical book distributors quote. In other words, if we quote net on your books, as we have been doing, and they come along and quote 2 percent off for cash, the orders ordinarily will go to them, while we, who are legitimately entitled to that business, have exceptionally large investments in stock, get nothing. Most of the publishers will back this situation up, but there are a few of them who will sell anybody, and no doubt the books that cannot be purchased at a discount can be obtained through other sources. The situation is a serious one and the writer has given it considerable thought, with a view to a way out.

. Findings

Any suggestions you may have regarding this would be very much appreciated, as we would like to get something settled before the next school term. * * *

This firm has such a wide spread and national field that we have practically everything to lose and nothing to gain through agreements as to territories and discounts. With this in view, there is a constant pressure being applied to shut us out here and there, and consequently this is not looked upon with favor by the writer. We occupy rather a peculiar position in view of the fact that we have such a widespread business and efforts are being constantly made to chisel in by various means.

On July 9, 1936, said Charles C. Thomas replied to this letter as follows:

Thank you very much for your letter of the 3d of July about Follett. Fortunately his very, very small purchases from us have been for biological books, and we have no record of supplying him with medical items. Our prospective difficulties with him have been avoided by our reading of your letter. Our actual difficulties will be avoided by an intention not to sell the Follett Chicago organization our titles. We have done a small business with—I should have correctly stated—their Minnesota Book Co. Our opinion is that the closer the medical publishers and medical booksellers cooperate in such matters, the better off we shall all be. Any orders for medical titles from Follett will be refused by us, but we shall refer them to you. Certainly we expect no one and would not knowingly permit any one to quote our books at our regular discount and, in addition, allow 2 percent for cash. Let's keep the business where it legitimately belongs.

Respondent Chicago Medical Book Co., on February 6, 1936, wrote respondent C. V. Mosby Co. as follows:

Just as your telegram came in we were about to wire you about the same situation here in Chicago about MacLeod's "Physiology." We have had three or four reports that somebody is selling this for $7.50, as mentioned in the telegram—could it be your Chicago salesman? You will remember last fall we had the same situation, and at that time somebody was cutting prices on your books and your salesman's name was mentioned. We are wondering if he is trying to dabble in the student business. Perhaps you can tell from your records to whom you have been sending any copies of MacLeod's "Physiology."

We hope you are not selling any books to the Wilcox & Follett Co., as they are notorious price-cutters, advertising that they cut the price of every book and have gotten the medical students running down to their place on the South side to get these cut prices. If they ever get into the medical book business, you will see the most demoralized condition that has ever been seen in the medical book business. They have practically ruined the high school and grammar school business in this city for all the other dealers.

This letter is signed, "Chicago Medical Book Co., E. T. Speakman," and the following is added in script:

P. S.—Has Powell of the Professional Book Co. bought any. He's a price cutter!

On September 19, 1936, respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. wrote the following letter to the respondent publishers and four other medical book publishers:

You may receive orders in the future from Wilcox & Follett Co., 1255 South Wabash, Chicago, by reason of the fact that we have decided not to do any business with them and have notified them that we will not supply them with any further merchandise.

The reason for this decision is that their continued wholesale price cutting, in repeated violation of their promises, to the contrary, has tended to result in the demoralization of retail business in Chicago, and, perhaps, in the entire Middle West.

We are writing you thus so that you will understand any application for books direct to you from Wilcox & Follett Co.

PAR. 11. Between May and August of 1936, respondent Edward T. Speakman, of respondent Chicago Medical Book Co., told C. W. Follett, president of Wilcox & Follett Co., that the medical book publishers and himself had had a meeting and had agreed not to sell his company any more medical books, and that his company could no longer obtain medical books from respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. A few days after this conversation, said Speakman conferred with Follett, and at this and other conferences which took place in the fall of 1936, Speakman stated that if respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. did not want Wilcox & Follett Co. to have medical books they could not obtain them.

The last sale at a discount which respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. made to Wilcox & Follett Co. was on September 18, 1936. On September 19, 1936, respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. wrote the attorney of J. W. Wilcox & Follett Co., returning several orders from that company and stating that respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. would not accept any orders from Wilcox & Follett Co. in the future, and would likewise return any orders from said company forwarded to it by respondent W. B. Saunders Co. and other publishers.

Wilcox & Follett Co. have attempted on several occasions since September, 1936, to purchase medical books from respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. at the usual discounts allowed dealers in such books, and have been unable to do so, and can only purchase same by paying respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. the full retail price of such books.

PAR. 12. In 1935, and through June 1936, Wilcox & Follett bought medical books directly from respondent W. B. Saunders Co. at the regular dealer's discount. The last direct purchase so made was in June, 1936. The first refusal by respondent W. B. Saunders Co. to sell directly to Wilcox & Follett Co. was on August 10, 1936, when it referred a number of said company's orders to respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. and wrote Wilcox & Follett Co. that the interests of W. B. Saunders Co. in Chicago were looked after by Chicago Medical Book Co.

On August 18, 1936, Wilcox & Follett Co. wired respondent W. B. Saunders Co. as follows:

On orders you returned to us to be sent to South Bend, Ind., Turlock, Calif., Syracuse, N. Y. and one book to us, you referred us to the Chicago Medical Book Co. They refused to ship these items. Must we abide by their decisions? I would like to notify our customers that we are unable to supply. Would you kindly wire me, so that I can telegraph our customers to secure their books elsewhere. Thanks for your courtesy. Wire, our expense.

To this wire, on the same date, respondent W. B. Saunders Co. wired Wilcox & Follett Co.:

Must abide by decision Chicago distributors.

On September 12, 1936, respondent W. B. Saunders Co. referred another order from Wilcox & Follett Co. to respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. On September 14, 1936, Wilcox & Follett Co. wrote Lawrence Saunders of respondent W. B. Saunders Co., enclosing copy of an earlier letter in which Wilcox & Follett Co. had complained that all the orders which respondent W. B. Saunders Co. had referred to respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. had been ignored by said company.

On February 13, 1937, respondent W. B. Saunders Co. wired Wilcox & Follett Co. that all of its orders were referred to Chicago Medical Book Co. On February 3, 1938, respondent W. B. Saunders Co. refused to sell the Michigan Book Store, which is owned by Wilcox & Follett Co., and which fact was indicated on the order.

The orders from Wilcox & Follett Co. which respondent W. B. Saunders Co., on August 10, 1936, referred to respondent Chicago Medical Book Co., were for the same type of books as those which respondent W. B. Saunders Co. had previously sold directly to Wilcox & Follett Co. at the usual discounts allowed by said respondent to dealers. On August 10, 1936, respondent W. B. Saunders Co. decided for the first time that its oral contract with respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. required it to refer to said Chicago Medical Book Co. all orders from Chicago, regardless of the type of books ordered or where they were to be shipped.

PAR. 13. In 1935 and 1936, respondent J. B. Lippincott Co. sold medical books directly to Wilcox & Follett Co. at the discount usually allowed dealers in such books. On September 26, 1936, Wilcox & Follett Co. wired said respondent to ship 10 medical books. On September 29, 1936, which was 10 days after respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. had written said respondent that it would no longer sell Wilcox & Follett, respondent J. B. Lippincott Co. wrote Wilcox & Follett Co. acknowledging its wire of September 26, 1936, and referring the order to respondent Chicago Medical Book Co., stating that said company had the agency for their nursing books in Chicago.

On October 7, 1936, respondent J. B. Lippincott Co. referred another order of Wilcox & Follett Co. to respondent Chicago Medical Book Co., stating to Wilcox & Follett Co.:

We respectfully return herewith your order of October 2 for one Barboka, with the information that this book is carried in Chicago by the Chicago Medical Book Co., which has our exclusive agency, and to whom we must refer you.

Respondent Chicago Medical Book Co., acting in accordance with its letter of September 17, 1936, to respondent J. B. Lippincott Co., refused to fill the orders from Wilcox & Follett Co. which had been referred to it by respondent J. B. Lippincott Co.

Respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. was not the exclusive agent of respondent J. B. Lippincott Co. in Chicago.

Some time between October 7, 1936, and January, 1937, C. W. Follett, of Wilcox & Follett Co., contacted J. B. Lippincott, president of respondent J. B. Lippincott Co., who invited this company to buy all the medical books it could possibly use from his company, and since January, 1937, respondent J. B. Lippincott Co. has regularly sold books directly to Wilcox & Follett Co.

PAR. 14. Respondent, C. V. Mosby Co., from October 8, 1934, to September 11, 1936, sold directly, at the regular dealer's discount, to Wilcox & Follett Co., $113.59 worth of medical books. The last direct sale made was on September 11, 1936. There was a sale of $1.95 made by said respondent to Clarkson Publishing Co., a subsidiary of Wilcox & Follett Co., for a book to be shipped to Texas on July 25, 1938, which sale was the result of an agreement between an employee of Wilcox & Follett Co. and respondent C. V. Mosby Co., to the effect that this book would not be shipped to Wilcox & Follett Co. in Chicago.

On September 22, 1936, respondent C. V. Mosby Co. wrote respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. as follows:

Relative to your letter of September 19, we wish to advise you that any order we might receive from Wilcox & Follett will be referred to you.

I realize only too well that this firm has been unscrupulous in the merchandising of books. As nearly as I can determine, they have paid absolutely no attention to the publisher's wishes. We would much rather have them buy our books through you, and in this way you will be in a better position to control the price situation in the vicinity of Chicago.

Once again let me assure you of our cooperation in this matter.

Respondent, C. V. Mosby Co.'s first refusal to fill an order from Wilcox & Follett Co. was an order of September 24, 1936, 5 days after respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. had written respondent C. V. Mosby Co. its letter of September 19, 1936, set forth in paragraph 10 hereof. Thereafter, respondent C. V. Mosby Co. rejected orders from Wilcox & Follett Co. on September 29, October 1, 2, 6, 7, and November 19, 1936, and on January 1, 1937; and respondent C. V. Mosby Co. still refuses to sell Wilcox & Follett Co.

PAR. 15. From May 6, 1935, to August 1, 1936, respondents Lea & Febiger sold medical books amounting to approximately $175, directly to Wilcox & Follett Co. at a discount of 20 percent. On September 11, 1936, these respondents changed their discount from 20 percent to 10 percent. On November 7, 1936, Wilcox & Follett Co. sent said respondents a copy of a letter it had written to another publisher, explaining that it was not cutting prices, and that respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. was making this charge from an ulterior motive. To this letter respondents Lea and Febiger replied on November 9, as follows:

Replying to your letter of November 7, we will allow you a 10 percent discount f. o. b. Philadelphia, on any publication you may order.

On January 25, 1937, respondents Lea & Febiger gave their last discount of 10 percent on orders from Wilcox & Follett Co., and on February 1, 1937, they returned orders from this company and referred them to Chicago Medical Book Co. and to A. C. McClurg & Co., of Chicago. After February 1, 1937, respondents Lea & Febiger never accepted any orders from Wilcox & Follett Co., nor did they refer them to any other dealer. Such failure to fill orders or to refer them to a dealer, was, in fact, pursuant to the understanding reached at the meeting in Kansas City referred to in paragraph 9 hereof, and the understanding and arrangement entered into between respondents Lea and Febiger and respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. pursuant to the letters set out in paragraph 10 hereof.

PAR. 16. Wilcox & Follett Co., as a competitor of respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. in the sale of medical books both at wholesale and at retail, must purchase books from the publishers thereof, or from respondent Chicago Medical Book Co., in order to obtain the regular dealer's discount; and as a direct consequence of and pursuant to the agreement, understanding, combination and conspiracy existing, as hereinafter stated, between respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. and the respondent medical publishers, Wilcox & Follett Co. has been unable to compete with respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. in the sale of such books published by respondent medical book publishers, due to its inability to purchase such books at a discount.

PAR. 17. Wilcox & Follett Co. has solicited Government bids for books for more than 30 years and has received requisitions from the Government for medical books since respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. and the respondent publishers, pursuant to the understandings, agreements, combinations and conspiracies between and among them, as hereinafter stated, have refused to supply to Wilcox & Follett Co., at the regular dealer's discount, medical books published by respondent medical book publishers. Said company has, however, been unable to submit bids on such requisitions because of its inability to secure most of the medical books so requisitioned at the regular dealer's discount.

PAR. 18. Samuel Login is the sole owner of the business known as Login Bros., which is located in the medical center of Chicago, Ill., about a block from Speakman's book store, the retail outlet of respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. The Login concern has been in business for over 27 years and handles medical books only, and surgical instruments. It sells new and slightly used medical books in Chicago, and in commerce among and between the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. It sells such books to doctors and students throughout the United States, receiving at least 10 mail orders for from 10 to 20 books each, per day, the number of orders increasing in each September to about 25 per day. The books sold in filling these orders are shipped by mail and express from the place of business of Login Bros. in Chicago, Ill., to the purchasers of said books located in the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Most of Login Bros.' business is retail, but they do some wholesale business. Their retail business primarily consists in selling to students attending medical schools. In money volume their business is about equally divided between the sale of new and second-hand books. They formerly purchased medical books directly from respondents J. B. Lippincott Co. and C. V. Mosby Co., which books were shipped to them in Illinois from other States of the United States where the places of business of these publishers were located.

PAR. 19. From June 1933 to January 1, 1938, Login Bros., purchased at the regular dealer's discount a total of $10,620.98 worth of medical books from respondent Chicago Medical Book Co., of which approximately $38,600 represented books published by respondent W. B. Saunders Co., the balance being for books published by other publishers in the United States and England.

In the summer of 1937, Edward T. Speakman, president of respondent Chicago Medical Book Co., told Samuel Login that Login Bros. were selling too many books; that he could sell them himself and did not need anybody to do that for him. He was objecting to the competition of Login Bros. Respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. made its last sale to Login Bros. on December 26, 1937.

Chester Speakman, secretary-treasurer of respondent Chicago Medical Book Co., some time in December, 1937, after the 25th, told William Login, when asked why respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. had cut off Login Bros.' supplies, "Well, I don't like the looks of your hair. That's as good an excuse as any." He then informed said Login that the reason was that Login Bros. were doing too much business in new books, and he would see to it that Login Bros. did not get the books. On June 1, 1938, Chester Speakman told William Login that respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. would not supply Login Bros. with books. Login Bros. have tried to secure books from respondent, Chicago Medical Book Co., but since December 1937, have been unable to do so.

PAR. 20. From July 1937, to October, 1937, Login Bros. purchased directly, at the regular dealer's discount, from respondent J. B. Lippincott Co., a total of $440.40 worth of medical books. The last sale made by said respondent to Login Bros. was on October 1, 1937. On January 3, 1938, respondent J. B. Lippincott Company wrote Login Bros. that it was referring their orders to respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. Respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. did not fill these orders.

The methods used by respondent in preventing Login Bros. from securing their supplies were essentially the same as in the case of Wilcox & Follett Co.

PAR. 21. From 1934 to September 1937, Login Bros. purchased directly from respondent C. V. Mosby Co. at the regular dealer's discount, medical books of the total amount of $7,159.87. The last direct sale by said respondent to Login Bros. was on September 3, 1937. Between September and December, 1937, Dr. C. V. Mosby, chairman of the board of directors of respondent C. V. Mosby Co., requested a conference with William Login of Login Bros., at the Drake Hotel, in Chicago, Ill. At this conference William Login asked why respondent C. V. Mosby Co. had refused to sell Login Bros. books and Dr. Mosby told Login that he had discussed the matter with Chester Speakman, secretary-treasurer of respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. for half a day, and that said Speakman had promised to push respondent C. V. Mosby Co.'s books and also to supply Login Bros. with books. However, respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. refused to furnish Login Bros. with any books.

Early in 1938, William Login called upon John Mosby, vice president of respondent C. V. Mosby Co., in an effort to secure books from this company and was referred to respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. After being told by Login that they would be unable to secure books from this source, Mosby discussed the matter with Chester Speakman, of respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. by long distance telephone, but Login Bros. have never since been able to obtain books from either of these respondents.

PAR. 22. A substantial portion of the business of Login Bros., has been the sale of medical books to hospitals, medical libraries and State and Government institutions, all of which require a 10 percent discount, and due to the acts and practices hereinbefore set forth of respondents Chicago Medical Book Co., C. V. Mosby & Co. and J. B. Lippincott Co., Login Bros. have been compelled to pay the full list prices for such books, and as a result, have been deprived of the business of such institutions.

PAR. 23. During the year 1936, respondent medical book publishers entered into, and thereafter carried out, agreements, understandings, arrangements, combinations, and conspiracies between and among themselves and with respondent Chicago Medical Book Co., to prevent, and which did prevent, the securing at the regular dealer's discount of medical books by Wilcox & Follett Co., a competitor of respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. in the sale and distribution of medical books in Chicago, Ill., and in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia; and pursuant to said agreements, understandings, arrangements, combinations and conspiracies, all of respondent medical book publishers and respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. have refused to sell, at the regular dealer's discount, medical books of said respondent publishers to Wilcox & Follett Co., with the common and concerted purpose and effect of cutting off the supply of such books to said company.

PAR. 24. The tendency of the acts and practices of the respondents and the effect of same, as hereinbefore set forth are, and have been to lessen competition in the sale and distribution of medical books in the city of Chicago, Ill., and in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia; to obstruct, restrain and interfere with the normal and natural flow of trade in commerce, of medical books between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia; to place a direct burden upon the normal and natural flow of trade in commerce of such books published by respondent medical publishers which are transported from the respective places of business of respondent publishers located in States of the United States other than the State of Illinois, to Wilcox & Follett Co., in the State of Illinois; to create a monopoly in respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. in the sale and distribution of such books in commerce; to injure Wilcox & Follett Co., a competitor of respondent Chicago Medical Book Co., in the sale and distribution of such books in said commerce, and to unfairly divert business and trade from said Wilcox & Follett Co. to respondent Chicago Medical Book Co.

PAR. 25. During the year 1937, respondent, J. B. Lippincott Co. and respondent C. V. Mosby Co., each entered into separate agreements, understandings, arrangements, combinations, and conspiracies with respondent Chicago Medical Book Co., to prevent, and which resulted in the prevention of the obtaining of medical books published by respondents J. B. Lippincott Co. and C. V. Mosby Co., at the regular dealer's discount, by Login Brothers, a competitor of respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. in the sale and distribution of such books in Chicago, Ill. and in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 26. Pursuant to the said agreements, understandings, arrangements, combinations and conspiracies, and in furtherance thereof, the respondents refusal to sell Logan Bros. at the regular dealer's discount medical books published by respondents J. B. Lippincott Co. and C. V. Mosby Co., with the purpose, intent and effect of cutting off Login Bros.' supply of such books.

PAR. 27. The tendency and effect of the acts and practices of respondents Chicago Medical Book Co., J. B. Lippincott Co. and C. V. Mosby Co., as herein set out, are and have been to lessen competition in the sale and distribution of medical books published by said respondent publishers in the city of Chicago, Ill., and in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia; to obstruct, restrain and interfere with the normal trade in commerce of medical books between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia; to place a direct burden upon such commerce in medical books published by said J. B. Lippincott Co. and C. V. Mosby Co. which are transported from the respective places of business of said respondent publishers located in States of the United States other than the State of Illinois to Login Bros. in the State of Illinois; to create a monopoly in respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. in the sale and distribution of such books in said commerce; to injure Login Bros., a competitor of respondent Chicago Medical Book Co. in the sale and distribution in said commerce of such books; and to unfairly divert business and trade from said Login Bros. to respondent Chicago Medical Book Co.

CONCLUSION

The acts and practices of the respondents as herein found are all to the prejudice of the public, have a dangerous tendency to unduly hinder and prevent competition, and to create a monopoly in the sale and distribution of medical books in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act; to unduly restrict and restrain the sale and distribution of medical books in said commerce; and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

barbers' supplies, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER .

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on February 28 A. D. 1941, issued and thereafter served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondents named in the caption hereof, charging them with unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondents' answers thereto, testimony and other evidence were introduced in support of the complaint by the attorneys for the Commission, and in opposition thereto by the attorneys for respondents, before a duly appointed trial examiner of the Commission designated by it to serve in this proceeding, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceedings regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the complaint, the answer thereto, the testimony and other evidence, report of the trial examiner thereon, briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto, and oral argument. And the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. AR. Winarick, Inc., is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of New York. Its principal place of business is located at 805 East One Hundred and Fortieth Street, in the city and State of New York.

Respondent Joseph A. Gallagher is vice president and general sales manager of respondent AR. Winarick, Inc., and controls the selling and sales policy of said corporation. His office is with the corporation.

Respondent Union Beauty & Barber Supply, Inc., is a corporation organized under the laws of the District of Columbia. Its principal place of business is located at 516 Twelfth Street, in the city of Washington, D. C.

Respondents George Miller, E. D. Chapman, Frank Waters, and Gladys Welch are, respectively the president, a vice president, a vice president, and secretary and treasurer of respondent Union Barber & Supply Inc., and have been such officers for the last several years, and as such officers they have formulated and directed the policies of said corporation. All their offices are with said corporation.

Respondents Louis Saul and Anthony Nicastrì are copartners trading as A. B. C. Barber & Beauty Supply Co. Their principal place of business is located at 1414 Fourteenth Street NW., in the city of Washington, D. C.

Vasili Thalìs is an individual trading as American Beauty & Barber Supply Co. His principal place of business is located at 733 Seventh Street, NW., in the city of Washington, D. C.

PAR. 2. Respondent AR. Winarick, Inc., is now, and for several years last past has been, engaged in the manufacture, sale, and distribution of beauty and barber supplies, and has caused said products, when sold, to be shipped from its principal place of business to purchasers thereof located in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondent Union Beauty & Barber Supply, Inc., Louis Saul and Anthony Nicastrì, and Vasili Thalìs, are jobbers engaged in the business of selling and distributing beauty and barber supplies, and for the last several years have been and are now engaged in shipping said merchandise, when sold, to purchasers thereof located in the District of Columbia and nearby points in Maryland and Virginia.

The respondent jobbers are in competition with others similarly engaged in the sale of beauty and barber supplies in the territory in which said respondents sell their merchandise.

PAR. 3. The total business done by jobbers of beauty and barber supplies located in the District of Columbia, for several years last past has been approximately $420,000 a year, and more than $400,000 of this amount has been done by the respondent jobbers. Respondent Union Beauty & Barber Supply, Inc., has exclusive contracts covering the sale of 80 percent of the items sold in the beauty and barber supply lines in said territory.

Respondent jobbers constitute a group in the beauty and barber supply jobbing business within the District of Columbia and nearby areas in Maryland and Virginia, so large and influential as to be able to control and influence the flow of trade and commerce in such beauty and barber supplies within, to and from said areas. Said respondents were, and, but for their unlawful acts and practices hereinafter set forth, would now be, in free and active competition with one another.

PAR. 4. In 1918 there were but one or two beauty and barber supply jobbers doing business in the District of Columbia, but by 1938 the number had increased to eight. The respondents were complaining, in 1938, about the chaotic condition of the industry, due to some jobbers selling at less than the manufacturers' list prices and giving discounts of more than 20 percent.

Respondent Joseph A. Gallagher, acting on behalf of himself and of respondent AR. Winarick, Inc., sent invitations to all the jobbers in the District of Columbia to attend a dinner to be given by him at the Harrington Hotel, on February 13, 1939. Representatives of respondent Union Beauty & Barber Supply, Inc., and all respondents except E. D. Chapman and Gladys Welch were present at the dinner. There were also several other jobbers present.

Gallagher testified that the dinner was not given for the purpose of fixing prices, but was one of a series of dinners given by his company throughout the United States in order to advance its sales and to promote good will in the trade. He denies having discussed prices at the dinner, and states that, to the contrary, he warned those present that an attempt to fix prices would be a violation of law. He is corroborated in this by three other respondents.

There is testimony to the effect that respondents discussed the chaotic conditions of the industry, due to price-cutting, and complained about the "chislers" present at the dinner, who were engaged in the practice; that Gallagher urged that the jobbers sell at one price, that no discounts be given in excess of 10 percent, and that gradually all discounts be eliminated; but warned them not to allow their salesmen to inform barbers concerning these matters, and added, "If Uncle Sam would find out, God help all of us."

After these discussions, all the jobbers agreed to sell their products at the suggested list prices of the manufacturers; that for the present they would not allow discounts in excess of 10 percent, and that ultimately they would refuse to allow any discount. Respondent Chapman was designated as the one to prepare and circulate the price list agreed upon.

There appears in the evidence a price list which Louis Sciscent, a jobber, testified was delivered at his place of business by respondent Chapman about a week after the dinner. Chapman admits that this list was prepared by his company for use by his salesmen, but denied having given same to Sciscent. Since the dinner all the jobber respondents have carried out the understanding and agreement concerning prices entered into during the dinner, and have sold their products at the prices suggested in the manufacturers' price lists, and have not given discounts in excess of 10 percent.

PAR. 5. Sciscent, who was primarily responsible for the price-cutting complained about by the respondents, was present at the dinner and agreed to discontinue the practice, but failed to keep his agreement. He was later visited by respondents Chapman and Saul, who inquired why he was cutting prices on Noxzema, and upon being told that he was satisfied with quick sales and quick profits, they threatened to see that he would not be able to buy any merchandise unless he stopped the practice.

Subsequent to the dinner, representatives of four or more manufacturers visited Sciscent and complained of his continuing to cut prices, warning him that unless he discontinued this practice they would refuse to sell him. Sciscent later received letters from two of these manufacturers, advising him that because of a change in their distribution policies they would be unable to fill his orders.

Respondent Saul admits writing the manufacturer of Noxzema complaining about Sciscent cutting prices and indicating his intention to discontinue the sale of their product if this practice was continued.

Respondent Thalís telephoned the manufacturer of Noxzema complaining about Sciscent cutting prices, and October 27, 1939, this manufacturer wrote Thalís to the effect that it had taken the matter up with the Sciscent organization and hoped that its efforts would be successful; that they would do all in their power to protect Thalís' interests.

Respondent Miller admits that he has written manufacturers requesting them to discontinue selling to price-cutters.

PAR. 6. The Commission finds that the hereinbefore described meeting held on February 13, 1939, was called by respondent AR. Winarick, Inc. and Joseph A. Gallagher, for the purpose of preventing price-cutting by the beauty and barber supply jobbers in the District of Columbia, and the giving of discounts in excess of 10 percent, and that all the respondent jobbers present at the meeting, acting upon the suggestion of respondent Gallagher, agreed to sell their merchandise at the prices suggested by the manufacturers' price lists, and further agreed not to give discounts in excess of 10 percent; and that said respondents, acting in accord one with another, have since said meeting carried out said agreement and have at all times sold their merchandise at the prices suggested by the manufacturers and have at all times refused to give discounts exceeding 10 percent; that said respondents, in order to effectuate the said agreement and understanding, have attempted to coerce their competitor Sciscent to refrain from cutting the price of his merchandise and to prevent him from giving discounts in excess of 10 percent; and that said respondents have threatened Sciscent that, if he continued to cut prices and to allow discounts in excess of 10 percent, they would prevent him from securing any merchandise. That in order to carry out their threats in this regard, they have sought to coerce manufacturers into refusing to sell said competitor, and, as a result of said coercion, a number of manufacturers have refused to sell him their products.

PAR. 7. As a result of the agreements, understanding, combinations, and conspiracies, and the acts performed thereunder and pursuant thereto, set forth in the foregoing paragraphs, the operators of beauty parlors and barber shops, and other purchasers of beauty and barber supplies in the District of Columbia and nearby points in Maryland and Virginia have been deprived of the benefits of the normal competition which theretofore existed in their purchase of said products from respondent jobbers; and the purchasing and consuming public have been deprived of the benefits which would flow from normal competition in the sale of said products at retail by the beauty operators and barber shops and other retailers in said area.

PAR. 8. The agreements, understandings, combinations, and conspiracies, and the acts and things done thereunder and pursuant thereto, in furtherance thereof, as hereinbefore set forth, have had, and now have, the capacity, tendency, and effect of unlawfully restricting, hindering, lessening, and restraining the trade in beauty and barber supplies in the District of Columbia and nearby States, and of creating a monopoly in the respondent jobbers in the sale and distribution of said merchandise in said area, and have the capacity and tendency to substantially enhance the prices of such products to the beauty parlors and barber shops and through them, to the consuming public in said area, and of maintaining the prices of said products at artificial levels and otherwise depriving said beauty parlors, barbers, and through them the consuming public in said area, of the benefit of normal competition between and among the said respondent jobbers, and with jobbers, in such products.

CONCLUSION

The foregoing acts and practices of the respondents are all to the prejudice of the public and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

IN THE MATTER OF

WHITEWATER BREWING COMPANY, AND ALEX WEINGART, INDIVIDUALLY AND AS MANAGER THEREOF

Docket 4188. Complaint, July 13, 1940—Decision, Dec. 3, 1941

Where a corporation with principal place of business in Whitewater, Wis., and the manager of its Chicago warehouse and branch office, who directed and controlled its acts, policies and practices; engaged in the brewing and competitive interstate sales and distribution of its "Cream Top" beer and also in bottling, labelling and selling half gallon bottles of its "Badger" beer, brewed by a Chicago concern which delivered it in barrels to said corporation at its Chicago branch, and itself bottled and labelled all other cans and bottles of such "Badger" beer—

Made use of depiction of a badger holding a plaque on which appeared an outline of the State of Wisconsin and the word "Wisconsin" and in large type the words "Badger Beer" and "The Pride of Wisconsin", on placards distributed by them for use in the sale of their "Badger" beer, and employed similar depictions on labels on bottles and containers, and on which also appeared name and Wisconsin address of said corporation but not the words "The Pride of Wisconsin"; and subsequently made use on placards, window streamers, cards and labels of depictions of a badger, words "Badger Beer" in large type, and corporate name and Wisconsin address, along with, in the most recent labels, in much smaller and less conspicuous type, "Bottled by Chicago Branch", etc., and in very small type, the words "Brewed by Manhattan Brewing Co., Chicago, Ill."; and upon letterheads employed by it for a time displayed aforesaid depiction of the badger together with its name and Wisconsin address, while failing, in invoices of "Badger beer, containing its said name and address, to make any reference to such Chicago brewing company or the fact that said beer was not brewed by them;

When in fact, as above indicated, the beer in question was not brewed in the State of Wisconsin, law of which imposes certain requirements with respect to brewing not found in other States and beer of which State is markedly preferred by a substantial portion of the purchasing public as superior, in their belief, to beer brewed elsewhere;

With effect of causing a substantial portion of the purchasing public to believe that such beer was brewed in Wisconsin, with result that substantial quantities thereof were purchased by it and trade was unfairly diverted to them from competitors who do not misrepresent the place of origin of their product; to the substantial injury of competition in commerce:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

Before Mr. Charles A. Vilas, trial examiner.
Mr. DeWitt T. Puckett for the Commission.

Complaint

Mr. Herbert J. Patrick of McHale, Arthur & Myers, of Indianapolis, Ind., for respondents.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Whitewater Brewing Co., a corporation, and Alex Weingart, individually and as manager of Whitewater Brewing Co., hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Whitewater Brewing Co., a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Wisconsin, is now and for more than 3 years last past has been engaged in the brewing and in the sale and distribution of beer, with its brewery and principal office located at 200 North Jefferson Street, Whitewater, Wis. Respondent also maintains a warehouse and branch office at 2150 South Western Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Respondent, Alex Weingart, an individual, likewise is now and for more than 3 years last past has been engaged in the sale and distribution of beer, with his principal office and place of business located at 2150 South Western Avenue, Chicago, Ill. Said respondent is associated with the respondent Whitewater Brewing Company in the sale and distribution of beer, and is manager of the Chicago office and warehouse of said Whitewater Brewing Co. The said Alex Weingart directs, controls, and dominates the acts, policies, and practices of the corporate respondent with respect to that phase of the business of the corporate respondent herein referred to.

The respondents have acted in conjunction and cooperation with each other in carrying out the practices and methods hereinafter set forth.

In the course and conduct of their business as aforesaid respondents cause and for more than 3 years last past have caused their said product, when sold, to be transported from their respective places of business in the States of Wisconsin and Illinois to the purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondents maintain and at all times mentioned herein have maintained a course of trade in their said product in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. The respondents are now and at all times mentioned herein have been in substantial competition with other corporations and individuals and with firms and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of beer in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. Among the various brands of beer sold and distributed by the respondents as aforesaid, is a brand known as the "Badger" brand. The respondents cause and have caused to be attached to the containers in which said beer is displayed and sold to the public labels bearing the picture of a badger and the legend: "Badger Beer, Whitewater Brewing Co., Whitewater, Wis." Representations of a similar nature have also been made by the respondents by means of window displays and by leaflets distributed among prospective purchasers.

Other advertising material which has been used by the respondents featured a picture of a badger holding a plaque on which appeared an outline of the State of Wisconsin with the word Wisconsin written across the outline. The respondents have also used on certain of their advertising material the legend "The Pride of Wisconsin." The badger is one of the emblems of the State of Wisconsin and the State is generally known and frequently referred to as the "Badger State."

PAR. 4. The use by the respondents of the aforesaid words, legends and pictures in connection with their said product, without any accompanying words sufficiently disclosing the correct origin of said product, has the tendency and capacity to cause the purchasing public to believe that said beer is brewed in the State of Wisconsin. In truth and in fact said beer is not brewed in Wisconsin but is brewed in the city of Chicago, Ill., by a brewing concern located in that city and is purchased by the respondents from such concern.

PAR. 5. There is a marked preference on the part of a substantial portion of the purchasing public for beer brewed in the State of Wisconsin, such preference being due in part to a belief on the part of the public that such beer is superior in quality to beer brewed elsewhere. Contributing to such belief is the fact that there exist in the State of Wisconsin certain statutory requirements with respect to the brewing of beer which do not obtain in other States.

PAR. 6. Among the competitors of respondents referred to in paragraph 2 hereof are many who do not misrepresent the place of origin of their products.

PAR. 7. The use by the respondents of the acts and practices herein set forth has the tendency and capacity to and does mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into an erroneous and mistaken belief as to the place of origin of respondents' product and into the purchase of substantial quantities of said product because of such erroneous and mistaken belief. In consequence trade has been diverted unfairly to the respondents from their competitors, with the result that substantial injury has been done and is being done by respondents to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on July 13, 1940, issued and thereafter served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondents, Whitewater Brewing Co., a corporation, and Alex Weingart, individually and as Manager of respondent corporation, charging them with unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce, in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of the complaint and the filing of respondents' answer, evidence in support of the allegations of the complaint was introduced by DeWitt T. Puckett, attorney for the Commission, and testimony in opposition to the complaint was introduced by Herbert J. Patrick, attorney for respondents, and a stipulation as to the facts was entered into between said attorneys, before Charles A. Vilas, a duly appointed trial examiner of the Commission designated by it to serve in this proceeding. The testimony and other evidence introduced and the stipulation as to the facts were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceedings regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission upon the complaint, the answer thereto, the testimony and other evidence, the stipulation as to the facts, the report of the trial examiner and exceptions thereto, briefs filed by the attorney for the Commission and the attorney for respondents, and oral argument. And the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPHS 1. Respondent, Whitewater Brewing Co., is a corporation, organized under the laws of the State of Wisconsin, with its principal place of business located in Whitewater, Wis. Respondent also maintains a warehouse and branch office in Chicago, Ill.

PAR. 2. Respondent, Alex Weingart, is an individual, having his principal office and place of business in Chicago, Ill., and is manager of the Chicago office and warehouse of the corporate respondent; he directs, controls, and dominates the acts, policies, and practices of the corporate respondent with respect to the business affairs of the corporation as hereinafter set out.

PAR. 3. Respondent, Whitewater Brewing Co., since 1934, has been engaged in the brewing and in the sale and distribution of beer known as "Cream Top" beer, and in the sale and distribution of a beer known as "Badger" beer. In the course and conduct of their business as herein described, respondents cause and for more than 3 years last past have caused their said products, when sold, to be transported from their places of business in the States of Wisconsin and Illinois to the purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States. Respondents maintain, and at all times mentioned herein have maintained, a course of trade in their said products in commerce between and among various States of the United States.

PAR. 4. Respondents are now, and at all times mentioned herein have been, in substantial competition with other corporations, individuals, firms, and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of beer in commerce between and among various States of the United States.

PAR. 5. The beer sold and distributed by respondents known as "Badger" is not brewed by respondents, or either of them, but is and at all times has been brewed by the Manhattan Brewing Co., at its brewery located in the city of Chicago, State of Illinois, and is purchased by respondents from said concern. The beer sold by respondent under the brand "Badger" is sometimes delivered in barrels at the Chicago place of business of respondent corporation, and in case of the half gallon bottles it is bottled and labeled by the respondents in their Chicago place of business. All other cans and bottles of "Badger" beer are bottled and labeled by the Manhattan Brewing Co., at Chicago, Ill.

The respondents have acted in conjunction and cooperation with each other in carrying out the practices and methods hereinafter set forth.

PAR. 6. Prior to December 16, 1937, but not after that date, respondents, in connection with the sale of "Badger" beer distributed placards to be used in connection with its sale, on which placard is depicted a badger holding a plaque on which appears an outline of the State of Wisconsin and the word "Wisconsin," and in large type the words "Badger Beer" and "The Pride of Wisconsin."

During the year 1938, respondents, in the manner aforesaid, distributed placards upon which appeared the picture of a badger and, in large type, "Badger Beer" and "Whitewater Brewing Co., Whitewater, Wis."

Respondents also distribute, in the manner aforesaid, window streamers advertising their product. On said streamer is depicted a badger and in large type the words "Badger Beer." These streamers are now in current use.

On a carton currently used by respondents in shipping their "Badger Beer" appears in large type, "Badger Beer, Whitewater Brewing Co., Whitewater, Wis."

On one of the placards in current use by respondents is depicted a badger, and in very large type are the words, "Badger Beer."

Prior to December 16, 1937, but not since said date, the labels used by respondents on the bottles and containers depicted a badger holding a plaque on which appeared an outline of the State of Wisconsin and the word "Wisconsin," and in large letters, "Badger Beer" and "Whitewater Brewing Co., Whitewater, Wis."

On the label used by respondents subsequent to December 16, 1937, and up to about June 1939, is depicted a badger, and in large type, "Badger Beer" and "Whitewater Brewing Co., Whitewater, Wis."

On the labels used by respondent since about June 1939, and in current use by them on the half-gallon bottles, is depicted a badger, and in large type, "Badger Beer, Whitewater Brewing Co., Whitewater, Wis.," while near the bottom of the label, in much smaller and less conspicuous type, are the words, "Bottled by Chicago Branch, 2150 Southwestern Avenue, Chicago, Ill.," and on the extreme right-hand margin, so indistinct as to be hardly discernible, are the words, "Brewed by Manhattan Brewing Co., Chicago, Ill."

On another label used by respondents since about June 1939, is depicted a badger and in large type are the words "Badger Beer, Whitewater Brewing Co., Whitewater, Wis.," and in very small type, "Brewed and bottled by Manhattan Brewing Co., Chicago, Ill."

On another label in current use by respondents on the half-gallon bottles where the beer is bottled by the Manhattan Brewing Co. is depicted a badger, and in large type, "Badger Beer, Whitewater Brewing Co., Whitewater, Wis.," and in small type and hardly discernible, on the extreme right-hand margin of the label are the words, "Brewed and bottled by Manhattan Brewing Co., Chicago, Ill."

Another label now used by respondent depicts a badger, and in large type appear the words, "Badger Beer," and in heavy and fairly large type the words, "Whitewater Brewing Co., Whitewater, Wis.," and in much smaller and lighter type are the words, "Brewed and bottled by Manhattan Brewing Co., Chicago, Ill."

The invoices used by respondents in connection with their sale of "Badger Beer" contain the corporate respondent's name and address, but do not contain any reference to the Manhattan Brewing Co., nor do they indicate that this beer is not brewed by the respondents.

A typewritten communication addressed to the Commission, under date of May 6, 1938, is on a letterhead of the corporate respondent, upon which is depicted a badger holding a plaque on which appears an outline of the State of Wisconsin and the word "Wisconsin," and the word "Badger" and respondent's name and address. It was stipulated that this letter was inadvertently used and that this style of letterhead has not been in use by respondents since December 16, 1937, except as scratch paper.

PAR. 7. The use by respondents of the phrase or designation, "The Pride of Wisconsin" and the plaque containing an outline of the State of Wisconsin with the word "Wisconsin," as set forth in paragraph 6 hereof, has the tendency and capacity to cause the purchasing public to believe that respondents' beer known as "Badger Beer" is brewed in the State of Wisconsin, when in fact it is not so brewed, but is brewed in the city of Chicago, State of Illinois, by the Manhattan Brewing Co., from whom it is purchased by respondents. The Commission finds that it is not feasible to select qualifying words for use with these representations which will be effective to eliminate the deception caused by such representations.

PAR. 8. The badger is an emblem of the State of Wisconsin and that State is generally known and referred to as "the Badger State." The use by respondents, as set forth in paragraph 6 hereof, of the word "Badger," and the depiction of a badger without accompanying words sufficiently disclosing the character and origin of their product known as "Badger Beer," or where any such explanatory words are so inconspicuously placed and so indistinct as to be almost imperceptible, has the tendency and capacity to cause the purchasing public to believe that respondents' "Badger Beer" was brewed in the State of Wisconsin, when in fact said beer is not so brewed; but is brewed in the city of Chicago, Ill.

PAR. 9. There is a marked preference on the part of a substantial portion of the purchasing public for beer brewed in the State of Wisconsin, such preference being due in part to the belief on the part of the public that such beer is superior in quality to beer brewed elsewhere. Contributing to such belief is the fact that there exists in the State of Wisconsin certain statutory requirements with respect to the brewing of beer which do not exist in other States.

PAR. 10. Among the competitors of respondents referred to in paragraph 4 hereof are many who do not misrepresent the place or origin of their products.

PAR. 11. The acts and practices of respondents as herein set forth have the tendency and capacity to, and do, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that respondents' "Badger" brand beer is brewed in Wisconsin, and because of such erroneous and mistaken belief, substantial quantities of said product have been purchased by the public, and trade has been thereby unfairly diverted to respondents from competitors who do not misrepresent the place of origin of their product, with the result that substantial injury has been and is being done by respondents to competition in commerce between and among various States of the United States.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce, within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondents, the testimony and other evidence, the stipulation as to the facts, the report of the trial examiner and exceptions thereto, briefs filed by the attorney for the Commission and by the attorney for respondents, and oral arguments, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that the respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act:

It is ordered, That respondent Whitewater Brewing Co., a corporation, its officers, directors, representatives, agents, and employees, and respondent Alex Weingart, individually and as manager of respondent corporation Whitewater Brewing Co., jointly or severally, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of their "Badger" beer, or any other beer not brewed in Wisconsin, in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, shall forthwith cease and desist from—

1. The use of the term "Pride of Wisconsin," or of an outline of the State of Wisconsin, or any other term, symbol, or representation indicating or implying that said beer is brewed in Wisconsin;

2. The use of the word "Badger," or any depiction of a badger, to designate or describe said beer when or if accompanied by any word, picture, or designation which indicates or implies that the beer so designated is brewed in Wisconsin, provided, however, that this provision shall not apply to the use of the word "Wisconsin" to designate or describe an address of the respondents in the State of Wisconsin if qualified as provided in paragraph 3 hereof;

3. The use of the word "Wisconsin" in any way to refer to, designate, or describe said beer, or the use of such word in connection with any such designation or description unless such word is used only as part of respondents' address in the State of Wisconsin and there is stated in immediate conjunction with respondents' name and address, in letters of equal size and conspicuousness, the locality wherein said beer is brewed or that said beer is not brewed in the State of Wisconsin;

4. Representing in any manner that beer which is not brewed in Wisconsin is brewed in Wisconsin.

It is further ordered, That the respondents shall, within 60 days after service upon them of a copy of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF
 CHOCOLATE PRODUCTS COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
 OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 4371. Complaint, Nov. 8, 1940—Decision, Dec. 4, 1941

Where a corporation engaged in the manufacture, and in the interstate sale and distribution of a chocolate syrup product, formerly called "Stillicious Vitamin A, B, D" and thereafter "Stillicious Vitamin," allegedly containing vitamins A, B, D, and G, to wholesalers and retailers in small cans or containers for resale to public, and in large quantities to dairies which made use thereof in making bottled chocolate drinks sold to the public under the trade name "Stillicious," pursuant to agreements with said corporation; directly or by implication—

Represented that said chocolate drinks made by dairies, were made with milk, and that its product, because of its vitamin A content, helped to build resistance to colds and infection, through such advertising as "MY Goodness [picture of cow head] MORE Vitamin B. STILLICIOUS Vitamin B. Chocolate Contains Dextrose and Levulose [picture of milk bottle and glass, both with 'Stillicious' thereon]," "And now, with Stillicious Vitamin A, B, D Chocolate Syrup, we offer today's big Vitamin bargain. A 20-oz. tin * * * contains an extra supply of Vitamin A to help build resistance to colds and infection";

The facts being the chocolate beverage in question did not contain milk as understood by the purchasing public, i. e., milk from which no part of the cream had been removed, but contained skim milk or a mixture of whole and skim milk, and its said products did not help build resistance to colds or infection, even in exceptional cases involving a recognizable deficiency of vitamin A, quantity of which in its product was insufficient to overcome such deficiencies or afford any substantial assistance in building resistance to colds or infection;

With effect of misleading and deceiving a substantial portion of the purchasing public with respect to the properties of said product and the content of beverages made therewith, and thereby inducing it to purchase substantial quantities of said product and beverages made therefrom, and with further effect of placing in the hands of uninformed or unscrupulous dealers and dairies means and instrumentalities whereby they were enabled to mislead and deceive the public;

Held, That such acts practices were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Before Mr. Andrew B. Duvall, trial examiner.

Mr. Maurice C. Pearce and Mr. John M. Russell for the Commission.

Mr. John B. Hosty, of Chicago, Ill., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Chocolate Products Co., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Chocolate Products Co., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Illinois, having its office and principal place of business at 415 West Scott Street, in the city of Chicago, in the State of Illinois.

PAR. 2. Respondent, Chocolate Products Co., is now and has been for more than 2 years last past, engaged in the business of manufacturing, selling, and distributing a certain chocolate syrup product formerly called "Stillicious Vitamin A, B, D," now designated "Stillicious Vitamix," alleged to contain vitamins A, B, D, and G.

Respondent sells its product in small cans or containers to wholesale and retail dealers, and such retail dealers resell said product to the public. Respondent also sells its product in large quantities to dairies, which use said product in making bottled chocolate drinks or beverages which, pursuant to agreement with respondents, are sold to the public under the trade name "Stillicious."

Respondent causes its said product when sold to be transported from its place of business in the State of Illinois to the purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in its said product in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business, the respondent has disseminated, and is now disseminating, and has caused, and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements, concerning its said product by the United States mails, and by various other means in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act; and respondent has also disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning its said product, by various means, for the purpose of inducing and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of its said product in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act. Among, and typical of, the false, misleading, and deceptive statements and representations contained in said false advertisements, disseminated and caused to be disseminated, as hereinabove set forth, by the United States mails, by radio continuities and by counter display cards, circulars, and other advertising literature are the following:

My goodness (Picture of and MORE Vitamin B

STILLICIOUS

Vitamin B. Chocolate Contains (Picture of milk bottle and glass, Dextrose and Levulose. both with "Stillicious" thereon.)

And now, with Stillicious Vitamin A, B, D, Chocolate Syrup, we offer today's big vitamin bargain. A 20-oz. tin, costing only 35¢, contains an extra supply of Vitamin A to help build resistance to colds and infection.

PAR. 4. Through the use of the aforesaid representations and others of similar import not specifically set out herein, the respondent represents, directly or by implication, that the said chocolate drinks or beverages made by said dairies with respondent's product and sold by said dairies under the name "Stillicious" are made with milk; that respondent's product, by reason of its Vitamin A content, helps to build resistance to colds and infection.

PAR. 5. The foregoing representations are grossly exaggerated, false, and misleading. In truth and in fact, the drinks made and sold by said dairies as aforesaid do not contain milk. The term "milk" denotes whole milk, that is, milk from which no part of the cream or butterfat content has been removed, and such term is so understood by the purchasing public. The further understanding of the public is that the milk content of a chocolate beverage purporting to be made with milk is entirely whole milk. In truth and in fact, the milk content of the beverages made by said dairies with the respondent's product is not in any case whole milk, but is skimmed milk or a mixture of whole milk and skimmed milk.

Respondent's product does not help to build resistance to colds or infection. Even in the exceptional cases where members of the public are suffering from a recognizable deficiency of vitamin A, the quantity thereof in respondent's product is insufficient to overcome such deficiency or afford any substantial assistance in building resistance to colds or infection.

PAR. 6. The acts and practices of the respondent have the tendency and capacity to, and do, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public with respect to the properties of respondent's product and with respect to the content of the beverages made with such product. As a result, the purchasing public has been induced to purchase, and has purchased, substantial quantities of said product and beverages. The respondent's acts and practices serve also to place in the hands of uninformed or unscrupulous dealers and dairies means and instrumentalities whereby such dealers and dairies are enabled to mislead and deceive the purchasing public.

PAR. 7. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on November 8, A. D. 1940, issued and thereafter served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondent, Chocolate Products Co., a corporation, charging it with unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce, in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of the complaint and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, evidence in support of the allegations of the complaint was introduced by Maurice C. Pearce, attorney for the Commission, before Andrew B. Duvall, a duly appointed trial examiner of the Commission designated by it to serve in this proceeding; and John B. Hosty, attorney for the respondent, in a stipulation entered on the record, admitted on behalf of respondent all the material facts alleged in the complaint. The evidence and the stipulated facts were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceedings regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the complaint, the answer thereto, the evidence and stipulated facts, the report of the trial examiner thereon, and brief filed on behalf of the Commission. And the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, Chocolate Products Co., is a corporation duly organized under the laws of the State of Illinois, having its principal place of business at 415 West Scott Street, in the city of Chicago, in the State of Illinois.

PAR. 2. Respondent is now, and for more than 2 years last past has been, engaged in the business of manufacturing, selling, and distributing a chocolate syrup product formerly called "Stillicious Vitamin A, B, D," and now designated "Stillicious Vitamix," alleged to contain vitamins A, B, D, and G. Respondent sells its product in small cans or containers to wholesale and retail dealers, and such retail dealers resell said product to the public. Respondent also sells its product in large quantities to dairies, which use the same in making bottled chocolate drinks or beverages, which, pursuant to agreements with respondent, are sold to the public under the trade name "Stillicious." Respondent causes its said product, when sold, to be transported from its place of business in the State of Illinois to the purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in its said product, in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. Respondent, in the course and conduct of its business, has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning its product, by means of the United States mail and by various other means, in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, and respondent has also disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of false advertisements, concerning its product, by various means, for the purpose of inducing and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of its product in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act. Among and typical of the false, misleading, and deceptive statements and representations contained in said false advertisements disseminated and caused to be disseminated as herein set forth, by means of the United States mail, by radio continuities, and by counter display cards, circulars, and other advertising literature, are the following:

STILLICIOUS

Vitamin B. Chocolate. Contains (Picture of milk bottle and glass, both Dextrose and Levulose. with "Stillicious" thereon).

And now, with Stillicious Vitamin A, B, D Chocolate syrup, we offer today's big vitamin bargain. A 20-oz. tin, costing only 35¢ contains an extra supply of Vitamin A to help build resistance to colds and infection.

PAR. 4. Respondent, through use of the aforesaid representations, and others of similar import, represents directly or by implication that the chocolate drinks or beverages made by said dairies or dealers with respondent's product, and sold by them under the name "Stillicious," are made with milk, and that respondent's product, by means of its vitamin A content, helps to build resistance to colds and infection.

PAR. 5. The foregoing representations are grossly exaggerated, false, and misleading. In truth and in fact, the drinks made and sold by said dairies as aforesaid do not contain milk. The term "milk" denotes whole milk, that is, milk from which no part of the cream or butterfat content has been removed, and such term is so understood by the purchasing public. The public further understands that the milk content of a chocolate beverage purporting to be made of milk is of entirely whole milk. In truth and in fact, the milk content of the beverages made by said dairies with respondent's product is not in any case whole milk, but is skim milk or a mixture of whole milk and skim milk.

Respondent's products do not help to build resistance to colds or infection even in the exceptional cases where members of the public are suffering from a recognizable deficiency of vitamin A; the quantity of said vitamin in respondent's product is insufficient to overcome such deficiencies, or afford any substantial assistance in building resistance to colds or infection.

PAR. 6. The acts and practices of the respondent as herein set forth have the tendency and capacity to, and do, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public with respect to the properties of respondent's product and with respect to the content of the beverages made with said product. As a result, the purchasing public has been induced to purchase and has purchased substantial quantities of respondent's product and of said beverages. The respondent's said acts and practices serve also to place in the hands of uninformed or unscrupulous dealers and dairies means and instrumentalities whereby such dealers and dairies are enabled to mislead and deceive the public.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondent, evidence introduced before a duly appointed trial examiner of the Commission designated by it to serve in this proceeding and the stipulation as to the facts entered into by the attorney for the Commission and the attorney for the respondent, the report of the trial examiner thereon and brief filed on behalf of the Commission, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that the respondent, Chocolate Products Co., a corporation, has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act:

It is ordered, That the respondent, Chocolate Products Co., a corporation, its officers, directors, agents, representatives, and employees, jointly and severally, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of its chocolate syrup product, or any similar or like product sold under the name "Stillicious Vitamin A, B, D," or "Stillicious Vitamin," or under any other name or designation, do forthwith cease and desist from directly or indirectly—

1. Disseminating or causing to be disseminated any advertisement by means of the United States mail, or by any means, in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, which advertisement represents, directly or by implication, by means of pictorial representations, or in any other manner, that chocolate drinks or beverages made by dairies or other producers with respondent's product are made with whole milk or milk, when such drinks or beverages are made with skim milk or skim and whole milk, or which advertisement represents that the vitamin content of respondent's product helps to build resistance to colds and infection: Provided, however, That this order shall not prohibit respondent from using the term "milk" to describe the aforesaid drinks or beverages when such term is properly and accurately qualified.

2. Disseminating or causing to be disseminated any advertisement, by any means, for the purpose of inducing or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, of respondent's product, which advertisement contains any of the representations prohibited in paragraph 1 hereof.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after the service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF
MARION ALLEN, TRADING AS TRIANGLE SALES COM-PANY, AND ALFRED J. LANDAY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 4576. Complaint, Aug. 25, 1941—Decision, Dec. 4, 1941

Where an individual engaged in the competitive interstate sale and distribution of radios, bedspreads, cameras, fountain pens, and other articles, by means of lottery devices, and one "A. L.," engaged in distributing for her sales literature, etc., as below set forth, to pushcard operators and the purchasing public—

Furnished, among other things, pushcards and circulars explaining her plan of selling such merchandise and allotting it as premiums or prizes to the operators of the cards and the purchasing public, a typical pushcard being printed with 16 feminine names for use under a plan providing that the person selecting the name corresponding to that concealed under card's master seal received a camera, the three persons securing, by chance, certain numbers concealed by discs bearing feminine names, received "a genuine LEATHER BILLFOLD," and the amount paid by different customers was dependent upon numbers secured; and thereby

Supplied to and placed in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries or game of chance to procure an article at much below its normal price, contrary to an established public policy of the United States Government, and in competition with many who, unwilling to use any method involving chance or contrary to public policy, refrain therefrom;

With the result that many persons were attracted by said sales plan and the element of chance involved therein, and were thereby induced to buy and sell said merchandise in preference to that of aforesaid competitors who do not use such methods, and with tendency and capacity to unfairly divert substantial trade in commerce to them from their said competitors:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair acts and practices therein.

Mr. J. W. Brookfield, Jr., for the Commission.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Marion Allen, an individual trading as Triangle Sales Co., and Alfred J. hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Sales of said merchandise by means of said pushcards are made in accordance with the above-described legend or instructions. Said prizes or premiums are allotted to the customers or purchasers in accordance with the above-described legend or instructions. The fact as to whether a purchaser receives an article of merchandise or nothing for the amount of money paid is thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

Respondents furnish and have furnished various other pushcards accompanied by order blanks, instructions, and other printed matter for use in the sale and distribution of said merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. The sales plan or method involved in the sale or distribution of all of said merchandise by means of said other pushcards is the same as that hereinabove described, varying only in detail.

PAR. 3. The persons to whom respondents furnish, and have furnished, the said pushcards use the same in purchasing, selling, and distributing said merchandise in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan. Respondents thus supply to, and place in the hands of others, the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of said merchandise in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondents of said sales plan or method in the sale of said merchandise and the sale of said merchandise by and through the use thereof, and by the aid of said sales plan or method, is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States.

PAR. 4. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above alleged involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure one of the said articles of merchandise at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell or distribute merchandise in competition with the respondents, as above alleged, are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other method that is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondents in the sale and distribution of said merchandise and the element of chance involved therein, and thereby are induced to buy and sell said merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondents who do not use the same or an equivalent method. The use of said method by respondents, because of said game of chance, has a tendency and capacity to unfairly divert substantial trade in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia to respondent from their said competitors who do not use the same or an equivalent method.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3634. Complaint, Oct. 22, 1938—Decision, Dec. 9, 1941

Where four individuals engaged at different times as partners in the interstate sale and distribution of bed spreads, pillows, wrist watches, china ware, and a general line of novelty goods in competition with others who were unwilling to and did not use any sales plan involving chance or a lottery in periodicals—

- (a) Sold and distributed their said merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme, through sending to those replying to their advertisements offering "free" handkerchiefs and beautifying kits, catalogs and circulars describing their various articles and explaining plan under which the particular item of twenty listed, and the price paid therefor, were determined by the legend under the tab of the pull card selected by customer, and the card operator or distributor was compensated for the sale of chances by the premium selected by him, or, at his option, by the right to retain part of the amount he collected from said sales;

Whereby purchasers were induced to pull the tabs in the hope of receiving articles of merchandise, some of which ordinarily sold at higher prices and were of greater value than the price designated to be paid therefor, determined wholly by lot or chance, as was fact as to which of the twenty articles purchaser might receive;

With effect of placing in the hands of others devices by use of which their merchandise was distributed to the ultimate consumer wholly by lot or chance, contrary to the established public policy of the United States; and notwithstanding "Notice to Purchasers" in small print above the pull tab, purporting to advise the reader of his privilege of buying any article at the price shown therefor on the back of each slip, which was inconsistent with the working of the scheme as planned;

- (b) Represented that the price charged for their merchandise was less than the usual retail price through statements in their catalog purporting to offer "BONUS COUPON—worth 40¢, 50¢ value—Kurl-Kwik Curler for only 10¢" and "BONUS COUPON—worth 65¢, $1.00 value—Knife, fork and pie server set for only 35¢";

The facts being said curlers ordinarily sold at retail for 10 cents and the sets for 45 cents, their fair values; and

COMPLAINT

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondents, Ralph Kalner, Rea Drath, Freda Rosten, and Alvin B. Wolf, are individuals trading under the names of DeLuxe Products Co. and Delco Novelty Co., with their principal office and place of business located at 637 West Roosevelt Road, Chicago, Ill. Respondents are now, and for some time last past have been, engaged in the sale and distribution of watches, rifles, enamelware, bedspreads, blankets, dinner sets, overnight cases, suede jackets, clocks, salt and pepper sets, pen and pencil sets, hot water bottles, tableware, kitchenware, razor blades, cosmetics, leather wallets, dolls, handkerchiefs, curlers, and other articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, and in the District of Columbia. Respondents cause, and have caused, said products, when sold, to be shipped or transported from their aforesaid place of business in Illinois to purchasers thereof in the various other States of the United States, and in the District of Columbia, at their respective points of location. There is now, and has been for some time last past, a course of trade by said respondents in such merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business, respondents are in competition with other individuals and partnerships, and with corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of similar or like articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States, and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of their business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondents sell and distribute said articles of merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. The respondents distribute or cause to be distributed to dealers and prospective dealers certain advertising literature, including a sales circular. Respondents' merchandise is distributed to the purchasers thereof in the following manner:

A portion of said sales circular consists of a list on which there are designated a number of items of merchandise and the prices thereof. Adjacent to the list is printed and set out a device commonly called a pull card. Said pull card consists of a number of tabs, under each of which is concealed the name of an article of merchandise and the price thereof. The name of the article of merchandise and the price thereof are so concealed that purchasers or prospective purchasers of the tabs or chances are unable to ascertain which article of merchandise they are to receive or the price which they are to pay until after the tab is separated from the card. When a purchaser has detached a tab and learned what article of merchandise he is to receive and the price thereof, his name is written on the list opposite the named article of merchandise. Some of said articles of merchandise have purported and represented retail values and regular prices greater than the prices designated for them, but are distributed to the consumer for the price designated on the tab which he pulls. The apparent greater values and regular prices of some of said articles of merchandise, as compared to the price the prospective purchaser will be required to pay in the event he secures one of said articles, induces members of the purchasing public to purchase the tabs or chances in the hope that they will receive articles of merchandise of far greater value than the designated prices to be paid for same. The fact as to whether a purchaser of one of said pull card tabs receives an article which has greater value and a higher regular price than the price designated for same on such tab, which of said articles of merchandise a purchaser is to receive, and the amount of money which a purchaser is required to pay, are determined wholly by lot or chance.

When the person or dealer operating the pull card has succeeded in selling all of the tabs or chances, collected the amounts called for, and remitted the said sums to the respondents, the said respondents thereupon ship to said dealer the merchandise designated on said card, together with a premium for the dealer as compensation for operating the pull card and selling the said merchandise. Said dealer delivers the merchandise to the purchasers of tabs from said pull card in accordance with the list filled out when the tabs were detached from the pull card.

Respondents sell and distribute and have sold and distributed various assortments of said merchandise and furnish and have furnished various pull cards for use in the sale and distribution of such merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. Such plan or method varies in detail, but the above described plan or method is illustrative of the principle involved.

PAR. 3. The dealers to whom respondents furnish the said pull cards use the same in purchasing, selling, and distributing respondents' merchandise in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan. Respondents thus supply to and place in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of their merchandise in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondents of said method in the sale of their merchandise and the sale of such merchandise by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said method is a practice of the sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of criminal laws.

PAR. 4. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above alleged involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure an article of merchandise at a price much less than the apparent normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell or distribute merchandise in competition with the respondents, as above alleged, are unwilling to adopt and use said method, or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any method which is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by respondents' said method and by the element of chance involved in the sale of such merchandise in the manner above described, and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondents' merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondents who do not use the same or an equivalent method. The use of said method by respondents, because of said game of chance, has the capacity and tendency to, and does, unfairly divert trade and custom to respondents from their said competitors who do not use the same or an equivalent method and as a result thereof substantial injury is being done, and has been done, by respondents to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 5. In the course and conduct of their business, as hereinabove related, respondents cause, and have caused, various false, deceptive, and misleading statements or representations to appear in their advertising matter as aforesaid, of which the following are examples but are not all inclusive:

3 initial handkerchiefs FREE TO YOU. Send name, address with 6¢ in stamps to help pay postage, packing.

FREE TO YOU. 4-piece beautifying kit sent free to get acquainted. Send name, address with 10¢ to help pay postage, packing.

Another of said statements or representations appearing in respondents' said advertising matter is as follows:

Rogers 26-piece silver set.

In truth and in fact the said handkerchiefs and beautifying kit are not given away "free" but the purchasers of said articles are required to pay for said handkerchiefs and beautifying kit 6¢ and 10¢ respectively, as postage and packing charges, when in fact said amounts are greatly in excess of the actual cost of said postage and packing.

When the word "silver" is used to describe a product, the public understands it to mean that the product is made of solid silver. The use of the word "silver" by respondents in describing their tableware causes, and has caused, the public to believe that said tableware is made of solid silver. Respondents' said silver tableware is not made of solid silver but, on the contrary, said tableware is made of an inferior base metal lightly plated with silver.

PAR. 6. In the course and conduct of the respondents' business, as hereinabove set out, the respondents cause, and have caused, coupons to be issued with each purchase of their merchandise made by means of the "pull tab." A number of the said items or articles of merchandise described on the aforesaid coupons have values attached to them greatly in excess of their true and actual values.

Representative of such statements and representations made by the respondents on the coupons regarding the selling price and value of the commodities they thus offer are the following:

BONUS COUPON. WORTH 40¢ 50¢ value—Kurl Kwick Curler—for only 10¢.

BONUS COUPON. WORTH 65¢. $1 value—Knife, fork and pie service set—for only 35¢.

BONUS COUPON. WORTH 65¢ $1 value—6 fine initial handkerchiefs—for only 35¢.

Findings

In truth and in fact the curler is not a 50¢ value but is purchased by the respondents for 5¢ each and is sold to the retail trade for 10¢ each. The knife, fork and pie server set does not in fact have a dollar retail value. The initialed handkerchiefs do not have a dollar retail value but, on the contrary, cost the respondents from 30¢ to 70¢ per dozen. Said coupons are not worth the amounts indicated thereon.

The prices so represented as aforesaid upon respondents' coupons are greatly in excess of the actual selling prices of said items or articles of merchandise by the retailer to the consuming public and are in excess of their true and actual values. The retail prices so represented as aforesaid are false and fictitious and in no sense represent either the true retail value or the true retail selling price of the articles so represented.

PAR. 7. The use by respondents of the false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations set forth herein has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive, and has misled and deceived, a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that such statements and representations are true, and into the purchase of substantial quantities of said respondents' products as a result of such erroneous belief. There are among the competitors of respondents as mentioned in paragraph 1 hereof manufacturers and distributors of like and similar products who do not make such false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations concerning their products. By the statements and representations aforesaid, trade is unfairly diverted to respondents from such competitors, and, as a result thereof, substantial injury is being done, and has been done, by respondents to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

viduals trading as DeLuxe Products Co. and Delco Novelty Co., charging them with unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce, in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of the complaint testimony and evidence in support of the allegations of the complaint were introduced by attorneys for the Commission, and testimony in opposition to the complaint was introduced by attorneys for respondents, before duly appointed trial examiners of the Commission designated by it to serve in this proceeding, and the testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter the proceedings regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the complaint, the testimony and other evidence, the report of the trial examiners and exceptions thereto, and briefs filed on behalf of the Commission and of the respondents. And the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondents, Ralph Kalner, Rea Drath, Freda Rosten, and Alvin B. Wolf, from the summer of 1936 to about August 1937, were copartners trading as DeLuxe Products Co. and Delco Novelty Co., with their principal place of business located at 843 Northwestern Avenue, Chicago, Ill., until May 1937, when it was removed to 637 West Roosevelt Road, in said city. About August 1937 respondent Alvin B. Wolf and one Max Schwartz purchased the interests of respondents Kalner, Drath, and Rosten in said business, and since that date respondent Wolf and said Schwartz have, as copartners, operated said business at the last named address under the aforesaid trade names and also under the trade name "National Business Builders."

PAR. 2. All the respondents, during the existence of the partnership, were engaged, and respondent Wolf and Schwartz have since been and now are engaged, in the sale and distribution of bed spreads, pillows, wrist watches, chinaware, rifles, overnight cases, dolls, kitchen ware, blankets, suede jackets, clocks, tableware, hot water bottles, fountain pen and pencil sets, salt and pepper sets and a general line of novelty goods, and during said periods have caused their merchandise, when sold, to be shipped from their principal place of business to purchasers thereof located in the various States of the United States at their respective points of location.

PAR. 3. Respondents in the course and conduct of their business were, and respondent Wolf and Schwartz now are, in competition with other partnerships and with individuals and corporations likewise engaged in selling and distributing similar articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

PAR. 4. Respondents, in order to secure distributors for their merchandise, placed advertisements in magazines of general circulation, of which the following are typical:

THREE INITIAL HANDKERCHIEFS FREE TO YOU. Send name and address with 6¢ in stamps to help pay postage, packing.

FREE TO YOU, 4-piece Beautifying Kit free to get acquainted. Send name and address with 10¢ to help pay postage, packing.

After securing the names and addresses of the persons answering these advertisements, respondents mailed such persons catalogues and circulars describing the articles of merchandise sold by them and the plan or method to be used in their sale. The catalogues contained pictorial representations and descriptive matter with reference to merchandise offered as premiums, rewards, or compensation to the distributor for his services in selling 20 articles of merchandise, 5 of which are also illustrated in the catalogue, beneath which illustrations is a list of the 20 articles of merchandise to be offered for sale, with the price of each article, and a blank space opposite each item for insertion of the name of the purchaser. At the right of this list is pasted a device commonly known as a "pull card," containing 20 tabs, on the under side of each of which is concealed the name of 1 of the 20 articles of merchandise and the price thereof, neither of which is revealed until after the tab is separated or removed from the pull-card device.

After the purchaser has detached one of the tabs and has ascertained the article of merchandise he is to purchase, and has paid the price indicated on the tab, his name is written by the distributor in the blank space opposite the name and price of the article listed. When the distributor has by this means sold all of the 20 articles and collected the price thereof, he remits to the respondent the amount collected and receives from them the merchandise which is delivered by him to the purchasers. Respondents also ship to the distributor the premium or reward selected by him as compensation for his services in the sale of respondents' merchandise; or, if he so elects, the distributor may retain, in lieu of such premium, a specified sum from the amount he has collected from such sales.

PAR. 5. Respondents during the existence of the copartnership sold and distributed, and respondent Wolf since August 1937 has sold and distributed and now sells and distributes, merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme, as described in paragraph 4 hereof.

PAR. 6. Immediately above the pull-tab device the following appears in small print:

NOTICE TO PURCHASERS: On the back of each slip is printed the price of an article. If after deliberation you decide that you want to buy the article, pay the holder of this book the price shown on the slip. If you do not want the article you need not buy it.

Distributors of respondents' merchandise sometimes call the attention of prospective purchasers to this "notice" and at other times do not.

The Commission finds that, regardless of said "notice," the respondents have sold and distributed, and respondent Wolf now sells and distributes, merchandise by means of said pull-tab device, in accordance with the sales plan or method hereinbefore described.

The successful operation of said sales plan or method is dependent upon the ability of the distributor to sell all of the 20 articles listed, so as to provide for remittance of the required amount to respondents in order to obtain the merchandise purchased. The operation of the plan or method strictly in accordance with the above "notice" would not net the distributor a return sufficient to warrant completion of the plan or method and would thereby render it inoperative. No instructions are contained in any of the catalogues, circulars, or other literature distributed by the respondent as to what should be done in the event all the articles are not sold, or if a person pulling a tab fails or refuses to complete the purchase; nor is any provision made as to the compensation to be received by the distributor in such cases. On the contrary, as shown by all of respondents' literature, it is contemplated that all of the listed merchandise must be sold. The order blank states:

I have sold my order. Please ship at once all charges prepaid, the 20 articles of merchandise I sold amounting to $5.98, and one of the valuable premiums.

It is stated in the catalogue:

When articles are sold you will have collected $5.98. Then fill out the enclosed order blank and mail to us together with your remittance. We will send you big reward premium, extra surprise gift and the 20 articles as soon as we receive your order.

It is stated in one of respondent's circulars:

Simply sell the order as outlined and send us the money within 15 days after receipt of this order and you will get the big reward premium you select * * *.

The "Notice" is a subterfuge, intended to avoid the consequences incident to the operation of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

PAR. 7. In the catalogue described in paragraph 4 hereof, it is stated that a "bonus coupon" is given free to each purchaser. The following are examples of these coupons:

	* * *
Bonus Coupon, worth-----		40¢
50¢ value—Kurl-Kwik Curler for only-----		10¢
Additional Kurl-Kwik Curlers without coupon-----		50¢
Bonus Coupon, worth-----		65¢
$1.00 value—Knife, fork, and pie server set for only-----		35¢
	* * *
Additional sets without bonus coupons-----		$1.00

The values of the curler and the knife, fork, and pie-server set stated in respondents' "bonus coupons" are greatly in excess of the actual retail selling price of said items and in excess of their true and actual values. The curler is ordinarily sold at retail for 10¢, and the knife, fork, and pie server set for 45¢, and these prices represent the fair values of the articles. These two items have not been sold by respondents since 1938.

Respondents, prior to 1938, described in their catalogue one of the premiums or rewards given to their distributors as compensation for services in disposing of respondents' merchandise as "Rogers 26-piece Silver Set." This description caused respondents' distributors and prospective distributors to believe that this merchandise was of solid silver, when in fact it was only plated ware. Respondent Wolf has discontinued the use of the word "silver" in describing such ware.

PAR. 8. Respondents, by such false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations concerning the value and character of its merchandise have misled and deceived a substantial portion of the public into the erroneous belief that such statements and representations are true, and as a result, substantial quantities of their merchandise have been purchased by the public, and a number of persons have been induced to act as distributors of respondents' merchandise. Among the competitors of respondents mentioned in paragraph 3 hereof are those who do not make such false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations concerning their merchandise.

Said statements and representations have caused trade to be unfairly diverted from said competitors to the respondents and substantial injury has thereby been done by respondents, and is now being done by respondent Wolf, to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

PAR. 9. Some of the merchandise sold by respondents have greater value and ordinarily sell at higher retail prices than the prices listed by respondents, but are sold and distributed to the consumer at the prices designated on the tabs, and because of this, purchasers are induced to pull the tabs in the hope that they will receive articles of merchandise of greater value than the designated prices to be paid for same. Whether a purchaser receives one of these articles, or which of the 20 articles of merchandise he may receive and the price to be paid therefor, are determined wholly by lot or chance. Many partnerships, persons, and corporations who sell and distribute merchandise in competition with the respondents are unwilling to adopt and use, and do not use in the sale of their merchandise, the sales plan or method used by respondents, or any method involving a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery, or any method which is contrary to public policy.

PAR. 10. Respondents, by their sales method hereinbefore described, have placed, and respondent Wolf now places, in the hands of others, devices to be used in the sale and distribution of their merchandise by means of which a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme may be used, and by the use of such devices said merchandise was and is sold and distributed to the ultimate consumer wholly by lot or chance. Respondents' said sales method is contrary to the established public policy of the United States.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors, and are contrary to the established public policy of the Government of the United States of America, and constitute unfair methods of competition and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce, within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the testimony and other evidence introduced before duly appointed trial examiners of the Commission designated by it to serve in this proceeding, the report of the trial examiners thereon and exceptions thereto, and briefs filed in support of the complaint and in opposition to the complaint, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that the respondents, Ralph Kalner, Rea Drath, Freda Rosten,

Order

and Alvin B. Wolk have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act:

It is ordered, That the respondents Ralph Kalner, Rea Drath, Freda Rosten, and Alvin B. Wolf, individuals trading as DeLuxe Products Co. and Delco Novelty Co., or under any other trade name or designation, jointly or severally, and their respective agents, representatives, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of bed spreads, pillows, wrist watches, chinaware, rifles, overnight cases, dolls, kitchen ware, blankets, suede jackets, clocks, tableware, hot water bottles, fountain pen and pencil sets, salt and pepper sets, and any other articles of merchandise, in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Supplying to or placing in the hands of others pull cards or any other device or devices which are to be used or may be used in the sale and distribution of said merchandise to the public by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise or lottery scheme.

2. Shipping, mailing, or transporting to agents, or distributors, or to members of the public, pull cards, or any other device, or devices which are to be used or may be used in the sale or distribution of said merchandise to the public by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

3. Selling or otherwise disposing of any merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

4. Using the unqualified term "silver" to designate or describe tableware or other articles of merchandise which are not made entirely of silver.

5. Representing that the price charged for merchandise is less than the usual retail price of such merchandise when such is not the fact.

It is further ordered, That respondents shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF
PIONEER MERCHANDISE COMPANY, INC.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 4012. Complaint, Feb. 2, 1940—Decision, Dec. 9, 1941

Where a corporation engaged in interstate sale and distribution, among other products, of cigarette holders composed of cellulose acetate which were similar in appearance to holders composed of amber, nonburning bakelite and other suitable materials—

- (a) Represented and implied to the purchasing public that its said products were made from amber, nonburning bakelite or other suitable material, and were of superior quality and would give satisfactory service, through mounting them on dealers' display cards containing such statements as "Cigarette Holders for a cool and agreeable smoke" and "Extra Fine Cigarette Holders";

Facts being its said cigarette holders would not give the public the service it was led to expect through such representations and similarity of such holders to those made of amber, nonburning bakelite, etc., but were made from material which disintegrated readily when exposed to heat, conveying an unpleasant taste to smoke coming in contact with the holder, so that user thereof would not obtain an agreeable smoke; and

- (b) Represented and implied that it made the cigarette holders and other domestic-made merchandise sold by it, and owned, operated and controlled a factory in which its holders were made, through such statements in circulars bearing its name and word "Manufacturers" as "When Buying from Us You Buy from the Manufacturer," and through representations on letterheads and invoices to the effect that it was a manufacturer;

Notwithstanding fact it neither owned nor controlled any manufacturing plant in which its products were made, and was not a manufacturer, long preferentially dealt with by a substantial proportion of jobbers, dealers and consumers as, in their belief, eliminating the profits of middlemen and enabling them to obtain lower prices and other advantages;

With effect of misleading and deceiving a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such representations were true, and with result that said public purchased a substantial quantity of its cigarette holders and other merchandise:

Held, That such acts and practices were all to the prejudice of the public and its competitors, and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Mr. J. Jerome Katz and Mr. George Goodritz, of Philadelphia, Pa., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Pioneer Merchandise Co., Inc., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Pioneer Merchandise Co., Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its office and place of business located at 928 Broadway, in the city of New York, N. Y.

