

It all seems a tad overzealous. There is much complaints out there about alot of things and as much as I do love the opportunity to find the blemished companies before I do business with them. I find people prefer to do the research for themselves. Getting the YUK from people looking to you for a commitment isn't a guarantee of accurate Info. But going to a third party does seem warranted.

WAITING to begin... Okay then waiting for Gun permits or drug cards fine... But waiting to work could really hurt someone. Timing is everything and an energetic start is the heart of the direct sales. So from my personal experience in Direct sales I used my beginning to launch my career. I am one year into the business with to really small kids I am able to control my job and work around my husbands career and be there for our kids. It's the american dream really everyone wants it but we all need ether to sustain it. I have to wonder if all the negatives would have allowed me to move on with this incredible life changing opportunity... I really hope you consider whats best for the majority keep it simple dont complicate things i really do appreciate all you do thank you for your consideration on this matter
Now wait 7days to think about this matter then decide...:)
Kidding have a great week