RE: Business Opportunity Rule, 16 CFR Part 437

We have been Quixtar IBO's for six years. We were told that it was not a get rich quick opportunity and were told the percentage of people who achieved substantial financial reward is small just as with any other start up business. The cost to get started is very minimal compared to traditional businesses. The typical cost of $60.00 which would be refunded if they decided to leave the business within 30 days.

Another problem for us is that requiring references violates the privacy of every IBO whose name, address and phone number was provided to prospects. It would also penalize the sponsor who would be required to give names and addresses of 10 other business owners to the prospect and they would be able to register our prospect.

If network markers are required to provide prospects with litigation lists, then other professionals should also be required to do so for the past 10 years. That would be nonsense.

As far as disclosure, every IBO is given the opportunity to print and read the Quixtar corporation business rules and what the average IBO earns in a year. It is printed on all of our prospecting brochures and literature.

We always try to be as transparent as we can be and impress upon the prospect that we cannot promise them anything and that it is hard work and takes a lot of time to build a business – it is definitely not getting rich very quickly.

These rules would really hurt us in our Quixtar business.
