ATTACHMENT A

Subject: Important Notice About Deceptive Earnings Claims from Stormy Wellington

Dear <Participant>:

Our records show you may be a current or past _____ participant that was part of my downline. This letter explains the settlement of a lawsuit brought against me by the Federal Trade Commission (FTC), the nation's consumer protection agency. The FTC alleged that I misrepresented or didn't have reliable evidence to support some claims I made about earnings.

I have not admitted or denied the FTC's allegations. As part of the settlement, I must not make any misleading claims about the Total Life Changes opportunity, the Farmasi opportunity, or a similar opportunity. I must have reliable evidence to support the claims I do make. And any claims I make about a participant's earnings must be typical and supported by evidence.

What does the settlement mean?

1. I will not misrepresent that participants will, or are likely to make, money or a particular amount of money.
2. I will not misrepresent how much money any participant made or could make.
3. I will not misrepresent the reasons participants don't make money, or don't make a certain amount of money.
4. If I make any claims about a participant's earnings, those results must be truthful, and I must have reliable evidence to support those claims and provide that support in writing if requested by a participant, a prospective participant, or the FTC.

For more information about the settlement with the FTC, go to the FTC's Legal Library page at ftc.gov/legal-library/browse/cases-proceedings and search for "Wellington," "Total Life Changes" or "Farmasi."
