Subject: FTC Proposed Rule 16 CFR Part 437

Good Morning:

I am an independent Associate of Pre-Paid Legal Services, Inc. This proposed FTC rule would negatively impact my home-based business by creating another example of "massive government paperwork" for the self employed.

The Rule would require me to provide a list of suits filed against an NYSE firm going back 10 years - information that is already available online through SEC files.

The Rule would require me to release personal information that may create a potential Identity Theft situation, a crime that both the FBI and FTC agree is the fastest growing 'white collar' crime today.

The Rule wants a seven-day waiting period for new Associates. The majority of new Associates join as Pre-Paid Legal Members, who then see the business opportunity of offering others the benefits of membership. Look at it this way, the FHA has a 3-day waiting period to refinance a home for $100,000's and the FTC wants a 7-day waiting period for a $249.00 small business investment.

I am confident you can see the logic of asking the FTC to reconsider the wisdom behind this Rule and its impact on small business owners.

Thank you for your kind attention to this matter. Bob Hollingshead