PAR. 2. Respondent is now, and has been during the year last past, engaged in the sale and distribution of cigarette holders and other products. In the course of its business, respondent causes said commodities to be transported from its principal place of business in the State of New York to purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in various States of the United States, other than the State of New York, and in the District of Columbia. There is now, and has been at all times mentioned herein, a course of trade in said cigarette holders sold by respondent in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of its business as aforesaid, respondent has offered for sale and sold as cigarette holders certain products composed of cellulose acetate. These cellulose acetate products are similar in appearance to, and resemble, cigarette holders composed of amber, nonburning bakelite and other materials suitable for, and long used in, the manufacture of cigarette holders. Respondent has caused such cigarette holders, composed of cellulose acetate, to be placed on display cards on some of which appears the following statement: "Cigarette Holders for a cool and agreeable smoke," and upon others the following statement: "Extra Fine Cigarette Holders." These holders, attached to said display cards, containing said statements, are sold to dealers located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia for resale to the purchasing and consuming public, and said cards and holders are displayed by such dealers in offering for sale and selling said holders to the purchasing public.

Through the similarity in appearance of the material from which said holders are made to amber, nonburning bakelite and other materials suitable for, and long used in, the manufacture of cigarette holders and the display of said holders on said cards containing said statements, respondent represents and implies, and the purchasing and consuming public is led to believe, that the said cellulose acetate cigarette holders are made from amber, nonburning bakelite or some other material suitable for use in cigarette holders, and that said holders are of superior quality and will give the user thereof pleasant and satisfactory service.

In truth and in fact, the cigarette holders so sold and distributed by the respondent are composed of a material which is unfitted by composition to be used in a cigarette holder and such holders will not give the public the service it is led to expect as a result of the similarity in appearance of said material to amber, nonburning bakelite and other materials suitable for use, and long used, in manufacturing cigarette holders. Said cigarette holders are not "Extra Fine," nor of superior quality, and the users thereof will not obtain a cool or agreeable smoke as represented by the respondent, for, in truth and in fact, the material from which said holders are made distintegrates readily when exposed to heat and conveys to smoke coming in contact therewith an unpleasant and unsatisfactory taste or flavor.

PAR. 4. Respondent, further, has distributed among prospective purchasers located in various States of the United States, and in the District of Columbia, circulars bearing the phrases:

"Pioneer Merchandise Co., Inc., manufacturers and importers," and containing such statements as "when buying from us you buy from the manufacturer"; and also has represented on its letterheads and invoices, distributed throughout the United States mails and in commerce as aforesaid, that it is a manufacturer.

Through the use of the word "manufacturers," as above set out, respondent has represented, and does now represent and imply, that it is the manufacturer of the cigarette holders and other domestic-made merchandise it sells.

PAR. 5. In truth and in fact, respondent does not make or manufacture the cigarette holders or the other domestic-made products sold and distributed by it. Respondent does not own or control the manufacturing plant in which the said products are manufactured.

PAR. 6. There has long been a preference on the part of a substantial proportion of jobbers, dealers, and consumers to deal directly with the manufacturer, because of a belief that by the elimination of middlemen's profits, superior products at lower prices, and other advantages, can thereby be obtained.

PAR. 7. The use by the respondent of the representations set out in paragraph 3 hereof has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such representations are true and that such cigarette holders are manufactured of proper material and are fitted and suitable for the purpose for which they are sold, and into the purchase of said cigarette holders in said erroneous and mistaken belief.

The use by respondent of the representations that it is a manufacturer, as set out in paragraph 4 hereof, has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such representations are true and that it is the manufacturer of the cigarette holders and other domestic-made products offered for sale and sold by it, and into the purchase of said cigarette holders and other domestic-made products in said erroneous and mistaken belief.

PAR. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on February 2, 1940, issued and subsequently served its complaint upon respondent Pioneer Merchandise Co., Inc., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, a statement of facts agreed to by counsel for the Commission, S. Brogdyne Teu, II. and counsel for respondent, J. Jerome Katz and George Goodritz, was read into the record and certain exhibits introduced by counsel for the Commission before John W. Addison, an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said statement of facts, a supplemental agreement as to certain facts dated August 28, 1941, and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, the answer thereto, the agreed statement of facts and supplement thereto and other evidence, and brief in support of the complaint (no brief having been filed by respondent and oral argument not having been requested); and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Pioneer Merchandise Co., Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, having its office and place of business located at 928 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

PAR. 2. The respondent is now, and has been for some time past, engaged in the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of cigarette holders and other products. In the course of its business the respondent causes its commodities, when sold, to be transported from its place of business in New York, N. Y., to purchasers thereof located in the various States of the United States other than the State of New York and in the District of Columbia. There is now, and has been for some time past, a course of trade in cigarette holders and other products sold by respondent in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of its business respondent has offered for sale, and sold, as cigarette holders certain products composed of cellulose acetate. These cellulose acetate products are similar in appearance to and resemble cigarette holders composed of amber, nonburning bakelite, and other materials suitable for and long used in the manufacture of cigarette holders. Respondent has caused its cigarette holders composed of cellulose acetate to be placed on display cards. On some of such display cards appears the following: "Cigarette Holders for a cool and agreeable smoke," and on other of such cards appears the following: "Extra Fine Cigarette Holders." These holders, attached to the display cards, are sold to dealers located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia who purchase for resale to the purchasing and consuming public, and the display cards and holders are displayed by the dealers in offering for sale and selling to the purchasing public the cigarette holders of the respondent.

Through the similarity in appearance of the material from which the respondent's cigarette holders are made to amber, nonburning bakelite, and other materials suitable for and long used in the manufacture of cigarette holders, and the display of the respondent's holders on display cards containing the representations set out in the immediately preceding paragraph, respondent represents and implies to the purchasing public and leads members thereof to believe that the cellulose acetate cigarette holders of the respondent are made from amber, nonburning bakelite, or some other material suitable for use in cigarette holders and that respondent's holders are of superior quality and will give the user thereof pleasant and satisfactory service.

The cigarette holders sold and distributed by the respondent are not composed of the finest and best materials used in the manufacture of cigarette holders, and such holders will not give the public the service it is led to expect as a result of respondent's advertising representations as aforesaid and by reason of the similarity in appearance of the material used by the respondent in its holders to amber, nonburning bakelite, and other materials suitable for use and long used in manufacturing cigarette holders. The respondent's cigarette holders are not "Extra Fine" nor of superior quality, and the users of the respondent's cigarette holders will not obtain an agreeable smoke as represented by respondent. The material from which respondent's holders are made disintegrates readily when exposed to heat and conveys to smoke coming in contact with the holders an unpleasant taste or flavor.

PAR. 4. The respondent has distributed among its prospective purchasers located in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia circulars bearing the phrases:

PIONEER MERCHANDISE CO. INC.

Manufacturers and Importers

BUY DIRECT—SAVE MONEY

Quality Merchandise at Lowest Manufacturer's Prices.

When Buying from Us You Buy from the Manufacturer.

- AN OPPORTUNITY
1. To Save Money by Buying from Manufacturer.
 2. To Be Assured of Lowest Manufacturers Prices.
 3. To Receive Quality—Put Up the Way You Like It.

It has also represented on its letterheads and invoices distributed by the United States mails and in commerce that it is a manufacturer.

Through the use of the word "Manufacturer" the respondent has represented, and now represents and implies, that it is the manufacturer of cigarette holders and other domestic-made merchandise which it sells, and that it owns, operates, and controls a factory in which said holders are made.

The respondent does not make or manufacture the cigarette holders or other domestic products sold and distributed by it, and the respondent does not own or control the manufacturing plant in which its said products are manufactured.

PAR. 5. There has long been a preference on the part of a substantial proportion of jobbers, dealers, and consumers to deal directly with the manufacturer because of the belief that by the elimination of middlemen's profits superior products at low prices and other advantages can be, and are, obtained.

PAR. 6. The use by the respondent of the representations set out in paragraphs 3 and 4 above has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such representations are true, that the respondent manufactures the cigarette holders and other merchandise sold and distributed by it and, further, that such cigarette holders are of proper material for the purpose for which they are sold. As a result of such erroneous and mistaken belief the purchasing public has purchased a substantial quantity of the cigarette holders and other merchandise sold and distributed by the respondent.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondent, an agreed statement of facts and supplement thereto and other evidence taken before an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and brief in support of the complaint (no brief having been filed by respondent and oral argument not having been requested), and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That respondent Pioneer Merchandise Co., Inc., a corporation, its officers, agents, representatives, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, of cigarette holders and other merchandise, do forthwith cease and desist from representing, directly or by implication:

1. That cigarette holders or similar products made of cellulose acetate, or other material which disintegrates readily when exposed to heat or imparts an unpleasant taste or flavor to smoke coming in contact with it, are a superior product, or satisfactory for the purpose intended, or will give the user pleasant and satisfactory service.

2. That respondent is the manufacturer of cigarette holders or other articles of merchandise which are not in fact manufactured in a plant owned and operated or directly and absolutely controlled by respondent.

It is further ordered, That respondent shall, within 60 days after the service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF

J. D. JACOBS AND P. W. SMITH, TRADING AS ASPIRONAL COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 4574. Complaint, Aug. 22, 1941—Decision, Dec. 9, 1941

Where two individuals engaged in the interstate sale and distribution of their "Aspironal" medical preparation; in advertisements disseminated through the mails, newspapers and periodicals, and other advertising literature—

(a) Used the word "Aspironal" as brand name of their product and in their trade name, and represented, directly and by implication, that their said product was a cure or remedy for the common cold and would rid one of the symptoms thereof, and that it contained an effective quantity of aspirin;

Facts being it contained no aspirin and had no therapeutic value in the treatment of the common cold in excess of giving temporary relief from the discomforts arising therefrom, but was a cathartic, use of which by one suffering from nausea, vomiting, abdominal pains or other symptoms of appendicitis was dangerous; and

(b) Failed, in said advertisements, to reveal facts material in the light of such representations and with respect to consequences which might result from use of preparation under usual or prescribed conditions, as above indicated;

With effect, through use of such brand or trade name, and false and deceptive statements and representations, of misleading and deceiving a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that the product in question contained aspirin, generally considered useful by the consuming public in giving relief from the common cold, and that such statements, etc., were true, and of inducing it to purchase their said preparation because of such erroneous beliefs:

Held, That such acts and practices were all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Mr. Jesse D. Kash for the Commission.

Alston, Foster, Moise & Sibley, of Atlanta, Ga., for respondents.

COMPLAINT

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on August 22, 1941, issued and thereafter served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondents J. D. Jacobs and P. W. Smith, individuals, trading as Aspironal Co., charging them with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On September 8, 1941, the respondents filed their answer in this proceeding. Thereafter a stipulation was entered into whereby it was stipulated and agreed that a statement of facts signed and executed by the respondents and their counsel, Alston, Foster, Moise & Sibley, and Richard P. Whiteley, Assistant Chief Counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, subject to the approval of the Commission, may be taken as the facts in this proceeding and in lieu of testimony in support of the charges stated in the complaint, or in opposition thereto, and that the Commission may proceed upon said statement of facts to make its findings as to the facts and its conclusion based thereon and enter its order disposing of the proceeding without the presentation of argument or the filing of briefs. Respondents expressly waived the filing of the trial examiner's report upon the evidence. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, answer and stipulation, said stipulation having been approved, accepted and filed, and the Commission having duly considered the same and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

ing procedure the Commission may issue and serve upon the respondents herein findings as to the facts and its conclusion based thereon and an order disposing of the proceeding, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondents, J. D. Jacobs, and P. W. Smith, trading as Aspironal Co., or under any other name, their representatives, agents and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale or distribution of their preparation now named Aspironal or any other preparation containing the same or similar ingredients, under whatever name sold, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Disseminating or causing to be disseminated any advertisement (a) by means of the United States mails, or (b) by any means in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, which advertisement represents, directly or by implication, that their said preparation is a cure or remedy for the common cold; that it will rid one of the symptoms of the common cold; that it contains an effective quantity of aspirin; or that it has any therapeutic value in the treatment of the common cold in excess of giving temporary relief from the pain and discomfort arising therefrom; or which advertisement fails to reveal that said preparation should not be used by persons suffering from nausea, vomiting, abdominal pains, or other symptoms of appendicitis; provided, however, that if the directions for use, wherever they appear on the label, in the labeling, or both on the label and in the labeling, contain a warning of the potential dangers in the use of said preparation as hereinabove set forth, such advertisement need contain only the cautionary statement: CAUTION, USE ONLY AS DIRECTED.

in paragraphs 1 and 2 hereof, or which fails to comply with the requirements set forth in paragraph 1 hereof with respect to said cautionary statement.

It is further ordered, That respondents shall within 60 days after service upon them of this order file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF

NOMIS CORPORATION, ALSO TRADING AS LINGLE ADVERTISING AGENCY; SIMON LEVY; STOKER CORPORATION OF AMERICA, ALSO TRADING AS APROCS ADVERTISING AGENCY; AND CHARLES B. LEVY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 4580. Complaint, Aug. 29, 1941—Decision, Dec. 9, 1941

Where two corporations and the principal stockholder in each, formulating, controlling and directing its acts, practices and policies, engaged in the interstate offer and sale of their prefabricated "Nomis Ready-Cut Homes" to purchasers or so-called "distributors"; in pursuance of a scheme to induce individuals to purchase and execute written contracts for the purchase of their said houses and territorial rights for the sale thereof; and incident to which aforesaid individuals respectively made use of names of two pretended advertising agencies as mediums through which to carry out the deceptive acts and practices below set forth; through blind advertisements which they made a practice of running in the classified sections of newspapers in various States—

- (a) Represented and implied that persons replying thereto would have an opportunity to make an advantageous connection with a well-established and reliable factory engaged in manufacturing and distributing a complete line of prefabricated and ready-cut houses, and that they had a large volume of business, facts being they did not make such houses or own or operate a factory making them, and did not have the large volume of business represented, but had contracts with factories equipped to make such houses, which fact they failed to disclose to prospective distributors and customers, in some instances changing price lists prepared for their distributors, after contracts had been signed and following discontinuance of filling orders by factories with which they had agreements;
- (b) Represented and implied that the sum of $500, mentioned in their ads as capital required to handle a distributorship, was to establish the business and defray necessary expenses during the beginning period, when in fact it was a partial payment on their houses;
- (c) Represented that their houses were shipped complete and met specifications required for financing by lending agencies operating under the Federal Housing Administration Act, when they did not contain heating equipment and wiring and did not meet such specifications;
- (d) Represented that men in their organization were earning large sums of money and, in one instance, as much as $10,000 in one month, when in fact such persons did not make the large sums represented; their primary purpose in obtaining the execution of contracts was the sale of houses and so-called distributorship contracts were in reality contracts for the sale of houses to so-called distributors; and they failed, in some instances, to comply with contracts' provision regarding refund of down payment on houses; and

(e) Made such typical representations in form letters replying to inquiries received in response to aforesaid advertisements, in the name of one or the other of said purported advertising agencies, as "This ad was placed by us for one of our most valued clients, whose houses and buildings are manufactured in a factory covering over 20 acres of ground, and which for over 32 years has enjoyed successful building of quality products," "The distributorship to be opened is expected by our clients to do not less than $75,000.00 worth of business per year and to earn for the distributor selected not less than $20,000.00 a year," and "This distributor, through the Federal Housing Plan, will have the benefits of unlimited capital to properly handle all of the business which can be done by the distributor and the many dealers he will control. * * *," and requested that certain questions be answered in confidence with a view to deciding whether or not applicant's past experience would justify supposed advertiser's clients giving him "a ten year contract to control this important distribution," in which event he would "be invited to Indianapolis" with all expenses paid;

When in fact said form letters were written by or under the direction of aforesaid individuals and not by a bona fide advertising agency, as indicated, and supposed signing "president" and "assistant manager" thereof, respectively, were their employees; any advertising done by the supposed agencies was incidental to sale of the houses in question, and persons connected therewith were not advertising specialists but directed their sole efforts to aforesaid deceptive and misleading sales plan; expenses of prospective distributors who were induced to visit their home offices through such statements were paid or refunded only to those who executed contracts and made partial payments on houses; prospective distributors were not given test to determine their particular qualifications nor invited to visit the home offices unless their answers to questionnaires indicated that they had the $500 mentioned in the blind advertisement, and the chief qualification required was possession of $250 to $500 which prospect was willing to pay as a deposit;

With the result that a substantial portion of the public was misled into the mistaken belief that such representations and implications were true, and many prospective distributors throughout many States were induced to visit their offices and execute contracts requiring the purchase of a stated number of houses and make partial payments thereon under the mistaken belief that the contract was an exclusive distributorship and the payment a deposit to secure it:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Mr. S. F. Rose for the Commission.

Nash & Donnelly, of Washington, D. C., for respondents.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Nomis Corporation, a corporation doing business under its corporate name and also under the name of Lingle Advertising Agency, Simon Levy, an individual, Stoker Corporation of America, a corporation doing business under its corporate name and also under the name of Aprocs Advertising Agency, and Charles B. Levy, an individual, hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be to the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, Nomis Corporation, is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Indiana, and does business under its corporate name and also under the name of Lingle Advertising Agency, with its principal place of business formerly located at 410-420 Lingle Street, Lafayette, Ind., and now being operated from a so-called branch office at 224 Hildebrandt Building, Jacksonville, Fla.

Respondent, Simon Levy, an individual, is now, and since the date of its incorporation has been, the principal stockholder in and has formulated, controlled and directed the acts, practices and policies of respondent Nomis Corporation. He maintains his principal office and place of business at 224 Hildebrandt Building, Jacksonville, Fla.

Respondent, Stoker Corporation of America, is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Indiana and does business under its corporate name and also under the name of Aprocs Advertising Agency, with its principal place of business located at 2440 Meridian Street, Indianapolis, Ind.

Respondent, Charles B. Levy, an individual, is now, and has been, the principal stockholder in and has formulated, controlled and directed the acts, practices and policies of respondent Stoker Corporation of America.

All of said respondents are now, and have been for more than two years last past, engaged in the offering for sale and sale of prefabricated and ready-cut houses, advertised as "Nomis Ready-Cut Homes," to purchasers hereinafter referred to as "distributors," located at various points in the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondents cause said houses, when sold, to be transported from the place where manufactured to purchasers thereof located in States other than the State where such houses are manufactured and in the District of Columbia.

Respondents, in the course and conduct of the business aforesaid, and in adopting and carrying out the sales plan or scheme hereinafter referred to, and in doing the acts and things hereinafter set forth, have acted together and in cooperation with each other.

Complaint

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of their business aforesaid, for the purpose of inducing individuals to purchase, and to execute written contracts for the purchase of, their said houses, and territorial rights for the sale of same, respondents have devised a fraudulent sales plan and scheme which has the tendency to and does induce the purchase of, and the execution of agreements to purchase, respondents' said houses.

As a part of such fraudulent sales plan or scheme respondents operate and carry on much of their business in the names of fictitious advertising agencies, which are used as mediums for the use of deceptive acts and practices in deceiving prospective distributors and ultimate purchasers into believing that respondent corporations are large, well-established and reliable business establishments engaged in the manufacture of prefabricated and ready-cut houses. In this respect a part of the business of the Nomis Corporation is carried on under the name of Lingle Advertising Agency while the name of Aprocs Advertising Agency is used by the Stoker Corporation of America.

PAR. 3. Respondent corporations, acting by and through the individual respondents and other authorized agents under their direction, in furtherance of said sales plan, adopted the practice of running what are known as "blind advertisements" in the classified advertisement section of various newspapers located in various States of the United States. Among and typical of these advertisements are the following, the one first set out being the advertisement of the respondent Nomis Corporation and the individual respondent Simon Levy, and the one last set out being the advertisement of the respondent Stoker Corporation of America and the individual respondent Charles B. Levy:

In said advertisements the respondents imply and represent that persons responding to same will have an opportunity to make an advantageous connection with a well-established and reliable factory engaged in manufacturing and distributing a complete line of prefabricated and ready-cut houses; that the sum of $500 is to establish the business and defray necessary expenses during the beginning period; that said houses are shipped complete; that respondents have a large volume of business; and that men in their organizations are earning large sums of money, in one instance as much as $10,000 in one month.

In truth and in fact respondents are not and were not manufacturers of prefabricated and ready-cut houses. They do not own or operate a factory or plan in which such houses may be made. They do not have, nor have they had, the large volume of business represented, and persons in such organizations do not make or earn and have not made or earned the large sums of money represented. The sum of $500 represented as the cash capital necessary for handling a distributorship is and was a sum demanded and received by the respondents from prospective distributors as partial payment on a specified number of houses. Said houses were not and are not complete as represented as they do not contain wiring for electricity or heating equipment. So-called distributorship contracts entered into with purchasers of said houses are in reality contracts for the sale of houses to so-called distributors and contain provisions permitting a forfeiture of the down payments made on the houses for various and sundry reasons and are so drawn and of such a nature as to make it a practical impossibility for so-called distributors to comply with the terms and conditions thereof, thereby permitting the respondents to declare the contracts violated and the down payments on houses secured from so-called distributors forfeited. These contracts are used to sell houses, not for the purpose of securing distributors. The respondents fail and refuse, in many instances, to comply with the terms of the contracts which provide, under certain conditions, for a return to the so-called distributors of the down payments made to respondent.

PAR. 4. In furtherance of the deceptive acts and practices aforesaid and in carrying out said scheme or plan, respondents cause questionnaires as to the qualifications of distributors to be mailed to persons answering such advertisements under the name of one or the other of the so-called advertising agencies. Letters containing many false and deceptive statements and representations regarding the corporate respondents and their business are also mailed to persons answering such advertisements under the name of one or the other of the so-called advertising agencies.

Among and typical of the false statements and representations disseminated by the so-called advertising agencies are the following:

This ad was placed by us for one of our most valued clients, whose houses and building are manufactured in a factory covering twenty acres of ground, and which for over thirty-two years has enjoyed successful building of quality products.

The distributorship to be opened is expected by our client to do not less than $75,000 worth of business per year and to earn for the distributor selected not less than $20,000 a year.

We have handled the advertising of this client for over five years and we know the various types of men who can make a success of the distribution. Before going into the details with you, I will appreciate your answering the questions which I am enclosing you and then returning them to me. Your answers will be absolutely confidential and if, after receiving your answers, I feel that you are a man with past experience that would justify our client's giving you a ten years' contract to control this important distribution, then you will be invited to Indianapolis, all of your expenses paid. * * * If on the other hand your answers indicate that you couldn't do the job successfully, then you will not be asked to come.

This distributor, through the Federal Housing Plan is offered the benefit of unlimited capital to properly handle all of the business which can be done by the distributor and the many dealers he will control.

Furthermore, in pursuance of the sales plan and scheme of respondents, receipt of the questionnaire from prospective distributor is ac-knowledgeed by a form letter through one of the so-called advertising agencies. Each prospective distributor is advised that he will make an excellent distributor and will soon be enjoying a large monthly income if he accepts the distributorship. Many extravagant statements and false representations, such as, that the expenses of the trip to the home office of respondents will be paid applicants who secure distributorships or to those who, in the opinion of the sales manager, are not suitable, and that only a selected number of applicants will be chosen as distributors, are made to induce the prospects to visit the home office of the respondents for a personal conference with the sales manager.

By the means and in the manner aforesaid respondents represent and imply, and have represented and implied that such letters are and were written by bona fide advertising agencies in the usual course of business, that the respondent corporations own and successfully operate large factories which afford prospective distributors remunerative business opportunities for selling a product for which a great demand exists and which meets the requirements for Federal Housing Administration financing.

In truth and in fact, said plan or scheme was false, deceptive and misleading in all its phases and was designed only for the purpose of extracting money from prospects through down payments made on respondents' houses. The newspaper advertisements and all correspondence had with the prospective distributors are written by the individual respondents, Simon Levy and Charles Levy, or by employees under their direction. The expenses of all prospective distributors who visit the home office of respondents for personal conferences with the sales manager are not paid, but only those prospective distributors who execute contracts requiring the purchase of a stated number of houses and pay to the respondents a partial payment on each of such houses receives a refund of any portion of the expense incurred in journeying to and returning from respondents' office and place of business.

The respondents make no test of, or have any special qualifications for distributors, the only qualification being that the distributor has a sum of money ranging from $250 to $500 or more to pay the respondents as a deposit on a specified number of houses.

In truth and in fact, many houses advertised as being complete do not include wiring and a heating system. Such houses do not meet the specifications necessary to obtain loans through lending agencies lending money under the law administered by the Federal Housing Administration.

PAR. 5. Pursuant to said fraudulent sales plan, the individual respondents, acting in the names of the respective advertising agencies, through the false representations set out in the preceding paragraph, have induced and persuaded many prospective distributors, located throughout many States of the United States, to visit the offices of respondents located in the State of Indiana, for the purpose and with the intent of inducing such prospective distributors to execute contracts requiring the purchase of a stated number of houses and to induce such prospective distributors to make partial payments on such houses.

PAR. 6. The use by the respondents of the aforesaid scheme and plan and said false, misleading and deceptive representations and implications has had and now has the capacity and tendency to and does mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that said false representations and implications are true and causes a substantial number of the public, because of such mistaken and erroneous belief, to purchase respondents' said houses and to make partial payments on said houses under contracts which permit the respondents to forfeit unfairly the partial payment made and not deliver to such members of the public, any of the houses purchased.

PAR. 7. The effect of the aforesaid plan and scheme of the respondents and the things done thereunder and pursuant thereto is to secure the execution by members of the public of a contract to purchase a definite number of houses and to pay to the respondents a sum of money as partial payment on each of such houses, under the mistaken belief that the contract is an exclusive distributorship contract and the payment made is not partial payment on a specified number of houses but a deposit made with the respondents in order to secure said exclusive distributorship.

PAR. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on August 29, 1941, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon said respondents Nomis Corporation, a corporation, trading under its corporate name and also as Lingle Advertising Agency; Simon Levy, an individual; Stoker Corporation of America, trading under its corporate name and also as Aprocs Advertising Agency; and Charles B. Levy, an individual, charging them with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On September 17, 1941, the respondents filed their answer in this proceeding. Thereafter a stipulation was entered into whereby it was stipulated and agreed that a statement of facts signed and executed by counsel for the respondents and Richard P. Whiteley, Assistant Chief Counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, subject to the approval of the Commission, may be taken as the facts in this proceeding and in lieu of testimony in support of the charges stated in the complaint or in opposition thereto, and that the said Commission may proceed upon said statement of facts to make its report, state its findings as to the facts and its conclusions based thereon and enter its order disposing of the proceeding without the presentation of argument or the filing of briefs. Respondents expressly waived the filing of the trial examiner's report upon the evidence. Thereafter this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, answer, and stipulation, said stipulation having been approved, accepted, and filed; and the Commission, having duly considered the same and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent Nomis Corporation is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Indiana. It does business under its corporate name and also under the name of Lingle Advertising Agency. Its principal place of business was formerly located at 410-420 Lingle Street, La Fayette, Ind. It is now being operated from a so-called branch office at 224 Hildebrandt Building, Jacksonville, Fla.

Respondent Simon Levy, an individual, is now, and since the date of its incorporation has been, the principal stockholder in and has formulated, controlled, and directed the acts, practices, and policies of respondent Nomis Corporation. He maintains his principal office and place of business at 224 Hildebrandt Building, Jacksonville, Fla.

Respondent Stoker Corporation of America is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Indiana and does business under its corporate name and also under the name of Aprocs Advertising Agency. Its principal place of business is located at 2440 Meridian Street, Indianapolis, Ind.

Respondent Charles B. Levy, an individual, is the principal stockholder in and has formulated, controlled, and directed the acts, practices, and policies of respondent Stoker Corporation of America.

All of said respondents are now, and have been for more than 2 years last past, engaged in the offering for sale and sale of prefabricated and ready-cut houses, advertised as "Nomis Ready-Cut Homes," to purchasers hereinafter referred to as "distributors" located at various points in the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondents cause said houses, when sold, to be transported from the place where manufactured to purchasers thereof located in States of the United States other than the State where such houses are manufactured and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of their business aforesaid, for the purpose of inducing individuals to purchase and to execute written contracts for the purchase of their said houses and the territorial rights for the sale of same, respondents, acting by and through the two individual respondents, devised a deceptive and misleading sales plan which has the tendency to, and does, induce the purchase of and the execution of agreements to purchase respondents' said houses.

The plan to deceive prospective distributors and ultimate purchasers consists in part of deception in advertising. The advertising done by the respondents in carrying out such plan, and a part of the business done in connection with same, is in the name of one or the other of the advertising agencies. Respondent Simon Levy uses the name of Lingle Advertising Agency to promote and carry out the sales plan operated in the name of Nomis Corporation, while respondent Charles B. Levy uses the name of Aprocs Advertising Agency to promote and carry out the sales plan operated in the name of Stoker Corporation of America. These advertising agencies are unincorporated and are used as mediums through which to carry out many of the deceptive acts and practices used by the respondents. The result of the use of such advertising agencies in each instance was to deceive prospective distributors into believing that the respondent corporations were large, well-established, and reliable business establishments which were engaged in the manufacture of prefabricated and ready-cut houses. These advertising agencies are not engaged in the general advertising business and any advertising business that might have been done by either of them was incidental only to the sale of respondents' said houses. Persons connected with such agencies were not advertising specialists and their sole efforts were directed to the advertising conducted by the individual respondents in connection with such deceptive and misleading sales plan.

PAR. 3. Respondent corporations, acting by and through the individual respondents and other authorized agents under their direction, in furtherance of said sales plan adopted the practice of running what are known as "blind advertisements" in the classified advertisement section of various newspapers located in various States of the United States. Among and typical of these advertisements are the following, the one first set out being the advertisement of the respondent Nomis Corporation and the individual respondent Simon Levy and the one last set out being the advertisement of the respondent Stoker Corporation of America and the individual respondent Charles B. Levy:

Get the full facts, it's the most wonderful opportunity in business today! Men in our organization have made more than they ever earned. One man earned over $10,000.00 in one month.

Write Box 5005, Station A, Indianapolis, Ind., for details.

In said advertisements the respondents imply and represent that persons responding to same will have an opportunity to make an advantageous connection with a well-established and reliable factory engaged in manufacturing and distributing a complete line of prefabricated and ready-cut houses; that the sum of $500 is to establish the business and defray necessary expenses during the beginning period; that said houses are shipped complete; that respondents have a large volume of business; and that men in their organizations are earning large sums of money, in one instance as much as $10,000 in 1 month.

PAR. 4. Respondents did not, and do not, manufacture prefabricated and ready-cut houses. They did not, and do not, own or operate a factory or plant in which such houses may be made. They do not have, nor have they had, the large volume of business represented. Persons connected with their organizations do not make or earn, and have not made or earned, the large sums of money represented. The sum of $500 represented as the capital necessary for handling a distributorship is, in fact, the sum of money demanded by the respondents from prospective distributors as partial payment on respondents' houses. Respondents did have contracts with factories which were equipped to manufacture prefabricated and ready-cut houses. This fact was not disclosed to prospective distributors and persons dealing with the respondents. In some instances factories with which respondents had agreements discontinued filling orders for respondents and price lists prepared by respondents for their distributors were changed after contracts had been signed by distributors who had agreed to sell respondents' houses. Such houses as were sold by the respondents were not, as represented, complete in that they did not contain heating equipment and wiring. As a rule these houses do not, as represented by said respondents, meet specifications required for financing by lending agencies operating under the Federal Housing Administration Act. The respondents' primary purpose in obtaining the execution of the contracts was to sell houses. The respondents have in some instances failed to comply with the provisions of the contract regarding the refund of money which had been paid respon-ents as down payments on houses purchased. A refund was made in one instance, after the matter was placed in the hands of attorneys. These so-called distributorship contracts entered into with purchasers of said houses are in reality contracts for the sale of houses to so-called distributors.

PAR. 5. When a reply to respondents' advertisements is received by one or the other of the advertising agencies, the respondents then mail to the person answering such advertisements a form letter written on the stationery of one or the other of the advertising agencies. The persons whose names are signed to these letters, in one instance as president and in the other instance as assistant manager, are employees of the respondents and do not hold the official positions indicated.

Among and typical of statements made in such letters are the following:

This ad was placed by us for one of our most valued clients, whose Houses and Buildings are manufactured in a factory covering over 20 acres of ground, and which for over 32 years has enjoyed successful building of quality products. * * *

The distributorship to be opened is expected by our clients to do not less than $75,000.00 worth of business per year and to earn for the distributor selected not less than $20,000.00 a year. This distributor, through the Federal Housing Plan, will have the benefit of unlimited capital to properly handle all of the business which can be done by the distributor and the many dealers he will control. * * *

We have handled the advertising of this client for over five years and we know the various types of men who can make a success of the distribution. Before going into further details with you, I will appreciate your answering the questions which I am enclosing you and then returning them to me. Your answers will be absolutely confidential and if, after receiving your answers, I feel you are a man with past experience that would justify our clients giving you a ten year contract to control this important distribution, then you will be invited to Indianapolis, all of your expenses paid, * * *.

If, on the other hand, your answers indicate that you couldn't do the job successfully, then you will not be asked to come. * * *

The form letters used by respondents mislead and deceive persons receiving them. These letters and the advertisements referred to are written by or under the direction of the individual respondents and not by a bona fide advertising agency, as indicated. The expenses of all prospective distributors who are induced to visit the home offices of the respondents through the statements set out in said letters, as well as in other letters mailed to persons who have filled out and returned questionnaires mailed them by the respondents, are not paid by the respondents. Expenses incurred in visiting the home offices of respondents at their invitation are paid or refunded only to those persons who have executed respondents' contracts and have made partial payments on houses agreed to be bought by them. Persons are not invited to visit the home offices of the respondents unless their answers to the questionnaires indicate they have the $500 mentioned in the blind advertisement. The representations concerning refunds of such expenses are misleading and deceptive to many individuals who become interested in respondents' business.

The prospective distributors are not given a test for their particular qualifications. The chief qualification required of a prospective distributor is the possession of a sum of money ranging from $250 to $500 which he is willing to pay as a deposit to defray the expenditures incident to securing the distributorship for respondents' said houses.

PAR. 6. Pursuant to said sales plan the individual respondents, acting in the names of the respective advertising agencies, through the false representations set out in the preceding paragraphs have induced and persuaded many prospective distributors located throughout many States of the United States to visit the offices of the respondents located in the State of Indiana and to execute contracts requiring the purchase of a stated number of houses and to make partial payments on such houses.

PAR 7. Prior to the early part of the year 1940 the respondent Simon Levy had promoted and been responsible for the conduct of the business in the manner set out in the preceding paragraphs. About such time arrangements were made between Simon Levy and Charles B. Levy whereby the Stoker Corporation of America would take over the selling of Nomis houses through distributors to be under contract with Stoker Corporation of America. Thereafter Simon Levy agreed to limit his activities in the business to the filling of such orders as might be received from the Nomis distributors. Under this arrangement any houses sold by distributors under contract with the Nomis Corporation were to be furnished by the Stoker Corporation of America at the same prices paid by distributors under the Stoker Corporation of America. No definite agreement was made by the individual respondents with respect to a division of the profits from the undertaking, each relying upon the other to agree to an equitable division of the profits made considering their respective interests. Subsequent to such time, Simon Levy became inactive in the actual management of the business and was succeeded by Charles B. Levy, who continued the same in the manner described in the preceding paragraphs until later in the year 1940. The business of respondents during the last year has been confined mainly to furnishing such houses as their distributors might sell under contracts already existing.

PAR. 8. The acts, practices, and methods set out above have misled and deceived a substantial portion of the public into the mistaken and erroneous belief that the representations and implications above referred to were, and are, true and by reason thereof caused such persons to make partial payments on houses under the contracts which are hereinbefore referred to.

PAR. 9. The effect of the aforesaid plan and scheme of the respondents, and the things done thereunder and pursuant thereto, is to secure the execution by members of the public of a contract to purchase a definite number of houses and to pay to the respondents a sum of money as partial payments on each of such houses, under the mistaken belief that the contract is an exclusive distributorship contract and the payment made is not partial payment on a specified number of houses but a deposit made with the respondents in order to secure said exclusive distributorship.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

It is ordered, That respondents, Nomis Corporation, a corporation, trading under its own or any other name; Stoker Corporation of America, a corporation, trading under its own or any other name; Simon Levy, an individual; Charles B. Levy, an individual; and their respective officers and/or representatives, agents, and employees; either jointly or severally, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, or distribution of prefabricated or ready-cut houses or other products in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from directly or by implication:

5. 6. Representing that houses offered for sale or sold by respondents which do not contain all the essential features usually found in houses of the same type and character are complete.

7. Representing that houses offered for sale or sold by respondents meet the specifications required by lending agencies operated under the Federal Housing Administration Act, when such is not the fact.

8. Representing that prospective purchasers or so-called distributors are given any test to determine their qualifications for a distributorship, or that any particular qualifications are required other than possession of a sum of money sufficient to make a down payment upon the purchase of respondents' houses, when such is not the fact.

9. Using or employing a sales plan or method of selling their products, or territorial or franchise rights for the distribution of same, which includes representations by advertising agencies or other instrumentalities which are apparently independent of respondents but which are in fact owned or controlled by respondents, without disclosing the true connection of such advertising agency or other instrumentality with respondents.

It is further ordered, That the respondents shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF

JAMES R. MIDDLEBROOK, M. D., DOING BUSINESS AS MIDDLEBROOK HOSPITAL AND CLINIC

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 4539. Complaint, July 16, 1941—Decision, Dec. 11, 1941

Where a doctor of medicine, with offices, hospital, and clinic in a certain Texas city, engaged in the surgical and medical treatment of diseases and disorders of the prostate gland, and in distributing through the mails, advertising and other literature, which had the capacity and tendency to induce prospective patients to travel to his place of business for treatment; and engaged, further, in the interstate offer, sale, and distribution of certain medicinal preparations in a "Special Prostate Package for Home Treatment," containing (1) "Calomel, Rhubarb, and Colocynth Compound," (2) "Special Formula No. 17831," and (3) "Methenamine (7½ Grains)";

By means of letters, circulars, booklets, and other advertising literature (along with requests, on the reverse side of many of his advertisements, for names and addresses of men believed to have prostate or rectal troubles, together with an offer to award the forwarder a $10 credit on medical services rendered in aforesaid city following the furnishing of such names); directly or by implication—

- (a) Falsely represented that preparations contained in said "Special Package" would relieve pain and soothe and heal the affected parts involved in kidney, bladder, and rectal diseases and diseases of the prostate gland;
- (b) Falsely represented that said "Methenamine (7½ Grains)" was one of the best urinary antiseptic treatments for cleansing infections and inflammation from the kidneys, bladder, and prostate and urethral canal; facts being said product would be effective only when urine was sufficiently acid to liberate formaldehyde, and contained no ingredient insuring constant acidity of the urine;
- (c) Falsely represented that said "Special Formula No. 17831," when applied through the rectum, "was absorbed through and into" the prostate gland in sufficient quantities to be effective;
- (d) Falsely represented that the price of his said package of preparations was normally $7.50, but that it was offered at a special introductory price of $5.00, facts being $5.00 was the price for which it was generally sold; and
- (e) Failed to reveal that prescribed use of his cathartic "Calomel, Rhubarb, and Colocynth Compound" by one suffering from nausea, vomiting, abdominal pains, or other symptoms of appendicitis, was dangerous;

With effect of misleading and deceiving a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the belief that such false representations were true, and further effect of causing it because of said mistaken belief, to purchase his said "Special Package":

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

SPECIAL PROSTATE PACKAGE FOR HOME TREATMENT

Recommended by J. R. Middlebrook, M. D.

So many of my prospective patients who suffer from kidney, bladder, rectal, and prostate gland trouble, have written to me saying that either because of lack of funds or other personal reasons, that they are unable to come at this time, and have asked me to recommend some of the medicine which I use for them to take at home until they can make the trip to Del Rio for complete treatment. It may be that you are in a similar condition.

I have prepared what I call the "Prostate Package" which is recommended for the relief of kidney, bladder, rectal, and especially the diseases of the prostate gland. It consists of three kinds of medicine to be taken both internally and applied through the rectum, thereby getting this medicine into the gland direct and also letting the gland tissues absorb medicine through and into the gland, which relieves the pain, soothes and heals the affected parts.

This treatment is designed to help clear the infection and inflammation from the kidneys, bladder, rectum, and prostate and give relief from pain and discomforts of these diseases.

The price of this package complete is $5.00 postage prepaid. I assure you that the highest quality ingredients only are used because I want you to be a patient who will be satisfied.

THIS PACKAGE SOLD UNDER A MONEY BACK GUARANTEE

Because this treatment has proven so successful, we are able to sell this remedy so that if it does not help you after you have given it a fair trial, and you return the unused portion of the medicine in good condition, we will refund your money on the amount of medicine which is not used.

I believe you will agree that this is a fair way in which to deal. You stand a very small chance to lose anything, and you have everything to gain. Order your package today.

The medicine to be taken internally is one of the best urinary antiseptics, which is designed to help clear the infection and inflammation from the kidneys, bladder, prostate, and urethral canal, while the medicine used by application through the rectum is absorbed through and into the gland relieves the pain and soothes the inflamed parts.

On the reverse side of many of respondent's said advertisements appear testimonials from persons allegedly recommending the purchase and use of respondent's said Special Prostate Package for Home Treatment, while other of respondent's said advertisements similarly contain requests by respondent for the names and addresses of men believed to have prostate or rectal troubles, and offering the forwarder a $10 credit on medical services to be rendered in Del Rio upon the furnishing of such names and addresses.

PAR. 3. Through the use of the statements and representations hereinabove set forth and other statements and representations similar thereto, not specifically set out herein, all of which purport to be descriptive of the therapeutic properties of the preparations contained in respondent's "Special Prostate Package for Home Treatment," respondent represents, directly and by implication, that said preparations relieve pain and soothe and heal affected parts involved in kidney, bladder, and rectal diseases, and diseases of the prostate gland; that "Methenamine (7½ Grains)" is one of the best urinary antiseptic treatments for cleansing infections and inflammation from the kidneys, bladder, and prostate and urethral canal; that said preparation, "Special Formula No. 17831," when applied through the rectum medicates or "gets into" prostate gland in sufficient quantities by absorption through the tissues to be effective; and that the price of respondent's said package of preparations is normally $7.50 but that it is offered for sale and sold at a special introductory price of $5.

PAR. 4. The foregoing statements and advertisements of the respondent are grossly exaggerated, false, and misleading.

In truth and in fact, the preparations contained in respondent's said Special Prostate Package for Home Treatment will not relieve pain and soothe and heal affected parts involved in kidney, bladder, and rectal diseases, and diseases of the prostate gland. Said preparation, "Methenamine (7½ Grains)," is not one of the best urinary antiseptics for cleansing infections and inflammations from the kidneys, bladder, and prostate and urethral canal. Respondent's preparation, "Special Formula No. 17831," when applied through the rectum, will not medicate or "get into" the prostate gland in sufficient quantities by absorption through the tissues to be effective. The usual price of respondent's said "Special Prostate Package for Home Treatment" is not $7.50 but said package is sold generally by respondent for the price of $5. The respondent's so-called introductory offer price of $5 for said "Special Prostate Package for Home Treatment" is not an introductory price.

Respondent's preparation designated as Calomel, Rhubarb, and Colocynth Compound is limited in its therapeutic effect to the temporary evacuation of the bowels and its use would not constitute an effective treatment for infections or inflammations of the rectum and it is of no therapeutic value in the treatment of any infection or inflammation of the kidneys, bladder, or prostate gland, nor will it relieve the pain and discomfort attending such disorders.

Respondent's preparation, "Methenamine (7½ Grains)," although possessing antiseptic qualities, would be effective only when the urine was sufficiently acid to liberate formaldehyde. This product contains no ingredients insuring the constant acidity of the urine and its efficacy in neutral or alkaline urine would be of no significance.

PAR. 5. The respondent's advertisements disseminated as aforesaid constitute false advertisements for the further reason that they fail to reveal facts material in the light of such representations, or material with respect to consequences which may result from the use of the preparation to which the advertisements relate under the conditions prescribed in said advertisements, or under such conditions as are customary or usual.

In truth and in fact, respondent's preparation "Calomel, Rhubarb, and Colocynth Compound" is a cathartic and its use, by one suffering from nausea, vomiting, abdominal pains, or other symptoms of appendicitis, is dangerous.

PAR. 6. The use by the respondent of the foregoing false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations, and others of a similar nature disseminated as aforesaid, has had, and now has, the tendency and capacity to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such false statements, representations, and advertisements are true, and to induce a substantial portion of the purchasing public, because of such mistaken and erroneous belief, to purchase respondent's said "Special Prostate Package for Home Treatment."

PAR. 7. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

In truth and in fact, respondent's preparations designated "Ton Jon No. 1" and "Ton Jon No. 2" are cathartics and their use, by one suffering from nausea, vomiting, abdominal pains or other symptoms of appendicitis, is dangerous.

PAR. 6. The use by the respondent of the foregoing false and misleading statements and representations, and others of similar nature, disseminated as aforesaid, has had, and now has, the tendency and capacity to, and does, mislead a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such false statements, representations and advertisements are true, and to induce a substantial portion of the purchasing public, because of such mistaken and erroneous belief, to purchase respondent's said preparations.

Whiteside, an individual, trading as Grant Co., charging him with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On August 20, 1941, the respondent filed his answer, in which answer he admitted all the material allegations of fact set out in said complaint to be true. In his supplemental answer of September 24, 1941, the respondent waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to the facts. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and the answers thereto, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

A. S. ALOE COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SUBSEC. (f) OF SEC. 2 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED OCT. 15, 1914, AS AMENDED BY AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED JUNE 19, 1936

Docket 3820. Complaint, June 14, 1939—Decision, Dec. 15, 1941

Where a corporation engaged in the manufacture and competitive interstate purchase, sale and distribution of surgical equipment, instruments, and supplies, including pressure and suction pumps, sterilizers, thermometers, syringes, and blood pressure measuring instruments, with principal place of business in St. Louis and branch distributing houses in Kansas City and Los Angeles, constituting one of the largest retail dealers in such products in the United States, and an important outlet therefor for manufacturers, jobbers, importers and distributors, and facilitating sales through its said two branches, a staff of approximately 100 traveling salesmen and general distribution to physicians, surgeons, hospitals, laboratories and others of a large number of catalogs, whereby it secured many mail orders;

Knowingly induced and received, through a studied and persistent course of action to induce sellers to grant to it favorable discriminatory prices, the benefit of differentials between the prices paid by it and those paid by its competitors for surgical products, varying from 10 to 40 percent less for such products of like grade and quality than paid by certain of its competitors to such sellers;

With result that the sum of such differentials in price might be to enable it—

1. To issue and distribute, through use of such sum to a substantial degree, large numbers of elaborate catalogs with each issue "larger and more complete than its predecessor" leading to its receiving many mail orders, and serving to introduce and lend prestige to its sales force;

2. To employ a larger and better qualified staff of traveling salesmen and to increase its sales force materially, or to remunerate such salesmen by very liberal commissions based on sales of surgical products, and to enable such salesmen to effect sales by granting excessive trade-in allowances, the used surgical products so traded in becoming the property of the salesman and the allowance being charged against salesman's commission;

3. To build up a demand for its surgical products by presenting free surgical products to the heads of medical departments, and to allow some of its salesmen to grant purchasers discounts from its regular list prices for certain products;

4. To sell a large percentage of its surgical products on liberal credit terms and to advertise such favorable terms, requiring only a small down payment with no interest on deferred payments, which were generally extended from 10 to 18 months and, in some instances, longer periods;

Effect of which discriminations in price, benefits whereof, thus received by it, were denied its competitors, might be substantially to lessen competition and tend to create a monopoly in it in the line of commerce concerned, and to injure, destroy or prevent competition with it in the resale of said surgical products of like grade and quality purchased from said sellers:

Held, That said corporation, in knowingly inducing and receiving such differentials in price which were prohibited by section 2 (a) of the Clayton

COMPLAINT

The Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that the party respondent named in the caption hereof and hereinafter more particularly designated and described, since June 19, 1936, has violated and is now violating the provisions of section 2 of the Clayton Act, as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act approved June 19, 1936 (U. S. C. title 15, sec. 13), hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges with respect thereto as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, A. S. Aloe Co. (hereinafter called Aloe), is a corporation, organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Missouri, having its office and principal place of business located at 1819-21-23 Olive Street, St. Louis, Mo.

PAR. 2. Respondent Aloe is now and has been since June 19, 1936, engaged in the business of buying, selling, and distributing surgical equipment, instruments, and supplies (including pressure and suction pumps, sterilizers, thermometers, syringes, blood pressure measuring instruments, chemicals, and other similar products hereinafter designated as surgical products from its principal place of business, and from its two branch distributing houses, one of which is located in Kansas City, Mo., and the other in Los Angeles, Calif.

Respondent facilitates sales by the use of its 2 distributing branches hereinbefore mentioned; a large staff of traveling salesmen, numbering approximately 100, who travel throughout the United States soliciting and securing orders; and the general distribution to physicians, surgeons, hospitals, laboratories, and others, of approximately 100 thousand catalogs, each year, listing and illustrating respectively its surgical products, hospital supplies, and laboratory equipment. The distribution of said catalogs results in respondent Aloe securing many orders for surgical products transmitted to it by mail.

Respondent Aloe is one of the largest dealers in surgical products in the United States, and as a consequence is an essential outlet to sellers of such surgical products, hereinafter referred to, who wish extensive distribution of their surgical products throughout the United States.

Respondent Aloe in the course and conduct of its business is now and since June 19, 1936, has been in substantial competition with other corporations, individuals, partnerships, and firms similarly engaged in the business of buying, selling, and distributing surgical products, except insofar as such competition has been affected by the practices which are the subject of this complaint.

PAR. 3. Respondent Aloe and the competitors of respondent Aloe buy said surgical products from a large number of manufacturers, jobbers, importers, and distributors located in the various States of the United States (hereinafter called sellers), who, so far as is known to the Commission, are as follows:

Willmot Castle Co., Rochester, N. Y.
William A. Baum Co., New York City, N. Y.
Empire State Thermometer Co., New York City, N. Y.
Mallinckrodt Chemical Works, New York City, N. Y.
J. Sklar Manufacturing Co., Brooklyn, N. Y.
Star Surgical Instrument Mfg. Co., Chicago, Ill.
Western Instrument & Manufacturing Co., Chicago, Ill.
H. Carstens Manufacturing Co., Chicago, Ill.
Penn Surgical Manufacturing Co., Philadelphia, Pa.
F. Dittmar & Co., Inc., Philadelphia, Pa.

Each of said sellers sell and distribute surgical products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia, causing said surgical products to be shipped and transported from their respective places of business in the various States of the United States to respondent Aloe at its principal place of business in St. Louis, Mo., to its two branch distributing points located in Kansas City, Mo., and Los Angeles, Calif., and to respondent Aloe's customers, to competitors of respondent Aloe, and to said competitors' customers located in the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia.

Respondent Aloe and respondent's competitors resell and distribute said surgical products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia, causing said surgical products to be shipped and transported from their respective places of business in the various States of the United States to their respective customers located in the various States of the United States and the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of their respective businesses as above described, said sellers have been and are now being induced by respondent Aloe to discriminate in price between different purchasers buying said surgical products of like grade and quality in commerce for use, consumption and resale within the United States by charging said competitors of respondent Aloe higher prices than those charged respondent Aloe. Said discriminations in prices which favor respondent Aloe are not uniform on each surgical product sold or from each seller. Respondent Aloe pays said sellers from approximately 10 percent to approximately 30 percent less for said surgical products of like grade and quality than respondent's competitors pay said sellers, depending upon the surgical product and the seller, or either of them.

PAR. 5. The effect of said discriminations in prices, as set forth in paragraph 4 hereof, may be substantially to lessen competition, and to tend to create a monopoly in respondent Aloe in the line of commerce in which respondent Aloe and its competitors are engaged, and to injure, destroy, or prevent competition with respondent Aloe in the resale of said surgical products of like grade and quality purchased from said sellers.

PAR. 6. Respondent Aloe receives information as to the prices paid by its competitors to said sellers for said surgical products, refuses to purchase said surgical products from said seller unless it is granted prices lower than paid by its competitors, and accepts and receives such lower prices on said surgical products and thereby and while engaged in commerce, and in the course of such commerce, as alleged in paragraph 3 hereof, is now and has been since June 19, 1936, knowingly inducing and receiving the discriminations in price alleged in paragraph 4 hereof.

PAR. 7. The foregoing alleged acts of said respondent Aloe are in violation of Section 2 (f) of said act of Congress approved June 19, 1936, entitled "An Act to amend section 2 of the act entitled 'An Act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies, and for other purposes,' approved October 15, 1914, as amended (U. S. C. title 15, sec. 13) and for other purposes."

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of an act of Congress entitled "An act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies, and for other purposes," approved October 15, 1914 (the Clayton Act), as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act, approved June 19, 1936 (U. S. C. title 15, sec. 13), the Federal Trade Commission on June 14, 1939, issued and served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondent, A. S. Aloe Co., a corporation, charging it with knowingly inducing and receiving discriminations in prices from various sellers, in violation of subsection (f) of section 2 of said act as amended.

After the issuance of the complaint and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of the complaint were introduced by Edward S. Ragsdale, attorney for the Commission, before John P. Bramhall, a duly appointed trial examiner of the Commission designated by it to serve in this proceeding.

After the introduction of said testimony and evidence, Milton H. Tucker, attorney for respondent, waived the introduction of evidence in opposition to the allegations of the complaint, trial examiner's report, filing of briefs, further hearings, and all intervening procedure.

Thereafter the respondent and its attorney entered into a stipulation as to the facts with W. T. Kelley, chief counsel of the Commission, which was approved by the Commission and entered of record. Said stipulation provides that the facts so stipulated, together with the testimony and exhibits introduced by the attorney for the Commission may be taken as the facts in this proceeding.

Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final consideration by the Commission upon the complaint, the answer thereto, the testimony and other evidence, and the stipulation as to the facts; and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, A. S. Aloe Co., is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Missouri, having its office and principal place of business located at 1819 Olive Street, St. Louis, Mo.

PAR. 2. Respondent is now and has been since June 19, 1936, engaged in the business of manufacturing, buying, selling, and distributing surgical equipment, instruments, and supplies, including pressure and suction pumps, sterilizers, thermometers, syringes, blood pressure measuring instruments, and other similar products hereinafter designated as surgical products, from its principal place of business and from its two branch distributing houses, one of which is located in Kansas City, Mo., and the other in Los Angeles, Calif.

Respondent is one of the largest retail dealers in surgical products in the United States, and is an important outlet of such surgical products for manufacturers, jobbers, importers and distributors hereinafter referred to, who wish extensive distribution of their surgical products throughout the United States.

Respondent facilitates sales by the use of its 2 distributing branches hereinbefore mentioned; a staff of approximately 100 traveling salesmen who travel throughout the United States soliciting and securing orders, and the general distribution to physicians, surgeons, hospitals, laboratories, and others of a large number of catalogs, listing and illustrating respectively its surgical products, hospital supplies, and laboratory equipment. Through such distribution respondent secures many mail orders for surgical products.

Respondent, in the course and conduct of its business, is now and since June 19, 1936, has been in substantial competition with other corporations, and with individuals, partnerships, and firms similarly engaged in the business of buying, selling, and distributing surgical products.

PAR. 3. Respondent and its competitors purchase in the various States of the United States many thousands of various types of surgical products from a large number of manufacturers, jobbers, importers, and distributors (hereinafter called "sellers") who are located in the various States of the United States, some of which are as follows:

American Cystoscope Makers, Inc., New York City.

W. A. Baum Co., Inc., New York City.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co., Rochester, N. Y.

Empire State Thermometer Co., New York City.

Rieker Instrument Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

Spencer Lens Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

The Vollrath Co., Sheboygan, Wis.

Welch Allyn Co., Auburn, N. Y.

Wilmot Castle Co., Rochester, N. Y.

H. Carstens Manufacturing Co., Chicago, Ill.

P. Dittmar & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

Penn Surgical Manufacturing Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

J. Sklar Manufacturing Co., Long Island City, N. Y.

Star Surgical Instrument Co., Chicago, Ill.

Western Instrument & Manufacturing Co., Chicago, Ill.

Each of said sellers sells and distributes surgical products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and causes such surgical products to be transported from their respective places of business in the various States of the United States to respondent at its principal place of business in St. Louis, Mo., and to respondent's two branch distributing houses. Such sellers also ship surgical products direct to respondent's customers, to competitors of respondent, and to the customers of respondent's competitors located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondent and its competitors resell and distribute said surgical products between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and cause said surgical products to be shipped and transported from their respective places of business located in the various States of the United States to their respective customers located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of their respective businesses as above described, the sellers named in paragraph 3 hereof have charged respondent, and respondent has received the benefit of, lower prices on surgical products sold by said sellers to respondent than said sellers have charged competitors for surgical products of like grade and quality.

The differentials between the prices paid by respondent and by its competitors to such sellers for surgical products of like grade and quality are not uniform on each surgical product. The prices paid by respondent to such various sellers vary from approximately 10 percent to approximately 40 percent less for surgical products of like grade and quality than certain of respondent's competitors pay said sellers, depending upon the surgical product and the seller, or either of them.

Invoices produced by respondent and 28 competitive retail surgical dealers, involving purchases of surgical products of like grade and quality from said sellers, appear in evidence, and comparison of the prices respondent and such competitors paid for said surgical products have been made and are the basis for the tabulation which follows. This tabulation shows the names of the sellers, some of the surgical products sold, the respective prices paid by respondent and some of its competitors for each illustrative surgical product listed, and the percentage of price differential in favor of the respondent for each item listed, and is illustrative of the products of like grade and quality purchased from the sellers named in paragraph 3 hereof:

PAR. 5. The sum of the differentials in price resulting from the lower prices set forth in paragraph 4, and granted the respondent since June 19, 1936, may be used to a substantial degree to enable the respondent to issue and distribute large numbers of elaborate catalogues to physicians, surgeons, hospitals and laboratories, each issue of such catalogue being "larger and more complete than its predecessor," and may result in respondent receiving many orders by mail and serve to introduce and lend prestige to its sales force.

It may, in part, further enable the respondent to employ a larger and better qualified staff of traveling salesmen and to increase its sales force materially, or to remunerate such salesmen on very liberal commissions based on the sales of surgical products, and to enable such salesmen to effect sales by granting, on occasion, excessive allowances on used surgical products traded in on respondent's new surgical products. Such used surgical products traded in become the property of the salesman, and the amount allowed purchaser is charged against the salesman's commission by respondent.

The lower prices respondent received may, in part, enable respondent in many instances to build up a demand for its surgical products by presenting, free, certain surgical products to the heads of the various medical departments. It may, in part, enable respondent to allow some of its salesmen, in securing orders for certain surgical products, to grant to purchasers discounts from the regular price listed in its catalogues. To illustrate, respondent advised its sale force that a few of its salesmen felt that a list price is something from which to base a discount, and that respondent seriously objected to its salesmen cutting prices and using their own discounts when such salesmen do not know anything about the cost involved.

It may, in part, also enable the respondent to sell a large percentage of its surgical products on liberal credit terms and to advertise such favorable terms, which require only a small down payment with no interest charged on deferred payments, which are generally extended from 10 to 18 months, though in some instances longer periods of time are permitted. For example:

A seller wrote respondent complaining of respondent's selling its surgical products on a basis of 20 percent down and the balance over a period of 18 months without interest on deferred payments. The seller advised that it strenuously objected to such terms, saying money is worth something and that the liberal terms could only be given by reason of the extra discounts obtained over what competitors receive. Seller informed respondent that this special discount was extended with the understanding that it would not be used in any way to give respondent a price advantage over competitors.

The respondent replied that its terms were just what they had always been, 20 percent down, balance in 10 months, with a more liberal policy to internes, who were allowed 18 months to pay installments, and it may be that seller's products were sold on the 18-month term occasionally.

Respondent Aloe's competitors who do not receive discriminatory prices from sellers are prevented, in part, from publishing and distributing elaborate catalogues, from employing larger staffs of traveling salesmen; from paying salesmen more liberal commissions; from selling their surgical products on financial terms as liberal as respondent's terms, or allowing discounts from their regular list prices, granting excessive allowances on used surgical products, and presenting as gifts, surgical products, or reducing regular prices, without sacrificing legitimate profits.

PAR. 6. By receiving the benefit of such lower prices as found in paragraph 4, which have the effect set forth in paragraph 5, respondent has received the benefit of discriminations in price which may substantially lessen competition and tend to create a monopoly in respondent in the line of commerce in which respondent and its competitors are engaged, and to injure, destroy, or prevent competition with respondents in the resale of said surgical products of like grade and quality purchased from said sellers.

PAR. 7. At all times since June 19, 1936, respondent received information as to the prices paid by its competitors, illustrations of which prices are shown in paragraph 4. Such information was received directly from sellers and from their published catalogues, advertisements and discount schedules, as well as from statements from one seller concerning the prices of another seller, and otherwise. The following specific examples indicate respondent's knowledge of receiving the benefit of price differentials:

(a) The respondent received a letter from a seller asking how the revised Robinson-Patman Act will affect its firm on the matter of special discounts and special prices that respondent had enjoyed. The seller further stated, "I am inclined to believe that the act will be upset by the Supreme Court, but in the meantime we are certainly playing with fire." Respondent replied it had been informed that until the Federal Trade Commission takes some action in its specialized line, to fix maximum discounts based on quantity, sellers could give whatever discount they desired; that doubtless small, specialized industries would be let alone unless some one made specific application to the Commission, and for that reason it was not worrying. Respondent again wrote the seller, saying it did not believe the act enforceable, and enclosed a clipping from the U. S. News relative to the difficulties of enforcing the act.

(b) A seller wrote respondent and enclosed a letter seller received from a retail surgical supply dealer, who requested information from seller concerning its future policy with reference to discounts granted Aloe, in view of the passage of the Robinson-Patman Act. The seller suggested to respondent that respondent must have gone into the question of special discounts quite deeply as it relates to business with such firms as the seller's. The seller further advised respondent that in his understanding of the act, both the seller and the buyer, in a proven violation, could be held responsible. The seller suggested, therefore, that it appeared desirable to review their selling arrangements.

(c) The respondent also received a letter from a seller, advising that a gentleman in the trade desired to know if the seller intended to continue selling respondent at special discounts, in view of the Robinson-Patman Act. Seller requested respondent to advise what it thought of the act's effect on their relationship.

(d) Respondent received from some sellers letters and memoranda of information as to standard discounts or net prices to surgical dealers generally, on certain surgical products, which letters pointed out the lower prices or larger discounts granted on similar products to respondent. In certain instances sellers advised respondent that they did not make money on certain surgical products sold to respondent at the prices received from respondent.

Findings

34 F. T. C.

(e) The respondent wrote a seller requesting seller's catalogue with information relative to trade discounts applicable, and additionally requested a memorandum listing the surgical products respondent was purchasing and the special prices it paid for such products.

(f) The respondent was advised of a surgical product distributed by a seller, and of seller's prices to wholesalers, and suggesting, when the seller solicited respondent's business, to keep the prices furnished confidential, but to go to work on the seller and get him down to the wholesale prices, and informant was sure respondent "had not lost any of its ability to do that."

(g) Respondent informed its salesmen that in soliciting orders not to be afraid to tell a prospective customer that prices of surgical products were up a little, as prices have been going up throughout the country, and respondent could not obtain goods from wholesalers and manufacturers at the old prices. Respondent, in the same communication, advised such salesmen, your competitor is suffering worse than we are.

(h) A seller advised respondent that at a conference of surgical supply dealers, several dealers "were of the opinion that all the woes of the local surgical dealers would be eliminated if manufacturers would only discontinue special or preferential discounts given to the Aloe Company."

PAR. 8. At all times since June 19, 1936, respondent has knowingly engaged in practices calculated to, and which did, induce said sellers to grant respondent the discriminatory prices which are illustrated in paragraph 4. For example:

The following examples, which are taken from the respondent's correspondence with said sellers and various bulletins and material issued by respondent to its sales force since June 19, 1936, indicate respondent has knowingly engaged in a studied and persistent course of action to induce sellers to grant respondent favorable discriminatory prices on its purchases of surgical products:

(a) Respondent advised its salesmen that it had persuaded a seller to give it "certain leaders" at prices that even the cheapest lines could not compete with respondent, and whether you are calling on the tiniest institutions or the largest hospitals, these prices cannot possibly be beaten by our competitor. "Certain leaders" may be defined in this instance as surgical products with wide consumer demand.

(b) Respondent complained to a seller that competing distributors were selling a particular surgical product that respondent believed the seller manufactured exclusively for it. The seller replied it had always refrained from making exclusive models for any retailer, but the respondent was given the advantage of showing the particular surgical product first, and the price advantage allowed respondent over all possible competitors should be evidence of seller's willingness to cooperate.

(c) A seller wrote respondent concerning respondent's orders for single products respondent had purchased and requested shipment to be made directly to respondent's customers, or to one of respondent's branches. Seller informed respondent that seller thought it and respondent would be on safer ground if such shipments were billed at the same price given by seller to every other surgical supply dealer, namely, list less 40 percent. Seller further advised respondent that respondent had the same responsibility as seller if the discounts would some day have to be explained.

Respondent later wrote said seller, whose published and established trade discount was 40 percent, that on a recent order for a single surgical product respondent had received a discount of only 40 percent, and requested that the order be charged against respondent's contract order and that an additional amount be allowed respondent, to give it its regular contract discount. The seller acceded to respondent's request by enclosing a credit memorandum for the difference between 40 and 50 percent.

(d) A seller wrote respondent quoting prices on quantity purchases of one of its new surgical products. Respondent replied that if the seller wanted respondent's sales force to work on this product in a big way, it would have to give respondent the maximum quantity discount, although respondent would not purchase in quantity.

(e) Respondent Aloe wrote a seller it was informed that seller was considering a change in its prices, discounts and sales policy, due to complaints from dealers and the Robinson-Patman Act. Respondent stated it did not think seller should be hasty and make any changes in policy without thoroughly investigating possibilities. The respondent said it had made a study of the act, and that seller should consider respondent's loyalty in handling its surgical products to the exclusion of competitive makes, and that respondent had 100 salesmen talking solely this manufacturer's surgical products, and consideration in the way of discounts was due customers furnishing such service, in comparison to small dealers who handle several competitive products. Respondent further stated that if the seller "recognized the ridiculous and foolish claims of the small dealer," it would force concerns such as respondent simply to drop its line, and if other sources were available, respondent would find them, which was a prospect bitter and difficult to contemplate after so many happy years. The seller replied that it appreciated how respondent felt regarding a change in discounts, and that it had a plan which it believed would meet with respondent's approval, and that it wanted to work with respondent in every possible way. Thereafter, a secret arrangement, not available to the trade generally, was effected.

CONCLUSION

The Commission concludes that the differentials in prices, as set forth in paragraph 4 hereof, are discriminatory, and are prohibited by section 2 (a) of the Clayton Act, as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act approved June 19, 1936 (U. S. C. title 15, sec. 13), and have been knowingly induced and received by respondent, and that the respondent thereby violated section 2 (f) of the Clayton Act, as amended.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondent, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of the complaint introduced before John P. Bramhall, a duly appointed trial examiner of the Commission designated by it to serve in this proceeding, and a stipulation entered into between the respondent and its attorney with W. T. Kelley, chief counsel of the Commission, which was approved by the Commission and entered of record, in which stipulation the respondent waived further hearings, the filing of trial examiner's report, briefs, oral argument and all intervening procedure: And the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that the respondent has violated the provisions of an act of Congress entitled "An Act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies, and for other purposes," approved October 15, 1914 (the Clayton Act), as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act, approved June 19, 1936 (U. S. C. title 15, section 13).

It is ordered, That the respondent, A. S. Aloe Co., a corporation, its officers, directors, representatives, agents and employees, directly or indirectly, in connection with the purchase of surgical products in interstate commerce and in the District of Columbia, do forthwith cease and desist:

1. From receiving from the American Cystoscope Makers, Inc., the W. A. Baum Co., Bausch & Lomb Optical Co., Empire State Thermometer Co., Rieker Instrument Co., Spencer Lens Co., The Vollrath Co., Welch Allyn Co., Wilmot Castle Co., H. Carstens Manufacturing Co., F. Dittmar and Co., Penn Surgical Manufacturing Co., J. Sklar

Manufacturing Co., Star Surgical Instrument Co., and Western Instrument Manufacturing Co., the benefits of the discriminatory prices set out in the tabulation contained in paragraph 4 of the findings of facts and from receiving from such sellers of surgical products, under like circumstances and conditions, the benefits of discriminations in price of a substantially similar degree, to the extent that any such discrimination shall exceed due allowance for the differences in the cost of manufacture, sale or delivery resulting from the differing methods or quantities in which such products are sold and delivered.

2. From continuing or resuming the practice of inducing and receiving discriminations in prices shown in the tabulation contained in paragraph 4 of the Commission's findings as to the facts and conclusion.

3. From knowingly inducing or receiving discriminations in price prohibited by subsection 2 (a) of the Clayton Act as amended from any seller of surgical products in any manner whatsoever.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF

R. T. VANDERBILT COMPANY, INC., AND STANDARD
MINERAL COMPANY, INC.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914, AND OF SEC. 3 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED OCT. 15, 1914, AS AMENDED

Docket 3656. Complaint, Nov. 30, 1938—Decision, Dec. 16, 1941

Where a corporation, which was the sole sales agent and owner of the majority of the issued preferred voting stock of second corporate concern, engaged in mining or quarrying pyrophyllite, important raw material used extensively in the ceramic field, operating one of three deposits in North Carolina which, excepting those in California from which no sales were shown to have been made, were the only deposits in the United States developed in commercial quantities—

Acting in concert to restrict and restrain competition in pyrophyllite and to secure a monopoly in sale thereof for use in the manufacture of semivitreous earthenware; following acquisition by former company of certain patents covering semivitreous earthenware bodies composed of pyrophyllite and other ingredients, but which did not give exclusive right to use said product in manufacture of such ware or to mine or sell it—

- (a) Falsely represented, directly or by implication, through letters sent to competitors and manufacturers of ceramic products, that, by reason of its ownership of said patents, it had the sole right to sell pyrophyllite for use in the manufacture of semivitreous earthenware, and that no one had the right to use said substance in such manufacture without its license or consent; and
- (b) Warned customers and prospective customers of their competitors that the use by them in the manufacture of such earthenware of pyrophyllite purchased from said competitors constituted an infringement of the said patents, and threatened them with infringement suits in the event of such use;

Not in good faith in order to protect their own rights in connection with the manufacture of products in question, or to obtain a financial return, by licensing the use of such patents, but with intent of diverting trade in said substance to them from their competitors and creating a monopoly in themselves in the sale thereof; and

- (c) Refused to grant licenses under patents involved except to purchasers of said substance from them, and undertook to restrict such licenses to manufacture of earthenware bodies containing pyrophyllite acquired from them; and
- (d) Made sales of said substance to companies producing semivitreous earthenware, with accompanying licenses to use said patents, upon the condition and understanding that the buyers would not use or purchase pyrophyllite from their competitors, and for the purpose of monopolizing commerce therein;

With effect of suppressing, preventing and destroying competition between them and their competitors in the sale and distribution of such product in commerce:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were to the prejudice of the public and their competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair acts and practices, in violation of the Federal Trade Commission Act; and tended to, and did, substantially lessen competition and create a monopoly therein in them, in violation of the provisions of Section 3 of the Clayton Act, as amended.

Before Mr. Arthur F. Thomas, trial examiner.

Mr. J. R. Phillips, Jr. for the Commission.

Mr. Frank E. Barrows of Pennie, Davis, Marvin & Edmonds, of New York City, for respondents.

COMPLAINT

Count I

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that R. T. Vanderbilt Co., Inc., a corporation, and Standard Mineral Co., Inc., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Standard Mineral Co., Inc., is a corporation organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of North Carolina, with its principal office and place of business at 230 Park Avenue, New York City, State of New York. It is now and for many years last past has been engaged in the business of mining or quarrying at Hemp, Moore County, in the State of North Carolina, a crude mineral known as pyrophyllite, being a hydrous silicate of aluminum which is used extensively in the ceramic field, particularly in the production of semivitreous earthenware products.

Respondent, R. T. Vanderbilt Co., Inc., is a corporation organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its principal office and place of business located at 230 Park Avenue, New York City, State of New York. It is now and for many years last past has been engaged in the production, sale, and distribution of various minerals and chemicals, including said mineral known as pyrophyllite.

Respondent, R. T. Vanderbilt Co., Inc., is the sole distributor of said pyrophyllite which is mined and quarried by the respondent,

Complaint

34 F. T. C.

Standard Mineral Co., Inc. In addition thereto, the respondent, R. T. Vanderbilt Co., Inc., is the owner of certain patents on a process for the admixture of pyrophyllite in connection with the manufacture and production of semivitreous earthenware bodies.

Respondent, R. T. Vanderbilt Co., Inc., owns the majority of the capital stock of respondent, Standard Mineral Co., Inc., and dominates its business policies and activities. Said respondents act in cooperation and in combination with each other in carrying out the acts and practices hereinafter charged, and are the largest of the three or four concerns engaged in the mining or quarrying and sale and distribution of pyrophyllite in the United States.

PAR. 2. The respondents, acting in cooperation as aforesaid, cause said pyrophyllite, when sold by them, to be shipped from the mines or quarries of the Standard Mineral Co., Inc., in the State of North Carolina to the respective purchasers thereof located in other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondents maintain and at all times mentioned herein have maintained a course of trade in said pyrophyllite sold and distributed by them in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of their business respondents are in active and substantial competition with other corporations, and with individuals, firms and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of pyrophyllite in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business, the respondent, R. T. Vanderbilt Co., Inc., with the active cooperation, knowledge and consent of the respondent, Standard Mineral Co., Inc., offers to license and does license the use of said patented process for the admixture of pyrophyllite in connection with the manufacture and production of semivitreous earthenware products, on the condition, agreement and understanding that such licensees shall purchase and use in connection therewith only that pyrophyllite which is mined or quarried by the respondent, Standard Mineral Co., Inc., and sold and supplied by the respondent, R. T. Vanderbilt Co., Inc. Licensees and purchasers of pyrophyllite from respondent, R. T. Vanderbilt Co., Inc., are required to agree that they will not purchase or use pyrophyllite acquired from any competitor of respondent, R. T. Vanderbilt Co., Inc.

PAR. 5. Respondent, R. T. Vanderbilt Co., Inc., in concert and cooperation with respondent, Standard Mineral Co., Inc., for the purpose and with the result of inducing the purchase of said pyrophyllite, has pursued and continues to pursue a course of action which has the tendency and effect of stifling, suppressing, eliminating, preventing and destroying actual and potential competition between the said respondents on the one hand and all competitors of respondent, R. T. Vanderbilt Co., Inc., on the other hand, consisting of the use of the following acts, practices and methods:

1. Falsely representing that through its ownership of the aforesaid patented process, respondent, R. T. Vanderbilt Co., Inc., has the sole and exclusive right to sell and supply pyrophyllite for use in connection with the manufacture and production of semivitreous earthenware products, and that no one has or had the right to use said pyrophyllite in such connection or use without its license or consent.

2. Issuing and causing to be issued to the customers and prospective customers of respondents' competitors letters and communications threatening patent infringement suits against users of pyrophyllite purchased from respondents' competitors in manufacturing and producing semivitreous earthenware products as being an infringement of the patented process owned by said respondent, R. T. Vanderbilt Co., Inc.

3. Warning purchasers and prospective purchasers of pyrophyllite supplied by competitors of respondents of liability for infringement of the aforesaid patented process, through the use of pyrophyllite purchased from sources other than respondents', for use in accordance with the aforesaid patented process in the manufacture of semivitreous earthenware products.

PAR. 6. In truth and in fact respondent, R. T. Vanderbilt Co., Inc., does not have, and it has never had, the sole and exclusive right to sell and supply pyrophyllite for such purposes. Pyrophyllite for use in connection with the manufacture and production of semivitreous earthenware products can be lawfully used by anyone without the license and consent of the respondent, R. T. Vanderbilt Co., Inc. The issuing of warnings of infringement and threats to sue by the respondent, as hereinabove set forth, were not made in good faith with the intention of bringing such suits, but for the purpose of injuring said competitors and of intimidating them, their agents, customers and prospective customers. By this means the respondent causes said customers and prospective customers of competitors to refuse to buy and to refrain from buying pyrophyllite from said competitors. Said acts and practices also have the tendency and effect of otherwise embarrassing, obstructing, prejudicing and injuring the business of competitors of respondents in the production and sale of pyrophyllite in commerce as herein described.

PAR. 7. The aforesaid acts and practices and course of action on the part of respondents as herein alleged had, and now have, the capacity, tendency and effect of (1) restraining, suppressing, or preventing actual and potential competition in the production, sale and distribution of pyrophyllite and semivitreous earthenware products made therefrom; (2) hindering, restricting, and obstructing the free flow of pyrophyllite and semivitreous earthenware products made therefrom in the channels of trade and commerce among and between the various States of the United States so as to deny the public those advantages which would be attained under conditions of normal and unobstructed free and fair competition in said trade and industry; (3) unfairly diverting trade from, and otherwise prejudicing and injuring, respondents' competitors in their respective businesses in the production, sale and distribution of pyrophyllite and semivitreous earthenware products made therefrom; and (4) of otherwise operating as a restraint upon and a detriment to the freedom of fair and legitimate competition in said trade or industry of using, distributing and selling pyrophyllite and semivitreous earthenware products made therefrom in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondents' competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce, within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Count II

The Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that said respondents, R. T. Vanderbilt Co., Inc., and Standard Mineral Co., Inc., have violated, and are now violating the provisions of section 3 of the act of Congress entitled "An Act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies, and for other purposes," approved October 15, 1914, commonly known as the Clayton Act, hereby issues this its complaint against respondents and states its charges in respect thereto as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. For its charges under this paragraph of this count said Commission relies upon the matters and things set out in paragraph 1 of count I of this complaint to the same extent and as though the allegations of said paragraph 1 of said count I were set out in full herein, and said paragraph 1 of said count I is incorporated herein by reference and made a part of the allegations of this count.

