

Dear Madam or Sir:

In spite of the many homeopathic choices, my purchasing experiences have been simple and straightforward when choosing a homeopathic remedy. I read the labels, compare the symptoms the bottle describes, and determine which product best suits my needs. The labels are easy to read and clear in meaning. There has never been any confusion, and I find that doing this works for me every time.

I don't have a great deal of experience with the homeopathic remedies yet, but by reading and following instructions, my family has experienced a dramatic decrease in illness and pain. The homeopathic approach is so effective, and all without the chemicals and side effects and dire warnings that OTC medicines have.

I strongly believe that the availability of homeopathic products in stores greatly benefits consumers seeking natural remedies for common ailments.

Respectfully,

Dorene Borrás