PAR. 2. For its charges under this paragraph of this count said Commission relies upon the matters and things set out in paragraph 2 of count I of this complaint to the same extent and as though the allegations of said paragraph 2 of said count I were set out in full herein, and said paragraph 2 of said count I is incorporated herein by reference and made a part of the allegations of this count.

PAR. 3. For its charges under this paragraph of this count said Commission relies upon the matters and things set out in paragraph 3 of count I of this complaint to the same extent and as though the allegations of said paragraph 3 of said count I were set out in full herein, and said paragraph 3 of said count I is incorporated herein by reference and made a part of the allegations of this count.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of their business in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, respondent, R. T. Vanderbilt Co., Inc., acting with the cooperation, knowledge and consent of the respondent, Standard Mineral Co., Inc., and to their mutual benefit, profit and advantage, as aforesaid, has made sales and contracts for the sale of pyrophyllite and has offered to grant, and has granted, the privilege or license of the use of its patented process for the admixture of pyrophyllite in connection with the manufacture and production of semivitreous earthenware products, with the condition, understanding and agreement that the pyrophyllite mined or quarried by the respondent, Standard Mineral Co., Inc., and sold and supplied by the respondent, R. T. Vanderbilt Co., Inc., and no other, was and is to be used in connection with said process.

The respondent, R. T. Vanderbilt Co., Inc., has refused, and does refuse, to grant such license under any other condition, agreement or understanding, and its licensees have agreed, and are required by respondents to agree, in consideration of such license, that they shall purchase the pyrophyllite used in connection with said process solely from the respondent, R. T. Vanderbilt Co., Inc., and that they will not purchase or use pyrophyllite acquired from any competitor of said respondent, R. T. Vanderbilt Co., Inc., and pursuant to such agreement or understanding said licensees and purchasers have refused and continue to refuse to purchase pyrophyllite from the competitors of the respondent, R. T. Vanderbilt Co., Inc.

The effect of such license agreements, sales and contracts for sale, upon such condition, agreement and understanding may be, is, and has been to substantially lessen competition or tend to create a monopoly in said respondents in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid acts of respondents constitute a violation of the provisions of section 3 of the hereinabove mentioned act of Congress entitled "An Act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies and for other purposes," approved October 15, 1914, and commonly known as the Clayton Act,

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and of an act of Congress approved October 15 A. D. 1914, entitled "An Act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies, and for other purposes", and amendments thereto, the Federal Trade Commission, on November 30 A. D. 1938, issued and thereafter served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondents, R. T. Vanderbilt Co., Inc., and Standard Mineral Co., Inc., charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce, in violation of the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and with acts and practices resulting in substantial lessening of competition and tending to create a monopoly in said respondents, in commerce, in violation of the provisions of section 3 of said act of Congress approved October 15 A. D. 1914. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of a joint answer by the respondents, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of the complaint were introduced by John R. Phillips, Jr., attorney for the Commission, and evidence in opposition to the allegations of the complaint was introduced by Frank E. Barrows, attorney for the respondents, before Arthur F. Thomas, a trial examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it to serve in this proceeding, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission.

Thereafter the proceedings regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the answer thereto, the testimony and other evidence, the report of the trial examiner thereon and exceptions to said report, briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto, and oral argument of the aforesaid attorneys. And the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the public interest and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, R. T. Vanderbilt Co., Inc., is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of New York, with its principal office located at 230 Park Avenue, in the city and State of New York.

Respondent, Standard Mineral Co., Inc., is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of North Carolina, with its principal office located at 230 Park Avenue, in the city and State of New York.

PAR. 2. Respondent, Standard Mineral Co., Inc., is now, and for a number of years last past, has been engaged in the business of mining or quarrying, at Hemp, N. C., pyrophyllite, a hydrous silicate of aluminum, used extensively in the ceramic field, particularly in the production of semivitreous earthenware bodies.

PAR. 3. Respondent, R. T. Vanderbilt Co., Inc., is engaged in the sale and distribution of minerals and chemicals, and is the sole sales agent of respondent, Standard Mineral Co., Inc.

Respondent, R. T. Vanderbilt Co., Inc., owns the majority of the issued preferred voting stock of respondent, Standard Mineral Co., Inc. Both respondents have the same president and treasurer, who are also directors in both corporations, and both corporations have offices at the same address. Respondent, R. T. Vanderbilt Co., Inc., controls and dominates the business policies and activities of respondent, Standard Mineral Co., Inc.

PAR. 4. Respondent, Standard Mineral Co., Inc., sells and distributes pyrophyllite mined or quarried by it to purchasers thereof located in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 5. Respondents, in the conduct of their business, have been and now are in active, substantial competition with other corporations and with individuals and partnerships engaged in the production, sale and distribution of pyrophyllite in commerce between and among various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 6. Respondents' total sales of pyrophyllite during the years 1935 to 1938, inclusive, were: 15,660 tons in 1935; 22,136 tons in 1936; 22,972 tons in 1937, and 18,494 tons in 1938. Of this tonnage its sales to the ceramic industry for the respective years were: 2,752 tons in 1935; 3,862½ tons in 1936; 5,516 tons in 1937, and 5,740½ tons in 1938. Most, if not all of these shipments to the ceramic trade were made to customers located in States other than the State of North Carolina, and most, if not all, were for use under the Sproat patents.

The sales of pyrophyllite by the Carolina Pyrophyllite Co., Inc., which started in business in 1936, had reached by 1937, a monthly total of 500 tons, practically all of which was to the ceramic trade. Its sales gradually increased until, in February, 1940, they amounted to approximately 1,000 tons a month of which about 75 percent was sold to the ceramic trade. These sales were, in large part, made to customers located in States other than the State of North Carolina.

The Pyrophyllite Talc Products Co. started business in 1937. The only sale of pyrophyllite made by this company to a ceramic manufacturer located in a State other than the State of North Carolina was one of two tons to the Superior Ceramic Corporation, of Anderson, Ind. It sells to manufacturers located in North Carolina approximately one carload a month. In February 1940, its total sales were 26 carloads, but there is no evidence to show the amount of the tonnage or the destination of the shipments.

PAR. 7. Pyrophyllite has been used for 80 years or more in the manufacture of ceramic products, but only in recent years has it become an important raw material. The only deposits of pyrophyllite in the United States which have been developed in commercial quantities are located in California and North Carolina, in which latter State are the Hemp Staley and Glendon deposits. At the time of the issuance of the complaint herein the Hemp deposits were operated by respondent, Standard Mineral Co., Inc.; the Staley deposits by Carolina Pyrophyllite Co., Inc., and the Glendon deposits by Pyrophyllite Talc Products Co. No sales from California deposits are shown to have been made.

PAR. 8. Respondent, R. T. Vanderbilt Co., Inc., acquired by assignment from Ira Elmer Sproat Letters Patent No. 1984163, entitled "Earthenware Body," issued December 11, 1934; Letters Patent No. 2068154 entitled "Earthenware Body," issued January 19, 1937, and a reissue of Patent No. 1984163 under date of November 10, 1937, as Re. 20555, entitled "Earthenware Bodies." These patents cover semivitreous earthenware bodies composed of pyrophyllite and a number of other ingredients.

PAR. 9. The first Sproat patent, No. 1984163, contemplates use of the following ingredients: Pyrophyllite, Georgia or South Carolina kaolin, ball clay, feldspar, and flint; the second Sproat patent No. 2068154 contemplates use of the following ingredients: Flint, feldspar, ball clay, Georgia kaolin, pyrophyllite, whiting, magnesite, lime-bearing talc and malacolite; the reissue of the first patent, numbered Re. 20555, comprises the following ingredients: Flint, feldspar, ball clay, Georgia Kaolin, pyrophyllite, whiting, lime-bearing talc and malacolite. None of these patents grant the exclusive right to the use of pyrophyllite in the manufacture of semivitreous earthenware. Pyrophyllite is but one of a number of ingredients used in producing the semivitreous earthenware bodies covered by the patent.

Findings

The Felspathic Research Corporation is the holder of what is known as the "Kraner Patent," No. 2075445. Application for this patent was filed August 27, 1932, and Letters Patent were issued thereon, March 30, 1937, entitled "Method of Forming Ceramic Bodies." This patent contemplates the use of pyrophyllite in the production of vitreous bodies, and two formulae are included in the letters patent, to cover the manufacture of different types of bodies. The first comprises the following ingredients: Basalt, pyrophyllite, talc, ball clay, china clay, mica, whiting, and feldspar. The second comprises the following ingredients: Kentucky ball clay, Kentucky ball clay (dark special), Georgia china clay, pyrophyllite, talc, and whiting.

PAR. 10. Pyrophyllite is one of a number of ingredients involved in the manufacture of vitreous earthenware bodies, and there is nothing in the Sproat patents giving exclusive right to use this product in such manufacture, nor do these patents grant the exclusive right to mine or sell this product. Patents have been granted to others involving the use of pyrophyllite in combination with other ingredients in the manufacture of vitreous earthenware bodies, as instanced by the Kraner patent. A letter to the Vanderbilt Co. from its patent attorneys, dated January 5, 1935, states:

Since the sale of pyrophyllite to a tile company is not in itself an infringement of the patent, the liability of the seller is that of contributory infringer in the event the purchaser uses the pyrophyllite in a manner which infringes the patent.

In another letter to the Vanderbilt Co. from its attorneys, dated August 4, 1936, it is stated:

All of the claims of your patent No. 1984163 are directed to the earthenware product. Pyrophyllite is an unpatented and unpatentable commodity. The production of the product patented by your patent involves the use of pyrophyllite, but the mere purchase or sale of pyrophyllite does not involve direct infringement of your patent. Your patent is infringed only by the making, using, or selling of the patented earthenware product.

In another letter, dated November 19, 1939, the attorneys state:

In the particular situation here involved, I think you should avoid reference, in letters to the trade, to infringement by the use of pyrophyllite purchased elsewhere and should offer to grant licenses on reasonable terms. You can sell pyrophyllite on the basis that the purchaser gets a license under the patent for all pyrophyllite he buys from you, but should avoid what might prove to be an unfortunate attempt to make licenses depend solely upon the purchase of pyrophyllite from you.

PAR. 11. Respondents sought to use the Sproat patents to control the pyrophyllite market and to secure a monopoly in the production and sale of pyrophyllite. The report of the directors of respondent, Standard Mineral Co., Inc., for the period from April 1, 1931, to March 31, 1932, contains the following statement:

Our efforts to develop new uses for our products are progressing as well as can be expected, and of particular interest is the fact that at least one important consumption will be controlled through patents owned by our sales agent.

In order to secure a monopoly in themselves in the sale of pyrophyllite to be used in the manufacture of semivitreous earthenware, respondents have acted in concert and cooperation to restrict and restrain competition in said product by means of the letters described in paragraph 12 hereof and the acts and practices of respondent Vanderbilt Co. herein set forth.

PAR. 12. Respondent, Vanderbilt Co., acting in concert and cooperation with respondent, Standard Mineral Co., Inc., obtained from its patent attorneys drafts of letters to be sent by it to manufacturers of ceramic bodies and to producers and distributors of pyrophyllite. The letter from the attorneys in which the said drafts were enclosed appears in evidence, but the drafts do not. However, the attorneys quote said drafts in their briefs filed in this proceeding, as follows:

Proposed letter to National Tile Co.:

We are writing to call your attention to our United States Letters Patent No. 1984163 granted December 11, 1934, entitled "Earthenware Body."

We are informed that you are using pyrophyllite in the manufacture of earthenware bodies such as covered by this patent. We request that you discontinue any such infringement and assure us that our rights will be respected.

Proposed letter to various tile companies which are not now infringing:

We are writing to call your attention to our United States Letters Patent No. 1984163 granted December 11, 1934, entitled "Earthenware Body," and relating to the production of semivitreous earthenware bodies with the use of pyrophyllite admixed with clay.

We are prepared to sell you pyrophyllite for use in connection with this patented invention and we are writing to advise you of our rights in this regard so that you may not unknowingly incur liability for infringement through use of pyrophyllite purchased elsewhere for use in accordance with our patented invention.

Proposed letter to the Talc Mining & Milling Co.:

We are writing to call your attention to our United States Letters Patent No. 1984163 granted December 11, 1934, entitled "Earthenware Body."

We understand you are now selling pyrophyllite to the ceramic trade for use in making earthenware bodies such as covered by this patent. Inasmuch as the sale of pyrophyllite for use in making the patented products constitutes contributory infringement and makes the contributory infringer liable equally with the direct infringer, we are writing you to advise you of our rights in this matter, which we assume you will want to respect to the end that unnecessary litigation may be avoided.

* * * * *

Respondent, Vanderbilt Co., on January 7, 1935, sent the following letter to the National Tile Co.:

DEAR SIRs: We are writing to call your attention to our United States Letters Patent No. 1984163 granted December 11, 1934, entitled "Earthenware Body" and relating to the production of semivitreous earthenware bodies with the use of pyrophyllite admixed with clay.

We are prepared to sell you pyrophyllite for use in accordance with this patented invention and we are writing to advise you of our rights in this regard so that you may not unknowingly incur liability for infringement through use of pyrophyllite purchased elsewhere for use in accordance with our patented invention.

Shipments of pyrophyllite from us carry with them a license for their use, and if you have been using, in accordance with our patent pyrophyllite not bought from us, we request that you discontinue such infringement and we shall be glad to have your assurance that our patent rights will be respected.

Other letters, identical with the foregoing except for the omission of the third paragraph, were sent by respondent, Vanderbilt Co. to 10 other manufacturers of ceramic products located in New York, New Jersey, Georgia, and Ohio. With each of said letters was enclosed a copy of United States Letters Patent No. 1984163.

On January 14, 1935, the Vanderbilt Co. sent a letter to Franklin Tile Co., Lansdale, Pa., in which it is stated:

Every carload of PYRAX pyrophyllite that we ship you automatically carries with it a license for use under the terms of our U. S. Patent No. 1984163.

Typical of the letter sent by the Vanderbilt Co. on January 7, 1935, to producers and distributors of pyrophyllite, is the following:

Gerhardt Tile Corporation,
Stanley, N. C.

DEAR SIRs: We think we should call to your attention our United States Letters Patent No. 1984163 granted December 11, 1934, entitled "Earthenware Body."

We understand you contemplate selling pyrophyllite to the ceramic trade for use in making earthenware bodies such as covered by this patent.

Inasmuch as the sale of pyrophyllite for use in making the patented product constitutes contributory infringement and makes the contributory infringer liable equally with the direct infringer, we are writing you to advise you of our rights in this matter, which we assume you will want to respect, to the end that unnecessary litigation may be avoided.

In November 1937, subsequent to the reissue of the first Sproat patent, respondent, Vanderbilt Co., in accordance with draft prepared by its patent attorneys, sent to seventeen manufacturers of ceramic products located in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Indiana, Ohio, and Georgia, the following letter:

We are writing to call to your attention United States Letters Patent Reissue No. 20555 reissued November 16, 1937, entitled: "Earthenware Bodies," relating to the production of semivitreous earthenware bodies with the use of pyrophyllite, clay and calcium compound. We are prepared to sell you pyrophyllite for use in producing the products of this patent.

A copy of the letters patent referred to was enclosed in each of these letters.

The respondent did not follow the draft of letter prepared by its patent attorneys to be sent to National Tile Co., but, acting on its own initiative, stated:

* * * If you have been using in accordance with our patent pyrophyllite not bought from us, we request that you discontinue such infringement * * *.

PAR. 13. After receiving the letters described in paragraph 12 hereof, a number of manufacturers of ceramic products, because of the implied threat of an infringement suit by the Vanderbilt Co., refused to purchase and did not purchase pyrophyllite produced by competitors of the respondents, although in some instances they stated a preference for the product of such competitors. Some of said manufacturers agreed to purchase the products of respondents' competitors if an indemnity bond were furnished to save them harmless in the event of an infringement suit. Between January 1935 and April 1937 three sales of pyrophyllite were made by competitors of respondents to manufacturers of ceramic bodies, with each of which such indemnity bond was furnished. Two of these bonds also covered any breach of agreement to purchase all pyrophyllite used in connection with the Sproat patents from respondents.

PAR. 14. Respondent, Vanderbilt Co., acting in concert and cooperation with respondent, Standard Mineral Co., Inc., has assumed in the letters described in paragraph 12 hereof, that the manufacturers of ceramic products will be confined to the use of respondent's patents in the manufacture of semivitreous earthenware bodies, and, either directly or by implication and innuendo has:

(a) Falsely represented that by reason of its ownership of the Sproat patents it has the sole and exclusive right to sell and supply pyrophyllite for use in connection with the manufacture and production of semivitreous earthenware bodies, and that no one has the right to use pyrophyllite in such manufacture without the license or consent of said respondent.

(b) Warned customers and prospective customers of respondents' competitors that the use by them in the manufacture of semivitreous earthenware of pyrophyllite purchased from such competitors constitutes an infringement of the Sproat patents, and threatened such manufacturers with infringement suits in the event of such use.

(c) Denied the use of its Sproat patents to manufacturers of semi-vitreous earthenware unless the pyrophyllite to be used by them in such manufacture is purchased from respondents.

PAR. 15. The Sproat patents were acquired by respondent, Vanderbilt Co., for the purpose of securing a monopoly in the sale of pyrophyllite to be used in the manufacture of ceramic products, and not for the purpose of protecting it in the manufacture of such product. There is nothing disclosed in the record indicating that respondent ever manufactured ceramic products or contemplated such manufacture.

The respondents have refused to grant licenses under the Sproat patents except to purchasers from them of pyrophyllite, and have attempted to restrict such licenses to the manufacture of earthenware bodies containing pyrophyllite acquired from them. Sales by respondents of pyrophyllite to companies producing semivitreous earthenware and accompanying licenses to use the Sproat patents, were made upon the condition and understanding that the buyers would not use or purchase pyrophyllite from competitors of the respondents, and for the purpose of monopolizing commerce in pyrophyllite.

The letters described in paragraph 12 hereof were not sent in good faith for the purpose of protecting the rights of the Vanderbilt Co. in connection with the manufacture of such products; neither were said letters sent for the purpose of obtaining a financial return from said patents by licensing the use thereof. They were sent for the purpose of carrying out respondents' policy as expressed in the report of respondent Standard Mineral Co., Inc., referred to in Paragraph 11 hereof, that "One important consumption will be controlled through patents owned by our sales agent," and with the purpose and intent of diverting trade in pyrophyllite to respondents from their competitors, and of creating a monopoly in respondents in the sale of pyrophyllite.

PAR. 16. The acts and practices of the respondents as herein set forth have and had the tendency and effect of stifling, suppressing, eliminating, preventing, and destroying competition between said respondents and their competitors in the sale and distribution of pyrophyllite in commerce between and among various States of the United States.

CONCLUSION

The acts and practices of the respondents, as set forth in the foregoing findings as to the facts, under the circumstances therein, set forth, are to the prejudice of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act; and said acts and practices tend to, and do, substantially lessen competition and create a monopoly in respondents, in commerce, in violation of the provisions of section 3 of an act of Congress approved October 15, 1914, entitled "An act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies, and for other purposes," and the amendments thereto.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

It is ordered, That the respondents, R. T. Vanderbilt Co., Inc., and Standard Mineral Co., Inc., their officers, directors, representatives, agents, and employees, jointly or severally, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of pyrophyllite in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, shall forthwith cease and desist from.

1. Directly or by implication or innuendo, either orally or by letters, circulars or any other means, representing that the Sproat patents, or any other patent owned or controlled by the respondents, or either of them, confer upon the respondents, or either of them, the exclusive right to use pyrophyllite in the manufacture of semivitreous earthenware bodies, or that said patents confer the exclusive right upon the respondents, or either of them, to sell or supply pyrophyllite to be used in the manufacture of semivitreous earthenware bodies.

2. Directly, or by implication or innuendo, either orally or by letters, circulars, or any other means, threatening any person, firm or corporation with patent infringement or damage suit, or other legal action, in bad faith, for the purpose of diverting the trade of any competitor to the respondents.

3. Licensing the use of the Sproat patents, or any other patent owned or controlled by the respondents, or either of them on the condition, agreement, or understanding that the licensee shall purchase from the respondents, or either of them, the pyrophyllite used in the process covered by any of said patents.

4. Licensing the use of the Sproat patents, or any other patent owned or controlled by the respondents, or either of them, upon the condition, agreement or understanding that the licensee shall not purchase or procure from a competitor of respondents the pyrophyllite used in the process covered by any of said patents.

5. Making any sale, or contract, or agreement for sale, of prophyllite, on the condition, agreement, or understanding that the purchaser thereof shall not use, in the manufacture of semivitreous earthenware, pyrophyllite purchased from or supplied by a competitor of respondents.

It is further ordered, That the respondents shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF

POST INSTITUTE SALES CORPORATION, POST INSTITUTE, LOUIS J. STERN AND HELMUTH M. KIESEWETTER

Docket 4129. Complaint, May 7, 1940—Decision, Dec. 16, 1941

Where a corporation engaged in interstate sale and distribution of the "Ultrasol Scalp Treatment," consisting of Ultrasol Hair Bath, Ultrasol Pituitary Fluid, and Ultrasol .33, together with the manufacturer thereof who was its president, manager, and majority stockholder; by means of advertisements disseminated through the mails, newspapers, and periodicals, and circulars, leaflets, pamphlets, and other advertising literature, directly and by implication—

- (a) Represented that the process of keratinization interferes with the natural growth of hair and prevents the free emergence of new hair, that insufficiency of pituitary secretion at the hair root causes abnormal loss of hair, faded hair, and other hair troubles, and that use of their said preparations, either singly or in combination, would remove keratin epidermal tissue and cause their pituitary content to penetrate to the hair roots and stimulate or revive the growth of hair; and
- (b) Represented that the use of their preparations, either singly or in combination, would stop abnormal loss of hair, cause fuzz to develop into mature hair, cause dull, faded hair to become brilliant, normalize dry or oily scalp, check premature graying, restore natural color to the hair, and be effective in removing or curing dandruff;

The facts being that said preparations had no therapeutic value in the treatment of any normal condition of hair or scalp and the only benefit which might be obtained from their use was the possible counterirritant action supplied by massage on application thereof, keratinization of the skin is a normal process and adherence to the scalp of the scaly substance formed thereby, not necessarily a diseased condition, can be removed by a good shampoo medium; shedding of such cells has no significance as respects growth of hair, for which, in any event, external application of pituitary substance would be of no value; and products in question, either singly or in combination, would not bring about the results claimed therefor or remove the scale referred to better than soap and water or any other cleansing agent, and, beyond effecting temporary removal of dandruff scales, did not constitute a cure or remedy for said condition; and

Where said corporation and individual, engaged as above set forth—

- (c) Represented, through the use of the word "Institute" in their trade and corporate names and in various forms of advertising, that they were a scientific organization formed to promote learning and research, and furthered such misrepresentation by such statements as "After twelve years of research Post Institute presents Ultrasol, a new hair discovery," and "The ethics of the Institute preclude exaggerated claims" when in fact "Post Institute" was merely a trade name used by said individual in connection with the manufacture and sale of his preparations, and said corporation was engaged as aforesaid in sale and distribution thereof;

Complaint

- (d) Placed in their various advertising a replica of a seal, usually round, on the outer margin of which appeared, in large letters "CERTIFIED SAFE", and in the center "Post Institute certifies that Ultrasol is made to meet the highest standards of city, State and Federal boards of health," implying thereby that their said preparations had been certified, tested, or approved by boards of health, when in fact such products had never been thus certified, tested or approved by any board of health or any department of the Federal Government; and
- (e) Placed in advertising booklets and circulars such statements as "References concerning the influence of the stratum corneum on the emergence of hair," "Concerning the relation of the pituitary gland to hair growth," and "Concerning the absorption of substances through the hair follicle"; followed by references to certain medical works, with tendency and capacity to cause purchasers to believe that their said preparations had been examined and approved by the doctors referred to, when in fact such doctors had not examined or approved their preparations and did not subscribe to the theories appearing in their booklets and advertising;

With effect of misleading and deceiving a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that all such representations were true, and of inducing it to purchase their cosmetic preparations because of such belief;

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Before Mr. Lewis C. Russell, trial examiner.

Mr. John M. Russell for the Commission.

Mr. Morris L. Bower, of New York City, for respondents.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Post Institute, Inc., and Post Institute, corporations, and Louis J. Stern, individually trading under the name of Post Institute, and as an officer of Post Institute, Inc., and Post Institute, corporations, and Helmuth M. Kiesewetter, individually, and as officer of Post Institute, a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereto would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Post Institute, Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, having its office and principal place of business at 105 East Sixteenth Street, in the city of New York, in said State; respondent, Post Institute, is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Delaware, having its office at 9 East Fortieth Street, in the city of New York, N. Y., and its principal place of business at 105 East Sixteenth Street, in the city of New York, N. Y.

Louis J. Stern, an individual, is president and treasurer of Post Institute, Inc., vice president of Post Institute, corporations, and also trades as Post Institute, and has his principal office and place of business at 105 East Sixteenth Street, in the city of New York, N. Y. Helmuth M. Kiesewetter is president and treasurer of corporate respondent, Post Institute, and is an individual having his office and place of business at 9 East Fortieth Street, in the city of New York, N. Y. Respondents Louis J. Stern and Helmuth M. Kiesewetter direct and control the sales activities and policies of said corporate respondents with respect to the acts and practices herein set forth.

All of said respondents act in conjunction and cooperation with each other in the performance of the acts and practices hereinafter alleged.

PAR. 2. Respondents are now, and for more than 2 years last past have been, engaged in the sale and distribution of preparations for the hair and scalp, known as "Ultrasol Hair Bath," "Ultrasol Pituitary Fluid," and "Ultrasol 33," recommended for use in combination as "Ultrasol Scalp Treatment." Respondents caused said preparations, when sold, to be transported from their places of business in the State of New York, to purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondents maintain, and at all times mentioned herein have maintained, a course of trade in said preparations in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of their aforesaid business, the respondents have disseminated, and are now disseminating, and have caused, and are now causing the dissemination of false advertisements concerning their said preparations, by the United States mails, and by various other means in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of said preparations; and the respondents have also disseminated, and are now disseminating, and have caused, and are now causing the dissemination of false advertisements concerning their said preparations, by various means, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of their said preparations in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Among and typical of the false, misleading, and deceptive statements and representations contained in said false advertisements, disseminated and caused to be disseminated, as hereinabove set forth, by the United States mails, by advertisements in newspapers and periodicals, by radio continuities and by circulars, leaflets, pamphlets, and other advertising literature, are the following:

Ultrasol rids the scalp pores of those hard, little particles of foreign matter, which are bound to collect there from time to time; it stimulates the hair roots to normal scalp lubrication; creates a condition under which normal hair growth may continue, and one's hair may again be its healthy, glowing best.

POST INSTITUTE

A REVOLUTIONARY HAIR DISCOVERY

After twelve years of research, Post Institute presents Ultrasol, a new hair discovery. Although Ultrasol has won enthusiastic endorsement from distinguished users, the ethics of the Institute preclude exaggerated claims. The safety, simplicity and economy of Ultrasol has been demonstrated by thousands of men and women, who have used Ultrasol at home, and by over 100,000 treatments, given by specialists.

* * * * *

Ultrasol users report:

How abnormal hair loss has stopped.

How fuzz has grown to mature hair.

How the scalp feels refreshed, free from dandruff.

How dull, faded hair becomes brilliant.

How dry scalp becomes normal.

How limp, dull, scanty, "impossible hair" is revived without scalp manipulation or tiring massage.

Ultrasol courses for women are designed:

To revive limp, dull, scanty, "impossible hair" * * * without strong rinses, scalp manipulation or tiring massage.

To strengthen the hair for lasting, artistic permanent waving.

To normalize dry or oily scalp.

To give dyed hair even, "refined" luster.

To keep the scalp and hair clean, free from dandruff, without soap or drying solutions.

To check abnormal hair falling and combat premature graying.

Complaint

34 F. T. C.

PAR. 4. Through the use of the aforesaid statements and representations, and others of similar import and meaning, not specifically set out herein, the respondents represent, directly and by implication, that their preparations, used either singly or in combination, will revive the growth of hair and are cures or remedies for baldness and constitute competent and effective treatments therefor; that the use of said preparations will stop abnormal loss of hair, cause fuzz to develop into mature hair, cause dull, faded hair to become brilliant, normalize dry or oily scalp, check premature graying, and restore the natural color to the hair; and that the use of said preparations will be effective in removing and curing dandruff.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid representations and claims, used and disseminated by the respondents, as hereinabove described, are grossly exaggerated, misleading and untrue. In truth and in fact, respondents' preparations, whether used singly or in combination, have no therapeutic value in the cure or treatment of baldness, and will not revive the growth of hair. The use of said preparations will not stop the abnormal loss of hair or cause fuzz to develop into mature hair. Said preparations will not normalize dry or oily scalp, check premature graying or restore the natural color to the hair. Respondents' preparations have no therapeutic value in removing or curing dandruff or causing dull, faded hair to become brilliant in excess of furnishing a dressing for the hair and providing a shampoo which might aid in removing scales.

PAR. 6. In addition to the representations hereinabove set forth, the respondents have further represented that the formation of keratinized epidermal waste obstructs the hair follicle, interferes with natural lubrication, restricts growth of hair, and prevents free emergence of new hair, and that other causes of loss of hair and hair troubles are caused by insufficiency of pituitary secretion at the hair roots, and that their preparations have therapeutic value in correcting such conditions.

Typical of such representations regarding the efficacy of respondents' preparations in such conditions, which the respondents disseminate, and have caused to be disseminated, in the manner hereinabove described, is the following:

AFTER MATURE RESEARCH

Post Institute has formulated the theory that abnormal hair loss, faded hair and most other hair troubles, in non-pathological cases, are due to:

(A) Neo-keratin, horn-like matter, which fills up the "funnel" of the hair follicle, interferes with natural lubrication, restricts the growth of luxuriant hair and often prevents the free emergence of new hair.

(B) Insufficiency, at the hair root, of some constituent of pituitary secretion.

Based on this theory, the Institute has designed Ultrasol and the method for applying it:

(a) To remove neo-keratin; (b) to supply to the scalp—in a manner planned to aid penetration—a special extract from the whole-gland pituitary body, in combination with other ingredients, which the Institute has found, by practical tests, conducive to hair improvement; (c) to create a condition under which natural revival of hair growth may become possible.

Through the use of the aforesaid statements, and representations, and others of similar import and meaning, not specifically set out herein, the respondents have represented, directly and by implication, that their preparations will remove keratin epidermal tissues and cause pituitary substance to penetrate to the hair roots and stimulate the growth of hair.

In truth and in fact, respondents' preparations, used either singly or in combination, will have no effect upon the process of keratinization. Furthermore, there is no scientific basis for the assumption that pituitary or other substance, applied to the scalp, will penetrate to the hair roots and stimulate the growth of hair.

PAR. 7. In addition to the representations hereinabove set forth, the respondents, by the use of the word "Institute" in their trade or corporate name and in their various forms of advertising, represent that they are a scientific organization, formed for the purpose of promoting learning and research.

In furtherance of this representation, the respondents placed in their advertising material statements to the same effect, of which the following are typical examples:

AFTER TWELVE YEARS OF RESEARCH

A NEW HAIR DISCOVERY

The ethics of the Institute preclude exaggerated claims.

By a costly process, Post Institute isolates from whole gland pituitary body a special extract.

As an additional means of furthering such representations, the respondents place on their various advertising a replica of a seal, usually round in design, by means of which the respondents represent that their products have been certified, tested or approved by some scientific organization or some State, city or federal board of health-

Complaint

An example of one of such seals is one of a circular design, on the outer margin of which appears the following, in large letters:

and in the center of which appears the following legend:

BOARDS OF HEALTH

In truth and in fact, Post Institute is not a scientific organization, formed for the purpose of promoting learning and research, and its products have not been certified, tested or approved by any scientific organization or board of health of any city or State or any department of the Federal Government.

PAR. 8. A further example of the false and misleading representations made by the respondents is the placing in their booklets, advertising and describing their products, the following statement:

REFERENCES

CONCERNING THE INFLUENCE OF THE STRATUM CORNEUM ON THE EMERGENCE OF HAIR. Reference is made to the works of W. J. O'Donovan, M. D., a physician at the Skin Department of London Hospital, lecturer at the London School of Dermatology, St. John's Hospital; J. M. H. Macloed, Vice-President, Dermatological Section of the Royal Society of Medicine.

CONCERNING THE RELATION OF THE PITUITARY GLAND TO HAIR GROWTH. Reference is made to the works of William Engleback, M. D., authority on endocrinology, late Professor, St. Louis College of Medicine.

CONCERNING THE ABSORPTION OF SUBSTANCES THROUGH THE HAIR FOLLICLE. Reference is made to the works of George Clinton Andrews, M. D., Associate Professor of Dermatology, College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University; Richard J. Sutton, M. D., Professor of Dermatology, University of Kansas, School of Medicine, and Richard L. Sutton, Jr., M. D., Assistant Professor of Dermatology, University of Kansas.

By this means, the respondents represent that the doctors and physicians, so named, subscribe to the theories, appearing in said booklet, and in effect approve respondents' product, when in truth and in fact said doctors and physicians have not examined or approved respondents' preparations and do not subscribe to the theories appearing in respondents' booklets and advertising.

Findings

PAR. 9. The use by the respondents of the foregoing false, deceptive and misleading statements and representations, disseminated as aforesaid, has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that all such statements and representations are true, and induces a substantial portion of the purchasing public to purchase respondents' cosmetic preparations because of such erroneous and mistaken belief, engendered as above set forth.

PAR. 10. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce, within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on May 7, 1940, issued and subsequently served its complaint on the respondents, Post Institute Sales Corporation, a corporation (formerly known as Post Institute, Inc.), Post Institute, a corporation, Louis J. Stern, individually, trading as Post Institute and as officer of Post Institute Sales Corporation (formerly known as Post Institute, Inc.) and Post Institute, a corporation, and Helmuth M. Kiesewetter, individually, and as officer of Post Institute, a corporation, charging them with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondents' answers thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by John M. Russell, attorney for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by Morris L. Levine, attorney for the respondents, before Lewis C. Russell, a trial examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, answers thereto, testimony and other evidence, report of the trial examiner upon the evidence, and exceptions filed thereto, briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto, and oral arguments of counsel; and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Post Institute Sales Corporation, is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, having its office and principal place of business at 105 East Sixteenth Street in the city of New York, State of New York. Said corporation was originally incorporated under the name of Post Institute, Inc., and on or about July 6, 1939, the name of said corporation was changed to Post Institute Sales Corporation. During the time that said respondent operated under the name of Post Institute, Inc., it was engaged in the manufacture and in the sale and distribution of certain preparations for the hair and scalp known as Ultrasol Hair Bath, Ultrasol Pituitary Fluid, and Ultrasol .33, recommended for use, in combination, as Ultrasol Scalp Treatment. On or about July 6, 1939, at the time the name of respondent corporation was changed to Post Institute Sales Corporation, said corporate respondent discontinued the manufacture of said preparations and from that time until the present, said preparations have been manufactured by respondent Louis J. Stern, an individual trading as Post Institute, and said respondent Post Institute Sales Corporation has been sole distributor of said preparations so manufactured by the said respondent Louis J. Stern, trading as Post Institute.

Respondent, Louis J. Stern, is an individual, trading under the name of Post Institute. Prior to July 6, 1939, said respondent Louis J. Stern was president and owner of all the capital stock of Post Institute, Inc. Subsequent to July 6, 1939, said respondent Louis J. Stern has been president and manager of Post Institute Sales Corporation and owns 60 percent of the capital stock of said corporation. Said respondent Louis J. Stern has, at all times mentioned herein, directed and controlled the policies and sales activities of Post Institute Sales Corporation and its predecessor, Post Institute, Inc.

Post Institute, a corporation, also known as the Post Institute of Delaware, Inc., a corporation, was organized under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Delaware, having its principal office at 100 West Tenth Street, Wilmington, Del., and was engaged in the sale and distribution of preparations known as Ultrasol Scalp Treatment, in the city of Philadelphia, State of Pennsylvania. Said corporation was dissolved on March 4, 1939.

Respondent, Helmuth M. Kiesewetter, is an individual, and was president of Post Institute of Delaware, Inc., a corporation, until its dissolution in March, 1939. Said respondent is also the owner of five percent of the stock of Post Institute Sales Corporation but is not a director or officer of said corporation and has not actively participated in any of the acts and practices hereinafter found.

PAR. 2. Respondent, Post Institute Sales Corporation, a corporation (formerly known as Post Institute, Inc.), and respondent Louis J. Stern, individually and trading as Post Institute and as officer and director of Post Institute Sales Corporation, a corporation (formerly known as Post Institute, Inc.), have caused said preparations for the hair and scalp known as Ultrasol Hair Bath, Ultrasol Pituitary Fluid, and Ultrasol .33, when sold to be transported from their places of business in the State of New York to purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondents maintain, and at all times mentioned herein have maintained, a course of trade in said preparations in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of their aforesaid businesses, the said respondents have disseminated and are now disseminating, and have caused and are now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning their said preparations, by United States mails and by various other means in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, and respondents have also disseminated and are now disseminating, and have caused and are now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning their said preparations by various means, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of their said preparations in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Among and typical of the false, misleading, and deceptive statements and representations contained in said false advertisements disseminated and caused to be disseminated as hereinabove set forth, by United States mails, by advertisements in newspapers and periodicals, and by circulars, leaflets, pamphlets, and other advertising literature, are the following:

AFTER MATURE RESEARCH

Post Institute has formulated the theory that abnormal hair loss, faded hair and most other hair troubles, in nonpathological cases, are due to:

(A) Neo-keratin, horn-like matter, which fills up the "funnel" of the hair follicle, interferes with natural lubrication, restricts the growth of luxuriant hair and often prevents the free emergence of new hair.

(B) Insufficiency, at the hair root, of some constituent of pituitary secretion.

Based on this theory, the Institute has designated Ultrasol and the method of applying it:

(a) To remove neo-keratin; (b) to supply to the scalp—in a manner planned to aid penetration—a special extract from the whole-gland pituitary body, in combination with other ingredients, which the Institute has found, by practical tests, conducive to hair improvement; (c) to create a condition under which natural revival of hair growth may become possible.

Ultrasol rids the scalp pores of those hard, little particles of foreign matter, which are bound to collect there from time to time; it stimulates the hair roots to normal scalp lubrication; creates a condition under which normal hair growth may continue, and one's hair may again be its healthy, glowing best.

Ultrasol users report:

How abnormal hair loss has stopped.

How fuzz has grown to mature hair.

How the scalp feels refreshed, free from dandruff.

How dull, faded hair becomes brilliant.

How dry scalp becomes normal.

How limp, dull, scanty, "impossible hair" is revived without scalp manipulation or tiring massage.

Ultrasol courses for women are designed:

To revive limp, dull, scanty, "impossible hair" * * * without strong rinses, scalp manipulation or tiring massage.

To strengthen the hair for lasting, artistic permanent waving.

To normalize dry or oily scalp.

To give dyed hair even, "refined" luster.

To keep the scalp and hair clean, free from dandruff, without soap or drying solutions.

To check abnormal hair falling and combat premature graying.

PAR. 4. Through the use of the aforesaid statements and representations and others of similar import and meaning, not specifically set out herein, the said respondents represent, directly and by implication, that the process of keratinization interferes with the natural growth of hair and prevents the free emergence of new hair; that insufficiency of pituitary secretion at the hair root causes abnormal loss of hair, faded hair, and other hair troubles; and that the use of respondents' preparations, either singly or in combination, will remove keratin epidermal tissue and cause pituitary substance to penetrate to the hair roots and stimulate or revive the growth of hair. By the same means the said respondents represent, directly or by implication, that the use of their preparations, either singly or in combination, will revive the growth of hair, stop abnormal loss of hair, cause fuzz to develop into mature hair, cause dull, faded hair to become brilliant, normalize dry or oily scalp, check premature graying, restore natural color to the hair, and be effective in removing or curing dandruff.

PAR. 5. Respondents' preparations are designed for external application to the hair and scalp, and contain whole-gland pituitary body, a special extract, combined with derivatives from oil, cholesterol, and lecithin. The only benefit which might be obtained from the use of respondents' preparations is the possible counterirritant action supplied by massage on application of these preparations. Respondents' preparations have no therapeutic value in the treatment of any abnormal condition of the hair or scalp.

The keratinization of the skin is a normal process and forms a scaly or horny substance on the scalp, as well as other parts of the skin. In some cases it sheds easily and in other cases adheres to the scalp. The adherence to the scalp is not necessarily a disease condition and can be removed by a good shampoo medium. Respondents' preparations would have no more effect than soap and water or any other cleansing agent under such conditions. The shedding of such epidermal horny cells has no significance in the growth of hair.

The pituitary gland is not generally recognized by the medical profession as being a controlling factor in the growth of hair, although it may, under certain conditions, have some bearing upon hair growth. Under the conditions of use the extract of whole-gland pituitary body contained in respondents' preparations is inactive, since the use of pituitary substance by external application has no value whatsoever and is ineffective in the treatment of any hair or scalp condition.

The use of said respondents' preparations Ultrasol Hair Bath, Ultrasol Pituitary Fluid, and Ultrasol .33, either singly or in combination, will not revive the growth of hair, stop abnormal loss of hair, cause fuzz to develop into mature hair, or cause dull, faded hair to become brilliant. The use of said preparations will not normalize dry or oily scalp, check premature graying, or restore natural color to the hair. Respondents' preparations do not constitute a cure or remedy for dandruff and have no value in the treatment of dandruff in excess of effecting the temporary removal of dandruff scales.

PAR. 6. The Commission further finds that the said respondents represent, through the use of the word "Institute" in their trade or corporate name and in various forms of advertising, that they are a scientific organization formed for the purpose of promoting learning and research, when, in fact, Post Institute is a trade name used by Louis J. Stern, an individual, in connection with the commercial manufacture and sale of his various preparations, and Post Institute Sales Corporation, is a corporation engaged in the sale and distribution of various preparations manufactured by the said Louis J. Stern. Said respondents are not scientific organizations formed for the purpose of promoting learning and research. In furtherance of their plan of misrepresentation as to the nature and scope of the business conducted by them, the respondents use in advertising the following statements and representations:

AFTER TWELVE YEARS OF RESEARCH

PAR. 7. In addition to the acts and practices hereinabove described, the respondents place on their various advertising, a replica of a seal, usually round in design, on the outer margin of which appears the following, in large letters:

CERTIFIED SAFE

and in the center of which appears the following legend:

The use of such seal has a tendency and capacity to cause purchasers and prospective purchasers to believe that said respondents' preparations have been certified, tested, or approved by city, State, or federal boards of health, when, in fact, such products have never been certified, tested, or approved by any board of health of any city, State or any department of the Federal Government.

PAR. 8. The Commission further finds that the said respondents place the following statements in their various advertising booklets and circulars:

REFERENCES

CONCERNING THE INFLUENCE OF THE STRATUM CORNEUM ON THE EMERGENCE OF HAIR. Reference is made to the works of W. J. O'Donovan, M. D., a physician at the Skin Department of London Hospital, lecturer at the London School of

CONCERNING THE ABSORPTION OF SUBSTANCES THROUGH THE HAIR FOLLICLE. Reference is made to the works of George Clinton Andrews, M. D., Associate Professor of Dermatology, College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University; Richard J. Sutton, M. D., Professor of Dermatology, University of Kansas, School of Medicine, and Richard L. Sutton, Jr., M. D., Assistant Professor of Dermatology, University of Kansas.

The use of the above statements in their various booklets and circulars describing their various preparations and the results to be obtained from their use, has the tendency and capacity to cause purchasers and prospective purchasers to believe that said respondents' preparations have been examined and approved by the various doctors referred to in said references, when, in fact, such doctors and physicians have not examined or approved respondents' preparations and do not subscribe to the theories appearing in respondents' booklets and advertising.

PAR. 9. The use by the respondents of the foregoing false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations disseminated as aforesaid, has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that all such statements and representations are true and induces a substantial portion of the purchasing public to purchase said respondents' cosmetic preparations because of such erroneous and mistaken belief.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

and in opposition thereto, and oral arguments of counsel; and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Post Institute Sales Corporation, a corporation (formerly known as Post Institute, Inc.), and its officers and respondent Louis J. Stern, an individual, trading as Post Institute, and their respective agents, representatives, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale or distribution of their preparations for the hair and scalp designated Ultrasol Hair Bath, Ultrasol Pituitary Fluid, and Ultrasol 33, either singly or in combination under the designation of Ultrasol Scalp Treatment, or any other product of substantially similar composition or possessing substantially similar properties, whether sold under the same names or under any other name or names, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Disseminating, or causing to be disseminated, any advertisement by means of the United States mails, or by any means in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, which advertisement represents, directly or through inference.

(a) That the use of respondents' preparations, either singly or in combination, will revive the growth of hair, stop abnormal loss of hair, cause fuzz to develop into mature hair, or cause dull, faded hair to become brilliant.

(b) That the use of respondents' preparations, either singly or in combination, will normalize dry or oily scalp, check premature graying, or restore natural color to the hair.

(c) That respondents' preparations, either singly or in combination, constitute a cure or remedy for dandruff, or have any value in the treatment of dandruff in excess of effecting the temporary removal of dandruff scales.

(d) That the pituitary substance contained in respondents' preparations is an active ingredient or that it will have any effect upon the growth of hair under the conditions of use.

2. Disseminating, or causing to be disseminated, any advertisement, by any means, for the purpose of inducing, or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act of respondents' preparations, which advertisement contains any of the representations prohibited in paragraph (1) hereof and the respective subdivisions thereof.

Order

3. The use, in circulars and other advertising material, of any general reference to any article or book written by any doctor or physician which does not subscribe to the statements or theories contained in such circulars and other advertising without disclosing that such article or book does not constitute an endorsement of respondents' preparations or subscribe to the theories advanced by the respondents in such advertising material.

4. The use of the word "Institute," or any other word of similar import or meaning, in respondents' corporate or trade name, or representing through any other means or device, or in any manner, that respondents constitute scientific organizations or associations formed for the purpose of promoting learning and research, or that the business operated by them, or any of them, is anything other than a private business enterprise for profit.

5. The use of any seal, emblem, or other insignia, which represents, either directly or by implication, that respondents' preparations have been certified, tested, or approved by any board of health of any city or State or by any department of the Federal Government.

It is further ordered, That the complaint be dismissed as to the respondents, Helmuth M. Kiesewetter, an individual, and Post Institute, a corporation, also known as Post Institute of Delaware, Inc., a corporation.

It is further ordered, That the respondents shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondents, Melvin V. Eisenberg, Irwin Goldberg, Harry Krohner, and Seymour Eisenberg are individuals trading as Bentley Company, Mail Order Division, with their principal place of business located at 900 N. Francisco Avenue, Chicago, Ill. The individual addresses of each of the four respondents are respectively as follows: Melvin V. In the course and conduct of their said business respondents caused said preparation, when sold, to be transported from their place of business in the State of Illinois to purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondents maintain, and at all times mentioned herein have maintained, a course of trade in said preparation in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. For many years last past it has been, and still is, engaged in the business of manufacturing, selling, and shipping in interstate commerce of various specialty papers including so-called "bogus" paper, of which up to the present time, respondent has attained and maintained a dominant position approaching monopoly in the manufacture and original sale.

(b) Respondents, Samuel Fuchs, trading as Henry Fuchs and Son, with his principal office and place of business at 215 Greene Street, New York; Solomon J. Salwen and Morris Ruben and Sidney Salwen, copartners trading as Joe Salwen Co., with its principal office and place of business at 405 East Fourth Street, New York, N. (c) Respondent, Stay Die Cutters Association, Inc., is a corporation organized about October 1933 and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York with its principal office and place of business at 225 West Thirty-fourth Street, New York, N. Respondent, Sidney Haberman, since during 1938 has been and still is executive secretary of said Stay Die Cutter Association, Inc., and using said title, has acted as and performed the duties of business manager and has been in active charge of the office and business of said Association.

(d) Respondent, Art Metal Die Manufacturers, is a New York corporation with its principal office and place of business at 115 West Twenty-ninth Street, New York, N. Y.; and respondent, Harry Litky, maintains his principal office and place of business at 580 Broadway, New York, N. Y.; and respondent, Jennie Lansky, trading as Lansky Die Cutting Co., maintains her principal office and place of business at 194 Greene Street, New York, N. Y.; and respondent, Morris Silverberg, trading as F. & S. Die Cutting Co. maintains his principal office and place of business at 57 East Eleventh Street, New York; and all of the hereinaforesaid corporations, partnerships and individuals have been, and still are, engaged in the stay die cutting business and industry, and sell and ship their products in interstate commerce, and all of them took part in organizing, and have since been, and still are members of respondent, Stay Die Cutters Association, Inc., and all have participated in the formation of its policies and the doing of unlawful acts and practices hereinafter set forth.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of their said businesses, all of said respondents (except the respondent association and its executive secretary), have caused to be sold and shipped, and have shipped "bogus" paper, or the converted products thereof, from their various places of business within the States of New York and Massachusetts to the purchasers thereof located in States other than said States of New York and Massachusetts, and there has been for many years last past and now is a continuous current of interstate trade and commerce in "bogus" paper product in its original or converted form between and among the several States of the United States; and respondent, Stay Die Cutters Association, Inc., and its executive secretary, Sidney Haberman, have cooperated with and aided the other respondents in the directing and restricting of such sales and shipments.

Newton Paper Mills, and buy said paper either direct from said manufacturer, or from some one or more of the three above-named respondent distributors.

For some years prior to October 1933, there was free and open competition between and among the makers of, and dealers in "bogus" paper, including respondent Newton Paper Mills and the distributors hereinbefore named, and between and among the various concerns engaged in the die cutting industry, including the respondent die cutting concerns, in the sale of their converted product of said paper; and all of said concerns would still be thus engaged in free and open competition but for the unlawful acts and practices as hereinafter stated.

PAR. 4. On or about October 1, 1933, the respondents entered into and thereafter carried out and are still carrying out an understanding, agreement, combination and conspiracy to hinder, lessen, restrict, and restrain competition and trade in the sale and distribution of "bogus" paper, either in its original or converted form, in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and to monopolize in themselves the business in said commerce.

Pursuant to and in furtherance of said understanding, agreement, combination, and conspiracy, said respondents have performed, and now perform, among others, the following acts and practices:

1. Respondent die cutters organized respondent, Stay Die Cutters Association, Inc., to assist them in carrying out said understanding, agreement, combination, and conspiracy.

9. Respondent Association, and respondent, Haberman have cooperated with the respondent die cutters by holding meetings of members; by circulating and distributing prices, discounts, and charges fixed and established by said respondent die cutters; by circulating and distributing lists of delinquent customers, and also by prescribing and assessing penalties for violation of said understandings and agreements entered into by said members, as hereinbefore described, and by doing and performing other acts and practices in carrying out said understandings and agreements.

Respondents have carried out, and are still carrying out, the aforesaid purposes and objectives, and in the carrying out of said purposes and objectives, respondent Association and its executive secretary have been the chief instrumentality in coordinating such efforts and unlawful acts and practices of all the respondents.

PAR. 5. The said understanding, agreement, combination, and conspiracy as aforescribed, and the things done thereunder and in pursuance and furtherance thereof, as hereinbefore alleged, have had and now have the capacity, tendency and effect of:

(a) Unduly restricting and restraining competition in the manufacture and distribution of "bogus" paper in its original and converted forms in commerce between and among the several States of the United States.

(b) Enabling the respondents to control and substantially monopolize the business of the manufacture, sale, and distribution of "bogus" paper and its converted products in said commerce.

(d) To fix, maintain, and enhance the price to the users of said products, and to the extent of any such enhancement of price, to likewise enhance the price to the consuming public of the products of which "bogus" paper became a part.

PAR. 6. The understanding, agreement, combination, and conspiracy and acts described in the foregoing paragraphs have continued to the present.

PAR. 7. The acts and practices of respondents as aforescribed are all to the prejudice of the public and have a dangerous tendency to hinder, and have actually hindered and prevented, price competition between and among respondents in the purchase and sale of "bogus" paper both in its original and converted forms, in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act; have placed in respondents the power to fix, control, maintain, and enhance prices of said commodities; have increased the prices of said commodities paid by purchasers thereof, and consequently the prices paid by the users thereof, and of the public for the finished products of which they became a part; have created in said respondents a substantial monopoly in the dealings in said commodities in commerce throughout the several States of the United States; have unreasonably restrained such commerce in "bogus" paper both in its original and converted forms, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

PAR. 5. Respondent, Sidney Haberman, since during 1938 has been and still is executive secretary of said Stay Die Cutters Association, Inc., and using said title, has acted as and performed the duties of business manager and has been in active charge of the office and business of said association.

PAR. 6. Respondent, Art Metal Die Manufacturers, is a New York corporation with its principal office and place of business at 115 West Twenty-ninth Street, New York, N. Y.; and respondent, Die-Craft Cutting Co., Inc., is a New York corporation with its principal office and place of business at 120 East Sixteenth Street, New York, N. Y.; and respondent, R. & C. Mounting and Finishing Co., is a New York corporation with its principal office and place of business at 102 Tompson Street, New York, N. Y.; and respondent, New York Leather Embossing Co., is a New York corporation with its principal office and place of business at 129 West Twenty-fifth Street, New York, N. Y.; and respondent, Harry Litky, maintains his principal office and place of business at 580 Broadway, New York, N. Y.; and respondent, Jennie Lansky, trading as Lansky Die Cutting Co., maintains her principal office and place of business at 194 Greene Street, New York, N. Y.; and respondent, Morris Silverberg, trading as F. & S. Die Cutting Co., maintains his principal office and place of business at 57 East Eleventh Street, New York, N. Y. (all hereinafter referred to as die cutters); and all of the hereinaforesaid corporations, partnerships, and individuals have been, and still are, engaged in the stay die cutting business and industry, and sell and ship their products in interstate commerce, and all of them took part in organizing and have since been and still are members of respondent Stay Die Cutters Association, Inc., and all have participated in the formation of its policies and the doing of unlawful acts and practices hereinafter set forth.

PAR. 7. "Bogus" paper is a cheap, flexible paper cut by dies into stays of various shapes and sizes and used chiefly in lining handbags and pocketbooks. Said paper has been and is sold by respondent Newton Paper Co. only to respondent distributors and such paper has been sold by said Newton Paper Co.'s competitors either to distributors, or direct to die cutting concerns. When respondent die cutting concerns have cut said paper into the shapes and sizes as required by its customers, they sell and ship the converted product to their various competing customer-makers of handbags and pocketbooks. The stay die cutting industry aggregates in excess of $300,000 gross sales per annum, and for said business, those engaged therein use approximately $200,000 worth of "bogus" paper made by respondent Newton Paper Company, which they can and do buy only from some one or more of the three respondent distributors.

PAR. 8. In the course and conduct of their said businesses, all of said respondents (except the respondent association and its executive secretary), have caused to be sold and shipped, and have shipped, "bogus" paper, or the converted products thereof, from their various places of business within the States of New York and Massachusetts to the purchasers thereof located in States other than said States of New York and Massachusetts, and there has been for many years last past and now is a continuous current of interstate trade and commerce in "bogus" paper product in its original or converted form between and among the several States of the United States; and respondent Stay Die Cutters Association, Inc., and its executive secretary, Sidney Haberman, have cooperated with and aided the other respondents in the directing and restricting of such sales and shipments.

PAR. 9. For some years prior to October 1933, there was free and open competition between and among the makers of, and dealers in, "bogus" paper, including respondent Newton Paper Co. and the distributor respondents, and between and among the various concerns engaged in the die cutting industry, including the respondent die cutting concerns, in the sale of their converted product of said paper; and all of said concerns would still be engaged in full, free, and open competition, but for the unlawful acts and practices as hereinafter set forth.

PAR. 10. On or about October 1, 1933, respondents entered into and thereafter carried out and are still carrying out an understanding and combination to hinder, lessen, restrict, and restrain competition and trade in the sale and distribution of "bogus" paper, either in its original or converted form, in commerce between and among the several States of the United States, and to monopolize in themselves the business in said commerce.

PAR. 11. Pursuant to and in furtherance of said understanding and combination, said respondents have performed and now perform, or have aided and participated in, among others, the following acts and practices:

(a) Respondent die cutters organized respondent Stay Die Cutters Association, Inc., to assist them in carrying out said understanding and combination.

(b) Respondent die cutters refuse to solicit or sell their products to customers of other members of respondent association, under penalties prescribed and assessed by respondent association.

(c) Respondent die cutters, through respondent association, allocate among themselves all new and prospective customers.

(d) Respondent die cutters furnish respondent association with lists of their customers and the name of any customer who is delinquent in his accounts.

(e) Respondent die cutters refuse to sell any customer who has become delinquent in his accounts with any other member.

(f) Respondent die cutters, as far as practicable, restrict their purchases of "bogus" paper to the respondent manufacturer and respondent distributors.

(g) Respondent die cutters, under the auspices of respondent association, hold meetings at which they fix and establish prices, terms, discounts, and charges for their respective products.

(h) Respondent association and respondent Haberman have cooperated with the respondent die cutters by holding meetings of members; by circulating and distributing prices, discounts, and charges fixed and established by said respondent die cutters; by circulating and distributing lists of delinquent customers, and also by prescribing and assessing penalties for violation of said understandings and agreements entered into by said members, as hereinbefore described, and by doing and performing other acts and practices in carrying out said understandings and agreements.

(i) Respondent manufacturer has restricted its sales and shipments of said paper to the three respondent distributors, thereby giving them sole control and monopoly of the sale and distribution of said product of the said dominant producer respondent.

(j) Respondent distributors refuse to sell to any die cutter not a member of respondent association on the same terms and conditions they sell to said members.

PAR. 12. Respondents have carried out, and are still carrying out, the aforesaid purposes and objectives, and in the carrying out of said purposes and objectives respondent association and its executive secretary have been the chief instrumentality in coordinating such efforts and unlawful acts and practices of all the respondents.

PAR. 13. The said understanding and combination as aforescribed, and the things done thereunder and in pursuance and furtherance thereof, as hereinbefore set forth have had, and now have, the capacity, tendency and effect of:

(a) Unduly restricting and restraining competition in the manufacture and distribution of "bogus" paper, in its original and converted forms, in commerce between and among the several States of the United States;

(b) Enabling respondents to control and substantially monopolize the business of the manufacture, sale and distribution of "bogus" paper and its converted products in said commerce;

(c) Preventing competitors and prospective competitors, either in the manufacture or distribution of said "bogus" paper and its converted products, from entering into the field of manufacture, conversion, or sale and distribution of said product;

(d) Fixing, maintaining, and enhancing the price to the users of said product and to the extent of any such enhancement of price, of likewise enhancing the price to the consuming public of the products of which "bogus" paper has become a part.

PAR. 14. The understanding and combination, and acts and practices above set forth have continued to the present.

CONCLUSION

The acts and practices of respondents as aforesaid are all to the prejudice of the public and have a dangerous tendency to hinder, and have actually hindered and prevented, price competition between and among respondents in the purchase and sale of "bogus" paper both in its original and converted forms, in commerce, within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act; have placed in respondents the power to fix, control, maintain, and enhance prices of said commodity; have increased the prices of said commodity to the purchasers thereof, and consequently the prices to the users thereof, and to the public for the finished products of which they have become a part; have created in said respondents a substantial monopoly in the dealings in said commodity in commerce throughout the several States of the United States; have unreasonably restrained commerce in "bogus" paper both in its original and converted forms, and all con-

IN THE MATTER OF

D. J. BORTZ AND EDITH BORTZ, TRADING AS CHAMPION
BATTERY COMPANY AND THE BALL COMPANYCOMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914*Docket 4134. Complaint, May 16, 1940—Decision, Dec. 18, 1941*

Where two individuals, engaged under the names, "The Ball Co." and "Champion Battery Co.," in the competitive interstate sale and distribution to retailers of so-called sales promotional plans, involving (1) in its dealing under former name, units for which the dealer paid 5 cents to their representative and undertook to pay balance of 15 cents, upon delivery, without prior opportunity for inspection, and which consisted of gift certificate, "ivory ware" cup, saucer and cereal dish, and printed handbills and penants or posters for the merchant's use, the scheme purportedly contemplating that $5.00 in purchases, when stamped out on his certificate, entitled a customer to receive said dishes from the dealer with the further provision that the dealer sending in such punched-out certificate, together with name and address of customer and 39 cents for an additional unit of such "ivory ware", was entitled to 23 cents refund; and involving, (2) when trading under latter name, a purported selling plan, varying from the former, in that when the punched-out certificate was sent to them with name of the customer, it was to be accompanied by a varying remittance for a so-called trial order of dry batteries, depending on the particular novelty desired by the customer, and the 20 cents paid by the dealer for certificate was to be refunded—

- (a) Made use, as aforesaid, of trade name "The Ball Co." in offer and sale of their first-described promotional sales plan and dinner ware, and in their contract forms and on letterheads displayed the heading "The Ball Co., Dinnerware Department"; and represented, through their sales representatives, that such concern was a department of, or connected with, or a representative of, the well known Ball Brothers Company, manufacturers of mason jars, and that said plan was an effort on the part of the latter to recoup lost sales volume attributed to increased use of tin and other food containers, and was to introduce the new dinnerware made by said Ball Bros. Co., and, further, that the retail dealer might become the representative of said company and receive substantial profits on future sales of such dinnerware;
- (b) Concealed, in some instances, the fact that the dealer would not receive a refund unless additional purchases were made by his customer, and displayed to dealers, as samples of the ware, merchandise of substantially better grade and more attractively colored and decorated than that actually furnished;
- (c) Made use, as aforesaid, of name "The Champion Battery Co." in offer and sale of their said promotional sales plan involving batteries, and represented, through their sales representatives, that they were agents of, or that their said concern was connected with, the well-known Champion Spark Plug Co., of Toledo, Ohio; that latter was commencing the manufacture of batteries, and that the sales plan offered was to advertise the new line; and that great profits could be made from future resale of batteries which would be promoted by extensive advertising by the concern above referred to; and displayed, offered and sold, in such connection, batteries marked and designated as "Champion";

- (d) Concealed the fact that the dealer's customers would have to purchase batteries in order to secure the novelties included in the plan, by misrepresentations or by failure to exhibit a true copy of the so-called "advertising gift check," and represented the number of samples of such novelties to be furnished to the dealer as greater than the number actually furnished; and,
- (e) Represented, through the advertising handbills furnished to contracting dealers for the sales promotion plan offered under the name of "Champion Battery Co." that the various novelties were available to customers of the purchasing dealer "free," when in fact the cost of such articles was included in the price of the batteries which had to be purchased to obtain them; Notwithstanding the fact they were in no way connected with the Ball Bros. Co. of Muncie, Ind., long time manufacturer of glass fruit jars, or with the Champion Spark Plug Co. of Toledo, Ohio, products of both of which were well and favorably known to the purchasing public, nor were their dinnerware, or their so-called "Champion" batteries, respectively, products of said companies;

With intent and effect of misleading and deceiving many members of the public who had confidence in the aforesaid companies and their products into the purchase of their so-called promotional sales plans and accompanying merchandise, in the false belief that they were dealing with or securing the products of said Ball Bros. Co. or Champion Spark Plug Co., and of misleading and deceiving their customers into the belief that they were connected with said widely-known companies and dealt in their products; and

- (f) Frequently misrepresented, through their sales representatives, the quantities of handbills and advertising pennants or posters which would be furnished to the purchasing dealer, and displayed purported samples of such advertising material far superior to that actually furnished;
- (g) Represented, as aforesaid, that they were introducing a new line of merchandise, and that the sales plan offered was for the purpose of bringing it to the attention of the public, and made numerous other false representations to induce purchases; and
- (h) Made use of a form of contract or agreement which provided that the purchasing dealer had read its terms, that the order was not subject to change or cancellation, and that "No terms or representations except as printed herein will be recognized by this company," notwithstanding which they accepted the benefits of orders which contained written alterations of the printed terms, and, while collecting the full amount due thereunder, complied only in part with the altered terms;

With effect of misleading and deceiving retail dealers into purchase of their so-called sales promotional plans and accompanying merchandise, in reliance upon such misrepresentations, of placing in the hands of dealers a means and instrumentality whereby the latter might mislead and deceive the consuming public, and of unfairly diverting trade in commerce to them from their competitors; to the injury of such competitors and the public: Held, That such methods, acts and practices were all to the prejudice of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that D. J. Bortz and Edith Bortz, individually, and trading as Champion Battery Co., and the Ball Co., respectively, hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating it charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondents, D. J. Bortz and Edith Bortz, are individuals doing business under the trade names of Champion Battery Co., and the Ball Co., with their principal office and place of business located in Room 403, Morgan Building, Detroit, Mich. Respondents are now, and since the early part of the year 1939 have been, engaged in the sale and distribution in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia of certain so-called sales promotional plans, including, in connection therewith, the sale and distribution of "advertising gift checks," "gift certificates," and various articles of merchandise, novelty gifts, and premiums. Respondents cause such advertising gift checks, gift certificates and articles of merchandise, including novelty gifts, and premiums used in connection with the operation of their so-called sales promotional plans, when sold, to be transported from their place of business in the State of Michigan to purchasers thereof located in the various States of the United States other than the State of Michigan and in the District of Columbia. Respondents maintain, and at all times mentioned herein have maintained, a course of trade in the sale and distribution of said so-called sales promotional plans and articles of merchandise, including novelty gifts and premiums used in connection with the operation of the same, in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. Respondents, in the course and conduct of the business conducted by them under the respective trade names Champion Battery Co. and the Ball Co., are now and at all times herein mentioned have been in substantial competition with other individuals and with corporations, partnerships, and firms likewise engaged in the sale and distribution in commerce of so-called sales promotional plans which include or employ in their operation "advertising gift checks," "gift certificates," and other articles of merchandise, including novelty gifts, and premiums.

PAR. 3. Respondents, through their agents and salesmen, solicit and sell their so-called sales promotional plants to retail dealers located in various States of the United States. Said "advertising gift checks" consist of cards describing novelty gifts and premiums and containing figures on the margin thereof aggregating $5. Through the operation of said plans, as represented by agents of respondents, the dealer distributes such checks among his customers and prospective customers, and as purchases are made by such customers, the dealer punches the figure on the margin of the check corresponding to the amount purchased. When the entire amount has been punched out on the check, the customer or the dealer, in the case of the Champion Battery Co., may forward the gift check to respondents with a purchase order of batteries and bulbs and receive in return, in addition to batteries and bulbs ordered, one of the novelty gifts described in said check, as selected by the customer. In the case of the so-called sales-promotional plan operated in the name of the Ball Co., the customer, on surrendering the gift check, is to be supplied with pieces or combination sets of dinnerware.

Said "advertising gift checks" and "gift certificates" are sold to dealers in minimum orders of 100 and 200, respectively, for which the dealer pays 20 cents per check or certificate, or $20 for an order of 100 and $40 for an order of 200. The amount paid by the dealer for each check, in the case of the Champion Battery Co., is to be refunded to him when the full amount on a gift check has been punched out and the check forwarded to respondents for redemption by either the dealer or the customer, together with 20 cents for a purchase order of batteries. In the case of the Ball Co., the amount paid by the dealer is to be refunded to him when the full amount of the gift certificate has been punched out and the certificate, with the name and address of the customer appearing thereon, is forwarded to the respondents for redemption by the dealer.

Respondents furnish the dealer with various advertising handbills, which are headed with the word "Free" in large letters and describe the premiums offered, to be used by said dealer in putting the aforesaid plan into operation and effect.

PAR. 4. Respondents, doing business under the respective trade names Champion Battery Co., and the Ball Co., as aforesaid, through their salesmen and agents, make many false and misleading statements, and representations with respect to their so-called sales promotional plans. In soliciting dealers and with a view to making sales contracts and increasing their business, respondents represent that Champion Battery Co. is a representative of, or connected with, and is putting on an advertising campaign for, the Champion Spark Plug Co., which has earned a valuable good will and reputation through the manufacture and sale of "Champion Spark Plugs," and which is located at 900 Upton Avenue, Toledo, Ohio. Respondents represent further that the dealers' customers, upon forwarding the advertising gift checks to respondents for redemption, will receive various articles of merchandise "Free" in the way of premiums or prizes, and that so-called sales promotional plan will be without cost to the dealer in that the amount paid for such advertising gift checks by the dealer will be refunded by respondents upon redemption of the said checks. Respondents further represent that the dealer will be furnished a certain designated number of advertising handbills of attractive design and superior quality, the same being exhibited to the dealer, and attractive samples of substantial novelty gifts to be displayed by the dealer in putting the plan into operation and effect; that the plan has been designed to facilitate the advertising of a new line of batteries; that the novelty premiums are to be delivered to customers on a deposit of 20¢ for a purchase order of batteries with the gift check completely punched; and that the batteries sold by respondents are manufactured by the Champion Spark Plug Co.

Similarly, respondents represent that the Ball Co. is connected with, or a representative of, Ball Brothers Co., of Muncie, Ind., which has earned a favorable reputation and valuable good will through the manufacture and sale of glass fruit preserving jars; that because of the decline in the fruit preserving jar business during recent years due to increasing use of tin products, the Ball Co. has decided to introduce a new line of colored chinaware with a view to recouping lost sales volume. Respondents further represent that the dinnerware supplied in connection with the operation of the so-called sales promotional plan is of a high grade, of celebrated type known as "Fiesta," and attractive samples of such ware, in red and blue, green and yellow, are exhibited to prospective dealer-customers by respondents' sales representatives. Prospective dealer-customers are assured by respondents' sales agents that the amount paid for gift certificates by the dealer will be refunded by respondents upon redemption of the said certificates. Respondents likewise represent that the dealer will be furnished a certain designated number of advertising handbills of attractive design and quality and three-piece units of colored Fiesta dinnerware for each gift certificate, to be used by the dealer in supplying the customers who surrender their certificates for redemption. Respondents' salesmen impress customers with the idea that the so-called sales promotional plan is to facilitate the advertising of a new line of dinnerware, to stimulate the sale of the same through retail store channels, and that the dinnerware sold by respondents is manufactured by the well-known Ball Brothers Co.

PAR. 5. Respondents' representations as herein set forth are grossly exaggerated, false, misleading, and untrue. In truth and in fact, respondents, doing business under the trade name Champion Battery Co. are not representatives of, or connected with, or putting on an advertising campaign for, the Champion Spark Plug Co. Dealers are not reimbursed for the sums paid by them to respondents in advance for sales checks or certificates. The "free" premium or prize that is sent to customers of dealers is not free to said customers but they are, on the contrary, required in each instance to pay a larger sum of money for the purchase of a designated number of flash light batteries and bulbs than had been represented to them or was understood by them, which sum of money is substantial and represents full payment for said flash light batteries, bulbs, and premiums or prizes received. Dealers are not furnished the designated number of advertising handbills promised and those furnished are cheap and unattractive and far inferior to sample advertising matter shown by agents. Novelty gifts shipped are short of the number promised and inferior to samples shown. Gift samples are likewise short of the number promised and of inferior quality. Respondents' plan is not designed to facilitate the advertising of a new line of batteries. Premiums are not delivered to customers as represented on a deposit of 20 cents for a purchase order of batteries and bulbs when the gift check is completely punched. The batteries sold by respondents are not manufactured by Champion Spark Plug Co.

The various representations made by and on behalf of respondents doing business under the trade name the Ball Co. are likewise false, misleading, grossly exaggerated and untrue. Respondents are not a department of, or connected with, nor do they in any way represent, Ball Brothers Co. of Muncie, Ind., nor has said Ball Brothers Co. added any line of dinnerware to their glass jar manufacturing business. Respondents' so-called sales promotional plan is not without cost to the dealers who purchase and use the same in their business and the amount paid for such gift certificates by the dealers is not refunded by respondents on redemption of said certificates. Customers of dealers do not receive "free" sets of dinnerware, but on the contrary are required to remit the sum of 39 cents with each certificate returned to respondents, which sum of money represents and covers not only the value of the said dinnerware but a substantial profit on the same. The dealer is not furnished the promised number of advertising handbills, nor are handbills of the quality or design shown by agents. The dinnerware shipped to customers by respondents is not genuine Fiesta ware as represented nor in colors as represented, but on the contrary consists only of the cheapest milk-white glassware found in 5 and 10 cent stores, and samples as well as premium lots of dinnerware are short of the numbers promised. Respondents' plan is not designed to facilitate the advertising of a new line of dinnerware nor to stimulate the sale of dinnerware through additional retail store channels, and the dinnerware sold by respondents is not manufactured by Ball Brothers Co.

PAR. 6. Respondents in the further course and conduct of their business under the respective trade names Champion Battery Co. and the Ball Co., for the purpose of appropriating the business established by the reputation and good will of the Champion Spark Plug Co. and Ball Brothers Co., respectively, and also for the purpose of misleading and deceiving purchasers and prospective purchasers, place and have placed the word "Champion" upon the labels of their batteries sold by them trading as Champion Battery Co., and employ the word "Ball" in connection with sales made when trading as the Ball Co., respectively, thus representing or implying that such articles are manufactured by, or are the products of, the Champion Spark Plug Co., or Ball Brothers Co., respectively. The Champion Spark Plug Co. is a corporation organized and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Ohio, with its factory and principal place of business located at 900 Upton Avenue, City of Toledo, in the State of Ohio. The Ball Brothers Co. is a corporation organized and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Indiana with its factory and principal place of business located in Muncie, Ind.

The Champion Spark Plug Co. is now, and for many years last past has been, engaged in the manufacture of spark plugs to be used in automobiles and other mechanical apparatus and in the sale and distribution of said products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, causing said products, when sold, to be shipped from their place of business in the State of Ohio to the purchasers thereof located in States of the United States other than the State of Ohio. Said products are sold under and are designated by the trade name "Champion."

The Ball Brothers Co. is now, and for many years last past has been, engaged in the manufacture of glass fruit preserving jars to be used in canning vegetables and fruits, and in the sale and distribution of said products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, causing said products, when sold to be shipped from its place of business in the State of Indiana to the purchasers thereof located in the States of the United States other than the State of Indiana. Said glass fruit preserving jars are sold under and are designated by the trade name "Ball."

Said companies have built up and enjoy a valuable good will in the words "Champion" and "Ball" as applied to their respective products, particularly spark plugs used in automobiles and other mechanical apparatus, and fruit jars which are used in canning vegetables and fruits. Members of the purchasing public have through long usage and over a long period of time identified electrical and other mechanical apparatus and accessories which bear the name "Champion" as the product of the well and favorably known Champion Spark Plug Co. and have manifested a preference for such "Champion" products.

Likewise, members of the purchasing public have, through long usage and over a long period of time, identified fruit jars and other products which bear the name "Ball" as the products of the well and favorably known Bali Brothers Co. and have manifested a preference for such "Ball" products.

PAR. 7. The use by respondents of the names "Champion" and "Ball" as a part of their respective trade names herein, without any accompanying words indicating that said trade names do not indicate the products of and business conducted by the said Champion Spark Plug Co. and the said Ball Brothers Co., respectively, constitutes in itself false and misleading representations by respondents that their products are the products of the Champion Spark Plug Co. and of the Ball Brothers Co. In truth and in fact, respondents' articles of merchandise are not the products of or made by Champion Spark Plug Co. or the Ball Brothers Co., but are obtained by respondents from other sources to the injury and damage to the good will which said companies have built up and have enjoyed for many years in the manufacture, sale, and distribution of their respective products among the purchasing public of the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 8. The aforesaid acts, practices and methods used by the respondents place in the hands of retailers a means and instrumentality whereby the consuming and purchasing public is misled and deceived.

PAR. 9. The use by the respondents of the methods, acts and practices hereinabove alleged has had, and now has, the tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive retailers and to cause them erroneously to believe that all of said statements, claims and representations are true, and that said batteries and said dinnerware products are manufactured by Champion Spark Plug Co. and Ball Brothers Co., respectively, and to purchase said so-called sales promotional plan, advertising gift checks, gift certificates, and other articles of merchandise used in putting said plan into operation and effect, thereby unfairly diverting trade in said commerce to the respondents from their competitors to their injury and to the injury of the public.

PAR. 10. The aforesaid methods, acts, and practices of respondents are all to the prejudice of the public and of the respondents' competitors as hereinabove alleged. Said methods, acts, and practices constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on May 16, 1940, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondents, D. J. Bortz, and Edith Bortz, individually, and trading as Champion Battery Co., and as the Ball Co., charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondents' answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by attorneys for the Commission and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by an attorney for respondents before an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, report of the trial examiner and exceptions thereto, and brief in support of the complaint (respondent not having filed brief and oral argument not having been requested); and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom :

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondents, Donald J. Bortz (the individual referred to in the complaint as D. J. Bortz), and Edith Bortz, are individuals doing business as the Champion Battery Co. and, until recently, as the Ball Co. Respondents have their principal office and place of business at Room 403, Morgan Building, Detroit, Mich. The trade names used by respondents are registered in the name of Edith Bortz as owner and the business of respondents is carried on under the management and control of her husband, Donald J. Bortz. Respondents are now, and for more than 2 years last past have been, engaged in the sale and distribution of so-called sales promotional plans and, in connection therewith, the sale and distribution of certain certificates, advertising material, and various articles of merchandise.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of the aforesaid business respondents have caused the said certificates, advertising material, and articles of merchandise, when sold, to be transported from their place of business in the State of Michigan to purchasers in other States of the United States. Respondents maintain, and have maintained, a course of trade in the sale and distribution of the said articles used in connection with the operation of the so-called sales promotion plans in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

In the conduct of the aforesaid business under the trade names of Champion Battery Co. and the Ball Co. respondents are now, and have been, in substantial competition with other individuals and with corporations, partnerships, and firms likewise engaged in the sale and distribution in commerce of so-called sales promotional plans which, in principle, are substantially the same as those used by respondents.

PAR. 3. Respondents, through their agents and salesmen, solicit and sell their so-called sales promotional plans to retail dealers located in various States of the United States.

The purported plan of operation under the name of the Ball Co. is to sell said sales promotional plan to retail dealers in the guise of a means of increasing the business of the purchasing dealer. It is provided that the plan will be sold in units of 200, the dealer agreeing to pay 20 cents for each unit purchased, 5 cents of which is paid to the respondents' representative at the time of sale and the remainder upon delivery of the material purchased and prior to any opportunity for inspection thereof. Each unit consists of a so-called gift certificate; a cup, saucer, and cereal dish designated as "ivory ware"; and certain printed handbills and pennants or posters. The gift certificates are intended for distribution by the retail dealer to his customers. Each such certificate has numbers printed on its margin to the aggregate of 500, which numbers are to be punched out by the dealer in accordance with purchases made from him by the holder of the certificate, and when a total of $5 worth of merchandise has been purchased by the holder of the gift certificate he is to receive from the dealer upon surrender of such certificate a cup, saucer, and cereal dish made of said ivory ware. The handbills and pennants or posters are intended for the use of the retail merchant in advertising the plan to his customers. It is provided that when the dealer sends the punched-out certificate to respondents, together with the name and address of the customer and 39 cents for an additional unit of ivory ware, respondents will refund to the dealer 23 cents for each certificate so redeemed.

The purported selling plan followed by the respondents when trading under the name of Champion Battery Co. is similar in substance to that used by them in trading under the name of the Ball Co. The details of the plan vary, however, in that when purchases to the requisite amount have been made from the retail dealer and the certificate or "advertising gift check" is sent to respondents, together with the name of the customer and a remittance for a so-called trial order of dry batteries, a novelty such as a pencil which illuminates a small space around its point or an illuminated mirror is sent to the customer and the 20 cents paid by the dealer for the certificate is refunded to him. The amount of the remittance to be sent to the respondents with the certificate varies with the novelty item selected, as indicated on the reverse of such certificate. For example, the purchase of 6 batteries at 10 cents each is required in case a pencil light is wanted, or 10 batteries at 10 cents each in case the "mirror lite" is wanted.

PAR. 4. In the actual operation of respondents' business in the sale to retail merchants of the aforesaid sales promotional plans, respondents' sales representatives have made many false and misleading representations to purchasers. Among such representations were statements that the Ball Co. was a department of, or connected with, or a representative of, the well-known Ball Brothers Co., manufacturers of mason jars; that the plan being offered was an effort on the part of the Ball Brothers Co. to recoup lost sales volume attributed to increased use of tins and other containers for packing food products; that the plan was to introduce the new dinnerware made by the Ball Brothers Co. and it was anticipated that further business would result from the distribution of samples of the new merchandise; and that the retail dealer might become the representative of Ball Brothers Co. in making future sales and receive substantial profits on such business. In some instances the fact that the dealer would not receive a refund unless additional purchases were made by his customers was concealed from the purchasing dealer. The merchandise displayed to dealers as being samples of the ware to be furnished by respondents was materially different from that actually furnished and was of substantially better grade and more attractively colored and decorated than that actually furnished.

In the course of the business done by the respondents under the name of the Champion Battery Co. their sales representatives have represented themselves to be agents of, or that the Champion Battery Co. was connected with, the well-known Champion Spark Plug Co. of Toledo, Ohio; that the Champion Spark Plug Co. was commencing the manufacture of batteries and the sales plan offered was to facilitate the advertising of the new line; and that great profits could be made from future resales of batteries which would be promoted by extensive advertising by the Champion Spark Plug Co. The fact that the dealers' customers would have to make purchases of batteries in order to secure the novelties included in the plan was concealed from dealers by misrepresentations or by failure to exhibit a true copy of the so-called advertising gift check, and the number of samples of the novelty merchandise to be furnished to the dealer for exhibition to his customers in connection with the operation of the plan was represented to be greater than the number actually furnished.

The batteries displayed as samples by respondents' representatives and those distributed by respondents were marked and designated as "Champion" batteries.

The advertising handbills furnished by respondents to dealers who contracted for the sales promotion plan offered under the name of Champion Battery Co. represented that various items of novelty merchandise were available to customers of the purchasing dealer "free." Actually the cost of such articles is included in the price of the batteries which must be purchased to obtain the so-called free article of merchandise.

Respondents' sales representatives, operating under the name of the Ball Co. and of the Champion Battery Co., frequently misrepresented the quantities of handbills and advertising pennants or posters which would be furnished to the purchasing dealer and displayed purported samples of such advertising material far superior in quality and appearance to that actually furnished by respondents. Such sales representatives have represented that they are introducing a new line of merchandise and that the sales plan offered is for the purpose of aiding in bringing the new product to the attention and knowledge of the public, and have made numerous other false representations in order to induce the purchase of respondents' so-called sales promotional plans and accompanying merchandise. Respondent's contract forms, as well as their letterheads used in connection with business transacted as the Ball Co., carry the heading "The Ball Company, Dinnerware Department."

Respondents are not in any way connected with Ball Brothers Co. of Muncie, Indiana, or with the Champion Spark Plug Co. of Toledo, Ohio. The dinnerware offered for sale, and sold by them is not made by Ball Bros. Co.; nor are the batteries offered for sale, and sold by them made by the Champion Spark Plug Co.

The form of contract or agreement used by respondents in their sales to dealers, which form is to be signed by respondents' representative and by the purchasing dealer, provides that dealers have read its terms, that the order is not subject to change or cancellation, and that "No terms or representations except as printed herein will be recognized by this company." Respondents, however, have accepted the benefits of orders which by handwritten changes appearing thereon contain alterations of the printed terms, and such acceptance could not be without knowledge of the changes in the terms. They have in such instances, while collecting the full amount due under such orders, complied only in part with the altered terms thereof.

PAR. 5. The Ball Brothers Co. of Muncie, Ind., for many years has been engaged in the manufacture of glass fruit jars to be used in canning vegetables, fruits, and other products, and in the sale and distribution of such jars throughout the United States. The Champion Spark Plug Co. for many years has been engaged in the manufacture of spark plugs for use in automobile motors and other internal combustion motors and has sold and distributed such products throughout the United States. Both of these companies have spent large sums of money in advertising their products and obtaining a wide consumer acceptance therefor and in otherwise establishing public good will for their products. Their products are well and favorably known to the purchasing public and are known to be, and accepted as, excellent products of their respective kinds. Many members of the purchasing public, having knowledge of and confidence in the aforesaid companies and their products and in reliance upon the representations made to them concerning the identity with or connection of the Ball Co. and the Champion Battery Co. with such companies, have been misled and deceived into the purchase of respondents' so-called promotional plans and accompanying merchandise under the false and erroneous belief that they were dealing with or securing the products of Ball Bros. Co. or Champion Spark Plug Co.

The Commission concludes that the purpose of respondents in using the word "Ball" as a part of their trade name, the Ball Co., in connection with the sale of glass and other dinnerware and in using the word "Champion" as a part of their trade name, Champion Battery Co., in connection with the sale of electric batteries has been, and is, to mislead, confuse, and deceive their customers and the public into the belief that respondents are connected with Ball Bros. Co., widely known manufacturer of glass jars, and with Champion Spark Plug Co., widely known manufacturers of spark plugs, and into the belief that the products offered for sale, and sold, by respondents are those of such widely known manufacturers; and, further, that these acts and practices have the capacity and tendency to create such erroneous beliefs in the minds of members of the purchasing public.

PAR. 6. The use by the respondents of the foregoing methods, acts, and practices has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive, and has misled and deceived, retail dealers and has caused them, in reliance upon such false and misleading representations, to purchase respondents' so-called sales promotional plan and accompanying merchandise, and has placed in the hands of dealers a means and instrumentality whereby the consuming public may be misled and deceived, and unfairly diverts trade in commerce to respondents from their competitors to their injury and to the injury of the public.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid methods, acts, and practices of respondents are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

It is ordered, That the respondents, Donald J. Bortz, and Edith Bortz, individually and trading as Champion Battery Co., or as the Ball Co., or under any other name, jointly or severally, their agents, representatives, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of any sales promotion plan, glassware, china, batteries, or other merchandise in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from directly or by implication:

1. Representing that respondents' business is in any way connected with, or that respondents represent, Ball Brothers Co., the Champion Spark Plug Co., or any other business with which respondents have no such connection or which respondents have no authority to represent.

2. Representing that merchandise offered for sale, or sold, in connection with, or separately from, a sales promotion plan is the product of, or manufactured by, any concern other than the actual producer or manufacturer.

3. Representing in any manner that respondents will furnish to purchasers of any sales promotion plan quantities of merchandise greater than the quantities actually furnished.

4. Representing by the use of purported samples, or otherwise, that the merchandise offered for sale, or sold, by respondents is of a quality or value different from the actual quality or value thereof.

5. Representing that respondents are conducting any advertising or other campaign to introduce or sell any article or articles of merchandise for or on behalf of any manufacturer or other concern when such campaign is not in fact being conducted at the instance of and on behalf of such manufacturer or other concern.

Order

34 F. T. C.

6. Representing, or supplying to others the means of representing, that articles of merchandise, the cost of which is included in the purchase price of other merchandise in combination with which such articles are offered, are "free," either by the use of the term stated or any other term or terms of similar import or meaning.

7. Representing that respondents will redeem gift certificates without further cost or obligation to the purchasing dealer or his customers, or upon any other terms, or conditions different from the actual terms and conditions upon which such certificates will be redeemed.

8. Using the word "Ball," the word "Champion," or any simulations thereof, as a part of any trade, or other name or names without clearly and unequivocally disclosing that respondents are not in any way connected with Ball Bros., Co., of Muncie, Ind., or the Champion Spark Plug Co., of Toledo, Ohio, respectively.

It is further ordered, That respondents shall, within 60 days after the service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

Complaint

IN THE MATTER OF

G. J. TRITICO, DOING BUSINESS AS KAS-MO REMEDY CO.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3536. Complaint, Aug. 15, 1938—Decision, Dec. 23, 1941

Where an individual engaged in the manufacture of his "Kas-Mo Salve," and in the competitive interstate sale and distribution thereof; through radio broadcasts and circulars and pamphlets distributed among prospective purchasers in various States—

Represented that his said product had antiseptic qualities and was an antiseptic, and a cure or remedy for pimples, boils, carbuncles, skin risings, skin eruptions, cuts, chronic sores, irritations caused by bad blood, bites of insects, and rectal irritations, and constituted a competent and effective treatment for such conditions, and that use thereof would prevent the spread of infection, assist nature in rapid healing of all skin troubles, and give relief from pain;

Facts being that preparation in question, which was a mild astringent and counterirritant ointment possessing negligible antiseptic or healing qualities, was not a cure or remedy, and did not constitute a competent or effective treatment, for any of the conditions named, and in treatment of rectal irritations its therapeutic value was limited to furnishing temporary relief only;

With tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the mistaken belief that all of such representations were true, and with result that a number of the consuming public purchased a substantial volume of his said preparation, and trade was thus unfairly diverted to him from his competitors who did not misrepresent the quality, character, or effectiveness of their products:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce.

Before Mr. Arthur F. Thomas, Mr. John J. Keenan, and Mr. Miles J. Furnas, trial examiners.

Mr. John R. Phillips, Jr., for the Commission.

Mr. Quentin Keith, of Port Arthur, Tex., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that G. J. Tritico, doing business under the trade name of "Kas-Mo Remedy Co.," hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. G. J. Tritico is an individual, doing business under the trade name of "Kas-Mo Remedy Co.," with his office and place of business located at 949 Seventh St., Port Arthur, Tex. Respondent is now and has been for many years last past engaged in the business of manufacturing, selling, and distributing a medical product designated as "Kas-Mo Salve."

PAR. 2. Respondent causes his said medical preparation when sold, to be transported from his place of business in the State of Texas, to the purchasers thereof, located in the various States of the United States other than Texas, and in the District of Columbia.

Respondent maintains and at all times mentioned herein has maintained a course of trade in said medical preparation sold and distributed by him in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of his said business, respondent is now and has been in substantial competition with other individuals and with partnerships, firms, and corporations likewise engaged in the business of selling and distributing similar preparations and preparations used for the same and similar purposes, in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. Respondent, in the course and conduct of his business, as aforesaid, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of his medical preparation, has made many statements and representations by means of radio broadcasts, and by bulletins and pamphlets circulated among prospective purchasers in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. All of said statements purport to be descriptive of the therapeutic and antiseptic values of respondent's aforesaid preparation.

Among other statements appearing in the advertisements and descriptive literature and the radio broadcasts, as aforesaid, are the following:

Kas-Mo treatment will prevent the spread of infection and relieve you of further worries.

Kas-Mo is doubly guaranteed to do just exactly as the manufacturers say. Kas-Mo leads the league in healing, antiseptic qualities.

Famous antiseptic salve. * * * Use it if you are suffering with boils, carbuncles, cuts, or burns, or bothered with those obstinate sores that have not healed for many years. The effectiveness of this Kas-Mo Salve can be proven by you in a very short time.

Take a small portion of Kas-Mo and touch that pimple with it * * * keeping it covered until it heals.

Complaint

Kas-Mo will render to you an invaluable aid if you are suffering from painful boils, sores, or other irritations that seem incurable.

Will bring you the same remarkably satisfactory results that it has brought to thousands of people.

Give Kas-Mo a fair chance to relieve your pain and the results will be gratifying.

You can enjoy the freedom from pain, cuts, bruises, or sores that are supposedly incurable, or any other irritation caused by bad blood.

Found reliable by thousands—for more than thirty years.

Is a painless treatment for boils and other external eruptions of the skin. A soothing application for painful risings, superficial cuts, slight burns, small wounds, bites of insects, and recommended to relieve rectal irritations.

Continue the treatment until desired results are obtained.

Kas-Mo medication assists nature in making rapid healing of skin troubles as indicated.

All of said statements, together with similar statements appearing in the respondent's literature, and radio broadcasts, purport to be descriptive of respondent's preparation and of its effectiveness in use. Through such statements, respondent represents, directly and by inference, that the preparation "Kas-Mo Salve" is doubly guaranteed; that it will prevent the spread of infection; that it leads in healing and the relief from pain; that it has antiseptic qualities and is an antiseptic; that it constitutes a cure and remedy for the treatment of pimples, boils, carbuncles, skin risings, external eruptions of the skin, cuts, burns, chronic sores, irritations caused by bad blood, bites of insects, relief of rectal irritations; and that it assists nature in the rapid healing of all skin troubles.

PAR. 5. The representations made by respondent with respect to the nature and effect of his preparation when used are grossly exaggerated, false, misleading, and untrue. In truth and in fact, "Kas-Mo Salve" is not doubly guaranteed. It is not an antiseptic and does not possess antiseptic or healing qualities. It will not prevent the spread of infection. It is not a cure or remedy for the treatment of pimples, boils, carbuncles, skin risings, external eruptions of the skin, wounds, chronic sores, irritations caused by bad blood, bites of insects, and relief of rectal irritations. It has no healing properties and will not relieve pain. It will not assist nature in the rapid healing of skin troubles.

The true facts are, that the ingredients of "Kas-Mo Salve" have no therapeutic value in healing, nor in relieving pain, nor as a cure or remedy for the treatment of the various conditions and disorders as claimed in respondent's advertising literature and radio broadcasts. Respondent's preparation is only a mild astringent and counterirritant ointment.

PAR. 6. There are, among the respondent's competitors, many who distribute and sell similar medical preparations or other preparations designed, intended, and sold for similar usage, who do not in any way misrepresent the quality or character of their respective products, or their effectiveness when used.

PAR. 7. Each and all of the false and misleading statements and representations made by the respondent in designating or describing his product and its effectiveness when used, as hereinabove set out, were and are calculated to have, and have had, and now have, a tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief that all of said representations are true. On account of this erroneous and mistaken belief, a number of the consuming public have purchased a substantial volume of respondent's product, with the result that trade has been diverted unfairly to respondent from competitors likewise engaged in the business of selling and distributing similar medical preparations, and who truthfully advertise their respective products and the effectiveness thereof when used. As a consequence thereof, injury has been done and is now being done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice of the public, and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on August 15 A. D. 1938, issued and subsequently served its complaint on the respondent, G. J. Tritico, doing business under the name of "Kas-Mo Remedy Co.," charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of said complaint were introduced by Edward W. Thomerson, D. T. Puckett, and G. A. Rault, attorneys for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by Quentin Keith, attorney for the respondent, before trial examiners of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, answer thereto, testimony, and other evidence, report of the trial examiners upon the evidence, and brief in support of the complaint, filed by John R. Phillips, Jr., attorney for the Commission (no brief having been filed by the respondent or oral argument requested), and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, G. J. Tritico, is an individual doing business under the trade name of Kas-Mo Remedy Co., with his office and place of business located at 949 Seventh Street, Port Arthur, Tex. Respondent is now, and for several years last past has been, engaged in the business of manufacturing, selling, and distributing a medicinal preparation designated as "Kas-Mo Salve." Respondent causes said preparation, when sold, to be transported from his place of business in the State of Texas to the purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States. Respondent maintains and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said preparation in commerce among and between the various States of the United States.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his said business respondent is now, and has been, in substantial competition with other individuals and with partnerships, firms, and corporations likewise engaged in the sale and distribution, in commerce, between and among the various States of the United States, of preparations used in the treatment of the various diseases and conditions for which respondent recommends his preparation.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of his aforesaid business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of his medicinal preparation, "Kas-Mo Salve," the respondent has made false and deceptive statements and representations by means of radio broadcasts and by circulars and pamphlets distributed among prospective purchasers located in various States of the United States.

Among the false and deceptive statements and representations appearing in advertisements, descriptive literature, and radio broadcasts, are the following:

Kas-Mo treatment will prevent the spread of infection and relieve you of further worries.

Kas-Mo leads the league in healing, antiseptic qualities.

healed for many years. The effectiveness of this Kas-Mo Salve can be proven by you in a very short time.

Take a small portion of Kas-Mo and touch that pimple with it * * * keeping it covered until it heals.

Kas-Mo will render to you an invaluable aid if you are suffering from painful boils, sores, or other irritations that seem incurable.

Will bring you the same remarkably satisfactory results that it has brought to thousands of people.

You can enjoy the freedom from pain, cuts, bruises, or sores that are supposedly incurable or any other irritation caused by bad blood.

Is a painless treatment for boils and other external eruptions of the skin. A soothing application for painful risings, superficial cuts, slight burns, small wounds, bites of insects, and recommended to relieve rectal irritations.

Continue the treatment until desired results are obtained.

Kas-Mo medication assists nature in making rapid healing of skin troubles as indicated.

PAR. 4. Through the use of the statements and representations hereinabove set forth, and others similar thereto not specifically set out herein, the respondent represents that his preparation, "Kas-Mo Salve," has antiseptic qualities and is an antiseptic; that it is a cure or remedy for pimples, boils, carbuncles, skin risings, external eruptions of the skin, cuts, chronic sores, irritations caused by bad blood, bites of insects, and rectal irritations, and constitutes a competent and effective treatment for such conditions; and that its use will prevent the spread of infection, assist nature in rapid healing of all skin troubles, and give relief from pain.

PAR. 5. The formula for respondent's preparation, "Kas-Mo Salve," is as follows:

- 1 gallon alcohol.
- 3 ounces rosin (yellow).
- 8 ounces solid extract of stramonium leaves (Lilly).
- 24 ounces beeswax.
- 4 ounces copper acetate (merck).
- Vaseline Q. S.
- M. F. T. Ungt.

Respondent's preparation is a mild astringent and counterirritant ointment possessing negligible antiseptic or healing qualities. The use of this preparation will not prevent the spread of infection. Said preparation is not a cure or remedy for pimples, boils, carbuncles, skin risings, external eruptions of the skin, cuts, chronic sores, irritations caused by bad blood, or insect bites, and does not constitute a competent or effective treatment for any of these conditions. The therapeutic value of this preparation in the treatment of rectal irritations is limited to the furnishing of temporary relief only.

PAR. 6. The false and misleading statements and representations made by the respondent in designating or describing his product and its effectiveness when used, have had, and now have, a tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that all of said representations are true. On account of this erroneous and mistaken belief, a number of the consuming public have purchased a substantial volume of respondent's preparation, with the result that trade has been diverted unfairly to the respondent from his competitors who are likewise engaged in the sale and distribution in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, of preparations used in the treatment of the various diseases and conditions for which respondent recommends his preparation and who do not in any way misrepresent the quality or character of their preparations, or their effectiveness in use.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondent, testimony, and other evidence taken before the trial examiners of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of the complaint and in opposition thereto, report of the trial examiners upon the evidence, and brief filed in support of the complaint; and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 28, 1914

Docket 3973. Complaint, Dec. 14, 1939—Decision, Dec. 23, 1941

Where a corporation and two individuals, general officers thereof, engaged, under corporate and various other trade names, in competitive interstate sale and distribution of retreaded or recapped tires for automobiles, trucks, and buses; in seeking to induce salesmen to accept employment with them through advertisements in newspapers and other publications of general circulation, and through their "crew managers" whom they employed to travel in the various States seeking salesmen and purchasers for their products—

- (a) Represented that they paid their salesmen a salary of $40.00 a week and commission, and all expenses while being trained; and
- (b) Represented that they manufactured the retreaded or recapped tires which they sold, and used only the best carcasses, i. e., best quality of used tires, in their said products;

Notwithstanding fact they did not pay their salesmen aforesaid salary, or any other sum per week, and a commission, or any of the expenses of beginners employed by them, did not manufacture their said products, and the carcasses used by them were only of average quality and in many instances inferior to the average used in such tires; and

Where said corporation and individuals, engaged as aforesaid; through their salesmen whom they supplied with sales kits, order blanks and literature bearing various trade names made use of by them, and with cross-cut sections of tires to display to customers; as typical of many similar claims—

- (c) Represented that the tires purchased from them would be identical in quality with the samples displayed by salesman taking an order, and of the size ordered by the purchaser, that carcasses used by them were less than 1 year old, that their tires would be free from boots or patches, were suitable for the purpose for which they were purchased, and would give many miles of service in normal course of usage at a fraction of the cost of new tires;

The facts being they did not ship to purchasers tires of the same quality as the sample displayed by their salesman, but made a practice of shipping shoddy and in many cases worthless tires; they had no way of knowing the age of the carcasses they used, which, in some instances, were old and useless; said products in most instances did contain boots and patches, and, furthermore, were not suitable for purposes for which purchased, and in many instances were serviceable for a few days only, if as much;

- (d) Falsely represented that the tires would be shipped to the purchaser from points in his vicinity, and that they would ship tires on consignment, and

34 F. T. C.

represented the freight rate as lower than was the fact, and, further, contrary to the fact, that they would supply purchasers with free tire racks and metal tire stands and would pay one-half the expenditures incurred by purchasers in advertising their products; and

- (e) Falsely represented that corporation in question and purported concerns represented by some seven or eight trade names they used had no connection or affiliation with one another and were separate and distinct competitive businesses, engaged in sale and distribution of products in question, of which they further represented themselves falsely as the manufacturers, notwithstanding they had never made such products but purchased them from various sources;

With the result that their salesmen, as aforesaid, were enabled to misrepresent the true status of their business and, under another trade name, were enabled to make sales of their products to those who had had previous unsatisfactory dealings with them; and

Where said corporation and individuals—

- (f) Made use of a disclaimer of liability clause under the warranty clause in their order blanks in order to escape liability from the promises and representations of their salesmen, which was not called to the attention of purchasers signing the order blanks and was so inconspicuously placed that in most instances it was not observed by such purchasers, who had the right to assume said warranty clause as intended for their protection;
- (g) Guaranteed, in said warranty clause, to replace unsatisfactory merchandise upon payment of one-half of the list price, notwithstanding fact such undertaking was not guarantee at all, since payment of amount thus called for approximated cost of the tire to them and the purchaser was required to pay shipping charges before any such replacement was made; and
- (h) Made a practice of shipping to purchasers unsatisfactory and worthless tires, in many cases not worth the shipping charges paid by the purchaser, and not in any manner suitable for the purpose for which they were intended and purchased;

With effect of misleading and deceiving salesmen and prospective salesmen, and purchasers and prospective purchasers of their tires into the erroneous belief that aforesaid false, misleading and deceptive representations and implications were true, and of causing a substantial number of purchasing public, because of said belief, to act as salesmen for them and to purchase substantial numbers of their said products:

Held, That such acts and practices were all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and competitors, and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Before Mr. Edward E. Reardon, trial examiner.

Mr. Charles S. Cox for the Commission.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Beho Rubber Co., Inc., a corporation, and Bernard Holtzman, Mae Murray, and Milton M.

Holtzman, individually and as officers and directors of Beho Rubber Co., Inc., also trading as the Best Tire House, the Modern Improved Retread Outlet, and the Assured Remolded Tire Distributors, have violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Beho Rubber Co., Inc., is a corporation organized, existing and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Illinois, having its office and principal place of business at 2441 Indiana Avenue, Chicago, Ill. Respondents Bernard Holtzman, Mae Murray, and Milton M. Holtzman are individuals and are president, secretary, and vice president, respectively, and members of the board of directors of the respondent Beho Rubber Co., Inc. All of said individual respondents have offices and place of business at 2441 Indiana Avenue, Chicago, Ill. Respondents, Beho Rubber Co., Inc., Bernard Holtzman, Mae Murray, and Milton M. Holtzman, are trading and doing business under various trade names, including The Best Tire House, The Modern Improved Retread Outlet, and The Assured Remolded Tire Distributors, at various addresses in the city of Chicago, as well as under the name of the corporate respondent. The business conducted under said various trade names is conducted from 2441 Indiana Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

The respondents, Beho Rubber Co., Inc., Bernard Holtzman, Mae Murray, and Milton M. Holtzman, have acted in concert and in cooperation each with the other in doing the acts and things hereinafter alleged.

PAR. 2. Respondents are now, and for more than 18 months last past have been, engaged in selling and distributing used tires which have been retreaded or recapped. Said retreaded or recapped tires are for use on automobiles, trucks, and busses. Respondents cause said retreaded or recapped tires, when sold by them, to be transported from their said place of business in Chicago, Ill., to the purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in the various States of the United States, other than the State of Illinois, and in the District of Columbia. Respondents maintain, and at all times mentioned herein have maintained, a course of trade in said retreaded and recapped tires in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of their aforesaid business, and for the purpose of inducing salesmen to accept employment with respondents and thus to further the sale of their said products, respondents have caused numerous advertisements to be inserted in newspapers and other publications circulated generally among prospective agents and purchasers throughout the United States and in the District of Columbia, which contain statements and representations relative to employment with respondents. Similar statements and representations are made to prospective agents and purchasers by "crew managers" employed by the respondents who travel in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, seeking agents and purchasers for respondents' said products. Among and typical of the representations and statements made in newspapers and other publications are the following:

HELP WANTED—MEN

MEN WITH CARS—To travel, selling automotive products; attractive salary and commission. See M. H. Shepard, 8:30 to 2:00. 2441 S. Indiana Avenue.

Through said advertisements, statements, and representations made by said crew managers, respondents represent that salesmen employed by them are paid a salary of $40 a week and commission, and that all expenses of salesmen will be paid by the respondents while such salesmen are being trained, and that the respondents manufacture the retreaded or recapped tires they sell, and that they use only the best carcasses, that is, the best quality of used tires, in their retreaded or recapped tires. Many other statements and representations of similar import and meaning are made and used by the respondents in securing salesmen to further the sale of their said product.

The aforesaid representations and implications used by the respondents are false, misleading and deceptive, for in truth and in fact respondents do not pay their salesmen a salary of $40 a week, or any other sum per week, and a commission, nor do they pay any of the expenses of beginners employed by them; they do not manufacture the retreaded or recapped tires sold by them; and the carcasses used in the retreaded or recapped tires sold by the respondents, in most instances, are only of average quality, and are, in many cases, inferior to the average carcass used in retreaded or recapped tires.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of their business as aforesaid, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of their said products, respondents have made, or caused to be made through their salesmen traveling throughout the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, many statements and representations to the purchasing public concerning their said retreaded or recapped tires, the quality thereof, and the terms and conditions under which said tires are offered for sale and sold. Among and typical of the representations so made by the respondents are the following:

1. That the tires purchased from the respondents will be identical in quality with the samples displayed to the purchaser by the salesman taking the order.

2. That carcasses used by the respondents in their retreaded or recapped tires are less than 1 year old.

3. That respondents' tires will be free from boots or patches.

4. That the tires shipped by the respondents will be of the size ordered by the purchaser and will be shipped to the purchaser from points in the vicinity in which the purchaser is located.

5. That respondents will ship tires to purchasers on consignment.

6. That the freight rate on respondents' tires will be a lower rate than the actual rate applying to such shipments.

7. That large concerns, such as Sears, Roebuck & Company, sell retreaded or recapped tires, and that the respondents supply Sears, Roebuck & Company with retreaded or recapped tires for resale to the purchasing public.

8. That respondents will supply purchasers of their tires with free tire racks and metal tire stands, and that they will pay one-half of the advertising expenditures incurred by purchasers in advertising respondents' products.

9. That Beho Rubber Co., Inc., 2441 Indiana Avenue, Chicago, Ill., The Best Tire House, 2433 Indiana Avenue, Chicago, Ill., The Modern Improved Retread Outlet, 709 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill., and The Assured Remolded Tire Distributors, 2441 Indiana Avenue, Chicago, Ill., have no connection or affiliation with each other and that they are each separate and distinct businesses and in competition with each other in the sale and distribution of retreaded or recapped tires.

10. That respondents' tires are suitable for the purpose for which they are purchased, and that they will give many miles of service in the normal course of usage at a fraction of the cost of new tires.

11. That respondents are the manufacturers of the retreaded or recapped tires sold by them.

Many other statements and representations of similar import or meaning are made and used by the respondents in connection with the sale and distribution of their retreaded or recapped tires.

Respondents supply their sales agents with sales kits, order blanks, and other literature under the different names and addresses under which respondents do business, and with sample tires or cross-cut sections of tires to be displayed to customers, and in connection with the trade names The Best Tire House, The Modern Improved Retread Outlet, and The Assured Remolded Tire Distributors, the order blanks supplied to such salesmen and upon which the signatures of the purchasers are secured contain under the designation "Warranty," "Our Warranty," or "Agreement" a disclaimer of liability for any promise or representation, express or implied, not set forth on said order blank. This disclaimer of liability for any promise or representation, express or implied, not set forth in said order blank is placed under the designation "Warranty," "Our Warranty," or "Agreement" for the purpose of concealing the disclaimer from purchasers.

Respondents also use various guarantees which lead purchasers to believe that said products are of good quality, and respondents represent that if such tires are not as guaranteed they will be replaced for one-half price.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices, representations, and implications used and disseminated by the respondents as aforesaid are misleading and deceptive, for in truth and in fact respondents do not ship tires to purchasers of the same quality as the samples displayed by their salesmen, but make a practice of shipping shoddy and, in many cases, worthless merchandise instead; respondents have no way of knowing the age of the carcasses used in the retreaded or recapped tires sold by them, and, in many instances, the tires are made of old and useless tires. Respondents' tires are not free from boots and patches, and, in most instances, contain boots and patches. Respondents do not, in all instances, ship purchasers tires of the size ordered, and shipments of respondents' tires are not made from points in the vicinity in which the purchaser is located, except in the vicinity of Chicago, Ill., and the freight rate applying to purchases from respondents is often much higher than it is represented to be by respondents' salesmen. Sears, Roebuck & Co. does not sell retreaded or recapped tires, and respondents do not sell retreaded or recapped tires to Sears, Roebuck & Co. Respondents do not supply purchasers with free tire racks, nor metal stands, nor do they pay one-half of the advertising expenditures incurred by purchasers in advertising respondents' products.

Respondents, in supplying their salesmen with sales kits, order blanks, and literature for the Best Tire House, the Modern Improved Retread Outlet, and the Assured Remolded Tire Distributors, and sample tires or cross-cut sections of tires to display to customers, thus enable the salesmen to misrepresent the true status of respondents' business, and to represent that the businesses conducted under the various trade names used are each in competition with the other, and thereby they are enabled to procure purchases of respondents' products from persons having previous unsatisfactory dealings with respondents under one or the other of said trade names. In truth and in fact all orders secured by the respondents under any of said trade names, or in the name of the corporate respondent, are received at and filled from 2441 Indiana Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and not at the other listed addresses.

Respondents resort to the disclaimer of liability clause placed in said order blanks under the "Warranty" or other designations in denying liability for the promises and representations made to purchasers by their salesmen. The disclaimer of liability clause in such orders is not called to the attention of purchasers of respondents' products who sign such order blanks nor is it observed in most instances by such purchasers because of the fact that it is placed in an unusual and inconspicuous place in said order blanks. Respondents' guarantee under their warranty to replace unsatisfactory merchandise upon payment of one-half of the list price is in truth and in fact no guarantee at all, for the payment of this amount approximates the cost of the merchandise to the respondents and the purchaser is required to prepay the shipping charge before any such replacement is made.

Respondents make a practice of shipping unsatisfactory and worthless merchandise to purchasers, which, in many instances, is not worth the freight or shipping charges paid by the purchaser; in many instances respondents' merchandise is not suitable in any manner for the purpose for which it was intended and purchased by the purchaser, and the purchaser thereof will not secure "many miles" of service or any service whatsoever, from said tires, and the cost of the service obtained through the use of respondents' said tires is not but a fraction of the cost of the service secured from new tires, but is, in truth and in fact, generally in excess of the cost for service which would be incurred through the use of new tires. None of the respondents make or manufacture the retreaded or recapped tires offered for sale and sold by them, nor do any of respondents operate or control, a plant or factory where such tires are manufactured. The tires sold by the respondents are purchased from various sources.

PAR. 6. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of said retreaded and recapped tires have had, and now have, a capacity and tendency to, and do, mislead and deceive salesmen and prospective salesmen and purchasers and prospective purchasers of respondents' said products into the erroneous and mistaken belief that the aforesaid false, misleading, and deceptive representations and implications are true, and cause a substantial number of the purchasing public, because of said erroneous and mistaken belief, to purchase a substantial number of respondents' said tires.

PAR. 7. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on December 14 A. D. 1939, issued and thereafter served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondents, Beho Rubber Co., Inc., a corporation, and Bernard Holtzman, Mae Murray, and Milton M. Holtzman, individually and as officers and directors of Beho Rubber Co., Inc., also trading as the Best Tire House, the Modern Improved Retread Outlet, and the Assured Remolded Tire Distributors, charging them with unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act.

After the issuance of the complaint and the filing of respondents' answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of the complaint were introduced by Charles S. Cox, and in opposition thereto by Ednyfed H. Williams and Albert E. Hallett, Jr., attorneys for the respondents, before Edward E. Reardon, a duly appointed trial examiner of the Commission designated by it to serve in this proceeding. The testimony and other evidence introduced were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the complaint, the answers thereto, the testimony and other evidence, report of the trial examiner thereon and exceptions thereto, and briefs filed on behalf of the Commission and of the respondents. And the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Beho Rubber Co., Inc., is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Illinois, and up until October 1939, its principal office and place of business was located at 2441 Indiana Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and since that date, at 2427 South Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill. Respondents, Bernard Holtzman and Milton M. Holtzman, are president and vice president, respectively, and members of the board of directors of respondent corporation, and respondent Mae Murray at one time was secretary and a member of the board of directors of respondent corporation, but is no longer such secretary. All of the individual respondents, except Mae Murray have, since October 1939, had their offices and places of business at 2427 South Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

PAR. 2. The corporate respondent and the individual respondents are trading and doing business under various trade names, including "The Best Tire House," "The Modern Improved Retread Outlet," "The Manufacturers Retread Outlet," "The Assured Remolded Tire Distributors," "The Red Flame Tire Co.," "James Rubber Co.," "Retread Tire Distributors" and "The Honor Tire Exchange." All of the respondents have acted in concert and in cooperation each with the other in doing the things hereinafter set forth.

PAR. 3. Respondents for more than 18 months prior to December 14, 1939, were engaged and now are engaged in selling and distributing used tires which had been retreaded or recapped for use on automobiles, trucks and busses. Respondents cause said tires to be transported from their place of business in Chicago, Ill., to purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondents maintained and now maintain a course of trade in said tires in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. Respondents, in the course and conduct of their business, as set forth herein, have been and now are in competition with other corporations, individuals and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 5. Respondents, in the course and conduct of their business and for the purpose of inducing salesmen to accept employment with respondents and thus to further the sale of their products, have caused numerous advertisements to be inserted in newspapers and other publications circulated generally among prospective salesmen and purchasers throughout the United States, which contain statements and representations relative to employment with respondents. Similar statements and representations are made to prospective salesmen and purchasers by "crew managers" employed by respondents to travel in the various States of the United States, seeking salesmen and purchasers for respondents' products. Among and typical of the representations and statements made in newspapers and other publications are the following:

MAN WITH CAR—to travel selling automotive products; attractive salary and commission; must be ready to leave for road immediately. See M. H. Shepard, 8:30 to 2:30, 2441 South Indiana Ave.

SALESMAN WITH CAR TO TRAVEL. Selling tires; tire experience unnecessary. Possible earnings equal to 1928-1929 "boom days." No investment or deposit on kits necessary. See Mr. Hallett, Pennsylvania Hotel, * * *.

A witness testified that one of respondents' advertisements stated a salary of $40 a week and commissions would be paid by respondents to agents. M. H. Shepard, one of respondents "crew managers," acting on behalf of respondents, advised persons answering respondents' advertisements for salesmen, that if they acted as respondents' salesmen in the sale of their tires, they would receive a salary of $40 a week and commissions, and that all their expenses would be paid by respondents while they were being trained; that the respondents manufactured the retreaded or recapped tires sold by them and used only the best carcasses; that is, the best quality of used tires, in their retreaded or recapped tires.

The aforesaid representations and implications are false, misleading, and deceptive, in that respondents do not pay their salesmen a salary of $40 a week, or any other sum per week, and a commission, nor do they pay any of the expenses of beginners employed by them; they do not manufacture the retreaded or recapped tires sold by them, and the carcasses used in the retreaded or recapped tires sold by them, in most instances, are only of average quality and in many instances are inferior to the average carcasses used in retreaded or recapped tires.

PAR. 6. Respondents, in the course and conduct of their business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of their products, have made, or caused to be made through their salesmen traveling throughout the various States of the United States many statements and representations to the purchasing public concerning respondents' retreaded or recapped tires, the quality thereof and the terms and conditions under which said tires are offered for sale and sold. Among and typical of the representations so made or caused to be made, are the following:

1. That the tires purchased from the respondents will be identical in quality with the samples displayed to the purchaser by the salesman taking the order.

2. That carcasses used by respondents in their retreaded or recapped tires are less than 1 year old.

3. That respondents' tires will be free from boots or patches.

4. That the tires shipped by the respondents will be of the size ordered by the purchaser and will be shipped to the purchaser from points in the vicinity in which the purchaser is located.

5. That respondents will ship tires to purchasers on consignment.

6. That the freight rate on respondents' tires will be a lower rate than the actual rate applying to such shipments.

7. That large concerns, such as Sears, Roebuck & Co., sell retreaded or recapped tires and that the respondents supply Sears, Roebuck & Co. with retreaded or recapped tires for resale to the purchasing public.

8. That respondents will supply purchasers of their tires with free tire racks and metal tire stands, and that they will pay one-half the advertising expenditures incurred by purchasers in advertising respondents' products.

9. That Beho Rubber Co., Inc., 2441 Indiana Avenue; the Best Tire House, 2433 Indiana Avenue; the Modern Improved Retread Outlet, 709 South Dearborn Street; the Assured Remolded Tire Distributors, 2441 Indiana Avenue; Manufacturers Retread Outlet; Red Flame Tire Co., 1829 South State Street; James Rubber Co., Sixteenth Street and South Michigan Avenue; Retail Tire Distributors, 1656 Indiana Avenue, and since December 14, 1939, the Honor Tire Exchange, 2427 South Michigan Avenue—all located in Chicago, Ill.—have no connection or affiliation with each other, and that they are each separate and distinct businesses and are in competition with each other in the sale and distribution of retreaded or recapped tires.

10. That respondents' tires are suitable for the purpose for which they are purchased, and that they will give many miles of service in the normal course of usage at a fraction of the cost of new tires.

11. That respondents are the manufacturers of the retreaded or recapped tires sold by them.

PAR. 7. The representations and implications set forth in paragraph 6 are false, misleading, and deceptive in that:

1. Respondents do not ship tires to purchasers thereof of the same quality as the sample displayed to the purchaser by their salesman taking the order, but, on the contrary, respondents in filling such orders make a practice of shipping shoddy and in many cases, worthless tires.

2. Respondents have no way of knowing the age of the carcasses used in the retreaded or recapped tires sold by them, and in some instances the tires are made of old and useless tires.

3. Respondents' tires are not free from boots and patches, but in most instances contain boots and patches.

4. Respondents do not, in all instances, ship purchasers tires of the size ordered, and shipments of respondents' tires are not made from points in the vicinity in which the purchaser is located, except in the vicinity of Chicago, Ill.

5. Respondents do not ship tires to purchasers on consignments.

6. The freight rates applying to purchasers from respondents are often much higher than as represented by respondents.

7. Sears, Roebuck & Co. never bought any tires from respondents. From 1934 to February 1939, said company sold and distributed retreaded tires purchased by them from the Delco Co.; but since February 15, 1939, they have not sold any retreaded tires except in their Chicago retail branch store, to close out their stock.

8. Respondents do not supply purchasers with free tire racks or metal stands, nor do they pay one-half of the advertising expenditures incurred by purchasers in advertising respondents' tires.

9. Respondent's representations that the various concerns mentioned in subparagraph 9 of paragraph 6 have no connection or affiliation with each other and that they are each separate and distinct businesses and in competition with each other, are false, in that all of the said businesses are controlled by the respondents and are, in reality, merely trade names used by the respondents. Respondents have but one place of business, which is now located at 2427 South Michigan Avenue, and was formerly located at 2441 Indiana Avenue, Chicago. The various other addresses are of premises occupied by small business concerns with which respondents have arranged for the reception of their mail addressed to one of their several trade names, and the orders contained in the mail so received are filled from the place of business of the respondents.

10. Respondents tires are not suitable for the purposes for which they are purchased and will not give many miles of service in the normal course of usage at a fraction of the cost of new tires, but in fact, in many instances when so used they are only serviceable for a few days. In one instance shown a purchaser, upon receiving one of respondents' tires, sought to inflate it after mounting it on a spare, and the tire blew out at 35 pounds pressure.

11. Respondents have never manufactured the tires sold by them, nor do any of the respondents own or control a plant or factory wherein such tires are manufactured. Respondents purchase their tires from various sources.

PAR. 8. Respondents supply their salesmen with sales kits, order blanks and literature bearing the various trade names used by respondents, as hereinbefore set forth, and furnish them with cross-cut sections of tires to display to customers, thus enabling the salesmen to misrepresent the true status of respondents' business and to represent that the businesses conducted under the various trade names used are each in competition with the other, and said salesmen are thereby enabled to make sales of respondents' products to persons having had previous unsatisfactory dealings with respondents under one or another of said trade names.

In truth and in fact, all orders secured by respondents under any of the said trade names, or in the name of the corporate respondent, were filled and shipped from respondents' place of business located at 2441 Indiana Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and not from the other listed addresses, until, in October 1939, and since that date, they have been filled from 2427 South Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Respondents, in order to escape liability from the promises and representations made to purchasers by their salesmen, resort to a disclaimer, of liability clause placed in its order blanks under the "warranty" clause. The disclaimer of liability clause in such orders is not called to the attention of purchasers of respondents' products who sign such order blanks, nor in most instances is it observed by such purchasers, because it is so inconspicuously placed in the order blanks, and purchasers assume, and have the right to assume, that the "warranty" clause is intended for their protection. Respondents, in their warranty clause, guarantee to replace unsatisfactory merchandise upon payment of one-half of the list price, but this is, in fact, no guarantee at all, as the payment of this amount approximates the cost of the tires to the respondents, and the purchaser is required to pay the shipping charges before any such replacement is made.

Respondents make a practice of shipping unsatisfactory and worthless tires to purchasers, which in many cases, are not worth the freight or shipping charges paid by the purchaser. In many cases the tires are not in any manner suitable for the purpose for which they were intended and purchased.

PAR. 9. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of their retreaded or recapped tires, have had, and now have, the capacity and tendency to, and do, mislead and deceive salesmen and prospective salesmen, and purchasers and prospective purchasers of respondents' tires into the erroneous and mistaken belief that the aforesaid false, misleading, and deceptive representations and implications are true, and cause a substantial number of the purchasing public, because of said mistaken and erroneous belief, to act as salesmen for the respondents and to purchase substantial numbers of said tires.

Order

34 F. T. C.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors, and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answers of respondents, testimony, and other evidence in support of and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint, the report of the trial examiner thereon and exceptions thereto, and briefs filed in behalf of the Commission and of the respondents; and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that the respondents have violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Beho Rubber Co., Inc., a corporation, also trading as the Best Tire House, the Modern Improved Retread Outlet, and the Assured Remolded Tire Distributors, its officers, directors, agents, representatives, and employees, and respondents Bernard Holtzman, Mae Murray, and Milton M. Holtzman, individually and as officers and directors of Beho Rubber Co., Inc., trading under its corporate name or under any of its said trade names, or any trade name or names, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of retreaded or recapped tires, in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from representing:

1. By the use of purported samples or otherwise that the tires sold by respondents are of a quality or value different from that of the actual quality or value of such tires.

2. That the "carcasses" used by respondents in their retreaded or recapped tires are less than 1 year old, when such is not the fact.

3. That tires which are not free from boots or patches are free from boots or patches.

4. That the tires shipped by respondents will be of sizes ordered by the purchaser, unless said sizes are furnished.

5. That tires ordered by purchasers will be shipped from any point other than the actual point of shipment.

6. That respondents will ship tires to purchasers on consignment unless such tires are shipped on consignment.

7. That the freight rate on respondents' tires will be lower than the actual rate applying to such shipments.

8. That, except for sale over the counter at its retail store in Chicago, Sears, Roebuck & Co. sell retreaded or recapped tires.

9. That respondents supply Sears, Roebuck & Co. with retreaded or recapped tires for resale to the public.

10. That respondents will supply purchasers of their tires with free tire racks and metal tire stands, when such is not the fact.

11. That respondents will pay one-half or any other portion of the advertising expenditures incurred by purchasers in advertising respondents' products unless respondents pay such amounts to such purchasers as represented.

12. That the business conducted by respondents under their several trade names has no connection with and is not a part of the business of respondents.

13. That tires which contain boots or patches, rotten rubber or other defects which render them not suitable for ordinary usage are suitable for ordinary usage and from representing that such tires will give many miles of service in the normal course of usage at a fraction of the cost of new tires.

14. That respondents manufacture the retreaded or recapped tires sold by them.

15. That any specified salary or commission is paid salesmen for the sale of respondents' products in excess of that actually paid.

16. That persons learning to become salesmen will be reimbursed for the expenses incurred by them in this connection, when such is not the fact.

17. That tires are sold under a warranty against defects, unless all the terms and conditions of such warranty are conspicuously set forth and strictly complied with.

And do further cease and desist from—

Inserting in the warranty clause of their order blanks a disclaimer of liability for promises and representations made purchasers by their salesmen.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

Docket 4571. Complaint, Aug. 18, 1941—Decision, Dec. 23, 1941

Where a corporation engaged in the manufacture of its "Life Savers" confection, and in the competitive interstate sale and distribution thereof to corporate and cooperative chain stores, individual retail stores, and department stores, who were in substantial competition in the resale of said products, it selling its merchandise of like grade and quality at a uniform price per box, less 20 percent—

(a) Granted and paid, generally at the end of each quarter of a year, to some corporate retail food, drug, and variety chains, to whom, in some instances, delivery was made at each individual store, and in others to said chains' central warehouses, a sum equal to 10 percent of the net dollar volume of purchases made at its aforesaid invoice price, while refusing such 10 percent payment to other chain stores, department stores, single unit retail stores, and jobbers competitively engaged with such favored purchasers;

With result of lessening competition in the line of commerce concerned, of inducing purchasers receiving such payment, in many instances, to discontinue dealing in competitors' products and, in other instances, of substantially decreasing their purchases thereof, and of injuring competition with such customers of said corporation who knowingly received aforesaid discount:

Held, That in granting and paying discount, as aforesaid, corporation violated the provisions of subsection (a) of section 2 of the Clayton Act, as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act; and

Where said corporation, engaged as aforesaid—

(b) Paid and contracted to pay sums of money equal to 10 percent of the net invoice amount of purchases to numerous corporate chain store customers in consideration of their entering into and fulfilling an agreement whereby some of them collected orders from their individual retail stores and transmitted the same to it, while other retail units sent in such orders direct, and shipped its said products to the central warehouse or the individual stores of said chain-store customers, who, additionally and pursuant to agreement in question, provided displays of said confection by each retail store in a manner acceptable to it; while failing to make such payments as compensation for like services and facilities available to other customers, competitively engaged in the distribution of said "Life Savers," including any customer who had received from it any other 10 percent allowance:

Held, That in practice aforesaid, corporation in question violated the provisions of subsection (d) of section 2 of the Clayton Act, as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act.

Before Mr. James A. Purcell, trial examiner.

Mr. A. W. DeBirny for the Commission.

Mr. Jerome L. Isaacs of Rogers, Hoge & Hills, of New York City, for respondent.

COMPLAINT

The Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that the party respondent named in the caption hereof and hereinafter more particularly designated and described, since June 19, 1936, has violated and is now violating the provisions of subsections (a) and (d) of section 2 of the Clayton Act (U. S. C. title 15, sec. 13) as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act, approved June 19, 1936, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges with respect thereto as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Life Savers Corporation, is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Delaware with its principal office and place of business located at Port Chester, N. Y.

PAR. 2. Respondent is now, and has been since June 19, 1936, engaged in the business of manufacturing and selling a candy confection known as "Life Savers" for resale within the various States of the United States, the Territories thereof, and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of its said business respondent sells the aforesaid product to purchasers located in the various States of the United States and causes said products when sold to be shipped and transported from its place of business in the State of New York across State lines to the respective purchasers thereof located in each of the several States of the United States, the Territories thereof, and in the District of Columbia. There is, and has been at all times mentioned herein, a constant current of trade in said product between respondent located in the State of New York and various purchasers located as aforesaid.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of its business as aforesaid, respondent has been and is now engaged in substantial competition in commerce with other manufacturers of candy confections, especially with the Beech-Nut Packing Co., which, for many years prior hereto, has been and is now engaged in selling and shipping such confections in commerce across State lines to purchasers thereof located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondent in the course and conduct of its business and since June 19, 1936, has sold its merchandise of like grade and quality to various purchasers among which are multiple retail outlets, department stores, single retail outlets and wholesalers. All such customers are invoiced Life Savers at a price of 65 cents a box less a discount of 20 percent, the cost of such goods to such customers being 52 cents, which is the same price as that at which respondent's principal competitor, the Beech-Nut Packing Co., invoices its competitive product to such class of customers. Such multiple retail outlets, single retail outlets, department stores and the customers of such wholesalers are all competitively engaged with one another in the resale of such products.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of its said business, the respondent since February 1938, has, in addition to the customary 20 percent discount, granted and paid secretly to some multiple retail outlet customers a quarterly rebate of 10 percent of the dollar volume of such customers' purchases. The respondent thereby has discriminated in price in favor of such multiple retail outlet customers and against competing single retail outlets, department stores and wholesalers. To other customers competitively engaged with such favored customers, the respondent has not paid or offered to pay and has refused any such rebate.

PAR. 5. The effect of the discrimination in price alleged in paragraph 4 has been and may be substantially to lessen competition in the line of commerce in which respondent is engaged and to injure competition with respondent and with such customers of respondent who knowingly receive the benefit of such discrimination.

Such discrimination in price by respondent between different purchasers of commodities of like grade and quality in interstate commerce in the manner and form aforesaid is in violation of the provisions of subsection (a) of section 2 of the Act described in the preamble hereof.

PARAGRAPH 1. Paragraphs 1 and 2 of count 1 are hereby adopted and made a part of this count as fully as if herein set out verbatim.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its business in commerce, respondent since February 1938, has secretly paid and contracted to pay to approximately 150 customers an amount calculated at 10 percent of the dollar volume of such customers' purchases as compensation and in consideration for services and facilities furnished by such customers in connection with the sale and offering for sale of Life Savers while refusing to make such payment available on proportionally equal terms to all competing customers, or on any terms to some of its 4,500 customers, competing in the distribution of such Life Savers. Such payment is for servicing retail stores covering the display and distribution of Life Savers and is not in addition to the price discrimination referred to in count 1 hereof.

PAR. 3. It has been the policy of Life Savers Corporation as set forth in instructions from the vice president in charge of sales, to conceal from all except the favored customers the details of the agreements relating to compensation of customers for services connected with display facilities. District managers have been instructed by the sales department that their division managers should deny to customers any knowledge of such allowances and under no circumstances to tell a customer to write to the respondent as that "more or less puts us on the spot."

PAR. 4. The respondent has endeavored to prevent the spread of the allowances to small customers even though such operators would give exclusive display. District managers of respondent have refused small retail drug chains an opportunity to earn this display service allowance.

PAR. 5. Respondent in some instances grants compensation for services covering the prominent display and distribution of Life Savers to the extent of eight flavors, in other instances requiring that thirteen or some other number of flavors be so serviced and displayed. Such display service compensation agreements frequently, but not always, contemplate that such customer will no longer display any flavor of Beech-Nut mints or fruit drops.

PAR. 6. The above-described acts and practices of respondents are in violation of subsection (d) of section 2 of the Clayton Act as amended by the Robinson-Patman Act, approved June 19, 1936 (U. S. C. title 15, sec. 13).

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of an act of Congress entitled "An act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies, and for other purposes," approved October 15, 1914, the Clayton Act, as amended by an Act of Congress approved June 19, 1936, the Robinson-Patman Act (U. S. C. title 15, sec. 13), the Federal Trade Commission, on August 18, 1941, issued and thereafter served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, Life Savers Corporation, a corporation, charging it with the violation of the provisions of subsections (a) and (d) of section 2 of said act.

After issuance of the complaint and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, a hearing was held before James A. Purcell, a duly appointed trial examiner of the Commission designated by it to serve in this proceeding, at which a stipulation was entered into between A. W. DeBirny, attorney for the Commission, and Jerome L. Isaacs, attorney for the respondent, and made a part of the record. By this stipulation, respondent admitted all the material allegations of the complaint and waived further hearings, the filing of briefs, oral argument and all intervening procedure.

Findings

34 F. T. C.

Thereafter this proceeding regularly came on for final disposition by the Commission on the complaint, the answer thereto, the stipulation and the trial examiner's report: And the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Life Savers Corporation, is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Delaware, with its principal office and place of business located at Port Chester, N. Y.

PAR. 2. Respondent is now, and since June 19, 1936, has been, engaged in the business of manufacturing and selling a candy confection known as "Life Savers," for resale within the various States of the United States, the Territories thereof, and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of its said business, respondent sells the aforesaid product to purchasers located in the various States of the United States, and causes said product, when sold, to be shipped and transported from its place of business in the State of New York, across State lines, to the respective purchasers thereof located in each of the several States of the United States, the Territories thereof and the District of Columbia. There is, and has been at all times mentioned herein, a constant current of trade in said product between respondent, located in the State of New York, and various purchasers located as aforesaid.

PAR. 3. Life Savers Corporation is in substantial competition in commerce with Beech-Nut Packing Co. and at least one other company, each of which manufactures a candy confection similar to Life Savers, and sells and distributes the same to customers located throughout the United States.

PAR. 4. Corporate chain store customers, voluntary and cooperative chain store customers, individual retail store customers, department-store customers and such retail-store purchasers who are customers of respondent's jobbers are generally in substantial competition in the resale of products purchased from respondent or from a customer of respondent.

PAR. 5. Respondent in the course and conduct of its business since February 1938, has sold its merchandise of like grade and quality to various purchasers. All Life Savers are invoiced at a price of 65 cents a box less 20 percent, the invoice price of such goods to such customers being 52 cents. In connection therewith, respondent has granted and paid to some corporate retail food, drug and variety chains, generally at the end of each quarter of a year, a sum equal to 10 percent of the net dollar volume of purchases made at the aforesaid invoice price. In some instances, such chain stores received delivery at each individual store while in other instances delivery was made to such chains' central warehouses. Other chain store customers competitive in commerce with the chains receiving the 10 percent were not granted or paid said 10 percent. Likewise, purchasers either competitively engaged themselves or whose customers were competitively engaged with the favored purchasers, such as department stores, single unit retail stores, and jobbers, were not paid said 10 percent.

PAR. 6. The effect of the granting and paying of the 10 percent heretofore referred to or any percentage discount is to lessen competition in the line of commerce in which Life Savers Corporation, Beech-Nut Packing Co., and at least one other company are engaged and to induce the purchasers receiving such payment in many instances to discontinue the purchase and sale of products manufactured by such competitors and in other instances substantially to decrease their purchases of such competitors' products.

PAR. 7. The effect of the granting and paying of the 10 percent discount heretofore referred to is to injure competition with such customers of respondent who knowingly receive the benefit of such discount.

PAR. 8. Respondent since February 1933, and at present has contracted and is contracting to pay and has paid and is paying to numerous corporate chain store customers sums of money equal to 10 percent of the net invoice amount of purchases, in consideration of such customers entering into and fulfilling an agreement whereby some of such customers collect orders from their individual retail stores and transmit the same to respondent while other retail store units send such orders in direct. Respondent thereafter ships its products to the central warehouse of the chain customer or to the individual retail stores owned by the chain; additionally, and pursuant to the said agreement, such customers provide displays of Life Savers by each of such retail stores in a manner acceptable to the respondent. At all times while respondent was making such payments available to the aforesaid customers, other customers competitively engaged with such customers in the distribution of Life Savers have not had and do not have such payments made available to them as compensation or in consideration for like services and facilities which they have furnished or are willing and able to furnish. Such payments were not available to any customer who received from respondent any other 10 percent allowance.

Order

34 F. T. C.

S. C. title 15, sec. 13).

It is ordered, That the respondent, Life Savers Corporation, its officers, directors, representatives, agents, and employees, jointly or severally, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of its candy confection known as "Life Savers," in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Clayton Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Selling goods of like grade and quality to some purchasers at a price which is 10 percent different than to other purchasers, and from selling goods of like grade and quality to some purchasers at any different price than to other purchasers unless such difference makes only due allowance for differences in the cost of manufacture, sale, or delivery resulting from the differing methods or quantities in which such commodities are to such purchasers sold or delivered.
2. Paying 10 percent or any other percentage of the net dollar volume of purchases to some mass or multiple retail outlet distributors in consideration of their furnishing services or facilities connected with the sale and offering for sale of goods purchased from respondent, such as accepting delivery at a central warehouse and distributing to more than one individual retail store, while not making such payment available on proportionally equal terms to other competing mass or multiple retail outlet distributors who accept delivery at a central warehouse and distribute to individual retail stores or while not making such payment available on proportionally equal terms to jobbers competing in the distribution of such products who in fact take delivery at their central warehouse and distribute to individual retail stores.

3. Compensating or paying 10 percent or any other percentage of the net dollar volume of purchase to any customer for services furnished by or through such customer while not making such compensation or payment in consideration of like services furnished by or through other customers available on proportionally equal terms to such customers competitively engaged in the distribution of such products.

It is further ordered, That the respondent Life Savers Corporation shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with the order to cease and desist herein set forth.

E. R. DAVIS, TRADING UNDER THE NAME OF E. R. DAVIS
PRESCRIPTION COMPANYCOMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914*Docket 4289. Complaint, Aug. 29, 1940—Decision, Jan. 7, 1942*

Where an individual engaged in interstate sale and distribution of his "Davis Formula No. 7895" medicinal preparation; in advertisements disseminated through the mails and by radio continuities, circulars, leaflets, pamphlets, and other advertising literature, in which he included quotations or purported quotations from testimonials; directly and by implication—

Represented that his said formula was a cure or remedy for asthma or hay fever and a competent and effective treatment therefor, use of which would prevent attacks and recurrence of attacks thereof and relieve the suffering incident thereto;

Facts being said formula or preparation—in the package of which he included a 4-ounce bottle of concentrated Vitamin A containing 30,000 International units per gram, and in which preparation were included potassium iodide and lobelia, sometimes used to relieve temporarily the symptomatic spasms of asthma—was not a cure or remedy for any of the many different types of asthma, which do not all yield to same treatment, and had no therapeutic value in treatment thereof in excess of furnishing temporary relief from its symptomatic paroxysms, nor value in preventing recurrence of attacks of ailments referred to; and, as respects hay fever, did not constitute a cure or remedy therefor or have any substantial therapeutic value in the treatment thereof;

With effect of misleading and deceiving a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the mistaken belief that such false representations were true, and of thereby inducing it to purchase his said preparation:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that E. R. Davis, an individual, trading under the name of E. R. Davis Prescription Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, E. R. Davis, is an individual trading under the name, E. R. Davis Prescription Company, with his principal office and place of business in Bellingham, State of Washington. Respondent is now and for more than 1 year last past has been engaged in the sale and distribution of a medicinal preparation designated as Asthma and Hay Fever Remedy No. 7895, in commerce among and between the various States of the United States. Respondent causes said preparation, when sold, to be transported from his place of business in the State of Washington to purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States. At all times mentioned herein respondent has maintained a course of trade in said medicinal preparation in commerce among and between the various States of the United States.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his aforesaid business, the respondent has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning his said product by the United States mails and by various other means in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act; and respondent has also disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning his said product, by various means, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of his said product in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act. Among and typical of the false, misleading and deceptive statements and representations contained in said false advertisements, disseminated and caused to be disseminated, as hereinabove set forth, by the United States mails, by advertisements in newspapers, by radio continuities, and by circulars, leaflets, pamphlets, and other advertising literature, are the following:

Don't suffer needlessly with asthma and Hay Fever. The Davis Asthma and Hay Fever Remedy #7895 really works. Hundreds of users throughout Canada and here in Whatcom Co. are its best boosters. Many have written sincere letters of thanks for relief after all other treatments had failed completely. But it is a hundred times easier to prevent Hay Fever than to cure it. * * * It is taken internally and works through the blood, the nerves, the membranes of the nose. The vitamin A contained in the remedy builds up the mucous membrane of the nose so that it does not become so easily irritated. But if you wish to free yourself from the agony of hay fever this summer, remember that you should begin today.

Have you given up all hope of ever finding any relief for asthma? After trying dozens of so-called remedies, many persons have given up hope * * * but the fact stands out that Davis Asthma Remedy #7895 has brought real relief to many who have suffered for 15, 20, and even 30 years.

Thousands of people, after trying hit-and-miss remedies, have come to the conclusion that there is no real cure for asthma or hay fever. That is neither true nor fair! Science is each year making tremendous strides towards the cure and prevention of every disease. One of the greatest steps toward the relief of asthma and hay fever is the discovery of a Canadian druggist * * * the Davis Asthma and Hay fever remedy #7895. Mr. Davis, a graduate of the Ontario college of Pharmacy and Toronto University, compounded this remedy when all known treatments failed to help him. Three days after taking his treatment he was improved, and within three weeks he was entirely cured of asthma.

Adrenalin and Ephedrin users and powder smokers should cut out the use of such rapidly as possible under the use of this medicine. They only relieve.

TASTELESS CONCENTRATE

VITAMIN "A"

100 Times the Strength of Cod Liver Oil

Adults: 2 or 3 drops; children: 1 or 2 drops at meals 3 times a day, on food.

As your cost is only about half of most other remedies, and as asthma, all forms of hay fever, eczema and also sick headaches are now considered members of one family and are in the blood stream, you should continue the remedy for a good while in smaller doses to thoroughly protect yourself. The average case gets relief from the severe spasms after a couple of days.

ASTHMA

Do you really know of a person who got permanent results by injections, inhalations, or smokes? How could they when asthma is the evidence of a constitutional trouble?

"DAVIS' FORMULA NO. 7895"

with a separate supply of "Vitamin A" is for internal use entirely and affects the blood, nerves and mucous membranes. Safe and effective—3 weeks' treatment only.

PAR. 3. Through the use of the statements hereinabove set forth and others similar thereto not specifically set out herein, all of which purport to be descriptive of the remedial, curative and therapeutic properties of the preparation sold and distributed by him, the respondent has represented and does now represent, directly and by inference, that the preparation Asthma and Hay Fever Remedy No. 7895 is a cure or remedy for asthma, hay fever and bronchial asthma and that it constitutes a competent and effective treatment therefor, that the use of said preparation will prevent attacks of asthma and hay fever or the recurrence thereof and will relieve the suffering incident thereto.

PAR. 4. The aforesaid representations and claims, used and disseminated by the respondent as hereinabove described, are grossly exaggerated, misleading and untrue. In truth and in fact, the medicinal preparation sold and distributed by the respondent is not a cure or remedy for asthma, hay fever and bronchial asthma and does not constitute a competent and effective treatment therefor in excess of furnishing temporary symptomatic relief from the paroxysms of asthma and attacks of hay fever. Said product is of no value in the prevention or treatment of hay fever, respiratory infections or in increasing the resistance of nasal mucous membranes.

PAR. 5. The use by the respondent of the foregoing false, deceptive and misleading statements and representations disseminated as aforesaid has had and now has the capacity and tendency to and does mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such false statements, representations, and advertisements are true, and to induce a substantial portion of the purchasing public, because of such erroneous and mistaken belief, to purchase respondent's medicinal preparation.

PAR. 6. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on August 29 A. D. 1940, issued and subsequently served its complaint on the respondent, E. R. Davis, an individual trading under the name of E. R. Davis Prescription Co., charging him with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of said complaint were introduced by Carrel F. Rhodes, attorney for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by E. R. Davis, respondent, pro se, before William C. Reeves, a trial examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission upon said complaint, answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, report of the trial examiner upon the evidence, and brief in support of the complaint (no brief having been filed by the respondent or oral argument requested); and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, E. R. Davis, is an individual trading under the name of E. R. Davis Prescription Co., with his principal office and place of business in the city of Bellingham, State of Washington. Respondent is now, and for more than three years last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of a medicinal preparation designated Davis' Formula No. 7895, in commerce among and between the various States of the United States. Respondent causes said preparation, when sold, to be transported from his place of business in the State of Washington to purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said medicinal preparation in commerce among and between the various States of the United States.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his aforesaid business, the respondent has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning his said preparation, by the United States mails and by various other means in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, and respondent has also disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning his said preparation by various means for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of his said preparation in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Among and typical of the false, misleading, and deceptive statements and representations contained in said false advertisements disseminated and caused to be disseminated as hereinabove set forth, by United States mails, by radio continuities, and by circulars, leaflets, pamphlets, and other advertising literature, are the following:

ASTHMA AND HAY FEVER

Davis' Formula No. 7895

Davis' Formula No. 7895 was worked out by E. R. Davis, Phm. B., of New Westminster, B. C., Canada.

Mr. Davis is a graduate of the Ontario College of Pharmacy and Toronto University, 1898, and holds diplomas from New York City, Saskatchewan, Alberta and Gold Medalist in B. C. Examinations, 1918.

Mr. Davis says: "In 1917 I contracted a very heavy cold which took about three months to shake off, leaving me with a bronchitis which soon developed into Bronchial Asthma and Spasmodic Asthma. For 16 years I fought this baffling condition, trying every ready made remedy I could find, new chemicals, chiropractors, specialists, herbalists, dieticians, etc., without any worthwhile benefit.

In July, 1933, I got so weak I could neither talk nor work properly, or walk even a couple of blocks for want of breath and wondered whether I could carry on business another day. In despair I decided to test out my conclusions of what an asthma remedy should contain and after carefully working out the proportions of the various ingredients I began its use.

"To my surprise and delight I was much better in three days and in three weeks I seemed completely free from Asthma."

Vancouver nurse says: "6 years ago I contracted bronchial pneumonia and for 4 years spent as much as 3 months in bed continually with asthmatic attacks. 2 years ago I took 3 bottles of "Davis' Formula 7895" and have not had an attack since. I feel fine and am telling others."

Here is a statement from a letter written by Mrs. Nellie La Fave—1225 E. Base Line—San Bernardino, Calif.: "Your Davis formula #7895 has in ten days done wonders for me—I am sixty four years old and thanks to your remedy Davis Formula #7895. I am rapidly regaining my normal good health. I shall keep on telling others of this formula."

Mrs. F. of Stellacoom, Wash., writes: "I have been a very bad case for 21 years. I appear to be entirely free with 2 bottles of your medicine."

PAR. 3. Through the use of the statements hereinabove set forth and others similar thereto, not specifically set out herein, respondent has represented, directly and by inference, that his preparation Davis' Formula No. 7895 is a cure or remedy for asthma and hay fever; that it constitutes a competent and effective treatment therefor; and that the use of said preparation will prevent attacks of asthma and hay fever and the recurrence thereof and will relieve the suffering incident thereto.

PAR. 4. The formula for respondent's preparation, Davis' Formula No. 7895, is as follows:

Aqua chloroformi B. P.....	oz..	2
Potassium iodide.....	drs..	10
Elixir aromatic U. S. P.....	oz..	4½
Tincture lobelia U. S. P.....	min..	256
Liquor strychnine Hcl.....	min..	32
Liquor arsenic Hcl.....	min..	48

. in 8-ounce bottle, 64 doses

In the package in which the Davis' Formula No. 7895 is supplied to purchasers the respondent also includes a ¼-ounce bottle of concentrated vitamin A containing 30,000 International units per gram.

PAR. 5. Asthma is a paroxysmal disease. There are two ingredients in respondent's preparation which are sometimes used in the treatment of asthma for the purpose of loosening the mucous, and temporarily relieving the spasms which are symptomatic of this condition. These ingredients are potassium iodide and lobelia. However, there are many different types of asthma, and all will not yield to the same treatment but require a different type of treatment. Respondent's preparation is not a cure or remedy for any type of asthma and has no therapeutic value in the treatment of asthma in excess of furnishing temporary relief from the paroxysms which are symptomatic of this condition. While this preparation might, under certain conditions, build up the bodily resistance to some diseases, it has no value in preventing the recurrence of attacks of asthma, and so far as hay fever is concerned, the value of this preparation in the treatment of hay fever is so slight as to be immaterial, and this preparation does not constitute a cure or remedy for hay fever or have any substantial therapeutic value in the treatment thereof.

PAR. 6. The use by the respondent of the foregoing false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations, disseminated as aforesaid, has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such false statements, representations, and advertisements are true, and to induce a substantial portion of the purchasing public, because of such erroneous and mistaken belief, to purchase respondent's medicinal preparation.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

It is ordered, That the respondent, E. R. Davis, an individual trading under the name of E. R. Davis Prescription Co., or trading under any other name, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, or distribution of his medicinal preparation known as Davis' Formula No. 7895, or any other preparation of substantially similar composition or possessing substantially similar properties, whether sold under the same name or under any other name, do forthwith cease and desist from, directly or indirectly:

1. Disseminating, or causing to be disseminated, any advertisement by means of United States mails, or by any means in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, which advertisement represents, directly or through inference,

(a) That respondent's preparation is a cure or remedy for asthma or has any therapeutic value in the treatment thereof, in excess of furnishing temporary relief from the paroxysms of asthma.

(b) That respondent's preparation is a cure or remedy for hay fever, or that it has any substantial therapeutic value in the treatment of such disorder.

(c) That the use of respondent's preparation will prevent attacks of asthma or hay fever, or prevent any recurrence of such attacks.

2. Disseminating, or causing to be disseminated, any advertisement, by any means, for the purpose of inducing, or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, of respondent's preparation, which advertisement contains any of the representations prohibited in paragraph 1 hereof and respective subdivisions thereof.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF ARTHUR JACOBSON

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 4466. Complaint, Feb. 19, 1941—Decision, Jan. 7, 1942

Where an individual engaged in interstate sale and distribution of certain devices and courses of instruction explaining their uses, which were all represented as a treatment for defects of eyesight without resort to glasses, drugs, or surgery, said devices consisting of a so-called "eye tester" and an "eye adjuster," together with various charts, and the course of instruction being made up of printed pamphlets designated "Better Eyesight System" and "Training the Eyes to See Correctly"; by means of advertisements in periodicals, circulars, leaflets, pamphlets, letters, and other advertising literature including quotations or purported quotations from testimonials; directly or by implication—

- (a) Represented that his said system was new and revolutionary, that by means of the "eye tester" a person could quickly and easily test his eyes, and by means of the "eye adjuster" could adjust his eyes and make each eye better able to see alone as well as in harmony with the other eye;

The facts being that his system was neither new nor revolutionary but was taken with modifications and adaptations from other systems of eye treatment by so-called natural methods; his "eye tester" simply measured the user's visual perception but did not enable the user to diagnose any visual defect or determine its cause; and his "eye adjuster" was no more than a convenient means of shutting off the vision of one eye so as to permit the unaided use of the other; and

- (b) Represented that use of his said system would improve the eyesight, eliminate headaches and nervousness, overcome tired feeling and cause the eyes to become clear and strong, would correct nearsightedness, astigmatism and strabismus and result in perfect eyesight without glasses, and eliminate the need of drugs, glasses, and surgery in the treatment of poor eyesight; and that 90 percent of the physical defects of the eye could be remedied by the use of his devices and courses;

The facts being that, while there are many causes for defective vision, including errors of refraction, various diseases of the eyes, toxemias, and inherited imperfections in the visual organs, his devices, courses and treatment were the same, regardless of the causes or nature of the visual defect; headaches and nervousness may be due to numerous causes other than eye strain; such physical defects as nearsightedness and astigmatism are not subject to correction by said devices or courses; proper treatment when exercise is prescribed in cases of strabismus requires adaptation to the particular case and use of his devices and courses, while possibly in some instances tending to correct muscular imbalance, will not result in perfect eyesight, eliminate need of drugs, glasses and surgery in the treatment of poor eyesight or correct 90 percent of the physical defects of the eyes or any material percentage thereof; and

(c) Represented that properly fitted glasses do not solve the problem of falling eyesight or correct said condition; that stronger lenses must be used from time to time; and that use of glasses causes the eye muscles to become lazy with the result that they do not perform their natural functions;

The facts being, one's vision may be affected by physical condition or by illness not directly related to the eyes and may improve with the state of health and a "lazy" condition of the muscles of the eyes may be due to fatigue; properly fitted glasses do correct many faults of vision; it is not necessary in all cases to obtain stronger lenses from time to time; some individuals in the course of time being enabled to discard the use of glasses entirely; and use of properly fitted glasses does not cause the eye muscles to become lazy nor prohibit them from performing their natural functions;

With the effect of misleading and deceiving a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the mistaken belief that such advertisements were true and of thereby inducing the purchase by it of substantial quantities of the said devices and courses:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Before Mr. W. W. Sheppard, trial examiner.

Mr. Jesse D. Kash for the Commission.

Mr. H. M. Braggans and Mr. Austin L. Grimes, of Little Falls, Minn., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Arthur Jacobson, an individual, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent Arthur Jacobson is an individual with his office and principal place of business located at Upsala, Minn.

PAR. 2. Said respondent is now and for more than one year last past has been engaged in the offering for sale, sale and distribution of certain devices together with a course of instruction explaining and describing the uses thereof, all of which are represented as a treatment for defects of human eyesight without resort to glasses, drugs or surgery. Such devices consist of a so-called "Eye Tester" and an "Eye Adjuster," together with charts and other paraphernalia. The course of instruction consists of printed pamphlets designated as "Better Eyesight System" and "Training The Eyes To See Correctly." The various devices and course of instruction are sold together and are designed to complement each other.

Complaint

34 F. T. C.

Respondent causes said devices, together with the course of instruction, when sold, to be transported from his place of business in the State of Minnesota to the purchasers thereof located in other States of the United States.

Respondent maintains and at all times mentioned herein has maintained a course of trade in said devices and said course of instruction sold and distributed by him, in commerce, between and among the various States of the United States.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of his aforesaid business the respondent has disseminated and is now disseminating and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning his said device and course of instruction by United States mails and by various other means in commerce as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act; and respondent has also disseminated and is now disseminating and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of false advertisements concerning the said devices and course of instruction, by various means, for the purpose of inducing and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of his said devices and course of instruction in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Among, and typical of, the false, misleading, and deceptive statements and representations contained in said false advertisements, disseminated and caused to be disseminated, as hereinabove set forth by the United States mails, by advertisements in newspapers and periodicals and by pamphlets, circulars and other advertising literature having a general circulation are the following:

NEW SYSTEM IS REVOLUTIONARY * * *

This new system does not require glasses, medicines, or drugs of any kind. You do not have to submit to any trick diets or expensive treatments. You do not need to refrain from going to shows. In fact, attending a reasonable number of shows will actually improve the eyesight.

You too should begin using this system. It will improve your eyesight.

I have followed the instructions on "Training The Eyes To See" to the best of my ability and already my headaches and nervousness have disappeared.

* * * I followed the simple instructions faithfully and at the end of 10 days I noticed a great change in my eyes. I lost that tired feeling. My eyes became clear and strong and I found that I could discard my glasses.

Learn how to see again!

Naturally * * *

Safely * * *

And without drugs.

THE EYE TESTER: A new invention (patent applied for) which enables you to quickly and easily test your eyes right in your own home.

THE EYE ADJUSTER: Another invention which actually "adjusts" your eyes and makes each eye better able to see alone as well as in harmony with the other eye.

See better. Correct nearsightedness, astigmatism, and strabismus without glasses, drugs or surgery.

PERFECT Eyesight without glasses.

Properly fitted glasses correct the distortion of the image making your vision clear and distinct but glasses do not remove the basic cause of faulty vision any more than a crutch will cure a broken leg. You know of course that lenses in your glasses must be changed from time to time—and the pitiful part of these changes is that stronger and stronger lenses must be used * * *. But in most cases glasses tend to hide the beauty and charm of naturally magnetic eyes, because they seldom fit the contour of the face. They do not—can not—solve your problem of failing eyesight.

Lazy muscles I found forget how to work and must be trained in a natural way without "eye crutches" to again do their natural job.

* * * If anyone would spend five minutes a day doing what you did 90 percent of the physical defects of the eyes would be removed.

PAR. 4. Through the use of the aforesaid statements and representations and others of similar import not specifically set out herein, the respondent represents and has represented, directly or by implication:

That his system is new and revolutionary; that the use of said system, consisting of the various devices and course of instruction, will eliminate the need of drugs, glasses and surgery in the treatment of poor eyesight; that the use of said system will improve the eyesight, will eliminate headaches and nervousness, will overcome tired feeling and cause the eyes to become clear and strong, thus enabling the user to discard glasses; that by its use a person is enabled to see naturally and safely without the use of drugs; that by means of the "Eye Tester" a person can quickly and easily test his eyes; that by means of the "Eye Adjuster" a person can adjust his eyes and make each eye better able to see alone as well as in harmony with the other eye; that said devices are new inventions discovered by respondent. Respondent further represents that the use of said devices and course of instruction will correct nearsightedness, astigmatism and strabismus without resort to glasses, drugs or surgery; that the use of said system will result in perfect eyesight, without glasses; that properly fitted glasses do not solve the problem of failing eyesight, do not correct failing eyesight and that stronger lenses must be used from time to time; that the use of glasses causes the eye muscles to become lazy and consequently they do not perform their natural functions; that 90 percent of the physical defects of the eyes can be remedied by the use of respondent's devices and course of instruction.

PAR. 5. The foregoing representations are grossly exaggerated, false and misleading. In truth and in fact respondent's system is not new nor is it revolutionary. The use of such system, consisting of the various devices and course of instruction, will not eliminate the need of drugs, glasses, and surgery in the treatment of poor eyesight. The use of such system will not improve the eyesight, nor will it eliminate headaches or nervousness or overcome tired feeling and cause the eyes to become clear and strong, thereby enabling the user to discard glasses. A person suffering from poor eyesight is not enabled, by the use of such system, to see naturally and safely, without the use of drugs or glasses. There is nothing new about the principles of the "Eye Tester" and "Eye Adjuster," and their use will not enable one to adjust or test one's eyes and make each eye better able to see alone as well as in harmony with the other eye. The use of respondent's devices and course of instruction will not correct nearsightedness, astigmatism and strabismus without resort to glasses, drugs or surgery, nor will their use result in perfect eyesight without glasses. Properly fitted glasses do remove the basic cause of faulty vision, and it is not necessary in all cases to obtain stronger lenses from time to time. The use of properly fitted glasses does not cause the eye muscles to become lazy or prohibit eye muscles from performing their natural functions. The use of respondent's system will not remove or remedy 90 percent or any appreciable percent of the physical defects of the eyes.

PAR. 6. The use by the respondent of the foregoing false and misleading advertisements disseminated as aforesaid has a tendency and capacity to and does mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such false and misleading advertisements are true, and induces, and has induced, the purchasing public by reason of such belief, so induced, to purchase substantial quantities of respondent's said devices and course of instruction.

PAR. 7. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on February 19, 1941, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent Arthur Jacobson, an individual, charging him with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by an attorney for the Commission and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by attorneys for the respondent before an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, report of the trial examiner, and briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto (oral argument not having been requested); and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent Arthur Jacobson is an individual with his office and principal place of business in Upsala, Minn. For more than one year last past he has been engaged in the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of certain devices and courses of instruction explaining and describing the uses thereof, all of which are represented as a treatment for defects of human eyesight without resort to glasses, drugs, or surgery. Such devices consist of a so-called "eye tester" and a so-called "eye adjuster," together with various charts, and the course of instruction consists of printed pamphlets designated as "Better Eyesight System" and "Training the Eyes to See Correctly."

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his aforesaid business respondent causes said devices and the accompanying courses of instruction, when sold, to be transported from his place of business in the State of Minnesota to purchasers thereof located in other States of the United States, and maintains, and has maintained, a course of trade in said devices and courses of instruction in commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

PAR. 3. Respondent, a public school teacher who is still engaged in that work, began having difficulty with his eyes about 1922 and was told that he had astigmatism and strabismus. Over a period of years he purchased and used various eyeglasses but found it necessary to have them changed from time to time. About 1932 he read a book called "Instantaneous Personal Magnetism" in which certain eye exercises were recommended. After using the recommended exercises regularly for about two months he found that he was able to discard his eyeglasses, and has not since used such glasses. Respondent suggested the use of such exercises to some of his pupils, who were apparently benefited thereby. He became familiar with various courses for the self-treatment of faults of vision by exercise, massage, and other so-called natural methods such as the Macfadden system for strengthening the eyes, the Doctor Bates system, the Barrett Institute of Natural Eyesight system, and the Doctor Richardson system.

About 1933 respondent conceived the idea of preparing a course of instruction for sale to others, and did prepare such a system of exercises based upon his reading and his personal experience. Respondent's devices and accompanying courses of instruction have been sold to numerous purchasers. The price charged by respondent originally was $1, which was subsequently increased to $2, and subsequently to $3. The instructions and devices have been changed or modified from time to time by respondent, the most recent changes having been made in 1942. Respondent is not a graduate of, nor has he attended, any medical school. His knowledge of medicine and of the anatomy of the human eye and the treatment of defects or diseases thereof is limited to such information as he has acquired by reading.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of his aforesaid business respondent, by means of the United States mails and by various means in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning his said devices and courses of instruction; and respondent by various means has also disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of said devices and courses of instruction in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Among and typical of the false, misleading, and deceptive statements and representations contained in said false advertisements disseminated and caused to be disseminated, as aforesaid, by advertisements in periodicals and by circulars, leaflets, pamphlets, letters, and other advertising literature, are the following:

NEW SYSTEM IS REVOLUTIONARY.

This new system does not require glasses, medicines, or drugs of any kind. You do not have to submit to any "trick" diets or expensive treatments. You do not need to refrain from going to shows. In fact, attending a reasonable number of shows will actually improve the eyesight.

* * * * *
 * * * I followed the simple instructions faithfully and at the end of ten days, I noticed a great change in my eyes. I lost that tired feeling, my eyes became clear and strong, and I found that I could discard my glasses.
 * * * * *

 And without drugs!

 THE EYE TESTER: A new invention (patent applied for) which enables you to quickly and easily test your eyes right in your own home.

THE EYE ADJUSTER: Another invention which actually "adjusts" your eyes and makes each eye better able to see alone as well as in harmony with the other eye.

* * * * *
 SEE Better. Correct nearsightedness, astigmatism, and strabismus without glasses, drugs or surgery.
 * * * * *

PERFECT Eyesight without glasses.
 * * * * *

Properly fitted glasses correct the distortion of the image making your vision clear and distinct. But glasses do not remove the basic cause of faulty vision any more than a crutch will cure a broken leg. You know of course that lenses in your glasses must be changed from time to time—and the pitiful part of these changes is that stronger and stronger lenses must be used.

* * * * *
 * * * But in most cases glasses tend to hide the beauty and charm of naturally magnetic eyes, because they seldom fit the contour of the face.

* * * They do not—cannot—solve your problem of falling eyesight.
 * * * * *

* * * If everyone would spend five minutes a day doing what you did, ninety percent of the physical defects of the eyes would be removed.

PAR. 5. By the use of statements such as those set out in the preceding paragraph respondent has represented, directly or by implication, that his system of eye treatment, consisting of the said devices and courses of instruction, is new and revolutionary; that by means of the "eye tester" a person can quickly and easily test his eyes; that by means of the "eye adjuster" a person can adjust his eyes and make each eye better able to see alone as well as in harmony with the other eye; that the use of said system will improve the eyesight, will eliminate headaches and nervousness, will overcome tired feeling and cause the eyes to become clear and strong; that said system will correct nearsightedness, astigmatism, and strabismus without resort to glasses, drugs, or surgery; that the use of said system will result in perfect eyesight without glasses and will eliminate the need of drugs, glasses, and surgery in the treatment of poor eyesight; that properly fitted glasses do not solve the problem of failing eyesight, do not correct failing eyesight, and that stronger lenses must be used from time to time; that the use of glasses causes the eye muscles to become lazy, and consequently they do not perform their natural functions; that 90 percent of the physical defects of the eyes can be remedied by the use of respondent's devices and courses of instruction.

PAR. 6. There are many causes for defective vision, including errors of refraction, various diseases of the eyes, toxemias, and inherited faults or imperfections in the visual organs. Respondent's devices and courses of instruction are the same regardless of the cause of the defective vision of any purchaser; that is, the same treatment is recommended by respondent without regard to the nature of the visual defect. Respondent's system is not new or revolutionary but was taken with modifications and adaptations from various other systems of eye treatment by so-called natural methods.

Respondent's "eye tester" simply functions as a means of measuring the degree of the user's visual perception, but does not enable the user to determine the cause of any visual defect or in any way to diagnose any visual defect which he may have. Respondent's "eye adjuster" is, in effect, a convenient means of shutting off the vision of one eye so as to permit the unaided use of the other. This device does not enable an individual to adjust his eyes and make either eye see better alone or in harmony with the other eye.

The vision of an individual may be affected by his general physical condition or by illness or disease not directly related to the eyes and may improve with any improvement in his state of health. A "lazy" condition of the muscles of the eyes may be due to fatigue. Headaches and nervousness may be due to eye strain and also may be due to numerous other causes. Nearsightedness is a physical defect of the eye and is due to the fact that light entering the eyeball focuses in a plane in front of the retina. Astigmatism is a defect of the curvature of the refractive surfaces of the eye in which rays of light are not focused to a single point but form a diffuse area on the retina. These defects are not subject to correction by respondent's devices or courses of instruction. Strabismus is a physical defect of the eyes in which there is a deviation of one of the eyes from its proper direction so that visual axes cannot be directed simultaneously at the same objective point.

When exercise is prescribed in such cases of muscular imbalance proper treatment requires knowledge of the cause and nature of the particular conditions existing in each case and adaptation to the needs of each such case. The use of respondent's devices and course of instruction may in some instances be of some benefit in tending to correct conditions of muscular imbalance. The use of respondent's devices and course of instruction will not result in perfect eyesight; they will not eliminate the need of drugs, glasses, and surgery in the treatment of poor eyesight; and they will not correct 90 percent of the physical defects of the eyes, or any material percentage of such defects.

Properly fitted eyeglasses correct many faults of vision and it is not necessary in all cases to from time to time obtain stronger lenses. In fact, in some instances individuals may in the course of time be enabled to discard the use of glasses entirely. The use of properly fitted glasses does not cause the eye muscles to become lazy or prohibit them from performing their natural functions.

PAR. 7. The use by respondent of the foregoing false and misleading advertisements disseminated as aforesaid has a tendency and capacity to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such false and misleading advertisements are true, and induces, and has induced, the purchasing public by reason of such belief, so induced, to purchase substantial quantities of respondent's said devices and courses of instruction.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondent, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto taken before an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, report of the trial examiner, and briefs filed herein by counsel for the Commission and counsel for the respondent, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That respondent Arthur Jacobson, an individual, his agents, representatives, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, or distribution of his system for the treatment of defects of the human eye or conditions resulting therefrom, which system consists of devices designated as an "eye tester" and as an "eye adjuster" and charts and courses of instruction designated as "Better Eyesight System" and as "Training the Eyes to See Correctly," or of any other system, devices, or courses of instruction which are substantially similar in character to the present system, devices, or courses of instruction, whether sold under the same or any other name, do forthwith cease and desist from directly or indirectly:

1. Disseminating, or causing to be disseminated, by means of the United States mails or by any means in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, any advertisement which represents, directly or through inference:

(a) That respondent's devices or courses of instruction are a new or revolutionary system for the treatment of defects of human vision.

(b) That the use of respondent's devices or courses of instruction, either separately or in conjunction with one another, will eliminate headache or nervousness, overcome tired feeling, cause the eyes to become clear and strong, enable the user to discard glasses, or result in perfect eyesight.

(c) That the use of respondent's devices or courses of instruction, either separately or in conjunction with one another, will correct nearsightedness or astigmatism, or eliminate the need of drugs, glasses, or surgery in the treatment of poor eyesight.

(d) That respondent's devices or courses of instruction, either separately or in conjunction with one another, constitute a competent or effective treatment of, or remedy for, defects of vision or conditions resulting therefrom, or have any therapeutic value in the treatment of defects of vision or conditions resulting therefrom in excess of possibly assisting toward the correction of strabismus in cases where the particular exercise recommended is adapted to the needs of the particular case.

2. Disseminating, or causing to be disseminated, by any means, any advertisement for the purpose of inducing or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, of said devices and courses of instruction, which advertisement contains any of the representations prohibited in paragraph 1 hereof.

It is further ordered, That respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.

Complaint

IN THE MATTER OF NATURE'S HERB COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 4601. Complaint, Sept. 29, 1941—Decision, Jan. 9, 1942

Where a corporation engaged in interstate sale and distribution of a preparation known as Sterling Capsules; in advertisements in newspapers and periodicals, circulars, leaflets, and other advertising literature—

(a) Represented that said product constituted a competent, effective, and remarkable cure or remedy for arthritis, rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, neuralgia, and neuritis; would permanently relieve pains, aches, stiffness, and soreness in stubborn cases of such conditions; and would produce amazing and remarkable results;

The facts being its value in the treatment of said conditions was limited to that of a laxative or cathartic and a mild analgesic which would afford temporary relief from pain; and

(b) Failed to give adequate directions for using said capsules and to reveal that the preparation contained gelsemium root, use of which drug, under usual conditions or those described in said advertisements, might have injurious consequences unless the dosage was limited to two or three days; and

(c) Failed further in said advertisements to give adequate warning that said preparation was a laxative or cathartic, depending on dosage; that it was potentially dangerous, and not to be taken by one suffering from abdominal pains, stomach ache, cramps, colic, nausea, vomiting, or other symptoms of appendicitis;

With effect of misleading and deceiving a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the mistaken belief that such representations were true, and thereby inducing it to purchase said product:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances as set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Mr. James L. Baker for the Commission.

Mr. Clinton Robb, of Washington, D. C., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Nature's Herb Co., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Nature's Herb Co., is a corporation, created, organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the

34 F. T. C.

State of California, with its office and principal place of business at 1260 Market St., San Francisco, Calif.

PAR. 2. The respondent is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, engaged in the sale and distribution of a certain medicinal preparation advertised as Sterling Capsules.

In the course and conduct of its business, the respondent causes said medicinal preparation, when sold, to be transported from its place of business in the State of California, to purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondent maintains and, at all times mentioned herein, has maintained, a course of trade in said medicinal preparation, in commerce, between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business, the respondent has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning its said product by the United States mails and by various other means in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act; and respondent has also disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing, the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning its said product, by various means, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of its said product in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Among, and typical of, the false, misleading, and deceptive statements and representations contained in said false advertisements, disseminated and caused to be disseminated, as hereinabove set forth, by the United States mails, by advertisements in newspapers and periodicals, by circulars, leaflets, and other advertising literature are the following:¹

PAR. 4. By the use of the representations hereinabove set forth and other representations similar thereto not specifically set forth herein, the respondent represents and has represented, directly and by implication, that its medicinal preparation, advertised as Sterling Capsules, constitutes a competent, effective, and remarkable cure or remedy for arthritis, rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, neuralgia, and neuritis; that its use will permanently relieve pains, aches, stiffness, and soreness in stubborn cases of the aforesaid condition; and that its use will produce amazing and remarkable results.

PAR. 5. The foregoing representations are grossly exaggerated, false, and misleading. In truth and in fact the preparation sold and distributed by the respondent as aforesaid, advertised as Sterling Capsules, is not a competent, effective, or remarkable cure or remedy for arthritis, rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, neuralgia, or neuritis and has no substantial therapeutic value in the treatment of said conditions. Its use will not permanently relieve pains, aches, stiffness, and soreness in cases of the aforesaid condition. Furthermore, said preparation is of no therapeutic value except as a laxative or a cathartic which will temporarily evacuate the bowels and as a mild analgesic which will afford temporary relief from pains associated with the above-mentioned conditions.

PAR. 6. The respondent's advertisements, disseminated as aforesaid, constitute false advertisements for the further reason that they fail to reveal facts material in the light of such representations, or material with respect to consequences which may result from the use of the preparation to which the advertisements relate under the conditions presumed in such advertisements, under such conditions as are customary or usual.

In truth and in fact, said preparation is dangerous to health in that its cumulative effect in the system may result in chronic local irritation of the alimentary tract, gastrointestinal disturbances, collapse, or other physical impairment. The danger of such injury may be avoided only by limitation of dosage to a period of not more than 2 or 3 days.

Furthermore, respondent's said preparation is a laxative or a cathartic, depending upon dosage, and is potentially dangerous when taken by one suffering from abdominal pains, stomach ache, cramps, colic, nausea, vomiting, or other symptoms of appendicitis. Its frequent or continued use may result in dependence on a laxative.

PAR. 7. The use by the respondent of the foregoing false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations with respect to its preparation, disseminated as aforesaid, has had and now has, the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such statements, representations, and advertisements are true, and induce a portion of the purchasing public, because of such erroneous and mistaken belief, to purchase respondent's preparation.

PAR. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on September 29, 1941, issued, and on October 3, 1941, served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, Nature's Herb Co., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair and deceptive acts or practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On the 28th day of October 1941, the respondent filed its answer in this proceeding. Thereafter, a stipulation was entered into whereby it was stipulated and agreed that a statement of facts signed and executed by the respondent and its counsel, Clinton Robb, and Richard P. Whiteley, Assistant Chief Counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, subject to the approval of the Commission, may be taken as the facts in this proceeding and in lieu of testimony in support of the charges stated in the complaint, or in opposition thereto, and that the said Commission may proceed upon said statement of facts to make its report, stating its findings as to the facts and its conclusion based thereon and enter its order disposing of the proceeding without the presentation of argument or the filing of briefs. Respondent expressly waived the filing of a report upon the evidence by the trial examiner. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, answer, and stipulation, said stipulation having been approved, accepted, and filed, and the Commission having duly considered the same and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

PAR. 4. The statements hereinbefore set forth and other statements similar thereto not specifically set forth herein, represents that respondent's medicinal preparation, Sterling Capsules, constitutes a competent, effective and remarkable cure or remedy for arthritis, rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, neuralgia, and neuritis; that its use will permanently relieve pains, aches, stiffness, and soreness in stubborn cases of the aforesaid conditions; and that its use will produce amazing and remarkable results.

PAR. 5. In truth and in fact the preparation sold and distributed by the respondent as aforesaid, advertised as Sterling Capsules, is not a competent, effective, or remarkable cure or remedy for arthritis, rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, neuralgia, and neuritis, and has no substantial therapeutic value in the treatment of said conditions. The therapeutic value of Sterling Capsules is limited to that of a laxative or cathartic which will temporarily evacuate the bowels and to that of a mild analgesic which will afford temporary relief from pain associated with the above-named conditions.

PAR. 6. The respondent's advertisements, so disseminated, fail to reveal adequate directions for using Sterling Capsules and that the present formula for this preparation contains Gelsemium Root, the use of which drug, under the conditions described in said advertisements or under customary or usual conditions, may have injurious consequences and be potentially dangerous to health unless the dosage is limited, under said present formula, to not more than two or three days.

The respondent's advertisements further fail to reveal adequate warning that said preparation is a laxative or cathartic, depending on dosage; and that it is potentially dangerous and that it is not to be taken by one suffering from abdominal pains, stomach ache, cramps, colic, nausea, vomiting, or other symptoms of appendicitis.

PAR. 7. The use by the respondent of the foregoing statements and representations with respect to its preparation, disseminated as aforesaid, has had and now has, the capacity and tendency to, and does mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such statements, representations and advertisements are true, and induce a portion of the purchasing public, because of such erroneous and mistaken belief, to purchase respondent's preparation.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

It is ordered, That the respondent, Nature's Herb Co., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, or distribution of its medicinal preparation advertised as Sterling Capsules, or any product of substantially similar composition or possessing substantially similar properties, whether sold under the same name or under any other name, do forthwith cease and desist from directly or indirectly:

1. Disseminating or causing to be disseminated any advertisement by means of the United States mails, or by any means in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, which advertisement represents, directly or by implication, that said preparation constitutes a competent or effective cure or remedy for arthritis, rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, neuralgia, or neuritis; or that said preparation is of any therapeutic value in excess of a mild analgesic which may afford temporary relief from pain associated with the aforesaid diseases or conditions, and in excess of a laxative or cathartic which will temporarily evacuate the bowels; or which advertisement fails to reveal (a) that said preparation may be injurious to health unless its dosage is limited to a period of 2 or 3 days; and (b) that said preparation should not be used by persons suffering from nausea, vomiting, abdominal pains, or other symptoms of appendicitis; provided, however, that if the directions for use of said preparation, wherever they appear on the label, in the labeling, or both on the label and in the labeling, contain warnings of the potential dangers in the use of said preparation as hereinabove set forth, such advertisement need contain only the cautionary statement: CAUTION, USE ONLY AS DIRECTED.

2. Disseminating or causing to be disseminated any advertisement by any means for the purpose of inducing or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, of said preparation, which advertisement contains any of the representations prohibited in paragraph 1 hereof, or which fails to comply with the affirmative cautionary requirements as set forth in said paragraph.

It is further ordered, That respondent shall, within 10 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission an interim report in writing, stating whether it intends to comply with this order, and if so, the manner and form in which it intends to comply; and that within 60 days after service upon it of this order, said respondent shall file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF
HIRAM CARTER, INC., AND S. FRED GRIFFIN

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 4101. Complaint, Apr. 23, 1940—Decision, Jan. 12, 1942

Where a corporation and an individual who was its president and principal owner and directed and controlled its sales policies and other activities; engaged in interstate sale and distribution of six medicinal preparations including a salve, collectively designated as "Old Surgeon's" or "Old Surgeon's Remedy" or "Old Surgeon's Double Duty Remedy," together comprising a treatment divided into a so-called preparatory course lasting for 5 days to be followed by a second course for an indefinite period; by various advertisements distributed through the mails and otherwise, directly or by implication—

- (a) Represented that their said products constituted a cure or remedy, or a competent and effective treatment for impotence, lost energy, indigestion, rheumatism, asthenia, neurasthenia, general debility, neuritis, polyneuritis, and arthritis; and
- (b) Represented that said preparations would prevent premature old age and would rejuvenate those who had been overcome by the vicissitudes thereof; and that their use would restore and beneficially affect the functioning of exhausted glands, nerves, or organs;

The facts being that the combination of drugs involved in said treatment did not constitute a remedy or a competent treatment for the conditions named; said "Old Surgeon's" had no therapeutic value except for temporarily decreasing pain or discomfort; had no influence on the underlying causes of "general debility"; would not prevent premature old age, or rejuvenate its victims; would not restore or benefit exhausted glands, nerves, or organs; and had no therapeutic usefulness in excess of its laxative and analgesic qualities except in cases of anemia due to iron deficiency or in cases of deficiency of thiamin chloride, riboflavin, or nicotinic acid; and

- (c) Represented that the price at which its said preparations were offered for sale was special or reduced and much less than the usual price;

Facts being that "Old Surgeon's" sold not for $5.00 as represented, but for approximately $1.94, which was not a special or reduced price but that at which preparations in question were customarily offered for sale in the regular course of business; and

- (d) Represented that their physical plant, equipment and facility was greater than was the fact through use upon their letterheads and stationery of an exaggerated depiction of their purported place of business, showing a large two or three story building;

When in fact, their business occupied two office rooms and a loft on the second floor of a moving picture theatre;

With capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public—members of which prefer to patronize large, well-established manufacturers and dealers because of the belief that they are more reliable and afford better service and other advantages—into the mistaken belief that representations and implications above set forth were true and into the purchase of products in question, by reason thereof:

Held, That such acts and practices, as above set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Hiram Carter, Inc., a corporation, and S. Fred Griffin, an individual, hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Hiram Carter, Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its office and principal place of business at 5706 Hoffman Drive, Elmhurst, Long Island, N. Y. The respondent, S. Fred Griffin, of the same address, is president and principal owner of said corporation and directs and controls the sales policies and other activities of the said corporate respondent with respect to the acts and practices herein described.

PAR. 2. Respondents are now and for more than 1 year last past have been engaged in the sale and distribution of various medicinal preparations, which are designated generally as Old Surgeon's, Old Surgeon's Remedy, and Old Surgeon's Double Duty Remedy, in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondents cause said preparations, when sold, to be transported from their place of business in the State of New York to purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

Respondents maintain, and at all times mentioned herein have maintained a course of trade in said medicinal preparations in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of their aforesaid business, the respondents have disseminated and are now disseminating, and have caused and are now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning their said preparations by the United States mails, in circulars, pamphlets, and other printed or written matter, all of which are distributed in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and by other means in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, for the purpose of inducing and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of their said preparations; and have disseminated and are now disseminating, and have caused and are now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning their said preparations by various means for the purpose of inducing and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of their said preparations in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act. Among and typical of the false representations contained in the advertisements disseminated and caused to be disseminated as aforesaid are the following:

Pictures of a dejected, haggard, worried-looking man, followed by pictures, apparently of the same man, in robust health and in a bright, gay, and cheerful mood, with the following statements directly underneath:

He's listless and low, sleeps poorly, nerves on edge, bothered with indigestion and sundry aches and pains, but worst of all his strength seems to have ebbed away so he's only half the man he used to be.

Back on the job again feeling tip top. Hard work means nothing now—and after a good day's work he feels like going out evenings for a good time. Life is worth living once more. He tells all his friends about Old Surgeon's and he's sending his photograph and testimonial for the benefit of others who need the same kind of help. His message is "Go thou and do likewise."

In circular letters:

* * * they can't say exactly what is wrong but they know they have lost much of their force and get-up; sleep is disturbed maybe more or less casual rheumatism pains, indigestion, irritable, etc.—what worries them most being, they feel generally way below what they know they ought to and nothing they do for it seems to hit the spot.

It is astonishing how many there are living at 50 percent of their normal usefulness and spirit, always drugged by intestinal pollution—and never suspecting the cause of it all.

I want you to expect a great deal from Old Surgeon's.

You want results as quickly as possible, of course.

You are anxious to feel stronger and livelier, and better able to stand the strain of every-day life.

Now about the costs again. I promised to keep them low enough to be within your reach. The full price for one complete set of Old Surgeon's is $5.00 and many have said if I charged them ten times $5.00 and more they got their money's worth over and over again. But during these troubled days when everything is selling for half price or less I don't expect folks to pay what Old Surgeon's is worth. Neither do I ask you to pay the full price in advance.

What I am willing to do is to provide the needed course I am counting on for renewed uplift—results to make you well satisfied—and charge you only for costs of medicines, postage, etc.

Read about Ingredient A—how it effects the nervous system—how it is invaluable in subdued energy and weakness—whether general or limited to a single function.

How it sharpens the mental faculties and influences a more cheerful and contented frame of mind. PAR. 4. By the use of the representations hereinabove set forth, and other representations similar thereto not specifically set out herein, the respondents represent that their medicinal preparations designated as Old Surgeon's, Old Surgeon's Remedy, and Old Surgeon's Double Duty Remedy, are a cure or remedy or a competent and effective treatment for impotence or lost energy, indigestion, rheumatism, asthenia, neurasthenia, gout, sciatica, general debility, neuritis, and arthritis; that said preparations will prevent premature old age and will rejuvenate those who have been overcome by the vicissitudes of old age; that the use of such preparations will restore or beneficially affect the functioning of exhausted glands, nerves, or organs; that the price at which said preparations are offered for sale is a special or reduced price and is much less than the price at which said preparations are customarily offered for sale in the normal and regular course of business.

34 F. T. C.

PAR. 5. The foregoing representations are grossly exaggerated, false, and misleading. In truth and in fact said preparations are not a cure or remedy or a competent or effective treatment for lost energy, asthenia, neurasthenia, general debility or general weakness and possess no therapeutic value in connection with such disorders. Said preparations are not a cure or remedy for indigestion, rheumatism, gout, sciatica, neuritis, or arthritis, and said preparations possess no therapeutic value in connection with the treatment of said conditions or disorders in excess of possessing slight laxative and analgesic properties. Said preparations will not prevent premature old age nor will they rejuvenate those who have been overcome by the vicissitudes of old age. The use of said preparations will not serve to restore or beneficially affect the functioning of glands, nerves, or organs. The price at which said preparations are offered for sale is in no sense a special or reduced price, but is the regular and customary price at which said preparations are offered for sale and sold in the normal and regular course of business.

PAR. 6. In addition to the representations hereinabove set forth, the respondents are also engaged in the dissemination of false and misleading advertisements through the use of an exaggerated pictorial representation of their place of business, appearing on circulars and other printed matter, depicting respondents' place of business as a large, two- or three-story building, and thereby creating the impression that their business is larger and more extensive than is actually the fact.

PAR. 7. In truth and in fact, respondents do not occupy a large, two- or three-story building in the operation of their said business, but merely occupy two small offices and a loft on the second floor of a building used principally by a moving picture theater.

PAR. 8. A substantial portion of the purchasing public has shown a marked preference for dealing with and purchasing products and merchandise from manufacturers or other dealers who operate on a large scale, have extensive plants and do a large volume of business, believing that by purchasing from such large concerns superior quality, better service, lower prices, and other advantages can be obtained.

PAR. 9. Respondents are further engaged in the dissemination of false advertisements by writing and transmitting letters through the United States mails to prospective purchasers, which letters are written in the first person, and thereby infer or imply that Hiram Carter in person is the writer thereof, and constitute in part a story of his implied recovery from various physical ailments by virtue of using Old Surgeon's remedies or products.

PAR. 10. In truth and in fact, the said Hiram Carter died several years ago. He was not the author of any of said letters.

PAR. 11. The use by respondents of the foregoing false, deceptive, misleading, and exaggerated statements, representations and implications with respect to respondents' preparations and business status, has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that said statements, representations, and implications are true, and into the purchase of respondents' said products because of said erroneous and mistaken belief.

PAR. 12. The aforesaid acts and practices as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act the Federal Trade Commission on April 23, 1940, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondents Hiram Carter, Inc., a corporation, and S. Fred Griffin, an individual, charging them with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondents' answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by attorneys for the Commission and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by attorneys for the respondents before an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, report of the trial examiner and exceptions thereto, briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto, and oral argument of counsel; and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Hiram Carter, Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with its office and principal place of business at 5706 Hoffman Drive, Elmhurst, Long Island, N. Y. Respondent S. Fred Griffin, of the same address, is president and principal owner of said corporation and directs and controls the sales policies and other activities of said corporate respondent with respect to the acts and practices hereinafter set forth.

PAR. 2. Respondents are now, and for more than 1 year last past have been, engaged in the sale and distribution in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia of various medicinal preparations which are designated as "Old Surgeon's," or "Old Surgeon's Remedy," or "Old Surgeon's Double Duty Remedy." Respondents have caused said preparations, when sold, to be transported from their place of business in the State of New York to purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondents maintain, and at all times mentioned herein have maintained, a course of trade in said medicinal preparations in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of their aforesaid business respondents, by means of the United States mails and by various means in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, have disseminated and are now disseminating, and have caused and are now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning their said medicinal preparations; and respondents, by various means, have also disseminated and are now disseminating, and have caused and are now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of said medicinal preparations in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Among and typical of the false representations contained in the advertisements disseminated and caused to be disseminated as aforesaid are the following:

Pictures of a dejected, haggard, worried-looking man, followed by pictures apparently of the same man in robust health and in a bright, gay, and cheerful mood, with the following statements directly underneath such pictures:

He's listless and low, sleeps poorly, nerves on edge, bothered by indigestion and sundry aches and pains. But worst of all, his strength seems to have ebbed away so he's only half the man he used to be.

Back on the job again feeling tip top. Hard work means nothing now—and after a good day's work he feels like going out evenings for a good time. Life is worth living once more. He tells all his friends about Old Surgeon's. And he's sending his photograph and testimonial for the benefit of others who need the same kind of help. His message is "Go thou and do likewise."

Other representations are:

* * * * *
It is astonishing how many there are living at 50 percent of their normal usefulness and spirit, always drugged by intestinal pollution—and never suspecting the cause of it all.

* * * * *
I want you to expect a great deal from Old Surgeon's.

* * * * *
You want results as quickly as possible, of course.

You are anxious to feel stronger and livelier, and better able to stand the strain of everyday life.

Now about the costs again. I promised to keep them low enough to be within your reach. The full price for one complete set of Old Surgeon's is $5.00 and many have said if I charged them ten times $5.00 and more they got their money's worth over and over again. But during these troubled days when everything is selling for half price or less I don't expect folks to pay what Old Surgeon's is worth. Neither do I ask you to pay the full price in advance.

What I am willing to do is to provide the needed Course I am counting on for renewed uplift—results to make you well satisfied—and charge you only for costs of medicines, postage, etc.

* * * * *
Read about Ingredient A—how it effects the nervous system—how it is invaluable in subdued energy and weakness—whether general or limited to a single function.

How it *sharpen*s the mental faculties and influences a more cheerful and contented frame of mind. How its value as a tonic in stimulating the flagging forces of the aging—"can hardly be overestimated."

How Ingredient B is the outstanding agent among all known medicines for the purpose of increasing red blood cells, and is prescribed with benefit to the feeble, in sluggishness of functions, and in all run down conditions.

How Ingredient C has the peculiar action of special vascular dilation, and combined with Ingredient A, raises the sensitiveness of all reflexes and impulses.

How Ingredient D is of distinct aid in improving digestion, improves the gastric secretion and spontaneous action—and promotes constructive regeneration.

How Ingredient E increases the flow of bile and is a diuretic stimulant to the kidneys, relieves intestinal poisoning, influences metabolism by augmenting urea and elimination of uric acid—and is particularly serviceable in mitigating pains of subacute rheumatism.

Read carefully what is said about the mischievous effects, and dangers, coming from the stagnating contents of the intestinal canal, and how seeming regularity of the bowels is often miscading. The importance of proper hygienic measures to correct this condition, and the value of Ingredient F for this purpose.

All "PLAYED OUT" when PLAYTIME comes—and he used to be Brimming Over With Life!

Glow of Living—RECAPTURED

Here's the other—and pleasanter side of the picture. A well earned holiday after a week's hard work. He isn't as young as he used to be—he's past fifty in fact—but what of it?

He's married to the little woman beside him for twenty years—but as his wife laughingly remarks—he acts like a big boy without a care in the world. And is she proud of him?

There was a time in his life neither of them like to think about. It was those dark years when a strange, unhealthy "something" seemed to take the very life out of him.

She suffered too. How she missed those delightful hours of companionship—the wonderful family life that made her so happy before that awful change came over him.

PAR. 4. By the use of statements such as those set forth in the preceding paragraph respondents have represented, directly or by implication, that their medicinal preparations designated as "Old Surgeon's," "Old Surgeon's Remedy," and "Old Surgeon's Double Duty Remedy" are a cure or remedy, or a competent and effective treatment for impotence, lost energy, indigestion, rheumatism, asthenia, neurasthenia, general debility, neuritis, polyneuritis, and arthritis; that said preparations will prevent premature old age and will rejuvenate those who have been overcome by the vicissitudes of old age; that the use of such preparations will restore and beneficially affect the functioning of exhausted glands; nerves, or organs; and that the price at which said preparations are offered for sale is a special or reduced price and is much less than the price at which said preparations are customarily offered for sale in the normal and regular course of business.

PAR. 5. Respondents' "Old Surgeon's" treatment consists of six preparations which are designated and referred to as "No. 22," "No. 44," "No. 55," "No. 66," "No. 77," and "No. 88," respectively. The formulae for these preparations are as follows:

No. 22:

Magnesium Sulphate, 40 grains.

Phenolphthalein, 1 grain.

Findings

Sodium Carbonate, 1 grain.

No. 44:

Sodium Salicylate, 4 2/10 grains.

Methylene Blue, ¼ grain.

No. 55, a salve for external application:

Methyl Salicylate, 2 parts.

Menthol, 1 part.

Guiacol, 1 part.

Lanolin, 8 parts.

No. 66, until about January 1, 1940:

Saccharated Ferrous Carbonate, 4 grains.

Quinine Sulphate, ¼ grain.

Extract Nux Vomica, 1/15 grain.

Yohimbine Hydrochloride, 1/18 grain.

Vitamin B₁, 25 International Units.

Riboflavin and other factors

No. 66, since about January 1, 1940

Quinine Sulphate 2¼ grains.

Iron Sulphate Exsiccated, 2 grains.

Thiamin Chloride, 200 International Units.

Riboflavin, 375 Gamma.

Nicotinic Acid, 2 milligrams.

No. 77:

Sodium Bicarbonate, 40 grains.

Citric Acid, 20 grains.

No. 88:

Cascara Sagrada, 1 grain.

And necessary filler.

The treatment recommended by respondents through the use of the aforesaid medicinal preparations is divided into a so-called preparatory course lasting for 5 days and followed by a second course to be continued for an indefinite period. The directions for the "preparatory course" provide for dissolving one "No. 22" powder in water, adding one "No. 77" powder, and taking immediately upon arising in the morning, followed by two "No. 44" pills after the noon meal and two more such pills after the evening meal. The same routine is to be followed on the second day. On the third day the combination of "No. 22" and "No. 77" is to be taken as before, with one "No. 44" pill after each of the three meals. On the fourth day one "No. 44" pill is recommended after each of the three meals, and the same routine is indicated for the fifth day. After the completion of this "preparatory course" the directions for the second course provide for taking four "No. 44" pills daily, one after each of the three meals and before going to bed on Mondays, Tuesdays, and Wednesdays of each week; and four "No. 66" pills daily, one after each of the three meals and before going to bed on Thursdays, Fridays, Saturdays, and Sundays of each week. "No. 88" pills are represented as a laxative and it is suggested that from one to five may be taken as needed to keep the bowels open. The "No. 55" salve is to be used when desired by applying to parts affected.

PAR. 6. The combination of "No. 22" and "No. 77" amounts to an alkaline laxative with the possible effect of purgation. The effect of this preparation is temporary only and wears off in a few days, leaving the individual as much or more constipated than ever. The therapeutic value of the preparation designated as "No. 44" is largely, if not entirely, that of sodium salicylate, which is an analgesic and anti-rheumatic and which may afford partial temporary relief from rheumatic pain or discomfort and partial relief from general discomfort in joints or muscles. When its use is discontinued the effects soon wear off. The methylene blue content in "No. 44" has no definitely established therapeutic usefulness. It is excreted by the kidneys and colors the urine blue or green, and this may have some psychological effect upon the patient.

The "No. 55" salve is a local analgesic and when applied locally is a mild irritant. It might serve the purpose of a counter irritant and result in dilating the cutaneous blood vessels, improving circulation through the skin at the point of application, affording a feeling of warmth, and having a tendency to relieve local pain. The effect of this preparation is temporary only.

In the form used until about 1940 the preparation designated as "No. 66" contained saccharated ferrous carbonate, which is useful in the treatment of anemia due to iron deficiency but has no therapeutic usefulness in anemia due to other causes. Quinine sulphate in sufficient quantities is a specific for malaria, but the amount contained in the preparation designated "No. 66" is insufficient to have any value in the treatment of malarial conditions although it may have some stomachic or tonic value. The active ingredient of nuxvomica contained in "No. 66" is strychnine and the dosage in the quantity recommended by respondent would have a mild stimulating action on the central nervous system and possibly some tonic value. The yohimbine hydrochloride content of "No. 66" is a drug which has not been recognized as having therapeutic usefulness. It has been suggested as an aphrodisiac but in the dosage contained in "No. 66" would not have any effect upon the normal person except possibly to cause vertigo, mental confusion, or irritation of the kidneys. In toxic doses it is likely to damage the kidneys. The Vitamin B content of this preparation might be useful in instances where the individual suffers from a deficiency, but such cases are not particularly common and the dosage is not sufficient for therapeutic purposes in cases of actual deficiency.

The formula used in "No. 66" since about the first of 1940 does not contain the extract of nux vomica or the yohimbine hydrochloride formerly used and the vitamin content has been changed. The quinine sulphate and the iron sulphate contained in the modified formula have the same therapeutic value and the same limitations as indicated for those ingredients of the original formula. Vitamin therapy is at present a somewhat uncertain field. There are certain deficiency diseases such as beriberi and pellagra which are effectively treated by the administration of vitamins. In the absence of vitamin deficiency, however, there is no demonstrated therapeutic value in the administration of vitamins.

The therapeutic content of the preparation known as "No. 88" is casacara sagrada, which is a mild irritant laxative.

PAR. 7. When taken as directed the combination of drugs designated by respondents as "Old Surgeon's" does not constitute a cure or remedy, or a competent or effective treatment, for impotence, lost energy, indigestion, asthenia, or neurasthenia. "Old Surgeon's" has no therapeutic value in the treatment of rheumatism, neuritis, polyneuritis, or arthritis except for a temporary decrease in pain or discomfort, and with respect to general debility it will have no influence on the underlying causes which produce the combination of symptoms so designated. "Old Surgeon's" will not prevent premature old age, nor will it rejuvenate those who have been overcome by the vicissitudes of old age. Its use will not restore or beneficially affect the functioning of exhausted glands, nerves, or organs. "Old Surgeon's" has no therapeutic usefulness in excess of its laxative and analgesic qualities except in those cases where there is an anemia due to iron deficiency or where there is a deficiency of thiamin chloride, riboflavin, or nicotinic acid.

The price of "Old Surgeon's" is not $5, as represented, but is approximately $1.94. This price of $1.94 is not a special or reduced price but is the price at which such preparations are normally and customarily offered for sale in the regular course of business.

PAR. 8. Respondents also disseminate, as aforesaid, false and misleading advertisements through the use upon their letterheads and other stationery of an exaggerated pictorial representation of their purported place of business. These illustrations depict a large two- or three-story building. In fact respondents' business occupies two office rooms and a loft on the second floor of a building used as a moving picture theater. Members of the purchasing public have a preference for trading with or patronizing large, well-established manufacturers and dealers because of the belief that such concerns are more reliable, more responsible, afford better service, and other advantages.

PAR. 9. The use by respondents of the foregoing false, deceptive, misleading, and exaggerated statements, representations, and implications with respect to their medicinal preparations, the price thereof, and the size of their business establishment has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such statements, representations, and implications are true, and into the purchase of respondents' said products because of said erroneous and mistaken belief.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices as herein set forth are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondent, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto taken before an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, report of the trial examiner and exceptions thereto, briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto, and oral argument of counsel; and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That respondent Hiram Carter, Inc., a corporation, its officers, agents, representatives, and employees, and S. Fred Griffin, an individual, his agents, representatives, and employees, jointly or severally, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of the medicinal preparations designated as "Old Surgeon's," or any other medicinal preparation or preparations which are substantially similar in composition or possess substantially similar properties, whether sold under the same name or any other name or names, do forthwith cease and desist from directly or indirectly:

1. Disseminating or causing to be disseminated, by means of the United States mails, or by any means in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, any advertisement which represents, directly or through inference—

- (a) That respondents' medicinal preparations constitute a cure or remedy, or a competent or effective treatment, for impotence, lost energy, indigestion, asthenia, or neurasthenia, or will prevent premature old age, or will restore or beneficially affect the functioning of exhausted glands, nerves, or organs, or will rejuvenate those who have been overcome by the vicissitudes of old age;

(b) That respondents' medicinal preparations constitute a cure or remedy for rheumatism, neuritis, polyneuritis, or arthritis, or have any therapeutic value in the treatment of such conditions in excess of affording temporary partial relief from the symptoms of pain;

(c) That respondents' medicinal preparations have any therapeutic value in excess of that afforded by a laxative or analgesic in the treatment of any other diseases or conditions, except in cases of anemia due to iron deficiency or in certain conditions resulting from a deficiency of thiamin chloride, riboflavin, or nicotinic acid where such deficiency is adequately supplied by respondents' preparations under conditions of use;

(d) That the usual and customary prices at which respondents offer for sale or sell their medicinal preparations in the regular course of business are special or reduced prices, or less than the prices at which said preparations are customarily offered for sale or sold in the regular course of business.

2. Disseminating or causing to be disseminated, by any means, any advertisement for the purpose of inducing, or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, of said medicinal preparations, which advertisement contains any of the representations prohibited in paragraph 1 hereof.

3. Representing pictorially, or otherwise, that the physical plant, equipment, and facilities owned, used, or occupied by respondents are greater than is the fact.

It is further ordered, That respondents shall, within 60 days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF THE POWERINE COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 4423. Complaint, Dec. 18, 1940—Decision, Jan. 13, 1942

Where a corporation engaged in competitive interstate sale and distribution of petroleum products to retailers and jobbers—

Furnished and distributed to its dealers its so-called "Right in the Palm of Your Hand" sales promotion plan for use in the sale and distribution of its said products to the consuming public in a manner involving operation of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme, under which customer of dealer, by pasting into the booklet provided 180 10-cent sales receipts, became entitled, according to the award designated and concealed within each booklet's gold seal, to "three quarts of corporation's motor oil, a grease job, or five, ten, or twenty gallons of gasoline, or to $1, $2 or $20 in cash"; said corporation refunding such awards to retailers upon the return of the booklets; and thereby

Supplied to and placed in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries or games of chance in the sale of its products in accordance with said plan under which retailer dealer purchased from it and sold and distributed its said products in accordance therewith, and involving the sale of a chance to procure merchandise or sums of money of much greater value than the amounts to be paid therefor; contrary to the established public policy of the United States Government, and in violation of criminal laws, and in competition with many who are not willing to use any method involving chance or contrary to public policy and refrain therefrom;

With result that many dealers in and ultimate purchasers of such products were attracted by its said sales plan and element of chance involved therein and were thereby induced to purchase said products from it in preference to those of aforesaid competitors, and with capacity and tendency thereby to unfairly divert trade to it from them:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances as set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce, and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

Before Mr. William C. Reeves, trial examiner.

Mr. Carrel F. Rhodes and Mr. J. W. Brookfield, Jr., for the Commission.

Mr. Frank C. Myers, of Denver, Colo., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal

Trade Commission, having reason to believe that the Powerine Co., a corporation, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, the Powerine Co., is a corporation organized and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Colorado with its offices and principal place of business located at Denver, Colo. Respondent is now and for more than a year last past has been engaged in the sale and distribution of petroleum products to retail dealers and jobbers. Respondent causes and has caused its products, when sold, to be shipped and transported from its aforesaid place of business in the State of Colorado to purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. There is now and has been for more than one year last past a course of trade by said respondent in such petroleum products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

In the course and conduct of its business respondent is and has been in competition with other corporations and with individuals and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar products in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its business as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and distributes and has sold and distributed petroleum products labeled "Powerine" and "Powerlube" to retail dealers and jobbers. In connection with the sale of said petroleum products, respondent distributes and has distributed to said dealers a so-called "Right in the Palm of Your Hand" device for use in the sale and distribution of said petroleum products to the consuming public in a manner involving the operation of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. The sales plans or methods employed in selling and distributing said petroleum products to the consuming public by means of said device are substantially as follows:

Respondent's "Right in the Palm of Your Hand" device consists of a booklet, together with a number of sales receipts or coupons. In the booklet are blank spaces provided for the pasting of 180 sales receipts or coupons. On the outside of the booklet is a gold colored seal under which are listed the prizes to be awarded when the spaces for the sales receipts or coupons are completely filled. The booklets which are distributed to the dealers and by them to the consuming public contain the following legend: On the outside of said booklet appears—

DEALERS AND DISTRIBUTORS

(Six pages for Sales Receipts Coupons follow)

The petroleum products, services or cash awards so designated and described under said seal vary in value in accordance with each individual booklet, and such designations or descriptions of said awards or prizes are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until the said receipts have been pasted on the six pages of each of the said booklets, and the gold colored seals thereon are then broken and removed therefrom. The said prizes or awards are thus distributed to the purchasing public wholly by lot or chance.

PAR. 3. Retail dealers who purchase respondent's said petroleum products and devices expose the same to the purchasing public and sell and distribute such products in accordance with the above-described sales plans or methods. Respondent thus supplies to, and places in the hands of, others the means of conducting lotteries, gift enterprises, or games of chance in the sale of said products in accordance with the sales plans or methods hereinabove described. Such sales plans or methods have the tendency and capacity to, and do, induce the consuming or purchasing public to purchase respondent's said products in preference to like or similar products offered for sale and sold by its competitors.

PAR. 4. The sale of such products to the consuming public in the manner above described involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure articles of said products or sums of money of much greater values than the amounts to be paid therefor. The use by respondent of said methods in the sale of its products and the sale of such products by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said methods is a practice of the sort which is contrary to the established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of criminal law. The use by respondent of said sales plans or methods has the tendency to unfairly hinder competition. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell and distribute products in competition with the respondent as above described are unwilling to adopt and use said methods or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other method that is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom.

PAR. 5. Many dealers in, and ultimate purchasers of, products similar to those distributed by respondent are attracted by respondent's said sales plans or methods and by the element of chance involved in the sale of said products in the manner above described and are hereby induced to purchase said products from respondent in preference to similar products offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or similar methods. The use of said methods by respondent has the capacity and tendency, because of said game of chance, gift enterprise or lottery scheme, to unfairly divert trade to respondent from its competitors who do not use the same or equivalent or similar methods.

PAR. 6. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on December 18 A. D. 1940, issued and subsequently served its complaint on the respondent, the Powerine

Co., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce, and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of said complaint were introduced by Carrel F. Rhodes, attorney for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by Frank C. Myers, attorney for the respondent, before William C. Reeves, a trial examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, this proceeding, regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission upon said complaint, answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, report of the trial examiner upon the evidence, and brief in support of the complaint (no brief having been filed by the respondent or oral argument requested); and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, the Powerine Co., is a corporation organized and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Colorado, with its offices and principal place of business located at Denver, Colo. Respondent is now, and for more than two years past has been engaged in the sale and distribution of petroleum products to retail dealers and jobbers, which products are sold under the trade names of "Powerine" and "Powerlube." Respondent causes said products when sold, to be shipped and transported from its place of business in the State of Colorado to purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said petroleum products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its business, respondent is in competition with other corporations and with individuals and partnerships engaged in the sale of petroleum products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of its business and in connection with the sale and distribution of said petroleum products, respondent distributes to its said dealers a sales promotion plan designated "Right in the Palm of Your Hand" for use in the sale and distribution of said petroleum products to the consuming public in a manner involving the operation of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. The sales promotion plan employed in selling and distributing said petroleum products to the consuming public is substantially as follows:

Respondent's sales promotion plan designated "Right in the Palm of Your Hand" consists of a booklet, together with a number of sales receipts or coupons. In the booklet are blank spaces provided for the pasting of 180 sales receipts or coupons. On the outside of the booklet is a gold colored seal under which is listed the prize to be awarded when the spaces for the sales receipts or coupons are completely filled. The booklets which are distributed to the dealers, and by them to the consuming public, contain the following legend: On the outside of said booklet appears—

RIGHT IN THE PALM OF YOUR HAND

(Gold colored seal here)

Read every word carefully in this book—it is of interest to you

Warning—Patent Pending.

On the inside of the front page—

OUR APPRECIATION SALES PLAN

For each 10¢ you spend for any product at our Stations listed on the back of this book, you will be given a receipt. When you have filled this book with receipts, do not break the seal or it will become void. Present it to our Station Manager intact.

You will receive no less than: Three quarts of Power-lube Motor Oil, a Grease Job, 5 Gallons of Gasoline, 10 Gallons of Gasoline, 20 Gallons of Gasoline, or you may receive $1.00 in Cash, $2.00 in Cash, or $20.00 in Cash.

DEALERS AND DISTRIBUTORS

(Six pages for Sales Receipts Coupons follow)

The petroleum products or cash awards so designated and described under said seal vary in value in accordance with each individual booklet, and such designations or descriptions of said awards or prizes are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until the said receipts have been pasted on the six pages of each of the said booklets, and the gold colored seals thereon are then broken and removed therefrom. The said prizes or awards are thus distributed to the purchasing public wholly by lot or chance.

PAR. 4. Retail dealers who purchase respondent's products, expose the same to the purchasing public, and sell and distribute such products in accordance with the above-described sales plans or methods and issue to purchasers a stamp or receipt covering cash purchases, in denominations of 10 cents each, and when the spaces of the booklet are filled with stamps or receipts in the equivalent of 10 cents each, the seal is removed from the outside of the first page of the booklet and the purchaser receives the award designated under such seal. When the award is paid to the purchaser in cash or merchandise, as therein provided, the booklet is returned by the retail dealer to the respondent, and the award so given is refunded to the retail dealer by the respondent. Respondent thus supplies to, and places in the hands of, others the means of conducting lotteries, gift enterprises, or games of chance in the sale of said products in accordance with the sales plans or methods hereinabove described. Such sales plans or methods have the tendency and capacity to, and do, induce the consuming or purchasing public to purchase respondent's said products in preference to like or similar products offered for sale and sold by its competitors.

PAR. 5. The sale of such products to the consuming public in the manner above described involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure merchandise or sums of money of much greater values than the amounts to be paid therefor. The use by the respondent of said methods in the sale of its products, and the sale of such products by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said methods, is a practice of the sort which is contrary to the established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of criminal law. The use by respondent of said sales plans or methods has a tendency and capacity to unfairly hinder competition. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell and distribute products in competition with the respondent, are unwilling to adopt and use said methods or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other method which is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom.

PAR. 6. Many dealers in, and ultimate purchasers of, products similar to those distributed by respondent are attracted by respondent's said sales plans or methods and by the element of chance involved in the sale of said products in the manner above described, and are thereby induced to purchase said products from the respondent in preference to similar products offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or similar methods. The use of said methods by the respondent has the capacity and tendency, because of said game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme, to unfairly divert trade to respondent from its competitors who do not use the same or equivalent or similar methods.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceedings having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondent, testimony and other evidence taken before William C. Reeves, a trial examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, report of the trial examiner upon the evidence, and brief filed in support of the complaint; and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent, the Powerine Co., a corporation, has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, the Powerine Co., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of petroleum products, or any other merchandise, in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Supplying to, or placing in the hands of, retail dealers or others, sales promotion booklets and stamps, or any other sales plans or devices which are to be used, or may be used, in the sale or distribution of petroleum products, or any other merchandise, to the public by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

2. Selling or otherwise disposing of any merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF

BOULEVARD CANDY COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914*Docket 3396. Complaint, Apr. 30, 1938—Decision, Jan. 15, 1942*

Where a corporation engaged in manufacture and in competitive interstate sale and distribution of candy, including certain assortments packed and assembled so as to involve the use of a lottery scheme when sold and distributed to consumers, a typical assortment consisting of a number of 1-pound boxes of candy, an additional article of merchandise, and a punchcard for use in sale and distribution thereof under a plan by which the chance selection of certain numbers entitled a purchaser to one of said boxes and purchaser of the last punch received the article of merchandise, the amount paid by a customer for his chances or his receipt of a free chance was dependent upon the particular number secured, and those failing to qualify as aforesaid for box of candy, retail value of which was greater than the cost of any punch, received nothing other than privilege of a punch;

Sold to wholesalers and jobbers aforesaid assortments, retailer purchasers of which exposed and sold same to the purchasing public in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan, and thereby supplied to and placed in the hands of others means of conducting lotteries in the sale of its products, contrary to the established public policy of the common law and criminal statutes and the United States Government, and in competition with those who do not use such methods;

With the result that many dealers and ultimate purchasers were attracted by said method of packing candy and the element of chance involved in sale thereof, and were thereby induced to deal in such candy in preference to its competitors who do not use such methods, whereby trade was unfairly diverted to it from them:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Boulevard Candy Co., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Boulevard Candy Co. is a corporation, organized and doing business under the laws of the State of Illinois, with its principal office and place of business located at 1925 South Western Avenue, Chicago, Ill. Respondent is now, and for more than 1 year last past has been, engaged in the manufacture of candy and in the sale and distribution thereof to dealers. Respondent causes and has caused, its said products when sold to be transported from its principal place of business in Chicago, Ill., to purchasers thereof in the State of Illinois and in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, at their respective places of business. There is now, and has been for more than 1 year last past, a course of trade and commerce by said respondent in such candy between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of said business respondent is in competition with other corporations and with partnerships and individuals engaged in the sale and distribution of candy in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and has sold to wholesale dealers and jobbers certain assortments of candy so packed and assembled as to involve the use of a lottery scheme when sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. One of said assortments is sold and distributed to the purchasing public in the following manner:

This assortment is composed of a number of one-pound boxes of candy and an additional article of merchandise, together with a device commonly called a punch board. Purchasers punching numbers ending in "0" receive the same without charge. Purchasers punching numbers ending in 1, 2, 3, and 4 pay 1, 2, 3, and 4 cents, respectively. Purchasers punching numbers ending in 5, 6, 7, 8, and 9 pay 5 cents. When a punch is made from the board a number is disclosed. The board bears statements of legends informing prospective purchasers that certain specified numbers entitle the purchasers thereof to receive a one-pound box of candy, and the purchaser of the last punch on the board is entitled to, and receives, the additional article of merchandise. A purchaser who does not qualify by obtaining one of the numbers calling for a box of candy, or by punching the last number on the board, receives nothing for his money other than the privilege of punching a number from the board. The numbers are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until a punch has been made and the particular punch separated from the board. The retail value of each of said boxes of candy is greater than any of the designated prices of said punches. The boxes of candy are thus sold and distributed to the purchasing public wholly by lot or chance.

The respondent manufactures, sells, and distributes, various assortments of candy involving a lot or chance feature, but such assortments, and the method of sale and distribution thereof, are similar to the one hereinabove described, and vary only in detail.

PAR. 3. Retail dealers who purchase respondent's said candy, directly or indirectly, expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others a means of conducting lotteries in the sale of its products in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth, and said sales plan has the tendency and capacity to induce purchasers thereof to purchase respondents's said products in preference to candy offered for sale and sold by its competitors.

PAR. 4. The sale of said candy to the purchasing public in the manner above alleged involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to secure a box of candy. The use by respondent of said method in the sale of candy and the sale of candy by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said method is a practice of the sort which the common law and criminal statutes have long deemed contrary to public policy and is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States. The use by respondent of said method has the tendency unduly to hinder competition or to create a monopoly in this, to wit: that the use thereof has the tendency and capacity to exclude from the candy trade competitors who do not adopt and use the same method or an equivalent or similar method involving the same or an equivalent or similar element of chance or lottery scheme. Many persons, firms and corporations who make and sell candy in competition with the respondent, as above alleged, are unwilling to offer for sale and sell candy so packed and assembled as above described, or otherwise arranged and packed for sale to the purchasing public so as to involve a game of chance, or any other method of sale that is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom.

PAR. 5. Many dealers in, and ultimate purchasers of, candy are attracted by respondent's said method and manner of packing said candy and by the element of chance involved in the sale thereof in the manner above described, and are thereby induced to purchase said candy so packed and sold by respondent in preference to candy offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or an equivalent or similar method. The use of said method by respondent has a tendency and capacity, because of said game of chance, to divert to respondent trade and custom from its said competitors who do not use the same or an equivalent or similar method, to exclude from said candy trade all competitors who are unwilling to, and who do not, use the same or an equivalent or similar method because the same is unlawful, to lessen competition in said candy trade, to create a monopoly of said candy trade in respondent and such other distributors of candy as use the same or an equivalent or similar method, and to deprive the purchasing public of the benefit of free competition in said candy trade. The use of said method by respondent has a tendency and capacity to eliminate from said candy trade all actual competitors and to exclude therefrom all potential competitors who do not adopt and use said method or an equivalent or similar method.

PAR. 6. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on April 30, A. D. 1938, issued and subsequently served its complaint on the respondent, Boulevard Candy Co., a corporation, charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of said complaint were introduced by P. C. Kolinski, D. C. Daniel, L. P. Allen, Jr., and J. W. Brookfield, Jr., attorneys for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by Lewis E. Pennish and H. P. Kishner, attorneys for the respondent, before trial examiners of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, report of the trial examiners upon the evidence and exceptions filed thereto, briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto, and oral argument of counsel; and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Boulevard Candy Co., is a corporation, organized and doing business under the laws of the State of Illinois, with its principal office and place of business located at 1925 South Western Avenue, Chicago, Ill. Respondent is now, and for more than 4 years last past has been, engaged in the manufacture of candy, and in the sale and distribution thereof to wholesale dealers and jobbers. Respondent causes, and has caused, its products, when sold by it, to be transported from its place of business in Chicago, Ill., to purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said candy in commerce among and between the various States of the United States.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its said business, the respondent is in competition with other corporations and with partnerships and individuals engaged in the sale and distribution of candy in commerce between and among the various States of the United States.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of its business, respondent sells, and has sold, to wholesale dealers and jobbers, certain assortments of candy so packed and assembled as to involve the use of a lottery scheme when sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. One of said assortments is sold and distributed to the purchasing public in the following manner:

This assortment is composed of a number of 1-pound boxes of candy and an additional article of merchandise, together with a device commonly called a punch card. Purchasers punching numbers ending in 0 receive the same without charge. Purchasers punching numbers ending in 1, 2, 3, and 4, pay 1, 2, 3, and 4 cents, respectively. Purchasers punching numbers ending in 5, 6, 7, 8, and 9 pay 5 cents. When a punch is made from the board a number is disclosed. The board bears statements or legends informing prospective purchasers that certain specified numbers entitle the purchasers thereof to receive a 1-pound box of candy, and the purchaser of the last punch on the board is entitled to, and receives, the additional article of merchandise. A purchaser who does not qualify by obtaining one of the numbers calling for a box of candy or by punching the last number on the board receives nothing for his money other than the privilege of punching the number from the board. The numbers are effectively concealed from the purchasers and prospective purchasers until a punch has been made and the particular punch separated from the board. The retail value of each of said boxes of candy is greater than any of the designated prices of said punches. The boxes of candy are thus sold and distributed to the purchasing public wholly by lot or chance.

The respondent manufactures, sells, and distributes various assortments of candy involving a lot or chance feature, but such assortments and the method of sale and distribution thereof are similar to the one hereinabove described, and vary only in detail.

PAR. 4. Retail dealers who purchase respondent's said candy, directly or indirectly expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan. Respondent thus supplies to, and places in the hands of, others, a means of conducting lotteries in the sale of its products in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth, and said sales plan has a tendency and capacity to induce purchasers thereof to purchase respondent's said products in preference to candy offered for sale and sold by its competitors.

PAR. 5. The sale of said candy to the purchasing public in the manner above described involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to secure a box of candy. The use by the respondent of said method in the sale of candy, and the sale of candy by and through the use thereof, and by the aid of said method, is a practice of a sort which the common law and criminal statutes have long deemed contrary to public policy and is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States.

PAR. 6. Many dealers in, and ultimate purchasers of, candy are attracted by respondent's said method and manner of packing said candy and by the element of chance involved in the sale thereof in the manner above described, and are thereby induced to purchase said candy so packed and sold by respondent, in preference to candy offered for sale and sold by its competitors, with the result that trade has been diverted unfairly to the respondent from its competitors who are likewise engaged in the sale and distribution of candy in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, who do not use the same or an equivalent or similar method.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondent, testimony, and other evidence taken before trial examiners of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, in support of the allegations of said complaint and in opposition thereto, report of the trial examiner upon the evidence and exceptions filed thereto, briefs filed in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto, and oral arguments of counsel; and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent, Boulevard Candy Co., a corporation, has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Boulevard Candy Co., its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of candy, or any other merchandise in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Selling or distributing candy or any other merchandise so packed or assembled that sales of such candy or other merchandise to the public are to be made, or may be made, by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

Supplying to, or placing in the hands of, others push or pull cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices, either with assortments of candy or other merchandise, or separately, which said push or pull cards, punchboards, or other lottery devices are to be used, or may be used, in selling or distributing said candy or other merchandise to the public.
3. Selling or otherwise disposing of any merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF
RETAIL COAL MERCHANTS ASSOCIATION, ET AL.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3911. Complaint, Oct. 5, 1939—Decision, Jan. 19, 1942

Where an association of all the retail coal dealers in and about Richmond, Va., with two or three exceptions, selling and distributing 80 to 90 percent of all the coal sold at retail in such trade area; and, as their competitors, purchasing the major portion of their coal from dealers in other States; together with the officers and the members thereof who were in competition with one another and with others in said trade area except as restricted by acts and practices below set forth;

Following their conception of a plan under which schedules of uniform prices, terms and conditions of sale on the various grades and varieties of coal sold were placed, at regular intervals, in the hands of all retailer members, who, in order to remain such, were required to establish and maintain such fixed schedules;

In pursuance of a scheme to compel a number of retail coal dealers in said city—who declined to join the association and to observe such fixed schedule of prices, etc., but continued to sell coal on a competitive basis, at prices usually substantially lower—to become members and maintain such prices, etc., through agreements with wholesale dealers supplying most of the coal shipped into Richmond, under which such wholesalers would refuse to sell or ship coal to any retailer in the area in question who was not a member or who, being a member, did not maintain the association's prices—

- (a) Conducted an intensive campaign among nonmember dealers to bring them into the association and threatened them with the loss of their sources of coal unless they became members;
- (b) Called on wholesale coal dealers and urged them under threat of boycott to cooperate with the association by refusing to sell coal to any dealer who was not a member thereof or who, being such, did not maintain association prices;
- (c) Attempted to induce such wholesalers to insert in their contracts with retailers a clause to the effect that if the dealer failed to conduct his business in conformity with the standards approved by his locality, the wholesaler would have the right to discontinue supplying coal under the contract;
- (d) Arranged joint meetings between the members of the association and wholesale coal dealers and there, under threat of boycott, sought and secured cooperation of latter;
- (e) Issued a list of "cooperators," showing the names of retailer members in one column and the names of certain wholesalers in the other, and distributed such list among the retailers and wholesalers named;

With the result that it became increasingly difficult for the twenty-odd non-member retailers in said city to obtain coal and they concluded it necessary to, and did, join the association in question, following which they had such difficulty no further; and

Where three corporations and four partners, large wholesalers of coal or sales agents for operators of coal mines, selling and distributing the output of mines in West Virginia, Ohio, and Virginia, to retailers in various States, including the aforesaid association members—

- (f) Agreed with said association and the officers and members that they would not ship to nonmember retail coal dealers, in city aforesaid, or to those whose coal prices did not conform to those agreed upon;

With the result that said understanding and conspiracy had the effect of—

(1) Unlawfully restricting and restraining the movement in commerce of coal purchased by retail coal dealers in said city for resale in trade area in question and of thus restricting resale, and substantially enhancing prices of such coal to the consuming public, and maintaining prices at artificial levels, and otherwise depriving the public of benefits which would flow from normal competition; and of

(2) Eliminating price competition among members and between such members and other competitors in the resale of coal in the trade area in question; with tendency and capacity to create in such members a monopoly in the purchase of coal in interstate commerce for resale in said trade area, and in the sale of coal at retail therein:

Held, That such agreement, understanding, combination, and conspiracy, and the acts and things done in furtherance thereof, as above set forth, were all to the prejudice of the public and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce.

PAR. 3. The members respondents of the association respondent, in the course and conduct of their respective businesses, sell and distribute a large percentage (probably 90 percent) of all the coal sold at retail in the trade area in and around Richmond, Va.

PAR. 4. Members respondents are in competition with one another and with other retail coal dealers in Richmond, Va., in selling, and seeking to sell, coal at retail in the trade area in and around Richmond, Va., except insofar as said competition has been hindered, lessened, restrained, or restricted, or potential competition among them forestalled, by the unlawful understanding, agreement, combination, and conspiracy, and the acts, policies, and practices done pursuant thereto, as hereinafter set out.

PAR. 5. Members respondents and their said competitors purchase practically all the coal necessary for the conduct of their respective businesses from producers whose mines and places of business are located in States other than the State of Virginia, and when said purchases are made, and as a part thereof, said producers regularly have shipped, or caused to be shipped, and do ship, or cause to be shipped, the coal from their respective mines and their respective places of business located in the several States of the United States, in commerce, into, through, and between the various States of the United States, to the member respondents and their said competitors located in Richmond, Va.

PAR. 6. The wholesale dealers respondents comprise large coal mine operators or sales agents therefor, who, in the course and conduct of their business, operate, or obtain the output of, various coal mines situated in the States of West Virginia, Ohio, and Virginia, and who, thereafter in the course and conduct of their business, sell and distribute said coal at wholesale to retail coal dealers located in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, including the members respondents hereinbefore referred to, and as a part of said sales and distribution ship, or cause to be shipped, said coal from the afore-mentioned mines to the purchasers thereof located in States of the United States other than those in which said mines are situated.

PAR. 7. Said wholesale dealers respondents and members respondents, in the manner before described, maintain a constant current of trade in coal in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and particularly between the States of West Virginia, Ohio, and Virginia.

PAR. 8. For several years last past association respondent, officers respondents, members respondents, and wholesale dealers respondents, have entered into, and thereafter carried out, an understanding, agreement, combination, and conspiracy for the purpose, and with the effect, of unlawfully restricting, restraining, suppressing, and eliminating competition in, and monopolizing, the retail sale of coal in the trade area in and around Richmond, Va., purchased by said dealers in the manner hereinbefore described.

PAR. 9. Pursuant to this understanding, agreement, combination, and conspiracy, entered into by and between and among the aforesaid respondents, and in furtherance thereof, the said respondents have, among other acts and things, done the following:

(a) The wholesale dealers respondents have agreed with the members respondents, acting through and by means of the association respondent, not to ship, and they have refrained from shipping, coal from the mines of said wholesale dealers respondents located in States of the United States other than the State of Virginia, to those retail coal dealers in Richmond, Va., who are not members of association respondent, or whose retail prices on coal in the trade area in and around Richmond, Va., do not conform to those agreed upon by members respondents.

(b) Members respondents have agreed among themselves as to the retail prices, terms and conditions of sale to be quoted and collected for their coal; have caused such prices, terms and conditions of sale to be filed with association respondent, who in turn distributes same to all members respondents and to the aforesaid wholesale dealers respondents, who are referred to therein as "cooperators"; and have agreed among themselves to adhere to such prices, terms and conditions of sale pending the filing of changes with association respondent.

(c) Members respondents, accompanied by the secretary of the association respondent, have called on wholesale coal dealers, including the wholesale dealers respondents, and outlined their plans and urged said wholesale coal dealers under threat of boycott to cooperate with them by refusing to sell coal to any nonmember or to any dealer who undersold the association, thus eliminating all price competition and forcing all nonmembers to join the association if they wanted to stay in business.

(d) Association respondent, through its secretary, has arranged joint meetings between members respondents and wholesale dealers respondents, in different cities and towns in the State of Virginia, as well as in Washington, D. C., where the plans, purposes, and practices of the association and its members were outlined to the wholesale dealers and their cooperation solicited, under threat of boycott.

(e) Association respondent and its members conducted intensive campaigns amongst all nonmembers to get them to join the association, with the result that all eligible retail coal dealers in Richmond, Va., but one, finally joined the association under actual threat from the members respondents and the wholesale dealers respondents that no supply of coal would be obtainable otherwise.

(f) Association respondent, through its secretary, attempted to get wholesale coal dealers to insert in their contracts, or renewals thereof, with retail dealers, a clause to the effect that if the said retail dealer failed to conduct his business in conformity with the standards approved by his locality, the shipper would have the right, after 30 days' notice, to discontinue supplying coal under the contract.

(g) Said association respondent, officers and members respondents, and wholesale dealers respondents have used, and are now using, other collective and collusive means and methods to effectuate the aforementioned agreement, combination, and conspiracy.

PAR. 10. Each of the respondents, at the times herein mentioned, acted in concert with one or more of the other respondents in doing and performing the acts and things herein alleged in furtherance of the understanding, agreement, combination, and conspiracy hereinbefore set out.

PAR. 11. The afore-mentioned agreement, understanding, combination, and conspiracy, and the things done thereunder, and pursuant thereto, and in furtherance thereof, as hereinbefore alleged, have had, and do have, the effect of unlawfully restricting and restraining the movement in commerce, between and among the several States of the United States, of coal purchased by the retail coal dealers in Richmond, Va., for resale in the trade area in and around said city; of unduly and unlawfully restricting the resale of coal purchased by said retailers in Richmond, Va., in the manner hereinbefore described, in the trade area in and around Richmond, Va.; of substantially enhancing prices of said coal to the consuming public thereof; of maintaining said prices at artificial levels, and otherwise depriving the public of the benefits that would flow from normal competition among members respondents and between said members respondents and other retail coal dealers in Richmond, Va.; of eliminating price competition among members respondents and between said members respondents and other competitors in the resale of coal purchased in the manner before described in the trade area in and around Richmond, Va., with the tendency and capacity of creating in members respondents a monopoly in said trade.

Said agreement, understanding, combination, and conspiracy, and the acts and things done thereunder and pursuant thereto, as above alleged, constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on October 5, 1939, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondents, Retail Coal Merchants Association, a corporation; D. Walton Mallory, individually and as president of Retail Coal Merchants Association; Edwin D. Newmann, individually and as vice president of Retail Coal Merchants Association; A. Holland White, individually and as treasurer of Retail Coal Merchants Association; Charles H. Hall, Jr., individually and as secretary of Retail Coal Merchants Association; L. D. Wingfield and James L. Hatcher, as coowners of Wingfield-Hatcher Coal Co.; A. M. Hungerford, doing business as Hungerford Coal Co.; Massey-Wood & West, a corporation; Sydnor-Howey & Co., Inc., a corporation; D. W. Mallory & Co., Inc., a corporation; Ellison & Hawes, Inc., a corporation; W. E. Seaton & Sons, Inc., a corporation; and Gill Fuel Co., Inc., a corporation, members of Retail Coal Merchants Association; Bluefield Coal & Coke Co., a corporation; Cabell Coal Co., Inc., a corporation; Cabin Creek Consolidated Sales Co., a corporation; A. T. Massey Coal Co., a corporation; Red Jacket Coal Sales Co., a corporation; George W. St. Clair, Robert Henry Moore, Mrs. Robert Henry Moore, Katherine St. Clair Santori, and Houston St. Clair, partners, doing business under the partnership name of Virginia Smokeless Coal Co.; White Oak Coal Co., a corporation; and Wyatt Coal Sales Co., a corporation, charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act.

After the filing by the respondents of their answers to said complaint, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by attorneys for the Commission, and in opposition thereto by attorneys for the respondents, before trial examiners of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it. Thereafter, on March 12, 1941, the Commission, by order entered herein, granted the motion of respondents, Retail Coal Merchants Association, and the officers and members thereof, for permission to withdraw their original answer, and to substitute therefor an answer admitting all of the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, which substitute answer was duly filed in the office of the Commission. Subsequently additional hearings were held before said trial examiners at which further testimony and other evidence in support of and in opposition to the allegations of said complaint were introduced with respect to the other respondents herein (respondent, A. T. Massey Coal Co., however, offering no testimony or other evidence in opposition to the allegations of said complaint). All of the testimony and other evidence introduced at the hearings held herein were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission.

Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the complaint, answers, testimony, and other evidence, report of the trial examiners upon the evidence and the exceptions thereto, briefs in support of and in opposition to the complaint, and oral argument, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Retail Coal Merchants Association, is an association of coal dealers, organized on April 18, 1930, as a corporation under the laws of the State of Virginia, with its principal office and place of business located at 209 Broad-Grace Arcade Building, Richmond, Va. The membership of the association includes, with some two or three exceptions, all of the retail coal dealers located in and about Richmond, Va. The ostensible purpose of the association, according to its bylaws, is to establish and maintain a standard of honorable dealing in the retail coal business in that vicinity.

The names and addresses of the officers of the association, who are joined as respondents herein both individually and as such officers, are:

D. Walton Mallory, president, % D. W. Mallory & Co., Inc., Richmond, Va.

Edwin D. Newmann, vice president, Richmond, Va.

A. Holland White, treasurer, Richmond, Va.

Charles H. Hall, Jr., secretary, Retail Coal Merchants Association, 209 Broad-Grace Arcade Building, Richmond, Va.

The membership of the association constitutes a class so numerous and changing as to make it impracticable specifically to name all of them herein. The following respondents are members of the association, and are fairly representative of the whole membership. They are named as respondents in this proceeding in their individual capacities, in their capacities as members of the association, and as representatives of all members of the association as a class, including those members who are not specifically named herein:

L. D. Wingfield and James L. Hatcher are coowners of the business operated as Wingfield-Hatcher Coal Co., with their office and principal place of business located in Richmond, Va.

A. M. Hungerford is the individual owner of the Hungerford Coal Co., which was established in 1925 and has his office and principal place of business located at 717 East Gray Street, Richmond, Va.

Massey-Wood & West is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Virginia in 1928, with its office and principal place of business located at Lombardy Underpass, Richmond, Va.

Sydnor-Howey & Co., Inc., is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Virginia in 1913, with its principal place of business located in Richmond, Va.

D. W. Mallory & Co., Inc., is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Virginia, with its office and principal place of business located in Richmond, Va.

Ellison & Hawes, Inc., is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Virginia, with its office and principal place of business located at 530 East Main Street, Richmond, Va.

W. E. Seaton & Sons, Inc., is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Virginia in 1928, with its office and principal place of business located at 1129 West Marshall Street, Richmond, Va.

Gill Fuel Co., Inc., is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Virginia, with its office and principal place of business located at Twenty-first and Decatur Streets, Richmond, Va.

PAR. 2. Respondent, Bluefield Coal & Coke Co., is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of West Virginia, with its principal offices located at Bluefield, W. Va.

Respondent, Cabell Coal Co., Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Virginia, with its principal offices located at Covington, Va.

Respondent, Cabin Creek Consolidated Sales Co., is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, with its principal offices located at Cincinnati, Ohio.

Respondent, A. T. Massey Coal Co., is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Virginia, with its principal offices located at Richmond, Va.

Respondent, Red Jacket Coal Sales Co., is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, with its principal offices located at Columbus, Ohio.

Respondents, Robert Henry Moore, Mrs. Robert Henry Moore, Katherine St. Clair Santori, and Houston St. Clair, are copartners, doing business under the partnership name of Virginia Smokeless Coal Co., with their principal offices located at Tazewell, Va. George W. St. Clair, who was formerly a member of the copartnership, and who was named in the complaint as a respondent, died shortly after this proceeding was instituted.

Respondent, White Oak Coal Co., is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of West Virginia, with its principal offices located at Charleston, W. Va.

Respondent, Wyatt Coal Sales Co., is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of West Virginia, with its principal offices located at Charleston, W. Va.

The Commission having concluded that the evidence is insufficient to establish that respondents, Bluefield Coal & Coke Co., Cabin Creek Consolidated Sales Co., Red Jacket Coal Sales Co., and Wyatt Coal Sales Co., were parties to the combination and conspiracy hereinafter described, the terms "respondents" and "wholesale dealer respondents," as used hereinafter, will not include these four respondents, unless the contrary is indicated.

PAR. 3. The members of the respondent association, in the course and conduct of their respective businesses, sell and distribute the major portion (some 80 to 90 percent) of all of the coal sold at retail in the trade area in and around Richmond, Va.

PAR. 4. These member respondents are in competition with one another and with other retail coal dealers in Richmond, Va., in the purchase of coal in commerce among and between the several States of the United States, and in the sale and the offering for sale of such coal at retail in the trade area in and around Richmond, Va., except insofar as such competition has been hindered, lessened, restrained, and restricted, and except insofar as potential competition has been forestalled, by the acts and practices hereinafter set forth.

PAR. 5. The member respondents and their competitors purchase the major portion of all the coal necessary for the conduct of their respective businesses from wholesale dealers or sales agents whose places of business are located in States other than the State of Virginia. When such purchases are made, and as a part thereof, such wholesale dealers and sales agents ship such coal, or cause such coal to be shipped, from their respective places of business located in the several States of the United States in commerce into, through, and between various States of the United States, to the member respondents and their competitors located in Richmond, Va.

PAR. 6. The wholesale dealer respondents are large wholesalers of coal or sales agents for operators of coal mines. Such wholesale dealer respondents, in the course and conduct of their business, obtain the output of various coal mines situated in the States of West Virginia, Ohio, and Virginia, and thereafter in the course and conduct of their business sell and distribute such coal to retail coal dealers located in the various States of the United States, including the member respondents hereinabove referred to. As a part of such sale and distribution, such wholesale dealer respondents ship such coal, or cause such coal to be shipped, from the aforesaid mines to the purchasers thereof located in States of the United States other than those in which such mines are situated.

Respondent, Virginia Smokeless Coal Co., is the sales agent of a mining corporation which owns and operates coal mines located in Tazewell County, Va., and in Buchanan County, Va. Until some time in the year 1937, the main office of the Virginia Smokeless Coal Co. was located in Bluefield, W. Va., and all orders obtained by the company's sales representatives from dealers in Richmond, Va., and elsewhere were forwarded to such main office for acceptance or rejection. In 1937 such main office was moved to Tazewell, Va. Coal sold to purchasers in Richmond is transported by rail from the mines in Tazewell County or Buchanan County, Va., to Bluefield, W. Va., where it is weighed on the scales of the railway company. It then continues by rail to its destination in Richmond. This method of handling and route of shipment has obtained for many years, both before and after the main office of the company was moved from Bluefield to Tazewell.

PAR. 7. The wholesale dealer respondents and the member respondents, in the manner above described, maintain and have maintained a constant current and course of trade in coal in commerce among and between the several States of the United States.

PAR. 8. Several years ago respondent association, through its officers and members, conceived the idea of establishing and maintaining a system of uniform prices, terms, and conditions governing the sale of coal at retail in the Richmond trade area. The exact date on which the plan was conceived is not disclosed by the record, but the plan was put into active operation as early as 1936, and remained in active operation until after the institution of this proceeding. Under the plan, schedules of prices, terms, and conditions of sale on the various grades and varieties of coal sold in that area were prepared by the association at regular intervals and placed in the hands of all retail dealers who were members of the association. In order for a retail dealer to remain a member of the association it was necessary that he establish and maintain the schedule of prices, terms, and conditions of sale fixed by the association.

PAR. 9. There were at the time of the beginning of the operation of the plan a number of retail coal dealers in Richmond who were not members of the association. These dealers declined to observe the schedule of prices, terms, and conditions fixed by the association and refused to join the association but continued to sell coal on a competitive basis, their prices usually being substantially less than the prices maintained by the association members. For the purpose of compelling these independent dealers to become members of the association and maintain the association's schedule of uniform prices, terms, and conditions of sale, the association conceived the idea of entering into agreements with certain wholesale coal dealers who supplied most of the coal shipped into Richmond, under which agreements such wholesale dealers would refuse to sell or ship coal to any retail dealer in that area who was not a member of the association or who, being a member of the association, did not maintain the prices fixed by the association.

An intensive campaign was conducted by the association and its members among such nonmember dealers for the purpose of bringing them into the association, such dealers being threatened with the loss of their sources of coal unless they became members of the association. Officers and members of the association also called on wholesale coal dealers and urged such wholesalers, under threat of boycott, to cooperate with the association by refusing to sell coal to any dealer who was not a member of the association or who, being a member, did not maintain the association prices. The association also attempted to induce such wholesalers to insert in their contracts with retail dealers a clause to the effect that if the dealer failed to conduct his business in conformity with the standards approved by his locality, the wholesaler would have the right to discontinue supplying coal under the contract.

In further pursuance of its plan the association arranged for a meeting between representatives of the association and certain of the wholesalers, which meeting was held at the John Marshall Hotel in Richmond on July 23, 1936. At this meeting representatives of respondents, Cabell Coal Co., Inc., A. T. Massey Coal Co., and White Oak Coal Co., were present. Exactly what transpired at the meeting is not clear from the record, but a cooperative program between the association and the wholesalers was discussed, and this meeting was the forerunner of a second meeting held in Washington, D. C.

With respect to this second meeting, the association, through its executive secretary, addressed a letter on August 7, 1936, to nine wholesale coal dealers, among whom were respondents, Cabell Coal Co., Inc., A. T. Massey Coal Co., Virginia Smokeless Coal Co., and White Oak Coal Co. This letter read as follows:

With further reference to our meeting in Richmond, on July 23d, and as per the recommendation made at that meeting, we have appointed Messrs. F. S. Levering, president of E. P. Murphy & Son; Ivor Massey, president of Massey, Wood & West, Inc.; and Arthur M. Hungerford, owner and manager of Hungerford Coal Co., to meet with you gentlemen and carry to a successful conclusion the matters discussed at the above meeting.

Believing further that we should meet on neutral ground, I would thank you to advise me if you, or your representative, with full authority to act, could meet the committee in Washington, D. C., on Friday, August 14th. Immediately upon your reply I will arrange for the hour and place of meeting.

In the event that this date does not meet your schedule, I would suggest that in your reply you name several dates, any one of which would make it possible for you to be present.

May I suggest, gentlemen, that the Retail Coal Merchants of Richmond have not in the past, nor do they anticipate in the future, trying to force you gentlemen to do anything unethical or unlawful, our desire being simply to work out a cooperative program suitable to all parties concerned.

On August 11, 1936, the association, through its executive secretary, addressed a second letter to the same addresses, this second letter reading as follows:

With further reference to my letter of August 7th, and your several replies in which suggestions were made for a meeting between the dates of August 17th and September 8th, we have decided to make a compromise and now request that you arrange to meet in Washington, D. C., on Tuesday, August 25th.

Our present plan is to hold this meeting in the Ambassador Hotel at 10:00 a. m., therefore, unless we advise you to the contrary, we will be expecting you as per the above.

Please bear in mind that your representative at this meeting should have full authority to act for your company, and in the meantime we will advise you of any change in the plan.

This meeting was held in Washington, D. C., on August 25, 1936, as announced in this letter, there being present, among others, the executive secretary of the association, a number of retail dealers who constituted a committee appointed by the association, and representatives of a number of wholesale dealers, including respondents Cabell Coal Co., Inc., Virginia Smokeless Coal Co., and White Oak Coal Co. Cabell Coal Co., Inc., was represented by both its president and its vice president, Virginia Smokeless Coal Co. by its sales representative in the Richmond area, and White Oak Coal Co. by its president. During the course of the meeting the committee representing the association requested the wholesalers to agree that they would not sell or ship coal to any retail coal dealer in Richmond who was not a member of the association. That the wholesale dealer respondents did enter into this agreement is evidenced by developments following the meeting.

PAR. 10. Subsequent to this meeting the association issued what was known as a list of "cooperators." This list was divided into two columns, one showing the names of all of the retail dealers in Richmond who were then members of the association, and the other showing the names of certain wholesale dealers. This latter column included, among other wholesale dealers, the names of respondents, Cabell Coal Co., Inc., A. T. Massey Coal Co., Virginia Smokeless Coal Co., and White Oak Coal Co. This list of cooperators was distributed among the retailers and wholesalers named therein, and the respondent wholesalers thereby had knowledge that their names were included in the list. None of them made any effort to repudiate the action of the association in listing them as cooperators, nor was any protest of any kind made by them with respect to their being named as cooperators.

PAR. 11. After the meeting in Washington and the issuance and distribution of the list of cooperators it became increasingly difficult for the retail dealers in Richmond who were not members of the association, to obtain coal. A number of instances are disclosed by the record in which respondents Cabell Coal Co., Inc., A. T. Massey Coal Co., Virginia Smokeless Coal Co., and White Oak Coal Co., declined to sell or ship coal to dealers because they were not members of the association. The situation among nonmember dealers thereby became so difficult that in May 1937 a meeting was held by them for the purpose of discussing their inability to obtain coal. A committee was appointed at this meeting for the purpose of investigating the matter, and upon the basis of the report of this committee practically all of these nonmember dealers, some twenty in number, concluded that in order for them to be able to continue in business and obtain coal it would be necessary that they join the association, and they did in fact for that reason become members immediately thereafter. After joining the association they had no further difficulty in obtaining coal. There were only some two or three dealers in Richmond who remained outside the association, and these dealers, because of their nonmembership in the association, continued to experience difficulty in obtaining coal.

PAR. 12. A further circumstance showing that the agreement referred to above was entered into at the meeting of August 25, 1936, and that respondents, Cabell Coal Co., Inc., and Virginia Smokeless Coal Co. in particular; were parties to the agreement, is a letter addressed to each of these companies by the association on March 3, 1937, which read as follows:

The time is approaching for further action, as a result of our meeting at the Ambassador Hotel, in Washington, D. C., on August 25, 1936, and we would request that you arrange to meet with us at the Hamilton Hotel, Washington, D. C., on Wednesday, March 10th, at 10 a. m., at which time we will make report to you, regarding our efforts and hope that we will have your confirmation on your intentions to carry out your part of our agreement.

Thanking you for your cooperation, and awaiting your prompt advices that you will meet with us on the above date, we beg to remain,

Both Cabell Coal Co., Inc. and Virginia Smokeless Coal Co. replied by letter, the former accepting the invitation and the latter declining it, stating that "It is taking every bit of energy and time we have to keep our mines running this month." In neither of these replies, however, was any exception taken to the references made in the association's letter to the meeting in Washington and the "agreement" between the parties.

So far as the record discloses, this meeting scheduled for March 10, 1937, was never held:

PAR. 13. The Commission finds that the respondents entered into and thereafter carried out an understanding, agreement, combination, and conspiracy for the purpose of unlawfully restricting, suppressing, and eliminating competition in the purchase by retail dealers in Richmond, Va., of coal in commerce among and between the several States of the United States, and in the retail sale of such coal in the trade area in and around said city. The Commission further finds that this agreement, understanding, combination, and conspiracy, and the things done thereunder and pursuant thereto and in furtherance thereof, have had and do have the effect of unlawfully restricting and restraining the movement in commerce among and between the several States of the United States of coal purchased by retail coal dealers in Richmond, Va., for resale in the trade area in and around said city; of unduly and unlawfully restricting the resale of coal purchased by such retailers in the trade area in and around Richmond, Va.; of substantially enhancing prices of such coal to the consuming public; of maintaining such prices at artificial levels and otherwise depriving the public of the benefits which would flow from normal competition among member respondents and between such member respondents and other retail coal dealers in Richmond, Va.; and of eliminating price competition among member respondents and between such member respondents and other competitors in the resale of coal in the trade area in and around Richmond, Va., with the tendency and capacity to create in such member respondents a monopoly in the purchase of coal in commerce among and between the several States of the United States, for resale in the trade area in and around Richmond, Va., and in the sale of coal at retail in such area.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid agreement, understanding, combination, and conspiracy, and the acts and things done thereunder and pursuant thereto and in furtherance thereof, as herein found, are all to the prejudice of the public and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

1. Carrying out any understanding, agreement, combination, or conspiracy with wholesale coal dealers, and from entering into any future understanding, agreement, combination, or conspiracy with wholesale coal dealers, for the purpose or with the effect of restricting, restraining, suppressing, or eliminating competition in, or monopolizing, the retail sale of coal in the trade area in and around Richmond, Va.

2. 7. Using any other collective or collusive means or methods to effectuate any understanding, agreement, combination, or conspiracy for the purpose of or with the effect of restraining, restricting, suppressing, and eliminating competition in, or monopolizing, the importation from States other than the State of Virginia of coal to be sold at retail in the trade area in and around Richmond, Va.

FANNIE P. FOX, TRADING AS SURE LABORATORIES.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3948. Complaint, Nov. 13, 1939—Decision, Jan. 26, 1942

Where an individual engaged in the manufacture and interstate sale of her "Sure" drug-containing preparation for use as a breath purifier; by advertisements in newspapers and periodicals and circulars, leaflets, pamphlets, and other advertising literature—

(a) Represented directly and indirectly that her said product was not a perfume but was a neutralizing agent which would neutralize all odors and remove every trace of offensive breath including odors from liquor, tobacco, onions, garlic, and other foods; and that by its use unpleasant breath odors, regardless of the cause, would be instantly destroyed and the user given a clean, sweet, unobjectionable breath;

The facts being that her said preparation would not affect or remove the cause of conditions responsible for unpleasant breath but action thereof was limited to temporarily covering up or masking the same; it had negligible antiseptic properties and would not inhibit the growth of bacteria in the mouth or be effective in destroying them; its essential quality was that of a perfume by reason of its content of aromatic volatile oils; and it was not a neutralizing agent or a breath purifier; and

(b) Represented that salesmen and distributors of her said preparation could establish a permanent and profitable business, setting forth, among other things, in her advertisements that "One man has averaged over $300 profit weekly for the last sixty days";

The facts being that the maximum net earnings made by her salesmen in the ordinary course of business was $7.50 a day or $45.00 a week, they paying $1.00 for a two-dozen container assortment on display cards and selling them to jobbers or wholesalers at $1.28 and to retailers at $1.60 each, and she based her estimate of the earnings of the particular salesman, upon whose performance aforesaid claim was based, upon the difference between the cost and resale price, with no consideration of expense incurred in making sales, and conceded that no other salesman or distributor had ever earned any comparable amount;

With the effect of misleading and deceiving a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the mistaken belief that such representations were true and of inducing it, by reason thereof, to purchase substantial quantities of the preparation in question:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Before Mr. Miles J. Furnas and Mr. Randolph Preston, trial examiners.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Fannie P. Fox, an individual, trading and doing business under the name of "Sure Laboratories," hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Fannie P. Fox, is an individual, trading and doing business under the name of "Sure Laboratories," with her office and principal place of business at 841 North Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

PAR. 2. Respondent is now, and for more than two years last past, has been, engaged in the business of manufacturing, selling, and distributing a certain preparation containing drugs known as "Sure" and recommended for use as a breath purifier. Respondent causes said preparation when sold, to be transported from her aforesaid place of business in the State of Illinois to purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States, and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in commerce in said preparation among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of her aforesaid business the respondent has disseminated, and is now disseminating, and has caused, and is now causing, the dissemination of false advertisements concerning said preparations by United States mails, by insertion in newspapers and periodicals having a general circulation, and also in circulars and other printed or written matter, all of which are distributed in commerce among and between the various States of the United States, and by continuities broadcast from radio stations which have sufficient power to, and do, convey the programs emanating therefrom to listeners located in various States of the United States other than the State in which said broadcasts originate, and by other means in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of her said product; and has disseminated, and is now disseminating, and has caused, and is now causing, the dissemination of false advertisements concerning her said product by various means for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of her said product in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act. Among and typical of the false statements and representations contained in said advertisements disseminated and caused to be disseminated as foresaid, are the following:

Just put a drop of "Sure" on your tongue, swirl it around in your mouth * * * and every trace of offensive breath is gone instantly! That's because "Sure" is a patented concentrated formula easy to use and pleasant to taste that scientifically neutralizes all odors.

"Sure" is different from any breath purifier you ever heard of * * * it is not a perfume * * * it works every time.

"Sure" is the new breath purifier that does away with breath odors from liquor, tobacco, garlic or other foods.

Removes offensive breath odors from onions, garlic, tobacco, cocktails, etc. Just one drop on your tongue and your breath will be sweet. Also removes odors from hands.

It is not only a breath purifier—it goes even further. It neutralizes food odors—not merely disguising them—leaving the mouth and breath sweet and clean and thus acting as a highly efficient oral hygiene.

You and we have always wanted something that sells to anyone and everyone at sight * * * we have found that very thing in the SURE formula * * *.

Anyone can make money with "Sure".

It is a sure seller and a big repeater * * *.

Start your big earnings the first day.

Big cash profits every day.

You can build a route of 50, 100, 200 stores almost overnight * * * enjoy a big income that is assured—week after week, all year round. It's the kind of business you can have * * *.

A permanent business with steady repeat sales is yours * * *.

One man has averaged over $300 profit weekly for the last 60 days.

PAR. 4. Through the use of the statements and representations hereinabove set forth and others similar thereto not specifically set out herein, all of which purport to be descriptive of said preparation, the effectiveness of its use, the ease with which it may be sold and the earnings or profits which may be attained by those who purchase it for resale, the respondent has represented and does now represent directly and indirectly, that her preparation "Sure" is not a perfume but is a neutralizing agent which will neutralize all odors and remove every trace of offensive breath; that it is a breath purifier that removes and does away with all breath odors, including odors from liquor, tobacco, onions, garlic, and other goods; that by its use unpleasant breath odors, regardless of cause, will be instantly removed and destroyed and the user given a clean, sweet, unobjectionable breath; that it will remove all odors from the hands; that those who purchase "Sure" for resale are assured of making big earnings or profits from the first day and every day, and of being able to establish a perma-ment and profitable business, and that profits or earnings of $300 per week or sums approximating said sum could be earned by ordinary salesmen or distributors of "Sure" under normal and usual business conditions.

PAR. 5. In truth and in fact, respondent's preparation "Sure" contains a mixture of aromatic volatile oils having a definite odor of its own and acts primarily as a perfume. This preparation does not act as a neutralizing agent and will not neutralize odors of the breath but instead its effect upon unpleasant breath is limited to masking breath odors to a greater or less degree. "Sure" is not a breath purifier and has no appreciable effect in destroying, counteracting or arresting the causes of unpleasant breath. It will not remove or destroy unpleasant breath odors or in all cases give the user of such preparation a clean, sweet, unobjectionable breath. This preparation when used on the hands will to some extent mask certain odors but has no other effect in removing such odors. Those who purchase "Sure" for resale are not assured of big earnings or profits from the very first day or every day; neither are they assured of establishing a permanent profitable business. Ordinary salesmen and distributors under normal and usual conditions of business cannot earn $300 per week or sums reasonably approximating said sum, or sums which could be characterized as representing large earnings.

PAR. 6. The use by the respondent of the foregoing false, deceptive, and misleading statements, representations, and advertisements disseminated as aforesaid with respect to said preparation has had and now has the capacity and tendency to and does mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such false statements, representations and advertisements are true and induces a portion of the purchasing public because of such erroneous and mistaken belief to purchase substantial quantities of said preparation.

PAR. 7. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on November 13 A. D. 1939, issued and subsequently served its complaint upon the respondent, Fannie P. Fox, an individual, trading as Sure Laboratories, charging her with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of said complaint were introduced by Randolph W. Branch, attorney for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by John A. Bussian and Robert A. Bussian, attorneys for the respondent, before trial examiners of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission upon said complaint, answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, report of the trial examiner upon the evidence and exceptions filed thereto, and briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto (oral argument not having been requested); and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Fannie P. Fox, is an individual, trading and doing business under the name of Sure Laboratories, with her office and principal place of business at 841 North Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

PAR. 2. Respondent is now, and for more than 3 years last past has been, engaged in the manufacture and in the sale and distribution of a certain preparation containing drugs, known as "Sure" and recommended for use as a breath purifier. Respondent causes said preparation, when sold, to be transported from her place of business in the State of Illinois to purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in commerce in said preparation among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of her aforesaid business, respondent has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning said preparation, by United States mails and by various other means in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act; and respondent has also disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning her said preparation, by various means, for the purpose of inducing and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of her said preparation in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Among and typical of the false, misleading, and deceptive statements and representations contained in said false advertisements disseminated and caused to be disseminated as hereinabove set forth, by United States mails, by advertisements in newspapers and periodicals, and by circulars, leaflets, pamphlets, and other advertising literature, are the following:

Just put a drop of "Sure" on your tongue, swirl it around in your mouth * * * and every trace of offensive breath is gone instantly! That's because "Sure" is a patented concentrated formula easy to use and pleasant to taste that scientifically neutralizes all odors.

"Sure" is different from any breath purifier you ever heard of * * * it is not a perfume * * * It works every time.

"Sure" is the new breath purifier that does away with breath odors from liquor, tobacco, garlic, or other foods.

Removes offensive breath odors from onions, garlic, tobacco, cocktails, etc. Just one drop on your tongue and your breath will be sweet. Also removes odors from hands.

It is not only a breath purifier—it goes even further. It neutralizes food odors—not merely disguising them—leaving the mouth and breath sweet and clean and thus acting as a highly efficient oral hygiene.

You and we have always wanted something that sells to anyone and everyone at sight * * * we have found that very thing in the SURE formula * * *.

Anyone can make money with "Sure."

It is a sure seller and a big repeater * * *.

Start your big earnings the first day.

Big cash profits every day.

You can build a route of 50, 100, 200 stores almost overnight * * * enjoy a big income that is assured—week after week, all year round. It's the kind of business you can have * * *.

A permanent business with steady repeat sales is yours * * *.

One man has averaged over $300 profit weekly for the last 60 days.

PAR. 4. Through the use of the statements and representations hereinabove set forth and others similar thereto not specifically set out herein, which purport to be descriptive of said preparation and the effectiveness of its use, the respondent has represented, and does now represent, directly and indirectly, that her preparation "Sure" is not a perfume but is a neutralizing agent which will neutralize all odors and remove every trace of offensive breath; that it is a breath purifier that removes and does away with all breath odors, including odors from liquor, tobacco, onions, garlic, and other foods; and that by its use unpleasant breath odors, regardless of the cause, will be instantly removed and destroyed and the user given a clean, sweet, unobjectionable breath.

PAR. 5. There are various causes of unpleasant breath, some of which have their origin in the mouth. Those which are particularly associated with the mouth are odors from foods which have been eaten, particles of which, or the oils from which, lodge in the teeth and gums, and also odors caused from infection of the teeth or gums. In addition, there are many causes of unpleasant breath which are not directly connected with conditions of the mouth but which are due to nasal, sinus, or throat infections, stomach disorders, or odors given off through the lungs. The use of respondent's preparation will not affect or remove the cause of any of the above-described conditions of unpleasant breath, but, instead, its action is limited to temporarily covering up or masking such odors. Under conditions of use, this preparation has negligible antiseptic properties and will not inhibit the growth of bacteria or be effective in destroying bacteria in the mouth. The essential quality of respondent's preparation is that of a perfume, by reason of the existence of various aromatic volatile oils in the preparation, and its effectiveness upon unpleasant breath or breath odors is limited to covering up or masking such odors. This preparation is not a neutralizing agent or breath purifier and will not destroy or arrest the causes of unpleasant breath.

PAR. 6. Through the use of the statements and representations hereinabove set forth with reference to the possible earnings of salesmen and distributors, the respondent represents that such salesmen can establish a permanent and profitable business, with average net earnings of as high as $300 per week.

Respondent's preparation is sold by agents and distributors to wholesalers, jobbers, and retailers, on display cards or in other assortments containing two dozen containers of respondent's product, which cards or assortments are sold to jobbers or wholesalers at the price of $1.28 per assortment, and to retailers at the price of $1.60 per assortment. The salesman or distributor pays $1 for such assortment, which gives him a profit of 60 cents on each assortment when sold to retailers, and 28 cents profit when sold to jobbers or wholesalers.

PAR. 7. The respondent testified that one distributor who sold her preparation for a period of five months, averaged $300 per week for the last two months of this period; that most of these orders were taken from wholesalers and jobbers; that respondent knew nothing of his method of doing business or whether or not he operated through salesmen employed by him; that such estimate of earnings was based upon the difference between the cost and resale price and did not take into consideration the expense of the representative in connection with the sales made; that no other salesman or distributor had ever earned any comparable amount; and that the sum of $7.50 per day would be considered the best that might be expected by the average salesman.

PAR. 8. Based upon the testimony of the respondent, the Commission finds that the maximum net earnings made by respondent's salesmen in the ordinary course of business is approximately $7.50 per day, or $45 per week, and that the use of earnings of an isolated salesman, without information as to his methods of doing business or his expenses in connection with making of sales, is misleading, and has a tendency and capacity to cause prospective salesmen and distributors to believe that such amounts could be earned, net, by the average salesman in the ordinary and usual course of business.

PAR. 9. The use by the respondent of the foregoing false, deceptive, and misleading statements and representations in advertisements disseminated as aforesaid, has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead, and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such statements and representations are true, and induces a portion of the purchasing public, because of such erroneous and mistaken belief, to purchase substantial quantities of said preparation.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

It is ordered, That the respondent Fannie P. Fox, an individual, trading and doing business under the name of Sure Laboratories, or trading under any other name, her representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, or distribution of her preparation known as "Sure," or any other preparation of substantially similar composition or possessing substantially similar properties, whether sold under the same name or under any other name, do forthwith cease and desist from, directly or indirectly,

1. Disseminating, or causing to be disseminated, any advertisement by means of United States mails, or by any means in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, which advertisement represents, directly or through inference:

(a) That respondent's preparation is a neutralizing agent or a breath purifier.

(b) That respondent's preparation will destroy or arrest the causes of unpleasant breath, or have any effect upon such causes.

(c) That respondent's preparation has any effect upon unpleasant breath odors other than that of a perfume in temporarily masking such breath odors.

(d) That the possible earnings or profits of agents, salesmen, representatives, or distributors for any given period of time is any specified sum of money which is not a true representation of the average net earnings or profits consistently made by a substantial number of respondent's full-time active agents, salesmen, representatives, or distributors in the ordinary course of business under normal conditions and circumstances.

(e) That the earnings or profits of any agent, salesman, representative, or distributor for any given period of time is any specified sum of money which has not, in fact, been consistently earned, net, by such agent, salesman, representative, or distributor in the ordinary course of business and under normal conditions and circumstances.

(f) That any specified sum of money greatly in excess of the average earnings of other agents, salesmen, representatives, or distributors of respondent has been earned by any specified representative, unless such representation is immediately accompanied by a statement to the effect that such earnings are exceptional and unusual.

2. Disseminating, or causing to be disseminated, any advertisement, by any means, for the purpose of inducing, or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, of respondent's preparation, which advertisement contains any of the representations prohibited in paragraph 1 hereof and respective subdivisions thereof.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall within 60 days after service upon her of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which she has complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF VICTOR HAT COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 4629. Complaint, Nov. 12, 1941—Decision, Jan. 26, 1942

Where an individual engaged in the manufacture of women's hats from materials obtained from old and worn felt hats purchased by him, and which, after being cleaned, shaped and fitted with new trimmings had the appearance of new; and in the interstate sale and distribution of said products—

Sold his said hats with no label, marking or designation stamped thereon or attached thereto to indicate that they were in reality made from old and used hat bodies, to wholesale and retail dealers by whom they were resold to the purchasing public without disclosure of aforesaid fact;

With result that a substantial portion of such public was misled into believing that the products in question were manufactured entirely from new materials, and into purchase of substantial quantities thereof; and there was thereby placed in the hands of dealers means whereby they might similarly deceive the purchasing public:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Mr. L. E. Creel, Jr., for the Commission.

Mr. Irving Block, of Chicago, Ill., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Frank Gorr, individually and trading as Victor Hat Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Frank Gorr, is an individual, trading as Victor Hat Co., and has his principal office and place of business at 153 North Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

PAR. 2. Respondent is now, and for several years last past, has been, engaged in the business of manufacturing women's hats from felt and other materials obtained from old, used, and second-hand hats, and of selling the same to retailers, jobbers, or wholesale dealers in the various States of the United States. Respondent causes said hats, when sold, to be transported from his place of business in the State of Illinois to the aforesaid purchasers located in the various States of the United States other than the State of Illinois. Respondent maintains and at all times mentioned herein has maintained a course of trade in said hats in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of his business, respondent buys second-hand, old, worn, and previously used felt hats. The old, worn, and previously used felt hat bodies are cleaned and shaped and fitted with new trimmings and sold by respondent to dealers, who, in turn, sell said hats to the purchasing public.

PAR. 4. The aforesaid old, worn, and previously used hat bodies, after being manufactured into hats, as hereinabove described, have the appearance of new hats manufactured from felt and other materials which have never been worn or used. When articles which are manufactured from second-hand or used materials which have the appearance of being manufactured from new materials, are offered to the purchasing public, and such articles are not clearly and conspicuously labeled as being manufactured from used or second-hand materials, they are easily and readily accepted by members of the purchasing public as being manufactured entirely from new materials.

Said hats are sold to retailers and other dealers without any label, marking or designation stamped thereon or attached thereto, to indicate to the purchasing public or to the dealers that said hats are, in fact, manufactured from old, worn, and previously used hat bodies. Said hats are resold to the purchasing public without the fact being disclosed that they are manufactured from hat bodies and other materials which have been previously worn or used, and a substantial portion of the purchasing public is thereby misled to believe that they are, in fact, new hats manufactured entirely from new materials. As a result of this erroneous and mistaken understanding and belief, substantial portions of respondent's hats are purchased by members of the public.

PAR 5. Through the use of the aforesaid acts and practices, the respondent places in the hands of dealers the means and instrumentalities whereby said dealers may deceive or mislead members of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that they are purchasing hats manufactured from new materials, when, in fact, said hats are composed entirely or in part of old, second-hand, and previously used hat bodies.

Findings

34 F. T. C.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on November 12, 1941, issued, and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, Frank Gorr, individually, and trading as Victor Hat Co., charging him with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer, the Commission, by order entered herein, granted respondent's motion for permission to withdraw said answer and to substitute therefor an answer admitting all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearings as to said facts, which substitute answer was duly filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and substitute answer, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Frank Gorr, is an individual, trading as Victor Hat Co., and has his principal office and place of business as 153 North Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

PAR. 2. Respondent is now, and for several years last past, has been, engaged in the business of manufacturing women's hats from felt and other materials obtained from old, used, and second-hand hats, and of selling the same to retailers, jobbers, or wholesale dealers in the various States of the United States. Respondent causes said hats, when sold, to be transported from his place of business in the State of Illinois to the aforesaid purchasers located in the various States of the United States other than the State of Illinois. Respondent maintains and at all times mentioned herein has maintained a course of trade in said hats in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of his business, respondent buys second-hand, old, worn, and previously used felt hats. The old, worn, and previously used felt hat bodies are cleaned and shaped and fitted with new trimmings and sold by respondent to dealers, who, in turn, sell said hats to the purchasing public.

PAR. 4. The aforesaid old, worn, and previously used hat bodies, after being manufactured into hats, as hereinabove described, have the appearance of new hats manufactured from felt and other materials which have never been worn or used. When articles which are manufactured from second-hand or used materials and which have the appearance of being manufactured from new materials, are offered to the purchasing public, and such articles are not clearly and conspicuously labeled as being manufactured from used or second-hand materials, they are easily and readily accepted by members of the purchasing public as being manufactured entirely from new materials.

Said hats are sold to retailers and other dealers without any label, marking, or designation stamped thereon or attached thereto, to indicate to the purchasing public or to the dealers that said hats are, in fact, manufactured from old, worn, and previously used hat bodies. Said hats are resold to the purchasing public without the fact being disclosed that they are manufactured from hat bodies and other materials which have been previously worn or used, and a substantial portion of the purchasing public is thereby misled to believe that they are, in fact, new hats manufactured entirely from new materials. As a result of this erroneous and mistaken understanding and belief, substantial portions of respondent's hats are purchased by members of the public.

PAR. 5. Through the use of the aforesaid acts and practices, the respondent places in the hands of dealers the means and instrumentalities whereby said dealers may deceive or mislead members of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that they are purchasing hats manufactured from new materials, when, in fact, said hats are composed entirely or in part of old, second-hand, and previously used hat bodies.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and states that he waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Frank Gorr, individually, and trading as Victor Hat Co., or trading under any other name or names, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of hats in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Representing that hats composed in whole or in part of used or second-hand materials are new or are composed of new materials by failure to stamp in some conspicuous place on the exposed surface of the inside of the hat in conspicuous and legible terms which cannot be removed or obliterated without mutilating the hat itself, a statement that said products are composed of second-hand or used materials, provided that if substantial bands, placed similarly to sweat bands in men's hats, are attached to said hats, then and in that event such statement may be stamped upon such bands, provided further, that said stampings are of such nature that they cannot be removed or obliterated without mutilating the band and the band itself cannot be removed without rendering the hat unserviceable.

2. Representing in any manner that hats made in whole or in part from old, used, or second-hand materials are new or are composed of new materials.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.

IN THE MATTER OF

OLD COLONY KNITTING MILLS, INC., ET AL.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 4236. Complaint, Aug. 14, 1940—Decision, Jan. 27, 1942

Where a corporation engaged in the manufacture and interstate sale and distribution of knitted goods—

(a) Marked and labeled certain men's and women's sweaters as "Made of Imported Scotch-Shetland," etc., and as "* * * real Shetland Wool," relying in case of former upon representations made to it by seller of yarn it used therein, and discontinuing latter label after discussion with representatives of such concern; and

Where a corporate manufacturer of yarns—

(b) Labeled aforesaid yarns sold by it to knitted goods manufacturer above described as "Shetland B" and "Shetland F," and invoiced them to purchasers as "Shetland Blend B," "Shetland B," and "Shetland F";

Notwithstanding the fact such yarns and sweaters made therefrom were composed, in accordance with said letters "B" and "F," of about 75 percent English Hogget wool and 25 percent China Lamb wool, or of about 50 percent English Hogget wool, 40 percent Australian wool and 10 percent Kid Mohair, respectively, and did not contain, as long understood from word "Shetland," wool made of, or product made from wool of, that breed known as Shetland sheep grown on Shetland Islands or contiguous mainland of Scotland, which had become well known to purchasing public by reason of certain definite characteristics and for which there had developed a consumer preference over products known to be made from the simulated Shetland, which even experts found it very difficult, if not impossible, to distinguish from the genuine, more costly, and quite limited Shetland;

With effect of misleading and deceiving purchasers and prospective purchasers into the mistaken belief that the products thus labeled were made of genuine Shetland wool, of which in fact they contained none:

Held, That such acts and practices were all to the prejudice of the public, and constituted unfair acts and practices in commerce.

As respects present significance of word "Shetland" applied to wool or wool products, which has long meant the wool of, or made from the wool of, a breed of sheep known as Shetland sheep grown on the Shetland Islands or the contiguous mainland of Scotland, with certain well known characteristics and which has come to enjoy a consumer preference for certain uses: notwithstanding efforts to induce the wool trade and purchasing public to accept the view that the term signifies only a type of wool or wool product having the distinctive characteristics of the real and more expensive Shetland wool, regardless of its source, such significance still represents the understanding and belief of a substantial portion of the trade in question and purchasing public.

Mr. Donovan Divet for the Commission.

Kaplan & Linsky and Mr. Samuel P. Kaplan, of Boston, Mass., for Old Colony Knitting Mills, Inc.

Root, Clark, Buckner & Ballantine, of Washington, D. C., for Maine Spinning Co.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Old Colony Knitting Mills, Inc., a corporation, and Maine Spinning Co., a corporation, hereinafter referred to as the respondents, have violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Old Colony Knitting Mills, Inc., is a corporation, organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Massachusetts, having its office and principal place of business at 222 North Street, Hingham, Mass. Respondent, Maine Spinning Co., is a corporation, organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Maine, having its office and principal place of business at Skowhegan, Maine.

PAR. 2. Respondent, Maine Spinning Co., is now, and for several years last past, has been, engaged in the business of manufacturing, selling and distributing yarns. Respondent, Old Colony Knitting Mills, Inc., is now, and for several years last past has been, engaged in the business of manufacturing, selling, and distributing sweaters. The respondents sell their respective products to members of the purchasing public situated in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and cause said products, when sold, to be transported from their respective places of business, or from the place of origin of the shipments thereof, to purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in various States of the United States other than the States of Maine and Massachusetts and other than the States of the origin of said shipments. Respondents maintain, and at all times mentioned herein, have maintained, a course of trade in their respective products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of their respective businesses, for the purpose of promoting the sale of their respective products, the respondents have each engaged in the practice of falsely representing the constituent fiber or material as well as the source of the fiber or material of which their said products are made. Said false representations are made by respondent, Old Colony Knitting Mills, Inc., by means of labels attached to its said products. Said false representations are made by respondent, Maine Spinning Co., by means of letters, invoices, and other printed and written material circulated among purchasers.

PAR. 4. The word "Shetland" when applied to wool or garments, for many years has had, and still has in the minds of the purchasing and consuming public generally, a definite and specific meaning, to wit, wool which comes from a breed of sheep known as Shetland sheep, raised on the Shetland Islands, and on the contiguous mainland of Scotland. For many years there has been a preference on the part of a substantial number of the purchasing public for Shetland wool and yarn and fabrics made thereof.

PAR. 5. Among the products sold and distributed by respondent, Maine Spinning Co., as aforesaid, are certain yarns which it has described as "Shetland Blend B," "Shetland B," "Shetland F," and as "Shetland type yarns," and which it has represented as being made of stock imported from the British Isles. By the use of said statements and representations said respondent has represented and does now represent that said yarns are made of material imported from the British Isles, and are made in whole or in part of genuine Shetland wool.

Among those to whom said statements and representations are made and have been made by said respondent, Maine Spinning Co., as aforesaid, is respondent, Old Colony Knitting Mills, Inc. Said statements and representations are and have been made to said respondent in connection with the sale to it by respondent, Maine Spinning Co., of certain yarn which said Old Colony Knitting Mills, Inc., has used and does now use in the manufacture of the sweaters manufactured, sold, and distributed by it and labeled as hereinafter alleged.

Among the products manufactured, sold and distributed by respondent, Old Colony Knitting Mills, Inc., are certain sweaters manufactured by it from yarn purchased from respondent, Maine Spinning Co., which respondent Old Colony Knitting Mills, Inc., has variously labeled "Made of Imported Scotch-Shetland by Old Colony" and "Real Shetland Wool," as indicated by respondent, Maine Spinning Co., in selling said yarn to respondent, Old Colony Knitting Mills, Inc., thereby representing in the one case that said sweaters are manufactured from imported yarns made of a blend of Scotch wool and Shetland wool, and in the other case that they are manufactured from yarn made of genuine Shetland wool.

PAR. 6. The aforesaid representations are false and misleading. In truth and in fact the yarns sold and distributed by respondent, Maine Spinning Co., as aforesaid, are not made of material imported from the British Isles, and are not made from genuine Shetland wool either in whole or in part. Said sweaters sold and distributed by respondent, Old Colony Knitting Mills, Inc., are not manufactured from Scotch and Shetland wool, nor do they contain either of said wools.

PAR. 7. The use by the respondents of the aforesaid methods of labeling and representing their respective products has had, and has, the tendency and capacity to, and does, mislead purchasers and prospective purchasers thereof into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such representations are true, and to induce them to purchase respondents' said products.

PAR. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on August 14, 1940, issued and subsequently served its complaint upon respondents, Old Colony Knitting Mills, Inc., a corporation, and Maine Spinning Co., a corporation, charging them with violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondents' answers, testimony and other evidence in support of and in opposition to the allegations of said complaint were introduced before an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint, the answers thereto, testimony and other evidence, report of the trial examiner and exceptions thereto, briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto, and oral argument by counsel; and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Old Colony Knitting Mills, Inc., is a corporation, organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Massachusetts, having its principal place of business at 222 North Street, Hingham, Mass. It is engaged in the manufacture, sale, and distribution of knitted goods, including men's and women's knitted sweaters.

577

Respondent, Maine Spinning Co., is a corporation, having its office and principal place of business at Skowhegan, Maine. It is engaged in the manufacture, sale, and distribution of yarn.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of their aforesaid businesses respondents sell their respective products to purchasers situated in various States of the United States and cause said products, when sold, to be transported from their respective places of business, or from the place of origin of the shipments thereof, to purchasers in various States of the United States other than the States of Maine and Massachusetts and other than the States of origin of said shipments.

Respondents maintain, and at all times mentioned herein have maintained, a course of trade in their respective products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. Among the products sold and distributed by respondent, Maine Spinning Co., as aforesaid, are certain yarns which it has labeled as "Shetland B" and "Shetland F" and which it has invoiced to purchasers as "Shetland Blend B," "Shetland B," and "Shetland F." The letters "B" and "F" are used as private marks by respondent, Maine Spinning Co., to indicate the composition of the particular yarn. "Shetland Blend B" and "Shetland B" are identical in composition and consist of about 75 percent English Hogget wool and 25 percent China lamb wool. "Shetland F" consists of about 50 percent English Hogget wool, 40 percent Australian wool, and 10 percent kid mohair. These yarns did not, and do not, contain any wool from Shetland sheep grown on the Shetland Islands or the contiguous mainland of Scotland.

Respondent, Old Colony Knitting Mills, Inc., purchased from respondent, Maine Spinning Co., yarns marked and invoiced as aforesaid, and used such yarns in the manufacture of sweaters which it sold and distributed. The sweaters so manufactured were marked and labeled by respondent, Old Colony Knitting Mills, Inc., as:

Made of Imported
SCOTCH-SHETLAND
by Old Colony

and as

"Colony Club Sweater
Real Shetland Wool
Made Expressly for
SAKS at 34th Street

Respondent, Old Colony Knitting Mills, Inc., relied upon representations made by respondent, Maine Spinning Co., as to the nature of the yarn in question in labeling certain of its products made from such yarn as "Made of Imported Scotch Shetland," but after discussion with representatives of the Maine Spinning Co. discontinued the use of its labeling of "Real Shetland Wool."

PAR. 4. The word "Shetland," when applied to wool or wool products, has for a great many years meant the wool of, or made from the wool of, a breed of sheep known as Shetland sheep, grown on the Shetland Islands or the contiguous mainland of Scotland. This wool and products made therefrom, because of certain definite characteristics of the wool, became well known to the purchasing public, and for certain uses a consumer preference therefor developed. The amount of Shetland wool available annually has been, and is, quite limited. It can, however, be so closely simulated by mixtures of wools grown in other portions of the world that even experts in the wool trade find it very difficult, if not impossible, to distinguish such mixtures simulating Shetland wool from genuine Shetland wool.

Wool products made from Shetland wool, as well as products made from simulated Shetland wool, have been, and are being, sold and distributed in the United States. Wool products made from Shetland wool command a higher price than similar products which are known to be made from simulated Shetland wool, and there is a preference on the part of members of the purchasing public for products made of genuine Shetland wool. It is usual in the trade, when there is doubt as to the kind of yarn contained in a sweater or other knitted product, to call upon the knitter for invoices of the yarn used in making the sweater or other knitted product.

There have been efforts to induce the wool trade and the purchasing public to accept the view that the term "Shetland" signifies only a type of wool or wool product having the distinctive characteristics of real Shetland wool regardless of the source or origin of the wool. For example, a large manufacturer of yarn advertised in a trade journal under date of September 23, 1938, in the form of "An open letter to the industry about Shetlands" in part as follows:

There are some facts about Shetlands which you should know if you are using this yarn or contemplate using it. Unlike Cashmeres and Angoras, Shetland is not clipped nor plucked from an animal bearing the name of Shetland. Instead Shetland is a blend of fibres deriving its name from sweaters knitted by women over a quarter of a century ago on the Shetland Isles. It is the characteristics of Shetland rather than an animal that gives Shetland yarn its name.

* * * * *

P. S. Years of patient experimentation are back of our successful Shetland. We made our first sample on October 30th, 1936.

The president of the company, which published the above advertisement, testified that some of his customers believed that Shetland yarn was made of wool from Shetland sheep and he wanted to be sure that none of his customers would think that the yarn which he was selling was made from the wool of Shetland sheep.

In October 1939, the Associated Wool Industries, having its office in New York City, published a glossary of wool and wool fabric terms intended as a guide for retail clerks and others. The statement as to the term "Shetland" contained in this publication is:

Originally fabric woven from the wool of the sheep in the Shetland Islands distinguished for its hairy nature, and fine but strong fiber. The term is now applied to fabrics made of wool of like characteristics. Shetlands are soft and a bit "mushy." The herringbone weave is common in shetland fabrics but the term "shetland" described the type of wool and not the weave.

PAR. 5. Some members of the wool trade assert that the word "Shetland," as applied to wool or products made therefrom, no longer signifies any specific geographic origin or definite source of the wool, but merely means that the wool is of a type having the appearance and characteristics of real Shetland wool. Similarly, to some members of the purchasing public the term "Shetland" signifies merely wool or wool products having the appearance and characteristics which they associate with the term "Shetland," and does not indicate any special geographic or other source or origin of the wool. On the contrary, some members of the wool trade and of the purchasing public understand and believe the term "Shetland" when applied to wool or wool products means the wool of, or made from the wool of, sheep grown on the Shetland Islands or the contiguous mainland of Scotland. From a consideration of the entire record the Commission concludes that the original meaning of the term "Shetland" as applied to wool and wool products has continued, and that it is the present understanding and belief of a substantial part of the wool trade and of the purchasing public that the term "Shetland" as applied to wool or wool products means the wool of, or made from the wool of, Shetland sheep grown on the Shetland Islands or the adjacent mainland of Scotland.

PAR. 6. The use by the respondents of the aforesaid marks, labels, and other representations concerning their respective products has had, and has, the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive purchasers and prospective purchasers into the erroneous and mistaken belief that the products so marked, labeled, or represented are made of wool of Shetland sheep grown on the Shetland Islands or the contiguous mainland of Scotland, when in truth and in fact said products contain no wool taken from Shetland sheep.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents are all to the prejudice of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

It is ordered, That respondent, Old Colony Knitting Mills, Inc., a corporation, and respondent, Maine Spinning Co., a corporation, their respective officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, of any yarn, garment, or fabric made of wool or simulating wool, do forthwith cease and desist from using the word "Shetland," either alone or in conjunction with any other word or words, to designate or describe any such yarn, garment, or fabric which is not the wool of, or made from the wool of, Shetland sheep grown on the Shetland Islands or the contiguous mainland of Scotland.

It is further ordered, That respondents shall, within 60 days after the service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

It is further ordered, That the motion of respondent, Maine Spinning Co., to dismiss the complaint herein, or in the alternative to dismiss the complaint as to it, which motion was denied without prejudice to respondent's right to renew the same at the time of final argument and which motion was duly renewed, be, and the same hereby is, denied.

Docket 4218. Complaint, Sept. 24, 1941¹—Decision, Feb. 3, 1942

Where a corporation, engaged in the manufacture and interstate sale and distribution of fog lamps, auxillary driving lights and other accessories for use on automobiles and trucks; by means of circulars and advertisements in trade publications and statements on the containers—

Represented or implied that its "Bright Ray Crest Driving Lamp" provided new and unusual lighting safety when used on a motor vehicle, and developed 40,000 candlepower; would penetrate fog, snow, rain, or dust, regardless of their density, and would provide safe driving visibility of 1,500 feet under all conditions;

The facts being that many similar lamps provided the same safety under the same conditions and use; its said lamp developed substantially less than aforesaid candlepower, and would not penetrate fog, snow, rain, or dust to the extent claimed, or so as to assure visibility and safety under all conditions;

With the effect of misleading and deceiving a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the mistaken belief that such representations were true, and thereby causing it to purchase its said product:

1458 South Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill. Respondent causes said products, when sold, to be transported from its place of business in the State of Illinois to the purchasers thereof located in the various other States of the United States, and in the District of Columbia. REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on August 5, 1940, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent Do-Ray Lamp Co., Inc., a corporation, charging it with unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the filing of respondent's answer to said complaint the Commission on September 24, 1941, issued and subsequently served upon respondent an amended and supplemental complaint in this proceeding charging violation of the aforesaid statute. Respondent filed an answer admitting all the material allegations of facts set forth in said amended and supplemental complaint and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the amended and supplemental complaint and the answer thereto; and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Do-Ray Lamp Co., Inc., is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Illinois, with its office and principal place of business located at 1458 South Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill. Respondent is now, and for more than 2 years last past has been, engaged in the manufacture and sale of fog lamps, auxiliary driving lights, reflectors, flares, and various other accessories for use on automobiles and trucks. One of the lamps manufactured by the respondent is known as the "Bright Ray Crest Driving Lamp." Respondent causes said products, when sold, to be transported from its place of business in the State of Illinois to the purchasers thereof located in the various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said products in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its aforesaid business and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of its product "Bright Ray Crest Driving Lamp," respondent has made many statements and representations with respect to its product through the means of circulars and by advertisements placed in trade publications, all of which are circulated among prospective purchasers throughout the United States, and on the containers in which said lamps are packaged for sale. Among and typical of such statements and representations so used and disseminated as aforesaid are the following:

CREST DRIVING LAMP

Develops 40 Thousand Candlepower.

Visibility 1,500 feet.

Penetrates Fog—No Glare.

Through the use of the foregoing statements and representations, and others, of similar import and meaning, not specifically set out herein, all of which purport to be descriptive of respondent's said lamp and its effectiveness in use, respondent represents or implies that its said driving lamp provides new and unusual lighting safety when used on a motor vehicle; that said driving lamp develops 40,000 candlepower when used on a motor vehicle; that said lamp will penetrate fog, snow, rain, or dust regardless of their density; that when used on a motor vehicle it will penetrate fog, snow, rain, or dust, regardless of their density, to the extent that safe driving visibility of 1,500 feet is provided; that it will penetrate fog, snow, rain, or dust to the extent that safe driving is assured under all conditions.

PAR. 3. The foregoing statements and representations are false, misleading, and deceptive. In truth and in fact, said driving lamp does not provide new and unusual lighting safety when used on a motor vehicle. Many similar driving lamps provide the same safety under the same conditions and use. Respondent's said driving lamp will not penetrate fog, snow, rain, or dust regardless of their density. When used on a motor vehicle it will not penetrate fog, snow, rain, or dust, regardless of their density, to the extent that safe driving visibility of 1,500 feet is provided. It will not penetrate fog, snow, rain, or dust to the extent that visibility and safety are assured under all conditions.

PAR. 4. The use by the respondent of the foregoing false, misleading, and deceptive statements, representations, and implications respecting its said product as to candlepower, visibility, and penetration of fog, snow, rain, and dust has had, and now has, the capacity and tendency to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the mistaken and erroneous belief that such representations and implications are true, and has caused, and causes, a substantial portion of the purchasing public, because of such mistaken and erroneous belief, to purchase said product.

CONCLUSION

The acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and answer of respondent and upon the amended and supplemental complaint of the Commission and the answer of the respondent thereto, in which answer respondent admits all of the material allegations of fact set forth in said amended and supplemental complaint and waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That the respondent, Do-Ray Lamp Co., Inc., a corporation, its officers, representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, of its "Bright Ray Crest Driving Lamp" for use on motor vehicles, or any substantially similar lamp, under the same or any other name, do forthwith cease and desist from representing, directly or by implication:

1. That said lamp, when used on a motor vehicle, provides new and unusual lighting safety.

2. That said lamp, when used on a motor vehicle, will develop 40,000 candlepower, or any other number of candlepower in excess of the number actually developed.

3. That said lamp, when used on a motor vehicle, will penetrate fog, rain, snow, or dust regardless of their density.

4. That said lamp, when used on a motor vehicle, will penetrate fog, snow, rain, or dust, regardless of their density, to the extent that safe driving visibility is provided for 1,500 feet, or for any other distance in excess of the actual distance for which safe driving visibility is provided.

IN THE MATTER OF

PARKE, AUSTIN & LIPSCOMB, INC., SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTE SERIES, INC., AND OFFICERS THEREOF

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 4465. Complaint, Feb. 14, 1941—Decision, Feb. 3, 1942

Where a corporate publisher of books of an encyclopedic and historical nature, its wholly owned subsidiary, and three individuals who served both as general officers; following the entering into of a contract by said subsidiary with the Smithsonian Institution of Washington, D. C., whereby it agreed to engage in the publication, sale, and distribution exclusively of a 13-volume set of books compiled from data collected by said Institution in various scientific investigations, to be designated as "Smithsonian Scientific Series," manuscripts for which were to be furnished by said Institution upon certain terms, including payment to it of a royalty of 10 percent of gross sales, the copyrights, plates, manuscripts, etc., to remain said subsidiary's exclusive property—

- (a) Represented, directly and through salesmen and agents, to whom they issued a so-called "authorized presentation" setting out in detail the sales talk to be used for the purpose, that such salesmen were representatives of the Smithsonian Institution, that the books in question were published and sold by the Institution, the entire profit derived from the sale thereof accruing to it, and that sales were restricted to a small number of selected individuals in each community; and
- (b) Caused said Smithsonian Institution to issue to all purchasers of said "scientific series" a certificate under its seal and duly signed by its secretary certifying that the particular purchaser had been registered in its archives as a patron of series in question, in recognition of support of the Institution's program for the diffusion of knowledge among men; facsimiles of which certificates their salesmen exhibited to prospective purchasers;

Notwithstanding the fact sale and distribution of books in question was an ordinary commercial enterprise for profit; the small royalty aforesaid was the only benefit derived from sale thereof by said Institution, which did not publish said books, own or control the copyright, plates and other material thereof, or have any control over agents or salesmen, who were employees of aforesaid corporations and individuals; and purchasers had not been specially selected to act as patrons of said Institution, but the books were sold indiscriminately to the general public; and

- (c) Falsely and misleadingly represented, through use in corporate name of said subsidiary of words "Smithsonian Institution," that such corporation was part of or connected with the Smithsonian; thereby also accentuating other false and misleading representations made in the sale of their said books; With effect of misleading and deceiving a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the mistaken belief that they were purchasing said "Smithsonian Scientific Series" directly from the Smithsonian Institution of Washington, D. C., long identified in the public mind as a nonprofit organization devoted to scientific research and promotion of learning, which was to receive the entire profits therefrom, and that they had been specially selected to act as its patrons, as a result whereof they purchased substantial quantities of said publications, thereby diverting trade unfairly to said publishers from their competitors; and

Where said parent corporation and officers, engaged also in the publication and competitive interstate sale and distribution of a set of books designated "World Epochs," under contract with the United States Flag Association, whereby said set and other pamphlets and documents were to be sold in the name of and under the imprint of said association, which was to receive certain royalties, and later under agreement whereby said corporation was to act as the exclusive agent of said association for 10 percent of gross receipts, plus costs—

(d) Represented, directly and indirectly, that said association was the publisher of such books, and received the entire profits derived from the sale thereof for use in combatting anti-Americanism and subversive organizations and influences in the United States, and that proposal to purchase was not an ordinary commercial transaction, but a patriotic appeal to assist in such efforts; letters of identification upon the stationery of said association and signed by its President General, which were issued to their salesmen in furtherance of such plan, reciting that they were accredited regional directors of the association, calling on a matter of very serious national importance; and aforesaid corporation and individuals also causing said association to issue to all purchasers of "World Epochs" a certificate of life membership in the association; and

(e) Used, in endorsement of said publication, letters from United States Senators and other prominent men, which were in fact endorsements of the aims and purposes of the aforesaid association and written without knowledge that they were to be used as endorsements of any series of books; and continued such use even after objection had been made by the writers;

The facts being that sales of the books in question were made as an ordinary commercial enterprise for profit, only benefit derived from which by said association was the royalty involved, plus, later, reimbursement for costs and minor additions; series in question was not published by such association, which did not own or control the copyrights or plates, or have any control over the salesmen, who were employees of corporation and individuals concerned, with whom rested control of such matters as accounts and collections, and title to the publication, including copyrights, etc.; purchasers were not specially selected, but the books were sold to the general public, and life memberships were indiscriminately issued to all purchasing in amounts of $25 or more; in some instances, such memberships being issued by the association to persons designated by sellers for the purpose of establishing initial contact;

With effect of causing purchasers of said "World Epochs" and other publications to believe that they were dealing directly with the United States Flag Association, organized under the laws of the District of Columbia in 1924 "in the interest of lofty Americanism, sturdy patriotism and good citizenship which shall make stronger and more secure the foundations of this Republic," and other patriotic objectives; that said books were published and sold by said association as above set forth and that prospective purchasers had been specially selected to be made life members of the association because of previous achievements or standing in the community, as a result whereof they purchased substantial quantities of publications in question, whereby trade was unfairly diverted to said publishers from their competitors:

Held, That such acts and practices, as above set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce, and unfair and deceptive acts and practices therein.

Before Mr. W. W. Sheppard, trial examiner.

Mr. Jesse D. Kash for the Commission.

Marlow & Hines, of New York City, for respondents.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Parke, Austin & Lipscomb, Inc., a corporation, Smithsonian Institution Series, Inc., a corporation, and Alfred Monett, Robert A. Hogan, Jr., and Joseph M. McAndrews, individually and as officers of said corporations, hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondents, Parke, Austin & Lipscomb, Inc., and Smithsonian Institution Series, Inc., are corporations organized, existing, and doing business, under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with their offices and principal places of business located at 500 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Respondent, Smithsonian Institution Series, Inc., was organized by, and is a wholly owned subsidiary of, respondent Parke, Austin & Lipscomb, Inc., and its policies, practices, and methods are formulated, controlled, directed, and dominated by Parke, Austin & Lipscomb, Inc.

Respondent, Alfred Monett, is an individual, and is president of both of the corporate respondents, with his office and principal place of business at 500 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y.

Respondent, Robert A. Hogan, Jr., is an individual and is treasurer of respondent, Parke, Austin & Lipscomb, Inc., and secretary of respondent, Smithsonian Institution Series, Inc., with his office and principal place of business at 500 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y.

Respondent, Joseph M. McAndrews, is an individual and is secretary of respondent, Parke, Austin & Lipscomb, Inc., with his office and principal place of business at 500 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y.

Complaint

34 F. T. C.

The individual respondents formulate, control, direct, and dominate the policies, practices, and methods of the corporate respondents.

PAR. 2. The respondents are now, and for more than 2 years last past, have been, engaged in the publication and in the sale and distribution of books, including, among others, a 12-volume set of books of an encyclopedic nature designated "Smithsonian Scientific Series." In the course and conduct of their business the respondents cause their books, when sold, to be transported from their place of business in the State of New York to the purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondents maintain, and at all times mentioned herein have maintained, a course of trade in their said products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of their business as aforesaid the respondents are now, and at all times mentioned herein have been, in substantial competition with other corporations and individuals, and with firms and partnerships, engaged in the sale and distribution of books of an encyclopedic nature in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. On or about December 14, 1926, the respondent, Smithsonian Institution Series, Inc., entered into an agreement or contract with the Smithsonian Institution of Washington, D. C., under the terms of which the said Smithsonian Institution furnished to respondent Smithsonian Institution Series, Inc., certain manuscripts and illustrations, which material was placed in book form by respondent Smithsonian Institution Series, Inc., and sold under said designation of "Smithsonian Scientific Series." Said agreement further provided that the Smithsonian Institution should receive a royalty of 10 percent on all gross sales of said books.

PAR. 5. In the course and conduct of their said business, and for the purpose of promoting the sale of said books, the respondents have made, and are making, many false and misleading statements and representations to prospective purchasers of such books, such statements and representations being made through respondents' salesmen and representatives and by other means. Among and typical of said statements and representations are the following:

That respondents' salesmen and representatives are in the employ of, or connected with, the Smithsonian Institution of Washington, D. C.; that said books are published and sold by the Smithsonian Institution; that the entire profit derived from the sale of said books accrues to the Smithsonian Institution; that the sale of said books is restricted to a comparatively small number of selected individuals in each community.

PAR. 6. The foregoing statements and representations so made by the respondents in connection with the sale of their books are grossly exaggerated, false and misleading. In truth and in fact, respondents' salesmen and representatives are not in the employ of, nor have they any connection with, the Smithsonian Institution. Said books are not published or sold by the Smithsonian Institution but are sold by the respondents as an ordinary commercial enterprise. The Smithsonian Institution does not receive the entire profit derived from the sale of said books, but in fact receives only the royalty of 10 percent hereinabove mentioned. The sale of said books is not restricted to any group or number of persons, but said books are sold indiscriminately to the general public.

The Smithsonian Institution of Washington, D. C., is now, and for many years last past has been, identified in the public mind as a non-profit organization devoted to scientific research and the promotion of learning. The use by the corporate respondent, Smithsonian Institution Series, Inc., of the words "Smithsonian Institution" as a part of its corporate name constitutes within itself a false and misleading representation that said respondent is a part of, or is connected with, the Smithsonian Institution of Washington, D. C. The use of said name by said respondent serves also to accentuate the other false and misleading representations made by the respondents in the sale of their said books.

PAR. 7. Another publication sold and distributed by the respondent, Parke, Austin & Lipscomb, Inc., and the individual respondents, in commerce as aforesaid, is a set of books of an encyclopedic nature designated "World Epochs." On or about August 27, 1938, said corporate respondent entered into an agreement or contract with the United States Flag Association of Washington, D. C., under which said Association agreed to cooperate with said corporate respondent in the sale of said books to the extent of issuing bulletins and letters recommending said books. In return for its cooperation in the sale of said books, said Association was to receive a royalty of 5 percent on gross collections on all units of books sold for $79.50 or less and 10 percent on gross collections on units sold for more than $79.50.

The United States Flag Association is a patriotic nonprofit organization which is engaged in conducting an educational program among the adult citizenry and school children of the United States for the purpose of cultivating and stimulating patriotism and national spirit.

PAR. 8. In the course and conduct of their business as aforesaid, and for the purpose of promoting the sale of said books, said respondents have made many false and misleading statements and representations to prospective purchasers, such statements and representations being made through salesmen and representatives and by other means. Among and typical of said statements and representations are the following:

That respondents' salesmen and representatives are representatives of the United States Flag Association; that the United States Flag Association receives the entire profit derived from the sale of said books, and that one purchasing such books is in effect making a contribution to said association which will be used by the association in combatting anti-American and subversive organizations and influences in the United States; that said association maintains a lobby in the city of Washington for the purpose of combatting anti-American and subversive organizations and influences, and that the profits derived from the sale of said books will be used by the association to defray the expense of such lobbying activities.

The purchase of said books is presented by the respondents to the prospective purchaser not as an ordinary commercial transaction, but is presented under the guise of an appeal to the prospective purchaser, on grounds of patriotism, to assist in the efforts of the association to combat anti-American and subversive organizations and influences in the United States.

PAR. 9. The foregoing representations are grossly exaggerated, false, and misleading. In truth and in fact, respondents' salesmen and representatives are not representatives of the United States Flag Association, but are merely salesmen of the respondents. The United States Flag Association does not receive the entire profit derived from the sale of said books, nor does the purchase of said books constitute a contribution to said association. Said books are sold by the respondents as an ordinary commercial enterprise for profit, and the only benefit derived by the United States Flag Association from the sale of such books is the small royalty hereinabove mentioned. Said association does not conduct any lobbying activities.

A further practice on the part of the respondents in promoting the sale of said books is the wrongful use of letters from United States Senators and others prominent in American public life endorsing the aims and purposes of the United States Flag Association. Such letters are represented by the respondents as endorsements of said books, when in truth and in fact such letters have no reference to said books but relate only to the general aims and purposes of said association.

PAR. 10. The use by the respondents of said false and misleading statements and representations in connection with the sale of their products has the tendency and capacity to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such statements and representations are true, and into the purchase of substantial quantities of respondents' products as a result of such belief. Thereby trade has been diverted unfairly to the respondents from their competitors, many of whom do not make false or misleading representations with respect to their products, and in consequence substantial injury has been done, and is now being done, by the respondents to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 11. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on February 14 A. D. 1941, issued and subsequently served its complaint upon the respondents, Parke, Austin & Lipscomb, Inc., a corporation; Smithsonian Institution Series, Inc., a corporation; Alfred Monett, individually and as an officer of Parke, Austin & Lipscomb, Inc., and Smithsonian Institution Series, Inc.; Robert A. Hogan, Jr., individually and as an officer of Parke, Austin & Lipscomb, Inc., and Smithsonian Institution Series, Inc.; and Joseph M. McAndrews, individually and as an officer of Parke, Austin & Lipscomb, Inc., charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondents' answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of said complaint were introduced by Jesse D. Kash, attorney for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by Ernest W. Marlow and Richard Lincoln, attorneys for the respondents, before W. W. Sheppard, a trial examiner of the Commission therefore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission upon said complaint, answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, report of the trial examiner upon the evidence and exceptions filed thereto, and briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto (oral argument not having been requested); and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondents, Parke, Austin & Lipscomb, Inc., and Smithsonian Institution Series, Inc., are corporations organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, with their offices and principal places of business located at 500 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Respondent Smithsonian Institution Series, Inc., was organized by, and is a wholly owned subsidiary of, Parke, Austin & Lipscomb, Inc., and its policies, practices, and methods are formulated, controlled, directed, and dominated by Parke, Austin & Lipscomb, Inc.

Respondent, Alfred Monett, is an individual and is president of both of the corporate respondents, with his office and principal place of business at 500 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y.

Respondent, Robert A. Hogan, Jr., is an individual and is treasurer of both of the corporate respondents, with his office and principal place of business at 500 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y.

Respondent, Joseph M. McAndrews, is an individual and is secretary of both of the corporate respondents, with his office and principal place of business at 500 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y.

The individual respondents, as officers of said corporate respondents, formulate, control, direct, and dominate the policies, practices, and methods of said corporate respondents.

PAR. 2. Respondents are now, and for more than 3 years last past have been engaged in the publication and in the sale and distribution of various books of an encyclopedic or historical nature, including, among others, a 13-volume set of books designated "Smithsonian Scientific Series." In addition, the corporate respondent, Parke, Austin & Lipscomb, Inc., and the individual respondents are also engaged in the publication and in the sale and distribution of a set of books known as "World Epochs." In the course and conduct of their business, the said respondents cause said books, when sold, to be transported from their place of business in the State of New York to purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondents maintain, and at all times mentioned herein have maintained, a course of trade in their said products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of their business as aforesaid, the respondents are now, and at all times mentioned herein have been, in substantial competition with other corporations and individuals and with firms and partnerships engaged in the sale and distribution of books of an encyclopedic or historical nature in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. In the early part of 1926 negotiations were entered into between the respondent, Parke, Austin & Lipscomb, Inc., and the Smithsonian Institution of Washington, D. C., for the purpose of having said respondent engage in the publication, sale, and distribution of a set of books compiled from data collected by the Smithsonian Institution in various scientific investigations. For the purpose of keeping the sale and distribution of this particular set of books separate and apart from the other publications sold and distributed by the respondent, Parke, Austin & Lipscomb, Inc., a new corporation was formed, known as Smithsonian Institution Series, Inc., which was, and is, a wholly owned subsidiary of the respondent, Parke, Austin & Lipscomb, Inc.

PAR. 5. Immediately after its organization, the respondent, Smithsonian Institution Series, Inc., on December 14, 1926, entered into a contract with the Smithsonian Institution of Washington, D. C., whereby said respondent agreed to engage in the publication, sale, and distribution, exclusively, of a set of books to be designated as "Smithsonian Scientific Series," manuscripts for which to be furnished by the Smithsonian Institution, subject to reimbursement for cost of preparation of such manuscripts of not to exceed $2,500 per volume. This contract further provided for the payment of a royalty of 10 percent of gross sales. Said respondent further agreed to raise a fund of $250,000 to be devoted exclusively to the financing, publication, and sale of said books, which were to be copyrighted in the name of the respondent, Smithsonian Scientific Series, Inc., all copyrights, plates, manuscripts, etc., to remain the exclusive property of said respondent. The funds required by the contract were deposited and the respondent proceeded with the publication, sale, and distribution of said books, exclusively. These books were sold at various prices ranging from $59.50 to $250 per set, depending upon binding and type of paper used.

PAR. 6. In the course and conduct of their said business and for the purpose of promoting the sale of said books, the corporate respondent, Smithsonian Institution Series, Inc., and the individual respondents, directly and through salesmen and agents, have made many false and misleading statements and representations to prospective purchasers to the effect that respondents' salesmen and representatives were in the employ of, or connected with, the Smithsonian Institution of Washington, D. C.; that said books were published and sold by the Smithsonian Institution; that the entire profit derived from the sale of said books accrued to the Smithsonian Institution; and that the sale of said books was restricted to a comparatively small number of selected individuals in each community.

In furtherance of this form of misrepresentation, the said respondents prepared and issued to their various salesmen and representatives a so-called "Authorized Presentation," which set out in detail the method of approach and sales talk to be used in attempting to close a sale of these books with a prospective purchaser. This sales talk is so prepared and designed to lead prospective purchasers to believe that the salesman is a representative of the Smithsonian Institution of Washington, D. C.; that the entire profit derived from the sale of the books accrues to the Smithsonian Institution; and that they have been specially selected to be designated as patrons of the Smithsonian Institution. In furtherance of this plan, the said respondents cause the Smithsonian Institution of Washington, D. C., to issue to all purchasers of the said Smithsonian Scientific Series, a certificate under the seal of the Smithsonian Institution of Washington, D. C., signed by its secretary, certifying such purchaser as being registered in the archives of the Institution as a patron of the Smithsonian Scientific Series in recognition of support of the Institution's program for the diffusion of knowledge among men, facsimiles of which certificate are carried by the salesmen and exhibited to prospective purchasers.

PAR. 7. The acts and practices of the respondents as hereinbefore described are designed to and have the effect of causing purchasers and prospective purchasers to believe that they are purchasing said books designated as Smithsonian Scientific Series directly from the Smithsonian Institution of Washington, D. C.; that said books are published and sold by the Smithsonian Institution of Washington, D. C.; that the entire profits derived from the sale of said books accrue to the Smithsonian Institution of Washington, D. C.; and that they have been specially selected to act as patrons of the Smithsonian Institution of Washington, D. C.

PAR. 8. The sale and distribution by the respondents of the books designated as Smithsonian Scientific Series constitute an ordinary commercial enterprise for profit, and the only benefit derived by the Smithsonian Institution of Washington, D. C., from the sale of said books is the small royalty hereinabove described. The books are not published by the Smithsonian Institution of Washington, D. C., nor are the copyrights, plates, and other material owned or controlled by the Smithsonian Institution. The Smithsonian Institution of Washington, D. C., does not select, nor does it have any control over, the agents or salesmen who sell said Smithsonian Scientific Series, but, instead, such agents and salesmen are employees of the respondents and subject to the supervision and control of the respondents. Purchasers and prospective purchasers have not been specially selected to act as patrons of the Smithsonian Institution of Washington, D. C., but, instead, said books are sold indiscriminately to the general public. The use of the so-called "patron certificate" is designed to and has the effect of furthering the representations that the prospective purchaser has been specially selected because of his standing in the community and that the prospective purchaser is dealing with the Smithsonian Institution on a basis different from an ordinary commercial transaction.

PAR. 9. The Smithsonian Institution of Washington, D. C., is now, and for many years last past has been, identified in the public mind as a nonprofit organization devoted to scientific research and the promotion of learning. The use by the corporate respondent Smithsonian Institution Series, Inc., of the words "Smithsonian Institution" as part of its corporate name, constitutes, within itself, a false and misleading representation that said respondent is part of, or is connected with, the Smithsonian Institution of Washington, D. C. The use of said name by said respondent serves also to accentuate the other false and misleading representations made by the respondents in the sale of their said books.

PAR. 10. In addition to the acts and practices hereinabove described, the corporate respondent, Parke, Austin & Lipscomb, Inc., and the individual respondents also engage in the publication and in the sale and distribution in commerce of a set of books of an encyclopedic or historical nature designated "World Epochs." On or about August 27, 1938, the corporate respondent, Parke, Austin & Lipscomb, Inc., entered into a contract with the United States Flag Association whereby said corporate respondent agreed to publish, sell, and distribute a set of books to be designated "World Epochs," together with other pamphlets and documents prepared by the United States Flag Association or otherwise, which sales were to be made in the name of, and under the imprint of, the United States Flag Association, with the understanding that the United States Flag Association be paid a royalty of 5 percent on gross collections on sales up to $79.50 and 10 percent on gross collections on sales in excess of $79.50. Subsequent thereto, on November 18, 1940, a new agreement was entered into between the said corporate respondent and the United States Flag Association whereby the corporate respondent was to act as the exclusive agent of the United States Flag Association on a commission basis of 10 percent on gross receipts, plus reimbursement for costs. Prior to entering into the above-mentioned contracts with the United States Flag Association, the said corporate respondents had sold and distributed said series of books known as "World Epochs" under an arrangement with the Veterans of Foreign Wars National Home, under which arrangement a royalty was paid to the Veterans of Foreign Wars National Home for its endorsement of this work.

PAR. 11. The United States Flag Association was organized as a corporation under and by virtue of the laws of the District of Columbia on April 10, 1924, for the object and purpose, as expressed in its charter, of "in the interest of lofty Americanism, sturdy patriotism, and good citizenship, which shall make stronger and more secure the foundations of this republic established on the principles of freedom, equality, justice, and humanity, to bring into proper consideration and appreciative regard by the citizenry of the republic the flag of the United States as the visible, symbolic representation of our national sovereignty, ideals, traditions, and institutions."

PAR. 12. For the purpose of inducing the purchase of said set of books designated "World Epochs" and other pamphlets and publications sold under their agreement with the United States Flag Association, the respondents represented to purchasers and prospective purchasers directly and indirectly, that the United States Flag Association was the publisher of said set of books known as "World Epochs"; that it received the entire profit derived from the sale of said books, which proceeds were to be used by the Association in combating anti-Americanism and subversive organizations and influences in the United States; and that the proposal to purchase said books was not based upon an ordinary commercial transaction but was an appeal on the grounds of patriotism to assist in the efforts of the Association to combat anti-Americanism and subversive organizations and influences in the United States. In furtherance of this plan, respondents' salesmen were issued letters of identification upon the stationery of the United States Flag Association, signed by the President General of the Association, reciting that such salesmen were accredited Regional Directors of the United States Flag Association and that the purpose of their call was in connection with a matter of very serious national importance. The respondents also caused the United States Flag Association to issue to all purchasers of said "World Epochs" a certificate of life membership in the United States Flag Association.

PAR. 13. In addition to the acts and practices hereinbefore described, the respondents used as letters of endorsement of said publication

"World Epochs," letters from United States Senators and others prominent in American Life, which were, in fact, endorsements of the aims and purposes of the United States Flag Association and which were written without knowledge that such letters were to be used as endorsements of any series of books. In fact, the respondents continued to use a number of such letters even after objection had been made by the writers of such letters, to their use as an endorsement of the books being sold.

PAR. 14. The acts and practices of the respondents as hereinbefore described were designed to and had the effect of causing purchasers and prospective purchasers to believe that they were purchasing said books designated as "World Epochs" and other publications directly from the United States Flag Association; that said books were published and sold by the United States Flag Association; that the entire profits derived from the sale of said books accrued to the United States Flag Association; that all funds obtained from the sale of such books over and above actual publication expense were to be used in combating anti-Americanism and subversive organizations and influences in the United States; and that said prospective purchasers had been specially selected, because of previous achievements or standing in the community, to be made life members of the United States Flag Association.

PAR. 15. The entire plan of operation in connection with the sale of said set of books designated "World Epochs," and other pamphlets and publications connected therewith, was false and misleading. Prior to November 18, 1940, said books were sold by the respondents as an ordinary commercial enterprise for profit, and the only benefit derived by the United States Flag Association from the sale of such books was the small royalty hereinabove described. The series of books "World Epochs" was not published by the United States Flag Association, nor were the copyrights, plates, and other material owned or controlled by the United States Flag Association. The United States Flag Association did not select, nor did it have any control over, the agents or salesmen who sold said "World Epochs," but, instead, such agents and salesmen were employees of the respondents and subject to the supervision and control of the respondents. The designation of respondents' salesmen as "Regional Directors," over the signature of the president general of the United States Flag Association, was designed to, and did, mislead prospective purchasers into believing that they were dealing directly with the United States Flag Association on a patriotic basis which did not involve a commercial enterprise for profit.

The contract of November 18, 1940, while ostensibly shifting the respondent, Parke, Austin & Lipscomb, Inc., from publisher and owner to exclusive agent, did not materially change the status of the parties or remove the sale of these books from being an ordinary commercial enterprise for profit. The supervision and control of agents and salesmen continued in the respondents, subject only to the approval of the United States Flag Association. Complete control over accounts and their collection remained in the respondents, subject only to accounting as provided in the contract. The preparation and publication of the books sold under this arrangement continued to be handled by the respondents, subject to reimbursement from gross collections, and title to the publication "World Epochs," including copyrights, plates, etc., remained in the respondents and was not transferred to the United States Flag Association. Furthermore, the contract of November 18, 1940, provides for payment by the respondents to the United States Flag Association of a guaranteed percentage of gross sales, which percentages are the same as the royalties provided for in the original contract, with minor additions.

Purchasers and prospective purchasers have not been specially selected to be recipients of the books sold and distributed by the respondents under their contract with the United States Flag Association, but, instead, said books are sold indiscriminately to the general public. The use of the life membership certificates is designed to and has the effect of furthering the representation that the prospective purchaser has been specially selected because of his standing in the community and that said prospective purchaser is dealing with the United States Flag Association on a basis different from an ordinary commercial transaction, particularly since such life memberships were indiscriminately issued to all persons purchasing such publications in amounts of $25 or more. In some instances life memberships in the so-called "Legion of the Flag" have been issued by the United States Flag Association to persons designated by the respondents, deliveries of which certificates were made by the respondents or their representatives for the purpose of establishing initial contact and accomplishing the sale of books by the respondents.

PAR. 16. The use by the respondents of the foregoing acts and practices in connection with the sale and offering for sale of the series of books designated "Smithsonian Scientific Series," has a tendency and capacity to, and did, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that they are purchasing said books designated as "Smithsonian Scientific Series" directly from the Smithsonian Institution of Washington, D. C., that the entire profits derived from the sale of said books accrue to the Smithsonian Institution of Washington, D. C., and that they have been specially selected to act as patrons of the Smithsonian Institution of Washington, D. C.; and the use by the respondents of the foregoing acts and practices in connection with the sale and offering for sale of the series of books designated "World Epochs," and other pamphlets, under contracts with the United States Flag Association has had a tendency and capacity to, and did, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that they were dealing directly with the United States Flag Association, that all the profits derived from the sale of such books would be used to further the purposes of the United States Flag Association and to combat anti-Americanism and subversive organizations and influences in the United States, and that such transactions did not involve any commercial enterprise for profit. As a result of such erroneous and mistaken beliefs, a substantial portion of the purchasing public has purchased substantial quantities of respondents' publications designated "Smithsonian Scientific Series" and "World Epochs," and other publications, thereby diverting trade unfairly to the respondents from their competitors who are engaged in competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

5. The use of the words "Smithsonian Institution" in respondents' trade or corporate name, or in any other manner, to designate or describe an organization engaged in a commercial enterprise for profit, which is not a part of, or has no direct connection with, the Smithsonian Institution of Washington, D. C.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that J. L. Ramsay, and G. P. Masters, individually, and trading as Rogers Silverware Exchange, and as Rogers Redemption Bureau, hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondents, J. L. Ramsay and G. P. Masters, are individuals trading as Rogers Silverware Exchange and as Rogers Redemption Bureau. The last-known place of business and post-office address of the respondents was 2611 Olive Street in the city of St. Louis, Mo. Respondents are now, and for more than 2 years last past have been, engaged in the sale and distribution of sales stimulation plans to retail dealers, such plans consisting of gift cards, advertising material, silverware and other merchandise.

Respondents cause their said gift cards, advertising material and merchandise when sold to be transported from their place of business in the State of Missouri to the purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondents maintain, and at all times mentioned herein have maintained, a course of trade in their said products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of their said business respondents have been and are in substantial competition with other individuals and with firms and corporations also engaged in the business of selling and distributing sales stimulation plans and silverware and other merchandise of a similar nature in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of their business as aforesaid, respondents, acting personally and also through agents, contact retail dealers and obtain from many of such dealers written contracts whereby the dealer agrees to purchase of respondents a designated number of respondent's gift cards at a price of $4 per 1,000 cards. Under the terms of such contract such gift cards are to be distributed by the dealer among his customers as merchandise is purchased by such customers from the dealer, and the respondents agree to redeem such cards by sending to the customer a designated number of pieces of Wm. A. Rogers Silverware, such silverware being packed in units of 6 pieces. It is further provided in said contract that when 25 percent of said gift cards have been forwarded to respondents for redemption respondents will make a cash refund to the dealer at the rate of $4 for each 1,000 cards forwarded for redemption. A further provision of the contract is that the respondents will supply to the dealer without cost a 26-piece set of silverware, together with case, for display purposes, such set to remain the property of the dealer.

In such contract and in the circulars and other advertising material, and in the specimen gift cards used by respondents and their agents in soliciting dealers, the legends "Wm. A. Rogers Silverware," "Rogers Silverware" and "Wm. A. Rogers, Ltd." are prominently displayed. Respondents' trade names "Rogers Silverware Exchange" and "Rogers Redemption Bureau" are also prominently and conspicuously displayed on all of such contracts, circulars, gift cards, and other advertising material. Such gift cards and the specimens thereof exhibited to dealers as aforesaid contain among other representations the following:

Through a national advertising campaign sponsored by this organization you may receive any of the beautiful gifts listed in free schedule by saving these gift cards.

All contract forms, advertising material and specimen gift cards exhibited to the dealer are the property of the respondents and are supplied to respondents' agents by the respondents.

PAR. 4. In addition to the representations set forth in said contract, advertising material and gift cards as aforesaid the respondents, acting personally or through agents, in the course and conduct of their business and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of their said products, make certain oral representations to prospective purchasers with respect to their products. Among such representations are the following:

That respondents are connected with and are agents and representatives of Oneida, Ltd., the manufacturer of Wm. A. Rogers Silverware, and are conducting by means of said sales stimulation plan an advertising campaign for such concern; that respondents will distribute circulars and other advertising material throughout the trade area served by the dealer and thus assist the dealer in putting the sales stimulation plan into operation and effect; that the statements in the contract and in the advertising material with respect to the number of gift cards which must be forwarded to respondents to obtain certain designated pieces of silverware mean that the forwarding of the specified number of cards will entitle the sender to receive a complete unit of six of the designated pieces of silverware rather than only one piece of such silverware. Respondents and their agents also repeat orally to dealers the representations made in said written contract with respect to the supplying by the respondents to the dealer, without cost, of the display set of silverware and with respect to the cash refund to be made by respondents to the dealer.

PAR. 5. The representations made by respondents and their agents as set forth in paragraphs 3 and 4 are grossly exaggerated, false, and misleading. In truth and in fact, respondents are not agents or representatives of Oneida, Ltd., the manufacturer of Wm. A. Rogers Silverware, nor are they connected with said concern in any other manner. The sales stimulation plan of respondents is in no sense an advertising campaign on behalf of said concern, but is a plan initiated by respondents solely on their own behalf and for the purpose of selling respondents' so-called gift cards. Respondents do not distribute circulars or any other advertising material in the trade area served by the dealer purchasing respondents' cards, nor do respondents render the dealer any other assistance in putting the sales stimulation plan into operation and effect. In many instances respondents have wholly failed to supply the dealer with the designated 26-piece set of silverware or with any display set of silverware. Respondents do not make to dealers the cash refunds provided for in said contract.

In many instances respondents have failed to redeem said gift cards by forwarding to the person sending in said cards the designated pieces of silverware or any other pieces of silverware. In many other instances the respondents, upon receiving the designated number of cards for redemption, have not forwarded to the holder of such cards a unit of six pieces of silverware, but have required that six times the designated number of cards be forwarded for such unit of silverware.

Findings

34 F. T. C.

The provisions of the written contract with respect to the number of cards required for the obtaining of silverware are couched in ambiguous and deceptive language, which fact enables the respondents and their agents more easily to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers of said gift cards.

PAR. 6. The use by respondents of the trade names "Rogers Silverware Exchange" and "Rogers Redemption Bureau" constitutes within itself a false, deceptive, and misleading representation that respondents' business is a part of or is connected with the business of the said Oneida, Ltd., manufacturer of Wm. A. Rogers Silverware. The said silverware known as Wm. A. Rogers Silverware has for a long period of time enjoyed a good reputation and dealers and the purchasing public rely upon and have confidence in such silverware and the manufacturer thereof.

PAR. 7. The use by respondents of the false and misleading representations set forth herein, including the use of the trade names "Rogers Silverware Exchange" and "Rogers Redemption Bureau" has the tendency and capacity to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial number of dealers and members of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such representations are true and that respondents are connected with Oneida, Ltd., and into the purchase of substantial quantities of respondents' products. As a result, trade in such products has been diverted unfairly to respondents from their competitors. In consequence injury has been done, and is now being done, to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on April 22, 1940, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondents, G. P. Masters and J. L. Ramsay, trading as Rogers Silverware Exchange and as Rogers Redemption Bureau, charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act.

Thereafter, the respondent, J. L. Ramsay, filed his answer, in which answer he admitted all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waived all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts. No answer was filed by the respondent, G. P. Masters, who was served by registered mail in May 1940. He has not been heard from since served and his present address and whereabouts are unknown. Thereafter, the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint and the answer of respondent J. L. Ramsay thereto, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter, and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, J. L. Ramsay, is an individual, who traded as Rogers Silverware Exchange and Rogers Redemption Bureau. The last-known place of business and post-office address of the respondent was 231 Blair Avenue, Newport News, Va. For some years prior to early in 1940 respondent was engaged in the sale and distribution of sales stimulation plans to retail dealers, such plans consisting of gift cards, advertising material, silverware, and other merchandise.

Respondent caused his said gift cards, advertising material, and merchandise when sold to be transported from his place of business in the State of Missouri to the purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent at all times mentioned herein maintained a course of trade in his said products in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his said business respondent has been in substantial competition with other individuals and with firms and corporations also engaged in the business of selling and distributing sales stimulation plans and silverware and other merchandise of a similar nature in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of his business as aforesaid, respondent, acting personally and also through agents, contacted retail dealers and obtained from many of such dealers written contracts whereby the dealer agreed to purchase of respondent a designated number of respondent's gift cards at a price of $4 per 1,000 cards. Under the terms of such contract such gift cards were to be distributed by the dealer among his customers as merchandise was purchased by such customers from the dealer, and the respondent agreed to redeem such cards by sending to the customer a designated number of pieces of Wm. A. Rogers Silverware, such silverware being packed in units of 6 pieces. It was further provided in said contract that when 25 percent of said gift cards had been forwarded to respondent for redemption respondent would make a cash refund to the dealer at the rate of $4 for each 1,000 cards forwarded for redemption. A further provision of the contract was that the respondent would supply to the dealer without cost a 26-piece set of silverware, together with case, for display purposes, such set to remain the property of the dealer.

In such contract and in the circulars and other advertising material, and in the specimen gift cards used by respondent and his agents in soliciting dealers, the legends "Wm. A. Rogers Silverware," "Rogers Silverware" and "Wm. A. Rogers, Ltd." were prominently displayed. Respondent's trade names "Rogers Silverware Exchange" and "Rogers Redemption Bureau" were also prominently and conspicuously displayed on all of such contracts, circulars, gift cards and other advertising material. Such gift cards and the specimens thereof exhibited to dealers as aforesaid contained among other representations the following:

Through a national advertising campaign sponsored by this organization you may receive any of the beautiful gifts listed in free schedule by saving these gift cards.

All contract forms, advertising material and specimen gift cards exhibited to the dealer were the property of the respondent and were supplied to respondent's agents by the respondent.

PAR. 4. In addition to the representations set forth in said contract, advertising material and gift cards as aforesaid, the respondent, acting personally or through agents, in the course and conduct of his business and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of his said products, made certain oral representations to prospective purchasers with respect to his products. Among such representations were the following:

That respondent was connected with and was an agent and representative of Oneida, Ltd., the manufacturer of Wm. A. Rogers Silverware, and was conducting by means of said sales stimulation plan an advertising campaign for such concern; that respondent would distribute circulars and other advertising material throughout the trade area served by the dealer and thus assist the dealer in putting the sales stimulation plan into operation and effect; that the statements in the contract and in the advertising material with respect to the number of gift cards which must be forwarded to respondent to obtain certain designated pieces of silverware meant that the forwarding of the specified number of cards would entitle the sender to receive a complete unit of six of the designated pieces of silverware rather than only one piece of such silverware. Respondent and his agents also repeated orally to dealers the representations made in said written contract with respect to the supplying by the respondent to the dealer, without cost, of the display set of silverware and with respect to the cash refund to be made by respondent to the dealer.

PAR. 5. The representations made by respondent and his agents as set forth in paragraphs 3 and 4 were grossly exaggerated, false, and misleading. In truth and in fact, respondent was not an agent or representative of Oneida, Ltd., the manufacturer of Wm. A. Rogers Silverware, nor was he connected with said concern in any other manner. The sales stimulation plan of respondent was in no sense an advertising campaign on behalf of said concern, but was a plan initiated by respondent solely on his own behalf and for the purpose of selling respondent's so-called gift cards. Respondent did not distribute circulars or any other advertising material in the trade area served by the dealer purchasing respondent's cards, nor did respondent render the dealer any other assistance in putting the sales stimulation plan into operation and effect. In many instances respondent wholly failed to supply the dealer with the designated 26-piece set of silverware or with any display set of silverware. Respondent did not make to dealers the cash refunds provided for in said contract.

In many instances respondent failed to redeem said gift cards by forwarding to the person sending in said cards the designated pieces of silverware or any other pieces of silverware. In many other instances the respondent, upon receiving the designated number of cards for redemption, did not forward to the holder of such cards a unit of six pieces of silverware but required that six times the designated number of cards be forwarded for such unit of silverware. The provisions of the written contract with respect to the number of cards required for the obtaining of silverware were couched in ambiguous and deceptive language, which fact enabled the respondent and his agents more easily to mislead and deceive prospective purchasers of said gift cards.

PAR. 6. The use by respondent of the trade names "Rogers Silverware Exchange" and "Rogers Redemption Bureau" constituted within itself a false, deceptive, and misleading representation that respondent's business was a part of or was connected with the business of the said Oneida, Ltd., manufacturer of Wm. A. Rogers Silverware. The said silverware known as Wm. A. Rogers Silverware has for a long period of time enjoyed a good reputation and dealers and the purchasing public rely upon and have confidence in such silverware and the manufacturer thereof.

PAR. 7. The use by respondent of the false and misleading representations set forth herein, including the use of the trade names "Rogers Silverware Exchange" and "Rogers Redemption Bureau" has had the tendency and capacity to and did mislead and deceive a substantial number of dealers and members of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such representations were true and that respondent was connected with the Oneida, Ltd., and into the purchase of substantial quantities of respondent's products. As a result, trade in such products has been diverted unfairly to respondent from his competitors. In consequence injury has been done to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 8. The Commission further finds that the public interest does not require the continuance of this proceeding against the respondent, G. P. Masters, individually, and that the same should be closed as to him, without prejudice to the right of the Commission, should the facts so warrant, to reopen the same and resume trial thereof, in accordance with its regular procedure.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, J. L. Ramsay, trading as Rogers Silverware Exchange and Rogers Redemption Bureau, as herein found, are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondent J. L. Ramsay, in which answer said respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and states that he waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act;

3. Representing that the purchase price for said certificates or gift cards will be refunded to the dealer purchasers thereof or that the respondent will supply to such dealer purchasers without charge display sets of silverware, to become the property of such dealers, unless and until such are the facts and unless all of the terms and conditions of such offer or offers are clearly and unequivocally stated in equal conspicuousness and in immediate connection or conjunction with such offer or offers and there is no deception as to the services or other actions to be performed by the dealer purchasers in connection with obtaining such refund and display set of silverware.

4. Representing that the sales-stimulation plan offered by respondent is authorized by Oneida Limited, or that sales literature will be distributed by the respondent on behalf of purchasers of said sales-promotion plan, or that said purchasers will be assisted by the respondent in any other manner.

5. Representing that a complete set of silverware or any specific item of silverware can be acquired through the redemption of such certificates, gift cards or similar devices unless and until such is the fact.

Order

34 F. T. C.

It is further ordered, That said respondent shall, in 60 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.

It is further ordered, That this proceeding be, and the same hereby is, closed as to the respondent, G. P. Masters, individually, without prejudice to the right of the Commission, should the facts so warrant, to reopen the same and resume trial thereof as to said respondent, in accordance with its regular procedure.

Complaint

IN THE MATTER OF

McK. EDWARDS

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 4317. Complaint, Sept 17, 1940—Decision, Feb. 9, 1942

Where an individual, engaged in interstate sale and distribution of his "McK. Edwards Eczema Remedy"; by means of advertisements in newspapers and periodicals of general circulation, and by pamphlets, circulars and other printed or written matter—

- (a) Represented that his said preparation constituted a cure or remedy for eczema, poison oak and poison ivy, and possessed substantial therapeutic value in the treatment of said conditions; and
- (b) Represented that eczema was caused by microbes in the skin, and that a cure might be effected by destroying such microbes through the external application of his said preparation, and that it was entirely safe and harmless, except in the case of infants;

The facts being that product in question, while it might constitute an effective treatment or remedy for eczema resulting from some varieties of fungus infections, had no therapeutic value for other types or in excess of affording relief in some cases from the symptoms of itching; and, except for such possible relief, had no therapeutic value in the treatment of poison oak or ivy; and

- (c) Failed to reveal facts material in the light of aforesaid representations with respect to the consequences which might result from use of the product under prescribed or usual conditions, in that by virtue of its unusually large content of salicylic acid, it might have an excoriating effect upon the skin and produce upon certain individuals an acute and painful rash, and thereby seriously aggravate certain types and conditions of eczema;

With the effect of misleading and deceiving a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the mistaken belief that his preparation possessed therapeutic properties which it did not in fact possess, and, except for infants, was in all cases safe and harmless; as a result whereof the purchasing public was induced to purchase substantial quantities thereof:

Held, That such acts and practices were all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Before Mr. William C. Reeves, trial examiner.

Mr. Charles S. Cox for the Commission.

Mr. John T. Raftis, of Colville, Wash., for respondent.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that McK. Edwards, an individual, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, McK. Edwards, is an individual residing and maintaining a place of business at Valley, Wash. The respondent is now, and for more than 2 years last past has been, engaged in the business of selling and distributing a medicinal preparation designated as "McK. Edwards' Eczema Remedy."

In the course and conduct of his business, respondent causes said medicinal preparation, when sold, to be transported from his place of business in the State of Washington to the purchasers thereof located in various States of the United States other than the State of Washington, and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and at all times herein mentioned has maintained, a course of trade in said medicinal preparation in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his aforesaid business, the respondent has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning his said product by the United States mails, and by various other means in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act; and respondent has also disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning his said product, by various means, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of said product in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act. Among, and typical of, the false, misleading, and deceptive statements and representations contained in said false advertisements, disseminated and caused to be disseminated by United States mails, by advertisements in newspapers and periodicals having a general circulation, and in pamphlets, circulars, and other printed or written matter, are the following:

FOR ECZEMA SUFFERERS

If you or any of your friends have burning itching eczema, I have a remedy that will give positive relief in a very short time.

FOR GUARANTEED RELIEF OF ECZEMA, * * * fungus poison, write McK. Edwards, Valley, Washington.

* * * This remedy is very effective and will also relieve poison oak, poison ivy * * *

Symptoms: Eczema is caused by tiny microbes in the skin, and it is purely a skin disease, and with a powerful magnifying glass you can see the microbes crawling, under the skin, but it is not infectious nor contagious in any way.

Treatment: Simply stay away from water and grease as much as possible. Use a little cotton swab, saturated with my remedy, over the affected parts five or six times daily, until new skin has formed and the old crusted skin has peeled off. Thereafter, apply only when itching occurs. Be very persistent, and do not neglect. It will burn some when first applied, but will very soon relieve the itching sensation, and this is the very important part. It is then that the Remedy does its work. Do not use this Remedy for tiny babies as the burn is too severe, but do not hesitate to use it for yourself. Where instructions are properly followed I have never known this Remedy to fail.

PAR. 3. Through the use of the foregoing representations, and others of similar import not specifically set out herein, the respondent represents and has represented that his said preparation constitutes a cure or remedy for eczema, poison oak and poison ivy, and that it possesses substantial therapeutic value in the treatment of such conditions; that eczema is caused by microbes in the skin and that a cure may be effected by destroying such microbes through the external application of respondent's preparation; that said preparation is entirely safe and harmless except in the case of infants.

PAR. 4. The foregoing representations are grossly exaggerated, false and misleading. In truth and in fact, respondent's preparation does not constitute a cure or remedy for eczema, poison oak, or poison ivy, nor does said preparation possess any therapeutic value in the treatment of any of such conditions. Eczema is not caused by microbes in the skin, but is an external or skin manifestation of some internal disorder of the body, and the application of respondent's preparation is wholly incapable of producing any beneficial effect upon such internal disorder.

Respondent's preparation is not safe or harmless, in that it contains an unusually high percentage of salicylic acid, and the frequent and repeated applications of the preparation to the skin, as directed by respondent, has the effect of dissolving and destroying the skin tissues. Moreover, the use of said preparation is highly irritating and painful in cases where the surface epithelium is denuded, raw, or inflamed.

PAR. 5. Further, the advertisements disseminated by the respondent, as aforesaid, constitute false advertisements for the reason that they fail to reveal facts material in the light of the representations contained therein, and fail to reveal that the use of said preparation under the conditions prescribed in said advertisements or under such conditions as are customary or usual may result in injury to the health of the user.

PAR. 6. The use by the respondent of the foregoing false and misleading advertisements, disseminated as aforesaid, has had and now has the tendency and capacity to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that the respondent's preparation possesses properties which it does not in fact possess, and that said preparation is in all cases safe and harmless, when such is not the fact. As a result of such erroneous and mistaken belief, the purchasing public has been induced to and has purchased substantial quantities of respondent's preparation.

PAR. 7. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on September 17, 1940, issued and subsequently served its complaint upon respondent, McK. Edwards, an individual, charging him with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of and in opposition to the allegations of said complaint were introduced before an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, the answer thereto, testimony and other evidence, report of the trial examiner and exceptions thereto, and brief in support of the complaint (respondent not having filed brief and oral argument not having been requested); and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPHS 1. Respondent, McK. Edwards, is an individual, residing and maintaining a place of business at Valley, Wash. The respondent is now, and since early in 1938 has been, engaged in the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of a medicinal preparation designated as "McK. Edwards Eczema Remedy." In the course and conduct of this business respondent causes said medicinal preparation, when sold, to be transported from his place of business in the State of Washington to purchasers thereof located in various States of the United States other than the State of Washington and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains, and has maintained, a course of trade in said medicinal preparation in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his aforesaid business respondent has disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning the said product by the United States mails and by various other means in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act; and respondent has also disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of, false advertisements concerning his said product, by various means, for the purpose of inducing and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of said product in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act.

Among and typical of the false, misleading, and deceptive statements and representations contained in said false advertisements disseminated and caused to be disseminated by the United States mails, by advertisements in newspapers and periodicals having a general circulation, and by pamphlets, circulars, and other printed or written matter, are the following:

FOR ECZEMA SUFFERERS

If you or any of your friends have burning itching eczema, I have a remedy that will give positive relief in a very short time.

 FOR GUARANTEED RELIEF OF ECZEMA * * * fungus poisoning, write McK. Edwards, Valley, Wash.

 This remedy is very effective, and will also relieve poison oak, poison ivy * * *.

 Symptoms: Eczema is caused by tiny microbes in the skin, and it is purely a skin disease, and with a powerful magnifying glass you can see the microbes crawling, under the skin, but it is not infectious nor contagious in any way. * * *

Treatment: Simply stay away from water and grease as much as possible. Use a little cotton swab, saturated with my remedy, over the affected parts five or six times daily, until new skin has formed, and the old crusted skin has peeled off. Thereafter, apply only when itching occurs. Be very persistent and do not neglect. It will burn some when first applied, but will very soon relieve the itching sensation, and this is the very important part, it is then that the remedy does its work. Do not use this remedy for tiny babies, as the burning is too severe, but do not hesitate to use it for yourself. Where instructions are properly followed, I have never known this remedy to fail.

* * * * *

I am offering you a proven remedy. I have healed up, and relieved, some of the worst kind of cases, and I have never known my remedy to fail. It will relieve you, too, if you will take advantage of this offer but all I can do is to make you a plain and fair offer, and I am sure that in your own opinion, that you would be willing to give the sum of $5.00 to relieve your itching, burning eczema. I have already healed with one bottle of my Remedy eczema cases, for which the patient had spent over $300, trying every other thing they could think of but got no results from them.

PAR. 3. By the use of the foregoing representations, and others of similar import not specifically set out herein, respondent has represented, and represents, that his said preparation constitutes a cure or remedy for eczema, poison oak, and poison ivy and that it possesses substantial therapeutic value in the treatment of such conditions; that eczema is caused by microbes in the skin and that a cure may be effected by destroying such microbes through the external application of respondent's preparation; and that said preparation is entirely safe and harmless except in the case of infants.

PAR. 4. Respondent's medicinal preparation designated as "McK. Edwards Eczema Remedy" is a solution of salicylic acid, alcohol, and water, containing a very small quantity of ethyl acetate. The proportion of salicylic acid in respondent's product varies somewhat from time to time, ranging between 10 and 15 percent, but the approximate proportion of salicylic acid is 13 percent; of ethyl acetate, three-tenths of 1 percent; and of alcohol, 67 percent.

Respondent's principal business is that of farming and sheep raising. In his youth respondent had a skin affection which at different times was treated with a salicylic acid solution by two different physicians. Respondent compounded or procured a salicylic acid solution prepared according to his recollection of the treatment previously given him and experimented with it on skin diseases of his sheep, later upon members of his family and neighbors, and finally, early in 1938, began advertising and marketing the product in the aforesaid manner.

The condition known as eczema may be due to one or more of a great variety of causes, some of which are not definitely known to the medical profession. The cause of eczema may be of an internal or systemic nature or of external origin. There are a number of different types of eczema, among which the most common are contact eczema caused by external irritation, allergic eczemas due to inherent individual idiosyncracies, fungus infections due to micro-organisms, and neurogenic eczemas due to nervous conditions. There is no single treatment or preparation which constitutes a cure or remedy for all forms of eczema. Respondent's preparation may constitute an effective treatment or remedy for eczema resulting from some varieties of fungus infections. In all other cases of eczema, including those due to fungus infections not susceptible of successful treatment by respondent's preparation, it does not constitute a cure or remedy and has no therapeutic value in excess of affording relief in some cases from the symptom of itching. Respondent's preparation is not a cure or remedy for oak or ivy poison and has no therapeutic value in the treatment of such conditions in excess of possible affording relief from the burning or itching symptoms.

PAR. 5. The advertisements disseminated by the respondent as aforesaid constitute false advertisements for the further reason that they fail to reveal facts material in the light of such representations, and material with respect to the consequences which may result from the use of respondent's product under the conditions prescribed in said advertisements or under such conditions as are customary and usual. Salicylic acid is frequently used in preparations for the treatment of certain types of skin affections or diseases, but customarily in much smaller proportion than is present in respondent's product. In proportions of 10 to 15 percent, as used in respondent's product, salicylic acid may have an excoriating effect upon the skin of the user, and upon certain individuals it may produce an acute and painful rash. The proportion of salicylic acid in respondent's product is such as to make it an irritant to the skin, and when used upon certain types and conditions of eczema may seriously aggravate the eczematous condition.

PAR. 6. The use by the respondent of the foregoing false and misleading advertisements disseminated as aforesaid has had, and now has, the tendency and capacity to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that the respondent's preparation possesses therapeutic properties which it does not in fact possess, and that said preparation, except for infants, is in all cases safe and harmless, when such is not the fact. As a result of such erroneous and mistaken belief, the purchasing public has been induced to purchase, and has purchased, substantial quantities of respondent's preparation.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission on the complaint of the Commission, the answer of respondent, testimony and other evidence in support of and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint taken before an examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, report of the trial examiner and exceptions thereto, and brief in support of the allegations of the complaint, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That respondent, McK. Edwards, an individual, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, or distribution of "McK. Edwards Eczema Remedy," or any other product of substantially similar composition or possessing substantially similar properties, whether sold under the same name or any other name, do forthwith cease and desist from directly or indirectly:

1. Disseminating or causing to be disseminated, by means of the United States mails or by any means in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, any advertisement

(A) Which represents, directly or through inference, that said preparation

(a) Is a cure or remedy for all types of eczema, or for any type of eczema except such as may be due to fungus infection, or has any therapeutic value in the treatment of eczema (except that due to fungus infection) in excess of affording relief in some cases from the symptom of itching.

(b) Is a cure or remedy for poison ivy or poison oak, or is a competent or effective treatment for, or has any therapeutic value in, the treatment of such conditions in excess of affording temporary relief from the symptom of itching.

(B) Which fails to reveal that the use of said preparation may in some cases produce an excoriating effect upon the skin of the user; or may produce an acute and painful rash upon the skin of the user; or may, if used on certain types and conditions of eczema, seriously aggravate the eczematous condition: Provided, however, That such advertisement need contain only the statement, "Caution, use only as directed" if and when the directions for use wherever they appear on the label, in the labeling, or both, contain warnings to the above effect.

(2) Disseminating or causing to be disseminated, by any means, any advertisement for the purpose of inducing, or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of said preparation in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, which advertisement contains any of the representations prohibited in paragraph 1 hereof, or which advertisement fails to reveal the dangerous consequences which may result from the use of said preparation as required in said paragraph 1 hereof.

Order

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within 60 days after the service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of the respondent, in which answer the respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and states that he waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

JOHN J. SCHOCKET, TRADING AS CONSUMERS
MERCANTILE SERVICE

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 4242. Complaint, Aug. 20, 1940—Decision, Feb. 16, 1942

Where an individual, engaged in competitive interstate sale and distribution of cameras, silverware, broilers, fishing tackle, and other merchandise—

Furnished various devices and plans of merchandising which involved the operation of games of chance, gift enterprises or lottery schemes in sale and distribution of such merchandise to ultimate consumers, and distribution to agents or operators and purchasing public of push cards and circulars explaining his plan of selling such merchandise and allotting it as premiums or prizes to the operators of the cards and the public, a typical plan providing that the person selecting that one of 79 feminine names displayed on card corresponding with name concealed under master seal received choice of certain articles of merchandise illustrated on attached or accompanying folder, and amount of money paid, if any, for chance was dependent upon number concealed by the disk, upon which appeared the name selected; and thereby

Supplied to and placed in the hands of others means of conducting lotteries in the sale of his merchandise in accordance with such sales plans, involving chance to procure article at much less than normal retail price, and under which fact as to whether purchaser received an article of merchandise or nothing for amount of money paid, or article free, was determined wholly by lot, contrary to the established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of criminal laws, and in competition with many who, unwilling to use any method involving game of chance or contrary to public policy, refrain therefrom;

With the result that many persons were attracted by said sales plan and the element of chance involved therein, and were thereby induced to buy and sell his merchandise in preference to that of his said competitors, whereby trade was unfairly diverted to him from them:

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that John J. Schocket, individually and trading as Consumers Mercantile Service, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the interest of the public, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

Respondent causes, and has caused said merchandise, when sold, to be transported from his aforesaid place of business in the State of Illinois to purchasers thereof, at their respective points of location, in various States of the United States other than Illinois and in the District of Columbia. There is now and for more than 1 year last past has been a course of trade by the respondent in such merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. In the course and conduct of his business, respondent is, and has been, in competition with other individuals and with partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of like or similar articles of merchandise in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent, in soliciting the sale of, and in selling and distributing his merchandise, furnishes and has furnished, various devices and plans of merchandising which involve the operation of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes, when said merchandise is sold and distributed to the ultimate consumer thereof. The method or sales plan adopted and used by respondent was and is substantially as follows:

gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. The sales plan or method involved in connection with the sale of all of said merchandise by means of said other push cards is the same as that hereinabove described, varying only in detail.

PAR. 3. The persons to whom respondent furnishes, and has furnished, the same push cards use the same in purchasing, selling and distributing respondent's merchandise in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan. Respondent thus supplies to, and places in the hands of, others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of his merchandise in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said sales plan or method in the sale of his merchandise and the sale of said merchandise by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plan or method is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws.

PAR. 4. The sale of merchandise to the purchasing public in the manner above alleged involved a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure an article of merchandise at a price much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations, who sell or distribute merchandise in competition with the respondent, as above alleged, are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance, or any other method that is contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of his merchandise and the element of chance involved therein, and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's merchandise in preference to merchandise offered for sale and sold by said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or an equivalent method. The use of said method by respondent, because of said game of chance, has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia to respondent from his said competitors who do not use the same or an equivalent method, and as a result thereof substantial injury is being, and has been, done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on August 20 A. D. 1940, issued and subsequently served its complaint upon the respondent, John J. Schocket, an individual, trading as Consumers Mercantile Service, charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint, testimony and other evidence in support of said complaint were introduced by L. P. Allen, Jr., J. V. Mishou, and J. W. Brookfield, attorneys for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by Arthur H. Schwab, attorney for the respondent, before W. W. Sheppard and A. B. Duvall, trial examiners of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission upon said complaint, testimony and other evidence, report of the trial examiners upon the evidence and exceptions filed thereto, and briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto (oral argument not having been requested); and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

One of respondent's push cards bears 79 feminine names, with ruled columns on the reverse side thereof for writing in the name of the customer opposite the feminine name selected. CONCLUSION

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

Complaint

IN THE MATTER OF

JOHN B. ARMSTRONG, M. D., TRADING AS PINK OINTMENT COMPANY

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 4622. Complaint, Oct. 31, 1941—Decision, Feb. 16, 1942

Where an individual, engaged in interstate sale and distribution of his "Pink Ointment"; by advertisements disseminated through radio continuities, in which were included purported testimonial statements—

(a) Represented, directly and by implication, that his said preparation was a cure and remedy for eczema, poison ivy, ringworm, rash, itch, weed poisoning, cuts, burns, bruises, athlete's foot, all kinds of skin irritation, chigger bites, mosquito bites, prickly heat, sunburn, hives, dust poisoning, poison oak, and sore, tender, itching, and burning feet, and a competent and effective treatment therefor;

When in fact it had no therapeutic value in said ailments and conditions in excess of affording temporary local relief due to its counterirritant, antipruritic and analgesic properties, and its antiseptic effect; repeated or continued use whereof to secure such relief might become dangerous; and

(b) Failed to reveal facts material in the light of aforesaid representations, or with respect to consequences which might result from use of product under usual or prescribed conditions, in that it contained sufficient phenol to be dangerous to health, and use thereof might cause a necrosis of the skin and tissues, and systemic poisoning, including irritation of the kidneys, danger of which would be increased if skin to which it was applied was inflamed or broken;

With effect of misleading and deceiving a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the mistaken belief that such false representations were true, and with the tendency and capacity to induce such public, because of its mistaken belief, to purchase substantial quantities of his said product;

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public, and constituted unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce.

Mr. Maurice C. Pearce for the Commission.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that John B. Armstrong, M. D., an individual, trading as Pink Ointment Co., hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, John B. Armstrong, M. D., is an individual, trading under the name of Pink Ointment Co., and has his principal place of business located at 521 Kansas Avenue, Topeka, Kans. He is now, and for more than 1 year last past, has been engaged in the business of preparing and offering for sale and selling a medicinal preparation designated as "Pink Ointment."

Respondent causes said medicinal preparation when sold to be transported from his place of business in the State of Kansas to the purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains and at all times herein mentioned has maintained a course of trade in his said medicinal preparation in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his aforesaid business, the respondent has disseminated and is now disseminating and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of advertisements concerning his said product by radio continuities, in commerce as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, and respondent has also disseminated and is now disseminating and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of false advertisements concerning his said product by radio continuities for the purpose of inducing and which are likely to induce directly or indirectly the purchase of his said product in commerce as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act. Among and typical of the false, misleading and deceptive statements and representations contained in the said advertisements disseminated and caused to be disseminated by radio continuities as hereinabove set out are the following:

About a year ago, I had a bad case of eczema on my hands and I used Pink Ointment to clear it up * * *. My son had a bad case of poison-ivy and he used the Pink Ointment and it cleared it up in no time at all.

* * * It is very effective, according to many reports, in the treatment of eczema, ringworm * * * rash and itch that has been caused by some outside source.

Pink Ointment is the only thing we ever used that helped our condition of weed poisoning.

For eczema * * *. cuts, burns, or bruises use Pink Ointment first and save yourself a lot of time and money.

It sure is the best ever for athlete's foot.

We have used Pink Ointment for all kinds of skin irritation. It is by far the best to be had on the market today.

Another danger that should be overcome is this—children get chigger bites, mosquito bites and poison-ivy—and prickly heat, then they scratch the skin's surface and as a result they develop a serious infection. The way to overcome this is to keep Pink Ointment in the medicine cabinet and use it as directed. Pink Ointment is recommended in the treatment of sunburn, itch, hives, rash, prickly heat, poison-ivy, weed poisoning, dust poisoning, poison-oak, and sore, tender, itching, and burning feet.

PAR. 3. Through the use of the statements and representations hereinabove set forth and others of similar import not specifically set out herein, all of which purport to be descriptive of the remedial, curative and therapeutic properties of respondent's preparation, respondent has represented and does now represent directly and by implication that his preparation is a cure and remedy for eczema, poison-ivy, ringworm, rash, itch, weed poisoning, cuts, burns, bruises, athlete's foot, all kinds of skin irritation, chigger bites, mosquito bites, prickly heat, sunburn, hives, dust poisoning, poison-oak, and sore, tender, itching, and burning feet, and that it is a competent and effective treatment therefor.

PAR. 4. The foregoing statements and representations disseminated as aforesaid are grossly exaggerated, false, and misleading. In truth and in fact, respondent's preparation is not a cure or remedy for eczema, poison-ivy, ringworm, rash, itch, weed poisoning, cuts, burns, bruises, athlete's foot, all kinds of skin irritation, chigger bites, mosquito bites, prickly heat, sunburn, hives, dust poisoning, poison-oak, and sore, tender, itching, and burning feet, nor is it a competent or effective treatment therefor. Furthermore, said preparation has no therapeutic value in excess of its antiseptic effect, and its effect in affording temporary, local relief due to its counter-irritant, anti-pruritic, and analgesic properties. Its use in order to secure such relief may be dangerous, and its repeated or continued use will increase such danger.

PAR. 5. The respondent's advertisements disseminated as aforesaid constitute false advertisements for the further reason that they fail to reveal facts material in the light of such representations, or material with respect to consequences which may result from the use of the preparation to which the advertisements relate under the conditions prescribed in said advertisements, or under such conditions as are customary or usual.

In truth and in fact, said preparation contains phenol in sufficient quantities to be dangerous to the health of the user. Its use may cause necrosis of the skin and tissues, and systemic poisoning, including irritation of the kidneys. The danger of such injury will be increased if the skin to which it is applied is inflamed or broken.

PAR. 6. The use by the respondent of the foregoing false, deceptive and misleading statements, representations, and advertisements disseminated as aforesaid with respect to the preparation "Pink Ointment" has had and now has the capacity of tendency to and does mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such false statements, representations, and advertisements are true, and has the tendency and capacity to induce a substantial portion of the purchasing public, because of such erroneous and mistaken belief to purchase substantial quantities of respondent's said preparation.

PAR. 7. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on October 31, 1941, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondent, John B. Armstrong, M. D., an individual, trading as Pink Ointment Company, charging him with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer, the Commission by order entered herein granted respondent's motion for permission to withdraw said answer and to substitute therefor an answer admitting all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, which substitute answer was duly filed in the office of the Commission. Thereafter this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the said complaint and substitute answer, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, John B. Armstrong, M. D., is an individual, trading under the name of Pink Ointment Co., and has his principal place of business located at 521 Kansas Avenue, Topeka, Kans. He is now, and for more than one year last past, has been engaged in the business of preparing and offering for sale and selling a medicinal preparation designated as "Pink Ointment."

Respondent causes said medicinal preparation when sold to be transported from his place of business in the State of Kansas to the purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent maintains and at all times herein mentioned has maintained a course of trade in his medicinal preparation in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his business, the respondent has disseminated and is now disseminating and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of advertisements concerning his product by radio continuities, in commerce as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, and respondent has also disseminated and is now disseminating, and has caused and is now causing the dissemination of false advertisements concerning his product by radio continuities for the purpose of inducing and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of his product in commerce as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act. Among and typical of the false, misleading, and deceptive statements and representations contained in the advertisements disseminated and caused to be disseminated by radio continuities as hereinabove set out are the following:

About a year ago, I had a bad case of eczema on my hands and I used Pink Ointment to clear it up. * * * My son had a bad case of poison-ivy and he used the Pink Ointment and it cleared it up in no time at all.

* * * it is very effective, according to many reports, in the treatment of eczema, ringworm * * * rash and itch that has been caused by some outside source.

Pink Ointment is the only thing we ever used that helped our condition of weed poisoning.

For eczema * * *. cuts, burns, or bruises use Pink Ointment first and save yourself a lot of time and money.

We have used Pink Ointment for all kinds of skin irritation. It is by far the best to be had on the market today.

The way to overcome this is to keep Pink Ointment in the medicine cabinet and use it as directed. Pink Ointment is recommended in the treatment of sunburn, itch, hives, rash, prickly heat, poison-ivy, weed poisoning, dust poisoning, poison-oak and sore, tender, itching and burning feet.

PAR. 3. Through the use of the statements and representations hereinabove set forth and others of similar import not specifically set out herein, all of which purport to be descriptive of the remedial, curative and therapeutic properties of respondent's preparation, respondent has represented and does now represent directly and by implication that his preparation is a cure and remedy for eczema.

poison-ivy, ringworm, rash, itch, weed poisoning, cuts, burns, bruises, athlete's foot, all kinds of skin irritation, chigger bites, mosquito bites, prickly heat, sunburn, hives, dust poisoning, poison-oak, and sore, tender, itching, and burning feet, and that it is a competent and effective treatment therefor.

PAR. 4. The foregoing statements and representations disseminated as aforesaid are grossly exaggerated, false, and misleading. In truth and in fact, respondent's preparation is not a cure or remedy for eczema, poison-ivy, ringworm, rash, itch, weed poisoning, cuts, burns, bruises, athlete's foot, all kinds of skin irritation, chigger bites, mosquito bites, prickly heat, sunburn, hives, dust poisoning, poison-oak, and sore, tender, itching, and burning feet, nor is it a competent or effective treatment therefor. Furthermore, his preparation has no therapeutic value in excess of its antiseptic effect, and its effect in affording temporary, local relief due to its counterirritant, antipruritic and analgesic properties. Its use in order to secure such relief may be dangerous, and its repeated or continued use will increase such danger.

PAR. 5. The respondent's advertisements disseminated as aforesaid constitute false advertisements for the further reason that they fail to reveal facts material in the light of such representations, or material with respect to consequences which may result from the use of the preparation to which the advertisements relate under the conditions prescribed in such advertisements, or under such conditions as are customary or usual.

In truth and in fact, respondent's preparation contains phenol in sufficient quantities to be dangerous to the health of the user. Its use may cause necrosis of the skin and tissues, and systematic poisoning, including irritation of the kidneys. The danger of such injury will be increased if the skin to which it is applied is inflamed or broken.

PAR. 6. The use by the respondent of the foregoing false, deceptive, and misleading statements, representations and advertisements disseminated as aforesaid with respect to the preparation "Pink Ointment" has had and now has the capacity and tendency to and does mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such false statements, representations, and advertisements are true, and has the tendency and capacity to induce a substantial portion of the purchasing public, because of such erroneous and mistaken belief to purchase substantial quantities of respondent's preparation.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission and the answer of respondent, in which answer respondent admits all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint, and states that he waives all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

It is ordered, That John B. Armstrong, M. D., an individual, trading as Pink Ointment Co., or under any other name, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, or distribution of his product, Pink Ointment, or any other product containing the same or similar ingredients, whether sold under the same name or any other name, do forthwith cease and desist from:

2. Disseminating, or causing to be disseminated, any advertisement by any means, for the purpose of inducing, or which is likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, of said preparation, which advertisement contains any of the representations prohibited in paragraph 1 hereof, or which fails to reveal the affirmative cautionary statement required in paragraph 1 hereof.

It is further ordered, That respondent shall, within 60 days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.

Where a corporation and its exclusive sales agent engaged in interstate sale and distribution of former's "BonKora" preparation, offered as a reducing agent and obesity treatment; by advertisements in newspapers, periodicals, pamphlets, circulars and other advertising literature of general circulation, and by radio broadcasts—

The facts being said product, a saline cathartic containing magnesium sulphate and buckthorn and cascara bark, would not accomplish the results claimed therefor, and might be used with safety only for the temporary evacuation of the bowels; repetitious use might result in dependence upon a laxative; contrary to being harmless, use thereof by one suffering from nausea, vomiting, abdominal pains or other symptoms of appendicitis was dangerous; and

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, Battle Creek Drugs, Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Michigan, and maintaining its principal office and place of business in the First National Bank Building in the city of Battle Creek, State of Michigan. The respondent, Consolidated Royal Chemical Corporation, is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Delaware, and maintaining its principal office and place of business at 544 South Wells Street, in the city of Chicago, State of Illinois. PAR. 2. The respondents are now, and for more than 3 years last past have been, engaged in the business of selling and distributing a drug preparation designated "BonKora," which preparation has been offered for sale and sold by respondents, as a reducing agent and as a treatment for obesity. The respondent Battle Creek Drugs, Inc., causes said preparation to be made up or manufactured for it in Detroit, Mich., according to the said respondent's formula. The said respondent then causes said product to be transported from Detroit, Mich., to its exclusive sales agent, in Chicago, Ill., the respondent, Consolidated Royal Chemical Corporation, trading as Consolidated Drug Trade Products. The respondents have caused and now cause, said preparation, when sold, to be transported from the place of business of respondent Consolidated Royal Chemical Corporation in Chicago, Ill., to purchasers thereof located in various States of the United States other than the State of Illinois, and in the District of Columbia. The respondents maintain, and at all times mentioned herein have maintained, a course of trade in said preparation in commerce among and between the several States of the United States, and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. Through the use of the statements and representations hereinabove set forth, and other similar statements and representations not specifically set out herein, which purport to be descriptive of the therapeutic value of respondents' preparation "BonKora" and of the benefits to be derived from its use, the respondents represent, directly and by implication, that said "BonKora" is a popular cocktail preparation; that it is preparation which, if taken as directed, will relieve obesity and reduce excess fat without the aid of a starvation diet; that the use of said preparation will reduce fat from designated parts of the body, such as the hips, waist and bust and reduce the measurements of such parts of the body; and that said preparation contains no dangerous drugs and may be taken repetitiously with safety.

PAR. 5. The foregoing advertisements and representations, and others similar thereto but not specifically set out herein, are grossly exaggerated, false, and misleading.

In truth and in fact respondents' preparation "BonKora" is not a popular cocktail preparation. It is not a preparation which, if taken as directed, will relieve obesity and excess fat without the aid of a starvation diet. The use of said preparation will not reduce fat from designated parts of the body, such as the hips, waist, and bust and will not reduce the measurements of such parts of the body. Said preparation does contain drugs which may be dangerous under certain conditions or if used repetitiously.

PAR. 6. The respondents' advertisements disseminated as aforesaid constitute false advertisements for the further reason that they fail to reveal facts material in the light of such representations, or material with respect to consequences which may result from the use of the preparation to which the advertisements relate under the conditions prescribed in said advertisements, or under such conditions as are customary or usual.

In truth and in fact said preparation "BonKora" is a saline cathartic containing magnesium sulphate, supplemented by the laxative action of buckthorn bark and cascara bark, and may be used with safety only for the temporary evacuation of the bowels. Its repetitious use may be habit-forming in that the user may become dependent upon a laxative for the evacuation of the bowels. Furthermore, said advertisements are false and misleading in that they represent "BonKora" as a harmless cocktail preparation, whereas its use, by one suffering from nausea, vomiting, abdominal pains, or other symptoms of appendicitis, is dangerous.

PAR. 7. The use by said respondents of the foregoing false, deceptive and misleading representations and advertisements, and others of similar nature disseminated as aforesaid, has had, and now has the tendency and capacity to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such false representations and advertisements are true, and has caused, and now causes a substantial portion of the purchasing public, because of such erroneous and mistaken belief, to purchase respondents' preparation "BonKora."

PAR. 8. The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on July 17, 1941, issued and thereafter served its complaint in this proceeding upon said respondents, Battle Creek Drugs, Inc., and Consolidated Royal Chemical Corporation, trading as Consolidated Drug Trade Products and as BonKora Co., charging them with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On August 6, 1941, the respondents filed their answer in this proceeding. Thereafter, a stipulation was entered into whereby it was stipulated and agreed that a statement of facts signed and executed by the respondent Battle Creek Drugs, Inc., and its counsel, Rosen, Francis and Cleveland and by respondent Consolidated Royal Chemical Corporation by James Hirshfield, its president, and Richard P. Whiteley, Assistant Chief Counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, subject to the approval of the Commission, may be taken as the facts in this proceeding and in lieu of testimony in support of the charges stated in the complaint, or in opposition thereto, and that the said Commission may proceed upon said statement of facts to make its report, stating its findings as to the facts and its conclusion based thereon and enter its order disposing of the proceeding without the presentation of argument or the filing of briefs. Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said complaint, answer and stipulation, said stipulation having been approved, accepted and filed, and the Commission having duly considered the same and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. The respondent, Battle Creek Drugs, Inc., is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Michigan, and maintaining its principal office and place of business in the First National Bank Building, in the city of Battle Creek, State of Michigan. The respondent, Consolidated Royal Chemical Corporation, is a corporation organized, existing, and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Delaware, and maintaining its principal office and place of business at 544 South Wells Street, in the City of Chicago, State of Illinois. The respondent, Consolidated Royal Chemical Corporation, is trading and doing business under the name Consolidated Drug Trade Products and also under the name BonKora Co.

PAR. 2. The respondent, Consolidated Royal Chemical Corporation, is now, and for more than three years last past, has been engaged in the business of selling and distributing a drug preparation designated "BonKora," which preparation has been offered for sale and sold by said respondent, Consolidated Royal Chemical Corporation, as a reducing agent and as a treatment for obesity. The said respondent, Battle Creek Drugs, Inc., until May 17, 1940, caused said preparation to be made up or manufactured for it in Detroit, Mich., according to said respondent's formula. The said respondent, Battle Creek Drugs, Inc., until the said May 17, 1940, then caused said product to be transported from Detroit, Mich., to its exclusive sales agent in Chicago, Ill., the respondent, Consolidated Royal Chemical Corporation, trading as Consolidated Drug Trade Products. The respondents have maintained a course of trade in said preparation in commerce among and between the several States of the United States, and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of their aforesaid business, the respondents have disseminated, and have caused the dissemination of, advertisements concerning their said preparation by the United States mails and by various other means in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act; and respondents have also disseminated, and have caused the dissemination of, advertisements concerning their said preparation, by various means, for the purpose of inducing, and which are likely to induce, directly or indirectly, the purchase of their said preparation in commerce, as commerce is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act. Among and typical of the misleading and deceptive statements and representations contained in said advertisements, disseminated and caused to be disseminated, as hereinbefore set forth, by the United States mails, by advertisements in newspapers and periodicals, by pamphlets, circulars, and other advertising literature of general circulation, and by broadcasts from radio stations with sufficient power to convey the programs emanating therefrom into the various States of the United States, are the following:

ration; that it is a preparation which, if taken as directed, will relieve obesity and reduce excess fat without the aid of a starvation diet; that the use of said preparation will reduce fat from designated parts of the body, such as the hips, waist, and bust and reduce the measurements of such parts of the body; and that said preparation contains no dangerous drugs and may be taken repetitiously with safety.

PAR 5. The foregoing advertisements and representations are grossly exaggerated and misleading.

Respondents' preparation "BonKora" is not a popular cocktail preparation. It is not a preparation which, if taken as directed, will relieve obesity and excess fat without the aid of a starvation diet. The use of said preparation will not reduce fat from designated parts of the body such as the hips, waist, and bust and will not reduce the measurements of such parts of the body. Said preparation does contain drugs which may be dangerous under certain conditions or if used repetitiously.

PAR. 6. The respondents' advertisements disseminated as aforesaid constitute misleading advertisements for the further reason that they fail to reveal facts material in the light of such representations, or material with respect to consequences which may result from the use of the preparation to which the advertisements relate under the conditions prescribed in said advertisements, or under such conditions as are customary or usual.

Although the respondents' advertisements make reference to "the delicious foods as shown in the BonKora package" and a cautionary warning appears on the package in close proximity to such list referred to in respondents' advertisements, such advertisements contain no adequate or sufficient warning to apprise the reader thereof of the dangerous possibility involved in the use of said preparation or to specifically direct the reader's attention to the cautionary statement on the package.

The preparation "BonKora" is a saline cathartic containing magnesium sulphate, supplemented by the laxative action of buckthorn bark and cascara bark, and may be used with safety only for the temporary evacuation of the bowels. Its repetitious use may be habit-forming in that the user may become dependent upon a laxative for the evacuation of the bowels. PAR. 7. The use by said respondents of the foregoing deceptive and misleading representations and advertisements has had and now has the tendency and capacity to, and does, mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such representations and advertisements are true, and has caused a substantial portion of the purchasing public, because of such erroneous and mistaken belief, to purchase respondents' preparation "BonKora."

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondents as herein found are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

IN THE MATTER OF
THE HARDWOOD INSTITUTE, ET AL.COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION
OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914*Docket 3418. Complaint, June 15, 1938¹—Decision, Feb. 20, 1942*

Where a substantial number of corporations, associated in an unincorporated organization or institute, engaged in the manufacture and interstate sale and distribution of hardwood lumber and its products; producing about 37 percent of the hardwood lumber produced in Wisconsin and Michigan, and a larger percentage of that produced in Northern Wisconsin and Northern Michigan, and, prior to acts and practices below set forth, in active and substantial competition with each other and with other manufacturers and dealers;

In pursuance of a plan to establish and maintain a system of minimum prices governing the sale of their products, and following the entering into of agreements with an individual of long experience and standing in the industry, who thereafter became manager and secretary of their said association, and pursuant to which they undertook to submit to him for his distribution among the members full details as to their respective sales and prices and related matters, and to give to him or his agent access to their records and files, and such assistance as he might request in said connection; acting in concert and cooperation with one another and with their said organization or institute—

- (a) Discussed at their meetings called by said individual from time to time, among other matters pertaining to the hardwood lumber market, available supply and demand, prices quoted and received by members and other sellers, future price quotations, and whether current quotations in price lists compiled and issued by said secretary should be changed to accord with participants' views as to prices which could be obtained;
- (b) Followed, usually, in preparing their own price lists for distribution, the new price list prepared by said secretary who was in effect their joint agent in reconciling differences of opinion, and whose list represented a meeting of their minds as to the minimum prices they should seek; and, in the case of some, prepared no separate lists, but merely inserted their own names on his list, and distributed among their salesmen copies thereof;
- (c) Placed in the hands not only of their customers but also of other manufacturers and sellers such list, which, in some instances, specified that lower prices should not be quoted or charged, and which said secretary, in addition to supplying trade journals therewith, furnished to a Minneapolis printing concern which, adding certain minor material, published it as its "Standard Price List";
- (d) Adhered to and maintained the prices set by said Standard Price List as a minimum for their quotations, and frequently a minimum for their actual sales transactions, and through said secretary questioned those who departed therefrom;

- (e) Established a system of uniform "delivered" prices, published in itemized price lists, through using the same f. o. b. quotation at a common point, and basing freight calculations on fiction that all shipments originated there; as an incident to which it charged and received larger net amounts from buyers located at points nearer the place of production than from more distant buyers, with the result that net price returns to manufacturers and shippers varied, depending upon whether the actual freight rate from the mill to destination was greater or less than the rate from the basing point to such destination;
- (f) Used a system of uniform or standardized weights which were set forth in aforesaid "Standard Price List" to obviate the effect upon delivered prices of variations in weight between shipments of lumber supposed to contain the same number of board feet, due primarily to the degree of dryness and grain of the lumber and the way in which it was sawed;
- (g) Did not, in calculating delivered prices, restrict themselves to the use of the applicable freight rate from basing point to destination, but in some instances agreed upon and incorporated in their delivered price quotations other arbitrary freight rate factors, designating certain market areas as price zones and using uniform delivered price quotations for all shipments moving to any point in such zones, despite the fact that the actual freight rates from any given place of shipment to various destinations therein varied substantially; and from time to time changed and increased such arbitrary freight factors;
- (h) Cooperated with each other and with others in formulating, adopting, and using uniform business practices, terms, and conditions of sale, including discounts and other wholesalers' allowances, for the purpose, and with the effect, of producing uniformity in price quotations; and
- (i) Followed practice, usually, or quoting prices, terms and conditions of sale f. o. b. point of production only when they were equal to a base price plus a freight rate factor from a basing point to the delivery point:

Tendency, capacity and effect of which understanding, combination, and conspiracy, and acts done in furtherance thereof, were to suppress, restrain, eliminate, and lessen competition in sale of hardwood lumber and production thereof in commerce, and to increase prices thereof to purchasers and users of such commodities, and unreasonably to restrict and restrain trade therein:
Held, That such acts and practices, as above set forth, were all to the prejudice of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce.

Before Mr. Robert S. Hall, trial examiner.

Mr. Merle P. Lyon and Mr. Everette MacIntyre for the Commission.

Mr. John Walsh and Mr. Louis A. Spiess, of Washington, D. C., and Mr. Edward J. Dempsey, of Oshkosh, Wis., for respondents.

AMENDED COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that the respondents named herein have violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the

The respondent, The Yawkey-Alexander Lumber Co., is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Wisconsin, with its principal office and place of business at Schofield, Wis.

The aforesaid 24 corporations, hereinafter for convenience referred to as respondent members, are now or have been members of the said respondent Hardwood Institute. The membership of said respondent Institute varies from time to time as the result of the dropping out of old and the addition of new members, and they constitute a class so numerous and fluctuating that it is impracticable at any given time to name as parties respondent and bring before the Commission each and all of said members without manifest inconvenience and delay, and the respondent members named are made parties respondent individually and separately, and as representatives of each and all other members as a class.

The members of said respondent Hardwood Institute are all engaged as dealers and manufacturers in the business of producing, buying, selling and distributing to wholesalers, contractors, builders, dealers, jobbers, furniture manufacturers, consumers, and other purchasers, hardwood lumber, lumber products, building material, and supplies.

PAR. 2. The members of said Institute, in the course and conduct of their business, sell their hardwood lumber, after same has been manufactured by them in their respective mills, largely to furniture manufacturers, and similar users of hardwood lumber, and cause such lumber to be shipped and transported to warehouses and places of business and to customers located in States other than the State where said lumber has been produced, and in States other than the State where the respective shipments originate. In the course and conduct of the business of the members of said Institute, as hereinabove described, respondents have been and are engaged in trade and commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and in the production, sale, and distribution of hardwood lumber, lumber products, building materials, and supplies.

Before the adoption of the understandings, agreements, combinations, and conspiracies hereinafter alleged, respondent members of said Institute were in active and substantial competition with each other and with other manufacturers, nonmembers, and other dealers in making, or seeking to make, sales of lumber and building materials in commerce between, among, in, and with the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, and, but for the facts hereinafter alleged, such active and substantial competition would have continued to the present time.

PAR. 3. The said members of said Institute constitute a large and important part of the producers of and dealers in hardwood lumber and building materials in the States of Wisconsin and Michigan, and constitute a group so large and influential in the trade as to be able to control and influence the flow of trade and commerce in lumber and building materials within, to, and from the States of Wisconsin and Michigan. Said members as allied and banded together in said Institute, are enabled thereby to more effectively exercise control and influence over such trade and commerce for the promotion and enhancement of their own volume of trade and profits.

Respondent Hardwood Institute was organized on or about February 1, 1928, for the purpose of eliminating price competition among its members and of fixing and maintaining stabilized and identical delivered prices at each given destination of hardwood lumber produced and manufactured in the States of Wisconsin and Michigan; and subsequent thereto the respondent members of said Institute, acting through and by means of respondent Institute, and respondent A. L. Osborn, as its manager and secretary, entered into and thereafter carried out understandings, agreements, combinations, and conspiracies as hereinafter more particularly set out, for the purpose and with the effect of unlawfully restricting, restraining, monopolizing, suppressing, and eliminating price competition in the production and manufacture of hardwood lumber and building materials and the sale thereof in trade and commerce between, among, in, and with the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. The members of said Institute are banded and allied together to carry into effect the program and practices hereinbelow described and to enhance and promote the volume of trade, business, and profits of said respondent members. The said Institute, A. L. Osborn, individually and as manager and secretary of said Institute, and its respondent members hereinbefore more particularly set out, have agreed, conspired, combined, and confederated together and with others, and are agreeing, conspiring, combining, and confederating together and with others, and have united in and are uniting in, and have pursued, and are pursuing, a common and concerted course of action and undertaking among themselves and with others:

1. To fix and maintain the price of hardwood lumber manufactured and sold by members of the Institute; by means of

(a) Daily reports made to the secretary of the Institute by the respondent members thereof on forms supplied by the Institute.

(b) The tabulation thereof by the secretary of the Institute.

(c) The issuance semiweekly of confidential reports to the respondent members by the secretary of the Institute showing the base prices received by each respondent member for each individual item of lumber sold during the period of the reports, and comparing same with so-called established list prices.

(d) The holding of informal meetings of members of the Institute at the call of the secretary at irregular intervals, approximately once a month, for the purpose of discussing prices, market trends, and other matters concerning the lumber industry and of arriving at agreements relative thereto by members of the Institute.

(e) The preparation and publication of a monthly base price list by the secretary of the Institute subsequent to the said monthly meeting of the members thereof, which price list is distributed only to the members of the Institute, and is reprinted by them on their own stationery and becomes the list of base prices at which the various members of the Institute are required to sell their lumber.

(f) The promulgation of the base prices fixed by the Institute to the general public by means of anonymous price lists sent by the secretary of the Institute to the Broughton Publishing Co. at Minneapolis,

Complaint

34 F. T. C.

Minn., and printed independently by the latter company and distributed generally by it throughout the United States as being the established list base prices of the hardwood lumber industry.

(g) Coercion, pressure, and publicity brought to bear on all members of the lumber industry and particularly on members of the Institute to abide by and follow the base prices as set forth in the said price lists in the sale of lumber and lumber products.

2. To divert business and trade in lumber and building materials from dealers and manufacturers who are noncooperative or nonmembers of said Institute, for the purpose of enabling or assisting the members of said Institute to appropriate and acquire the patronage and trade of such noncooperative or nonmember dealers and manufacturers, and to monopolize such trade and business in members of said Institute.

PAR. 5. The said Hardwood Institute and its members, and A. L. Osborn, in his individual capacity as well as in his capacity as manager and secretary of said Institute, have agreed, combined, confederated, and conspired together for the purpose and with the intent of carrying out the aforesaid program; and they have been and are now engaged in carrying into effect and maintaining said program and the said agreement, combination, confederation, conspiracy, and undertaking as set forth in paragraph 4 of this complaint. For the purpose of effecting and carrying out the said program and said agreement, combination, federation, conspiracy, and undertaking the Institute, its secretary, and its respondent members, among other things, have done and are doing the following:

(a) Exacted and procured promises and agreements from each member of said Institute to the effect that such members will support, adhere to, and enforce the foregoing program of respondents as set forth in paragraph 4 hereof.

(b) Used and continue to use, in concert and agreement among themselves and with others, coercive and concerted action, boycott, threats of boycott, and other united action against other manufacturers, producers, and dealers to induce and require them, and to attempt so to induce and require them, to agree and conform to and to support and enforce the said program of said Institute.

(c) Held meetings of members, officers, and directors of said Institute to devise means of exerting influence, pressure, coercion, or other means of inducing, coercing, and requiring manufacturers, producers, distributors, and others engaged in said lumber industry to abide by, and adhere to, said program.

(d) Agreed to fix and maintain, and do fix and maintain, uniform base prices for their products.

(e) Agreed to fix and maintain, and do fix and maintain, minimum base prices for said products.

(f) Agreed to fix and maintain, and do fix and maintain, uniform maximum discounts which are allowed in the sale of said products.

(g) Agreed to fix and maintain, and do fix and maintain, uniform terms and conditions, including but without limitation, brokerage fees, freight, and other allowances, in the sale of said products.

(h) Agreed to file, and do file, with the secretary of respondent Institute, daily reports showing the base prices received by respondent members in the sale of said products, including discounts and the terms and conditions of all sales at which said members will and do sell said products.

(i) Agreed to use and engage in, and have used and engaged in, other cooperative concerted acts and practices, coercive methods and policies, in promoting, establishing, and carrying out said understandings, agreements, combinations, and conspiracies of said respondent members, acting through and by means of respondent Institute, its members, officers, and agents, for the purpose of suppressing and preventing competition and restricting and restraining the sale of hardwood lumber and building materials in trade and commerce between, among, in and with the several States of the United States.

(j) The respondent Institute collects from and disseminates among the respondent members information as to prices, discounts, and terms and conditions of sale, and other information used and useful in carrying out said undertaking. Said respondent members and the respondent Institute and its secretary have adopted and agreed upon detailed rules and regulations designed and intended to prevent deviation on the part of respondent members from the prices, discounts, and terms and conditions of sale announced by such members.

PAR. 6. Each of said respondents has acted and is now acting in concert and in cooperation with one or more of the other respondents and with the respondent Institute in doing and performing the acts and things hereinabove alleged in furtherance of said understandings, agreements, combinations, and conspiracies.

PAR. 7. The capacity, tendency, and effect of said agreement, combination, conspiracy, confederation, and undertaking, and the said acts and practices of respondents, as set forth in paragraphs 4 and 5 hereof, have been, and are:

(a) To monopolize, in the members of said Institute in the States of Wisconsin and Michigan, the business of dealing in and distributing hardwood lumber and building materials.

(b) To unreasonably lessen, eliminate, restrain, stifle, hamper, and suppress competition in the said hardwood lumber and building materials trade and industry, and to deprive the purchasing and consuming public of advantages in price, service, and other considerations which they would receive and enjoy under conditions of normal and unobstructed, or free and fair, competition in said trade and industry; and otherwise to operate as a restraint upon, and a detriment to, the freedom of fair and legitimate competition in such trade and industry.

(c) To substantially increase the cost to purchasers of such hardwood lumber and building materials, and consequently to increase the cost of furniture and the cost of construction, repair, maintenance, and remodeling of homes, dwellings, buildings, highways, and all kinds of construction and building works.

(d) To oppress, eliminate, and discriminate against nonmembers of said Institute who are or have been engaged in selling, distributing, manufacturing, or using hardwood lumber and building materials.

(e) To obstruct, hamper, and interfere with the normal and natural flow of trade and commerce in hardwood lumber and building materials in, to, and from the States of Wisconsin and Michigan, and to injure competitors of the members of said Institute.

PAR. 8. The acts and practices of the respondents as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public; have a tendency to and have hindered and prevented price competition between and among said member respondents in the sale of hardwood lumber and building materials in commerce between, among, in and with the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia; have placed in respondents the power to control and enhance prices; have increased the prices of hardwood lumber and building materials to the purchasers and users thereof, have tended to create in the respondents a monopoly in the sale of hardwood lumber and building materials in said commerce; have unreasonably restricted and restrained trade in said commerce in hardwood lumber and building materials, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on June 15, 1938, issued and subsequently served its amended complaint in this proceeding upon the respondents named in the caption hereof, charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the filing of the respondents' answers to said complaint, testimony and other evidence in support of the allegations of said complaint were introduced by attorneys for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of said complaint by attorneys for the respondents, before Robert S. Hall, trial examiner of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, which testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission.

Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for hearing before the Commission on said amended complaint and the answers thereto, testimony, and other evidence, report of the trial examiner upon the evidence, briefs in support of and in opposition to the complaint and oral argument, and the Commission having duly considered the matter, on May 23, 1941, directed that the proceeding be reopened for the purpose of taking such further testimony and other evidence as might be offered in support of and in opposition to the allegations of said complaint. Thereafter a stipulation as to certain facts was entered into between W. T. Kelley, Chief Counsel for the Commission, and Edward J. Dempsey, attorney for the respondents (except respondents A. L. Osborn, Kinzel Lumber Co., Menominee & Bay Shore Lumber Co., and Northwestern Cooperage & Lumber Co.), which provided, among other things, that, subject to the approval of the Commission, such statement of facts might be made a part of the record herein and might be taken as facts in this proceeding and in lieu of further testimony in support of or in opposition to the charges stated in the complaint, and that the Commission might proceed upon the entire record, including said statement of stipulated facts, to make its report, stating its findings as to the facts (including inferences which it might draw from the entire record, the admissions made by representatives of the respondents in the pleadings and as otherwise disclosed by the record and by said statement of stipulated facts), and its conclusion based thereon, and might enter its order disposing of the proceeding without the presentation of further argument or the filing of additional briefs.

Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on said amended complaint, answers, testimony and other evidence, and stipulation, such stipulation having been approved, accepted, and filed, and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public, and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

PAR. 2. The aforesaid 24 corporations, hereinafter for convenience referred to as respondent members, for a period of several years prior to the date of the issuance of the amended complaint in this case, June 15, 1938, had maintained membership in the respondent Hardwood Institute. On June 15, 1938, 22 of these corporations maintained membership in the Institute, the Northwestern Cooperage & Lumber Co., and the M. J. Wallrich Land & Lumber Co. having ceased manufacturing and selling lumber prior thereto. Since that date the following respondent members have ceased manufacturing hardwood lumber because their timber holdings were exhausted: The Brownlee Lumber Co., Holt Lumber Co., Kinzel Lumber Co., Menominee & Bay Shore Lumber Co., Weidman Lumber Co., and the Sawyer-Goodman Co.

The other members of the respondent Institute are all engaged as manufacturers in the business of producing, selling, and distributing to wholesalers, contractors, builders, dealers, jobbers, furniture manufacturers, consumers, and other purchasers, hardwood lumber, and the products thereof. In the course and conduct of their business they sell hardwood lumber, after it has been manufactured by them in their respective mills, to furniture manufacturers and similar users of hardwood lumber, and cause such lumber and the products thereof to be shipped and transported to warehouses and places of business and to customers located in States other than the State where said lumber has been produced, and in States other than the State where the respective shipments originate.

In the course and conduct of their business all of the respondent members are now or have been engaged in trade and commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia in the production, sale, and distribution of hardwood lumber and the products thereof.

PAR. 3. Until the adoption of the understanding, agreement, combination, and conspiracy hereinafter described, respondent members were inactive and substantial competition with each other and with other manufacturers and dealers in making or seeking to make sales of hardwood lumber and the products thereof in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 4. The Hardwood Institute had its beginning in the early part of 1928, when a committee representing a group of hardwood lumber manufacturers proposed to respondent, A. L. Osborn, that he assume the task of tabulating and compiling information with respect to the hardwood lumber market and supplying such information to the members of the group. Osborn had had many years of experience in the hardwood lumber industry and was widely recognized throughout the industry as possessing unusual knowledge and ability with respect to the production and marketing of lumber. The committee's negotiations with Osborn resulted in an agreement to which some 30 manufacturers subscribed at that time. Under the plan of operation agreed upon each manufacturer was to report to Osborn daily all of its sales of lumber, and Osborn was to compile these reports into general sales bulletins which were to be supplied by Osborn to all of the manufacturers entering into the agreement. Osborn was to receive as compensation for his services 8 cents for each thousand feet of lumber sold by the manufacturers. The written form of agreement adopted was as follows:

The undersigned agrees with A. L. Osborn that it will hereafter report without exception all of its orders for hardwood lumber to him daily in full detail on the order blank hereto attached and made a part hereof, or on an equivalent form giving the same information.

Findings

34 F. T. C.

The undersigned assents to these orders being tabulated to show the price received on sales made by the undersigned for each individual item and hereby assents to such prices being incorporated in a report to be issued semiweekly to other firms signing a concurrent agreement with the following exception:

If the undersigned feels in certain isolated cases that it has good and sufficient reason for not desiring a particular order to be shown in the aforesaid semiweekly report, it shall advise A. L. Osborn of that fact and the said A. L. Osborn will confer with the undersigned on the propriety of not showing said sale in said report, and he shall not publish the same without the consent of the undersigned.

The undersigned hereby assents to A. L. Osborn or his agent having access to its records, files, papers, and correspondence pertaining to orders taken by it for hardwood lumber and agrees to give him or his agent such assistance as may be requested in the examination of said records and files.

The undersigned assents to the information it furnishes as mentioned above being duplicated in said semiweekly reports and furnished to those who make agreements similar to this with A. L. Osborn, said information to be held in confidence by those who make such agreements and/or their sales managers.

The undersigned reserves the right to cancel this agreement on ten (10) days' notice to A. L. Osborn.

Between February 1, 1928, and November 1, 1933, all of the respondent members, except William Bonifas Lumber Co., entered into this agreement. While the William Bonifas Lumber Co. never executed the written form of agreement, it did, during the period from the abandonment of the NRA Code to June 15, 1938, report its sales to Osborn and otherwise utilized the services of Osborn in the same manner and to the same extent as did the other respondent members.

So far as the record discloses, there was never any formal adoption by respondents of the name Hardwood Institute to designate their organization and activities. Within some 2 or 3 years, however, the name had come into fairly general use among respondents and in the industry generally.

PAR. 5. In accordance with their agreement the respondent members have opened their books of account and other records for examination by Osborn and have made daily reports to him covering all of their sales. Such reports were usually made on blank forms prepared by Osborn, although in some instances certain of the respondents have simply sent Osborn copies of their invoices. These reports showed in detail each separate sale, giving the name of the purchaser; the items, sizes, and quantities of the lumber involved, the terms and conditions of sale, and the price at which the lumber was sold. Upon receipt of the reports Osborn proceeded to incorporate the information contained therein in general sales bulletins which were distributed to the respondent members and other sellers of hardwood lumber and the products thereof. The frequency of issuance of these bulletins depended upon market conditions. If the market was active and the volume of sales large, a bulletin might be issued every second day. If, however, there was little activity in the market, as much as a week might elapse between bulletins. The bulletins showed the grade of the lumber sold, the name of the manufacturer reporting the order, whether the purchaser was a wholesaler, retailer, consumer, etc., any commission or concession allowed the purchaser, the destination of the shipment, the freight rate from the mill to destination, the freight rate from Wausau, Wis., to destination, the delivered price received and the current delivered list price, figured from Wausau, irrespective of the location of the point from which it was proposed that shipments be made. Adjoining columns showed the difference, if any, between the delivered price received and the list price on such lumber as shown by the Institute's current delivered price list. Through the reporting and exchanging of information in this manner the respondent members were able to secure a collective comparison among themselves of the prices obtained by the various respondent members for their products, and each respondent member was enabled to compare such prices with its own price quotations.

PAR. 6. Meetings of the members of the Institute were called by Osborn from time to time, usually every month or every 6 weeks, depending upon the activity of the market. While the meetings were usually open only to members of the Institute, occasionally Osborn would invite outsiders to attend. Aside from Osborn, who was regarded by the members as the Institute's manager and secretary, and who presided at the meetings, the Institute had no officers. No minutes or other records of the meetings were kept.

At these meetings the respondents discussed, considered and arrived at common understandings among themselves, upon which they later acted, with respect to various matters pertaining to the hardwood lumber market, including, among others: (a) The supply of hardwood lumber available and the market demand therefor; (b) the prices which had been and were being quoted and received by respondent members and other sellers of hardwood lumber for their products; (c) prospective or future price quotations under consideration by respondent members and other sellers of hardwood lumber; (d) questions raised by respondent members and respondent Osborn as to the prices which could and should be obtained in the future for the various items, sizes, and quantities of hardwood lumber and the products thereof; and (e) whether the current price quotations contained in price lists previously compiled and issued by respondent Osborn should be changed to accord with respondents' views as to the prices which could be obtained in the future.

Using the information obtained at these meetings, Osborn would proceed to prepare and supply to the respondent members a new list of prices on the various kinds and grades of lumber sold by them. He was regarded by respondent members as an expert analyst of the hardwood lumber market, and was in effect the joint agent of respondent members for the purpose of reconciling differences of opinion among respondent members with respect to prices and determining the prices which should appear in the next list. The price list prepared by Osborn represented a meeting of respondents' minds as to the minimum prices to be sought by respondent members for their products. In preparing their own price lists for distribution among their salesmen and customers, respondent members usually followed the Osborn list in all material respects. In fact, some of the respondent members prepared no price lists of their own but merely adopted the Osborn list, imprinting their own name on copies of the Osborn list and distributing such copies among their salesmen.

Osborn also supplied copies of his price list to the American Lumberman, a trade journal, and the Chicago Journal of Commerce, for publication by them. A copy was also regularly supplied by him to A. L. Broughton & Co., a printing concern in Minneapolis, Minn., which published the price list, with certain minor material added thereto, under the name "Broughton's Standard Price List." The respondent members, after discussion and consideration among themselves, have not only adopted and used such "standard" price list and placed it in the hands of their customers, but have also placed such list in the hands of other manufacturers and sellers of hardwood lumber, who proceeded to use the list. In this manner the respondents have caused the Osborn list to be circulated generally throughout the hardwood lumber industry and to be used by members of the industry in Wisconsin and Michigan who were not connected with the Institute. The so-called standard price list specified in some instances that prices or charges less than those contained in the list should not be quoted or charged.

In the sale of their products the respondent members have followed the practice of adhering to and maintaining the prices set by the standard price list as a minimum for their quotations, and frequently as a minimum for their actual sales transactions. For example, the sales reports made by the respondent members to Osborn during the period from January 1 to January 31, 1937, show that out of 1,108 items reported, 487 or 44 percent were sold at the exact standard list price, 416 or 37 percent were sold at prices above the standard list price, and 205 items or 19 percent were sold at prices less than the standard list price. It thus appears that of all of the sales reported during that period 81 percent were at prices equalling or exceeding the standard list prices.

PAR. 7. A further circumstance bearing upon the point that the Osborn price list represented a common understanding and agreement among the respondent members is that members who failed to maintain the prices shown on the list were subjected to questioning by Osborn with respect to such departures. An example of this is a letter addressed by Osborn to the sales manager of one of the respondent members which read as follows:

My attention has been called to your sale to the Northern Furniture Co. of 4/4 #2 Common and Better Soft Maple.

I have been asked whether this is the usual run of #2 Common and Better or not. Inasmuch as this calls for $42.25 on #2 Common and Better Soft Maple, I will be glad to have your say as to what you will ship.

Replying to this letter the sales manager of the respondent member wrote Osborn as follows:

Wish to advise that our Soft Maple is not as good as the ordinary run. We don't get very much Soft Maple: at the most our cut would be not to exceed 100,000 ft. of No. 2 and Better per year. The lumber does run quite narrow, also contains about 40% No. 2 Common, 20% FAS and the balance No. 1 Common and Selects. We don't get enough of it to sort the different grades out, which necessitates our selling it No. 2 and Better, and as it is not a very good run of stock we have always had to make a very low price on same to move it.

PAR. 8. In further pursuance of their plan to establish and maintain a system of minimum prices governing the sale of their products, the respondent members have by concerted and cooperative action arrived at and promulgated schedules of delivered prices on their products. The freight or transportation charges on lumber from the mill to the purchaser constitutes one of the largest of the items making up the cost of the lumber delivered to the purchaser. Even though a group of manufacturers might establish uniform prices for lumber at their mills, the ultimate delivered cost to a given purchaser would vary widely, if, as in the present case, the mills of the sellers were located at different points. To overcome this difficulty the respondent members established a system of "delivered" prices, which purported to include the freight as well as the f. o. b. price at the mill. Uniformity in these delivered prices was achieved by respondents through the use of Wausau, Wis., as a basing point; that is, as the point from which the freight was calculated, irrespective of the fact that the mills of most of the respondent members were not located in Wausau, Wis., but were located at various other points in Wisconsin and in Michigan, and had different freight rates to given destinations. Moreover, some of the respondent members made shipments by water at lower rates than those on which their delivered price quotations were calculated. By using the same f. o. b. base quotation at a common point, namely, Wausau, Wis., and basing the freight calculation on the fiction that all shipments originated at Wausau, the respondent members obtained a uniformity of delivered prices which otherwise would have been impossible. As an incident to their calculations of delivered price quotations in that manner, the respondents have among themselves discussed and followed the practice of asking, charging, and receiving larger net sums and amounts for hardwood lumber and the products thereof from buyers located at points nearer the place of production than from other buyers at points more distant from the place of production.

There frequently are substantial variations in weight between shipments of lumber which are supposed to contain the same number of board feet, these variations being due primarily to the degree of dryness of the lumber, the grain of the lumber, and the way in which the lumber is sawed, that is, whether it is sawed evenly or unevenly. To obviate the effect of these variations in weight upon delivered prices the respondent members have used a system of uniform or standardized weights, the weight schedules being set forth in the Broughton Standard Price List.

This system of delivered prices and fixed schedules of weights was in common use among the respondent members. After discussion and consideration among themselves the respondent members adopted and made use of detailed and itemized price lists of hardwood lumber and the products thereof, calculated f. o. b. Wausau as a basing point, such lists being published by representative respondents or by co-operating publishers from information supplied by respondent Osborn or other representatives of respondents. One of such lists, the Broughton Standard Price List, which was in fact the Osborn list, carried a foreword that:

This book contains F. O. B. Wausau prices of Northern Hardwoods on date of issue.

Also Table of Weights, Millwork Charges, and Delivery Table showing proper amounts to Add to Rough F. O. B. prices for Rough or Mill Worked stock from 4¢ to 47¢ rates inclusive, and will save much time in deciding Delivered prices. The Mill Work Charges are figured in with the Freight Charges and to obtain Delivered Prices add amount shown in proper Rough or Millwork and Rate column.

The use of a common basing point results in varying net price returns to manufacturers and shippers, depending upon whether the actual freight rate from the mill to the destination of the shipment is greater or less than the rate from the basing point to the destination of the shipment. In those cases where the rate from mill to destination is higher than the rate from the basing point to destination the shipper nets less than the base price. Conversely, in those cases where the rate from mill to destination is less than the rate from the basing point to destination the shipper nets more than the base price. The substantial character of these freight rate differentials is apparent from the following testimony of respondent Osborn:

There are quite a number of mills south of the Wausau group, including two mills at Oconto, one large mill in New London, or was until recently, a large mill at New London, Tigertown, Shawano, Milwaukee, and Marshfield, who to the large consuming markets, have rates running from 1¢ to 4¢ better than the Wausau group. New London, for instance, takes 8¢ or 9¢ rate to Sheboygan, the rate from Wausau would be 13¢ I believe. The rate from New London to Oshkosh, a very large consuming market, would be 7¢, from Wausau 13¢.

Thus on a shipment to Oshkosh, Wis., a mill located at New London, Wis., would have a freight rate advantage of 6¢ per hundredweight over a mill located at Wausau, Wis. Using the standard weight of 4,000 pounds per 1,000 feet as set forth in the Broughton price list, the net price advantage to the New London mill would be $2.40 per 1,000 feet, but by quoting delivered prices on the Wausau base, that shipper would refrain from quoting less than mills or shippers with freight disadvantages.

In calculating delivered prices the respondents have not in all cases restricted themselves to the use of the applicable freight rate from Wausau, Wis., to the point of destination of the shipment, but have in some instances agreed upon and incorporated in their delivered price quotations certain other arbitrary freight rate factors. Certain market areas have been designated by respondents as comprising particular price zones, and uniform delivered price quotations have been used by respondents for all shipments moving to any point in such zones, despite the fact that the actual freight rates from any given place of shipment to the various destinations in such zones varied substantially. One of the zones so designated by respondents comprised the Lower Peninsula of Michigan. From time to time the respondents, after discussion among themselves, changed and increased the arbitrary freight factor used in the compilation of such delivered price lists and quotations.

PAR. 9. In addition to the use of uniform delivered price quotations the respondent members have also cooperated with each other and with other sellers of hardwood lumber and the products thereof in formulating, adopting and using uniform business practices, terms, and conditions of sale, including discounts and other amounts to be allowed wholesalers, retailers, and other tradesmen, for the purpose and with the effect of producing uniformity in price quotations.

PAR. 10. The respondents usually followed the practice of quoting prices, terms, and conditions of sale f. o. b. mill or point of production only when such prices, terms and conditions were determined under, dependent upon or related to base price or a method or system of making delivered price quotations, so that such f. o. b. mill quotations were equal to a base price plus a freight rate factor from some basing point to the delivery point.

PAR. 11. Each of the respondent members has acted in concert and in cooperation with one or more of the other respondent members and with the respondent Institute in doing the foregoing acts and things in furtherance of the understanding, agreement, combination, and conspiracy herein described.

PAR. 12. The Commission finds that the understanding, agreement, combination, and conspiracy entered into by the respondents, including respondents' use of the methods set forth herein, and their acts done pursuant thereto and in furtherance thereof, as herein described, had and have the tendency and capacity to suppress, restrain, eliminate, and lessen competition, and did substantially suppress, restrain, eliminate, and lessen competition in the sale of hardwood lumber and the products thereof in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Such understanding, agreement, combination, and conspiracy and the acts done pursuant thereto and in furtherance thereof also had and have the tendency and capacity to increase the prices of hardwood lumber and the products thereof to the purchasers and users of such commodities, and unreasonably to restrict and restrain trade in hardwood lumber and the products thereof in commerce between and among the several States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The acts and practices of the respondents as herein found are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

IN THE MATTER OF

CLARENCE B. COUNCIL, TRADING AS STATISTICAL RESEARCH BUREAU, AND METALS AND MINERALS RESEARCH BUREAU.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 3572. Complaint, Dec. 14, 1940¹—Decision, Feb. 24, 1942

Where an individual, engaged in the compilation and interstate sale and distribution of a publication known as "The Mining Manual," in competition with a concern which compiled and published its "The Mines Register" of information concerning mining and mining companies—

(a) Represented, through statements published and circulated to subscribers of "The Mines Register" and to others, that his said "Manual" was published periodically throughout the year, thereby giving complete and up-to-date information concerning various companies and their activities, and was superior to said competitive "Register," that latter was not an authentic and high-grade publication, and that information and material therein contained were out of date;

When as a matter of fact his own publication comprised only the first 200 pages of a perpetual manual which he never completed, and of which section 1 of part 1 did not appear for nearly a year after the making of his said representations, to be followed eight months later by section 2, and in the following year by section 3, the last; and said "Mines Register," published from time to time, gave as complete information as was obtainable concerning mining companies, organizations, equipment, etc., and was considered to be authentic, reliable, and up-to-date;

(b) Represented, directly and by implication, through circular letters, that he had been engaged in publishing books of mining information since 1925, and that his said "Manual" was generally recognized as of preeminent merit, constituting a standard reference work, and the only up-to-date information service on mines published, containing all the information with respect to mining companies contained in the aforesaid "Register," and ready for immediate delivery;

The facts being he had not been engaged in business as claimed; his said "Manual" was not generally recognized as a standard reference work, or the only one publishing up-to-date information service on mines; and said "Register" contained mining information not included in his "Manual," no part of which was ready for delivery until almost a year later, as noted above;

With capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the mistaken belief that such representations were true; that said "Register" was not authentic, reliable and up-to-date, and that his "Manual" was a superior product, whereby purchasing public was induced to buy his publication in preference to said "Register" and others, and trade was thereby diverted unfairly to him from his competitors:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition.

Mr. Randolph W. Branch for the Commission.

AMENDED COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Clarence B. Council, individually, and trading as Statistical Research Bureau, and as Metals and Minerals Research Bureau, hereinafter referred to as respondent, has violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its amended complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Clarence B. Council, is an individual, who for some time prior to October 1, 1937, conducted a business under the trade name of Statistical Research Bureau, at Room 523, 315 Montgomery Street, San Francisco, Calif. Since that date respondent has been, and is now, conducting said business under the trade name of Metals and Minerals Research Bureau, at Room 300 Flatiron Building, 9 Sutter Street, San Francisco, Calif. For several years last past the respondent has been engaged in the business of compiling and publishing, and in selling and distributing in commerce as herein set out a publication known as The Mining Manual. The purpose of said publication is to disseminate to the subscribers thereto certain mining information and to acquaint them with information relative to the activities of mining companies. The respondent, operating under either one or the other of said trade names, causes said publication, when sold, to be distributed by mail and otherwise from his places of business in San Francisco, Calif., to various purchasers and subscribers located at points in the various States of the United States other than California. Respondent thus maintains, and has maintained for more than one year last past, a course of trade and commerce in said publication between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of his aforesaid business, the respondent has been, and is now, in competition with other individuals, and with firms and corporations, likewise engaged in compiling and publishing, and in selling and distributing publications of a similar nature and character, or designed and intended for similar usage, in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia who do not unfairly disparage the competing publications of their competitors.

PAR. 3. Among the respondent's aforesaid competitors is the Atlas Publishing Co., Inc., a corporation, having its principal place of business in the city of New York, State of New York. This concern compiles, publishes, sells, and distributes to subscribers located throughout the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, a book or publication known as the Mines Register. This publication is designed for the purpose of, and does, disseminate to subscribers thereto intelligence and information with respect to mining, mining companies, and their activities in general.

PAR. 4. In the course and conduct of his business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of his publication, the Mining Manual, in preference to the publication the Mines Register, the respondent has published and circulated to subscribers and prospective subscribers of the publication known as the Mines Register, and to others located throughout the various States of the United States, many false and misleading statements with respect to the value, completeness, and thoroughness of said competitive publication, the Mines Register.

PAR. 5. Included in and embraced in said circular letters or other such written, printed, or typed matter so distributed by the respondent, as aforesaid, have been and are false, misleading, and derogatory statements as follows:

Should you, by chance, be contemplating paying $25 for The Mines Register, which may possibly be published by the end of the year, we want to tell you that The Mining Manual will bring you all the information on the mining companies it will contain and in addition a more complete, up-to-date and later coverage of the mines in the United States. We urge you to save the $15 difference.

NOTICE—To Subscribers to THE MINES REGISTER:

We understand you have subscribed for a copy of the above book expected to be published later this year.

We know from experience that it is impossible to publish up-to-date and complete information on the mines in a single volume. That more than 50% of the data is out-of-date by the time such a book is off the press. The present activity in the mining industry is too great to expect otherwise.

Why pay $25 and wait for old, out-of-date information when you can obtain now the very latest data in The Mining Manual. And the Mining Manual keeps bringing you this late, authentic data throughout the year. It keeps you abreast of the developments in the only way possible, by publishing in sections.

Furthermore it only costs you $10, if you use the enclosed special order form at once.

Send your order today as this offer is limited.

As you know, books like The Mines Register are far too often consulted to find little or no information on the subject desired, in fact, inquiry privileges are necessary to give any service a practical and real business value.

PAR. 6. Through the use of the aforesaid false and misleading statements and representations above set out, and others similar thereto, the respondent has unfairly disparaged his competitor, the Atlas Publishing Co., Inc., and its publication, the Mines Register. In truth and in fact, the aforesaid publication, the Mines Register, is an authentic, reliable, high-grade publication, containing informative and up-to-date information covered in a practical and thorough manner. The information with respect to mining companies and mining operations contained in said publication is not out of date or of no value.

PAR. 7. The aforesaid false representations and implications so made and used by the respondent in connection with the sale of his publication in said commerce have the tendency and capacity to, and do, mislead and deceive subscribers and prospective subscribers to the publication, the Mines Register, as well as others, into the false and erroneous beliefs that said representations and implications are true; that said publication, the Mines Register, is not an authentic, reliable and high-grade publication, containing informative and up-to-date matter, covered in a practical and thorough manner; that the information and material therein contained is out of date and that respondent's publication, the Mining Manual, is superior to the competitive publication, the Mines Register, in the respects herein alleged, and into the purchase of respondent's said publication in preference to and in lieu of the publication compiled, sold and distributed by its aforesaid competitor. As a result of the aforesaid mistaken and erroneous beliefs on the part of subscribers and prospective subscribers to the competitive publication, the Mines Register, and on the part of other members of the purchasing public, all induced as aforesaid, trade has been diverted unfairly to the respondent from such competitor. As a consequence thereof injury has been, and is now being, done by respondent to competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States.

PAR. 8. In the course and conduct of his business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of his publication, the Mining Manual, respondent made and caused to be made, by means of circular letters addressed to persons located in various States of the United States other than the State of California, representations and claims concerning the length of time he had been engaged in the business of publishing such books, the high public regard in which the Mining Manual was held in comparison with all other similar works, the scope of the information contained therein and the readiness of the book for delivery.

Among and typical of the said representations and claims so made are those contained in the first and the fourth from the last of the subparagraphs quoted in paragraph 5 hereof and the following:

Established 1925.

The standard reference work on mines and mining companies in the United States.

The Only Up-To-Date Information service on Mines Published.

* * * we are very anxious that you have a copy of this new large book * * *.

The said statements appear in connection with a depiction of a book of substantial bulk, upon whose cover appears "The Mining Manual."

PAR. 9. Through the use of the aforesaid statements, and others of similar import and meaning, respondent has represented, directly and by implication, that he has been engaged in publishing books of mining information since 1925; that the Mining Manual is generally recognized as a work of preeminent merit; that the said book contained all of the information with respect to mining companies contained in a similar book known as the Mines Register, and that the said Mining Manual was ready for immediate delivery to purchasers.

PAR. 10. The aforesaid claims and representations so made and disseminated by respondent are misleading and untrue. In truth and in fact, respondent has not been engaged in the business of publishing such books since 1925. The Mining Manual is not generally recognized as a work of preeminent merit in its field. The Mines Register contains information on mines and mining companies which is not included in the Mining Manual. The Mining Manual was not ready for immediate delivery to purchasers at the time when the statement last quoted in paragraph 8 hereof was disseminated as aforesaid.

PAR. 11. The use by respondent of the representations as set forth herein in connection with the offering for sale and sale of his publication, the Mining Manual, has had the tendency and capacity to mislead purchasers and prospective purchasers into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such claims and representations are true, and to induce them to purchase the said book on account thereof.

As a result thereof, trade has been unfairly diverted to respondent from respondent's competitors who do not resort to such false and deceptive representations. As a consequence thereof, injury has been done by respondent to competition in commerce between and among various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 12. The above acts and practices of respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on August 31, 1938, issued and subsequently served its complaint upon the respondent, Clarence B. Council, individually, and trading as Statistical Research Bureau, and Metals and Minerals Research Bureau, charging him with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce in violation of the provisions of the said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, testimony and other evidence in support of said complaint were introduced by R. J. Martin, John R. Philips, Jr., and D. T. Puckett, attorneys for the Commission, and in opposition to the allegations of the complaint by Harold E. Haven, attorney for the respondent, before trial examiners of the Commission theretofore duly designated by it, and said testimony and other evidence were duly recorded and filed in the office of the Commission.

Subsequent thereto, on motion of counsel for the Commission, the Federal Trade Commission, on December 14, A. D. 1940, entered its order amending the complaint filed herein and further ordering that evidence taken in support of, and in opposition to, the complaint be adopted as evidence in support of, and in opposition to, the complaint as amended; and on December 14, 1940, the Commission issued and subsequently served its amended complaint upon said respondent.

Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission upon said amended complaint, testimony and other evidence, report of the trial examiners upon the evidence, and brief in support of the complaint (no brief having been filed by the respondent or oral argument requested); and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Clarence B. Council, is an individual who, for some time prior to October 1, 1937, conducted a business under the trade name of "Statistical Research Bureau," at Room 523, 315 Montgomery Street, San Francisco, Calif. Subsequent to said date, said respondent conducted his said business under the trade name of "Metals and Minerals Research Bureau," at Room 300, Flatiron Building, 9 Sutter Street, San Francisco, Calif.

PAR. 2. For several years last past, respondent has been engaged in compiling and publishing, and in selling and distributing, a publication known as "The Mining Manual," in commerce among and between the various States of the United States. The purpose of said publication was to disseminate to subscribers thereto, certain mining information, and to acquaint them with information relative to the activities of mining companies. Respondent caused said publication, when sold, to be transported from his place of business in San Francisco, State of California, to purchasers thereof and subscribers thereto located in various other States of the United States. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said publication in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of his aforesaid business, respondent has been in competition with other individuals and with firms and corporations likewise engaged in compiling and publishing, and in selling and distributing, publications of a similar nature and character, or designed and intended for similar usage, in commerce among and between the various States of the United States.

PAR. 4. Among the respondent's aforesaid competitors is the Atlas Publishing Company, Inc., a corporation having its principal place of business in the city of New York, State of New York. This concern compiles, publishes, sells, and distributes to purchasers and subscribers located throughout the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia, a book or publication known as "The Mines Register." This publication is designed for the purpose of, and does, disseminate to subscribers thereto, intelligence and information with respect to mining, mining companies, and their activities in general.

PAR. 5. In the course and conduct of his business and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of his publication "The Mining Manual" in preference to the publication "The Mines Register," respondent has published and circulated to subscribers and prospective subscribers of the publication known as "The Mines Register," and to others located throughout the various States of the United States, many false and misleading statements with respect to the value, completeness, and thoroughness of said competitive publication "The Mines Register" and the comparative merits of respondent's publication "The Mining Manual."

Among and typical of such representations are the following:

Should you, by chance, be contemplating paying $25 for The Mines Register, which may possibly be published by the end of the year, we want to tell you that the Mining Manual will bring you all the information on the mining companies it will contain and in addition a more complete, up-to-date and later coverage of the mines in the United States. We urge you to save the $15 difference.

NOTE.—To Subscribers to THE MINES REGISTER:

We understand you have subscribed for a copy of the above book expected to be published later this year.

We know from experience that it is impossible to publish up-to-date and complete information on the mines in a single volume. That more than 50% of the data is out-of-date by the time such a book is off the press. The present activity in the mining industry is too great to expect otherwise.

Why pay $25 and wait for old, out-of-date information when you can obtain now the very latest data in The Mining Manual. And the Mining Manual keeps bringing you this late, authentic data throughout the year. It keeps you abreast of the developments in the only way possible, by publishing in sections.

* * * * *

As you know, books like The Mines Register are far too often consulted to find little or no information on the subject desired, in fact, inquiry privileges are necessary to give any service a practical and real business value.

PAR. 6. Through the use of the aforesaid false and misleading statements and representations, and others similar thereto, the respondent represented that his publication "The Mining Manual" is published periodically throughout the year, thereby giving complete and up-to-date information concerning various mining companies and their activities; that "The Mines Register," published by the Atlas Publishing Co., Inc., was not an authentic, reliable, high-grade publication containing information and up-to-date matter covered in a practical and thorough manner; that the information and material therein contained were out of date; and that "The Mining Manual" was superior to said competitive publication, "The Mines Register."

PAR. 7. In truth and in fact, respondent's publication "The Mining Manual" was not published periodically, and although such representations as to publication were made by the respondent in the early part of 1936, no issue was published during the year 1936, and it was not until February or March, 1937, that part 1, section 1, of said publication was issued and distributed. There were no further issues of said publication until November 1937, when respondent issued what was designated as part 1, section 2 of said publication. In 1938, part 1, section 3, was issued. The three sections described do not constitute the entire publication but only the first 200 pages of a perpetual manual which was never completed by the respondent. Consequently, said "The Mining Manual" did not furnish subscribers with complete or up-to-date information or furnish a service comparable to "The Mines Register." "The Mines Register" is a publication which is published from time to time, giving as complete information as is obtainable concerning various mining companies, organizations, equipment, etc., and is considered as being an authentic, reliable publication containing up-to-date matter. The use of the statements and representations made by the respondent with reference to "The Mines Register" constituted an unfair disparagement of his competitor the Atlas Publishing Co., Inc., and its publication "The Mines Register."

PAR. 8. In addition to the statements and representations hereinabove described, the respondent has made, and caused to be made, by means of circular letters addressed to persons located in various States of the United States, representations and claims concerning the length of time that he had been engaged in the business of publishing "The Mining Manual," the high public regard in which "The Mining Manual" is held in comparison to all other similar works, the scope of information contained therein, and the readiness of the book for delivery. Among and typical of the many representations and claims so made are the following:

Should you, by chance, be contemplating paying $25 for The Mines Register, which may possibly be published by the end of the year, we want to tell you that The Mining Manual will bring you all the information on the mining companies it will contain and in addition a more complete, up-to-date and later coverage of the mines in the United States.

Established 1925.

A standard reference work on mines and mining companies in the United States.

The only up-to-date information service on mines published.

* * * We are very anxious that you have a copy of this new, large book. (The latter statement appears in connection with a depiction of a book of substantial bulk, upon the cover of which appears, "The Mining Manual.")

PAR. 9. Through the use of the aforesaid statements, and others of similar import and meaning, respondent has represented, directly and by implication, that he has been engaged in publishing books of mining information since 1925; that "The Mining Manual" is generally recognized as a work of preeminent merit and constitutes a standard reference work and is the only up-to-date information service on mines published; that the said book contains all information with respect to mining companies contained in the book known as

34 F. T. C.

"The Mines Register"; and that "The Mining Manual" was ready for immediate delivery to purchasers.

PAR. 10. The aforesaid claims and representations disseminated by respondent are misleading and untrue. In truth and in fact, respondent has not been engaged in the business of publishing such books since 1925, and "The Mining Manual" is not generally recognized as a work of preeminent merit in its field. It is not a standard reference work and is not the only up-to-date information service on mines published. "The Mines Register" contains information on mines and mining companies which is not included in "The Mining Manual." "The Mining Manual" was not ready for immediate delivery to purchasers; in fact, no part of said Manual was delivered until almost a year after such representation was made.

PAR. 11. The use by the respondent of the false and misleading statements and representations hereinabove set forth, including those with reference to "The Mines Register," its comparative value to "The Mining Manual," and the scope and value of "The Mining Manual," has had the capacity and tendency to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such representations and statements are true, that "The Mines Register" is not an authentic, reliable, and high-grade publication containing informative and up-to-date matter, and that "The Mining Manual" is a superior publication. As a result of such erroneous and mistaken belief, the purchasing public has been induced to purchase respondent's publication in preference to "The Mines Register" and other publications, thereby diverting trade unfairly to the respondent from his competitors who are engaged in competition in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

examiners upon the evidence, and brief filed in support of the amended complaint; and the Commission having made its findings as to the facts and its conclusion that said respondent has violated the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act;

It is ordered, That the respondent, Clarence B. Council, an individual, trading as Statistical Research Bureau, and as Metals and Minerals Research Bureau, or under any other trade name, his representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of his publication known as "The Mining Manual," or any other similar publication known as "The Mining Manual," or any other similar publication, in commerce as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Making, or causing to be made, in any form or manner, any false or disparaging statements with reference to the authenticity, reliability, or present value of the publication known as "The Mines Register," published by the Atlas Publishing Company, Inc., or any other competitive publication furnishing similar information or service.

2. IN THE MATTER OF

MASTERKRAFT GUILD WEAVERS, INC., ASIA MOHI COMPANY, LTD., AND C. JAMES GARFALO, PRESIDENT OF MASTERKRAFT GUILD WEAVERS, INC. AND ASIA MOHI COMPANY, LTD.

COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914

Docket 4237. Complaint, Aug. 15, 1940—Decision, Feb. 24, 1942

Where one of two corporations, under common control by an individual who was president and principal stockholder of both, engaged in interstate sale and distribution of rugs in substantial competition with others, including many who do not misrepresent their products or business status, or furnish their dealer customers with means for deceiving the public—

- (a) Made use, in invoices, catalogues, and price lists addressed to dealers, and on labels attached to rugs, of words "Hong Kong" and "Canton" to designate certain rugs which closely resembled Chinese Orientals, and of words "Mahah," "Numdah," "Kirma," "Orienta," and "Bagdad" to designate rugs which closely resembled Orientals;

Notwithstanding fact said rugs were not, as thus indicated, true Chinese Oriental or Oriental rugs made by hand in China or the Orient, of pleasing texture and beautiful design, with pile of wool or silk and wool, threads of which were individually knotted in a special manner; but, while so closely resembling such rugs as to be indistinguishable therefrom by a large portion of the purchasing public, were made on power looms in Italy or Belgium, of cotton;

With result that said various rugs were readily accepted as being Chinese Oriental, Oriental, and true Indian "Numdah" rugs, notwithstanding fact that, pursuant to the United States Customs laws, they also bore labels indicating country of origin, which, being wholly inconsistent with other labels showing aforesaid names, could not properly qualify latter; and

- (b) Represented and implied that certain of their rugs were reproductions and copies, except as to material, of true Oriental, Chinese Oriental and Indian Numdah rugs, through furnishing to dealers catalogues and price lists containing such statements (along with such words as "Suez," "Orienta," "Bagdad," "Canton," etc.) as "The all rayon Oriental reproduction," "Cotton Oriental reproduction," "Cotton Chinese reproduction," "High pile cotton Numdah reproductions," etc.; and that others were true Oriental Mahal and Kirman rugs in all but material, through such statements, in connection with such names as "Mahah" and "Kirma," as "Heavy cotton Oriental" and "High quality cotton Oriental;"

Notwithstanding fact said rugs, as hereinbefore indicated, merely simulated Oriental, Chinese Oriental, or Numdah rugs, and particularly as respects last two, did not have the structure or characteristics of the true Kirman and Mahal rugs, even though differences in material be disregarded;

- (c) Furnished to dealers purchasing their said cotton European rugs advertising copy which was intended to be, and was, inserted by them in newspapers and other publications of general circulation, containing statements falsely representing and implying that rugs in question were in all respects reproductions and copies of true Orientals, through such typical statements as "9 x 12 Oriental Reproductions;" and

Where aforesaid corporation and second corporate concern above referred to, engaged, prior to its acquisition of tangible assets of the other, in rug designing merely, but thereafter in designing, selling and distributing such products—

(d) Made use of names "Chatham," "Dixie," and "New Cape Colony" to designate hooked rugs made in Japan, in invoices and catalogues supplied to dealers, and in advertisements and other publications of general circulation, and on labels attached to rugs;

Thereby implying that such rugs were made in the United States, notwithstanding presence thereon of other labels displaying country of origin pursuant to the customs laws, which were wholly inconsistent with those naming the rugs, and could not properly qualify latter; and

(e) Represented that certain of the rugs sold by them were made by said second corporate concern, through such statements in magazine advertisements, catalogues, price lists, invoices and labels, as "See these creations of the Masterkraft Guild Weavers," "In one of the greatest advertising schedules ever sponsored by any producer of hooked rugs, etc.," and "Masterkraft Guild Weavers * * * was organized to specialize in the design and manufacture of hooked rugs. Beginning as a small group of skilled weavers working * * * to revive the ancient art of fine rug making, the Guild Weavers have grown to be the largest body of craftsmen engaged in this activity today;" and

Where said second concern—

(f) Represented itself to be an association of weavers, established for mutual aid in carrying out a common purpose, through use of the words "Guild Weavers" in its corporate name, on letterheads and invoices, in advertising and otherwise;

The facts being that—while rugs in question were, at different periods, produced by weavers having an interest in their respective associations, organized by said president of the two corporations herein concerned, who was further responsible for arrangements under which the individual weavers worked and were compensated, including such matters as design and supervision—individual weavers did not function through corporations immediately herein involved, but through their own organizations from which corporations here immediately concerned purchased the rugs, and such corporations were not, under said facts, either manufacturers or weavers, nor was second corporate concern a guild; and

Where corporation first referred to—

(g) Represented that certain of its rugs had been approved and accepted by a disinterested independent agency qualified to pass judgment on such matters, through such statements on labels attached thereto as "Approved and accepted by American Bureau of Home Standards;"

The facts being said Bureau was not disinterested or independent, but was originally created and operated by aforesaid president and controlling stockholder of the two corporations involved, and later by an individual under his control and guidance, and had thereafter become nonexistent; and

34 F. T. C.

(h) Made use, in catalogues, price lists, invoices and labels, of name "Wool-Tex" to designate certain of its rugs made of cotton rolls or tubes filled with waste wool, thereby implying falsely that such rugs were composed wholly of wool;

Tendency and capacity of which acts and practices, not engaged in by many competitors, were to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public with respect to rugs of said corporations and individual, and business status thereof, and to cause it to purchase substantial quantities of their said products as a result of such belief thus engendered; whereby substantial trade was diverted from competitors to them:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair acts and practices therein.

Mr. Randolph W. Branch for the Commission.

Mr. David Easton, of New York City, for respondents.

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission having reason to believe that Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc., a corporation, Asia Mohi Co., Ltd., a corporation, and C. James Garofalo, individually, and as president, of Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc., and Asia Mohi Co., Ltd., hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of the said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the public interest, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, C. James Garofalo, is an individual who is now, and at all times mentioned herein has been, president and a principal stockholder both of respondent, Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc., and of respondent Asia Mohi Co., Ltd., and in control of the management policies and operation of said corporations, particularly in respect to the acts and practices herein alleged.

Respondents, Asia Mohi Co., Ltd., and Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc., are corporations organized and existing under the laws of the State of New York. On or about July 1, 1939, respondent, Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc. acquired all the tangible assets of respondent Asia Mohi Co., Ltd.

The said respondents maintain offices and principal places of business at 295 Fifth Avenue, city and State of New York.

PAR. 2. Respondent, Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc., is now, and has been, for more than 2 years last past, engaged in the business of designing, selling, and distributing rugs; from 1937 to on or about July 1, 1939, the selling and distributing phases of its business were conducted in association with respondent, Asia Mohi Co., Ltd. In the course and conduct of their businesses, respondents sold said rugs to various wholesale and retail dealers and caused them, when sold, to be transported from their aforesaid place of business in the State of New York to purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent, Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc., maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, and respondent, Asia Mohi Co., Ltd., from 1937 to on or about July 1, 1939, maintained, a course of trade in said rugs in commerce between and among various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of their said business, respondent, Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc., is now, and has been at all times mentioned herein, and respondent, Asia Mohi Co., Ltd., was, during the period mentioned above, in substantial competition with other corporations and with firms, partnerships, and individuals likewise engaged in the sale and distribution of rugs in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Among such competitors are many who do not misrepresent the nature of their products and the place or method of manufacture thereof, or their business status, or the facts as to their "acceptance" or "approval" by a disinterested, independent agency or organization qualified to pass judgment on such matters, and who do not furnish their dealer-customers with means or instrumentalities for deceiving the public.

PAR. 4. A substantial portion of the purchasing and consuming public understands, and for many years has understood, Oriental rugs to be rugs made in the Orient, or more particularly in certain parts of south-western Asia, by hand, of pleasing texture and original and beautiful design and having a pile of wool or silk and wool, the threads of which are individually knotted in a special manner. Such rugs are usually designated by names which are indicative of the Orient and Oriental origin and manufacture. A substantial portion of the purchasing and consuming public understands, and for many years has understood, Chinese Oriental rugs to be rugs made in China, by hand, in the same manner and possessing the same qualities and characteristics as the Oriental rug. Both Oriental and Chinese Oriental rugs have been for many years, and still are, held in great public esteem because of their texture, beauty, durability, and other qualities, and by reason thereof there is a decided preference on the part of many of the purchasing public for such rugs.

PAR. 5. In the course and conduct of their business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of said rugs, respondents, Asia Mohi Co., Ltd., and Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc., have engaged in the practice of describing and designating certain of their rugs, which closely resemble Chinese Oriental rugs in appearance, by the names of "Hong Kong" and "Canton," which are cities in China. The use of said names has the tendency and capacity to, and does in fact, induce the mistaken and erroneous belief that the rugs so designated are made in China, by hand, and are in all respects, including materials, true Chinese Oriental rugs.

In like manner, said respondents have engaged in the practices of describing and designating certain of their rugs, which closely resemble Oriental rugs in appearance, by the names of "Mahah," "Kirma," "Numda," "Orienta," and "Bagdad." There are true Oriental rugs known as "Mahal" and "Kirman" and felted woolen rugs made in India known as "Numdah." "Bagdad" is a city in the Orient, and "Orienta," "Mahah," and "Kirma" simulate, respectively, the words "Oriental," "Mahal," and "Kirman."

The use by respondents of the said designations has the tendency and capacity to, and does in fact, induce the mistaken and erroneous belief that respondents' "Kirma" and "Mahah" rugs are true Oriental "Kirman" and "Mahal" rugs; that respondents' "Numda" rugs are the true Indian "Numdah," and that respondents' "Orienta" and "Bagdad" rugs are made in the Orient, by hand, and are in all respects, including materials, true Oriental rugs.

Respondents have used said names to designate said rugs in invoices, catalogs and price lists addressed to dealers, and in otherwise referring to the same in the sale thereof to dealers. To certain of said rugs are firmly attached labels upon which one or another of said names appears, which are plainly discernible to members of the purchasing public when such rugs are displayed for sale by retail dealers.

PAR. 6. In truth and in fact, respondents' said "Hong Kong," "Mahah," and "Bagdad" rugs are made in Italy, and their "Canton," "Kirma," "Numda," and "Orienta" rugs in Belgium, of cotton, and on power looms. The "Hong Kong" and "Canton" rugs do not have the structure or all the characteristics of the true Chinese Oriental rug, the individual threads are not knotted in the distinctive manner of the true Chinese Oriental rug, and they are made from different materials. Respondents' "Mahah" and "Kirma" rugs are not true Oriental "Mahal" or "Kirman" rugs, and neither they nor respondents' "Bagdad" and "Orienta" rugs have the structure or all the characteristics of true Oriental rugs, nor are they made from the same materials. Respondents' "Numda" rugs are not the true Indian "Numdah" rugs, do not have the structure or all the characteristics of the true "Numdah" rug, and are made of different materials. A large portion of the purchasing public is unable, so close is the resemblance in appearance, to distinguish respondents' "Hong Kong" and "Canton" rugs from true Chinese Orientals, respondents' "Mahah," "Kirma," "Bagdad," and "Orienta" rugs from true Orientals, or respondents' "Numda" from the true Indian "Numdah," and in consequence respondents' said rugs are readily accepted as being genuine Chinese Oriental, Oriental and "Numdah" rugs.

PAR. 7. In the course and conduct of their business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of said rugs, respondents, Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc., and Asia Mohi Co., Ltd., have engaged in the practice of furnishing to dealers and prospective dealers in their rugs, catalogs and price lists containing many misleading statements which represent and imply that certain of the said rugs are reproductions and copies, except as to material, of true Oriental, Chinese Oriental, and Indian "Numdah" rugs. Among and typical of such statements, are the following:

- Suez—the all rayon Oriental reproduction.
- Orienta—cotton Oriental reproduction.
- Bagdad—extra heavy cotton Oriental reproduction.
- Kirma—cotton Oriental reproduction.
- Canton—extra heavy cotton Chinese reproduction.
- Numda—high pile cotton Numdah reproduction.
- Mahah—heavy cotton Oriental reproduction.

In truth and in fact, said rugs are not in structure or method of manufacture exact copies or reproductions of Orientals, Chinese Oriental, or "Numdah" rugs, but merely simulate them in appearance.

Said catalogs and price lists also contain misleading statements which represent and imply that certain of said rugs are true Oriental "Mahal" and "Kirman" rugs in all respects except for material. Among and typical of such statements, are the following:

- Mahah—heavy cotton Oriental.
- Kirma—high quality cotton Oriental.

In truth and in fact, said rugs are not made in the Orient. True "Mahal" and "Kirman" Oriental rugs are not made of cotton and respondents' said rugs do not have the structure or characteristics of the true Kirman and Mahal rugs, even though differences in material are disregarded.

In like manner, respondents have engaged in the practice of furnishing to dealers buying certain of their cotton rugs made in Europe, as aforesaid, advertising copy which is intended to be, and is, inserted by such dealers in newspapers and other publications of general circulation among the purchasing public. Such advertisements contain misleading statements which represent and imply that said rugs are in all respect reproductions and copies of true Oriental rugs. Among and typical of such statements, is the following:

9 x 12 Oriental reproductions.

In truth and in fact, said rugs are not exact copies or reproductions of true Orientals in material, structure, characteristics, or method of manufacture, but merely simulate them in appearance.

PAR. 8. The manufacture of hooked rugs has been carried on in this country since early in its Colonial history, and was one of the earliest forms of artistic expression of the early settlers. Hooked rugs always have been, and still are, generally regarded as being a distinctively American product.

PAR. 9. In the course and conduct of their business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of certain of their rugs, respondents, Asia Mohi Co., Ltd., and Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc., have engaged in the practice of describing and designating certain of their hooked rugs by the names "Chatham," "Dixie," "New Cape Colony," and "Old Cabin." Such names carry so definite an American connotation as to have the tendency and capacity to, and do, induce the mistaken and erroneous belief that the rugs so designated were made in the United States. Respondents used said names to designate said rugs in invoices, in catalogs supplied to dealers and prospective dealers, and in advertisements in magazines and other publications of general circulation among the purchasing public. Respondents also caused labels, each bearing one of the said names, to be securely attached to each of the said rugs so as to be plainly discernible to members of the purchasing public when such rugs are displayed for sale by retail dealers.

In truth and in fact, the rugs designated as "Chatham," "Dixie," and "New Cape Colony" were made in Japan and those designated "Old Cabin" were made in Belgium.

PAR. 10. In the course and conduct of their business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of said rugs, respondents, Asia Mohi Co. Inc., and Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc., have engaged in the practice of representing, directly and by implication, that certain of the rugs sold by them were manufactured by respondent Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc. Such representations have been made by means of statements in advertisements inserted in magazines and other periodicals of general circulation, in catalogs and price lists furnished to dealers and prospective dealers in such rugs, in invoices and on labels securely attached to such rugs so as to be plainly discernible to members of the purchasing public when such rugs are displayed for sale by retail dealers. Among and typical of such statements are the following:

The Masterkraft Guild Weavers.

Masterkraft Guild Weavers, 285 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y.

Please send me a copy of "The Romance of Hooked Rugs."

Masterkraft magazine advertising will work for you throughout 1939.

In one of the greatest advertising schedules ever sponsored by any producer of hooked rugs, Masterkraft Guild Weavers program calls for more than 60 advertisements during 1939.

Masterkraft Guild Weavers, a production unit of Asia Mohi Co., Ltd., was organized to specialize in the design and manufacture of hooked rugs. Beginning as a small group of skilled weavers working under the direction of C. James Garofalo to revive the ancient art of fine rug making, the Guild Weavers have grown to be the largest body of craftsmen engaged in this activity today.

In truth and in fact, Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc., neither owns, operates nor controls, nor at any time mentioned herein has owned, operated or controlled, any establishment where rugs are made, and all the rugs sold by it are and were manufactured by others in foreign countries. It is not and never was an organization of skilled weavers, and its only function in the production of rugs has been in designing them.

PAR. 11. In the course and conduct of its business and in furtherance thereof, respondent, Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc., has represented, and now represents, itself to be an association of weavers established for mutual aid in carrying out a common purpose. This representation is made through the use of the words "Weavers Guild," in its corporate name, on its letterheads and invoices, in its advertising, and through other means.

In truth and in fact said respondent is not such an association of weavers, but is a privately incorporated commercial enterprise of which respondent, C. James Garofalo, is the principal stockholder.

PAR. 12. In the course and conduct of their business as aforesaid, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of said rugs, respondents, Asia Mohi, Co., Ltd., and Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc., have engaged in the practice of representing that certain of their rugs have been approved and accepted by a disinterested, independent agency or organization qualified to pass judgment on such matters. Such representations have been made by means of statements on labels attached to such rugs as aforesaid, of which the following is typical:

American Bureau of Home Standards

In truth and in fact, the American Bureau of Home Standards, was not a disinterested, independent agency. It was originally created and operated by respondent, C. James Garofalo, and was later operated by an individual under the control and guidance of said Garofalo. It is now, and for some time past has been, non-existent and inoperative.

PAR. 13. In the course and conduct of their business, and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of said rugs, respondents, Asia Mohi Co., Ltd., and Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc., have engaged in the practice of describing and designating certain of their said rugs by the name "Wool-Tex." The use of said name has the capacity and tendency to, and does, induce the mistaken and erroneous belief that the rugs so designated are composed wholly of wool. Such representations have been made by means of statements in catalogs and price lists furnished to dealers and prospective dealers in such rugs, in invoices and in labels securely attached to such rugs, so as to be plainly discernible to members of the purchasing public, when such rugs are displayed for sale by retail dealers.

In truth and in fact, said rugs are made out of cotton rolls or tubes filled with waste wool.

PAR. 14. The use by respondents of the designations and representations, as set forth herein, in connection with the offering for sale and sale of their said rugs, has had, and now has, the tendency and capacity to, and does, mislead purchasers and prospective purchasers thereof, into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such representations and designations are true and correct, and to induce them to purchase said rugs on account thereof. Respondents' said acts and practices place in the hands of retail dealers, who purchase said rugs and resell the same to the purchasing public, means and instrumentalities of misleading and deceiving the public in the particulars aforesaid.

As a result of respondents' said acts and practices, trade has been unfairly diverted to respondents from their competitors engaged in the sale in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia of rugs of various kinds, including genuine Oriental, Chinese Oriental, and domestic rugs, who truthfully represent their products as set forth in paragraph 3 hereof. In consequence thereof, injury has been and is now being done by respondents to competition in commerce among and between various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 15. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on August 15, 1940 issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondents, Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc., a corporation; Asia Mohi Co., Ltd., a corporation; and C. James Garofalo, individually, and as president of Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc., and Asia Mohi Co., Ltd., charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On September 6, 1940, the respondents filed their answer to the complaint. Thereafter a stipulation was entered into whereby it was stipulated and agreed that a statement of facts executed by the respondents and Richard P. Whiteley, Assistant Chief Counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, subject to the approval of the Commission, may be taken as the facts in this proceeding and in lieu of testimony in support of the charges stated in the complaint or in opposition thereto, and that the Commission may proceed upon such statement of facts to make its report, stating its findings as to the facts (including inferences which it may draw from the stipulated facts) and its conclusion based thereon, and enter its order disposing of the proceeding without the presentation of argument or the filing of briefs. Thereafter the proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the complaint, answer and stipulation, the stipulation having been approved and accepted by the Commission and entered of record, and the Commission, having duly considered the same and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, C. James Garofalo, is an individual, who is now, and at all times mentioned herein has been, president and a principal stockholder both of respondent Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc., and of respondent Asia Mohi Co., Ltd., and in control of the management, policies, and operation of said corporations, particularly in respect to the acts and practices herein described.

Respondents, Asia Mohi Co., Ltd., and Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc., are corporations organized and existing under the laws of the State of New York. Prior to about July 1, 1939, respondent, Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc., merely designed rugs and actually did no business, but on or about that date it acquired all the tangible assets of respondent, Asia Mohi Co., Ltd., which at that time ceased doing business, although its corporate existence has not been terminated.

The said respondents, Garofalo, and Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc., maintain offices and principal places of business at 295 Fifth Avenue, city and State of New York, at which address the business of respondent Asia Mohi Co., Ltd., was formerly conducted.

PAR. 2. Respondent, Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc., is now, and has been since about July 1, 1939, engaged in the business of designing, selling and distributing rugs. From 1935 to on or about July 1, 1939, respondent, Asia Mohi Co., Ltd., was engaged in the business of selling and distributing rugs, some of which were manufactured by Masterkraft Guild Weavers Association, of Japan, as set forth in paragraph 10 hereof.

In the course and conduct of their businesses, respondents sold said rugs to various wholesale and retail dealers and caused them, when sold, to be transported from their aforesaid place of business in the State of New York, to purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent, Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc., maintains, and since July 1, 1939, has maintained, and respondent, Asia Mohi Co., Ltd., from 1935 to on or about July 1, 1939, maintained a course of trade in their rugs in commerce between and among various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of their said businesses, respondent, Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc., is now, and has been at all times since about July 1, 1939, and respondent, Asia Mohi Co., Ltd., was, during the period mentioned above, in substantial competition with other corporations and with firms, partnerships, and individuals also engaged in the sale and distribution of rugs in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Among such competitors are many who do not misrepresent the nature of their products and the place or method of manufacture thereof, or their business status, or the facts as to their "acceptance" or "approval" by a disinterested, independent agency or organization qualified to pass judgment on such matters, and who do not furnish their dealer-customers with means or instrumentalities for deceiving the public.

PAR. 4. A substantial portion of the purchasing and consuming public understands, and for many years has understood, Oriental rugs to be rugs made in the Orient, or more particularly in certain parts of southwestern Asia, by hand, of pleasing texture and original and beautiful design and having a pile of wool or silk and wool, the threads of which are individually knotted in a special manner. Such rugs are usually designated by names which are indicative of the Orient and Oriental origin and manufacture. A substantial portion of the purchasing and consuming public understands, and for many years has understood, Chinese Oriental rugs to be rugs made in China, by hand, in a similar manner and possessing similar characteristics to the Oriental rug. Both Oriental and Chinese Oriental rugs have been for many years, and still are, held in great public esteem because of their texture, beauty, durability, and other qualities, and by reason thereof there is a substantial demand on the part of the purchasing public for such rugs.

PAR. 5. In the course and conduct of its business, respondent, Asia Mohi Co., Ltd. has engaged in the practice of describing and designating certain of its rugs, which closely resembled Chinese Oriental rugs in appearance, by the names of "Hong Kong" and "Canton," which are cities in China.

The use of said names has had the tendency and capacity to, and did in fact, induce the mistaken and erroneous belief that the rugs so designated were made in China, by hand, and were in all respects true Chinese Oriental rugs.

In like manner, said respondent has engaged in the practice of describing and designating certain of its rugs, which closely resembled Oriental rugs in appearance, by the names of "Mahah," "Numda," "Kirma," "Orienta," and "Bagdad." There are true Oriental rugs known as "Mahal" and "Kirman" and felted woolen rugs made in

34 F. T. C.

India known as "Numdah." Bagdad is a city in the Orient, and "Orienta," "Mahah," and "Kirma" simulate, respectively, the words "Oriental," "Mahal," and "Kirman."

The use by respondent of the said designations has had the tendency and capacity to, and did in fact, induce the mistaken and erroneous belief that respondent's "Kirma" and "Mahah" rugs were true Oriental "Kirman" and "Mahal" rugs; that respondent's "Numda" rugs were the true Indian "Numdah," and that respondent's "Orienta" and "Bagdad" rugs were made in the Orient, by hand, and were in all respects true Oriental rugs.

Respondent has used said names to designate said rugs in invoices, catalogs and price lists addressed to dealers. To the rugs designated as "Kirma" were firmly attached labels approximately $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches by 2 inches upon which the words "Kirma" in capital letters approximately $\frac{3}{16}$ inch in height, and "Made in Belgium" in capital letters approximately $\frac{2}{16}$ inch in height, appeared.

To the rugs designated as "Hong Kong" were attached in close proximity to one another, two labels, approximately $2\frac{3}{4}$ inches by $\frac{9}{16}$ inch and $1\frac{3}{4}$ inches by $\frac{5}{8}$ inch. Upon the former appeared the words "Hong Kong" in capital letters approximately $\frac{5}{32}$ inch in height, and upon the latter the words "Made in Italy" in capital and small letters, approximately $\frac{5}{32}$ inch and $\frac{4}{32}$ inch respectively, in height. To each of the other rugs was firmly attached a label showing the country of its origin as required by the customs laws of the United States.

PAR. 6. In truth and in fact, respondent's said "Hong Kong," "Mahah," and "Bagdad" rugs were made in Italy, and its "Canton," "Kirma," "Numda," and "Orienta" rugs in Belgium, of cotton, and on power looms, and to each rug was securely attached a label indicating the country of its origin, pursuant to the customs laws of the United States. The "Hong Kong" and "Canton" rugs did not have the structure or all the characteristics of the true Chinese Oriental rug, the individual threads were not knotted in the distinctive manner of the true Chinese Oriental rug, and they were made from different materials. Respondent's "Mahah" and "Kirma" rugs were not true Oriental "Mahal" or "Kirman" rugs, and neither they nor respondent's "Bagdad" and "Orienta" rugs had the structure or all the characteristics of true Oriental rugs, nor were they made from the same materials. Respondent's "Numda" rugs were not the true Indian "Numdah" rugs, did not have the structure or all the characteristics of the true "Numdah" rug, and were made of different materials. A large portion of the purchasing public was unable, so close was the resemblance in appearance, to distinguish respondent's ent's "Hong Kong" and "Canton" rugs from true Chinese Orientals, respondent's "Mahah," "Kirma," "Bagdad," and "Orienta" rugs from true Orientals, or respondent's "Numda" from the true Indian "Numdah," and in consequence respondent's said rugs were readily accepted as being genuine Chinese Oriental, Oriental and "Numdah" rugs.

The Commission therefore finds that the practice of said respondent in attaching to its rugs labels showing the country of origin thereof was insufficient to prevent such erroneous impression on the part of the purchasing public. These labels, being wholly inconsistent with the labels showing the names of the rugs, cannot properly qualify such labels.

PAR. 7. In the course and conduct of its business, respondent, Asia Mohi Co., Ltd., has also engaged in the practice of furnishing to dealers and prospective dealers in its rugs, catalogs and price lists containing many statements which represented and implied that certain of the said rugs were reproductions and copies, except as to material, of true Oriental, Chinese Oriental, and Indian "Numdah" rugs. Among and typical of such statements were the following:

- Suez—the all rayon Oriental reproduction.
- Orienta—Cotton Oriental reproduction.
- Bagdad—extra heavy cotton Oriental reproduction.
- Kirma—cotton Oriental reproduction.
- Canton—extra heavy cotton Chinese reproduction.
- Numda—high pile cotton Numdah reproduction.
- Mahah—heavy cotton Oriental reproduction.

In truth and in fact, said rugs were not in structure or method of manufacture exact copies or reproductions of Oriental, Chinese Oriental, or "Numdah" rugs, but merely simulated them in appearance.

Said catalogs and price lists also contained statements which represented and implied that certain of said rugs were true Oriental "Mahal" and "Kirman" rugs in all respects except for material. Among and typical of such statements were the following:

- Mahah—heavy cotton Oriental.
- Kirma—high quality cotton Oriental.

In truth and in fact, said rugs were not made in the Orient. True "Mahal" and "Kirman" Oriental rugs are not made of cotton, and respondent's said rugs did not have the structure or characteristics of the true Kirman and Mahal rugs, even though differences in material be disregarded.

In like manner, respondent, Asia Mohi Co., Ltd., has engaged in the practice of furnishing to dealers buying certain of their cotton rugs made in Europe, as aforesaid, advertising copy which was intended to be, and was, inserted by such dealers in newspapers and other publications of general circulation among the purchasing public. Such advertisements contained statements which represented and implied that said rugs were in all respects reproductions and copies of true Oriental rugs. Among and typical of such statements was the following:

9 x 12 Oriental reproductions.

In truth and in fact, said rugs were not exact copies or reproductions of true Orientals in material, structure, characteristics, or method of manufacture, but merely simulated them in appearance.

PAR. 8. In the course and conduct of their business respondents Asia Mohi Co., Ltd., and Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc., have engaged in the practice of describing and designating certain hooked rugs by the names "Chatham," "Dixie," and "New Cape Colony." Such names carry an American connotation sufficient to have the tendency and capacity to, and do, induce the mistaken and erroneous belief that the rugs so designated were made in the United States. Respondents used said names to designate said rugs in invoices, in catalogs supplied to dealers and prospective dealers, and in advertisements in magazines and other publications of general circulation among the purchasing public. Respondents also caused labels, each bearing one of the said names, to be securely attached to each of the said rugs so as to be plainly discernible to members of the purchasing public when such rugs were displayed for sale by retail dealers.

In truth and in fact, the rugs designated as "Chatham," "Dixie," and "New Cape Colony" were made in Japan. To each rug was securely attached a label indicating its country of origin pursuant to the customs laws of the United States. The Commission finds however that such labels were insufficient to prevent the erroneous impression on the part of the purchasing public with respect to the origin of such rugs. These labels, being wholly inconsistent with the labels showing the names of the rugs, cannot properly qualify such labels.

PAR. 9. In the course and conduct of their business, respondents, Asia Mohi Co., Ltd., and Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc., have also engaged in the practice of representing, directly and by implication, that certain of the rugs sold by them were manufactured by respondent, Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc. Such representations have been made by means of statements in advertisements inserted in magazines and other periodicals of general circulation, in catalogs and price lists furnished to dealers and prospective dealers in such rugs, in invoices and on labels securely attached to such rugs so as to be plainly discernible to members of the purchasing public when such rugs are displayed for sale by retail dealers. Among and typical of such statements are the following:

See these creations of the Masterkraft Guild Weavers today!

The Masterkraft Guild Weavers.

Masterkraft Guild Weavers, 285 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y.

Please send me a copy of "The Romance of Hooked Rugs."

Masterkraft magazine advertising will work for you throughout 1939. In one of the greatest advertising schedules ever sponsored by any producer of hooked rugs, Masterkraft Guild Weavers program calls for more than 60 advertisements during 1939.

"Masterkraft Guild Weavers, a production unit of Asia Mohi Co., Ltd., was organized to specialize in the design and manufacture of hooked rugs. Beginning as a small group of skilled weavers working under the direction of C. James Garofalo to revive the ancient art of fine rug making, the Guild Weavers have grown to be the largest body of craftsmen engaged in this activity today."

In the course and conduct of its business and in furtherance, thereof, respondent, Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc. has represented, and now represents, itself to be an association of weavers established for mutual aid in carrying out a common purpose. This representation is made through the use of the words "Guild Weavers" in its corporate name, on its letterheads and invoices, in its advertising, and through other means.

PAR. 10. Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc., is a private commercial enterprise, incorporated in 1937. Respondent, Garofalo, is its president and active controlling stockholder. From 1934 until 1939, respondent, Asia Mohi Co., Ltd., with which Garofalo was associated as stated herein, was engaged in the sale and distribution of various rugs imported from Europe and hooked rugs imported from Japan. The Japanese hooked rugs were made by a group of Japanese weavers organized under the name of Masterkraft Guild Weavers Association.

The connection of respondents, Garofalo, Asia Mohi Co., Ltd., and Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc., with any organization having any cooperative features is set forth below.

In 1934 Mr. Garofalo went to Japan, and there organized a number of Japanese weavers of hooked rugs under the name of Masterkraft Guild Weavers Association. This association supplied the individual weavers with the materials, designs, and other specifications for the rugs to be produced, the designs and specifications having been prepared by Mr. Garofalo and supplied to the Association by Asia Mohi Co., Ltd. The completed rugs were purchased from the Association and imported into the United States by Asia Mohi Co., Ltd.

Findings

34 F. T. C.

The prices paid the Association had been previously fixed by Mr. Garofalo, through Asia Mohi Co., Ltd. Of the proceeds received by the Association, the weavers received a sum per foot for their labor, also fixed by Mr. Garofalo, and in addition had a right of participation in the profits, if any, of the Association. The whole plan was devised by Mr. Garofalo with the purpose of creating for himself, or his concern, a well controlled source of supply of rugs for sale in the United States.

After the arrival of the rugs in the United States, they were sold by Asia Mohi Co., Ltd. at whatever prices it chose to fix, and advertised as products of Masterkraft Guild Weavers.

In the summer of 1939 various difficulties arose with the Japanese connection. As a result of them and the increasing prejudice against Japanese goods, all connection with the Japanese concern was terminated.

In July 1940, a corporation known as Treasure Chest Mutual, Inc., was organized under the laws of North Carolina. It had $10,000 of 6 percent preferred stock, which is held by Mr. Garofalo and two associates. The proceeds of this stock, in cash or kind, furnished the working capital of the organization. The common stock is held by rug weavers of the locality, and the few salaried employees of the corporation, one share each and no more. Garofalo has one share. Its method of operation is as set forth below.

All the hooked rugs produced by the various weaver members, who number approximately 150, are designed by Mr. Garofalo, and are made under his supervision in the qualities and quantities designated by him. Mr. Garofalo fixes the price which Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc., will pay the Chest for each rug. This price, based upon the cost of materials, the overhead of the Chest, and a price per foot for weaving, is adjusted by Mr. Garofalo from time to time, based upon business conditions in the industry.

The member who wants to make a rug obtains the materials, design, and other essentials from the Chest, and delivers the completed rug, or in some instances, parts of rugs which are assembled thereafter with other parts, to the Chest. Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc. pays the Chest for all rugs produced. The Chest pays to the weaver the agreed price per foot for his labor and retains the balance, included in which is the cost of materials advanced and overhead, and the balance, if any, is profit which goes to the Chest. In these profits the individual members have a right of participation per capita, subject to the prior claim of the 6% preferred stock. Rugs which are woven through the Chest are sold only to Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc.

Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc. is not itself an association of skilled weavers, established for mutual aid in carrying out a common purpose. It has acted, and acts, as a distributor, through which the products of Treasure Chest Mutual, Inc. are sold. In its capacity of distributor it is wholly independent of Treasure Chest Mutual, Inc.

Between the time when the Japanese connection was terminated in 1939, and the organization of Treasure Chest Mutual, Inc., respondent Garofalo had a similar arrangement with an organization, generally cooperative in character, known as Treasure Chest, located at Asheville, N. C. Through this organization he obtained hooked rugs. Treasure Chest marketed a variety of articles, including hooked rugs and its source of supply of hooked rugs was taken over by Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc. under the same sort of arrangement as now exists with Treasure Chest Mutual, Inc. These sources were, in July 1940, reorganized as Treasure Chest Mutual, Inc., described above.

The foregoing sets forth the extent of the participation of Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc. in the manufacture of the rugs referred to herein.

Mr. Garofalo enjoys the confidence of the Chest and its members, is the principal manager, and in consequence is allowed to fix the price that he or Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc. will pay the Chest for the rugs, and to fix the price per foot that the weavers are to receive. He also fixes the prices at which Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc. resells these rugs. Some of the actual weaving is done in the weavers' homes and some is done at an assembly plant operated by the Chest.

The Commission finds that the foregoing facts do not constitute respondent, Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc., manufacturers or weavers of rugs; that said respondent is not a guild, and that the use by said respondent of the words "Guild" and "Weavers", either separately or in conjunction with each other in said respondent's corporate name is misleading to the purchasing public.

PAR. 11. In the course and conduct of its business as aforesaid, respondent, Asia Mohi Co., Ltd., has engaged in the practice of representing that certain of its rugs have been approved and accepted by a disinterested, independent agency, or organization qualified to pass judgment on such matters. Such representations have been made by means of statements on labels attached to such rugs as aforesaid, of which the following is typical:

Approved and Accepted

American Bureau of Home Standards

In truth and in fact, the American Bureau of Home Standards was not a distinterested, independent agency. It was originally created and operated by respondent, C. James Garofalo, and was later operated by an individual under the control and guidance of said Garofalo. It is now, and for some time past has been, nonexistent and inoperative.

PAR. 12. In the course and conduct of its business, respondent, Asia Mohi Co., Ltd., has also engaged in the practice of describing and designating certain of its said rugs by the name "Wool-Tex." The use of said name has had the capacity and tendency to, and did, induce the mistaken and erroneous belief that the rugs so designated were composed wholly of wool. Such representations have been made by means of statements in catalogs and price lists furnished to dealers and prospective dealers in such rugs, in invoices and in labels securely attached to such rugs, so as to be plainly discernible to members of the purchasing public, when such rugs were displayed for sale by retail dealers. In truth and in fact, said rugs were made out of cotton rolls or tubes filled with waste wool.

PAR. 13. The Commission finds that the use by the respondents of the acts and practices herein described has the tendency and capacity to mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public with respect to the nature, character, origin, and endorsement of respondents' products and with respect to respondents' business status, and to cause such portion of the public to purchase substantial quantities of respondents' products as a result of the erroneous and mistaken belief so engendered. In consequence thereof substantial trade has been diverted to respondents from their competitors, many of whom do not engage in such acts and practices.

CONCLUSION

The acts and practices of the respondents as herein found are all to the prejudice of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

This proceeding having been heard by the Federal Trade Commission upon the complaint of the Commission, the answer of the respondents, and a stipulation as to the facts entered into between the respondents and Richard P. Whiteley, Assistant Chief Counsel for the Com-

James Garofalo, individually, and as an officer of said corporation, and said respondents' agents, representatives, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution of respondents' rugs in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from :

3. Using the word "reproduction," or any other word of similar import, to designate or describe rugs which are not in fact reproductions in all respects of the type named, including material.

4. Using the term "Wool-Tex," or any other term of similar import, to designate or describe rugs which are not composed wholly of wool.

5. It is further ordered, That respondents, Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc., its officers, and C. James Garofalo, individually, and as an officer of said corporation, and said respondents' agents, representatives, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of respondents' rugs in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

Using the word "Guild," or any other word of similar import, as a part of the corporate or trade name of respondent, Masterkraft Guild Weavers, Inc., or otherwise representing that said respondent is a guild.

OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 23, 1914

Docket 4266. Complaint, Aug. 26, 1940—Decision, Feb. 24, 1942

COMPLAINT

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and by virtue of the authority vested in it by said act, the Federal Trade Commission, having reason to believe that Hugh C. Mitchum and Carl B. Tucker, individually, and trading as Southern Candy Co., hereinafter referred to as respondents, have violated the provisions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be in the interest of the public, hereby issues its complaint stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondents, Hugh C. Mitchum and Carl B. Tucker, are individuals trading as Southern Candy Co., with their principal office and place of business located at 219 North Graham Street, Charlotte, N. C. Respondents are now, and for more than 3 years last past have been, engaged in the manufacture and in the sale and distribution of candy to wholesale dealers, jobbers and retail dealers. Respondents cause, and have caused, said products when sold to be transported from their place of business in the city of Charlotte, N. C., to purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in various States of the United States other than North Carolina. There is now, and for more than 3 years last past has been, a course of trade by respondents in said candy in commerce between and among various States of the United States. In the course and conduct of said business respondents are, and have been, in competition with other individuals and with partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of candy in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of their business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondents sell and have sold to wholesale dealers, jobbers, and retail dealers, certain assortments of candy so packed and assembled as to involve the use of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes when sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. One of said assortments is hereinafter described for the purpose of showing the method used by respondents, and is as follows:

This assortment is composed of 40 bars of candy of uniform size and shape, together with a device commonly called a push card. The said push card has 40 partially perforated disks, on the face of which is printed the word "Push." Concealed within the said disks are numbers ranging from 1 to 5, inclusive. When the disks are pushed or separated from the card a number is disclosed. Purchasers punching numbers 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 pay 1¢, 2¢, 3¢, 4¢ and 5¢, respectively. The numbers are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until the disks are pushed or separated from the card. The prices of said bars of candy are thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

The respondents furnish, and have furnished, various push cards for use in the sale and distribution of their candy by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise or lottery scheme. Such cards are similar to the one herein described and vary only in detail.

PAR. 3. Retail dealers who, directly or indirectly, purchase respondents' said candy, expose and sell the same to the purchasing public, in accordance with the sales plan aforesaid. Respondents thus supply to and place in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of their products in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondents of said sales plan or method in the sale of their candy and the sale of said candy by and through the use thereof, and by the aid of said sales plan or method, is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States and in violation of the criminal laws.

PAR. 4. The sale of candy to the purchasing public by the method or plan hereinabove set forth involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure bars of candy at prices much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell and distribute candy in competition with respondents, as above alleged, are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other method contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondents in the sale and distribution of their candy and in the element of chance involved therein, and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondents' candy in preference to candy of said competitors of respondents who do not use the same or equivalent methods. The use of said method by respondents because of said game of chance has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade in commerce between and among various States of the United States to respondents from their said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent methods, and as a result thereof substantial injury is being and has been done by respondents to competition in commerce between and among various States of the United States.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents, as herein alleged, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on August 26, 1940, issued and thereafter served its complaint in this proceeding upon respondents, Hugh C. Mitchum and Carl B. Tucker, individually, and trading as Southern Candy Co., charging them with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of the complaint, the case was set down for the taking of testimony on December 3, 1940; however, due to the illness of a witness subpoenaed to testify at the instance of the Commission at that time, no testimony was taken. Thereafter a stipulation was entered into whereby it was stipulated and agreed that a statement of facts signed and executed by the counsel for the respondent on behalf of the respondents and W. T. Kelley, chief counsel for the Commission, subject to the approval of the Commission, may be taken as the facts in this proceeding and in lieu of testimony in support of the charges stated in the complaint or in opposition thereto and that the Commission may proceed upon said statement of facts to make its report, stating its findings as to the facts (including inferences which may be drawn from said stipulated facts) and its conclusion based thereon, and enter its order disposing of the proceeding as to them without the presentation of further testimony, argument, filing of briefs, or other intervening procedure. Counsel for the respondents also expressly waived the filing of a report upon the evidence by the trial examiner.

Thereafter this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission on the complaint and the stipulation as to the facts, said stipulation having been approved, accepted, and filed, and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondents, Hugh C. Mitchum and Carl B. Tucker, are individuals, trading as Southern Candy Co., with their principal office and place of business located at 219 North Graham Street, Charlotte, N. C. Respondents are now, and for more than 3 years last past have been, engaged in the manufacture and in the sale and distribution of candy to wholesale dealers, jobbers, and retail dealers. Respondents cause, and have caused, said products when sold to be transported from their place of business in the city of Charlotte, N. C., to purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in various States of the United States other than North Carolina. There is now, and for more than 3 years last past has been, a course of trade by respondents in said candy in commerce between and among various States of the United States. In the course and conduct of said business respondents are, and have been, in competition with other individuals and with partnerships and corporations engaged in the sale and distribution of candy in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of their business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondents sell and have sold to wholesale dealers, jobbers and retail dealers certain assortments of candy so packed and assembled as to involve the use of games of chance, gift enterprises, or lottery schemes when sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. One of said assortments is hereinafter described for the purpose of showing the method used by respondents, and is as follows:

This assortment is composed of 40 bars of candy of uniform size and shape, together with a device commonly called a push card. The said push card has 40 partially perforated disks, on the face of which is printed the word "Push." Concealed within the said disks are numbers ranging from 1 to 5, inclusive. When the disks are pushed or separated from the card a number is disclosed. Purchasers punching numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 pay 1¢, 2¢, 3¢, 4¢, and 5¢, respectively. The numbers are effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until the disks are pushed or separated from the card. The prices of said bars of candy are thus determined wholly by lot or chance.

The respondents furnish, and have furnished, various push cards for use in the sale and distribution of their candy by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme. Such cards are similar to the one herein described and vary only in detail.

PAR. 3. Retail dealers who, directly or indirectly, purchase respondents' said candy, expose and sell the same to the purchasing public, in accordance with the sales plan aforesaid. Respondents thus supply to and place in the hands of others the means of conducting lotteries in the sale of their products in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondents of said sales plan or method in the sale of their candy and the sale of said candy by and through the use thereof, and by the aid of said sales plan or method, is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established public policy of the Government of the United States.

PAR. 4. The sale of candy to the purchasing public by the method or plan hereinabove found involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure bars of candy at prices much less than the normal retail price thereof. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell and distribute candy in competition with respondents, as above found, are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other method contrary to public policy, and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondents in the sale and distribution of their candy and in the element of chance involved therein, and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondents' candy in preference to candy of said competitors of respondents who do not use the same or equivalent methods. The use of said method by respondents because of said game of chance has a tendency and capacity to, and does, unfairly divert trade in commerce between and among various States of the United States to respondents from their said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent methods, and as a result thereof substantial injury is being and has been done by respondents to competition in commerce between and among various States of the United States.

CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of respondents as herein found are to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondents' competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

It is ordered, That Hugh C. Mitchum and Carl B. Tucker, individually, and trading as Southern Candy Co., or trading under any other name, their representatives, agents, and employees directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution of candy or any other merchandise in commerce as "commerce" is defined by the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Selling or distributing candy or any merchandise so packed and assembled that sales of such candy or other merchandise are to be made, or may be made, by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme;

2. Supplying to or placing in the hands of others push or pull cards, punch boards, or other lottery devices, either with assortments of candy or with other merchandise, or separately, which said push or pull cards, punch boards, or other lottery devices are to be used, or may be used, in selling or distributing such candy or other merchandise.

3. Selling or otherwise disposing of any merchandise by means of a game of chance, gift enterprise, or lottery scheme.

visions of said act, and it appearing to the Commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereto would be in the interest of the public, hereby issues its complaint, stating its charges in that respect as follows:

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent, Little Rock Tent & Awning Co., is a corporation, also trading as Tuf-Nut Garment Manufacturing Co., with its office and principal place of business located at Third and Commerce Streets, Little Rock, Ark. Respondent is now and for more than 1 year last past has been engaged in the manufacture of work garments and in the sale and distribution thereof under the trade name "Tuf-Nut" to wholesale dealers, jobbers, and retail dealers, located at various points in the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia. Respondent causes and has caused said garments, when sold, to be transported from its principal place of business in the city of Little Rock, Ark., to purchasers thereof at their respective points of location in various States of the United States other than Arkansas, and in the District of Columbia. There is now and has been for more than 1 year last past a course of trade by respondent in such garments in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

In the course and conduct of said business respondent is and has been in competition with other corporations and with partnerships and individuals engaged in the sale and distribution of work garments in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia.

PAR. 2. In the course and conduct of its business, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, respondent sells and has sold its garments to dealers by means of a method involving the use of a lottery scheme when such garments are sold and distributed to the consumers thereof. Said method of sale consists in furnishing dealers who purchase respondent's garments with a display poster bearing the following legend:

The dealers to whom the said poster is furnished display the same to the purchasing public. The card contains 60 blank spaces for registration of the names of purchasers of respondent's garments and each space is accompanied by a number, the numbers running consecutively from 1 to 60. Each purchaser of a garment makes a choice of a number and writes his name in the blank opposite such number selected. On the poster is a master seal under which is concealed a number. When the card is completely filled with the names of purchasers, the master seal is broken, revealing a number from 1 to 60 and the purchaser whose name is registered opposite the number corresponding with the number found under the master seal is entitled to receive for his award a Tuf-Nut Khaki Suit (shirt and pants to match) without additional charge. The number printed under the master seal is effectively concealed from purchasers and prospective purchasers until all of the numbers on the poster have been chosen. The said Tuf-Nut Khaki Suit is thus awarded to the purchaser of other of respondent's garments wholly by lot or chance.

PAR. 3. Retail dealers who purchase respondent's garments directly or indirectly, expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan. Respondent thus supplies to and places in the hands of others the means of conducting a lottery in the sale of its products in accordance with the sales plan hereinabove set forth. The use by respondent of said sales plan or method in the sale of its garments and the sale of said garments by and through the use thereof and by the aid of said sales plan or method is a practice of a sort which is contrary to an established policy of the government of the United States.

PAR. 4. The sale of said garments to the purchasing public in the manner above alleged involves a game of chance or the sale of a chance to procure a suit of other garments without cost. Many persons, firms, and corporations who sell and distribute work garments or similar merchandise in competition with respondent as above alleged are unwilling to adopt and use said method or any method involving a game of chance or the sale of a chance to win something by chance or any other method contrary to public policy and such competitors refrain therefrom. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of its garments and in the element of chance involved therein and are thereby induced to buy and sell respondent's garments in preference to garments of said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or equivalent methods. The use of said method by respondent because of said game of chance has a tendency and capacity to unfairly divert trade in commerce between and among the various States of the United States and in the District of Columbia to respondent from its said competitors who do not use the same or equivalent methods.

PAR. 5. The aforesaid acts and practices of respondent as herein alleged are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

REPORT, FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS, AND ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission, on April 4, 1941, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondent, Little Rock Tent & Awning Co., a corporation, trading as Tuf-Nut Garment Manufacturing Co., charging it with the use of unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. On April 24, 1941, respondent filed its answer in this proceeding. A hearing was held in this matter on October 1, 1941, at which time a stipulation as to the facts entered into by and between counsel for the Commission and counsel for the respondent was read into the record in lieu of testimony in support of the charges stated in the complaint, or in opposition thereto, and which stipulation further provided that the Commission may proceed upon said statement of facts and written briefs, without oral argument, to make its report stating its findings as to the facts and its conclusion based thereon and enter its order disposing of the proceeding. Respondent expressly waived the filing of a trial examiner's report upon the evidence.

Thereafter, this proceeding regularly came on for final hearing before the Commission upon said complaint, answer, testimony and other evidence in the form of a stipulation as to the facts upon the record, and briefs in support of the complaint and in opposition thereto; and the Commission having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes this its findings as to the facts and its conclusion drawn therefrom:

tive purchasers until all of the numbers on the poster have been chosen. The said Tuf-Nut Khaki Suit is thus awarded to the purchaser of other of respondent's garments wholly by lot or chance.

PAR. 4. Retail dealers who purchase respondent's garments, directly or indirectly, expose and sell the same to the purchasing public in accordance with the aforesaid sales plan. Many persons are attracted by said sales plan or method employed by respondent in the sale and distribution of its garments and in the element of chance involved therein, and are thereby induced to buy respondent's garments in preference to the garments of said competitors of respondent who do not use the same or equivalent methods. CONCLUSION

The aforesaid acts and practices of the respondent, as herein found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and of respondent's competitors, and constitute unfair methods of competition in commerce and unfair acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

IN THE MATTER OF

PACIFIC FRUIT & PRODUCE COMPANY, WALLA WALLA
GARDENERS' ASSOCIATION, ET AL.COMPLAINT, FINDINGS, AND ORDER IN REGARD TO THE ALLEGED VIOLATION OF SEC. 5 OF AN ACT OF CONGRESS APPROVED SEPT. 26, 1914*Docket 4487. Complaint, Apr. 16, 1941—Decision, Feb 24, 1942*

Where three corporations, two partners and a cooperative association, engaged, among other things, in shipping broad- or flat-leaf spinach from their respective packing houses at Walla Walla, Wash., particularly to jobbers for resale in Chicago and surrounding area in which such spinach, during the shipping season, from early September to late November, normally met no substantial competition—and prior to 1939, and but for acts and practices below set forth, in competition with one another and others in such shipment and sale, as were brokers and jobbers, below referred to, in purchase thereof;

Following a meeting in Chicago of the Chicago manager of a Minneapolis broker, the manager of aforesaid Walla Walla cooperative association, and the sales manager of one of four Chicago jobbers—

- (a) Entered into and carried out agreement to sell such broadleaf spinach only through aforesaid broker, with shipments to be allotted to said shippers on basis of sales of previous years; and

Where such shippers and four Chicago jobbers handling such product, following discussions and correspondence with aforesaid broker's Chicago manager—

- (b) Entered into and carried out agreement to the effect that the purchase and sale of product in question in the Chicago market would be prorated among the four jobbers concerned; and

Where said four jobbers—

- (c) Entered into and abided by agreement that they would purchase such Walla Walla spinach only from aforesaid shippers through said Minneapolis broker, and would rotate cars or portions thereof on the basis of previous years' purchases; and

Where aforesaid shippers, jobbers and brokers—

- (d) Entered into and abided by agreement that any request for purchase of spinach received by said shippers from any dealer other than jobbers herein concerned would be referred to said broker, who would advise such other jobbers or dealers that there were no cars of such spinach available; and

Where aforesaid jobbers, pursuant to such agreement, combination and conspiracy, and in furtherance thereof—

- (e) Established and maintained a fixed resale price at which such broadleaf spinach should be sold in the Chicago market;

With the result that said acts and practices, all to the prejudice and injury of the public, had a tendency to, and did actually, hinder and prevent price competition between and among said shippers, jobbers and brokers in the purchase and sale of fresh broadleaf spinach in commerce, and placed in them the power to control and enhance the prices of said commodity;

increased and fixed the prices thereof paid by purchasers, and consequently the prices paid by the public; created in said shippers, jobbers and brokers a substantial monopoly in the dealings in such commodity in commerce; and unreasonably restrained commerce in product in question:

Held, That such acts and practices, under the circumstances set forth, were all to the prejudice and injury of the public and competitors, and constituted unfair methods of competition in commerce.
